Boren In Runoff

By The Associated Press

Gov. David Boren was forced into a Sept. 19 runoff with former U.S. Rep. Ed Edmondson early today in the Democractic race for U.S. Senator in Oklahoma.

In the only other primary race Tuesday, former Gov. Walter Hickel held a narrow lead over Gov. Jay Hammond in the Alaska Republican gubernatorial primary. However, the outcome was still unclear.

Hickel collected 33.4 percent of the vote in Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, compared to 22.7 percent for Hammond. But, problems with the state-run election computer system made it difficult to determine whether all the returns from Anchorage were included in statewide totals, which showed Hickel leading 21,704 votes to Hammond's 20,741.

No More MIA?

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - The leader of a U.S. congressional delegation visiting Vietnam says he believes none of the Americans missing in the Vietnam War are still alive. But two others say they think some might still turn up.

Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., head of the eight-member group, said Tuesday the Vietnamese are trying to resolve the MIA issue to clear a major stumbling block to normal relations with the United States, and that he believes none of the MIAs are alive.

But Rep. Sam G. Hall, D-Texas, said he had a "gut feeling somebody might still turn up." And Rep. W. Henson Moore, R-La., said he had not given up hope.

About 2,500 American servicemen are still unaccounted for in Indochina. All except 355 are listed as dead although their bodies were not recovered.

Pact Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) - The threat of a nationwide mail strike grew more ominous today as the second largest postal union rejected a tentative three-year contract by a 4-3 margin.

In rejecting the pact, the National Letter Carriers Association may force two other postal unions to ignore their ratification votes regardless of the outcome.

A new blow for the non-smoker was struck Monday night at a meeting of the Scurry County Junior College District's board of trustees.

Board President R.C. Patton had a small sign near his end of the table with the familiar "thank you for not smoking." And nobody smoked.

As it turned out, it was rather easy for those present to abide by the no-smoking plea. None of the board members smokes. Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president; Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president, and Gay Hickman, WTC business manager do not smoke. That left yours truly and Bob Clifton, the radioman, only one of whom smokes, and Clifton obligingly kept his pipe in his pocket for the duration of the meeting.

So far as we could recall, this was the first time such a meeting had been held without someone lighting up. It was strictly a clean-air meeting.

Dr. Brock disclosed that during an administrative seminar held last week at Ruidoso, N.M., only three of the 12 attending smoked. He said the "sinners" had permission to go outside if they couldn't hold out against demon nicotine until break time, but they kept the air free of smoke inside as they mulled over plans and problems associated with the opening of a new semester.

We regarded the smokeless board meeting as a significant milestone, but we suspect it would be more difficult for such an event to take place at a city council meeting or a public school board meeting. Anyway, the college board has run up something for them to shoot at if they feel the urge.

HARD TIMES - Shown plowing under a cotton crop heavily damaged by drought is Ricky Summers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Summers of Fluvanna. Royce Summers reports he anticipates plowing under approximately 115 acres of cotton, and saving about 165 acres, at least for the time being. His farm is located about 23 miles northwest of Snyder. Although an application was made earlier this month to declare Scurry County a disaster area, no word has been received from state officials. (SDN Staff Photo)

Consolidation Petition Circulated At Hermleigh

HERMLEIGH-School began in Hermleigh this morning amid increasing rumors that the Hermleigh School might eventually consolidate with the Snyder Independent School District.

The consolidation issue was avoided last night at a public hearing involving the Hermleigh School budget, but emotions were running strong in the small community over the issue.

An argument developed between two men following the hearing, but nothing came of it as the two later left. What may become of the consolidation issue, however, remains to be seen.

Informed sources told The Snyder Daily News that the question of possible consolidation of the two schools was raised at a public tax rate hearing Aug. 15.

It was reported that at least one petition had been circulated, but that it was not apt to be presented to the county judge until after tax notices are sent out.

Although no direct action was taken on the tax rate question last night, Larry Farr, the president of the Hermleigh School Board, indicated that the rate is projected to increase from 42 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 70 cents per $100 assessed valuation at a 100 percent ratio.

Farr said that formal action on the rate issue will not be taken until the board's Sept. 12 meeting.

Approved last night was a school budget of $356,125 for the 1978-79 school year. Because Hermleigh is a foundation school and is heavily financed by state monies, final approval of the budget is up to the state, said Superintendent Ray Simmons. Simmons said that issue is expected to be heard by the state in November. Last year's school budget was approximately $331,000.

The petition reportedly being circulated through the community would bring the question of consolidation to a vote. Required on the petition are the signatures of 20 certified voters.

If brought to a vote, dual votes will be required in both Hermleigh and Snyder. To be accepted, both must approve the consolidation.

The meeting last night was brief. It lasted about half an hour. Approximately 75 persons from the small community attended it. With the exception of the single confrontation, all was peaceful.

The only previous consolidation question to occur in Scurry County in recent history took place in Fluvanna during the summer of 1976.

There, no vote was taken and the consolidation question was solved only by apportionment of the Fluvanna School's properties by the state to Snyder and Borden County Schools.

County Judge Preston Wilson said he planned to confer with the Texas Education Agency on the procedure. Snyder School officials said they had not been contacted concerning any possible consolidation.

2nd Davis Tape Is Introduced

FORT WORTH (AP)-A second tape recording, detailing a telephone conversation between millionaire T. Cullen Davis and informant David McCrory saying, "I finished the job," was introduced into evidence today at a bond hearing for Davis, charged in a murder-for-hire scheme.

The recording was made by the FBI about 3 a.m. Sunday, some six hours before Davis was arrested.

McCrory, who was wired for sound by authorities after he told them Davis hired him to set up a judge for assassination, opens the conversation by telling Davis, "Sorry I have to call you so late."

Davis: "Okay."

McCrory: "I finished the job..."

Davis: "How will I know?"

McCrory: "I got the proof...just believe me. I'll show you."

Davis: "All that information is down at the office." Speculation at the courtroom was that "information" referred to money.

McCrory: "...you're going to have to go get it...can you meet me at nine o'clock in the morning."

Davis: "Okay."

McCrory: "Cullen, for God's sake don't leave me hung out on this thing."

Davis: "No, that will work out just fine."

The alleged plot called for the executions of a divorce judge and three witnesses who testified against Davis at his sensational capital murder trial last year.

Bus System Approved For Kerrville

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)-The State highway commission announced Tuesday that it has agreed to spend $43,000 to start a bus system in Kerrville.

The commission certified to the federal government that the state funds will be available to help buy three buses, with each holding 17-24 passengers.

Total cost of the $323,000 project calls for the federal government to spend $258,000 and Kerrville $22,000.

The federal government, however, still must approve the project.

Guerrillas Free Women, Children

By JUAN MALTES
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua AP-Left-wing guerrillas who shot their way into the National Palace in a bloody surprise attack freed women and children hostages this morning but continued to hold more than 100 government officals and legislators.

Among the hostages taken in the Tuesday attack were a nephew and cousin of President Anastasio Somoza. It was not immediately clear whether either was released.

National Guard spokesman Col. Aquiles Arada Escobar said the guerrillas had released "many women and children," but he declined to say how many were freed.

Three Roman Catholic bishops were trying to mediate a peaceful end to the stand-off.

The guerrillas, in a statement released to reporters, demanded the release of all political prisoners, estimated at more than 120, safe conduct out of the country for those freed and for themselves, and $10 million in cash.

More than 100 soldiers of the national guard, Nicaragua's army, spread out in a 10-block area around the palace. Other guardsmen in jeeps and armored personnel carriers set up roadblocks on highways leading out of Managua and patrolled city streets.

A score of Sandinista National Liberation Front guerrillas stormed the palace, which houses many government offices and both houses of Congress, during a session of the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday afternoon. The raiders wore uniforms similar to those of the national guard.

Presidential spokesman Archibaldo Arostegue said four soldiers were killed and at least six wounded in the attack. The Red Cross reported one of the hostages telephoned and said there were 15 injured.

The 52-year-old president, whose heavily guarded offices are elsewhere, was not in the palace at the time. But Jose Somoza Abrego, the president's nephew whose father is acting commander of the national guard, and Luis Pallais Debayle, a cousin who is deputy speaker of the lower house, were among those taken hostage, Arostegui said.

Another captive was the treasury minister, Gen. Samuel Genie.

Hundreds of persons were in the palace when the attack began. For the next two hours military helicopters hovered over the building, their door gunners traded shots with the guerrillas, and national guardsmen on the ground fired through the palace windows. Then the fighting tapered off, with the guerrillas barricaded inside with their captives.

A close adviser of Somoza said the president told him in a telephone call, "The situation is grim. Things are pretty bad."

The Sandinistas have been making hit-and-run attacks on Somoza's troops for a decade. The raid on the palace is their most daring exploit since they fired two rockets last month at Somoza's office, a cement-reinforced building known as The Bunker near the Intercontinental Hotel. The president was not injured.

Somoza's dictatorship has been plagued by strikes, demonstrations, violence and the loss of the U.S. government's support since the assassination on Jan. 10 of opposition publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro. Officials say more than 130 persons have been killed and 700 injured.

Dollar Firmed By Gold Sale

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-The federal government, hoping to restore some health to the ailing dollar, is putting 3 million of its 278 million ounces of gold on the auction block.

While the sale, announced by the Treasury Department Tuesday, will have little immediate consumer effect because the United States is not on the gold standard, any success in rescuing the dollar would eventually moderate retail price rises for imported goods.

