Mexico agrees to $700 million debt payment to United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico today agreed to repay $700 million in emergency loans supplied by the United States to help the country through a financial crisis. It marked the first repayment on $12.5 billion supplied by the Clinton administration.

"The American taxpayer is being repaid ahead of schedule," President Clinton said in a statement.

The announcement in Washington came after Mexico successfully raised the money earlier in the day in a bond auction on international money markets. It sold about $700 million of five-year bonds at a 9.375 interest rate.

Administration officials said the sale showed that the U.S.-backed aid package has boosted confidence in the Mexican economy.

The White House hoped the announcement would buffer the Clinton administration against attempts by Republican lawmakers to scuttle the bailout.

"It is critically important that Mexico remain a stable neighbor, continuing to grow as a market for our exports and to cooperate with us on a broad range of issues of mutual concern," Clinton said.

Summers said Mexican president Ernesto Zedillo told Clinton by telephone today that the first payment was on its way to the United States. Zedillo and Clinton meet Oct. 10 at the White House.

With critics in mind, Deputy Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers argued today that the bailout prevented a crash of the Mexican economy that also would have hurt U.S. exports.

"Our trade deficit with Mexico is smaller than it would have been" without the bailout package, he said.

Mexico remains mired in a deep recession. Both the administration and the Mexican government hoped the repayment would provide confidence to international investors that Mexico's economic recovery program is working.

Irish poet wins Nobel for literature

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Poet Seamus Heaney of Ireland, whose lyrical works portray the pain of sectarian strife and the joy of growing up in a Roman Catholic farming family, won the 1995 Nobel Prize in literature today.

The Swedish Academy that awards the prize lauded the 56-year-old Heaney for poems "of lyrical beauty and ethical depth, which exalt everyday miracles and the living past."

"As an Irish Catholic, he has concerned himself with analysis of the violence in Northern Ireland with the express reservation that he wants to avoid the conventional terms," read the prize citation.

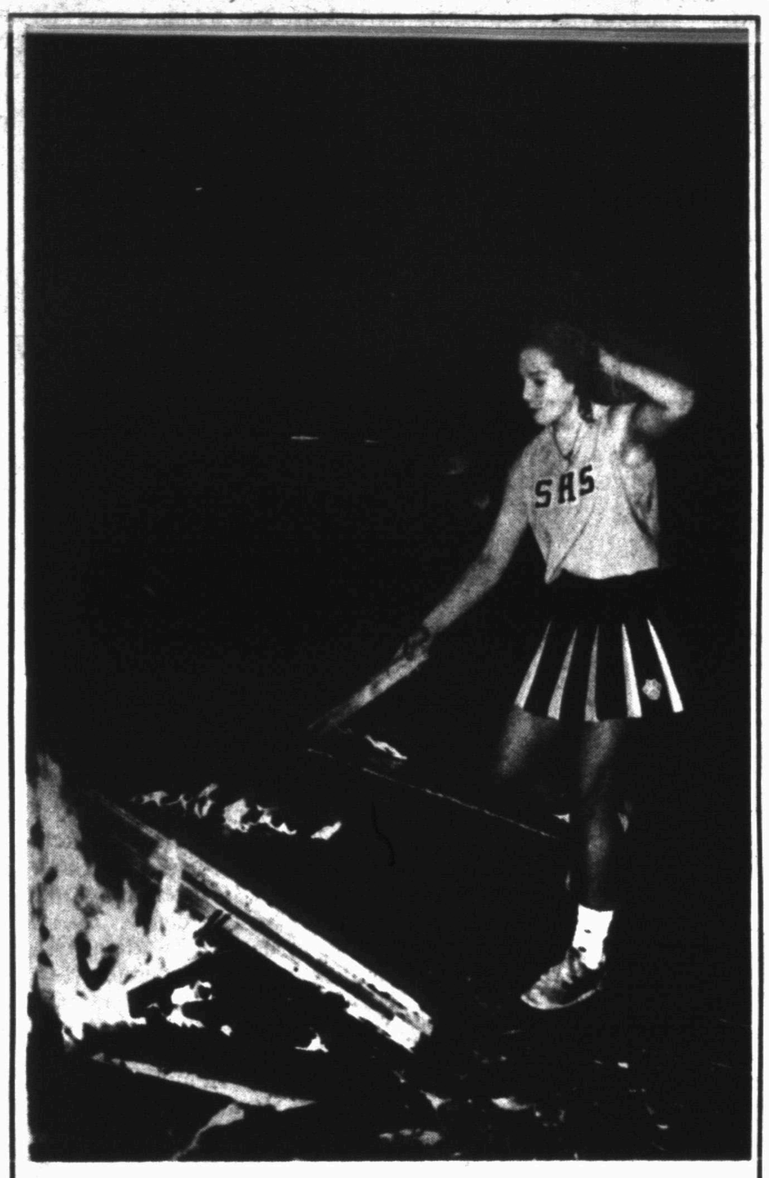

"In his opinion, the fact that there has been unwillingness on both sides to speak out has been of great importance in the explosive development," it said.

Faber and Faber, his London publishers, said Heaney, a perennial candidate for the prize, was traveling in Greece and was out of touch.

Heaney, who writes in English and Irish, will receive his award at a ceremony on Dec. 10, along with the 1995 laureates for physics, chemistry, economics, medicine or physiology, and peace, to be announced next week.

The prize is worth more than $1 million for the first time in its 94-year history, due largely to a weak U.S. dollar and shrewd investing by the Nobel Foundation.

In 1991, Heaney told the Financial Times newspaper that "my language and my sensibility is yearning to admit a kind of religious or transcendental dimension."

Bosnia agrees to cease-fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton announced today that a cease-fire had been reached by warring factions in Bosnia to end nearly four years of strife and bloodshed.

Clinton said the cease-fire, to take effect Oct. 10, was "an important moment in the painful history" of the former Yugoslavia.

The president also announced that the parties involved would begin talks in the United States on Oct. 25 to nail down details.

Mindful of other cease-fires that had fallen by the wayside, Clinton said, "we need to be clear-eyed about this. It matters what the parties do, not just what they say."

Clinton's brief announcement came as the United Nations reported that the Croatian army has gone back into Bosnia, possibly signaling increased fighting.

And the announcement of a cease-fire among Bosnian Serbs, Bosnian Muslims and Croatians came a day after NATO resumed attacks on Serb targets that had been halted since Sept. 20.

Clinton said that, under the accord, the combatants had agreed to "put down their arms and roll up their sleeves and work for peace."

The U.S. peace effort has been spearheaded by Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke and had been aimed first at getting the warring sides to sign a cease-fire and then to have them agree on a lasting peace.

Holbrooke called the president with the breakthrough from the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo after a final meeting with Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic.

The cease-fire is to run for 60 days. With it, all parties will ensure that all military commanders will issue orders barring offensive operations. All sniper fire and laying of mines are to cease.

Kerr Merit semifinalist

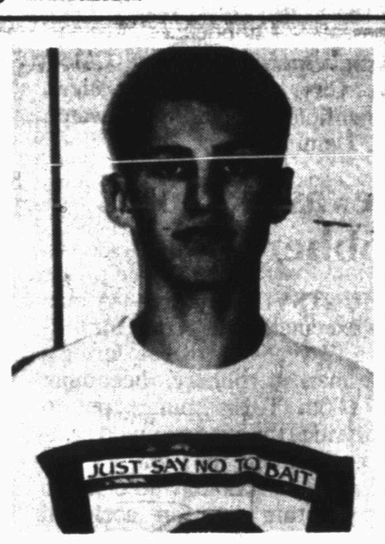

David C. Kerr, a senior at Snyder High School, is a semifinalist in the 41st annual National Merit Scholarship Program. He, along with some 15,000 other semifinalists, have an opportunity to continue in the competition for approximately 6,900 Merit Scholarship awards, worth about $26 million, to be offered next spring.

