School van overturns near Justiceburg

JUSTICEBURG — A van carrying a high school student council group to a state convention in Austin overturned this morning, resulting in one death and numerous injuries.

One female student, name and age unknown, was pronounced dead at the scene by Garza County Peace Justice Sheila Melton. The mishap occurred about 10:30 a.m. some 26 miles north of Snyder on U.S. 84.

The 10 students and their two sponsors were from Amarillo Highland Park High School and were en route to a state student council convention.

Two students were evacuated by helicopter to a hospital in Lubbock and the remaining students were taken to Garza County Memorial Hospital in Post.

As many as five ambulances from Post and Snyder responded to the accident scene. It was not determined how serious the other students were injured, and some were able to walk to awaiting emergency vehicles.

The east-bound lane of U.S. 84 was blocked for about 45 minutes and traffic was backed up for several miles.

George Stewart, one of the sponsors, said the accident occurred when the driver and co-sponsor, Mrs. Mary Purcell, apparently reached to retrieve something on the floor, losing control of the vehicle.

The van overturned at least one time, coming to a stop in an upright position. Rains of up to two inches Wednesday night made the shoulder of the highway soft.

Teen-ager to be taken to Oklahoma

From local, wire reports

A 15-year-old boy wanted for questioning in the shooting death of his parents will be transported to Oklahoma today, following Wednesday's extradition hearing in Scurry County Courthouse.

The youth is in Lubbock County Youth Center awaiting transfer by a Henryetta police detective and an Okmulgee County sheriff's deputy.

The boy was taken into custody at 8:15 p.m. Monday just north of Dunn by Scurry County sheriff's deputies.

He is wanted for questioning in the double homicide of his parents, 40-year-old Johnny Stem and 39-year-old Donna Stem, of Henryetta. The couple was discovered in their home Monday morning by Mrs. Stem's father.

Henryetta police said the homicide apparently took place early in the morning. Neighbors heard the couple's van leaving about 2 a.m.

The van was discovered by Texas Department of Public Safety troopers 8 miles east of Snyder on Highway 208 about 7 p.m. Monday. Based on information provided by Henryetta police, sheriff's deputies went to a residence near Dunn owned by relatives of the victims, where they located the couple's son.

He was taken into custody without incident.

Henryetta police have said the couple was shot with a .22-caliber rifle. The rifle was found in the van. Local authorities said the youth had the keys to the van when he was taken into custody.

Henryetta police said Johnny Stem was found in bed with a single gunshot wound to the head. It was first reported that Mrs. Stem was shot three times. Police now say she was apparently shot five or six times.

No charges have been filed against the boy, who at least one neighbor says is the victim of child abuse.

Linda Lane, a neighbor, said the teen has "threatened to kill his parents because of the abuse."

"The last month, it got really bad so it's no surprise to us who live around here."

The youth was to have been extradited Tuesday. That hearing was postponed because 132nd District Judge Gene Dulaney was out of town and authorities were unable to locate anyone to handle the proceedings. Wednesday, Don Lane, a retired district judge from Abilene, presided over the hearing.

Rains, winds, rake area

From local, wire reports

Scurry County residents enjoyed some much-needed rainfall Wednesday night and early this morning, even if it did cause a minor inconvenience for some.

Locally, strong winds mixed with light hail caused some damage. Power and television cable lines were blown down in several areas throughout Snyder at various times during the evening. Residents in some of the western portions of the city reported brief power outages. Tree limbs were blown into the street along 37th and Denison, the 100 block of Peach and the 1300 block of 23rd.

The winds brought 1.27 inches of rainfall, according to the official weather gauge at the water pump and filter plant. More rain is forecast today and Friday.

Elsewhere, rain averaged a half-inch to almost 1½ inches. Fluvanna reported .6 of an inch with a little hail and strong winds. Hermleigh received a half-inch while residents out east on Highway 180 reported .6 of an inch.

North of the Snyder city limits, residents reported about 1.2 inches of rain with dime-sized hail and some damage to tree limbs.

Ira reported 1.3 inches with no hail or damaging winds.

Officials with the Colorado River Municipal Water District said Lake J.B. Thomas caught virtually no inflow. In contrast, Moss Creek near Big Spring benefitted from rainfall of 2 to 2½ inches.

The rains extended all across West Texas and North Texas early today and forecasts called for more of the same across most of the state tonight and Friday.

Fourth of July plans get committee's review

The chamber of commerce Fourth of July committee met Wednesday afternoon to work on this year's annual celebration.

Christie Devers, chairperson for arts and crafts, told members that she has had a "great response" from people reserving booths.

"Seventeen booths are already paid for, so that leaves only 16 more available," Devers said.

The committee is looking into using Towle Park Barn as possible space for more arts and crafts booths.

Sandra Barboza, chamber secretary, showed committee members samples of 3-D fireworks glasses the chamber has received. Committee members agreed they liked the idea and are looking into having the glasses available for the fireworks display.