As the dollar's value has slipped overseas, foreign manufacturers and importers have raised their prices for goods sold in this country. And because many of those products compete with domestically produced goods, American manufacturers have been able to raise their prices as well.

Hours after the announcement - the second in a series of government measures designed to bring stability to the dollar and cure other economic problems - the dollar rose on the Tokyo foreign exchange market.

Opening at 191 yen to the dollar Wednesday, the dollar quickly went to 192.40, up from Tuesday's close of 191.7. One dealer attributed the rise to the announcement of increased gold sales.

The dollar rose sharply today on European money markets.

The dollar's value against the yen increased slightly in Tokyo. The dollar rose to 193 yen in heavy trading, but later in the day it eased back and closed at 192.05 yen, less than a yen above the previous close of 191.70.

Ask Us

Q - Does the city ever clean up private property that is messy and then bill the owner for it?

A - When health and-or safety of the community is involved, the city has the power to take whatever steps are necessary to clean vacant property and then assess the owner for costs. The city does not make deals with property owners to clean up lots. When action is taken in behalf of health and safety, it does have the authority to put a lien on such property if the owner fails to pay the assessment.

Snyder School Budget Given Final Approval

Snyder School Trustees last night approved a 1978-79 operation budget of $6,476,600 following a public hearing that lasted less than an hour in the high school student center.

Less that a dozen persons other than board members and school staff were on hand for the hearing.

Art Dimney, representing Chevron U.S.A., commented briefly on the budget and the outlook for the immediate future. Dimney said he felt that local school officials had prepared a "tight budget," considering present trends. However, he warned that oil values will continue to drop, unless, of course, there is price relief. He said a recent announcement by the Department of Energy concerning increased prices for "old" oil recovered by tertiary methods apparently offers hope for very little improvement in the overall oil price situation for Scurry County.

"We have 170 pages of rules which we must read and try to determine whether SACROC oil qualifies for the increased price, and if so, how much," said Dimney.

The board set the school tax rate at $1.46 per $100 assessed valuation. This is expected to raise the $5,640,400 in local funds which will be needed for the budget. The tax rate includes $1.33 for maintenance and operation and 13 cents for the interest and sinking fund, which will require some $500,000. The tax rate is based on assessed valuations totalling $386,000,000.

During the hearing on the budget, Elton Beck asked if oil companies would be paying more or less taxes to the school district this year. Dimney said that Chevron would be paying about $40,000 more than it paid last year, despite the fact that its values are down. The rate of $1.46 represents an increase of 36 cents.

John Oneal of Texaco said he did not have exact figures, but that his company also expected to pay more taxes to the school district than last year.

Dimney said he felt that the operating budget's increase of 3.9 per cent represented a good effort on the part of the board and administration to hold down expenditures. He noted that over the past five years, the local school budget has increased by $2,259,000. This year it is up by $251,114 over last year.

inflation by-product

William Shakespeare, famed playwright of 16th century Britain, is credited with the statement "Ill blows the wind that profits nobody." There are other versions of the same idea. But one from classic literature may be permissible now and then in unscholarly expressions of opinion.

Excuse for reprinting a Shakespearan quotation stems from recently published news documentaries on the crisis in private higher education brought on by inflation, and aggravated to some extent by levelling off in college enrollment.

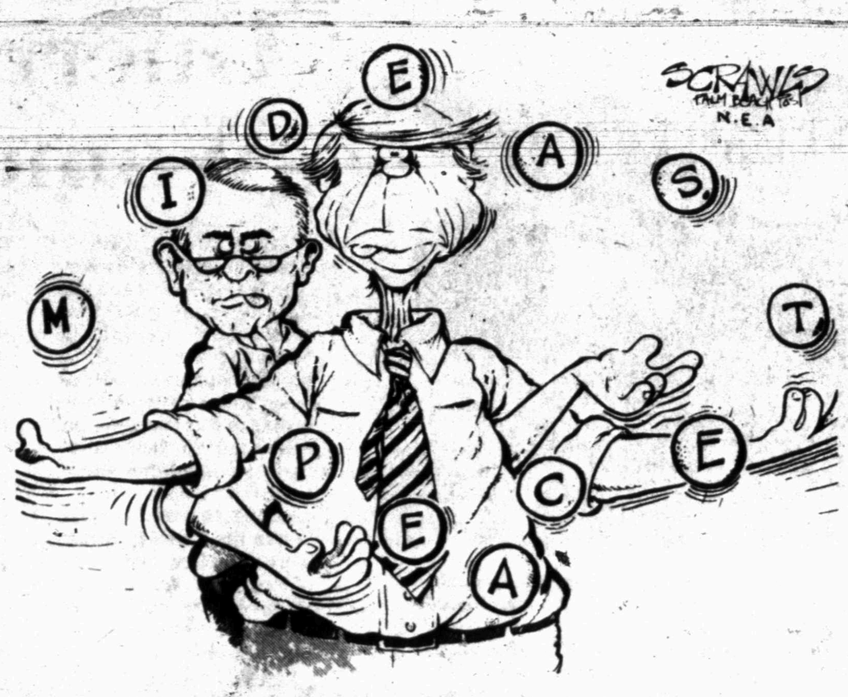
The financial situation, of course, is the major concern, which isn't in the least surprising. There are few problems that can't be solved with relative ease, once the money factor is brought under control. President Carter would have no reason for concern over his standing in the public opinion polls if the Federal budget was in balance and there was a sufficient cash surplus in the U.S. Treasury to satisfy demands for handouts from mismanaged cities, poorly governed states and individual people in need of some ready cash.

Until quite recently there was a feeling among leaders in higher education that an adversary relationship existed between the college community and corporate business. Acceptance of government assistance was regarded as similarly suspect. Contributions from ex-students and church bodies provided adequate support and made for a measure of healthy independence in education.

All that has been changed. Even the most generously endowed independent colleges and universities are suffering from inflation. Old grads aren't coming through with constributions in amounts sufficient to cover increased costs of operation. Big business is now being viewed, not as a bad influence to be avoided but as an ally in the struggle to save higher education from becoming an exclusive function of government.

A healthy balance between public and private sectors of higher education is of utmost importance. Educational leaders have discovered what should have been apparent all along, that private education and private business are natural allies in the struggle to keep the power and influence of government within bounds essential to a free society.

This discovery is a by-product of inflation. It is too bad the lesson couldn't have been learned before so much damage had taken place. But there's a saying on that point. Most of us insist on learning the hard way.



latest in pets

After rocks and hermit crabs, what else new and different can there be in pets?

How about cockroaches?

A shop in Nottingham, England, is reported promoting roaches as "ideal pets because they are very easy to keep, need very little food, and if you go away for a two-week vacation they can be left on their own."

To say the least.

Authorities have expressed some concern that the population might get out of hand and overrun Britain, but the promotors assure that pet roaches are selected only from a harmless variety which does not breed under cold conditions.

Well, it's an idea - but one that probably leaves most householders in a very cold condition.

my turn

by jo ann nunley

The rodeos are over, baseball, family reunions and picnics must soon come to an end. The swimming pool closes this Sunday. Those who take vacations have only a few days left to do so it if they have school age children.

Outside of school beginning, highlighted by sports like football and volleyball - churches, clubs and organizations are about to begin a new year. All of this brings on exciting feelings renewing the activities that have been dormant since spring.

But on the other hand, gardens and fruit trees are bearing their last fruits of the season. Fresh fruit and vegetable recipes have been passed around like the latest gossip at summer gatherings. I'm not ready to leave behind the fresh foods that are available during the summer, especially the red succulent watermelon and cantaloupes. Other fruits can be frozen or canned and the original taste remains, but I've heard of no way yet to preserve these two summer treats. Pickles and preserves can be made from them, but their natural flavor cannot be retained.

The backyard cooking must soon be replaced. The aroma of charcoal briquets and barbecue sauce will diminish giving way to cooler days, and shorter days filled with busy schedules.

Statistics show that we are eating less and less fruit today. Probably because the increasingly popular ice cream and soda pop are taking up more room in our three-pint stomachs.

Our passion for junk foods has changed our food consumption patterns. Traditional home cooking is becoming less and less popular because of the availability of quick foods. A square meal on a round bun is difficult to argue the nutrition point with our children.

Nevertheless, the fresh foods will be missed as we plug in the can opener soon to prepare meals for fall and winter.

Junk Food Ban Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Children who eat lunch at schools with federally subsidized cafeterias still will be able to eat so-called junk foods - such as ice cream, soft drinks and candy - when classes resume this fall.

housing demand holds

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - To judge by the most recent evidence, it looks as if it will take something more than amazing prices and record-high mortgage rates to cool down Americans' appetite for houses.

Most of the experts had been expecting housing starts, after their strong recovery ever since the 1974-75 recession, to begin a moderate downturn by mid-summer.

But the Commerce Department reported the other day that new houses were started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.08 million units in July.

That came close to the upward-revised 2.12 million rate listed for June, and ranked as the third best monthly showing this year.

Housing-industry observers, while acknowledging that the expected decline has been postponed, say it has not necessarily been canceled.

"It should have started already, but it hasn't," said Michael Sumichrast, economist at the National Association of Home Builders in Washington.

Sumichrast does not foresee anything like the steep drop the industry experienced in three years ago. He is projecting a 10 percent decline in 1979 from this year's housing-starts total.

