Both sides in the Spanish civil war rejected proposals of the international neutrality committee to control arms shipments today. Each complained about foreign volunteers helping the other.

The replies were disheartening to Great Britain and France, facing new parliamentary sessions. France ordered warships in Spanish waters to turn guns on ship or plane attacking them.

An unidentified Spanish plane dropped bombs near a French destroyer Monday but failed to land a hit. Identity of the plane was not announced and it was not known whether it belonged to rebel or loyalist forces.

The government routed insurgents at El Cerro del Los Angeles, geographical center of Spain, claiming it was one of their most important victories.

Germany and Portugal have already said they favor elimination of all non-Spaniards from participation in the civil struggle. Portuguese, German and Italian soldiers have been fighting with the Spanish fascists and soldiers from Russia, France and other countries have joined the Spanish socialists.

Mrs. W. Harvey Sloan was re-elected chairman of the Midland County Public Health Board at the annual meeting of the board in the county court room of the Midland County Court House Monday evening. Other officers elected were: Mrs. E. H. Ellison, vice-chairman; Mrs. H. N. Phillips, secretary; John P. Butler, treasurer; and Mrs. Nettie C. Romer, tuberculosis secretary. The Junior Wednesday Club was again voted a board membership, the board member to be appointed by Mrs. Sloan were as follows:

Education, Mrs. Addison Young, Mrs. Jas. H. Goodman, Mrs. W. L. Miller, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Blake Chapman; Tuberculosis, Mrs. E. H. Ellison, Mrs. Nettie C. Romer, School, Mrs. P. H. Phillips and Rawlins Clark; Social Service, Mrs. John Haley, Ralph Geisler and Newmie Ellis.

Featuring the evening program, an interesting and educational paper on, "The History of Pharmacy in Texas," was read by Rawlins Clark, local pharmacist. Stating that the history of pharmacy has a direct connection with the history of the State of Texas, Mr. Clark traced the history of pharmacy from its beginning in the State to the present. He stated that the first drug store in Texas was established in Galveston in 1867, the second being established in 1869 at Columbus. Advertising was considered unethical by early druggists, said Mr. Clark. Legislation protecting druggists and citizens was discussed, regulations pertaining to present day druggists being much more stringent than in early days. Narcotic and poison laws were discussed as was the advent of the wholesale drug companies. The advent of the soda fountain in 1911 was an important day in the history of the pharmacy, said the speaker, who added that fountain business has developed into a year round business. Pharmacy schools and their development were mentioned, druggists of today being much more qualified as a result of higher standards in (See MRS. SLOAN, Page 6)

NEW WINKLER WELL FLOWS 32 BARRELS HOURLY, NATURAL

Adams & Bradley 1
Edwards Stops
Drilling

BY FRANK GARDNER
Adams & Bradley No. 1 W. P. Edwards, second well in the area of extreme northwest Winkler county, opened last year by the Fields, Fintley and Cherry No. 1 Lum Daugherty discovery, stopped drilling last night at 2,998 feet in lime and will be completed at that depth. The well logged a pay increase from 2,991 to 2,998 and flowed 32 barrels of 35 gravity oil hourly, with a 300,000 cubic feet of gas. First pay was found at 2,967 feet by the big gas horizon had been penetrated at 2,958. The Adams & Bradley well ran much higher than the discovery well, which it offsets diagonally to the southwest. It is located 330 feet from the north and east lines of the southeast quarter of section 6, block C-23, public school land. Sun Oil Company No. 1 Edwards, a half-mile southwest of the Adams & Bradley producer, loomed as the third oil well in the area when it showed 700 feet of oil and 300 feet of drilling mud with 350,000 cubic feet of gas when given a 20-minute drill-stem test from 3,100 to 3,175. The well drilled soft from 3,175 to 3,175 and is believed to have logged some oil at that point. Operators will run 7-inch casing to 3,100 feet. Location of the Sun test is 1,650 feet from the south and 2,310 feet from the west line of section 6.

Yokum Producer
Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Company No. 1 Bennett, new producer in the Bennett pool of southwestern Yokum county, is shut down for orders at 5,236 feet in line. The well, which had been heading from 60 to 80 barrels a day, logged an increase in pay from 5,231 to total depth, drilling the five feet in one hour. It was rumored to have flowed 120 barrels yesterday evening in an unspecified length of time. Whether the well will be carried to water in search of more pay horizons or completed at its present depth has not been announced. The water table in the Bennett pool has not yet been defined. DISORDER FLARES IN STRIKE AREAS BETWEEN GROUPS

Workers Prevented
From Laboring
By Pickets

DEADLOCK SEEN

Both Sides Ready To Hold Grounds For Long Time

DETROIT, Jan. 19. (P)—Disorder flared today in the automotive strike when a union "picket line" prevented workers from entering the Briggs manufacturing plant, forcing it to shut down. Police used tear gas but there were no serious injuries.

