Haig Resigns, Reagan Appoints Shultz to Post

WASHINGTON AP - President Reagan summoned George P. Shultz the man he has chosen to replace Alexander M. Haig Jr. as Secretary of State to meet with him today as administration officials stressed the continuity of the president's foreign policy.

Reagan announced Haig's resignation on Friday and nominated Shultz to be the nation's top diplomat. Shultz is a former Treasury Secretary and president of the Bechtel Group Inc. an international construction company.

Shultz was returning to Washington from London where Reagan reached him Friday and asked him to replace Haig the first departure from the Reagan Cabinet.

Asked about his nomination Shultz told reporters in London "Is has come as a pleasant surprise."

The Reagan-Shultz meeting was to take place at Camp David Md. where the president was spending the weekend.

Senior administration aides said that Haig a 57-year-old former four-star Army general was leaving the Cabinet as the result of a series of disputes with Reagan and other key aids.

Haig said that when he took office as the 59th Secretary of State he and Reagan "agreed that consistency, clarity and steadiness of purpose" were essential to the success of the nation's foreign policy.

In his resignation letter delivered to Reagan Friday after the secretary told the president on Thursday that he would quit Haig said:

"In recent months it has become clear to me that the foreign policy on which we embarked together was shifting from that careful course which we had laid out."

Some aides said that the latest difference with Reagan and particularly with Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger pushed Haig into leaving.

That involved Reagan's decision to block the use of U.S. - produced or licensed equipment in the development of a 3,500-mile pipeline to carry natural gas from Siberia to Western Europe.

The United States opposes construction of the project contending it could threaten Western Europe's energy security and provide hard currency for the Soviet military buildup.

Reagan originally sought to block the construction in protest of the military crackdown in Poland. Last week in a decision that reportedly irritated Haig the president expanded the sanctions against the Soviet Union on the pipeline. Weinberger had sought continuation of the sanctions.

NBC-TV said Friday night that Haig tried to soften the pipeline decision at a White House meeting Thursday and was told by National Security Advisor William Clark "This Shuttle Launch Set for 11 A.M.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Ken Mattingly and Hank Hartsfield, military pilots turned astronauts, left an early wake-up call today to squeeze in final training for their seven-day flight aboard America's space shuttle.

Columbia's fourth and last test mission is scheduled to begin Sunday at 11 a.m. EDT. It will inaugurate the nation's manned military operations in orbit by carrying a top secret Pentagon payload of sensors.

The countdown, characterized as "exceedingly smooth" by NASA test director Stan Gross, was to go into a planned hold from 3:45 p.m. today to 12:25 a.m. Sunday, when preparations will begin for loading the ship's volatile fuels.

Today, the astronauts were scheduled to get up with the first morning light, eat breakfast, then climb into airplanes specially modified to handle and feel like the shuttle on its approach for landings. After practice, the astronauts planned a pilot's pre-flight walkaround on the launch pad.

During the night, pad crews installed the last of the scientific gear to be carried aloft by Columbia, then closed the 60-foot cargo bay doors.

Mattingly, commander of the flight, is a Navy captain who flew in space as command module pilot of Apollo 16 in 1972. He has been an astronaut since 1966. Hartsfield, an astronaut since 1969, retired from the Air Force in 1977 after 22 years of

Clements Express Will Tour State

AUSTIN - Gov. and Mrs. Bill Clements will lead the "Clements Express" in an old fashioned whistle-stop train trip to celebrate Independence Day on Sunday, July 4.

Beginning at 9 a.m. July 4 at the Santa Fe Railroad Station in Fort Worth, the itinerary for the 140-mile trip will include stops in Granbury, Stephenville, Dublin, Comanche and Brownwood. Gov. Clements will speak at events in Granbury and Stephenville and will deliver patriotic remarks from the observation deck of the train in Dublin, Comanche and Brownwood.

Arriving in Granbury at 10:15 a.m., the "Clements Express" passengers will participate in a brief program at the restored train station of the town before proceeding in parade fashion to the Town Square Gazebo where Abner V. McCall, Chancellor of Baylor University, will be the featured speaker for the ecumenical "Festival of Faith" service conducted by the Granbury churches. Granbury Mayor Enor "Bud" Olson has declared July 4th "Festival of Faith Day" with the Chamber of Commerce inviting citizens of surrounding com-

Drilling Reveals 3 Salt Layers

TULIA - The U.S. Department of Energy's exploration in the Palo Duro Basin for underground sites for a potential high-level nuclear waste repository has confirmed three major layers of bedded salt in Swisher and Deaf Smith counties.

Drilling at the Zeek No. 1 borehole is near a depth of 6,000 feet at a site northeast of Tulia in Swisher County. Drilling encountered bedded salt at 1,115 feet below the surface and found major salt beds at depths of 2,015, 2,580 and 2,735 feet.

The well is designed as a deep hydrologic test well drilled to approximately 7,500 feet. Selective rock units, including salt beds of particular interest, have been cored and their physical and chemical properties will be analyzed. Long-term hydrologic pump testing in deep brine aquifers will begin once the drilling has reached total depth.

Preliminary results were as follows at two boreholes completed near Dawn in Deaf Smith County:

Friemel Well: 2,710 feet deep. Depths to top of salt beds and thickness - 1,742 feet, 138 feet thick; 2,231 feet, 106 feet thick; 2,435 feet, 153 feet deep.

Detten Well: 2,840 feet deep. Depth to top of salt beds and thickness - 1,866 feet, 110 feet thick; 2,374 feet, 115 feet deep; 2,575 feet, 170 feet deep.

The Detten borehole will be re-entered this summer. DOE plans to deepen it by 3,000 to 4,000 feet, selectively coring potential aquifer rocks in the Wolfcampian and Granite Wash units. Long-term pump test and water sampling will be performed to study the deep basin hydrologic system.

The salt maintains the gross thickness and quality that is believed necessary for the siting of a mined repository. Results of earlier test drilling and the previous correlation of older exploration tests satisfactorily predicted the thickness and quality of salt beds in the Palo Duro Basin. Salt cores will be analyzed by the Texas Bureau of Economic Geology and by DOE.

Pump testing also continues in a test zone at the Sawyer No. 1 well near Clarendon in Donley County. The Donley County area is not under consideration as a possible repository site. Information collected in the test is expected to be used in modeling hydrologic flow through the Palo Duro Basin. Groundwater flow is a concern in determining the potential for safe disposal of radioactive waste

Bobby Bragan Banquet Speaker

Former major league baseball player Bobby Bragan, a shortstop and catcher with the Phillies, will be the featured speaker at the Deaf Smith County Kids, Inc. banquet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Bull Barn.

League winners will be recognized at the event, and All-Star squads will be announced. The public is invited to attend the banquet, which will feature an ice cream supper.

Another highlight of the banquet will be the drawing for a 200-pound box of beef worth approximately $200.

Downtown Draggers

Both the men's and women's teams representing the Downtown Variety Park won tug-of-war championships Friday afternoon at Dameron Park. The downtown men, weighing a total of 1,495 pounds, defeated Sugarland Mall's Men (1,465) and the Highways 385-60 team (1,470), while the downtown girls (985) took the measure of the Sugarland Mall Sweeties (975) for their title. (Brand Photos).

Traffic Stopper

Travel on Hwy 385 on the south edge of the city was halted briefly Friday afternoon when two vehicles collided. Five persons

Honor America Fete Scheduled July 4th

"Honor America - A Patriotic Evening" will be held at Whiteface stadium beginning at 8 p.m., Sunday July 4 as the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce does its part to help the area celebrate the nation's birthday.

Patriotic speeches and singing will highlight the night's activities, including addresses by Doug Manning and Wayne Thomas. Musical celebration will be provided by the Hereford Chamber Singers, the Nazarene Church singers, and Johnny Ray Watson, with Watson leading the crowd in "God Bless America" to end the evening.

As part of this year's Fourth of July celebration the chamber is again taking orders for U.S. flag kits. The kits, which include a three-by-five American flag, a 6-foot metal pole and mounting hardware, and a flag etiquette brochure, are selling for $8.95 each.

Orders for the flags may be placed at the chamber office on Main St.

The great importance of the anniversary of this nation's independence did not escape the founding fathers, or those who followed in their footsteps.

President John Adams, speaking to his wife Abigail on July 3, 1776, said, "...this great anniversary festival ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of the country to the other, from this time forever more."

And Abraham Lincoln, speaking on July 4, 1858, said "We hold this annual celebration to remind ourselves of all the good done in the process of time, of how it was done and who did it. And we go from these meetings in better humor with ourselves - we feel more attached to the one to the other and more firmly bound to the country we inhabit."

Hereford Man Found Guilty

An illegal alien who has been residing in Hereford was convicted of attempted murder by a jury in 242nd District Court in Dimmitt Thursday, and his defense attorney is attempting to make arrangements with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to keep his client in the United States to fulfill terms of the sentence handed down.

Domingo Garcia, 21, was found guilty Thursday in the shooting of Rubin Herrera, 32, of Dimmitt during a Jan. 18 disturbance in east Dimmitt. The verdict came after almost two hours of deliberation following the three-day trial in Judge Marvin Marshall's court.

The jury of seven men and five women then took 47 minutes to set Garcia's punishment at a 10-year probation prison term, a $5,000 fine, and an undetermined amount of restitution to the Herrera family.

Garcia is being held in the Castro County Jail pending action by the immigration officials.

Attorney Javier Alvarez of Lubbock said that Garcia is willing to meet the high legal costs, estimated at $50,000, to remain in this country to fulfill the terms of his probation.

Garcia testified during the trial that he did not intend to kill Herrera, but only intended to scare him with a shotgun.

Public On Side Of Grandmother

HOUSTON (AP) - An 82-year-old great-grandmother accused of growing marijuana in her vegetable garden says the public is for her even if the law has not been so far.

"Boy, if the people had a vote on this, I'd be out," Laura Clark said Friday as she left the Harris County Criminal Courthouse, where a judge ordered her to stand trial on a marijuana possession charge Aug. 23.

"Everybody is for my side," said Mrs. Clark. "They think they've done me real wrong."

District Judge Michael McSpadden denied a defense motion to suppress evidence in the case - several mature marijuana plants uprooted from the woman's garden.

Mrs. Clark has said she did not know the seeds she planted, sent to her from Mexico by a relative, were marijuana. She said she thought they were herbs which she said she intended to use to ease pain from arthritis.

Defense attorney Bill Portis had argued the evidence should be thrown out because detectives who "raided" her garden May 4 did not have a search warrant.

Narcotics detectives Joe Dugger and J.T. Bell conceded they had no warrant, but they testified Mrs. Clark voluntarily allowed them to search her property after police received an anonymous telephone tip from a woman who told them of the illegal plants.

"At first she declined to let us come in," Bell testified. But he said she changed her mind after the two officers told her they could get a warrant and force her to let them in.

Mrs. Clark testified she told the officers after they asked to come in and look around, "I'd rather you wouldn't." She said one of the detectives "said 'we can come in anyhow.' I said, 'Come ahead.'"

Assistant District Attorney Glenn Gotschall said detectives are not required to inform residents of their right to refuse to allow police officers without warrants to search their homes.

Cowboys Won't Try To Stop Anti-Bentsen Commercial

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys will not try to stop broadcast of a right-wing television commercial attacking U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, team officials said.

Tex Schramm, the team's general manager and president, said that he viewed a video tape of the commercial Friday and is satisfied that the spot does not imply that the Cowboys are taking sides in Bentsen's race.

The commercials, shot in Texas Stadium this month by the National Conservative Political Action Committee, feature models scantily dressed in cheerleader outfits similar to those Cowboy cheerleaders wear.

The team and Texas Stadium management threatened to take NCPAC to court over the commercial after learning about the filming last week.

"As we had said from the beginning, the Cowboys were in no way involved in the NCPAC commercial," Schramm said Friday. "The Cowboys do not prefer one political candidate over another."

"We have looked at a tape of the commercial and it has been edited in such a way that it would be impossible to infer the Cowboys were in any endorsing the message on the commercial."

NCPAC chairman John T. "Terry" Dolan has said the group will spend $1 million trying to defeat Bentsen if the pilot spots are successful and the money can be raised from Texas contributors.

Professors Drop Official Condemnation Of Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — School officials say they are elated that the American Association of University Professors has ended its 14-year-long censure of Texas A&M University for the way it fired a professor.

The organization censured A&M in 1968 after it concluded the university failed to follow academic due process in 1965 when it fired Dr. Leon Gibbs, a professor of veterinary medicine who died last August.

The organizations membership, meeting in Washington, D.C., decided Friday to drop A&M from its black list.

"The AAUP is obviously convinced that the university fully protects the spirit of academic freedom," and related Texas A&M University System Chancellor Dr. Frank W.R. Hubert said Friday.

Although the censure carried no formal sanctions, Hubert and university President Frank Vandiver said its removal would improve A&M's ability to recruit and retain top faculty members.

Vandiver said the university has developed policies and procedures to insure basic compliance with the organization's precepts of academic freedom, tenure and responsibility.

Average Gas Bills Would Rise $4 Under Company's Request

DALLAS (AP) — The gas bill of the average Texan in the 536 cities and towns served by Lone Star Gas Co. will increase by $4 if the Texas Railroad Commission approves the firm's most recent rate hike request.

Lone Star asked for the rate increase Friday. The higher rates charged to its 1.2 million customers would earn the company $90 million more a year, the company said.

Lone Star said it needed the additional revenue to recover higher costs of gas, inflation-related increases in operating expenses and a reasonable return on increased amounts of property used to serve customers.

It also wants to pass along to customers 100 percent of the increased gas purchase costs the company pays above the cost of gas set in the rate case. Lone Star can now pass along 95 percent of that cost.

Charges Unlikely Against Illegally Horses' Owner

HOUSTON (AP) — Charges will probably not be filed against a woman who owns 26 horses taken into "protective custody" because she could not afford to care for them, a Harris County constable's officer says.

"The owner actually loved those animals, but she simply didn't earn enough money to take care of them," Lt. George Huebner said. "We kept telling her to sell them, but she loved them too much to do that."

Huebner said he would talk with prosecutors but doubted charges would be filed against the owner, Sue Robinson, 45.

The horses will be kept at an Animal Rescue League ranch until a July 1 hearing, Huebner said. They were rounded up Thursday.

Jetliner Felled By Volcano Ashes, Plunged Five Miles

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A British jetliner, its engines choked off by ash from an erupting volcano, plunged five miles in a terrifying dive before the pilots restarted the engines and saved more than 200 lives, aviation and airline officials reported Friday.

"It seemed to go on for an eternity," Australian passenger Gerry Middleton said later. "Everybody was petrified. There was no noise." "By the time we pulled out ... everybody was just about on their knees praying." No injuries were reported.

The British Airways Boeing 747 was carrying 224 passengers and a crew of 16 on a flight Thursday night from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, to Perth, Australia, final leg of a flight from London.

About 100 miles south of Jakarta, flying at 37,000 feet, it ran into a thick cloud of ash that had been spewed from the Mount Galunggung volcano, 180 miles southeast of Jakarta, in an eruption earlier Thursday evening, airline officials said in London.

They said the cloud did not appear on the plane's radar screen, and the pilot had not been warned of it beforehand. Middleton, a Perth journalist, said the first sign of trouble came when the passenger cabin began filling with ash.

"It was hard to tell where it came from but it was coming out of the air vents as well," he said.

"I looked out to see the near engine on my side apparently on fire and the two engines on the other side seemed to be burning, too. Then all the engines stopped and we went down on the terrible storm," he said. "She did not into a steep dive." The ash had choked off the engines' air and they stalled.

He said the pilot, Capt. Eric Moody, announced they had encountered "mild turbulence" and there was nothing to worry about. But "we knew it was more serious," said Middleton.

Some children cried at first, but then there was silence in the cabin, said another passenger, Douglas Cross, 40.

"One elderly woman looked out of the window and realized she was seeing the flashbacks from the engines."

"The crew acted in the most exemplary manner, moving around the cabin to calm people, taking portable oxygen equipment for them."

"The descent seemed to take a very long time, but I suppose it took about 12 minutes."

The plane plummeted to 12,000 feet, a distance of 25,000 feet, while the cockpit crew worked to restart first one, then finally all four engines, and pulled out of the dive, airline officials reported. Moody then shut down one of the engines because it was running roughly, and he turned back to Jakarta, where he made a safe emergency landing despite the fact that the ash had "sandblasted" the cockpit window, hampering visibility.

"Indications are that the crew did an absolutely splendid job in very difficult circumstances," the chief pilot of state-run British Airways, Capt. Colin Barnes, said in London.

Shuttle

service. On Friday, Mattingly and Hartsfield flew around thunderstorms enroute to the cape from the Houston training center — a dramatic reminder of the quick-changing weather that seems to make every launch a cliff-hanger.

Forecasters said they expect the storm front to move through the area, and that weather conditions should be adequate by launch time Sunday.

If all goes as scheduled, Columbia will land on Rogers Dry Lake at Edwards Air Force Base in California on July 4 to be greeted on America's 206th birthday by President Reagan. The reusable spacecraft starts this journey with 201 orbits and 5,234,280 miles on its odometer.

For the first time in America's space history, the astronauts will conduct military experiments in space, operating a Defense Department payload that consists of sensors being tested for future surveillance satellites. They also have a full schedule of scientific experiments.

The shuttle itself will be tested one last time before it is declared operational and thus able to earn back some of its costs. Parts of the spacecraft will be exposed for long periods to the searing heat of the sun and then the numbing cold of space to see how they react to the temperature extremes.

Express

After the "Clements Express" pulls out of Granbury, lunch will be served on the train. Arrival time in Stephenville is set for 1 p.m. Participants on the whistle-stop tour will detain and journey to the Stephenville City Park where the Annual July 4 Fun Fair will be in progress.

Gov. Clements will speak from the small pavilion at 1:30 p.m. That fair will feature the Cross Timbers Armadillo Racing Championship, a greased pig chase, arm wrestling matches, a skillet toss and a cake and cookie bake-off. On hand will be singers, bands, choirs and pickers.

"Clements Express" will be Brownwood where a patriotic celebration is scheduled at the railroad station. Old fashioned July 4 attractions of singing and Independence Day speeches will close out the whistle-stop tour — a trip highlighted with banners, flags, parades, lemonade, songs, speeches and special events.

