Another busy weekend is on tap for Midlanders.

Probably the biggest single event with be the Confederate Air Force's Wings 'n' Things air and car show at the Confederate Air Force headquarters adjoining Midland International Airport. Gates open each day at 8:30 a.m., with entertainment on stage from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. today and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 per person with children under 12 admitted free. A dance on the tarmac is set for 8 p.m. until midnight.

Members of the Lee High School band will be on hand at the event selling tickets for a car raffle drawing with proceeds go to finance their trip to the 1993 Rose Bowl Parade in Pasadena, Calif. Tickets will be on sale until the June 13 drawing.

Women in the market for a date are expected to converge on the Petroleum Club this evening beginning at 6 p.m. for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Sixth Annual Benefit Bachelor Auction. More than 30 bachelors and their date packages will be on the block at 7:30 p.m. A silent auction of sports memorabilia begins at 6 p.m.

The Texas Tornados — Doug Sahm, Freddy Fender, Augie Meyers and Flaco Jiminez — will play for a concert and dance at 8 p.m. at Twin Cities Speedway.

A polo match to benefitting the Midland Asssociation for Retarded Citizens is set for 4 p.m. Sunday at the Midland Polo Club, located 5505 Polo Club Road off Bluebird Lane. Admission for the event is $5 per car, with proceeds going to MARC.

First ticket

AUSTIN — Gov. Ann Richards plans to sell the first Texas Lottery ticket when the game begins at 6 a.m. May 29. "I'm going to do the first ticket," Richards said Friday, although details about where the sale will take place haven't been worked out. She also said she plans to buy a ticket. Andy Welch, spokesman for State Comptroller John Sharp, said Richards likely would sell the ticket in Austin but that could be changed if she wishes. "If she wants to do it from Dallas or Houston or Corpus Christi, we can probably find a location," Welch said. "Nothing has been set yet." Bill Cryer, spokesman for Richards, said the governor is making the sale at the request of Sharp, who oversees the lottery. "She said she'd be glad to help publicize the beginning of the lottery, since she helped pass the bill and the amendment" approved last year by voters, Cryer said. He also said Richards legally can buy a lottery ticket. "I guess she could win a million dollars if she were lucky enough," Cryer said.

Exxon cuts 50 jobs here

Company to move some workers to Midland

■ The cutbacks to be complete by Aug. 1, will include voluntary and involuntary separations.

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

An estimated 50 jobs in Exxon Co. USA's Southwestern Production Division office in Midland are expected to fall victim to the company's reorganization announced Friday.

The work force reduction, both voluntary and involuntary, is expected to be complete by Aug. 1.

According to Henry Beathard, a public affairs spokesman with Exxon in Houston, a net 10 percent reduction of jobs in the Midland office is expected. The company currently has more than 500 employees in Midland.

He also said the Midland drilling operations will be consolidated into Houston.

The cutbacks are expected to be offset by the transfer of people from Exxon's office in Thousand Oaks, Calif. Responsibility for onshore properties in the West-

Vote on energy bill due next week

Staff report

Despite the announced Exxon layoffs, not all the energy news was bad on Friday.

"It was a long time coming, but independent oil producers may have finally won a victory," Rep. Lamar Smith, said Friday at a press conference at the Petroleum Museum.

Smith said the Energy Bill which comes before the house next week will contain provisions for relief from the alternative minimum tax, and could mean $1 billion in savings to the oil industry over the next three years.

Smith said the House would debate the bill, produced by the Ways &

House leader to cooperate in subpoena

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski promised on Friday to cooperate with a federal grand jury that subpoenaed his office expense records. He also said he wanted to know "what this is all about."

Subpoenas from the grand jury investigating the chamber's post office, made public Thursday, sought six years of records from Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and from Pennsylvania Democrats Austin J. Murphy and Joseph Kolter. The grand jury also asked the House clerk for records of former Sergeant at Arms Jack Russ.

"Activities of House Post Office employees have been under investigation for some time," Rostenkowski said in a written statement. "Like many people, I am interested in learning what this is all about.

"If investigators need any relevant records or information from my staff or me to aid their inquiry, I will be happy to cooperate."