General Motors and United Automobile Workers of America made no further moves toward peace conferences in their far-flung walk-out.

Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, in Washington for a conference with the labor department, said he was confident "everything would work out all right."

The entire situation was back in a deadlock apparently more unyielding than it was last week when Murphy brought opposing leaders together in a 17-hour conference that produced a truce agreement providing for settlement negotiations to start Monday.

Again blocking the door to peace is the occupancy of two plants of the Fisher Body Company, a General Motors unit, at Flint, by union members who have held their positions since Dec. 30 in spite of a street battle with police in which 27 persons were injured and the subsequent calling out of 2,300 national guardsmen.

Washington Rode In Majestic Carriage

By JOHN M. VOYT
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (UP)—Scenes of gaiety, sad scenes with the tears of a nation, scenes of tense gravity and uproarious celebration have marked past presidential inaugurations.

Every inauguration has been held under widely different circumstances. Each has been marked by typical American disregard for the formal ceremonies of older nations. The one inaugural which came near to resembling England's dignified coronation ceremonies was the second inauguration of George Washington.

The stately general, dressed in fine lace, shining silk and flashing silver buckles, rode in a majestic carriage, drawn by six prancing white horses. The Liberty Bell atop Independence Hall rang out a continuous cheer.

"Long live George Washington, president of the United States!" When John Adams came into office four years later, his inauguration was quiet and simple—a striking contrast to the lavish ceremonies of his predecessor. Adams, first president to occupy the partly completed White House, paid high tribute to Washington and the Constitution and retired quietly for the remainder of his inaugural day.

Jefferson in Homespun
Even more simple was the quiet, uneventful inaugural of Thomas Jefferson, the first chief executive to take the oath of office in Washington. The founder of the Democratic party rode to the capitol in horseback. There, standing proud and erect, clothed in homespun, he was sworn in by Chief Justice Marshall on a platform erected on the steps of the partly completed capitol.

Up to March 4, 1809, no inauguration had been climaxed by what is known today as the "Inaugural Ball." The first three administrations had been conservative. The next was just the opposite.

Howard Hughes Sets Air Speed Record

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 19. (P)—Howard Hughes, flying movie producer, today set a new transcontinental speed record of 7 hours, 29 minutes, 27 seconds from Los Angeles to Newark.

The new record breaks the mark set by Hughes last January.

Fingerprints and a stolen suit helped the law catch up with Major Green, 33, colored, in the hammer murder of beautiful Mrs. Mary Case in her New York City apartment. Less than 36 hours after Mrs. Case's body was found half submerged in the bathtub at her home, Green, a porter in the building was arrested. He is shown examining scratches and claws on his arm, which police believe were inflicted by his victim.

Three Inaugurals Not at Capitol

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (UP)—Every presidential inauguration has been held in Washington except the first three, two for George Washington and one for John Adams.

The first inaugural was held in Federal Hall, New York City, then the seat of government. The second was in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, where the capital had been moved. John Adams also was inaugurated in Philadelphia.

The first inauguration in Washington was that of Thomas Jefferson.

son of the second chief executive. The ceremonies staged for these two were simple and quiet.

Jackson Swayed Masses
The election of Andrew Jackson, however, brought back to Washington some of the old hilarity that was present during the Madison regime. People all over the country were wearing hickory leaves in the lapels and carrying hickory canes as tokens of their allegiance to the fiery backwoodsman.

The president, grief-stricken over the death of his beloved Rachel, tried to shake the hand of every person who pushed into the White House following his inaugural. The crowd became boisterous, chairs and tables were broken, mirrors and glassware smashed. "Old Hickory" was forced to seek the quiet of an upstairs apartment.

The inauguration of Martin Van Buren of New York, was nearer a duplication of Washington's second inaugural than any since. The president-elect and "Old Hickory" the retiring chief executive, rode in a magnificent phaeton, constructed entirely of wood taken from the old Frigate Constitution, and drawn by four fine horses, wearing brass studded harness belonging to Jackson.

Tyler's Address Published
Van Buren was succeeded by William Henry Harrison, who had served but one month of his term when he died. The vice president, John Tyler, three days later published his inaugural address in the columns of a newspaper.

