Pilot linked locally

Air Force Maj. Bill Edwards, a former Snyder resident with relatives still here, drew the the assignment to fly the 39 freed American hijack hostages from Syria to West Germany.

Edwards is the son-in-law of Mrs. Bill (Martha) Schiebel of Snyder.

The plane piloted by Edwards and carrying the Americans which had been held captive for 17 days in Beirut, touched down at Rhein-Main Air Force base shortly before dawn (10:24 p.m. in Snyder).

The flight of the C-141 transport plane left Damascus, Syria, and as soon as the plane was in international air space, Major Edwards received a telephone call from President Reagan commending the crew and welcoming the hostages.

In Germany...

Freed Americans welcomed

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP)—Thirty-nine weary Americans freed after a harrowing hijack and more than two weeks' captivity in Beirut were welcomed to freedom today with embraces and cheers from relatives and countrymen and a hearty American breakfast.

"Welcome back," a flag-waving crowd of about 100 people shouted as the freed hostages got off buses that transported them to the U.S. Air Force Hospital at Wiesbaden, where they were offered free medical and psychiatric check-ups.

Many of the hostages—who have been traveling all night—looked tired. But spokesman Navy Capt. Jay Coupe said after they ate breakfast: "They are all in good spirits."

Minutes before, Vice President George Bush and more than 200 people greeted the former hostages with a chorus of Bruce Springsteen's pop song "Born in the USA" after they disembarked from a U.S. Air Force C-141 transport plane at Rhein-Main Air Force base, 24 miles to the east.

"You're back and America did not compromise her principles to get you back," Bush said. He and his wife, Barbara, warmly greeted the hostages in an impromptu reception line, and friends and relatives hugged them.

Bush reminded the group of the killing of one hostages, U.S. Navy Petty Officer Robert Dean Stethem, 23, of Waldorf, Md., and of seven other Americans kidnapped in Lebanon since March 1984 who remain missing despite President Reagan's effort to tie their release to that of the hijack hostages.

"Even in the joy of your safe return civilized people everywhere condemn the actions of those whose criminal behaviour causes their ordeal to continue," Bush said.

Reagan, in a five-minute television address, welcomed the release of the hostages and added: "Terrorists be on notice: we will fight back against you in Lebanon and elsewhere."

The freed hostages had left Damascus, Syria, shortly after midnight, hours after a caravan transported them out of Beirut, Lebanon, to Syria.

Signs hung from the Wiesbaden hospital said, "Welcome Back to Freedom," and "We Missed You."

The Americans were to stay in the facility's third floor, where the 52 Americans taken captive in Iran stayed after their 1981 release.

The officials said the freed hostages probably would stay for about a day before returning home.

Relatives who flew to West Germany were offered lodgings at a nearby hotel, and 10 telephones were provided so ex-hostages could call family members in the United States, officials said. Coupe said about 15 relatives and friends were in West Germany.

"No one has gone to bed yet. They are still meeting families and friends," Coupe said some 90 minutes after the former hostages' 6:30 a.m. arrival at the hospital. "Some of them are already undergoing medical evaluations."

Thirteen relatives flew to Frankfurt on Monday on a TWA flight. Airline employees said 34 more relatives were expected on two other flights later in the day.

Airport spokesman Wolfgang Schwalm said family members and some airline employees wore yellow ribbons.

U.S. State Department officials said a team from Washington would question any former hostages who were willing to talk about their experience.

The hostages were held in Beirut by Shiite militiamen since June 14, when two hijackers commandeered the Athens-Rome TWA flight 847 and forced it to shuttle between Beirut and Algeria.

A. — School officials said they were not aware of lights being left on inside the building and indicated they would check Monday to see if this was the case.

In Brief

Court rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to make it more difficult for state and local governments to treat mentally retarded people differently from other citizens.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices reversed a federal appeals court ruling that would have required the nation's courts to review more stringently any law featuring differing treatment for the retarded.

But the court was unanimous in striking down a Cleburne, Texas, zoning ordinance that required group homes for the mentally retarded to get special permits before locating in the same residential neighborhoods where apartment houses, public schools and nursing homes need no permits.

Okay usage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today cleared the way for continued use of a federal anti-mobster law employed in recent efforts to label such businesses as American Express Co., E.F. Hutton & Co. and Lloyd's of London as "racketeers."

The court, by a 5-4 vote, upheld a broad right to file private lawsuits under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, or RICO, a law aimed at "eradication of organized crime i, he United States."

Today, it is not unusual to find at least one RICO claim in lawsuits involving just about any business dispute.

Auto rollover

Antonio Espinoza of Ira escaped injury in a one-car rollover west of that community Saturday evening.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Espinoza was driving a 1975 Ford northbound on an unpaved county road about 4.2 miles west of Ira when he apparently lost control of the vehicle around 8 p.m.

The vehicle swerved across the road several times before overturning and coming to rest on its top.

Espinoza was the only occupant of the car at the time of the mishap.

Sources indicate threats by Syria prompted release

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The long, tangled effort to free the American hostages in Beirut succeeded only after telephone calls and threats from Syrian President Hafez Assad to leaders of the radical Shiite Moslem Hezbollah, a Shiite source said.

The source, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the major obstacle was the status of four passengers who were held by the extremist group apart from the 35 men guarded by the larger Shiite movement Amal.

Amal leader Nabih Berri stepped in to mediate for the Americans' release after the hijacking of the TWA jet and seizure of the passengers and crew by two men said to be members of Hezbollah, or Party of God.

Syrian sources said earlier that Assad, a backer of Berri's militia, also took up efforts to free the Americans after repeated telephone calls from President Reagan.

Berri supported the hijackers' demand for the release of more than 700 prisoners, mostly Shiites, taken from Lebanon to Israel when the Israeli army pulled out of south Lebanon earlier this year.

The Amal leader, a minister in the Lebanese government, said Sunday that Assad delivered assurances from President Reagan that there would be no U.S. retaliation for the hijacking.

But the source said Sunday as the deal was being concluded that Hezbollah kept refusing to give up its four captives, all U.S. government employees, until Israel actually freed the prisoners.

The crisis was resolved only after Assad intervened with telephone calls to two Hezbollah leaders, Sheik Subhi Tofeili and Abbas Musawi, the source said.

Tofeili is a spiritual leader and Musawi the military chief of the radical group, headquartered in the ancient city of Baalbek in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa valley.

Car use plan ok'd

Scurry County commissioners voted unanimously Monday to accept a recommendation from the county juvenile probation board related to a car-use allowance to be granted Juvenile Probation Officer Larry Thompson.

