CONGRESSMAN CHARGES MEXICO BACK OF ANTI-AMERICAN PLOT

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—Charges that the Mexican government, through its ambassador here and its consul general in New York, had spent nearly $2,000,000 in an effort to discredit President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg, and that anti-American literature could be had for the asking at the New York consulate, are made by Representative Gallivan, democrat, Massachusetts, in an issue of the congressional record just off the press.

The charges, which served to recall sports later tonight, that Mexican-circulated propaganda against the United States was the subject of the secret correspondence recently exchanged between the two governments, were enumerated in a long statement which contained quotations from what the representative termed a "printed insult."

Has Sworn Proof

"For the asking," he said, "you can get—or could up to a few days ago—this printed insult by application at the New York consulate, or by mail, and of this I have sworn and documentary proof."

Elias is Arturo Elias, Mexican consul general at New York, whose expulsion Representative Gallivan assumed would be promptly cancelled by Secretary Kellogg.

The representative said he was impeded by duty from being the situation light to demonstrate the "essentiality" of an inquiry, in view of the failure of his resolution seeking information on the subject from the state department.

Borah Is Adversely

Congressional committee of the statement, Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, added a new note to the American-Mexican controversy by serving notice that "no amount of criticism" would serve him from the course he has pursued in connection with it. He said there were powerful interests which would like to see a complete break with Mexico, and while he had no desire to see the oil companies or interests deprived of their legitimate rights, he disagreed with the policy which seeks protection by a breaking off of relations.

In Paris, All Costumes Seem To Have A Coat

Excellent for traveling Reptilian charm Navy blue, ribbed silk

PARIS, France, Mar. 11.

Dear Cousin:

Your letter went the right out of the Rue de la Paix in an orgy of shopping the very day after we arrived from Cannes and I forgot my sorrow over returning before I wanted to and over having my Spaniard for some other woman to capture.

I agree with you that every single item in your trousseau should be a work of loveliness, down to your morning frocks and dithorbes. If you start your married life foolishly gowned, your husband will naturally expect you to remain the perfect example, and will realize the obligation that is his. If only mother had trained father more expertly so he did not cherish that absurd idea that shopping is a vice rather than a virtue.

Today I'm sending three photographs of outfits I found irresistible. Everything this season seems to have its own coat. Many are short, some are sleeveless, and some are mere cape or drapery effects, but quite necessary in the general scheme of things.

Minus the Horror

I adore the short coat because it is so youthful, so I am voting two to one in its favor. You really ought to see these suits to appreciate them, particularly that snakeskin coat. It is of a charming material that has some of the fascination of the serpent about it without any of its horror—for you know it isn't real. It comes in velvety shades of gray, the light tones of which just match the cunning little gray crepe dress with the belt of the coat material. With its pleated skirt and simple blouse, the dress is a delight in itself, but the costume as a whole is perfection.

At Cannes I saw much of this snakeskin material, and I resolved to have it enter my life. I saw nothing more lovely than this.

The other short coated model is one of those practical affairs that no woman should be without. This one is navy blue silk, with a rather decided rib something like silk poplin has. It is lined with blue satin of the same shade which forms the cunning little reverses and the pleated section in the front. Very lovely, extraordinary in blue and of rose trim the collar, cuffs, the sleeve and the pockets, and the little vest of of rose colored satin and crepe. Two wide folds at the hem give it an unusually attractive line at the hem. My husband has promised that I may order one like this, and I should like to duplicate the order for you, if you like.

Pep in Blue Bands

The long coated model struck me as excellent for traveling. It is of navy blue kasha, lined with blue and white foulard, which also makes the dress. Bands of bright red with blue buttons pep up the frock and trim the seat little vest that particularly took my fancy. The coat is adorable and chic in every detail.

Don't you think you should have at least one very lovely taffeta gown for your troussau—I would suggest a black with an overskirt of finely embroidered handkerchief linen or em. Brodery, and white at the neck and sleeves—or if you prefer, navy blue would be lovely, with a deep ceru instead of a "pure white for relief".

Trimmed With Tucks

Vonnet is showing the most lovely gown of crepe de chine, trimmed entirely with small tucks in various arrangements, so that absolutely no other trimming is required. The waistlines are very cleverly indicated, but you have no particular idea how they are achieved. A white one would be lovely for sport. Then if you wished, you could have different colored hats and accessories for it—there goes my French economy again, when apparently you never have to consider making one frock do the work of four or five.

I have so many things to tell you about the shops, I can't bear to stop, but I must get these photographs off on this mail, so you can let me know if any of them please you—meanwhile my mind hunt for raiment for you will go on until you restrain me.

All my love,
GERMAINE.

RUTH RECEIVES SLIGHT INJURIES IN COLLISION WITH BAG

BATTERING BAM SPRAINS ANKLE AND HURTS LEG

YANKS BEAT CINCY, 8-5, BUT PAY HEAVILY FOR PRACTICE VICTORY

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Mar. 11.—Babe Ruth has had his first real test today. He was battered Thursday at Orlando when the Yankees beat Cincinnati 8 to 5. On his way to third base in the midst of a fourth inning rally, his feet became involved in a wrestling match with the bag. The bag won the decision and Ruth was tripped. He limped off the field with wrenched ankle and a strained tendon.

The Brooklyn Robins hammered out a shutout victory against the University of Florida at Clearwater, 12 to 0, while fifteen hits helped the New York Giants to withstand a ninth inning upping by the Buffalo Internationals at Sarasota, 7 to 6.

Boston Works Hard

Boston major league regulars were submitted to further intensive drilling as a result of poor showing Thursday at St. Petersburg the Braves lost to Cleveland 5 to 3 in a 10 inning game.