The records request covers the six-year period that ended April 15.

One House Democratic source, who is familiar with discussions between the U.S. attorney's office and the House over the scope of the request, suggested the grand jury could be investigating possible alteration or misuse of member ex-

Postal service cites Carl Hyde

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Carl O. Hyde, a most "likeable fellow" and community leader and builder, was posthumously honored Friday in a ceremony to celebrate his life and the naming of the Midland General Mail Facility in his honor.

To many of his colleagues and friends, he was "Mr. ZIP."

"He gave so much and is respected by so many," said U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, who sponsored the bill that authorized the naming of the Carl O. Hyde General Mail Facility at Midland International Airport.

Hyde, who was the U.S. Postal Service's senior postal operations specialist in Midland, died at age 70 in April 1988 after he had helped plan and establish the $8.5-million postal facility at Midland International Airport.

In his 40-plus years with the Postal Service, Hyde posted a "perfect attendance" job record, Raul Gonzalez, a Postal Service manager-postmaster in El Paso, had noted earlier in the ceremony.

Hyde had racked up 4,100 hours of unused sick-leave time.

"He was simply too busy doing good to get sick," Smith said in the ceremony that attracted a lobby full of Hyde's friends, family, well-wishers, USPS supervisors and workers, and Midland's Thouvenel String Quartet.

After more than six years of planning, evaluating and organizing, the Junior League of Midland Inc. realized its dream, the grand opening of its expanded headquarters building at 902 W. Dengar Ave. on Friday.

A beautiful table of hors d'oeuvres, coffee, tea and punch were available for visitors to enjoy while they toured the approximate 12,000-square-foot "under roof" facility. Visitors also had the opportunity to view a professional video and exhibit displays — organized and created by Vicki Leaverton, publicity chairman, and her committee — allowing visitors at the open house to observe the projects Junior League supports.

Great Society's aftermath shows two different sides

By Thomas Korosec and Jackie Koszczuk
N.Y. Times News Service

Deatria Norfleet, 31, a Fort Worth attorney, is a product of a government social program. So is Sherry Baker, 30, a second-generation welfare recipient from southeast Fort Worth.

Norfleet looks back at the federal help she received in the form of a federal grant covering her tuition, books and expenses at the University of Texas at Arlington and sees a program that boosted her up the ladder of opportunity.

Baker talks in less optimistic terms of being trapped in a tighly drawn universe where the government dole is a better option than a low-paying job, a high-gravity trap that is ensnaring two of her daughters as well.

The two women illustrate vastly different legacies of Lyndon Johnson's vision of American society.

Their stories, and millions like them, are at the heart of a renewed debate about the nation's commitment to social programs that have endured for nearly three decades.

Some of them, like Medicare, are so much a part of the American fabric it is difficult to recall the time when the majority of elderly lived in poverty in this country. Others, such as the housing program that spawned nightmarish high-rise slums, are a reminder of just how badly big-hearted government programs can fail.

The Los Angeles riots have sparked a new round of introspection of an old problem: the nation's entrenched pockets of poverty, crime and unemployment and the inability of government to do anything about them.

The Bush administration and conservatives blame the failure of liberal social programs for perpetuating inner-city woes by removing incentives for people to help themselves. But liberals and social welfare workers contend that some of the programs have worked remarkably well when they were given a chance to.

"What the administration is saying is preposterous," said Joseph Califano Jr., who was health, education and welfare secretary under President Jimmy Carter. "Of course not every program worked. The point is to build on your successes and learn from your mistakes.

"Head Start is one of the president's favorite programs," he said, referring to President Bush. "We get plenty of photo ops of Barbara Bush reading to Head Start children."

Indeed, for all the condemnation heaped on social programs during the conservative swing of the past dozen years, the American people have declined to dump social programs such as Head Start, job training, some forms of college aid and unemployment insurance.

For all the talk of how much they cost, some basic facts about the programs are often overlooked. For instance, the government spends light years more money on Social Security and Medicare, two major programs for the elderly, than it does on stereotypical jobless mothers on welfare and food stamps.