Thompson had requested the use of a vehicle confiscated three weeks ago under new Texas law permiting such seizures when the vehicle was used in connection with drug trafficing.

The court denied that request, but Monday granted Thompson a mileage allowance of 20 cents per mile for all transportation related to the juvenile office.

This was the recommendation coming from the juvenile board, comprised of District Judge Gene Dulaney, Scurry County Judge Preston Wilson and Borden County Judge Van York.

In addition, the Scurry County sheriff's office has agreed to furnish a car for travel to facilities out of county for juveniles.

If this is not possible, Thompson will be reimbursed for use of his personal car for trips out of Scurry County at the rate of 20 cents per mile.

Eight counties enter 4-H horse show

4-Hers from eight surrounding counties participated Saturday in the 1985 Scurry County 4-H Invitational Horse Show at the Sundowners Arena.

Scurry County entry Tommy Henderson was the "all around" winner for the Pee Wee Division of the show, those competing in the age group for 8 and under.

Other "all around" winners were Heather Helbert of Andrews County in the Junior Division (9-13); and Phillip Johnson, Lubbock County, in the Senior Division (14-19).

They were presented belt buckles for their performance as high-point individuals. These were donated by Bill and Mary Eiland, Randy Hays and family and McCormick Marketing and Snyder Farm and Ranch.

The high point visiting county was honored also, won this year by entries from Lubbock County.

Other prizes went to the champion and reserve champion mare and gelding. These were donated by Ezell-Key Feed Mill.

The following is a complete lising of winners Saturday. They are listed in order of place and out-of-county entries are noted:

MARES

—Registered mares at halter: Dusty Greaves, Lubbock; Tommy Henderson; and Jayna Gilbert.

—Grade mares at halter: Jana Kincheloe; Melody Schwarz; and Debbie Schwarz.

—Champion mare, Dusty Greaves, Lubbock; reserve champion mare, Jana Kincheloe.

GELDINGS

—Registered geldings at halter: Heather Helbert, Andrews; Eddy Roby, Kent; and Monte Cheatham, Borden.

'Hope' offered dieters through local program

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Snyder offers at least three self-help organizations which help people to lose unwanted pounds and to maintain their desired weight.

In Sunday's issue, the SDN profiled the Weight Watchers program. This article spotlights Hope For Tomorrow which was started here in 1975. In Tuesday's paper, the SDN will look at the TOPS 56 organization.

Pat Dennis founded Hope For Tomorrow in 1975 based on a diet program published in "Redbook." In 1980, she stepped down from the day-to-day operation of Hope For Tomorrow, only to assume it again in 1982.

The organization had dwindled to only a few members at that time, but at a recent meeting approximately 20 had signed up for the morning and evening classes.

Hope For Tomorrow meets on Mondays at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. at the Pat Dennis Studio on West 30th.

She also offers exercise classes which are a combination of body conditioning and aerobics. Dues are $5 for weight control classes and $2 for the exercise classes.

Hope For Tomorrow's program is based on the food exchange program which is the same one followed by diabetics, Dennis explained.

As an example, eating something in the bread category may mean an "exchange" starchy food such as English peas or crackers. She said she follows the food exchanges as listed in "Eat and Stay Slim," originally published in Redbook magazine.

She said the American Diabetes Association has also endorsed the food exchange concept.

Dennis also has a list of other diet books which she recommends.

She said she created her own books for Hope For Tomorrow and writes her own monthly programs. June's program is about "I Can" and the July program will be in three parts.

Members are taught how to eat following the exchange program. "We teach behavior modification," Dennis said, "Stressing learn from yesterday, live for today and hope for tomorrow."

Confidential weigh-ins are held 30 minutes before the start of the class. Each class period opens with a lecture designed to "motivate, instigate and educate," Dennis said. Rhonda Cox is the lecturer.

For those who wish to participate, a one-hour exercise class follows.

Forgotten seven help sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid the euphoria over the release of the 39 TWA hostages, President Reagan is calling for an intensified international campaign to secure freedom for seven Americans and other kidnap victims still in Lebanon.

Until those hostages also are freed, "this is no moment for celebration," the president said Sunday.

And he asked those who helped in the crisis of the TWA passengers "to show even greater energy and commitment to secure the release of all others held captive in Lebanon."

Secretary of State George Shultz said the United States has "solid information" that Syrian President Hafez Assad, who helped win the release of the hijack victims, has been "working assiduously on the problem of the other hostages."

Shultz, asked what would compel their kidnappers to release the Americans seized in the past 16 months, said, "I hope they will respond to the same considerations that must have led to the release of the 39 ... Certainly if there is any humaneness, that should be done and it should be done promptly."

The Syrian head of state "has put a considerable amount of will power into it and we will be pushing hard," Shultz said.

Amid the massive effort to free the TWA captives, relatives of the earlier prisoners have complained their loved ones had become America's "forgotten hostages."

A senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said, "Our diplomacy in the private exchanges from the beginning had always included the seven .... We wanted all of them back."

At the Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, where the newly released hostages were taken for military checkups on their way home from Damascus, Syria, seven U.S flags were added Sunday to the 39 flying in tribute to the men from the hijacked jetliner.

Amal Shiite leaders in Beirut, who arranged the release of the hostages from TWA Flight 847, said they had nothing to do with the earlier kidnappings and could not release the seven.

Samuel Lewis, former U.S. ambassador to Israel, said an Assad-sponsored effort on behalf of the seven would be hampered by his lack of direct control over the captors, believed to be a Shiite faction called Hezbollah, or "Party of God."

"But the area they're in is certainly under the control of Syrian forces," Lewis said.

Peggy Say, whose brother, Terry Anderson, was kidnapped by gunmen on a Beirut street on March 16, remained hopeful even after it was apparent the hostage deal failed to include her brother.

"They expected Terry to come out; somehow he was lost in the shuffle with the other six," she said. "But they know where he is. And they've been able to speak, apparently to his captors through whatever means."

Conwell kin proud, relieved

HOUSTON (AP) — Hostage Allyn Conwell appeared composed during a news conference with 38 other American captives in Damascus, but relatives say he must have found it hard to suppress his excitement at being released.

"I guarantee you he was puffed up like a toad," brother Ron Conwell, said Sunday after seeing Allyn Conwell speak for the freed hostages of TWA flight 847 at a televised news conference.

The clean-shaven Conwell, who was chosen as spokesman for the captive Americans, in an opening statement urged listeners to "find a deeper understanding" of the circumstances that made the plane hijacking possible.

