LEAVENWORTH GUARDS QUELL SIX-HOUR RIOT

Burlington Chief Proposes Co-Operation By Three Contending Railroads

JOINT USE OF TRACKS ASKED BY WILLIAMSON

Profit-Sharing Plan Advanced by Head of Burlington Lines

OIL AREA DESCRIBED

J. C. Mytinger Intervenes in Denver's Behalf as Wichita Representative

FORT WORTH, Aug. 1. (AP)—A proposal whereby three major railroad systems would share profits from portions of productive eastern Texas panhandle territory, by operating over the same tracks for 28 miles, was submitted to Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner Charles Mahaffie here today by F. E. Williamson, president of the Burlington lines.

The Fort Worth and Denver City, a Burlington subsidiary, is seeking interstate commerce commission permission to build a line into the panhandle from Quanah to Pampa, via Wellington and Shamrock. The Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf with the St. Louis-San Francisco asks to build a road nearly parallel to that from Quanah to Shamrock via Wellington.

Trackage Arrangements

Williamson's proposal was that the Frisco and Rock Island join the Burlington in the Wellington-Shamrock construction, the two former, however, laying their connections from Quanah to Wellington. At Quanah he suggested trackage rights over the Fort Worth and Denver to Vernon to connect with a Frisco proposed line to Seymour, eliminating a petitioned Rock Island road from Quanah to Beaver Creek, about half way between Vernon and Seymour. Since the rivalry between the two proposed panhandle routes had been so severe, the Williamson proposal came as a surprise. On cross examination Williamson said, however, he believed conditions would justify construction of both lines to Shamrock. He declared the Burlington 113-mile road would cost $4,276,580, and would give the Burlington a net railway operating income of $300,000 yearly.

Great Oil Area

L. M. Hogsett, general freight agent for the Fort Worth and Denver, declared the new line would add 12,463 cars of freight yearly to Burlington handlings, serving a rapidly developing oil and gas area in Gray county. That area is about 20 miles wide at Pampa and extends in a southeasterly direction for about 80 miles. The Rock Island and Frisco had contended conditions would not justify construction of a road from Shamrock to Pampa. Hogsett declared freight revenue on the entire Quanah-Pampa line would be $633,000 the first year.

M. B. Oates, Fort Worth and Denver agricultural agent stationed at Wichita Falls, told of developments of the four panhandle counties, Childress, Collingsworth, Wheeler and Gray, which his company plans to tap. He said he expected development of poultry raising and dairying in that area.

Mytinger Is Witness

J. C. Mytinger, Wichita Falls, was the sole witness for that town in its intervention in behalf of the Fort Worth and Denver application. He said that Wichita Falls, while favoring the Burlington line proposal, did not protest any of the other applications.

The Burlington first considered the new panhandle tap four years ago when a preliminary survey was made from Childress to Shamrock, R. C. Gowdy, chief engineer of the Fort Worth and Denver, declared. He said the new road would not take any traffic away from the Clinton, Oklahoma and Western, a new road into Pampa, because of the intervening north fork of the Red river.

As today's session ended, attorneys for petitioners said they expected to conclude their cases

Snook Prosecutor Details Brutal Drug-Sex Murder in Lurid Style

Chester Presents State's Contentions to Jury as Trial Finally Begins Late in Day

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 1. (UP)—The murder of Theora Hix, 24-year-old medical student at Ohio State university, was branded today as the act of a man angered when she refused his demands for her favor.

John J. Chester Jr., state's attorney, in his opening statement to the jury put that new version upon the killing which has so stirred college circles, and much of the country. He promised to prove that the murderer was Dr. James Howard Snook, for 20 years connected with Ohio State university and for nine years a member of the faculty with professorial rank.

Drugs Administered

Snook, Chester charged, had persuaded the girl to accompany him to the gloomy, lonesome rifle range of the New York Central Gun club on the night of June 13; that he had administered to her drugs designed to excite the baser passions in extreme degree; that he himself had partaken of the drug; but that even this stimulant failed to break the barrier she had raised against him.

Then, enraged by her refusal of him, Chester said, the 49-year-old professor and father of a two-year-old daughter, grasped a mechanic's hammer, beat the girl insensible, slit her throat with a little, black handled pen-knife; thrust the knife into her ear hoping to pierce the brain; cut her abdomen and her arm; beat her again with the hammer; and then went back to his home where his wife found him munching a hamburger sandwich in complete unconcern.

Snook Suffers Headache

Dr. Snook, who has been suffering with severe headaches, reclined in a gaudy green, orange and brown beach chair, his shiny, bald head embedded in the canvas of his cot, and heard a crime of rare brutality charged against him.

FIRES SWEEP TIMBER LANDS

Northwest Forests Razed By 100 Blazes

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 1. (UP)—Lack of rain in the timber lands of Minnesota and Wisconsin brought added danger today from the scores of forest fires that were raging in the two states.

The situation was most serious in the north woods of Minnesota where hundreds of volunteer fighters were rushed to aid in battling approximately 100 fires.

Flames continued to gain headway in the dry forests despite efforts of more than 1,500 men mustered into duty.

Predictions of continued fair weather for the next two days were discouraging to the fire fighters who feared that millions of dollars additional damage would be caused.

Superintendent A. G. Hamel of the Superior National forest said today that unless conditions change for the better he looked for the most serious forest fires in the history of the Northwest." He estimated that approximately 10,000 acres of timber and cut over land has been swept by the flames.

Five forest fires in Wisconsin which were spreading towards villages occupied the attention of hundreds of men. Preparations to flee homes were made by residents of Townsend, Lakewood and Carter when smoke appeared over the villages. An increase in the wind would bring disaster, it was reported.

Danger to several logging settlements on the north shore of Lake Superior was removed today by a lull in the strong winds that had been blowing but the fires along the west border of the Superior forest continued to advance toward several villages.

Mercury Registers 104 Degrees Here

Four sweltering days in a row, with comparatively low barometer readings and low wind velocities, found residents of Wichita Falls casting their eyes in the direction of Colorado and other cool vacation spots Thursday as practically the last vacation month began. Those who had already enjoyed a few weeks respite in cooler climes were speaking tenderly of the fall months and the winter temperatures, meanwhile glancing at the thermometer which registered 104 degrees early in the afternoon and did not fall below 100 degrees until evening.

Despite the heat for the last four days, when the mercury has not failed to exceed the 100-degree mark during the afternoons, the city water plant reported that the filtration machinery had been able to take care of all water consumed. The muddy color reported in the water a few days ago was attributed to the fact that city mains were being drained and cleaned out, it was said.

'Ideal Couple' of Opera Company Comes to Grief, Petition Reveals

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1. (AP)—The romance of the Metropolitan Opera company's "ideal couple" was climaxed today with the filing of a separate maintenance suit by Mary Lewis against Michael Franz Bohnen in which she accused her husband of sensational acts of alleged cruelty.

Miss Lewis filed the suit in superior court charging her husband with cruelty in two years of married life which she described as "one continuous discord." They were married in New York in April 1927. The wedding, referred to by their friends of the stage as an "ideal" union, separated last July 1, Miss Lewis stated.

Their differences, it was revealed, began but a few days after the wedding while they were on a European bound liner. Miss Lewis accused her husband of striking her while a crowd of passengers was nearby. Other charges alleged the husband dragged her about a Paris hotel room after knocking her down and kicking her. In Berlin, she charged, he pushed her with such force against a door that the panel was smashed.

A fourth instance of alleged cruelty was cited when the couple returned to New York and Miss Lewis claimed Bohnen attempted to make her leap from a hotel window and when she refused, she said, he tried to push her out of the opening.

Moody Holds Up Death March While Judge Ponders Case

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 2. (AP)—Harry J. Leahy, Southwest Texas lawyer and rancher, who staked his life against a 50-year penitentiary sentence and lost, died in the electric chair of the state penitentiary here early today. The switch was turned on at 12:45 a. m. and he was pronounced dead nine minutes later.

AUSTIN, Aug. 2. (Friday) (AP)—Gov. Dan Moody this morning ordered the execution of Harry Leahy delayed for 30 minutes after attorneys for Leahy had telephoned him from Waco that they had a habeas corpus plea pending before Judge Scott there at 11:50 Thursday night.

Judge Scott later phoned Governor Moody that he had declined to grant the petition and the governor said the execution would go ahead as scheduled.

TEMPLE, Texas, Aug. 1. (AP)—A writ of habeas corpus to prevent the electrocution of Harry J. Leahy at Huntsville early tomorrow morning was denied by District Judge Few Brewster here tonight.

LEAHY AWAITS MIDNIGHT MARCH

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 1. (AP)—Harry J. Leahy likened the state to a grim bill collector as he sat in his cell today waiting for midnight and the march to the electric chair to pay the state for the murder in 1926 of Dr. J. A. Ramsey of Mathis.

"August first," he mused as he looked up to a large calendar on the wall. "This is the day that collectors begin collecting debts. I reckon the state will send its collector to me tonight."

The remark was made while his attorneys at Austin were trying desperately but fruitlessly to persuade Governor Moody, or the court of criminal appeals to grant Leahy a few more days of life and give them time to perfect an appeal from Leahy's sanity hearing.

The condemned man devoted most of the day to writing letters to friends and relatives.

At 7 p. m., the usual time for condemned men to be "dressed out" for the electric chair, Leahy asked the guards to postpone shaving his head and leg as long as possible, as he still had hopes he might get a stay. They gave him two hours, but at 9 o'clock set about the business. He spent the last three hours with Chaplains W. E. Miller and C. E. Garrett.

"I am a christian," Leahy said, "but not a church man. I do not want the report to get out that I confessed or am going to confess. I was convicted on circumstantial evidence and on the testimony of a Mexican."

Leahy's wife arrived and was allowed to talk to him about an hour.

49 Young Americans Anxiously Await Outcome of Edison Test

Questionnaire Devised by Leading Thinkers Proves Task for Boys From Each State of Union

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 1. (UP)—Life's darkest moment arrived at one stroke today for 49 of America's most promising boys.

From every corner of the United States they had gathered to compete for one of the richest prizes ever dangled before eager, youthful eyes. It was the examination to decide which of their number should become the protege of Thomas Edison, greatest living inventor.

What a Test!

And what an examination! It is doubtful if any scholastic intructor ever devised a questionnaire such as the one which had emerged from the brains of Edison, Henry Ford, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and two of the nation's leading educators.

Not only did it grasp the whole intricate world of science, from the ancient astronomers down to the wonder-workers of today, but it also reached into almost every other field of learning known to man—music, art, literature and higher ethics.

The 49 young men, one from each state and the District of Columbia sat down to the task in a big room at the Edison laboratories at 8 o'clock this morning. It was not until 2 o'clock this afternoon that most of them rose from their seats, noticeably pale and worried, and handed in their papers.

15 Questions Asked

The climax of the nationwide competition, which started several months ago when the white-haired electrical wizard announced he was looking for a young genius to carry on his work, will arrive tomorrow morning when the name of the winner will be announced.

The test itself comprised 15 questions on technical subjects of physics, chemistry and mathematics, 18 on general intelligence, 20 on ethical matters and problems designed to test the intelligence of each youth and one concerning the writing of a letter to an imaginary employer.

Here are a few samples:

CHICAGO POLICE BATTLE REDS

Blood Spilled in Communist Rioting

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. (US)—A fierce battle, lasting more than an hour, was fought here tonight by more than 1,000 communist sympathizers and 500 police.

The battle raged through several streets and much blood was spilled.

All available patrol wagons on the west side were pressed into service to haul the "reds" to cells.

The local outburst of the anti-war international red day celebration was to be centered in Union park but Police Commissioner William Russell blocked the plan by refusing anyone to enter the park tonight.

"We'll meet anyway" screamed the communist leaders.

As they moved toward Madison and Ashland boulevard one of the communist orators leaped into an automobile and began to speak.

"Workers, awake!" he howled, "if we had 50 shotguns we could exterminate the police."

He got no further. Twenty or more motorcycle police charged the car and hauled the orator down.

Hand to hand fighting started right then. Shrieks rent the air. Riot sticks met skulls. Men and women struck, clawed, kicked and

PRISONERS IN FEDERAL PEN MEET DEFEAT

Mad Uprising Begins in Mess Hall, Spreading to Outer Walls

ONE CONVICT KILLED

Battle Starting at Noon Subdued After Hours Of Firing

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Aug. 1. (UP)—One prisoner was killed and three wounded during a six-hour riot at Fort Leavenworth prison here today. The rioting was quelled shortly after 7 o'clock tonight when all inmates were returned to their cells.

A double shift of heavily armed guards remained on duty and although the screaming prisoners continued to make the night hideous with their shouts, Warden Thomas B. White told the United Press that the situation was "well in hand with further outbreaks unlikely.

Guards Injured

Several guards were injured in the rioting, none seriously. The prisoners had no weapons except clubs and iron bars torn from the buildings, all the shooting which occurred during the six-hour fight being done by guards.

Prison officials continued to refuse to give out any information regarding the riot, but a United Press correspondent who flew over the prison tonight, declared considerable damage had been done by the rioting prisoners, who tore up sidewalks, tore down fences, broke windows and destroyed everything they were able to tear loose.

Protest Diet

The riot started in the dining room of the prison at noon, when the prisoners were served with Mexican rice, a food which they had refused to eat. Apparently with a well directed plan the prisoners broke loose, threw dishes of food at the guards and started on a rampage of destruction.

They dashed for the walls, as armed guards were rallied to drive them back to the cell houses. Guards in the wall towers opened fire on the running men in the prison yards.

The rioting prisoners shattered windows, tore down fences, and armed themselves with iron bars, torn from the cells.

Guns Halt Prisoners

The guards who had been taken by surprise rallied quickly and stood off the prisoners with drawn guns. Despite the threat of death the rioters attacked and slowly drove the guards back toward the prison gate.

As the riot broke out of control, Warden White called in the guards of two shifts off duty. The reinforcements manned the walls and opened fire on the prisoners with shotguns, rifles and machine guns.

Although greatly outnumbered the guards had the advantage of being armed and the prisoners

'Well, They Weren't Cool Anyway,' Says Rebuffed Urchin Clad in Pajamas

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (AP)—When A pajama clad pedestrian attracts as much attention as two elephants its time to call a halt, in the opinion of Patrolman John Meehan.

Meehan on a corner near Madison Square saw a crowd hove into sight, "gosh," he mused "must be an elephant—no, must be two elephants, one elephant wouldn't draw a crowd like that."

Officer Meehan received quite a shock when he discovered the center of attraction was Samuel Goldenberg, a newsboy, clad only in a new set of yellow and white striped slumber garments.

Goldenberg was taken to Jefferson Market court. There Magistrate Gotlieb agreed with Officer Meehan, and found Goldenberg guilty of disorderly conduct. He suspended the sentence when Goldenberg promised never to wear pajamas in public again.

"If you want to wear light garments," the magistrate lectured the prisoner, "wear something that does not attract crowds. We can't regulate your attire but we can regulate your conduct."

And the chagrined Goldenberg merely said "Well, they weren't so cool anyway."

JOINT USE OF TRACKS ASKED

Burlington Head Proposes Cooperation

tomorrow. The hearing began Monday.

The Frisco and Rock Island lines completed their cases after three witnesses for intervenors had testified today. Walter A. Barlow of Amarillo, manager of the General Mills, Inc., a director, and John E Hill, Amarillo builder, both had said the Rock Island extension would serve Panhandle needs better than the proposed Burlington. S. J. Cole, Amarillo chamber traffic manager, introduced exhibits supporting his claim t Rock Island would increase and benefit Amarillo's trade territory.

President Williamson, the first Burlington witness, said the proposed Childress-Pampa line would be of first class construction. He promised 85 pound rails and ballasted track, the road to cost $4,276,580. He called attention to the recent expenditure of $7,500,000 in the Panhandle by the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains, another Burlington subsidiary. Then he touched on development of territory between Shamrock and Pampa, declaring that discovery of oil in that region would make the line profitable. Most products from that area are trucked to Pampa at present, he said. Pampa is intervening against the Burlington proposal because the road would decrease business through and to Pampa.

Denver Has 926 Miles

Williamson also said the Burlington has 926 miles of railroad in Texas with a hook-up through Northern Pacific and Great Northern lines to the Northwest. These connections enabled the Texas subsidiaries to o...in equipment easily, he declared. He cited the delivery of 1,000 cars to the Fort Worth and Denver for wheat shipments in the Panhandle. Estimates showed the Childress-Pampa route would show a net railway operating income of $300,000 a the end of the first year, he declared.

49 Witnesses Heard

In three days, 49 witnesses had testified before the Interstate Commerce commission here on $11,407,600 worth of proposed rail improvements in Northwest Texas and the Panhandle, but it was expected two full days more would be consumed before the hearings were concluded as today's session got under way.

Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner Charles D. Mahaffie, presiding, frequently made efforts to speed proceedings and had warned attorneys not to introduce cumulative testimony. All evidence prior to today's session had been presented in behalf of the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf and the St Louis-San Francisco railway's proposals to tap the Texas Panhandle with a new short trunk line to Fort Worth and Dallas markets.

