Shojiro Imanishi, standing, consul-general of Japan, told a luncheon crowd Wednesday that Americans should work to better understand Japanese business practices. Seated is Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce President Ben Bancroft.

Japanese consul says Americans must understand

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Americans could benefit by working harder to understand Japanese business practices and markets, said Shojiro Imanishi, Consul-General of Japan, while in Big Spring Wednesday.

Imanishi, who addressed a luncheon audience at the Big Spring County Club, also said trade imbalances are not a question of trade policies, but of savings rates and monetary exchange rates. The United States saves less and has an eight percent trade imbalance — nearly $50 billion last year — with Japan, the second largest importer of U.S. goods.

"It means investment from Japan," he told 45 people attending the luncheon. This is where you stand now and where we stand together.

While the United States may have an opportunity to save money through military cuts now that the cold war is over, Japan recently is spending more through $200 billion in Japanese government programs, he said. National debts for the two countries — $4 trillion for the United States and $1.5 trillion for Japan — are about the same per capita.

"The Golden Rule is that we should save together," he stressed.

Imanishi, speaking a day after Japan put the United States on its list of unfair trading partners, said Americans should work harder to understand Japanese business practices instead of complaining markets are closed. The basic difference is Japanese transactions are usually long-term commitments, while the United States is characterized by spot market transactions.

"Changing the business practices is like changing the whole language," he said. "It is not possible."

He there are 80,000 Japanese businessmen in the United States, as compared to 6,000 American businessmen in Japan. He also noted 150,000 Japanese students are currently studying in the United States, compared to 2,000 American students in Japan.

"I think there should be more efforts by American businessmen," he said. "There should be more effort to understand the Japanese market."

It's understandable that the United States wants to increase exports, Imanishi said. After all, 75 percent of the growth of America's economy since 1985 was from exports.

New directory of businesses makes debut

MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

The Minority, Veteran and Women-owned Business Directory was unveiled at Wednesday's Small and Minority Business Breakfast.

The directory lists more than 200 local businesses listed both alphabetically and by classification. The businesses are categorized as minority-owned, veteran-owned and woman-owned.

It will be updated as needed, said Delia Barraza, Howard College Business Development Center administrative assistant. Barraza spent more than eight months canvassing local businesses.

The directory's main purpose is to identify minority-owned, women-owned and veteran-owned businesses for larger companies who seek services from those businesses, Barraza said.

The directory was a cooperative effort of the center, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Fina Oil & Chemical, Texas Instruments and TU Electric. see BREAKFAST, page 8A

LULAC, festival weather weekend of controversy

MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

High winds, cool temperatures and the holiday impacted adversely affected attendance for the Cinco de Mayo Festival last weekend.

Festival coordinator Raul Marquez, of the League of United Latin American Citizens chapter 4495, said the attendance was 4,000 less throughout the weekend than the 10,000 he anticipated. Attendance peaked Saturday with warmer weather conditions and a strong entertainment line-up, he said, but dipped to its lowest Sunday due to the sandstorm that blew in on the city and it being Mother's Day.

"If I had not been in charge of the festival, I would have been with my mother," Marquez said. "It is understandable that attendance would be low on Mother's Day and the weather did not help."

Expenditures, costs and money taken in had not been calculated, but Marquez expected to have figures by the end of the week.

Although the festival was marred by controversy before it started and attendance was lower than last year, Marquez considered the three-day event a success.

"We had more booths than we did last year," he said. "We also had a wider variety of vendors. We had jewelry, T-shirts, Guatemalan clothing and accessories and a lot of food."

Marquez said the festival may have looked smaller because it was not as spread out as last year's. The booths lined both sides of Third Street between Main and Scurry Streets, instead of lining Third and Main.

Controversy flared prior to the festival, as some downtown merchants suggested the event be relocated, and criticism was leveled concerning local performing talent.

But the controversy did not stop Sunday, as the three-day event came to a close. The chapter was accused of not complying with dues requirements.

Earlier this week, League of United Latin American Citizens chapter 4375 member and former president Pat DeAnda alleged that Marquez' chapter had not paid dues, making the chapter unauthorized to conduct functions under LULAC.

According to incoming LULAC regional director, Mike Zuniga, chapter 4495 dues are paid up at the national and state level.

"The chapter has paid at the state and national level. There is not a problem," Zuniga said. "If there is a question about regional dues, it is not an issue. It is more of a technicality."

After learning about the accusations, Marquez brought to the Big Spring Herald's office a copy of the chapter's recharter certificate signed March 25, 1993.

"They can say I am not in compliance all day long, but that doesn't change things," Marquez said. "I think a lot of it is jealousy."

From 1981 through 1991, LULAC chapter 4375 was the only chapter in Big Spring. In the mid-1980s, its membership exceeded more than 60. As the membership rose, different opinions about the direction and the philosophy of the local organization materialized. In 1990, Marquez, at the time chapter president, resigned. A year later, he chartered chapter 4495.

House approves easing back on no pass, no play

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Nearly a decade after adopting it, the Texas House has voted to ease the state's controversial no pass, no play rule.

Opponents of the move called it a retreat from academic excellence.

Lawmakers on Wednesday backed a proposal that could halve six-week student suspensions from sports and other extracurricular activities. The rule was a key element in the landmark 1984 school reforms of House Bill 72.

But House members argued that six weeks is too strict, discourages many students and keeps some from attempting more challenging courses.

Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, offered the option of rolling back suspensions to three weeks in an amendment to a larger bill designed to reduce state requirements on schools.

A move to kill his amendment was rejected, 117-26, and sponsors of the larger bill then accepted Stiles' proposal. The full bill later won tentative approval. A second vote is needed to send the measure to the Senate for debate.

Stiles' amendment would give campus principals the option of lifting suspensions after three weeks if students make no grades lower than 70 out of 100 during that period. If a student did receive a grade below 70 in any class, the suspension would continue for the full six weeks.

"No pass, no play in its present form does not promote success for students," Stiles said. "All I'm asking for today is a modification so if a child is passing, they can participate."

Rep. Libby Lineberger, who heads the House Public Education Committee, called the move a retreat from high academic standards.

Language still issue in Quebec

The Associated Press

MONTREAL — Just when you think the French language debate in Quebec has finally marched off center stage into well-deserved retirement, it barges right back for yet another encore.

The ever-sticky issue, dormant in the province for the past six months, is threatening to heat up a chilly spring.

What's getting people riled up is the old favorite: the sign law.

The Quebec government thinks the time has come to allow English on commercial signs, which now must be exclusively French. "Eat at Joe's" is illegal and brings a fine equal to 40 U.S. dollars; "Mangez chez Joe" is OK.

The government introduced a bill into the legislature last week to allow bilingual signs as long as the French is "markedly predominant," ending a 15-year ban on English.

French-speaking Quebecois, who are a large majority in this province of 6.9 million, long have feared that, without protection, their language and culture will be diluted and absorbed into the overwhelmingly anglophone North America.

But Premier Robert Bourassa is anxious to end 20 years of bitter language battles and is hopeful this bill will do the trick.

Claude Ryan, Quebec's minister responsible for language, said the new law "will be a more humane, more realistic and more effective piece of legislation" and would lead to "a greater mutual respect and harmony among Quebecois of all cultural stripes."

The government's lawyers say the new measure will be more difficult to attack in the courts.

Bourassa says his government must bring the law into line with rulings by the Supreme Court of Canada and the U.N. Human Rights Commission, both of which have said banning English violates freedom of expression.

Smoke billows from the headquarters of the Bosnian army after it was hit by a Croat artillery round Sunday in Mostar, 45 miles southwest of Sarajevo. The fighting in Mostar was so intense that a U.N. Spanish battalion had to pull back to surrounding hillsides. Although fighting has subsided somewhat, explosions and small arms fire can still be heard throughout the city's streets.

Despite cease-fire, fighting continues

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Clouds of smoke and the violent pop of small arms fire rose over Mostar today as scattered fighting persisted between erstwhile Muslim and Croat allies, Croatian radio reported.

A cease-fire signed by Gen. Milivoj Petkovic of the Croats and Bosnian army chief Gen. Sefer Halilovic was to have taken effect at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

But Croatian radio said two Croat soldiers were killed during the night by Muslim snipers.

Small arms fire and several detonations punctuated the truce today, but the Croatian radio reporter said fighting was not as intense. Smoke rose over the southwestern Bosnian city.

Since Sunday, Croats have pressed a street-by-street offensive in Mostar.

On Wednesday, much of the eastern, Muslim-held section of the city was ablaze as Croat troops battled to break a Muslim foothold on the west bank of the Neretva River.

Croats want the river, which divides Mostar, to become the easternmost boundary of their lands.

The truce also called for the release of hundreds of detainees held around Mostar and Muslim-held pockets in central Bosnia.

Detentions apparently were widespread, although there were no firm figures on how many Muslims had been evicted or detained since fighting broke out.

Jose-Maria Mendiluce, the departing U.N. aid operations chief in Bosnia, told reporters in Sarajevo this week that 200,000 to 300,000 Muslims may be made homeless in a wave of ethnic cleansing by Bosnian Croats.

