Two Plainview Men Instantly Killed, Third Hurt, In Crash At Oklaunion

THIRD VICTIM NEAR DEATH IN HOSPITAL

Dead Men Identified As Edwin McMath And W. E. Settoon

KILLED INSTANTLY

Passenger Car Collides With Parked Truck; Both Overturn

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 3.—Two men were instantly killed and a third is at the point of death in a hospital here as the result of an accident involving a passenger car and two trucks on the Vernon-Wichita highway, near Oklaunion, Wednesday night.

Edwin McMath and Wallace E. Settoon, both of Plainview were killed. A. N. McMillan, also of Plainview, the third occupant of the car, is suffering from concussion of the brain and probably a fractured skull. His scalp literally was torn from his head.

Identification was tentatively made through papers and luggage in the car. Later positive identification was established.

The three men occupied a light sedan which collided with a truck parked at the roadside.

Pat Collins of Mangum, Okla., driver of the second truck involved in the accident, drove his machine into a ditch, he said, to successfully avert being caught between the other truck and the passenger car.

Two men, believed to be a white man and a negro, were believed to have been occupants of the parked truck.

Officers Investigate

Collins apparently was the only witness to the accident and told R. L. Wood and John Lowry, state highway patrolman, that the passenger car was coming toward Wichita Falls, in the same direction the parked truck was facing. Collins was driving the opposite direction.

When the passenger car struck the truck, the force was so great that the truck was overturned, the huge machine rolling into the ditch beside the road. The passenger car, also, overturned and plowed into the deep ditch.

Pinned Under Car

The men who were killed in the crash were pinned beneath the wreckage of the car. McMillan was thrown clear some distance.

The injured man and the bodies of the dead men were rushed to Vernon in an ambulance. The names of the negro and white man, whom Collins said were standing on the ground near the truck, were not learned. It could not be readily determined whether they came into Vernon after the accident.

The crash occurred shortly after 8 o'clock.

Settoon, a hardware dealer, is survived by his widow; McMath, an attorney, was not married. McMillan is a druggist of Plainview.

Hardeman Farmer Jailed In Robbery Of Kirkland Bank

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Aug. 3.—Wade Stepp, 24-year-old member of a well-known Hardeman county family, was in jail here tonight charged with the robbery of the Kirkland State bank Tuesday noon.

Stepp was arrested after he had been identified as the purchaser of women's clothing used as a disguise by the gunman who secured $1,600 in the holdup and later found by officers where they had been discarded in a cane patch.

Denied Robbery

The young man was returned to Childress this afternoon following his arrest at his farm home near Acme, five miles west of Quanah, by G. T. Hawkins, Hardeman county sheriff. He was lodged in the Childress county jail after charges of robbery with firearms had been filed against him.

He denied any connection with the robbery, officials said. He will be given a preliminary hearing at 9 o'clock Thursday morning in the court of I. S. Heath, justice of the peace.

The man's arrest followed shortly upon an investigation launched by Childress county officers.

The bandit, using a disguise of a woman's hat and dress, walked into the bank at Kirkland and ordered its three occupants, Roy Key, assistant cashier; Jess Key and E. Hamilton to turn over all available money.

Fired One Shot

After forcing Roy Key to open the bank safe, which contained no money, the robber insisted the time safe be opened. He obtained $1,600 in currency and started backing toward the door. Here he met Hueland Trickery as the latter came into the bank. The bandit covered the newcomer with his gun and forced the four men into the vault. As the gunman left the four emerged from the vault. The bandit hastily fired one shot, which went wild, at his victims, and fled.

Reaching the street, he leaped into the car of W. A. Woods, containing Woods' 4-year-old son, and sped away, taking the child with him. The boy was thrown from the car near the edge of the city, but was unhurt except for bruises.

Pursuit was hastily organized and the abandoned hat and dress was found, which eventually led to the arrest of Stepp.

Childress county officers took the garments to Paducah, where a clerk in a clothing store identified them

NEW HONORS

Gene Tunney in Demand As Demo Campaign Orator

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (US)—Gene Tunney is in line for a new kind of championship—champion orator of the Democratic presidential campaign.

The former heavyweight prize fighting champion who has turned his attention from sports to politics, is more in demand as a speaker in the Democratic campaign than any other personality, with the exception of the heads of the ticket, Governor Roosevelt and Mr. Garner.

This was revealed today by Robert Jackson, newly appointed chairman of the Democratic national committee's bureau of campaign speakers.

CHACO PEACE OUTLOOK GOOD

Bolivia Receptive to Pacific Settlement

(By The Associated Press)

The outlook for peace between Paraguay and Bolivia brightened considerably Wednesday as pressures against war was being exerted in Europe and both the Americas. Both nations, however, rushed preparations to fight it out in the field in the event that battle becomes necessary to settle their conflict over the Gran Chaco territory on their borders.

At Geneva the League of Nations secretariat announced that Paraguay had agreed to arbitrate.

At La Paz the Bolivian government made public a note informing the league that Bolivia "does not decline pacific means for solution of the controversy."

In Washington representatives of 19 American nations drew up a statement calling on the belligerents to cease hostilities.

Following upon Paraguay's general mobilization order signed last night, Bolivia called all classes between the ages of 22 and 29 to the colors.

So great was the war fervor in Asuncion that 300 volunteers almost swamped a transport starting up the Paraguay river toward the front with 500 soldiers aboard.

Hundreds of Paraguayan women —society girls and husky peasants —besieged government officers with pleas that they be allowed to fight alongside their men.

Mrs. Keith-Miller Tells Of Love For Slain Man And Capt. W. N. Lancaster

Famed Aviatrix Describes Strange Florida Household While On Stand in Defense of Accused Airman

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 3. (US)—Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller planned to "confess" that she killed her young fiance, Haden Clarke, rather than have her former sweetheart and flying companion, Capt. William N. Lancaster, be charged with his murder.

The slight, black-clad Australian aviatrix made this admission late this afternoon during her testimony at the trial of the British flier, who, she said, loved her so much that he offered to kill himself in an airplane crash so that she might have his $1,000 insurance money as a wedding gift for her marriage to young Clarke.

Slim, white-faced, Mrs. Keith-Miller, looking little like the "Chubby" of Captain Lancaster's love-sick diary, again startled the packed courtroom when she testified that the love between herself and Haden Clark was so great that the two had planned a suicide pact, but failed to carry it through.

She made this assertion in support of her previous statement:

"I know and feel sure that Haden killed himself."

Tells of Privations

Describing the strange household in which she lived with the two men who loved her, Mrs. Keith-Miller told of privations suffered by the three during their stay in Miami.

She told of cooking their meals in the back yard after their lights and gas had been shut off, and of foraging trips made by Lancaster and Clarke, who returned with chickens and rabbits for their food.

Telling of the beginning of her love affair with the young writer who planned to write her biography, the woman flyer said that after Captain Lancaster left on a flying trip to the West coast, she and Haden Clarke drank much home brew together. And then one night he told her he loved her. She said:

"We slept in the same room that night, and after that we fell in love with each other more every day."

Defends Lancaster

Staunchly defending the man with whom she shared adventure and hardship for five years, Mrs. Keith-Miller said Lancaster told her:

"Your happiness is foremost with me whatever happens."

She told of the British flier's unselfish devotion in the face of his disappointment at learning that she intended to marry young Clarke, and she told of the strange Miami household where all three lived together, and where Clarke was found shot to death.

Summoned as a "court's witness,"

BONUS FORCES GIVE UP FIGHT

Free Rides 'On Cushions' Are Provided

JOHNSTONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 3. (AP)—The Associated Press learned from an unimpeachable source tonight that the Bethlehem Steel corporation is furnishing the money to transport the bonus army to its home states.

Bethlehem has gigantic mills here and is the "backbone" of the city.

May McCloskey's announcement that passenger transportation would be furnished to the army came after a closed conference between himself, staff officers of the army and a representative of Bethlehem steel.

Many thousands of dollars will be required to transport the 7,000 men, women and children to their home states. The first "evacuation train" left late tonight for the west coast.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 3. (UP) —The bonus army decided today to quit and go home.

Almost leaderless, defeated, in their rain-beaten park camp, the bonus campers voted unanimously on the abandonment.

"God sent you here, and I'm sending you away," red-haired Mayor Eddie McCloskey, former pugilist, told them, warning them that revolters would be given the "boot" out of town. The army, at first inclined to balk, listened silently, and then agreed to heed his offer of transportation on the B. & O.—a ride home "on the cushions" as he put it. The source of the transportation offer—free tickets—was a mystery.

McCloskey explained the money "came from a man in Washington."

Evacuation started tonight. Between 30 and 40 persons started in their own motor cars for "back home." Some determined to return to Washington inasmuch as they had no home and liked the national capital. A special train was ordered for 11 p. m. to carry 800 veterans west. The train will leave

YOUTH'S DEATH ENDS CAMP OF BOY FARMERS

Carl Seibert of Chillicothe Drowns in Canal At Diversion Lake

CURRENT TRAPS BOY

Friends See Youngster Sink In Deep Water Of Big Ditch

Disregarding warnings against swimming in deep water, Carl Seibert, 15, of Chillicothe, was the second drowning victim in four days in the immediate Wichita Falls area Wednesday. The youth disappeared in seven feet of water in an irrigation canal near Diversion lake dam. Arthur Stewart, 16, of Wichita Falls, was drowned at Lake Wichita Sunday.

Canal Bank Full

The death of young Seibert brought to an abrupt close the first annual encampment of the Future Farmers of America of the Vernon district, of which he was a member. The three day camp had hardly opened Wednesday morning when the boy sought the cooling water of the canal. The irrigation channel was running bank full at the time as the heat wave has increased beyond any previous record demands for water for crops.

The camp site was rented to the F. F. A. group by the Wichita Falls Boy Scout commission and no scouts were in the party. The point of the drowning was well away from the scout pool and several yards beyond the barrier which scouts are not allowed to cross in swimming.

H. B. Boswell of Harrold arrived at the camp at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning with 24 boys and organized his group, with 11 o'clock set for a supervised swim in the scout pool. J. A. Hancock of Chillicothe arrived at 10 o'clock with the first truck of two groups from that city. The party included the two Seibert boys who left home with a warning from their father not to enter water over their heads.

Trapped by Current

The boys joined a group of eight boys which went to the canal at 10:30 o'clock for a swim, but five of the youths returned to the camp site, with three remaining in the water. Jodie Seibert, 12, Carl's brother, and Lawrence Cook, 19, both of Chillicothe, remained on the canal bank for a short time and both warned, "Carl, don't go in deep water," before turning toward camp.

Carl swam across the 15-foot canal in 10 feet of water and turned to recross it when he went under. The youth was being carried along with the swift current of the canal and began fighting the the current, exhausting himself. A negro sitting on the bank saw the boy go under the third time, undressed and dived to rescue the

'Baering' Down On The News

BY ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Government financiers are throwing good money after bad. And making both worse.

All wealth comes out of the ground. And the farmer is the bookkeeper.

So why concentrate on the railroads and the banks? Why don't they lend some money to the plow jockeys for reconstruction?

The butter and egg industry is bigger than the entire steel business. You can incorporate a hen but you can't make her sign the papers. When a cow kicks over a milk pail she's sunk a battleship. When politics strikes a barn it takes the lightning rod with it.

Let Washington do the financing and the farmer will ride herd on the field mice. Keep the government expert and the broker out of the wheat fields and the farmer will bring this country around so fast it will grab two brass rings and ride free forever.

The answer to the thing is wheat, corn and produce. Don't forget, that without a beanstalk there would have been no Jack the giant killer.

FLOYD KIDNAPS EX-POLICEMAN

'Pretty Boy' Frees Victim Without Clothes

TULSA, Okla., Aug 3. (AP)—Sheriff Charles Price said today that H. W. Nave, former Tulsa policeman, reported he had been kidnaped by Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, that his clothing had been stripped away and his automobile stolen.

The kidnaping and car theft took place at 8:30 o'clock this morning on the Oklahoma City-Edmond highway, Price said he was told. Nave, naked, was thrown out of Floyd's car about eight miles southwest of here at noon.

John Evans, Glenn Larkin and E. E. Benson, criminal deputies in the sheriff's office, said Nave's report verified information that they had received a day before to the effect that Floyd was planning another sortie this week.

Nave told Sheriff Price he was certain his captor was the much sought Oklahoma outlaw. Nave identified him from pictures and added Floyd had revealed his identity on the ride.

"Floyd and a companion stopped me on the highway," Nave said. "The companion drove away in their car and Floyd got in with me. When they stopped me I thought they were officers.

"When just out of Tulsa Floyd drove the car into a side road and forced me to disrobe, apparently to give him more time to make good his escape."

4,000 VETS OF WORLD WAR TO CONVENE HERE

City Also to Seek Annual Reunions of 36th And 90th Divisions

UNANIMOUS DECISION

Other Texas Cities Throw Support to Wichita In Convention Bid

Wichita Falls will be host for the Texas American Legion department convention in August, 1933, it was announced by Chairman Harry Hines of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce convention and reception committee Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Hines was notified of the acceptance of the Wichita invitation by Director Milton J. Gaines of the Wichita Falls legion drum and bugle corps by wire from Corpus Christi. A unanimous convention vote was taken accepting the local invitation Wednesday afternoon.