Kerr, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Kerr, transferred to Snyder from Canada his sophomore year. In UIL competition last school year, Kerr was an alternate to the state UIL science competition.

Other school activities include the National Honor Society, the French Club and Student Council.

Canada does not have UIL competition, but while a high school student there, Kerr participated in volleyball, badminton and tennis.

After graduation, Kerr is considering a degree in natural science engineering.

Homecoming parade set for 5 o'clock today

Snyder High School gets ready for its annual homecoming this weekend with a parade today around the courthouse square.

The parade will form at 4:30 in the former Kmart parking lot and at 5 o'clock will head north on College Avenue, around the square and stop at the gazebo for a community wide pep rally.

Friday's homecoming activities begin with a pep rally at 3 p.m. in the high school gym. At 7:30, the varsity football team entertains Kermit.

Halftime ceremonies are to include the presentation of the homecoming queen. Nominees are Karrah Griswold, Paige Bell, Kelly Hart, Trisha McGrew and Brooke Cozart. They will be escorted by their fathers.

A dance will follow in the student center for SHS students and exes. Admission is $3 per person or $5 per couple.

Kelton: 'Texas' best kept literary secret'

Longtime Western writer to autograph books during festival here

Elmer Kelton, Western writer who will be in Snyder for the White Buffalo Festival on Saturday, has been called "Texas' best kept literary secret."

That's not to say his work has gone unnoticed. He's won numerous awards for his novels over the years, including two Western Heritage Awards from the Cowboy Hall of Fame and four Spur Awards from the Western Writers of America.

Kelton received the Levi Strauss Golden Saddleman Award in 1977 for the contribution made by his work to the general body of Western literature.

He attracted a different kind of attention when his novel The Good Old Boys was turned into a TV movie starring Tommy Lee Jones.

Another of his novels, The Wolf and the Buffalo, has recently been reprinted by the Texas Christian University Press as part of its Texas Tradition Series. In taking note of the reprint, Texas Monthly magazine wrote that Kelton "...has the true, unhurried touch that comes to a writer only after he has worked long years at his craft."

B. Dalton Bookseller of San Angelo donated a copy of the reprint to the Scurry County Library where it is displayed along with copies of other Kelton books.

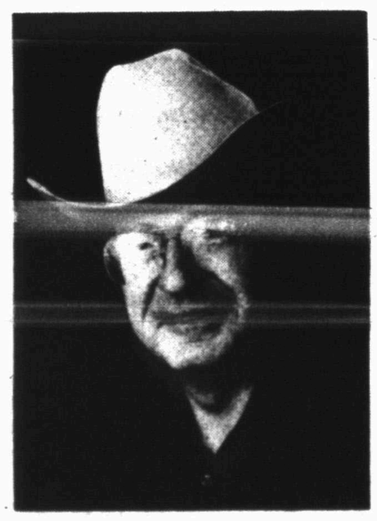

Kelton wrote non-fiction for more than 40 years as a livestock journalist. He worked for the San Angelo Standard Times, Sheep and Goat Raiser Magazine and Livestock Weekly, retiring in 1990.

A collection of his interviews with West Texas people done as a journalist was published by TCU Press under the title Elmer Kelton: The Short Nonfiction of a Texas Novelist.

He wrote the text for a new coffee table book, Texas, by Lawrence Parent, published by Graphic Arts Center Publishing Co. of Portland, Ore. Selected speeches by Kelton were published by State House Press in a short book titled My Kind of Heroes.

Kelton will be at 2509 College Avenue from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2-4 p.m. Saturday to sign books. B. Dalton will be bringing hardback and softback books from which fans may select their favorites.

Visitors will find Kelton a quiet, relaxed man who enjoys visiting. If there is time, he may visit old friends who are performing cowboy music and poetry across the street on the courthouse square. They have a lot in common — a love of Western heritage and tradition and a desire to preserve them for generations to come.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Forgiveness won't change the past, but does a lot for the future."

A senior at the University of Reno gave it the "old college try."

The business economics major came up with an idea to raise money to pay off a student loan with enough left over for this fall's tuition.

He plastered his hometown in Maine with 800 fliers and took out an ad in the Bangor Daily News, pledging to ride his bike 188 miles, from Bangor to Portland, if people would support his scholarship fund.

In his ad, the student said he finished last in his high school graduating class because of dyslexia, but had maintained a 3.3 grade point average in college.

Some 34 people responded positively, with gifts from $5 to $100. Some prospective donors were skeptical and advised him to seek real employment.

The student learned some harsh lessons concerning fund-raising. The $725 ultimately collected barley covered his fund-raising expenses.

The student claims he now is considering changing his major, from economics....to politics.

Another half-baked idea. A MIT professor and partner have developed a pancake mix that bakes "good morning" or similar messages into hotcakes.

'Jakey' tale to play three times at Ritz

The stage at the Ritz Theatre on the south side of the square will come alive on Saturday as Dr. Jakey's "tremendous traveling troupe of throughly auspicious thespians" come to town.

The mayor of Sleepytown and his townspeople will also be on stage.

The curtain will go up at 2 and 7 p.m. Saturday and 7 p.m. Sunday for the melodrama, "The Shakey Tale of Dr. Jakey."

Actually, Dr. Jakey's troupe is a traveling medicine show that sells Dr. Jakey's Potent Patented Potion and Cheery Cherry Chewies. Dr. Jakey, played by Mike Thornton, sets up his show on a vacant lot belonging to Mayor Hide, portrayed by Rick Freeman. Dr. Jakey runs into serious trouble with the local physician (and villian), Dr. Hooza Fraidy, played by Gayle Northcott. She is assisted in her efforts to put Jakey in jail by the local sheriff, played by Rob Sanders.

The love interest is provided by David Darling, played by Tim Dea, and Ima Fraidy, played by Nova Greenlee.

Mayor Hide's sexy daughter Formalda, played by Mary Atwood, takes a liking to Jakey and becomes the heroine.

Mrs. Yaksalotsky, the local gossip, is played by Cylathia Daniel.

Jakey's troupe of performers include Adolph Schulz, played by Blake Durham; Rhonda, played by Elaine Byrd; Sheri, played by Sue Pulattie; Lynn, played by Andrea Robinson; plus Jakey's Cloggers, who are Judy Smallwood, Shirley Miller, Susan Rogers and Mary Kiker.

The musicians are Jeff Smith, guitar, and Valarie Greene on the fiddle. The townspeople are played by Jessica Dea, Jordan Dea, James Aaron, Vanessa Freeman, Judy Robinson and Kenneth Darlin. Emily Hataway protrays the narrator, who isn't inhibited about interjecting her personal feelings into the narration.

This action-packed melodrama includes a chase, tug o war, fight scene and many other surprises.

Tickets are $3 and may be purchased at the Ritz Theatre ticket window from 5-7 p.m. today and Saturday, beginning at 8:30 a.m.

The box office will open at 1 p.m. on Sunday for the 2 p.m. performance.