CHATHAM AND MYTINGER RETURN FROM HEARING

Evidence supplied by the local chamber of commerce in support of the Fort Worth & Denver's application for permission to construct a new railroad from Childress to Pampa by way of Wellington and Shamrock was entered at the Interstate Commerce commission hearing at Fort Worth Thursday afternoon by J. W. Chatham Jr. and J. C. Mytinger, who returned to Wichita Falls early in the evening.

Testimony given by the Wichita Falls representatives sought to show that this city, the largest between Fort Worth and Denver, Colo., would best be served in the Panhandle by the proposed Denver extension, since this connection would afford one-line freight haul to and from cities in that territory.

According to Mr. Chatham, all of Northwest Texas is displaying great interest in the hearings now in process at Fort Worth, with delegations from almost every city in the territory remaining in attendance at the various sessions.

"Each applicant is fighting every step of the way in protection of his own interests," said Mr. Chatham Thursday night. "The hearing is one of the most interesting and hardest fought that I have ever attended."

FORT WORTH FOR BOTH PROJECTS

Special to The Record News

FORT WORTH, Aug. 1.—If granted a permit to build the proposed Fort Worth and Denver line into the panhandle district, more than $4,276,580 would be expended in developing the project, President F. E. Williamson of the Burlington system which controls the Denver interests, declared here Thursday night.

"The line will use 85-pound steel and all tracks will be ballasted, assuring a superb roadbed for the heaviest of rail service," the Burlington executive explained as the chief witness for his subsidiary's interest at the I. C. C. hearing.

Charles D. Mahaffie, I. C. C. director of the hearing, forecast Thursday night that the session would end Friday unless intervenors not already scheduled, appear.

Several delegations from the Childress-Shamrock-Pampa district, favoring the Denver project, were yet to be heard.

"Extension of the projected Denver line into the panhandle would greatly enhance the outlook for Wichita Falls' grain market," J. C. Mytinger, grain and mill operator of that city, asserted at the Thursday afternoon hearing. Mytinger was called as an intervenor by the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce. The proposed West Texas line, he pointed out, would be the necessary finishing project to open that region for the Wichita Falls market. Petition of intervention by Mytinger was filed Monday by J. W. Chatham, traffic and industrial manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce which is supporting the Denver plans.

Both extensions in the West Texas district will be supported when intervenors for the Fort Worth chamber of commerce are called to the stand upon completion of the Denver's testimony Friday, Ed Byars, head of the Fort Worth group, declared Thursday night.

"Construction of the proposed Frisco-Rock Island line would give Fort Worth a new direct railroad to the panhandle," Byars said in explaining his stand.

"The Denver spur which would penetrate higher into the north plains than the Rock Island line, would pour wheat and other grains into the Fort Worth markets which at present are going to Kansas," the Fort Worth chief intervenor for Friday added. Byars' testimony will be identical to that of President Williamson, who said the panhandle railroad traffic was sufficient for the building of both the Denver line and that of his rival lines.

Snook Murder Is Described

tiny pen knife, the doctor looked at Chester, bit his lips, scratched his ear, and then gazed straight up at the ceiling, with half closed eyes.

A little later Chester held out a bottle half full of green fluid.

"I will prove to you," he said, "that an analysis of the contents of Miss Hix's stomach revealed she had eaten a sandwich which contained a powerful drug designed to stimulate the passions. I will also prove to you that in the office of Dr. Snook a supply of this drug was found and it is here in this bottle. We will show that Dr Snook had placed this drug in a sandwich which Miss Hix had eaten but it had not had time to take effect. She repulsed him and he killed her.

Case Reviewed

Chester reviewed the entire history of the case in chronological order, beginning with the meeting of Dr. Snook and Theora three years ago.

Much of his case, he said, he would prove with the testimony of Dr Snook himself.

When Chester concluded his opening statement Snook was plainly haggard and seemed to welcome a 10-minute recess which was granted. But he was in better spirits when he returned to court to hear his own attorney E. O. Ricketts outline the case in his defense.

GUARDS QUELL PRISON RIOT

Leavenworth Prisoners Stage Battle

could do little with their makeshift weapons.

After their desperate attempt to reach the gates failed the prisoners are reported to have attempted to dynamite the walls. Several explosions were heard by persons outside the walls, but no official confirmation or denial of the dynamiting report is available.

After being driven back from the gates the prisoners attempted to set fire to the prison buildings. Efforts of the prison fire department to fight the blaze were met with an attack by the prisoners, who were again driven off by shots from the guards.

Building Flooded

Several water mains were broken flooding one of the cell houses but the prisoners failed in their effort to keep the firemen from their work and the fire was extinguished with little damage.

As the fighting continued the shouts of the 2,000 screamnig prisoners and the detonations from the firearms of the guards attracted hundreds of persons to the vicinity. A cordon of guards was thrown around the outside of the prison and even newspapermen were refused admittance to the area.

City police officials called the prison to offer aid but were refused information regarding the seriousness of the trouble, allegedly being told that "we are having a little trouble, but nothing serious, and won't need help."

Guards Clear Yard

Shortly after 6 o'clock the guards gained full control of the situation and began driving scattered groups of prisoners into their cells. The main group of rioters was barricaded in a corner of the yard, fully exposed to the gunfire of the guards. Although they continued to scream and throw missiles, breaking windows and destroying property they made no further effort to attack the guards.

Heavily armed guards singled out groups of the prisoners and forced them into the cell houses until finally the yard was cleared and all inmates were under lock and key.

Large crowds of townspeople continued to mill around outside the prison walls, attracted by the pandemonium, but guards kept them at a distance.

The prisoners continued shouting and screaming and destroyed the furnishings of their cells, but prison authorities evidently had the situation well in hand.

Prison Crowded

Crowded conditions have existed in the prison for several months. "Grape-vine" reports from inside the walls declared there have been many rumbles of discontent among the prisoners recently, especially regarding the food served to prisoners. The inmates, it is said, had declared there would be "trouble" if more substantial food was not given them in place of the "Mexican rice" which is a regular article on the prison menu.

The recent rioting in Auburn prison, New York, is believed by many to have incited today's outbreak.

Stage Set For Ending Rift

Nanking Delegates Leave For Conference

PEKING, Aug. 1. (US)—The stage is all set for the direct negotiations between Russia and China for the settlement of the Chinese Eastern railway dispute.

The Nanking delegates, Chu Shao Yang and Minister of Railways Sun Fo left Peking this morning. The former goes to Mukden to see Chang Hsueh Liang and then will go to Harbin and Sun Fo goes to Pei Tai Ho beach to await developments.

Japanese sources cite the conferences of Sun Fo with the heads of the Pekin and Tientsin Bankers' association as an indication that China is intending to make an international bank arrangement to dsplace the Dahlbank.

The Takung Pao, the biggest newspaper in North China, says:

"Gen. Chang Tso Hsiang, governor of Kirin, does not know about the Soviet demand for the restoration of the former status of the Chinese Eastern railway. If Moscow makes such a demand it will be refused."

The Soviet Consul General Melnikoff is at Darbria, across the border at Manchuli awaiting summons to the parley.

"Red Thursday" turned out to be only pink, only a few anti-Nanking posters making their appearance. Motor patrols guarded the gates of foreign legations.

Six million persons were reported buying merchandise in England on the installment plan June 1, 1928, an increase of more than 1,000,000 accounts over 1927.

ZEP HEADS OUT OVER ATLANTIC

Dirigible Turns to Open Sea for America encountered strong winds which buffeted the dirigible.

The passengers retired shortly after the departure from Fredrichshafen. We had breakfast at a late hour.

We find that the dirigible has been equipped with life preservers since the last trip.

ECKENER DENIES STOWAWAY REPORT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 1. (US)—The Graf Zeppelin, without the stowaway aboard as reported previously will bear its 18 passengers out into the broad Atlantic at 2 a. m. tomorrow.

This prediction was received at the Zeppelin works here tonight from Doctor Eckener, in a direct radio message from the huge dirigible, making its third Atlantic crossing.

At the time the message was sent, it was stated the giant dirigible was still hovering over the Mediterranean, pointing for the Balearic islands, off the southeast coast of Spain. This was at 7 p. m. or 2 p. m. New York daylight time.

The southern route toward Gibraltar was set, it was said, because a storm is brewing over Spain and Doctor Eckener did not wish to encounter any dirty weather during the early part of the trip. Doctor Eckener radioed:

"Everything is fine. All are in joyous spirits. We are pointing for the Balearic islands at 7 p. m. and hope to sight the Atlantic past Gibraltar at 2 in the morning. Eckener."

A further message indicated that the searchers had not found a stowaway. The search covered every portion of the ship, including the part of the envelope where freight and mail is stored, where a man could secrete himself.

Another message informed the Zeppelin officials that the drinking water tank in the envelope had sprung a leak, dripping through the ceiling of the salon just as the passengers were finishing their evening repast.

Cronies Encamp For Night Near West, Texas

WEST, Texas, Aug. 1. (UP)—Through with society life, L. R. Rose and C. G. Hart, Texas croquet cronies, were camping tonight between West, Texas, and Hillsboro. They plan to enter Hillsboro Friday morning.

After spending what they termed a delightful afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Stevens of Valley Mills Wednesday and playing a few games of croquet for entertainment, the pair left Waco at 6:30 a. m. today.

"The cronies, of course, were the winners," W. F. Walton, their manager, reported. How much, he didn't say.

ROTARY HEARS COFFEE TALK

Three Cups Daily Average Per Person, Says McCarty

Rotarians of Wichita Falls learned just how much coffee is consumed in the United States each year Thursday noon at their weekly luncheon, when H. A. McCarty gave a classification talk on the coffee industry.

Assuming that 60 per cent of the persons comprising this country's population are drinkers of java, Mr. McCarty's figures indicated that each such devotee gulps down the product of about one ounce of ground coffee each day the year round—or about three cups daily. Which doesn't sound impressive. But those three shots a day require slightly more than 20 pounds annually, from which it follows that the 72,000,000 coffee drinkers in the United States afford a market for 1,450,000,000 pounds of the little tropical berries.

The growth, picking and preparation of coffee, and the history of its use as a beverage, also were discussed by Mr. McCarty.

A group of instrumental numbers was given by the all-American Hawaiians, KGKO radio entertainers, and a club singsong was led by R. E. Shepherd, Mrs. Shepherd accompanying.

Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, club president, called a meeting of the charter members in order to assemble facts to be used in a history of the organization.

TEN DOCTORS ARE INDICTED

Sale of Licenses in Chicago Is Revealed

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. (INS)—Six indictments in the fraudulent medical license investigations were returned here today by the grand jury naming Col. W. H. H. Miller, former head of the state department and registration and nine other men, charging all with conspiracy.

Two indictments named Colonel Miller and L. H. Blaine, Chicago, said to be his chief lieutenant. Their bonds were set at $10,000 each on each charge.

Eight others were named in each of three conspiracy indictments. They are Morris Kalmus, eastern representative of the alleged license "mill"; Albert Carl Barron; Peter Marzio; "Senator" Harry Browski of Springfield, also known as Harry Barowski and Harry Goldstine; Robert Lentine, Henry Granger, Blaine, and "one Gordon." Bonds were set at $2,500.

The sixth indictment, also conspiracy, named Goldstine, Barron and Dr. John Torbert. Bonds of each were set at $10,000.

Four "doctors" from St. Louis were the chief witneses in the investigation. They told how medical students and others were solicited to "buy" licenses, and two of them told that Colonel Miller gave them examinations in rooms of a St. Louis hotel, answering the examination questions for them himself when they were unable to answer.

Colonel Miller, who was dismissed from the department several years ago under the regime of former Gov. Len Small, and fined $1,000 on a charge of issuing false licenses, is the "goat" of the inquiry, his attorney maintained. Naming of Marzio, "Gordon" and Granger revealed three new names in the alleged conspiracy.

Jouett Shouse Flays G. O. P. Tarriff Program

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 1. (AP)—A charge that the Republican tariff program not only sought new "extortions" but also desired to get rid of the tariff commission, was made here today by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee.

"Republican tariff boosters of the senate finance committee, like Reed Smoot of Utah, its chairman, are prone to attribute Democratic opposition to the new extortions to partisian faultfinding," said Mr. Shouse.

Children of Self-Slain Banker Oppose Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 1. (UP)—Margaret and Tom King Jr., children of the late Tom King, president of the Okmulgee American National bank who took his own life, today filed cross-petitions in the bank's $20,000 suit to take insurance from the hand of their mother.

They denied King had embezzled money from the bank to pay life insurance premiums. Hearing on the suit was set before District Judge Chambers for Sept. 12.

RANGER BIDS FOR PROGRESS

Great Expansion for Area Is Forecast

Special to The Record News.

RANGER, Texas, Aug. 1.—No city, however rich in history or great in achievement, can live in the past or rest upon laurels already won.

Ranger, with its great supply of raw materials, its boundless volume of cheap fuel, its network of paved roads, its excellent rail facilities and its ideal climate, is highly adapted to industrial and commercial expansion.

Lists Objectives

One of the great objectives of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce according to the tenth anniversary edition of the Ranger Times is the presentation of the city's many advantages to industries with the goal of bringing about the utilization of the vast depoeits of glass sand brick, shale, pottery clay, cement and lime.

Ranger is in the center of one of the great gas fields of the nation has an adequate water supply and transportation facilities that are almost unsurpassed—thereby meeting the paramount needs of nearly any kind of industry.

The phenomenal development of the dairying industry here in the past year and a half—coupled with the fact that Ranger is well adapted to dairying—gives solid ground for the hope that the industry will continue to grow to such an extent that Ranger will be a feasible location for a powdered milk or milk condensing plant.

Convention City

Ranger has gained fame as a convention city and has successfully entertained a number of great gatherings. In order to be in position to seek more and larger conventions, it is recognized that a great auditorium is needed and this is one of the immediate objectives of the chamber of commerce.

An additional playground and park is another undertaking which it is expected soon will be a reality.

Although Ranger is now traversed by a transcontinental highway as well as state and county highways, the chamber of commerce is working toward the securing of additional highways and the development of lateral roads to communities throughout the trade territory is one of the big projects.

The organization of a home-owned building and loan association has done much to stimulate the "own your own home" movement in Ranger and as a result of this impetus during the last year many beautiful homes have been built. One of the objectives of the chamber of commerce is to continue this movement to the end that Ranger may be a city of home owners. In line with this is the encouragement of the planting of shrubbery, trees and flowers and the paving of additional streets.

Trade Center

The maintaining of Ranger's supremacy as the wholesale jobbing and retail trading center of the oil belt territory; the support of educational institutions and their expansion to meet the growing needs of this development, and the continuation of an aggressive agricultural program—these are other aims of Ranger's commercial organization.

Aviation, the fastest developing industry of America at this time has a large part in the thoughts of Ranger for the present and the future. It is the intention of the chamber of commerce to continue to improve the airport from time to time to keep pace with aviation; to work in behalf of the designation of Ranger as an air mail stop and to establish here in the near future an aviation training school.

CULT LEADER BACK IN CAMP

Dr. Oron Returns to Lead Fasting Flock

CAMP DIX, Colo., Aug. 1. (UP)—Like a wizard of old, Dr. George Huntley Aron, deposed commander of 40 fasting pilgrims from Chicago, returned to Camp Dix today to reestablish his leadership with an exhibition of psychic powers.

The doctor was replaced by the Rev. Herman Arndt of Ohio, several days ago when he insisted his followers trek without food into the mountains toward Peaceful valley in search of truth with a capital T.

Three faithful adherents followed him six miles up the canyon, but the main body of the party, paraphrasing an old prosecutor's maxim, held that "truth is where you find it," and refused to budge from their comfortable quarters here.

So today Doctor Aron returned in his wrath to show that Reverend Arndt is a mere piker and that he alone is in possession of the "truths" which the pilgrims began their 90 days' fast to discover.

The doctor says he is going to communicate with a Mr. Keeler, Chicago psychic, to prove that it is possible to transfer thought through the ether without the aid of radio apparatus. The exhibition will take place after dark, and according to Aron will "make broadcasting as obsolete as the old spinning wheel."

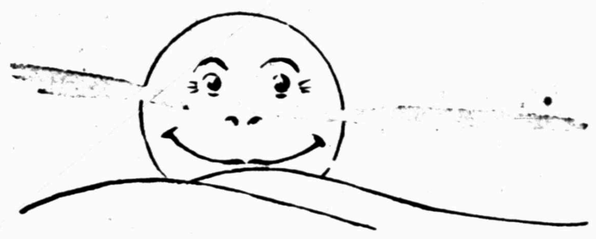

Reverend Arndt refused to say what he would do to retain his position as fast master, but it was hinted he might produce a little static to interfere with the great exhibtion.

SLEUTHS END 7-YEAR SEARCH

Man Wanted for Raising U. S. Check Found

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. (AP)—After a seven-year search through many states secret service authorities announced today they had located Joseph C. Beck, charged with raising a veterans' bureau check from $47.50 to $4,750.