The next man to enter the White House was James Knox Polk, the only president in history who was formerly speaker of the house of representatives.

The Ohio river was at flood stage along a 980-mile course today and other middle western streams threatened additional destruction in Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Illinois and Missouri.

Thousands have deserted their homes and six persons have lost their lives.

Rains ranging from one to more than two inches sent the mighty Ohio out of its banks in some section and raised fear of serious flood damage along its course from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill.

The broad river and its tributaries swelled steadily. Hundreds of lowlanders joined several thousand others who fled to the hills in the inundated areas. Industrial plants, which lost $1,000,000 worth of machinery in floods last March moved equipment.

Garfield's Mother Saw Son Inducted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (UP)—Mrs. James A. Roosevelt, mother of the president, will be the second mother to witness the inauguration of her son.

The first was the mother of James A. Garfield. She stood beside him while he delivered his inaugural address.

Garfield's first official act after taking the oath of office was to turn and kiss his mother as she proudly watched her son made president.

Mrs. Roosevelt also was present when her son took the oath for his first term four years ago.

Blue Line for Grant
Next came another figure prominent in Civil War history. On March 4, 1869, Washington was full of blue clad in faded blue uniforms. They came to the capitol to see their old General, Ulysses S. Grant, made the president.

While Grant was reading his inaugural address, his little daughter, Nellie, became frightened by the cheering crowds and ran out on the platform where her "daddy" was standing. Grant, holding the paper in one hand, reached down, took the little girl's hand in his, and continued reading.

The day of his second inauguration was the coldest inaugural in history. The thermometer that day read 4 degrees above zero. The next president, Rutherford B. Hayes, was sworn in secretly on Saturday, March 3, because of uneasiness felt over the decision of the electoral college.

The successor of Hayes was James A. Garfield, the second president to be assassinated. Garfield's mother, standing beside him as he read his inaugural address, was the first mother to witness the inauguration of her son.

Garfield Inaugural Simple
Garfield was succeeded by vice president Chester A. Arthur. Grover Cleveland was inaugurated with simple ceremonies in 1885. He later served a second term, following four years in which Benjamin Harrison was chief executive.

Harrison's inaugural was spoiled by a pouring rain. The president-elect and his predecessor rode together in an open carriage. An attempt was made to raise an umbrella but it would not open. It was necessary to borrow

Governor Offer
To do Duty

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (P)—Governor Allred said today that stability of the government was being tested by great problems but expressed confidence it would endure in his second inauguration speech today.

The governor said that the constitutional oath of office was sufficient to inspire highest resolves "but to take the oath amidst these historical surroundings, after a marvelous vote of confidence given to me is more than an inspiration. It is a definite, challenging call to service." He added "we are re-consecrated and rededicated to tasks that lie ahead."

Thousands of persons were present at the inauguration from every section of Texas. The ceremony was held in the Hotel de Representatives, including re-inauguration of Lieutenant Governor Walter Wood-ul.

At least 15,000 persons watched the ceremony and many thousands are expected to attend the inaugural ball and other dances at the gymnasium of the University of Texas and in hotels. Hotel space has been sold out and homes threw open their doors to visitors.

The governor will attend the official reception with his mother, Mrs. Renne Allred, Sr., of Bowie. His father was present at the inauguration, as was several of his brothers.

The entire ceremony is under auspices of the legislature with senate and house sitting in joint session and speaker Robert Calvert of Hillsboro presiding.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — Mr. Roosevelt, as he moves toward some action to curb the powers he feels have been usurped by the U. S. Supreme Court, will undertake to show that his attitude toward the Constitution is similar to that of the founding fathers who wrote it, and that members of the court are the ones who have misinterpreted that document.

So his followers and spokesmen will raise the shade of poor Dred Scott, quote the critical dissents of Justices Brandeis, Stone, and Cardozo, and launch expeditions back to the point of 150 years ago when the Constitution's framers were telling one another exactly what they thought they were doing.

In his first message to this Congress, the president urged all hands to read the constitutional debates. You can do that with surprising results, because the history of the Constitution's origin is still unknown to the great bulk of Americans.

Just how interesting such study can be was demonstrated in Washington the other day by Irving Brant of the St. Louis Star-Times, an authority whose "Storm Over the Constitution" is kept handy around the White House and in other important New Deal offices.

James Madison, often called the Constitution's "father," said that "the power to regulate commerce is indivisible and ought to be wholly under one authority."

It was one of the grandest celebrations that the democrats had staged for many years. Gay bunting and flags hung everywhere.