Only 150 tickets will be available for each performance. Seating will be on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Season tickets for the 1995-96 season of the Ritz Community Theatre will be available at the theatre over the weekend and may also be purchased at the chamber of commerce or through the mail at Box 943.

Season tickets are available until Oct. 12 and include five productions. Besides "The Shakey Tale of Dr. Jakey," season ticket holders can see "Forever Plaid," Nov. 9, 11-13; "The Odd Couple" (female version) on Feb. 22-25, 29 and March 1-3; a children's production to be announced for April 11-14; and "Grease" on July 18-21 and 25-28.

Season tickets may be used for any of the five productions. Prices are $40 for 8 punches, $80 for 16 punches and $100 for 24 punches.

SCENE FROM "DR. JAKEY" — Mike Thornton as Dr. Jakey and Mary Atwood as Formalda Hyde share a moment on stage during rehearsals for "The Shakey Tale of Dr. Jakey" to debut Saturday at the newly renovated Ritz Theatre. Curtain times are 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday and a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday. (SDN Staff Photo)

New Hope to host two day Baptist conference

The 1995-96 executive board of the Lovely Sunset District Baptist Association will convene with the host church, New Hope Baptist Church in Snyder, today and Friday.

The business session was to begin at 1 p.m. today and the pre-opening musical is set for 7:30 p.m.

The host pastor is Rev. Raymond Dunkins.

The theme, "The Church: Steadfast Under Siege and Triumphant in Trial," is taken from Luke 22: 27-32 and James 1: 2-4.

The moderator is Rev. O.J. Archie.; first vice moderator, Rev. H.B. Johnson, Sr.; second vice moderator, Rev. O.I. Kirk; secretary, Minnie Bethany; recording secretary, Ruth Hemphill; treasurer, Gladys Henderson; and assistant treasurer, Rev. R.C. Jones.

The first general assembly meeting will begin Friday with a quiet time from 8:30-9 a.m. The call to worship will follow from 9-9:30 a.m. with first vice moderator Johnson. They will close out after the 7 p.m. message.

The music department will provide singing under the direction of Stella Johnson and Samuel Curtis.

The Bible lesson will begin at 9:30 a.m. with Rev. W. Blakes or assistant Bible teacher Rev. L. Lengyon.

Moderator O.J. Archie will be in charge of observation and enrollments at 10 a.m., followed by the presentation of the theme at 10:30 a.m. by Rev. J.H. Ford, congress president.

Topic for the 10:45 a.m. meeting will be Christian doctrine with Rev. L.C. Rhea of Mt. Sinai in Odessa.

The introductory message will begin at 11 a.m. with Rev. R. Roberts of Lakeside in Spur.

Other churches sharing in the services will include El Paso, Odessa, Lubbock, Abilene, Anson, Spur, Aspermont, Colorado City, Loraine, Littlefield, Brownfield, Rotan, Sweetwater, and Deming, N.M.

'Coming West' features history of area ranching

"The Coming West," edited by Aline Parks and Jeff Cochran is currently on sale and will be available during the White Buffalo Festival.

"The Coming West" was originally published as a newspaper tabloid in 1970. It features stories of life on area ranches, often written by the men who lived the tales. (Editor's note: The book and its co-editors will be profiled in the weekend SDN.)

The hardcover version sells for $22 and the softcover edition is priced at $13.

Parks and Tommy Williams are also making a video featuring 15 of Snyder's oldest homes. It will also be on sale during White Buffalo Days for a nominal fee.

Texas executes robber/killer

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A man was executed by injection for killing a 17-year-old cashier during a supermarket robbery, becoming the 100th Texas inmate put to death since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982.

Harold Joe Lane, who claimed the shooting was an accident, smiled at his two brothers who watched his execution Wednesday night.

"I wish you all the best. ... I have found everlasting peace with my God and I'm ready," he said moments before the drugs began flowing just after 6 p.m.

Lane, 50, said he was high on drugs and alcohol when he robbed a Winn-Dixie store of $3,300 in 1982. He shot cashier Tammy Davis in the head as he fled and was caught by police shortly after.

He had a long criminal history, including imprisonment in Colorado for robbery and assault and in Louisiana for manslaughter.

Beaten to death

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — An assistant principal and outspoken civil rights activist was found beaten to death in his burned-out bedroom.

The body of Everette Knapper, 55, was discovered Wednesday after a resident of his house came home early from work and saw smoke. Police had no suspects in the slaying.

The fire was limited to the bedroom and had nearly burned itself out when firefighters arrived, Assistant Fire Chief Frank Withrow said.

Say that again

By Phillip Alder

One Sunday evening I was watching the news. The anchor started a piece by saying, "If you watch TV, and you probably do..." Did she realize what she had said? Does the script writer still have his job?

In bridge, many plays are obvious; but some are difficult to find, as in today's deal, from this year's Toronto Calcutta. It was described by double world champion Peter Weichsel.

North's three-club rebid was an overstatement. Three hearts or two no-trump would have more accurate. Weichsel, thinking his partner had a good hand for play in hearts, jumped to game.

Clearly, Weichsel had to hope trumps weren't 5-0. But even so, faced with four red-suit losers, he needed a misdefense.

After ruffing the club ace, declarer led the heart queen. If West had won with the ace and returned the heart 10, that would have been the end of the story. But West ducked. Now came a diamond to dummy's king and East's ace.

To defeat the contract, East must lead the club king. Then, after a ruff and overruff, West must return a diamond. Declarer can cash four spade tricks and take a diamond ruff in the dummy, but West scores another heart trick on a promotion.

However, as Weichsel expected, East didn't find this play. Instead, he returned a diamond. Weichsel won with the queen, cashed four spade tricks, discarding two diamonds from the dummy, and ruffed his diamond loser in the dummy. West was welcome to a pair of trump tricks but Weichsel had made his contract.

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 from P.O. Box 169, Roslyn Hts., NY 11577-0169.

Myrtle Joiner is club program

Alpha Study Club met at the Martha Ann Woman's Club recently for a program by Myrtle Joiner who showed slides and related experiences of her eight-day trip to Dublin, Ireland.

Members welcomed Frances Brown as a new member and hostesses were Elizabeth McCloskey and LaDean Rhodes.

GUEST ARTIST — Vernell Leach of San Angelo gave a demonstration in watercolor at the recent Palette Club meeting held at the airport terminal building. An accomplished artist, Leach is a member of the Southwest Watercolor Society. She displayed several paintings, but gave instructions in landscape. Shown from left are Virginia Lowrance, Leach and Karen Rinker. The group will meet on Oct. 12 with Vickie Clark giving a program on pastels. (Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

Tail gate party was held by Vivace Music Club

Sixty-two Vivace Jr. Music Club members and parents attended a recent get-acquainted tail gate party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Gary Nussey.

Swimming and games preceded the dinner where Warren Sanders of Colorado City entertained by playing several selections on his guitar.

President Stephanie Hoyle presided and officers passed out yearbooks.

Officers include Mandy Strain, vice president; Faith Feaster, secretary; Angela Riggs, treasurer; Karomy Drum, pianist; Trey Gorman, assistant pianist; Jennifer Petty, scrapbook chairman; Amber Kelley and David Melton, T-shirt committee; and Johnnie and Nicki Riggs, practicethon events chairmen.

Vivace Jr. Music Club is affiliated with the Texas and National Federation of Music Clubs. The next meeting will be a Halloween Hush concert on Oct. 21 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Calley.

