Shrimpers and ACND argue lease issue

By Ted Norman

With a standing room only crowd of shrimpers and bait stand operators verbal battles between the audience and commissioners continued throughout the evening of the Tuesday meeting of the Aransas County Navigation District.

The meeting got off to a confused start as chairman Bobby Landrum opened sealed bids for the work on the 32 new boat slips in Rockport Harbor.

The commissioners had requested bids on material and bids on labor and several companies submitted combined bids and commissioners Landrum and Kirk Holman spent the first 30 minutes of the meeting trying to determine how to accept the bids.

One company gave bids on both number one and number two grade pilings further complicating the issue.

But after the commissioners got all the figures together they announced that Bracht Lumber Company of Rockport was the low bidder for material with a bid of $13,146.24. Bracht also stated that the material could be stored at the lumber yard until such time as it was needed without any extra charge to the district.

Garrett Construction Company of Ingleside was the low bidder for the labor contract with a bid of $15,094. Gene Sprinkle of Rockport submitted a bid of $16,600 for the labor.

The highest labor bid was from Bay Incorporated of Corpus Christi with a bid of $65,398.

The commissioners, having accepted the bids for the material and labor of the new Rockport Harbor docks then turned their attention to the proposed new boat ramp at Fulton Harbor.

Commissioner Holman opened the boat ramp discussion saying, "The people don't want this boat ramp, if we use the old one and let them park in the park it's only a two and a half block walk."

Commissioner Dave Maguglin responded to Holman's statement saying, "It's not in Fulton or Rockport and it's in a congested area, there is no more congested area in Aransas County than there," said Maguglin referring to the location of the old boat ramp.

Holman then asked if the money for the [See Lease, page 12]

ROCKPORT VOLUNTEER FIREMEN battle blazes at the Heldenfels Shipyard, above, and in a car in downtown Rockport, right. The shipyard fire broke out Tuesday morning when welders cutting a pipe ignited grass nearby. The car fire was the result of a gas line that wasn't connected, according to Rockport Fire Chief Johnny Ray who said a mechanic had been working on the vehicle and the car was taken out before he was finished with it. That incident occurred Wednesday.

Septic tank ordinance considered

Aransas County Sanitarian Leonard Specht was a guest at the workshop meeting of the Fulton Town Council Tuesday evening, Feb. 1. Specht addressed several subjects, including sanitation and building ordinance regulations and enforcement, and Federal Emergency Management Administration requirements for federally subsidized flood insurance.

The Town of Fulton is considering writing a septic tank ordinance, according to Mayor Pro Tem Pat Loflin, which will probably be quite similar to the one used by Aransas County. Loflin said that the council has no plans to establish a building ordinance at this time.

Specht explained the way flood-prone areas are determined. He said that in zone A, the most flood-prone zone, there are 32 divisions. He said that most of Aransas County ranges from A-9 or A-10 up to A-22, and that different elevation standards are required for the different numbers. Specht also explained the B zone, where flood damage is not as likely, the C zone, which is not as prone to flooding as zone B; and zone V, which encompasses extremely flood-prone areas like St. Joseph, Matagorda and Padre Islands.

According to Specht, elevation certificates are required in A zones before obtaining a county building permit in order to minimize potential flood damage. The charge for a building permit is based on $1 per $1,000 assessed valuation of the building cost. He explained that if a town has its own building and septic tank ordinances then the revenues which would ordinarily be paid to the county may then be collected by the town or city. He added that a zoning ordinance is not necessary to enact these other types of ordinances.

The sanitarian also recommended that the town set up a corporation court for the enforcement of these ordinances in order to keep disputes out of the district courts. He gave the council a copy of the standards for construction of private sewage systems, both on-site sewage treatment systems as well as septic tank systems.

In other council workshop news, Loflin reported that no parking signs had been posted at the Fulton Post Office maildrop. She also read a letter from the Texas Department of Public Safety saying that the results of a traffic survey conducted at the intersection of Hwy. 35 and Cactus Street warrants the installation of a traffic signal. The DPS will forward the request to Austin and submit final plans to the council for approval.

Loflin reported that a termite inspection has revealed extensive termite damage to the town hall and that emergency situation action has authorized Reuel Yarbrough's firm, Remodeling & Stuff, to repair the immediate damage. She said that the council will obtain estimates before deciding who will take care of extermination work.

The council has authorized an electrician to work on the lights at the Casterline Fishing Pier, which have been a constant problem. The lights have fallen off on several occasions and braces have not seemed to help. Loflin said the electrician will remount the lights with steel pipe and enclose them in baskets to prevent further damage.

Aransas City: born with the Republic, killed by a president

By PAT BLAIR

Staffwriter

It was born in the days of the Texas Republic, survived until 1846 — but Aransas City was effectively killed in 1839 by Texas President Mirabeau B. Lamar although the death was a lingering one.

An 1888 map of Fulton — the most recent map of the city until officials had a new map made a year or two ago — refers to that township, in parenthesis, as "Aransas City."

It's likely, the way names of cities have shifted in this area, that Fulton may once have been called Aransas City, but Raulie Irwin — whose knowledge of area history is such that he is frequently invited to lecture at various civic groups and organizations — doesn't think Fulton/Aransas City was the original Aransas City.

Fulton, according to the records, was platted in the 1860s by Col. George Ware Fulton, for whom the present town and the mansion are named. The old Aransas City was surveyed and platted in 1837 by James Power. According to various sources, the townsite of Power's Aransas City was on or near the old Spanish landing and garrison known as Fort Aranzazu (or "Aransazu" or "Aranzaso").

The fort was built about 1750 on Live Oak Point, according to information from the archives of the Texas Historical Commission, to guard the entrance of Copano Bay against "pirates, cut-throats and privaters." The fort is the only installation made by white man in this area which was in existence in 1776, according to the THC. But a map of Aransas Bay by Eugenio Navarro dated 1832 fails to show the fort's location, an indication it had probably been abandoned by that time.

A book by William H. Oberste, "Texas Irish Empresarios," is more exact on the location of Aransas City: It was located at the eastern extremity of Live Oak Peninsula at Live Oak Point, along the channel connecting Copano and Aransas Bays.

The townsite was also near Power's home, Rincon de Cera, on Live Oak Point, Toward the close of 1836, the Irish empresario established a large mercantile business near his home and in 1837, in partnership (according to Oberste) with Robert J. Walker, laid out the townsite of Aransas City.

Today, a marker stands near the intersection of FM 1781 and Hwy. 35 North, designating the site of one of Power's homes. The marker was erected in 1936 by the Texas Highway Department on behalf of the Texas Historical Commission. Historical Commission files have no information other than what appears on the marker. A THC official said files now include copies of applications for markers — including the names of the applicants — but this information was not filed back in 1936.

The homesite designated by the THC marker was most likely Rincon de Cera, but that information isn't included on the marker either.

Power's gravesite is somewhere around that area, according to Bill Walraven, Corpus Christi Caller columnist. Walraven recalled that — quite a few years back — Power's crypt was found on the Point. The remains were transferred to Refugio for burial. County Surveyor Tommy Griffith reports he once found a cistern — "or a gravesite" — on the northwest end of Live Oak Point, just west of the 1781/Hwy. 35 intersection.

Never a clear ruling on capital punishment

The death penalty has caused judicial nightmares in this country since it was put on the statute books. It probably has generated more courtroom debate and more emotional turmoil than any other law.

Yet, after all this, capital punishment in states and nations that still impose it is no closer to solution than it was at the beginning.

Legal ramifications of decisions on capital punishment and its applicability are so complicated even constitutional lawyers are sometimes baffled.

We have had our share of baffling death penalty cases in Texas in recent months. The latest involved Thomas A. Barefoot, 37, sentenced to death for killing police officer Carl Levin of Harker Heights near Killeen in 1978.

The fact that Barefoot faced almost certain execution for a while overshadowed the reason he was ultimately sentenced to die by lethal injection. At the time of the fatal shooting, Barefoot was wanted in New Mexico for raping a three-year-old girl, and prosecutors contended he shot Levin to avoid arrest.

Twelve hours before Barefoot was scheduled to die, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a stay. Instead of being based on a defense claim of changed testimony by a principal witness in Barefoot's trial, the high court's reason for granting the stay apparently was because of procedural matters, according to Texas legal sources.

Barefoot was slated to become the second Texas death row inmate to be executed since 1964, following the execution of Charles Brooks Jr. Dec. 7 last year.

The Supreme Court ordered a hearing April 26 to determine whether the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals used the "appropriate standard" in its decision to deny Barefoot a stay a few days before he was scheduled to die.

Thus the procedural question was raised by the high court, which, in several past capital punishment cases, ruled state laws requiring such punishment should be equally applied in all cases, whatever that meant.

The standard used by federal appellate courts to decide whether a stay is to be granted is whether the court believes there is a likelihood a petitioner would be successful with further appeals or whether there is a substantial legal question to be resolved on appeal.

Most people do not understand why some stays are granted while others are summarily denied, as in the case of Charles Brooks. Many of those who believe the death penalty is a deterrent to crime and should be retained also believe the sentence should be carried out after a defendant has exhausted his appeals.

The legal cat-and-mouse game often played out in high drama a few hours before a scheduled execution should not be permitted.

It is unlikely any definitive ruling on capital punishment will be made before next July after the Supreme Court hears procedural arguments arising from the Barefoot case and announces its decision.

Meanwhile, lower courts will continue to operate as they have in the past trying to understand what the Supreme Court means by "equally applying" the death penalty.

Debating capital punishment is like arguing religion. No one is ever convinced and no one ever wins the debate.

Exclusionary rule stirs national debate of issue

President Reagan's recent call for adoption of large-scale exceptions to a rule of evidence in criminal trials known as the "exclusionary rule" has again revived national debate on this controversial procedure.

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution protects citizens, including those accused of crime, "against unreasonable searches and seizures." This has led to a judicial interpretation that excludes from criminal trials evidence obtained illegally by police or confessions obtained without reading the accused his or her rights.

Inadmissibility of evidence obtained in a clearly proven unlawful way in any criminal trial is called the "exclusionary rule." It has been debated without resulting in much change for in more recent years, however, demands for changing the rule have come from as high up as the U.S. Supreme Court, which apparently has recognized the need to develop a workable alternative to the rule.

Bothersome questions have been raised in mounting debate over the rule: Does the American legal system go too far in protecting the criminal and the accused? Are rights of a lawful society jeopardized by recent interpretations of the Constitution? Would it serve the ends of justice to permit police officers more latitude in use of certain investigative procedures?

Those who espouse civil liberties say "no." The Reagan administration, large numbers of Americans and the political "right" say "yes."

Later this year, when the Supreme Court re-examines the exclusionary rule, which has guided the conduct of federal criminal trials since 1914 and state court trials since 1961, spokesmen for both sides in the dispute will have an opportunity to speak their minds in a national forum.

The case now before the high court, on which it is expected to rule later this year, Illinois versus Gates, could result in limitations on the exclusionary rule in cases where police have a "reasonable belief" their search is legal.

Should the court limit application of the rule, evidence gathered under "reasonable belief" circumstances would be admissible, even if a court should later find it had been gathered illegally. Up to now, such evidence has been excluded.

Many Americans are convinced, and rightly so, too many criminals are being acquitted because of legal technicalities, and they would like to see all available evidence presented in criminal trials.

Here is one example of why this opinion prevails in America:

A young woman is attacked, robbed and murdered in a large city. Her attacker is apprehended, confesses to the crime and is arraigned for homicide. But he goes free without coming to trial because improper police procedures were used at the time of arrest.

The man's lawyer successfully used the exclusionary rule even before his client went on trial.

The emphasis in criminal trials should be put on the Fourth Amendment, the people's great protector, instead of on the exclusionary rule, which provides protection for criminals, many of whom go out and commit more crime.

Paradise is never complete

THE SLOOP KARAKAL has been a week in the Bahamas. Yesterday she came home, home to Marsh Harbor on Great Abaco. I use the word home advisedly.

For most of the past seven years Marsh Harbor has been her headquarters. The third largest town in the Bahamas, population 3,000 or a bit better, Marsh Harbor is almost the only place in the Abacos where the cruising sailor can find stateside amenities, shops, drug store, a variety of restaurants, most of the things one expects in a town of similar size at home. However, everything is at a price — high.

JUST EIGHT DAYS ago we departed our dock in Ft. Lauderdale at 3:30 a.m. on a chilly morning. An hour later we were off the sea buoy and in company with another Texas sloop and a cutter from Baltimore. The course was set for West End on Great Bahama.

Despite an hour of rain and overcast skies the run was made in just under 12 hours. The sun came out as we came onto the light jade green waters of the Bahama Banks. Our anchors went down just over the bank in a spot not too well protected from the incoming Atlantic swell and as a consequence Karakal did a bit of rolling through the night. We docked the next day, cleared customs and immigration, lowered the yellow pratique flag and hoisted the colorful flag of the Bahamas on the starboard spreader.