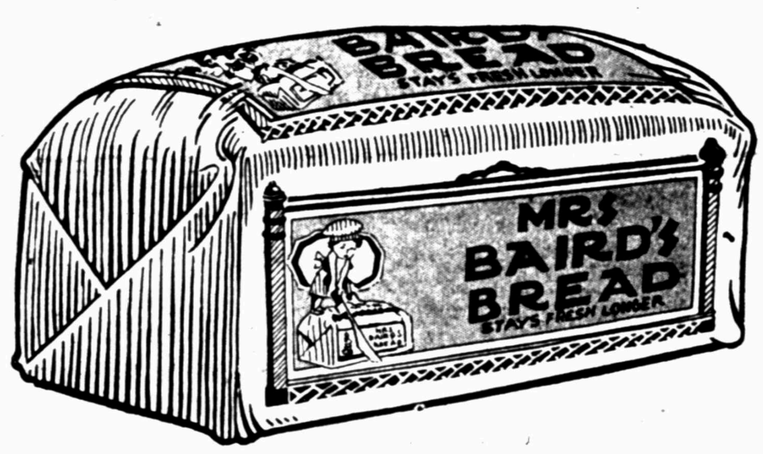

The man, however, who is in the military prison at Alcatraz Island, Calif., is just as positive that he is not the one wanted, insisting he is Joseph Davies. Authorities said as soon as his term for desertion and fraudulent enlistment expires in November, 1930, he would be returned to Spartanburg, S. C., where he is said to have cashed the check. He was traced from Spartanburg to Petersburg, Va., where he married. He deserted his wife and went west, the trail leading through Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Montana.

GAINS 25 POUNDS BY TAKING SARGON

"Before I started taking Sargon I was down in weight to 140 pounds and was badly run down after years of suffering. Since taking Sargon I have gained 25 pounds and am back to my normal weight, which is 165 pounds.

"Up to a few years ago I had always been in fine health, then I commenced to be troubled with indigestion and constipation. It just looked like I couldn't digest anything. I put myself on such a light diet I became badly undernourished and lost weight rapidly. I lost my strength and energy and it was all I could do to stay on my job.

"Almost as soon as I began taking Sargon I started eating again and took on weight rapidly. I tell you it's fine to sit down at the table and eat a man's meal again. I am as full of strength and energy as I ever was and can do more work in one day now than I could in two before.

"The Sargon Pills toned up my liver and I no longer suffer from biliousness and constipation.

"After gaining 25 pounds I am feeling like my old self again and I think that is enough to convince everybody the Sargon treatment is wonderful."—Joe N. Canizard, 348 Washington boulevard, Beaumont, Texas.

Sargon is now called "The Medicine With a Million Friends." Its marvelous record of achievement is probably without parallel in the history of the drug trade of this country. Renfro Drug Co., two stores, agents.—Adv.

Women Like Stern Men Even if They Give 'Em Beatings

In Her Heart of Hearts Every Woman Longs for a Husband Who Will Dominate Her, and If She Gets Him, She Sticks by Him Through Thick and Thin, Even If He Beats Her.

Do women like cavemen?

Yes. Undoubtedly. The only quality that women value above all others in a man is force, mental or physical. They may admire a man who is good and gentle and kind and tender, but he never thrills them as does the strong man.

If every woman got her heart's secret desire, she would be wooed with a club and dragged off by the hair of her head to her mate's cave. Or else she would adore being abducted by a lover who would use strong-arm methods and force her to marry him in spite of herself. That is why the bold suitor always gets the girl while the humble adorer invariably gets left.

Of course women do fall in love with timid, weak men, but the affection they give them is maternal. They love them as they would a child, with a protecting, pitying love that is no more like the love that they give to a stalwart, upstanding he-man than near-beer is like champagne.

It is the fact that women revert to the cavewoman in their emotions that explains that mystery of feminine psychology—why a woman who is married to a man who is everything that is fine and noble, and who lavishes upon her a perfect devotion, and who works his fingers to the bone to supply her with every luxury, so often utterly fails to appreciate him or seemingly to have any affection for him whatever, while, on the other hand, the woman who is married to a brute who beats and starves her, adores him and sticks to him through thick and thin.

Many a time in the divorce courts I have seen a handsomely dressed woman getting a divorce on some trumped-up charge of uncongeniality or incompatibility from a splendid man who had done everything he could to make her happy. And many a time in a police court I have seen a poor, shabby woman draw her thin shawl across her breast to hide the bruises that her husband had inflicted upon her and lie about falling and hurting herself to save him from going to jail, and then follow him as meekly as a dog, knowing that she would get another beating when they got back home.

It is one of life's little ironies that women should have struggled for centuries to get equality with men, which they really do not want. Theoretically, as a sex, we may desire to stand on the same platform with men as their peers, but individually, as women, we want to look up to some man.

No woman really wants to be her husband's equal. She wants him to be her superior. She wants him to be stronger than she is. Wiser than she is. To have better judgment than she has. She wants somebody she can lean on. Somebody she can depend on. Somebody to whom she can turn for advice and counsel.

Men do not mind looking down upon their wives. You will often see a man who is married to a woman greatly his inferior, a woman who is not in his class mentally or socially, yet he will still love and cherish her because of other good qualities she possesses.

But it is a fatal thing for a woman to marry a man that she looks down upon, no matter what his virtues. Her sense of superiority kills her affection for him. In order to love she must respect, and she does not respect a man who has less brain or brawn than she has.

There are many families in which the gray mare is the better horse. Families in which the wife has far more force of character than the husband, far more executive ability, far more industry and enterprise. Families in which the wife is far more intelligent and better educated than the husband. Families in which the wife earns a better salary than the husband. Families in which the wife has won distinction by acting, or writing, or painting, or the practice of some profession, while the husband has remained obscure. But does this state of affairs make for peace and happiness in the family circle? Never. Are these superior wives contented and satisfied? No, never.

The contented wives are those who are married to men whom they regard with awe and reverence and to whom they look up as oracles. When a woman begins every sentence with "John says" as if that settled every problem in the universe beyond the shadow of a doubt it is a certificate of marital happiness strong enough to draw money on at the bank.

Of course, women, being human, will take every advantage that they can get, and when they find that men are weak and yielding and that they can run over them roughshod they will do it, but no woman ever really loves the man she henpecks. She has a contempt for him and that is why she orders him about and never considers his comfort or his pleasure.

You never saw a widow grieve for the meek little husband she has harried into the grave. You never saw a wife consider the comfort of the husband who never asserted himself in his own house, and who took the leavings of things after she and the children had had the best. You never saw a woman stick to the man she had ruined by her extravagance.

As a matter of fact, women like to be dominated by the men they love. A woman likes for her husband to be the head of the house. She likes to feel that he has standard to which she must come up to and that there are certain things he wouldn't stand for her doing. She likes to be the least little bit afraid of him and to feel that despite his love and tenderness for her there is authority over her and that the iron hand in the velvet glove is guiding their lives.

Women don't love weak men. They don't love men they can befool. They don't love men they can wrap around their fingers or men who are afraid of them. They love men who are stronger than they are—men who will treat 'em rough if they don't behave themselves. They will fall for caveman stuff.—DOROTHY DIX.

Mrs. Hoover Sets No Styles or Fads

By MARTHA STRAYER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. (UP)—The woman who sees something she wants and goes right in and buys it shops as Mrs. Herbert Hoover does.

But so does the woman who figures carefully what clothes she needs for various occasions and buys them carefully and slowly.

Mrs. Hoover has set no styles and started no fads since she became mistress of the White House four months ago. She will set and start none because she wears nothing startling or unusual. She spends no great amount of time shopping, puts aside no hours regularly for that purpose and no one or two smart shops in Washington can boast that they serve her exclusively. She buys from many shops.

There is no "Hoover shade"—nor will there be. Mrs. Hoover wears almost every color. There is no Hoover type of hat. Mrs. Hoover wears big hats, little ones and medium sizes. She wear slong sleeves and short sleeves, colored kid slippers and plain sport shoes. Her dresses are conservative in length and her first summer in the White House has seen her wearing just about the same kind of clothes as the avérage well-dressed woman who doesn't specialize in ultra-smartness.

When she goes to Virginia for a week-end at the Hoover fishing camp on the Rapidan, she doesn't appear in khaki or other exaggerated sports or outing costume. If the weather is hot she wears a sport silk dress and a small felt or straw hat; if it's mild, her dress is a summer jersey.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

SHE COULDN'T STAND THE GAFF

This is a tale about a girl who was lacking in backbone and couldn't stand the gaff.

Several months ago she entered the employ of a man who is adored by everybody in his office. He is quiet, wise, kindly and easy-going, yet properly demands a full measure of results from everybody in his organization. The loyalty of his employes to him is as much a matter of personal devotion as it is a desire to be individually efficient and thus achieve efficiency as an entire machine.

In that office there is no jealousy. Results count.

Thus, when she went to work in that quite unusual office, the others on the staff agreed with genuine enthusiasm that she was extraordinarily pretty, bright, ambitious, well-mannered and bound to succeed.

That was a few months ago. Now . . .

"Horribly spoiled! Conceited! Loves flattery! Feels sorry for herself! Neurotic! Can't stand even the boss' kindly criticism! It's a shame!"

It is hard for the people in that office—it really is like a family—to believe that that girl is the same one who made such a magnificent impression when she first went to work there.

What's the answer? She couldn't stand the gaff! She was beautiful and bright, but she was lacking in backbone!

She shirked and sulked. Because the office had a more congenial atmosphere than most offices, she took excessive liberties.

She forgot that an office is a place of business where, even in a friendly and easy going atmosphere, certain things had to be done—that she was expected to stand on her own feet and do her own job. She forgot that the great demands upon her time evenings by a host of male admirers were no excuse for chronic lateness, 30 minute telephone conversations and even periods of absence during office hours.

She has left her job. She's tired of working. She's going to be married—and she suffers from the delusion that marriage is an easy way out for a girl who has to work for a living.

She'll learn that marriage is a harder job than any she ever had in the business world, a greater responsibility. She'll learn that marriage, merely to escape working, can lead to misery—unless she changes.

She'll learn how to stand the gaff—or will quit being a wife!

She'll learn to stand on her own feet or wind up a human wreck.

Oh, These Women

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1. (US)—Leola Allard, noted newspaper woman and columnist, arrived in Los Angeles today on her first visit, and expressed amazement at the knowledge that oranges grew on trees!

"Why, I thought they grew in fruit stands! That's the only place I ever saw them before!"

Miss Allard's popular column, "Oh, These Women," will for the next two weeks deal with Los Angeles, Hollywood and western women.

By LEOLA ALLARD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1. (US)—Wait all your life to get to Los Angeles, and then have what is jokingly called a fast train get stalled in Gallup, N. M., for 24 hours!

But with what you find on board a fast train there can't be a dull moment.

A Hollywood baroness, white-haired and beautiful, wearing over her regular clothes a brilliant blue silk coolie coat, was something to remember—and didn't she burn incense until the choking passengers prayed to come to stations so they could get out and breathe. Incense in a pullman car!

But she has ideas, the baroness. She's just back from four months in Europe and was expecting to be met by two adopted sons.

"People who adopt children," she told me, "should adopt grown young men. Then they know how they are going to turn out. Now I have taken two lovely boys, interior decorators in Hollywood—and adopted them at 28 years of age. It's the best way to stave off old age loneliness. In fact, it's perfect."

"Legally adopted?" I asked.

"The state of California won't let me adopt them legally at that age," said the beautiful baroness. "But my lawyer has given me the names of a lot of states where it can be done. Anyway, they are better to me than own sons and will inherit my money."

(I wonder if the decorators gave her that punk idea? I mean the incense, not the adoption.)

And the gorgeously handsome man with gray temples who got so bored en route he finally, on the last night out, listened to the voice of Siren "Sadie Thompson," who, when the train got to Los Angeles, was trying to find out his name. The porter wouldn't tell. He's been a porter 27 years and that's why he has.

Then the Italian guitar player and his family who so kindly offered to lend the baroness money. She has gobs of it, but how could she guess a fast train would be so late—and nothing but roaring water where the bridge out to be? She had so much money when she went East, she worried constantly, so she started back with $40, and then had to eat for a week on it—and burn punk too.

A smart New York girl points to an Arizona cemetery and says: "I'll bet 90 per cent of them died with their boots on."

And one of these girls (Sadie Thompson), said she'd bet they were dead before they got to the cemetery.

You know—a big town girl with little respect for the open spaces.

And at most stations in this purgatory from New Mexico to Heaven (Los Angeles), there were Indian women with babies on their backs, their hands full of pottery for sale, standing around in the heat with shawls over their heads.

The Indian males were sitting unencumbered on the platforms, their hands clasped about their knees, and without a care in the world.

And they stay married, those Indians.

There's the germ of an idea there!

JUNIOR C.-C. LUNCH TODAY

Reports to Membership to Feature First Meet

Entertainment features and committee reports reflecting the current activities of the Junior chamber of commerce will be given at the first weekly membership luncheon meeting to be held Friday noon at the Kemp hotel, according to officials of the organization.

According to Walter Nelson Jr., president, the committee reports to be heard Friday will give the membership of the Junior chamber of commerce a comprehensive idea of the activities and projects undertaken by the organization since its inception a few months ago.

Efforts will be made to increase the membership by at least one-third during the remainder of the current year, it was said, and the weekly meetings are regarded by officials of the junior chamber as the best medium through which definite work to that end may be organized.

Entertainment arranged for Friday's luncheon will include orchestral numbers, and a program by the Tesco male quartet, it was announced.

Six Men Quizzed in Apartment House Fire

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (INS)—Six labor leaders were called to police court today for questioning by Assistant District Attorney Clancy and Fire Marshal Brophy after the two officials had conducted an investigation in the incendiary firing of a six-story, 200 apartment brick building in Philox place, Flushing early today.

Officials of the Arabeck Construction company which recently purchased the uncompleted building at foreclosure sale for $125,000 and were completing it with non-union men stated flatly that they had been threatened by representatives of the plumbers, plasterers and lathers unions who warned them they would never see the building completed unless they employed union labor.

OLD LAND SUIT SET FOR TRIAL

Action Filed 14 Years Ago To Be Heard at Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Aug. 1. (AP)—The famous Ojo de Agua land grant case, involving more than 2,000 persons and filed in district court here 14 years ago, will come up for trial again Dec. 16 before Judge J. E. Leslie of Hidalgo county, sitting as a special judge here.

The case involves title to approximately 50,000 acres of land in Cameron and Hidalgo counties. Hundreds of witnesses from all parts of the country will be here to testify.

The suit is the result of the old Spanish custom of passing property down to children undivided. The 50,000-acre tract was granted by the king of Spain to Vincente Hinojosa. It was handed down through generations until there were more than 1,000 descendants of the original grantee.

Then the question of division of the estate came up and a suit resulted. It was filed by Pilar Villareal, now dead, against A. A. Browne and the Browne Land and Cattle company, which had bought part of the tract.

In 1917 that company brought a cross-action against Villareal and several hundred other defendants, possessing or claiming land in the tract.

From that date until now the case has become so involved that some attorneys have spent practically all their time on it for years and dozens of lawyers from all over the country have become interested. It has changed its face several times, the defendants becoming plaintiffs and vice versa in different phases.

John C Scott of Corpus Christi was named master of chancery to take testimony and hear pleadings, after which he was to make a report partitioning the land. The report was made after four years but later was set aside.

Worth More Than Anything on Earth

That Is What Wichita Woman Says About the Good Orgatone Is Doing

"I wouldn't take anything on earth for the good Orgatone did my husband," said Mrs. W. R. McSpadden, wife of a well known mechanic for the Dixon Motor Co., and residing at 2506 Ave. G.

"He was all worn out and run down till sometimes he felt limp as a rag, and for the past few months his stomach went back on him so he couldn't eat anything hardly, not without hurting him. Whenever he did eat he felt all bloated up, so he was in misery and could hardly get his breath. He would lay down till the misery passed off, and studying about it, and not eating enough got his nerves all on edge and he couldn't sleep at night for rolling and tossing from side to side, listening for the clock to strike and daylight to come. Losing so much sleep made him get in a very much run down condition and he got drowsy during the daytime and it made his work such a drudgery it oftentimes was a real effort. He was in such shape, at times that he should have been in bed and stayed there, but he wouldn't give up and tried to fight it off as long as he could, but was losing out all the time. No telling what would have happened if he hadn't started taking Orgatone when he did.

"Well, sir, Orgatone has done him more good and helped him more than any other medicine he ever took. He hasn't a sign of stomach trouble now, and none of that fullness or gas after eating like before, and he eats more what he wants and relishes it, too. He says he feels like a different person, and he looks it, too, for he is brighter and more energetic, and takes more interest in things than what he did before. We are both so much pleased that we always say a good word for Orgatone whenever we can."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy, but a new scientific bile treatment, and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's drug store.—Adv.

Hardinge, Tulsa Beauty's Victim, Now Annoyed by 'Gimme' Letters

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. (US)—Franklin Hardinge, 63-year-old millionaire, better known as "just a nice old man" in the Ann Livingston heart balm case, tonight claimed world honors for "hard luck."

This because some person or persons, cranks or otherwise have demanded that he pay $25,000 or forfeit his life.