The government spent a total of more than $685 billion for social welfare programs in fiscal 1991. And of that, $269 billion went to Social Security, $104 billion to Medicare health insurance for the elderly and $52.5 billion to Medicaid health insurance for the poor, according to the Congressional Research Service.

The same year, the government spent about $14 billion on the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

"Social Security is a middle-class entitlement, and the middle class is not about to give it up," said Roger Wilkins, who was assistant attorney general under Johnson. "Every time anyone suggests Social Security ought to be "means tested,' they go crazy."

Still, the idea that poor people had ceased taking responsiblity for their plight caught like fire during the Ronald Reagan era, and fueled Reagan's fundamental belief that government ought to do less, not more.

Along came a researcher named Charles Murray, whose controversial 1984 book, Losing Ground provided 300 pages of statistical data to support intellectually what conservatives believed to be true. Not only did the programs not work to lift people out of poverty, Murray contended, they perpetuated cycles of poverty, crime and disintegrating nuclear families.

"In the 1960s, a whole variety of policies were put into effect that absolved people of blame, and which de-stigmatized everything from being on welfare to getting picked up for delinquency by the police," Murray said in a recent interview.

"You don't have to know why a young man wants to sleep with girls, or why girls want to have babies. That's human behavior. But if you change the rules of the game so that the penalties are removed or are lessened, you are going to get more of those behaviors," he said.

Murray's concern is that the system is hurting, not helping, people like Sherry Baker, the Fort Worth welfare mother.

She has been receiving government assistance most of her life. It looks as if her daughters are on their way to doing the same.

Raised by her grandmother in a Fort Worth public housing project, Baker recalled having her first child at age 14, although she continued in school through the 11th grade. She now is a-mother of eight.

The family receives food stamps and Medicaid assistance, and their chief source of income is the $377 they receive through Aid to Families with Dependent Children, which goes toward rent on their small house and other necessities.

Hoping to raise their standard of living, Baker said she tried recently to work part time at a fast-food restaurant, but found that she actually was losing ground by working. For the $200 a month she earned on the job, the government cut her payment by $175 a month, which actually put her behind after transportation and other costs were figured in.

Working also took her away from being at home taking care of her children — ages 16, 14, 12, 11, 10, 9, 7 and 6, plus a 7-month-old grandchild by her 16-year-old daughter. Beyond that, her 14-year-old daughter is pregnant, she said.

Baker said she had hoped her two oldest daughters would finish high school and avoid some the same traps she has known.

"I tried to talk to them before it happened, but they didn't listen," she said.

The teen-age fathers of the two grandchildren, one not yet born, are not likely to take financial responsibility for the babies, Baker said, so these new children also will become dependent on government aid.

Ron Oliver, who leads a small ministry at the Caville Place public housing project in southeast Fort Worth, said, "It's next to impossible for these women to break out. The way it is now, there's no incentive. We have to let these women get ahead by working."

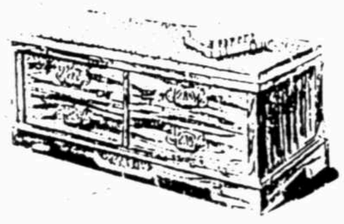

Murray's theories about welfare dependency attracted the attention of researchers whose work has produced different results.

Peter Gottschalk of the Institute on Research on Poverty based in Madison, Wis., said most studies show that the average time spent on the welfare rolls is two years or less. Baker's experience, he said, is representative of about 10 percent of people who get AFDC.

"Most people are on the program, then off the program," he said. "Some of them return, but they are not hooked in and forever damned."

L.A. gangs gather to try to establish peace in neighborhoods

By Jaxon Van Derbeken
N.Y. Times News Service

■ See related story/4C

LOS ANGELES — Police officer Edgar Palmer confronted a 21-year-old gang member Thursday night in a crowd of 100 young men at Hoover Avenue and 88th Street and told him the large gathering was frightening citizens already edgy after the Los Angeles riots.

"He said he knows and understands that," said Palmer, who works out of the Los Angeles Police Department's 77th Street Division. "They (the gang members) understand they have betrayed the trust of the community extensively for at least the last 10 years. They hope they can turn that around."