The Value Line Investment Survey similarly predicts 1.6 million to 1.7 million starts next year, against a 1978 total of 1.8 million to 1.9 million.

The period of retrenchment seems to have been delayed by unexpectedly favorable conditions in the mortgage market. Just when it looked as things were starting to pinch, the mortgage picture stablized.

For one thing, six-month certificates of deposit pegged to Treasury bill rates, which banks and thrift institutions were permitted to issue beginning June 1, provided lenders with an infusion of funds.

"The six-month certificates really helped," Suichrast said.

No relatively short-term problem has disturbed the bright picture many observers see for the housing industry in the 1980s. The bulge in the post-World War II baby boom is seen as assuring strong demand for houses for some time to come.

"Another important thrust behind the heightened demand for single-family structures: They have been an outstanding investment during the past 10 years."

That has helped encourage buying of homes by unmarried couples and single people, who until a few years ago would not have been considered much of a factor in the market.

Sumichrast noted a general expectation that mortgage rates will not experience any major decline as long as the inflation rate remains high. "So people decide they might as well buy now," he said.

Arms Sales Now Above Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) - Arms sales to non-allied countries this fiscal year have now exceeded an $8.6 billion ceiling established for such sales by President Carter.

The total was exceeded Monday when the Pentagon announced nearly $1.2 billion in proposed military sales to Saudi Arabia and Iran. Some of the sales may not be accepted formally by the countries before the financial year ends Sept. 30, and here transactions would then become part of the fiscal 1979 total.

Hike Sought On AWOL Bounties

WASHINGTON (AP) - Civilian police would be paid higher cash bounties for catching military deserters if a new Pentagon proposal is adopted.

The Defense Department said Monday the Army is preparing legilation that would initially double and may eventually triple cash payments to civilian police for arresting and returning deserters. The current rate is $15 for the arrest of a deserter, and $25 for arrest and delivery of deserters and absentee to military control.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

Parents have been under fire a lot lately for not knowing their children. They've been accused of selfishly pursuing their own goals and not giving a tinker's toot who their childen are, where they are, or where they've been.

This is quite an indictment, and to make a distinction between parents who take their job seriously and those who don't, I offer today a quiz on "HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW YOUR CHILDREN?"

1. Can you name three of their best friends by their first and last names?
2. Do you know when they last changed their underwear?
3. Do you know for a fact that the voice from under the bathroom door belongs to your nine-year-old?
4. Do you know what books are being hidden that they think you don't know that you know they're reading?
5. Do you communicate? Or was the last time they spoke to you when the smoke alarm went off in their room?
6. Do you know where their school is located?
7. Would you recognize your child if the braces were removed?
8. When it's 11 o'clock do they know where their parents are?
9. Can you read their report card without an interpreter?
10. Did they have to flunk biology before your realized they were taking it?
11. How long has it been since they brought their gym shorts home to be laundered?
12. Do you know what they want to be this week when they grow up?
13. What are their allergies besides soap, homework and closing doors?
14. Who are their heroes? Heroines?
15. What do they do with their allowance?
16. What's under their beds?
17. What makes them laugh? Cry?
18. What size are their shoes?
19. Have you ever watched them play anything competitively?
20. Do you understand what was written under their pictures in the yearbook?
21. Who are their favorite relatives? Why?

If you bombed out on the above 21, you can redeem yourself by answering, "How do they feel about themselves?" and still get a pretty good score.

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The Carter administration, unwilling or unable to tackle the really significant governmental contributors to inflation, continues to zero in on side issues of symbolic importance only.

A prime example is the hand-wringing now going on among Carter's inflation fighters over a Labor Day Department proposal to raise white collar minimum salary standards by an image-rattling 45 to 47 percent.

Unlike the hourly minimum wage rates which Congress establishes by law, white collar minimums for administrative, executive and professional employees are set by the secretary of labor.

In practice, they are normally raised whenever the official minimum wage goes up-as it did last year and will again in January. The Labor Department tries to keep the salary minimum high enough to discourage employers from evading the overtime requirements of the minimum wage law by arbitrarily designating workers as "professionals" or "executives" exempt from coverage of the minimum wage act.

The Labor Department's wage and hours division has proposed increasing the salary minimum for executive and administrative personnel from $155 to $225 a week, and the minimum for professionals from $170 to $250 per week.

There has been no increase in the white collar minimums since April 1975 and department officials insist the proposed boost would have little real effect since a majority of employees in such jobs already earn more than the new minimum salary.

"The numbers involved here are very small, insignificant in terms of the work force as a whole," one Labor Department official said.

Nonetheless, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall has not yet approved the new minimums and probably won't for some time because White House inflation-watchers are worried about the psychological impact of blessing 45 to 47 percent increases for any group of workers.

"Those figures are sure as hell not within our guidelines," grumbled one White House official. "Think what George Meany will say if we allow that."

There's only one problem with such solicitude. It's misplaced.

For inflationary impact, the white collar minimums are virtually meaningless-while increases in the hourly minimum wage voted last year by Congress and approved by the president have a far greater effect because millions more workers are involved.

Yet the administration has made no move to seek a slowdown or halt in those rates, which went from $2.35 to $2.65 an hour last year and will reach $2.90 an hour in January. Why not? Fear of the political consequences from organized labor.

"It's bad enough that we couldn't achieve some of them objectives like labor law reform," one administration source said, "without trying to undo what they've already achieved."

The other single most important inflationary act of the federal government during Carter's presidency was the increase in Social Security taxes voted by Congress last year - and that boost won't even take effect until January.

Government economists fear the higher Social Security taxes, which business will undoubtedly pass through in price increases, coupled with the minimum wage boosts will add another full percentage point to inflation next year.

Carter, however, has no present plans to seek a rollback of the Social Security tax increase either again because of the political difficulties involved. Many members of Congress who voted for the tax hikes last year have had second thoughts, recognizing the damage those increases will do to inflation rates, but not the White House.

Many of the underlying causes of today's inflation are essentially beyond the reach of government action, but it's little wonder that Carter gets such poor marks for his efforts to fight the spiral when his administration swings at the little problems and ducks the big ones.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The diagrammed hand was played in a semi-final match of the prestigious Spingold Cup. Both sides were straining since a victory could mean a national championship.

East's light preempt had the effect of catapulting North-South into a four-spade contract which required superb defense to defeat.

South won the opening lead with dummy's ace of diamonds and immediately tackled trumps. He led a spade to his king which West ducked, and then the 10 of spades which was also allowed to win. South's next play was a heart to dummy's king. South led another heart from dummy and West won with the jack.

It was decision time for West. He knew declarer had started with six spades, one diamond (because East's preempt promised seven) and probably three hearts and three clubs. Therefore, to defeat the contract, East had to have the queen and nine of clubs. South, because of his overcall, was marked for the ace.

West made the world-class switch to the eight of clubs. He had to establish a club trick for the defense before declarer could set up dummy's 13th heart for a club discard.

West's eight of clubs was won by South's ace. West won the heart return with the ace and led another club which was taken by the king in dummy. The heart in dummy was established, but it was no good to declarer. West could trump low and retain the ace for the setting trick.

West had played his partner for the right clubs and he had led the suit at precisely the correct time. Any delay in leading that low club would have assured declarer's contract. To be a good defender — as West obviously was — it is necessary to think at all times.

Garbagemen File Suit In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)-Fired city garbage collectors who have not been rehired since their dismissals following a walkout last month have filed suit against the city seeking reinstatement in their jobs with back pay.

The suit was filed in state district court Tuesday, a day after the municipal civil service commission refused to hear mass appeals on behalf of the former garbage workers.

No date for a hearing on the suit was scheduled.

Edward Camara Jr., attorney who filed the suit, estimated about 120 fired garbage collectors have not been rehired. He said 217 workers filed appeals and no more than 90 were rehired.

The suit was filed on behalf of Eddie Leija, San Antonio Refuse Collectors Association president, and other garbagemen who, like Leija, have not been rehired.

The suit alleges that City Manager Tom Huebner's firing of the striking garbage workers July 23 - the day following their walkout - violated civil service rules and illegally denied the garbagemen their right to due process under the U.S. Constitution.

It asks the court to declare the firings illegal, contending that procedures set up by Huebner to review the dismissals were actually "inquisitions" and "kangaroo courts" designed to eliminate union activists.

By walking off the job, the city contends the former workers violated the state law that prohibits strikes and gave up their right of appeal.

Women Now Accepted As Members Of VFW

By MICHELLE SCOTT
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)-Women will be able to join the Veterans of Foreign Wars for the first time, and the head of the VFW Auxiliary hailed the step as "keeping up with the times."

"We think it is great that the VFW is accepting women veterans who have earned the right to be a member by virtue of their overseas service to our country," said Grace Minnix, VFW Auxiliary national president.

Delegates to the national VFW convention voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to admit women to the organization, but it took a lively two-hour debate to produce the decision.

The Texas delegation threw a crimp into the resolution's easy passage when all 920 of the state's votes were cast against it. However, delegates summoned the needed two-thirds majority to allow the measure to pass, 9,785-4,019.

Not all auxiliary officers were as enthusiastic as its president. Arlene McDermott, national senior vice president, said she thinks the women eligible for VFW membership who now belong to the auxiliary are happy the way things have been.

"I doubt if many who are already auxiliary members will join the VFW," said Mrs. McDermott.

She said there are about 10,000 women in the U.S. eligible for VFW membership.