"It's the deuce," declared Hardinge. "I have never done anything to anyone, why can't I be left alone?"

Hardinge has testified how he struggled to make his money—and how he's struggling to hang on to it.

Ann Livingston, that pretty little 25-year-old Tulsa divorcee sued him for $250,000 for being left at the church and was awarded $25,000.

Hardinge promptly took the jury to task alleging that "such verdicts encourage gold-digging" and then told a few things about Ann he had neglected to mention at the trial.

Ann promptly countered with another $250,000 suit charging slander.

Now along comes one or more unknowns, who, by the terms of their "gimme" letters, are rather "hard boiled" and demand $25,000 "because you are in the public eye and can afford to give $25,000. In fact, you'll never miss it."

On receipt of the letter Hardinge did a double-quick to the police station despite instructions that such a move "will be too bad—for you."

Hardinge is under close watch at all times by a detail of picked men—which, it is supposed, is costing more money.

Big Cotton Crop Seen at Electra

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 1.—Farmers in the Electra district report fine prospects for a big cotton crop. Though late, the cotton is in good condition. It is said that no more rain is needed at this time, as the young cotton will grow so fast that it will not put on so much fruit. Cotton picking will not begin in general until about Oct. 1, on account of having to replant in late spring after the heavy spring rains. Late feed crops are also in good condition, many farmers having planted late small grain on the stubble land of the spring crop already harvested.

This was one of the first ranches in the county and some of the employes were Bill Clanton, Bob Hardy, Bill Ellis, Jake Hoover, Bill Matthews, Ple Benoist, Mark Routzahn and many others who will be here on Nov. 11, for the home-coming celebration.

SOIL PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED

Conservation Urged at Short Course Session

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Aug. 1. (AP)—Land utilization and conservation was the subject of discussion at the general session of the farmers' short course at the A. & M. college of Texas today.

"The greatest need in Texas today, in my opinion, is a sound, constructive land utilization policy based on the needs of the various sorts as determined by scientific survey," T. O. Walton, president of the college, said.

A graphic picture of soil conditions in Texas presenting the possibilities of the various types of soil would be of inestimable value, he said, and referred to the work being done by the federal government in this respect.

A. B. Connor, director of the experiment station of the institute, and E. O. Sieke, director of the Texas forest service, discussed a land utilization research program and land utilization in timbered regions.

Winners in the butter judging contest were announced as follows:

Mrs. H. Schulze of Kerrville, Mrs. H. Deabler of Waco and Mrs. W. Baird of Tyler. Mrs. D. A. Kyser of Brown county was honorably mentioned. Twenty-eight entries participated in the contest.

The Texas agricultural writers adopted a resolution asking that short course officials designate a day of the 1930 gathering as legislators' day for the special entertainment of Texas members of congress and members of the Texas legislature.

F. G. Robb of the bureau of agriculture economics of the United States department of agriculture was a speaker before a meeting of county and home demonstration agents.

He discussed the grading of fruits and vegetables, pointing out that 260,000 cars of produce were inspected and graded by federal authorities in cooperation with the states last year.

The money lost was part of a pension check which the government had sent to the woman. The money disappeared when the woman laid it on a desk in the postoffice for a few moments while she bought a book of stamps.

Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Herbert Kaufman's EXIT, POINCARE Daily Editorial

THE last of the old war-horses, Poincare, spent but still triumphant, doffs his chafing harness and retires to private life.

Salute, as he passes. There blinks the final star in the vastest tragedy that humanity shall ever suffer.

Time, strain and fickle nations have called the rest to their graves—or their humiliations.

Of all the leaders in the great war, he alone held place and pace from the first blow to the last gesture of aftermath.

Every one of the English, American, Russian and Italian statesmen, in office during the conflict or through the immediate period of readjustment, has meanwhile dropped or lost the reins of authority—not to mention the score of successive confreres who hasn't held a portfolio in nigh a decade.

Lloyd George, once Britain's "man of the hour" and her ace at Versailles—for six bitter years has played deuce roles in the peace deck.

News columns scarcely remember what pilots stood on Belgium's storm-wracked bridge. And even Clemenceau's dramatic figure begins to fade from the cables.

What memoirs this man could write!

History will be cheated of the most important revelations at single command, if the secrets in his Pandorean brain remain locked to posterity.

SINCE 1914, he sat in the very center of a web in which universal affairs were commonly entangled.

All the actualities, the by-plays—the finesses, the conspiracies of power and expediency—the dissensions and compromises—prior, during and after Armageddon, are of his personal knowledge. And his solely.

The published papers of Colonel House, Asquith's recollections and a flood of posthumous documents are necessarily incomplete records—left by intermitten factors in an adventure of which we have merely such truths as censorship and policy grudgingly released.

Poincare is the master-key through which we may hope to solve the mysteries sealed by conference, Chauvinism and past emergency.

Imagination stands on tip-toe, awaiting announcement of his autobiography, and a chance to watch Serajevo, the collapse of Czarism, the dethronement of Constantine, the Italian question, the Bolshevist coup, and Fourteen Point wrangle, the Balkan situation, Locarno and the Ruhr occupation through his omniscent eyes.

How shall he analyze Wilson, and what place will he accord Pershing and Bliss?

Shall we at last learn where French espionage spread its network? . . .

But bide in patience. It must come to pass. They all do it.

Caesar invariably paints his own portrait, and Napoleon never entrusts his picture to a less captious artist than himself.

When did a Pharaoh leave the erection of a monument to successors?

Genius and celebrity fear nothing so much as mis-interpretation.

Depend upon it, Poincare will follow suit and leave a carefully measured and full-sized footprint on the field of battle and the steps of the Quai d'Orsay.

Pray that he won't be too reticent.

During the present year there are only 84 days on which the banks are open all over the world.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who expresses his feelings in words and controls his acts, is less dangerous than he who controls his words and expresses his feelings in acts."

The dog that barks, seldom bites and if you spend all your energy talking about what you are going to do, you will find yourself unable to make good on your intentions.

A man has started a campaign to beautify Chicago with flowers. There should be plenty of opportunities to buy them cheap after gangsters' funerals.

There are 1,015 motions required in the washing of dishes, a University of Chicago student has discovered. The 1,015th, of course, is the one father uses when he sticks his fist into the last cup in the set and breaks it.

John D. Rockefeller was 90 the other day. It seems as if he has been 90 for a long time.

Cost of American Militarism

PRESIDENT HOOVER is said by Washington correspondents to be disturbed over the cost of the upkeep of the arms of defense of the republic. He has made the discovery that American expenditures for purely military purposes exceed those of any nation of the world. Expenditures for purely military purposes constitute one-half of the increase in federal disbursements estimated for the next four years.

Under the estimates, so the president said to the correspondents, America will spend $803,000,000 upon the military activities of the war and navy department in the fiscal year 1933, an increase of $120,000,000 over the fiscal year just closed and of $224,000,000 over the fiscal year 1925.

Of course, the president is a Quaker, but is he a pacifist? Now he demands that those who hold the purse strings shall economize on the military and naval expenditure and still maintain adequate defense. Cost of maintaining American sea forces is to be reduced and the president plans a slashing cut in army cost.

In the face of all this there is a rumor afloat in the corridors of the national capitol building that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is coming in October. John Bull is a very wary and very vigilant individual. He may blunder along, but when it comes to diplomacy he knows how to play the game. He is the director of the world's greatest empire. He has been master of the seas for five centuries. "To have and to hold" has ever been his slogan.

When Autos Hit Trains

IT IS a revealing side light on the nature of the average motorist to learn that a huge percentage of all grade crossing traffic accidents are caused, not by the train striking the auto, but by the auto striking the train.

This, of course, means that the motorist was either extremely careless or extremely foolhardy. If he were trying to beat the train to the crossing, his judgment was simply atrocious—the train got there first with yards to spare. And if he simply failed to see it, he was guilty of an inattention that seems almost unbelievable.

What we started to say was that figures show that there were more of that kind of crossing accidents last year than ever before. And just what is to be done about it we don't know. You would think that any driver could keep from running onto a crossing that was already occupied by a moving train. But, apparently, an increasing number cannot.

Is He a False Prophet?

FORMER KAISER WILHELM emerged from oblivion long enough to predict that should war come the Chinese would overwhelm the Slavs.

Wilhelm when he was a real kaiser predicted that Germany would remap the world and the the treaty of peace would be signed at Windsor Castle.

Germany gave battle to the world and lost.

As a prophet Wilhelm was thoroughly discredited which is a reminder that the builders of the republic of Germany are represented on the seven seas again and one of their new passenger palaces, the Bremen, has broken the world's record in a trial trip from a German port to the port of New York.

After 12 years of peace the new merchant marine of Germany is said to be second on the seven seas. A marvelous comeback? Yes.

A Pennant That Doesn't Exist

YOU PROBABLY have read recently that the Mauretania has had to haul down the blue pennant, emblem of the speed championship of the Atlantic, and that the new champion, the Bremen, has hoisted it.

That's all very well, but if you happen to visit the Bremen, now or in the future, don't ask to see that pennant. You'll only get laughed at. There isn't any such thing.

The "blue pennant," famous as it is, is non-existent. It is, in its way, like the raspberry, which is often given to a man, but which never takes any tangible form. The lucky ship that has it is very proud of it—but this cherished flag, nevertheless, is one that never flutters from any masthead.

Iron Beds Returned to the State

A DECISION by District Judge George Calhoun canceled the notes of L. P. Featherstone and others and the state's transfer of the iron industry at Rusk, after a 10-year effort of private operators "to develop its iron ore beds of Cherokee county and operate its iron smelting industry at Rusk." Will this lead to state operation of industry? If so, Lynch Davidson might be called in to officiate as head master of the works. Think of the record he made as headmaster of the state railway operations.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

"Oh, don't be so sure of him!"

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip and busybody. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's millinery shop because she talks too much.

Her mother, a dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, an old friend. Through her Chatty gets a job in the fitting department of Mr. Van Nuy's bond house, downtown. There she falls in love with David Jordan, a young bond salesman whom she once saw buying flowers for a pretty girl in a shop near Mrs. Mayberry's.

Billie Langenau, in charge of the files, tells Chatty that Dave never pays any attention to any girls in the office except Agnes Herford, Mr. Van's secretary. When Chatty repeats what Billie said to Agnes, she adds a lie to it—and tells Agnes that Billie said she and Dave were in love with each other.

Billie and her sister, Sara, come to live across the hall from the Chattertons. Chatty learns that Billie is separated from her husband. However, no one at the office knows she has ever been married, including George Mayhew, who is in love with her.

Billie brings Chatty and Dave together outside the office, and is very friendly and kind to Chatty, lending her clothes, showing her how to do her hair, etc. Jordan begins to make love to Chatty, and finally comes to call at her house. Chatty is ashamed of her poverty and of her young brother, Pud, who works evenings in a drug store, where he helps the owner sell alcohol for drinking purposes.

Chatty steals Agnes Herford's keys in order to search through her desk for a note that she sees Jordan give her. The note is a harmless one, but Chatty also finds Agnes' diary, filled with notes on Agnes' child love affair with Mr. Van Nuys. She sends the pages of the diary to Mrs. Van Nuys, hoping that Agnes will be discharged before she has a chance to go to Mr. Van Nuys with Chatty's falsehood about Billie Langenau. Chatty, answering the telephone the next day in the absence of the regular operator, giggles when she hears Agnes telephoning her home about the keys which Chatty, herself, has dropped into a sewer.

Dave Jordan comes upon her when she is laughing to herself about it, to ask her about going out with him that night.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XV

Very little nonsense and love making went on in the busy offices of the Van Nuys company.

Mr. Van might take Agnes Herford out to lunch. George Mayhew might drive Billie Langenau home from work every night in the week. Winnie Talcott might be making dinner and dance "dates" with Jim Bowen every Saturday night, as everyone suspected her of doing.

But all of these things went on outside the office. During the work day everything was strictly business, as it is in most offices.

And so Dave did not linger for very long at Chatty's switchboard that noon.

"What do you want to do tonight?" he asked her. He was leaning over the back of her chair as he spoke, and one of his hands just touched her shoulder.

"Anything!" Chatty answered, her breath coming thick and fast in her throat as it always did when he stood close to her. "So long as I'm with you—I don't care what we do or where we go."

She was ashamed of herself when she said things like that to him—when she showed him so plainly how much he meant to her. But she couldn't help saving them. They just slipped out, somehow or other.

"I wear my heart on my sleeve, don't I?" she asked him, tilting her head back to look up at him. "I should pretend I don't care whether I go out anywhere with you or not, shouldn't I?"

Dave shook his red head. "I like you the way you are—heart on your sleeve, or any other place," he said. "And I'll come for you at seven?"

She nodded, and he went across to his own desk against the south wall of the main office, and very near the door of Agnes Herford's room.

Presently Agnes came out into the office.

"Hello, Dave Jordan," Chatty heard her say. "I've done the silliest thing—I've lost all my office keys. You haven't seen them, have you, by any chance?"

He shook his head, jumped up and offered to help her hunt for them.

"No—I've sent for a locksmith, and he'll be here soon," Agnes said. "But I've wasted the whole morning trying to get that desk open and Mr. Van's personal letter file open—and he's so upset!"

Chatty giggled to herself. "He's calm compared to what he will be when Mrs. Van gets through reading that diary!" she said to herself. . . . She wondered if Mrs. Van would come rushing down to the office and make a scene.

"I hope she does!" Chatty said to herself. "And I hope she throws Agnes out on her ear!"

She hated Agnes.

She hated her because she had called her "the silly little Chatterton."

She hated her because she was such a good friend of Dave Jordan's, and because she was standing there, on the other side of the office now, talking to Dave.

She hated her most of all because she was afraid of her—afraid that she would go to Mr. Van with the story that Billie Langenau had been talking about her behind her back.

"And if Billie finds out that I told a lie about her," Chatty told herself, "she'll never speak to me again! And Dave will find out that I told it, too!"

She grew cold all over at the thought of Dave Jordan finding out about that story she had told Agnes. It would mean the end of his liking for her. The end of his friendship that was not friendship, but something more—something that made him take her in his arms, hold her close to him, and kiss her as if he never would let her go.

"But if Mrs. Van starts to make trouble about that diary, Agnes won't get much of a chance to go to Mr. Van with any tittle-tattle at all," thought Chatty. "She'll be too busy trying to explain what she and Mr. Van were doing, keeping lunch dates with each other—" And all afternoon she fairly prayed that Mrs. Van would come down to the office to have Agnes discharged that very day.

But nothing happened.

Everything went on just as usual in the big, busy offices.

The locksmith arrived at 1 o'clock and opened Agnes' desk.

At half past 1 Mr. Van "knocked off" work and went away to play golf with some friends at the Sunnyside Country club.

At 2 o'clock Agnes went to keep an appointment with her dentist. At 3 she called up to say she had a tooth pulled and that she was going home to go to bed.

And then at 4 o'clock—Mrs. Van called up:

"This is Mrs. Van Nuys. I'd like to speak to my husband."

Chatty's eyes flashed with excitement.

"Mr. Van Nuys has gone for the day," she said.

"Then I'll speak to Miss Herford!"

Chatty drew a long breath. "She's read the diary!" she told herself, with enormous satisfaction—and if you don't believe me, you can ask my mother about it. She was with me—and they sat right beside us. Your precious Platonic Friend and his sweetie!"

Billie did her best to take what she had heard calmly. "Oh, I believe you—" she began bravely, and then all at once she hid her face in the bath towel with which she had been drying her pretty hair. She did not make a sound.

Chatty knew that she was crying.

"Why, Billie!" she faltered, and went across the tiny steam filled room and put her arms around her friend's shaking shoulders. "Why—Billie—you mustn't cry! I didn't know you'd feel like this about it, or I'd never, never have said a word about George and that girl! I thought you always said that you and he were just friends. Oh, I'm so sorry I said a word to you!"

She really was sorry, now that she had told Billie about George and the girl . . . But wasn't it better, after all, for Billie to know the truth about George? And wasn't it better for Billie to realize, herself, that she was in love with him? Of course it was!

"You're crazy about George Mayhew, Billie Langenau!" she said hardily, "and you'd just better face the fact! You're in love with him and you're married! Now, then, you'd better make up your mind what you're going to do about it—"

Billie stood up suddenly. "Please promise me that you won't talk about this at the office, Chat," she said, quietly, still covering her face with the towel. "Especially about my being married."

Chatty sniffed. "What do you think I am? A gossip like Winnie Talcott?" she asked. "It hurts my feelings to have you talk like that to me, Billie! You know I'd never talk about you! You know I'm a friend of yours—a good friend!"

