1979 Rockport Art Festival Is Termed 'Success'

By Pat Blair

Crowds at Rockport's 1979 Art Show were smaller, but people were buying and "everybody was happy," says Estelle Stair, president of Rockport's Art Association.

Although the show officially began at noon Saturday, June 30, people began arriving at around 10 a.m. to look at the arts and crafts on display under the brightly-colored tents between the Ski Basin and Turning Basin.

They came from all over Texas -- as near as Corpus Christi and as far as Waco and Dallas--and from out-of-state too: Louisiana, Nevada, California...even from as far away as Alberta, Canada.

Among those from out-of-town was Florine Langham of Llano, who said Saturday this was her first Art Festival and she was "enjoying it fine."

This was a first show too for Jewel Cason of Rockport. "I haven't lived here long," she said, "and I don't know anything about art. I came with my aunt (Wanda Cross of Rockport). She's lived here several years and knows about art. I think it (the show) is nice."

The show was open until 9 p.m. Saturday. On Sunday again, people began arriving before the official opening time of noon. Sunday's show closed at 6 p.m.

"We sold out of food," Mrs. Stair said, adding, "We did well in all the concessions. The artists were pleased because they did well."

More than 100 artists exhibited their works in this year's show which was graced with clear skies and warm to hot temperatures. However, the current gasoline shortage rather than the weather was blamed by most for the decline in numbers at the show.

Although the crowds were smaller, Mrs. Stair said, there were more buyers than browsers at this year's show. "These people had a purpose -- they weren't going to use gasoline just to come and look."

George Boutwell, a watercolorist from Austin, said Saturday he was "making some sales -- I'm making a profit." This was the seventh or eighth year for Boutwell to participate in the Art Festival.

Lee Rose of San Antonio -- who lives in Rockport four or five months out of the year -- said she "did real good in the show." Mrs. Rose has been in every show since the second one, in 1970, when the Festival was in what is now Harbor Oaks.

Charles Branch, a metal sculptor from Aransas pass, was "doing real good" with his straw hat and cane, drawing people in with his line of "We're all out of fried chicken, but we have plenty of art." Branch and his son Robert are a father-son team, using brass, copper tubing and coral for their sculpture.

They also turn out watercolors and "make both Rockport shows every year. This is a hobby for us," said Branch who added he and his son "got to bed about 2 a.m. Saturday" after preparing for the show. He promised, "We'll be back for Seafair."

For visitors Cliff and Mary Stephens of Bastrop the 1979 Art Festival was their first time to attend a show in Rockport, and they declared they "like it better than the one they have in Austin."

Others, like Paul and Elaine Wood of Rockport, have "made just about every show."

And most everyone expressed the sentiment voiced by Mrs. Stair Monday morning when all the hustle and bustle had died down:

"It was a terrific show."

HEAD ON AT THE DRIVE IN

Paramedics had their hands full after a head-on collision on Hwy 35 South, at approximately 7:55 a.m. July 3. Erich Ryan Frazee, Copano Cove Road in Rockport, was driving northbound in a jeep when Larry Hugh Skimin, El Paso, Texas, southbound, swerved into the other lane after apparently losing control of his vehicle. Both drivers were transported to Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi. There were no charges filed. [Pilot Photo by Sarah L. Durdin]

Local One-Party Rates Increased To $6.55

Southwestern Bell has asked the Public Utility Commission for $145.2 million in new Texas rates. However, in documents supporting the request, the company emphasized that its actual revenue need is $242.9 million.

The $145.2 million request is in line with President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines, which are endorsed by Southwestern Bell, said Doyle E. Rogers, the company's vice president for Texas.

"The need is clear for $242.9 million in new rates," Rogers said. "All the facts support an increase of that amount."

"However," he pointed out, "we are committed to meet the president's guidelines on price increases. Consequently, we're asking the Commission to approve only $145.2 million."

EDITOR'S NOTE

In January, 1977, the local one-party residence rate was lowered from $7 to the current rate of $5.

Also in January, 1977, the local one-party business rate was lowered from $15 to the current rate of $10.50.

Southwestern Bell is proposing to increase the local one-party residence rate to $6.55, or 45 cents a month less than it was before the rate was lowered. The two-party rate will increase from $3.25 to $4.60 per month.

The company also is proposing that the monthly local business rate be raised to $15.15, or only 15 cents more than it was before the rate was lowered.

The $145.2 million would provide an overall increase of 6.09 percent in Southwestern Bell's Texas intrastate revenues.

"Percentage increases for individual services will vary," Rogers said. "The 6.09 increase applies only to the overall revenue increase for the state and not to specific services."

Included in the $145.2 million request are proposed increases for basic local service, key telephones, PBX equipment, Centrex, miscellaneous equipment, and charges for connecting, changing and moving telephones.

One party residential rates would increase $1.55 per month in each exchange served by the company. The $1.55 increase would apply to both flat rate residence service, and measured one-party residential service, where offered.

Rate increases for two party residential customers would range from $1.30 per month in the smallest exchanges to $1.80 per month in the largest.

One party business rates would increase $4.65 per month throughout the state, under the company's proposal.