The day broke crisp and bright. Early in the morning the crowds had already begun assembling in choice positions along Pennsylvania Avenue. Bands played; soldiers, sailors, marines and civic organizations passed in a parade lasting for hours.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those nagging, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 16 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 16 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

COMFORT

The Most Valuable Asset Any Home Can Have

WHAT YOU MAY EXPECT FROM EAGLE INSULATION

IN SUMMER

IN WINTER

● Because Eagle Home Insulation turns back the sun's scorching heat, it helps keep your home cool on hot summer days and nights. Records kept of homes insulated with Eagle often show as much as a 15° temperature difference between inside and outside readings. And that includes upstairs rooms, too. Temperature there is usually within 1° of the lower floor. Full nights of restful sleep, therefore, come easily, naturally. Eagle Insulation keeps out the heat of the day, thereby allowing you to enjoy the natural coolness of night.

● What a magic change this material brings in winter! Being thick and efficient, it keeps cold, damp air outside where it belongs, and warm heated air inside, where it can do its work of making you comfortable. With Eagle Insulation securely packed in the attic, your heating plant has a chance to fill your rooms with the warmth you desire. The interior of your home is never seriously affected by what happens to outside temperature. Fuel bills cut from 1/3 to 1/2. Stops sweating walls.

We thought we would be gone by this time, but Midland people keep calling on us to insulate their homes; so we have shipped another carload of insulating material here. Twenty-three Midland homes are enjoying this comfort now... names of these people will be given on application and we give them all as references.

Comic Interest

The adventures of her favorite comic strip characters take precedence over the rights to be seen on her first visit to New York City as Jane Withers, 10-year-old screen actress, stretches herself out on the floor of her hotel room and follows them in wide-eyed wonder. Jane was disappointed because she could not use her ice skates and snow suits.

The freezing weather which continued for several days, froze up our water system causing considerable inconvenience, but no permanent damage was done.

The bus made all schedules during the freezing weather without an accident.

We had a new bus driver, J. C. Bradley, to take charge of the bus last Monday morning, following the resignation of our former bus driver, Joseph Franks.

The attendance, which is crowding the capacity of the bus to deliver the children to and from school in two trips mornings and afternoon, is still increasing. Students have enrolled here from the following places: Houston, Alton, Stanton, Courtney, and Stokes.

LOOK OUT FOR THOSE HALF-SICK DAYS

Everybody, at one time or another, has had such days. You may have a headache, bad breath or coated tongue. You feel listless—"down-in-the-mouth." Often these are signs of common constipation.

It's dangerous to neglect constipation. This condition is usually due to "low-bulk" meals. Get "bulk" back by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has helped millions of people keep regular habits. Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the intestines.

Isn't this food better than taking artificial pills and drugs—often habit-forming? Try ALL-BRAN for a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Just eat two tablespoons daily, either as a cereal with milk or cream or in cooked dishes. Three times daily, in severe cases. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BUILT BY CHRISTIAN SLAVES

SULTAN JAKOB ABEN JOSEF, who called himself "El Mansur," the victorious, avenged the death of his father in 1184 by wiping out the Spanish army at Santaren. His men pillaged and burned the cities, destroyed the crops, and carried back to Morocco thousands of Christian men, women, and children.

Before he set forth on another expedition to Spain, he encamped his men on a plain across the river from Sale, and so moved was he at the sight of the camp that he decided to build a new city. This became Rabat, now capital of Morocco and seat of the French colonial government.

Thousands of Spaniards, brought there in slavery were used to build the great wall that surrounded the old city. The mosque that now is marked by a few columns, and the Tower of Hassan, memorial to an earlier Moorish chieftain. This tower appears on three types of stamps issued by France for Morocco in 1917, 1923, and 1933. The stamp of 1923 is shown here.

Fleet Ladysman Fails in His Four Biggest Races

One of The Greatest 2-Year-Olds In History

This is the first of five articles on famous racing failures.

BY MAX RIDDLE

NEA Service Turf Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 19. — Ladysman was one of the greatest two-year-olds of the past 20 years. He earned $111,000 as a juvenile.

As a four-year-old on May 30, 1934, Ladysman whipped the mighty Equipoise in a thrilling stretch duel in the time-honored Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park. The W. R. Coe stake campaigner possessed speed and could carry weight. The white-faced thoroughbred proved his gallantry and the stoutness of his heart in numerous other races. He won eight in all and $134,000. He retired to the stud with a splendid reputation, and is expected to enjoy his share of success there.