Other Cities Aid

The unanimous vote was the first in the history of the Texas department in deciding the next convention site. Four cities competing with Wichita Falls for the honor a year ago—Dallas, Fort Worth, Amarillo and Mineral Wells—gave their votes to Wichita Falls at Corpus Christi.

A reception honoring the 40-odd members of the drum and bugle corps and other delegates with a band concert and probably a parade will be staged Thursday night or Friday morning on the arrival of the delegation from Corpus Christi, Mr. Hines added.

The state convention will bring about 4,000 world war veterans to Wichita Falls, and in addition the legion and chamber of commerce plan to issue invitations to the 36th and 90th division veterans to hold their reunions in this city at that time. Acceptance by both groups of veterans would swell the convention population of Wichita Falls by several thousand Texas and Oklahoma men, Mr. Hines said.

15th Anniversary of Peace

The legion annual convention is recognized as one of the major gatherings of the state. The 1933 convention will be the occasion for observance of the 15th anniversary of the close of the world war and additional interest is centered on plans for the occasion as a result.

The chamber of commerce will join with the legion at once in planning for the convention, President Albert E. Kelly said in welcoming the information that the local invitation had been accepted.

Sterling Launches Bitter Attack At Fergusons In Cleburne Speech

CLEBURNE, Texas, Aug. 3. (AP)—Elated over the reception accorded him in Central West Texas, Gov. R. S. Sterling addressed Johnson county residents here tonight in furtherance of his campaign for re-election.

Speaking from the east side of the courthouse, the governor related some of the accomplishments of his administration and enumerated issues he favored and would foster for the state.

Affairs of the state highway department came in for favorable comment. Governor Sterling recited improvements in the department of which he formerly was chairman.

James E. Ferguson, chief speaker in behalf of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson's candidacy for governor, was bitterly assailed by the governor.

Mr. Sterling was introduced by Judge J. B. Haynes, leader of the Tom Hunter campaign in Johnson county during the first primary contest.

Other speakers included Finish E. Johnson, chairman of the Sterling forces in Johnson county, and Mrs. F. R. Pettengell, chairman of the county woman's organization.

Graham Fears, under suspended sentence for burglary for more than a year, Donnie Woods, and Harley Woods were the trio against each of whom two indictments were returned in those cases.

WOMAN TELLS OF TWO LOVES

Mrs. Keith-Miller Testifies In Murder Trial

the aviatrix bore out the prediction of State's Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne that she would aid the defendant in every possible way.

She said that Captain Lancaster seemed anxious to know only whether she were really in love with Clarke and whether he would be able to make her happy, and assured of this, offered them the wedding gift that only his death could bring.

Witness Pales

During the afternoon court session State's Attorney Hawthorne suddenly demanded:

"Mrs. Miller, do you know who killed Haden Clarke?"

The witness, pale, close to tears, replied in a low, unshaken tone:

"I know and I feel sure that Haden killed himself."

Mrs. Keith-Miller told a dramatic story of the three-cornered romance that ended in the death of her fiance.

She testified she had planned to marry Lancaster, after he was divorced, but changed her mind when she met Haden Clarke, the young writer who planned to "ghost" a story of her adventures as an aviatrix.

She told of advising Lancaster of her intention by letter, and of his flight back to Miami to assure himself that it was true.

Flier Reconciled

She insisted that Lancaster appeared reconciled to her decision, and was friendly with Clarke, but admitted that the two men had quarreled at dinner on the night her fiance was shot.

Hawthorne asked:

"The morning of April 21 what did Lancaster say when he aroused you by knocking on your bedroom door?"

Mrs. Keith-Miller replied:

"He said: 'Get up at once. Haden has shot himself.'"

The aviatrix said she rose hastily and went to the sleeping porch. She continued:

"Haden was moaning and moving his head from side to side."

"Was there much blood?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Keith-Miller testified that when Lancaster told her Clarke had shot himself she replied:

"Don't be ridiculous—there isn't a gun in the house."

Lancaster then told her that he had brought a gun back from St. Louis, she said.

Phone for Doctor

She said she found the gun under Clarke's body and pulled it out. Lancaster, she testified, then went to telephone a doctor, and when he failed to arrive, she herself telephoned twice, finally summoning a Dr. Deederer. Hawthorne asked:

"After the ambulance arrived, did you discourage the ambulance men from taking Haden away before the doctor's arrival?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Keith-Miller was questioned about her relationship with Captain Lancaster. She said that she had known Lancaster for five years, and had met Haden Clarke in February. She said that she and Lancaster had lived together in Miami since early last January, and that after the British flier returned from a business trip to New York, Haden Clarke moved in with them.

She was asked:

"Were you engaged to Captain Lancaster?"

"You can't be engaged to a person who is still married. But I intended marrying him and had so intended for five years."

"Did you ever change your mind?"

"Yes, after I met Haden Clarke."

"Were he and Haden Clarke on friendly terms before Lancaster left on the trip west?"

"Yes, very."

"Was it after Lancaster left that you changed your mind?"

"Yes—I wrote him that at St. Louis."

Mrs. Keith-Miller testified that during Captain Lancaster's western flight last spring, in behalf of the Latin-American Airways, Inc., he telephoned her from every place he stopped—Beaumont, El Paso, Tucson, Hollywood, St. Louis.

Federal Government Seizing Powers Of States, Bailey Says in Address

2,000 Hear Candidate Assail Growth of Commissions and Bureaus at Heavy Cost to Taxpayer

Outlining clearly his position on numerous current issues, but urging throughout his entire address the need for decentralization of governmental powers in the United States, Joseph Weldon Bailey Jr., of Dallas argued his candidacy for congressman at large before approximately 2,000 persons on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium Wednesday night.

Increasing appropriation of powers by the federal government was attacked by Mr. Bailey as being fundamentally a contradiction of the basic political principles written into the constitution of the United States. Repeatedly he charged that since 1861, the government at Washington has been increasingly defiant of the ninth and 10th articles in the bill of rights, which "provide specifically that the federal government shall exercise only such functions as are purely national in origin and effect."

Growth of Federal Power

Prodigiously increased governmental expense, a vast profusion of commissions and bureaus, growth of subsidies, and passage of the 18th amendment were attributed by Mr. Bailey to the constant encroachment of our federal government during the past 70 years upon state and local governments.

"There is another matter which demands your attention," he said, "and one which is difficult to discuss. This situation which has been fastening itself upon us has produced a type of public official which does not serve our needs. We hear many requests for 'submissions of issues.' Those who make such proposals merely want to find out how to keep the offices which you have given them. They want to be forewarned, so that they may agree with whatever is wanted. You can not obtain in that way solution of problems which confront us. Principles involved must loom larger in the mind of your official than the position which he holds. Any man who pretends to agree with you on every question is concealing from you facts which you should know. I promise that if you send me as your congressman to Washington, I shall vote on every question strictly according to what I believe is right, strictly in accordance with the Democratic principles on which our nation was founded; if I do not serve to your liking, I shall gladly return your commission. But I shall never give my voice in support of any measure which I believe is not for the best interests of our people here in Texas."

Cost of Government

The speaker declared, through presentation of statistics, that the per capita cost of national government has increased since 1909 from $10 to more than $110 for 1931. From 1801 to 1861, Mr. Bailey said, the federal government was controlled almost exclusively by Democratic principles. During that period, he continued, the cost of federal government increased about seven-fold. From 1861 to the present time, he pointed out, the national government has been almost constantly in the hands of Republican officeholders, and the cost of federal government has grown now to more than 300 times that of 1861.

"No democracy can endure any such confiscation of public wealth as that and hope to survive," he declared.

Creation of innumerable boards and commissions has been one of the most important factors in the rapid increase of federal government expense, Mr. Bailey asserted.

"These boards and bureaus are the avenues through which an increasingly heavy stream of taxation has been pouring," he said. "As an illustration, consider for a moment publications of the federal department of agriculture. It takes an 86-page book, with the finest of print to list the publications which they distribute.

"All those printing jobs cost tax money. And what are some of the subjects on which this information is given? Here are the names of a few now available: 'Love Adventures of An American Bullfrog,' 'Where Bed Sheets Wear Out,' and 'Bringing Up Bobby.'"

Formation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and similar national agencies was attacked by the speaker as definitely exercising special privileges for favored groups.

"If millions of dollars are to be loaned by our federal government to railroads, banks and insurance companies, then what are they going to do for the lawyers, for the doctors? According to the constitution, each individual citizen has an equal standing with every other one."

Position of Liquor Control

Referring to the issue of prohibition, Mr. Bailey declared that "it is not a question of your being wet or dry, but one of whether you want federal control of the liquor traffic. Government weakens in direct proportion to its remoteness from the governed. I believe that constitutionally we never should have adopted the 18th amendment. I hope and believe we shall repeal that violation of the fundamental principles of my fathers. I yield to no man the right to say that I am in any sense attempting to bring back the saloon or the liquor traffic to Texas.

"The people of Texas in 1920 adopted a constitutional provision making it a felony to manufacture or sell liquor in this state. How could the repeal of the 18th amendment affect the control which we have placed upon the liquor traffic? Our federal interstate commerce control forbids the importation of liquors into dry states,—that is a proper function for the national government. As far as I am concerned, I hope and believe that the day of the open saloon is gone from this state forever, but I will not believe that the federal government should be the dignitary to put it out. I want you to keep in our hands the power to control your every day conduct."

Mr. Bailey was introduced by Judge Edgar Scurry. After his address, he was engaged for 15 minutes or more meeting friends of his father, the Former Senator Joseph W. Bailey, and other supporters of the present candidate.

SEES NO REASON TO DEBATE 'CYCLONE'

HENRIETTA, Texas, Aug. 3. (UP)—Joseph Weldon Bailey Jr., candidate for congress at large, place two, indicated here tonight he would decline, at least temporarily, the debating challenge sent him by his run-off opponent, the venerable white-bearded J. H. (Cyclone) Davis.

Bailey said Davis "has advocated every side of every question before the people in his long career, and he will have to state a clear-cut issue upon which Democrats might disagree before I will give him an opportunity to talk to a Democratic audience."

He said he could think of nothing more distasteful than being on the same platform with Davis.

If the two finally agree on issues, their debates during the run-off campaign would revive a political feud which enlivened Texas politics a decade or more ago with Davis himself and Bailey's distinguished father, the late Senator Bailey, as principals.

Davis, who trailed Bailey by some 65,000 votes in the first primary, has proposed a series of ten debates upon the "economic issues and the prohibition question in their full meaning."

as the same he had sold to Stepp.

He said he had known Stepp for 10 years and told the officers where the young man resided.

Childress officers obtained the assistance of the Hardeman sheriff and Stepp was taken into custody. The man was returned here this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff M. E. Mote, who today was charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting Monday of Noble Jordon, 26, former Childress constable, whom officers suspected as being a participant in the attempted robbery of the bank at Tell a few hours after the attempt.

Jordon died with two bullets from a 30-30 rifle in his heart.

Deputy Mote waived examining trial and he was released on bond of $2,000. The officer said he fired in self-defense.

COUPLE HELD IN TEXOLA ROBBERY

Theft of a car in Wichita Falls last Saturday was revealed Wednesday with the information that a missing rent car of the Yellow Drive-Ur-Self company had been recovered at Sayre, Okla., and a man and woman arrested on charges of robbery with firearms in the theft of $780 from the Texola State bank Tuesday.

Rented Car Here

The man gave his name as Harris L. Wilson, 21, and his wife was booked as Charlie Wilson. The man used the same name in renting the car at noon Saturday in Wichita Falls. Operators of the taxi company said the man produced apparently authentic credentials of the "Wilson Printing company" of San Antonio, and identified himself as a collector. He also produced a marriage license issued a few days previous. The woman told Sooner officers her baby was with friends in Wichita Falls.

The man arrived in Wichita Falls Friday night and registered at a local hotel alone. He returned for his baggage after renting the car. Investigation revealed the San Antonio address as a vacant lot.

Arrested at Wheeler

The wife related a story of misfortune to officers in describing their movements prior to and after the bank robbery. They were captured near Wheeler, Texas, after leaving the rented car at Kelton and giving a motorist $20 to carry them to a point near Wheeler where they took to the brakes. The remainder of the money was recovered by the posse.

Oma Hughes and Buford Rice of the taxi company plan to leave Thursday morning to return the car

He has been vice president of the Lincoln Highway association, chairman of the highway transportation committee of the International Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Michigan Good Roads association.

He was president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in 1927 and 1928.

Third Resignation

Mr. Chapin was born in Lansing, Mich., on Feb. 23, 1880, and in 1914 he was married to Miss Ines Tiedeman, of Savannah, Ga. His home is at Grosse Point Farms, Mich.