Most VFW delegates who spoke during the debate said they favored allowing women to join the organization, but they voiced different reasons for their support.

Francis D. Doris, assistant majority leader in the Massachusetts House of Representatives and a delegate, said he would fight to admit women but added that he deplored members of Congress who said they would turn in their VFW membership cards if the amendment failed.

"To those who would hand in their cards, I'd give them a hand signal in return," Doris said.

James Van Zandt, a former U.S. congressman from Pennsylvania and three-time VFW commander, said women could be allowed to join the organization without an amendment to the charter.

"Any of you comrades who wouldn't want to admit women, you can go into a court and file a suit and you will be involved in a lawsuit that will take you all the way to the Supreme Court," Van Zandt said.

"I'm in favor of women being in the VFW not because I want to but because I believe the VFW has to admit them," Van Zandt said just before being shouted down from the podium.

An unidentified delegate said over loud booing that if the amendment were passed, members would have "equal members of the National Organization for Women knocking at our door...and we won't be able to do anything about it."

"They will work just as hard against veteran preference as they have until now," the delegate shouted over the jeers.

Bergland Sees Signs Of Consumer Backlash

WASHINGTON (AP)-Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is warning cattle producers about the possibility of severe consumer backlash if they don't soon begin rebuilding their breeding herds.

Recent Agriculture Department reports indicate that producers have continued to liquidate cattle herds and that beef output will continue to drop in the next few years.

One indication has been the relatively high slaughter rate of cows and the placement of potential breeding heifers in feedlots which then are sold to packing houses.

Bergland said today that unless beef producers start rebuilding their herds, they are inviting another price disaster of the kind that depressed the beef cattle sector so severely in the mid-1970s.

After the U.S. cattle inventory peaked on Jan. 1, 1975 at a record 132 million head, producers began an unprecedented sell-off to reduce losses triggered by sagging market prices for beef animals. By last Jan. 1, as prices were on their way to recovery, the inventory was down to about 116 million head. A further cutback to 110 million to 112 million by Jan. 1, 1979, seems likely, according to USDA experts.

Bergland made his remarks in a prepared statement scheduled for release today in Missoula, Mont. A copy of it was issued here by his office.

I can understand the temptation of ranchers to cash in on good profits after nearly three years of severe leases, Bergland said. But the favorable supply and demand situation for the next few years suggests it is a good time to take stock of some of the longer-run opportunities and plan realistically to maintain a stable market for farmers and ranchers.

One reason, he said, is that excessively high beef prices could invite certain unfavorable reaction from consumers, whose political influence outweighs the clout of the relatively few producers.

A department spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said that Bergland's remark presumably referred to the outside possibility of presidential action to restrict prices or open the door wide to imports of foreign beef.

President Carter has said that he will not impose price controls and does not plan to allow more beef imports in the near future.

The spokesman said, however, that this possibly could change if retail beef prices soared much beyond their record peaks of this summer and showed no sign of easing down the road because of cattle producers rebuilding their herds.

Meanwhile, Bergland said in his Missoula statement that he reaffirms Carter's pledges of no price controls and no further increases in imports this year and no total removal of import limitations next year.

Carter On Second Day Of Rafting

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

ALONG THE SALMON RIVER, Idaho (AP)-The seven-foot Tappan waterfall and rough rapids lay ahead as President Carter began his second day in a black rubber raft on the primitive Salmon River.

The first family's raft was heading for the rough water shortly after breaking camp today on the banks of the river's Middle Fork.

Carter, his wife, Rosalynn, and their children, Amy, Jack and Chip, set out on their three-day glide down an isolated, 80-mile section of river early Tuesday.

Except for a few brief bursts of sunlight, the first day's journey of 30 miles was marred by overcast skies that gave way frequently to rain, drizzle and hail in the 60-degree weather.

The trip-billed as a private, family vacation-began with a flourish as the denimclad first family shoved off in the midst of a group of five, 20-foot rafts.

During the day, the Carters fished, catching three cutthroat trout which were thrown back into the clean, shallow water. Later there was a coffee break at the only lodge in the area when the cold rain interrupted the fun.

With Secret Service agents in the lead, the second craft carried Phil Wise, White House appointments secretary; Robert Peterson, the president's military aide; Jack Kightlinger, a White House photographer, and Bill Guth, a partner in the raft company that outfitted the trip.

Third in line was the presidential raft. Norman Guth, co-owner of the raft company, acted as boatman. His 11-year-old daughter, Mira, was along to keep 10-year-old Amy company.

Following close behind was a fourth raft carrying Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, his wife, Carol, and Dr. William Lukash, the president's physician.

Another raft for agents brought up the rear.

Balloonists Are Cheered

MISEREY, France (AP)-The three Americans who were the first to cross the Atlantic in a balloon sipped champagne and were cheered by thousands of Frenchmen as they journeyed to the field where their historic crossing ended.

"This is incredible," said Ben Abruzzo, 48, who made the crossing with fellow New Mexicans Larry Newman, 31, and Maxie Anderson, 44.

Their Tuesday visit came two days after the 34th anniversary of the day American forces liberated this Normandy village from four years of Nazi occupation.

Special POW Day Designated

WASHINGTON (AP) - Next July 18 will be a day of national recognition for American military personnel held as prisoners of war or who are missing in action, according to legislation signed by President Carter.

Of the prisoners, Carter said: "Their heroism ..., has often been greater than the heroism of men in battle; the prisoner's battle to preserve life, dignity and honor can go on day after painful day, sometimes for years. And the anguish suffered by the families of Americans missing in action is prolonged by lack of certainty over the fate of a husband, or son, or grandson or brother."

Same Old Story On Superfly

Nobody Can Identify Marijuana Czar

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Officials say it is the same old story as investigators try to figure out who was behind the $25 million shipment of marijuana seized on board the Superfly II.

The 16 men on board the 111-foot cargo boat pleaded ignorance. The boat itself offered no clues.

"The crewmembers said they were shanghaied on the beach in Colombia," said Lt. Cmdr. H.D. Jacoby of the Coast Guard cutter Durable. "They said they were forced on the boat under duress. It's the standard story."

That "standard story" also includes a tale of how the captain of the vessel left the craft the day before it was seized by the Durable last Friday, Jacoby added.

The Superfly II became the ninth marijuana-toting vessel seized in the Gulf by the Durable since December. The cutter's scorecard shows some staggering numbers; 155 tons of marijuana seized - a street value of abut $100 million.

"It's difficult to determine who owns the boat," Jacoby said of the Superfly II. "The name boards are bolted on over where the old name was scratched out."

The crewmembers have been jailed here and most of the weed has been burned.

Officials said the Superfly II was the first "mother ship" seized. Mother ships are larger vessels that meet smaller boats and divide the profitable cargo. The Superfly II was on course for the Corpus Christi area when seized.

Eddie Guajardo, Customs district director at Laredo, said the vessel was probably planning to meet a series of shrimp boats or other small boats near the Texas coast.

Jacoby said increased patrols along the east coast of Florida may be forcing drug runners to head for Gulf Coast ports.

"The operators are trying to shift westward to avoid the expertise of the Florida units," the officer said.

The Superfly II, an old boat that ran well and was fitted with sophisticated equipment, was a victim of bad luck, Jacoby said. The boat was spotted as the Durable maintained a routine patrol. Because it flew no flag and had no name or home port on the stern, Coast Guardsmen were suspicious of the freighter.

Jacoby said the boat might have been trailed in an effort to determine its destination - had not a Coast Guard helicopter been seen from the drug boat.

The marijuana business is profitable for all involved, Jacoby said.

"Any good seaman could make the passage if he had the right equipment," he said.

The high quality marijuana - good for about $300 a pound on the street - probably cost about $5 a pound in Colombia, he said. He added that American sailors who pilot marijuana boats through U.S. waters are paid up to $100,000 per trip. Crewmembers can get $50,000 per journey.

The 32-ton cache aboard the Superfly II amazed Coast Guardsmen aboard the Durable. Lt. Robert Rzemieniewski said the pungent odor of the weed apparently left one guardsman ill.

The lieutenant also said some guardsmen felt the marijuana was merely a front for the real cargo.

"There were thousands of Coke bottles on board. Maybe they were going to cash them in," he said.

Screening For Early Childhood Program Set

A screening program to identify children with learning disabilities not currently enrolled in the Snyder Public Schools Early Childhood Development program will be conducted Tuesday, Aug. 29th from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Parents of children ages 3-5 who feel their child may have handicaps and may experience some learning disability in school will be able to bring their child to the Humble-Smith School, 3100 37th Street, for screening. This screening will require approximately 30 minutes. After the initial screening, a determination will be made concerning a full evaluation with possible placement in the Early Childhood Development program. This unit, which is located at the Humble-Smith School, provides services for handicapped children between the ages of 3 and 5 in such things as self-help skills, motor skills, socialization skills, language skills and cognitive skills.

Parents who have observed some of the following things about their children should carefully consider the need for screening their child:

1. A general lag in developing the ability to use words to express directions.
2. A short attention span.
3. An inability to use words to express their needs.
4. A lag in developing the ability to dress himself.
5. A needless repetition of a movement or acitivity.
6. Speech that is not easily understood.
7. Plays alone and seldom talks to other children.
8. Stumbles often or appears awkward when he moves.
9. Has poor control over behavior and emotions.
10. Engages in disruptive behavior.