Nelda Huddleston, committee member, discussed having a duck race in the pond as a fund-raiser with the Noah Project. The fund-draiser was approved.

Anyone who would like to volunteer to help with the Fourth of July celebration should contact the chamber office.

Members present were Travis Bunch, Huddleston and Devers.

FFA banquet slated tonight

Officers for the chapter are Dell Blackwell, president; Robert Kimmel, vice president; Bobby Cawthron, secretary; Tommy Henderson, reporter; Duffy Galloway; treasurer; Jennifer Trevey, sentinel; Danielle Vernon, student advisor; and Kristi McGuire, historian.

Trash best left alone, court says

After days of deliberating over rural trash collection services, commissioners voted unanimously today to let free enterprise regulate itself.

The court has been working on a contract concerning rural trash collection services but decided, after consulting with County Attorney Pete Greene, that collection of rural trash would be better managed if free enterprise regulated itself — rather than with a contract from commissioners.

According to Greene, the court can still come back at a later date and regulate trash services within the county.

Currently, 244 county residents contract with the city for trash collection. Sixty-six dumpsters are also provided by the city at precinct sites and community centers. Those 66 dumpsters will be picked up Sept. 10 of this year because the city is not renewing an intergovernmental contract with the county.

When the court was notified that the contract would not be renewed, commissioners began researching trash collection services for county residents.

"I talked to the city yesterday," County Judge Bob Doolittle told the court this morning. "It was my understanding, after talking with City Manager John Gayle, that they were not going to bid on this even if we did go out for bids. They merely want the citizens to Charles Anderson, retired school principal, was going through some things that belonged to his mother-in-law, the late Willie Newhouse. He found a Laird and Lee's vest-pocket dictionary copyrighted in 1894.

The dictionary contained some rules of etiquette. Here's a few samples.

In public:

--Don't give your arm, in the daytime, to a lady who is not your mother, wife or sister, or an elderly and invalid lady.

--Don't forget to render all necessary services to ladies in need of them.

--Don't take two ladies upon your arms, except for their protection.

--Don't expectorate on the sidewalk or in street cars. Go to the gutter.

In the palor:

--Don't ask questions about the price of the furniture.

--Don't always be touching people when addressing them.

--Don't stay too long anywhere.

--Don't moisten your thumb when dealing cards.

--Don't pretend to go and then stay.

In the dining room:

--Don't cut your bread. Break it off.

--Don't make any noise with your mouth while eating.

--Don't ever spit a bone or other substance upon your plate or the floor.

--Don't come to the table half dressed, half washed or half combed.

--Don't wipe your face with your napkin. It is for the lips and beard only.

--Don't look worried if a small accident should happen.

--Don't pile all the side dishes upon your plate when it is to be removed.

In dress and habits:

--Don't sink your hands in your trousers' pockets.

--Don't cleanse your nails, nose or your ears in public.

--Don't whistle in public places, nor inside houses either.

Macedonia to suffer from tougher sanctions

SKOPJE, Macedonia (AP) — Less than a month after admission to the United Nations, the Balkan republic faces economic collapse and a major challenge to its survival as a nation.

Traditionally the poorest republic in former Yugoslavia, Macedonia stands to be hardest hit by toughened international sanctions against its northern neighbor, Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

More than 70 percent of Macedonia's trade has been either with or through Serbia.

Previous sanctions had many loopholes, both legal and illegal, allowing Macedonia to cope.

Many industries, such as the Gazela shoe factory in Skopje, are in a stranglehold.

Despite fears that closing Macedonian border crossings with Serbia will be economic suicide, Colter said, "All the evidence I have suggests the government is committed to upholding sanctions."

"Like it or not — Macedonia's Serbia," said Dimitar Mircev, a professor at Skopje University.

"Our industry, our transportation infrastructure was all geared toward Serbia," Mircev pointed out. "Even today our electricity supply comes from the Yugoslav grid."

The impact of the disruption of trade with former Yugoslavia has been compounded by a bitter diplomatic dispute with Macedonia's southern neighbor Greece.

Greece objects to the newly independent country adopting a name shared by a Greek province.

Macedonia's desire to comply with the tighter sanctions threatens only to deepen the dispute.

"So far Macedonian authorities have been hesitant about clamping down on trade between Greece and Serbia so as not to worsen the existing political dispute — but now they have a different mandate," Colter said.

"Eighty railway cars leave Salonica three times a week and enter Serbia through Macedonia. We don't know what's on board the two states is down to a trickle.

"For Macedonia, to tighten the sanctions means tightening the noose around its own neck," said Dale Colter, head of the sanctions monitoring mission of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. "Upholding the blockade against Serbia will bring Macedonia to its knees."

Many industries, such as the Gazela shoe factory in Skopje, ments, as a number of goods like leather were not covered by the sanctions. Now Gazela is threatened with shutdown.

Previously, Macedonian companies could obtain permits from the United Nations to send or receive goods through Serbia to or from a third country, and the continued use of the north-south railroad played a vital role in keeping Macedonia afloat.