Lamont's is the third resignation that has occurred in President Hoover's cabinet. The first was James J. Davis, who resigned as secretary of labor to run for the senate. The second was Andrew W. Mellon, who resigned as secretary of the treasury to become ambassador to Great Britain.

James W. Wood, the first secretary of war in the Hoover cabinet, died and was succeeded by Patrick J. Hurley.

Announcement of Lamont's resignation came like a bomb shell in the commerce department. Not even his closest friends knew of his intention until it was announced at the White House.

ENGINEER DIES FROM MONOXIDE

Builder of Underwater Tubes Commits Suicide

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 3. (AP)—The body of County Surveyor George A. Posey, 49, widely known engineer, was found in the garage of his home here today and police said he had committed suicide by inhaling carbon monoxide from the exhaust of his automobile.

Ivestigation of Posey's office was recommended yesterday by nine members of a superior court jury which convicted three men of operating a "free lot" scheme. Testimony at the trial disclosed Posey had received $20,000 or more for subdividing the property of the three men.

It was further shown he had certified to the presence on the subdivided property of markers for streets and had filed maps showing the markers, used for determining the locations of various lots. He admitted at the trial the markers did not exist.

Posey was a native of Hermosillo, Mexico, he was graduated from the University of California in 1906 and had been engaged in public work since 1914.

Posey showed the engineering world the way to the building of bigger and stronger underwater vehicular tubes.

Using a dry ship dock in San Francisco, he developed a method of precasting concrete tunnel segments, moulded into 302-foot lengths and weighing five to ten thousand tons each. The ends of the segments were then sealed and they were towed behind tugs several miles across San Francisco bay to be sunk in the channel dividing Oakland and Alameda.

Undersea divers then sealed the segments in tandem with cylindrical steel plates around which a six-foot collar of cement was poured and the largest single tube underwater subway in the world resulted.

The pre-casting method since has been used elsewhere.

Food Crop Planting Increases In South

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 3. (AP)—A supplemental south-wide crop report issued today by Commissioner of Agriculture J. C. Holton said substantial increases in food and feed planting were indicated along with a 10 per cent cut in cotton acreage and boll weevil infestation.

The report, based on returns from a series of questionnaires, he said, substantiates information contained in a preliminary survey of two weeks ago which told of widespread boll weevil infestation over the cotton belt and general curtailment of planting under the 1932 crop.

Holton pointed out that the reports were private opinions obtained from good authorities such as departments of agriculture, experiment station directors and entomologists, and regarded as "reliable" though necessarily unofficial.

The acreage figures included in the reports were taken from the official government report of July 1, last.

The supplemental reports by states included:

Arkansas—Cotton acreage 3 per cent below last year.

Louisiana—Cotton acreage 10 per cent off.

Oklahoma—Cotton acreage decreased 11 per cent.

Texas—Cotton acreage reduced 10 per cent.

Armored Car Worker Held After Theft of $56,000

CLIFTON FORGE, Va., Aug. 3. (AP)—W. J. Pender, charged with taking $56,000 from the Chemical Bank and Trust company of New York July 16, was under arrest here today.

Police said he confessed to the crime and promised to return all of the money except about $700, which he said he had spent. He was arrested at the home of relatives.

Pender, a former employe of the U. S Distributing corporation, which transfers money from banks in armoured cars, walked into the bank and asked for the money for that company. The teller said later he recognized the man as one to whom he had given the money before and so handed it to him without question.

MUSSOLINI IN FAVOR OF WAR

Il Duce Writes Paper He Opposes Pacifism

LONDON, Aug. 3. (INS)—Coincident with the arrival here of Dino Grandi, former Italian foreign minister, in his new role as ambassador to London, Premier Mussolini today addressed a letter to the newspaper Popolo d'Italia in Milan attacking pacifism and puncturing the bubble of "perpetual peace."

"Fascism," he wrote, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome, "does not believe in the possibility or utility of perpetual peace and opposes pacifism, which implies renunciation of the struggle."

Appearance of the letter simultaneously with Grandi's arrival caused considerable speculation as a result of persistent rumors that Il Duce had replaced the bearded young statesman in the foreign ministry because of his "too-enthusiastic" disarmament work at Geneva.

"Only war brings out the full force of human energy," Il Duce wrote, "forcing the peoples involved to have courage to face it.

"Fascism does not believe in numbers as numbers. It denies that government can be organized by periodical consultation of the masses.

"Democracy is a regime without one king but with countless kings and is more tyrannical than any single tyrant."

Commenting on world peace, Mussolini declared that any attempt to establish it in perpetuity was doomed to failure.

Boy Confesses Faking Alibi in Abduction

LUDINGTON, Mich., Aug. 3. (INS)—Calvin Edwards, 16-year-old alibi witness for Francis "Rusty" Nash, held for questioning in the mysterious disappearance of Evelyn Sanford, 17-year-old Free Soil, Mich., girl, today confessed, according to authorities, that he faked an alibi for the 21-year-old recluse.

The boy said Nash told him to say he was present when Nash fell from an apple tree Sunday, the day following the girl's disappearance, thus explaining scratches on his face, state police said.

Edwards was quoted as saying Nash arranged a fishing trip Sunday to alibi his disappearance from town after the girl was reported missing.

Three of Crew Drown After Ships Collide

NORFOYK, Va., Aug. 3. (AP)—Three members of the crew of the Milton S. Lankford, a small schooner carrying watermelons, were believed today to have been drowned after a collision with the Old Bay liner State of Maryland. Four others of the crew of seven were rescued.

The crash occurred around midnight off the mouth of the Potomac river. The schooner was rolled under the larger vessel's keel.

The State of Maryland, only slightly damaged, reached here today.

Skipper E. W. Midgette, in command of the schooner, was among those rescued. His father, R. N. Midgette, 60, was one of those missing.

HOLLOW PROPELLER

DAYTON, Ohio.—Army air corps engineers here have developed a hollow steel propeller, connected with the engine's exhaust, on which ice cannot form. The blades of the propeller, when filled with exhaust gases from the engine, become hot enough to melt any ice formation. It is said the horsepower of the engine is increased when the propeller is connected to the exhaust.

I. C. C. ORDERS COTTON PARLEY

Changes of Freight Rates To Be Discussed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. (AP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today called an informal conference of cotton shippers and railroad officials with the commission here Aug. 16, to discuss changes in rates for shipping cotton during the forthcoming season.

The commission said numerous changes in freight rates had been filed or would be filed within the next few days.

They apply to cotton from Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Tennessee and Mississippi and a few points in other states to certain gulf ports, principally New Orleans and destinations in southern and eastern territory in and Canada.

Some of the tariffs would become effective Aug. 27 and others on Sept. 6.

Under ordinary procedure protests against rate changes must be filed within 10 days of the time the rates are to be effective.

Such a procedure usually does not permit the commission to make the necessary investigation and decide whether it will suspend the proposed rates.

The commission said it has been informed it is highly important the rates applied to the coming season be known as soon as possible and for this reason the conference was called to work out a solution.

GLIDING POPULARITY

MOSCOW.—Among with the increasing popularity of powered flying in the Soviet, gliding, too, is getting its share of experimentation. A glider factory is being built here to turn out 1,500 sailplanes annually, and the Friends of Aviation, a Russian aeronautics club, plans to organize gliding chapters all over the country. Schools for this type of flying have been set up here, in the Crimea, and Siberia.

75 SCIENTIFIC TESTS PROVE OLD GOLD THE COOLEST, THROAT-EASIEST CIGARETTE

Next time you listen to an argument as to which is the best cigarette, you can chip in with something more than an opinion.

You won't have to say: "I think the tobacco in OLD GOLD is purer and finer." Instead, you can say: "I KNOW OLD GOLD is better; it's made of finest natural flavored tobacco. Science has proved it!"

As surely as Science can assay pure gold, so it can tell which cigarette is basically the choicest. It did that with 4 leading brands. It made 75 tests of 4 competing cigarettes . . . and found the smoke of an OLD GOLD definitely cooler . . . indicating its superior tobacco quality and purity.

"Coolness" is the clue to cigarette quality. Only the finest and purest tobacco burns "cool." That's the tobacco in OLD GOLDS. The choicest Turkish and domestic leaf; free of heat-making flavorings.

Evidence, not adjectives. If you welcome this change in a cigarette advertisement . . . you'll welcome a change to pure-tobacco OLD GOLD.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

The Verdict of Science

This is to certify that in 75 repeated coal tests made of the 4 leading cigarette brands . . . measuring the heat content of each cigarette in B. T. U./lb. with the Oxygen Bomb Calorimeter, it was shown that:

Old Gold averages 112 B. T. U's. Cooler than Brand X
Old Gold averages 155 B. T. U's. Cooler than Brand Y

Flies

When I was little I used to complain about the flies that tickled my nose in the early mornings, fell into my milk at mealtimes, and added to the annoyances of a hot day in the city by droning all day long. My mother used to go about the house swatting every one she could reach and muttering imprecations against the dirty creatures who, try as she might, would slip in when the doors were opened.

"Hush, hush, remember the good God made all things and He has some purpose in these flies."

"Penance, perhaps. They are truly a penance," my mother would say and sweat away right heartily.

In those days we had many horses in the city and flies follow horses as day follows night, without anything of the beneficence of the daily arrangement. Flies hummed like a tuning orchestra in all the butcher shops. Flies were on the fruit stands, flies were in the dairy. The plagues of Egypt were not worse. Then we learned that these pests carried disease and the war was on, a fight to the finish to save little children from their deadly touch.

Things are better now. The horses are out of city, at least to the extent that the flies they bring can be kept under control. Refrigeration and health laws have cleaned the butcher shops so that now there is never a fly to be seen within their doors. Should one wander in, it would mean a loss of customers and that in itself is a mighty strong weapon against the flies. Dairies and food shops and fruit stands are all protected against the flies. Now the last stand, the home, remains to be protected against them. Teach the children to fight the flies. They love to swat things and here is their great opportunity to swat and be approved. Kill the flies, is a perfectly righteous battle cry.

Filth is the breeding place for flies. In the country where we have animals we have to be doubly careful about cleaning things about the place so that the flies can have no place to breed. That means a careful daily job. Leave no place for the sole of the fly's foot and then kill every fly that comes your way. Lay in a supply of those rolls of sticky fly paper and hang them on the ceiling of any room or shed where the pests are likely to gather. This will keep the flypaper out of the way and save the baby from getting mixed up in it, and the cat, and the absent minded professor who draws up his chair and plants both elbows squarely in the middle of a fresh sticky sheet. Hang up the flypaper and wish it success.

I fight flies to extermination because, given their way, they would exterminate children. Anything that threatens the health and well being of children ought to be exterminated. I have no fear, as one feeble lady suggested last year, that I shall teach children to make war, to kill and to destroy life. Not one whit. I fear only that they will leave one fly alive to further its dirty work.

Arm the children with sturdy swatters and let them go.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Hostess Advised On Appointments For Her Table

By EMILY POST
Author of "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage"

Dear Mrs. Post: All our furniture is of the Georgian type; some pieces are old ones from England, others are handsome reproductions. In the dining room the chairs and a chest of drawers are old; the table is a two pedestal adaption of a Duncan Phyfe. (1) With our type of furnishing, would it be possible to use a fine quality stoneware or must we choose porcelain? (2) For place plates would you use dinner plates of the same pattern as the soup plates or more formal "service" plates? (3) If the place plates match the soup plates, would you then have plates for the meat course of the same pattern or a different pattern? (4) With large knives, which have steel blades, may we use small knives, which have stainless steel blades? (5) Is it good taste to use an electric water kettle on the dining room table for a formal luncheon? (6) Would it be in good taste to use an old brass Samovar (Russian) heated by electricity, which I like very much, both for tea in the living room and for supper?

Answer—(1) It depends much more upon the color and design than upon the question of porcelain or pottery. Delft or Meissen or Wedgewood, for example, would be as suitable as porcelain. (2) Place plates should match or at least look well with the soup plates since the latter are set upon the place plates. Service plates, out of the scale and out of sympathy with the other china to be used, are never in bad taste. And by the way there is no difference between a "place" plate and a "service" plate. I add this merely because your letter seems to indicate a difference? (3) A whole dinner service alike, has come back strongly into fashion. Most people use odd dozens of plates because most people happen to have them! But there is no rule, except that of personal preference. (4) In a Georgian house small knives should have silver-plated blades. (5) Electric table appliances are not proper on a formal table, but in a house of limited service, or none, they are suitable because practical. (6) If you like it, use it of course!

DOCKET CLEARED

94 Cases Dismissed By Vogel in County Law Court

Ninety-four cases were dismissed from the docket of the county court at law Wednesday morning by Judge Irvin J. Vogel at the request of attorneys charged with prosecution of them, it was announced.

Possession of insufficient evidence for successful suit was the reason given in the majority of cases for asking dismissal. Sending of defendants to penitentiaries on felony convictions also accounted for the dismissal of several misdemeanor charges.