Radio Sarajevo said about 700 civilians were being kept at Mostar airport, and that some men allegedly were taken to a prison. The broadcast said many Croats and some Serbs were also fleeing to the west bank of the Neretva.

A Croatian Defense Council officer earlier told the United Nations that 1,346 people were being held in two gymnasiums and a military garrison under guard. An additional 300 — all Muslims — were expected, a U.N. statement said.

"The observers concluded that the people are prisoners and that their situation is likely to worsen as more detainees arrive," the U.N. statement said. It was based on a visit by observers to detainees outside Mostar on Tuesday.

Reno seeks new powers to stop clinic blockades

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno wants Congress to give her authority to stop blockades, harassment and violence at abortion clinics.

Appearing before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee on Wednesday, Ms. Reno reaffirmed the Clinton administration's support for a bill designed to crack down on attacks on abortion clinics and intimidation of women and doctors.

She said the legislation would strike a reasonable balance between the free speech rights of anti-abortion protesters and the constitutional right of women to get an abortion and of doctors to perform them.

She noted that the proposed federal law would prohibit certain conduct, such as the use or threat of force to interfere with people seeking access to abortion clinics.

"The legislation makes clear that it is not intended to suppress a particular message," the attorney general said.

Abortion opponents argued the bill would end up censoring free expression.

"If enacted, (it) would undoubtedly both suppress pro-life speech and insulate the abortion industry, its personnel and clients from hearing the pro-life message," said Nikolas Nikas, a lawyer for the American Family Association Law Center.

Tanning products to carry sun warnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — All sunscreen and tanning products would carry warnings about the harmful effects of overexposure to the sun under proposed federal standards.

The regulations outlined Wednesday by the Food and Drug Administration would limit sun protective factors (SPFs) to a maximum of 30 and require tanning products with no sunscreen to display a warning that they do not prevent sunburns.

The regulatory agency proposed that sunscreens carry a statement reading:

"Sun Alert: The sun causes skin damage. Regular use of sunscreens over the years may reduce the chance of skin damage, some types of skin cancer and other harmful effects due to the sun."

The FDA first proposed standards for sunscreens in 1978, but never formally put the rules into effect. It said skin cancer cases have increased more than 50 percent since then.

to go to deficit reduction."

Clinton borrowed the proposal from Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., and other Democrats. The White House hopes it will help win support from voters and conservative Democratic lawmakers who might otherwise flinch at his huge deficit-reduction plan.

"The time has come to prove that when we say we're going to do something with the people's money, we actually do it," the president said.

Congress trying to ease pain of payroll freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel has voted to accept a military pay freeze, but soften it with a number of benefit changes.

The outlines of the budget adopted by the Congress in April called for freezing military pay and halving cost-of-living adjustments for retirees under 62 with a cap of $400 in fiscal 1994. Survivors and disabled retirees would be exempt.

The House Armed Services Committee on Wednesday adopted a Democratic plan that, among other things, would delay the cost-of-living restrictions for military retirees under 62.

The action is part of the House's work on the reconciliation bill to bring spending and taxing in line with the plan to cut the budget deficit by $500 billion over five years.

The committee also voted to include a cost-of-living allowance for service members stationed in high cost regions of the United States, an increase in the housing allowance payment for junior enlisted personnel stationed in those areas and an increase in imminent danger pay from $150 to $200 per month.

AIDS, cancer emphasis shortchanging research

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some House members are complaining that President Clinton's proposal to increase spending on AIDS and breast cancer research would shortchange research into diseases such as Alzheimer's, diabetes or strokes.

"I am concerned that allocations among institutes appear to have been based on political considerations rather than on scientific judgments," Rep. John Edward Porter, R-Ill., said Wednesday during a hearing of the House Appropriations subcommittee that oversees the Department of Health and Human Services.

He noted that while heart disease kills 42 times as many people as AIDS, proposed spending by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute would drop 1.3 percent, to $1.2 billion, in 1994 while spending on AIDS research would increase 21 percent, to $1.3 billion.

Other institutes being cut include those devoted to arthritis, Alzheimer's, diabetes, strokes, mental health and depression, Porter said.

HHS Secretary Donna Shalala defended the administration's plans, saying government scientists for too long have ignored the health of women and minorities.

"We left researchers to their own devices for decades and they left out major portions of the population," she said.

Find out what is being done right

Relations between the United States and Japan are often beset by problems.

While many of these problems are cultural, there is one thing the U.S. can learn from Japan - how to save.

Visiting Big Spring this week was Shojiro Imanishi, consul-general of Japan at Houston. He addressed the issue of U.S.-Japanese relations during talks to the Big Spring Rotary Club and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

One thing he said that made a lot of sense concerned governmental saving.

Japan's deficit is comparable to the United States. He said when the deficit gets to where it is unmanageable, the Japanese government finds ways to save money instead of spending.

Imagine, a government that saves money in an effort to keep its deficit manageable, instead of taxing more to bring in more money to spend.

Right now, the United States is facing a budget deficit in the trillions of dollars and can't seem to figure out how to bring it back under control.

One way is to cut spending but our elected officials don't seem to have the moxie to cut the budget and deal with the screams from their constituents. Budget cuts are a necessary part of getting this country's debt under control.

Can you imagine money in the federal coffers put aside to help bring down the budget deficit? Instead of forcing Japan to spend more like us, we should look at what they are doing right to keep their budget deficit under control.

Appreciation for votes expressed

Editor:
I would like to express my appreciation to the voters of District 3 for their support and their vote in the May 1 election for the Big Spring City Council. Even though I lost the election I would like to thank the people who voted for me and ask them to vote for Chuck Cawthon in the upcoming run off election for City Council. I still feel that the only way we can properly represented is by someone living in District 3. Chuck Cawthon is the only person seeking the seat on the City Council to live in that district. I am giving him my full support because of this and because I believe him to be the most qualified. If you agree with me would you please vote for him in the run off. Thank you again for your votes and support. Please get out and vote because your vote does count.

Planning the vacation drive

With summertime bearing down on us like a rhino on amphetamines, many of you will be hitting the highways in search of that dream vacation.

I'm sure most of you have your destination and activities planned to the nth degree.

Bully for you.

But one of the most important aspects of vacations - the time actually spent driving to and from said spots - needs to be carefully planned as well.

Yea, verily, I say unto you, foolish is the soul that thinks he can simply gas up the car, load up the wife and kids and head off to Vacationland, U.S.A., without a care in the world.

It isn't quite that simple. Care must be taken to make sure the time you and your loved ones spend inside that cramped vehicle is as hassle-free as possible.

Which is where I come in.

As a public service - and because I have a few free minutes - I wish to impart upon you the wisdom gained from many miles on our nation's highways, in the sincere hope that you don't look back on your vacation with the same fondness as a tax audit.

You can thank me later.

Vehicle time maintenance is really not that difficult, as long as you follow these simple rules:

- Make sure your air conditioner is working properly - This is rule No. 1. If your car's air conditioning is on the fritz, you won't have much of a vacation, unless you're only going 20 miles or so.

- You can't mention the unmitigated misery that you and yours will go through if you even think about driving a few hundred miles in an non-air-conditioned car.

- You'll have better luck trying to win the lottery.

Steve Reagan

- Have something for the kids to do - Rule No. 1A. Children are great, wonderful, marvelous and almost every other description you want to use. But children in the back seat of a car with nothing to do are bombs with your name on them - it's just a matter of time before you get hit.

To cure this potential problem, do your best to make the back seat of your car a miniature Disneyland. Books, puzzles, pocket video games, sedatives (that's a joke, son, a joke, I say) and other activities should keep the little ones occupied so you can focus your attention on other things, like staying on your side of the road.

- If you're planning on going more than 300 miles or so, give serious thought to flying.

- Don't try to reach your destination in one fell swoop - I know way too many macho types who think they can make it from here to California without stopping to rest. That some of these A.J. Foyt wannabes are still alive has theologians shaking their heads.

Front seat passengers, please note: If the driver keeps bobbing his head or utters phrases like, "I'm not sleepy, Sharon," this is cause for concern - especially if your name is not Sharon.

So, there you have it. I hope these pointers will help make your upcoming trips more enjoyable, not only for you but for your loved ones as well.

If not, well, you can always stay home and watch TV.

Veggie lover has a beef with writer

One thing that surprises me about vegetarians is their ferocity. I would have thought that people who nibble at buds and plants would be more doe-like. But to my chagrin, I have recently learned otherwise.

Not long ago, I noted that anti-beef vegetarians were waging a crusade against McDonald's because that company does not offer a veggie burger.

This struck me as illogical. If I wanted a glass of buttermilk, I wouldn't go to a tavern for it. And I wouldn't picket the tavern for not keeping some on hand.

So why would vegetarians nag a company that has prospered by selling beef because it doesn't offer an item of limited appeal?

Oh, my, you would think I had come out in favor of eating babies.

Consider the response of one Scott Palczak, 36, a computer graphic artist, who lives in Longmont, Colo., and is a dedicated vegetarian.