Rogers said no rate increases are being sought for in-state long distance calls, WATS, coin telephone calls, private line service, or Directory Assistance calls.

"Continuing growth and inflation leave us no choice but to ask for increased rates," Rogers said.

"In the past three years, we've spent almost $3 billion in construction expenses to keep up with increas-

Artist Enjoys Making People Smile

By Pat Blair

Lee Rose says she's "probably the only batik artist I know who works in this vein."

Her "vein" is whimsy, and her big-eyed birds and kissing fish make people smile because they're supposed to.

"I like to make people smile, and they do when they look at my stuff," she says.

Mrs. Rose's "stuff" -- several batiks framed and unframed -- are on exhibit this month in the lobby of Rockport's First National Bank Building at Highway 35 and Austin Street. The exhibit went up Monday, July 2, and will remain up through July 31. The batiks are for sale and all are under $50, she said.

Her works are also on display in Estelle Stair's Art Gallery and she was one of the more than 100 artists and craftsmen whose works were exhibited in the June 30-July 1 Art Festival.

Although she lists San Antonio as her home town, Mrs. Rose and her husband, a retired FBI man, live in Rockport "probably

New guidelines for the food stamp program have been in effect long enough for those working with it to make evaluations. Their concensus is that it has provided more assistance for the lowest income families and has eliminated families with incomes in the top bracket of what was previously allowed.

The elderly poor are among those who have gained most from regulations which went into effect late last year or earlier this year. Previously, a certain amount of cash had to be paid out for stamps. If an older person had to pay $40 to get $50 worth of stamps, he or she might not have had that much cash. Getting transportation and overcoming other complications might have prevented the effort from being worthwhile. Now, there is no cash. This same person would simply receive $10 worth of stamps. So more older people are getting the benefits.

One of the new requirements is that anyone between the ages of 18 and 65, who does not have children under 12, must register for employment to obtain stamps. The red tape of qualifying has been reduced and a person has to go fewer places in the registration process.

Betty Garrison is in charge of the food stamp program for the Department of Human Resources in this region. She says all income requirements are strictly verified when a person applies for food stamps. The value of a car owned by the family or other assets are checked out. If there is any reason to suspect fraud, the matter is referred to investigators, and under the new regulations there is an increased capability for investigating.

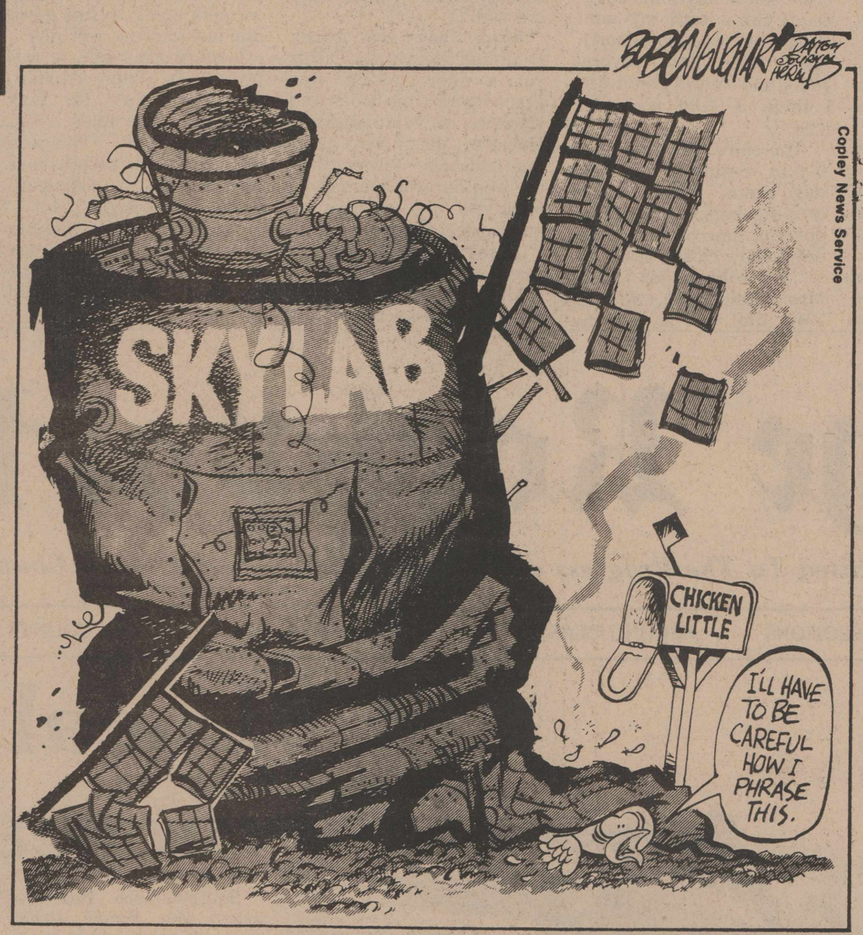

Everyone working with the program has heard many criticisms that are made, including opinions that stamps are not always spent for the most economical and nourishing food. Ms. Garrison says it is sometimes true that a family receiving its first stamps may be unwise, buy expensive cuts of meat or other foods that are not good choices on a low budget.