SEABURY RAPS WALKER AGAIN

New Brief Submitted To Gov. Roosevelt

ALBANY, Aug. 3. (US)—Replying to Mayor James J. Walker's defense of his administration, Samuel Seabury tonight submitted a new brief to Governor Roosevelt holding the mayor guilty of official misconduct in office.

The Seabury reply, in brief, was a lengthy review of the evidence designed to show that Walker "evaded" the charges raised against him. Portions of Walker's answer he denounced as "false" and accused the mayor of being "unworthy of belief."

While Seabury failed to ask Roosevelt to remove the mayor, the plain inference was that he expected him to do so.

Governor Roosevelt will start immediately studying Seabury's brief together with Mayor Walker's 25,000 word defense. If he thinks some of the points involved need clearing up, Roosevelt will call a public hearing in Albany with Walker as witness and Seabury as "prosecutor."

In his latest communication to the governor, Seabury said he would ignore Walker's "personal abuse" together with his honor's contention that the New York City investigation received its inspiration from Republican sources.

Seabury based his case entirely upon a review of the evidence gathered in his long investigation of Tammany officials and Mayor Walker's personal finances.

The investigator was especially ironical in answering Walker's contention that most of the charges leveled against him should be outlawed because they involve acts committed during his first administration. Seabury said:

"This plea is comparable to a plea of the statute of limitations. It is a plea which one is not obliged to make if he is willing to meet the issues on their merits.

"It is a sorry sight indeed to see a person occupying high public office, whose honor is impugned, taking the position that the people must suffer him to continue in his public office because he was fortunate enough not to be caught in time."

Turning to the legal side of this question Seabury said the charges would be outlawed only if the voters knew of Walker's alleged illegal acts before they elected him for a second term.

RITES SAID FOR LAKE VICTIM

Last Services Held for Arthur Stewart

The youth was drowned Sunday while on a fishing trip at Lake Wichita with two young companions. He fell in the deep channel while pushing his friends in a rowboat. The body was recovered after 22 hours, 500 yards southwest of S. W. Barnett's pier. Young Stewart attended high school here and was employed at a local theater. The parents and a brother, Ernest Stewart, survive.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

FLIGHTY — By Alma Sioux Scarberry

Instalment One

Mrs. O'Malley heard the alarm clock going off all the way from her room at the end of the hall.

She raised on a dainty elbow and squinted sleepily at her own clock. Seven o'clock! In the name of all common sense what had gotten into Gypsy?

She didn't know there was an alarm clock in the house. Much less one that could gather energy enough to raise that hullabaloo at the crack of dawn!

Must have been an accident, she told herself sleepily, and turned over for another nap. But when she heard water running in the bathtub Mrs O'Malley, despite her aversion to getting out of bed before noontime, could not resist the temptation to investigate the amazing situation.

She yawned impatiently and slipped into her mules. Then tiptoed carefully down the hall and peeked through the keyhole of the bathroom door. What she saw awakened her entirely.

Gypsy, testing the water with one small pink toe, jumped when the knob turned and Mrs. O'Malley stuck her head in the door.

"Gypsy O'Malley," her stepmother looked as shocked as though she were witnessing a positively immoral scene, "whatever are you doing up at such an ungodly hour of the morning?"

Gypsy smiled gravely and stepped into the tub.

"Strange as it seems, Peg darling, I'm going out to find a job this morning."

First a look of astonishment crossed the face of the older woman. Then a ripple of amused laughter rang out. She shook her head as she might have at a naughty baby that had just poured it's spinach on the floor.

"Bless it's heart! It's goin' to be a big mans!"

But Gypsy looked at her with the light of a new born resolution burning in her soft brown eyes, and answered firmly, "We'll just forget the baby talk and be serious—for once in our lives! This can't go on forever, you know."

"What can't go on forever, darlin'?"

"Some one in this family has got to get on speaking terms with a little honest toil. And it looks as though it would never be Dad or Jiggs!"

Mrs. O'Malley arched her eyebrows defensively.

"Gypsy! Don't you insinuate that your brother and father haven't tried to do their best. Jiggs, poor boy, can't find the type work he is fitted for—and I know he has tried until the heart and soul have been taken out of him."

Gypsy smiled at that.

"Oh, yes. We've all heard that before."

"And if no one appreciates your father's poetry—"

Gypsy had heard all that before, too. So she squared her little chin and broke in impatiently, "If they took half as much interest in trying to find a way to earn an honest living as they do in trying to run away from people we owe money to, we'd have nothing to be ashamed of."

Peg gasped, unable to believe her ears, and spoke sharply.

"Shame on you! Talking about your own family that way. You look like your Grandmother O'Malley—but I never thought you'd grow up to be like her."

"Thank you." Gypsy scrubbed a firm, round arm energetically. "That is the nicest thing you've ever said about me."

That was too much for Peg O'Malley. She drew herself up stiffly and prepared to leave the room with all the hurt dignity she could gather after such an amazing attack. But before she could think of a parting shot Gypsy looked at her coolly.

"I suppose, Peg dear," she said, "that if I succeed in getting some work to do you won't object to using the money to pay the milk bill. The milk man left a note yesterday morning saying we haven't paid him for five weeks and that he couldn't possibly serve us unless he got his money. And the gas is to be turned off tomorrow."

Mrs. O'Malley almost forgot her hurt and anger in her horror of being without milk and gas. But she managed to say quite bitingly: "I'm sure if those common tradespeople want to humiliate us in that disgusting manner they have my permission! And I don't see how your grandmother can sleep nights."

Gypsy stepped from the tub militantly.

"As for the milk people—they've been a darn sight better to us than we deserve! So has everybody else we owe money to. And as for grandmother, I'm surprised she didn't cut dad's allowance off years ago. Her money has darn near ruined us all!"

Before Peg could answer that Gypsy told her hotly, "Nobody has any respect for us! We might have been the rich O'Malleys once. But we're only those crazy O'Malleys who owe everybody money in the world now—and are too lazy to work. That's what everybody is saying about us."

Gypsy wielded the bath towel on her soft white body as though she had a grudge against its beauty. There was no stopping her tirade now that her thoughts were unleashed.

"I'm sick of sleeping my days away—and watching you all sit around and drink all night. All the people we know are too damn lazy to earn an honest living! And why do you think our house is so full of all these so-called intellectuals every night telling nasty stories?

"It's because we've managed—so far—to chisel enough money out of grandmother to feed them gin and sandwiches. There isn't a brain big enough to rattle in the whole bunch put together!"

Peg opened her mouth again, but Gypsy didn't give her a chance to interrupt.

"Decent people won't have anything to do with us any more. Why should they?" she kept on acidly, curling young lips that had never said such things before. "Don't you think everybody on Long Island who is anybody knows the O'Malleys and that Angel is only 18 and running around with married men ol denough to be her father?

"And what about Jiggs? He's never done anything in his life but chase women and guzzle everything he can find to drink—and borrow money to gamble with. You and father have been almost as bad, and you know you have! You chase around with boys young enough to be your son, and he always has some beautiful dumbbell hanging around telling him what a shame it is nobody appreciates his mind."

Gypsy stopped suddenly, amazed at what she had just said. Then she realized that Peg was standing there mutely, with her arms at her sides and a look of utter stupefication on her face. A pang of regret for her harsh outburst stabbed her and she threw her arm around her step-mother protectively.

Old Nancy O'Malley laid down her spade. "What does this early jaunt mean?"

"Don't faint! I'm starting out to find a job this morning."

INSTALMENT ONE

"Oh, darling! I'm so sorry."

Peg was the only mother she had ever known and she had never in her life said or done anything mean to her before. Poor foolish, pretty Peggy, who hadn't been a mother to her because she didn't know the meaning of motherhood. Even though she had two children of her own.

Peg made no effort to draw away and a feeling of tenderness welled up in Gypsy's throat and nearly choked her. A surging of love for the whole selfish, lazy, pleasure-mad lot of the O'Malleys. She saw them all as she saw Peg at that moment. Silly, naughty babies that she had hated for a few moments. But she had spanked them and it had hurt her worse than it did them.

Her step-mother was crying softly now, and Gypsy felt like crying with her. But her feelings did not kill the violent resolutions that had been smouldering so long, and suddenly burst into flame. So when Peg pulled away with a sob and started for her own room, Gypsy did not follow her. She knew Peg was too shallow to remember long. And that she would cry a little while and forget. There was a busy day ahead.

Jiggs' door was open and she looked in on the way to her own room. He was sound asleep and snoring softly. She knew from the flushed look on his face that he had been drinking a lot again and that he hadn't been in long.

His tuxedo and shirt lay on the floor. Gypsy went in softly and hung them up. What would become of him? This handsome, shiftless half-brother that she loved so much. He was 20 and out of college. Though goodness knows how he had ever finished when he didn't study. What a brilliant mind he was throwing to the dogs of dissipation! She was only 22, but felt old enough at that moment to be his mother.

Gypsy thought how handsome he might be in the movies. Tall and lean and boyish. With a mop of black softly waving hair like hers. His eyes were blue and contrast to her soft brown ones, and he was fair skinned, while she always looked as though she had just come from a vacation in Bermuda.

Strange that they had given her the foolish name of Gypsy. Her mother must have thought she would be black-haired and brown-eyed. Tanned like a daughter of the caravans.

Gypsy pushed a stray look of hair from Jiggs' feverish head and wanted to bend and kiss him. But she was afraid he would wake up. He had always seemed so much closer to her than her half-sister Angel.

Angel! Sweet-faced—hair the color of spun gold. Eyes as blue as the stars. Tall, like a young goddess. Strange that she been named Angel. She who was to look so much like a saint—and hide behind her angelic beauty the cold, calculating heart of a Jesebel.

Strange that the warm-blooded look to Gypsy should not have been given to the cool, sweet looking Angel to match the wild gypsy heart of her. For Gypsy, who looked like a gay little lady from the pen of De Maupassant, was all that Angel looked and would never be.

Gypsy, back in her own room, surveyed her wardrobe with trepidation. What did a girl wear when she was looking for a job? Something plain and dark and neat, of course. There was only one dress like that in her collection, a navy blue with white collar and cuffs. But where was it?

She bit her lip when she saw it was not hanging in her closet. She went into Angel's room. It was lying in the corner in a heap—and the large hem had been let out of it, so it would be long enough for her taller half-sister.

There was little use in asking Angel not to ruin her clothes. She would just laugh and do the same thing over again. Gypsy decided then that she would get a look and put it on her door. Further investigation showed that her only pair of good stockings were in a heap beside the bed where Angel lay peacefully sleeping—and looking like a cherub.

Sighing hopelessly, Gypsy went back to her own room and found a pair of clean stockings with a small run in the knee. While she mended it she tried to think of something to wear. The brown silk suit with the yellow blouse would do. But it was a trifle frivolous for job hunting.

It was the nearest costume within reason so it would have to do. She slipped into it hurriedly and powdered her nose. For Gypsy had heard that if one wanted a job one had to be on hand at 9 o'clock. She would buy a paper at the subway stand and look at the help wanted ads. It wasn't quite clear in her mind just what she intended to. Her days at Miss Hutchins' girls school had not included anything useful.

Jim O'Malley's estate lay next to his mother's in a wide stretch of land at Mayview, Long Island, near the sound. Gypsy gasped when she opened the door and walked out into the June sunshine. She didn't remember every having seen it so early in the morning.

The grass and trees sparkled with dew. Roses budded on the trellises. Birds sang little merry songs. Gypsy stood for a moment on the front veranda and drank in the clean sweet air. Suddenly she felt so happy, so filled with her new resolutions and so sure that life was about to open wonderful new things for her that she skipped down the walk.

She was swinging along merrily, humming a little song, when the voice of her grandmother roused her from her reverie.

"Gypsy, come here!"

She whirled and there was her grandmother, a large straw hat on her head, wearing overalls, and spading in her garden.

"Why, Gram, I didn't see you!" Gypsy opened the gate and ran up the garden walk. "Aren't you getting ambitious in your youth?"

Old Nancy O'Malley laid down her spade and sat on a bench.

"And I might say you are getting ambitious in your old age, my child. What does this early jaunt mean?"

Gypsy sat down and leaned over to kiss her grandmother on a brow old cheek.

"Don't faint! I'm starting out to find a job this morning."

Nancy O'Malley's eyes, so much like her granddaughter's, twinkled. She was silent for a moment. Then she laughed. It was a young laugh and a merry one. Gypsy smiled. "It is funny, isn't it? One of the Jim O'Malley offspring going to work."

The grandmother sobered as suddenly as she had laughed. Then she flamed, "You don't belong to that lazy, booze drinking, shiftless gang of spend thrifts—and the sooner you come to live with me the better off you'll be, Gypsy! If it hadn't been for you not one penny of my money would they have seen in 10 years . . ."

Gypsy reached over and laid her hand on the gnarled one of the old lady.

"You're a nice girl, Gram, and I love you. But I can't come over and play at your house—just yet. I have other plans."

She dimpled—and her grandmother nodded wisely. "A business office is the place to find a good husband. You're a smart young one."

Gypsy puffed at that.