Then, before departure we strolled the grounds of the big tourist hotel which has been closed and just reopened. It was filled with a party of Canadians. They filled all the tables around the swimming pool with their paste-white bodies, but no one went near the water. It was a chilly day if not quite cold and the wind was fresh. Texas and the Bahamas have at least one thing in common in my opinion: both would be better were they another 10 to 15 degrees further south.

The next three nights were spent at uninhabited keys, Mangrove, Great Sale and Allan's-Pensacola, then Green Turtle where we anchored off the charming little village of New Plymouth. New Plymouth is a New England fishing village except the waters around it are every shade of blue and green while the mostly clapboard homes are not of depressing browns and grays but instead painted every color of the rainbow. Street are narrow and when the rare motor vehicle passes, strollers are obligated to press against a fence or wall to avoid being run over.

Our walk through the flower-laden village was interrupted by a rather prolonged rest at Miss Emilie's Blue Bee Bar. Miss Emilie is a tall, dignified black woman and her bar is casually tidy, a cruising sailor's hangout if you will. The walls are completely covered with postal and personal cards left by passing sailors. Someone found cards signed by Chuck Orr and Roger Beasley of the Bay Yacht Club, old friends. Had we spent the afternoon exploring the walls we might have identified others.

Rafters are hung with autographed tee-shirts and worn club burgees. Even the ceiling has been autographed. The Blue Bee is a happy place.

Earlier we had made dinner reservations at Wally and Patty Davis' New Plymouth Inn, formal as formality goes in these islands. The inn, more than 130 years old, once served as the "French Exchange" for all imports arriving in the Abacos by sailing ship.

One enters through an iron gate in a wall and finds a large landscaped patio. The dining area consists of a comfortable lounge and tables and an open porch which on that evening had awnings lowered to protect against the cool wind.

Except Marsh Harbor and in the Abaco Islands one doesn't simply choose a restaurant and drop in at leisure. One either stops and makes a reservation before five in the afternoon, or if at sea signals by VHF radio. The innkeeper then recites the menu.

There are usually two or three entrees. On our evening at New Plymouth we chose between cracked conch, Bahamian chicken and veal. The remainder of the menu was a delicious avocado and mango salad, which to me would have been better without the rich dressing.

Those of us who had been in the islands before ordered conch which we good although I should have preferred a less sweet sauce. Otherwise the menu consisted of noodles, stir-fried celery and a cheese cake dessert. Wally or Patty must have a sweet tooth. In any event it was a delightful dinner which was served promptly at 7:30 p.m. after the cocktail hour where talk was of ships and the sea.

I spent a good portion of the hour talking with Wally who was tending bar. Interesting conversation.

Wally is a native of Chicago and a graduate of the University of Minnesota where he was on the swimming team. In 1968 he went to Mexico for the Olympics. Fascinated by the city he found a job teaching at the American School, the best in the country and attended by children of the U.S. and other diplomatic corps parents, as well as those of other foreigners.

Some years later he found himself in the contracting business in Florida, and then 10 years ago he took over and established the New Plymouth Inn. School being rather primitive in the islands the Davis' 12-year-old daughter is enrolled in the famous Calvert School system. "Sometimes we get a bit weary out here," Wally said, "so we close up everything in August and September and travel in the States. No, I haven't found anything to attract me at home that's better than this."

The islands are a paradise, but paradise is never complete.

Governor needs help with education goals

As other governors before him have done, Mark White challenged Texans in his inaugural to "build the best system of education the mind of man can devise — from first grade through graduate school — and make the system responsible for the needs of every boy and girl in Texas."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby joined White's call for excellence in education, declaring, "It is mandatory we have a first-class system of public education despite pressures of bilingual and bicultural problems."

Now that we have been challenged, the time for action has arrived. There have been and still are deep concerns about Texas' public education system.

How well is it carrying out its responsibilities? What are its long-range goals? What about the general quality of education? Is it keeping pace with demands of the technological age?

We agree with Gov. White and Lt. Gov. Hobby about the vital importance of education. We hope the leadership during their stewardship of state government will become part of a foundation for a stronger, more relevant educational system in the future.

No single factor is going to furnish the impetus public education needs to regain the forefront in Texas. There must be a combination of factors energized by leaders in the field of education who know what direction it must take to produce the results Gov. White and Lt. Gov. Hobby called for.

Upgrading public education must begin at lower levels and continue through colleges and universities. Higher institutions of learning cannot fully discharge their responsibilities unless adequate preparations have been made on lower levels. There has been much talk in Texas over the years about upgrading higher education, but not enough attention has been paid to upgrading lower education where important functions of learning begin.

Adding new programs and modernizing curricula in other ways won't solve the problems of public education. Raising the pay of teachers while ignoring deficiencies in their training is not even a partial answer.

We need a complete and thorough reassessment of goals of public education after determining whether we have the ability to carry them out. Nothing can be accomplished by pouring good money after bad in trying to make our educational system relevant to the times technology has created.

Admittedly, education will be more expensive in the future, so we need to make certain the money we spend produces desired results.

The test of the new state administration's success in implementing its pledge to make education the number one priority will depend upon how aggressively the legislature and state bureaucracy respond to the leadership and its programs.

On this day:

President Ronald Reagan was born Feb. 6, 1911.

Charles A. Lindbergh was born Feb. 4, 1902.

How did backward countries con the banks into those loans?

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr farm has a few financial questions this week, but no answers.

Dear editor:

According to news stories in the papers recently, the OPEC countries can't stick together on the price of their oil. They meet to set production quotas and a price, then go home and open the valves and cut the price in order to stay in business. Instead of $34 a barrel, they'll take $32 or $30 or whatever they can get. Acting just like farmers.

This, some financial experts say, is going to wreck the oil business and maybe bring financial ruin on the economies of the world. If the price goes below $28 a barrel, look out.

As I understand this, if the price of oil keeps dropping, then the price of gasoline will fall, and we'll all face financial ruin. Makes a man shudder to pull into a filling station.

I've read that it costs 25 cents a barrel to pump OPEC oil out of the ground. It didn't cost anything to put it there.

I have been trying my best to work up some sympathy for an outfit that has that sort of a mark-up, but I just can't seem to swing it.

Another thing I'd like more information on is the plight of big American banks who have loaned billions of dollars to the undeveloped or backward countries and now can't get it back.

In fact, it's argued that if the banks foreclosed, the world money market would collapse.

I don't know anything about that, but what I'd like to know is how did those backward countries con the banks into lending them the money in the first place? That's the kind of backwardness I'd like to learn more about. It'd sure be some handy information to have. I know lots of farmers I could sell it to, and maybe some car makers.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

The good old days may be coming back

By SCOTT BURNS

Remember the good old days of gas station giveaways? Well, they may be coming back — but on a colossal scale.

Here's why:

As everyone knows, our friends in OPEC are having trouble dealing with the withdrawal of Western Civilization from the oil habit. The same nations that were flooding banks with short-term deposits two years ago are becoming net borrowers as the United States, Japan and Europe reduce oil consumption (and OPEC cash flow) under the pressure of recession and conservation.

The solution, which I offer free to the OPEC oil ministers, is to take a marketing hint from the gas stations of the '50s and '60s that offered to give away free glasses and silverware with each tank of gas.

But the OPEC nations should do it on a bigger scale, say a free supertanker with every 100-million-barrel order, registered to the nation of your choice.

If this strikes you as a trifle manic, we've got good reason.

In 1982, for the first time since the OPEC price hike in 1973, the value of Western Civilization and Corporate America rose against the barrel standard.

What's the barrel standard?

Simply this: While the world was once on a dollar standard, the upheavals, debt expansion and inflation of the past decade have made many wonder if there should be another standard of value. Three years ago I offered the "barrel standard," expressing the price of common stocks in terms of how many barrels of crude oil you needed to buy the shares. Needless to say, with oil prices rising from $1.80 a barrel in 1970 to $40 a barrel in 1980, the message from the barrel standard was that the deflation and depression everyone feared had already arrived — expressed in barrels, the value of everything, including stocks, had plummeted 95 percent.

The good news is that we hit bottom two years ago. With stock prices up and oil prices down, it takes a lot more barrels to buy Corporate America. (See table.)

As you can see, companies that deal in energy have not been beneficiaries of OPEC. The price of American Electric Power shares fell more than 95 percent when measured in barrels and the price of Exxon fell just over 96 percent. While the value of Western technology and production is still low when measured in barrels, it's significant that two very different companies which play a major role in reducing the consumption of all resources — AT&T and IBM — have fared relatively well, retaining 10 percent of their 1970 barrel-standard value and rising in dollar value.

Indeed, the most valuable company in America, IBM, gained some $23.4 billion in market value last year. That's the equivalent of about 800 million barrels of oil.

Billions more were added by companies that may not even have existed in 1970 — Apple in computers, MCI in communications, Intel in computer chips, Tandon in disc drives, Haemonetics in medical equipment, etc., etc.

The message here, now being proved in markets around the world, is that the ultimate inflation hedge is ideas that create value, not oil, not gold, not anything.

Why?

There are substitutes for everything. There are no substitutes for ideas, except better ideas.

$1.5 million in new construction

More than $1.5 million in new construction was started in Rockport this past week, including the first construction in the new Rockport Country Club Estates.

A building permit was issued Monday, Jan. 31, for construction of a five-room, three and one-half-bath wood frame residence to be constructed in the new country club development. The residence will have 2,109 square feet of floor space and has an estimated value of $100,000.

Also in Rockport Country Club Estates, the permit was issued for the first condominiums to be built in the Condominiums of Rockport Country Club Estates, a project being developed by Baker-Haldeman Development Co. The permit, issued Jan. 31, was for construction of the first building, five condominiums, with estimated value of $282,264.

Earlier, on Friday, Jan. 28, a permit was issued to Rockport Oaks Partnership of Corpus Christi for construction of a $1 million apartment project on South Church Street. The project will contain some 38,000 square feet of floor space in 178 units.

Another residential permit was issued Wednesday, Feb. 2, for construction of a five-room, four-bath residence in Harbor Oaks Unit 7. Value of the 2,192-square-foot structure is estimated at $104,890.

Also issued this past week was a permit to Southwest Neon Signs of San Antonio for installation of wall signs on the new H.E.B. building being constructed on Hwy. 35 at Austin. Estimated value of the signs is $15,000.

Jim Sage speaker at the Rockport Rotary

Local telephone companies are at the very center of where the action is today and where it will be for a whole of tomorrows to come, says Jim Sage, Southwestern Bell science demonstrator.

"There's a whole universe waiting," he says. Telephone switching systems as the gateway to the information age highlight this year's Southwestern Bell science demonstration which is called "Blue Sky of Communications." It was presented to the Rockport Rotary at noon Wednesday.

day, Feb. 2, at the Sandollar.

"We are going to give you easy access to all kinds of information and data processing. When and where you want it, in your home, at your desk, in your car or even in your briefcase if you want it."

The presentation began with a demonstration of the Bell solar battery. By applying light, Sage activates the battery and causes the music to play. When he blocks out the light, the music stops. The solar battery has paved the way for other intriguing uses of the sun, he explains — including solar powered cars, telephone lines, homes and satellites.

In his 25-minute program, Sage discussed a variety of recent innovations he says will mark the beginning of tomorrow's communications.

"Southwestern Bell intends to offer the most reliable, most efficient, most economical means to connect information suppliers with information seekers," he said. "There are broad new avenues opening to our future."

Recognition Day scheduled

Rockport-Fulton area residents are invited by the Rockport Area Board of Realtors to take part in its Realtor Citizenship Award Competition to be held until March 31.

"The competition is aimed at highlighting the contributions business people make to the betterment of their community through public service," said Meceal Casterline, president of the Rockport Area Board of Realtors. The competition is being held as part of the National Association of Realtors 75th anniversary celebration in 1983.

Nominations of Realtors who have served the community should be contained in a statement of 100 words or less. Mail entries to: Citizenship Competition, Rockport Board of Realtors, P.O. Box 636, Rockport, Texas 78382.

The winner will be selected by a distinguished and impartial panel of judges from the Rockport area.

The Rockport area winner will receive a certificate of recognition from the National Association and automatically be entered in a statewide competition. The state winner will receive a special prize and become eligible for the national competition.

The national Citizenship Award will be presented in November at the National Association's convention in Las Vegas. The winner will receive an all expenses paid trip for two to Diamond Head in Honolulu, Hawaii, timed to coincide with the 1984 Realtor Convention in Honolulu.

Judging for the Rockport area winner will be based on several considerations, including a nominee's involvement with community service organizations; volunteer efforts in a political campaign; or public service.

Railroad commissioners set oil rate at 100 percent

The Railroad Commission set the Texas oil production rate for February 1983 at the market demand factor of 100 percent for the 72nd month in a row and the 128th time since the Commission first went to the ceiling level in April 1972.

Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioners Buddy Temple and Jim Nugent directed the continuance of the maximum statewide allowable after receiving and reviewing purchaser nominations for Texas oil in February totaling 2,463,653 barrels per day, a decrease of 2,124 barrels daily when compared with January 1982 buyer requests. February 1982 nominations totaled 2,446,320 barrels daily.