The nighttime impromptu gatherings of gangs — ostensibly part of an effort to work out differences in the aftermath of the rioting — have resulted in several rock and bottle throwing confrontations and growing tensions.

In the 24 hours ending 6 a.m. Friday, officers made 159 arrests — more than twice the arrests in two previous days.

Before the riots, such gatherings would have been the subject of immediate concern and action, but police said that they are taking the word of South Los Angeles street gangs about a truce among them and allow the gatherings to continue as long as they are peaceful.

So far, violent acts have been sporadic, officials say, and those situations that have gotten out of hand have been controlled by officers who have swept the areas.

"This is their chance to make good," said Capt. Willie Pannell of Southeast Division of the police new stance on such gatherings. "If they are not sincere, if this is a bogus situation, it will show that they can't be trusted."

Palmer said that organizing the gangs for another purpose besides violence will be tough going, but he remains optimistic.

"You really have to take a wait and see attitude — what else can you do?" he said. But, he said, the meetings to date have been "haphazard" and he has urged gang members to organize and formally meet to promote change.

"If you are going to meet, it's going to have to be in a more structured way — these large haphazard gatherings are not positive, they frighten citizens," Palmer said.

The tense situation comes as the National Guard completed withdrawal of 3,000 troops on Thursday. Approximately 6,000 troops will remain on standby for the foreseeable future, said Stacy Abell, spokeswoman for the guard.

Small-scale skirmishes regularly are breaking out between police officers and groups gathering at night in parks or around low-income housing projects in South Los Angeles, officials say.

There are increasing nightly arrests. Total riot related arrests, both misdemeanors and arrests since April 29, stood at 8,331 as of 6 a.m. Friday, police said. Most of those arrests took place in the first few days of the rioting.

Sgt. Ron Sullivan, situation report officer, said that arrests have fluctuated during the week, with the highest number of unrest-related arrests in the week — 159 — recorded in the 24-hour period between 6 a.m. Thursday and 6 a.m. Friday.

The previous totals were 63 for Wednesday-Thursday, 65 Tuesday-Wednesday and 108 for Monday-Tuesday, he said.

"A certain amount of this is expected, there are residual tensions in the community," said Lt. John Dunkin, spokesman for the department. "At the same time, there are a lot of people in the community, police and government who are working very hard to try to assure that this situation doesn't re-ignite."

Police on patrol or answering radio calls repeatedly have been targeted by groups of rock- and bottle-throwing youths, forcing officers to temporarily retreat from a number of areas, said Los Angeles police Capt. Dan Watson.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Showers may visit today

Staff report

Partly cloudy skies may send rain showers over Midland today and Sunday.

Chances of that happening are less than 20 percent both days and tonight, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Today's peak temperature is forecast in the upper 80s, with winds from the south-southeast at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight's low temperature is to be in the low 60s.

Sunday's high reading is expected to be in the mid-80s.

Friday's high temperature was 86 degrees, and the overnight low was 57.

The record high temperature for May 15 is 102 degrees in 1988. The record high for May 16 is 100 in 1946. The record low for May 16 is 42 degrees in 1945.

STATE

Sunny skies prevailed in North Texas Friday as a moist airmass hovered over the South and thunderstorms developed in the West.

There were some cirrus clouds seen over the south half of North Texas as showers and thunderstorms moved into the area from South Texas.

Afternoon temperatures ranged from the upper 70s at Waco with rain nearby to the low 80s at Texarkana to 90 degrees at Wichita Falls.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Midland statistics

Today: Party cloudy, less than a 20 percent chance of afternoon showers and thunderstorms, high in the upper 80s, winds south-southeast 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight: Partly cloudy, slight chance of thunderstorms, low in the low 60s.

Sunday: Partly cloudy, less than a 20 percent chance showers, high in the mid-80s.

LEAGUE: Group expands headquarters building

(From 1A)

With scissors in hand, Connie Ladd, president of Junior League, gave a statement of thanks just before the official ribbon-cutting.

"So many of you are responsible for making this become a reality," Ms. Ladd said. "We hope it will be a nerve center for community projects; that nonprofits in the community will look at our Community Board Room and use it — free of charge. It is our gift to the community."