"Husband! Why Gram—such a thing has never entered my mind. I'm going out for a career. A useful, worthwhile life. I know that sounds bocky. But it's all in the world I want."

Gram O'Malley wanted to smile. But she didn't. Gypsy was the dearest thing in life to her, so she nodded gravely.

"I know just how you feel—and I know you'll do anything you make up your mind to do. Have you any money for expenses?"

"Oh, yes," Gypsy fibbed promptly. "Plenty, thank you."

Gram reached out and opened her bag. Gypsy flushed when she fished out three quarters and a dime.

"Now, Gram! I don't want you to give me any more money."

Her grandmother got up and started for the house.

"Don't be absurd, Gypsy. You haven't enough for luncheon. That's hardly car fare for one day."

Gypsy knew there was no use protesting when Gram had made up her mind. So she followed her, unhappily. She did so much want to be independent.

"You'll need a business dress. "Nancy O'Malley looked at the brown and yellow suit. "You have to be dressed properly for an office. I'll write you a check for a hundred dollars."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Gypsy said stubbornly. "I won't take a cent more than 50."

"Very well." Gram took her pen. "If you think that will buy you a dress and lunches and pay fares till you start earning a salary. If you need more you must tell me."

"I will," Gypsy promised, but felt sure at the moment that she'd starve before she'd ask any one for a nickle again.

Gypsy had the money spent—in her mind—before she kissed her grandmother and started down the driveway. A dark dress for $15. Hat $5. For lunches and car fare $10—and $20 of it would go to Peg for milk and to keep the gas man from shutting off the gas. She would walk back home with the $30 before she started to town.

With this worry off her mind, her heart was light as a feather as she made plans on the way to the subway that was to take her to New York. She had decided against spending one minute of her precious

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Two important political matters synchronized in such fashion in late July that it was impossible not to conclude that campaign strategists for both presidential nominees were focusing attention on Ohio mighty early in the campaign.

KIRKE SIMPSON

President Hoover named ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene, Ohio Democrat, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Vice General Dawes, resigned.

A virtual decision was reached by Governor Roosevelt's advisers on Ohio as the place for the governor's first major campaign speech, to come soon after President Hoover's acceptance speech—and in answer to it, no doubt—in Washington, Aug. 11.

Likely Battle Ground

That is by no means all the political significance promptly attached to the surprise selection of Pomerene for the R. F. C. job. It serves to draw sharp attention to the fact, however, that Ohio is apt to be a very special battleground this year.

Why not? Be it recalled that the victory of Senator Bulkley, "wet" Ohio Democrat, in the home state of the main drive for constitutional prohibition had a lot to do with starting the wave of Democratic prognostications for a 1923 presidential victory.

It also had a vital place in the happenings that made possible the blunt repeal plank adopted by the Democrats at Chicago.

More than that, the reference books will tell you that Ohio's electoral vote has mothered a lot more presidents than merely those numerous Ohio born or reared White House incumbents. The last two Democratic presidential victories, those of Wilson in 1912 and 1916, saw Ohio in the Democratic column.

True, Cleveland did not carry the state either time he was elected, but he did carry New York, which offset Ohio's importance as a presidential election pivot.

Brand New Idea

The Pomerene appointment, aside from its special Ohio slant, is an interesting thing. Even assuming, as many observers did, that President Hoover hoped to put a Democrat on the job Dawes started and thus still some, perhaps, of the indicated Democratic campaign assault on the Hoover administration of federal relief agencies, nobody ever thought of Pomerene.

Up to this year he was loomed as a Democratic vice presidential possibility ever since his defeat for re-election to the senate.

Pomerene's place as special prosecutor of the oil lease cases has kept him in the public eye. He has much legal background but to Washington onlookers, considerations revolving around his political status drew White House attention to the Ohioan.

Electra Club Women To Stage Ball Game

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Dannie Dale, the president, and her co-workers of the Federated Missionary society this week began making lineups for the "fats" and "leans" baseball team that will tangle in a benefit match Aug. 29 at Oiler park. The game is slated at 6 o'clock and will be preceded by the quarterly meeting of the society with the Catholic ladies as the hostesses. The meeting will open at 3 o'clock. Much interest is already being shown in the proposed game and the society expects to make a tidy sum from the gate receipts. All proceeds will go to the free milk fund for undernourished school children.

Engine Crew Killed in Head-On Collision

RUTLAND, Mass., Aug. 3. (INS)—An engineer and fireman were killed this afternoon when the locomotives of two local freight trains collided head on on the central Massachusetts branch of the Boston and Maine railroad. Both men were on the same locomotive.

Other members of both trains escaped injuries.

BURKBURNETT

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Aug. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Gamblin of Comanche, Texas, returned home Monday after a week's visit at the homes of their sons, Mr. S. L. Gamblin and Mr. H. C. Gamblin of Burkburnett and Electra, respectively.

Mrs. S. L. Gamblin will go to Fort Worth Saturday to attend a family reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Dykes and children of San Angelo, Texas are visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Henderson.

Kenneth Tucker visited in Walters last week at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. F. House.

Mrs. J. D. Majors of 511 East Fifth street is recovering from an illness which has kept her confined for several weeks.

Mrs. H. A Stanley and niece, Mrs. Hugh Thompson, spent the week-end in Fletcher, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs John Simmons spent Sunday visiting relatives in Burkburnett.

Mrs. Vera Rankin of Gila Bend, Ariz., has returned to her home after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Griffin of Burkburnett.

Ollie Mae Cole returned last week from a visit in Desdemonia and other points in southern Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hughes left Burkburnett Monday for Cement, Okla., where they will spend their vacation.

A woman may be able to keep her house alone, but she always seems to need another woman to help her keep a secret.

Farm Mortgages

FARM mortgages in this country amount to approximately nine billion dollars, according to figures furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture. This is three and a half billion more than is actually in circulation in the United States. Nation's Business points out.

"The lenders are individuals, including retired farmers," Nation's Business goes on to say, "who have loaned 29.6 per cent of the total; insurance companies 22.9 per cent; federal land banks 12.1 per cent; commercial banks 10.8 per cent; mortgage companies 10.4 per cent with various other agencies loaning the balance.

"One mortgaged farm out of a little more than six is encumbered to the extent of 75 per cent or more of its value.

"The gross income of farmers which stood at $9,347,000,000 in 1930, fell to $6,900,000,000 in 1931, a drop of 26 per cent in a single year. The decline from the 1929 gross income of $11,911,000,000 was still more startling, 42 per cent.

"This decline in earning is made still more serious by the fact that the farmer's operating expenses by no means declined in proportion.

"No information is available as to the delinquency in farm mortgages as a whole, but the records of the land banks available down to Dec. 31, 1931, may indicate the trend. On that date, 73.9 per cent of the amount of the federal land bank loans and 76.9 per cent of the number had no delinquent installments. Only 12.3 per cent of the amount of the loans and 9.8 per cent of the number were delinquent 90 days or more.

"That this is a gloomy picture cannot be denied, but it is not one wholly without cheering elements. As the department of agriculture points out, more than half of all farms are free of mortgage debt. In 1928, the last year in which statistics are available, 64 per cent of all farms—or 2,472,706 out of the total of 3,868,332—were in this class, but relatively fewer are debt-free now. Bureau of census reports, for example, showed 58 per cent of owner-operated farms free of mortgages in 1930 as compared with 63 per cent in 1920.

"The decline in farm mortgage indebtedness doubtless has been largely accomplished through mortgage foreclosures rather than through farmers paying off the mortgages."

Washington's Travels—All in One Day

TO READ that Maj. James H. Doolittle, the speed flier, took a great-grandniece of George Washington up in the air and in one day flew her over all the ground that Washington covered in his whole life, is to realize just how amazingly the world has been shrinking during the past century.

We ordinarily look back on the infant United States as a very small nation. From the standpoint of population, wealth and power it undoubtedly was small—pitifully so. But in the mere matter of territory it was almost unbelievably larger than the United States of today.

Washington was probably about as well-traveled a man as 18th century America possessed. He had been up the northeast coast as far as Kittery, Maine; he had been south as far as North Carolina; he had covered the middle Atlantic territory pretty thoroughly; he had been as far west as Ohio. He had been traveling all his life, from the time when he first rode off into the Blue Ridge as a fledgling surveyor.

And now we have his great-grandniece, piloted by one of the nation's most famous aviators, duplicating all of his travels in the space between sunrise and sunset.

Ohio is closer to Mount Vernon than the Shenandoah valley was in Washington's time. California is closer to New York than Boston was then. To get as far from the center of American life today as Washington got when he went down the Ohio river a man would have to go to the headwaters of the Amazon—and even then the parallel would fail if he went by airplane.

All of this, of course, is a commonplace. We know full well that distance has been annihilated, that our sprawling nation today is infinitely more compact than the smaller country of Washington's day. But usually we fail to appreciate it. We don't realize how fast events have moved.

In that whirlwind trip of Major Doolittle and Washington's great-grandniece there is compressed a whole history—an epic telescoped into a paragraph.

The Problem at Ottawa

AS THE Ottawa conference drags its way along, to the accompaniment of a good deal of oratory and a great many private round-table discussions, it becomes evident that the job of welding together a workable empire tariff union is going to be somewhat tougher than it first appeared.

The whole proposition, apparently, is one of those things that look lovely on paper but that are exceedingly hard to put into operation.

Britain would like to find in the dominions a protected market for British manufacturers. In return, she is ready to offer the dominions a protected market for raw materials.

But many of the dominions, notably Canada, have become important producers of manufactured goods themselves. And because of her relations with other nations, Britain cannot offer them as well protected a market for their raw materials as they would like. To date, the prospects for a quick, all-inclusive solution of these difficulties do not look very good.

Is 'Mass Education' Doomed?

A FEW years ago prominent American educators were lamenting the growth of "mass education" in the United States. Colleges and universities had record-breaking enrollments, thousands of young people who were not capable of assimilating a higher education were flocking to the campuses, and many institutions were almost swamped with the rush of applicants.

Right now it looks as if the depression has entirely changed that condition. Latest reports from educators are that thousands of undergraduates will be unable to return to school this fall. Enrollments everywhere are due to drop sharply. Probably not a school in the land will have reason to complain of an excessive number of students.

The only trouble with this is that it won't weed out the right people. Among the young people whom financial difficulties will keep out of college are thousands who deserve and need a college education. The nit-wits who waste the colleges' time are as apt as not to be back with bells on.

SO THEY SAY!

I nearly gave up several times, but it is hard to die when you still have a chance. I was desperate many times, almost sure I would die, but I just could not give up.—Clarence L. McElroy, half-starved aviator, rescued from Mexican jungles.

Roger Wolfe Kahn, who is at the Palace with his very able crew of tooters, tipped his mitt last night on how he is carrying the torch for Hannah Williams, or perhaps it was my imagination. His first tune was "Keeping Outta Mischief," which was followed by "How Can I Live Without You?" "After You're Gone" and "Humming to Myself" Norman Sullivan called. He said that those fellows who are dropping fortunes at the race track aren't doing anything foolish with their money—like going into business for themselves! . . . Those speakeasy impresarios, named Jack and Charlie, who were given all that grand publicity by George Jean Nathan in his interviews, as being the only worthwhile presidential possibilities, are the popular lads who governed "21" berofer cnen ettieth ? ('!-fif-staois before the recent interference. . . . Remember Dolores Rey, of the Ziegfeld corps? Well, Columbia flickers have signed her—and she spends more time at the studio, even when shes finished, because a potential Gable is insane about her. . . . Those new Police posters are very pretty and all that sort of thing, and they tell you how to summon the bluecoats when trouble happens, but they don't give the phone number! . . . Incidentally, Izzy Elinson just phoned. He said he sees that Mayor Walker wants the cops to go without pay for four weeks, and that he'd hate to be a communist in a Union Square riot during that month! . . . He also chirped that Judge is publishing very few issues these days, so can you imagine what a tough time the radio comics will have getting new jokes ten years from now!

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

CHOPIN'S CELL IN MALLORCA—Almost a hundred years ago (in 1838) the Carthusian monastery of Valldemosa, behind Miramer, sheltered the famous Polish composer Frederic Chopin and the Baronne de Dudevant, whose literary name was George Sand. Here Chopin composed the swan song of his genius, the "Thirteenth Nocturne," and Madame Sand wrote her "Spiridion." Parisian society compelled them to this unconventional flight, and after almost a hundred years Mallorca is proud to have housed the couple, the most famous sojourners the land ever had. The "little garden of oranges and lemons" is still there, and it was there that I sketched the authentic cell of the famous couple.

A GIANT OF CORSICA—The 7 feet 6 inch giant depicted in my cartoon is the head of the village of Calasima. This village, situated on the slope of Monte Cinto in the valley of Niolo, Corsica, deserves more than passing notice in the "Believe It or Not" series. It is known as the "Village of the Giants" for harboring a very curious race of men. Every male inhabitant in this village is at least seven feet tall, while the average stature is 7 feet 2 inches. They are said to be descended from the Herculean Goths who settled here during a great migration about 1,600 years ago. Owing to the great isolation of the village the race has been kept free from intermarriages with the outside. It is curious that in spite of continuous inbreeding the race has not deteriorated for many centuries.