But, she adds that this causes the family to run out of stamps before the end of the month, and the next month they know better how to stretch their stamps. She realizes there are occasional extravagances, perhaps a cake for a child's birthday, but she considers this understandably human.

The United States Department of Agriculture made a study to determine the shopping habits of food stamp users. It compared 587 users of food stamps with 9,927 people who shopped with cash. It showed the food stamp users spent a larger percentage of their total on vegetables, cereals, flour, poultry, eggs and fresh milk and that both groups spent about the same amount on non-alcoholic beverages, meats and dairy products. Those depending on cash spent more for snacks, ice cream and cheese. The average size of the households studied was 3.04 persons.

Ms. Garrison says that most of those receiving food stamps do so for only a short period of time. Many of the families receiving Aid to Dependent Children are also receiving stamps, and statistics in Texas show that, on the average, these families remain on the assistance rolls no more than 12 months.

Although the food stamp program is administered by the state, all of the funds come from the federal government.

Austin — At Wharf

THE OLD "I TOLD YOU SO" ATTITUDE GETS NO one anywhere. When one is in a position to make the declaration he, if wise, keeps it to himself.

Here I'll break the rule to a small extent because most people are angry or disturbed enough on the subject to pay no heed to a comment that in no way will provide against their distress. The subject is a dreary one, the gasoline shortage.

Way back when -- was it three years ago that the 55 mph limit came into effect? I was one of those rare beings that endorsed it and accepted the warnings of dangers ahead, things to come. And to the annoyance of any number of friends I gave repeated editorial endorsement to the program. Hence, circumstances that exist today bring me no surprise.

But on the other hand, don't ask me for a clear explanation although a lady who edits a petrochemical magazine and appeared last week on the McNeil/Leherer Report gave a simple answer that made sense to me. In case you missed the report, I should perhaps pass it on, but I have decided not to, and for a very simple reason. We live in an age when simple, concise, understandable answers are not acceptable. People who speak in a straight forward manner, use easily comprehensible sentences are neither popular nor acceptable. Likely as not they wind up being classified as simpltons. I can stand up on that charge and take it on my own account but it's hardly fair to bring in a lady who is not here to defend herself. Understand?

"SITUATION NORMAL, EVERTHING'S ALL FOULE up." That old World War II phrase is one I'd almost forgotten. It is old enough so that many readers may have never heard it.

Yet it applies as much and more today as ever it did around any military headquarters. Consider the society in which we live.

Back in the late 1940's I chanced to be in the Middle East. There was concern then about the future of oil in that part of the world, not for how much there might be, how long it would last. Instead for how long it would be cheap and readily accessible. The particular fear at that time, as I recall, was the possibility of the Russians moving into Iran. It was a big enough concern for our government to keep ships in the Persian Gulf, ready to evacuate Americans.

Then someone of real forsight might have set his mind to work and visualized the circumstances we face today. I didn't, or perhaps there may have been talk of that sort in club bars. I don't remember. But no matter. Perhaps someone did offer warnings then. Again, I don't remember. But think what his odds would have been had he been interviewed by a leading newspaper or magazine. Certainly had his views won even a slight degree of acceptance he would have been as deeply resented as the poor chaps who promoted the 55 mph speed limit. So, I suspect that had there been anyone with that sort of vision he would have also had sense enough to keep his mouth shut.

In any event we carried on with building what we called the post-war baby boom, jammed our universities with 10 times more misfits than serious students. And we prospered. The reasonably decent, hard-working fellow aspired and then made his way from the crowded city to the suburbs and was hopefully on the way to at least a small country estate. There was a lot of solid merit to the concept. Since the beginning of time men have milled together like dumb sheep.

Twentieth century know-how gave him a confidence never known before. Possibly at no time in all history had man more reason to feel secure. Confident because of good wages and salaries, confident in job security. Nothing, not even religion, is more meaningful to the average man. Certainly there was a measure of unemployment, but actually it was a case of finding a way to train and employ the unemployable.

NOW WE ARE IN A PERIOD OF GREAT AND lasting change. People are confused. This is a time for great leadership. Men cry for it and are even then uncertain that that would be the answer. For my own part I only believe that leadership might help. No more.

I think of my imaginary man of vision in the Middle East. Suppose he had spoken out, suppose he had been heeded?

First off I am convinced that under that circumstance we would have never allowed our national railway system to decay. In view of the docile leadership in that industry it might have become necessary for the government to take over. Ah but no. Instead, if the government were to have played a role it might have been that of Big Uncle forcing the injection of new and visionary blood into the industry.

Among other things we would not have today the curiously pathetic circumstance of super highways flooded with people seeking smaller and smaller cars, while huger and faster moving trucks sweep by the midgets. I stress transportation because for most people plentiful gasoline and a reasonable price would mean that all troubles would disappear. Because it's summer. Winter heating problems will come later. Let's worry about that then.

At this point I haven't even gotten into the distressf circumstance of our paying so little heed to energy fro the sun and sea.

Letters From Our Readers

To the editor and people of Rockport:

I'm writing to a newspaper, for the first time, because I think someone needs to speak up about a problem we have in our city: I'm referring to the large number of dogs running loose. From talking to people in various sections, I would say it is pretty much the same all over town. I don't flatter myself that this letter will start a revolution -- maybe a little ripple -- and maybe someone else will be encouraged to protest.