At New Orleans the Red Sox first team looked none too good against a squad of youngsters who are battling for permanent berths. The regulars lost 4 to 2.

Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics has added another outfielder to his squad. He is Jud Walker, a youngster from Decatur Baptist college, Texas.

The Athletics, training at Bradenton meet the Phillies Friday in the first of a series of games. Thursday, the Phillies were trounced by Washington 11 to 3.

Schalk Goes into Action

Manager Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox signed the muck protector and big miff in Thursday's 11 to 3 thrashing between two lines of his training group, but the squad to which he assigned himself lost, 5 to 2.

The Chicago Cubs face their first real test under fire Friday against the Los Angeles Coast league team at Los Angeles.

Having won two out of their first three exhibition games, splitting even with the Boston Braves and winning from the Phillies Thursday at Bradenton, 6 to 3, the Washington Senators sent to Sarasota, Fla., Friday to match a 12 game series with the New York Giants.

Tullian Looks Good

Bookie Guy Sturdy of Tulsa had his day when he started in a practice game which the Browns' youngsters won 11 to 7 at the Devon Springs camp Thursday.

Sturdy made four hits, scored three runs, walked once, threw the only stolen base of the afternoon. Tulsa is two runs and an out with a batting average of 1.000.

The St. Louis Cardinals at Avon Park have adopted the Browns' attitude toward defeats in exhibition games. At least they are taking their defeats philosophically, believing that over confidence is not likely to develop with an occasional wallop.

The hit and run play, one of Ty Cobb's pet bits of strategy, will be minimized in the offensive plans of the Detroit team this year, Manager George Moriarty has let be known at their training camp in San Antonio. He is said to feel that the major offensive power of the team rests in the free hitting of his sluggers Manush, Hillmann, Fothergill, Woodall and Hite.

Fonseca Looks Good

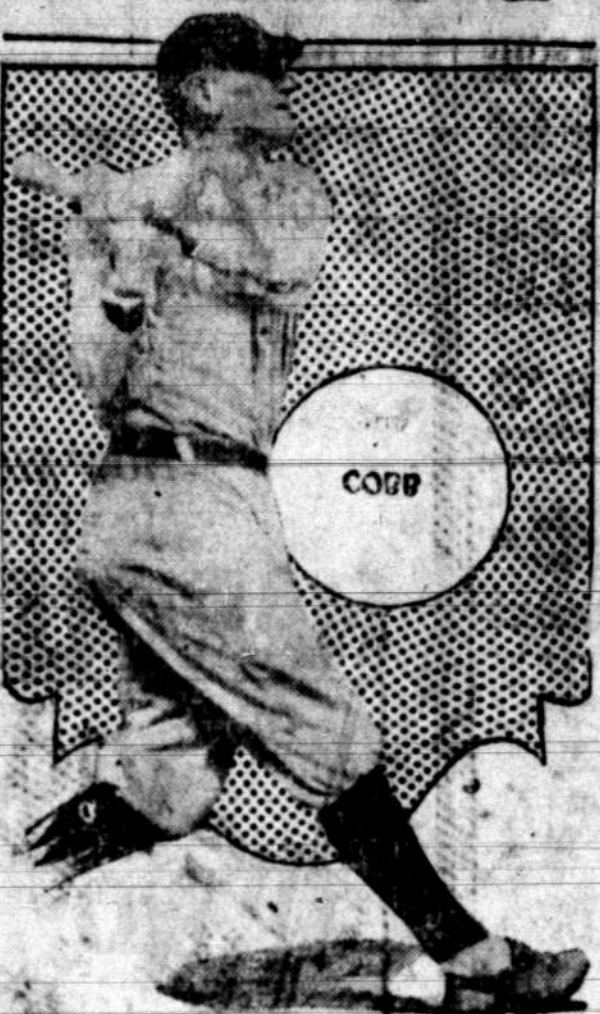

Low Fonseca, mostly utility infielder added to the Cleveland Indians this season from the Newark International league club, has fulfilled all managerial hopes for him in practice games so far. Four hits, including two doubles, in four times at bat and on five pitched balls is Lew's record for the past two days.

Off to a poor start signing American League clubs, the Cincinnati Reds press spring training here Friday at their Orlando camp with the St. Louis Browns. Carl Mays' pitching was about the only bright spot in Thursday's exhibition game for the Reds, who took 18 to 10 beating from the New York Yankees.

Bitter Enemies Again Teammates

Despite Old Feud Ty Cobb and Howard Ehmke Will Play For Mack

By NEA Service
PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 10.—Baseball is no respecter of persons. Its peculiarly changing personnel often brings about decidedly unusual combinations.

Four years ago Ty Cobb and Howard Ehmke parted company the bitterest of enemies. The former, as manager of the Detroit Tigers, severed relations when he traded Ehmke to the Boston Red Sox. That was in 1923.

After playing in Boston for three years, Ehmke figured in another deal that sent him to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Now by a most peculiar turn of the wheel, Ty Cobb, for 21 years a star at Detroit, has quit that club and tied up with Connie Mack at Philadelphia.

When Cobb traded Ehmke to Boston, he didn't think words as to his reason. He broadcast the fact that while Ehmke had enough stuff to be one of the game's greatest pitchers, he sadly lacked courage.

Ehmke took issue with Cobb as to his failure to win for Detroit, insisting able part of the batter's anatomy, the head in particular, not to injure, simply to put fear in the heart of the batter.

Ehmke, prior to his coming to Philadelphia, was very unpopular with the players on that club because he allegedly seemed to use the "beanball" in a pitch. On joining the Athletics, Ehmke explained he was simply obeying orders under the threat of a heavy fine.