NOT HIS LUCK

"Your name is Kuwatsch, is it? Are you, by any chance, the Kuwatsch who absconded with $250,000 and was never caught?"

"Unfortunafely, no." — Fliegende Blatter.

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Aug. 3.—Two measures to make home-ownership easier and to take handicaps off the buying and owning of homes and farms, will be among the nine state constitutional amendments to be voted on Nov. 8.

One of these is to exempt up to $3,000 assessed valuation, each resident homestead in Texas from all state taxes.

The average assessed value of the homesteads upon which Texans live is below $3,000, so that the average homestead will be free of state taxes. On larger homesteads, the first $3,000 will be exempted, and the owner will pay on the assessment above that value.

Allow Clear Titles

The other amendment is to permit the state to clear titles to hundreds of thousands of homes, farms and ranches now clouded by delinquent tax claims.

These delinquent taxes have seriously affected the values of property. They have prevented sales. They have discouraged owners from paying current taxes, and each year have rendered the owner less capable of paying out.

Many of the pieces of property would not bring the accumulation of taxes, penalties and interest against them.

A constitutional amendment will give the state discretion to settle the old delinquent tax claims, and permit cities and counties to do likewise, on all delinquent taxes of over 10 years' standing. In this way, it will not encourage delay or refusal to pay current taxes. The cities, counties and state will get what can be collected, and will be permitted to wipe off the old, uncollectable, worthless claims and clear titles to property.

Other Amendments

Other amendments to be voted on Nov. 8 include:

The legislature may designate time and place for Texas centennial exposition, and to appropriate money to pay part of its cost.

No person may vote for a bond issue who has not rendered property for taxation.

Counties and cities along seaboard may levy taxes for seawalls.

Consolidate offices of county tax assessor and collector.

Owner may redeem land sold for taxes.

Abrogate right of university to issue bonds against permanent fund.

Permit soldiers, sailors, national guard and reserve to hold state offices.

Heavy Pecan Crops Hit By Pests in Sunset Area

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, Aug. 3.—The native pecan trees here in Brushy and Sandy creek valleys are heavily loaded with pecans this year. The present appearance of the pecans indicates that the crop will be as large as any crop here within several years, but some of the pecan orchard owners state that the outcome of the crop is very uncertain. They state that they have found evidence which indicates that weevils and worms are liable to become very destructive to pecans this year.

A large number of valley farm owners here have pecan trees on their bottom land. Some of them have only a few trees, while others have attractive numbers. During some of the past years the sale of pecan crops brought the owners attractive sums of money.

COURT READS OLD TREATIES

River Bed Suit Settled By 1804 Documents

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 3. (UP)—The state supreme court has gone back to the 1804 treaties with Napoleon to help settle a controversy over the bed of the Arkansas river.

Justice Fletcher Riley, in deciding the suit of Edgar Faye Vickery, Cherokee Indian allottee, against the Yahola Sand and Gravel company, traced the ownership of the river bed down from the old treaties with France through the various Indian treaties, to the state and federal court decisions regarding navigability of the river.

The supreme court upheld the Muskogee county district court.

It held Vickery could not recover for the value of gravel taken by the Yahola firm from the bed of the river adjoining his allotment.

"The territory embracing the lands was a part of the Louisiana purchase," said the supreme court opinion.

"The declared purpose of the Louisiana purchase treaty with France was that statehood should ultimately be conferred upon the inhabitants of the territory purchased.

"The only other purpose was to provide a permanent home for the several Indian tribes."

The court held there was nothing in the treaties to make it necessary to convey title to the bed of the river to the Cherokees, although federal courts have held that beds of non-navigable streams passed to the Cherokee tribe. The land in question in the gravel suit was below the junction of the Arkansas and the Grand rivers, where the Arkansas is navigable.

"We therefore hold that the land was held by the United States in trust for the then future state, and that upon admission of Oklahoma to the union in 1907, the title to the bed of the river became the property of the state," said the opinion.

Under the ruling, it was pointed out, the state could recover from the gravel company, as the river is regarded as a "state highway."

Woman Asks State to Sterilize Her Husband

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 3. (UP)—Mrs. Eldon Wilson, Clinton, today wrote the state board of affairs asking that Dr. Dow Taylor, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Supply, be authorized to sterilize her husband, a hospital inmate.

She said her husband is unable to support their two children.

Vice Chairman Hugh Jones of the board said this case and more than a dozen others which are pending, will be held in abeyance until the supreme court rules on constitutionality of the new sterilization law in a test case involving Samuel W. Main, Norman.

Bank Bandits Escape After Binding Cashier

PORTER, Ind., Aug. 3. (INS)—Three unmasked young bandits held up the Porter State bank here this afternoon, tied up Cashier James Givens and escaped with an undetermined amount of loot.

Givens was able to roll toward a desk where he managed to reach a pair of scissors and cut himself loose and give the alarm.

Q.—When will the armillary sphere be placed in Meridian Park, Washington, D. C.?—C. C.

A.—No definite plans have been made for placing the armillary sphere in Meridian park. The complete casting has not been made and a base must be constructed. Q.—Who invented the tale of a magic carpet?—A. F. J.

A.—Brewer's Handbook and Phrase and Fable says: "The magic carpet which, to all appearances, is worthless, but which, if any one sat thereon, would transport him instantaneously to the place he wished to go, is one of the stock properties of eastern wonder-tales and romances. It is sometimes termed 'Prince Hausain's carpet,' because of the popularity of the story of Prince Ahmed in 'Arabian Nights' where it supplies one of the chief incidents; but the chief magic carpet is that of King Solomon, which, according to the Mohammedan legend related in the Koran, was of green silk."

Q.—How long have heels been put on shoes?—A. B.

A.—Shoes or some kind of foot covering have been used since ancient times. Up to the 17th century, soft leather shoes without heels were worn. Early in the 17th century shoes with heels became popular.

Q.—How much money will the new automobile taxes bring in?—A. B. L.

A.—It is estimated that the added gasoline tax will amount to $130,000,000 and other taxes relating to automobiles about $100,000,000. There are fewer cars in operation now than there were two years ago, and it is believed that the number will be curtailed to some extent this next year.

BABE DIDRIKSON WINS HURDLES FOR SECOND WORLD RECORD

TEXAS GIRL GETS OVATION

Eddie Tolan Wins Final Of 200-Meter Sprint

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3. (AP)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, of Dallas, Texas, girl winner of the javelin throw, came back with her second world record performance when she won the first heat of the 80-meter hurdles in 11.8 seconds in today's Olympics. This beat the mark of 12.2 set by Miss Sychroya of Czecho-Slovakia in 1928 and created a new Olympic mark for the event, held for the first time in the games.

The crowd gave Miss Didrikson an ovation as she raced from behind to beat her teammate, Simone Schaller of Pasadena by a foot in a close finish, with Marjorie Clark of South Africa third.

The Chicago girl, Evelyn Hall, romped to victory in the second heat of the 80-meter hurdle race.

TOLAN DOUBLE SPRINT CHAMPION

OLMPIC STADIUM, LOS ANGeles, Aug. 3. (AP)—Eddie Tolan, sensational little Detroit negro, today was crowned the double Olympic sprint champion by racing to decisive victory in the 200-meter final. He won the 100-meters Monday, therby giving the United States its first dash sweep since 1920.

Tolan's time was 21.2 seconds, a new Olympic record, alieing two-tenths of a second off the best mark made in the record breaking trials yesterday.

Sweeps Event

It was another sweep for the United States, the second of the day, as George Simpson finished second, Ralph Metcalfe third, Arthur Jonath of Germany fourth, Carlos Lutti of Argentina fifth and Bill Waters of South Africa sixth and last.

Tolan won going away. He came with a terrific rush down the straightway after the sweep around the turn, finishing two yards in front of Simpson. Metcalfe was off poorly and never able to make up lost ground in the final drive, despite a powerful effort.

Tolan's time was the fastest ever made around a turn for the 200, the world record of 20.6 having been registered on a straightaway.

Tolan's triumph as the new world's sprint king climaxed a day in which the United States won all four men's track and field championships at stake.

Records Shattered

The Americans blasted out Olympic records in three finals and surpassed the listed world record in one, in addition to which an American girl, Babe Didrikson, lowered the women's 80-meter hurdles world standard to 11.8 seconds.

Bill Miller of Stanford won the pole vault in a great duel with Shuhei Nishida of Japan by negotiating 14 feet 1⅝ inches, a fraction over the official mark of 14 feet 1⅛ inches, but short of Bill Graber's performance of 14 feet, 4⅝ inches, made in the final American tryouts. Graber's defeat today was a big upset.

The Olympic record in the discus throw was surpassed six times before John Anderson, giant American set a new standard of 162 feet, 4⅝ inches, far outdistancing the old Olympic mark of 155 feet 3 inches. Another American, Henri Laborde, finished second.

Saling Wins High Hurdles

George Saling of Iowa led his American teammates, Percy Beard and Jack Keller, to the tape in the 110-meter high hurdles final in 14.6 seconds, just short of the record of 14.4 Saling set for Olympic competition yesterday.

For the day the United States picked up the amazing total of 70 points in four events and boosted its team total, for four days of competition to 151 points, overwhelming all other nations.

Tolan took matters so easily in the closing drive of his qualifying heat that he was nearly caught napping by Wright of Canada. Tolan anticipated Wright's last rush just in time to speed up and save the last qualifying place by a foot.

With a great closing rush, Saling won the 110-meter high hurdles championship for the United States.

It was 1-2-3 for the United States in the high hurdles as the judges, after much deliberation, placed Percy Beard second and Jack Keller third, in a blanket struggle for the place.

Equals Old Record

Saling's time was 14.6 equaling the old Olympic record but slower than the new mark of 14.4 set by the Iowan in the semifinals.

Beard, the lanky Alabama boy, appeared to have the timber-topping race won as he romped into a clear lead, only to stumble over the next to the last barrier. As this mishap occurred, Saling forged quickly in front and broke the tape with a good four feet over his American rival. Keller who started slowly, was a close third.

The triumph sent the stars and stripes up all three staffs atop the Olympic peristyle, the first sweep for any nation, and the huge crowd let loose a terrific roar.

Treasury Gives Returns On New Tax Collections

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. (US)—First returns from the new tax law came out of the treasury today, in a statement showing a pickup in collections, on Aug. 1, from the miscellaneous imports.

The day's collections were $2,631,125, against $1,139,500 the same day last year. The increase reflected taxes of the excise variety, based on transactions taking place immediately after the new law became effective in June but not payable until Aug. 1.

Miscellaneous tax collections during July, under the old law, were smaller than last year.

GRIMM STARTS AS MANAGER

New Chicago Pilot Appoints English Field Captain

By WAYNE K. OTTO

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 3. (US)—Charley Grimm, musician, comedian, artist, business man and lastly, a great ball player, today assumed command of the Chicago Cubs to succeed the suddenly dismissed Rogers Hornsby.

One of Grimm's first moves was to appoint Woody English as his field captain. This action was popular among the players inasmuch as English, developed under Joseph McCarthy, is known as one of the most competent, aggressive infielders in baseball.

Perhaps the most amazing condition attending the passing of Rogers Hornsby as Cub manager was the players' reaction to the change.

None of them seemed greatly surprised. In fact one could almost interpret their attitude as having been expectant of it. The appointment of Grimm to succeed the rajah was the most popular move President William L. Veeck could have made.

Beneath somber, rain-laden skies that prevented the game with Philadelphia today, the veteran first baseman of the Wrigley-Veeck organization informed the players that his success, which in turn would reflect their own, depended wholly on one thing.

"That's 'hustle'," he explained. "We're facing a fight and we've got a fine chance to win this pennant. I'm depending on every fellow on the club to give his best. And I know he will."

Both of Hornsby's former lieutenants, Charles O'Leary and Red Corriden, held a pow-wow with the new boss this afternoon.

To Grimm this series with Philadelphia is vitally important. The Phils must be stopped, Grimm realizes, if the Cubs are going to get back into the thick of things.

Albie Booth Secretly Married, Records Reveal

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 3. (AP)—Albert J. Booth, Yale's diminutive football and basketball captain and baseball star, was married secretly July 4 to Miss Marion G. Noble, records in the Branford town clerk's office revealed today.

A week later he left to join the cast of a football motion picture being filmed on the west coast. His bride remained in New Haven where she is employed as a secretary.

Parents of the couple said today they knew "nothing about it." The bride recently denied the ceremony had taken place.

K-UPFER SLATED FOR MAT BOUT

Portland Badboy to Meet Don Juan Humberto

The ferocious Mr. Frederick Kupfer of Portland, Ore., will be back in Wichita Falls Friday night for the express purpose of wrestling Don Juan Humberto, the Mexico City sheik, on the main event. Kupfer, better known in Wichita Falls as the bad boy from Portland, will be a very welcomed treat for fans who like their matches rough.