The new sanctions that prohibit much transshipment and tighten enforcement will keep Macedonia cords if they exit Serbia."

Previously Macedonia had no authority to impound such rolling stock, but Blagoje Stancevski, manager of Skopje's customs house, pledged that "now we will stop everything from crossing into Serbia."

Unless normal trade through Salonica resumes, Macedonia will be virtually sealed off from the rest of the world.

Graham receives reprieve

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death row inmate Gary Graham has at least 30 more days to pursue his claims of innocence after Gov. Ann Richards, in an unusual move, granted him a reprieve just hours before he was to have been executed early today.

"I pass no judgment on his guilt or innocence but believe that questions have been raised in this case that deserve further examination," Richards said in a brief statement released Wednesday less than eight hours before Graham was to have been put to death.

Graham, 29, already had made the 15-mile trip from the Ellis Unit, home of death row, to the Walls Unit in downtown Huntsville where executions are carried out, and had ordered a steak dinner as a final meal when prison officials received word of the reprieve, corrections spokesman Charles Brown said. Graham then was returned to death row.

He would have been the 200th convicted killer put to death in the nation since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed capital punishment to resume in 1976.

His case had drawn much interest from death penalty opponents, who conducted an extensive publicity campaign to try to keep him alive.

By state law, Richards is allowed to issue a single 30-day reprieve in a capital punishment case. Wednesday's action marked just the second time since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982 that a governor has blocked the penalty.

In the previous case, Richards halted the January 1992 execution of Johnny Frank Garrett, convicted of killing a Roman Catholic nun in Amarillo.

Severed nerve may cause diarrhea

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a kidney operation in which only a small cancerous area was removed. During this procedure, a nerve was cut which has caused pain in my side, and now I have a problem with diarrhea. I have swelling in my lower left abdomen which is on the same side as my surgery. This is further complicated by a slipped disc. What will happen to me?

DEAR READER: Although such a complication of kidney surgery would be unlikely, the surgeon may have inadvertently damaged some of the nerves to your intestine. This could, in theory, lead to diarrhea, bloating, distension, and abdominal pain. I do not believe that your symptoms will worsen; in fact, they may even improve with time.

Nonetheless, I urge you to bring these problems to your surgeon's attention. Perhaps with anti-gas medicine (such as Gas-X) or a modified diet (more fiber), your symptoms can be relieved.

A slipped disc may cause sciatica, pain that extends from the buttocks down either leg. This condition does not ordinarily affect digestion. The doctor can advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The word in newspaper columns is that beta-carotene helps prevent heart attacks. But isn't beta-carotene simply vitamin A? Too much vitamin A can be dangerous. Therefore, how much beta carotene can a person take on top of a multiple-vitamin tablet?

DEAR READER: Beta-carotene, a precursor of vitamin A, has been reported to reduce the risk of cancer and heart disease. It is preferable to vitamin A for two reasons.

First, the vitamin has not been shown to have as much anti-cancer protective effect as does beta-carotene. Therefore, there's little sense in taking vitamin A for this purpose.

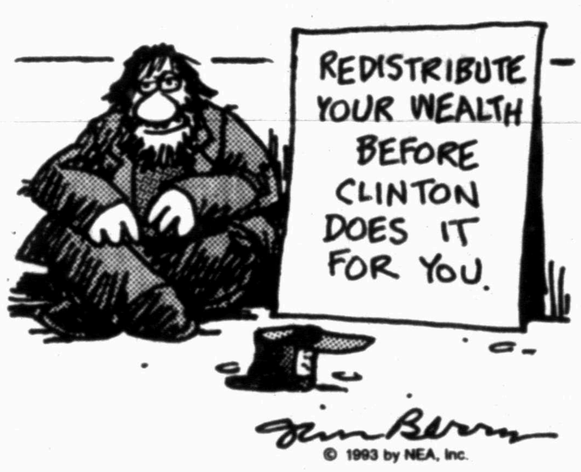

Second, beta-carotene is far safer than vitamin A. The vitamin, even in a low dose (below 25,000 international units a day), can cause toxicity, such as liver damage. Because beta-carotene is not stored in the liver, it doesn't cause toxicity. The major consequence of excess carotene ingestion is carotenemia, in which high levels color the skin yellow-orange. The condition is harmless.

The Recommended Dietary Allowance for vitamin A is 1,000 to 3,000 IU/day; for beta-carotene, 6 milligrams a day. Beta-carotene is safe to take, even in doses that exceed the RDA by several hundred times.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Fads I — Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

A good trade is a winning play

The world is in a vicious circle. More and more babies are being born, yet with increased computerization and mechanization, industry requires fewer workers. Henny Youngman said of his brother-in-law, "I wish he would learn a trade, so we'd know what kind of work he was out of."

With extra leisure time, more people may take up bridge. It is a great game for keeping the brain from atrophying. And maybe these new players will recognize a good trade when they see one — as in today's deal.