Next month's permissible rate of output is calculated to average 2,860,545 b/d with actual production estimated at 2,345 million b/d. The maximum allowable applies to all but 10 fields in Texas that are assigned lower legal rates of flow for conservation purposes. Actual production in February 1982 was 2,407,122 barrels daily.

Wallace reported that February 1983 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 21,932,575 Mcf/d (thousand cubic feet per day). Gas nominations for January amounted to 22,434,324 Mcf/d. February 1982 gas nominations totaled 25,029,205 Mcf/d.

Unemployment income may be taxable says IRS

Taxpayers receiving unemployment compensation in 1982 may be required to include some or all of the money they received as income when filing their federal tax return, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Generally, unemployment compensation payments are taxable, in whole or in part, if the total adjusted gross income, including unemployment compensation, exceeds $12,000 for single taxpayers or $18,000 for married taxpayers filing a joint return. Married taxpayers filing separate returns must report all unemployment compensation regardless of their adjusted gross income levels.

Unemployment benefits totalling $10 or more during the calendar year are reported to the IRS by the agency making the payments. The agency should furnish a record of payments made to the taxpayer on Form 1099-UC by the end of January 1983.

Detailed information regarding the computation of the tax on unemployment compensation is contained in IRS Publication 905, Tax Information on Unemployment Compensation, which is available free by using the order blank in the tax package.

Employees should have received W2's by now

Employers must provide each employee with a complete Wage and Tax Statement, Form W-2, for 1982 by Feb. 1, the Internal Revenue Service says. For additional information on the proper distribution and handling of Wage and Tax Statements, employers may get a free copy of IRS Publication 15, "Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide," from the IRS.

Tax evasion not advisable

Like to stop paying taxes?

That's a very tempting idea, and proponents of this notion are making speeches and offering seminars around the country on the "how-to's" of tax evasion. The Internal Revenue Service, however, has some words of advice on the subject, too.

Working toward tax reform certainly is not illegal, the IRS points out. For example, urging changes in the tax laws is the right of every individual, as is arranging one's affairs to pay the lowest possible tax within the law. Also, if you hold securities so as to have a long-term instead of a short-term capital gain, the law supports your move.

However, illegal tax protest, such as advocating or participating in a scheme that results in the unlawful underpayment or nonpayment of taxes, or not filing required tax returns, is illegal, the IRS states.

The IRS has the duty and tools, given by Congress, to enforce the Federal tax laws. When some individuals remove themselves from the law, the burden of taxes is greater for those who willingly comply.

In the interest of fairness for all taxpayers, the IRS says it will continue to enforce all Federal tax laws, including laws governing those who place themselves above the law by illegally refusing to pay their just share of tax.

IRS to hold 1040 EZ class

The Internal Revenue Service has scheduled evening classes in filling out tax forms at the Moose Lodge, 8001 S. Padre Land Drive.

Feb. 9 and March 29 classes cover the 1040A and new 1040EZ forms. Classes Feb. 10 and March 31 cover Form 1040 and Schedules A and B.

The classes are free, open to the public and run from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

R-F broadside Trojans

Outlasting a bombardment by Beeville's outside shooters, the Rockport, Fulton Pirates fired a few cannon rounds of their own and beat Beeville 68-60 before the home crowd in Rockport Tuesday night.

John Longino asserted himself Tuesday like he hasn't done since the Refugio game of the Rockport Toast of the Coast Tournament, and the results were staggering. Not only did Longino hit for 19 points to lead the Pirates in scoring, but he went strong to the backboards and pulled in 19 rebounds.

Early in the contest the Pirates rolled up a big lead of 10-2 before Beeville made any comeback at all. That eight-point spread was kept by the Pirates as they ended the first quarter up by 18-10.

In the second period the Trojans began getting some shots to fall, and the Pirates, who were ahead by as many as 12 points in the quarter, let the Trojans back in the contest because no one could get back to stop the Trojan fast break. By the half the Trojans had cut the lead to 28-24.

Aaron Commander hit three shots in the third period early to help the Pirates build another lead, this time to 16 points at 44-28, and the quarter ended with Rockport ahead at 48-34.

Rockport shot well in the final quarter and it turned out to be a good thing because Beeville's sophomore sensation Robert Barefield hit an incredible 20 points in the final eight minutes to get Beeville close.

When the game ended,

R-F freshmen put clamp on Beeville

Rockport - Fulton's Freshmen Pirates made up for an earlier loss to Beeville by pulling out a 46-43 win over Beeville in Rockport Tuesday night.

The Pirates played an almost perfect floor game as they reduced their turnovers to below 15 and then went strong to the boards.

The Pirates slowly built a lead in the first half, leading 14-10 after a quarter, and then added two points to lead by six at the half, 26-20.

The third quarter was a different story because the Trojans took advantage of the Pirates' poor shooting and took a 35-31 lead.

Barefield led all scorers with 28 points. Behind Longino for the Pirates were Tim Redden with 17 and Commander with 10 points. Jay Roberts had perhaps his best floor game of the season with nine rebounds, six points, and four assists. Jay Turner grabbed 11 rebounds to go with his six points and four assists.

Just when things seemed darkest, the Pirates fought back and outscored Beeville 15-8 to take the win.

Jesse Avila hit some big shots on his way to leading the Pirates with 18 points. Jerry Longino turned in a good game with 10 points and 11 rebounds. Brent Boone played well although he wasn't too healthy for the contest. He scored six points and grabbed eight rebounds in the brief periods he did play.

Matlock given honors

AUSTIN — Gary Matlock, assistant chief of coastal fisheries for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, has been named "Professional Conservationist of the Year" by the Texas Outdoor Writers Association.

The writers cited Matlock for his efforts in obtaining passage of legislation increasing protection of redfish and spotted seatrout, and for his presentation of data supporting the legislation when it was challenged in court.

Honored as "Citizen Conservationist of the Year" was Walter Fondren III of Houston, who played a leadership role through the Gulf Coast Conservation Association in securing passage of redfish and trout legislation. It was also through Fondren's efforts that funds were raised for the state's new John Wilson Redfish Hatchery at Corpus Christi.

Ladies outgun Beeville

Rockport - Fulton's Lady Pirates jumped all over Beeville Tuesday night in Beeville as Rockport won 45-35 in a game where the score was very misleading.

The Pirates were able to experiment during the game by letting everybody play different positions. To start the game, the Pirates took a 14-6 lead after a quarter, and then they started to experiment. Even at that, the Ladies held on to a 23-17 lead at the half.

As the second half passed, the Lady Pirates continued their easy pace and eventually won the game 45-35.

Three Lady Pirates hit double figures with Missy Mayes leading the way with 12 points, and both Diana Herman and Mona Cowen hit for 10 points each.

Tips on how to get record catch recorded

AUSTIN — Optimistic anglers who believe they just might catch a state record fish in 1983 may not be familiar with the procedure for getting a new record certified.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials said some minor changes in the certification process have been made by its Fish Records Committee, mainly to help identify species.

If you catch a fish you consider a potential state record, the first step is to keep it alive or place it on ice or in a refrigerator to prevent weight loss.

From there, several steps can be taken to obtain certification. If there is a Parks and Wildlife Department fishery biologist in your area, notify him for species identification and an application form. You may call toll-free 1-800-792-1112 if you have difficulty finding a biologist.

If a biologist does not examine the fish, a good photograph (preferably color) will be required along with the completed application form. The forms are available by calling the toll-free number or writing department headquarters, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744.

When photographing the fish, try to visibly spread the fins for better identification. In the case of sharks, it might be advisable to save a small patch of skin if any identification problem occurs.

The fish must be weighed on scales certified for trade by the Department of Agriculture. The only change on the fish records application sheet is a reduction in the requirement for having the signatures of two disinterested witnesses to the weighing. Now only one witness is required, officials said.

JV Pirates

claim win

To win a game is great, but to beat an undefeated team is even better. That distinction went to the Rockport-Fulton JV Tuesday night as they beat the previously undefeated Beeville JV 53-49.

When the two teams met earlier in the season, the Trojans ran the Pirates into the floor in Beeville. This time Coach Jim Hatfield had his players slow things down in the first half to keep the Trojans from establishing a rhythm, and it paid off.

The two teams played very even in the first half as the Pirates had a lead after the first quarter, and then the Trojans came back to lead 26-25 at the half. In the second half the Pirates were able to keep up with Beeville and put in 28 points while the Trojans hit for only 23. Pirate postman Randy Foote led the Pirates' second-half assault with nine of his 15 points.

Late in the game, Frank Canchola came off the bench and sunk a very important free throw to move the Pirates to two baskets ahead with 12 seconds to go in the game.

Also hitting for double figures in the game were Ross Huff with 12 and Steve Odom with 10.

Girls JV loses to

Beeville, 45-19

Beeville is building for the future and they let that be known Tuesday night when they beat Rockport-Fulton's Lady Pirate JV, 45-19.

The game was nearly scoreless in the first quarter, but Beeville managed to take a 4-2 lead.

In the second quarter Beeville started to build a lead as they outscored

Rockport 15-8 and took a lead of 19-10. In the last half the Lady Trojans put 26 points in the basket while the Lady Pirates scored only nine points.

Regena Gatlin was the top scorer with six points, and Johnie Jordan and Juanita Williams each got four points.

Mini Marathon slated in C.C.

CORPUS CHRISTI — Maverick Markets is sponsoring a Mini Marathon to raise funds for the American Heart Association. A two mile and a 10 K run/walk will be held Sunday morning, Feb. 13 in Corpus Christi in front of the South Texas Art Museum on Shoreline Blvd.

The races begin at 10 a.m. Registration begins at 8 a.m. the day of the race, or participants can preregister

Thursday, Friday or Saturday (Feb. 10-12) before the race at either the YMCA at 417 S. Broadway or the Maverick Market at 4139 South Alameda.

Runners are requested to donate $7 to the American Heart Association or gather at least $7 worth of pledges from supporters. Pledge cards can be picked up at any Maverick Market.

Keep sharp eye to avoid swamping

Bay fishermen who anchor their boats in shallow water near the Intracoastal Waterway or ship channels should be careful to avoid swamping by ships and barges. Bill Mercer, a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist here, said there is special danger when a boat is tied or anchored near bulkheads or oil structures. "Large vessels displace a large amount of water and cause severe turbulence as they pass," Baker said. "This can pick a small boat up and push it toward a shore or slam it against a bulkhead." He recommended keeping a sharp lookout for passing boats, and if necessary untie the boat and get under way before the vessel passes. Head the boat at low speed into the wake to avoid problems, he said.

Black drum steaks are overlooked

Black drum steaks may not sound too appetizing to the seafood gourmet, but a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist here believes they are an overlooked treat. Jerry Mambretti said the steaks are not carved out of the fish's side, but rather are from the sonoric muscle inside the body cavity.

Rockport rockhounds want to start club

By PAT BLAIR

If you've been to Aransas County Public Library recently, you've probably noticed the display case filled with jewelry and ornaments made of semi-precious stone. You may have noticed the small card taped on top of the case, the one that urges anyone interested in rockhounding to contact J.E. (Woody) or Colleen Wood.

"We want to organize a club here," says Colleen. "We thought that might get some attention."

The Woods, residents of Rockport, have been rockhounds for about 21 years now, they say, ever since they visited the Seattle Worlds Fair back in 1962.

"From the Fair," says Woody, "we went on up into Canada — Victoria — and coming back, we traveled through the rain forest and along the coast. We'd stop in these 'tourist traps' and we'd see these polished stones."

Intrigued, they began gathering pebbles along the beach, ranging in size from very small to about egg-sized. "We didn't know agate from sandstone," says Woody, but they gathered up about 25 to 30 pounds of pebbles and in July, 1962, bought themselves a tumbler.

"We didn't know much," Colleen says, "but we knew you had to have a tumbler to polish the stones."

They put a batch of stones in the tumbler and left them for about a month, says Woody, "then we took 'em out and put in another batch for a month. By this time," he added, "the sandstone was all gone. What we did was we took two batches of stones and turned them into one and wound up with some nice tumbled stone!" — not exactly their goal.

But rather than giving up, Woody and Colleen were more determined to succeed at this new hobby. They were living in South Gate, Calif., at the time (Woody was in the commercial air conditioning and refrigeration business) and a friend there told them, Colleen recalls, that the only way to learn the craft was by joining a club.

"We're still members of that club," Colleen added.

The Woods have been married 27 years; there are no children: "Our only relatives are two sisters in our families," says Colleen. Colleen is a native of Tulsa, Okla., and was raised in that state. Woody "was born in Illinois, raised in Ranger (Texas) and been all over," he says. While Woody was working in the air conditioning and refrigeration business, Colleen was a legal secretary for a while for a finance company in Los Angeles. Summing up her experience, she said, "I hated it."