A fist fight between the two under the grandstand at Detroit followed

PLENTY OF OUTFIELDERS

John McGraw has twelve outfielders to look over in training camp this year. Only three of them—Ross Young, Al Tyson and Helme Mueller—are holdovers from the 1926 club. The new ones are Eddie Roush, Laddie Brown, George Harpaz, Melvin Ott, Al Moore, Ois. Carter, Tex Jones, Andy Reese and E. H. Smith.

FOND OF GAME

Guy Bush, youthful Cub hurler, plays baseball for the love of the game. He says he'd play for only $100 a month, but admitted when he signed with the Cubs that it took more than that to live in Chicago. So the Cub owners thought of future victories this season and scrawled bigger figures on Bush's contract.

GETS $7,500 A YEAR

Dick Haney, Northwestern's new and mentor, was obtained by the Purple school for a salary of $7,500 a year under a long term contract. Haney will be the "baby" of the Big Ten coaches. He is only 32.

Allister Proctor discovered and purchased for a small sum at Hereford, England, what is declared to be a unique copy of the first edition of Bacon's "Novum Organum" printed in London in 1620.

These accusations on the part of Ehmke, who really got the worst of the club is still a matter of conjecture.

More unkind words passed between the two as a result of the fist fight and the enmity increased. When Cobb resigned as manager of the Tigers, Ehmke is alleged to have said Cobb "for years was Detroit's greatest pennant handicap."

Cobb, on the other hand, has at various times expressed his opinion of Ehmke and his pitching, always in uncomplimentary terms.

After Cobb traded Ehmke, his greatest delight was in having the Tigers knock him from the box. This they did quite often. Ehmke not having much success against his old teammates. As a rule Cobb led the attack. Strange happenings, such as often take place in baseball, once again brings these two bitter enemies to the same club. However, we have the word of Connie Mack that he has no intention of making them roommates.

PHILLIES WONT GRAB FLAG BUT MAY CAUSE WOE

McINNIS' MEN WILL SHOW BETTER BRAND OF BALL DURING THIS YEAR

(By Associated Press)
BRADENTON, Fla., Mar. 11.—The Phillies may not be able to do a great deal on their own account in the National League but the club promises to cause some trouble for the other clubs. McInnis' men are frankly not going anywhere so far as the pennant race is concerned but they are likely to stir up some dust along the road.

Stuffy McInnis, the new manager, brings to the club experiences gained in 18 years of major league baseball, including five world series with three clubs. He has not demanded the impossible of his players and they are under no managerial command to go out and win a championship.

The threat of the club lies in a great pitcher brought over from last year, the addition of a sensational young infielder, several pitchers who should be better than they have shown and two recruits who are back from the minors after previous big league successes.

Thompson To Help

La Fayette Presco Thompson, youngster, with something to learn, will nevertheless add strength to the infield. He will play second base from the jump coming to the Phillies from Buffalo via the New York Giants.

(Turn to Page 4, Column 1, Please)

University of Illinois went to Charles McGinnis, Wisconsin captain. McGinnis compiled the second largest number of points ever made. He broke the all-round tests in the 75-yard high hurdles and pole vault. He was fourth in the shot-put, second in the running broad jump and fifth in the half mile.

Manager Duffie Bush Friday began something the rough-spots in the Pittsburgh Pirate machine at Paso Robles after observing most of the squad under fire. The regulars defeated the yankees Thursday 10 to 4. The pitching of Nichols and Grantman's hitting featured the game.

Four Players Have Percentage Of .500; Schaefer To Meet German Champion

(By Associated Press)

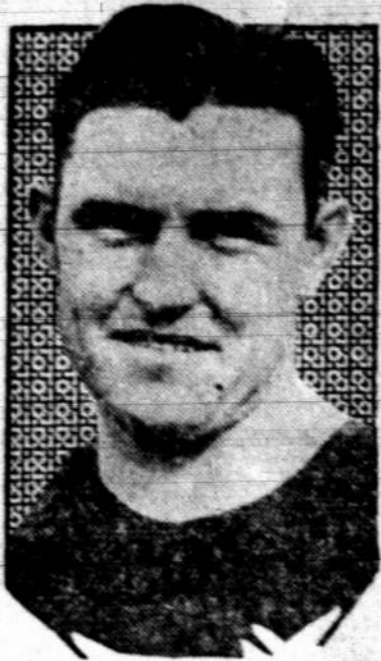

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—The four players with a .500 percentage or better in the world's championship 15.2 ball billiard tournament here were booked for matches yesterday and last night after another tournament upset which broke the triple tie that existed prior to yesterday's battles.

Jake Schaefer of Chicago, former title holder, now tied with Welker Cochran of California, for first place with three wins and no defeats, was to face Erich Hagenbacher of Germany, another former champion, in the afternoon contest, while Cochran will meet Edouard Horemans of Belgium tonight.

Hagenbacher, after losing his second game of the tournament yesterday to Felix Grange of France, 378 to 400, in eleven innings, came back strong last night and upset the dope by beating Horemans, 400 to 372. The German went out in five innings for an average of 86, equally the best for the tournament made by both Schaefer and Cochran. His high run was 118, which the Belgian topped by three.

Willie Hoppe, whose title is bound to change hands, remains in sixth place above the last man, Kinsey Matsuyama of Japan.

Southern University Has Had Many Diamond Experts To Follow League Game

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Mar. 11 (AP)—Someone has said in a lighter vein the University of Alabama should give the "BBD" degree—in other words, "Doctor of Baseball."

The Crimson-hosed institution has sent many players to the major and class "AA" baseball circuits. Alabama's roster once had the names of such players as the Sewell brothers, Joe and Luke, of Cleveland; Riggs Stephenson, of Chicago Cubs outfielder, and Ernie Wingard, of the St. Louis Browns.