"He keeps very good control of his emotions. We're tickled to death. We're just busting. We're so proud of him," said Conwell's sister, Carma Little.

Ms. Little, Ron Conwell and brother Mike Conwell gathered in a clubhouse at their mother's northwest Houston apartment complex to watch three televison monitors set up by a local station.

Conwell's mother, Lois Conwell, and wife, Olga, were in Frankfurt, West Germany, Sunday where the hostages were making their last stop before going home.

"Everything from here on is anticlimactic," Ron Conwell said.

Allyn Conwell, 39, an oil field equipment salesman, was returning from vacation to his job in Oman when his flight was hijacked to Beirut.

He acted as spokesman for his fellow captives during most of the ordeal.

"I don't seek any retaliation or revenge," Conwell said during the news conference at a Damascus hotel Sunday. "I think all of the men here would like to see justice prevail, justice and understanding, but more so than retribution, retaliation or any other vengeful emotion."

Ron Conwell said he and his siblings did not plan to meet their brother in West Germany, but were going to celebrate his release when the hostages leave Frankfurt.

"We'll start the celebration when they take off in that plane," he said.

Dear Abby

Language Abuse Brings Defenders to the Fore

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A million thanks for pointing out the irritating speech habit that so many of our young people exhibit today. I refer to the use of "you know" three and four times in one sentence.

It is simply maddening to hear "you know, you know, you know" from so many of our celebrities (especially athletes) while they're being interviewed on television and radio.

I started to fall into that habit when I was in college. One of my professors helped me overcome it when every time I said "you know," he interrupted me with, "No, I don't know until you tell me."

Please print this, Abby. If everyone who is guilty of the "you know" habit would ask a friend to interrupt him with, "No, I don't know," what a blessing it would be.

NO MORE YOU KNOWS

DEAR NO MORE: I could fill a column with responses to the column on sloppy speech habits. And I think I will:

DEAR ABBY: I dearly love the English language, but it appears that either our English teachers aren't teaching or their students aren't learning. I am appalled at the number of teen-agers who use the verb "goes" instead of "says." Example in point:

"Butch and I were discussing this problem, and Butch goes, 'But you promised you'd do it.' Then I go, 'Well, I changed my mind.' So Butch goes, 'That's not fair; a promise is a promise.' Then my mom goes, 'Will you kids stop fighting!' and I go, 'We aren't fighting.'"

Abby, please point out that "goes" is a verb meaning forward motion in movement, not speech.

We are producing a nation of imbecilic-sounding youths holding bachelor degrees! And they can't spell either!

A. IN PHOENIX

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for "Tired of 'OK' in Arizona" who complained about the annoying habit so many people have of terminating every sentence with "OK?" as though it were a question.

I am also tired of hearing "right?" tacked onto every sentence when no question is asked. For example, John is telling Jane what happened the other day: "I picked up my kid sister, right? Then she asked if I'd mind stopping for a few minutes at the library, right? So I stopped at the library, right?"

Abby, what is the point of ending every sentence with a "right"? Sign me ...

RIGHT IS WRONG IN MAINE

DEAR ABBY: Thank "Gail of Shorewood, Wis.," who is tired of hearing the word "basically" used and overused incorrectly.

My family and I have made a game of counting the times a person uses "basically" in one speech or commentary. I have counted as many as eight "basicallys." It means "as a basis for" or "fundamentally," but it's now used as a filler and means nothing.

My prize story concerns a prominent athlete who was asked in a television interview where he was born. He replied, "Well, I was basically born in New York." Need I say more?

Another pet peeve of mine is the incorrect use of the pronoun "myself." There are several rules that apply, but the simple one is, never use "myself" when the pronouns "I" or "me" can be used instead.

JEAN IN MASON CITY, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I was happy to notice in your column that someone mentioned the overuse of the word "basically." Please add my complaint to the overuse of the word "totally."

Whatever happened to the perfectly good adverbs "completely," "entirely" and "wholly"?

TOTALED BY "TOTALLY"

DEAR TOTALED: While we're on the subject of words, their use, abuse and misuse, the one word that I hear more frequently used incorrectly than correctly is "apropos."

Many people say, "It is very apropos," as though apropos meant "appropriate." It doesn't. It means "concerning," "regarding," "pertaining to" or "relevant."

I have heard this error committed by professionals, politicians, educators, clergypersons and literate people who should know better, but don't.

Your Birthday

July 2, 1985

In the year ahead you will experience a big improvement in your personal relationship. Individuals who have caused you problems will fade from your life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you think is a staunch supporter might suddenly switch sides today and leave you standing alone. Be self-sufficient, rather than a leaner. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not put off taking care of matters today that require your immediate attention. Negligence will increase the price tag at a later date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid groups or cliques today that contain individuals who make you feel uncomfortable. Associate only with those who make you feel welcome.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're presently having problems with relatives or in-laws, it's best not to discuss it with outsiders today. Your remarks will be revealed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you are pragmatic and realistic, but today you may view things as you would like them to be, rather than as they really are. Don't be a wishful thinker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If possible today, try to steer clear of joint ventures where you have to shell out money. You may have to pay more than your fair share.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a pretty good horse-trader, but today you could meet your match. Be on guard at all times if you are negotiating a matter of importance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will not work well today if there is someone peering over your shoulder. If you have tedious tasks to perform, do them in an atmosphere free of outside interference.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you might find yourself in a social situation where someone you don't like is getting all the attention. It'll hurt your image if you display envy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against tendencies today to blame others for problems you create. Complaining will cause new complications, instead of serving a useful purpose.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your concentration may not be up to par today. If you are given important instructions, it's best you write them down rather than committing them to memory.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be money-conscious today and subdue temptations to buy things that you can't pay for with cash. Don't put yourself in a debtor's position.

Certain species of ants live solely on slave labor, enslaving other ants for life. A typical colony of 3,000 western slavemaking ants may have more than 6,000 slaves working for it, says National Geographic. Slave ants forage for food, regurgitate food to their hosts, groom and feed the larvae and queen ant, and defend the nest against attack from other insects. If the colony moves to a different location, the slaves carry their masters, one by one, to their new home.

West tips his hand

The game of bridge is sometimes played under highly uncomfortable conditions. There can be poor lighting, for example, inadequate air-conditioning, small tables, crowded rooms, or uncomfortable chairs. But one thing's for sure: The game is never played in a vacuum.

Defender West, in his rush for brilliance, let the cat out of the bag, and declarer South was quick to notice what was happening. With 12 cards in the red suits, South arrived in a six-diamond contract. It may seem unusual that North raised diamonds with only three-card support, but his two aces certainly warranted some action over West's three-club bid. Once diamonds were raised, South took off via the Blackwood ace-asking bid.