As for Woody's work, he says, "it was interesting until it got monotonous." He added he traveled around 18-20,000 miles a year in the Los Angeles area. Five years ago he retired, and he and Colleen hit the road, traveling. Colleen read a short article about Rockport in a tour guide published by the Triple A Auto Club for the Southern California area so they decided to try South Texas.

Their first destination, Woody says, was actually the Valley. "We always heard how wonderful the Valley was. Well, the first winter we were there, in December, the temperature went down to 18 degrees — so we went looking for another place."

Once they discovered Rockport, they spent three years coming here as Winter Texans, and Colleen turned those experiences into a series of articles for Gems & Minerals magazine (to which she is a frequent contributor with Woody taking the photographs) on "How to Become a Rockhound/Snowbird."

Finally in April, 1981, the Woods decided they were ready to make Rockport their permanent home — and have been here since.

"We haven't done much since we've been here," Colleen says. "We don't seem to have much time, especially since we bought our home." Before they became homeowners, she says, they did put in some time fishing, "but since we bought, this place has kept us busy."

She does want to learn more about plants — "We've had a garden both springs that we've been here, but I want to learn more, especially about which plants will grow in this soil." Colleen would also like to get into some painting classes and is trying to learn to cook local foods. (She can laugh — now — about the first time she tried to prepare crabs . . .)

Recently, too, they've acquired a dog — a black, possibly part-whippet named "Lucky" — who replaced the German Shepherd they'd had for years. And a part of their time goes into Lucky's training

But rockhounding remains their big love. "It's fascinating," they both agree. They have a setup in their storage room with all the equipment for cutting, polishing and mounting the semi-precious stones they work with. There's a coffee table in their living room that Woody made using thinly-sliced slabs of rocks ranging from Oregon obsidian to Brazilian agate, tiger eye from Africa and Llanolite that is found "in only one place in the world," says Colleen: Llano, here in Texas, where pieces can be picked out of a roadcut.

They exhibited in shows throughout California: the 28th annual Gem Show of the Hollywood Lapidary and Mineral Society in 1974 and the Society's 30th annual show in 1976, the 1975 Santa Monica Gem & Mineral Show, the San Fernando Valley Gem Fair in 1976 . . .

They haven't exhibited in any of the shows in Corpus Christi — the nearest place where shows are held — because they don't want to join the Corpus Christi club for rockhounds. "It's too far to drive," says Colleen. "We're not just joiners, we like to be active in a club."

That's why they want to start a club here, to provide a close-at-home outlet for enjoying their hobby with others who also enjoy it.

It doesn't take much financial outlay to become a rockhound, they emphasize: "A large part of it is collecting," says Woody, adding that Aransas County itself isn't a good collecting site but there are good sites within reasonable distance.

One of the reasons they set up the exhibits in the Aransas County Public Library (the jewelry display is the third one they've had) was to try to attract people interested in forming a club, Colleen adds.

So far, she said, "we haven't had a nibble."

But they're still waiting.

Proposed charter Article VII gives city power to borrow

Editor's note: On April 2, Rockport voters will go to the polls to cast ballots for or against a proposed city charter for Rockport. The Pilot is publishing each of the 12 articles of the document. The first six sections of Article VII were published last week; the article continues in today's issue. Sec. 7.07 LAPSE OF APPROPRIATIONS

(1) Every appropriation, except an appropriation for a capital expenditure, shall lapse at the close of the fiscal year to the extent that it has not been expended or encumbered. An appropriation for a capital expenditure shall continue in force until the purpose for which it was made has been accomplished or abandoned; the purpose of any such appropriation shall be deemed abandoned if three years pass without any disbursement from or encumbrance of the appropriation. Any funds not expended, disbursed or encumbered shall be deemed excess funds.

Sec. 7.08 BORROWING

(1) The city shall have the right and power, except as prohibited by law or this Charter, to borrow money, by whatever method it may deem to be in public interest.

(2) The City shall have the power to borrow money on credit of the City and to issue general obligation bonds for permanent public improvements or for any other public purpose not prohibited by law and this Charter, and to issue refunding bonds to refund outstanding bonds previously issued. All such bonds or certificates of obligation shall be issued in conformity with the laws of the State of Texas and shall be used only for purposes for which they were issued. Any bonds to be issued under the provisions of this section shall not be issued without an election. The City Council shall prescribe the procedure for calling and holding such elections, shall define the voting precincts and shall provide for the return and canvass of the ballots cast at such elections. If, at such elections, a majority of the vote shall be in favor of creating such a debt or refunding outstanding valid bonds of the City, it shall be lawful for the City Council to issue bonds as proposed in the ordinance submitting same, but if a majority of the vote polled shall be against the creation of such debt or refunding such bonds, the City Council shall be without authority to issue the bonds. In all cases when the City Council shall order an election for the issuance of bonds of the City, it shall, at the same time, submit the question of whether or not a tax shall be levied upon the property of the City for the purpose of paying the interest of the bonds and to create a sinking fund for their redemption.

(3) The City shall have the power to borrow money for the purpose of constructing, purchasing, improving, extending or repairing of public utilities, recreational facilities or any other self liquidating municipal not prohibited by the Constitution and laws of the State of Texas, and to issue revenue bonds to evidence the obligation created thereby. Such bonds shall be a charge upon and payable from the properties, or interest therein pledged, or the income therein from, or both. The holders of the revenue bonds shall never have the right to demand payment thereof out of monies raised or to be raised by taxation. All such bonds shall be issued in conformity with the laws of the State of Texas and shall be used only for the purpose for which they were issued.

(4) In any budget year, the City Council may, by resolution, authorize the borrowing of money in anticipation of the collection of the ad valorem tax for the same year, whether levies or to be levied. Notes may be issued for periods not exceeding one year and must be retired by the end of the budget year in which issued.

Sec. 7.09 PURCHASING

(1) The City Council may, by ordinance, confer upon the City Manager general authority to contract for expenditure without further approval of the City Council for all budgeted items not exceeding limits set by the City Council. All contracts for expenditures involving more than the set limits must be expressly approved in advance by the City Council. All contracts or purchases involving more than the limits set by the City Council shall be let to the lowest bidder whose submittal is among those most responsive to the needs of the City after there has been opportunity for competitive bidding as provided by law or ordinance. The City Council, or City Manager in such cases as he is authorized to contract for the City, shall have the right to reject any and all bids.

(2) Emergency contracts as authorized by law and this Charter may be negotiated by the City Council, or City Manager if given authority by the City Council, without competitive bidding. Such emergency shall be declared by the City Manager and approved by the City Council or may be declared by the City Council.

Sec. 7.10 ADMINISTRATION OF BUDGET

(1) No payment shall be made or obligation incurred against any allotment or appropriation except in accordance with appropriations duly made unless the City Manager or his designee first certifies that there is a sufficient unencumbered balance in such allotment or appropriation and that sufficient funds therefrom are or will be available to cover the claim or meet the obligation when it becomes due and payable. Any authorization of payment or incurring of obligation in violation of the provisions of this Charter shall be void and any payment so made illegal. Such action shall be cause for removal of any officer who knowingly authorized or made such payment or incurred such obligation, and he shall also be liable to the City for any amount so paid. However, this prohibition shall not be construed to prevent the making or authorizing of payments or making of contracts for capital improvements to be financed wholly or partly by the issuance of bonds, time warrants, certificates of indebtedness, or certificates of obligation, or to prevent the making of any contract or lease providing the payments beyond the end of the fiscal year, providing that such action is made or approved by ordinance.

Sec. 7.11 DEPOSITORY

(1) All monies received by any person, department or agency of the City for or in connection with the affairs of the City shall be deposited promptly in the City depository or depositories, which shall be designated by the City Council in accordance with such regulations and subject to such requirements as to security for deposits and interest thereon as may be established by ordinance and law. Procedures for withdrawal of money or the disbursement of funds from the City depositories shall be prescribed by ordinance.

Sec. 7.12 FINANCIAL REPORT

(1) The City Manager shall submit to the City Council at its first formal meeting each month the financial condition of the City by budget item, budget estimate versus accruals for the preceding month and for the fiscal year to date. The financial records of the City will be maintained on an accrual basis to support this type of financial management.

Sec. 7.13 INDEPENDENT AUDIT

(1) At the close of each fiscal year, and at such other times as it may be deemed necessary, the City Council shall cause an independent audit to be made of all accounts of the City by a certified public accountant. The certified public accountant so selected shall have no personal interest, directly or indirectly, in the financial affairs of the City or any of its officers. Upon completion of the audit, the summary thereof shall be published in the official newspaper of the City and copies of the audit placed on file in the City Secretary's office as public record.

TPBA to televise weekly wrap-up program of state legislative action

The Texas Public Broadcasting Association, comprised of nine public television stations and eight public radio stations statewide, has announced it is carrying a weekly half-hour wrap-up program on actions of the Texas Legislature this year on television.

"Many states already have programs on their respective legislative bodies. We believe it is time for Texans to have an opportunity to take a look at their own legislative process," said Bill Giorda, president of TPBA.

The program features three Austin-based political journalists who will discuss the issues and events of that week's session.

Members of the panel are Dave McNeely, political editor of The Austin American-Statesman and former moderator of a political talk show at KERA-TV in Dallas; Sam Kinch Jr., Austin bureau of the Dallas News; and Rog Mulder, owner of Mulder News Service, a daily radio news program originating at the Capitol.

Charles Vaughn, producer of the show which is called The Texas Report, said plans are for the program to cover some committee hearings, floor debate and later in the legislative session there will be special guests such as Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis, along with other legislative leaders.

"We plan to cover whatever news is topical and what has caused the headlines for that particular week of legislative action," Vaughn explained.

The TPBA, Giorda explained, is non-profit and tax-exempt and can accept corporate donations for its programming.

"Frankly," Giorda said, "we hope that Texans interested in their government will want to help underwrite the cost of this program. Donations can be sent to TPBA's Executive Director Jerry Hall, 1814 American Bank Tower, Austin, Texas 78701.

The Texas Report originates from Austin Friday nights and can be seen on nine Texas public television stations. Viewers in public broadcast areas should check their local listings for times.

Visitors can view skeletal remains

AUSTIN — Visitors to the Capitol in mid-February can view the ancient skeletal remains recently discovered north of Austin.

The find by State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (DHT) archeologists will be displayed Feb. 12 through Feb. 18 in the rotunda.

The Archeology Section, part of DHT's Highway Design Division, is arranging the show in response to hundreds of citizen inquiries and requests to Cities with public television stations include Houston, San Antonio, view the bones. Many student groups viewing the exhibit will combine a tour of the Capitol while the Legislature is in session.

Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Lubbock, Killeen, El Paso and Bryan-College Station.

Dr. Frank Weir, head of the Archeology Section, said the display would be made up of the skull portion of the remains, projectile points and other artifacts found at the site. A photo display will accompany the materials. A display of the entire skeleton is not possible because of the fragility of some of the bones.

Failure to yield causes two accidents

Tickets were issued for failure to yield right-of-way in two accidents in Rockport this past week.

No injuries were reported in either mishap.

Gina Renee Stephens of Rockport was ticketed for failure to yield after her car was in collision with a vehicle driven by Charles Thomas Williams of Des Moines early Saturday afternoon at the intersection of Glass Avenue and Raht (Hwy. 35 North).

The incident occurred about 1:30 p.m. as Stephens was attempting a left turn from Raht onto Glass, into the path of Williams' car.

In an accident shortly after 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28, Inocencio Salazar Cruz of Rockport was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way after his pickup was in collision with a car driven by Antonio Zapata Cruz of Aransas Pass at the intersection of James and Bronte.

Sharp co-authors DWI legislation

AUSTIN — State Senator John Sharp (D-Victoria) said that he is joining efforts with Senator Bill Sarpalius (D-Amarillo) to pass much needed changes in Texas' DWI laws. "After visiting with Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD) and several other interested groups, I felt it would be a lot less confusing for the people of Texas if Sen. Sarpalius and I consolidated our efforts to achieve our mutual goal, instead of sponsoring separate pieces and muddying the issue. We have therefore agreed to draw up a substitute bill conforming Sarpalius' SB 1 to my SB 88 and offering one comprehensive proposal — SB 1," Sharp said.

Sharp indicated that his first action following his election was to introduce SB 88 to help end the sham of deferred adjudication for offenders convicted of DWI. The 18th district Senator said his bill was the culmination of his work with Department of Public Safety Director Colonel James Adams in the Governor's Task Force on Traffic Safety which made recommendations to the legislature regarding DWI laws. Sharp was one of only three legislators who were asked to serve on this task force.

"We have individuals in Texas with four or five convictions who, under our present judicial system, have had those convictions removed from their record," Sharp said, "SB 88 and subsequently SB 1 will abolish this practice so that these habitual offenders could be identified and removed from our streets and highways."

Sharp noted that Governor Mark White also supports the major thrust of SB 1. In his first speech to the legislature, White indicated his support for efforts to eliminate deferred adjudication for repeat DWI offenders. "I am extremely pleased that

Gov. White has recognized the need to do something about drunk driving and his remarks to House and Senate members will certainly aid our efforts to pass SB 1," Sharp said.