Then in the not-far-gone past stands the name of Derrill Pratt, one of the greatest second basemen in the game, who starred for the New York Yankees and St. Louis Americans. He now is manager of the Waco Texas League club. He was a great drop kicker in football.

Among the sluggers is Ike Boone, formerly of the Boston Americans, now with the Chicago White Sox. His brother, Dan, at one time pitched for Cleveland and at present is in the Southern Association. Muffie Lenoir and Red Hall are in the American Association. Lena Styles, formerly catcher of the Philadelphia Nationals, is with the Baltimore team.

Johnny Dobbs, manager of the Birmingham Southern Association team, refers to Grant Gillis, his shortstop, as

Phillies Won't Grab

Thompson has shown Manager McInnis so much that he has dubbed him "a second Kid Elberfeld." Heinie Sand will again play short and Barney Friberg will take care of third.

Manager McInnis, at the moment, expects Wrightstone to pay first base, assuming that he will show immediate improvement in his defensive work. There is no question about his hitting. Baldwin, a third baseman from Seattle, probably will be kept and Attrava, a first baseman with Norfolk, Va., last year, has a chance to stick. McInnis will play in emergencies and pinch hit.

The outfield is carried over from the previous campaign.

Leach Will Play

Fred Leach, although getting a late start on account of sickness, will play one position with the other two to be divided between Al Nixon, Cy Williams and John Mokan.

The Phillies say they have nothing to be ashamed of in their catching staff. Jimmy Wilson has shown no loss of power in the spring training grind and Clarence Jonnard has worked harder than usual. The trio is completed by Harry O'Donnell, a Philadelphia semi-pro.

Three new pitchers certain to be retained are Herb Pruett, John Scott, and Alex Ferguson. Pruett was brought back to the majors from Oakland and Ferguson with Buffalo last year. Scott, who has not yet reported, was taken on from the Giants and will find a place waiting for him when he comes.

Carlson, the star of last year's staff, has four of his co-workers with him. Ulrich, Wiltgobber, Dean and Mitchell. Deatur, a former Phillie, also has been brought back from Newark. The staff will be completed by a choice from Baecht, with the club for a time last year, O'Neill, from Springfield, and Taber, a semi-pro.

The label that distinguishes
Cudahy's Puritan Ham
The Taste Tells Finer Flavor
Finer flavor is a distinguishing quality of Cudahy's Puritan Ham. The label is your positive assurance of this quality in every ham which bears it. Puritan has a mild, sweet, delicious flavor and a decided tenderness that can be enjoyed only in this fine ham. That is because the choice, young meats selected for Puritan are "ripened naturally"—a special Cudahy method of curing. This exacting method diffuses the rich juices of the meats slowly and in a natural way, producing a result similar to fruit tree-ripened as compared to fruit artificially ripened. Puritan is so easy to prepare because it requires no par-boiling. It is nutritious, easily digested and is rich in the elements necessary for muscle and tissue building. You, too, will be delighted with this fine ham. So look for the label when you buy. At your dealer's.

CHAIN STORE BUYING POWER

This department store chain's buying power makes possible prices on guaranteed quality merchandise equalled by few such organizations and seldom by merchants in general, even during "special sales", and price cutting events. Low prices such as this organization maintains, make unnecessary "Sales" either special or otherwise; neither is price juggling resorted to, nor extra long profits taken on style lines and seasonable merchandise which generally assumes such a role. To the manufacturer's cost is added a percentage to cover the cost of handling, plus a small commission. This then becomes the retail price at which goods are sold.

A comparison of this chain's prices with current catalogue prices and prices generally charged for the same or similar lines will convince even the most discerning of economies possible on purchases made in one of its stores.

THE NEW YORK ORGANIZATION

Nearly 50 years of buying, building and merchandising has developed a New York buying organization, housed in two modern New York office buildings, 19 floors in all, devoted to the merchandising of this chain and its associated stores.

RAILROAD WILL GO TO HOUSTON

Southern Pacific Offices To Be Moved From N. Orleans To Texas City, Said

(By The Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 11.—The Southern Pacific railroad will be permitted to remove its offices from New Orleans to Houston, Texas, the judges held today in the Louisiana supreme court. The court held it had no jurisdiction in the matter. The court held that the proper court in which the petition of Attorney General Percy Saint should be heard was one of the federal courts in Texas. The interstate commerce commission already had permitted permission to the Southern Pacific to remove its offices and it was expected the removal would be made before the case could be transferred to Texas courts. The fight to retain the offices in New Orleans started some time ago after the loss of five Louisiana railroads to the Texas and New Orleans railroad company, a subsidiary of the Southern Pacific with headquarters in Texas.

Flashes Of Life

(By The Associated Press)

Rebecca Scores

WASHINGTON.—What is a White House without Rebecca? Answer, Lonely. When the Coolidge moved Rebecca was left behind in the regular domicile, which is being repaired. Her Lord and master found he needed her to pat in the evening. So the presidential limousine took her to the temporary residence in Dupont Circle. Rebecca is a pet racoon.

An Oversight!

WASHINGTON.—A tressou for a senator's daughter costs at least $1,121. Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Stanfield are being sued for that amount by New York modistes for gowns furnished their daughter Barbara, who was married in January to Henry T. Dunn of Jacksonville. The wedding gown cost $200. The ex-senator says the oversight will be rectified forthwith.

Struggling Along

NEW YORK.—Cornelius Vanderbit, Jr., is struggling along as best he can on a salary of $500 a week from the New York American and $200 from the Daily Mirror.