How should South play in five clubs, West leading off with two top diamonds?

North-South did well to avoid four spades. If the defenders attack diamonds, this contract would require a very favorable lie of the cards to succeed.

After ruffing the second diamond, South drew trumps. He followed with a spade to dummy's king and a spade to his ace. West's discard stopped South dead in his tracks. No matter how he tried to wriggle, rigor mortis was setting in. Declarer had to lose a trick in each side suit.

Declarer should have been willing to trade one spade trick for a guarantee on his contract. After drawing trumps and playing a spade to the king, South should have finessed his spade jack.

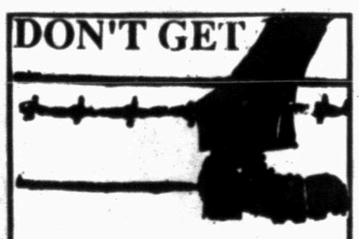

Here it wins and declarer can ruff his two spade losers in the dummy for 11 tricks in all. But suppose the finesse loses. Then declarer has three spade winners in hand, on which he can discard three of dummy's hearts. This time South's 11th trick will be a heart ruff in the dummy.

Astrograph By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

April 30, 1993

Joint ventures you'll have in the year ahead with people you love and trust should prove advantageous for all concerned. Alliances you make with those you don't know too well, however, might fizzle out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your objectives are achievable today, but the road to success could be a rocky one. In order to fulfill your goals, you will require both ingenuity and persistence. Taurus, get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might be privy to some helpful information today, yet not fully appreciate its worth because of a prejudiced feeling against the source. Don't be biased.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you've accumulated a bit of surplus at this time, apply some of it toward old obligations. It is best to go to your creditors before they come to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't expose your bright ideas today to people who can't comprehend their value. Negative comments might discourage you and slow your progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful to whom you repeat hearsay or gossip today. Talking out of turn might unwittingly damage someone who is undeserving of criticism.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you are trading with or buying something from a friend today, you might not get as good a deal as you could if you went to a person or firm you didn't know.

Jackpot reaches $50 million with no Wednesday winner

AUSTIN (AP) — This Saturday's Texas Lotto jackpot will be the highest ever — an estimated $50 million — since there was no winner in Wednesday night's drawing, state comptroller John Sharp said.

Wednesday's estimated $25 million jackpot had first-time players buying tickets and Lotto sales outlets beefing up their staff to keep up with the volume of business.

People bought an average of 20,000 tickets a minute on Wednesday. The day's sales totaled $19.5 million, more tickets than the lottery had sold in any previous week since the lottery began last November, Sharp said.

Wednesday was a day of firsts for the Texas Lottery, said Lottery Director Nora Linares. "Our first $25 million jackpot, our first day of averaging $20,000 in sales per minute, and the first really big day for our system of Lotto Texas retailers, who came through today's ground-zero pace of ticket sales with flying colors."

Sharp said that sales on Monday topped $1.5 million and on Tuesday totaled $3.8 million.

The lottery prize was the largest offered since Nov. 28, 1992, when Janie Kallus of Schulenburg became the first Lotto Texas winner and claimed $21.7 million.

The numbers drawn last night were: 1-8-10-28-34-49. (one, eight, ten, twenty-eight, thirty-four, forty-nine.)

Officials said 238 tickets matched five of six numbers for a $2,617 prize each, while 16,938 tickets matched four of six numbers for a $132 prize and 373,178 tickets matched three of six numbers for a $3 prize.

The jackpot has been growing since April 14, when Willie Mae Smith of Houston won $8 million. With no winners since then in the twice-weekly drawings, the jackpot continued to multiply.

The comptroller said lotto sales outlets were experiencing booming business.

"Lotto Texas players aren't the only ones stocking up on tickets," Sharp said.

"Since early this week, our more than 8,000 lotto retailers across the state have been stocking up on game supplies — play slips and ticket stock. Some retailers have even made plans to schedule extra staff to accommodate the increase in player traffic," he said.

Bullock: concealed handguns bill is over

AUSTIN (AP) — Supporters of a concealed handgun bill said they were angered over Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock's decision to stop the legislation at the Senate door.

"I'm angry and very much concerned that the Senate has abdicated its responsibilities to the citizens of Texas," state Rep. Bill Carter, R-Fort Worth, said Wednesday.

Bullock said the Senate would not consider the House-approved handgun bill because of Gov. Ann Richards' promise to veto the legislation, and because of the numerous other issues before the Legislature.

"She said she's going to veto it, and that's good enough for me, and that was good enough for members of the Texas Senate," Bullock said after he met with senators behind closed doors for about 40 minutes.

"And if any blame is to be placed, they can blame it on me. My name is Bullock," he said.

Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, who was expected to carry handgun legislation in the Senate, said he wasn't disturbed by the Senate's decision.

"I'm certainly not going to waste this body's time on an issue that ultimately for all practical purposes is a dead issue," he said.