"Of all the emotional issues legislators will face this session, the message they receive about cracking down on the habitual drunk driver will be crystal clear: Texans are fed up with our present system of dealing with DWI offenses," Sharp said, "I think SB 1 as amended addresses many of the problems and concerns the people of this state have raised concerning this national tragedy."

Photography exhibit opens at Nave

At Mono Lake a unique collection of images by 41 American photographers, will be on view at the Nave Museum from Feb. 3 to March 16.

The exhibition features the work of historic and contemporary photographers whose images make clear the role an artist can play in understanding and preserving a wilderness area. Included are such photographers as Timothy O'Sullivan, Edward Curtis, Ansel Adams, Edward Weston, Brett Weston, Edmund Teske and Todd Walker. Together, their images create a collective picture of Mono Lake as it has appeared since the mid 19th century. The common subject matter affords comparison of style among some of America's most important photographers.

Over the years, photographers have been attracted to the lake by its unusual scenery and brilliant effects of light. Mono Lake is a fascinating geological and ecological phenomenon. Located a mile above sea level in a mountain enclosed valley east of California's Yosemite Park, it is the largest natural lake in the state. Fed by creeks and lake bottom springs, the lake has no outlet. Salts and alkalis left by evaporation resulted in a lake three times saltier than the sea, a lake in which fish cannot survive. Calcium carbonate deposits from the springs produced huge coral-like towers called tufa.

Since early in this century, water has been diverted from the lake to meet the needs of Los Angeles. The dropping shoreline has revealed previously submerged tufa formations, created visible salt pollution in the air, and driven away bird populations once numerous in the area.

Nevertheless, Stephen Johnson, a photographer and Curator of the exhibition says, "This exhibition is not a discussion of water rights or any other of the legal questions involved in the continuing destruction of Mono Lake. It is a visual statement about a splendid ancient place by some of those who loved it deeply."

The exhibition was sponsored by Friends of the Earth Foundation, Sierra Club Foundation, the National Audubon Society and the Mono Lake Committee. The photographs have traveled to museums across the nation under the auspices of the Art Museum Association, organizers of the traveling exhibition.

The Nave Museum is located at the corner of Moody and Commercial Streets in Victoria. Galleries are open to the public free of charge Tuesday through Sunday 1-5 p.m. For more information, contact the museum at 575-8227.

Friendship the theme of Valentine's Dance

Door prizes, food, drink and dancing will fill the evening during the Aransas County Medical Services Inc. Women's Committee annual Valentine's Dance Saturday evening, Feb. 12, at the Paws and Taws Building. "Friendship" is the theme of this year's gala, which begins at 8 p.m. and will feature the music of Ginny and the Guys.

Several area businesses have donated prizes ranging from gift certificates and handmade jewelry to paintings, free dinners and hairsets.

Tickets are $20 per person and only 225 will be sold due to building space limitations. Dance organizers urge those who plan to attend to purchase tickets early. In addition, they emphasize, ticket purchases are tax deductible. Tickets may be purchased from Mickey Roberts, 729-3546; Ann Guynes, 729-5185; the ACSMI Women's Committee Handcraft Store, 513 Broadway (adjoining First National Bank Town Hall); A Blossom Shop, 729-5564; or the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce.

Profits from the dance benefit Aransas County's Emergency Medical Service, which includes three modulance units used by paramedics and volunteers. Profits from last year's dance added $4,175.33 to the ambulance fund.

Rockport Area businesses and individuals donating door prizes include A Blossom Shop, Allied Live Oak Bank, Anthony's Hair Salon, Aransas Warehouse Inc., Back 40 Steak House, Canterbury Construction Co., Carolyn's Beauty Shop, Charlotte Plummers's Seafare Restaurant, Crazy Daisy, Den's Fried Chicken, Elegance, Estelle Stair's Gallery, Europa Fancy Frozen Foods, First National Bank, George Miller Sandblasting, Gift Horse, Ann Guynes, Rip Harrison, Hearn's Nursery, Hidden Treasures, Isles Hair Designs, Kitty's Fashions, Lettie's Package Store, Moonshell Galleries Inc., M & P Pipe Storage, Pat's Place, Paul's Hardware, Pearson's Garden Center, Pilot Office Supply, Pizza Hut, Radio Shack, Roatan Drug Store, Schrenken's Restaurant, Sundial, Sydow Jewelry Co., Texas Tu Step, United Savings, Village Delicatessen, Betty Walters and Myra Walters.

The table was decorated in the Groundhog Day theme and depicted a groundhog, green and snow-covered slopes and the sun above.

Geiter presided at the tea service and Welsh poured the coffee.

Nellie Overturf won first place in canasta and Ruby Shelly placed second. Top honors in bridge went to Win Smith and Eugenia Bray took second place. Peggy Dauterine won the finale.

Groundhog card party at WCAC

Eighty-eight guests attended the Monday, Jan. 31 Canasta and Bridge Party sponsored by the Woman's Club of Aransas County. The card parties are held each Monday and Friday and are open to local persons and winter tourists.

Hostesses for the party were Edith Early Ruby Ferguson, Ellen Shoemaker, Mildred Geiter, Audrey Sterner, Lucile Sturm, Lucille Welsh, Irene Golz and Marjorie Tjepkema.

Theater postpones play opening

To allow for the installation of a new heating system, Encore Theatre Corporation is postponing the opening of Agatha Christie's "Go Back for Murder," at the Ritz, 715 N. Chaparral.

The new production dates are Feb. 10-13 and 17-20. (Thursday through Saturday are evening performances, curtain time 8:30 p.m. The two Sunday performances are matinees only and start at 3:30 p.m.)

Dorothy and "uncle" John Leslie joined a busload of AARP and winter visitors going to Galveston Jan. 21. They toured the Railroad Museum and took a trolley ride around old Galveston. Friday night the Leslies visited with Rev. Cecil Lang and his wife, Jeanette (former pastor at the First Presbyterian Church in Rockport). On Saturday morning Dorothy's son, Hugh Morrison, picked them up and they spent the weekend in Houston. Uncle John spent most of his time on the telephone renewing old acquaintances that he had known 30 years or more and Dorothy enjoyed being with her 17-month-old grandson, Andy. To quote Uncle John, "The bus is the only way to go."

Ruby Harvey, who has traveled quite extensively in her ministry work, will be the guest speaker at the Calvary Baptist Church Feb. 13 at the 11 a.m. Sunday morning worship service.

Rose Willetts spent the weekend in Dallas visiting Ethel Porter and Mr. and Mrs. Audry Holcom in Richardson.

Guests of Ken Boyce over the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis from Bandera.

Rev. and Mrs. John Norvell had Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Emmens from England visiting them. The Emmens were making this stop on their way to Ghana for ministry work.

Fran Grimm is really missed by the "gang" at Estelle Stair's while she is in Spohn Hospital.

Diana Eller was honored with a baby shower given by the employees at the First National Bank Jan. 27. Chips, dips, nuts, mints, punch and cake were served and the honoree received many gifts.

Louise and Frank Smith and their granddaughter, Carlene Smith, spent the weekend in Harlingen visiting with their daughter, Thelma, and her husband, John Prescott.

Mary Hearn spent three days in the Valley at a nursery seminar. She stayed in Weslaco with her daughter, Linda Shaefer, and her husband, Mitch. Both of the Shaeferes were stationed in Okinawa and they are between stations and will go on later to Camp Lejeune, N.C.

The Rockport Art Association is having a membership show. Painters and sculptors are all getting their "best" together Feb. 13 at Allied Live Oak Center from 2-5 p.m. The public is cordially invited.

CONGRATULATIONS! Mr. and Mrs. Vic Tarver are the proud parents of another daughter, Vilessa Jane, born Jan. 31 at Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi. She weighed 7 pounds, 2 ounces. She has a brother, Kris, and a sister, Ava Elizabeth. Maternal grandparents are Bess Pearson of Rockport and Melton Pearson of Lamar and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. V. Tarver of Houston.

Mrs. W.C. Calhoun and her granddaughter, Roberta Mills, spent the weekend in Houston and Hempstead visiting sick relatives.

Nan Irwin attended the Ingleside Chamber of Commerce banquet last Saturday night. On Sunday she had, as houseguests for the day, Mr. and Mrs. O.R. Stewart from Ingleside. Helen and Jerry Ohmes have visiting them their daughter, Fran, and her husband, John Kalovich, from Kansas City, Mo.

Marge and Homer Thompson have as guests their son, Craig, and his wife, Nancy, from North Carolina.

Boy Mills has returned home after being hospitalized in Spohn Hospital.

Returning again this year to Trav-Trail-R Inn are Ona Lee and Ted Groce from Fort Worth.

A group of residents from Trav-Trail-R Inn went to Corpus Christi Tuesday night to see the Royal Lipizzan show. They were Mr. and Mrs. George Duriksen, Mr. and Mrs. Walk Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sheets, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kontz, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bentz.

Last Saturday night at Trav-Trail-R Inn, Dee Freitag was hostess for a "come as you are when invited" evening party for 60 residents. Everyone brought food and games were played.

HAPPY BIRTHDAYS! Florence Griffith, Tommy Thompson, Eddie Ratliff, Shawn Ocher - Feb. 6;

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY! To all of you that have anniversaries from Feb. 5-11.

Bon appetit!

By Ann Thomas

Wow! What a great response. Thank you for sending in your recipes as requested. We have a mixture this week and that's fun! Here goes!

BAR-B-Q SAUCE

Submitted by Gladys Tidmore

This recipe comes from a lady out in Albany who enjoys the reputation of one of the town's best cooks.

- 1 medium onion, chopped fine
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 cup tomato catsup
- 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice (not concentrated)
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

2 tablespoons worchestershire sauce

Combine all of the above and simmer on low heat until the onions are done. Use on cooked or uncooked meat or poultry.

GREEN RICE

Submitted by Ann Keefer
Ann has been a friend of mine since childhood and is quite a multitasking lady, but cooking just has to be her best!

- 3 cups cooked rice
- 1 pound Velveeta cheese
- 1 large green pepper, diced fine
- 1 1/2 cups canned milk
- 1/2 cup cooking oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced fine

Mix all of the above well, then bake at 350° F. for 30 minutes. Serve hot. This serves a bunch!

VEGETABLE SALAD

Submitted by Debbie Wells

This recipe is from my daughter who is quite a good cook if I may say so.

- 1 can French green beans
- 1 can English peas
- 1 large green pepper, chopped moderately fine
- 4 sticks celery, chopped fairly small
- 1 large onion (purple is good!), chopped
- 1 small jar pimentos, chopped fine
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup salad oil
- 1/2 cup white vinegar
- salt and pepper to taste

Mix together in large bowl, cover and store in refrigerator overnight. Drain well before serving. This is so good! Beats the heck out of that canned stuff.

More next week. Until then, bon appetit!

CCSU Jazz Band to perform Feb. 6

CORPUS CHRISTI — Corpus Christi State University's Jazz Band and its special guest The Magic Rhythm Section from Robstown High School will perform in concert at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6, in CCSU's Center for the Arts Warren Theatre.

The public is invited to attend the free concert.

The CCSU Jazz Band will perform several styles of jazz under the direction of Philip A. Cole, assistant professor of music.

The CCSU Jazz Band's performance will include

"Pressure Cooker" by Sammy Nestico; "Come Sunday" by Marius Nordal; and "The Umpteenth Time," by Joe Rank, a student at Flour Bluff High School. Rank plays piano for the band.

The Magic Rhythm Section, the RHS jazz band, will perform under the direction of Ronn Cox, assistant band director at the high school.

The band's performance will include a ballad from the Muppet Show entitled "Being Green," arranged for the Stan Kenton Orchestra and "Scott's Place," arranged for the Count Basie Band.

The Magic Rhythm Section's 20 members and sound engineer come to the performance with several honors from the Coastal Bend Festival of Jazz held at West Oso High School, Corpus Christi, Jan. 29.

The band received a first division rating on playing quality from all three judges at the contest and won second place in the best band contest for 4A bands.

Dr. Ellen Ritter has joined the staff of the Department of Agricultural Communications as a communication specialist and will provide consumer

The purpose

Religion exists not to answer all questions, or to clear up all mysteries; if that were its purpose, it could never be accomplished, for life grows not less but more mysterious as the intellect enters more fully into its truth.

The stars were wonderful enough in all conscience, when we thought of them as lamps of light set in a solid sky to guide the sailors on their journey over the trackless sea; but they are a million times more wonderful now that we know them to be blazing worlds that move through the vast infinities of space in accordance with exact mathematical laws.

Our own bodies were wonderful enough, when we thought of them as created in a moment by the fiat of the Almighty from the dust of the earth; but how much more wonderful they have become since the sciences of physiology and embryology have taught us to trace their growth through countless stages, from the humblest kind of beginning to their present complex end.

Knowledge does not take from, it adds to, the wonder of the world. It is an infallible rule that the more a man knows the less he knows. He knows that he knows nothing compared with what there is to know — that he is but a child playing on the shore of an infinite sea of truth and picking up tiny pearls of wisdom that, by the grace of God, are cast up at his feet.