B'Jove, Old Thing

NE WHAVEN.—To an English reader a big American newspaper seems an astonishing organization for the prevention of reading except for the wonderful provision of human interest paragraphs or the daily jet of witty shots. The view was given by Samuel K. Ratcliffe, British editor, in a lecture of Yale.

In The Hoosegow

NEW YORK.—Sidney Rowday was once a waiter at the Biltmore and had yearnings. After a protracted stay in Boston he came to town recently, engaged a Biltmore room at $12 a day and ordered new curtains, orchids and a radio set for it. Then he made a mistake. He went into the dining room to lord it over his old fellow workmen. He was recognized. A bill was presented. He had 26 cents. Now he's in the hoosegow.

British Cruiser Sails To Scene Of Mob Loot

SHANGHAI, Mar. 11 (AP).—British cruiser Emerald sailed Wednesday from Nanking up the river to Wuhu, where a mob yesterday looted the customs house following occupation of the town by Cantonese.

All the foreign women and children are aboard the steamer Kutwo, who apparently have not yet left for Shanghai, although authorities consider it impossible for them to return to shore in view of the situation. The American destroyer Preble is standing by, the destroyer Noa is at Nanking, within call and others are at Chekiang and Kichong.

British co-operative organizations have sent a shipment of 70,000 barrels of herring, 70,000,000 fish, to Soviet Russia.

through a heavy fog off Staten Island and about half a mile from the Statue of Liberty when they struck. The collision tore a great hole in the bow of the Sac City but it was able to keep afloat and anchored off Greenview L. I. El Sol, however, a craft of more than 3,000 net tonnage sank almost before the crew could take to the water.

The channel at the point, which is directly in the main line for ocean liners, is about sixty feet deep and only the tips of El Sol's spars showed after she sank.

Life Saving Is Paramount. When the first report of the accident was received all efforts were directed to the rescue of life.

The Morgan line tug El Amigo was the first on the scene and took aboard El Sol's crew. A check up after it reached shore showed that the captain, Brown, was the only man not accounted for.

El Sol sank so rapidly after the collision that it was necessary for several of the seamen to jump into the bay without even procuring life preservers.

Co-ed Burglar Is Jailed

SHE MENDS OLD CLOTHES Will Be A 'Good Girl'

(By Associated Press) SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Mar. 11.—Imprisonment has brought womanly pursuit of needle work to the feminine hands that recently tried to force entry to a bank vault with an electric drill and other paraphernalia of a burglar.

The mending of prison garments was the task assigned to Miss Marian Myers, 20-year old university co-ed, when she started serving a 30 day sentence. She pleaded guilty yesterday to an attempt to rob the Vermilion bank so she could get $24 tuition fees to attend the University of South Dakota. Good behavior may cut the sentence to 25 days.

Cheerful, somewhat hopeful of the future, she became "number 5,226" and was put to mending, along with the other nine women. Her garb was a simple blue and white checked gingham house dress, black-oxfords with cotton hose and plain white cotton undergarments.

"I wanted to become a teacher," she said, "but now I suppose everyone will be 'down on me' and I'll have to give that up. I cannot say just what I shall do when I am released. But I am going to be a good girl."

but when Frick's breathing ceased Sunday physicians hastily started artificial respiration, hoping to keep oxygen fed to the body tissues until the youth rallied from the paralysis which had set in three days after an attack of influenza.

Through his last conscious hour, the youth continued to smile in the face of death, gazing with the men laboring to save his life.

Dr. E. T. Conley, one of the attending physicians, said he believed the battle would not be in vain if for nothing else than the fact that it would attract nationwide attention to the value of artificial respiration by persons without need of pulmonary. Mechanical aid was avoided because of the drain of bodily energy.

A line was ordered re-routed through nearby towns to establish a telephonic connection. Meanwhile officers from Pittsburgh sped toward the scene in an automobile and all available officers in the vicinity of the mine were mobilized to aid in the hunt.

Crew Is Saved

Officials of the Southern Pacific Steamship company issued a statement shortly before 11 o'clock saying that 25 members of El Sol's crew had been saved and a wireless message to police headquarters a few minutes later read: "Police boat rescued crew of steamer El Sol." The police message also stated that the sunken craft was a menace to navigation and requested that the lighthouse department send boats to the scene.

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

A DEPUTY sheriff, recognizing one of the three as they struggled through the mob which milled before the courthouse steps, came to the assistance of Faith, her father, and Bob Hathaway, clearing a passage for them and escorting them to the very door of the courtroom in which the trial of Cherry and Chris Wiley was about to begin.

Stephen Churchill, an chief counsel for the defense, rose from the long table where he and his two assistants had been conferring, and came to meet them. "Oh, to see you, Miss Faith! You are looking beautiful today," Churchill said in unctuous tones. "Sit here, Mr. Lane, Miss Cherry can sit between you. This seat all right for you, Hathaway?" he asked goodnaturedly, indicating a seat immediately behind the chair in which he had placed Faith. "I'll sit here, at the table, right in front of Miss Cherry and Miss Faith, so I can consult my client without difficulty. All right?"

Faith was glad of his bustling cordiality, for it served to divert her mind for the moment from the appalling realization of the fact that, as Cherry's sister she was the cynosure of all eyes. She had hardly time to look about her, timidly, fearfully, at the crowded amphitheater, at the district attorney, Tom Manning, arriving late, importantly, attended by clerks and assistant district attorneys, bearing law books and portfolios of legal documents and suitcases, presumably filled with gruesome exhibits, when a heightening of the dull roar made by the gabbling audience made her glance toward the door at the left of the still empty judge's bench. There, looking like a very little and a very frightened child, stood Cherry, gazed on either side by a tall, rascally deputy sheriff, the badges of their office on their lapels, heavy, black-buttoned pistols protruding from leather holsters strapped about their waists.