Garden Tour Spot

The backyard garden of Paula Hamby, left, will be the first stop on a tour with the Ornamental and Garden Clinic Wednesday, according to Justin McBride, extension agent. The clinic will begin at 9 a.m. with authorities on plants, vegetables and landscaping as speakers. The tour will begin at 10 a.m. After a stop at Hamby's, it will continue with stops at the Hereford Garden Center, lawn and flower gardening; Cain's residence, 104 Elm, trees; and the Cowgirl Hall of Fame, landscaping. The clinic is free.

is a closed issue. The decision has been made."

Haig then said he would have to resign, the network said.

But while some people said the pipeline decision was paramount, others challenged the idea that any one issue led Haig to quit. The secretary had reportedly offered his resignation several times earlier, and each time it was rejected.

One official said privately, "I think the president had had enough of it."

The official said that Haig had been "miffed by slights" during Reagan's trip to Europe earlier this month, as well as by the pipeline decision.

"I could sense it talking to him in Europe," this aide said.

Neither Haig nor Reagan, whose remarks were terse and whose demeanors were stern, referred to specific differences as they appeared before television cameras 90 minutes apart. Reagan spoke first, in the White House press briefing room, and then Haig spoke in a State Department auditorium.

White House officials, requesting anonymity, said Reagan doesn't intend any changes in his foreign policy, despite Haig's criticism.

One official stressed that Shultz, Richard M. Nixon's secretary of labor, budget director, and then treasury secretary, was a "team player" who "commands widespread respect overseas."

This official and others stressed that Shultz's nomination would not mean any changes in foreign policy.

Key senators predicted that Shultz would have no trouble getting confirmed by the

Senate. A spokesman for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said hearings would be held the week of July 12.

But some senators and administration officials said they believed that Shultz was less sympathetic to Israel and that neither he nor Weinberger view Israel as the strategic asset that Haig does.

Joseph Churba, a former high official in the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said the Shultz nomination would be "a triumph for petrodollar diplomacy."

Shultz is regarded as having close ties to moderate Arab nations, especially Saudi Arabia. For that reason, the Israelis regard him with some suspicion. His company, Bechtel, conducts considerable business in Saudi Arabia.

In Israel, the Foreign Ministry said it regretted the resignation and called Haig "a great statesman and a loyal friend of Israel."

Officials said it was too early to speculate on what Haig's departure meant for Mideast relations, but the news left official Jerusalem dumbfounded.

Haig's disagreements with Weinberger, U.N. Ambassador Jeane S. Kirkpatrick and White House chief of staff James A. Baker III were public knowledge. Last November, he said a top White House aide was "running a guerrilla campaign" to discredit him. Attention focused on Richard V. Allen, who has since resigned as Reagan's national security adviser.

There were also recent reports that Haig wasn't getting along with Clark, a longtime close Reagan associate who succeeded Allen.

The third stop for the "Clements Express" will be at 3 p.m. in Dublin where Gov. Clements will speak from the observation deck. The train will reach Comanche about 4:15 p.m. where the Governor will again give remarks.

Gun Club To Shoot Today

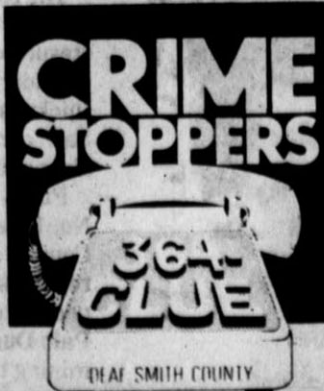

The Hereford Gun Club will shoot Sunday 1:30 p.m. All shotguns are invited to come out and practice or compete for prizes.

Fireworks Injuries Mar Fourth Of July

Traffic fatality reports over the July 4 weekend generally overshadow another category of accidents — fireworks.

Fourth of July and Christmas holidays are when most of the estimated 6,000 to 7,000 fireworks injuries occur in the United States each year, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. About 20 percent of these are eye injuries, caused primarily by firecrackers and bottle rockets.

In Texas last year, fireworks caused 72 reported eye injuries, 48 of which involved bottle rockets, notes

Dr. Richard D. Cunningham, an ophthalmologist at Scott and White Clinic in Temple.

"Again this year, a number of Texans will be subjected to potentially blinding injuries from fireworks because of our ignorance or indifference to the hazards posed by these devices," Cunningham writes in the June issue of Texas Medicine, journal of the Texas Medical Association. "Nearly all blinding injuries could be prevented if all participants would use protective eyewear."

Fireworks injuries climbed 21 percent in 1981 over the previous year, reports the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. Of the 11,400 people who sought treatment in hospital emergency rooms, 1,600 or 14 percent of them had eye injuries.

"Most at risk are children between ages 5 and 14," says Dr. Avery Rush, Medical Advisor for the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. "They make up 56 percent of all fireworks injury victims."

Last year, bottle rockets caused nine of the 12 reported cases of fireworks blindness in Texas and 11 instances of partial but permanent vision loss, Cunningham says.

Aggravated Assault Charges Pending

Charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon are pending for Mary Perales, Progressive Road, who allegedly fired a pistol at several people during an argument Thursday morning.

Hereford police report that Ms. Perales was involved in an argument behind Sheffey Office Services, 130 East Fifth, when the incident occurred. The alleged weapon was a small caliber pistol.

Police officers and the Department of Human Services were searching for the parents of a lost child found wandering around a grocery store Friday. The mother eventually found the child at the police station. Officers said the toddler was one of a number of children in the car and was not missed until lunch.

A boy was hit from behind with a car while riding a bike at the corner of Plains and Center Friday. He told police that an elderly woman came through a stop sign without stopping and hit him. The vehicle did not stop after the collision.

Officers received complaints of two harrasing phone calls and issued three citations.

Commission Sets Meeting Monday

Deaf Smith County commissioners will look at perhaps their briefest agenda this year when only six items face them when the court meets in regular session at 10 a.m. Monday at the courthouse.

The county fathers will be discussing the storage and distribution of surplus cheese, considering the sale of a power generator stored at the Pct. 1 Barn, and going over a request by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to cross a county road in Pct. 1 with a cable.

The court will also be drafting a resolution opposing a proposed constitutional amendment which would abolish the office of county treasurer across the state, considering a request by James Gentry for a subdivision and road, and hear a report from the task force committee assigned to study the policy for the county-owned Bull Barn.

The meeting is open to the public.

Trip To Brazil Rewarding, Exciting To Local Resident

BY LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

"One thing I knew, but kind of proved to myself, is that even when you can't talk to people (in their language) you can still communicate, and the easiest way is with a smile," says Dallas Ann Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Phillips.

"It is something you can give away for free, and you always get something back," she adds.

about her recent trip to Brazil with members of several Panhandle Southern Baptist Associations. A junior at Hereford High School, she was the only person from Hereford who participated in the "Mission to Brazil" trip almost two weeks ago with 289 others from this part of Texas.

"It was a neat experience and something I wouldn't have missed," says Dallas Ann. "I feel like I would have been cheated out of a little bit of life if I had not gone."

Dallas Ann says that going out of the country was an eye-opening experience and one that made her appreciate America. She had never traveled outside of the states before.

"It was something I never thought I'd get to do," smiled Dallas Ann, "and I would like to do more things of this nature if I can—maybe be involved in summer missions."

Dallas Ann went over with a group from First Baptist Church in Friona and after the entire Panhandle group arrived in Brazil, they were split into 47 teams, each being assigned to a church where they led revivals at night and visited door-to-door during the day.

Dallas Ann was placed in a group with four Friona residents, including a minister, the pastor of the Mexican Mission in Friona. "Since he was fluent in Spanish, and that is close to Portuguese, which is spoken in Brazil, he was able to communicate with the people there fairly well," she notes. "On the plane from Miami, we all practiced simple phrases and words so we'd be able to communicate a little bit," she added.

The group stayed in a hotel in Recife, a city of approximately two and a half million people on the easternmost tip of Brazil. Dallas Ann's group worked with a church about 45 minutes from the hotel which was located in a small farming community.

"Most of the people there were small farmers (much smaller than the farms here) or worked at a sugar factory located in the town," says Dallas Ann.

Some missionaries came from a nearby town to help with the interpreting and several seminary students from Recife helped with the visitation. All of the participants had written up their testimonies before leaving the states and they were translated into a slot and turning manually.

When groups went out to visit in Brazil, they were able to share their testimonies by means of small cardboard portable record players operated by putting a pencil into a slot and turning manually.

"The children, especially, were fascinated by the gadget," says Dallas Ann, "and the people were very curious to see what Americans looked like and why we were there."

Dallas Ann notes that the people in Brazil are all colors and hardly anyone looks alike, "so there is no prejudice. I think that's one reason why they are so loving and accepting," she says. "We were very well received."

"We shared with one woman who was 101 years old and had never heard of Jesus Christ and she accepted Him as her Savior. Another man was 97 years old and he asked why we had waited so long to come and tell him. That's what really gives you the incentive to go back and makes you understand why you're there."

"I got to experience a lot of firsts on the trip," says Dallas Ann. "Recife is much like any other large city, maybe a few years behind the states but quite modern."

Several unique things that she noticed were that all the men carry little purses because Brazilian currency is all paper money. Also, nearly everyone carries a gun. "From the hotel window one day," notes Dallas Ann, "we saw a gunshot almost like in the Old West."

"There is one real nice shopping mall in Recife and there is a shopping center set up in a big, old prison with each cell now a separate little shop. Other items are sold in the streets."

All of the taxis are orange Volkswagens and the police cars and most other vehicles are either Volkswagens or Volkswagen buses. They use a gasohol mixture which is mostly alcohol and it gives off a kind of sweet smell which we immediately noticed when we arrived there."

Dallas Ann noted that most of the families are very large, that most young couples had a child by the time they had been married a year, and that women always told you how many children they had given birth to, even if only a few were still living.

The big thing there is soccer," says Dallas Ann. "The whole city closes down when there is a big soccer game and everyone goes inside to watch T.V. When their team scores a point, firecrackers go off all over the city simultaneously. Everyone has T.V. sets, and refrigerators, even in the poorest parts of town."

"The countryside is really pretty—rolling hills with palm trees—kind of like a combination of Arkansas and Florida," comments Dallas Ann. "Everything is green and there is a lot of water."

"It is very humid, but it rained often and cooled things off for a little while. We never went anywhere without an umbrella. There was hardly any thunder—it would just rain slowly for about 15 minutes and then quit."

"I'd like to go back to Brazil, but then I'd like to go somewhere else next time too," says Dallas Ann. "I don't know just what's in store for me." She hopes to go on a church-sponsored mission trip to Houston this summer and would like to be involved in other mission-type projects in the future.

She has lived in Hereford all of her life. Her father is employed by Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Inc., and her mother works at Don C. Tardy Co. Real Estate. She has two older sisters who are both married.

"My mother was involved in a river ministry at one time and I had heard several different missionaries speak about going to Brazil and other places," notes Dallas Ann. "That's how I first got interested in going."

"I knew basically what was expected of me because my mother had gone on a similar trip. Basic preparation included obtaining a passport and visa and writing up my testimony. I found out I would be going in January or February."

"It was not a pleasure trip—it was definitely a lot of work," states Dallas Ann, "but well worth it. We realized how much 'country folk' we were, and experienced things we never would have been exposed to had we not gone."

"It was good to get back to the United States, but I wouldn't have missed it, and I would go again if I had it to do over."

Planning Cook-off

mittee members Randy Jones, Shelley Garner, Margaret Formby and Bryon Roark. Anyone 18 years of age or older may enter the event.

Preparations Set For Chili Cook-Off

Jubilee Chili Cook-off, which will benefit the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, has been planned for Aug. 21 at the baseball field at Veterans Park.

People from other parts of the country, as well as local residents, will be participating under the rules of the Chili Appreciation Society International.

Anyone 18 or older may enter the event. All local businesses, sororities, civic clubs, etc. are encouraged to challenge each other in the cook-off. Entry fee will be $15. Cooks' meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. and showmanship starts at 2 p.m. There will be 10 chili trophies, three showmanship trophies and jubilee goody bags presented. General admission is $2 for adults and children under 12 years of age will be admitted free of charge.

Entry forms may be picked up at the Hereford State Bank, First National Bank and Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Also, rules for the event may be obtained at the CHOF.

The sleep needs of babies vary just as greatly as those of adults. One should expect to see no "normal" pattern.

'Divine Intervention' Prevented Deaths In Race Track Shootout

BOSTON (AP) — A crowded lounge at a race track turned into "the gunfight at the OK Corral" when two men exchanged at least a dozen shots before one was shot and wounded by a policeman, authorities said.

"It's divine intervention that prevented any fatalities," said Suffolk Downs assistant manager Daniel Buccia after Friday's shooting.

Police said they knew of no motive for the shootout, but witnesses said the two men argued about money. Jack Finn, a trainer who was in the lounge, said one man warned the other, "Don't go for your gun."

"It was like the gunfight at the OK Corral," said Jim Roberts, 27, of South Boston, a patron in the lounge. "Two or three shots rang out, and people realized what was going on. People just hit the floor."

"They were running in all directions," said Bob Vary, a track spokesman. "They ran for the nearest opening."

The lounge, where food and drinks are available and people can watch the races on TV monitors, held more than 100 people at the time of the shootings, witnesses said.

The two men began exchanging shots at about 4:15 p.m., just after the seventh race, police said. Patrolman Thomas P. Traynor, working a paid detail at the track, ordered them to stop shooting, but one man "turned and pointed his gun at the officer," said police spokesman Tom Santry. Traynor then fired, wounding the gunman in the left leg, Santry said.

The officer then kicked the gun away from the wounded man before pursuing the other gunman to the parking lot outside, Buccia said.

Detective Vincent Logan counted 14 bullet holes in the walls and pillars of the clubhouse.

Thomas Rossi, 42, of East Boston, was listed in fair condition at Massachusetts General Hospital. No charges were immediately filed against him.

Also arrested was Salvatore Manganaro of East Boston, charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, possession of firearms and attempted murder, Santry said.

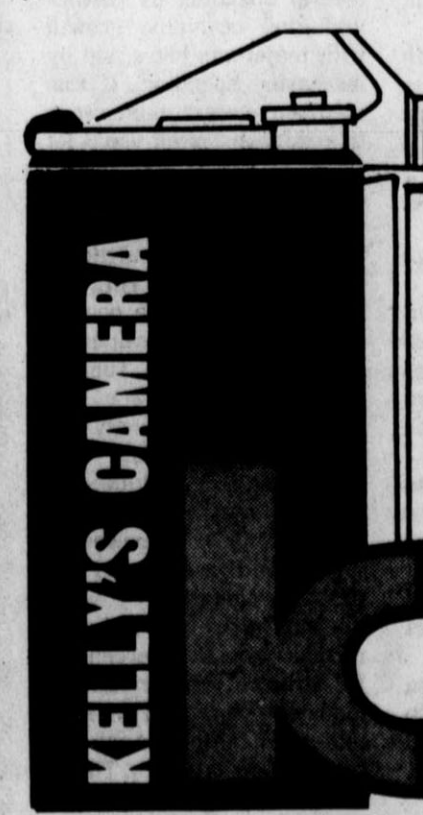

Police later arrested Mark Rossi, 17, identified as the son of the wounded man, and charged him with possession of a firearm, said officer Paul Baker. Police said the teenager was present at the track and was arrested at the hospital where his father was taken.

Santry said the men will be arraigned Monday in Boston Municipal Court.

The Boston Herald American quoted witnesses as saying the elder Rossi and Manganaro argued about money and shouted obscenities, with one man spitting in the other's face before the firing started.

The newspaper said the elder Rossi had been an unsuccessful candidate in 1976

Thanks Doug!

There'll be an "appreciation reception" for Doug Manning this Sunday afternoon, and we expect quite a few folks will drop by during the 3 to 5 p.m. event.

There would probably be more folks show up if it was a "farewell reception." Since he's not leaving town, some folks might pick their own time and place to say "thanks". Since he's retiring from the ministry at First Baptist, but staying in town, we'll have to go light on the praise or he might get the big-head. This writer will miss the reception and it's a shame... we'd like to see him squirm.

The truth of the matter is that Manning is good at dishing out praise, but it's difficult for him to be on the receiving end.

It's sort of a unique event, since Manning won't be leaving town. But for those who are so inclined, the reception gives them an opportunity to say "thanks" for his service to the church, or for his counseling or friendship.

We suspect there'll be those who express appreciation to Manning for helping them learn to love themselves so they could love others... for helping guide them through encounters in grief... for counseling experiences that ranged, perhaps, from just having a good listener to advice that opened a door to a happier life... for finding a minister who loved them, warts and all... and for reasons we'll never know.

And there will be those who can't express appreciation to a man who didn't fit their mold as a minister... those who resented a man of the cloth having a sense of humor... and for reasons we'll never know.

The reception won't be unique in this sense. What if folks held an appreciation reception for YOU?

Each man must face the age-old decision: To minister or to be ministered unto. We're glad Doug Manning came our way.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—With the condition of the economy today, it is unfortunate that some businesses have resorted to high-pressure sales tactics to entice customers into purchasing goods or services. However, it is a fact that some salespeople are highly trained to manipulate the potential buyer into a sale. Surprisingly, many consumers may not realize that high pressure sales tactics are being used until it is too late.

The Consumer Protection Act provides relief for those persons who have been victims of high pressure sales tactics. Therefore, for the next two weeks, I will be pointing out some commonly used high pressure tactics.

1. The Guilt Trip: The idea of this tactic is to make you feel guilty if you don't buy. Example: "Do you want to deprive your children of the education and knowledge this encyclopedia could give them?"

2. Baffle You With Statistics: In many instances the salesperson will bombard you with statistics which in some cases are not accurate, or are given too quickly to comprehend.

Example: The government surveyed thousands of people during their productive years and came up with some very accurate figures:

a) Out of 100 people who reach retirement ONLY ONE will be "well to do". That means that he will have sufficient money to enjoy life with no outside help.

b) Out of 100 people, 4 will have an income maybe from stock in their company or from rental property.

c) Out of 100 people, 3 will have to keep on working—not because they want to but because they have to.

All in all the totals look like this; 92 out of 100 will either be dependent on their children, dead or dead broke. When we think of America being a land of opportunity it is a shame. That is why you should invest in this retirement plan TODAY!

3. Your Last Chance: A salesperson may convince you to make a hasty decision by saying to you, "this is the last one" or "this is the last time it will be offered at this price."

Example: "You'll get a $500 discount tonight only. If you don't purchase this vacation plan tonight, the discount will never be offered again."