The deuce of clubs lead by West was a good shot. He hoped that East would win the club jack and, after getting over his surprise at winning the trick, then know to give West a heart ruff. Unfortunately the club jack failed to live. Also unfortunately, declarer now knew that West had desperately tried to get his partner on lead. Declarer played K-Q of diamonds and a diamond to the ace. Next came the nine of hearts; when East played low, so did South. Although declarer had to give up a heart trick, passing the heart nine limited the defenders to only one heart trick and assured the contract. None of this would have been that easy if declarer had not been tipped off to the heart situation by the lead of the club deuce.

Rice salad beats the diet crunch

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Soup and salad for lunch help cut down on total calorie intake and are a step toward shedding a few extra pounds.

A crunchy rice salad with apples and walnuts served on green lettuce with a cup of bouillon or chilled madrilene (tomato consomme) and a fresh fruit cup make a meal that satisfies.

SIMPLE CRUNCHY RICE SALAD

- 2 small tart red apples, cored and chopped
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 3 cups cooked rice, cooled
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish
- 3/4 cup bottled Thousand Island dressing
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper.

Sprinkle apples with lemon juice blended with 2 tablespoons water. Mix with rice, celery, walnuts and relish. Blend remaining ingredients; toss with rice mixture.

Serve on salad greens, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings at 340 calories per serving, using sweet pickle relish and regular salad dressing; 230 calories per serving, using low-calorie relish and salad dressing.

STRAWBERRY SHAKES

- 1 pint strawberry non-dairy frozen dessert
- 1 cup low-fat milk or soymilk
- 3 tablespoons honey, sugar, or equivalent low-cal sweetener
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine all the ingredients in a blender and blend until smooth. This kitchen-tested recipe makes four 1-cup servings.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

CRUNCHY RICE SALAD with apples and walnuts may be a lunch entree or a side dish for a light dinner with fish or chicken.

CHOCOLATE BANANA SHAKES

- 1 pint vanilla non-dairy frozen dessert
- 1 cup low-fat milk or soymilk
- 1 ripe medium banana
- 2 tablespoons honey, sugar or equivalent low-cal sweetener
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine all ingredients in blender and blend until smooth. This kitchen-tested recipe makes four 1-cup servings.

Lipstick colors

In warm weather, lipstick colors can change in tone on the lips. Before using lipstick, blend beige cream or lotion foundation over the lips.

Then use a lightly tinted lip gloss. Blot gently with tissue, and then use color lipstick. You may find the beige foundation is enough to prevent color turning.

MICROWAVE COOKING

CHUCK WAGON CARROTS

- 3 cups (6 medium) sliced (1/4-inch) carrots
- 3 tablespoons sweet cream butter
- 1/4 cup cooked, crumbled bacon
- 2 tablespoons sliced (1/8-inch) green onion
- 1 tablespoon firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

MICROWAVE DIRECTIONS: In 2-quart casserole dish, combine 1/2 cup water and carrots. Cover; cook on High until carrots are crisply tender (6 to 8 minutes, stirring after about 3 or 4 minutes). Let stand 1 minute. Drain; set aside.

In same casserole dish melt butter on High (40 to 50 seconds). Stir in carrots and remaining ingredients. Cover; cook on High until heated through (3 to 4 minutes, stirring after 1 to 2 minutes). Let stand 1 minute.

Palette Club sets annual art show

Deadline for entering the seventh annual July 4 Art Show and Sale is Tuesday, July 2. Entries will be accepted between the hours of 1-7 p.m. All artists in and around Scurry County are invited to participate in this show and sale which will be held July 4.

There are three divisions including professional-teacher, amateur and students (through high school), and there will be awards presented in each division.

The categories include landscape, still life, portraits and contemporary work. Each artist may enter as many as five separate paintings in each catagory.

There is a $3 entry fee per entry for adults and $1.50 per entry for students. If work is sold, 10 percent of the sale will go to the Snyder Palette Club.

Entries should be framed and wired for hanging with no saw-tooth hooks. The entries must not be over two years old and they can not have been shown previously in this show.

The awards scheduled to be presented in each division include best-in-show, ribbons for first, second and third place and honorable mention. However, the judge reserves the right to give additional category awards or not to give any awards should the entries not meet standards of quality or entry rules.

For more information call Myrtle Joiner at 573-0066 or Lila Guinn at 573-0905.

DONATION—Joe Williamson, right, representing the Shriners, accepted a donation from the Amitie Study Club Thursday, June 27. The presentation was made by Lynn Lancaster (left), third vice president of the club.

On March 10, 1876, Alexander Graham Bell made the first telephone call, telling his assistant in an adjoining room: "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you."

The word "volume" comes from the Latin word volvere meaning "to roll" because ancient books were written on sheets rolled on a pin or roller.

ANDREWS – Snyder Black stepped a notch closer to the Babe Ruth League State Tournament by splitting a double header with Andrews I here Saturday.

The Black team got four-hit pitching from Justin Webb to win the opener 3-1 but Andrews came back with 10 hits to grab the second 8-2.

The outcome leaves Snyder and Andrews I with 5-1 records. As state tournament host, Andrews will receive an automatic berth in the July 22-27 tournament. Snyder can also take a berth by finishing the season strong. The Black team is scheduled to play again Tuesday, hosting Andrews II at 8:30. Other games include one at Brownfield on July 9 and a double header at Post on July 13.

Snyder Black Coach Albert Lewis said the team would also have to schedule one other game during that time.

Webb allowed only four hits - Andrews' lone run came on an error in the first game here Saturday. Chris Upton did the honors. He reached on an error in the second inning, then later scored on another.

Upton's run knotted the score at 1-1 after Mike McWilliams had doubled and scored on Steve Parker's sacrifice in the first inning.

Snyder took the lead for good in the second when Parker and Chris Fryar both singled. Earl Ware, running for Parker, scored on a wild pitch. Fryar followed suit moments later.

Andrews' pitcher Renee Trevino countered Webb with four-hit pitching of his own. Fryar got two of the hits in a two-for-two performance.

Snyder fell into pitching problems early in the nightcap. Todd Carlile jumped on William Foree for a home run in the second inning and Andrews went on to post a 3-0 lead on singles from Upton, Carlon Branson and George Ramirez.

The hosts added three more runs in the third - off Don Osborn this time. A two-run sixth inning gave Andrews its total of eight.