Parents who have questions regarding the screening program should contact Mrs. Carolyn Hamby, early childhood teacher, or Roger McCulley, special education coordinator at 573-9364.

Obesity a serious problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 39-year-old overweight female and I was just told that I'm a borderline diabetic after I had a three hour glucose tolerance test. Does this mean that I will eventually have diabetes or will I be able to control this indefinitely by watching my diet? I have always been healthy and this really has me worried.

DEAR READER — I hesitate to comment specifically on what was meant by the term "borderline diabetic" since such terms are not used uniformly by all doctors or the public, but I think that you can conclude from it that it means you don't have a severe problem now and apparently not one of sufficient magnitude to warrant using any medicines.

We also know that many people who have abnormal glucose tolerance tests and high blood glucose levels will develop normal responses after they have eliminated their obesity. While I'm sorry you are worried, perhaps it is a blessing if it will stimulate you to lose any excess body fat that you have and don't need.

Obesity is one of the most serious health problems we have as a society. It is a contributory factor in diabetes. It is a major factor in high blood pressure and it complicates almost any medical or surgical problem that a person may have.

To help you control your problem I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Other readers who would like this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you will follow such a dietary program carefully and really eliminate all of your excess fat, it could be a major improvement for your present and future health.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I read your column on zinc sulfate and noticed with interest your comments on loss of taste and smell. My husband lost his smell and is gradually losing his sense of taste. He has consulted various doctors about this and they act like he is crazy, as if they never heard of such a thing. They did make some brain tests on him and could find nothing wrong there, but there must be some reason why this is occurring.

Any information you can give us regarding the cause or possible causes of this situation would be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER — The role of zinc and other minerals in taste has received new emphasis in recent times. It has been pretty clearly demonstrated that in some cases, but certainly not in all, a zinc deficiency may contribute to both the loss of taste or smell.

Every person who's had loss of taste should have a medical evaluation. Dr. Robert Henkin found that one out of 10 patients with this finding did have a cancer. That also means that nine out of 10 did not, but it does point up the importance of a medical evaluation for such a symptom.

If it's really true that the doctors that you have seen are unfamiliar with the problem of loss of taste and its relationship to low zinc levels, your doctor might wish to write to Dr. Robert I. Henkin at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington, D.C. He has pioneered most of the modern work on the problems related to loss of taste and smell.

Luckenbach Is Faced With Political Discord

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - There's political and legal discord brewin' in tiny Luckenbach as the fabled town's partowner and mayor has filed a suit against its press secretary.

Mayor Kathy Morgan, who really lives in nearby Blanco, alleges that Jack Harmon, who really lives in San Antonio, is Luckenbach's "self-appointed" press secretary and wants him stopped from acting as an official representative of the town.

And this is not another joke from the Hill Country hamlet - pop. 3 - that gave us a nationwide "chuckle-in," the "Buy-Centennial Bad Taste Awards," "Mud Dauber's Day" and the Luckenbach Ladies Lynching League.

State District Judge James C. Onion granted the temporary restraining order last week and will consider a request Monday for a permenent injunction.

"If we allow just anyone to represent us as an official of Luckenbach, it might get bad," explains Mrs. Morgan.

Meanwhile, Harmon was served with the restraining order Friday, but later left by train for New York as a member of Luckenbach's delegation to "Texas Week," festivities at the Lone Star Cafe.

At a stop in Oklahoma City, the members of the group introduced themselves to reporters as the Luckenbach Foreign Aid Council and said they were going to New York to help the city solve its problems.

Harmon could not be reached for comment on the suit.

But back in Luckenbach on Tuesday, Mrs. Morgan's town "regulars" were planning a special recall election to have Harmon removed as the town's press secretary.

"They're a little upset with some of the statements he's been making," Mrs. Morgan said of her "regulars."

In the past, she said, she and Harmon and the other Luckenbach "regulars" all worked together. But lately, she said, "He's been going out with press releases that were detrimental to Luckenbach."

She cited a news release allegedly issued by Harmon that publicized a "drunk and falling down contest."

"To me that serves to give the wrong impression," she said. "We've had falling contests, but drunk and falling down makes it sound like everyone's drunk."

And that's not the case in Luckenbach, she added.

The suit was also filed, Mrs. Morgan said, to protect the copyright applied for on the name of the town. The town of Luckenbach, glorified by a popular song, is actually a corporation.

Harmon has issued news releases about Luckenbach activities for the past few years. His wife, Susie, is editor of the "Luckenbach Monthly Moon" newspaper. In vintage Luchenbach style, the newspaper is published monthly - eleven times a year.

Psychic Had Patty Pegged

NEW YORK (AP)-Psychic Dorothy told FBI agents of several hideouts used by the kidnapped Patty Hearst and said she would be found in a place with a religious name, according to the September issue of McCall's magazine.

The New Jersey housewife, who has helped police find about 20 bodies, told newspaper publisher Randolph Hearst that his daughter would dye her hair red, travel across country, escape from a fire in which there would be shooting and eventually be found safe, the magazine reports.

New Law Really Cleaning Streets

By Malcolm N. Carter
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - It works! A new law that skeptics said had more bark than bite is making the streets and sidewalks of New York City safer for the unwary stroller.

Three weeks after the law took effect, requiring dog walkers to clean up after pets, the city is noticeably cleaner.

Although there's no way to say exactly how much dog waste is being picked up from sidewalks, streets and parks - an estimated 70,000 dogs produce 175 tons of the stuff a day in New York - Sanitation Commissioner Anthony Vaccarello said the law is working.

"The public senses we mean business," he said.

If so, it could lead to the extinction of that peculiar urban species, the red-faced side-stepper, who keeps one eye on traffic and the other on his feet, angry and sometimes embarrassed as he steps - and missteps - down the sidewalk.

The wonder is that many here who ignored laws for jaywalking and parking - and the old law requiring owners to take dogs to the street side of the curb - are apparently taking the new law seriously.

"I think the public wants to respond and is fed up with tapdancing through the streets," was Vaccarello's explanation.

"But," he added, "we must keep up the enforcement so they don't think it's a kind of shot in the dark."

Vacarello said those dog owners who themselves are not fed up with dirty streets apparently fear their neighbors' disapproval or the long scoop of the law.

Violators face fines of up to $100 if they refuse to comply when an officer warns them to clean up after their dogs. So far, according to the Sanitiation Department, 75 summonses have been issued. Another 897 dog walkers have heeded the initial warning.

Others would rather give up than clean up, says the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"We've been swamped," it said, reporting a 25 percent increase in the number of dogs turned in the first two weeks of August, compared with the same period last year. Most of the some 50 dogs turned in daily will not be adopted and will be put to sleep.

Caroline Thompson, an ASPCA consultant, questioned what kind of owner would give up a dog simply because of the new law. "You must wonder how this animal has been treated up to now," she said. "I'm not saying the law's no good; I'm saying that people are no good."

Alan Beck, director of the city's Bureau of Animal Affairs, agreed that those giving up dogs because of the new law were irresponsible owners, but he disputed the ASPCA's figures on abandonments.

"We're doing some statsitical studies to see if it's really true," he said. "So far it doesn't look that different from preceding years."

Meanwhile, the new law is already in the process of being amended. A bill before the State Legislature would require dog walkers to carry a means of cleaning up, authorize an expansion of the enforcement squad and permit the sanitation commissioner to prescribe the manner of disposal. The current law merely requires cleaning up the mess.

Sex education

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I have a 7-year-old son who asks questions about sex from time to time like any normal, curious child.

I have always answered him with the amount of information I thought he was old enough to understand. By now, he trusts me. I feel good about the basis I have established for handling other, more complicated sexual matters when they arise.

Last week, I read an article in a women's magazine about sex education. It said a mother should hand over the job to her husband by the time their son starts junior high school.

Otherwise, the article went on to say, boys find themselves without anyone to talk with about sex.

Mothers become threatening because they are, after all, members of the opposite sex. As for fathers, who even knows at that late date if a father would discuss sex without making fun of the question?

The article made sense to me. But I wonder how a mother simply hands over the complex and delicate task of sex education to someone who may not have the faintest idea what to do. It seems that the child may end up feeling he has no parent to talk to about sex, which is just what the article attempts to avoid.

DEAR READER — Although the article seems to guiding you in the right direction, I am surprised it doesn't advise starting the shift toward father long before junior high school.

Do not wait. Start now by showing the article to your husband and establishing an agreement on at least beginning to share responsibility for your son's sex education.

Bring your husband up to date on the questions your son has asked about sex as well as your responses.

Do not assume your husband will have no ideas about his son's sex education. It may take some compromising to work out a mutually acceptable approach.

Once your husband has agreed to assume major responsibility and you have filled him in on your son's sex-education history, he will be ready to take the next step.

He should look for an opportune moment when he is alone with the boy to bring up the subject of sex. It could be in the children's reading room in the library when they "run across" a book on sex or at the zoo when they happen upon animals mating.

By bringing up the subject in a relaxed, nonthreatening way, your husband will demonstrate to your son his availability to talk about the more personal aspects of sex.

Your husband may have to use several such opportunities to establish a climate of trust.

In the meantime, suppose your son comes to you with a question about sex. Should you steer him to his father? No. He is probably asking you because he is not yet sure about having these discussions with his father.

Let the shift occur slowly and naturally.

Although the onus for most talks about sex will eventually fall on the parent of the same sex, it is also important to establish sex as a possible topic of conversation when the family is together. Why should it only be discussed behind closed doors with one parent or the other?