4. Jump On The Band Wagon: Often a salesperson will encourage you to buy because everyone else is.

Example: "Your neighbor just bought one" or "everybody" who's anybody is buying this product."

5. The Assumption: You may notice during a sales presentation that the salesperson talks as if you have already agreed to buy. Consequently, by relating to you in a positive manner, the salesperson attempts to manipulate you into signing a contract.

Example: After you complete what you thought was only a questionnaire and listening to a presentation, a slick salesperson may say, "Now if you will just approve this information as being complete and correct to the best of your knowledge we will get client money to enjoy life with your plan started today."

These are just a few of the high pressure sales techniques used by some businesses. The salesperson who uses them is only interested in making a fast buck by saying whatever is necessary to get you to buy.

Next week, I will discuss techniques you as a consumer can use to avoid being pressured into a sale.

The Penultimate Word

EFFICIENCY

A packing house gets everything out of a pig except the squeal. Nothing is wasted. I toured a sugarcane mill in Hawaii and thought I was seeing the ultimate in no-waste efficiency. The mud, water and waste are recycled. The final waste product is burned to create the steam to run the plant. The ashes are then put back on the fields.

Last week I saw efficiency that makes a packing house or a sugar mill look wasteful. I went to Las Vegas. Those guys have it down to a science. They get everything including the squeal. They must have used giant computers to devise the system. They now have it so well organized that if a nickel lands in Las Vegas it is doomed.

You step off a plane into a world of slot machines. If you line up for a show you walk by slots every step of the way. The only place there are no slots is in your room and they are working on that.

At breakfast you can play Keno... that is Bingo without the hollaring. Just outside the restaurant there is a casino. Matter of fact, just outside every door in Vegas is a casino.

In case they miss a trick or two at the tables, they get the rest in tips. This too is computerized efficiency. A bellboy meets your cab. That is a tip of course, but the bellboy just works efficiency. After you have checked in you go to the bell captain to arrange for your luggage to be sent to your room... another tip. A different bellboy brings the luggage to the room. Three tips just getting from the cab (which you tipped) to the room.

If you happen to use the public restroom you can use the facilities free. But if you wash your hands then you must tip the attendant. I never did figure out what the attendant did but I tipped him. Maybe you tip him to keep him from doing something.

If you go to a show the maitre d' must be tipped unless you want a seat in the parking lot. The assistant maitre d' who shows you to your table must be tipped and the waiter who serves you. My wife passed me the salt and I gave her a dollar.

This money grabbing machine works so well it becomes hypnotic. While waiting for our plane out of the place, a touring choir from Chicago arrived. They gathered in the concourse to sing a greeting. I gave every one of them a dollar.

Water, Water Everywhere...

Irrigated crop acreage has almost tripled in the last three decades, and now consumes more than 80 percent of all our nation's water.

The National Society of Professional Engineers computes that we are over-using underground water by 26 percent. That means for every 100 gallons we take out, only 74 gallons are returned.

It has prospered our agriculture like none other in the world.

But the water table is already so low that in places it no longer pays to pump it to the surface.

Those areas are returning to less productive dry-land farming or to rangeland.

We are inhibited in making synthetic fuels from shale and coal because of the higher and higher cost of bringing up deep water.

Competition between farmers and industry is bidding water prices higher.

In central Utah, farmers are offered by industry $1,750 for every acre-foot of water they are willing to sell from the Sevier River—five times the going rate.

The overuse of water wells in Central California is sucking in salt water from the Pacific; unusable for man, beast or farm crops.

New York's Mayor Koch warns of a "calamity" unless New Yorkers conserve their dwindling supply.

Pennsylvania municipalities are rationing water.

Your own water bill is high and going higher.

The Water Resources Council believes this to be our nation's most serious long-range problem and that we should start now do to whatever we have to do.

It's difficult to generate much anxiety over a water shortage while much of our nation has been suffering springtime flooding.

Maybe it's a proper subject for July.

America, from Northern Nebraska all the way down to Northern Texas, is semi-arid—except that those 225,000 square miles are sitting on top of an underground lake. It's called the Ogallala Aquifer.

It grows 25 percent of our nation's cotton, 38.5 percent of our grain sorghum, 16 percent of our wheat and 13 percent of our nation's corn.

Also, 40 percent of all grain-fed cattle are fattened in this area.

But all that agriculture is sucking so much water from the ground that the Ogallala water table is falling three feet a year; within 40 years we could go dry.

Eighty-five percent of all the water consumed in the United States is consumed by 17 Western states.

Michigan's Governor Milliken says, "Without doubt, the water crisis of the next 20 years will rival the oil crisis of the 1970s."

Voice of Business

Witch Doctor

WASHINGTON — The inclination among most members of Congress to raise taxes in a recession reminds me of the witch doctor who tried to cure a skin rash by boiling the patient in oil.

In fact, the current budget deficit is like a rash—a very visible and troublesome sign of deeper ailments. In the case of our economy, those ailments which caused the deficit problem are too little economic growth and too much government growth.

The cure prescribed by much of official Washington is similar to that of our friendly witch doctor: Attack a deficit caused by runaway federal spending by further inhibiting economic growth with major tax hikes and by increasing spending. If this medicine doesn't make sense to you, then I wish you'd let your "doctors" in Washington know!

Meanwhile, as the atmosphere of doom and gloom thickens on Capitol Hill, the natural recuperative powers of our economy continue to work their magic. The indicators are there for everyone to see, if only our legislators and media wise men would start looking:

—Employment increased by 777,000 in May, exceeding the 100-million mark for the first time this year.

—The Department of Labor reports that 45.2 percent of 172 private non-agricultural industries surveyed in May indicated employment increases for the month. This is the best showing since September.

—The index of leading economic indicators increased by eight-tenths of one percent in April, the first increase in a year in an index designed to predict future economic performance.

—Department store sales in May were up 3.3 percent, after allowing for inflation.

—May was also a good month for the three major U.S. automakers. Together, their sales were up 12 percent from May 1981 and 15 percent above April's performance.

—Spending for research and development, which is so critical to our hopes of increasing productivity, will rise 17 percent in 1982, following a 16 percent rise in 1981.

This is just one example of the positive trends produced by those parts of last year's tax cut package that have already taken effect. Just wait until July when the economy gets its first really substantial dose of tax relief!

—Retail sales were going up a strong 1.5 percent in May, the second consecutive monthly gain.

—Major economic forecasters are now predicting that the decline in oil prices will add as much as $20 billion to 1982 Gross National Product. This would result in about 700,000 jobs if the typical GNP-employment relationship holds.

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The 1984 Democratic National Convention is more than two years away, but party professionals are already preoccupied with the selection of their next presidential nominee.

As has been the case for more than a decade, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is at the center of much of their thinking.

But Kennedy, who has been a candidate or a potential candidate for the nomination three times, is beginning to look to some of the professionals like a perennial — almost a Democratic Harold Stassen. Many of them are convinced that Kennedy cannot defeat the Republican nominee.

Nevertheless, most of the recent polls, including some commissioned by the Democrats themselves, have shown that Kennedy is the overwhelming choice of the party's rank and file.

Moreover, these polls have shown Kennedy running better than other Democrats, including former Vice President Walter Mondale, against such Republican opponents as President Reagan, Vice President George Bush and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

Bootleg Philosopher

Economists

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek reviews the economic situation this week, somewhat.

Dear editor: Economists are like the TV weatherman who every night for a solid year predicts rain tomorrow, and then on December 31 checks his score and announces that not a rain fell that year that he didn't accurately predict.

Economists have been predicting an upturn in business sometime during the next quarter and if they don't run out of quarters are bound to hit it right sometime before the turn of the century.

Some of them however are getting smarter. Instead of flatly predicting an upturn they're saying "we're poised" for one, hoping somebody won't mention that a man poised on the edge of a tall building can fall either way.

The problem of high interest rates is one of the most bothersome problems economists are tackling. Some say high interest rates are caused by the deficit and others say the deficit is caused by high interest rates.

Not only are high interest rates hurting home buyers, they're hurting foreign countries. Just as a home buyer can't pay 17 percent interest, how can you run a country if you pay Uncle Sam that steep a rate on your loan?

It should be pointed out that economists however are making progress. Instead of telling us why interest rates are high and how they can be brought down, Chief White House economist Murray L. Weidenbaum told a congressional committee that "we have no truly satisfying account of why interest rates have remained so high."

No answer to a problem I guess can be called better than having a wrong answer. I've got a lot of problems out here on this farm but the answer to them involved work and like Washington I'd rather wring my hands than plow into them.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

THOUGHTS

Monday

"Double heart" seems an odd expression, but it is similar to "two-faced."

"They speak vanity every one with his neighbor; with flattering lips and with a double heart do they speak." — Ps. 12:2

Tuesday

It is usually better not to "speak your mind" and express all your thoughts as you may have to explain some of them or even apologize.

"A fool uttereth all his mind: but a wise man keepeth it in till afterwards." — Prov. 29:11

Wednesday

There is little mention in the Bible of activities of children. Zechariah does mention the playing of children in the streets in his description of the restoration of Jerusalem.

"And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." — Zech. 8:5

Thursday

Sparrows were sold and eaten in biblical times. Matthew quotes the price as two for a farthing, and Luke, five for two farthings. It must have taken many to make a meal.

"Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God... ye are of more value than many sparrows." — Luke 12:6-7

Friday

Ezekiel, prophesying the judgment that is to fall on Israel, uses the expression "weak as water." He is evidently referring to water as a drink compared with wine and strong drinks.

"All hands shall be feeble, and all knees shall be weak as water." — Ezek. 7:17

Saturday

We say "smoother than oil." But at least in one place in the Bible the expression "smoother than butter" is used.

"The words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart: his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords." — Ps. 55:21

Sunday

The companions we have at a meal and the feelings we have toward them are more important than the food itself.

"Better is a dish of vegetables where love is, than a fattened ox and hatred therewith." — Prov. 15:17 (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

75 YEARS AGO

Hans Helland, chief engineer of the Panhandle Short Line Railroad, in conversation with a Brand representative this week, gave out some important railroad news. He stated that his surveying corps had passed through Castro county and were now working south of the new townsite of Norfleet in Hale county, and would finish the survey to Stanton, on the Texas and Pacific, in three or four weeks.

50 YEARS AGO

Pre-school age examinations given to 90 children, 35 doses of toxoid administered, 22 Schick tests held, and two smallpox vaccinations given was the record of the work done last week by the county health service, in caring for the tots of Deaf Smith County.

Very few changes in personnel are expected to occur July 3 when Armour and Company officially take over the Wilson Beef and Lamb plant here, according to a spokesman at the Wilson Denver, Colo. office.

Once again, Hereford was hounded by a three-day series of bad weather, yielding less moisture and more violence than last week's episode.

Wednesday night two tornadoes were sighted and confirmed by the local sheriff's office. The office watched clouds for three straight nights, Wednesday through Friday.

The Democratic leadership might have been successful in forcing a separate vote on various spending cuts requested by President Reagan if they had preserved the bill's original wording, says the chairman of the conservative coalition that provided the swing votes.

O.G. (Speedy) Nieman, publisher of the Hereford Brand, was elected president of the Texas Press Association at its annual summer convention here Saturday.

Nieman succeeds James Roberts of Andrews as head of the statewide organization. With more than 550 weekly and daily newspapers among its membership, the TPA is the world's largest state press association.

A Price Is Paid
For Convenience

BY: LOUISE WALKER

County Extension Agent

Here is an article we found that we thought you might enjoy:

Convenience foods have been described as "built-in-maid service." Somewhere along the way - from the farm to your table - someone has done either part or all of the work of getting your food ready to eat.

Because of increased consumer income and new processing, handling and storage techniques, many more services are performed in the marketing process instead of in the home.

Convenience foods are not new - some have been around for years. Soups, canned fruit and vegetables, ready baked breads, and cookies and crackers are long-familiar favorites. However, a whole new crop of convenience foods has been developed in recent years.

Is having too little time one of your biggest problems in meal preparation? Do you dislike certain routine tasks, such as cleaning chicken parts or peeling onions? Is your family one that enjoys special treats, such as strawberries in January or the gourmet touch of a sauce from a famous restaurant?

The growing popularity of convenience foods during the past twenty years has helped to give solutions to these problems. These labor - saving and time - saving foods include such diverse items as frozen concentrated orange juice, instant coffee, dehydrated potatoes, and packaged cake mixes.

Also, more recently, we have seen various vegetable combinations in sauces and packaged in a boil-in-the-bag pouch, many foreign foods, and dehydrated or frozen casserole dishes.

ARE THEY EXPENSIVE? Meals prepared from convenience foods may cost less or they may cost far more per serving than foods prepared from basic home recipes.

Whether a convenience food costs more or less than its homemade counterpart will depend on several things, such as:

1. The seasonableness of the product and the time of year when it is purchased.
2. The bulkiness of the convenience food and the cost of shipping and handling.
3. The cost of the equipment, labor, and ingredients involved in getting the product into market form.
4. The kind of packaging. Novelty packages or individual units assembled in a larger package usually add to the cost.

5. The perishability of the product.
6. The volume of the product that is purchased.

In a study conducted by Economics Research and Agricultural Research Service of USDA to evaluate cost, volume of sales, home preparation time and use of fuel, and eating quality of selected convenience foods and their home prepared counterparts - costs were computed for 295 foods - 107 were either home - prepared or fresh foods and 188 were convenience foods of which 162 have a home - prepared or fresh counterpart.

Of the 162 convenience foods studied, only 36 percent had a cost per serving lower than their prepared or fresh counterpart. Only 8 of 43 "new generation" convenience foods were less expensive than similar products prepared from home recipes.

The cost of convenience is often a factor in the decision to buy a convenience food or to prepare the product from scratch. However, you may also want to consider factors such as nutritive value, family preferences, culinary skills, and time and equipment available for food preparation.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Kid's Day Out
Begins July 6

The United Methodist Church is offering a new program called "Kid's Day Out," formerly known as "Mother's Day Out," beginning Tuesday, July 6 at the church.

The program, which will include music time, story time, and play activities, will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Children may attend one half day, one entire day, or both days each week.

Children age six months to six years may participate. Reservations are required. If interested, call 364-7666 or 364-2919.

Be aware of-and alert for factors that may cause accidents, such as improper storage of matches and lighters. Aware and alert parents are a major force in preventing child injuries due to accidents, she says.

Cisneros Exhibit

A special exhibit of pen-and-ink drawings by El Paso artist Jose Cisneros will be on display from July 4 through July 31 at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon. "Hacendado," above, is one of over 100 drawings which make up the collection, entitled "Riders of the Borderlands."

Museum Exhibit Begins

From July 4 through July 31 the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon will display an exhibit of pen-and-ink drawings by El Paso artist Jose Cisneros.

The exhibit, entitled "Riders of the Borderlands," presents over 100 of Cisneros' drawings of men, women, and horses depicting the pageantry and picturesqueness of over four hundred years of Borderlands history.

Jose Cisneros is a product of the Mexico-United States Borderlands, a fusion of two cultures and dual heritages.

Born April 10, 1910, in the State of Durango, he moved in 1918 with his family to Dorado in Cihauahua. An uncle took Jose to Valle de Allende, where he began his education.

In 1925, Cisneros' family came north to Juarez, where at fifteen Jose enrolled in the Lydia Patterson Institute in El Paso. He attended school there for the next three and one half years to acquire his formal education. In 1927, Cisneros emigrated to the United States, and in 1934 he established residence in El Paso.

As a result of his biculturalism, he sees the Anglo-Saxon influence as the source of energy in the United States and the Spanish heritage as the source of vitality in Mexico. From Europe he sees the culture of the Southwest stemming from two separate but intertwining sources. To Cisneros, the Spanish Borderlands represent the land on both sides of the Rio Grande, not just the border itself.

Cisneros' pictures hang in homes from New York to San Francisco, and in Spain, Italy and Mexico. In 1969, he was the fourth recipient of a residence fellowship given by the University of Texas at Austin.

Cisneros' "Riders" project took over five years to com-

Love, Adventure Featured In Novels

BY DIANNE PIERSON

County Librarian

Novels of love and adventure head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. Belva Plain, author of "Evergreen" and "Random Winds," heads the list of new books with "Eden Burning." Setting "Eden Burning" against the lush background of the island of St. Felice, Belva Plain has turned her storytelling magic to the gracious island estate Eleuthera and the flamboyant, complex family that has owned the estate for over 300 years.

There is Francis, the young scion of the family, who was raised amid opulence and privilege in New York City, but who knows he must return to the island - his destiny. There is Marjorie, his beautiful socialite wife, who is growing increasingly restless in the stagnant island culture.

There is also Patrick, the fiery black minister of the island, and Kate, the spirited editor of the local newspaper. And through it all there's Tee, the woman whose one act of folly changed her life, and shaped the lives of all around her.

Violence, political upheaval, and clandestine love provide the backdrop for this sweeping romantic saga by one of the very best storytellers. "Eden Burning" is a novel that Belva Plain fans everywhere will treasure.

"An Important Family" by Dorothy Eden also heads the list of new books. Eden, the best-selling author of "The American Heiress," and "The Vines Of Yarrabee," returns to her own roots, the New Zealand mountains, for this masterful story of an aristocratic family pioneering in a strange land and the beautiful young woman who shares her adventure.

Sir John Devenish, a member of the landed gentry, decides to leave his comfortable life and to move his family some 11,000 miles away to the Canterbury Colonies. The members of his family reluctantly accompany Sir John on his journey. He hires young Kate to look after his wife and daughter on the voyage and in the untamed ed land.

In "An Important Family," Dorothy Eden will again enthrall her readers with a superbly realized setting, consummate storytelling and unforgettable characters. It is a magnificent story from the world "down under."

Other new books available this week at the library are "Laser: Supertool of The 1980s" by Jeff Hecht and Dick Teresi, "Life on earth" by David Attenborough, and "Solo Practice: A Woman Surgeon's Story" by Elizabeth Morgan, M.D., author of "The Making of a Woman Surgeon."

Economic Rainbow Dimmer, But Still Bright

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

The gold at the Texas end of the nation's economic rainbow is tarnished slightly by layoffs, a slightly increasing unemployment rate in some areas and a mild slowing of growth.

But the experts say Texas' economy is still strong, healthy and may be poised for another surge forward.

"I think we're starting into a boom period," said a San Antonio economist.

Said a Houston expert: "The outlook is exceedingly bright for the rest of the century."

Texas, as a whole, has been touched lightly, so far, by the general national recession. But it has taken some locally severe bumps, scrapes and bruises.