Cherry paused as if for an anticipated cheer from her audience. It is doubtful if anyone in that courtroom had even seen a more beautiful or appealing sight than Cherry presented as she hesitated upon the threshold of her fight for life.

The plainest of the four dresses which Faith had designed and made, for her made her look even younger than she was, for it was a straight, clinging black sheath of lusterless satin-backed crepe, reaching decorously to two inches below her knees. A wide, round white organdie collar, and deep, flaring cuffs of the same crisp, sheer stuff were in startling contrast to the sheenless black crepe and gave to her exquisite childish face a purity and color which should have satisfied even Stephen Churchill. The tenderly curved, babyish mouth was the color of coral, innocent as it was of lipstick, and between the long, curling fingers of her bronze lashes her wide, round, golden eye glowed like imprisoned candle flames.

Her glorious copper - and - gold hair, which had not been cut since her arrest, hung in adorable, childish curls about her rounded, camellia-white cheeks, so long that they almost touched the flaring, crisp collar of white organdie. She looked not more than twelve years old, as she stood there, frightened, lips parted, breathless, appealing, defendant, is stricken with a serious illness.

Child Who Stutters Should Be Given Prompt Attention

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

EXPERTS in disturbances of speech estimate that there are more than 200,000 children in the United States who stutter—some more and some less. The experts define stuttering as difficult speech, and stammering as incorrect speech or mispronunciation. Stuttering is that form of speech defect in which there is difficulty in pronouncing certain sounds, with resultant repetition.

The general conception today is that this disorder results from nervous or psychic disturbances—perhaps temperament—related to anxiety.

Stutterers do not always have trouble with the same sentences or words. The most common sounds to cause disturbances are p, b, m and w. The following 10 phrases are especially suitable for testing the presence of stuttering:

1. I want to learn to speak correctly.
2. Nicotriety.
3. Hippopotamus.
4. Hippopotamus.
5. The hippopotamus in the hippodrome.
6. Water, water everywhere.
7. Merry maids merrily singing.
8. Bye, bye, baby boy.
9. Sewing shirts for soldiers.
10. Third riding artillery brigade.

In the treatment of stuttering the modern investigator considers various factors. There may possibly be physical abnormalities, such as adenoids, or abnormal construction of the tongue, the jaws, the teeth or the nose. The child who stutters should have a careful examination made by an expert to determine whether or not such physical conditions exist, and, if so, they should be corrected.

Since a mental conflict probably exists in each of these cases, a person who has studied conduct either by psychology, psychoanalysis, or pedagogic methods may attempt to find out the nature of the conflict and to reveal it to the stutterer. Sometimes this revelation is sufficient to overcome the conflict and to cure the condition. Whether or not the conflict is found, a person trained in such methods may, by positive suggestion, create in the stutterer a spirit of self-confidence and thus relieve him of his overanxiety.

Many of the speech schools for stutterers secure their results by distracting the attention of the stutterer from his speech through giving him exercises, singing or chanting a lesson, breathing rhythmically or other technics which take his mind from his speech difficulty.

As A Woman Sees It

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

DO NOT BEGRUDGE YOUR PHYSICIAN DIVERSION

Except in cases where people are working during the day, or, of course, when serious or sudden illness demands his attention, should we not try to give the doctor his chance to dance, or dine, or make merry as he chooses in the evening hours when all men should have rest and recreation?

A doctor's work is hard. The responsibility of human life is a heavy one. It requires not only from eight to ten years of preparation, before he begins to practice, but constant study and research afterwards to keep up with the advance of science and medicine.

This, in connection with the treatment of his patients, his loss of sleep and irregularity of meals, will in time undermine his health. As far as possible he should have his evenings.

Illness is usually more acute at night. Our nerves go back to the things that can be borne well through the day but look unusually black and unbearable at night. We want the doctor. It's a comfort to hear him say we'll be all right.

It is not kind to ensure a doctor who takes a few hours of recreation "when his patients might be dying."

A young doctor was called in to attend a girl with a fatal illness. He was in love with the girl and he watched with agony the failure of his attempts to cure her. She was at the point of death, when he remembered reading of a similar case in the medical journals—a case in a Vienna hospital that had been cured by resorting to a rather extreme administration of a certain drug. Two other doctors had been called in previously in consultation. They approved of his treatment, said that nothing more could be done and departed. He knew there was no hope of their cooperation now in what he was going to attempt. But it was the only chance left.

The drug was to be administered in three doses two hours apart. He gave the first dose, walked the floor and found his nerve going. He gave a second dose to the nurse, said he would be back in an hour, and went out for a walk.

He went into a hotel for some cigars, met his cousin, and danced two dances to relax his nerves and brace him for the battle that was to be his that night. The news reached the girl's home before he did. He found the door barred. His colleagues were in charge.

Going In For Culture

A group of highly distinguished men and women has been organized... to extend to all corners of our country the beneficent of culture and education.

This must be done, it is announced, in order that our democracy may meet the problems arising from the ever-growing complexities of modern civilization.

It is a splendid idea, surely. Yet, for some reason or other, it gives us an uneasy feeling.

Already there seems to be an idea abroad in the land that one familiarizes himself with fine paintings, good literature, philosophy and the like for the sake of some material benefit...

Let us hope not. Familiarity with the finer things in the realm of thought and aesthetics is primarily a personal thing.

Of course, it is well to see to it that good literature and good music are available for the people that truly want them.

Bloodless Hunting

The stories of the big game hunter sound thrilling. They make us all wish to shoulder a gun and tramp over mountains or through jungles to shoot wild animals and collect imposing trophies for our homes.

Dan McCowan, photographer at Banff, Alberta, has a better idea. He has spent 29 years hunting big game in the Canadian Rockies—but he hunts with a camera, not a gun.