And she marched out of the flat.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The recently revived claims of a California woman to the royalties of Richard Walton Tully's play, "The Bird of Paradise," bring to mind the history of that relatively old drama, which established one Laurette Taylor as an actress of first rank. "The Bird of Paradise" has, so far as I know, vanished from the American stage. It was produced seventeen and one-half years ago, and got a cold reception from most of the critics. But it was played all over the land, and earned more than a million dollars. The story, you may remember, concerned the love affairs of a Hawaiian princess and an American scientist. The princess, abandoned by her American, flung herself into a volcano. Oliver Morosco, the producer, decided to entrust the role of the Hawaiian to a young actress who had aroused some interest in "Alias Jimmy Valentine"—Miss Taylor. There were many real Hawaiians in the ensemble for local color, and the rest of the principal players went something like this:

Paul Wilson ..... Lewis S. Stone
Captain Hatch ..Theodore Roberts
Dean ..... Guy Bates Post
Diana Larned .. Pamela Gaythorne

Three of these rose subsequently to great fame, and one of them is dead. I don't know what happened to Pamela Gaythorne. . . . But the "Bird of Paradise" story doesn't end with that first New York production. It was a sensational success on tour, and the role of the unhappy princess gave many another actress a good start on her career. Among these may be mentioned Lenore Ulric and Bessie Barriscale. But the play is gone; Theodore Roberts is gone; Morosco has left New York and our only reminder is a lingering court war over royalties that may, perchance, have gone too.

The Passing of Dick

The cold, cheerless city morgue is now less warm and cheerful than ever. Dick, the one optimist in the whole rather dreadful establishment, is dead. He was brought there 13 years ago by Detective Sergeant Perfield, who is in charge of the identification bureau. He was a young and happy canary then, and an old and happy one when he died the other day. His life had been none too happy, either. About a year after he arrived at Sergeant Perfield's office, a cat attacked him, and Perfield was obliged to amputate Dick's right leg. Several years later—Perfield doesn't remember just how it happened, Dick lost his right eye. But he never lost his voice, and his incongruous good humor is missed by the attendants.

Teeth in the Wind

One of the more sheepish of the town's writing men is a gentleman who was a guest on one of the air-rail junkets to the Pacific coast and back. He started his trip in a not at all sheepish manner. An honored deadhead, with all his own and his wife's expenses paid, he was impressively important among the other passengers. He had flown in planes before, and was nothing if not blase. On the first leg of his trip, which is a train jaunt to Columbus, Ohio, the prospective airplane passengers were discussing the coming adventure. Many feared that they would be air-sick. But not the writing man. And when the plane started, he was all over the cabin—a neat bundle of calm assurance. They had been flying 30 minutes when he lost a $500 set of false teeth. What had started out to be a glorious crossing and recrossing of the United States developed for him into one endless embarrassing moment.

Cupid Is Fired

Cupid Smith, jobless, is forlornly lounging on the benches of City Hall park. Cupid always made his headquarters in the park, and now, even when his occupation has been taken from him by a hard-hearted city government, he sticks close to his base of operations. Smith is one of those fortunate bums who can keep up an appearance. When he approached you, it is with a firm look in his eye, and you feel that he may be somebody. Surely he is no beggar. Every morning Cupid used to spruce up by washing his celluloid collar and take up his post on the city hall steps. True, bums lounge there—but then, city officials, and even the mayor, also use the steps for picture purposes. Cupid always looked as if he had just had his picture taken with some welcoming committee. A hesitant young couple would approach the steps, and look doubtfully at city hall. Cupid could read their thoughts with unerring judgment. "Are you looking for someone?" he would ask. Well, the couple would admit, they were looking for the marriage license bureau. Out of towners—runaways, perhaps—they naturally enough figured that, as in other cities, people got married in city hall. But in New York it's different. The marriage license bureau is in the Municipal building, not far away. Cupid Smith, always impressive, would say: "You come along with me. I like your looks, and I don't think you want to get married with the common herd in city hall. We maintain a special office for the quieter marriages, and I'll be glad to fix it up for you." And he would lead them to the Municipal building. The grateful fiances always responded with tips, and Cupid was in clover. But the city has decided to put a patrolman on duty on the steps, whose sole occupation is to direct those who would be man and wife. And Cupid is out of a nice, genteel racket that never did harm to anyone.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Eugene O'Neil's Wedding

(In the "Strange Interlude" manner.)

Mr. O'Neil (on the way to the ceremony): You look very beautiful, dear. (Aside): One always has to say that to a bride. As a matter of fact, I've seen her look lots better. It must be her hair.

PHILLIPS

Miss Montgomery: You flatterer! (Aside): He wouldn't know whether I looked good or not. He's always preoccupied. I'll bet he is thinking up a plot for another play right now.)

Mr. O'Neil: Are you very happy, darling? (Aside): That's an asinine question. Suppose she should say no?

Miss Monterey: Awfully, Gene. Are you? (Aside): He's never happy; I can tell by his face. My, but he's getting deep lines!

Mr. O'Neil: I'm the happiest man in the world, Carlotta. (Aside): And even if I'm not you can't disprove it. One has to go to extremes in a case like this. You'd be sore if I said I was the second happiest man in the world.

Miss Monterey: And I'm the happiest woman, Gene. (Aside): I have my misgivings about this fellow at times. He won't be any too easy to live with, I suppose. I'll have to be patient.

Miss Monterey (in an aside): I hope I'm not making a big mistake. He's probably more in love with his work than with me. I suppose I'll have to go around the house on tiptoe so as not to disturb him. It'll be pretty awful at times. Maybe I should take a firm step at the outset and refuse to coddle him. The first Mrs. O'Neil humored him too much.

Minister: How do you do? (Aside): So he's O'Neil the great playwright! He doesn't look like what I expected. I saw two of his plays. The Hairy Dynamo or something and The Old Soak, I think it was. Very pretty! On the road to Monterey where the flying fishes . . . no, that's Mandalay.

Mr. O'Neil (aside): Why doesn't the old geezer begin? Does he think it's a 9 o'clock curtain?

Minister: Do you, Carlotta, take this man to be your lawfully wedded husband, to love, honor and obey, to cherish in sickness and in health? (Aside): I've been at this business for years and never had a customer say no.

Miss Monterey: I do. (Aside): I didn't even hear what he said, but I know I'm supposed to say "I do."

Minister: And do you, Eugene, take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife, to . . . (Aside): He's not paying any attention to me. Look at that faraway look in his glimmers! I'd like to rap him on the knuckles and make him pay attention. Just because he wrote Bound East for Strange Interlude, Rain Under the Elms and Parsifal he needn't think he can ignore me.

Mr. O'Neil: I do. (Aside): Do what? Huh? What do I do? To what did I say I do to what?

Minister: I pronounce you man and wife. (Aside): I've a mind to ask him for a couple of passes to that new show of his. What's the name of it? Oh, yes, I remember now . . . Journey's End.

Remarkable? It Was Perfect!

BRITAIN ASKED TO SINK SHIPS

Borah Offers New Plan for Naval Parity

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. (US)—Great Britain and Japan will be asked to scrap a large amount in cruiser tonnage in order to reach the parity in naval armaments desired by President Hoover, it was learned in an official quarter today.

This was the outstanding of many interesting developments in the negotiations now under way between the United States and the powers to reduce the expense of naval construction and maintenance.

Other developments are:

1. That an effort will be made to scrap obsolete, lumbering warcraft (some dreadnoughts.)

2. There will be no effort whatever to fix a limit on the newer and more formidable weapon, naval aircraft.

3. Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, in a characteristic statement declared that unless the British sink many of their cruisers, the burden of taxation for armaments will increase.

The cruiser situation is still the bone of contention in the armaments conference of 1931 advanced to 1930 and include all types of ships, finds Great Britain and Japan with the preponderence of modern cruisers of the type which President Hoover has just halted construction upon.

The United States has 10 such ships with 95,000 total tonnage. Great Britain has some 54 with 303,000 total tonnage, Japan has 26 with 143,000 and six building with 60,000 additional tons and so far has halted construction of none.

Senator Borah's statement follows:

"If Great Britain will follow our example at the Washington conference and sink some of her ships, and thus come to parity, it will not only save the taxpayers but reduce the incentive to war—for huge armaments are always in incentive to war, parity or no parity.

"If we have to build up to parity, it vastly increases the burdens of the taxpayer and augments the incentive to war. What we desire, I suppose, really is a reduction of armaments. That is the primary thing for which we are contending. If parity were used to justify the building of huge armaments, it would become a menace instead of a security.

"I notice from the dispatches from London that Great Britain will not reduce her cruisers. That is very discouraging news."

Equality between the American and Britain navies is important only if it means reduction of both navies, he said. Simply limiting the navies, he added, means "very little."

$7,000 Customs Fine Assessed St. Louis Woman

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (US)—Nervousness she exhibited when customs officials were looking over her 12 trunks, cost Miss Florence B. Bauman, member of a wealthy St. Louis family, $7,000 for undeclared furs and apparel, it was learned today.

Miss Bauman landed from the Cunard liner Aquitania last Friday. Customs men noticed her nervousness, and admonished her:

"Now is the time to declare anything you have forgotten."

When she insisted that she had not forgotten anything, they closely searched the contents of her baggage. They found a Persian lamb coat, valued at $700; an ermine neckpiece, and other articles which she had not mentioned on her declaration form.

Seven thousand dollars in fines were imposed by Customs Collector Elting. The undeclared property was valued at half that sum.

AUSTIN, Aug. 1. (AP)—By the side of the road, where passers-by may see and read—is a monument to "a true pioneer and patriot" who braved the tomahawk and other dangers to blaze the way for civilization.

A red granite stone sitting high on a knoll a few miles beyond the Austin city limits marks the spot where Josiah Pugh Wilbarker, a member of Stephen F. Austin's colony, was stabbed and scalped by the Indians in 1832. At the time he was engaged in locating lands for the colonies.

"We honor the spirit of sacrifice," the inscription states.

Estelline Booster Band Sponsors Two-Act Play

ESTELLINE, Texas, Aug. 1. (Spl.)—"Let's All Get Married" was the title of a play sponsored by the Estelline Booster band, given at the high school auditorium recently. It was a two-act comedy and was full of action. The proceeds of the play went into the band fund, the money to be used for the interest of the organization and betterment of the city. The band is being financially aided by a number of business men but the amounts received from this source and the tuition each member pays is barely enough to pay expenses.

George Washington received nothing for his personal services during the revolution. His expenses, however, were paid him, and for these he collected more than $64,300.

U. S. TO ACT IN CZARIST CLAIM

Government to Protect Its Interests

WASHINGTON, July 31. (AP)—The American government to protect its claims against the former provisional Russian government headed by Alexander Kerensky probably will intervene legally in any efforts by the Soviet government or private persons to take over investments which may have been made by the late Czar Nicholas II in this country.

While no official statement was made at the state department today on reports the Soviet has taken steps to recover such funds it was the unofficial opinion the American government would take a hand in any attempts to obtain them if found.

The provisional Russian government was considered by the United States to be the only successor to the czarist regime, since the United States has not recognized the Soviet government. During 1917, a total of some $187,000,000 was loaned the provisional government by the American government. This obligation, through the accumulation of interest now amount to some $280,000,000.

Should the funds be personal ones of the czar, it was said, the courts would have to determine whether they could be considered as belonging to the provisional government.

TURKEY, Texas, Aug. 1.—The Wooloroc, flown by Col. Arthur Goebel, stopped at Turkey today on its farewell tour before its permanent retirement on the ranch of Frank Phillips at Bartlesville, Okla. The Wooloroc is the airplane which Colonel Goebel flew from Oakland, Calif., to Honolulu Aug. 16-17, 1927, to win the $25,000 prize.

The citizens of Turkey learned that Frank Phillips, oil man of Bartlesville who backed Colonel Goebel's flight, was about to retire the ship in a hangar on his ranch as a souvenir of the earlier days of aviation and invited Mr. Phillips to fly the plane here that the citizens might have a last look at this historic ship and meet Goebel. An informal luncheon and reception was tendered Goebel by the citizens. The plane arrived at 11 a. m. and left at 1 p. m.

"I DIDN'T KNOW WHAT WE WERE MISSING UNTIL WE INSTALLED . . . . STARGAS"

STARGAS Starts Where Gas Mains Stop

A STARGAS house installation is a source of satisfaction and pride to the possessor. It's the envy of friends and neighbors—the kind of envy that inspires progress. Of course everyone likes to be the first to appropriate the advantages of a really practical modern invention—but others are quick to follow when they see the results. And that accounts for the quick popularity of STARGAS.

One can get used to most anything and manage to put up with it. But, once you break away from the drudgery of cooking on a wood or coal stove—and enjoy the modern convenience of STARGAS, "The Compressed Natural Gas" . . . you can never go back. There's too much of a contrast between the new convenience and cleanliness of STARGAS and the inconvenience of using wood or coal! With STARGAS you cook in cool comfort on a modern gas range—you heat water instantly for many needs with an automatic gas heater—you enjoy that modern marvel, GAS REFRIGERATION! They add much to the ease and pleasure of housekeeping.

Why not get all of the facts on STARGAS now? See a STARGAS demonstration . . . and get free copy of interesting booklet, "The Happiness Home" . . . at the local office of

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

(Copyright, 1929, by The Bell Syndicate Inc.)

Dr. McCoy's menus suggest for the week beginning Sunday, Aug. 4

Sunday—Breakfast: Wholewheat muffins, peanut butter, stewed prunes. Lunch: Sweet corn, summer squash, raw celery. Dinner: Roast pork, mashed turnips, combination salad of cucumbers, tomatoes and celery, baked apple (no cream).

Monday—Breakfast: French omelet, waffle (browned through), pear sauce. Lunch: Melon as desired. Dinner: *Minced chicken in tomato jelly, salad of cold cooked asparagus on lettuce, pineapple gelatin.

Tuesday — Breakfast: Cottage cheese, melba toast, apple sauce. Lunch: One kind of fresh acid fruit, as apples or pears. Dinner: Broiled steak, buttered small beats, spinach, salad of grated raw carrots, raspberry ice cream.

Wednesday—Breakfast: Coddled eggs, toasted triscuit, stewed figs. Lunch: Pint of buttermilk, 10 or 12 dates. Dinner: Baked sea bass, stewed tomatoes, summer squash, salad of shredded raw cabbage and celery, Jell-o or Jell-well (no cream).

Thursday — Breakfast: Wholewheat-raisin muffins, broiled ham. Lunch: Raw apples, with handful of pecan nuts. Dinner: Veal loaf, grated and baked carrots and turnips, salad of sliced cucumbers, prune whip.

Friday—Breakfast: Coddled eggs, melba toast, stewed raisins. Lunch: Fresh peaches or melon as desired. Dinner: Broiled filet of sole, summer squash, salad of tomatoes, celery and ripe olives, no dessert.

Saturday — Breakfast: Waffles and crisp bacon, stewed apricots. Lunch: Molded combination salad of string beans, celery and minced ripe olives, glass of sweet milk. Dinner: Roast beef, asparagus, buttered beets, salad of head lettuce with olive oil, grapefruit whip.

*Minced chicken in tomato jelly. Drain, but do not strain, two cups of juice from a large can of tomatoes. Pour into a saucepan and heat to almost boiling point. Have ready one envelope of plain gelatin which has been softened with a little cold water. Dip up some of the tomato juice and stir into the gelatin until thoroughly dissolved, then mix all together and set in a cool place until the juice begins to thicken. Now, mix in one cupful of minced chicken, one-third cupful of chopped celery, parsley and ripe olives. Pour into wet molds and place in the refrigerator until ready to serve. Serve unmolded on crisp lettuce. The amount is sufficient for four persons, and forms the protein part of the meal. Any left-over roast, such as beef, pork or mutton may be prepared in the same manner and found very appetizing.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Rickets

Question: O. L. D. asks—"Will you please tell me what I can do to cure myself of rickets? I am not quite sure that is what I have, but I thought that maybe you would explain just what rickets is."

Answer: Rickets is a disease usually caused by faulty metabolism, but may be due simply to a lack of the proper amount of bone-building minerals. Only a careful diagnosis of your case would reveal what is causing the trouble. Go to a good diagnostician, or write me again giving a more complete description of your case.

Beef Blood

Question: W. I. D. asks—"Should a person suffering from anemia drink a pint of warm beef blood daily? If so, where could it be obtained?"

Answer: This treatment has been tried many times, but I have never heard of a case receiving any benefit. Anemia can only be cured by getting rid of the systemic toxicosis which produces it. Stuffing with any kind of food is never helpful and always makes the patient worse.

Morphine

Question: Mrs. H. writes—"Please give me information as to how to detect the use of morphine by another person. Does the drug cause the pupil of the eye to contract or expand, and soon after taking the drug does the addict break out in perspiration? Is there a hoarseness in the voice?

Answer: Morphine causes a dilation of the pupils of the eyes which are large after the drug is taken. A person usually does not sweat afterwards unless an excessive amount of the drug is taken. Sometimes asperin or veronal will produce the symptoms you mention in your letter. It takes a trained eye and a continual observation over a period of time even by a physician to determine whether or not one is a morphine addict. Sometimes even a physician is fooled by the addict.

CHICAGO POLICE BATTLE REDS

bit. Clothing of the police and rioters were torn to shreds.

It was a seething, churning, fearful bedlam.

As one man was tossed into a patrol wagon he dropped a bloody cloth with which he had mopped a bleading head. A woman grabbed it up, shouting:

"Look workers!" This is a worker's blood. This is our flag. Down with the police! Down with the government! Blood! Worker's blood!

Despite the fierce fighting no one was considered seriously injured.