DISTRICT 5-AAAA PREVIEW

By Brent Taylor
Sports Editor

Tiger Tidbits: During the first four weeks, Snyder opponents have a combined record of 23-17. District 5-4A teams have a combined record of 17-7. For the second week in a row, Snyder will face a team that has not won a game.

Kermit (0-4) at Snyder (2-2)

Last Week:
Snyder lost to Big Spring 28-7
Kermit lost to Denver City 14-0

The Tigers will be looking to do their part in making the 1995 Snyder homecoming a success. After two disappointing losses, the Tigers will be looking to end non-district play with a win.

Even though Kermit has not won a game, they have been within striking distance in every game. Kermit's opponents have averaged 13.5 points while Kermit is averaging 3.25.

El Paso Irvin at Estacado (3-1)

Last Week:
Estacado defeated Borger 28-14
El Paso Irvin defeated El Paso Coronado 27-16

During its first four games, the Matadors are averaging 214.3 yards a game total offense and allowing 226.8 yards of defense. Runningback Tyson Gatewood is a distant second in rushing yards in the region with 478 yards. Sweetwater's Shaun Carr is leading with 844 yards.

Lamesa (2-2) at Littlefield (4-0)

Last Week:
Lamesa defeated Brownfield 29-6
Littlefield defeated Canyon 34-0

In order to win, Lamesa will have to shut down Littlefield's Michael Benton. Benton has run for 575 yards on 113 carries for a 5.09 average. He also leads the region in Class 3A with 68 points. The Golden Tors' defense has allowed 224 yards a game while gaining an average of 308 yards on offense.

Monahans (2-2) at Frenship (3-1)

Last Week:
Frenship defeated Hereford 16-14
Monahans defeated El Paso Burges 35-20

Kicker Eric Serna hit a 30-yard field goal to put the Tigers up for good last week against Hereford. The Herd did make a late rally, but ran out of time.

Frenship remains the number two team in the region in offense with a 322 yard per game average.

Levelland (3-1) at Big Spring (1-3)

Last Week:
Levelland defeated Randall 23-7
Big Spring defeated Snyder 28-7

The Lobos scored in every quarter of its game last week to upset Canyon Randall. Levelland's defense held Randall to 80 yards rushing and 134 passing. The Lobos will have to have the same performance Friday night to beat Big Spring.

The Steers ran over Snyder last week to pick up its first win. Big Spring's size played a major factor in the game.

Sweetwater (4-0) at Fort Stockton (0-4)

Last Week:
Sweetwater defeated Wichita Falls 36-8
Fort Stockton lost to Reagan County 38-14

It will be the upset of the century if, somehow, Fort Stockton beats Sweetwater. The Mustangs, behind the running of Shaun Carr, has been winning its games by a margin of just under 20 points. Sweetwater is leading the region in total offense with an average of 331.5 yards per game.

This will be a game where Sweetwater could show up at halftime and win.

Deion in uniform next week for Chargers

IRVING (AP) — There's good news for Dallas Cowboys fans fretting over Troy Aikman's injury: Deion Sanders has begun working out and could be in uniform by next weekend.

Sanders surprised coaches Wednesday by working out lightly with the defensive backs, both at right and left cornerback, and running pass routes during skeleton drills.

"Deion did some drills, he back-pedaled, played some one-on-one coverage," coach Barry Switzer said. "He was half-speed, but he looked good doing what he was doing.

"I was excited. I got to see a $35 million man practice. It was my first time seeing that."

Defensive coordinator Dave Campo also was excited to get his first glimpse at Sanders.

"It was kind of fun watching him run around a little bit and see in my eyes that his ankle is starting to feel good, and he's ready to move around," Campo said.

Sanders had surgery on his left ankle Sept. 25 and doctors removed two bone fragments. His ankle is fine, although Switzer said the concern now is Sanders' left calf muscle, which has atrophied slightly.

It's not certain when Sanders will be ready, although the Cowboys are optimistic he could suit up next weekend against San Diego.

Dallas hosts Green Bay this Sunday. Sanders and Aikman, who has a strained right calf, both will be inactive.

Patterson records hole-in-one

Snyder golfer Alton Patterson carded a hole-in-one Saturday on the par-3 ninth hole at the Snyder Country Club. He used an 8-iron on the 150 yard hole.

Witnesses were Johnny Powell, Randy Glasscock, Firecracker Henderson, Ray Hill, Travis Hatter and Page Patterson.

Ira-Grady tilt cancelled

The Ira-Grady football game scheduled for tomorrow night in Ira has been cancelled, according to Coach Joee Gainer.

Ira has only five players eligible to play due to the new no-pass, no-play rule. According to Gainer, there is an outside chance Ira will pick up some players for next week's scheduled district opener with Westbrook.

WTC Green team 9th in tournament

The WTC golf team finished ninth in the Odessa College Invitational played at the Mission Dorado Country Club in Odessa.

The tournament ended in a tie between Midland College and host Odessa. Midland won the tournament on a one-hole playoff. Both schools shot identical scores, 295 on Monday and 298 Tuesday, for a two-day total 593.

The WTC Green team finished ninth out of 19 teams. They shot 300, 317, for a two-day total 617. The WTC White team finished 12th with a 309, 316, for a two-day total 625.

Morten Vildhoj finished fourth in medalist play with a 147. Kurt Cassidy of Navarro Junior College was the medalist with a 145.

"We didn't play well Tuesday," said golf coach Milton Ham. "We were delayed an hour Tuesday due to fog."

WTC is scheduled to play in the Grayson College Invitational, Oct. 8-10, at the Tanglewood Country Club in Denison. WTC will be taking one team.

Aikman doubtful for Sunday

IRVING (AP) — Troy Aikman says there's little chance that he'll play against the Green Bay Packers in Texas Stadium.

Backup quarterback Wade Wilson worked with the Dallas Cowboys' first team Wednesday while Aikman tried to get well. But he said it "was extremely doubtful" he would play Sunday.

Aikman's pulled right calf muscle was still sore. He said he's now hoping to be ready to play at San Diego on Oct. 15.

Unless Aikman's sore and swollen calf muscle progresses, trainers may tell Aikman to sit out until the Oct. 29 game in Atlanta. The Cowboys have a bye week on Oct. 22.

LOCAL SPORTS BRIEFS

Simpson trial coverage has been replaced by TV reruns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dallas anchorwoman Debra Damiano was momentarily bewildered at work the day after O.J. Simpson's acquittal. Instead of seeing the droning trial on her monitor, a "Hogan's Heroes" rerun was on.

What had consumed her life for [illegible] months — and created a cottage industry of lawyers-turned-legal analysts — was over.

"We're a little shell-shocked," said Damiano of KXAS-TV as she helped dismantle a set that had been devoted exclusively to the trial — and which she had come to know better than her living room.

"I didn't think there would ever be a life after O.J."

Programming is starting to return to normal at many of the TV and radio stations across the country that carried gavel-to-gavel trial coverage.

But while most of their armchair analysts will fade back into law offices and college lecture halls, some high-profile commentators are using their newfound stardom to launch TV careers.

Legal commentators, like Gerry Spence in his buckskin jacket, Leslie Abramson with her head of long blond curls, and CNN's Greta Van Susteren and Roger Cossack will be hosts for spinoff talk shows.

Even a member of the Simpson defense team, jury consultant Jo-Ellan Dimitrius, has struck a deal with NBC to be a paid consultant.