The "oil patch" has been staggered by a severe cutback in drilling, a decline in refinery capacity and a dramatic reduction in demand for oil field equipment. Experts are predicting that some companies may fold before the picture improves. Dozens of oil-related businesses have experienced layoffs and more are predicted.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area has been stunned by the loss of Braniff International. About 4,500 workers lost their jobs when the airline stopped operations on May 12. There also have been layoffs in some manufacturing firms.

Unemployment rates have risen slightly in a number of areas of the state and may get worse. Some experts are predicting rates as high as seven percent this summer in Houston and Dallas, the state's economic powerhouses, because of seasonal trends.

Statewide, the Texas Employment Commission said that the April figures, the latest available, show an unemployment rate of 5.9 percent, compared with 4.3 for the same period of 1981. Only four major labor markets, Amarillo, Austin, Odessa and McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg, showed improved employment pictures for April.

But these problems, according to the experts, are but minor bumps on a high-speed Texas economic highway into the future.

Economists making predictions nearly all agree that Texas is the place to be no matter what the national economy does.

"Texas is usually the last to feel a recession, is affected the least and is the first to recover," said a Houston economist.

Nat Eisenberger, head of the respected Economic Advisory Services firm of Houston, calls Texas "the strongest regional economy in the country."

The reason, he says, is a superior "mix" of economic sectors. The state's economy is based on five sectors — energy, high technology, service and finance, old line industry and agriculture. The first three are expected to be the major growth industries for the rest of the century.

"It just so happens that Texas is strong in all three," said Eisenberger.

In addition, said the economist, Texas has more cities over 100,000 in population than any other state, giving a great capacity for industrial and market growth. The state, though classified as 80 percent urban, has vast areas for expansion. And, lastly, the state has a distinct "pro-business" attitude with low taxes and a strong tradition of encouraging expansion.

"The future is extremely bright, no matter how it looks in the near term," said Eisenberger.

Here's a state round up of the Texas economy:

HOUSTON: An abrupt decline in drilling is being felt strongly now in the oil field equipment and services industry. Layoffs are common and production is being cut back across the board.

Refinery workers have been laid off as capacity has dropped to 60 percent.

Part of the problem stems from an over-optimism in the oil business, said C. A. Kasdorf, manager of economic research at the Houston Chamber of Commerce.

Oil field service companies, enjoying a boom in 1981, geared up for high production. When drilling suddenly dropped by 35 percent early this year, said Kasdorf, the companies "were caught by surprise."

This added to an existing "energy recession" caused by a decline in demand, unstable prices and the uncertainty about gas decontrol.

All of these negative factors may disappear next year, said Kasdorf, and drilling activity could resume it hot pace.

Housing starts in Houston continue strong, despite the high interest rates, with the city expected to lead the nation in housing starts for the eighth straight year. Non-residential construction again passed $1 billion dollars for the year and is 38 percent of the pace for 1981.

Unemployment in Houston, however, was 5.6 percent for May and may get to "six or seven percent," said

Kasdorf, in June and July because of seasonal effects. One reason for this, he said, is that many people moving to Houston from out of state find themselves "mismatched in skills" for the Houston jobs. Retail and auto sales continue strong, but not at the pace of last year.

DALLAS-FORT WORTH:

Unemployment in May surged to 5.7 percent, an 11-month high, and probably will get worse, according to Texas Employment Commission labor analyst Don Johnstone.

"Growth of the local economy, although continuing, is weak compared to that of the last few years," he said. "Our unemployment is a reflection of what's going on in the national economy."

The May employment figures don't reflect the impact of the Braniff demise and Johnstone said the figures would have topped 6 percent if the unemployed airline workers were included.

Several companies, among them Bell Helicopter, Texas Instruments, Mostek Corp., Halliburton Co. and Dresser Industries, have had recent layoffs.

Economists, however, believe the Dallas-Fort Worth area is well-positioned to rapidly recover with any pick-up in the national economy. Defense spending and increased drilling will have a significant impact, it's believed.

SAN ANTONIO:

The Alamo City seems to be on its way out of the recession, according to Melinda Schultz, an economic analyst for the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce.

"All the figures are very positive," she said. "The indicators are really more positive than last month. The figures indicate we're doing well except for residential construction and related things such as utility connections."

She said San Antonio escaped major effects of the national recession because of a diversified economy and is now looking toward a quickening economic pace.

"I think we're starting into a boom period," she said.

ABILENE:

Unemployment rose in Abilene in May, primarily from layoffs in the oil industry. The rate increased from the 4 percent of April to 4.8 percent.

Diane Duncan, a TEC official in Austin, said the decline is statewide.

"It doesn't take a whole lot of layoffs in major industries to reflect a decrease in employment, especially in smaller areas," she said.

Ann Carman of the TEC office in Abilene said the rate was affected by the April layoff of 400 employees of Nucorp Supply Inc. The firm laid off another 200 early this month. She said Abilene may experience other layoffs this month.

EL PASO:

Unemployment improved in El Paso in May, but the rate is still far above the state average. TEC officials in El Paso said the rate dropped in May to 10.4, just a bit below the 10.5 percent of April.

Elke Schabel of the city's chamber of commerce said the unemployment figures reflect the large number of unskilled workers in the El Paso area, and not the effects of major layoffs.

On the bright side, she said, there have been 73 new business open in El Paso since January, 1981, including a new Atari plant that will hire 600 workers. She said she expects more growth, especially in the electronics field.

Retail sales, thanks to Mexican shoppers, she said, are up compared with the same time for 1981.

RIO GRANDE VALLEY:

Unemployment in the Valley is running at about 13 percent, but such figures are not unusual for the area and may even be on the low side because migrant workers now are harvesting crops in the North and Midwest. Building in the Padre Island resort area is booming. Officials estimate building permits for the area are expected to reach $75 to $80 million this year, about $10 million more than in 1981. Marathon LeTourneau, an offshore drilling rig firm, has laid off 100 workers at the Port of Brownsville.

AMARILLO

Amarillo reported a 4.2 percent unemployment rate for May, which Chamber of Commerce spokesman Jim Eubanks said was the lowest for any metropolitan area in Texas.

"For June it will be higher because we are having some layoffs," he said. ASARCO, which has a smelter here, is laying off about 50 of its 850-man work force, Eubanks said. Bell Helicopter and Halliburton, an oil field service firm, also had some employee cutbacks.

"Even with all that, our unemployment and our layoffs have been very, very small, percentage-wise. Our economy is based on agriculture, oil and gas, manufacturing and distribution. One counterbalances the other for a stable economy."

Bankruptcy Judge Rules

Braniff Allowed Terminal Control

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Braniff International Chairman Howard Putnam says the basic ingredients in an airline are facilities, aircraft and landing slots.

The Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport had sought to evict Braniff from its facilities, but U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge John Flowers ruled Friday that the grounded airline could keep control of its terminal at the sprawling airport.

The ruling allows Braniff to keep "the three prongs" it needs to discuss joint operating agreements with other airlines, said Putnam.

"Had we not retained our gates, we would have had no chance at reorganization," said Putnam. "If (Flowers) said no, I'd be looking for a new job."

Putnam and his chief financial officer, M. Philip Guthrie, disclosed in testimony during the hearing that Braniff was discussing a $50 million joint operating agreement with eight airlines, including Pan American World Airways.

Braniff still has $15 million in cash to contribute to the initial cost of putting Braniff's planes back on Braniff's old routes, Putnam said.

"I have initiated the contact with every other airline and I have talked to the chief executive officer of every other airline. They're all interested," Putnam said of the eight airlines outside the courtroom.

But Putnam cautioned that the odds were still against Braniff, and if the airline did find a way to reorganize, it would fly under a different name.

Flowers made his ruling within minutes of the conclusion of attorneys' arguments late Friday afternoon.

While the judge barred the airport from evicting Braniff from its terminal at DFW Airport, he also said the airline must pay rent, lease half of its terminal space to other airlines within 45 days, and make progress toward reorganization within 90 days.

Flowers, who heard four days of testimony, said that after 90 days the airport could file papers again to evict Braniff, but a Braniff reorganization of Braniff was "at least possible" and that the airline deserved more time.

Robert Hoffman, attorney for the Dallas-Fort Worth airport, declined to comment except to say the short-term provision of the ruling "showed some concern by the court of airport's interest."

The airport filed its petition to evict Braniff on May 24, 12 days after the financially strapped airline grounded all its flights.

Guthrie testified that the joint operational scheme was in the best interest of Braniff, its creditors and the community because if the airline liquidated its assets, creditors would receive "ten cents on the dollar, if anything."

Braniff also announced that one branch of the troubled airline, Braniff Realty Company, filed reorganization papers Friday to pay unsecured creditors in full. Secured creditors would be reimbursed by giving them $10.6 million in cash and promissory notes and nine Braniff aircraft.

Jimmy Chagra, 39, and Harrelson, 43, a convicted contract killer, have been charged with the murder of Wood, who was shot to death on May 29, 1979, in San Antonio. Conviction on the charge carries a mandatory life in prison sentence.

Grand jurors accused Jimmy Chagra of paying Harrelson $250,000 to kill Wood so that the judge could not preside over his pending narcotics trial.

Hart said the subject of Wood's killing came up during "discussions about what Charles Harrelson and members of his family could testify to about the payoff and related matters, and about the killing of Harrelson and members of his family."

Hereford's Ken Cosper has become the second member of the 1981 Herd to be named to play in the Greenbelt Bowl All-Star football game in Childress Aug. 6. Cosper, a linebacker - center, was selected to the team this week. He joins teammate Matt Collier, a defensive back, on the elite team.

Cosper's selection was the third such honor for a member of the Herd's state semifinalist team. Aubrey Richburg, a defensive end-offensive guard, was selected to play in the Oil Bowl in Wichita Falls, Aug. 7.

Wimby Fans Persevering

By Will Grimsley AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — He was the image of the English gentleman, complete with checkered cloth hat, tweed jacket and a lighted pipe. And from the covered portal of the northeast stands, he watched calmly as steady rain beat down on the tarpaulin-covered tennis courts at Wimbledon.

"Sorry, dear," he said to a slender, dark-eyed girl at his elbow. "Next year, maybe."

It was an empty, disappointing day for Ian Hopper of Norfolk and his grand daughter, Gabriela, who had been looking forward to this occasion for a year.

Hopper had ordered the precious tickets weeks ago, paying the Center Court price of eight pounds ($14.40) for each only to have the Friday program washed out until after 6 p.m. When he and Gabriela were on their way back to Norfolk.

"I'm a mushroom farmer," Hopper said, "So is my son,

Gabby's father, who lives in Diss. I had to get up well before dawn today and take a train to Diss, about 70 miles away, to pick up Gabby and then continue on to London.

"The entire trip from Norfolk is 128 miles."

Under questioning, Hopper acknowledged that the train ride was only part of the overall expense and frustration.

"The train fare for both of us, round trip, was 40 pounds ($71.60). Because of the underground strike in London, we ordered a taxicab to meet us at the train station and pick us up at the stadium at 6 p.m."

"That was another 40 pounds."

One of the most distressing factors, insofar as the Hoppers were concerned, was the fact that Wimbledon has no such thing as a raincheck. They were not only out the $28.80 they'd paid for tickets, but had no recourse to purchase Center Court tickets for any other day this year.

Center Court is a solid sellout.

Asked if he wasn't chagrined over such a policy, Hopper shrugged and smiled:

"Why should I be?" He replied. "What else, can Wimbledon do? The tickets are all sold for the other days."

Wimbledon tennis fans are the most patient and persevering in sports.

"What would happen," one American journalist asked another, "if people went to an event in America, didn't see a thing and didn't get their money back?"

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Quintin Dailey, a college basketball star who pleaded guilty to assaulting a student nurse in her dormitory room, was sentenced to three years probation.

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — Former Washington Redskins running back Larry Brown has been ordered to pay $2 to a Silver Spring, Md., man, whom he struck outside a bar three years ago.

Brutal Lesson Got Ayala Going

AN AP Sports Analysis By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

When Tony Ayala Jr. was five, his father brought him to the San Fernando Gym in San Antonio and put him in the ring against a nine-year-old.

The lesson was brutal, but to the point.

"I got whipped pretty bad but I've been fighting and training ever since," he said.

Now, the 19-year-old El Torito does the flogging.

He scored 60 knockouts in 148 amateur bouts with his reckless, charging style. Eight times wild abandon cost him victories.

In 1979, he was the National Golden Gloves champion.

His mauling and brawling style had earned him professional 19 victories and no defeats going into Saturday night's junior middleweight fight against Curtis (the Razor) Ramsey in Fort Worth.

Ayala is so good he has problems getting opponents. Ramsey, for example, was the third choice for the bout.

Doug Demming, the original foe, called in overweight, and second sub Frank Medina was told to go home by promoter Lester Bedford after an unimpressive workout.

They call Ayala "The Baby Bull," but the way he attacks and closes it should be "The Baby Bulldog."

The scene: Last June, the Houston Astrodome, Ayala on the Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns undercard.

(The promoters' ticket sales soared the day they signed the popular Ayala to fight hometown hero Jerry Cheatum.)

Round after round Ayala waded into Cheatum, taking and giving punches with undisguised relish.

In the sixth round, Cheata went down and stayed there. Ayala had pounded another victim into rubble.

Ayala boxes like Gen. Patton fought wars. Keep attacking until you win or run out of gas.

Mario Maldonado decked Ayala twice in the first round of a fight last year. Two rounds later Ayala knocked Maldonado out, thanks to paralyzing body blows.

Ayala has gone 10 rounds just once in his professional career, decisioning Nicanor Comacho last August.

Tony Ayala Sr., 46, a boxing instructor for the Texas Parks and Recreation Dept., raised his sons to fight.

His oldest, Mike, is the world's No. 1-ranked 122-pounder.

Sammy was once rated in the top 10 of junior welterweights.

The younger Ayala, Paulie, 13, is 38-2 as an amateur.

The elder Ayala used to pay neighborhood kids 25 cents to get into the ring with his boys to give them experience.

Ayala Jr. carried his fistic training too far in 1978.

He beat up a woman at a drive-in theater when he was 15.

He eventually was placed on probation for 10 years and the woman got a $40,000 settlement.

Since then Ayala has curbed his temper outside the ring and handles himself with poise in interviews.

"If you get in my way inside the ring you are my enemy," said Ayala Jr. "But I like the home life when I'm not boxing. I just bought a $135,000 house in San Antonio."

Ayala Jr. is now ranked third in his division by Ring Magazine, the World Boxing Council, and the World Boxing Association.

Despite the high rankings, Ayala Jr. can't get a title fight.

"Nobody wants to get in the ring with Tony but the champions can't dodge him much longer," said Ayala Sr. "He'll be ranked No. 1 by the end of this year, then they will have to fight him."

Ayala Jr. is what the boxing experts call a "gut" fighter, one who throws techniques and personal safety aside to risk just one solid punch.

Upstarts Gone, Traditional Powers Left in World Cup

By RICHARD BOUDREAU Associated Press Writer

MADRID (AP) — The upstarts who made it the biggest soccer championship ever have fallen from the World Cup. From now on it's a slugout among the sport's traditional powers, the Europeans and South Americans.

Algeria, the biggest surprise of the 24-nation first round and the last outsider in the running, watched in frustration Friday as West Germany beat Austria 1-0. It ensured the advancement of both, eliminated the Algerians on goal difference and prompted charges of impropriety.

The crowd at Gijon jeered, shouted "fix" and tried to storm the field in protest. The Algerians needed an Austrian victory, a draw or a topside West German victory to advance to the 12-team second round.

After Horst Hrubesch's 10th minute header gave West Germany a 1-0 lead, the game's pace slowed abruptly. Both sides maneuvered in midfield, preserving a mutually suitable result.

Benali Sekkal, president of the Algerian Soccer Federation attended the game and called it "scandalous and immoral." He demanded disqualification of both teams, but there was no formal response by the Federation of International Football.

England, already qualified for Round Two, beat Kuwait 1-0 on the final day of the opening round, knocking the Kuwaitis out and enabling France to move up. Northern Ireland beat Spain 1-0, lifting both into the second round and sending Yugoslavia home.

Spaniards who packed Seville's 47,500-seat stadium alternately cheered and jeered their team. Then they poured into the streets for an all-night celebration of its achievement — backing into the second round ahead of Yugoslavia on goal difference and avoiding the first early elimination of a home team in World Cup history.

Spain joins England and West Germany, perhaps the best European teams, in Group B in the same second round.

A far weaker threesome — Austria, France and Northern Ireland — is in Group D.

Groups B and D open round-robin play Monday in Madrid while Groups A and C, filled earlier this week, play in Barcelona. The two Madrid group winners will meet in one semifinal and the two Barcelona winners in the other, setting up a July 11 final.

Cup holder Argentina and tournament favorite Brazil ended up in Group C with Italy. European dark horses Belgium, Poland and the Soviet Union make up Group A.

Fired Up Yankees Clobber Indians, 11-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Given another of Steinbrenner's pep talks in a closed-door meeting Friday night, the slumping Yankees came alive and clobbered the Cleveland Indians 11-3.

"The talk did it, all right," said Roy Smalley, who hit a grand slam homer against the Indians.

Smalley also had a talk with batting coach Joe Pepitone that seemed to help him personally, too.

"I talked with him before the game about some technical stuff," he said. "I hadn't been keeping my weight back well."

None of the Yankees was willing to discuss the meeting with Steinbrenner, although relief star Rich Gossage called it "a very positive meeting. There was no ranting or raving. It was pretty much cut and dried, although some very to-the-point things were said. It was pretty much 'let's get our act together and go.'"

The Yankees, who had been going through a lengthy scoring drought of late, came through with 13 hits which included two doubles, a single and two RBI by Oscar Gamble, and three singles, a double and a sacrifice fly by Dave Winfield for his first four-hit game as a Yankee.

Tommy John, 5-6, was the winner with ninth-inning relief help from Dave LaRoche, scattering seven hits in eight innings. It was the first victory in exactly one month for the veteran left-hander.

Meanwhile, the Yankees put the game away early, tagging Barker, 8-4, for three runs in the second inning and five in the third.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Milwaukee 9, Boston 3; Baltimore 5, Detroit 2; Oakland 6, Texas 2; Seattle 1, Chicago 0 and Kansas City 8, California 6 in 10 innings. Rain postponed the Minnesota-Toronto game.