Putting his graphics skills to work, he created and distributed a poster that shows me with horns coming out of my head, with the title: "Weak-Willed Wimp - Chicago Tribune Hedonist."

And he wrote: "The more I look at Mike Royko, the more he looks like the son of Rudolf Hess - with the personality to match."

(For those weak on World War II history, Hess was a top aide to Adolf Hitler and was a loony. I don't know if I look like his son, never having met the unfortunate lad.)

Palczak goes on: "Here's a man so hedonistic that he probably can't go three hours without a cigarette and a martini or a raw steak."

(Actually, I can go as long as four hours without any of the above. Not that it is any of Palczak's business, since I don't ask how long he can go without eating a radish.)

"I'm sure he has the willpower of a gnat and is as grumpy as he looks because he wants and demands constant gratification. His whole crusty life is devoted to pleasing the senses and satisfying his lust for raw meat."

"As you will note, in his picture, Royko looks constipated. It's obvious he's not getting his fiber. His crusty, old, leathery body is desperate for precious vegetable fiber and enzymes. Look closely and you'll agree. His crusty, alcohol-diluted mind cares neither for his fellow creatures nor even his own body. This man lives only for today."

(That's not entirely accurate. I also live for yesterdays, when every special-interest twist didn't try to impose his fanatical beliefs on the rest of us.)

"If you go to a McDonald's, you may see Royko hiding in the corner looking like a dirty old man with a bottle of Red Rocket, a pack of Lucky Strikes and a stack of Macs. He'll look as content as you'll ever see him outside of a stripper bar."

"He and many others like him are what I call Weak-Willed Wimps. They will eat until satisfied and then eat some more. Various vices control their lives; they live and breathe only to eat, drink, smoke - and if they're lucky, have sex."

(Luck? If you depend on luck for sex, Palczak, maybe you should order a steak now and then.)

"They are shallow, calloused, selfish people concerned entirely with their own immediate gratification. Sure, once in a while, they do a good deed to relieve their guilty conscience, but it goes against their nature. They are basically too self-centered and unevolved to care about important issues. And never do they want to be reminded that the steak they're eating was once a live, feeling animal."

"His cynical, cholesterol-saturated brain sees every worthwhile cause as just another pain in his wrinkled butt. He doesn't want to be bothered by animal rights. ... His small, unevolved conscience doesn't want to be reminded that there may be a right way to live - that maybe there's a world of things he never thought about or cared about. But he sure cares about eating his raw meat. Would you like some blood for dessert, Mr. Royko? How about plasma?"

All that because I believe that if a company wants to sell hamburgers and not veggie burgers, it ought to be able to sell hamburgers and not veggie burgers. And if a person wants to eat veggie burgers, they should go to a restaurant that sells veggie burgers.

Is that unreasonable? If so, what about the fact that I like an occasional porkchop? And, dare I confess, a hot dog? Never mind Rudolf Hess' son - I could be Hess himself.

A phone call to Palczak's number in Colorado was answered by his mother. She said he was out for the day. Possibly nibbling on leaves? She didn't say.

But his mother did say that her son "is as vegetarian as you can get. No meat, no eggs, no chicken, no fish. Me, I'm a fish eater. But I have to admit, when you eat meat, you get bloated."

And she said her son is a staunch environmentalist. "All the causes. You name 'em. Anything that moves."

Why, if one may ask, does his mother answer his phone?

"He lives here. Intermittently."

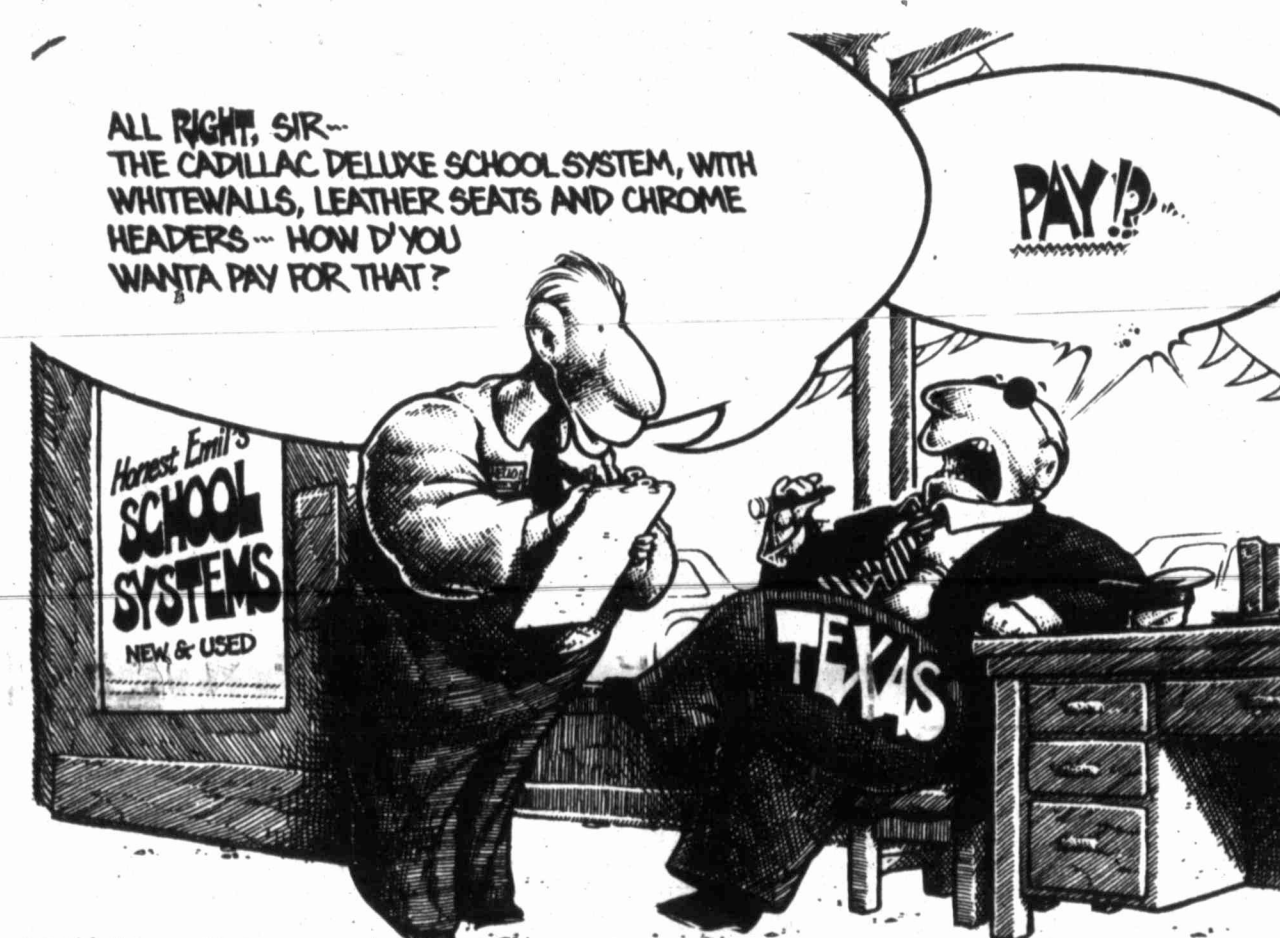

A computer artist. Age 36. And he lives with his mom and says that sex is a matter of luck.

And he calls me a wimp?

It's enough to make me chuckle over my prime rib.

Making a mockery of Little Joseph's death

"We wanted to ask Judge Williams about it, but he would not permit us to speak."

Faye Callahan, the foster mother of 3-year-old Joseph Wallace, who was killed in his birth mother's Chicago apartment last week, was explaining what happened when Juvenile Court Judge Walter Williams ordered in 1990 that the little boy be given to the birth mother, who was violently mentally ill. Mrs. Callahan and I were talking just after she returned from the funeral home prior to Joseph's burial.

"Judge Williams had ordered that Joseph be returned to his 'home,' and we wanted to ask what he knew about the 'home,' but we had no standing in his court, and he didn't want to hear anything from us."

Judge Williams had to know the awful danger into which he was sending little Joseph - everyone else involved with the case did. It was court record. Joseph's mother had a history of violent mental illness, of swallowing batteries and broken mirrors, of setting herself on fire, of inserting soda pop cans into her vagina while pregnant with Joseph. Psychiatrists warned Judge Williams: "(The mother) is incapable of caring for Joseph or any other baby, and might hurt/kill her baby"; "(She) should never have custody of this baby or any baby."

That is the woman to whom Judge Williams sent Joseph, thus beginning the path that inevitably led to Joseph's death last week, when the birth mother admits hanging him with an electrical cord from a door transom. Judge Williams rationalized this as an effort to "reunite families."

But of course, there was no family. There was just this violent, insane woman, and because Mrs. Callahan was not permitted to ask about the home to which the judge ordered

Bob Greene

Joseph, she went there herself.

"There was no bed for Joseph," she said, crying. "The mother was sleeping on the floor, and there was no bed for the baby. He had grown up in our home with a crib and clothing and a bedroom, and Judge Williams was sending him to a filthy place with no bed."