Ramirez was the host pitcher and he 'cuffed the Black team for eight hits. Webb and Jimmy Velasquez were both two-for-three for Snyder.

Snyder used four pitchers in the contest. Foree took the loss.

"We played real well in the first game," said Lewis. "As you can see, we were struggling in the second game. Our pitching wasn't sharp. Andrews played a real good defensive game, too. Except for (pitcher Shay) Morris, this is the same Andrews team that went to state this year."

Snyder Black needs donations for state

Snyder Black, just a handful of wins away from a berth in the Babe Ruth League State Tournament, is in need of equipment and funds, coaches said today.

The squad has jersies, generously donated recently, but to play in the state tournament they must also have matching pants, said Albert Lewis, one of the coaches.

Also needed will be funds to use for expenses for the July 22-27 trip to Andrews.

Those interested in contributing should contact Lewis at 573-3813, Don Osborn at 573-9477, Bob Lanier at 573-2548 or Rickey Howell at573-6786.

'New veteran' rallies to win Keystone meet

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) - Juli Inkster, the Ladies Professional Golf Association's rookie of the year for 1984, pulled out of a season-long slump with a Lady Keystone Open victory that she says could be "the start of a new season for me."

"I'm glad to see I haven't lost my touch," Inkster said after finishing with a 7-under-par 209 over 54 holes Sunday to collect $37,500 in her first victory of the year.

Inkster birdied four of the final five holes for a 4-under-par 68 at the $250,000 LPGA tournament, held at Hershey Country Club's 6,348-yard West Course.

Inkster started the day three strokes behind Betsy King, who had led in the first two rounds. Both golfers shot an even-par 36 on the first nine, but King then slipped, ending the day at a 1-over-par 73 for second place with a 211 total.

Nancy Lopez, Pat Bradley and Kathy Postlewait finished in a three-way tie for third at 212.

Patty Sheehan, Kathy Whitworth, Jane Blalock, Cindy Mackey and Susie Berning tied at a 3-under-par 213.

"I had a lot of trouble with my putter the first 13 holes," Inkster said. "I was patient with myself until I got that birdie at 14. After that, the holes seemed to get a lot bigger."

King, last year's leading money winner, lost a shot off her three-stroke lead when she bogeyed 10 and then fell into a four-way tie with Inkster, Whitworth and Lopez when she took another bogey on 14.

"The way I've been playing, I have to be pleased with my score," King said. "I just couldn't seem to make any key putts today."

Inkster parred the first four holes on the back nine before making her move.

Sutton's day finally comes; he claims Memphis Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Hal Sutton figured it was about time he won a golf tournament.

"I hadn't won since the 1983 PGA," Sutton said Sunday. "I got into position to win several times and didn't."

His position didn't appear promising on Sunday's first playoff hole of the $500,000 St. Jude Memphis Classic, when his third shot on the par-4 hole stuck on the fringe of the green. But he sank an improbable 30-foot putt to defeat David Ogrin for the $90,000 winner's check.

"I needed a win more than anyone on the tour," said Sutton, a 27-year-old Shreveport, La., resident who used a final-round 65 to finish 72 holes at 9-under-par 279 and gain a berth in the playoff.

Sutton, tied for the lead with Bill Sander after shooting a 65 on Thursday, sagged completely off the leader board with a 76 on Friday and a 73 Saturday.

"Whether it had been a 65 or a 75, I needed a win worse than anybody out here," Sutton said. "It's always real pleasing when you come from behind like that and shoot a low score on the last day. I feel real lucky to have beaten him, to tell you the truth."

Ogrin, who shot a final 71 over the 7,282-yard Colonial Country Club course, drove into the middle of the fairway on the playoff hole, and put his second shot in safe ground about 60 yards from the green. He looked about ready to win the tournament when his approach shot landed eight feet from the cup, while Sutton's landed in the fringe.

But after Sutton sank his putt, Ogrin's birdie putt slid by the hole. Still, the $54,000 paycheck whose best previous finish in a tournament had been a tie for 13th.

Sutton, who was six strokes off the pace when play began, had a round featuring eight birdies, a bogey and nine pars. He missed a six-foot birdie putt on 18 that would have given him the title outright.

Meanwhile, Ogrin could no better than a 71, although he also had a chance to win the tournament on the 18th. But his birdie putt from eight feet slid by.

George Burns, the leader by two strokes after 54 holes, suffered a rash of birdies during a round of 76 and finish at 282, three strokes back.

Lon Hinkle, a former Memphis Classic winner who had a 67, and Russ Cochran, who closed with a 71, finished in a tie for third at 280 to collect $29,000 apiece. Bob Tway and Tony Sills finished at 281 and each took home $19,000.

Unser Jr. gets help to win second annual Grand Prix

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - Al Unser Jr. says he couldn't have won the second annual U.S. Grand Prix at the Meadowlands without the help of Mario Andretti and Danny Sullivan.

The 23-year-old Unser scored his first victory of the season and the second Indy-car triumph of his career Sunday, driving hard and avoiding the mistakes that sidelined pre-race favorites Andretti and Sullivan and leading contender Bobby Rahal.

Unser finished more than 36 seconds ahead of runner-up Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, with third place going to Al Unser Sr., a three-time Indy 500 champion and father of the winner.

It was the best combined finish in a race for the Unsers of Albuquerque, N.M., but one that wouldn't have been possible without the bad racing luck that hit Andretti, Sullivan and Rahal.

Andretti and Sullivan, racing from the front row, ran away from the rest of the 28-car field at the start of the 168-mile race through the parking lots and access roads of the northern New Jersey sports complex.

Andretti, the defending champion here and the overall leader in the current CART-PPG point standings, led the first 10 laps. Sullivan, the Indy 500 champion, held the lead for the next 15 before pitting.

Then racing luck began to take over.

Sullivan spun on lap 30 and never challenged again, finally exiting on lap 80 with a blown turbocharger.

On lap 34, Rahal ran into the back of Andretti's car. Andretti retired at that point and Rahal called it quits two laps later.

The younger Unser pitted his March 85C on lap 34, then took the lead when Fittipaldi ducked into the pits four laps later. Fittipaldi regained the lead when Unser pitted on lap 68, but Unser was on top for good on lap 80 when the Brazilian pitted again.

"The objective going into the race was to go as fast as I could and not make any mistakes," said the freckle-faced winner, who averaged 90.167 mph in breaking the mark of 80.742 mph set by Andretti in the rain-marred first running of this event last year.

The 46-year-old father of the winner said he didn't mind finishing third behind his son.