Brewers 9, Red Sox 3
Cecil Cooper and Gorman Thomas each hit two-run homers as Milwaukee blasted 16 hits to bury Boston. Cooper also had a pair of singles while driving in three runs and scoring two.

Reliever Jim Slaton allowed six hits and one run over the final five innings, boosting his record to 5-1 to go along with four saves in 19 appearances.

Orioles 5, Tigers 2
Terry Crowley and Cal Ripken Jr. drove in runs with two-out singles as Baltimore snapped a sixth-inning tie and went on to defeat Detroit.

Ken Singleton walked with one out in the Baltimore sixth and took second as Eddie Murray grounded out. Crowley singled for the third hit off Dan Petry, 6-5, took second on the throw home and scored on Ripken's single to give Baltimore a 4-2 lead.

Mike Ivie drove in both Detroit runs off Mike Flanagan, 6-5, who had two innings of relief help from Tim Stoddard. Ivie homered in the second and his RBI single, following hits by Lance Parrish and Larry Herndon, tied the score 2-2 in the sixth.

Stoddard gained his sixth save.

A's 6, Rangers 2
Dwayne Murphy's two-run double keyed a five-run fifth inning and Steve McCatty won his first game since returning from the 21-day disabled list as Oakland beat Texas.

The A's chased Frank Tanana, 3-9, with their big fifth inning. Dave Lopes led off with a double and scored on Fred Stanley's single. Rickey Henderson was hit by a pitch before Murphy drove home both runners with his double.

Cliff Johnson knocked in Murphy with a single and later scored after a fielder's choice and pinch-hitter Wayne Gross' single off reliever Dave Schmidt.

McCatty, 5-1, who had been out with tendinitis, left the game with two out in the eighth after giving up two runs on Buddy Bell's RBI single and a wild pitch. Dave Beard finished up, posting his sixth save.

Mariners 1, White Sox 0
Dave Henderson hit a sixth-inning homer and Jim Beattie and two relievers combined on a four-hitter to lead Seattle over Chicago.

Henderson broke up a duel between Chicago's Lamarr Hoyt, 10-5, and Beattie, driving a 2-1 pitch from Hoyt leading off the sixth.

Beattie, 5-4, was in command until giving up a leadoff double to Tony Bernazard in the ninth. Ed Vande Berg and Bill Caudill finished up, with Caudill posting his 12th save.

"I think what I hit was a very good pitch," Henderson said of his game-winning homer. "I was swinging at anything he threw up there. I just happened to be swinging where he threw the ball."

Royals 8, Angels 6
Hal McRae, who hit a two-run double in a three-run first inning, slugged a two-run homer in the 10th to lift Kansas City over California.

McRae's 11th homer of the season followed a one-out single by Amos Otis off Angel

Moreno, 3-7, the fourth California pitcher.

Dan Quisenberry, 4-2, who yielded two runs which tied the game in the eighth inning, was the winner with four innings of relief.

Pitchers Prove Ol' Diz True, Power Wins

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

They'da done ol' Diz proud. In the early 1960s, even as big Detroit left-hander Hank Aguirre was going 2-for-3 — two hits in three years — Dizzy Dean was badgering Pee Wee Reese from across the broadcast booth about the hitting prowess of pitchers.

Friday night, the Pittsburgh Pirates' Don Robinson and Rick Rhoden dispelled any questions of Dizzy's veracity.

Robinson scattered seven hits and slugged a two-run homer in the opener, and Rhoden doubled twice, scored twice and drove in a run on top of claiming the victory in the nightcap as the Pirates swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 4-3 and 9-7.

In the opener, Dale Berra was on second via a single and an error when Robinson came to bat in the eighth inning. Tanner ordered his pitcher to bunt, but when the first attempt failed, the bunt sign was removed.

"I wanted him to bunt the runner over to third, but after that one attempt, I took the bunt sign off," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said. "I figured the way Don swings the bat, he's as capable as anyone of getting the run in."

Robinson, who was hitting .333, said it was "only the second time in four years I've tried to bunt."

Robinson improved his record to 7-3 with the victory, his fourth without a loss at Olympic Stadium in Montreal. Tony Pena had a pair of homers for Pittsburgh in the opener. Rhoden, 4-6, worked the first six innings, and the Pirates survived a five-run Montreal ninth inning that included a three-run pinch homer by Al Oliver. Pittsburgh scored five runs in the seventh, sparked by Willie Stargell's two-run pinch single.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia swept a doubleheader from New York, 1-0 and 5-3, Atlanta downed Cincinnati 5-2. Houston got by Los Angeles 7-5, San Diego edged San Francisco 3-2 and Chicago defeated St. Louis 5-3.

Phils 1-5, Mets 0-3

Four Philadelphia pitchers held New York to nine hits total to make a clean sweep of their twilight doubleheader. Dick Ruthven, 6-5, pitched a three-hitter in the opener, outdueling Met lefty Pete Falcone, and the Mets managed just six hits off three pitchers in the nightcap.

Phillies reliever Ed Farmer made his first start since 1979 in the nightcap, forced into the rotation for this five-game, three-day series. He worked 51-3 innings, giving up four hits, for his second victory in six decisions.

Philadelphia scored the only run of the opener when Bill Robinson drew a two-out, bases-loaded walk from Falcone in the bottom of the ninth inning. In the second game, George Vukovich's two-run double started the Phillies on their way.

Braves 5, Reds 2

Phil Niekro took a three-hit shutout into the ninth inning, then got last-out relief help from Gene Garber to pitch the Braves past Cincinnati. Claudell Washington drove in four of Atlanta's five runs with a sacrifice fly, a single and a two-run double.

Niekro, 6-2, walked six, including Johnny Bench with one out in the ninth. After another was out, pinch-hitter Larry Blittner chased Niekro with an RBI double. Al Hrabosky relieved Niekro, promptly yielding a run-scoring double by Eddie Milner, but Garber put out the fire by getting Ron Oester to ground out for his 12th save.

American Kids See It All At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Everything happened to the American kids at Wimbledon on Friday. Andrea Leand, seeded 14th, was tumbled out of the women's singles and Kathy Rinaldi was stung by a bee.

Leand, 18, from Brooklandville, Md., fell to the lanky West German Claudia Kohde, who won 7-5, 6-2 to reach the third round of the All-England Tennis Championships.

Rinaldi, 15, of Jensen Beach, Fla., got over her battle with the bee but was decisively beaten 6-4, 6-1 by Pam Shriver, the No. 7 seed.

It happened in the sunny evening after rain had delayed the tennis for four hours and for the fourth day out of five. The tournament was more than 100 matches behind schedule and an estimated $300,000 behind in projected revenue.

Shriver reached the last 16 along with Martina Navratilova, the No. 1 seed, who eliminated fellow American Anne White 6-1, 6-4. Despite the continuing wet weather, referee Fred Hoyle insisted the tourney is on target for finishing on schedule. The women's final is scheduled for Saturday, July 3, and the men's final for the next day.

The All-England Club ordered Saturday's program to start two hours earlier, at noon, but refused to schedule play on Sunday, traditionally a blank day. Wimbledon has 17 grass courts and has surmounted similar situations in the past.

Only seven matches were completed all day. Players sat around for hours in the locker rooms waiting for the rain to stop. When the tennis eventually began, they moved cautiously onto the damp grass.

Rinaldi failed to stop Shriver's service. The tall 19-year-old from Lutherville, Md., finished off three games with aces and slammed down a stream of winning services. Rinaldi made history last year as the youngest player ever to win a match at Wimbledon. She was then 14 years, 3 months. She remains one of the youngest ever to compete in the 105-year-old tournament.

Anne White, 20, of St. Petersburg, Fla., broke Navratilova's service at the start of the second set and held her lead as far as 4-3. But then the two-time Wimbledon winner turned on the heat and White won only four more points the remainder of the match.

Some 2½ hours of play was in prospect when play became possible on only four courts. Referee Hoyle sent all the men home and concentrated on getting some of the shorter women's matches finished.

Six players have reached the third round of the men's singles, including defending champion and favorite John McEnroe and No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors. Another 58, two days behind schedule, were still waiting to play their second-round matches.

Gilder Golden At Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Gilder knew it was a massive understatement. He chuckled when he said it.

"If I keep on playing like this, it's gonna make it tough on the rest of them."

It seemed a safe assessment with Gilder playing at a record-setting rate, a 64 in the opening round followed by a 63.

The 127 total, a whopping 13 shots under par, for the first two rounds of the $400,000 Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Golf Classic set two seasonal records and came within one shot of an all-time PGA Tour scoring mark.

Even those heroics, however, couldn't free him entirely from determined pursuit by Tom Kite and Peter Jacobsen, who didn't even start their Friday play until an hour or so after Gilder had finished.

"When you go out in the afternoon, you can use the morning scores as an indication of how the golf course is playing," Kite said. "When I saw the number Bob had put on the board, I knew there were some birdies out there to be had."

And Kite and Jacobsen collected them, enough of them to move within three shots of Gilder's record pace at 130.

Kite, last year's leading money-winner, had a no-bogey 64 and Jacobsen matched the best score on the PGA Tour this year, an 8-under-par 62, including 30 on the front side.

Kite noted, however, that it was four strokes back to Mark Lye and Jim Colbert, tied for fourth at 134, seven strokes back of the leader.

Lye had a 66 and Colbert a 65 on the 6,329 yard Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

Don Pooley, D.A. Weibring and Wayne Levi were at 137. Levi shot a 65, Pooley 66 and Weibring 68.

Scent of Scandal Still Strong at Teapot Dome

MIDWEST, Wyo. (AP) — Three generations of raw-boned ranchers have watched the cattle drives stir up the Wyoming dust since the days when Teapot Dome became for millions of Americans the nation's strongest symbol of political corruption until Watergate.

The memory remains. And so do the scandals at Teapot Dome, the huge federal oil reserve in central Wyoming. In the latest incident, a California man was given two years' probation last week for his role in a kickback scheme involving oil royalties on the reserve.

But all the scandal hasn't affected John Beaton who's lived for more than 60 years in the shadow of Teapot Rock.

"You know the road?" he says, pointing toward the oil reserve — focus of a 1924 bribery scandal that shook the Warren G. Harding administration.

"That's where they used to work the roundups," he said. "My Dad has seen 12,000 and 13,000 head of cattle right there." Beaton, who tends a sprawling Angus herd on the high plains, knows the outlines of the 58-year-old bribery scandal and later events at Teapot Dome. He graciously accommodates the tourists who sometimes stop at the immaculately kept Teapot Ranch headquarters to photograph the rock.

But he makes no effort to attract them, and has turned down lucrative opportunities to lease his land for oil development.

"We have a heritage to protect," he said. "Coal and oil can be used up and then they're gone."

Grass, he said, lasts forever. He may be right.

According to Ken Goltz, Department of Energy supervisor for the reserve, Teapot Dome is on the downhill side of its productive life, which peaked in 1981. In 30-35 years, he said, the field will be empty of oil recoverable by today's methods. Beaton's ranch has produced sheep or cattle every year since it was homesteaded in 1903. And he is optimistic livestock production will continue long after the oil under Teapot Rock is gone.

Early settlers named the crumbling sandstone butte Teapot Rock because it had a protruding "handle" and "spout." Both have since fallen off, victims of wind and rain.

Officially known as Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 3, Teapot Dome has also produced controversy and scandal out of proportion with its importance as an oil reservoir.

Oil magnate Henry Sinclair was accused in 1924 of paying Interior Secretary Albert Fall $100,000 to lease NPR No. 3 to his Mammoth Oil Co. Fall resigned and was jailed for taking a bribe while Sinclair was jailed for jury tampering and contempt of Congress. The Supreme Court revoked the Mammoth Oil lease and the 85 wells drilled at Teapot Dome were capped in 1927.

"The very name Teapot Dome means political corruption to a lot of people," said Wyoming historian Bill Bragg. "It was a case of graft, pure and simple."

"I don't know what it is about the Naval Petroleum Reserve but somebody always thinks they can be had, unless it's the feeling that the government can always be had," he added. Teapot Dome made headlines again in 1973 when a California congressman accused private oil companies of tapping the 9,481-acre reserve with wells drilled just outside its boundaries.

The Navy had to drill off-setting wells to keep the private wells from draining the reserve.

Earlier this year, Frederick R. Williams pleaded guilty and Douglas E. Rawson was convicted in a minor league bribery scheme involving oilfield subcontracts at Teapot Dome.

Williams got 30 months in prison and four years' probation while Rawson was sentenced June 17 to two years' probation.

At the conclusion of that trial, an assistant U.S. attorney hinted that a broader federal investigation into reserve operations was under way but refused to give any details.

Meanwhile, the Kansas City Times said in April that full-scale production is rapidly depleting the federal oil reserves at Teapot Dome and Elk Hills, Calif., despite low prices and a worldwide oversupply of oil.

The Times said the government was continuing production because of pressure from oil companies and refiners and the government's need for cash.

Fenix and Scisson Inc. of Tulsa, Okla., operated Teapot Dome under a federal contract from July 1976 until last September, when its contract ended. The Department of Energy, dissatisfied with Fenix and Scisson, turned over management of the site to Lawrence-Allison Inc. of Houston. But Goltz says he's not certain the change will solve all the problems.

"The people who are turning the valves and running the system are basically the same people with a different management structure," Goltz said. And Lawrence-Allison, aware of the area's long, dark history, apparently is anxious to stay out of the limelight.

A woman who answered the telephone in the company's Casper office refused to give her name.

"People around here are a little touchy about Teapot Dome," she explained. "Some won't talk to anybody anytime about anything."

The two Soviet spacecraft that visited Venus in late 1978 reported temperatures as high as 860°F. and as many as 25 lightning impulses per second.

Metcalfe, McCarthy United In Marriage

St. Anthony's Catholic Church was the setting for the late afternoon wedding uniting Mary Melissa Metcalfe and Stanley Kenneth McCarthy, both of Canyon. Father Xavier Butler performed the ceremony on Saturday.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Metcalfe, Route 4, Hereford, and Mr. and Mrs. R.K. McCarthy of Southington, Conn.

Bouquets of gladiolus, carnations, and daisies in mixed colors of blue, yellow, and pink were placed at either side of the altar, and a single long stem rose was placed on the Blessed Virgin's altar.

Terry Metcalfe of Madison, Wis., sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Gary Wayton of Houston was best man.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ernest Vela of Canyon and Mrs. Raymond Schlabs. Ernest Vela of Canyon and Brian Bailey of East Hampton, Mass. served as groomsmen.

Ushers were Sam Metcalfe, brother of the bride, Kyle Page of Amarillo, and Kenneth Young of Shallowater.

Maria Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Metcalfe, Jr., of Shullsburg, Wis., and Carol Metcalfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Metcalfe, also of Shullsburg, both nieces of the bride, were flowergirls while the bride's nephew, David Schaaf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schaaf of Kewanee, Ill., was ring bearer.

Mrs. Allen Evers was the organist. Principal wedding selections were "The Lord's Prayer" and "Ave Maria" by Bach-Gounod, vocalized by Janice Perkins of Amarillo; and "On This Day O' Beautiful Mother" and "Mother At Your Feet I'm Kneeling," vocalized by Kyle Page of Amarillo. They sang a duet entitled "Panis Angelicus."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white gown of chantilly lace and organza. The Victorian neckline featured a stand-up lace collar and sheer V-shaped yoke enhanced with schiffli embroidery and sprinkled with pearls and sequins.

A scalloped lace flounce outlined the yoke in front and back, and the sheer bishop sleeves of organza were gathered into lace cuffs. The full organza skirt fell from a natural waistline enhanced by a lace apron edged with a ruffle. Two lace ruffles bordered the skirt hem, which flowed into a chapel length train.

Her chapel length veil of illusion was circled in chantilly lace and attached to a lace covered bandeau scattered with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and daisies with pink roses and white streamers. Ribbons of pink, yellow, blue, and green were tucked in the bouquet.

The maid of honor wore a Nile green dress of organza trimmed with white chantilly lace. The dress featured a Queen Anne neckline and a fitted bodice covered in lace. The sheer organza sleeves were gathered at the wrists and the full skirt was overlaid with an organza apron edged with a ruffle and sashed at the waist.

The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to the maid of honor in pink and blue, respectively. The flowergirls wore similar gowns in yellow.

Arm bouquets of carnations tipped in green, yellow, pink, and blue were carried by the maid of honor and bridesmaids, while the flower girls carried lace baskets of arranged flowers and wore floral wristlets.

A reception was held in the Knights of Columbus Hall following the ceremony. Debbie Davis of Amarillo was at the registry table, which was decorated with a bud vase of flowers in mixed colors.

The head table was adorned with a centerpiece of daisies and carnations in mixed colors of pink, yellow, and blue with a single candle in the center. The dining tables were decorated with marble green ivy adorned with foil and ribbons in the bride's colors.

Kim Page of Amarillo and Kelly Ponder served cake while Valerie Judson and Mrs. Jeff Shepic, both of Amarillo, served coffee and punch.

The bride's table featured a four-tiered wedding cake decorated with yellow, pink, and blue hand-made roses and carnations. The cake was topped with a bride and groom. A floral arrangement of pink, yellow, and blue daisies and carnations, accented with three candles, adorned the table.

The groom's table was highlighted with a single-layer chocolate cake which had as a theme the groom's interest in sports and pursuit of a master's degree.

For a wedding trip to San Antonio, Corpus Christi, and Padre Island, the bride wore a pink cotton shirt-waisted dress accented with a plaid belt and bow and a corsage of white daisies. The couple will be at home in Canyon after July 10.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Hereford High School. She is currently a business major at West Texas State University and is employed by the Country Squire Dinner Theatre.

The bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Wheaton High School, Wheaton, Md. He is currently a graduate student at WTSU majoring in marketing.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Ethel Mersing of Carnegie, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Metcalfe of Darlington, Wis., and other friends are relatives from Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Wisconsin, and south Texas.

Dieting Can Be Delicious With Fish

Dieting can be delicious, says Annette Reddell Hegen, a seafood consumer education specialist. Try adding seafood—fish is a good one—to your next low-calorie diet plan.

Fish is a protein-packed food which provides maximum nutrition with only a few calories.

In fact, a three and one-half ounce serving of fish can have as few as 100 calories.

In addition, the seafood has an array of vitamins and minerals that are necessary for proper functioning of the body, the specialist points out.

Fish, a polyunsaturate, is very low in fat content, usually ranging from one to five percent.

That puts fish into the same category as skim milk and cottage cheese, two popular low-calorie foods.