Religion leaves a million questions unanswered and apparently unanswerable. Its purpose and object is not to make a man certain and cock-sure about everything, but to make him certain about those things of which he must be certain if he is to live a human life at all. Religion does not relieve us from the duty of thought; it makes possible for a man to begin thinking.

— G.A. Studdert-Kennedy

Be not rash with your mouth, nor let your heart be hasty to utter a word before God, for God is in heaven and you upon earth; therefore let your words be few.

Church happenings

McManus conducts revival

Victor McManus, known internationally as "the Man from Ireland," will conduct revival services this week at Rockport's First Baptist Church.

Special worship services will be at noon and 7:30 p.m. starting Sunday, Feb. 6, and continuing through Friday, Feb. 11.

Possibly better known on the continent of Europe, McManus has conducted more than 700 crusades and Bible conferences throughout the world during the past 30 years. He is considered by many to be one of the most effective evangelists and Bible teachers in the world.

McManus will be accompanied in Rockport by his wife, Maureen, who has served as a Christian leader, and will be assisted by Carlton Dillard of Clyde who will direct music for the meetings.

A native of Midland, Dillard has served as minister of music and youth in Baptist churches across Texas for the past 10 years. He is recorder, producer and president of His Reflections, a small Christian recording and music publishing company.

He and his wife, Sharon, write many of the songs they sing and have more than 60 songs to their credit. Several of their songs are now being published nationally by Good Life Publications.

The Rev. Charles Fake is pastor of First Baptist Church.

Revival begins at Calvary Baptist Church

Baptist Church

Revival services at Calvary Baptist Church, 123 S. Doughty, will begin at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6.

Services will continue at 7 p.m. daily through Wednesday, Feb. 9. The revival will be conducted by C.J. Molmen, Vernon Vance, Wiley Hurley and Harold Eklof.

Cluster helps school

The Helping Hands Cluster of First United Methodist Church is collecting Campbell's product labels on behalf of Sacred Heart Catholic School which plans to turn in the labels for free school equipment.

Church members are asked to bring their labels to the church office or give them to Lois Devoe.

The Helping Hands Cluster sent 440 Campbell's labels to the Good Neighbor Community Center in Brownsville as an assistance project.

Methodist Mission Task Force meets

The Mission Task Force of Rockport's First United Methodist Church will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 9, in the church's Friendship Classroom.

Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss plans for Rockport First United to partially support a missionary in the field.

Muffy Heffel is chairman of the task force. Other members include Norman Spears, Myrtle Kluge, Christy Ogle, Carita Gould, the Rev. Barrett Renfro, Mary Belle Adams, Jackie Arnold, Mary B. Burke, George Burlew, Perry Carter and Marjorie Gaines.

Also on the task force are Edwina Garrison, Katherine Gray, Catherine Hubbard, Raulie Irwin, John Martin, Lois Odell, David Ogle, Larry and Sue Orsak, Bob and Barbara Reddick, Jackie Riley, Jane Rossman, Milton Sorem, Walter Stryker, Keith and Mary Tyler, Lee Roy and Marilyn Young.

Church Safety Week focus on fire prevention

"Vigilance, Good Housekeeping Guard Against Church Fires," is the theme of this year's Texas Church Safety Week, Feb. 13-19.

Hilton Gilliam, Texas Safety Association vice president for church activities said the theme of 1983 Texas Church Safety Week will be fire prevention.

"Church officials and fire department fire prevention workers all over the state will be combining efforts during the week following Valentine's Day to help guard against church fires," Gilliam said. He noted the three major causes of church fires are arson, heating systems and kitchen equipment.

Sharing the Abundant Life

There was plenty of gasoline during the blizzard. Yet we couldn't go anywhere. So we made the best of it, and tried to help one another.

Our society is changing today. We are learning to cope. To appreciate what we have in abundance. Make do with what's in short supply. Share!

The message of our churches has not changed. They have always reminded us that life should not be measured in terms of material possessions. Christ in his own way offered men an abundant life.

For the Christian believer and worshiper that abundant life is founded on spiritual conviction and commitment. It includes things that blizzards and gas crunches cannot take away.

Come worship this week and share in the abundant life.

Estimated 550,000 will die of cardiovascular disease in 1983

An estimated 550,000 Americans will die suddenly in 1983 — without threat or violence, without warning, leaving friends and loved ones in shock — joining the ranks of those who make cardiovascular disease the nation's number one killer.

Yet specialists at Baylor College of Medicine say thousands of these deaths could be prevented by a simple check-up from the family doctor and treatments that can reduce the risk of a heart attack.

That's why the American Heart Association is making a big effort during February, National Heart Month, to convince people that early detection and good follow-up care can prolong life, sometimes by many years.

For those who fear a check-up and possible treatment during this time of rapid advances in medical technology, Baylor cardiologist Albert Raiznor, M.D. had some reassurance.

What the doctor will do on an initial office visit depends on the patient's age and sex and whether any symptoms are present, he said.

"A twenty-five year old woman without symptoms probably won't get an aggressive cardiac evaluation... but a male, above age 45, a heavy smoker, or someone with high blood pressure or a family history of heart disease should be more carefully checked."

Patients who fall into these high risk categories should probably get a chest X-ray, blood tests for cholesterol, and a stress EKG, he said. All are simple procedures.

An EKG (electrocardiogram) is a tracing of the heart's electrical impulses that can show abnormal action. It is painless. A stress EKG is the same test, but done while the patient jogs on a treadmill. Finding out how the heart functions during exercise can indicate if there are obstructions in the coronary arteries — those arteries that furnish the heart with blood. Obstructed blood flow to the heart caused by blockages or by spasm is responsible for the chest pain of angina.

Heart attacks happen when blockages become severe enough to cut off blood flow to a portion of the heart, thus causing tissue death.

Whether a person survives depends on the extent of the injury, and on how badly it disrupts the heart's rhythm, said Raiznor.

If blockages are identified prior to a heart attack, there are several things doctors can do to correct them. But identifying them may require tenacity; there are times when even the results of the stress EKG aren't clear-cut.

In those cases, the doctor may want to rely on a product of the computer age called a nuclear stress test. During this test a computer counts radioactive dye that has been injected into the patient's bloodstream and absorbed by the heart. Then the computer uses the numbers counted to make a picture of bloodflow to the heart. The process is called "digital imaging."

If preliminary tests indicate a person does have obstructed arteries, the next step is usually a coronary arteriogram. This is always done in the hospital because it involves inserting catheters into the patient's heart. When the doctor injects dye into the catheters and takes X-ray pictures of the path the dye travels, he can see the location and extent of the blockages. While it may sound complicated it is a routine procedure in modern coronary care, Raiznor said.

Arteriograms are always done before coronary bypass surgery, a technique that restores bloodflow by using a vein graft to detour blood around the blockages.

Surgery is not an automatic sequel to an arteriogram, which can also indicate that another type of medical treatment would be a better approach in some cases.

For example, drugs may be used, and while they don't dissolve the blockages, they can reduce the heart's work load, relax the heart muscle, and regulate its rhythm, which may be enough to correct the problem, Raiznor said.

Special tax benefits for elderly

Older Americans are special because of their knowledge and experience.

They are also in a unique situation financially. Many are retired and living on fixed incomes. Making ends meet is becoming increasingly difficult. To assist this rapidly growing segment of the nation's population, the tax laws offer a number of special tax benefits.

For instance, anyone 65 or older is entitled to an extra exemption of $1,000. This means an automatic additional reduction to income of $1,000 for single persons, and $2,000 for a married couple, both 65 or older, who file a joint return.

Do senior citizens have to file at all? In some cases, yes, since filing a tax return has nothing to do with age; it's income that decides that question.

Single persons 65 or over do not have to file a federal income tax return if their income was less than $4,300. The limit for a married couple, filing a joint return, with only one spouse 65 or older, is $6,400; $7,400 if both spouses are 65 or over. For tax purposes, persons are considered to be 65 on the day before their 65th birthday. An important benefit to keep in mind is that Social Security payments are not taxable. The same holds true for Railroad Retirement benefits.

Another special benefit is the "Credit for the Elderly." The credit can in some cases, but not all, reduce taxes owed by as much as $375 for single persons and $562.50 for married couples who file a joint return. Although the credit generally applies to persons 65 or older, it is available to those under 65, if they have a taxable pension from a public retirement system.

Senior citizens who are thinking about selling their personal residence should consider the once-in-a-lifetime $125,000 exclusion of the gain on the sale of their home. An awareness of the tax consequence is essential before selling a personal residence at any age, but doubly so for those age 55 or older to whom this benefit applies.

Taxpayers needing assistance with their returns can turn to Tax Counseling for the Elderly, an IRS program through which organizational volunteers provide free tax information and assistance to individuals to individuals age 60 and over.

You may obtain free publications by using the mail-order form in your tax package. Publications of special interest to older taxpayers include:

- 502 "Medical and Dental Expenses"
- 505 "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax"
- 523 "Tax Information on Selling Your Home"
- 524 "Credit for the Elderly"
- 554 "Tax Benefits for Older Americans"
- 575 "Pension and Annuity Income"

Timing important in order to receive Social Security benefits

People in the local area who plan to apply for Social Security retirement or survivors benefits before they reach 65 should remember to apply no later than the month they want benefits to begin, a Social Security representative said recently.

This is because, with few exceptions, a person who wants to receive reduced benefits before 65 cannot receive them for months before the month he or she applies. Retired workers and their wives or husbands can start getting benefits as early as 62 and widows and widowers as early as 60.

A worker and his or her wife or husband can receive benefits only for months in which they are eligible throughout the entire month. This means that unless a person reaches 62 on the first or second day of the month, he or she cannot receive a benefit for that month.

A person who applies after reaching 65 can receive benefits for up to six months before the month of application, but not before the month he or she became 65.

It is a good idea to apply two or three months before a person wants benefits to begin. This gives Social Security enough time to process the claim so benefit checks will begin shortly after income from work stops or is reduced.

Before applying, a person should get certain documents and information. This includes the person's Social Security card or a record of the number; Forms W-2 for the past two years; or if self-employed, self-employment tax returns for the past two years and evidence of filing (a cancelled check); evidence of date of birth, preferably a birth certificate or baptismal record before age five.

More information about Social Security applications and benefits can be obtained at the Corpus Christi Texas Social Security. The office is located at 619 S. Staples and the telephone number is 888-3492.

ARTISTS OF THE MONTH for February at First National Bank are Cindy Lewis and Mark Holland, whose carved birds will be on display during banking hours in First National's lobby.

The birds are handcarved from basswood and handpainted with artists' oils. Holland says bird carving "is strictly a North American art," derived from the carving of decoys.

Motorcycle, bike recovered

A motorcycle and bicycle, reported stolen in separate incidents, were recovered in recent days by officials with the county sheriff's office.

The motorcycle, a 1972 Yamaha valued at $300, was reported taken between 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28, and 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 29, from the residence of owner Harlan E. McLean.

Officials were subsequently called by a Timberlane Loop resident who reported a motorcycle was parked against his camper. Officials found the motorcycle was the one stolen from McLean's residence.

The officer making the recovery theorized whoever took the vehicle was unable to get it started and pushed it to the location where it was found.

A 10-speed bike valued at $99 was reported stolen from the Copano Cove residence of Brenda Leach on Jan. 27. The bike was recovered this past week.

Bull found slaughtered in pasture

A beefmaster bull valued at $300 was found slaughtered in a pasture being leased by Juan Tristan, the animal's owner, early Wednesday, Jan. 26, according to sheriff's officials.

The incident, which occurred between Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 25, and Wednesday morning, Jan. 26, was still under investigation this week.

Also under investigation this week were several incidents of criminal mischief in Aransas County, including damage to the fuel system of a pickup owned by L.W. Maneval. Maneval, who reported the incident on Jan. 24, told deputies it had apparently been done on Dec. 24 and he had not noticed it previously because the damaged fuel tank is only used on long trips.

Maneval said cost to repair the damage had been estimated at $74.95.

A coin box at an automatic car wash in the county was reported vandalized between 3 a.m. and 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 29.

Someone had apparently attempted to remove the box by breaking the cement around the base and removing the bolts from the mounting plate.

In another incident, the cord was cut and the receiver removed from a pay phone in the laundry room of a local trailer/RV park.

College fair for students, parents

All the questions you ever wanted to ask about college can be answered on March 6-7 when more than 150 representatives of the nation's colleges and universities meet with high school students from across Texas at the Dallas/Fort Worth College Fair.

Sponsored by the National Association of College Admissions Counselors (NACAC), the two-day event will be held at the Dallas Convention Center. The free, public fair will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, March 6, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Monday, March 7.

"One on One" will be the theme of the program designed to provide high school students, their parents and school counselors free access to comprehensive information on higher education and vocational opportunities. All persons interested in continuing their education, regardless of age, are encouraged to attend. Information also will be available regarding financial aid, entrance requirements and application deadlines.