Yet Ladysman was a failure—a tragic one—in the four great efforts of his life. With all his class, pick-up and courage, he flopped when the chips were down.

Ladysman first was a disappointment in the Belmont Futurity of 1932. By virtue of a sparkling victory in the Arlington Futurity, and a Saratoga grand slam of the United States Hotel, Grand Union Hotel and Hopeful Stakes, he was an even money choice.

Bows to 30-to-1 Shot in Futurity
Kerry Patch, a 30-to-1 shot, beat Ladysman in the Belmont Futurity. Kerry Patch had the luck to get out in front and sufficient stick-to-it to remain there. Ladysman began in a tangle. Just when it seemed that he might get through to score, he was blocked. Even then Kerry Patch, which had eight pounds the best of it in the weights, prevailed by less than a length.

The Kentucky Derby of 1933 long will be remembered for the battle between Brokers Tip and Head Play, and the fistcuffs between the jockeys Meade and Fisher. But many also remember that Ladysman, the winter book favorite which carried their money, failed to get up. Brokers Tip went to the post a maiden and never won another race.

Ladysman raced wide for almost the entire mile and a quarter. The extra long journey took too much out of him, with the result that when it was time to move on the leaders he could not rally.

The chips again were down in the Preakness. It was another of Ladysman's game bids, but Head Play, with Cahrey Kirtsinger up, ran the most remarkable Preakness since Mon o' War's. He could not be denied in his finest effort, and once more Ladysman ran second.

Trails Outsider in Santa Anita 'Cap'
Ladysman was in a position for a killing in the first running of the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap in February, 1935. That was the one in which all the celebrated cripples were entered, Twenty Grand, Equipoise, Mate, Faireno, Cavalcade, and some more. Several of them failed to get to the post, but nevertheless the field was a remarkable one. No less than 20 started.

Ladysman ran a smashing race. But one other animal ran an even better one. He was Fred M. Alger's imported Azucar, the converted jumper. We know now that, like Kerry Patch, Azucar was not fit to match bridle with Ladysman. Yet that afternoon, when it meant $109-

So Near And Yet So Far

Ladysman

Head Play, the handsome head of which is shown above, failed in his four biggest races, yet beat the great Equipoise in a thrilling stretch duel in the time-honored Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park, May 30, 1934. The winner is on the rail.

500, Azucar, which paid $26.80 for a $2 mutual ticket, was Ladysman's superior. Second money amounted to $10,000.

His best simply wasn't good enough in the big moments, so Ladys-man, one of the best horses in years, finished his racing career unable to win any of the four major objectives of his life.

Oil News--

Honolulu and Cascade discovery was at first thought to have encountered water when it showed a third of a barrel an hour at 5,282, but subsequent analysis showed it to be the same as water known definitely to have come from behind leaky casing. The discovery was plugged back to 5,266 and shot April 6, 1936, with 370 quarts of oil from 5,078 to 5,260, gauging 235 barrels the first 24 hours after shot.

The T. P. well is over a quarter-mile northwest of the pool opener, and is located in the center of the northeast of the northwest of section 678, block D, John H. Gibson survey.

The Cochran county well, Honolulu, Cascade and Devonian No. 1 E. B. Duggan, flowed 395.4 barrels in 24 hours through open 2-inch tubing following re-treatment with 4,000 gallons. A previous acid shot of 2,250 gallons had brought the well's daily potential from 168 barrels up to 303. Now that the Cochran discovery has attained a 400-barrel rating the area will undoubtedly come in, for greater interest, probably resulting in a pipe-line connection in the near future. It is the most northerly producer in the West Texas district.

Loving Prospect
Mason No. 2 Mrs. Minnie Kyle, new Loving county Delaware production prospect, remained shut down for orders today. It was reported the operator had gone to Fort Worth. The well filled up 3,000 feet with oil in 36 hours after drilling a pay section in the Delaware sand from 3,991 to 3,911, the total depth. Gas volume is an estimated 500,000 cubic feet, with elevation of 3,053. The No. 2 Kyle topped the Delaware black lime at 3,859 and the Delaware sand at 3,895. It is 2,310 feet from the north and east lines of section 20, block 55, township 1 N., T. & P. survey, about 20 miles northwest of the Wheat pool at Mentone, the only pool in West Texas producing from the Delaware formation.

In the Wheat pool, Ninety-Two Petroleum Company No. 2 Reagan & McElvain, a field well, has been completed for daily flow of 23.85 barrels. It topped pay at 4,218, halted drilling at 4,234, and was shut with 180 quarts. It has been cleaning out since last November.