Fish still tastes good even if it has all the same features of other "diet foods."

Try this delicious gourmet recipe. It's quick to prepare and low in calories, Hegen suggests.

BAKED FLOUNDER IN WINE SAUCE

2 pounds flounder or other fish fillets

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon pepper

2 medium sliced tomatoes

2 tablespoons flour

2 tablespoons diet margarine

1/2 cup skim milk

one third cup dry white wine

1/2 teaspoon crushed basil

Chopped parsley

Sprinkle fillets on both sides with salt and pepper.

Arrange fillets in a single layer in a greased baking dish. Place tomato slices over the top of the fish. In small saucepan, blend flour into margarine. Add milk gradually and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and stir in wine and basil. Pour sauce over top of tomatoes. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Sprinkle with fresh chopped parsley. Makes six servings.

Class Of '57 Plans Reunion

The Hereford High School Class of '57 has scheduled activities for their 25th reunion on Saturday, July 3.

A picnic is planned at noon in Dameron Park for class members and families. Those who live in Hereford are asked to bring a little extra food for out-of-town class members who attend.

Visitors may come beginning at 2 p.m. for a time of fellowship. In case of inclement weather, the picnic will be held in the Community Center across the street.

A banquet for class members and spouses will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center. Teachers are invited also. Anyone wanting to make reservations should contact Kee Ruland at 364-0857.

Reservations have been received from several out-of-state classmates. Those who live in the local area are urged to make their reservations as soon as possible.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the following persons should contact Mrs. Ruland or another local class member: Dorothy Allmon, Donald Blaylock, Margaret Griffith, Glenn Mutter, Patricia Peters, David Smith, and Peggy Thomas.

MRS. GREGORY CHRISTIANSEN
... nee Beverley Hewitt

Couple Wed Saturday Afternoon

Beverley Jane Hewitt and Gregory Leon Christiansen, both of Murfreesboro, Tenn., exchanged wedding vows at St. George's Chapel in Canyon Saturday afternoon with Father George Benson, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Hewitt of Hereford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I.L. Christiansen of Fritch.

The church was lighted with candles and decorated with white and rose colored arrangements and Boston fern set in twin brass urns.

Suzanne Hewitt of Canyon, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Alan Sellers of Murfreesboro was the best man.

The groom's sister, Mrs. Raymond Gray of Amarillo, was bridesmaid and Barry Christiansen, brother of the groom, of Pampa, served as groomsman.

Usher was Raymond Gray of Amarillo, brother-in-law of the groom, and organist was Kendall Mowell of Amarillo.

Sharra Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Duncan of Grand Prairie, Texas, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a formal length gown of white chiffon fashioned with a lace bodice and pearl trimmed Queen Anne neckline. Lace panels cascaded down the long, scalloped-edge train and entirely circled the bottom. The full skirt fell from the fitted waistline and was bordered by a lace trimmed flounce.

Her walking length veil of bridal illusion extended from a lace covered and pearl trimmed headpiece. The three layers were edged with lace appliques. Her bouquet of cascading white and rose colored flowers accented the colors in her attendant's dresses.

The maid of honor and bridesmaid wore suede rose colored dresses of taffeta overlaid with net. The fitted bodice had an off the shoulder neckline with spaghetti straps, and the neckline and bottom of the full skirt were accented with a deep scalloped lace flounce.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in St. George's Fellowship Hall. Mrs. Alan Sellers of Murfreesboro served cake.

The bride's table was covered with an ecru colored crocheted Nottingham lace cloth, and cut crystal and silver appointments were used.

The three tiered cake was traditionally English; rich, dark fruitcake covered with a layer of marzipan and iced with white royal icing accented with pink roses. It was made by the bride's mother.

The groom's table was covered with a lace cloth. An antique brass punchbowl and brass appointments were used. A three-tiered rose velvet cake iced with chocolate frosting and decorated with chocolate dipped strawberries was served.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Galveston Island and other coastal points in Louisiana and Florida.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and West Texas State University.

Raccoons Not Good Pets

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I respond to the young lad who wanted to know if raccoons make good pets? As a zoologist who specializes in small American mammals, my knowledge and experience could be helpful.

Although the raccoon resembles an overweight, domestic house cat, it is actually more closely related to the bear family. They are nocturnal, which is fine if their keepers like to stay up and roam around between midnight and 5 a.m.

Until the age of one, raccoons are lovable creatures - although they enjoy tearing fabrics and even soft woods. When they reach sexual maturity (13 to 15 months old), they become very aggressive and unpredictable.

If the keeper is willing to spend the money to have the raccoon sexually neutered, declawed and defanged, the animal may be kept with relative safety in a human environment. He will be an acceptable cage pet, but he can never be returned to the wild or allowed to be with other raccoons.

I do NOT recommend keeping even a neutered, declawed and defanged raccoon around children. They can inflict as much damage on a child as a large dog. If angered, they go for the head and face.

While a raccoon may have special appeal, I strongly suggest that a child opt for a dog or a cat. The humane societies, pounds and SPCAs have a large number of cats and dogs that cannot survive without human love and attention. -An Animal Lover In Houston

DEAR LOVER: Thank you for an enlightening essay on "The Raccoon as a Pet." I learned a lot from it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading the letter from "Statuesque in Chicago" the 5-foot-11-inch young woman who was made to feel like a freak when she went shopping for shoes (she wore a size 11), I had to write my story.

I am just under 5 feet tall and will be 30 years old in a few months. My shoe size is 4. I can't tell you how embarrassing it is when I shop for shoes to be told, "Try the children's department."

If they don't have my size (and they usually do not), they can say so without making me feel like a fool. -Teeny Tootsies In Elmira

DEAR TEENY: There are some good shoe companies that specialize in hard-to-get sizes. They have catalogues and you can send for the shoes of your choice. Phone the shoe departments of Sears and Montgomery

Ward's for more information.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please find out for me if my daughter is in danger of harming herself physically. She is on the Cambridge liquid diet and losing a pound a day.

What are the side effects? The girl is very much overweight and feels good about this loss. She has promised to do as you say. -B.G. In Great Bend

DEAR B.G. IN G.B.: I do not know what the Cambridge diet is, but I can tell you that no person should be on ANY diet without first checking it out with a physician.

I know of several liquid diets that have caused a great many problems - such as serious skin rashes, fainting spells, respiratory trouble and the loss of hair and fingernails.

If you're looking for a quiet place to live, ask about the door construction. Solid or core-filled doors with gaskets or weather stripping are quieter.

When planting a flower garden, be sure to find out the mature height of the plants and place low-growing ones in front and tall varieties in the rear.

Home Mortgages Vary

COLLEGE STATION — When buying or selling a home, keep in mind the importance of understanding the new "alphabet-soup" mortgages available, suggests Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Owens is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Individual home buyers should "shop around" for a mortgage that best fits their financial situation, the specialist says.

Some of the new mortgage plans to consider when thinking of purchasing a home in the near future, are:

1) Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM) or Adjustable Mortgage Loan (AML) The rate is tied to an index and changes as the index varies. The rate is just below the conventional loan rate and may or may not have a cap on how high or low the rate can go.

2) Graduated Payment Mortgage (GPM) The home owner's payments start low and increase on a preset schedule. As the owner's income increases so do his house payments. These mortgages usually require less down-payment than a conventional loan.

3) Roll-Over Mortgage (ROM) A loan is paid off over a period of 25 or 30 years but is refinanced after three to five years are paid off. The lender has the option of refinancing.

4) Renegotiable Rate Mortgage (RRM) The home owner pays on a loan over a period of 25 or 30 years but the lender agrees to renew the loan after a preset time (three to five years) at a new interest rate. The loan is tied to a predetermined index, and the rate cannot change before the time set by lender and buyer.

To better understand the new "mortgage language" and to customize a mortgage to fit individual financial situations, consult a lending agent, lawyer or real estate agent, the specialist suggests.

Booth, Banner Exchange Vows

Sandra June Booth and James Michael Banner, both of Weatherford, Okla., were married recently at St. Anthony's Catholic Church with Deacon Leroy Behnke of Lubbock officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry L. Booth of Ringwood, Okla. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald M. Banner of Hereford.

Maid of honor was Sandy Scheieman of Oklahoma City. Mike Cofer of White Deer, Texas, was best man.

Bridesmaids were Michelle Hein of Fairview, Okla., and Laura Anderson of Ardmore, Okla., sorority sisters of the bride. Groomsmen included Phillip Banner and Roy Banner, both brothers of the groom, from Hereford.

Greg Banner of Hereford, Mark Banner of Lubbock, and Doug Banner and Bobby Banner, of Amarillo, all brothers of the groom, were ushers.

Candle lighters were John

Banner and Stevie Banner, sons of Greg and Kay Banner, and Brendon Banner, son of Doug and Susie Banner.

Michelle Adams, daughter of Mike and Debra Adams of Buffalo, Okla., was flower girl. Ring bearer was Ryan Caperton, son of Jay and Debbie Samples of Lexington, Ky., and Doug and Nancy Caperton.

Vocalists included Pat Brinkman, Dianne Clevener, Kay Banner, and Judy Cloud. Principal wedding selections included "If," "The Rose," "Annie's Song," and "The Wedding Song."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown with chantilly lace overlay. It featured bishop sleeves, a pickup lace front with Queen Anne neckline, and six-tier bouffant cathedral train.

The bride's attendants wore long, red chiffon dresses with ruffles, and carried red roses.

Others assisting with the reception were Kim Banner, Susie Banner, Annett Albracht, and Emelene Kreighaus.

ding cake was decorated with red roses and topped with a dancing couple which belonged to the bride's grandmother.

After a wedding trip to South Padre Island, the couple will be at home in Clinton, Okla.

The bride graduated from high school in Fairview and currently attends Southwestern Oklahoma State University, where she is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority.

The groom graduated from Hereford High School and is a graduate of Winona School of Photography in Winona, Ind. He holds membership in the Professional Photographers of Oklahoma and the Professional Photographers of America.

THANKS!

We would like to express our appreciation to all the people who have shown so much thoughtfulness and consideration during the loss of our son Ruben. For all the prayers, cards, food, flowers and visits, we are deeply grateful.

The International Red Cross is helping an estimated 3,000,000 homeless Lebanese. Medical teams from Red Cross Societies in Finland, Norway, Sweden and West Germany are providing medical assistance; and medicine, blankets and tents are being flown to Damascus, Syria and Tel Aviv, Israel.

The International Red Cross stated that all efforts are being made to assure that due respect is afforded the victims of the conflict in accordance with the humanitarian stipulations of the Geneva Conventions. To assist with the operation, the American Red Cross had made a $25,000 donation.

A year now gone
Merged swiftly and lovingly on Awakened us to a bright new dawn
As we pledged our love anew!
Your loving ways did strength impart
And helped me calm a troubled heart
And gave to me a brand new start
And our love grew and grew!
The touch of your hand
Your warm embrace,
The fire-light's glow
As it touched your face
And you and I
In our own little place
Has meant a dream come true!
If Eternity will be like this —
Your smile, your glance
Your gentle kiss
Exchanging pain
For Heavenly bliss
Then I'll live it all with you!

How To Curb Health Costs

Americans spent nearly $218 billion on personal health in 1980. This amount represented almost 10 percent of the gross national product.

Figures such as these have prompted increased concern over the rising cost of health care.

Recently, six organizations representing health care providers, insurers, business and labor issued a joint statement. They encouraged their members or local affiliates to form health care coalitions and to direct their activities toward restraining health costs.

The groups were the American Medical Association, the American Hospital Association, the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations, the Health Insurance Association of America, the Business Roundtable and the AFL-CIO.

The Texas Medical Association says individuals also can help minimize health care costs by:

--Having a family doctor. The physician will keep a permanent record of your medical history, which can prevent duplicating expensive and time-consuming tests. The family doctor also can advise you on preventing illness.

--Not waiting too long before seeing a doctor. Some people try to cut costs by waiting until they are seriously ill. This approach defeats the purpose of preventive medicine and costs more in the long run.

--Using a hospital emergency room only for emergencies. The emergency room is an expensive place to treat minor ailments. Try calling your personal physician first.

--Using the telephone. A family doctor who has examined you regularly is familiar with your health history. Sometimes the doctor can advise you over the phone about minor health problems.

--Having regular check-ups. The American Medical Association says that if you are past 35, a complete health evaluation every one to three years is a good idea.

--Asking about preadmission testing at hospitals and short-stay or outpatient surgery programs. These programs can shorten or eliminate a hospital stay for minor surgery, treatments or tests.

--Following your doctor's advice.

Added Touches

During Charm Day, which is scheduled Wednesday in the Deaf Smith County Library Heritage Room Lajeane Henry, owner of the Pants Cage, will present a program suggesting ways to add to a wardrobe with simple accessories. Pictured with Ms. Henry, at left, is Sharon McNutt, employee at the store.

Wayne, while following in his famous father's footsteps in career choice, is following his own trail in the acting profession. His is a familiar face to audiences all across America.

The comedy is all about a young man who goes to New York with a cure for the common cold. While trying to cure colds, he acquires the aches and pains of another disease, romance, for which he doesn't seem to want to find a cure. The laughter "The Tender Trap" brings is highly contagious!

Mrs. Nadine Hill, chairman of advance ticket sales for the fourth annual King's Manor barbecue, is starting off by selling the Rev. Marvin James an advance ticket. James is the new pastor of First United Methodist Church. Tickets for the barbecue, which will be held from 5-9 p.m., July 10, are $10 per person or $25 for a family of four. Call Ms. Hill, 364-1706, or the Manor, 364-0661, to obtain tickets.

Ticket Sales Underway For King's Manor Barbecue

Ticket sales will get underway this week for the fourth annual King's Manor barbecue, according to Mrs. Nadine Hill, chairman of advance ticket sales. The barbecue is set Saturday, July 10, from 5 to 9 p.m. on the grounds at the Manor.

Mrs. Hill has secured the help of interested persons, including the King's Manor Auxiliary, of which Betty Martin is president, in selling tickets for the annual event. They are $10 per person or $25 for a family of four and may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Hill at 364-1706 or the Manor at 364-0661.

The Auxiliary takes an active part in the life of King's Manor, helping out in many ways to make life easier for the residents. Also involved in making the barbecue the best ever is the Founders Association, which will donate all the money they make toward helping provide funds for residents who cannot pay for all of their care.

With the escalation of prices and the government cutback in entitlement programs, King's Manor will give approximately $150,000 in free care this year. The Founders Association strives to meet the demands for care by helping financially.

Donald Hicks, president of the Founders Association, has announced that the beef has been secured and will be prepared by several men from Vega. The Blue Grass Band of Dimmitt will provide entertainment again this year.

So many people commented on the music last year that we asked them back to help make this year the best of all, said Hicks.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Rental cars are like blind dates. They sound terrific over the phone, but personality isn't everything.

The car rental people make it sound so easy. You step off the plane and your wheels are waiting for you. What they don't tell you is:

How do you get out of the parking lot?

It doesn't make sense. You're being thrown together with $7,000 worth of electronics but you've had more instruction on how to ride an elevator.

Ever sit in traffic and try to pick out people driving rental cars? It's easy. He's usually the guy with the windshield wipers going back and forth when the sun is shining. Or the woman who releases her hood going 60 miles an hour on the expressway ... with her eyes closed.

Recently, I rented a talking car. From Japan. My car doesn't talk. It's tried to communicate on a few occasions, but it sounded expensive so I ignored it.

No sooner was I settled in this car than a voice said, "Your trunk is open." Now that line may be a scream in Japan, but not to me, who couldn't find the trunk in the first place and whose luggage was piled on the front seat beside me.

The voice had other phrases. "Your left door is open. Your right door is open. Your lights are on. Your seat belt is unfastened."

Finally, I could stand it no longer, "Look, lady, would you give me a break?"

"Your brake is on," she said mechanically.

When I returned the car, the girl at the desk said, "Where are your keys?" I motioned to the parking lot. "Let her tell you."

There was the car sitting alone in the darkness with a voice saying over and over, "Your keys are in the ignition. Your keys are in the ignition. Your keys are in the ig-"

Would it have killed her to tell me how to get them out?

Mrs. Spicer Gripp visited her daughter, Mrs. John Stokes, Mr. Stokes and their girls Shelby and Amy, in Gallup for several days recently.

The children of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Thompson are planning a reunion on July 4 at 1 p.m. at the Bull Barn and are inviting friends of the family to come, bring food, and spend time visiting. They expect all eleven children to attend and many of the grandchildren. The Thompsons lived in the Frio Community for many years and were active in church and community activities.

Mrs. Clark Andrews has been helping with Youth Camp in the Amarillo Camp Association this week. She is Area Mission Director. Mrs. Earl Harkins went on Thursday to help register actees. Children from Frio went during the week. On Thursday, Mrs. Ross Baird took four actees from the Frio church. They included Sharla Richards, Kandi Sparkman, Jeanette Mumeu and Andrea Wall. They were to stay until Saturday noon.

Here to visit their daughter, Mrs. Norman Herder, and family this week are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Arnold. Also, an aunt of Sherry's came, Mrs. Bennie Webb. They are all from Arkadelphia, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Sparkman, and Kevin, and her mother, Mrs. Ann

Warner, went to Lamesa Sunday to attend a reunion of cousins of Mrs. Warner's family, the Flacks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Barber, accompanied by her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cass of Lubbock enjoyed a weekend outing in Ruidoso, where they visited her brother, Jim Franklin and Mrs. Franklin. They brought back some good cherries, they said. The Franklins live in Ruidoso in the summertime and in the Valley during the winter months.

Donations Sought For Conservation Projects

By DON KENDALL AP
Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private contributions are being sought to help pay for innovative projects aimed at correcting some of the abuses conservation advocates say are threatening the nation's soil and water resources.

The project was announced Thursday by a coalition of supporting a newly organized National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation.

Emmett Barker, chairman of the group, said the first year's goal is to raise $1 million and that eventually he hoped the fund would grow to about $10 million.

The Reagan administration has proposed sharp cutbacks and changes in traditional conservation programs carried out primarily by the Soil Conservation Service, an agency of the Agriculture Department.

But Barker, who is president of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute, of Chicago, told a news conference the endowment "has nothing to do with the federal cutbacks" and that it is "a unique thing to make a unique contribution" to soil and water conservation.

One aim, he said, is to help fill the gap between Soil Conservation Service programs and efforts like those of local conservation districts and others.