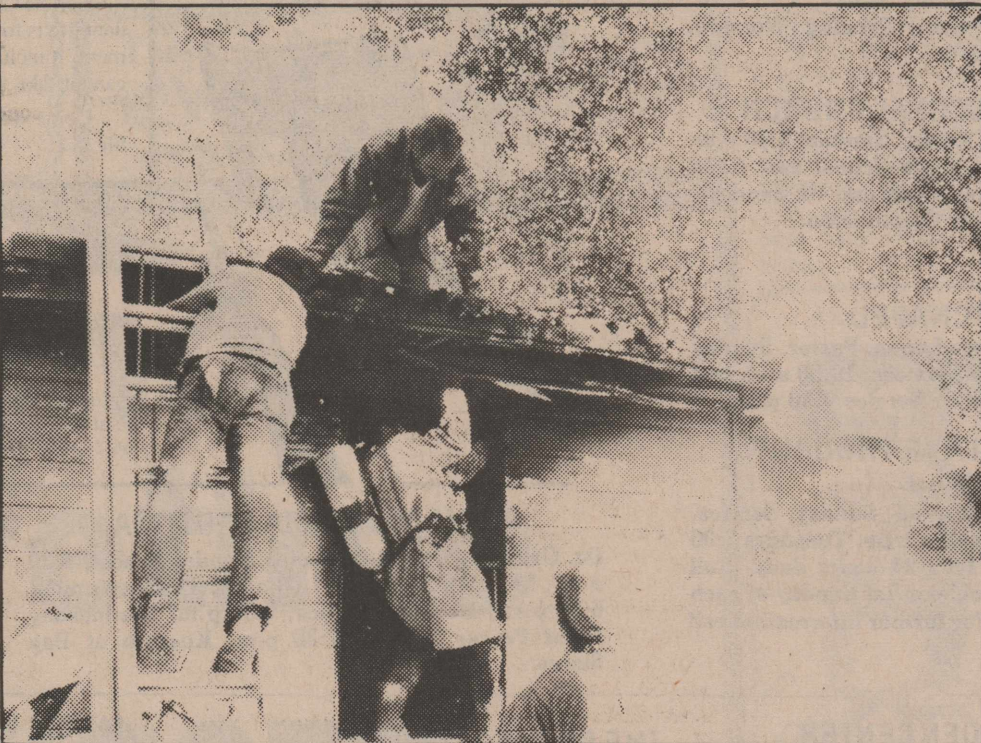

Since the initial College Fair in San Antonio in 1972, one million students and their parents have participated in the events that offer a variety of individual services provided free by guidance counselors and college admissions officers who volunteer their time.

The March 6-7 Dallas/Fort Worth College Fair, being coordinated by the Texas Association of College Admissions Counselors, will be the second such presentation in the Metropolitanplex. Margaret Herrera, director of guidance and counseling for the Dallas Independent School District, and Mike Stewart, coordinator of the DISD's executive assistant program, are chairing the event. Dr. Edward G. Boehm Jr., dean of admissions at Texas Christian University, is in charge of promotion and publicity.

The College Fair is a unique opportunity for high school students and their parents to take advantage of a "one on one" approach for receiving answers for educational questions at one time and in one location not only from college and university representatives but also from the armed services, ROTC and service academies.

Through the "one-on-one" meetings with counselors and institutional representatives prospective students will receive individualized attention related to their fields of interest as well as the colleges and universities they are interested in.

ACCRD to discuss storage tank

A request from the city of Rockport for the Aransas County Conservation & Reclamation District's share of costs for repainting a water storage tank heads the ACCRD agenda for its meeting at 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 7.

The meeting will be in the Commissioners Courtroom of the Aransas County Courthouse.

Rockport officials contracted last month for repainting of the 1.5 million gallon ground storage tank in Peninsula Oaks, at a cost of $39,998 plus eight percent engineering fees. Under terms of an agreement with the ACCRD made last year, the city will request Monday that the ACCRD pay half of those costs.

Also on Monday's agenda will be a letter from the Texas Department of Water Resources "regarding a petition for conversation" and a questionnaire from the U.S. Department of Commerce.

ACCRD attorney Reese Rozzell will discuss election law changes and the final agenda item is for the board to take up "general business."

Tom Klepfer

Tree problem? Call the doctor!

You might say that Tom Klepfer is a doctor of sorts. As a tree surgeon, he uses his knowledge and experience to care for, maintain, and nurse ailing trees back to health.

Klepfer's Tree Surgery offers a variety of services which cover pruning, removal of damaged and diseased portions of trees (including stumps), bracing of structural weaknesses, trimming and shaping of trees. In addition, we can also treat damage caused by construction and several other problems, such as cavity repair.

Not only does the firm care for damaged and diseased trees, but it also maintains healthy trees, including trimming, feeding and diagnosing nutrient deficiencies. Klepfer is also getting into the grafting and budding of fruit and nut trees. Grafting involves implanting one variety of fruit or nut onto a tree which already produces a different kind of fruit or nut. The procedure is most commonly done on pecan trees in this area, he says, and notes that some varieties do better than others. The most important factor in successful grafting is the similarity of the type of fruits or nuts used, he says.

Klepfer, who worked for a tree surgeon in Houston for two years before starting out on his own, emphasizes that proper pruning techniques are important to the health of a tree. In addition, trees increase the value as well as the beauty of property. He says that serious diseases, such as Live Oak decline (a fungal disease), are important to recognize and arrest before they spread to healthy trees.

Klepfer's Tree Surgery is fully insured. For free estimates call 286-3631.

Lease

ramp could be used at Cove Harbor and he was told that could not be done.

"Either put it (the ramp) on the north end (of Fulton Harbor) or forget it," said Maguglin.

Rockport shrimper and frequent audience spokesman J.C. Harlan told the board "I think we should tell the Texas Parks & Wildlife people, thanks but no thanks." Harlan said he had heard that TP&W was going to raise boat fees in order to pay for such projects as boat ramps.

Commissioner Hal B. McKnight joined in what had become a heated discussion and said, "We are reaching the extension deadline on the 120 days. This isn't the best location to put the ramp I'll agree."

After several members of the audience spoke and said they either didn't want the boat ramp in the north end of Fulton Harbor or, as most said, they didn't want the boat ramp at all, the commissioners attempted to move to another item on the agenda.

During the remainder of the meeting the commissioners discussed the Dr. Lewis bait stand lease and exploiting all prospective possibilities regarding navigation district properties.

Dr. Lewis told the board he had made a special trip from Kansas to appear before the board about the lease on his bait stand.

He then read a prepared statement asking the commissioners to transfer his lease to another party. Commissioner

Maguglin said, "Mr. Chairman, I can't see anything wrong with transferring the lease but not at the present rate."

McKnight spoke up and said he didn't know what started all the bait stand controversy, "They should come in and ask for a five year lease then nothing changes, in March we ought to talk about bait stand leases."

Maguglin then made a motion to transfer the lease but at the rate of $150 per month.

Holman questioned what the lease was going to be used for saying he was interested in keeping the congestion down and not have heavy trucks blocking the road in front of the bait stand.

In response to the statement that all the bait stands should have five year leases one member of the audience said he thought all bait stand operators should have five year leases but not based on Holman's lease. Holman pays $200 per month for his lease.

Maguglin told the angry crowd, "I think we have an obligation to the taxpayers but we aren't going to put you out of business."

Harlan rose from his seat in the audience and told the commissioners, "We (the shrimpers) are probably the biggest taxpayers in Aransas County."

Harbor master Bernie DeForest requested permission to put 50 pilings in at the east end of the Rockport Beach seawall to keep the wall from falling in. The commissioners gave him permission to spend $1,750 on the project.

and that he is "doing fine." Casterline suffered a heart attack in late December and is not expected to return to work for quite some time.

The council received a letter from Walter Clark, Sinton city manager, asking for Fulton's participation in hiring one person to monitor Central Power & Light Company intentions concerning their rates. This person would be employed by several area cities and towns and would cost Fulton $43.20 per year. The rate is based on the population of each town and the amount each pays to CPL. Loflin said that the town has participated in the past and will probably participate again since it is considerably cheaper than hiring an attorney to do the job.

1871) says one of the streets was known to be called Washington and another was Market. Power donated 100 acres of bayfront property to the Catholic Church for church, school and religious purposes but there are no indications that buildings were ever erected.

A customs house was established in 1838, with Col. Fulton as the first collector (he resigned that winter), and there was a post office and apparently a tavern and public house operated by Gideon R. Jacques who once organized a "commercial club" (according to Huson) in Matagorda.

Aransas City was incorporated by Act of the Texas Congress (this was during Texas' days as a Republic) on Jan. 28, 1839, with Power as its first and only mayor. Among the residents of the old city were John Armstrong, William P. Aubrey, James C. Allen, Michael Fox, Henry Smith who would later serve as Texas governor and would become Fulton's father-in-law.

At the same time Aransas City was being established, another townsite was platted across the channel, on Lookout Point — Lamar, so named in honor of then-Gen. Lamar. After the General became President, Capt. Byrnes, Lamar's founder, began a campaign to have the custom house moved from Aransas City to the townsite named in Lamar's honor.

It was a political move, given strength by the fact that Power was a supporter of Sam Houston — Lamar's political rival. In early 1839, about the same time Aransas City was incorporated, Lamar ordered the custom house moved across the channel. On Feb. 21 of that same year, he issued a proclamation opening trade with the Mexican government on the Rio Grande — and the route established by that proclamation bypassed Aransas City.

Despite Presidential decree, Aransas City managed to hang onto most of its trade and to continue as a city for at least a few more years.

But by 1846, the city had apparently ceased to exist. Somewhere among the live oak and scrubby undergrowth that still cover large tracts of Aransas County, there may be traces of the old city.

But they haven't been found yet. Maybe they'll never be found.

Or maybe they will . . . someday . . .

Brown & Root vice presidents named

Brown & Root Inc. President Thomas J. Feehan announced the election of three vice presidents in the company's Marine Operations Group. Brown & Root, a Halliburton company, is one of the world's largest engineering-construction companies.

Promoted to Vice President, Western Hemisphere Pipeline Division is W. Kenneth Hicks, who has been division manager. He will office in Houston.

Larry H. Stewart becomes vice president, Western Hemisphere Marine Structures Division headquartered in Houston; and Thad (Bo) Smith III was named vice president-construction, Europe/Africa area, officing in London.

Hicks has been with Brown & Root for 10 years and has 25 years' experience in the engineering, construction and management of marine related activities. Thirteen years were spent overseas in Venezuela, Ecuador, England, Bahrain and Holland. The native of Pittsburg, Texas is a graduate of the University of Texas with bachelor and masters' degree in civil engineering.

Stewart joined Brown &

Root in 1965 following a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy. He has 18 years' experience in offshore platform fabrication and installation, beginning his career as an estimator. He has managed the company's two Texas fabrication yards — the Greens Bayou Marine Yard in Houston and Harbor Island Fabrication Yard in Port Aransas. Stewart also worked in Scotland, Iran, England, Vietnam and the Philippines with Brown & Root.

The Rice University graduate, a Grosebeck, Texas native, received his degrees in civil engineering.

Smith has spent his 16-year career with Brown & Root overseas, specializing in international offshore construction. He began his career as a coating inspector in a pipe casting yard in Kuwait. Smith will continue the responsibilities he has had while serving as an officer in the London-based subsidiary of Brown & Root, Brown & Root (UK) Limited. Other countries in which he has worked for Brown & Root include Nigeria, Iran, Okinawa and Norway.

Nostalgia

By Marie Landiorio

The small farming community of Hooterville was the setting for a highly successful rural sitcom that ran on CBS from 1964-70.

Kate Bradley (Bea Benaderet) was the owner of the Shady Rest Hotel, the only travelers' lodgings in town. Helping her run the hotel were her three beautiful daughters, Billie Jo, Bobbie Jo and Betty Jo and the girls' Uncle Joe. Hooterville was full of colorful characters, including Sam Drucker, the owner of the general store and Charlie Pratt and Floyd Smoot, the engineers of the town's lone train, the Hooterville Cannonball.

Two years after the premiere of this show, CBS added a spinoff to its lineup. This time, a Manhattan businessman (Eddie Albert) gives up his life in the big city to buy a small farm near Hooterville, to the dismay of his sophisticated wife (Eva Gabor). Many of the same characters populated both series and until the shows were canceled, there remained a certain interplay between the two series.

Question: Can you name these two series?

Answer: "Petticoat Junction" and "Green Acres"

Funny 'Charley's Aunt'

"Charley's Aunt," a classic comedy of mistaken identity and romance, will premiere Feb. 6 on The Entertainment Channel.

The play stars Charles Grodin as Lord Francourt Babberly, a Yale undergraduate coerced into impersonating his fellow student's aunt. Grodin, complete with gown, veil and fan, is not only believable in a dress, but also quite funny, especially when he later has to face the marriage proposal of a stuffy middle-aged businessman portrayed well by veteran actor Vincent Gardenia.