Ector Well Shot
Shot early this morning with 80 quarts from 4,200 to 4,230, the total depth, American Maracibo No. 1 Scharbauer, new well in the gap between the Cummins and Goldsmith pools, in northwest Ector county.

EX-BIG SPRING OFFICER DIES

Heart Attack is Fatal To Frank James House, Former Sheriff

BIG SPRING, Jan. 19 (Special).—Death struck suddenly Sunday afternoon, to claim Frank James House, long-time peace officer in West Texas and a former sheriff of Howard county. House, 49, succumbed to a heart attack, while in a pasture south of Big Spring where he had gone with a young grandson, Donald Edward House, to gather wood.

A coroner's inquest, of death from angina pectoris was returned. Officials said House was stricken as he stooped to lift his grandson over a fence. Death was instantaneous.

Born in Eastland county March 10, 1887, House was reared in Sterling City. He came to Big Spring in 1922, serving first as a special officer for the railroad, then as a deputy under the late W. W. Satterwhite. When Satterwhite was killed, House was appointed sheriff in April, 1925. He was elected to the office for another term, serving until Jess Slaughter assumed the post in 1929. Since that time, House served as a deputy in Tom Green and Andrews counties. He resided there at 700 Abrams street.

Two Boston Cemeteries Date Back 306 Years

BOSTON, (U.P.) — Twenty cemeteries, two of them 306 years old, are part of Boston's park department. The famous King's Chapel cemetery and the Eliot cemetery at Roxbury were established in 1630.

flowed 106 barrels of oil, the first two hours and a half after the shot went off and is still on test. Gas volume was high, being estimated at from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 cubic feet. The well had been flowing an average of 30 barrels an hour before shooting. It is in section 19, block 44, township 1 north, T. & P. survey.

On a re-test after second treatment with 5,000 gallons of acid, Gulf No. 3 Tubbs, in the Tubbs deep Permian pool of western Crane county, flowed 744 barrels in six hours. It made 459 barrels during the last four hours of the gauge, and on that basis was given a daily potential rating of 2,808 barrels. Total depth is 4,392.

Clark & Cooper and Smith No. 1 Jordan, northern Crane test, is standing after cementing 3,016 feet of 5 7/8-inch casing on bottom with 26 sacks.

Lewis' Reign One of Battles

In a series of four stories of which this is the third, Willis Thornton, NEA writer, tells of the eventful career of John L. Lewis, on whom the nation's eyes are centered in the great General Motors strike.

BY WILLIS THORNTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Through the years from 1920 to 1933, life was just one long fight for John L. Lewis.

He had to fight bitterly hostile coal operators, who had the advantage of backward and almost feudal conditions in many coal fields.

He had to fight minority elements and rivals in his own organization, with biting and gouging permitted and no holds barred.

He had to fight the sickness of the whole coal industry. Battered by war-spread overproduction, increasing competition of oil and gas, and increasing efficiency of coal-burning machinery, the whole industry has been sick for 20 years or more.

So Lewis' post-war slogan of "No Backward Step" was more aggressive than it sounds. For it must be read against the background of the drive to "deflate the war-time gains of labor."

In 1921 Lewis opposed Sam Gompers for president of the A. F. L. Lewis was nominated by William Green. Today Lewis will deny that he was very serious about this campaign.

Lewis lost, his own miners being divided. But getting even half as many votes as the veteran Sam Gompers helped enhance Lewis' prestige in labor circle.

Radical Label Didn't Fit

Stories were written at this time about "labor standing at the crossroads," with Lewis representing a radical threat to the conservative leadership of Gompers. But as a matter of fact, Lewis had been up to this time a thoroughly conventional labor leader, standing out simply by aggressiveness and force rather than by a radicalism of doctrine or aim.

For who but Lewis purged the United Mine Workers of I. W. W.'s and Communists at this time? When the Nova Scotia miners' fight with the "One Big Union" idea, which was the "wobbly radicalism" of the day, Lewis rejected them ruthlessly into the fold by threatening to kick them all out of the U. M. W.

Lewis' fulminations against Communism and any alien-directed radicalism make up a long record. It is true, however, the many of his strongest opponents in the U. M. W. were of radical complexion, and, in attacking radicalism, Lewis was also striking at his opponent.

Typical is Alexander Howat, leader of the Kansas miners. He was, and probably still is a Socialist, persistent, somewhat erratic, but all on fire with zeal and oratory.