A short time ago while I was riding my bicycle on one of our streets, I was chased by two large dogs and one of them bit me and ran off somewhere before I could stop. I wasn't seriously hurt, but I might have been -- I've just recently taken up bicycle riding again after many years. Even a skilled rider might have lost control when a large dog clamped down on their leg.

Being bitten by a dog is no joke, even when you're almost certain he is after the bicycle, rather than you; and the procedure you have to go through to protect yourself, and possibly others as well, including the owner, from the possibility of rabies is no joke either. In fact it is downright nerve-racking. I had already found this out a few years ago when one of my children was unluckly enough to get between two dogs which were fighting at the school bus stop. My child was scratched and bitten on both legs, by one or both of the dogs, it was impossible to tell which. Neither of them had had their shots. We had a lot of trouble locating the owner of one of them, and a lot of worry because the owner of the other would not keep him tied up. Although both dogs turned out to be healthy, such an experience is something no parent or child will ever forget.

It turned out to be just as much of a hassle this time, too. It was, for various reasons, two full days before the dog was confined for observation. If he had disappeared or gotten run over I probably would have had to take the rabies treatment, especially since there was some confusion as to the date of his last vaccination. Fortunately it wasn't necessary, but why should anyone have to risk this extra trouble and worry? No one relishes the prospects of about twenty-one shots in their stomach, particularly since they sometimes have dangerous side effects. A lot of this worry for the victims of dogbites could be prevented if all owners were more careful about their pets' vaccination, and kept them at home. I might point out that, important as the shots are, they do not keep a dog from biting.

Anyone who knows me and my family knows that we have always loved pets, and I will have to admit that we let them run loose, althought we were careful about their shots. Over a number of years we have had pets that were injured or killed by cars, or by other dogs, and we even had one which bit someone. For me, this was fully as upsetting as being bitten myself, and we did not keep that dog long. However, none of our pets would have been hurt or killed, and a nice person would not have been bitten if we had kept our dogs at home. Because of the increase in traffic around our house in recent years we finally decided that we no longer wanted the trouble and worry of keeping a pet safe, or of keeping people safe from the pet. It is not fair to your dog, and certainly to the passers-by, to expect that dog to always know the "good-guys" from the "bad-guys" among the parade of strollers, joggers, bicycle riders, noisy children, etc. Allowing your dog to go where he pleases may be severly taxing the patience of your neighbors, particularly those who do not choose to keep pets, when they step in a pile of droppings or pick up their scattered garbage for the "Umpteenth" time.

Since the dog bit me I have received many suggestions: I should carry a stick, a can of ammonia, hair-spray, or Mace, or a BB gun. I find it a great contradiction, in our pleasant city which prides itself on growth and its forward-looking policy, that people should find it necessary to resort to such extra-ordinary means to protect themselves when braving our streets on foot or on a bicycle.

No one needs to be reminded of the fuel situation -- there is every indication that it will get worse. There will almost certainly be an increase in pedestrian and bicycle traffic. I'm sure everyone has noticed reports of an increase in rabies in some areas of our state, which are not all that far from here. It could easily be brought here; or spring up spontaneously since this is the season when it usually appears. With all the dogs there are running loose, and probably a great many of them not vaccinated, we could have a very serious situation on our hands. Based on my past experience, I would say we have very little in the way of a coherent program to deal with such a threat. This is not meant as a criticism of the police -- without an enforceable program, they are often on rather uncertain ground.

This is why I believe we need a strictly enforced ordinance requiring owners to keep their animals at home. While many of them claim that it would be a hardship, they should remember that it is also a hardship for the people who must go about their affairs on our public streets. I believe a strict animal control program would make people think seriously before they acquired a pet they did not reall want.

There is every reason to believe that our city will continue its rapid growth and every city, sooner or later, has to come to grips with this problem. Our neighbor, Aransas Pass, is already taking action. I hope others who feel that something should be done will express their opinions. Probably nothing will be done unless enough of us make enough noise to attract the attention of the general public and our elected city officials -- or there is a rabies epidemic.

Rockport Sons Of Hermann Receive Charter Sunday

The first new lodge in the Order of the Sons of Hermann in Texas formed since 1975, Rockport Hermann Sons Lodge No. 79 will receive its official charter Sunday, July 8, in ceremonies at 2:30 p.m. in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, 400 Market Street, Rockport.

Presenting the charter will be Louis B. Engelke of San Antonio, grand president of the 76,000-member fraternal benefit society. Participating with him will be Louis R. Hoog, Jr. of San Antonio, grand secretary-treasurer, and Grand Trustees Raymond C. Brehm of Cibolo and Harlod W. Englehardt of San Antonio.

Engelke pointed out that the decision to organize the lodge was based on the growth of the Rockport area and the fact that more than two dozen Hermann Sons members had moved into the area in recent years. The new lodge has 50 charter members, 26 of them transfers from other lodges in Texas, he said.

Officers are Harold M. Stapper Jr., president; Charles H. Keller, vice president; Tommy Lou Stapper, financial secretary; and Dorthy Moeller, recording secretary. Membership representative is Dan Barth of San Antonio.