Another old favorite who will be back again this week after a long absence is Dr. Eddie Muller, the Austin chiropractor, who will meet Bob Montgomery of Little Rock on the semifinal. Muller first made his appearance in Wichita Falls last winter when he displayed the sleep hold with great skill.

The special event carded this week between Rex Mobley of Texarkana and Al Boggs of San Antonio promises plenty of fast action.

Downs Beats Lather And Razor Nine, 13-5

The Downs Service Station baseball nine continued their sensational winning ways Wednesday afternoon on York street by downing the Mack's Barber Shop, 13 to 5. Hickey Lamb pitched a great game for the Gasoline Sellers, allowing the lather and razor boys only five scattered hits, two of which were made by Malone, Mack's third sacker.

Craig led the attack for the Downs nine, getting two home runs and a triple in three times at pat. While not matching the sensational clouting of Craig, Miri Kimberling poled out two doubles and a single in four trips to the plate.

Lamb, regular shortstop of the Downs team, converted himself into a pitcher and did a wonderful job in his first appearance on the mound. He was assisted by a lusty collection of 15 hits by his mates to amass 13 runs as well as some sensational bits of sparkling playing in the field.

Lyons Shades Ruffing In 10-Inning Duel

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. (AP)—With Ted Lyons out-pitching Charley Ruffing in a 10-inning burler's duel, the Chicago White Sox took the series opener from the New York Yankees 3 to 2 today.

In addition to holding the Yankees to six hits, Lyons doubled in the eighth and eventually scored the tying run as the result of Funk's long fly. The Sox scored their winning run in the same manner with Blue doubling, advancing to third on Grube's sacrifice and scoring on pinch hitter Fothergill's long fly to Chapman.

The victory was the former Baylor university star's sixth triumph of the season.

Ruth failed to get a hit in two official trips to the plate while the only extra base hit was a double by Gehrig. Score:

TIGERS 2, SENATORS 1

DETROIT, Aug. 3. (AP)—Detroit made it seven victories out of 12 games against Washington this season by taking the Senators 2 to 1 in a series opener here today.

The game was a good hurling duel between Alphonse Thomas and Vic Sorrell for the first eight innings. Thomas gave Detroit but five hits, one of them a double by Rhiel that sent the winning run in the sixth. Washington collected an even half dozen hits off Sorrell. Three of these were combined in the second inning to produce the only Senator run.

Marberry worked the last inning for Washington, after Thomas was taken out in favor of a pinch batsman. Score:

FRIENDS NOW

PRAGUE.—The erection of a joint war memorial to those Czechs and Germans who fell during the world war has done more to renew the friendship of those two nationalities in the town of Libechov, in Bohemia, than all the diplomatic maneuvers of the past 12 years. Both nationalities fought against each other during the war, but the erection of the monument has at last brought about a renewal of pre-war friendship.

Given its radio premiere, Bethoven's "Battle Symphony" will be heard through the NBC network Thursday, Aug. 4, at 9:15 p. m. under the direction of Cesare Sodero and played by the NBC Symphony orchestra.

"The Battle Symphony" has been heard but few times in this country. It was written for use as a background for a tableau vivant, based on Wellington's victory over Napoleon at Waterloo. It is based upon a theme familiar in the United States because of its use as the melody for "We Don't Go Home Until Morning." The musical theme was written about 800 years ago as the Crusaders' song outside the walls of Jerusalem.

Stations WKY and KOA will relay the program in this section.

Bonus Campers To Return Home

from Ferndale and the first stop will be either Cleveland or Chicago.

The campers will not be rushed, but the evacuation will start soon.

McCloskey dominated the scene today in the dismal bog camp. He rebelled when he had heard nothing from Commander W. W. Waters who yesterday announced the men should go home and then reversed himself to say he would establish B. E. F. camps in 48 states.

HURLEY DEFENDS USE OF SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. (AP)—Replying to what he termed the "apparent deliberate propaganda and misrepresentations that are being circulated," Secretary Hurley today reviewed the incidents leading to the expulsion of the bonus army from Washington by federal troops and said the action was performed with "unparalleled humanity and kindliness."

The department head said the bonus forces remained in the capital after congress adjourned only "to carry out orders of propagandists and radicals."

"No one was injured after the coming of the troops," he added. "No property was destroyed after the coming of the troops, except that which was destroyed by the marchers themselves."

He denied women and children were evacuated by the cavalry and infantry called out by President Hoover, saying on the contrary buildings occupied by women and children were protected and no one was permitted to molest them.

Hurley asserted more than 600 of the veterans who remained in Washington after congress quit were receiving compensation through panhandling, forced tribute from the citizens in the vicinity of their camps."

WICHITA WINS LEGION MEET

Vets Ask Repeal of 18th Amendment

Sweetwater. His only opponent was Miller Ainsworth of Luling.

Wichita Falls was chosen as the next meeting place, Marlin and Mineral Wells withdrawing from this contest.

Officers Elected

Other officers were elected as follows: Scott Reed of Groesbeck, national executive committeeman; F. W. Langham of Palestine, chaplain; Harry Lambert of Pecos, sergeant at arms; A. Garland Adair of McCamey, historian; Bill Leslie of Bay City, judge advocate; W. X. Spiegel of Port Arthur, treasurer.

Action of President Hoover in using the army to quell disorders in Washington among the veterans seeking a bonus was condemned by resolution.

"The legion upholds the right of all free American citizens to petition the government for the redress of any wrongs and for the enactment of any legislation that may be in the public interest," the resolution read.

"We condemn the action of President Hoover in ordering the army to forcibly eject from the city of Washington groups of veterans whose avowed purpose was to lobby with the government officials with the view of securing the payment of the adjusted service certificates.

"We further condemn the charge being made that these men are Communists when there is no proof to sustain those charges."

The convention endorsed repeal of the 18th amendment and return of the prohibition question to the respective states.

It was voted that the next veterans hospital to be located by the veterans administration in the Southwest be built at Marfa.

Chillicothe Boy Drowns In Canal

youth, but became frightened and left the water.

W. M. Hickman, camp caretaker, also saw the tragedy and cut off the flow of water into the canal. The boy went down in seven feet of water as four boys looked on unable to aid him. The search for the body was under way in 10 minutes with 40 men and boys dragging the canal for a mile below the point of drowning, thinking the current had carried the body downstream.

However, the body was found at the point the youth drowned.

The boy went under an hour and 15 minutes before his camp supervisor, W. M. Gourley of Chillicothe arrived with a second truck load of boys. The body was recovered at 12:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after an hour and a half in the canal. Resuscitation efforts on the part of E. J. Coffey of the Merkle Undertaking company with a pulmotor and Drs. O. L. Woodall and Gordon Clark of Iowa Park were discontinued about 1:15 p. m. J. W. Evans of Chillicothe headed a group of eight searchers in finding the body.

The F. F. A. camp included more than 50 youths from vocational agricultural schools of Harrold, Five-in-One and Chillicothe, in charge of their instructors.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete at Chillicothe, where the body was returned Wednesday night as the parents awaited information from out-of-town realtives.

Survivors are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Seibert of Chillicothe, and the brother, Jodie Seibert.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. (US)—Reports that a commodity pool, patterned after the organization which was formed to operate in the bond market, would be formed have been recurrent in the wheat market for some time. Today it appeared likely these reports would materialize.

Effect of operations by a group of leading eastern interests would be much the same in the wheat market as it has been in financial markets. Extent of the operations would be insignificant in comparison with its effect on general sentiment, particularly the confidence it might inspire in commercial buying circles as well as speculative quarters.

Sentiment toward corn remains bearish, despite the fact that country sellers refuse to offer on declines and commercial buyers are forced to bid futures prices to levels where supplies will move from the country.

Advice To Investors

By Charles W. Storm—Editor of the "News Service of Wall Street"

R. C. F.: How do you regard A. M. Byers company common stock.

Answer—The issue is an attractive speculation. For the nine months ended June 30, 1932, this leading domestic producer of wrought iron pipe sustained a net loss of $571,405, equal to $3.32 per common share, as against earnings of $106,999, equal to $1.29 per share of $7 preferred in similar period of 1931 fiscal year. In view of the company's specialization on relatively high-priced quality products, it is probable that earnings recovery will be delayed until a rather well advanced stage of general business recovery has been attained.

R. E. M.: Would like your opinion of buying International Hydro Electric System "A" stock at 7.

Answer—Primarily as a result of more satisfactory water conditions and larger contract deliveries of power, net income increased substantially in the first quarter of 1932. Earnings were equivalent to $3.67 a class "A" share in the year ended March 31, 1932, as against $3.61 in the preceding 12 months, but in view of the substantially less favorable showing which is understood to have been made during recent months, the "A" shares are considered unattractive.

D. E.: Do you believe the dividend on McKeesport Tinplate company stock is secure?

Answer—Reflecting reduced volume and lower prices, earnings for the first half of this year equaled $2.23 a share, as against $4.24 in like 1931 period. In view of the unpromising second half outlook maintenance of the present $4 dividend is considered uncertain.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (AP)—Cotton advanced today on trade buying and covering stimulated by firmness in the grain and stock markets. After selling off to 5.88 at the start, December closed at 6.14. The general market closed steady at net advances of 9 to 11 points.

The opening was 4 to 6 points lower under liquidation and scattered selling influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables.

The weekly report of the weather bureau was about in line with expectations and failed to create any agressive trading interest. Some selling through brokers supposed to be acting for cooperative interests was in evidence on the afternoon advance.

Liverpool cables reported scattered buying supplied by Manchester and hedge selling in that market. Exports reported today 21,975, making 36,010 so far this season. Port receipts 8,705. U. S. port stocks 3,-394,653.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3. (AP)—Cotton was firmer today in quite active trading. A sharp advance in stocks and wheat induced considerable trade and scalpers buying. After opening 6 points down prices advanced sharply, gaining at the best 22 to 23 points from the early lows. There was a reaction of 7 to 8 points at the end on profit taking and the market closed steady at net gains of 8 to 10 points.

The market opened easier owing to lower Liverpool cables than due prices there being 3 to 4 penny points below expectations. Private cables stated that there was scattered buying offset by Manchester hedge selling. Manchester cabled that there existed less favorable views of strike and that there was a miscellaneous inquiry for cloth.

The market was firm after mid-session owing to sharp advances in stocks which induced good trade buying. Prices made new highs for the day around the middle of the afternoon at 6.02 for October and 6.16 for December or 22 to 23 points up from the early lows and 16 to 17 points above the previous close. DRY GOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (AP)—Cotton goods were steady in the unfinished goods division today. Southern print cloth and broadcloth manufacturers have decided to continue their plan of curtailing production. Moderate demands were reported for different lines of finished goods. Rayon sales increased, particularly in the acetate divisions. Silk goods sold steadily, heavy crepes being called for. Women's wear goods are more active. Burlaps were steady with some interest showing in October-December delivery.

Stock Market Shows Marked Vitality In Spectacular Rise

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. (US)—Demonstrating the most remarkable vitality since the recovery began, the stock market rebounded spectacularly from its previous reactionary tone in the final hour of trading today. A long list of favored rails, industrials and utilities regained not only the ground lost during the preceding two-day setback but swept onward to new peak levels for the present advance.

Average changes at the close showed industrials 2½ points net higher, rails 2 points and utilities slightly more. The 15 most active stocks recorded a gain of 3⅝ points compared with the previous closing.

Suddenness of the turn was indicated by the fact that half the day's gain was scored in the last 60 minutes when trading equally as abruptly expanded to a 1,000,000 share hourly rate. Total transactions barely approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Commodities, which again gave the stock list its rally inspiration, retrieved previous losses also. Wheat, after a somewhat nervous forenoon, ended almost two points better, cotton 10 points up while the important farm products all extended recent advances.

Speculative sentiment toward stocks was plainly under the influence of commodities. The effect on the list of the rally in the principal staples was magical and the accompanying individual gains of 1 to 7 points the most impressive of the past month.

While it was difficult to select a particular leader on the rise, the outstanding performance was staged by American Telephone & Telegraph which reached 96⅝ for a gain of more than 7 points, and ended practically at the best.

U. S. Steel climbed 3 points and many other leaders proportionately as much, Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central and Norfolk & Western accounted for the largest gains among the rails.

Farm implement stocks resumed their previous advance on growing evidence that the steady rise in agricultural products is creating new wealth for potential purchasing power. The rally in stocks was so well timed with the action of commodity markets that it scarcely needed any explanation in the trade news of the day.

Rumors, unconfirmed at a late hour today, that the farm board had disposed of virtually its entire wheat holdings was the dominating influence in that market. One of the mythical stories in this connection credited a certain large investment trust with having purchased a considerable amount of the grain in the last two weeks.

Although news of the regular General Motors dividend declaration was not known officially until after the close, the street derived much cheer from the fact that not a single dividend reduction was announced during trading hours. These have recently been running at the rate of about a dozen a day. However, four unimportant omissions occurred.