And Simpson's DNA expert lawyers, Barry Scheck and Peter Neufeld, have become screenwriters. They are developing a TV drama series for CBS based on their lives and their law students who do the legwork for big trials.

Peter Arenella, a UCLA law professor who was a regular Simpson commentator for ABC's "Good Morning America," is considering hiring an agent to keep himself on the air.

"I didn't become a lawyer to be a talk-show host, but would I mind if someone offered me a position on one of the news shows part time? No," Arenella said.

Even though he often had to rise at 3 a.m. to get on the air, Arenella said there were some unexpected perks.

"I get good seats at restaurants, which I'm sure will change in a few months," he said.

Some legal consultants say they are above the celebrity and fanfare of being a TV personality.

"I'm not trying to become a television star as I perceive others might be," said Robert Philibosian, a straight-laced corporate lawyer who often worked 18 hours [illegible] ABC's "Nightline," "20-20" and "Good Morning America."

"Life after O.J. goes back to what life was before O.J." said Philibosian, a former Los Angeles County district attorney.

The Simpson trial, replete with the drama of killings, domestic abuse and mystery envelopes, was a boon to radio and TV ratings.

People were glued to CNN, Court TV and in Los Angeles, local station KTLA, which covered the trial nonstop.

KTLA anchorwoman Marta Waller had back surgery during the trial and instead of taking a standard 12 weeks off, she took just 12 days and returned wearing a brace.

"I was panicked because I didn't want to not be here for the trial," said Waller, who was embarrassed when a fan standing outside the courthouse the day of the verdict held up a sign that read "Free Marta."

Patti Reising, a reporter who covered the trial daily for Los Angeles radio station KNX, stayed on air until three days before she gave birth.

[illegible] up in a windowless newsroom at CNN in Atlanta, took Wednesday afternoon off to have tea at a nice hotel with her mother and husband.

"This is my first afternoon off in nine months," she said.

Van Susteren and Cossack will be co-hosts of a daily spinoff commentary show, "Burden of Proof."

"If I had to choose between TV and law, I'd choose practicing law," she said. "Fortunately, I have the luxury that I get to do both."

For Damiano, who was hired by the Dallas TV station specifically for the Simpson case, the future is less certain.

"I was hired as contract work," she said. "I could be out of a job, but I'm keeping my thoughts optimistic."

Two county men arrested on indictments Wednesday

Two people were booked into the Scurry County Jail Wednesday following felony indictments for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Arrested at 7:01 p.m. was Joe Lee Hammitt, 18, 404 20th St. Hammitt was indicted Monday on the charge. Arrested at 9:46 p.m., was Todd Wayne Puliss, 18, 9563 FM 1609. Pullis was also indicted Monday by the Scurry County grand jury for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Both were accused of the Sept. 8 offense of stealing a vehicle owned by Knipe Construction of Big Spring.

Also arrested Monday was a 44-year-old who was booked into the jail at 11:21 p.m. for public intoxication.

At 8:04 a.m. Wednesday, Tyson Cromeens reported the theft of property from his vehicle from 4100 Brick Plant Road.

A person notified the police department at 8:06 a.m. of a railroad cross tie sticking up at the railroad crossing at 24th Street and Avenue E.

A minor accident was reported at 8:14 a.m. in the 3100 block of Avenue T. Involved were a 1985 Ford which was unoccupied and running, owned by Rebecca Free of 3115 Ave. T, and a parked and unoccupied Chevrolet owned by Robert Proulx of 3116 Ave. T.

Gayle McDonald went to the police department at 10:22 a.m. and reported items stolen from a vehicle at 2112 42nd St.

At 10:48 a.m., another person notified the police department of cross ties sticking up at the intersection of 24th Street and Avenue E.

A minor accident was reported at 2:03 p.m. at the intersection of Gary Brewer Road and El Paso Avenue. Involved were a 1990 Ford van driven by Kirsten Rinker of 4156 FM 1607 and a 1995 Dodge pickup driven by Robert Stark of 3001 Crockett.

At 5:13 p.m., Stacey Derryberry reported the theft of a cellular telephone from her vehicle while it was parked in the 3400 block of College Avenue.

At 1:53 a.m. today, subjects went to the sheriff's office and reported that the window had been blown out a building at 1900 25th St.

Livestock virus

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Animal Health Commission has reported the second case of highly contagious vesicular stomatitis in a horse near Henderson, prompting officials to quarantine livestock in the area.

The disease can affect horses, cattle, sheep, goats and deer, causing blisters in and around the animals' mouths, hooves and teats.

The animals become lame and unable to eat and drink until healing begins, the commission said, adding that the virus rarely kills.

The first case of the virus in Texas was reported in July in Fisher County, northwest of Abilene. Henderson is about 125 miles east of Dallas.

The commission will begin enforcing a livestock quarantine in a 10-mile radius around the ranch were the infected horse was discovered, The quarantine affecting parts of Rusk, Cherokee and Smith counties on Thursday.

The quarantine, which is expected to last at least 45 days, could result in more than $1 million in lost revenue by forcing temporary closure of show barns, rescheduling events and preventing ranchers from getting livestock to markets and shows, Rusk County Extension Service Agent Tommy McDaniel said.

The vesicular stomatitis virus outbreak began in New Mexico in May. As of October 4, there were 314 "premises" with confirmed cases of the virus in New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Arizona and Texas.

How to cope with PMS symptoms

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter suffers from PMS. Is there a food or vitamin that could help her?

DEAR READER: No one knows for certain the cause of pre-menstrual syndrome, but many women seem especially bothered by it. Just before their periods, such women become irritable, depressed, angry, agitated, and exhausted. These symptoms may be quite disabling and are often associated with insomnia, intestinal bloating, pelvic pressure, fluid gain, headache, painful breasts, palpitations, and a host of other complaints.

Because PMS is probably due to a hormone imbalance, many women are helped by supplemental hormones (such as birth control pills). However, this therapy is not always effective. Counseling, stress reduction, tranquilizers, diuretics, and dietary changes may be necessary. Some women feel better when they take B complex vitamins (especially pyridoxine) and magnesium.

Therefore, your daughter might experience relief if, during her PMS, she were to reduce sugar in her diet, increase protein, and use a high-potency vitamin/mineral combination. Also, she should check with her gynecologist about hormone supplements.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from eczema, for which my doctor has placed me on Kenalog. Can you provide information on this condition and explain how the medication helps control it?

DEAR READER: No one knows what causes eczema, but allergies (especially to detergents and cosmetics) may play a role in some patients. Eczema is marked by recurring crops leaving crusting, oozing and scaling areas of skin that itch.

The traditional therapy for eczema is avoidance of allergens, as well as the use of cortisone creams, of which Kenalog is one. The cortisone reduces the skin irritation and helps aid healing.

Patients with eczema should be under the care of dermatologists.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Eczema and Psoriasis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Be sure to mention the title.