Prior to Rockport, the last lodge chartered was Montogomery Lodge No. 315 in Conroe.

The Order of the Sons of Hermann was organized in New York city in 1840 by German descendants who adopted the name of a German folk hero, Hermann the Cherusker, who, in 9 A.D., led his tribal forces in the annihilation of three Roman legions in the histroically decisive Battle of Teutoberg Forest, denying Rome access to Germanic lands and hastening the eventual fall of the Empire.

The first lodge in Texas, Harmonia No. 1, was organized in 1860 in San Antonio. In 1890, the eight lodges that had been formed in the state established a grand lodge in San Antonio, and in 1921 the order in Texas severed ties with the national organization and became autonomous. There are now 156 lodges in some 135 cities and towns throughout the state.

Police Report

Rockport police were called to investigate three thefts and a traffic accident and made several arrests for driving while intoxicated and public intoxication during a busy weekend.

Luther Cook of Chicago, Illinois, called police after two diamond rings, valued at about $1,600, were taken from his camper at K.O.A. campground on Hwy. 35 South.

The theft occurred about 10 p.m, Friday, June 27, while Cook was helping put up a camper trailer.

Also Friday, Ms. Nancy Martinago of #6 Mazatlan, Rockport, reported theft of approximately $154 from her purse while it was on a counter in the "break room" of H.E.B. Food Store here.

The theft reportedly occurred between 7:20 and 9:30 p.m. Police said the room is accessible both to the inside and the outside of the store through the loading dock.

Roy Court Jr. of 1200 North Magnolia, Rockport, called police after someone stole all four hubcaps from his car while it was in the parking lot of Rockport Apartments. Court said he parked the car about 9 p.m. Friday and when he got up about 5 a.m. Saturday the hubcaps were missing.

Wilford Z. Davis, 17 of Aransas Pass was cited for failure to control his vehicle after an accident about 10 a.m. Sunday at Mimosa at Highway 35 in Rockport.

Davis was attempting a right turn from Highway 35 onto Mimosa when his pickup struck a station wagon driven by Floyd B. Walter, 38, of Fulton.

Bond was set at $500 on a charge of driving while intoxicated files against Patrick Boyd Anderson, 39, of Austin. Anderson was arrested about 1:30 a.m. Saturday after his yellow 1932 Ford two-door was observed weaving across the center yellow stripe on Fulton Beach Road. Rockport police reported Anderson's car almost hit the city patrol car head-on.

A $150 personal recognizance bond was set against Richard Michael Harlan, 32, of Rockport after he was arrested at the Alitas Lounge Saturday night, June 30. Arrest was made for public intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Fines of $40 each were levied against two Rockport men after they were arrested for public intoxication in two separate incidents Friday, June 29.

Dominguez is 51 years of age, a native of Aransas County and has resided at 817 N. Pearl Street in the City of Rockport, the majority of his life. He attended school in the City and County Independent Districts.

Healthful Hints

Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition

By Jean Glowka

Q. What can I do to relieve menstrual cramping?

A. There are many herbs which are considered beneficial for cramps-and other menstrual problems. Some herbal combinations designed specifically for this are available.

Adelle Davis recommends that, if a woman doesn't take calcium regularly, she should begin taking it one week prior to the onset of menstruation. If cramping occurs, she should take one calcium tablet every hour until cramps are gone.

However, as with any problem, one should make sure the entire diet (and vitamin - mineral supplementation) is completely adequate, especially the B-complex vitamins, vitamins A, D, C and magnesium.

Q. I work daily in extreme heat and am feeling very, very tired. What can I do besides take salt tablets?

A. Are you taking enough salt tablets? People working in heat are often advised to take one salt tablet with each drink of water. And, now is the time to eat well-salted meals.

Also, the B vitamins are often lost in hot weather due to excessive perspiration and increased fluid intake. (The B's are water-soluble and are important in keeping one's energy level high.) So, increase your B intake in the form of nutritional yeast, liver, and/or B vitamin tablets.

Until next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

For Jobs Big Or Small, Lois Is The One To Call

By Sarah L. Durdin

Do you need someone to water your plants? Feed your pet? Arrange service repairs, clean boats, or wash windows?

Do you know Lois Harrington? You ought to.

Lois just started Errand Runner, Inc., after 20 years of teaching just about every age from nine months to 14 years old.

"This is something I've been doing for a long time, mostly for friends; and since I wanted out of the child's world of teaching, I thought "why not make some money from it," she explained.

So she talked to Frank Durham at the Key Allegro Sales Office, got some suggestions and a reference from him, and incorporated Errand Runner. She even kept things all in the family by naming her daughter Kletha, and her son Mark to the board of directors, and installed her husband Bob as secretary.

The next step was going to the bank to open an account for the business, the only problem being she didn't have any money to put into the account yet. "I had to explain that I wanted to open an account with a beginning balance of zero," she explained laughingly. However, since the day she caused bankers to do double takes, she's added to the kitty, bit by bit.

Lois charges an hourly rare of $12 for her time, and the cost of the job depends on what is involved. The rate to feed a pet, for example, wouldn't be the same as the charge for repairing a boat motor.