"It's a heck of a feeling to race with my own son," said the elder Unser. "He's shown a lot of upgrading, and he's gone from go-carts to sprint cars to CanAm to here. He has progressed so fast, but that's because he's been running race cars since he's been eight years old."

Michael Andretti, son of Mario, finished fourth as the only other driver on the lead lap. Bruno Giacommelli of Italy, Fittipaldi's teammate and another Formula I driver, was fifth. Tom Sneva, whose Eagle was the only American-built car in the race, was sixth.

Mandlikova an upset victim as Wimbledon gets serious

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Chris Evert Lloyd, the co-top seed, took another step toward the third leg of her Grand Slam tennis bid today, reaching the fourth round in the Wimbledon tennis championships, while the No. 3 women's seed, Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, was upset.

Lloyd, winner of the Australian and French Opens in this tennis calendar year, trounced Australian qualifier Jenny Byrne 6-2, 6-1 in a third-round match, while Mandlikova was beaten 6-1, 7-6 (7-5) in the third round by Elizabeth Smylie of Australia.

Other seeds to advance to round four included Manuela Maleeva, the No. 4 seed from Bulgaria, who beat Robin White of the United States 6-3, 6-3; fifth-seeded Pam Shriver of the United States, who beat Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, and West Germany's Steffi Graf, No. 11, who downed Stephanie Rehe 6-3, 6-2.

Mandlikova, who had struggled to win her previous match, against Dianne Balestrat of Australia, looked completely out of touch today.

Mandlikova, who reached the semifinals last year, had one of her notorious off-days in what was the biggest upset of the tournament so far.

Capable of the most delicate touch play and driving groundstrokes but also prone to sudden lapses of concentration, she had her service broken twice in the opening set, then failed to capitalize after gaining a break early in the second.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Connors, who was not playing Monday, admits he's a step slower and may be playing his last Wimbledon tournament as he seeks his third title at the All England Club.

Now 32, Connors hopes the advantage of having two days off will help bring back the skills that carried him to Wimbledon victories in 1974 and 1982.

Soccer camp offered

The Texas Soccer Academy has scheduled a soccer camp for boys and girls at Western Texas College from July 21-26.

Students age 6 through 19 are eligible to attend the camp.

Fees for the camp are $235 per person for resident campers or $175 for commuters. Resident students will stay in the college dormitories and have meals in the college cafeteria. A $75 nonrefundable deposit is required with registration, with the balance to be paid in full two weeks before the camp session. A $10 discount will be allowed for a second child from the same family and those attending more than one session.

Brochures about the camp and camps at other locations are available in the Continuing Education office at WTC. Application forms are included in the brochure and are to be returned to Dr. Leonard Lucenko, director of the Soccer Adademy's camp sessions, at 15918 Echo Hill in Houston.

Racquetball tourney deadline is Tuesday

Anyone wishing to participate in the annual Fourth of July Racquetball Mixed Doubles Tournament at Western Texas College must register by noon Tuesday.

Entry blanks for the July 4 event may be picked up at the college pro shop, Snyder Athletic Center or Family Fitness Center.

Those requesting further information may call Cathy Chavez at 573-0329 or Nancy Wilson at 573-3234.

Fee for the tourney is $10 per person. Teams will be paired by drawing names from a hat.

Play will begin at 8 a.m. Thursday. A bracket will be ready Wednesday and those in the tournament may contact the pro shop as to their playing time.

Proceeds from the annual tournament go towards helping defray the cost of the fireworks display at Towle Park.

Study reveals most uninformed

HOUSTON (AP) — Most women still don't know about toxic shock syndrome, despite a scare over the illness when it was linked to tampon use in 1980, according to a Rice University study.

"The more familiar people are with a product and the more times they've used it, the lower they rate the hazard of that product," said Sandra S. Godfrey, Rice psychology student working on her doctoral degree.

Ms. Godfrey and Kenneth R. Lauchery, an engineering psychology professor at Rice, found in a recent study that women who had used tampons for a long time without developing TSS tended to underestimate the potential hazards of tampons.

Peter Gott, M.D.

It's time for a new doctor

DEAR DR. GOTT — My mother is 72. During the past three months she has had more and more difficulty walking and increasing pain in her hips and legs. Now she can barely go up and down stairs. Her doctor's reaction was, "At your age, you've got to expect a few aches and pains." What do you think of a doctor who would tell a patient that?

DEAR READER — Your question is really composed of two parts; one is easy to answer, the other is difficult.

As people grow older, they commonly show signs of wear and tear. Weight-bearing joints — like hips, knees and ankles — are often prime targets for a type of arthritic wearing-down called osteoarthritis. Patients may demonstrate loss of joint space (with concomitant loss of lubricating fluid), development of calcium deposits and irritation of articulating surfaces. This condition almost always produces stiffness, pain on walking and loss of mobility.

At 72, after an undoubtedly active life, your mother is a good candidate for one — or all — of the manifestations of osteoarthritis. She will require several X-ray examinations of her joints so that her physician can accurately assess the degree of deterioration. One of the many arthritis medicines may help her. Her walking might be improved by judicious injections of cortisone into the most painful areas. As a last resort, she may want to consider surgery or hip or knee replacement. In my experience, all these techniques can be useful.

The important fact to consider is that she need not become disabled. Elderly persons may not be made "whole" by treatment, but they certainly can be aided to the point where they can continue to walk and enjoy independence.

The difficult portion of your question concerns the doctor's reaction to her predicament. She is surely experiencing more than run-of-the-mill aches and pains. I assume she has made this clear to the doctor. If true, her concerns are being disregarded by a physician who shows an abnormal insensitivity. If he is in his right mind, I don't know why he would react in such a callous and unprofessional manner. Perhaps he doesn't want her as a patient. Maybe he is unaware of the treatable nature of her ailments. In any case, I would say it's time for a change. Get her to another doctor, and perform a process of selection until you find one who behaves himself.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do diabetics have perspiration problems?

I am a dieting diabetic (not doing a great job of it) and I take one pill in the morning. Almost a year ago I developed a perspiration problem from the waist down to my knees. (I sit a lot on my job.) My doctor is not concerned. He says I should change the material of my clothes, which I cannot afford to do.

DEAR READER — I am not aware that diabetes per se produces the sort of perspiration problem you describe. Thigh sweating is more likely due to some factor relating to the skin of your lower body. Porous cotton clothing can more effectively allow your body to "breathe" than can synthetic fabric or wool. If you cannot afford to change your trousers, try using a light and absorbent undergarment, like cotton boxer shorts. I think your problem is probably due to "hot pants" — not the kind favored by teenagers, but the type of material that prevents appropriate dissipation of body heat. It sounds as though your unusual perspiration pattern is more the province of your haberdasher than of your doctor.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Police answer fireworks calls

Police were busy investigating reports of fireworks being discharged inside the city limits during the weekend. In all, nine reports were filed Saturday and Sunday.