"I couldn't stand it. I went out and I bought Joseph a crib. I took the crib to that apartment, and I left so sick at heart that I do not even have the words to describe it."

Soon Joseph's death will be out of the news. But Judge Williams remains in Cook County Juvenile Court, where he sent Joseph toward his death, where he also devastated the life of the child we called Sarah, and to allow him to serve as a judge in that building is the worst kind of insult to the memory of Joseph, and to Sarah, and to all the other children whose names we do not know.

In the transcript from the key hearing determining Joseph's life, when a public guardian pleaded with the judge not to send Joseph to the mentally ill mother, the judge replied: "I wonder if you are arguing in the best interest of the child, quite frankly."

The birth mother had an excuse for her failings: she was insane. But a judge is not supposed to be insane; a judge, by definition, is supposed to have some judgment. Judge Williams is every bit as responsible for the death of Joseph Wallace as is the woman who actually killed the child; he is the one person who, at the crossroads moment, had the power to save the child's life, and as he has so often, he failed utterly.

And still he sits in Juvenile Court. His supervisors have already demonstrated that they have no faith in his judgment in important matters; during Sarah's case he was removed from the courtroom where he could rule on abused and neglected children, and shifted to a courtroom that handles juvenile delinquency. But that courtroom is too important a place for him, also; if he cannot be trusted to rule wisely in the cases of abused children, he should not be trusted to rule on the cases of any children at all.

What to do? If you are a parent whose child ends up appearing before Judge Williams, you might insist that your attorney move for an automatic mistrial, just to have it on the record. If you need foundation, refer to the decision of the Illinois Appellate Court, which in the case of Sarah found that Judge Williams was in "total ignorance or total disregard" of the law. If the judge needs further evidence, you might recommend that he visit Joseph Wallace's grave.

Joseph cannot speak for himself. Sarah, who turns 9 years old this week, is struggling heroically to put back together the life Judge Williams destroyed. Illinois legal authorities claim to be saddened and horrified by what was done to Joseph, and by what was done to Sarah, but every day that Judge Williams remains on the bench in Juvenile Court is a mockery of Joseph's death, every day that Judge Williams remains on the bench is a laugh in the face of Sarah.

The legal authorities claim to be ashamed of what has happened. Every day that Judge Williams remains on the bench is proof that they don't mean it.

Police TIPS

A trial in municipal court is a public trial as in any other court. Under Texas law you can be brought to trial only after a sworn complaint is filed against you. A complaint is a document that states what illegal act you are supposed to have committed.

There are several rights that you have in a court proceeding: the right to see the complaint at least one day before the trial; the right to have your case tried before a jury, if you desire; the right to testify in your behalf and to cross examine any witness who testifies against you; the right to not testify, if you desire; you may call witnesses to testify in your behalf and to have the court issue a subpoena to ensure their appearance at the trial.

If you choose to have the case tried before a jury, you have the right to question jurors about their qualifications to hear your case. If you think that a juror will not be impartial, you may ask the judge to excuse that juror. You can strike up to three members of a jury panel but not for an illegal reason (such as a strike based only on race or religion).

The state will present its case first by calling witnesses to testify against you. You will then have the right to cross examine. That means you may ask the witnesses questions about their testimony. You can not argue with them and your cross examination must be in the form of questions.

After the prosecution has presented its case, you will then have an opportunity to tell your version of the incident. You have the right to call any witnesses and the state has the right to cross examine them. After all testimony is concluded, both sides then make closing arguments. This is your opportunity to tell the court why you think you are not guilty of the offense charged.

If your case is tried before a judge, the judge's decision is called a judgment. If the case is tried by a jury, the jury's decision is called a verdict. If you are found guilty by either the judge or jury, the penalty will be announced at that time. The amount of the fine that the court assesses is determined by the facts and circumstances of the case. In addition to a fine, other court costs required by the state may be charged. These charges may differ depending on the offense. If you are found not guilty, court costs can not be assessed.

If you are found guilty, you may request a new trial. If the judge is persuaded that justice has not been done in your case, he may grant a new trial. You also have the right to appeal your case to another court when you are found guilty.

Municipal court also has jurisdiction over juveniles (under 17) charged with Class C misdemeanors except for public intoxication. The parents of any juveniles charged in municipal court are required to be present in court with their child. Juveniles who fail to appear in court can also have the charge of failure to appear brought against them.

If you have questions about municipal court you can contact the municipal court clerk's office and they will be happy to assist you.

Single member districts considered by council

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON - Implementing single-member districts for the Stanton City Council was discussed by council members Monday.

The six-member council split on the issue, said city administrator Danny Fryar. Further study will be done.

"It was about 50-50," Fryar said. "We're going to come up with some figures with our lawyer and get back with them on it."

The council currently has five at-large council districts and a mayor position. The city's 2,576 population in 1990 was 49 percent Hispanic. With other races included, a majority were minorities.

The first Hispanic, as far as city officials can determine, was elected to the council just two weeks ago. Valentino H. Sotelo, sworn in at the meeting, topping three other candidates seeking two seats, two white incumbents and another Hispanic newcomer.

Sotelo, transportation supervisor for the Stanton Independent School District, got 309 votes to Gene Wheeler's 302 votes, James Johnson's 288 votes and Jose Manuel Villa's 286 votes. Wheeler, owner of Wheeler Drilling and Pump Co., was also sworn in, beginning his third two-year term.

Single-member districts are probably inevitable, Fryar predicts.

"I'm pretty sure they'll probably end up doing it," he said. "I know that they're probably going to file suit against us one of these days or the state's going to make us do it."

One issue that needs to be worked out is how minority districts can be drawn, Fryar said. "Our (Hispanic) people are pretty well scattered all over town."

Of four precincts for Martin County Commissioners Court, one has more than 60 percent Hispanic voters. That precinct includes most of the southside of Stanton and the east section of the county. The county has had a minority precinct more than a decade.

Five single-member districts implemented this year by the Stanton ISD include two Hispanic districts that encompass the South and Southeast sections of the city as well as the school district.

Forsan, Glasscock schools match abilities at UIL contest

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Forsan and Garden City elementary and junior high school students matched abilities with other area schools in a recent Sterling City literary competition.

In the overall contest, Forsan edged out Garden City, taking first place in the competition. Last week's two-day contest was sponsored by the University Interscholastic League (UIL), according to Garden City educator Rita Bell.

Under UIL rules, each student is allowed to participate in as many as three subjects. Categories tested in the competition included number sense, ready writing, life science, earth science, dictionary skills, listening skills, spelling, calculator applications, oral poetry reading, story telling, picture memory and maps and graphs.

These junior high school and elementary school students can participate again in high school, with an opportunity to compete against schools in the region and in the state, Bell said.

The contests are annual events, and Garden City prides itself on finishing first or second in the surrounding school districts, Bell said. The Garden City district's elementary student have a high rate of turnout for the event. "It's the elementary participation that does it," she said.

From Garden City ISD, students who placed in the competition in their respective grade classes include:

Lorena Acevedo, first place Number Sense; Paige Hoch, second place Number Sense; Jared Eggmeyer, fifth place Number Sense; Tiffany Kujawski, first place Number Sense; Kaci Kohls, second place Number Sense; Orlando Acevedo, fourth place Number Sense; Tiffany Kujawski, first place Ready Writing; J'Layne Niehues, fifth place Ready Writing; M'Lynn Niehues, second place Ready Writing; Ryan Batla, third place Ready Writing; Summer Eoff, fourth Ready Writing; Meagan Goodwin, fifth Calculator Applications; T.J.

Tatum, sixth place Calculator Applications; Stormi Chandler, sixth place

Oral Reading Poetry; Jill Hoelscher, first place Dictionary Skills; Steven Hoelscher, third place Dictionary Skills; Jason Wilde, fourth place Dictionary Skills; Whitney Eoff, sixth Listening Skills; Melissa Cypert, third place Story Telling; Michelle Fuchs, first place Spelling; M'Lynn Niehues, second place Spelling; Leslie Batla, sixth place Spelling; Jason Smith, second place Spelling; Andrea Gully, third place Spelling; Zac Zachry, second place Maps and Graphs.

C City's Christmas in April great success

Throng of volunteers gave a helping hand refurbishing 25 homes

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

COLORADO CITY - A Colorado City resident went for 15 years without running water in his house until a band of volunteers descending upon his lot on April 24.

After a days work replumbing his home, the senior citizen no longer had to carry water in to bath, cook and drink as he had done for so many years since a hard winter froze his pipes in the late 1970s.

But he was not the only one with such good fortune last month, more than 20 senior citizens, who were unable to make needed repairs because of physical or economic reasons, were assisted by the newly formed Christmas in April organization.

With about 600 volunteers refurbishing 25 houses in Colorado City, Lorraine and Westbrook, the first time effort was considered a great success by project organizers.

"It went better than we could have hoped for the first year," said Jim McCollum, Christmas in April board member.

The volunteers rewired, replumbed and repainted. They replaced cabinets, carpet and porches. In some of the more dilapidated houses, they gutted the houses, replacing the support beams, as well as completely redoing the interior.