NEW YORK MEET IS BROKEN UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (US)—Young communists, marching through the streets to the anti-war demonstration in Union square today were fallen upon by the police and dispersed. Two girl marchers who resisted were arrested. According to the police, the parade was held without a permit. It was disbanded as it entered Union square.

Swift action by the police put the marchers to flight with no serious disturbance. But because nearly 10,000 sympathizers were gathered in the square to attend the meeting, a call was sent to police headquarters for the riot squad.

With the armored motorcycles and 50 mounted patrolmen came a downpour of rain and the entire meeting was broken up.

MEETINGS HELD AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1. (US)—Following communist meetings here today, department of justice and immigration officials announced the start of a sweeping investigation of local "red" activities.

Four men were arrested when Soviet sympathizers attempted to hold a curbstone meeting after being barred from a downtown hall they announced had been hired for the purpose. Police kept close watch at large meetings in the plaza in the Mexican-Chinese district and a Boyle heights hall.

BOSTON POLICE CHARGE CROWD

BOSTON, Aug. 1. (AP)—Eight persons were arrested and scores battered about the head tonight when 50 policemen with drawn clubs charged a crowd of 1,000 in the south end, gathered for observance of international Red day. As an aftermath, three men went to police headquarters to protest alleged violence by the police.

DAY GENERALLY QUIET IN EUROPE

(By The Associated Press)

The anti-war demonstration day sponsored by communist organizations throughout the world passed after an atmosphere of peace befitting its objective and left large and apprehensive forces of troops and police in the capitals of Europe with little work on their hands.

Reports from capital after capital from the turbulent Balkans to sedate western Europe, belied expectations on the part of the police for a day of riot.

Workers generally failed to respond to the communist appeal for demonstrations.

In Moscow the day had no official character but was celebrated separately by different quarters and suburbs in the evening.

In Berlin several thousand communists paraded without disturbance.

Paris and London were quiet, Paris reporting a few arrests.

The police themselves brought on the only international complications when the Belgian government protested to Paris against deportation into Belgium of communists arrested in France.

Two Women Arrested, Beer Seized in Raid

Two women were arrested and a quantity of beer seized in a sheriff's department raid on an Austin street residence late Thursday afternoon. Charlie Gant, Dick Morris and George Garrett conducted the raid. The prisoners managed to empty several bottles of whisky down a drain as the officers entered the house, Mr. Gant reported. Charges of possession of beer will be filed Friday before J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner.

Frederick Farmer Dies At Hospital Here

D. S. Noe, 50, well known farmer of Frederick, Okla., died in a local hospital about 7 o'clock Thursday evening. The body was taken in charge by the Hines mortuary and will be forwarded to Frederick Friday. Mr. Noe is survived by one brother, W. W. Noe, 1305 Twelfth street, Wichita Falls. The body will be accompanied by the brother to Frederick for burial.

War Vet, Near Death, Seeks Argonne Forest Comrades

Former Wichitan Needs Affidavits for U. S. Compensation

The American legion post of Wichita Falls has received an urgent plea from a former Wichita Falls man, now an invalid in a government hospital at Pomona, Calif., to locate some of his Argonne Forest buddies who are needed to sign affidavits in order that he may satisfy the government requirements to get compensation and back pay.

The plea comes from Joe G. Blue, whose residence address is given as 590 Laurell avenue, Pomona, Calif., and is addressed in particular to K. B. Kinsner, of Wichita Falls. The letter received from Blue also urges that Bill Keyes and Troy Brown, be located, as three affidavits are required, and if these men are not found the legion is urged to find any others who served with Blue in the "Big Push."

Kinsner is in Dallas at present, according to his mother, Mrs. I. M. Kinsner, 1001 Seventeenth street.

Blue urges that the affidavits be rushed, as he is in a critical condition, and should death overtake the fulfillment of the governmental requirements, his wife and child would be bereft of funds rightly his.

Blue has sustained seven operations for ulcer of the stomach, which set in as a result of drinking shell-hole water and eating poisoned food while in the Argonne forest, the letter recites. Also, while carrying machine gun ammunition to the advancing troops, he was severely gassed, it continues. Some of the Wichita men, in particular Kinsner, were with him on some of the Argonne expeditions, and it is this fact which is needed in writing to conform to the government's requirements, it is pointed out.

Blue has sent affidavit forms, and should any of his former buddies be reached they are advised that the forms are in Mrs. Kinsner's possession.

Kiwanis Clubs of Ryan, Henrietta And Wichita Make Merry at Picnic

Special to The Record News

HENRIETTA, Texas, Aug. 1.—More than 150 persons of Wichita Falls, Henrietta, and Ryan, Okla., representing Kiwanis club members and their families of those cities, gathered for a barbecue picnic and entertainment at the Henrietta Golf club park Thursday night.

Dr. Ralph H. Peterson of Wichita Falls, who headed that club's committee on picnic arrangements, brought approximately 60 persons to the outdoor soiree, while more than 30 came from Ryan.

A surprise feature of the program was the appearance of L. A. McDonald of Denton, Texas, Kiwanis international governor of the Texas-Oklahoma district. Mr. McDonald's address on the work of Kiwanis headlined the entertainment which followed a barbecue dinner, prepared over open pits at the picnic site.

Other entertainment included several selections by the Tesco male quartet of Wichita Falls, composed of Harry Meyers, Ernest Reeves, Paul von Allmen, and H. W. Gray, with George Kerner as accompanist. Mr. Reeves, yodeling tenor, also gave two solos. Ryan's program consisted of numerous orchestral selections, and solos by a youthful violinist.

D. Sullivant, president of the Henrietta club, presided during the evening. Mr. McDonald was introduced by J. L. Jackson Jr., Wichita Falls, past lieutenant-governor of this district.

Before the picnickers gathered around the barbecue pits, a red hot playground ball game was waged between the Wichita Falls and Henrietta selected nines. The performance was featured by the long distance swatting of Dr. Jimmy Nail, and the backstopping of Phil Cordell, who corraled the elusive slants of Gerald Pond.

Runaway Wichita Girl Is Found Hiding Under Box Car

Within less than a week after she was sent back to her mother on probation, a 16-year-old Wichita Falls girl was found Thursday afternoon hiding under a box car, suit case at her side, at the end of another and even more vigorous quarrel with her mother.

James A. McDonald, juvenile officer, who had been called at the beginning of the squabble, took the girl into custody. Mr. McDonald said that a month and nine days in the juvenile ward of the jail faces the young prisoner.

Prince of Wales Guest of Scouts At Big Jamboree

ARROWE PARK, BIRKENHEAD, England, Aug. 1. (UP)—The chief scout of Wales—who happens to be the Prince of Wales as well—was the guest of honor tonight in this big tent city where 50,000 Boy Scouts from all parts of the globe are celebrating the 21st birthday of their organization with a "world jamboree."

The prince, who flew here from London despite rain and black clouds, arrived in civilian clothes but he immediately entered the big green tent reserved for his overnight stay and emerged in scout uniform.

The prince was guest of honor at a banquet held at Arrowe hall, which is an old Gothic mansion formerly owned by Lord Leverhulme. American scout officials present included Mortimer Schiff of New York, who gave the prince a check for $50,000 to be presented to the Boy Scouts of Great Britain. The fund will be used at the discretion of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the scout organization.

Servants Would Come Into Own Under Labor Law

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 1. (AP)—The long oppressed household servant will come into her own if the proposed national labor law is passed.

The law prohibits householders from maltreating their servants, obliges them to give the servant a chance to attend night school, to give her half pay when she is ill and unable to work and furnish her medical attention irrespective of the nature or origin of the illness and to pay for her burial if she dies in their employ.

No servant could be discharged without a good reason, the reasons being specified in the law, without being given a bonus equivalent to three months' salary.

The law also specifies that women in home or industrial employ be given a month's rest upon becoming mothers and that during the nursing period they be given two extra rest intervals of half an hour each day to attend to their children.

The maximum working day would be eight hours and six hours for persons under 16 years of age. Under no condition could women or minors be required to work overtime.

Refinery Fire Loss May Exceed $10,000

Investigation of damage caused by flames which broke out in a furnace at the Panhandle refinery on the Burkburnett road about 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning when oil from a broken tube above the furnace became ignited will not be possible for several days due to the terrific heat of the furnace, it was announced Thursday night by O. B. Males, plant superintendent.

In the event that the furnace was only slightly damaged, the loss will amount to approximately $10,000, but if it was ruined by the flames, the damage will amount to more than $15,000, it was said. Extensive repairs will be necessary at the cracking plant. Fire companies Nos. 1 and 6 responded to the alarm and fought the blaze for more than an hour before getting it under control. In spite of the fact that the fire was caused by burning oil, no dense smoke was present, probably due to the great heat in the furnace, it was explained.

Oil Expert Tells Of Summer Lubricants

"Few motorists understand what goes on in an automobile engine when driven at speeds of 35 miles an hour and higher," in the opinion of Fred F. Bedford, manager of the lubricating department of the Magnolia Petroleum company.

"At high speeds, the automobile engine is subjected to terrific strain and fierce heat. Even at lower speeds in hot weather, over long distances, it generates an intense degree of heat.

"Every moving part of the motor must get the right amount of lubrication and get it at the right time if it is to have complete protection against heat and friction," Mr. Bedford explained.

"Proper distribution of the crankcase oil and its ability to stand up under terrific heat and at high speeds are two factors that largely determine the length of life of a motor and the sort of service it gives its owner. When either one of those qualities are lacking, a damaged motor is sure to result.

"Hundreds of tests have shown that motor oils with a paraffine base retain their lubricating value longer under intense heat and at high speeds than asphalt base oils. That is because paraffine base crudes are given a heat-resisting quality by nature that she has not given asphalt crudes."

City Bands Enjoy Melon Feast, Swim

A watermelon feast following a double band concert, a special stunt program and a swim in the pool was enjoyed by members of the Municipal and Playground bands at Westmoreland park Thursday night. The event was sponsored by C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, with the aid of Otto Lazenby, manager of the pool, and was directed by C. C. Frazee, city recreational director, and Paul Seeds, director of both bands.

A large crowd attended the concerts and watched the program which included several tricks and humorous stunts arranged by Mr. Frazee. Part of the watermelons for the feast were donated by the Wichita Ice company, according to Mr. Bunnenberg.

SOUTHWEST IN TOILS OF HEAT

New Temperature Records In Three States

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 1. (AP)—The sweltering Southwest found no relief from the heat wave today.

Temperatures mounted to record levels in Oklahoma, Kansas and western Missouri, where the century mark has been exceeded for several days.

Upper Mississippi valley states, while escaping the extreme heat of this section, were due for warmer weather tomorrow, the weather bureau predicted.

Chicago had a maximum temperature today of 60 degrees, St. Paul 78 and Des Moines 79.

Local thundershowers were forecast for most of the parched grain belt.

The temperature mounted to 100 degrees in Kansas City today for the first time this summer. Kansas, the hottest spot in the country yesterday, again sizzled. Salina reported 104 degrees, Topeka 102 and Parsons 102 degrees.

At Bartlesville and Blackwell, Okla., the mercury soared to 106, while at Oklahoma City the century mark was reached.

Texas reported temperatures in the 90s. Cities along the East Gulf Coast suffered from the humidity.

Central Control Of Cotton Voted

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 1 (AP)—Centralization of control in the movement and sale of cotton must be made to fully meet the desires of the federal farm board, officials of the American Cotton Growers' exchange decided here today in their meeting with the American Institute of Co-operation.

C. O. Moser, Dallas, Texas, president of the exchange, stated only slight changes are necessary in the present setup of the growers' exchange, and that the cotton growers of the South would be requested to comply immediately with the wishes of the farm board in order to participate in the $500,000,000 farm relief program to be administered by the board.

Farm Tariff Hikes Made by Republicans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. (AP)—Agricultural tariff duties were given some boosts today by the Republicans of the senate finance committee as they worked through another hot day in revising the house tariff measure.

For the most part the agricultural duties were left about the same as in the house bill but increases were voted on oats, cherries, dates, lemons and onions.

Holliday Territory Noted for Bee Raising

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIDAY, Texas, Aug. 1.—Archer county and especially the Holliday territory is known for the increase in bee raising for home consumption of honey. R. A. Crowell and son, Ralph, have only two gums and from them, this week, have gathered 200 pounds of honey, 100 pounds to each. The honey is exceptionally fine in texture, light in color and delicious in taste, being made from flowers grown by the Acme Floral company, which is operated in connection with the farm. The floral company is owned by Mr. Crowell and son, Ralph. Some of the nectar was gathered by the bees from the abundant mesquite blooms of this summer, which are always the source of the best flavors.

G. B. Counts of Dad's Corner, near here, also has a number of hives and the bees have been, as the old proverb, "busy as a bee" and he is looking forward to a supply when he shall "rob" them.

SPUDDERS RALLY TO WIN IN EIGHTH AND SWEEP SERIES, 9-5

TURGEON'S HIT CLEANS BASES

Bennett and Fitz Hammer Homers With One On

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The Spudders kept plugging away yesterday and after getting up to within striking distance, they struck. Trailing 5 to 4 in the eighth inning, Galloway's gallopers hammered out five tallies to sweep the series of three from the San Antonio Indians. The score was 9 to 5.

Paul Hopkins had his baptism of fire in Spudder regalia but the young righthander recently acquired from the St. Louis Browns was shelled off the hill by the enemy. Hopkins looked like he has the requisites of a pitcher, but home runs by Jim Riley and Leo Casey with a runner on the base lines on each occasion in the first and third innings got the slender boy off to a bad start.

Hopkins was relieved in the fourth inning after two were out and with the bases filled and Lester White prevented further scoring and retired from the pastime to permit a pinch hitter to bat for him in the eighth. And it was George Payne who toiled the ninth, the iron man with the big heart turning back the hostiles in order in that round, in working his sixth day out of the last seven.

Spuds Win in Eighth

Red Bennett banged a home run in the first round to also score a comrade and Bill Hargrove kept the Spudders scoreless until the fifth when he allowed two more tallies. He was replaced by Hobo Carson in the seventh after passing the first two batters and it looked like there was to be no more scoring for the home nine. And then the Spuds broke loose in that eighth.

Stapleton led off with a single to center and Crouch sacrificed. Bettencourt, batting for White, and Benton walked, filling the bases. Turgeon drove home three runs by smashing the center field wall. Fitzgerald hit over the right field fence, Turgeon ambling in ahead.

Howard Fitzgerald featured again with some brilliant defensive play, as did Red Bennett and the Spudder infield, despite four misplays, following two successive games in which the league leaders had not had a boot.

Homers Start Game

Riley drove a home run over the center field wall, driving in Flippen, who had gone all the way to second on Hermann's wild throw on his grounder in the first inning. Tate and Casey struck out and Fitzgerald came in for a shoestring grab of Brozovich's liner.

Turgeon singled to deep short but was forced by Fitzgerald, and then Red Bennett whanged his circuit smash over the left field palisade, sending Howard in ahead of him. Sullivan surprised Flippen by placing a hit which the shortstop only knocked down and Hermann also singled but they were left on the lines.

Hopkins retired the enemy in order in the second. The Spudders also failed to get on base in their half.

The Indians tallied three in the third after two were out. Flippen singled past short into center and rode home on Casey's smack over the left field fence. Riley walked. Brozovich doubled to center, scoring Riley.

Turgeon strolled, Fitz flied to Brozovich and Bennett bounced a hit to Tate but Sullivan drove to Kott and Turgeon was doubled at second on Flippen's relay to Gordon.

White Replaces Hopkins

San Antonio filled the bases in the fourth after two were gone, when Hargrove singled to center and Tate and Flippen walked. White replaced Hopkins and Bennett went to the stands to haul down Casey's foul.

Stapleton was passed and White hit to center but they were stranded.

Crouch dropped Brozovich's foul in the fifth and then the Indian gardener hit to center but Jack made up for it by throwing him out trying to steal second.

The Spudders tallied two in the fifth. Turgeon strolled for the second time and advanced to second on Fitzgerald's single to right. Kott took Bennett's lift. Sullivan slashed a hit to left, scoring Turgeon, Fitzgerald stopping at second. Hermann walked, filling the bases. Fitzgerald scored when Stapleton forced Hermann, Riley to Flippen.

Fielding Halts Tribe

The Indians got three runners on base in the sixth but sharp fielding averted more run-getting. Hermann booted Gordon's grounder and threw wide to first. Meyers walked. Fitzgerald made a great running one-hand snatch of Hargrove's liner. White picked Gordon off second, Benton tagging Milt. Tate walked. Benton flashed speed in scooping Flippen's grounder, deflected by White, and Tate was forced at second.

Brozovich singled to center in the seventh after two were out, but it availed nothing.

Fitzgerald and Bennett were passed and Hargrove was relieved by Carson. Sullivan forced Fitz at third, Carson to Tate, on a bunt and Hermann bounced into a double play, Tate to Riley.

Meyers singled and stole second in the eighth and Tate walked for the third time but Benton grabbed Flippen's liner for the third out.

Payne went to the hill in the ninth and caused Casey to lift to Bennett and Riley to pop to Benton. Bennett made a sparkling catch of Brozovich's drive.