Only one arrest was reported with the weekend, however. City officers jailed one local man for public intoxication Sunday evening.

How White House played its cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials say it was President Reagan's hard line which convinced the Lebanese who held 39 American hostages that the only reasonable alternative was to let them go.

Although the White House at one point late in the crisis threatened to escalate to some unspecified economic or military action, the only resource it could really bring to bear was "just our own political persuasion, the diplomacy at hand through embassies" around the world, one official said.

The official, speaking to reporters on condition he not be identified, said it took three or four days to convince Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri he could not "use the Americans to leverage Israel" in his own strategy to force the release of more than 700 Shiite prisoners held by the Israelis.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told a White House news conference, "In the case of handling a terrorist incident, the worst mistake you can make — or one of the bad mistakes — is to allow terrorists to establish a linkage where none exists, simply by asserting it."

"The president believed ... the first requirement was to apply the principle of no concessions to induce Berri to a different strategy," the official source said. "It took about three or four days to do that because, as much as he said it and repeated it, speculation from within this country and the Congress and understandable speculation from the other side ... left open in Berri's mind" the prospect of a trade.

At that point, according to the account provided by the participant in the administration effort, Berri began to approach, first, European governments and, finally, Syria "to lay off on them responsibility for holding onto these people to get our from under ... growing international criticism ... because he simply wasn't getting results."

As diplomatic efforts to isolate Berri dragged on, the official said, the administration sought some means of adding "internal frictions" to bring added pressure on the Shiite leader.

He said the U.S. threat to try to shut down Beirut International Airport and cut off the flow of goods and services to the Lebanese capital was designed to have a "short-term financial effect" by cutting off revenues the Shiites receive from traffic in and out of the little-used airport.

"The purpose was not to make people hungry; it would never work," the official said. "But the opinion makers, the leaders, the people that make money do so through that port (of Beirut) in a very major way."

The source said the threat alone, issued by a public announcement that Reagan was considering those options, helped produce "sniping ... from within."

The official dismissed the last-minute demand by Moslem extremists for a U.S. pledge not to retaliate as merely a face-saving maneuver.

He said Berri emerged from the hostage crisis as a leader of the Shiite community in Lebanon with the more radical Hezbollah group "not having gotten anything out of this."

The official said the Syrians, working out of their own interest in Lebanese stability, approached the United States about 8 p.m. EDT Saturday with a plan for reinstating the release plan that had fallen apart earlier in the day.

The Syrians, he said, "came up with a formula" for a U.S. policy statement that didn't differ substantially from existing policy but which "they said they would portray as sufficient reassurance."

Late Saturday night, the State Department with no explanation issued a one-sentence statement that said: "The United States reaffirms its long-standing support for the preservation of Lebanon, its government, its stability and its security and for the mitigation of the suffering of its people."

America cannot retaliate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite public pressures for action, the Reagan administration has ruled out armed retaliation against the Beirut hijackers.

It wasn't an easy decision for an administration that came to office promising "swift and effective retribution" for terrorist acts against Americans.

The pressure for some action against the Beirut terrorists was brought home to President Reagan when he was greeted by cries of "Retaliate, retaliate" from a crowd of about 100 people who stood outside the Bethesda, Md., home of Secretary of State George P. Shultz Sunday night.

Reagan had gone there for dinner after 39 hostages were on their way to freedom Sunday night.

Still a possibility, however, is an attack to put Beirut's airport out of commission, such as bombing or shelling the runways. Shultz told reporters that because it is a safe haven for hijackers, "that airport, I think is something that we have to look at very carefully."

But a number of factors weigh against an attack aimed at the hijackers of TWA Flight 847 who killed one American and were responsible for 39 others being held hostage for 17 days:

—Those responsible are protected from reprisal because they live in urban areas and an attack would kill innocent people, a senior White House offical said Sunday night. "They really are not very vulnerable, and they know darn well they are not vulnerable to reprisals," he said, insisting on anonymity.

—Seven Americans, kidnapped before the hijacking, are still held hostage and their lives would be put in even greater danger by an American retaliation.

—Retaliation that risks killing innocent civilians is outlawed by the 1949 Geneva Conventions on the protection of civilians in wartime, and officials say the administration will respect this accord.

Shultz and other officials went to considerable lengths to explain why they couldn't respond to public pressures for retaliation.

"Vengeance is a kind of visceral feeling people get," Shultz said. "It's natural. We all do. But what we really need to think about is imposing costs and looking to the future and preempting."

It was clear from the outset of the crisis that the hijackers would not give up the hostages without some understanding that they would not be assaulted as soon as they did.

Shultz said the United States will consult with other nations to bar air traffic to Beirut airport.

He also said the nation is making progress against terrorism and that as many as 60 potential incidents have been thwarted in the last nine months because they were discovered beforehand.

The president said in a speech in Chicago Heights, Ill., on Friday, "We cannot accept these repeated and vicious attacks against our nation and its citizens. Terrorists, and those who support them, must — and will — be held to account."

But the senior White House official who briefed reporters said the terrorists of the Hezbollah movement, which carried out the hijacking, knew they had nothing to fear because they live in areas of Beirut where an attack would risk killing civilians.

"It is manifestly infeasible — and they know it — to conduct violent raids against them," he said.

Many questions unanswered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Why was Robert Stethem shot in the head and killed? Why were some of the TWA passengers separated out by their hijackers? Because of their "Jewish-sounding names" or because they carried military ID cards, or for some other reason?

Did the United States put secret pressure on Israel to release its Shiite prisoners? How is Trans World Airlines going to get back its Boeing 727?

There are plenty of them, the questions that remain in the aftermath of the odyssey of TWA Flight 847.

Answers may come tumbling out as the 39 freed passengers tell their stories in the next few days, but some questions probably will be left as historical puzzles.

Who were the hijackers? They haven't been identified with certainty yet, though President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz say they must be made to pay for their crime.

What finally persuaded Nabih Berri, the Shiite leader, to send the passengers to Syria and freedom on Sunday?

Was it, as the administration suggests, that he came to realize he had nothing more to gain in keeping the Americans? How much influence did he exercise on the hijackers? Was Berri an intermediary, or the hijackers' representative? The White House praised Syria for its help, but not Berri.