He gets all the thrill the regular hunter gets—and trophies? He has a whole album full!

Best of all the number of wild creatures has not been diminished by his hunting.

An "Insanity Plea"

An Ohio youth kills a woman and her baby, either in a fit of wild rage or because of some abnormal defect in his mentality.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says:

Yesterday afternoon four highly estimable ladies of Plainview, wives of honorable and respected citizens of this high county seat, were arrested in Lubbock because their automobile bore a dealer's license.

One of the ladies explained that the car was the property of her husband's automobile agency but to so avail. They were hailed before the authorities and after waiting around the courthouse for more than an hour, were released on bond and to await further developments in the case.

The one-sided and decidedly unfair bill to force a tax upon the sale of cigars and "roll-made" cigarettes received a stiff blow at Austin yesterday when its opponents rallied and stopped its passage.

Folks can receive a dozen "booster" items in the paper and then forget them all when they happen to read one which they translate as in opposition with their personal views.

Old Masters

Eat thou and drink; tomorrow thou shalt die. Surely the earth that's wise being very old.

Needs not our help. Then loose me, love, and hold Thy sultry hair up from my face;

Now kiss, and think that there are really those. My own high-bosomed beauty, who increase

Through many years they toll. Then on a day They die not for their life was death—but cease;

And round their narrow lips the mould falls close. —Dante Gabriel Rossetti; from "The House of Life."

WASHINGTON LETTER

THIRD TERM TALK AT WASHINGTON RECALLS FUROR OVER GRANT

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Mar. 11.—Young Bob La Follette, who is a model of sartorial perfection despite the fact that he is the darling of the flowing-gentry, is the latest addition to the ranks of those who are trying to find out if President Coolidge's intentions are serious.

There was a Democratic majority in the House at the time. William M. Springer of Illinois was the man who decided to drive a spike into the tail of the third term-evil by demanding a showdown.

Dec. 15, 1875, he suddenly introduced a resolution reading: "Resolved, that in the opinion of this House the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States in retiring from the presidential office after their second term has become a universal concurrence of our Republican system of government and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwelcome, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our institutions."

Republican congressmen were thrown into a panic tonight by astonishment. Springer moved the previous question and shut off all debate.

A Republican got to his feet to move an adjournment and was howled down. Ex-Speaker James G. Blaine, later candidate for president and then leader of the minority, broke and ran for shelter in the cloakroom, leaving his comrades a picture of despair and desperation.

"They evinced their anxiety," a correspondent wrote, "in shifting uneasily from seat to seat, in rising and going from one place to another in pursuit of advice, in twisting their beards and in nervous clutching of their hands."

A dozen more stalwarts fled from the floor as the roll call began. The resolution against a third term was adopted by a vote of 232 to 18. Among the 18 were six negroes and four southern Republicans.

The specter of forfeited patronage and revoked appointments peered from behind the record of today's vote. The correspondent observed, forecasting Grant's ire against those who had deserted him.

Blaine returned, admitting that he had dickered the issue but he appeared ambitious to be Grant's successor if he voted "aye" and because he would displease his friends if he voted "nay."

It was this same resolution that La Follette, in his swallow-tail coat, introduced in the Senate.

THE TEXTBOOK BILL

The pending textbook bill may be an improvement over the existing law in several particulars, but it unquestionably is in at least one.

The present law puts no penalty on extravagance or downright wastefulness. Indeed, since it is to the advantage of the book companies to sell as many of each text as possible, there is good reason why they should seek to oversell and no particular reason why districts should not overbuy.

The slush pile deep about them just now and all the refuse of the day forms a filthy, smelling river by nightfall, flowing slowly to the gutters along the lanes of drab tenements...

ARE YOU COMMITTING COMMUNITY SUICIDE?

One of the strangest phenomena witnessed in most towns and small cities is the apparent eagerness with which many otherwise good citizens contributed to the tendency to commit "community suicide," states one of our contemporaries.

We find a suicidal condition exists in Post among our most worthy and helpful citizens along town development and that is that they are not loyal, and by not being loyal we refer to the suicidal habit of not trading at home.

These citizens often show unlimited zeal in boosting any movement to obtain civic improvements, to promote location of new industries, to secure educational facilities, etc., yet most of them turn right around and engage in practice that absolutely nullifies their otherwise laudable efforts and then wonder why their town doesn't keep in step.

The money that ought to be kept at home for the expansion of local trade and industry is sent away to other cities, never to return.

IN NEW YORK

SEE-SAWING and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Mar. 11.—Scattered notes from a ramble about Manhattan: The Williamsburg bridge just after the dawn... And the market place nearby...

All trading over the great bridge with their little carloads of vegetables and fruits... Their voices sing the street chants of Palestine, Constantinople, Algiers, Tunis, Sofia and Smyrna...

When the night grows cold they break their boxes and stand in circles about the communal fires... No customers are out, but the code of the market places prohibits closing shop...

They are like the pioneers who trekked west in their covered wagons... Children of every land, they have torn up their roots in Russia, Greece, Algeria, Turkey and Jerusalem...

Each is a potential merchant prince, though many have grown grey guarding a little rectangular cart while the children bawled the ways and habits of an alien land and race...

The streets swim with torn cabbage leaves and skins of fruit... Tucked in cheap overcoats the little regiment of street merchants stand...

And at daybreak upon the morrow they must be up and off across the Williamsburg bridge to get their wares.

Hijackers Stick Up Berger Oil Workers

BORGER, Texas, Mar. 11.—Two masked men at 2 o'clock Wednesday night entered the Gulf bunk house one of the occupants up against the wall and a half miles north of Borger, held pistol points, and looted them of watches, money, a diamond ring, diamond pin, checks, clothing and suit cases. They then ran to a green roadster a quarter of a mile away and escaped.