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

ERA Would Give Dad a Chance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife works the 4 p.m. to midnight shift. She got into the habit of going dancing and drinking every night after work with two of her girlfriends. She'd get home at 3 or 4 in the morning, and when I complained, she said she hadn't done anything wrong. I told her I was afraid it might lead to something, and sure enough it did. She started staying out all night.

Abby, we have two kids, 5 and 9, and I didn't think she was acting like a proper mother. Finally, she got tired of my criticism and she filed for divorce. I was told she could get a divorce, plus I would have to give her our mobile home and pay child support, which would just about keep me broke.

Is there a chance that I can get custody of my kids? What about a man's rights? I love my kids as much as she does, and I'm a better father to them than she is a mother.

I can't afford to hire a lawyer to fight her. I'm 31 and she's 30. I live in Lee County, Ala., where a man doesn't stand a chance in a divorce case.

Please help me.

J.M.

DEAR J.M.: Get in touch with your local Legal Aid Society if you can't afford to engage a lawyer. Your situation is a classic example of why we need the Equal Rights Amendment. MEN are entitled to equal rights with women. In some states (yours especially) men are discriminated against.

DEAR ABBY: The other night my husband and I were guests for the first time at the home of a couple we had recently met. We caught a glimpse of their lovely living room as they ushered us into their "family room" in the back of the house, where we were entertained.

We have a family room, too, but we always entertain our guests in the living room.

What is it with people nowadays that they put you in a room with broken-down furniture, or worse yet, take you downstairs to the "recreation room," and save their living room for display purposes only?

How do you feel about this trend, Abby?

SICK OF FAMILY ROOMS

DEAR SICK: Frankly, if the company is good, I don't care where I sit, as long as a dog doesn't come and sit on my lap.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a secretary for many years and have always dressed conservatively as I was taught to do in business school.

Recently I have been in offices where some young female employees wear see-through blouses, backless dresses, even strapless dresses and bare midriff outfits that would be appropriate for the beach. And pants are OK, except those that are so tight they show every curve and line of a woman's anatomy. (Enough said?)

Am I out of step with the times, Abby? Or has common sense and simple modesty gone out the office window?

OLD-TIMER

DEAR OLD-TIMER: Unfortunately, common sense is still very uncommon in some quarters. Some offices have a dress code. But many that don't, should have.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Sentence Levied

Merlin Paul Montgomery pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of driving while intoxicated Tuesday afternoon in county court.

He was sentenced to a 30-day jail term, probated for six months, and fined $100.

The shark has been described as one of nature's vacuum cleaners. Soft-drink bottles, tin cans, magazines, old clothes, anchors, boat propellers, lead sinkers and logs have been found in shark stomachs, says the National Geographic Society.

Two Thefts Reported

Two thefts were being investigated this morning by city police.

Wayne York told officers of a theft occurring at a storage building behind 1009 30th St.

He said that someone entered through a window and removed a saddle from the building. The saddle, officers said, was found at a nearby fence.

Two boys, aged 8 and 11, respectively, were being questioned by police in connection with the incident.

Tuesday, Perline Selmon told police that a wheel cover had been removed from her car parked at 1101 29th St. Value of the wheel cover was set at $62.

In 1899, the use of incense was forbidden in Church of England worship.

C-City Adds To Zone For MobileHomes

COLORADO CITY-At an unusually short monthly meeting last night, the city council added more area to the mobile home district, rezoned a city block to allow a man to open a radio-TV repair shop and decided to advertise for bids on the oil, gas and mineral rights on city owned property.

Mobile homes will now be permitted on East 18th Street from Austin to Hemphill Avenues. All of City Block 82 will be rezoned from multi-residential to local retail to allow Leon Callaway to operate a radio-TV repair shop from his home at 505 East 4th Street.

City Manager James Campbell was authorized to advertise for bids on the oil, gas and mineral rights on city owned land.

The next meeting of the council will be Sept. 12, 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall.

Longest Mile Smallest State

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - That longest mile. It may be in the smallest state, Rhode Island.

The state's only measured mile, located on Interstate 95, turned out to be 5,775 feet when transportation officials, spurred by motorist complaints, took out their calibrators Tuesday.

As elementary school students learn, a mile should be 5,280 feet.

"We're a small state with big miles," joked transportation department spokesman Paul Kelly. "Everybody's just out of step with the measured mile."

Comparisons Differ On Proposed Tax Cut Plan

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- Backers of a Republican proposal to slash income taxes by a third over the next three years compare the plan to Kennedy administration policies that invigorated the U.S. economy 15 years ago.

But a prime architect of the Kennedy program doesn't agree.

"We don't want to stimulate so much that we worsen inflation," Henry H. Fowler, undersecretary of the treasury during the Kennedy years and treasury secretary under President Lyndon B. Johnson, told the Senate Finance Committee on Tuesday.

Things are different today than in 1963 when the late President John F. Kennedy urged a massive tax cut to prime the economy, said Fowler, now an investment banker and stock broker.

"The very serious dollar problem...the very major problem of inflation" did not exist then, he added.

Although Fowler cautioned against rushing into the Kemp-Roth plan, he heartily endorsed a GOP innitiative to sharply reduce the tax on capital gains. In fact, he noted that the capital gains plan he advocates is precisely the one he wrote-and Kennedy backed - in 1963.

Led by Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., and Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y., most Republicans in Congress have endorsed the controversial bill that would cut individual income taxes by an average of one-third over three years. The House already has rejected the Kemp-Roth measure and adopted a $16.3 billion tax relief bill.

Backers of the Kemp-Roth plan claim it would spur the economy, bringing in more revenues than it costs, just as a similar tax reduction did during the Kennedy years.

The Carter administration and most economists who have testified before Congress disagree. They say so large a tax cut would worsen inflation.

Fowler, responding to a question from Roth, said something like the Kemp-Roth bill coupled with serious efforts to control federal spending could be a workable solution to inflation. But a long-term tax cut and continued high federal spending would bring larger deficits and more inflation, he said.

On capital gains, Fowler seemed to find himself in agreement with most members of the finance committee. A majority of the Senate, over the opposition of the Carter administration, favors a major cut in capital gains taxes in an effort to boost investment.

Fowler said the House passed tax cut bill does not go far enough and would not provide across-the board relief for all investors.

Current law taxes disclosure form when he became chief counsel to the House Administration Committee, his present position.

Snyderite Seen In Current Film

A Snyder girl plays a minor role in the movie "Convoy," now being shown at the Cinema in the Snyder Shopping Center.

The girl is Paula Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baldwin of Snyder. She is a 1973 graduate of Snyder High School.

Ms. Baldwin is shown only briefly in a scene in which a car she and a man are occupying is commandeered by an irate highway patrolman played by Ernest Borgnine.

In the movie, several highway patrolmen are beaten by a gang of renegade truckers led by Kris Kristofferson. The truckers leave the patrolmen in the tavern where the fight occurred, then go outside and vandalize the patrol cars.

After coming to and finding the patrol car heavily damaged, Brognine commandeers a car occupied by Ms. Baldwin and a man.

She and her companion have a small amount of marijuana in their possession, and, to avoid arrest, swallow the substance.

The scene in which she is shown lasts about five or six seconds.

The movie was filmed last summer in New Mexico. At that time, Ms. Baldwin was living in Santa Fe.

She lives there now, her mother reports.

Mrs. Baldwin said her daughter has become a full-time actress for the Greer Garson Theater in Santa Fe and is attending Santa Fe College. She is studing drama.

"Convoy" began its run in Snyder last Friday. It will end Thursday, Aug. 24.

In addition to Borgnine and Kristofferson, the movie also features Ali McGraw.

The motion picture is rated PG, meaning that parental guidance is recommended.

Steelers Weeding Out Old Super Bowl Gang

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

While most National Football League teams continued to put the finishing touches on their 1978 squads, the Pittsburgh Steelers continue to weed out "That Old Gang of Ours" that brought two consecutive Super Bowl titles to the Steel City.

The latest Super Bowl member to leave was former All-Pro safety Glen Edwards, who was traded to the San Diego Chargers for a future draft Tuesday, as the Steerlers and 27 other NFL clubs sought to reach the 50-man roster limit.

Edwards, 31, wanted to renegotiate his contract with the Steelers in 1977 and walked out for a week after the season's seventh game.

"I'm still as fast as anybody out there," Edwards said.

The 6-foot-1, 185-pound Edwards, a seven-year veteran, won a starting job as a rookie out of Florida A&M in 1971. He was named the Steelers' most valuable player in 1974, the year they first won the Super Bowl.

Among other Pittsburgh Super Bowl veterans who have been traded since last season were center Jim Clack, wide receiver Frank Lewis and defensive tackle Ernie Holmes, who was waived this week by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Fullback Reggie Harrison, another Steeler with a Super Bowl ring, was cut Monday.

The Steelers also shipped tackle Dave Pureifory, acquired in the offseason from the Green Bay Packers, to the New England Patriots for a future draft choice.

Pittsburgh also announced that second-round draft choice Willie Fray suffered torn tendons in his hand and will be lost for the season. He was placed on the injured reserve list.

Edwards wasn't the only former All-Pro defensive back to be affected in the cutdown moves.

Bruce Taylor, a starter for San Francisco since 1970, was one of eight players waived by the 49ers. The 30-year-old cornerback was a first-round selection in 1970 and had 18 career interceptions.