Growing up in Key West, Florida, Lois had plenty of opportunities to learn about boat repairs, boat maintenance, and just plain old boating. She says she can take care of most of the boat jobs herself, be it scraping the hull, cleaning the engine, or repairing the motor. All this and good looks too!

Lois can also supply a "staff" of youngsters to do many of the services she offers, such as babysitting, yard care, and pet care. Many of the kids have been in her classes, and "you can tell by the time they get to junior high which ones are responsible and which ones are still a little...unsettled."

The jobs she can't do herself, or turn over to local kids, Lois can arrange for service. She has contacts for roof repairs, catering services, electricians, hunting and fishing guides and septic tank maintenance, to name just a few. And one of her customers has requested a reference for a psychologist.

While the service is directed at Key Allegro residents, Lois does not limit her services to the island. She will even go to Corpus Christi if necessary.

Errand Runner, Inc. is sort of like a fourth child for Lois. In addition to Kletha and Mark, there's also Joe.

Kletha will soon be home for the summer from the University of Arkansas, while Mark will be taking a backpacking trip before facing the cold cruel world with a diploma from Texas A&M University. In addition to his diploma, Mark will take with him the plumb awarded to the outstanding civil engineering student at A&M. Joe will be using his degree from Texas A&M University to work out of Galveston.

Lois can be reached at 729-2227 from 6-10 a.m., and 6-10 p.m., since she's out running errands in the between time.

A more complete list of her services includes: arranging maid service, air conditioning and refrigerator repairs, carpentry, boat captains, bartenders, window washing, storm preparations and pest control services.

So now you know where to go for someone to water the plants, feed the dog, repair the boat, and arrange the party.

Never put off till tomorrow what Lois can do today.

A CUTIE CLIENT

Pet care isn't the only service offered by Errand Runner, Inc., but when the client is as cute as her three-month old Spitz "Littlebit" Lois Harrington seems to find it the most enjoyable job. She offers services that range from watering plants to septic tank maintenance.

Services Held For C.C. Porter

Graveside services for Cover Curran Porter, 64 of Rockport were at 10 a.m. Tuesday, July 3, at the Rockport Cemetery with Rev. Larry Murphy officiating.

Arrangements were under direction of Marshall Funeral Home. Mr. Porter died Saturday, June 30, in a Corpus Christi hospital.

A native of Washington, D.C., he had lived in Rockport one year and was a member of the Episcopal Church.

Survivors include his wife, Frances Porter of Rockport; one son, George Dalton Porter of Houston; one grandson, George Manning Porter; one granddaughter, Carolym Ann Porter, both of Houston.

Water Board To Meet July 7

The temporary board of directors of the Aransas County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 will meet at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 7.

The meeting will be in the Lee Miller Recreation Center on the east side of State Highway 35 in Holiday Beach Subdivision.

The board is scheduled to elect officers, designate a temporary office for the district and consider steps needed to hold the election for confirmation of the district.

Voters will also be asked, in the same election, to choose five permanent directors of the board. This will be the first official meeting for the organization.

Longhorn Stampede In Goliad

The Second Annual Goliad Longhorn Stampede, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be Friday and Saturday, July 6 and 7, on the historic Courthouse Square in downtown Goliad.

This year's event will be greatly expanded from last year with continuous entertainment planned from the opening at 6 p.m. Friday to the Street Dance featuring the Texas Top Hands which begins at 9 p.m. Saturday.

ROSE

four or five months of the year."

A native of Portland, Oregon, she came to Texas "via New Jersey. I was a stewardess for American Airlines," she explained, "and I ended up in New Jersey." There she met her husband, Don. "He's from Oklahoma," she added.

Rose was later transferred to San Antonio as part of his job with the FBI.

As to how they found Rockport, Mrs. Rose said, "We had friends -- Estelle Stair for one -- and we just sort of gravitated to Rockport and fell in love with it."

The couple have a house at Shell Ridge which she describes as "a dream come true. We have water in front, water in back, and it's so private."

It's an ideal place for getting ideas for her work, she says. Batiking is a Japanese art of applying wax to fabric in a pattern, dying the fabric and drying it, then rewaxing to protect the dyed area and applying dyes to uncolored areas.

It takes several days to do one batik because the dye has to dry thoroughly between applications, Mrs. Rose said. "I hang them on my clothesline -- I have the most interesting looking clothesline in the city," she laughed.

Because of the wind, she added, she can't dry the batiks in Rockport, "but I can get my ideas and start them here."

She wants to do some "serious" -- as opposed to the whimsical nature of most of her works -- batiks of birds native to this area. She's done one of a sandpiper -- "Sandpipers look like windup toys the way they run."

And she likes wildflowers. "It's unbelievable, the wildflowers you have in Shell Ridge. Last year I planted Indian paintbrushes on the vacant lot next door, so I can see them."

Mrs. Rose is enthusiastic about Rockport. She's been in the Art Festival for nine years -- "since the second show, in Harbor Oaks -- before Harbor Oaks was built."

And she likes the "quiet, casual atmosphere" of the town. "I enjoy life and nature," she says.

And she finds both in Rockport.

ing demand for customer service across Texas. This year, we expect to spend another $1.2 billion on construction," Rogers said. "We have no choice but to spend those dollars. Meeting growth is part of our obligation as a public utility," he said.