In vowing to veto the bill if it reached her desk, Richards said it would spark more violence.

She commended Bullock for stopping the bill at the Senate door.

"I think he understands that we've got serious problems in this state and the Legislature needs to address them," Richards said. "The fact that we have spent this much time on this issue is simply amazing to me with all the work we have to do."

Valvano succumbs to cancer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Almost every recollection of Jim Valvano contained a moment which left an impression hard to erase.

From the political circles of Washington to basketball courts nationwide, people were touched by the former North Carolina State coach.

Colleagues spoke of a fun-loving guy from New York who never stopped talking hoops and then dedicated the final months of his life to fighting what was cutting it short.

Valvano, who showed the same flair and wit on the way to a national championship as he did when he gave up his job amid a scandal, lost a 10-month fight with cancer Wednesday. Valvano was 47, and while most acknowledged they would miss him, others talked about his contributions to the game ... and life.

"He fought the good fight, the gallant fight against bone cancer, but I submit that he established himself as a profile in courage," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who took time on the Senate floor to tell the story of the 1983 national championship team that couldn't get to Washington to visit President Reagan after its improbable victory over a bigger and more-talented Houston.

NCAA rules at the time prevented a championship team from traveling more than 100 miles from its home campus, meaning the Wolfpack wouldn't enjoy the privilege of others before them. Helms said Valvano knew of the rule and had a plan.

"They can rule against the team going down to Washington and sitting down with the President of the United States, but there is no rule, NCAA or otherwise, that says Jim Valvano has to stay in Raleigh," said Helms, recalling a conversation with the coach.

Valvano said he would not only visit the President, but would arrange a satellite link back to Raleigh as the team sat in a television studio. The link was established, but Reagan had to take care of last-minute protocol before the ceremony began.

"The President said 'Is it Val-van-oh or Val-von-oh? I want to pronounce your name right,' " Helms said.

"It is Val-van-oh," the coach responded, "And by the way, Mr. President, is it Re-gan or Ray-gan?"

Six years after he became basketball coach at N.C. State, Valvano took on the additional role of athletic director. He held both jobs until 1989, when his program was the focus of allegations of wrongdoing based on the book "Personal Fouls."

In 1987, Atlantic Coast Conference commissioner Gene Corrigan had let Valvano know how he felt about the dual jobs.

"I want you to know something from the very beginning. I do not believe you should have been both the athletic director and the basketball coach," Corrigan said of his conversation with Valvano. "That's just a personal bias that I had.

"For the next half-hour, he regaled me on why he should have both jobs. When I left, I wasn't sure of my position."

There was one thing that Corrigan was sure of.

"He was the most unique person I think I've ever met," he said.

Valvano, who lived in Cary, is survived by his wife, Pam, and daughters Jamie, Nicole and Lee Ann. A wake is scheduled for this evening, and funeral services will be held Friday at 11 a.m. EDT at St. Andrew's R.C. Church in Apex.

Hornets battle Celtics in first playoff series in team history

All those championship banners and retired uniform numbers at Boston Garden must be awfully intimidating for the Charlotte Hornets.

"It doesn't mean nothing to us," Kenny Gattison said of the Celtics' tradition of playoff success. "We don't have enough sense to worry about it. This is our first playoffs, and we're just pumped up."

Flying against caution, the Hornets even have admitted they'd rather play fourth-place Boston in the first round of the NBA playoffs, beginning tonight, than New York, Chicago or Cleveland, the top three teams in the Eastern Conference.

With Alonzo Mourning and Larry Johnson leading the way, the Hornets have reason for optimism.

"We know Boston can't run with us and we need to take that advantage," Mourning said. "I think we can overpower them with our endurance and speed."

"When (the ball) is in my hands, they're going to have to run with me," said point guard Muggsy Bogues, who is recovering from a groin injury, but says he is 90 percent of full strength.

Other playoffs tonight include San Antonio at Portland and the Los Angeles Clippers at Houston in the Western Conference, and New Jersey at Cleveland in the East.

On Friday night, it's the Los Angeles Lakers at Phoenix, Atlanta at Chicago, Indiana at New York and Utah at Seattle.

The Celtics, with Sherman Douglas and Dee Brown at point guard, believe they can run with the younger Hornets. Kevin Gamble, Reggie Lewis and Xavier McDaniel also like that style.

"He's a lot like George Gervin, tall and wiry," Hornets coach Allan Bristow said of Lewis. "He gets his shot up no matter how well you guard him."

Brown appears recovered from a minor hip injury. Kevin McHale is bothered by a sore back, but probably will play. McHale, believed to be on the verge of retiring, is critical for Boston to cope with the rebounding of Mourning and Johnson.

"We just have to make sure that we slow Muggsy up," Lewis said. "We can't allow him to get into the heart of our defense, breaking us down and dishing off to the big guys cutting to the basket."

The Hornets' small forward spot is shared by Johnny Newman and David Wingate, a former high school teammate of Lewis in Washington, D.C.