Your Birthday

Friday, Oct. 6, 1995

In the year ahead, your ability to make and maintain friendships may be numbered among your most outstanding assets. The high regard that others hold you in could grow more evident each day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your leadership qualities will become very evident to others today. Even persons you have only brief dealings with will be aware of this fact. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your chances for success today will be stronger if you don't broadcast your intentions. Secretly establish your objectives and proceed quietly toward them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If your ears are ringing today, it could be because friends are saying nice things about you. Pals in positions to grant favors might do so without being asked.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not limit your thinking or your talents today because you're capable of achievements that might even surprise you. Put the pedal to the metal and go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Very soon, possibly even today, you might receive some news from a distance that'll be extremely welcomed. The sender is someone you like.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may be more astute in business today than you were yesterday. Go back and trim up any loose ends you might have left dangling.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You should have harmony in the romance department. Matters of the heart will have greater significance than usual in various aspects of your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Plan a full agenda today because the busier you are, the happier you're likely to feel. Of equal significance is that whatever you attempt, you'll do well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Socializing with friends will spark the brighter aspects of your personality today. Wherever you go, the welcome mat will be out for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Given adequate time, things in general will have a way of working out to your ultimate advantage today. This should be especially noticeable concerning material interests.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are currently in an excellent cycle for successfully promoting products, enterprises or issues that are important to you. Get out there and make your pitch.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your probabilities for personal accumulation are more consistent now than they have been for some time. The cash flow could develop from several sources.

House studying children's TV shows, FCC agreements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. says it voluntarily decided to run more children's programs if it takes over CBS Inc. But a House panel is examining whether federal regulators coerced the decision.

Rep. Joe Barton, chairman of the House Commerce oversight and investigations subcommittee, "is in the very early stages of an inquiry," Craig Murphy, Barton's spokesman said on Wednesday.

The committee has the power to look into such matters. It does not have the power to impose sanctions if there's a finding of improper activity. But it can pass such information to the appropriate body, Murphy said.

The inquiry comes at the request of Commerce Committee Chairman Thomas Bliley, R-Va., and telecommunications subcommittee chairman Jack Fields, R-Texas, whose panels oversee the Federal Communications Commission.

The flap erupted a couple of weeks ago when Fields accused FCC Chairman Reed Hundt, a supporter of TV program quotas, of coercing Westinghouse into the "voluntary" agreement.

Alan Jackson, Alison Krauss receive top country awards

Vince Gill named male vocalist of the year

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alan Jackson waited four years to win country music's top award and may have gotten a little help from a lucky charm that once belonged to Hank Williams Sr.

Jackson, the top nominee going into Wednesday's Country Music Association awards show, was named entertainer of the year just when it looked as if he would go home empty-handed.

He was nominated but didn't win for best male vocalist, album, single, vocal event (with George Jones) and video.

Jackson said he went from playing truck-stop lounges several years ago to performing for 50,000 people at the Houston Astrodome.

"I feel qualified (to win)," he said after the black-tie affair at the Grand Ole Opry House that was televised live on CBS.

He said singer Marty Stuart had given him a lucky charm: a pen knife that belonged to Williams.

"I guess it worked," said the bashful Jackson, who was nominated for the top award in 1992, 1993 and 1994.

While Jackson had to wait four years, bluegrass singer Alison Krauss burst through the ranks in her first attempt.

Krauss, at 24 the premier bluegrass singer and a formidable fiddler, won in all four categories in which she competed: female vocalist, the Horizon Award for most promising artist, best single ("When You Say Nothing at All") and vocal event for a duet with the group Shenandoah, "Somewhere in the Vicinity of the Heart."

"I'm going to have to go get a flask or something!" Krauss said the fourth time she was called to the podium. She looked increasingly mystified at each trip. "This is really weird, you guys," she said twice.

Host Vince Gill, former lead singer for pop group Pure Prairie League, won male vocalist of the year for an unprecedented fifth straight time.

Best album honors went to Patty Loveless for "When Fallen Angels Fly," which beat out offerings by John Michael Montgomery, George Strait, Gill and Jackson.

Brooks & Dunn kept their streak going, picking up the best vocal duo trophy for the fourth consecutive year.

The Mavericks ended a three-year reign by Diamond Rio to win the award for best vocal group of the year.

Gretchen Peters, a songwriter soon to begin her own recording career, won for best song, "Independence Day," which was a hit for Martina McBride.

Singer-songwriter Roger Miller ("King of the Road"), who died in 1992, was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame. Wife Mary Miller, a former member of Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, accepted on his behalf.

"I'm just sick that he wasn't here to accept it," she said. "It would have made his life."

Also inducted was Jo Walker-Meador, who headed the CMA from 1962 until retiring in 1991.

About 7,000 country music industry insiders picked the winners.

4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment will enter Snyder parade

The 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment (Memorial) will participate in the White Buffalo Days this weekend and will have its camp pitched on Deep Creek on the south side of 30th Street.

Snyder residents Bruce Stewart and Wendell Sollis and former resident Gary Terrell will be among the participants.

The Regiment was organized in 1986 for the purpose of historic reenactment, preservation, interpretation and education concerning the 4th U.S. Cavalry's role in carrying out government policy in protecting the frontier of Texas from 1871 to 1875.

Since 1986, the 4th has appeared directly before more than one million people. Of these, thousands have been public and private school children.

In 1989, the 4th was one of four organizations given the honor to represent Texas in President George Bush's inaugural parade in Washington, D.C. In 1990, the 4th created and held the world's first Nineteenth Century Horse Cavalry Olympics.

In 1991, the 4th participated in the inaugural parade for the governor of Texas.

The 4th Cavalry is the largest post civil war cavalry reenactment organization in the country and it continues to grow and improve its accuracy in portraying the old 4th. Historical preservation, reenactment and interpretation is much more than a satisfying hobby and fun past-time for the participants.

The Cavalry is a regular participant in events at the Ranching Heritage Center in Lubbock, Ft. Concho in San Angelo, "Billy the Kid Days" in Lincoln, N.M., and the National Cowboy Symposium. This is in addition to numerous reenactment events at historic forts all over Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

ON THE SQUARE — The Hoyle Brothers, Johnny and Robert, and their sister posed for this snapshot by the Scurry County courthouse. The brothers played musical accompaniment for Ethel when she danced the Charleston at a Ritz Theatre amateur night. This picture was loaned by their sister, Mamie Patterson.

AND THEY'RE STILL COMING — The parking area west of Scurry County Coliseum is full of recreational vehicles this week as Snyder is hosting the Region 7, Texas State Rally of the Holiday Rambler Recreational Vehicle Club. Among the activities planned today were a health screening by Cogdell Hospital employees, a golf tournament at Western Texas College and a tour of Nathalie's. Local entertainment scheduled for this evening for the group includes the Senior Citizen Kitchen Band and the Deep Creek Cloggers. (Photo Courtesy of Jay Wesson)

CHARLESTON — Ethel Butts made this red satin dress trimmed with white fringe for a costume party 30 years ago. It recalls earlier days when she first learned to do the then popular Charleston at a country dance where her brothers were playing the guitar and fiddle. (Photo loaned by Mamie Patterson)

Former resident will appear at Ritz here

No one will be more pleased to see the Ritz Theatre open again than Ethel Hoyle Butts of San Angelo.

Mrs. Butts was 17 when she went on stage at the Ritz in 1928 for Amateur Night and won first place with her rendition of the Charleston. She's planning to be back on the stage Saturday as a guest of the Ritz Community Theatre during the presentation of "The Shakey Tale of Dr. Jakey." Hip replacement surgery and a knee problem have ruled out the Charleston but nothing can take away her memories of winning that contest "way back when."

The Hoyle family moved to the Texas Panhandle from Arkansas when Ethel was an infant, traveling in a covered wagon. They came to Scurry County by train. Kate Thrane met them at the Santa Fe depot and took them to the RS&P depot for the final leg of their journey to Fluvanna.