One home had been engulfed by fire a few years back. The support beams were frail and bowed. With time and continued deterioration, the roof could have caved in, said Jan Lemmons, board president.

Volunteer groups gave their time, labor and some donated materials to make the first time effort a success.

"The volunteers gave so much," she said. "Individuals, businesses, churches and organization all joined in. We had 100 percent participation from county electricians, plumbers and carpenters."

two houses and did three. At one house, the group rewired the house, trimmed trees and replaced outlets. They also painted the house and erected a fence.

"The church was behind it because we thought it was a good way to bring together the community to help those less fortunate," said Rev. Sammy Contreras.

The Mitchell County effort joined the ranks of Big Spring, San Angelo, Midland and other neighboring communities who have had Christmas in April organizations since the late 1980s.

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 14, 1993

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Kick way back and gain insight into what is happening with a money matter. Don't let a romantic notion or charming talker interfere with a major decision. Tonight: Be ready for the heat. **

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Review a situation with care before you leap into action. Your power of persuasion might be high. Deal with what must be - which might include letting go of a difficult partner. Open up to talk. Tonight: Be where the gang is. ***

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accept the limelight and another's attention. Communications are important, but you might be too tired to hear it all. Review changes and be willing to give in a little. Tonight: Sleep it off. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reach out for someone at a distance, even if the doll is being moody. Manage a situation with poise, despite what is going on. Know that you are cared for. Pitch in and let go of a hassle. Tonight: Gab over dinner. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be more intent on making things happen for you. Laugh through changes and be willing to look at life through a partner's eyes. Confusion is likely if you push another too far. Be more open about your intentions. Tonight: Unglue a stuck attitude. *****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let another call the shots; if a disaster results, at least it won't be your fault. Be more upbeat in your communications and push more for what you want. Your popularity will speak for itself if you let it. Tonight: Say yes to a partner's ideas. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be more direct with a co-worker. Listen for feedback from another. If you stay open during a discussion, new ideas are likely to come out. Don't be overly pressured by a money matter. A pal might feel out of whack. Tonight: Relax. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be willing to let it all hang out, because another will read between the lines anyway. Your stubbornness - as well as another's - is creating more of a problem than you realize. Push comes to shove. Tonight: Tread with care. ****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be more centered about a problem and look to your creative side for a solution. Answer a boss who might be pushing some buttons. You need to connect with a loved one who cares enormously about you. Tonight: Settle down. ****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Talk up a storm and be willing to reach out for another. Try to understand more of what is going on. Reveal more about your day-to-day life. A friend really needs your extra time. Tonight: Hang out at a favorite haunt. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Watch those expenses and be more careful about what is happening. You might be pushing hard on too many fronts. Listen carefully during a conversation with your inner voice. Be more in touch with your feelings. Tonight: Yawn. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be more in touch with what you want, and examine just what is happening to you. Allow yourself to come out of your shell. With an emphasis on communications, adjust to a change. Tonight: You call the shots. *****

IF MAY 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You'll need to negotiate more with partners and associates this year. Power plays will abound. Approach problems as challenges. Listen to your instincts and you'll come out on top. Friendship and goal-planning can make all the difference in your year. Focus on changes in your daily patterns until Christmas, after which you'll be a social butterfly. PISCES is your pal.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Smoking controversy continues

DEAR ABBY: That letter from 60-year-old "Al" in Sacramento, who boasted that he is in excellent health despite his regular diet of ham and eggs fried in butter, and plenty of alcohol and cigarettes, could gravelly lead some of the unthinking. Assuming that Al is as healthy as he thinks he is, no one should believe that nicotine, alcohol and fried foods are harmless.

I am a 65-year-old male who has never smoked. I do not drink, and I avoid foods that are high in cholesterol. I've been running five miles a day for 35 years, and have no particular health problems. I am retiring this year, but I could die tomorrow from a stroke or heart attack. Who can say for sure what all the contributing factors in a person's life will add up to?

I hope "Al" continues to enjoy excellent health for years to come, although, considering his lifestyle and diet, I wouldn't bet on it. Ask "Al" to write to you again in five years, when he's my age - if he's still alive. — BEN. B. IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR BEN: I'll put this in my follow-up file for 1998, and let you know how "Al" is doing - if he's still alive.

DEAR ABBY: I am a smoker. It's not something I'm proud of, and yes, I am aware of the damage I may be doing to my health. I also live with the guilt of possibly hurting others with my secondhand smoke.

I am an intelligent person, but I'm also a tobacco addict. My addiction was once socially acceptable, but that's no longer the case. However, I don't cheat on my taxes, shoplift, practice unsafe sex, drive under the influence, or knock over little old ladies for a seat on the subway. I've never been in jail, or killed anyone either.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Abby, most smokers are caught in a bind — we know smoking is not good for us, but it's a very difficult habit to overcome. All we ask is a little understanding, not an across-the-board condemnation for being weak-willed and self-destructive. — CHRIS IN RIVERDALE, N.Y.

DEAR CHRIS: Thanks, I needed that. We non-smokers should keep reminding ourselves that nicotine addiction in some ways is more difficult to overcome than a cocaine habit.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the man who says he's glad he smokes. He sounds just like my dad. He always insisted that he didn't inhale, so it didn't matter. He is now 84, and has had chronic emphysema for the past 10 years. I don't know how many times we've had to rush him to the hospital because of his lung problems. He now sits in his chair with the oxygen machine running 16 hours a day.

It's no wonder people are proposing taxing cigarettes at $2 a pack; Medicare has to pick up the tab for millions of people like my beloved dad.

I'm signing my name, but please don't use it; I don't want to embarrass my father. — HIS DAUGHTER, GLENDALE, ORE.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE WHO ARE GOING ON A VACATION TRIP (YOU KNOW WHO YOU ARE): Take half as many clothes, and twice as much money.

To write "Dear Abby," send your questions to: Dear Abby, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Branch Davidian compound flattened

The Associated Press

WACO — One day after allowing local officials, prosecutors and defense attorneys to tour the charred remains of the Branch Davidian compound, the government hired bulldozers to flatten the scorched ruins.

Meanwhile, the federal agent who best knew members of the doomsday cult said he is haunted by the ill-fated Feb. 28 raid, the 51-day standoff that ensued, and its tragic, fiery end in which more than 70 people died.

"I think about it constantly — every day and every night — everything that happened and why,"
Robert Rodriguez told The Dallas
Morning News in a copyright story in Thursday's editions.

"I've come to believe we never stood a chance that day. After learning about all the leaks that we didn't know about, we were doomed from the beginning."

Now, little remains on the prairie known as Mount Carmel. The blackened water tower that loomed above the wreckage since the April 19 was crumbled Wednesday as machines rolled across the crime scene for safety purposes.

Jeff Jamar, the FBI special agent in charge during the stalemate, said the bulldozers were "just filling holes" around the cult's 77 acres.

The precautions were taken in preparation for tours of the area by state health officials, who are considering quarantining the area.

The directory is one of the projects the center has implemented since it was established in 1991 through a fund provided by Moore Development
For Big Spring Inc.

The breakfast, held each month, is another way for large corporations to make contact with small local businesses. Representatives from Fina Oil
& Chemical, TU Electric, Big Spring
State Hospital, Big Spring VA Medical Center and Texas Instruments attend regularly, giving updates on contracts available with their companies or institutions.

Big Spring Skin Clinic owner Betty

Kelly, a regular attendant, says she increased her business by extending a discount to state hospital employees.

Another breakfast success story is MG's Auto Clinic owner Manuel Gonzales, who received a contract from TU Electric for car maintenance.

Although the breakfast has assisted businesses such as Kelly's and Gonzales's, the attendance of small business is low and often purchasers outnumber suppliers three to one.

The breakfasts will resume in September.

Mother's nightmare

Woman seeks state hospital help in coping after son kidnapped

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Marsha Martin, a 32-year-old client of the Big Spring State Hospital, attempted suicide the day of her son's birthday Feb. 10.

Two days later, the Lubbock native was admitted to BSSH, for treatment of her distress at the loss of her son in December.

Her American-born son, 9-year-old Wissam Ghanen Jaber is still alive, but was taken illegally to Lebanon by his father (Martin's ex-husband), Lebanon-born Ghanen Anwar Jaber.

Right now, I'm trying to make contact with both of them; especially my son, and be able to talk to him," said Martin. "He said he was taking my son on a ski trip a week before Christmas, and when they didn't return Christmas Eve, I thought something might have happened to them."

She said she filed a missing persons report with police officials, and discovered her ex-husband's house was vacant.

"We had never had any problems (with visitation) before," she said. "It was my understanding that (my ex-husband) wanted to go back to his country because his father was ill, but I never expected anything like this to happen."

The divorce, after three years of marriage, was as unexpected as her son's disappearance, Martin said. She has since remarried a Lubbock County deputy sheriff.

Martin and Jaber met as Lubbock Christian College students in the early 1980s, she said.

"We became best friends at first because we shared interests like playing cards and cooking, and then we got married," she said. Their marriage lasted from 1982-85.