"I saw it coming," Taylor said. "I'm not really disappointed. I've talked it over with my wife and I'm sure I still have some good years left and there are some teams interested."

Some other familiar names fell by the wayside and one, Lydell Mitchell of the Baltimore Colts, remained in limbo when team owner Robert Irsay rejected a compromise settlement reached by the Player Club Relations Committee in Washington that would have ended the running back's holdout.

Philadelphia dropped special teams player Vince Papale, who became the oldest rookie in NFL history when he made the Eagles' roster at the age of 30 two years ago. Buffalo cut 1977 starting linebacker Bo Cornell; the New York Giants dropped last year's first-string safety Jim Stienke and the Los Angeles Rams waived Art Thoms, a defensive lineman on the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders two seasons ago.

Besides Cornell, who started his NFL career with Cleveland in 1971, the Bills dropped backup quarterback Ken Johnson, who was squeezed out by the acquisition of Bill Munson from San Diego.

Stienke, a five-year regular, lost his job in training camp to Ernie Jones and was one of 10 players cut by the Giants.

The Rams waived seven other players besides Thoms, including former Yale quarterback Brian Dowling and Southern Methodist wide receiver Freeman Johns.

Free agent quarterbacks Clint Longley and Mark Jackson were among nine players dropped by St. Louis.

Green Bay had five veterans among its 10 cuts. Included were tackle Dick Hines, an 11-year pro and the Packers' offensive captain, defensive end Clarence Williams, a nine-year man, linebacker Tom Toner, who has been with the Packers for six years, and guard Dennis Havig, an eight-year veteran.

The New York Jet cuts included two rookie defensive backs, Levi Armstrong, a seventh-round draft from UCLA, and Ray Eppes, drafted in the eighth round from Clemson.

Secdrick McIntyre, a second-year back who is Auburn's all-time leading rusher, was among three players cut by the Atlanta Falcons.

Kansas City placed two players, guard Darius Helton and safety Ricky Davis, on injured reserve, and waived seven others.

Denver's cuts included linebackers John Huddleston and Ron Smith.

Cincinnati dropped seven players including veteran linebacker Ray Phillips, while the Chicago Bears waived wide receiver Steve Rivera and three other players to reach the 50-man limit.

The Cleveland Browns released 10 players including veteran quarterback Terry Luck and safety Rolly Woolsey, while the Washington Redskins dropped former World Football League running back Tommy Reamon and three other players.

The Redskins also announced a pair of trades. They acquired veteran tight end Greg McGrary from the Falcons for an undisclosed draft pick in 1980 and got wide receiver Ricky Thompson from the colts for a 1979 draft choice.

The Saints dropped 10 players including offensive tackle Marv Montgomery, a starter the past two seasons.

Devine Says His Irish Ready To Defend Title

By JOE MOOSHILL
AP Sports Writer

"Somewhere, during the course of the season, whether it's at Notre Dame, at Southern California or wherever, someone is going to have to take that title away from us on the field. It's not impossible but it's going to be very hard to do."

So said Coach Dan Devine of his Notre Dame national football champions. The first major test appears to be Sept. 23 at South Bend when Notre Dame and Michigan battle for the first time in 35 years.

Notre Dame and Michigan rank one-two in the Midwest collegiate scene with Ohio State a close third.

As they have for every season since 1967, Michigan and Ohio State again figure to dominate the Big Ten. Possible challenges might be offered by Michigan State and Purdue.

Indiana and Iowa might not be too far behind. Minnesota could have trouble repeating its successes of last season which included a stunning upset of Michigan. Illinois is still in the rebuilding process and Wisconsin and Northwestern have hired new coaches.

Miami of Ohio is favored to repeat in the Mid-American Conference with Ball State and Western Michigan considered strong contenders. Central Michigan and Bowling Green are given outside chances followed by Kent State, Northern Illinois, Eastern Michigan, Ohio and Toledo.

Heated interest in the Midwest, however, will hub around the Michigan-Notre Dame contest which could be a battle of offenses.

Michigan has its entire backfield returning with Rick Leach at quarterback and Harlan Huckleby and Russell Davis at the running slots. Ditto Notre Dame with quarterback Joe Montana and running backs Jerome Heavens and Vagas Ferguson.

Notre Dame has worked feverishly in trying to rebuild its front four. Replacing the likes of Ross Browner and Willie Fry is not easy.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said "Defense is our problem. If the defense comes through, we'll be fine. If not, no offense can make up for the defense."

Woody Hayes could do a turnabout in his thinking at Ohio State where the Buckeyes landed freshman passing sensation Art Schlichter. Ohio State opens the season against Penn State and Woody is not about to throw the youngster to the Nittany Lions. Chances are veteran Rod Gerald will direct the attack in that game. Gerald then will gradually work in as a wide receiver with Schlichter easing in at quarterback.

"We feel we're going to have an awfully good team this year," said Hayes.

With the record-breaking Leach at Michigan and Schlichter at Ohio State, the Big Ten appears destined to do more passing this season than in the past.

Certainly they'll be throwing the ball at Michigan State where Eddie Smith operates and at Purdue where Mark Herrmann will have a year of experience after passing for 2,453 yards and 18 touchdowns as a freshman.

Induction May Boost Casper

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - Billy Casper said his induction into the World Golf Hall of Fame "may be just the boost I need.

"Sometimes we need a little help, a little ego-booster, to get us back on the right track. This could be the catalyst I've been needing to get started again."

Casper, along with Bing Crosby, Clifford Roberts and old British starts Harold Hilton and Dorothy Campbell Hurd, were inducted into the Hall of Fame Tuesday night, swelling to 35 the number of men and women who have been honored since the Hall opened in 1974.

"It's a very rewarding, humbling thin," said Casper. "It's even nicer that it comes while I'm still alive and active and can appreciate it that much more."

Casper, who is competting in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic that begins Thursday, didn't discount the possibility of winning that title.

"Wouldn't that be something? That'd really top off the week," he said.

The durable Casper has won 51 American tour titles in a career that spans almost 25 years. Among his major titles are the 1959 and 1966 U.S. Opens and the 1970 Masters. He also acquired a record five Vardon Trophies for the low stroke average on the tour.

Crosby and Roberts, who died within a few months of each other last year, were selected to the Hall's Distinguished Service category. Crosby was the founder and guiding force behind the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, for four decades a landmark event on the tour.

Roberts was a co-founder of the Masters and for more than 40 years was the iron-fished director of that major event.

Hilton, from England, won two British Open titles before the turn of the century, took four British Amateur titles between 1900 and 1913 and won the 1911 U.S. Amateur.

Hurd, from Scotland, won three U.S. Women's Amateur titles, three more in Canada, three more in Scotland and took the British Ladies title in 1910 and 1911.

Cowboys' Placekicking Position Still Unsettled

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS, (AP) - Again, the possible Achilles heel for the Dallas Cowboys is the front portion of a placekicking shoe.

The defending World Champion Cowboys may go into the regular National Football League season with free agent placekicker Jay Sherrill. This is an unsettled position the Cowboys have been in before.

Several years ago it was Efren Herrera who came out of UCLA and finally beat out Toni Fritsch, now with Houston. Herrera kicked well enough to make All-Pro last year but he was traded off to Seattle in a salary impasse.

Before Herrera, it was a steady succession of less than spectacular kickers. Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry decided Tuesday he liked what he saw of Sherrill, who played for North Carolina State.

He said Sherrill would be Dallas' kicker in the preseason finale against the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

Free agent Skip Butler, a former Houston Oiler, failed to impress Landry in his week tryout with the club.

"We'll continue to look at other people but Sherrill has good potential," said Landry. "It's just a question of whether he can come to the top quick enough. He has a lot of presure on him."

Sherrill is the son of former NFL player Bud Sherrill.

"Jay has a strong leg, good rhythm, and he's the type of kicker who can improve," said Landry. "He has a solid swing and his timing is good. He pushed one off last week against Houston but I think he'll groove his swing."

Landry said Butler "had good experience but wasn't as consistent as I would have liked to see. I just have a feel about kickers. This certainly wasn't any discredit to Skip."

Butler attempted and made an extra point against the Oilers Saturday in a 27-13 loss. Other than that he just kicked off. Sherrill kicked two field goals but missed two long attempts.

Ove Johannson, who formerly kicked for Philadelphia, was cut by the Cowboys two weeks ago. The former Abilene Christrian star missed an extra point and had a field goal attempt blocked in his tryout with Dallas.

Landry promised a serious Cowboys team for the Steelers game.

"The starters played a lot last week but it wasn't noticeable," Landry cracked. "But they WERE there."

And the veterans will be on the field again Saturday night with one lone exception - a free agent placekicker from North Carolina State..

Workouts Slated For Volleyballers

Varsity two-a-day workouts for volleyball will begin Thursday and run through Saturday, according to Coach Joyce Elrod. The girls are asked to report each morning from 8-11 and each evening from 3-6.

The junior varsity squad will work out from 1-4 p.m. on those days.

Beginning Monday, Snyder's junior varsity volleyball girls will workout from 6-8 a.m. and varsity girls from 4 p.m. until practice ends.

Snyder varsity returns seven seniors from last year's district championship team, and brings up five players from the 1977 JV team which posted a 28-1 record.

"We lost some top players," commented Coach Elrod, "But I can't help being optimistic with the kind of prospects we whill have to wait and see, thought. I'll know more after they've worked out a while."