Howat refused to send the Kansas miners back to work after the 1919 strike settlement, defied Governor Allen's compulsory arbitration law, and defied Lewis when the latter flayed him unmercifully as "a man devoid of principle and destitute of honor."

Forces Howat's Expulsion

The 1921 convention was all drama, with Howat crying out that the machine is trying to crucify me, and Lewis replying that Howat was a Red and a contract-breaker. But Lewis' melo-dramatic presentation of his case led to Howat's expulsion.

In 1924 Howat attempted a comeback, and ran Lewis a close shave in a vote for his reinstatement, 2-263 to 2,016. Pandemonium broke loose and shouts of "Re-count!" and "Mussolini!"

For an hour boing and disorder shook the hall, but Lewis stood firmly on the platform, pounding with his gavel.

He adjourned the meeting, and appointed a "provisional government" for the Kansas district, ending the Howat threat. For years thereafter Howat continued to try to get a foothold in U. M. W. conventions, but was never given a look-in.

ventions, but was never given a look-in.

Beat Farrington, Too

Frank Farrington was a totally different Lewis rival. Farrington ruled the Illinois district, one of the best organized in the U. M. W.

On several occasions Farrington tried to negotiate separate agreements for the miners of his own district. He and Lewis exchanged verbal lashings for years.

Then, while Farrington was in Paris in 1925, Lewis got his chance. He learned that Farrington had gone on the payroll of the Peabody Coal Co., for $25,000 a year. That finished Farrington, or practically so.

In 1922, only three years after the first great coal strike, came another. The anthracite and bituminous agreements expired on the same day, and the operators refused to negotiate new contracts.

Lewis wrote, "These operators do not deny that they are contract-breakers. They only say, 'well, what are you going to do about it?'"

Lewis Again Triumphs

What Lewis did was strike in both fields with lightning rapidity. For five months the strike dragged on, the union's resources fading away, the operators complacent in the fact that there was an oversupply of coal above ground anyway.

But at the end of that time, Lewis won a continuation of the old scale and the checkoff, and a national agreement. That was better than a cut, no checkoff, and state agreements.

In 1924 Lewis did it again, negotiating the now famous Jacksonville agreement, which continued until 1927 the 1920 rate of $7.50 a day. That was indeed considered a triumph, and Lewis was labor's hero of the hour, as well as the bogeyman of capitalists, who muttered of "King Lewis I," and "a bigger man than Coolidge."

But directly below the crest, there was a yawning trough. With-

Not All Employees In Favor of Strike

DETROIT, Jan. 18. — More than 9,000 men, virtually the entire personnel of the Chevrolet Gear and Axle Division of General Motors Corporation, staged a demonstration in Detroit last week against the strikes which have shut down General Motors plants and caused enforced idleness to more than 135,000 workers.

The Detroit demonstration occurred at the main plant of Chevrolet's four units on Holbrook avenue at St. Aubin.

There has been on strike in these Detroit units of Chevrolet. But the units, devoted to the manufacture of gears, axles, steel wheels, and knee action mechanism, are key suppliers of these automotive parts to ten assembly plants, and the sit down strikers in other plants have stopped all operations here.

It is estimated that more than 90 per cent of the men in the plants are eager to return to their jobs.

The employees assembled last week to receive their pay checks, their last pay until the resumption of operations.

While waiting for the paymaster's staff, the men held mass meetings in three years, Lewis was to see his union lose 200,000 members and approach bankruptcy.

On Verge of Civil War

Declining demand, and increasing competition from the West Virginia and Kentucky fields, where non-union mines paid $3 a day instead of $7.50, were playing hob with the Jacksonville agreement. The fight to unionize those states led to repeated bloodshed, almost to civil war. Mingo county and Sheriff Don Chafin and his company-paid labor history.

Lewis flayed the operators, who, he cried, "have torn up their wage contracts. . . the mine workers simply ask that these coal operators . . . be compelled to live up to their contracts and not act the part of industrial knaves and pitlooms who seek to render to their employees less than is their just due."

A blizzard of injunctions fell about Lewis, who disregarded them. The Illinois district and others were in turmoil. Membership fell away, the union treasury declined.

Puts Down Revolt

In 1930, the Illinois district, led by Howat, John Brophy of Pennsylvania, and John Walker, tried to call and anti-Lewis miners' convention to "save the union."

"The history of the U. M. W. under the regime of Lewis has been an unbroken series of defeats!" cried this convention. "Election-stealing, convention-packing, and slugging of delegates have reduced the old-time democracy of the union to a ghastly farce."