Martin added the marriage took a sour turn when she became pregnant with Wissam.

"I couldn't understand why he wouldn't tell his parents about me, and he wanted me to have an abortion," she said. "There was physical and emotional abuse, and during the whole pregnancy he wanted me to have an abortion."

Martin said she left to have the baby in a safer environment.

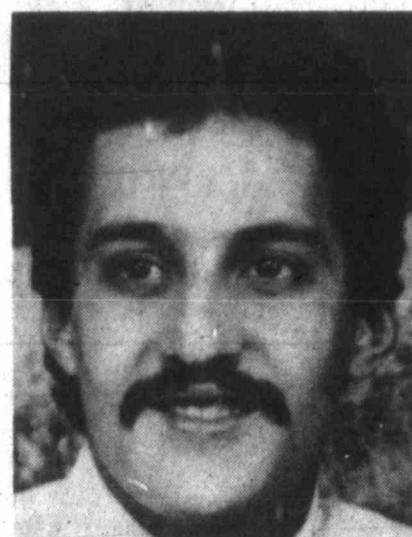

"After seven or eight months, he realized I wasn't going to give up the baby," she said. "During the whole pregnancy I fought for my son's life."

Jaber's attitude changed when Wissam was born, Martin said. "He attached to the baby, but I knew our marriage was over because I felt torn to the point I had to leave."

Martin's second marriage to Lubbock resident Gaylan Martin, has brought two more children — Hayley Gaylyn, 3, and Austin Wade, 2.

"(Gaylan) has been real supportive, even with my anger toward him," she said. "I've just been so bitter because everywhere I've turned, I couldn't get any answers."

After corresponding with the State Department, Martin said the information she received outlined her rights to influence the laws of an

Islamic country.

"Islamic laws do not allow kids to leave the country without their father's permission," she said. "I've written to people like politicians (receiving a response from Gov. Ann Richards), entertainers, journalists and (support) groups."

"Everyone's hands are tied," she added. "It's been real tough, and it has just totally wiped me out."

After a second suicide attempt at BSSH, Martin said she realized the best way to handle the loss of her son is to start down a positive path and try to get her life back together.

"I'm trying to deal with it, the best I can; I'm still contacting people. I think being here (at the hospital) is the right thing because I'm starting to feel better," she said. "I've been through a lot of trauma, but I've got to take it one step at a time."

VA employees get help managing stress

This week, several medical center employees will have the opportunity to learn how to cope with stress during Stress Management Training.

The program on stress is designed to develop, for each participant, a personalized comprehensive stress management strategy that prevents the negative effects of stress and increases physical and mental well being. Major emphasis throughout the course is on skill-development activities," said Jackie Conway, stress management trainer.

Other trainers for the program are Beverly Averitt, Dr. David Sutton, Pete Wilson, R.N., and Roxanne Wilson.

National Institutional Laundry and Linen Week was celebrated last week.

The Department of Veterans Affairs operates the largest and most extensive Laundry and Linen program in the world, processing over 240 million pounds of textiles annually.

Hats off to the Big Spring VA Medical Center laundry employees: Melecio Sarmiento, Camilo Nieto, Geneva Morton, Francine Minchew, Vance McCright, Joe Garfias, and Erma Dunn, Supervisor. Congratulations for a job well done!

How does a woman rise through the ranks of a male-dominated organization? Six service chiefs at the Big Spring VA Medical Center know how: hard work, commitment and tenacity. Out of 20 service chiefs at the VA center, six are women.

Phyllis Fults, Chief of Nursing Service, is in charge of a staff of approximately 114 employees working from one end of the medical center to the other. Along with Fults, other service chiefs in varied programs include: Mary Payne, dietetics; Dr. K. Vasanawala, laboratory; Dr.

Performers from Re-Creation Riverboat III sang and danced in uniform to popular patriotic tunes at the VA Medical Center Monday.

Nomie Finn, medical service; Wendy Wheeler, pharmacy; and Dr. Mary Tann, rehabilitation medicine. As service chiefs, but not necessarily as female service chiefs, they've gotten used to increased pressure on the job.

During the month of May, Big Spring VA Medical Center employees join the nation in celebrating Asian-Pacific American Heritage Month. This year's theme is "Harmony in Diversity."

On May 11, 1993, community and VA Asian families provided a display of traditional handicrafts, foods, and a video for the enjoyment of patients, visitors and employees.

We salute and honor all Asian-Pacific Americans who have participated in defending this country's freedom. As we honor them for their courageous legacy, we also celebrate the diversity and richness of their heritage, strong traditions and values.

Several patients, accompanied by Scott Willis, Recreational Therapist, traveled to the Midland Angels Garden Wednesday to enjoy a picnic and the Midland Angels vs. Tulsa Drillers game. Everyone had such a good time, plans are being made for another trip very soon.

On behalf of the entire Medical Center staff, I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to all employees who participated in the "Christmas in April" project April 22. Assisting coordinators Abe Juarez and Scott Whitmore were: Conrad Alexander, David Baird, Sandra Bowman, John Calvio, Bobby Cordova, Dr. Bill Cox, Fred Cox, Mary Dennard, Sammy Dennard, Phyllis Fults, Tony Guzman, David Keith, Manuel Martinez, Tommy Martinez, Robert Moody, Marcia Merrell, Mary Payne, Sunny Rigdon, Herb Simms, Charlie Upton, and Michelle Werner. Thanks folks!

Several VA employees joined other health care providers at the Big Spring Health Fair, recently at the Big Spring Mall. Thanks to all participants, the fair was a success.

Pat Atkins

Barbara Tatom, Supervisor, Pulmonary Function Laboratory, and Bill Stafford provided pulmonary function testing, which measures lung function. Robert Finn, RN; Les White, MSN, RN, C, CCRN, and David Ströther, LVN, Nursing Service, assessed blood pressures and provided information.

Last week we joined the nation in recognizing the compassion and skillful care our nurses gives to our veteran patients.

During a special cookout lunch, the following personnel received Nursing Service's Excellence in Nursing awards: Patsy Dorton, RN; Priscilla Marquez, LVN, and Pam Jones, NA. Ginny Crawford, LVN, won a $25 gift certificate for guessing the correct number of surgical instruments displayed in a five gallon jar.

Conrad Alexander, Medical Center Director, discussed many changes at the medical center during the Constituency Awareness Advisory Board Luncheon May 7. "With budget restrictions, converting to a new computer system, various construction projects underway and more expected in the near future, the staff is to be commended for their efforts in assuring continued optimal care is provided to the veterans," said Alexander.

Accident driver, victim sharing road to recovery

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — "A car drove up to the car and banged it ... 911 doctors got me and got to a hospital ... I was dead. My dad ... he prayed for me. Everybody prayed for me ... The doctor operate on my head ... I sleep for two months ... I woke up! The nurses didn't believe, I was alive ..."

Veronica Hinojosa was 17 when she dictated those words to her therapist. A year earlier, her prose would have been smoother, the style of an A-student finishing her junior year of high school.

But in December 1991, they were the words of a different young woman, now with the skills of perhaps only a fifth-grader. She was working mightily to regain what had taken her 16 years to achieve the first time. Her severely damaged brain was beginning to recognize faces, relearn numbers, to form words that her tongue struggled to produce.

On Feb. 9, 1991, on the way home from a church Valentine party, the small car in which Veronica was riding was hit from behind by a Chevrolet Blazer. Her body was crushed into a back-seat space a few inches wide. And her life, which had seemed so full of promise, was narrowed forever.

Pharmacist Scott Clemens of suburban Garland had fallen asleep at the wheel of the Blazer. It was only for a few seconds. But, like Veronica, he awoke to find his life permanently changed.

Each month now, he does the hardest thing he has ever done. He drives to a modest Garland home. He goes in, sits on the couch, and talks to Veronica's parents, Jesus and Hortencia Hinojosa. He struggles to understand their daughter's labored words. And, simply, to understand.

The areas of Veronica's brain that control speech and motor movements were mostly destroyed. She lost the hearing in her left ear. The part of her skull over her left temple had to be replaced surgically. Her left eye was saved, but the nerve that controls the eyelid was cut.

Veronica's memory of the accident is minimal. Clemens remembers it all. "I play it in my head four or five times a week," he said.

Veronica Hinojosa chats recently at South Garland High School, where she returned during her recovery from a February 1991 collision. The driver of the car that hit her said he draws strength from Veronica and her family.

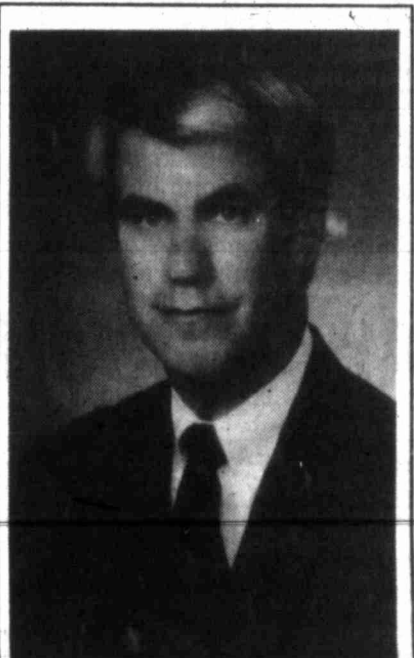

The two months that Veronica lay comatose were the worst of his life, the pharmacist said. "If Veronica had died, there's no doubt in my mind I would have found a way to blow my brains out."