Stephenville hosts season's last rodeo

The Western Texas College's men's rodeo team will head into its final stop of the 1992-93 season with a virtual lock on the NIRA Southwest Regional championship.

The Westerners will compete in the Tarleton State University Rodeo in Stephenville today through Saturday.

Performances are set for 7:30 p.m. nightly at Erath County Rodeo Arena. Saturday's finals will feature the top 10 qualifiers in each event.

The Westerners are led by dominant roughstock specialists, including Travis Whiteside, who won the bareback riding in Abilene last week, Thad Little, who was first in saddle bronc riding, and Dewayne Evans, who took second for WTC in bull riding.

Western Texas' women's team is fresh from a first-place 130-point outing at the H-SU event.

The WTC women were led by all-around winner Leslie Greer, who was second in barrel racing and third in goat tying at Abilene.

Western Texas' women's squad is in third place within the region heading into this weekend's stop in Stephenville.

The top two teams and the top two individual qualifiers in each event in the region will earn a spot at the College National Finals Rodeo in Bozeman, Mont. June 14-20.

Junior Olympics Festival entry deadline due May 7

Snyder's annual Junior Olympics Festival is planned for Saturday, May 15, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the high school stadium. The deadline for entering is Friday, May 7.

Students in elementary grades kindergarten through sixth are eligible to participate. Entry forms may be obtained through each elementary school.

To be eligible, students must turn in an entry form signed by a parent or guardian by May 7.

Each child may enter three events. Choices include running broad jump, soft ball throw, 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 200-yard run, 400-yard run (third through sixth graders only), and the buddy shuttle run which will consist of two players running 50 yards each.

In addition to the usual track and field events, game booths and concession stands will also be operated.

All profits from the junior olympics festival, including the sale of T-shirts, will be divided evenly through the five elementary schools in Snyder.

Poll shows most Americans oppose Clinton's budget plan

DALLAS (AP) — A pollster hired by Ross Perot reported Wednesday that Americans oppose President Clinton's proposed budget, saying it emphasizes taxes rather than spending cuts and does not eliminate the budget deficit.

Perot, who is recruiting members for his United We Stand America citizens organization, said the poll reflected what people have told him — that they willing accept higher taxes only to balance the budget.

"They're only willing to pay taxes if we cut spending," the former presidential candidate said during a news conference at a North Dallas hotel. "There's little or no interest in increasing spending."

Conducted after Perot's 30-minute television program Sunday, the poll found that 47 percent of the respondents would vote against the Clinton plan if they were members of Congress, while 37 percent would vote for it. Another 16 percent were undecided, according to the survey conducted by Gordon S. Black Corp. of Rochester, N.Y.

PD makes 3 arrests, closes unrelated case

Snyder police made three arrests and closed an unrelated case Wednesday.

Officers identified four men, ages 17, 18, 23 and 24, as suspects in the burglary of Westerner Golfland earlier this month. Two of the men, the 17-year-old and 23-year old, had been arrested on burglary charges Monday.

The other two men have not been arrested. The case has been forwarded to the district attorney's office.

At 2:16 p.m. Wednesday, police arrested a 37-year-old man in the 3000 block of College Avenue on a city warrant for failure to appear.

Police arrested a 23-year-old woman at 6:32 p.m. at 29th Street and Avenue K on a warrant for making alcohol available to a minor.

And at 10:38 p.m., police arrested a 19-year-old man in the 1700 block of 25th Street on a warrant for failure to appear.

Officers worked a traffic accident at 7:03 a.m. Wednesday in the 400 block of Coliseum Drive. Involved were a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Ennis Powell of 509 35th St. and a 1993 Chevrolet pickup driven by Jerry Don Greene of 2106 KSNY Drive.

At 9:20 a.m., officers were asked to check on two juveniles who appeared to be prowling around in the 1300 block of 24th Street. The boys, both age 15, were transported to the police department and later released to their mothers.

At 9:23 a.m., Laura Reyes reported the theft of her daughter's 10-speed Western Flyer bicycle. The bike was located about noon and returned to her.

A man contacted police at 8:05 p.m. in reference to problems he was having with a juvenile. A report for disorderly conduct, language and jestures, was filed.

At 11:54 p.m., Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room staff notified police of an assault victim. A report for Class C assault was filed.

Lubbock police contacted local authorities at 12:38 a.m. today to alert them that they had received a message about a subject traveling to Snyder. The message indicated a 20-year-old woman would be on a bus arriving in Snyder at 1:35 a.m. and would shoot the first officer she saw. Local police met the woman when the bus arrived. She was unarmed and officers allowed her to continue on the bus.

Police speculate that someone who was angry because the woman left Lubbock may have made the false threat to get back at her.

Search for cult bodies nearing end

WACO, Texas (AP) — Seven victims of the massive fire that crumbled the Branch Davidian compound had been shot, the lead medical examiner said today.