The non-profit program was hailed by a number of agricultural leaders in Congress and the administration, as well as by several farm and conservation organiza-

Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., ranking Republican on the House Agriculture conservation subcommittee, said, "One of the things that becomes apparent in times of budget crisis is that ... those things in the total scope of the country's needs that should take the highest priority take the lowest. We are seeing, due to the budget crisis, the funding for conservation not only not expanding but diminishing."

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, in a statement, said he welcomed the formation of the endowment as an example of "how the private sector is willing to do its part in assuring an adequate supply of food and fiber in the decades ahead."

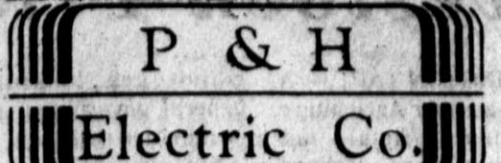

Conservation leaders in Congress, including Jeffords, Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn.; and Sen. Roger W. Jepsen, R-Iowa, said they planned to sponsor a resolution in support of the endowment program.

Barker said the plan calls for financial aid for selected soil and water conservation projects, to increase the level of expertise and public awareness in conservation, and to assist in research targeted to specific needs.

"It will not use its resources to duplicate existing work or to substitute for existing national, regional or state conservation programs," Barker said.

"And it will not seek to impose a single, national approach to conservation, because we recognize that most conservation programs are specific and local, and can best be solved by specifically tailored local solutions."

Cotton Incorporated Opening Several Overseas Offices

LONDON—Cotton Incorporated is bringing American cotton producers closer to their overseas customers—literally as well as figuratively.

The fiber marketing and research company of U.S. cotton producers, Cotton Incorporated recently opened a two-man London office to more effectively service its textile accounts throughout Europe.

Later this year, a similar office will be opened in Osaka, Japan, to serve the Far East. The establishment of both offices has been approved by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John D. Block.

"Exports of U.S. cotton continue to increase in importance to the American cotton producer," commented Donald S. Kleckner, vice president of international marketing for Cotton Incorporated. "In 1979-80, the U.S. exported a record 9.2 million bales. Overseas shipments in 1980-81 accounted for more than half of our production for the third successive year."

The overseas offices, he said, will enable Cotton Incorporated to improve its ability to protect and expand the dominance of U.S. cotton overseas, where it competes not only with synthetic fibers but also with cotton grown in other countries. Representatives of the U.S. cotton producer literally cover the world building demand for American cotton by offering purchasers of U.S. cotton technical assistance as well as fabric, styling and creative direction.

The new London office will serve textile accounts in Belgium, France, Ireland, Italy, Portugal, Spain, the United Kingdom and West Germany. A reception officially opening the office was attended by a large number of textile and retail executives.

Cherry Crop May More Than Double

WASHINGTON (AP) — The production of tart cherries — favored by many for pies — is expected to total 338.5 million pounds this year, more than two-and-a-half times as large as the 1981 crop of 134.6 million, says the Agriculture Department.

Indicated production included:

Colorado, 1 million pounds this year and 1.6 million in 1981; Michigan, 275 million and 88 million; New York, 29 million and 8.4 million; Oregon, 7 million and 5 million; Pennsylvania, 8 million and 8 million; Utah, 8 million and 14 million; and Wisconsin, 10.5 million and 9.6 million.

Some of the guests commented on the significance of Cotton Incorporated's opening its first office outside the United States.

"This new London office demonstrates the interest and commitment that the American cotton farmer has in his overseas customer," said Donald G. Smith, raw materials buyer for Courtaulds Limited, northern spinning division, Manchester. "We're enthusiastic about having Cotton Incorporated's technical representatives, as well as statistical and market information, readily available to us."

George W. Henderson III, general manager of European Operations for Burlington Industries (Sportswear Fabrics Division), noted, "Burlington Industries and Cotton Incorporated have always worked closely together. By establishing its European headquarters in London, Cotton Incorporated strengthens its relationship not only with us but with all potential overseas customers of U.S. cotton."

Kleckner said London was selected as the site of Cotton Incorporated's European headquarters for several reasons: It is a prominent fashion and retail center that is in close proximity to other fashion centers, such as Paris and Florence; it is highly accessible to air transportation facilities; it is near areas of textile equipment development, and it offers outstanding communications services.

Staffing the office are Ira B. Livingston, director of European operations; and Dean S. Pelczar, manager. They will contact on a regular basis more than 60 textile organizations, including mills, major manufacturers and retail chains. Livingston and Pelczar also will work with textile equipment manufacturers to assure that machinery is developed to process cotton and will continue to work with the European offices of the International Institute of Cotton (IIC) and Cotton Council International (CCI).

Kleckner says plans call for opening Cotton Incorporated's Far Eastern headquarters in the third quarter of 1982. The office will be staffed by Charles H. Lapidus, director of Far Eastern operation, and Kin Cobb, manager.

Forest workers call the quaking aspen the "disaster tree." It is the first tree to grow again in areas where forest fires, strip mining or other circumstances have stripped the land of vegetation.

AAM Calls Defeat Political

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last week's defeat of emergency farm legislation by a 21-21 vote in the House Agriculture Committee was the result of "party line politics," says the American Agriculture Movement.

With one exception, the group noted, committee Republicans voted against the measure which would have called for land retirement in return for higher crop price supports. The bill was opposed by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

"We accept the 'no' votes as a statement that everything is all right in the agriculture sector," the movement said. "The 'no' votes can accept the responsibility for the largest exodus from agriculture in history."

Hens Produce 17.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's hens produced 17.4 billion eggs during the March-May quarter, a decline of 1 percent from the same period last year, says the Agriculture Department.

According to the department's Crop Reporting Board, the total number of laying hens in flocks as of June 1 was about 280 million, down 1 percent from a year ago. They laid an average of 66.8 eggs per 100 birds, compared to 66 a year earlier, the report said Wednesday.

Livestock Prices Declined Before Cancer Link

WASHINGTON (AP) — A claim by a senior Agriculture Department official that meat prices have declined dramatically since a recent report indicated a link between diet and cancer does not square with some of the agency's own figures.

The claim was made Wednesday by Assistant Secretary Mary Jarratt on Capitol Hill. The report referred to was issued by the National Academy of Sciences a week earlier on June 16.

"Since the report came out we have monitored meat prices, which are dramatically down and requests for nutritional information which are dramatically up since the report came out," she said.

According to USDA figures, livestock prices already were declining before the academy's food-cancer report was issued.

Ms. Jarratt, who oversees the department's food and consumer services, provided no specifics on the amount of meat price decrease or the volume of informational requests noted by department officials since the report was released.

"We are concerned about that report," she told House Agriculture and Science subcommittees on research, which are looking into general government policies on nutrition research.

But she said her department is withholding any official comment on the controversial report by the academy until its own review committee has evaluated it. No timetable has been set for that evaluation, she said.

Ms. Jarratt added, however, "We think it (the report) is a significant piece of evidence in a developing arena. ... Many of these reports that come out dealing with food and its possible linkage to health problems are constructive. Nutrition is a young science."

The department's Agricultural Marketing Service, at the request of a reporter, said Choice steers at Omaha, Neb., on June 16 sold for an average of $69 to $71 per hundredweight. On June 23, when Ms. Jarratt made her assertions, steers sold for $68.50 to $70.50 per hundredweight, a decline of less than 1 percent during the week.

Hogs, meanwhile, sold for $58.25 to $59.50 per 100 pounds on June 16, and $59 to $59.50 on June 23, the agency said. That was virtually unchanged.

Wholesale carcass beef, however, was down 3 to 4 percent during the week, averaging around $109.50 per 100 pounds, compared to $113 to $114 on June 16, the agency said.

But pork loins at wholesale brought $127 to $129 per 100 pounds on June 23, up 7 to 9 percent from week-earlier averages of $118 per 100 pounds.

According to the latest Agricultural Marketing Service report for the week which ended on June 12, four days before the cancer-diet report was issued, livestock prices had been declining or leveling off for some days.

The reason for a decline in cattle prices, that report said, was "light to moderate demand for carcass beef, coupled with heavy supplies" which depressed the market.

Heavy movement of hogs to slaughter also was cited as a reason for a lag in the pork market during that period.

The National Academy of Sciences report said there is sufficient evidence to suggest that if Americans follow some basic dietary guidelines they could reduce their chances of contracting cancer.

Among other things, the guidelines said the average American should reduce his consumption of fats through oils, meats and other items by a fourth.

The report also appears to run counter to recommendations of another academy committee, which said two years ago that there is insufficient information on which to base any dietary guidelines.

Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa, said that recommendation is causing "a great deal of concern in the agriculture community," and Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., said the report was just another in a chain of incidents that is fueling a shift in the American diet away from meat.

They urged Ms. Jarratt to guarantee that the Agriculture Department would redirect its nutritional research efforts toward answering many of "these questions which will cause serious damage to the agricultural community if they are not settled."

Ms. Jarratt said the USDA evaluation "may cause us to have a refocusing of our research priorities." But she quickly added, "From my brief cursory review of the report, there is little that's startling or new information."

But Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., a subcommittee chairman, advised the Agriculture Department and the meat industry against "carping at the report."

"It will not help to take the academy's report and say, 'That's a bunch of ivory-tower 'noglobdinks,' who are out to sabotage the hard-working American farmer," Brown said. He said it will be up to the meat industry, for example, to prove that eating meat is good for health.

Ms. Jarratt assured Brown that the USDA evaluation will be unbiased.

Leaf Rust Toll High in Texas

COLLEGE STATION — Leaf rust, a frequent disease problem in wheat, has taken a heavy toll of the 1982 Texas wheat crop, particularly in southern and central areas.

"Based on last year's wheat yields, losses from leaf rust run as high as 50 percent in some areas," said Dr. Wendell Horne, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"In an otherwise generally good year for wheat production, leaf rust was the major limiting factor for much of the state," said Horne. "The disease was so devastating that some wheat fields were never harvested."

Several factors contributed to the losses from leaf rust this year, noted the plant pathologist. First of all, the disease was caused by a new race (type) of the fungus that infected many wheat varieties which have had resistance to leaf rust. Secondly, a large increase in wheat acreage over southern sections of Texas provided an excellent source for rust spores to be spread northward by wind.

"The almost ideal weather conditions this spring for wheat production over most areas of Texas also were equally favorable for the heavy incidence of leaf rust," added Horne.

What can farmers do to head off another year of wheat losses due to leaf rust? "One of the best things is to plant more than one wheat variety to diversify," said Horne. "Farmers should be particularly careful not to plant just one variety that may be resistant to leaf rust. Putting all their eggs in one basket could create a major problem with the advent of yet another race of the rust fungus."

The plant pathologist also encouraged farmers to learn more about the disease, to consider using fungicides if it becomes a problem, and to plant later in the season if the crop will not be grazed.

"Rust as well as some other diseases are more severe where wheat is lush with a lot of leaf area," he pointed out. "Grazing wheat may reduce leaf rust damage under proper management."

Hail, Rain, Winds Destroy South Plains

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Hail, heavy rains and high winds destroyed a sizeable portion of crops in the South Plains last week, and young crops also were lost to severe weather in the Panhandle, Rolling Plains, Trans-Pecos and West Central Texas says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In his weekly report on Texas crops, Pfannstiel estimated crop losses at 50 percent or more in some counties of the South Plains, with cotton suffering most of the damage.

He said farmers are already replanting cotton acreage to grain sorghum and soybeans because the season is too far along to plant cotton again. Damaged cotton is being replanted in the Trans-Pecos area and in the Rolling Plains and West Central Texas where farmers have a somewhat longer growing season, Pfannstiel said.

Stegelin Assumes Extension Position

COLLEGE STATION — Dr. Forrest Stegelin on July 1 will assume the position of economist — agribusiness with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of the Texas A&M University System.

Stegelin has been an extension economist in agribusiness and marketing at the University of Florida for the past three years.

Stegelin was reared on a farm near Shawnee Mission, Kan., and holds a B.S. degree in agriculture from Kansas State University. He has an M.B.A. in marketing and financial management from the University of Oklahoma and a Ph.D. in agricultural economics (marketing and transportation) from Oklahoma State University. While in graduate school, he was a research assistant in marketing and transporta-

Wheat harvesting was slowed by rains in the plains, especially in the Rolling Plains where much of the crop remains to be harvested. Heavy weed infestations also are causing harvesting problems in that area. These delays have caused some custom harvesters to move northward into Kansas and Oklahoma, Pfannstiel said.

Recent rains have also slowed wheat harvesting in North Central and Northeast Texas while 50 to 80 percent of the crop is in over West Central Texas.

Harvesting of a good hay crop continues over the state, with some second cuttings under way in eastern counties. Alfalfa harvesting remains active in some parts of the plains.

Most crops in eastern, coastal and south central areas need rain for continued growth while those in South Texas are maturing. Farmers are still planting some peanuts and soybeans in coastal areas, with lack of planting moisture causing delays, noted Pfannstiel.

Insect problems are increasing over parts of the state, with grasshoppers heavy in ranges in the Rolling Plains and increasing in central areas and certain pests increasing in late cotton and grain sorghum in central and coastal areas.

Livestock and forage conditions remain good over most of Texas although rain is needed in coastal, south central and some eastern counties, said Pfannstiel.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Hail, high winds and tornadoes caused heavy crop damage in some locations. Wheat is maturing, with some early harvesting. Cotton and grain sorghum planting is about complete. Recent rains have boosted range conditions but some areas remain dry. First hay cuttings are about complete.

SOUTH PLAINS: Heavy rains, hail, high winds and blowing sand caused extensive crop damage the past weekend. Crop losses are estimated at 50 percent or more in some counties. Lost cotton acreage is being replanted to grain sorghum and soybeans because it's too late to plant cotton again. Ranges remain in good shape.

ROLLING PLAINS: Some cotton was lost to heavy rains and hail last weekend and is being replanted. The rains also delayed wheat harvesting, and some custom harvesters have moved into Oklahoma and Kansas. Heavy weed infestations have also caused harvesting problems.

Cuts Felt At Markets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cutbacks by hog producers may be felt for some time at supermarket meat counters, according to the latest government figures.

According to the Agriculture Department, the inventory of all hogs and pigs as of June 1 was estimated at 52 million head, down 13 percent from a year ago and 20 percent below the level of two years ago. It was the smallest June 1 inventory in seven years.

That was about in line with USDA projections made earlier this year.

Officials said the breeding inventory, at 7.39 million head, was down 12 percent from a year ago, and down 20 percent from June 1, 1980.

The inventory of hogs which were intended for market was reported at 44.6 million head, down 13 and 20 percent from levels of one and two years ago, respectively.

According to the survey, the pig crop during the six-month period which began last Dec. 1 and ran through May 31 was 41 million head, a 14 percent decrease from the same period a year earlier and 22 percent fewer than two years ago.

Producers had 5.58 million sows farrow during December-May, down 13 percent from a year earlier.

Dried Whey Use Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has approved the use of dried whey in some processed meat products such as hotdogs and bologna. A decision to allow the use of whey and certain whey products was made after six years of review. The new ingredient rules will go into effect on Aug. 17, Donald L. Houston, administrator of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said Monday.

Whey is byproduct of cheese manufacture and is rich in protein.

Houston said four kinds of whey products — dried whey, reduced lactose whey, reduced minerals whey and whey protein concentrate — will be allowed as binders and thickeners in sausages, bockwurst, chili con carne, and pork and beef with barbecue sauce.

EWTN Now Reaches All Systems Due To Cable

By DIANA SMITH
Associated Press Writer

IRONDALE, Ala. (AP) — An unflappable Franciscan nun says it's "miraculous" that the Roman Catholic television network she began less than a year ago with $200 can now reach every cable TV system in the country.

The Eternal Word Television Network, anchored by Mother Angelica, made its debut last Aug. 15 when a 10-meter satellite dish at Our Lady of the Angels Monastery bounced a signal off the Westar III satellite.

On Thursday, EWTN moved to a transponder on Satcom IIR satellite — the same satellite that carries Ted Turner's Cable News Network, WGN in Chicago and movie channels such as Home Box Office.

"It was really miraculous," Mother Angelica said, explaining the satellite time was offered to the network "out of the blue." The monastery is subleasing four hours of satellite time a day from another company.

"The Lord has showed us just how great his providence is. We now have the potential of reaching every cable system in the country," she said.

The idea for the network came up in September 1980, when the monastery had $200 in its operating budget. "People thought we were a little touched in the head," Mother Angelica said.

The nuns applied for the FCC license in October, and it was granted in January 1981. They borrowed money, and the studio was constructed and equipped as funds became available.

Today, 17 technicians, engineers and network employees offer a slick, four-hour program to cable systems seven days a week — free of charge.

The network has "state-of-the-art" equipment that cost $1.5 million and operates out of modern studios at the monastery Mother Angelica built east of Birmingham 20 years ago.

The 13 nuns cloistered at the monastery include a former executive secretary for Chrysler Corp., and Mother Angelica's real mother, who took vows and entered the monastery shortly after it was built.

The graceful monastery hugs the steep hillside, which is covered with tall pine trees. Below, a small flock of sheep graze near a 32-foot satellite dish, which allows EWTN, as Mother Angelica put it, to "feed the people with the word of God."

Mother Angelica anchors the program, which usually includes two hours of religious shows and two hours of family entertainment.

The network's purpose is "to reach the man in the pew" by using "sock-it-to-'em," down-to-earth messages, she says.

Many of EWTN's programs are produced at the monastery studio, said Ginger Scalici, marketing director. The network absorbs all costs.

"We're sanctioned by the church, but there is no direct funding from the church. The bulk of the money comes from individual donors, some from foundation grants," Mrs. Scalici said.

Regina, capital of Saskatchewan province in Canada, once bore a less majestic name — Pile of Bones. In 1882, the city was named for Victoria Regina, Queen of England.

At the turn of the century, the demand for ostrich plumes for women's hats and fans drove up the price of the bird's feathers to $300 a pound.

All's fair on weather channel

The Weather Channel, which plans to become the nation's primary source of weather information, presents live national, regional and local weather to cable television households across the United States 24 hours a day.

The high-tech meteorological facility, which went on the air last month, will provide around-the-clock reports using maps, radar, satellite pictures and popular music.

The originator and catalyst for this venture is Weather Channel President John Coleman, who is also ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" meteorologist.

"Our research indicates to us that TV by cable will be the nation's primary source to serve the nation with information and the Weather Channel will be the primary source of weather," says Coleman, speaking by satellite hook-up to a video press conference.