Snyder attends its first scrimmage Sept. 7 in Odessa. The season opener will be held 11 a.m. Sept. 9 at Abilene Cooper Gym against Lamar High School of Arlington.

Orr Shifted To Split End

LUBBOCK (AP) - Coach Rex Dockery, shuffling his football personnel as the Red Raiders continued three-a-day workouts Tuesday, moved Tom Orr from tailback to split end.

Rejects Plague Rangers

TORONTO (AP) - The Texas Rangers decided two years ago against protecting a 20-year-old pitcher named Jim Clancy in the American League expansion draft. Last May, they found third baseman Roy Howell expendable and this spring sent designated hitter Willie Horton packing his bags.

All three came back to haunt them Tuesday as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated Texas 3-1, handing the Rangers their fourth consecutive loss.

Clancy, 10-10, Toronto's third selection in the expansion draft, limited the Rangers to five hits until giving way to Victor Cruz in the ninth. Howell went 1-for-3 and scored the tying run on Horton's double as the Rangers scored three times in the seventh inning.

It was the second big day in a row for Horton, who drove in three runs Monday - two of them with his homer of the season.

"Mr. Clancy pitched a fine game and the other guy wasn't too shabby either," said Toronto Manager Roy Hartsfield, referring to Texas hurler Doc Medich, who breezed into the seventh with a four-hit shutout. "And Willie came up with the big hit again."

Howell drew the first walk of the game off Medich to open the Toronto seventh and scored as Horton doubled into the right-field corner. John Mayberry's ground out moved Horton to third and pinch-runner Willie Upshaw, running for Horton, came home with the winning run as Woods followed with a double just inside the bag at first.

One out later, Dave McKay drove in an insurance run with a single up the middle.

"That one base on balls got him (Medich) into trouble and in one-run games, those are the sort of things that quite often end up in runs," said Texas Manager Billy Hunter, who refused to let his club's recent slide affect his division title aspirations in the AL West.

"Sure we've lost four in a row and naturally I'm not elated. But it's not too late and I think we can bounce back."

Senate Backs Highway Fund

WASHINGRON (AP) - The Senate wants to continue using federal gasoline tax revenues exclusively for highway projects instead of placing them in the Treasury.

Senators voted 75-10 on Monday to reject a proposal that would change the special use of the money. Sponsors Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., argued unsuccessfully that federal highway projects should be paid for the same way as other government-supported programs - through direct appropriations from Congress. Highway projects currently receive money directly from the four-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax.

Says Veteran Of 43½ Years

Railroadin' Ain't What It Was

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP)-His sweat-stained cowboy hat was tipped over his eyebrows to block the burning rays of the late summer sun and he frowned as he said, "No wonder there's so many derailments these days.

"Hell, there are too many folks without experience and nobody really inspects the tracks or the trains anymore."

Patrick Henry Roberts, a railroad man for 43½ years, is convinced there no longer is the dedication that once was the symbol for the rugged, hard-drinking, fist-fighting workers that kept the trains going when rails provided the major lifeline of the nation.

Roberts, 77, and retired for the past decade, sat in the spacious backyard of his Brownwood home, where on a quiet night you can hear the screech of the diesel engines, and he remembered.

He recalled how once a good brakeman or conductor could sense impending trouble with a car, just by the way it moved over the tracks.

He remembered how the cars of a train were checked slowly and carefully after stopping at a major terminal.

"Now days, as far as I hear, some guy just squats down and looks as the cars roll by, and how the devil can you spot a problem that way?" he asked.

Roberts said he decided to retire after two trains on which he served as conductor had accidents within the space of a few days.

Once there was a derailment and then a middle aged college professor committed suicide by leaping in front of a speeding freight.

"Then when they started pulling 100 or 125 cars, I knew it was too much and time to start growing a garden before they had to plant me somewhere," he said as puffed on a cigarette with the smoke drifing out and over the pinch of snuff in his lower lip.

When things got tough in the old days, Roberts said, "We took any kind of job to keep going. We were brakemen and conductors, but when there wasn't any work for us, we go to laying track or anything.

"By God, once I walked from Temple, Texas, to Cleburne, Texas, about 100 miles, counting every damn tie on the line and marking with paint brush those that needed replacing or repairing.

"At night I slept in the tool sheds at station stops along the way. Made a lot of money though-$3 a day."

Roberts, who followed his immigrant Irish father into railroad work, spent most of his years in Texas, although he did move to California to help build railroad bridges and to Arizona and New Mexico to lay tracks.

He still has the muscular arms and solid build of a man who has driven spikes and struggled with the heavy ties. A stroke slowed him for awhile, but he now is back working in the garden and making his daily trips to the neighborhood grocery.

He admits he misses the wail of the coal-burning engines and the clack of the wheels on the tracks and the rough-and-tumble days and people like Cowboy Joe.

"He was a good brakeman, but his hobby was breaking horses. He'd get to work just in time to catch the train, still wearing his boots and spurs and chaps. But he could trot along the top of those freight cars as fast as any of us and never hooked those spurs on anything.

"And there was Birddog. Another good brakeman, but had to stick his nose into everybody's business. That's why we called him Birddog.

"He got a settlement from the company once for an injury suffered on the job. Not long after that we had a derailment and Birddog was hurt again. We asked him how bad it was and he said, 'Don't know till I talk to my lawyer."

Roberts then leaned back in his chair and said, "Boy, my throat is dry from all this talking. Think it is about time for a cool one to ease the pain."

Chairmen Named For Rehab Center Roundup

With the approach of fall comes the 19th Annual Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children, which annually benefits the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene, San Angelo and Snyder.

The Center announced today the area chairmen who each year help the Center in this state-wide Round-Up that over the years has played such a major role in the building of this great humanitarian institution.

Chairmen for the Snyder area are Scott Casey, Charlie Henderson, John Jarrell, Weldon Johnson, R.H. Odom Jr., and John Reed, all of Snyder, and Bilby Wallace of Claremont.

Area chairmen will be contacting their friends and neighbors enlisting their donations of livestock and cash, looking to a special auction - the cattle sale at 1 p.m., Monday, Sept. 25, at the Abilene Auction. The date of the horse sale has been set for Oct. 7 also at Abilene Auction, and the special sale in Coleman at 1 p.m. Oct. 4 at Coleman Livestock Auction.

The West Texas Rehabilitation Center is a private, non-profit out-patient treatment center which has invited a multi-faceted program of services to the handicapped of the Southwest for more than a quarter of a century.

The Center has a 1978 operating budget of $1.8 million and will serve through its three campuses almost 7,000 handicapped this year. More than 60 percent of the Center's income is in the form of contributions. All patients are served without regard to race, creed, color, place of residence, or ability to pay.

Franklin pointed out that stockmen anywhere in the state wishing to donate livestock should contact their area chairman or the Center's Central Office at (915) 692-1633. Arrangements will be made to pick up the livestock to be brought to Abilene for the sale.

Traditionally the annual Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children has been the major fall fund-raising project to give the Center the last quarter boost necessary to finish the year on a sound financial footing. The goal for this year's Round-Up is a minimum of $175,000.

Says Inexperience May Be Helpful

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gloria Schaffer thinks her lack of experience in aviation might help her if she's confirmed as a member of the Civil Aeronautice Board.

Mrs. Schaffer told a Senate Commerce Committee confirmation hearing Monday that anyone with strong knowledge of the airline industry might have a conflict of interest. The Connecticut secretary of state added that she's been studying aviation issues since President Carter nominated her.

Braniff Granted Route In Nevada

DALLAS (AP)-Braniff International said Tuesday it had been granted authority by the Civil Aeronautics Board to immediately begin flights between Las Vegas and Reno, Nevada.

The airline said in a news release it would begin the new service at 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Braniff recently began non-stop flights from the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to Las Vegas and the new service to Reno is an extension of the current flights.

The new flights will provide the first single-plane service between Reno and Dallas-Fort Worth, Austin, San Antonio, and Corpus Christi in Texas, and Memphis, Tenn., Miami and New Orleans.

Braniff also said it is seeking prompt approval by the Nevada Public Service Commission to carry local traffic between Las Vegas and Reno.

The airline said it would provide five roundtrip flights daily to and from Reno, plus a sixth on Thursdays and Sundays with a total of 9,620 seats a week.

Braniff said it will offer a wide variety of low fares for its new Reno service, including discounts up to 50 per cent.

Kucinich Gets Cold Shoulder

CLEVELAND (AP)-Mayor Dennis Kucinich and the City Council aren't at peace, despite the 31-year-old chief executive's victory in a recall election 10 days ago.

At Tuesday's council meeting, the first since the Aug. 13 vote, Kucinich got a chilly reception and was handed a defeat of his plan to bail out Cleveland's deficit-ridden Municipal Light Plant.

But Kucinich said he still seeks a reconciliation.

"The time for confrontation has been put aside," said Kucinich, whose brash style helped trigger the recall attempt. "Now is the time for cooperation."

Kucinich said Council President George Forbes had denied him a chance to address the council at the end of the meeting.

"I wanted to tell them, 'We can solve Cleveland's problems," Kucinich told a post council meeting news conference. "The people of Cleveland have mandated that everyone turn over a new leaf - not just me, everyone."

Continental shelves, built by eroded soil and the remains of countless sea creatures and plants, stretch beyond the shores of all the continents. The National Geographic says that together the shelves cover an area nearly one-fifth as large as earth's dry land.