"Meanwhile, inflation continues at a rapid rate. We've trimmed expenses, we've generated additional revenues through sales efforts, and improved technology has helped blunt the effects of increased costs. Yet, our earnings in Texas still fall well below our need," Rogers emphasized.

In 1978, the Public Utility Commission authorized a return of 9.488 percent on the company's investment in Texas.

Currently, Southwestern Bell is earning 8.35 percent, Rogers said. "With present rates, we cannot hope to reach the 9.488 earnings level, and we certainly cannot achieve the level we need."

Rogers pointed out that approval of $145.2 million in new rates would allow the company to earn only 9.91 percent, still far below the 10.97 per cent return actually needed in Texas. Under Southwestern Bell's proposed monthly basic local rates:

One party residential (non-measured) service would range from $6.30 in Rate Group 1 to $9.55 in Rate Group 10.

One party residential measured service would range from $5.25 in Rate Group 4 to $6.55 in Rate Group 10. (Measured service is not offered in Rate Groups 1, 2, and 3).

Two party residential service would range from $4.45 in Rate Group 1 to $6.55 in Rate Group 10.

One party business service would range from $14.40 in Rate Group 1 to $29.65 in rate Group 10.

Southwestern Bell present rates range from:

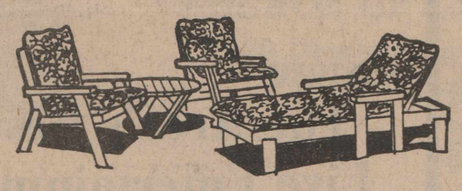

$4.75 in Rate Group 1 to $8 in Rate Group 10, for one party residential (non-measured) service.

$3.70 in Rate Group 4 to $5 in Rate Group 10, for one party residential measured service. (Measured Service is not offered in Rate Groups 1, 2, and 3).

$3.15 in Rate Group 1 to $4.75 in Rate Group 10, for two party residential service.

$9.75 in Rate Group 1 to $25 in Rate Group 10, for one party business service.

Eat Yourself Slim: Take care with 'sunshine vitamin'

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Vitamin D is often called the "sunshine vitamin" because the sun is a natural vitamin source to the body, but because it is also produced by the body it is technically a hormone. If sufficient amounts cannot be produced from within, they must be supplied by the diet, which are then called vitamins.

Whichever the case, vitamin D is an essential component not only for the human being, but for all animals with a bony skeleton. It facilitates the absorption and utilization of calcium and phosphorus, necessary for the formation of bone.

It belongs in the fat-soluble category of vitamins, along with vitamins A, E and K. It was discovered in 1918 by a British nutritionist, Mellanby, who discovered that this fat-soluble substance could cure rickets, a then prevalent disease of early childhood. By 1922 cod liver oil was recognized as a tremendous aid in preventing or curing bone deformation in children.

Dietary factors and exposure to sunlight played dominant roles in the rickets of 40 or 50 years ago. Genetic factors also play a part. Twice as many males, as females tend to develop the disease. The amount of vitamin D available to the body through the irradiation of the precursors in the skin varies. The ultraviolet rays of the sun do not adequately penetrate clothing, smog, smoke, ordinary window glass, clouds, fog or dark pigment in the skin, so dark-skinned babies are more prone to rickets than light-skinned ones. Improved window glass that allows ultraviolet rays to enter has helped in cold areas where exposure to sufficient sunshine is a problem.

Most milk companies fortify their products with vitamin D by irradiation, to supply 400 International Units per quart. Other foods are also being enriched with vitamin D and include such items as baby cereals, breakfast cereals, breads and other beverages.

The pevalence of enriched sources now poses another problem. If a mother gave her child several servings each day from many fortified food sources, plus vitamin D supplements, the intake could easily and inadvertently reach toxic levels. Ten thousand to 30,000 International Units per day would be toxic levels for a young child. While 400 I.U. per day has been determined to prevent rickets, 1,800 I.U. per day will actually prevent growth.

High blood calcium levels, experienced with excessive vitamin D intake bring symptoms of nausea, loss of appetite, weight loss and failure to thrive in infants.

Mothers must take care not to overdose their children with high levels of vitamin D from the many fortified sources now available. Effective prevention of rickets lies in proper quantities of vitamin D, neither underdose nor overdose.

Adults who take 100,000 or more I.U. per day for weeks or months will develop the same toxic symptoms. No further benefits have been shown in people taking more than 400 I.U. per day. Some sensitive individuals may even experience toxic symptoms with intakes of 2,000 to 3,000 I.U. per day.

Dear E.M.: Nuts do contain fiber, but it may not be enough roughage to be of value by themselves. Try one to two tablespoons pure bran, along with fruits and vegetables.

Cooking Corner

Adding a dash of international flavor

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Taking our cue from the photograph of the Zagreb marketplace here are three dishes, from Yugoslavia, China and Potugal.

They're adapted from "The Time-Life International Cookbook," (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, New York $12.95)

This Serbian dish from Yugoslavia would make an excellent summer barbecue.