DR. LOURELL E. SUTLIFF

Sutliff shows expertise

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Dr. Lourell E. Sutliff, an obstetrician and gynecologist with offices in San Angelo and Big Spring, has been accepted into the Society of Reproductive Surgery.

The society's membership consists of physicians with expertise in surgically correcting reproductive problems. Sutliff currently is the only member of the society practicing in Big Spring, the doctor said.

Among the skills in which members must exhibit expertise is conservative pelvic surgery — surgical techniques to maintain the function of pelvic organs.

Other skills include diagnostic and operative endoscopy, microsurgery to correct infertility and surgical procedures associated with in-vitro fertilization and other assisted reproductive procedures, according to Sutliff.

Sutliff graduated with honors from Emory University in Atlanta. He received his medical degree from the University of Tennessee and completed his obstetrical-gynecology residency at the University of Tennessee, City of Memphis Hospital.

The board certified doctor has practiced in San Angelo since 1983 and opened a satellite office in Big Spring in 1991.

Sutliff said he prides himself on keeping abreast of the latest techniques and procedures for the OB-GYN patient. "I strive to bring the latest advancements in women's healthcare to my patients," he said.

In addition to the AFS, Sutliff is a member of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, American Association of Gynecologic Laparoscopists, Texas Medical Association, Society of Air Force Clinical Surgeons, Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, Air Force Association and Reserve Officers Association.

Runners prep for state

Sprint relay overcomes obstacles

By MIKE BUTTS
Sports Editor

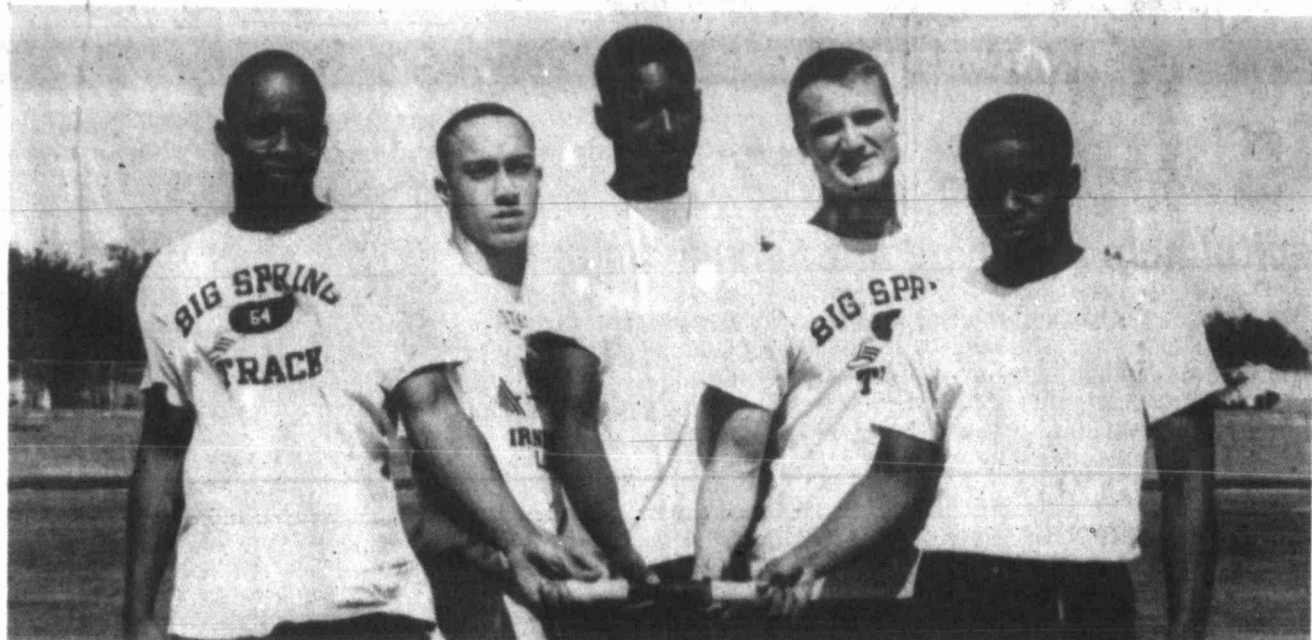

That Big Spring's 400 meter boys relay team will compete in Austin at the state track and field meet this Friday comes as no surprise. That it qualified for the competition without the school's two fastest sprinters does.

Big Spring's 400 relay team of seniors Tim Pearson, Duane Edmonds and Stacey Martin and junior Alan McGee began the track season in February by running a 41.7. That's 9/10 of a second off the region record. And it had Steer track coach Randy Britton anticipating great things for the team.

"We probably would have improved a second and 1/2, maybe even two seconds (by the end of the year)," Britton said. The best region qualifying time in Class 4A coming into the state meet is Austin LBJ's 41.17.

But Edmonds and Martin, who have both run their legs of the race in 10.4 seconds, suffered mid-season muscle pulls that kept them off the track for weeks.

So in came sophomore Harvey Simpson and junior Lonnie Jackson. The team's times went up, but the new foursome managed to qualify for the region meet in San Angelo, held the weekend before last. Despite coming into region with the slowest time, they ran a 42.32 for second place and a trip to Austin.

loss of top sprinter Stacey Martin to qualify for the state track meet Friday in Austin.

Edmonds comes back for the state meet and replaces McGee. That leaves Pearson as the only runner who remained on the team from start to finish. He admits to being disappointed that the team didn't stay together.

"When we hit that 41.7 coach was telling us we had a good shot at the (national) record and we had our minds set on it and the injuries came around," Pearson said. Jasper, Texas has the national mark of 39.9.

Edmonds echoes Pearson's regrets, but he appreciates the work Jackson and Simpson have done in relief for himself and Martin.

"I was disappointed at first, but I think with the team we have right now we can run just as good a time if not better (than the original team)," Edmonds said. "I think that's just the kind of quality guys we had to put in there."

Running a good time in the region preliminaries even after having trouble with handoffs boosted the team's spirits, Britton said.

"(Qualifying for state) wasn't a surprise, it was just them having the confidence that they could do it," Britton said.

"At region going into finals I think we were about fifth or sixth going in and they just stepped it up and finished second," Edmonds said. "That's what impressed me the most."

The team again enters a meet with the slowest qualifying time. All seven relay squads going against the Steers in Austin have faster region times than Big Spring. But as the team showed at San Angelo, those times don't mean a great deal when the race is run.

"(It) doesn't have a lot of bearing right now," Britton said. "You could drop the stick or have a bad leg."

Hopefully the good things will happen to us and the bad things will happen to the other teams."

And regardless of the team having the worst time among competitors at state, Britton and a few others think it could run in the top three.

"I might have been the only one in the state of Texas that knew we had a chance (at region)," Britton said. "There're four others now that know we have a chance and they're running it."

NOTES: All Big Spring running events are scheduled for Friday beginning at 6:15 p.m. In Big Spring's field events, shotputter Syreeta Shellman competes at noon Friday and high jumper Wes Hughes competes at 1 p.m. ... Stanton's running events begin at 5:45 p.m. Saturday ... KBST radio (95.3 FM) will broadcast state meet area results from Austin Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Anne Rodriguez: The reluctant 800 runner?

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports Writer

It may be unfair to say Anne Rodriguez was pressured into running the 800 meters. But she was certainly less than enthusiastic about it at first.

There's nothing like success, however, to change one's outlook about things.

Rodriguez, a two-sport star at Big Spring High School for the past four years, will close out her high school career Friday when she participates in the state track meet in Austin.

The diminutive senior would like nothing better than to keep her win streak intact in the 800. Since a fifth-place finish at last year's state meet, Rodriguez, who also plays volleyball for the Lady Steers, is unbeaten in the two-lap race.

It's that success that went a long way toward changing her attitude of the event.

"I didn't want to do it (run the 800), but my coach insisted," Rodriguez said. "But I like it now. I used to like the 400, but I never could do as well in it as I'd have liked. The 800 just came naturally to me."

Although Rodriguez's time in the 800 (2:19) is only about fourth best among state 4A girls, Big Spring girls track coach Jay Kennedy said that his star half-miler has a legitimate chance at the gold medal Friday night.

"If we have good weather conditions, she can win," Kennedy said. "Plus, you have to consider that Anne really hasn't been pushed all year, either. The combination of great meters. She finished fifth in the event last year.

Big Spring senior Anne Rodriguez returns to the state track meet this Friday in Austin to run the 800

weather and great competition results in great times.

"This week, she knows she'll have to run about 2:16 to win it," Kennedy added. "(2:15) might not be out of the question, although that might be pushing it a bit."

Kennedy said Rodriguez is perfectly suited to the 800, which is essentially a long sprint.