Messenger Hurls Today

Andy Messenger, one of the league's foremost hurlers and recently obtained from San Antonio, will pitch his first game today in the livery of the Spudders, Manager Galloway said last night. The hostiles will be the Waco Cubs, who open a three-day stand out at the lot and it is likely that Earl Caldwell, ace of the Bruin staff, will be Del Pratt's chucker.

Chick Galeria, left handed bespectacled hurler, has been sent to Springfield of the Western association on option, President J. Alvin Gardner announced last night.

MANDELL IS 2 TO 1 FAVORITE TO WHIP CANZONERI TONIGHT

20,000 TO SEE TITLE BATTLE

Sammy Figures to Outfight And Outbox Tony

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. (AP)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, will wear his three-year-old crown into Paddy Harmon's Chicago stadium tomorrow night and defy Tony Canzoneri to knock it off.

They will meet in a 10-round battle to a decision. Upwards of 20,000 spectators will witness the contest, with indications of a gate ranging around $130,000, perhaps $140,000 if the big west side arena is sold out.

Sammy in Fine Fettle

Mandell, defending his title for the third time against a really dangerous challenger will enter the ring a 2 to 1 favorite. Perfectly trained, and in the greatest physical condition of his career, he has no fear of losing to the former featherweight champion. He figures his advantage in weight, speed reach and strength will carry him to victory.

Canzoneri is just as confident he can bounce a knockout punch off Mandell's chin.

Unless the boxing experts are completely wrong, Mandell figures to win as he pleases from Canzoneri. They rate the New York challenger as just a willing young man, who is taking on quite an assignment in attempting to annex the lightweight title. Because Canzoneri is a busy, tireless fighter, however, he is accorded some sort of a chance.

Champ Has Advantage

The champion will outweigh Canzoneri by four to five pounds by the time they crawl into the ring. Mandell has had no really serious difficulty in paring himself down to the championship limit of 135 pounds, despite all reports to the contrary. Canzoneri on the other hand has been building himself up and figures to scale around 132 pounds when they weigh in.

Mandell laughed off reports he had been harassed by threats of violence presumably made by gambling factions and that he had been under police guard at his hotel.

"That's just a lot of bunk," the champion said.

Daily Dope

By LARRY DAILEY

SAMMY Mandell places his lightweight championship in jeopardy tonight against the assault of Tony Canzoneri. They are to fight 10 rounds at Chicago and the dope is that the Rockford lad will retain his crown. That is, if the gamblers and gangsters haven't worried and harrassed the champion to such an extent that he will be something like the hollow shell that was Dempsey at Philadelphia.

Perhaps it's a press agent scheme, but the story that Sammy had been spirited out of his training camp to hide in seclusion until the gong sounds has a ring of truth in it. Those thugs of Chicago would take any means to attain their end, but it does strike one as rather odd that the boys would wager on Canzoneri and be placed in a position where they had to harm Sammy to prevent him from fighting.

Those sure thing gamblers never make a bet unless they're stringing along with the likely winner or are in on the know on something that isn't on the up and up.

Anyhow, Mandell figures to outbox and outfight Tony, although Canzoneri has whipped some very good lighties since he lost the featherweight title to Andre Routis some months ago.

MARTY Berghammer's Wichita Falls-Tulsa club at Milwaukee continues to play improved and fighting ball and is making other American association teams watch their step when playing the Brewers. The Milwaukee club won its third straight game Wednesday by taking a double-header, after setting an association record of six double plays Tuesday.

Herbie Cobb won the first game Wednesday from Louisville in 10 innings, 2 to 1, the Pine Tops, N. C., gentleman limiting the Colonels to five hits.

Tom Jenkins continues to hit at a creditable pace and Brick Eldred still gets into action occasionally.

SUBSTITUTE BOXER WINS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 1. (AP)—Manuel Quintero, Tampa, Fla., lightweight, won the decision over Joe Glick, the Brooklyn tailor, in the 10-round main bout of the Ebbets field show tonight. Quintero was a last minute substitute for Billy Wallace of Cleveland, who was taken sick today.

Potatoes were first seen by Europeans in Peru about 1531.

Amateurs Turning Pro

A bystander wants to know in what game more amateurs turn professional. The answer here is simple. Baseball. There are close to 100 ex-college ballplayers now in the major leagues and a still larger number in minor leagues scattered here and there. Baseball is all stocked up with ex-collegians. Few star amateur golfers or tennis players have turned professional. Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank are two of the leaders who switched to the professional side after they had made reputations as fine amateur players. Denny Shute is another. He was a good amateur player three years ago, but not every one can remain a star amateur golfer and make a living out of something else. Shute joined the ranks of the pros about two years ago and has made good with a rush. He carried Horton Smith nine or ten extra holes in Florida and then came within two strokes of tying Jones and Espinoza at Winged Foot. Shute will go a much longer way before he is through, as he is a fine shot maker with his full share of brains and nerve control.

Outside of Suzanne Lenglen, Vinnie Richards is the most notable of the tennis amateurs to switch over to the pro side. Only a few tennis professionals have any chance of making a good living from the game as there are too few tennis clubs who can afford to pay for a good professional. There are something like 4,000 professional golfers in the country, but most of them started as caddies or as club makers or else came over from the other side where in the main they followed the same trade. There are few in this list who were first-class amateur players before they made the change.

Football Pros

In figuring out the totals football has given more amateurs to the professional side than all the others put together. Practically every professional football team is recruited from the college list. And this doesn't include the many thousands of coaches who as a rule were all college football luminaries in their day and time.

Such coaches as Warner, Rockne, Roper, Jones, Spears, McGugin, McEwan, Stagg, Yost, Kipke, etc., were all stars in their day and time. One of the few to best the barrier was Bob Zuppke of Illinois, who received no collegiate cheers for gridiron prowess. But few have ever piled up a record to match the Orange and Blue director.

A Quick Champion

My dear Mr. Rice: Just a note to add to some of your information about Ira H. Rodgers, our head football coach, all-American captain on Walter Camp's team in 1919, and placed at fullback.

"Rodg" took up golf three years ago for some outdoor exercise during the summer months, and this year had reached such perfection at the game as to give hopes of reaching the "first flight" in the state championships at White Sulphur Springs. He not only qualified for the first 16, but came through with the championship against a strong field of contestants. The feat of winning the title would be sufficient glory for any golfer in West Virginia, but the manner in which he has reached the peak was just a repetition of the method he used to attain the peak in other sports. Concentration, competitive spirit, never getting rattled against the breaks, but plugging right along—and he brought home the championship.

A year ago, he gave warning of what was in the "offing," but in a milder form, by winning the local country club championship against a field of good players, including several previous titleholders.—D. A. C.

Concerning Rodgers

Few have made the quick progress in golf that Ira Rodgers developed. But it isn't so surprising to those who know him. Rodgers has the knack of picking up a game quickly, and the concentration and determination to carry it through. Back in 1919 he was one of the greatest forward passers football has ever known, and a star outside of his passing, as Princeton will recall. He has turned into one of the best football coaches in the game, smart, capable, resourceful and always able to get the best out of his squad. Rodgers may start a season with rather seedy prospects but his team nearly always finishes among the best.

With all of that, few have ever taken up golf and within three years worked out a game around 75, ever under championship pressure.

Rodgers captained the West Virginia team that beat Princeton 26 to 0. His passing in that battle was one of the season's features.

Rodgers proved in his football days that he had remarkable use of his hands. This is the factor that turned him into a fine golf player within three years. The trouble with most golfers is that they have never learned that it is the club head that hits the ball and that it is the hands that direct the club-head. The majority seemed to have forgotten they had a pair of hands.

PUBLIC LINKS PLAY ON SOON

National Muny Meet Opens Aug. 6 at St. Louis

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (AP)—Public links golfers who play over the St. Louis municipal course at St. Louis for the national championship, Aug. 6-10, will need their strongest woods for the ninth hole. The attractive Forest Park course, with its many natural hazards, measures 6,229 yards. More than 10 per cent of the yardage is claimed from the ninth tee, 641 yards with a par of six, one of the few par six holes in the United States.

Forest Park has six short holes. The shortest one-shooter is 172 yards.

The United States Golf association has announced entries for the women's amateur championship will close Sept. 21. The title will be decided Sept. 30 to Oct. 5 over the championship course of the Oakland Hills Country club, Birmingham, Mich., where Cyril Walker won the open in 1924.

Miss Glenna Collett, titlist for the third time, will come from California to defend her crown and will have spirited opposition from the other great women golfers of the country. Oakland Hills is a long course covering 6,874 yards with a par of 72. It has four holes rated at five, three on the second nine.

The refusal of Robert T. Jones Jr. to permit his name to be put forward for a nomination for congress from Georgia, deprives the house of representatives of an opportunity to lower its golf handicap.

If the open and amateur champion had been nominated and elected he would have been the first scratch golfer to hold a seat in the national legislative body.

According to Alex (Sandy) Armour, professional at the Congressional Country club, there are no "real good" golfers in congress.

El Paso May Enter Arizona State League

MIAMI, Ariz., Aug. 1. (AP)—Possibility that El Paso, Texas, will endeavor to join the Arizona State Baseball league next season was indicated in a letter received here today from the sports editor of the El Paso Post.

El Paso has been out of the baseball picture for the past three years, but belief was expressed the Texas city would support a club with the quality of players now playing in the Arizona league. At present the Arizona league has but seven members, one having been dropped out a few weeks ago.

WINS NET TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1. (AP)—Bryan Grant of Atlanta won the southern tennis championship for the third successive year here today, defeating Jack Mooney of Atlanta, 6-0, 6-0, 6-3.

Congressional Golfers Indorse Candidacy of Robert Tyre Jones

By FRASER EDWARDS

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Congressional golfers, who constitute a safe working majority of the national legislature, today enthusiastically but unofficially, of course, placed the stamp of approval on the Bobby Jones-for-congress movement which has been launched in Georgia.

In fact, if the question of electing a successor to the late Representative Leslie J. Steele, of the fifth Georgia district, were left to the golfing solons on Capitol Hill the national open and amateur golf champion would be chosen unanimously.

Nor would the election to congress of this idol of the mashie fiends set any precedent. In the past, many men have been elevated to the seats of the mighty almost solely because of their prowes in the field of sports.

For instance, there was John K. Tener, of Pennsylvania, a professional baseball player, who was elected to the house and later governor of the Keystone state. He was afterwards president of the National baseball league.

Morrisey Was Fighter

John Morrissey, a native of Ireland, who was heavyweight boxing champion of the world in 1858, was sent to congress from New York But the legislative halls cramped John's style, so after one term he bought up the Saratoga race track and the betting concessions.

Fred Britten of Chicago, once was amateur lightweight boxing champion and he still is handy with his "dukes." Ham Fish of New York was Harvard's all-American football star. Another luminary of the gridiron, former Representative Pat Norton of North Dakota, demonstrated the flying tackle on Tom Heflin in the house during the heat of a world war debate on pro-Germanism.

Among the former college baseball stars the late Jimmy Gallivan of Boston, who cavorted at second for Harvard while Sam Winslow, now on the railway mediation board, did the pitching. Jimmy Wadsworth of New York, was the "guardian of the initial sack," as the baseball writers say, at Yale.

The keenness of congressmen for Bobby Jones as a colleague is due to the fact that golf now is the official sport of the lawmakers. Baseball has been tossed into the discard. The annual ball game between the house Republicans and Democrats has given way to a golf tournament between the house and senate, regardless of politics.

House Would Beat Senate

The house golfers, with admirable foresight, have it all figured out that with Bobby to instruct them in the use of midirons and niblicks they could lick the daylights out of the haughty senate crew. The house boys feel considerably handicapped under the present circumstances.

While they are treated much after the manner of school boys and must give some sort of creditable excuse to get away for an afternoon on the links, the senate is conducted more after the manner of a club and the senators just walk out and leave legislation flat whenever they feel the urge to pursue the elusive white pill.

The house is not without its sterling golfers, but the list of golfers in the senate is almost as long as the roll call. Like Abou Ben Adhem, Henry Allen of Kansas, leads all the rest merely because his name comes first. Pat Harrison of Mississippi, lays claim to the championship of the senate, but this is hotly disputed by Charlie McNary of Oregon and Freddie Gillett of Massachusetts.

Joe Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, is no mean golfer.

Wesley Jones, author of the famous "5 and 10 law." Is by long odds the most enthusiastic golfer in the senate. He once got up at 1 o'clock in the morning to play a round with Buck Oliver of Alabama. There was some slight mistake about it, however.

Wes Makes Mistake

Some friend presented Wes with a radiolight wrist watch. The senator awakened with a start to see a hand pointing to four o'clock. He bounded out of bed and got into his clothes faster than a fireman. When he reached the street in front of his hotel, he whiled away the time taking practice swings until a crowd of roisters yelled:

"Atta boy, the early bird swallows the golf ball."

Wes looked at his watch, blushed becomingly, as he had expected the east to do, and returned to his bed for three hours more sleep. Then Jim Preston, superintendent of the senate press galley, after hearing the story, rigged up a tee with a candle attachment for Wesley's midnight golf.

Millard Tydings of Maryland is so hipped on golf that he has a nine hole course on his farm near Harve de Grace. Tom Connally of Texas, who has longer hair than Senator Borah, has recently taken up golf on the municipal course as a waistline reducer. They may yet get Tom to don knickers, if they promise not to tell his constituents.

TEXAS LEAGUE PELLETS VARY

Obtaining Uniform Balls Is Difficult, Ruggles Says

DALLAS, Aug. 1. (AP)—The problem of obtaining uniform shipments of baseballs has caused worry at Texas league headquarters here during the present season, according to William B. Ruggles, acting league president.

"We have had all sorts of balls this year," he said. "Some have been so lively that while they were in use batting averages spurted throughout the league. Others have been so dead it was difficult to knock them out of the infield. Several shipments have been sent back to the manufacturers because they were so evidently not up to standard."

"Once I was worried.

Mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. He told me that S.S.S. was a great blood tonic; that it had been successful for over 100 years; that it was made from fresh vegetable drugs and would not harm the most delicate system. Also that it would build up the blood and improve the processes by which the body is nourished. I brought home a large size bottle. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red blood builds sturdy health

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again, sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. is daily helping people regain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It helps Nature build red-blood-cells. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

MACHINE AIDS DAIRY FARMER

Milking Problem Solved By Small Motor

Among the many developments which have marked the constant growth of milk producing activities in Wichita Falls and vicinity during the last two years, a device of economy and efficiency now in use at the Guernsey Farm dairy, on the old Petrolia road, has attracted favorable attention, according to local dairy leaders.

The gradual increase in the number of cows maintained by this dairy finally bringing the herd up to more than 80, the task of milking twice daily resolved itself into a severe test of manpower. It was said that this amount of milking would represent about 16 labor hours, which fact greatly enhanced the advantages of a milking machine.

The power which now completes the milking service for 80 cows in slightly more than two hours, with the help of two boys, is derived from a very small one-cylinder gasoline engine which consumes about two cupfuls of gasoline at each operation, it was reported. The use of a long, light connecting rod, so mounted as to give the tiny engine the effect of a long stroke, was said to provide ample power for operating succesfully the milker. The sanitation, economy and labor-saving elements in the equipment were pointed out as suggesting similar methods to many other dairymen of the community.

COTTON NOTES

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (UP)—The Norden and company condition estimate has attracted considerable attention. It placed the condition of the belt of July 25 at 68.9, as follows: North Carolina 66, South Carolina 64, Georgia 69, Alabama 71, Mississippi 73, Louisiana 74, Texas 65, Oklahoma 72, Arkansas 71, Tennessee 72, sundries 78, average 68.9, last month 71, last year 68.

Conditions are remarkably favorable for weevil activity at present, particularly in eastern sections of the belt.

Gray goods business is in fair volume and prices are holding at recent firm levels.

Plans for the merger of about 1,500,000 fine goods spindles in Newbedford, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Fall River are being completed.

Reports from Charlotte, N. C., say that so far weevil damage has been negligible and farmers are preparing to put on poison, very little of which has been used up to the present time.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (AP)—The opening of the new cotton season was marked by rather nervous and irregular fluctuations today, but there were generally higher prices in the cotton market. Early advances were followed by reactions under realizing, but unfavorable features in the weather and crop news were reflected by renewed buying in the late trading and the market closed steady at net gains of 4 to 10 points after selling up to 19.53 early. December contracts reacted to 19.33 but later advanced to 19.48 and closed at 19.44 compared with 19.40 at the close of the previous day.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 15 points on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement which was supposed to be inspired by increasing nervousness over the new crop outlook. Active months sold about 9 to 16 points net higher during the early trading with October advancing to 19.30 and March to 19.68.

These prices attracted considerable realizing and business became less active with prices showing reactions during the middle of the day under further profit-taking which seemed to be combined with some New Orleans and Southern selling. October eased off to 19.10 and March to 19.54 making net declines of 2 to 7 points but offerings tapered off at these levels while there were evidences of some local buying on the decline.

A renewal of covering followed and the market worked up again later in the day with March selling up to 19.73, or about 15 points net higher.

Closing quotations were several points off from the best under realizing.