Source of the demand for shares continued as difficult to trace as heretofore. Important commission brokers and wire houses continued sellers on balance at the end of the day and none reported any expansion in their loan positions.

Much gossip was heard of frantic short covering in pivotal industrials during the most exciting stage of the proceedings. Evidence appeared also of repurchasing by former sold out longs who missed the first stage of the "baby" boom and were awaiting the opportunity to re-enter the market on the first important reaction.

Bonds went up with their more speculative neighbors and reached a new high in a lively closing.

Foreign exchanges again were enlivened by a forward rush in German marks, which crossed par. Other European rates were a trifle heavy.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Aug. 3. (AP)—Wheat continued in fair demand today, with other grains fairly easy sale.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis car lots on track at Fort Worth, freight paid, delivered Texas gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points: Wheat—No. 1 hard, according to protein and billing, 51½@55c. Barley—No. 2 nominally, 30@31c. Sorghums—No. 2 milo, per 100 pounds, 58@60c nominally; No. 2 kaffir per 100 pounds nominally, 61@63c.

Delivered Texas common points or group three: Corn—No. 2 mixed, 41@42c; No. 2 white, 41½@43½c; No. 2 yellow 44@46c.

Delivered Texas common points: Oats—No. 2 red, 19½@20½c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 3. (AP)—Accompanied by unconfirmed reports that a $50,000,000 pool had been formed to operate in commodity markets, all grains scored a brisk advance late today.

Wheat jumped almost three cents from the day's low point. The soaring of grains was simultaneous with a sweeping advance of the stock market and with big buying of wheat credited largely to eastern account.

Wheat closed unsettled 1⅝@1⅞c above yesterday's finish, corn 1⅛@1½c up, oats ⅜@½c higher and provisions unchanged to a raise of two cents.

Helping to stimulate the rise of grain values were statements that unofficial estimates putting the 1932 probable yield of domestic spring wheat at 273,000,000 bushels were too high and that harvest returns would turn out to be around 250,-000,000. There was also talk that strong interests were accumulating wheat on scale orders because the market had been on the down grade for five successive days. It was likewise asserted that 3,000,000 bushels of North American wheat had been taken for export in the last 48 hours.

Winnipeg advices said with practically no rainfall Canadian wheat crops had deteriorated 2 to 8 points in the last fortnight. There were reports, too, that farmers in the Dakotas were more inclined to hold their wheat than ever before. A further stimulus was announced that the world's wheat available supply had decreased 4,322,000 bushels for the week and now totaled 30,000,000 bushels less than at this time last year.

Corn and oats rose with wheat, although earlier influenced by additional rains both the feed cereals outdid the season's low price record.

Provisions were neglected.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Sept. 49⅞c, 53¾@53½c; Dec. 53⅝@53¾c, 56⅛@56⅜c; May 60¼c bids. Corn—Sept. 31@31¼c, 32¼c; Dec. 31⅞@31½c, 32⅞@33c.

morning shopping. Instead, she hid the remaining $30 in the top of her stocking. The business dress could wait.

The subway platform was crowded. Gypsy had never seen so many people on it. Girls like herself, young, pretty—smartly dressed. Tired looking older girls who had been riding the subway and toiling away in business offices and stores in New York for the best part of their lives. Always hoping for something that never came along.

There were as many young men and Gypsy looked them over curiously. So they were the type of men found in the offices and business places of the city. She had never known their kind. There was something clean and strong about them. A sureness. They didn't look as though they spent their nights in roadhouses or at drinking bouts. Gypsy wished Jiggs would be like these boys looked.

There were no vacant seats, so Gypsy joined the army of straphangers and opened her paper. It was difficult to read with the lurching and rumbling of the underground train. She found the "Help Wanted" columns and scanned them hungrily.

Stenographers, typists, bookkeepers, waitresses. They were all that seemed to be in demand. And they had to be experienced. The ads left no doubt of that. A troubled frown gathered on Gypsy's face as she read on.

Stenographers, typists, bookkeepers—maids! And of course she couldn't be a maid.

Then Gypsy's eye fell upon the ad of a large department store. Fifty saleswomen were wanted for June sale week. That would be something. A start. It might lead to a permanent job. She mulled it over in her mind and fell to picturing the chance it might lead to. A job as buyer. Paris!

That was it! She'd love that. So, tearing the ad from the paper, Gypsy smiled to herself and sat back waiting impatiently for the train to land her at the store. She had been there often to buy things.

Hundreds of other jobless girls had read the help wanted pages of the morning papers. And when Gypsy climbed the long flights of subway stairs and finally found the employment office, she was astonished to find dozens of others there ahead of her. And it was still several minutes before 9. The office had opened at 8:30.

Jostling, milling, eager, tired-looking girls, everywhere. Smartly dressed, poorly dressed, pale, pinched, hungry looking, well fed, gay, gabby ones chattering of their dates and speculating upon what the chances were to get work.

Gypsy felt her heart sinking as she waited. At 9 o'clock the door opened and a woman came out. She was tall and thin and her clothes hung on her like a sack. A silence fell on the crowd. Gypsy held her breath and waited.

The woman swept the group with a sharp eye. Then she spoke in a dry brittle voice.

"How many of you have had experience?"

Gypsy was near the front. Every hand went up except hers. The eagle-eyed one smiled, showing large crooked teeth.

"What!" She pointed to Gypsy. "You haven't had experience!" "No, I have not. I'm sorry."

"Well," she smiled the crooked-toothed smile again, "at least you're honest. If all the rest of you have had sales experience then I'm a transatlantic pilot."

A girl giggled nervously. The employment lady became brisk.

"There are pencils and paper on the tables. All of you write your names and addresses. I'll select you by your handwriting. At least I'd like to find 50 salesladies who can write their own names."

There was a mad rush for pencils and papers. Gypsy had a pencil in her bag and she reached for paper. When she had written her name and address she laid it on the table before the woman who glanced at it hurriedly.

"You'll do. Go down to the basement and ask for Mr. Ginsburg. Hours 8:30 to 5:30. Till 9 on Wednesday and Saturday. Your salary will be $10."

"Ten dollars a day," Gypsy smiled innocently. The employment manager gave her a quick look. At first she though Gypsy was joking. When she saw she was not she sat back.

"Sa-ay," she drawled, "who do you think you are? The general manager?"

"I—I don't understand," Gypsy faltered. "I didn't mean to be rude."

The woman shook her head and smiled a wry smile. "The salary is $10 a week."

GUARD UNITS LEAVE FRIDAY

450 Soldiers to March In Parade to Train

Five units of the Texas national guard stationed at Wichita Falls will entrain at 1:25 o'clock Friday afternoon to attend the annual 15-day encampment at Palacios. The units will spend 17 days out of the city.

A send-off parade will be staged about 12:45 o'clock Friday afternoon from Eighth and Travis, where the units will mobilize, to the union depot, Post Commander J. H. Fletcher announced Wednesday. Capt. O. E. Nelson will be the senior officer in charge of the parade.

The five units will include three infantry and two artillery groups, comprising about 450 Wichita Falls men. All units will be in full equipment. Plans for the parade are being formed with the cooperation of the national affairs committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

The line of march will be down Eighth street and Paul Seeds' Los Caballeros band is scheduled to head the parade.

FORMER WICHITA OFFICER TO ATTEND CAMP

Lieut. Col. H. J. Weiler of the 131st field artillery unit of the Texas national guard was a visitor in Wichita Falls Wednesday en route to the annual encampment of the 36th division at Palacios, Texas. Col. Weiler is now on duty with the general staff of the war department at Washington, D. C., and will return to that city at the close of the 15-day camp. He was accompanied by Mrs. Weiler and children, Eleanor and Harold.

New Freight Regulations Designed To Aid Railroads In Truck Fight

Freight regulations, designed to allow railways of the Southwest to compete with motor freight carriers through permission to stop shipments in transit, were effective Wednesday. The regulation allows partial unloading of a car in transit and covers all kinds of commodities, Traffic Manager Dudley B. Foy of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce said.

Texas interests through the state industrial traffic league requested suspension of the ruling through the Interstate Commerce commission but the request, presented in Washington, D. C., by Secretary F. A. Leffingwell, was denied. The denial was issued as the I. C. C. desires to permit carriers to try out all new schemes to recover traffic from trucks and other competition, traffic authorities here said Wednesday.

New rates on petroleum and its products in the Southwest prescribed by the I. C. C. will be effective Aug. 10. It was announced at the same time. It is understood in traffic circles here, that Oklahoma interests will ask postponement of the schedule and then request a suspension. However, it is believed both requests will be denied.

Wichita Group Returns From Shrine Convention

Five Wichitans returned Tuesday night from the national Shrine convention at San Francisco after a fast transcontinental drive, covering 1,497 miles in three days. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Willhite, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Carson and L. C. Holloway. Leaving Los Angeles Sunday morning and making night stops at Mohawk, Ariz., and El Paso, the group arrived here Tuesday night.

The party joined the Maskat temple caravan at Reno, Nev., leaving this city Wednesday, July 20, and overtaking the caravan Saturday, July 23, at noon. The caravan left Wichita Falls at 5 a. m. Monday, July 18. The five Wichitans remained in San Francisco for the convention and continued with the caravan to Los Angeles for a two-day stop.

AUTO STOLEN

Loss of a 1925 model Ford touring car from the 1000 block on Indiana was reported to police Wednesday by Arthur Stipe, 1323 Smarch. Officers received a report Wednesday that a radiator cap, valued at $2.50, was taken from J. W. Thorne's car in the 900 block on Scott.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME

A blaze of unknown origin resulted in damage of $1,000 at the home of J. R. McDonald, 1202 North Fifth, at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Assistant Fire Chief Grover Habern said. A grass fire at 1422 Twenty-fifth was extinguished at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

TEMPERATURE STOPS AT 102

Wednesday High Five Points Below Tuesday's 107

A five-degree drop in temperature for Wichita Falls was welcomed by Wichitans Wednesday when the mercury reached a maximum of 102 degrees at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The high reading Tuesday was 107 degrees. The maximum for the 24 hours ending at 5 p. m. Wednesday was 105 degrees, recorded at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Cloudy skies aided Wichitans in withstanding the heat while a change in the wind to the east after several days in the south added to the relief. Unsettled conditions in East Texas with generally fair and continued hot weather in West Texas were forecast in reports to the Texas Electric Service company weather bureau. A low barometer reading of 28.71 was reported at 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the mercury stood at 97 degrees.

Wednesday was the ninth consecutive day with a temperature reading of 100 degrees or over.

Navy Enlistment Age Reduced to 25 Years

Reduction of the maximum age for enlistment as apprentice seamen in the U. S. navy from 35 to 25 years was announced here Wednesday by Thomas Hall, local recruiting officer. Men of 17-25 years of age are now eligible to apply.

Out of seven applications at the local office July 29, Mr. Hall said, four passed physical and educational examinations. Each of the four who successfully completed tests was a high school graduate, and two of the group were brothers. Usually, the officer said, only five per cent of applicants pass the tests, while at the local station slightly better than 57 per cent have passed.

C-C Manager Warns Against Fake Solicitors

A warning that attempts are being made by imposters in Wichita Falls to sell clothing or other articles under endorsement of the chamber of commerce was issued Wednesday afternoon. Several calls have been received by Manager John Boswell of the organization that solicitors were attempting to sell some article to collect money for the chamber.

The chamber of commerce is sponsoring no drive in the city at this time and no one is authorized to use the organization's name in selling merchandise, Mr. Boswell stated.

Services Held for Father of Wichitan

Funeral services for W. M. Moore of Bremond, Texas, were held at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in that city. Mr. Moore, father of Thomas D. Moore, 1714 Pearl, died Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Moore left Wichita Falls Monday afternoon for Bremond.

NEGRO HELD FOR ASSAULT

A charge of aggravated assault was filed in the county court at law Wednesday against a negro man whose wife was the complainant.

The woman declared that in a domestic tiff, she not only was pushed and cuffed about roughly, but that she also was scratched by one swing of the defendant's knife.

County Attorney L. V. Abernathy reported also that in justice court at Iowa Park Wednesday, a jury imposed a fine of $1 and costs upon a man charged with having passed a worthless check for $2.

Jubilee Pageant To Give History Of Wichita Area

A complete historical pageant, covering the history of the Wichita Falls area from the earliest period of human habitation, will be offered on the opening night of the three-day golden jubilee celebration here Sept. 26. Plans for the pageant and musical features of the celebration were outlined at a meeting of Chairman R. E. Shepherd's committee Wednesday.

Miss Juanita Kinsey was named to write the continuity for the presentation and the committee will meet as soon as the work is completed by Miss Kinsey to assign each episode to subcommittees for completion of details. Mr. Shepherd named Mrs. William E. Huff vice chairman of the historical pageant group at the meeting. W. S. Abbott was named secretary and with Jack Barnard and Mrs. Newton Maer will serve as the financial committee.

W. R. Lukins of Mojave, Calif., was presented with a 36-pound mushroom by two miners who brought it from their claim.