But Green, now head of the A. F. L., stood by Lewis, refusing to recognize the rebels. The move made little progress. Lewis stepped in "with my pit boots on." He arbitrarily imposed a wage contract and ousted local officials.

This strife culminated in the battle of Little Muddy river in 1932, when Franklin county, Illinois bristled with guns, and open warfare raged. The outlook for the Union in the four cafeterias of the Division and appointed a committee to express their opposition to the strikers and those causing their enforced idleness.

Appointing an employees' committee, headed by Arthur Evans and George Gilbert, workers in the plant the groups voted to publicize their opposition to the strike through personal telegrams to Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan and President Roosevelt. After the meetings, the four groups assembled in front of the main plant for a mass demonstration of protest, under banners with the legends: "We don't want a strike," "We want our jobs back," "We object to minority rule," and "No labor dictators for us."

Since this demonstration in Detroit, a conference has taken place between officials of General Motors Corporation and representatives of the striking faction. The meeting was called by the Governor and at its conclusion, statements were issued to the effect that negotiations for an early resumption of production would take place, starting today.

ted Mine Workers and John L. Lewis was dark and bloody.

Then came the NRA.

NEXT: Does Lewis want to be president? He pulls his union by NRA stirrups up to a new position of power, and reaches ahead to new policies.

Dog Succeeds Sire On Museum Watch

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (U.P.) — Rex succeeded his sire recently as assistant to Harvard's Fogg Museum's night watchman.

A 3-year-old 80-pound, Alsatian wolfhound, Rex, is proud of his new job. His sire, Astor recently retired after 11 years service. Astor was an unofficial member of the museum staff for 10 years and had been exceptionally well trained by Edward Daly, watchman.

Both dogs, purchased by the president and fellows of Harvard College, from watchdog training schools are believed to be the only dogs in this part of the county owned by a corporation.

Army Air Giant Defies Bad Luck

Its pilots defying the ill fortune that caused a crackup on an earlier test flight, the U. S. Army's 16-ton super-bombing plane roared into the air, above, at Seattle, Wash., for another "training" jaunt, and this time performed perfectly, officials said. Early in December, the huge machine, driven by four 1000-horsepower motors, nosed over in landing and was damaged. The flight shown here was the first since the mishap.

pharmacy schools. The differences between pharmacies and drug stores were enumerated, the drug profits and business practices being discussed along with the professional and commercial sides of the industry. The chain stores were discussed in relation to the independent drug stores, operating expenses being mentioned. It was prophesied by Mr. Clark that the drug industry, slow in getting started, will keep a step ahead of civilization in the future.

A report of the year's work was read by Mrs. Sloan, the activities and accomplishments of each of the various committees of the health board being mentioned. The local health board has completed its fifth year of service to the community, according to Mrs. Sloan, who, in her report, traced the development of the U. S. Public Health Service from its beginning to the present time. Mrs. Sloan's complete report appears elsewhere in this issue, and readers are urged to read the report in order to become more familiar with the activities of the board.

Using posters to represent the different phases of work stressed throughout the year, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, county health nurse, read her report of the year's work, the report showing greatly increased activities over the previous year. The phases of work stressed, according to the report, were: Tuberculosis, typhoid, radio educational programs, crippled children, conventions, posture, schools, office work, and the home, which was declared the most important. The report was well constructed and was exceptionally interesting to the listeners. The posters used in the report reading were made by Miss Ruth Carden who is employed in the office of Dr. Waldo Leggett.

Newnie Ellis reported on the vital statistics of the county during 1936, births during the year totaling 209 as compared to 88 deaths. Accidental deaths, especially highway accidents, led all others. There was not a single death from contagious diseases in the county during the year, according to Mr. Ellis.

Dr. W. E. Ryan, city health officer, reported on his work during the past year, stating that tests were run monthly on the milk and water supplies of the city, both comparing favorably with any other city in the state. The sewage system was also declared to be among the best in the country. Dr. Ryan thanked the board members and other citizens for their cooperation during the year. Interesting cases with which he came in contact were also cited by Dr. Ryan.

County Judge E. H. Barron spoke briefly regarding the year's work, extending appreciation to the board for its excellent work in behalf of the County Commissioners Court. Judge Barron lauded the Midland County Health Board as the greatest civic institution in Midland county.

By a unanimous vote, the sanitation and negro health committees were added to the standing committees of the health unit.

The report of the year's activities of the board, read by Mrs. Sloan last night, will be published in the Wednesday issue of The Reporter-Telegram.