Another private crop report was published placing the condition at 68.1 and the indicated yield at 14,845,000 bales, these figues being lower than indicated by reports issued earlier in the week. This may have been responsible for some of the buying on the mid-day decline, while the late market was also influenced by the detailed weather reports showing very little rain and continued high temperatures in the western belt, and further rains or showers in the east.

The season-end figures from New Orleans placing the season's consumption of American lint cotton at 15,256,000 bales and the carry-over at 4,395,000 exclusive of linters were considered about in line with expectations.

Port receipts today 514 bales. U. S. port stocks 520,540. Exports for the day and season so far, 10,764.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1. (AP)—Cotton today was influenced mainly by Secretary Hester's annual statistics, an early advance on a larger than expected consumption total being followed by a reaction on realizing and selling over disappointment on the large carry-over. October after advancing to 19.21, eased off to 18.98 and closed at 19.04, or 4 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net advances of 4 to 8 points.

Liverpool cables were disappointing. The market here opened firm. The bullish consumption total of 16,309,000 bales influenced enough early demand to carry December to 19.40, or 20 to 21 points above the previous close.

Buying tapered off at the advance and considerable realizing developed as well as selling in an effort to even commitments in advance of the government's report. The 4,679,000 bales carried over at the end of the season was larger than most traders expected. At the lowest December touched 19.18, or 22 to 23 points down from the highs.

Covering developed in final trading. The market rallied slightly, December closing at 19.24, or 4 net higher. March showed the maximum advance of 8 points for the day, closing at 19.49.

Tightening Money Fails to Stop Firm Advance of New York Stocks

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (US)—Tightening money failed to halt the advance in the stock market today. Steel moved ¼ higher into new high record ground closing at the top price of $213¼. It was followed closely by Can while other Standard Industrials remained firm throughout. Specialties scored the best individual advances with General Electric gaining 4¼, Radio 2⅞, Westinghouse 7⅝, and Montgomery Ward 5¾. Pacific Lighting gained 6 and Peoples Gas jumped over 8 points more. Anaconda added over 2 points to its recovery while other Copper shares gained about the same amount. Railroads turned a little irregular as a result of profit taking while the Oils remained quiet but fairly firm. The call rate moved to 12 per cent from renewal of 10 per cent. Turnover held around the 3,500,000 share level.

Increasing public participation was influenced by the widespread report that the Morgan group were friendly to the market. Steel and Can were the main subjects of bullish talk. One of the most active commission firms put out a special analysis on Steel outlining the benefits to common stockholders from the recapitalization and retirement of bonds. It emphasized the likelihood of a split up of the stock late in the year. Leading brokers reported that the strongest interests in Can had raised the price objective. They pointed out that earnings are running well ahead of the most optimistic estimates made earlier in the year and the outlook for business was such as to indicate further betterment during the remainder of the year. The belief was expressed that Can ultimately would be split up again but before that happens it was maintained extra cash dividend would be distributed.

Interests who have been active in American Can for many months were most responsible for the strength in Gillette. Special developments were forecast as a result of improvement in earnings resulting from the exclusively controlled output of the company. General Asphalt continued to be supported by the group that took an important position in the stock some weeks ago. It was pointed out that report of income for the first half was misleading in that the company did not start working in the black until May. Revenue now, it was estimated, was running at the rate of close to a dollar a share a month.

Electric Investors held leading place among the Utilities advancing to new record high close to $200 a share above where it was when its possibilities were first told of here. The company is offering additional preferred stock and with the proceeds will acquire additional interests in leading electric light and power organizations. Buying of Pirelli was attributed to an important banking group. It was rumored that announcement would be made soon of a new acquisition made by the company. Those interested in Anaconda pointed to the larger sales of copper metal for export as basis for expectation that the price of the red metal would not go lower.

Increase in brokers' loans of $52,000,000 to a new high of $5,960,000,000 was larger than expected but is not likely to have much influence. Continued gain, however, should bring some more "warnings" from the reserve.

Sir Montagu Norman was reported to be on his way back to England. The further drop in reserves of the Bank of England is likely to bring increase in the rate next week. Such action would not necessarily bring a higher rate here but increasing public participation in stock dealings would. That the reserve is endeavoring to maintain easy money in agricultural districts while forcing continued high rates here was evidenced by the statement showing a gain of $11,758,000 in bills discounted by the system and the decline of $13,000,000 by the local bank.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 1. (AP)—Expectation that private crop estimates to be isued tomorrow will prove advantageous to friends of higher prices helped to turn wheat values decidedly upward today. Reports were that field conditions for wheat in the American northwest, and in Canada as well, have gone from bad to worse the past week.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅝c to 1½c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ⅝c net decline to ⅛c advance, oats ⅛c off to ¼@⅜c up, and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of a shade.

Notice was taken that speculative holdings of wheat future deliveries in Chicago increased to 210,000,000 bushels with continued liberal arrivals of newly harvested wheat here, 756 cars today against 223 a year ago, elevator space is becoming limited.

In the end, corn and oats rallied with wheat, ignoring prospects for more favorable weather. Earlier, a forecast of showers over the greater part of the corn belt was the main influence.

Provisions were steadied by upturns in the value of hogs.

U. S. Motor Spot Prices Reduced

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 1.—As July drew to a close, it was noted that some Oklahoma refiners, who have been holding their U. S. motor quotations at 7¾ to 8 cents a gallon, in tank car lots, have reduced their spot prices to 7¼ to 7½ cents a gallon.

Unwillingness of many jobbers to stock up above current needs and an opinion on the part of many that additional readjustments might be expected has had a hand in this development. Contract business shows no let-up, it is learned.

The Standard Oil company of Ohio has reduced service station price of gasoline one cent a gallon in Columbian, Mahoning, Wayne and Jackson counties.

Report comes that the Pecos Valley Refining company of Pyote, Texas, operated by Gene Griswold, has been placed in the hands of a receiver and that W. M. Harrison of the Star Producing and Refining company is the receiver.

USED CARS

WHAT do we mean by "solid values?" Simply this:

When you buy a used car from us you pay just what that car is worth. There has been no inflation in the resale price to take care of an unreasonable trade-in allowance.

The price of the new Ford is very low, and the value high; there is no leeway for excessive trade-in allowances. That is why you can buy a used car from us knowing the price you pay is for the service that car will give, and nothing else. Our used car department is based on a spirit of fair dealing. We would hardly care to risk our reputation by acting otherwise.

TWO HIGHWAY ELECTIONS SET

$1,100,000 in Bonds Up To Panhandle Voters

BORGER, Texas, Aug. 1.—Voters in three counties on the north plains of the Texas panhandle will go to the polls during the next few weeks to vote on the issuance of nearly $1,100,000 in bonds for road building purposes. Elections have already been called for two counties and the commissioners of a third meet this month to hold a hearing on a petition.

Hutchinson county has the first election, Aug. 10, when a proposal to issue $150,000 to pay the county's part on highway 117 is to be voted on. The state proposes to build 18.2 miles north from Stinnett, the county seat, to the Hansford county line, paying for two-thirds of the cost with the county one-third and the 100-foot right of way.

Ochiltree commissioners have set Sept. 3 as their election date, when an issue of $700,000 is to be decided. This issue will call for construction of more than 30 miles on highway 117 and about the same amount on highway No. 4 from the Oklahoma line south to near Canadian.

Highway 117 in Ochiltree county will be paved from Booker, in the northeastern part of the county, through Perryton to the west side of the line some 10 or 15 miles east of Spearman. The road follows the Santa Fe branch from Booker to Spearman.

Commissioners of Hansford county will hear objections to the calling of an election, on Aug. 12. It is proposed to call an election for road district No. 1, the south part of the county, to vote bonds in the sum of $240,000. Owing to the fact that commissioner's precinct No. 1 has been made a road district, this method is necessary.

Should the bonds carry in all counties and the roads are completed, it will give a hard surface road 125 miles long, from Amarillo to Booker by way of Panhandle, Borger, Stinnett, Spearman and Perryton. Five county seat towns will thus be connected by an all weather road. It is now paved from Amarillo to Stinnett, with the exception of about seven miles in Carson county north of Panhandle, now being completed.

Altus Promises Good Cotton, Grain Harvest

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 1.—One of the most promising cotton and grain harvest years in the history of southwestern Oklahoma was prophesied by Hugh M. Fry, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, following an overland tour of trade territory within a radius of 26 miles which included 15 towns.

"The countryside is a veritable garden," Fry declared. "I have never seen crop conditions in this part of the country look more favorable."

Borger Beauty Expert Makes Bond

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, Aug. 1.—After being held in jail for a week, unable to raise a satisfactory bond, Mrs. Irene Head, pretty Borger beauty parlor operator, secured her release from the county jail at Stinnett on a habeas corpus writ from the 84th district court. Judge Newton P. Willis, sitting at Panhandle, Carson county, heard the case and fixed bond at $1,000.

Mrs. Head was charged with perjury by her former attorney, Joseph H. Waynesworth, of Stinnett, through whose efforts she secured a divorce from Dr. J. W. Head, Borger physician, last June.

Judge Aynesworth brought contempt of court proceedings against her and followed them with a perjury charge. The woman was arrested in Amarillo after she had made bond on the contempt charge.

Hearing of the case is scheduled to be held during the term which begins Oct. 14.

MIZELL BEGINS DAIRY WORK

Assistant County Agent Assumes New Duties

John L. Mizell, assistant county agent and dairy expert for Wichita county, arrived in Wichita Falls Thursday to assume direction of a movement for the development of the dairy industry within the county.

Mr. Mizell, former instructor at A & M. college and more recently secretary of the chamber of commerce at Yoakum, was employed two weeks ago at a salary of $3,600 to undertake a three year program of development, including the purchase, feeding, and grading of dairy stock, the organization of dairy associations and bull circles, and the handling of marketing problems. He is to work with the state department of agriculture and the extension department at A. & M college as well as through the county officials.

The expert Thursday afternoon interviewed John P. Marrs, county judge, and Luke McCrory, chairman of a bankers and dairymen's committee which has been backing the movement. He has moved his household from Yoakum and expects to find a home in the suburbs within the next few weeks. The family is temporarily located on Keeler street.

Mr. Mizell will share the office of G. C. McGowan, county agent, and will begin the work of a general survey of conditions in the county at once.

Compensation of $4,972 Asked in Suit Here

Compensation totaling $4,972.40 is sought in a suit filed Thursday by E. W. Whatley against the Security Union Insurance company, in connection with an oil field accident near here on May 5, 1928. The plaintiff seeks compensation for partial disability at the rate of $12.40 a week for 401 weeks.

The petition filed in the office of the district clerk alleges that Whatley received permanent injuries when his knee was knocked against a concrete wall by the fall on a piece of heavy timber in the course of refinery construction work in May, 1928.

Miller Says State Didn't Understand Amendments

DALLAS, Aug. 1. (UP)—Texans did not understand the proposed amendment for a nine-man state supreme court or they would have voted for the measure, Barry Miller, lieutenant governor, said here today.

Miller, in pointing out that most taxpayers believed wrongly that the increased size of the court would cost them more money, said the measure would be submitted again in the general election of 1930.

Today | At the Theaters
By W. L. UNDERWOOD

MAJESTIC: "The Trial of Mary Dugan," courtroom drama with Norma Shearer, Lewis Stone and Raymond Hackett. Vitaphone vaudeville. Paramount news.

STRAND: Last day of "High Voltage," with William Boyd and Carol Lombard purified by freezing. Walt Roesner's orchestra. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Ken Maynard's wild west show rounding up revolutionists in Europe in "The Royal Rider." Sportlight. Mack Sennett comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: Bob Custer in "Texas Tommy." Chapter 4 of "The Pirates of Panama." Comedy.

The unabated success of Christopher Morley's bold venture at the old Hoboken theater, New York, suggests the possibilities of a similar tack in the motion picture field, should the crop of screen comedy wilt under the strain of forced growth.

Following two months of comparatively unrewarded effort last fall, Mr. Morley's revivals of late-Victorian drama suddenly caught attention of Broadway's pleasure-hunting millions with the production of "Neither Wife, Maid nor Widow," which was styled "After Dark" in its original triumph 50 years ago. For the last nine months, reproductions of other melodramatic hits of the same period have drawn innumerable throngs nightly across the Hudson, to hiss and whistle at will as the moustached villain pursues the fair heroine.

The silver screen has no antiquity comparable with that of the boards, but the changes of 20 years in its development compare to those of centuries on the legitimate stage. The old one-reelers of 1908 take place with the rubber tired buggy in the pageant of vehicular progress, "Old Peppersass" in a century of steam locomotion, and the overstuffed family album in home decoration.

Resources for weeks of entertainment lie under the dust of Hollywood's film libraries. Brush off first the numerous reels of "The Million Dollar Mystery," one of the earliest serials. Brave in those hair-raising acts of bravery is James Cruze, who a decade later became one of the screen's most noted directors. Peggy Wood—she was his wife that year—was the villainess, and Florence Labadie, long since dead, the inspiring heroine.

Another of the serials—Saturday specials—of that era probably had much to do with a shortage of zoo lions. "The Adventures of Kathleen," enacted weekly, dragged those resigned beasts through the entire geography, with constantly increasing emaciation. Our hero's lasso is thrown just in the nick of time—it tightens about her body—she is lifted above the reach of those hungry beasts—safe! No—the noose slipped—she is falling! "Five minutes intermission while the operator is changing reels."

So much for a nickel. But there was the 10-cent production up the street in the next block. Mary Fuller and Alfred Johnson in "Scandal at the Sunday School Picnic." Mary was so neat in those white skirt-waists and pleated skirts. Mary Pickford, "America's Little Sweetheart." Woolworth's in Omaha with a special sale of large framed pictures of Mary in her curls for a dime. Maurice Costello, father of the present stars, Helene and Dolores, starring with Lillian Walker, Francis X. Bushman, the Apollo, for whom were born the feminine sighs which grew to full maturity for the later Rudolph Valentino.

The rotund John Bunny with Flora Finch—the best comedy team of 1910. Dorothy Dalton, hurled savagely over the precipice. Marguerite Clark in "Little Snow-white"—curls which rivalled Mary's. Charlie Chaplin in his first sensational two-reeler, "Tillie's Busted Romance." And Theda Bara in "A Fool There Was"—the hussy.

The loud flapping of the loose end of celluloid strip announced the end of the reel, and was immediately followed by a speedy re-wind of the film by hand. Which process, in this particular instance, suddenly and literally effect a change from sublime to ridiculous. The last days of Christ, concluding with the crucifixion scene at the cross, had just been shown. In his haste, the operator failed to extinguish the carbon arc's projecting light, and as the film was speedily rewound, the silent spectators beheld the amazing spectacle of the principal character leaping from the cross, and pursuing the sorrowing crowd frantically down the hill, all of the multitude in reverse.

SHIP DISPLAYS WHITE FLAG

Exploring Craft Leaves For Anarticia

LONDON, Aug. 1. (US)—Sir Douglas Mawson's antarctic exploring ship, S. S. Discovery, started its two-year cruise along the unmapped Antarctic coast by ramming the east India dock here today before the tugs could get it clear of the berth.

But the Discovery, built to withstand the shocks of solid ice and floating bergs, suffered not so much damage as the wharf it rammed.

A small crowd of old Antarctic shellbacks present at the departure gave Capt. John King Davis, commander of the Discovery, a royal sendoff. Bosun William Simpson and the crew of 28 were hard at work and had little time to acknowledge the shouts and cries of their friends lined along the wharf.

The old mariners on the East India docks rubbed their eyes when they saw the plain white flag at the tip of the foremast, where the flag of destination is always flown, wondering "wotinell" country sported a white flag.

Since Antarctic is the destination and possesses no flag, Captain Davis confided that he thought the white standard extremely appropriate.

SUIT INVOLVES OIL PROPERTY

Tract Valued at $25,000 Basis of Claim

Title to 128 acres of oil land near Electra, valued at $25,000, is involved in a suit filed Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Lillie Mae Taylor, against W. D. Taylor, her brother-in-law, and Charles Miller, independent executor of the estate of E. J. Taylor, former husband of the plaintiff and brother of the defendant.

The petition alleges that the will of E. J. Taylor leaves an undivided one-half interest in the 128-acre tract to his wife and to his brother, on the condition that the brother relinquish his interest in certain other Electra properties and bear his share of the indebtedness against the entire estate.

Mrs. Taylor asserts that she herself has paid all the indebtedness and that the defendant, W. D. Taylor, has not relinquished his claims to the other property, so she enters a claim for the whole acreage, including oil, gas and mineral rights for a period of 20 years.

As an alternate pleading, in case the court should withhold title to the entire tract, she asks for an undivided one-half interest in the mineral rights, for a refund of the defendant's share of the debts, and for an accounting for all rentals paid into the estate from the disputed property.

The prisoner was arrested Wednesday night in the act of burglarizing a store in the Kimble county town, according to information received by the sheriff's department Thursday. The two Wichita county officials expect to bring back both the man and the car.

The stolen automobile is believed to be the one taken from a downtown street during the few minutes Sam Gibbs, its owner, spent inside an office Tuesday night.