RAZNJICI

1 lb. boneless veal cubes (1½ inches square)
1 lb. boneless pork cubes (1½ inches square)
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tbsps. oil
1 cup thinly sliced onions
15 bay leaves, broken in half
2 tsps. finely chopped onions.

Dry the cubes with paper towels and sprinkle them with a little salt and pepper. Mix them well with the oil and sliced onions in a large bowl. Cover and refrigerate the cubes for at least 3 hours, stirring them ever now and then. Remove the cubes from the marinade and save the marinade.

Arrange the cubes on skewers with a half bay leaf separating each pair of cubes. Broil them in a preheated oven 4 to 6 inches from the flame, or on an outdoor grill, for 10 minutes on each side. Baste them with the marinade during the cooking.

Sprinkle the chopped raw onions over the cubes just before serving them.

This sweet and sour pork stretches a pound of pork to feed four, typical of the Chinese dishes that rely on piquant seasonings, vegetables, and quick cooking techniques.

HONEY DIJON CHICKEN

2½ pound chicken
¼ cup honey
⅓ cup Dijon mustard
2 tsps. curry powder

Cut the chicken into 10 pieces. In a buttered 2-quart oblong glass baking dish or similar utensil, stir together the remaining ingredients until blended. Add the chicken, skin side down.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 minutes turn chicken skin side up, stirring the sauce well especially around sides and corners of dish. Continue baking at 350 degrees until tender and brown — 30 minutes longer.

Excess fat may be skimmed from the small amount of sauce. Delicious served with rice and toasted walnuts.

The Legal Way

Separate vs. Community Property

By E.J. DEMSON, J.D.
Copley News Service

Where parties plan to marry and live in one of the eight community property states, the law provides two ways to keep their respective separate property from becoming commingled with the community property.

Q. My fiance and I, widow and widower of our first marriage, have decided to remarry and to retire and live in California. Each has an estate acquired by earnings, inheritance from our parents and from the settlement of our first spouse's estate.

We know California is a community property state. We want to keep the bulk of our estate separate for the children of our first marriage. How can we keep our separate property from being mixed with our community property?

A. California Statute (C.C. 5114-15) says: An inventory of your respective separate property signed and acknowledged by a notary may be recorded with the county recorder where you shall be domiciled in California. It then becomes notice and prima facie evidence of title to the party filing such an inventory.

Also, by an antenuptuial agreement the parties may define their rights to their respective separate property, and vary substantially the property rights that would otherwise arise during their marriage by operation of law (Am.Jur 2d Ref.: Husband and Wife Sec.'s 192-212).

Q. My husband in 1974 purchased many sacks of cement which was used to improve our home. The bill was $225. We were divorced the same year, and I was awarded the home as a part of our property settlement.

The bill remains unpaid. Can the seller collect from me? We live in Utah.

A. Utah Statute (Code Sec.70A -2-7-725) says: If the seller failed to file an action to collect after more than four years have passed, he is barred from recovery in a court of law by the Statute of limitation of Utah.

Q. Three adults want to organize a partnership in Oklahoma which under a franchise would sell automobile parts. Does the law require the partnership to file papers with an Oklahoma State Office?

And are a partner's personal assets liable for the debts of the partnership when it cannot pay its contractual debts?

A. Oklahoma Statute (Sec.54-141-171) adopted the Uniform Partnership Act which says: For all debts and obligations of a partnership, other than those arising from tort or breach of trust, the patners are jointly liable.

If the partnership is not conducted in the name of the partner, it must file with the Clerk of the County District Court in which its principal place of business is located, a certificate stating: (1) signed names and addresses of the partners, (2) published same for weeks in a newspaper of general circulation. Failure to comply denies the partnership the right to maintain an action on contract in the partnership name in the courts of the state.

Q. In Massachusetts, where I live, what is a prescriptive easement, and how does one acquire such a right to land?

A. Mass.Gen.Law (C.187 Sec.2) says: To acquire such a right by prescription, the claimant must show an uninterrupted, open and notorious use of the land by adverse possession for 20 years

Here's How

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. I have a set of outdoor wooden steps that lead up to the second floor of my home. The steps have become weather-worn and cracked. Is there any kind of a coating that I can put on the steps to cover them and seal them?

I have been told that a product is available that can be troweled on that will do the job, but I haven't found anyone who knows the name of it. I will appreciate any help you can give me. — John C., El Cajon, Calif.

A. "Safety Walk," a strip material, is often used on outdoor surfaces, such as stairs, around swimming pools, and home entries and other areas. Its non-slip surface makes it a good choice. The product comes in several colors and is applied as easily as cellophane tape and has the additional advantage that it can be cut to fit.

Q. I have an old but still good ashtray stand that has a brass finish. I've been using a liquid polish on it for many years and it does a good job, but after a few weeks, the stand becomes dull and stained, and I have to start all over again. Is there anything I can use after I've polished the stand to prevent it from tarnishing? — F.K., La Jolla, Calif.

A. Immediately after the brass has been polished, give it a coat of clear, non-yellowing lacquer. Most of the big paint manufacturers make such lacquers. However, if your dealer carries a lacquer-type terrazzo sealer, it also should serve satisfactorily. Such a terrazzo sealer is of transparent, colorless plastic and xylol.