The advertiser-supported network, based in Atlanta, plans to transmit all weather warnings the moment they are issued by National Weather Service meteorologists.

"The presentation of weather warnings is our number one mission," says Coleman. "That's our highest priority and interrupts even a commercial."

developed by the Weather Channel and will be supplied by the network to each affiliated cable system. The Weather STAR receives, stores and automatically displays the local forecast for each community. Once each five minutes the local forecast and numerous special features will be interspersed in the weather coverage.

"The Weather Channel will be transmitting up to 620 different local forecasts — a different one for each of the nation's 620 weather zones," Coleman says.

Thirteen of the 20 largest multiple system operators have entered into agreements to receive the Weather Channel programming via satellite. The new cable service is now being provided to more than 4 million homes.

Butler In And Out Of Jobs Before 'Little House' Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Dean Butler was "between roles," he eschewed the usual pursuits of the out-of-work actor and went to work in a furniture store.

Butler, who stars as Almanzo Wilder in the NBC series "Little House: A New Beginning," was in and out of school at the University of the Pacific while he was trying to establish himself as an actor.

"I starred with Stephanie Zimbalist in the TV movie 'Forever' and then I couldn't get another job," he said. "It was a year and a half before I was cast in 'Little House.' It seemed like an eternity. I produced some radio shows. I even collected unemployment — and that was not done in my family...I didn't want to be a deadbeat, so I got a job in a furniture store."

"I didn't want to be a waiter because every out-of-work actor is a waiter," he said. "I didn't want to hang around with unemployed actors listening to their stories of how they lost this part or that part."

One of the parts he auditioned for was Adam Kendall in "Little House on the Prairie." He didn't get the part. But casting director Susan Sukman remembered him when she needed a husband for Laura Ingalls.

"They flew me down from college to meet Michael Landon," he said. "I was told that whatever I did, don't act for him. So I read for Mike in a very natural way. That's the way he likes it. Before I walked out the door he asked me what I'd be doing in May. I said I'd be doing my final exams."

Two days after he graduated from college, he started his role in "Little House."

The series, which begins its ninth year in the fall, is undergoing several changes. The title changes from "Little House on the Prairie" to "Little House: A New Beginning."

Michael Landon is leaving the show, but will remain as executive producer. Karen Grassle, who plays his wife, also is leaving.

The focus of the new show will be on the Wilders, played by Melissa Gilbert as Laura Ingalls Wilder and Dean Butler as Almanzo Wilder. Victor French, who was Edwards the first three years, is returning. Landon's daughter, Leslie Landon, also will join the show in the fall as Etta Plum, the new school teacher.

Butler was born in Canada, but was raised in Piedmont, Calif. His first role was as an extra in "The Streets of San Francisco" in 1976.

Later, in 1977, he was given the starring role in the movie "Forever."

Butler said that he and Miss Gilbert are ready to carry the load of the series.

"She's certainly ready," he said. "She's had so much experience and she's done so many movies. I think the network will be quicker to judge us now because we have more responsibility."

EYE CARE UPDATE

—OPTOMETRIST—

WHAT IS LAZY EYE?

QUESTION: My grandson has been diagnosed to have "lazy eye." Could you explain what it is?

ANSWER: Lazy eye (called amblyopia) occurs when a child can see significantly less with one eye than the other. If the child's good eye should become damaged or diseased later in life, the lazy eye may not have useful vision.

It is usually before the age of 6 that this condition responds well to treatment, therefore early detection is essential. Half of these children have obvious defects, such as one eye turning in or out while the other eye appears completely normal. This condition is very difficult for parents to detect. Ideally, every child by age three should have a professional eye exam.

Playing Country Boy

Dillon's Part New To Him

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He's a brash, outgoing 18-year-old with a wide smile, clean features and untanned skin that easily stamps him as an easterner.

Matt Dillon is probably the only sex symbol who still lives at home with his mother and father. When he isn't working in movies, Dillon resides in New Rochelle, N.Y., with his parents, Mary Ellen and Paul Dillon, four brothers and a sister.

His latest film, "Tex," has already drawn enthusiastic comment from early screening audiences, and it is likely to attract patronage from teen-age girls, for whom Matt Dillon is a somewhat reluctant sex symbol. Check the teen magazines for evidence.

"We figure 'Tex' will be the realistic film of the summer," Dillon says. "All of the others are fantastic."

Well, almost all. It does seem that the movie screens are being excessively zapped by lasers, rockets and other armory of the special effects wizards. Is there room for a $5-million slice of life in small-town Oklahoma?

The Disney people hope so. Besides their own high-technology, $20-million "Tron," they are offering summer movie customers "Tex," based on the popular novel by S.E. Hinton. Both films are part of a campaign to win a more mature audience for the Disney product.

Matt Dillon was the first and only choice for "Tex" in the eyes of the director and co-writer Tim Hunter, who had co-written another film Dillon had played in, "Over the Edge."

"When Tim first mentioned 'Tex,' I was very excited," the young actor said. "But when I learned 'Tex' was going to be made by Disney, I wasn't sure I would fit in; I couldn't see myself in a Disney movie."

Dillon ventured into the film business by chance?

"I cut class one day in junior high school," he said, "and I was seen in a corridor by a talent scout for a movie called 'Over the Edge.' I tried out for it and won. The character was me; I could relate to it without any trouble."

"Over the Edge" had a limited release, but Dillon registered strongly as a tough character. He was cast as the aggressive young man seduced by Kristy McNichol in "Little Darlings," and as the school bully in "My Bodyguard." He has also starred in "Liar's Moon" and recently completed "The Outsiders" with Francis Copola.

"Tex" is the story of two teen-age brothers who are on their own in the quiet town of Bixby, Okla. Dillon and Jim

Dillon says that the character, Tex McCormick, is far removed from his own life.

"Tex is naive, unworried, strictly a country boy," he said. "I had to adopt a simple state of mind in order to play him."

John Happy With Lower Ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elton John of the spectacular spectacles and jazzy jackets has found at age 35 that there's more to life than the No. 1 spot on the record charts.

The Englishman, who once described himself as "a receding-haired piano player in a ridiculous jacket," is enjoying himself far more now than he did towards the end of his six-year reign as king of the pop balladeers.

"The record sales have gone down, but I'm happy. Try to work that one out!" John says.

He's about to launch a two-month tour in the United States, the last leg of a worldwide spin that began in Australia early this year.

The tour, timed with the release of John's latest and 23rd album, "Jump Up," is designed to do something about the sagging record sales. John's previous album, "The Fox," took an unprecedented full year to go gold.

"Jump Up" has been well received by reviewers and, more importantly, radio seems kindly disposed towards such cuts as "Ball and Chain," which features guest guitarist Peter Townsend of The Who, and "Empty Garden," a moving tribute to the late John Lennon. The song was co-written by John and Bernie Taupin, the lyricist-sidekick of John's glory days.

"I haven't really promoted an album on the road since 1976, which was the 'Rock of the Westies' album, so that's a long time ago," he said. "It helps to tour with the record, it really does."

But while the albums continued to roll out, John admits he was burnt out. At one point he announced that he would never again tour, and for a few years there were almost no performances.

The sporadic tours that followed, while successful, had little to do with album release dates.

"You can't force yourself," he says. "If I forced myself to go out on the road when an album came out beforehand, I wouldn't have been particularly very happy, because that's why I stopped in 1976 — to get my priorities right."

This time around, John says, he intended only to play a few dates in Australia. But the shows successfully reunited his old band and the European and U.S. dates were added.

"If it wasn't fun, I wouldn't do it, believe you me," John says.

John says that he's abandoned his onetime non-stop social whirl in favor of a quieter life centered around his estate in Windsor, the soccer team he owns and his work as a board member of the National Youth Theater.

"I used to go to the opening of a wallet, but I don't anymore," he says with a laugh. "I've had all that with the rock'n'roll thing. When you get a little older, your values change. I have to have time off."

Older Actors Follow Different Roads; One To U.S. Presidency

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — Richard Todd, that fine British actor, was heading to work at a West End theater on a recent summer evening when he heard the boom of an artillery battery in Hyde Park.

"I thought of myself: My how things change and how the world goes around. We both had the same chances, and here we are. Well, I'm happy, and I hope he is."

Todd is starring in "The Business of Murder," now in its 17th month at the Mayfair Theater. Ronald Reagan, his co-star three decades ago, was in his 17th month in this business of the presidency, receiving a 41-gun salute on his way to be a house guest of the queen at Windsor Castle on the eve of a historic address to the Houses of Parliament.

In 1948, they co-starred in a movie, "The Hasty Heart," and used to ride together every day past this same park to and from Elstree Studios just outside London.

That was one of the nice things Ronnie did for me right at the beginning," Todd reminisced in his backstage dressing room before donning his murderer's makeup. "I was an unknown quantity, a newcomer, and he was a big international star, living at the Savoy, where he would be picked up and delivered by a studio car."

Richard Todd had the lead in "The Hasty Heart" and won an Oscar nomination for his sensitive, unforgettable portrayal of the lonely, friendless Scottish soldier dying of a kidney wound in a field hospital. Reagan had the supporting role of the American, known simply as "Yank."

Todd lit up a big cigar and looked into the past through a cloud of smoke hovering over the tattered play posters on his dressing room wall.

"I seem to remember, although my mind may have since invented it, that Ronnie was sizing me up at that first lunch, being a bit apprehensive. There is a tendency now to denigrate his acting career, which is very unfair. He was an established leading man, and I was straight from repertory, what you call stock. Here he was hanging his reputation on the line, supporting an unknown actor on whom the whole play depended."

"Ronnie showed no resentment at all. He was thoroughly professional and always kind," Todd continued. "He handed me everything and never hogged a scene."

The two kept up their friendship when Todd went to Hollywood for several films. "He had married Nancy, and I had dinner at their home in Los Angeles. Ronnie had become president of the Screen Actors Guild and, as such, was on the fringes of politics. I knew he was going to run for something eventually. It was sort of a project in his life. If someone had said to me at that time, some day he'd be president, I'd have not been all that surprised."

Christopher Columbus is usually credited with planting the first orange tree in America.

Desert And River Home For Guide

TERLINGUA, Texas (AP) — Sitting on the porch of the old Chisos Mining Co. building here, watching the wind spin clouds of dust as dry as ground bone, it's hard to imagine tons of water rushing madly through the mighty canyons of the Big Bend.

Yet, housed in the building is the major float trip outfitter for the Rio Grande, which only miles away is churning its way to the Gulf of Mexico.

A sign hanging from the roof of the porch says, "Far Flung Adventures, World Wide Headquarters." Occupying a worn wooden bench on the porch, smoking Marlboros and emptying cans of Lone Star, is Mike Davidson, 29, co-founder of Far Flung.

"The population has increased 1,000 percent since I moved here, which is only from three to 30," Davidson said. "It's still hard not to call it the ghost town."

Davidson's company is in large part responsible for the resettlement of Terlingua, a town that was abandoned in the 1940s after area mercury mines were flooded.

For thirty years, the town sat virtually empty, the yellow adobe buildings drying and falling apart under the relentless sun. Then, in 1975, Davidson, an avid outdoorsman since childhood, came to the area to take a raft trip down the Rio Grande, through Big Bend National Park.

"My partner, Steve Harris, had started rafting in California," the former construction worker said. "I was amazed. I said, 'You mean I can get paid for camping and traveling down the river and eating good food?' I went on a two-week trip with Steve. We had a lot of time to talk about it."

The result was the founding of Far Flung in 1977.

"I don't think we really thought about the future when we started it," Davidson said. "We said we'll just camp out and see what happens. Then the guy who owned this place rented us a place at his ghost town. We had saved some money and it was real cheap to live for a good while."

"We met people over at Big Bend Park who liked us and helped us out because we were one, real safe, and two, real concerned about our impact on the river," he said.

The blossoming of the company surprised the owners nearly as much as it did everyone else. Now, the company employs as many as 20 river guides and took 300 people floating down the river in May.

"We have people out on the river all the time," Davidson said. "This is about like a base camp."

An old warehouse used by the mining company was re-roofed and is used to store the deflated rubber rafts, oars and food supplies. Headquarters is in the back of the mining company office — which also holds two restaurants, a store and a motel office.

Tourists embarking on a float trip meet Davidson's boatmen in Terlingua and are driven 17 miles to Lajitas, where the raft trip begins. The average trip is two days and one night and ends just beyond Santa Elena Canyon, a narrow gorge between cliffs that are Mexican on one side and American on the other.

"We also have a trip that's three days and two nights," Davidson said. "The larger trip suits those who are extremely curious or extremely lazy."

The guide sits in the middle of the raft, armed with two oars to direct the boat through the fast-moving current. Paddling by the tourists is optional.

"We encourage participation," Davidson said. "They help us tote their stuff. But we have a lot of older people — people 80 years old — who can't paddle. It's not necessarily that strenuous, but they have the option of just having everybody sit and letting the guide paddle."

Lunch consists of fruits and cheese and the guide prepares a steak dinner at the overnight campsite.

As whitewater goes, the river is not that hazardous, although Davidson said, "There are a few interesting places we have to negotiate."

The one "significant rapid" is a stretch in Santa Elena Canyon called the Rockslide.

"It's a technical rapid which means you have to make several decisive maneuvers," he said. "No matter how many times I go down the slide, I always scout it first."

"I saw a couple of guys in a little rubber raft not too long ago and they headed right into it. I hollered, 'Hey, uh, aren't you guys going to take a look at it first?' They said, 'We've been through here before.' I said, 'OK, you damn fools.'"

"When we made it through there, they were standing over on the bank all wet and smoking cigarettes like you do when you've just had a scare."

Davidson, a wiry man with the deep tan of the outdoors, said he has had a few scares in the Rockslide, where the dashing water forms suckholes and hydraulic pulls through the big boulders.

"People die there," he said.

"I've known a couple of people who were knowledgeable boaters get into real trouble in there when the water is high. But nobody has died there who had a life jacket on."

Taking that kind of risk is exciting for many and Davidson says he gets 40 to 50 applications a year from people who want to be boatmen, despite the living conditions in the area.

"The living conditions are very primitive," he said. "I've got a little adobe house with no electricity and no running water."

"But it's a very stimulating place to be. We have people putting down roots in the area, buying land and things."

Most of the people in Terlingua found living quarters the same way Davidson did — pick an adobe ruin, put a roof on it and move in.

After Davidson and Harris moved into the area, Billy Pat McKinney and his family bought the ghost town and slowly are developing it as a tourist community.

"They're doing what they can, but it's expensive to fix up these old buildings," Davidson said. "This was a thrown-away town before they came down here."

Although the ghost town now has life, it still remains among the most isolated places in the country. There is no television reception in the area, only an occasional Mexican radio station and no newspapers. The nearest town of any size is Presidio, 67 miles to the west. But Davidson said the residents find ways to entertain themselves.

"Boredom is where you find it," he said, smashing a cigarette butt with a canvas hiking boot. "We make our own music around here, whenever we have time. We have a lot of real fine musicians around here. And, I run the river for entertainment.

"I feel like there's very few people in the world who get to run the rivers all year round. I certainly can't think of anything else I'd rather do."

Trummerburg, a hill rising 377 feet at the edge of the Grunewald Forest park in West Berlin, is composed entirely of bulldozed rubble from World War II bombing of Berlin.

An air conditioner can improve the performance of your furnace.

An air conditioner?

A very special air conditioner called the add-on heat pump. It cools in summer and heats in winter. And it works with whatever kind of furnace you have.

The add-on heat pump will improve the performance of your furnace by keeping it off completely during a good portion of the winter. The add-on heat pump can satisfy your home's heating requirements more economically when temperatures are above 30° or so. That's about 80% of our area's normal heating season.

Then, when summer comes, the heat pump becomes a cool pump, efficiently air conditioning the home. So, when you're in the market for air conditioning, look into the add-on heat pump.

Lawyers Finding Ways Around Mute Witnesses

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) — Mary Lou Anderson was under a death sentence with nothing to lose when she agreed to testify against Feryl Granger, her partner in the 1978 execution-style murder of her parents in nearby Sugar Land.

As a reward for helping prosecutors win a death sentence against Granger as well, her punishment was reduced to 50 years in prison, and with that, most folks in this quiet town on the shores of the Brazos River figured the case was closed.

But after Miss Anderson got off death row, Granger appealed and won a new trial — and then, to the dismay of prosecutors, she refused to repeat the testimony so crucial to the state's case against him.

What happened next, according to District Attorney Bill Meitzen, is now the basis for a landmark appeal that he feels could change the way prosecutors treat couples accused of committing crimes together.

When Miss Anderson refused to testify at Granger's second trial, Meitzen simply brought out the old transcripts of her testimony from Granger's first trial and read them to the jury. Granger was convicted again.

"Her lawyers were telling her there's no way I could win the trial without her testimony, so she thought she had me over a barrel," Meitzen recalled. "Fortunately, we had a very wise district judge who let me put in her prior testimony."

Defense attorneys protested that such a use of prior testimony was illegal. They argued the only way Miss Anderson's previous statements could be introduced as evidence would be if she were unable to show up in court because she had moved out of the state or was too sick, or dead.

The question, which attorneys say has never been tested in Texas, is now in the hands of the 13th Court of Appeals in Corpus Christi, and Meitzen said he expects a decision by the end of the year. He admits if the court throws out Miss Anderson's prior testimony he will have no case against Granger.

Granger got off death row because the court ruled an accomplice's testimony must be backed up by at least one other witness in a capital murder case. At his second trial, he was convicted of simple murder and sentenced to life in prison.

If he wins a third trial on the previous testimony issue, "We'd have to turn him loose. A killer will be walking the streets again, looking to kill somebody else," Meitzen said.

The bodies of Miss Anderson's father and stepmother were found tied, gagged and each shot several times in the head in their Sugar Land home Jan. 3, 1978. Prosecutors said Granger murdered the couple in a plot to share proceeds from a $10,000 insurance policy with Miss Anderson, a convicted hot check writer who was facing a prison term unless she made good on about $6,000 in worthless checks.

More important, Meitzen said, is the effect Granger's appeal could have on the often delicate negotiations between prosecutors and defendants accused of participating in the same crime.

Prosecutors must decide whom they want to go after and whom they want to bargain with in exchange for testimony, the district attorney said.

"It's like dealing with one devil to get a meaner devil," said Meitzen, who has come under criticism recently for not bringing to trial the woman charged in another notorious murder committed by a man and a woman acting together.

In both cases, Meitzen said, the woman's testimony is essential in convicting the man.