They settled north of Union in 1927 and Mrs. Butts remembers visiting the J. Wright Mooar ranch near their home. She attended the two-room Bethel School and later drove into Snyder to attend high school where she was a cheerleader.

Two of Ethel's older brothers, Johnny and Robert, played the guitar and fiddle and had been winners in the Ritz Theatre contests earlier. They played for dances and Ethel was introduced to the Charleston at one of those dances. They also played for her at the Ritz and jokingly told her she was not to beat them out of first prize again. She doesn't remember what the prize was, but it was the winning that mattered.

T.L. Lollar, who owned and operated the theatre, encouraged Ethel to come back to enter the contest again. She had worn her street dress in her first competition and started making a costume more suitable for her next appearance. She never got to enter again, however, because Mr. Lollar died and the amateur night program was discontinued.

Ethel married Cecil Butts on Feb. 18, 1929, her 18th birthday, and they moved to San Angelo. She was a buyer for the Hemphill-Wells chain of department stores for 28 years before retiring. She laughs when she recalls doing the Charleston on a cruise boat going around Manhattan Island when she and other buyers were treated to a special outing.

Mrs. J. B. Patterson, Ethel's sister, will be at the Ritz with her Saturday. Escorting her on stage will be her great-niece, Heather Floyd.

Elderly Mom's Bad Judgment Brings Danger Into Her Home

DEAR ABBY: No wonder our society is going to the dogs; there are so few good role models these days. People talk about the immorality of our young people, but not only are young people immoral, a lot of seniors are also living in sin. It's disgusting!

My mother, who is in her 70s, invited a man to live with her after knowing him for only one week. He moved into her house faster than greased lightning. I am in shock.

I believe Mother did this because she's lonely. She's getting on in years, and she decided she's going to do whatever she wants — and too bad about what people think! What a poor example she's setting for my children (her grandchildren). Of course, they know what's going on — they're not stupid.

I have proof that this man has a criminal record and can be violent. Should I inform Mother and risk her being angry with me, or should I just keep quiet? My husband thinks I should stay out of it. He says if we give this guy enough rope, he'll hang himself.

Please respond soon as I'm losing sleep over this.

NO NAME, SAN ANTONIO

DEAR NO NAME: If you give your mother's roommate enough rope, he could also hang her! Share your proof of his criminal record and his history of violent behavior with her immediately. A word of caution, however: Cool your anger and judgmental attitude, or you may alienate her before you can deliver the message.

DEAR ABBY: In the letter signed "Desperate," a woman's son was coming home from college and bringing his live-in girlfriend, which threw his mother into a tizzy. She didn't approve of her son sleeping with his girlfriend under her roof. It reminded me of my own situation.

I was returning from Germany after 17 years of service in the U.S. Army and bringing with me Ingrid, my live-in girlfriend, and her son.

My father said Ingrid and I could not sleep together in his house. Easily fixed. Ingrid slept in the house with her son, and I slept in my parents' camping trailer. Because I respect my mother and father, in their home I live by their rules.

My father died two years ago, right after their 50th wedding anniversary, and I will continue to live by his rules while in their home. If you print this, please use my name. I want everyone to know how much I respect my parents.

DAVID SCRIVEN, U.S. ARMY (RET.)

DEAR DAVID SCRIVEN: Thank you for a heartwarming letter. To your credit, you obviously practice the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Loves to Move," the woman who moves from house to house, even though her kids hate moving, because she loves hard work.

May I offer a suggestion? Why doesn't she start her own local moving company? That way, she can work hard, her teen-agers can have the stability kids so desperately need, and she can make some money to send her kids to college. It's the perfect solution!

NEVER MOVING AGAIN

DEAR NEVER: Thank you for your moving letter.

Coalition says smoking ads target teens

WASHINGTON (AP) — An anti-smoking group says R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. continues to market cigarettes to youngsters as it fights government efforts to educate children against the dangers of smoking.

"The R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company has the gall to blame the problem of youth smoking on everyone but itself," the Coalition on Smoking or Health said in a letter to newspaper editors released Wednesday.

The accusation came as The Washington Post reported that a company official recommended in a 1973 memo that RJR create cigarette brands targeted at the youth market.

The coalition is objecting to ads, which began running Sept. 26 in 25 newspapers around the country, that ask: "Who should be responsible for your children, a bureaucrat or you?"

RJR spokeswoman Maura Ellis said Wednesday that the surgeon general and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention have agreed that peer pressure is the main reason youngsters start smoking.

"Clearly, this is very threatening to the anti-smoking industry and they're making kind of sloppy accusations back out of frustration," she said.

The RJR memo obtained by the Post suggested that a new cigarette brand could be marketed as a way to cope with the pressures of being a teen-ager.

"Realistically, if our company is to survive and prosper, over the long term, we must get our share of the youth market. In my opinion, this will require new brands tailored to the youth market," Claude E. Teague Jr., then the company's assistant director of research and development, wrote.

Teague's memo cautioned officials against influencing nonsmokers to take up the habit but stated that "we should simply recognize that many or most of the '21 and under' group will inevitably become smokers, and offer them an opportunity to use our brands."

RJR spokesman David B. Fishel called the memo a "draft document that reflects preliminary thought of one individual in research and development."

Opal damage in Florida: $1.8 billion

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Opal lost its punch early today after crashing into the Florida Panhandle, where it washed away beach-front homes and tossed boats ashore. At least three people were killed.

Opal caused an estimated $1.8 billion in damage to insured property, the Florida Insurance Council said today, making the hurricane the second-costliest storm in the state's history. Hurricane Andrew, the costliest, inflicted $17 billion in damage to insured property when it devastated south Dade County in August 1992.

More than 1 million people lost power in Florida, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas, officials said. It could take days to restore electricity.

Federal officials were on the ground today, conferring with Coast Guard and military authorities to begin preparing relief efforts.

"We are making sure airlift assets are on alert and ready to go," said Mike Walker, assistant secretary of the Army. "We'll be able to get into the area as soon as they clear the airport."

Almost three dozen homes were destroyed by waves surging more than 12 feet above normal in tiny Mexico Beach, a town of 1,200 about 15 miles south of Panama City.

"They don't really expect there to be much left," said city council member Eadie Stewart, fighting back tears.

Opal, the second hurricane to ambush storm-wary Panhandle residents in two months, carried up to 5 inches of rain and heavy winds as it weakened while moving north through Alabama and Georgia and into Tennessee and Kentucky.

By 11 a.m. EDT, Opal was downgraded to a tropical storm. It was 95 miles south of Lexington, Ky., and moving north-northeast at 29 mph, with maximum sustained winds of of 35 mph. Six hours earlier, it had been downgraded to a tropical storm. The hurricane's winds had registered as high as 150 mph.

Forecasters warned of continued high winds and heavy rains.

The howling winds had already done their damage, leaving a path of crumbled piers, demolished homes, submerged highways, downed power lines along a 120-mile stretch of Florida Panhandle beaches.

Pope urges rich nations to help poor

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Appealing to "the conscience of humanity," Pope John Paul II urged rich nations today to offer more help to the world's poor but told developing countries they won't deserve it unless they respect democracy.

"When millions of people are suffering from a poverty which means hunger, malnutrition sickness, illiteracy and degradation, we must .... remind ourselves than no one has a right to exploit another for his own advantage," the 75-year-old pontiff said in a speech prepared for delivery to the U.N. General Assembly.

John Paul also warned the assembled nations against "narrow and exclusive nationalism," which had triggered "a true nightmare of violence and terror" most recently during ethnic slaughter in Rwanda and Bosnia.