"A guy in a dress is always funny, but what makes the play a classic is that it has a lot of funny situations that offer great opportunities for comedy," Grodin said at a recent screening of the televised version of the play in New York.

Grodin, known for his roles in such films as "Heaven Can Wait," "Seems Like Old Times," and "The Incredible Shrinking Woman," makes his cable debut in "Charley's Aunt." He agreed to do the production because of the demanding role involved.

"The role allowed me to totally let loose in the play, making a lot of funny gestures and faces. I couldn't think of a role I'd rather do because it was a tough part. I have to be a young undergraduate at Yale, an Englishman, and an elderly woman. I'm able to convince the audience because I don't really ly have an image in the movies, therefore when they see Charles Grodin they never really know what they're going to get."

Charles Grodin as
"Charley's Aunt"

With his current role in "Charley's Aunt," Grodin joins the ranks of such great comic actors as Jack Benny, Rex Harrison, Noel Coward and Ray Bolger who have played the title role in the play, which has continued to entertain audiences since its premiere in 1892.

The play, which opened almost 100 years ago at London's Royalty Theater, played 1,466 consecutive performances before opening on Broadway in 1893.

To date, "Charley's Aunt" has been translated into 22 languages, has been revived on Broadway with Jose Ferrer in 1940 and Louis Nye in 1970, has had five film versions and a musical version entitled "Where's Charley."

PBS in the spotlight

Kangaroo nursing at its mother's pouch on PBS' "Australia's Animal Mysteries."

Australian animals

Most of the extraordinary animals of Australia exist nowhere else in the world. "Australia's Animal Mysteries" are profiled when the "National Geographic Special" airs Wednesday, Feb. 9 on PBS. (Air dates may vary; please check local listings.)

When Australia broke away from Antarctica 50 million years ago, the world's largest island and smallest continent started to develop animal life as unique and exotic as the landscape.

The hour-long documentary, underwritten by the Gulf Oil Corp., features one of the world's most beloved creatures — the koala bear. Tourists love to catch the gentle creature posing. However, in some parts of the country, scientists have found that the koala's birth rate is declining. Investigators are still trying to piece the puzzle together.

The best known Australian native is probably the kangaroo. Its astounding leaping — as much as 25 feet in one bound — is filmed at close range and in slow motion. Also shown is the plight of newborn kangaroos. At birth, they are blind and weigh less than an ounce as they negotiate the journey through the mother's thick fur to the protection and nourishment in its mother's pouch.

The koala and kangaroo are just two of "Australia's Animal Mysteries." Approximately 150 species of marsupials — pouched animals — can be found on the continent. Wallabies, wombats, the platypus and the Tasmanian devil are also shown.

By James Smethurst

Many good animated cartoons were made in the United States before World War II. Those were the golden years of Warner Brothers and Walt Disney. But the best animator to work during that time was Max Fleisher, creator of Betty Boop, Koko the Clown and Popeye.

Fleisher's cartoons were risqué, witty, fast-moving and often surreal. They were cartoons made for adults, not children, and they reflected the relaxed scene of the Roaring '20s in which they were created.

Cable viewers will have a chance to see some of Fleisher's most notable efforts Feb. 7 when Spotlight airs "Hooray for Betty Boop," a 90-minute retrospective.

Of all of Fleisher's creations, Betty Boop is, with the possible exception of Popeye, the most fun. She was a 1920s flapper who embodied all that was frivolous and giddy about that decade.

The sly and the not-so-sly innuendos would put "Three's Company" to shame. One favorite shows Koko the Clown and Betty's cat getting into the laughing gas in a dentist's office, which starts the whole world laughing, including trees, buildings and mail boxes.

Another good one shows a nightmare that Betty Boop has in which she is chased by tall, menacing figures who keep asking, "Do you want to be a number?" Good, wholesome fun from when your grandmother was a girl.

Another film airing this week on Spotlight is Woody Allen's "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex," which airs Feb. 9. Like many of Allen's earlier movies, "Everything You Wanted to Know..." is either hilarious or not funny at all.

The film is divided into episodes roughly corresponding to different questions found in the book of the same name. The funniest episodes are one explaining bestiality in which Allen plays a shepherd hopelessly in love with his charge and one that parodies an Italian movie, replete with subtitles.

Brooke Shields

On Feb. 10, Nickelodeon's "Against the Odds" will bring to life two of the greatest American showmen — P.T. Barnum and Harry Houdini. Houdini, a Hungarian immigrant, will be portrayed from childhood to his rise as the greatest stuntman of all time. Barnum, noted for his charitable statements, such as "There's one born every minute," will be shown as he creates the largest and most elaborate circus that America had ever seen.

Louis Malle's "Pretty Baby" is a movie about the literal love of a photographer for his subject. Unfortunately for him, in this movie airing Feb. 9 on The Movie Channel, the subject is the prostitutes who work the red-light district of New Orleans. Even more unfortunate for the photographer, E.J. Bellocq (Keith Carradine), is that the prostitute he becomes obsessed with is the barely adolescent Violet (Brooke Shields).

Like all of Malle's movies, this film is beautiful to look at. But the acting doesn't live up to the visual construction of the movie. It is as though the movie itself is a series of stills which are beautiful in their separate parts, but which don't hang together. This may be appropriate to a movie about a photographer, but it makes the viewer's experience less satisfying.

AIRPLANE II: The Sequel, from Paramount Pictures. Written and Directed by Ken Finkleman. Starring Robert Hays, Julie Hagerty, Lloyd Bridges. Rated 'PG' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

This week's column should have the title "Sequels and Second Takes." Comedy movies are few and far between, and when a successful one comes along, filmmakers will do almost anything to make sure that they can tap the comedic gold mine one more time.

One of the movies under examination here is a straight sequel to the vastly successful "Airplane!" but in the other film the producers had to rob the celluloid grave to come up with one more "Pink Panther" movie.

"Airplane II: The Sequel" contains much of the same nonsense and non sequiturs as the first film — remarkable considering that the writers and directors of the original film had nothing to do with the sequel.

Writer/director Ken Finkleman has managed to copy the style of humor quite well here, but that is really the film's major downfall.

Those wildly insane characters, those absurd Marx Brothers-style jokes that made the first film such a delightful farce, are now simply reworked and re-hashed. There's no progression or advancement of the humor.

There are lots of jokes and gags, almost too many to catch them all. Included are a few references to other films, such as "2001" and "Invasion of the Body Snatchers." Yet the feeling is that it's all been seen before.

As for the "Pink Panther" film, this must have been done as an exercise by Blake Edwards to see if he could assemble the outtakes of other Peter Sellers movies and make a script to fit them. As many you know, exercises can be boring — and this one is.

Exercising can also be a strain, and the plot shows the strains of trying to bend to fit the Sellers clips. These clips should have been simply strung together in a documentary/tribute to Sellers instead of re-merchandising the face on the cutting-room floor.

MEDIA MONITOR

By STEVE K. WALZ

Jan-Michael Vincent — who has one of the key roles in ABC's seven-part "novel for television," "The Winds of War" — has been tagged throughout his career as being a loner and a difficult actor to work with.

Surprisingly, Vincent admitted that, indeed, he isn't the easiest person to get along with.

"I guess I am a little stand-offish, but I was always suspicious of getting too comfortable with success.

"I always thought that someone was going to pull the rug out from under me," says Vincent, who has been featured in such films as "White Line Fever," "Buster and Billie" and "Hard Country."

"That's a possible reason why people were leery about me. But I've learned not to be too defensive."

He's hoping that his performance in "The Winds of War" may help him overcome his reputation.

Jan-Michael Vincent

He plays Byron Henry, an American civilian working in Italy in 1939, who falls in love with Natalie Jastrow (Ali MacGraw), an older American-Jewish woman. As their relationship deepens, he finds himself being inexorably drawn into the war.

"I read the script and I said that I'm going to do this. I was really taken with it and it is one of the best things I've ever done," says Vincent.

"The Winds of War," based on Herman Wouk's novel, airs Sunday, Feb. 6, Monday, Feb. 7, Tuesday, Feb. 8, Wednesday, Feb. 9, Thursday, Feb. 10, Friday, Feb. 11 and Sunday, Feb. 13.

Soap Beat

Jerry Douglas is middle-aged hunk

By Connie Passalacqua

While older women-younger men romantic liaisons might be all the vogue now in real life and on soap operas, there's still something to be said about the attraction that middle-aged men hold for young women.

Holding down the middle-aged, yet sexier-than-ever fort on soap operas is Jerry Douglas, the 43-year-old actor who plays perfume tycoon John Abbott on "The Young and the Restless." Abbott's affair with (and subsequent marriage to) the nubile Jill Foster (Deborah Adair) was extremely sexually explicit.

The role is quite a change for Douglas, who has been usually cast as a heavy on such nighttime shows as "Quincy," "Barnaby Jones," "Rockford Files" and "The Incredible Hulk."

"It's the first time I've played a character that's so bloody close to myself," he says of the tough, yet sensitive business magnate he plays.

Like John Abbott, (until his recent marriage) Douglas is a single father. He won custody of his children Jod, 13 and Avra, 19, two years ago from his ex-wife. Like Abbott, he will do anything for his children.

"Years ago I sold insurance to support my children. I never wanted them to suffer from my choice to become an actor."

Although the Worcester, Mass. native had to give up acting twice for the insurance business, his third career in the acting profession is making up for the uncertainties of the past. He's appeared in the movies "Mommie Dearest" and "Avalanche" and is currently getting love notes from young female fans all over the country.

Says Douglas, though, "Acting is what I do, it's not what I am. The only actor image I can accept is that of a fine craftsman. Only the audience has the right to call us artists."

CBN CORNER

Beyond the horizon

by Kim Cooper

The CBN Cable Network will televise a new, exclusive series, "Beyond the Horizon: The U.S./Japan Magazine," on Sundays from 2-to-4 p.m. (EST).

The 52-week series is a family program that compares and contrasts the best and most exciting elements of the American and Japanese lifestyles. Subjects will cover the full range of cultures including political and economic news, drama, entertainment and the arts, fashion, cooking and children's information and entertainment.

On Feb. 6 "Beyond the Horizon: The U.S./Japan Magazine" will feature Leroy Neiman, the celebrated artist. The show will take a look at his work, which includes drawings of sports personalities and other celebrities.

Also on that Sunday's show, Bernard Holtzman, president of Hare-Bernard will talk about fashion and how the Japanese high fashion is in demand in the United States. Fashion designer Issey Miyake is interviewed about his recent creations.

This international video magazine is available exclusively on the CBN Cable Network. It is produced by TeleJapan U.S.A., Inc. in association with the Center for Non-Broadcast Television.

The show is created in the United States with the support and collaboration of the Japanese National Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) and its independent stations.

"Beyond the Horizon: The U.S./Japan Magazine" will be available to more than 19 million homes in the United States.

Kim Cooper is publicity director of the CBN Cable Network.

Ask Kate

Who was Boone's buddy?

By Kate Woods

Who played the Indian companion of Daniel Boone (Fess Parker) on the old TV series? — K.B.

Ed Ames played the tomahawk-wielding Mingo from 1964-'68, before quitting to concentrate on his singing career. The show went on for two more years.

THIRD COMING — Please, please. When is "Revenge of the Jedi" coming out? My kids have begged me to find out. Also, for my own interest, didn't they film some of this one in the States? — L.F.

The third installment in the "Star Wars" saga has been retitled "Return of the Jedi" (under the assumption that Jedi knights are not vengeful) and will hit movie screens across the country on May 25. Buttercup Valley, Calif., was used as a major location for the picture. Geographically, that's on the border of Yuma, Ariz.

BROTHERLY LOVE — Where can I write to the brothers of "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers"? — H.G.

Write in care of MGM/UA, where the series is produced. The address is 10202 W. Washington Blvd., Culver City, Calif. 90230.

KIM THE COP — What was the name of the cop show that Kim Basinger (now doing ads for Revlon) starred in a few years back? And who was her male co-star? — J.P.K.

Ed Ames

Miss Basinger, who is now co-starring opposite Sean Connery in his Bondian revival, "Never Say Never Again," was teamed with Lou Antonio in "Dog and Cat." The mid-season replacement lasted about two months on the ABC schedule in 1977.

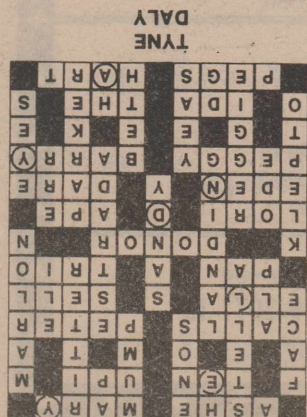

ON THE BEACH — Wasn't there a TV series called "Beachcomber"? I can't find any reference to it, and can't remember who starred in it. — A.F.

"The Beachcomber" was a syndicated series that aired in 1962. Cameron Mitchell played John Lackland, who gave up a business career to hang out on a Pacific island. Sebastian Cabot co-starred.

Send your letters to Kate Woods, United Feature Syndicate, 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, N.Y. 10166.