Dr. Nizam Peerwani, of the Tarrant County medical examiner's office, said he found the wounds among the first 27 autopsies he's performed. So far, the names of three of the four people identified have been released.

Peerwani declined to say whether the bullet wounds were self inflicted.

"We have a monumental task of going through the crime scene work as well as finishing all our laboratory studies before we conclude whether they were self-inflicted gunshot wound or were shot by somebody else," Peerwani said on "The Today Show" this morning.

The pathologist added that 25 of the 65 bodies removed from the charred ruins of last Monday's blaze have been pulled from a fortified room where cult leader David Koresh stashed much of his ammunition.

Peerwani said four more corpses have been located in the structure.

"Perhaps they thought it was the safest place to be when the fire broke out," he said.

The cinderblock area and a series of underground tunnels are the final two areas that will be searched for more bodies, officials said.

"If we don't get really delayed by bad weather ... we'll probably [illegible] by the end of the week," said Mike Cox, spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety, which is handling the cleanup.

But officials say they're not sure how many more corpses to look for because they think Koresh may have lied about having 94 followers with him during his 51-day standoff with authorities at the so-called Ranch Apocalypse. "That 95 figure from David Koresh has never been substantiated by law enforcement. In fact, our feeling is that there are fewer than 95 people," Cox said.

Paul and Cindy Torres of Snyder announce the birth of their son born at 4:16 a.m. on April 29 at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He weighed seven pounds and 16 ounces.

Trucker blames brakes during testimony

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Coca-Cola truck driver Ruben Perez was poorly trained to handle a 44,000-pound rig that rammed a school bus into a caliche pit where 21 students drowned, a trainer testified today.

"He had absolutely no training to bring him up to a professional level," Don Asa of Phoenix told the jury weighing criminal negligence charges against Perez.

Asa is the final witness for the defense, which is trying to blame the accident on Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co.'s truck maintenance and training programs.

A truck-driving trainer, Asa said he took Perez out in a similar vehicle after the accident to examine his abilities.

Hidalgo County District Attorney Rene Guerra was scheduled today to cross-examine Asa, who also was qualified as a braking expert for the defense.

Asa testified Wednesday that Valley Coca-Cola didn't adjust or maintain the brakes properly on Perez's truck, which passed by a stop sign before the collision on Sept. 21, 1989.

Asa told the jury that he found 2 quarts of sludge in an air tank connected to the truck's air brakes.

Defense attorney Bob Binder asked Asa what should have been in the tank.

"About a teaspoon of water," said Asa, who added that he found contamination throughout the brake lines.

"Should there have been any water contamination in the lines at all?" Binder asked later.

"Not a drop," said Asa.

Asa said the sludge — a mixture of oil, water, dust and other contaminants — made the brakes unreliable.

"You can have a catastrophic failure on one day, and the brakes work fine the next day," Asa said. "That's why you keep contaminants out of the system."

Asa was hired by the Texas Department of Public Safety to investigate the brakes within two days of the accident. He later became a witness for plaintiffs' attorneys who sued Coca-Cola and Perez's criminal defense.

Perez, 29, faces up to one year in prison if convicted of criminally negligent homicide.

Asa also said the braking power of the truck was reduced "dramatically" because of three out-of-adjustment slack adjustors.

Coca-Cola had not adjusted the slack adjustors for more than 2,000 miles beyond what the truck manufacturer recommended, Asa testified.

The defense claims that trees blocked the stop sign from Perez's view, but Guerra contends Perez should have anticipated the stop because he was driving his own shortcut.

Firemen kept busy

Snyder fire fighters were dispatched to several calls Wednesday.

Firemen responded to a grass fire in the 2900 block of Avenue M at 4:51 p.m.

At 7:45 p.m., firemen extinguished a telephone pole on fire at Coliseum Drive and 37th Street.

And at 10:23 p.m., firemen assisted at 309 25th Street where a clothes dryer had become overheated.

Fire officials said they also responded to about a dozen public service calls Wednesday.

Clinton's choice for drug czar said experienced

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Police Commissioner Lee Brown, the nation's drug czar-designate, has seen close-up the problems caused by drugs and the fight against them — community protest, political controversy and police corruption.

Brown, 55, was the first black to head police forces in Atlanta and Houston before Mayor David Dinkins appointed him New York's commissioner in 1990.

Brown took a lot of heat when he beefed up New York's "community policing" by reassigning hundreds of narcotics officers to neighborhood beats. More than 3,000 officers now walk beats, up from 750 several years ago.

"He changed the strategy to emphasize prevention," Thomas Reppetto, director of the Citizens Crime Commission, said Wednesday. "There's been some criticism of that, but the idea is to get cops on the beat to keep drug dealers out of the neighborhoods."

Astronauts flex robot arm

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Columbia's astronauts flexed a life-size robot arm, the likes of which may someday relieve some of the drudgery of space travel.

This is Day 4 of the shuttle's nine-day U.S.-German science mission.