"You have to have sprinter's speed and a mile's endurance - and that's why she's so good at it," he said. "I've never seen her completely exhausted after a race."

Aside from her ability, Kennedy also appreciates Rodriguez's attitude.

"Her and (shot putter) Syreeta Shellman, another state qualifier) are really quality people," he said. "I guess the highest compliment I could give is this: I've got two little girls, and I hope if they ever get into athletics, they have the type of spirit and competitive work ethic these two have."

"Anne's one of those girls that you tell them what to do and she comes out here and does it on her own," Kennedy added. "She's never missed a day of practice in four years, and that's pretty remarkable."

Rodriguez, who came from a family of athletes (her brother Freddy plays shortstop for the Howard College baseball team), said she is not intimidated at the prospect of running in front of thousands of people down in Austin.

"I kind of like being there," she said. "I like big crowds. Some meets this year, there would hardly be anybody there and I didn't like that. I like big meets."

And needless to say, she would like to win the last big meet of her high school career.

"I never ask to win first. I just try to do the best I can do," she said. "But I would like to win (state) for myself, and for coach Kennedy. I'd like to give him a state medal before I go."

Tigers, Red Sox maintain pace; Texas blows lead

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers keep hitting home runs, the Boston Red Sox keep throwing shutouts. That's part of the reason those two teams are at the top of the AL East standings.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Detroit pounded five more home runs on Wednesday, giving them a major league-leading 41 on the year, in a 13-8 win at Toronto.

Boston got its second straight shutout and its fifth of the year, this time from Danny Darwin and two relievers in a 2-0 blanking of the Baltimore Orioles.

In other games Wednesday, Oakland defeated Texas 8-7, Minnesota beat California 5-2, Milwaukee downed New York 4-1, Cleveland beat Kansas City 6-2 and Chicago edged Seattle 6-5.

The Tigers hold a two-game lead over the Red Sox that they can increase to 2 1/2 with a win over Toronto tonight. If the pattern of the past two days holds true, they'll have to do it with their bats, not their arms.

Detroit has scored 25 runs to Toronto's 15 in the first two games of the three-game series. They got two home runs from both Cecil Fielder and Kirk Gibson, and Tony Phillips added a three-run shot.

ATHLETICS 8, RANGERS 7 At Oakland, Calif., Jose Canseco failed to catch a well-hit double by Brent Gates with two outs in the bottom of the ninth, allowing former teammate Troy Neel to score the winning run.

The Oakland rally came against Texas relief ace Tom Henke (1-1), who blew his first save in 25 opportunities. It also ruined a Texas rally in the top of the ninth off Dennis Eckersley (1-1), who blew a save for the fourth time this year - once more than he had all of last year when he won the Cy Young Award.

RED SOX 2, ORIOLES 0 The back-to-back shutouts made it the first time in 10 years the Orioles have been blanked in successive games.

Darwin saw limited action in spring training because of back problems and lost his first four starts this season. But he has given up only one run in his last 20 2-3 innings and has won his last three starts.

WHITE SOX 6, MARINERS 5 At Seattle, Chicago opened a 1 1/2-game lead in the AL West behind the pitching of Wilson Alvarez (4-0) and home runs from Ellis Burks, Robin Ventura and Craig Grebeck.

John Cummings (0-6) was tagged for five runs in 2 2-3 innings and was told after the game he had lost his spot in the rotation.

BREWERS 4, YANKEES 1 At New York, Bill Wegman (3-5) and two relievers combined on a five-hitter to outpitch Jimmy Key (3-1), who entered the game with the second-lowest ERA among AL starters - 1.34. Matt Mieske homered and B.J. Surhoff stole home for the Brewers.

INDIANS 6, ROYALS 2 At Cleveland, the Indians snapped a five-game losing streak. Carlos Baerga hit a two-run single to cap a five-run second inning. Jose Mesa (3-2) pitched a complete game. Mark Gardner (2-2) was the loser.

TWINS 5, ANGELS 2 At Anaheim, Calif., Kevin Tapani (2-3) pitched six-hit ball for 7 1-3 innings and Dave Winfield hit a two-run homer off Chuck Finley (3-3).

Rockets fall; Knicks up 2-0

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Eddie Johnson hit from midcourt and thrust his arms high in the air as if to say, "It's over."

For the Houston Rockets, it was. "If you throw it up, anything can happen," Johnson said after his momentum-building 3-pointer to end the third quarter helped the Seattle SuperSonics to a 111-100 victory Wednesday night in Game 2 of the Western Conference semifinals series.

Seattle's Gary Payton (20) knocks the ball away from the Rockets' Robert Horry Wednesday in Seattle.

NBA PLAYOFFS

"I was lucky. I'd miss that nine of the next 10 times. But it was a backbreaker. We really got rolling in the first six minutes of the fourth quarter."

Sam Perkins picked up where Johnson left off, hitting four 3-pointers and scoring 15 of his 23 points in the final quarter as the Sonics took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series.

The Seattle Coliseum crowd of 14,732 chanted "Eddie, Eddie, Eddie" when Johnson made his 47-foot shot.

"We got confident after that shot," Sonics coach George Karl said. "It got the crowd into the game."

The chant turned to "Sweep, Sweep, Sweep" after the Sonics made it five victories in six games against Houston this season.

The next two games are Saturday and Sunday at The Summit in Houston.

The Sonics hope to get a split in Texas and then wrap up the series in Game 5 in Seattle.

KNICKS 105, HORNETS 101

Patrick Ewing did exactly what he's expected to do, exactly what he did many times while leading the New York Knicks to a 60-win season.

What rookie Hubert Davis is expected to do is practice hard and sit on the bench during games. Luckily for the Knicks, Davis didn't play that role Wednesday night.

Ewing and Davis keyed a 19-6 run in the final 6 1/2 minutes of regulation, then Ewing took over with eight of his 34 points in overtime as the Knicks beat Charlotte 105-101 for a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Davis' seven points in the last 5:15 of the fourth period included a 3-pointer that tied the game 93-93 with 44 seconds left.

Brawl spoils win; Braves down Astros

By The Associated Press

Say, what kind of hitting is Bobby Bonds teaching his son?

Barry Bonds and his dad both were ejected Wednesday night following a bench-clearing brawl in the San Francisco Giants' 8-2 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

The fight at Mile High Stadium began after Jerald Clark was hit by a pitch from San Francisco's Mike Jackson in the ninth inning. The dugouts emptied, but it appeared order had been restored without any punches being thrown.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Then, Barry Bonds began getting agitated, and the teams again rushed toward each other. This time, Bonds was in the middle, swinging away.

Bonds and his dad, the Giants hitting coach, were tossed, as were Clark and Colorado coach Ron Hasey. Both Barry and Bobby Bonds declined comment.

"If they want to fight, that's not what we're out there for, but we're not going to back down from anything," Rockies manager Don Baylor said. "I guarantee you that."

In other games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh 4-1, Montreal defeated Florida 10-7, Atlanta downed Houston 5-2, St. Louis stopped New York 6-5, Los Angeles rallied past Chicago 9-3 and Cincinnati beat San Diego 3-2 in a game called after five innings because of rain.

BRAVES 5, ASTROS 2 Steve Avery evened his record and Mike Stanton remained perfect in 13 saves chances as Atlanta won at Houston.

Otis Nixon stole four bases, got two hits, scored two runs and made running catch in center field for the Braves. They finished 7-2 on their road trip to Pittsburgh, Colorado and the Astrodome.

With the score tied at 1 in the seventh inning, Terry Pendleton and Ron Gant hit RBI singles with two outs.

Avery (2-2) pitched 6 1-3 innings and Stanton worked the ninth. Greg Swindell (4-4) lost his third straight decision.

PHILLIES 4, PIRATES 1

Darren Daulton hit a three-run homer, leading Tommy Greene and Philadelphia past Pittsburgh. The start of the game at Veterans Stadium was delayed by rain for 2 hours, 13 minutes.

Greene (4-0) gave up five hits, struck out six and walked one in his first complete game since September 1991. He missed most of last season with an injured right shoulder.

REDS 3, PADRES 2

Kevin Mitchell tripled and scored on a single by Chris Sabo moments before a storm arrived at Riverfront Stadium, and the game was called after five innings because of rain.

MARLINS 10, EXPOS 7

Chuck Carr made his first major league home run a grand slam, powering Florida past Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

Carr, who began the game leading the league with 15 stolen bases, connected in the second inning off Chris Nabholz (2-3). It was Carr's 176th at-bat in the big leagues.

CARDINALS 6, METS 5

Luis Alica hit a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning, lifting St. Louis over New York.

The Cardinals loaded the bases with no outs on a double by Geronimo Pena, an error by pitcher Mike Maddux (0-4) and a walk. Minutes after it began raining, Alica hit a fly ball to medium center field, and Pena easily beat Joe Orsulak's weak throw.

DODGERS'9, CUBS 3

Cory Snyder, who entered the game when Darryl Strawberry's back again stiffened up, doubled, singled and drove in two runs during a seven-run rally in the eighth inning that led Los Angeles past Chicago at Wrigley Field.