The pope's speech to the 185-nation assembly in the United Nations' 50th anniversary year was the main reason for his fourth trip to the United States.

John Paul briefly depicted dramatic changes since he last addressed the assembly in 1979 — the fall of Communism and cuts in nuclear arsenals.

He mainly used the platform to appeal for "an ethic of solidarity" to contrast with the pursuit of economic profit.

Developing countries often face "a situation of de facto economic dependence on other countries" and sometimes cannot provide their people's essential needs, the pope's text said.

"Such situations offend the conscience of humanity and pose a formidable moral challenge to the human family," he said.

He said rich countries must "develop new approaches inspired by greater justice and solidarity."

He said developing countries must offer "guarantees of the proper management of resources and of assistance received, as well as respect for human rights, by replacing where necessary unjust, corrupt or authoritarian forms of government with participatory and democratic ones."

In sharp criticism of extreme nationalism, John Paul said, "Narrow and exclusive nationalism which denies any rights to 'the other,' can lead to a true nightmare of violence and terror."

In introducing the pope, U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said the organization was founded after World War II "so that compassion could conquer the despair of poverty, disease and injustice."

"The United Nations was created so that hope could conquer the horror of war," he said.

Earlier, Boutros-Ghali welcomed the pontiff at the U.N. headquarters on a rainy, misty day.

As the pope approached the main entrance, U.N. employees stood on furniture and hopped up and down with cameras raised over their heads.

Their chants of "John Paul II, we love you" echoed through the stone and glass hall. Nathanial Connors, a U.N. messenger, amused the crowd by shouting, "Take down the barricades!"

Children from the United Nations International School, many dressed in clothing that reflects their ethnic backgrounds, later greeted the pope in the lobby.

"We humbly ask for your prayers," one child said. Another held a white dove.

The pope lifted the dove and asked the children to "pray for ... humanity."

The school choir then sang, "Let There Be Peace on Earth."

At other stops during his four-hour stay at U.N. headquarters, the pontiff was scheduled to dedicate a plaque to U.N. personnel killed while on duty and address the organization's staff.

John Paul's trip was meant to reaffirm the importance of the United Nations as it faces a cash crisis. Members owe the United Nations more than $3 billion, mostly for peacekeeping operations that have burgeoned since the end of the Cold War.

The United States is the biggest debtor.

At a prayer service in Newark, N.J., after arriving Wednesday, John Paul challenged U.N. members to "clothe yourselves with humility. In particular, the powerful and the mighty ought to show meekness in their dealings with the weak."

He called himself a pilgrim for peace and echoed Pope Paul VI's 1965 appeal to the United Nations: "No more war, war never again."

California homes evacuated as wind-whipped fire spreads

INVERNESS, Calif. (AP) — More homes were evacuated today as firefighters battled furiously to save 400 houses from a wind-whipped wildfire that raced across 8,000 dust-dry acres.

The fire was 20 percent contained early today, but at one point winds were clocked at 30 mph and flying embers touched off a fire near one street in Inverness, a community of about 1,000 on Tomales Bay. An unknown number of residents were evacuated, said Eric Neitzel of the Marin County Fire Department.

They followed the more than 200 people who by Wednesday abandoned their homes in a development near Inverness called Paradise Ranch Estates where fire destroyed at least 47 buildings and damaged another 12, most of them houses.

No serious injuries were reported, although four firefighters suffered from smoke inhalation.

Full containment of the fire wasn't expected until midnight Friday, said Scott Adams, spokesman for the Marin County Sheriff's office.

"The winds have subsided but we didn't get any fog," Adams said. Firefighters had hoped fog would dampen the flames.

The fire was eating up the Bishop pine and dense brush in the 65,000-acre Point Reyes National Seashore.

Flames hot-footed toward the Pacific after midnight Wednesday and firefighters made their first, failed stand on the southern flank.

Patricia Sadler was driven from her Paradise Ranch home into a Red Cross shelter, and spent anxious hours while firefighters doused the flames surrounding her neighborhood Wednesday.

"The Bolinas fire department made a stand at my home," she said. "They stood on the roof and they saved it. Everything below me is OK, but everything above me is devastation."

About 1,400 firefighters began battling the flames Tuesday, when sea breezes fanned embers from an illegal campfire about 35 miles north of San Francisco.

The flames shot across the dry acres of thick underbrush in the wilderness area, and about 200 houses within it.

By Wednesday morning, air tankers were dumping fire retardant and helicopters poured lagoon water onto the flames. Crews used bulldozers to build up a fire break around Inverness, and hacked through brush by hand.

In other areas of Northern California, numerous small fires kept firefighters busy while the high fire danger, brought on by hot temperatures, low humidity and high winds had other departments on alert.

Five separate fires Wednesday were sparked in the Santa Cruz and Watsonville area by gusty winds that snapped, bowed and arced power lines. All were quickly contained, said California Department of Forestry spokeswoman Sue Newenhouse.

And an arsonist was believed to have ignited as many as 20 small fires along Interstate 80 and Highway 12 in Solano County.

Three jurors cite weak evidence in Simpson verdict

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brenda Moran recalled the dramatic moment in court when Simpson struggled to pull on bloody gloves from the scene of his ex-wife's murder and his Brentwood estate.

"In plain English, the glove didn't fit," she said Wednesday at a news conference.

Moran was one of three Simpson jurors who spoke publicly one day after acquitting the former football star in the slayings of Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

All indicated they accepted the defense arguments that Simpson was the victim of inept police or even a frame-up. Race was not a factor, said the three, all of them black.

The mostly black panel took little stock of the "race card" that defense lawyer Robert Shapiro accused his colleagues of dealing "from the bottom of the deck."

"We didn't even deal with that deck, period," said Moran, a 45-year-old computer technician living in South Central Los Angeles.

"We were fair," she said. "It wasn't a matter of sympathy, wasn't a matter of favoritism. It was a matter of evidence."

Moran said she decided to come forward to answer critics who say the jury acted rashly or ignored evidence that prosecutors said pointed overwhelmingly to Simpson's guilt.

"I didn't come here to serve on a sequestered jury for nine months to be humiliated like that," she said in an interview published in today's Los Angeles Times.

Other jurors echoed Moran's doubts about the police work in the case.

Lionel Cryer questioned the police blood evidence.

"It was garbage in, garbage out," he said in a Los Angeles Times interview published Wednesday.

And Gina Rosborough wondered why there was so little blood found in Simpson's white Ford Bronco after the gory slashing deaths.

"If he committed such a bloody crime, then there should have been more blood in that Bronco than this just little speck that we saw," she said on Oprah Winfrey's syndicated television talk show.

Rosborough, a 29-year-old whose job is unloading mail trucks, said the prosecution did an "excellent job" but could not shake her doubts about Simpson's guilt.

"I believed from the beginning that he was innocent," she said.

Moran and Cryer both found police witnesses untrustworthy. Moran said defense attacks on former Detective Mark Fuhrman for his racist remarks had little effect on the jury, but she questioned how the glove he claimed to find outside Simpson's home could be blood-soaked when there was no blood anywhere near it. "Somebody planted it," she concluded.

2-3-6

(two, three, six)

Lotto Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — One winning ticket bought in Friendswood correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $4 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 7, 21, 23, 29, 30 and 49.

There were 99 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $1,814. There were 6,198 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning 104. And there were 125,026 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $4 million.