"He has portrayed himself in various roles," Shultz told reporters. "He's portrayed himself as a mediator; he's portrayed himself as a party and a member of the group. So I think we have to do some sorting out about Mr. Berri."

What kind of reception will Berri get the next time he visits relatives in Dearborn, Mich.?

Another political question: Why, on Friday afternoon, in a speech in Chicago Heights, Ill., in a moment of the greatest of delicacy, when his administration had maintained utmost silence for two days, did President Reagan choose to talk tough?

He called the hijackers "thugs and murderers and barbarians." Was it part of some overall strategy to signal American impatience? Or was it Reagan being Reagan, a president whose rhetoric is sometimes harsher than his actions?

And what about Reagan's statement in the same speech that "terrorists, and those who support them, must — and will — be held to account"? What motivated the president's words? One Shiite leader said they jinxed the arrangement that would have led to the hostages' release 24 hours before it occurred.

What provoked the slaying of one passenger, hapless Navy diver Stethem, 12 hours after the hijacking started June 14? A White House fact sheet, put out Sunday, says Stethem was shot when an Amal intermediary requested by the hijackers did not arrive. But that only begged the question. Why Robert Stethem? It is a question his parents, too, must be asking.

How did the hijackers get on the plane with their weapons on the plane?

The passengers that were "separated out" — on what basis was that done? Throughout the ordeal, two theories — that they might have been Jews, or might have been military — were offered. The answer might come now, from the hostages.

Finally, questions only time can answer: What will the United States do to prevent future hostage-takings? If hijacking is a form of war by the weak against the strong, who won this war? Just as Americans are celebrating today, are the hijackers also celebrating?

Obituaries

Dad thinks others will change mind

WASHINGTON (AP) — The father of the only passenger on TWA Flight 847 who didn't get out alive says the freed hostages who have kind words for their captors will change their minds "when they have time to think about it."

Richard Stethem, father of murdered Navy seaman Robert Dean Stethem, said he watched with emotion Sunday as the final 39 hostages were released from Beirut and held a televised news conference upon their arrival in Damascus, Syria, before heading on to West Germany.

Stethem's son, Robert, 23, a Navy diver who was returning from a construction project at a U.S. Air Force base in Greece, was severely beaten and then shot in the head on June 15, a day after the hijacking started. His killers dumped his body from the jet onto the Beirut airport tarmac.

"The hostages were still scared at that time, and they're going to say anything to get out of there," the father said, when asked about the uncritical things the survivors said of their captors.

"You could see in their eyes that they were scared ... They're going to say anything."

Some of the hostages said they were well treated and expressed sympathy for the cause of their captors. Two of the hostages, TWA Capt. John L. Testrake and Robert Stethem's fellow seaman Jeffrey Ingalls, described their ordeal as "a learning experience."

teenagers and one 10-year-old. Men have joined in the past, but Dennis said the current enrollment is women only.

When Hope For Tomorrow was first organized here in 1975, members met in the community room of West Texas State Bank and placed their donations in a bucket. As the membership grew the organization moved to Western Texas College and regular dues were then charged. All meetings are now held at her studio on West 30th.

Dennis said when she organized Hope For Tomorrow she chose a star as its emblem because it represents "hope for tomorrow."

At one time a Hope For Tomorrow chapter was started in Lamesa, but it has since lapsed. She said one may be started soon in Colorado City.

Caravan is started

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A caravan is scheduled to arrive in New Mexico today on a cross-country trip to relocate Central Americans and to show the government the sanctuary movement "isn't intimidated," its members say.

"We want to help these refugees find sanctuary," said Don Haddon, spokesman for the Sanctuary Movement Committee in Phoenix.

Labor leaders predicting little impact

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A recent Supreme Court ruling forbidding labor unions to punish workers who leave their labor groups and return to work during a strike will have little effect in Texas, union leaders say.

"This is a definite move against the unions and just reflects the nature of the Supreme Court towards unions," said John Rogers, spokesman for the Texas AFL-CIO.

But Rogers said the impact would be minimal because the number of people who cross picket lines is insignificant compared to the number of people who strike.

Texas is already a right-to-work state, so employees cannot be forced to join a union.

Before the Supreme Court's ruling last week, union locals had the right to impose fines on members who quit during a strike and crossed picket lines to go back to work. Members had to pay the fines to be allowed back in the union.

"The ruling will have a zero effect in Texas and other right-to-work states. A member who is fined and didn't want to pay it would just quit the union," Rogers said.

Jerry Archuleta, spokesman for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (OCAW), said, "The Supreme Court has handed down another weapon for the industries' arsenal to use against working people."

"We disagree with the Supreme Court's ruling, but I don't think that our locals are going to suffer any great number of defections," Archuleta said.

Still, Archuleta said the court's decision will have an effect on the entire collective bargaining process and will allow a company to put additional pressures on employees to cross the picket line and return to work.

"It's ironic," he said. "The Supreme Court said unions cannot discipline scabs, but the law of the land says unions have to represent all members of the bargaining unit.

"Ultimately everyone receives the same pay and benefits as the union members," he said. "The fight is being waged for everybody."

Reach $2 million settlement

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Negligence charges against officials of a defunct Odessa bank are being dropped as part of a more than $2 million out-of-court settlement with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., an FDIC spokesman said.

The FDIC filed a federal civil suit in February alleging National Bank of Odessa lost at least $7.39 million because of the negligence of 20 officers and directors.

"A settlement has been reached in the area of $2.1 million," Stanley Clark, liquidator-in-charge of FDIC operations in Midland.

Ric Handler, a Dallas attorney representing the FDIC, said Friday that an insurance company and former directors the National Bank of Odessa agreed to pay the money in exchange for the FDIC's dropping the suit.

"The FDIC released the defendants except for the Jumpers (Kenneth and Rick), against whom they took the settlement," Handler said, adding that North River Insurance Co. of Morristown, N.J. "paid the lion's share of the money."

In an agreed judgment filed June 19, Kenneth Jumper, the former chief executive officer, agreed to pay the FDIC $400,000. At the same time, Rick Jumper, former vice president in the commercial lending department, consented to a $100,000 payment.

In that judgment, Kenneth Jumper consented "without admitting liability but rather expressly denying same."

Victor Savikas, Chicago council for North River Insurance Co. of Morristown, N.J., said because of the agreement's terms, the amount the insurer paid "is private, and I cannot confirm it."

Handler noted that "it's a no-fault settlement" in which none of the directors admitted any liability.

The National Bank of Odessa was declared insolvent and closed Sept. 30, 1983, by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency.