Tacoma Man Stays Family And Self

TACOMA, Wash., Mar. 11.—The effort of a father to wipe out his wife's family with a hammer and an axe was all but a success early yesterday when his 7-year-old son, Richard, died in a hospital from wounds inflicted by his crazed father, Harold Jensen, Tacoma contractor.

Obregon Will Run In Mexico, Belief

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 11.—That former President Obregon will be a candidate in the 1928 presidential election now is considered a foregone conclusion in political circles. A reported conversation between General Obregon and Rodolfo Gaona, retired bull fighting idol of Mexico, was being commented on Thursday by political leaders as further proof that the ex-president had about made up his mind to accept the nomination.

Claimant to Royalty Wants a Job From Henry Ford; He's Only Fishmonger Now

By MILTON BRONNER, Service Correspondent LONDON, Mar. 11.-Here's a message for Detroit's wealthiest and most famous citizen: "Say, Henry-I want a job. I'm tired of struggling in England. America's a new country with new chances even for a man of my age-59. By dint of hard work, I make about $25 a week. I could make more in your plant and would earn it. You've got all sorts of men in your vast industrial army, but I'd be unique because I am a royal prince and I work with my hands. Just say the word and I will be over. Now I've kept my promise and transmitted to Henry Ford the heart's desire of a little man in London whose card reads: "His Imperial Highness, "Archduke Maximilian of Austria, "Austrian Crown Prince, "Only son of the "Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, "Better known as "Private Brightwell." At Billingsgate You can find "Private Bill," as he is known in the trade, any morning at the world famous London fish market which, through the ages, has been known as Billingsgate and has given its name to a very strong line of "language." In spite of his 59 years, Bill thinks nothing of holding 100 pounds of fish on his head and walking miles with it. Years ago, convinced of his royal birth, Bill tried to get some acknowledgment by writing to Belgium, but never got a reply. At that time, he set forth his claims in an affidavit. It started out: "His Claim "I, Franz Rudolph Maximilian, only child of the late Archduke Maximilian of Austria, emperor of Mexico (who was brother of Franz Joseph, emperor of Austria), commonly known as William Brightwell, do hereby declare that I was born in the Vatican at Rome at 2:05 a. m. on Dec. 6, 1867, was passed over between Dec. 8 and Dec. 21 by the authority of Pope Pius IX to the Jesuit headquarters who subsequently passed me over to a nun, who brought me to England. Subsequently I was adopted by William Brightwell and his wife, residing at Stoke Newington, the said Brightwell receiving the sum of 300 pounds for my education. The affidavit says his mother was Maximilian's wife, Empress Carlotta. "Nun's Story "My foster parents," Brightwell told me, "got all the facts from the nun. My mother, the Empress Carlotta, who died the other day in Belgium, had fled to Europe in an endeavor to get the Pope to save her husband. She was a guest in the Vatican shortly before I was born. "Why they wanted to get rid of me is more than I can fathom. But you will notice one thing about all the affidavits of my mother-none of them say she died childless. "Years ago I met Archduke Johann Salvator of Tuscany, brother of my father, who gave up all his royal rights. He told me he knew my story and called my attention to one striking resemblance. "Always Worked "Being poor, I've always worked hard. For years I sailed on ships. During the war, though well over the age I served with the army veterinary corps in France. "I'm serious about wanting Henry Ford to give me a chance. I know machinery, having handled it on ships. Or if he wants me in the commissariat, I know all about fish-and-meat. If he wants a clerk, I write a good hand and have a good education. My main object in wanting to settle in America is that my two boys would have a better chance there."

child of the late Archduke Maximilian of Austria, emperor of Mexico (who was brother of Franz Joseph, emperor of Austria), commonly known as William Brightwell, do hereby declare that I was born in the Vatican at Rome at 2:05 a. m. on Dec. 6, 1867, was passed over between Dec. 8 and Dec. 21 by the authority of Pope Pius IX to the Jesuit headquarters who subsequently passed me over to a nun, who brought me to England. Subsequently I was adopted by William Brightwell and his wife, residing at Stoke Newington, the said Brightwell receiving the sum of 300 pounds for my education. The affidavit says his mother was Maximilian's wife, Empress Carlotta. "Nun's Story "My foster parents," Brightwell told me, "got all the facts from the nun. My mother, the Empress Carlotta, who died the other day in Belgium, had fled to Europe in an endeavor to get the Pope to save her husband. She was a guest in the Vatican shortly before I was born. "Why they wanted to get rid of me is more than I can fathom. But you will notice one thing about all the affidavits of my mother-none of them say she died childless. "Years ago I met Archduke Johann Salvator of Tuscany, brother of my father, who gave up all his royal rights. He told me he knew my story and called my attention to one striking resemblance. "Always Worked "Being poor, I've always worked hard. For years I sailed on ships. During the war, though well over the age I served with the army veterinary corps in France. "I'm serious about wanting Henry Ford to give me a chance. I know machinery, having handled it on ships. Or if he wants me in the commissariat, I know all about fish-and-meat. If he wants a clerk, I write a good hand and have a good education. My main object in wanting to settle in America is that my two boys would have a better chance there."

RIGHT now you can probably think of a hill that's been making your motor knock every time you've climbed it. And that's easily explained.

Your motor is designed to deliver a certain number of revolutions per minute to give maximum power and response under all conditions.

That's when you need Conoco Ethyl Gasoline—because this new fuel works at maximum efficiency in a carbon-choked motor.

Conoco Ethyl Gasoline has no substitute. Don't confuse it with other "anti-knock" fuels.