Late Wednesday, German astronaut Hans Schlegel turned on the 21/2-foot, six-jointed arm and got it to move as planned after adjusting a joint that scientists on the ground said may been bumped out of place during liftoff.

Today, the arm jerked up and down inside its enclosure to commands from ground controllers. This time, vibration knocked a different joint slightly out of range of the arm's computer software, causing the limb to stop moving.

Cleanup funds authorized for former refinery

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Water Commission has authorized up to $1 million for the preliminary cleanup of a former refinery site near Colorado City.

The money will go toward the removal of three storage tanks at the Col-Tex Refinery Site, which covers about 200 acres north and south of State Highway 377 in Mitchell County.

The tanks include such hazardous wastes as benzene and chromium. One tank has a storage capacity of 80,000 barrels. The others can hold up to 55,000 barrels.

Refinery operations began in 1928 and continued under various owners until 1968, when operations were moved to a refinery in Big Spring.

The storage containers have remained at the site — punctured and leaking hazardous substances — which have migrated into the Colorado River.

Additional surfact water migration of hazardous susbstances is being temporarily prevented with oil absorbant booms in the river. Some contaminated groundwater migration is also being temporarily prevented with the use of a hydrocarbon abatement system that acts as a filter and barrier.

The water commission also ordered current and past site owners to develop a comprehensive plan that will result in the total cleanup of the site.

have the option to chose them or another company — basically, that it not be restricted."

Doolittle said he thought it would come down to price. "Who ever can provide the lowest price is who will get to haul people's trash," Doolittle said.

Commissioners said they plan to have meetings soon informing county residents of what their options are concerning trash services.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Who is stealing large firm. We were all told that stealing from the company could be grounds for immediate dismissal, so I want to know what you think constitutes theft.

A few months ago, the company hosted a luncheon for about 20 employees from my department. The luncheon was held at a very fine restaurant in a private room. (The restaurant provided "doggy bags" so the diners could take home their leftovers.) Each guest was allowed to order from the menu.

One employee with our group purposely ordered about three times as much as she could eat, and joked that she was having dinner guests that evening and the leftovers would come in handy. Abby, everyone there heard her — including the executives — and nobody said a word. Of course, the company paid the entire bill.

Now you tell me, Abby, was this stealing from the company or not?

CURIOUS IN ATLANTA

DEAR CURIOUS: It was cheap and chintzy of that employee to have taken advantage of the company's generosity, but since it was done in full view of management, and the employee made no secret of her chutzpah, I would not call it stealing.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me how you size up the following? My wife recently had some extensive dental work done by her regular dentist, which involved numerous visits.

After the job was finished, my wife received six yellow roses with a card that said, "Thank you for being such a great patient!"

Abby, this action upset me. Isn't this a rather presumptuous thing for a dentist to do? My wife thought it was "sweet." I did not share her enthusiasm.

I am interested in knowing what you think of this.

ROSES IN BROOKLYN

DEAR ROSES: Sorry, I do not share your negative reaction to the gesture. I, too, think it was sweet.

DEAR ABBY: My parents were European, of humble origin, but their manners were impeccable. They taught me that in a theater, cinema, church, etc., when one is trying to reach an empty seat by sliding in front of people who are already seated, you are always supposed to face the people who are already seated.

I go to the theater a lot, and I have seldom seen this done. Instead, I see people's rear ends sliding past my face. Which way is correct?

RUDOLPH R. SPANDANO, HACIENDA HEIGHTS, CALIF.

DEAR MR. SPANDANO: Your European-born parents taught you properly. Apparently the theatergoing crowd you have recently encountered were not as fortunate in their upbringing.

DEAR ABBY: In 1986, you printed a wonderful piece by Rev. Martin Niemoeller called "I Didn't Speak Up." Will you please put it in your column again, in view of all the trouble in Bosnia-Herzegovina? Maybe it will speak again to your readers as it did to me. God bless you.

KAREN PLATE, SNOHOMISH, WASH.

DEAR KAREN: Yes. Thank you for requesting that piece. It couldn't be more timely:

I Didn't Speak Up

"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, but I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

Religious discrimination lawsuit filed

AUSTIN (AP) — A former state employee has filed a lawsuit alleging she was the victim of religious discrimination and was forced to resign because she did not have the "right religious beliefs."

The former employee of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation alleges harassment and intimidation because she was not a Presbyterian like other top MHMR officials. She is a member of the Church of Christ.

No similar religious discrimination lawsuit has been filed against the state in recent memory, Ron Dusek, spokesman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, said Wednesday.

The lawsuit filed by Lael Byers, former assistant director of volunteer services at MHMR, alleges she was discriminated against for 13 months by her then-supervisor, Margaret "Peg" Barry.

"Ms. Barry told (Byers) that she needed to change her religion because 'anyone who was important and was at the top at the central office (of MHMR) was a Presbyterian,'" according to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit, filed in Travis County district court, names Ms. Barry and the agency as defendants.

Sheila Allee, spokeswoman for MHMR, said Barry is on vacation.