The League will offer use of the public areas of the building free of charge to nonprofits during regular league hours. There is a small fee for after-hours use, and the building may be rented for other functions such as private parties and wedding receptions.

The public area consists of the Mabee Community Room, which can seat approximately 200 people or be divided into thirds for smaller meeting areas; the exterior courtyard, about 3,520 square feet; the Community Board Room, about 365 square feet; the kitchen, complete with two refrigerator-/freezers and several amenities; and the stage, which is a part of the Mabee Hall.

The expanded facility also houses about 3,000 square feet for Junior League office space and use, including individual phone rooms, the Tumbleweed office, a library, a message station, a kitchenette, a community projects room, the treasurer's office, the president's office, and the Carrel Room, which contains individual work stations for league members to use during short-term projects.

The old Junior League headquarters was converted into attached warehouse storage space and work areas.

"We (Junior League members) talked to several leagues around the area to see what worked and what didn't, and this was the result of all the things that did work," said league member Lois Smitherman. "It took us a long time to get to here, but the building was well researched and we're really proud of it."

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Suzanne Tatum, seated, chats with Lexie Kauffman at the Junior League opening.

The League also sent out two different questionnaires to 110 nonprofit organizations to access the community needs of Midland before the building was planned.

In addition to the Midland supporters present, President Bush's personal secretary called in his regrets, and U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith and his wife attended. Also present were Mayor Carroll Thomas, Mayor-elect J.D. Faircloth and Sheriff Gary Painter.

Connolly & Co. Architects designed the building and Dick Campbell of Campbell Construction Co. was the contractor.

The total cost for the new building was $1.2 million, which was raised through grants, community donations, pledges from league members and fund-raisers.

INDICT: Grand jury indicts deputy

(From 1A)

Painter booked his lieutenant into jail.

Rogers, 38, was released from custody on his own recognizance.

Painter said he will consider placing Rogers on suspension until the indictment is resolved.

"He is still innocent, innocent until proven guilty," Painter said. "I'll stand beside him."

"I sure think the grand jury missed the mark on that deal," Painter said of Rogers' indictment. "Tim is not a liar, and he certainly is not going to lie to a grand jury. He would never do anything to jeopardize his law-enforcement career."

The second indictment, Painter said, was returned against a person who does not work for the Sheriff's Department.

Rogers, who works under Operations Division Capt. Clayton McKinney in criminal investigation, was a captain in charge of the sheriff's Special Services Division until the Commissioners' Court eliminated that position in a budget move last year.

Before joining Painter when the sheriff took office in 1985, Rogers had been a deputy for then-Sheriff Dallas Smith. Prior to that, Rogers and Painter had worked as patrolmen for the Midland Police Department.

Assistant Texas Attorney General Shane Phelps is heading up the grand jury investigation. Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre stepped aside in the inquiry.

Phelps said late Friday that he could not comment until the indictments had been served.

"I will tell you the grand jury returned a couple of indictments," Phelps from his Austin home. "I really can't say who until the two people involved surrender."

Earlier this year, the grand jury, headed by foreman Frank Kell Cahoon, launched an inquiry into the sheriff's handling of the money and drugs seized in reverse-sting operations.

To carry out that inquiry, the grand jury received a 90-day extension from 142nd District Court Judge Pat Baskin after the jury's regular six-month term expired at the end of February.

The Texas Attorney General's Office conducted the drug audit, while Grant Thornton, a Midland accounting and management consulting firm, conducted the financial audit of the sheriff's seized and forfeited funds.

EXXON: Oil company announces reorganization

(From 1A)

ern Production Division will be transferred to Midland.

Approximately 90 positions in the Thousand Oaks office will be eliminated, with some moving to Midland. Still, Beathard said, 400 employees will remain in Thousand Oaks to manage offshore operations in the Santa Barbara Channel.

Beathard said the cutback is fairly general, affecting managers, professionals and support staff.

He emphasized that the separation program is voluntary for the next month. "Then, if necessary, and it probably will be, there will be an involuntary separation program."

Because the program is voluntary, the company has no specific numbers on how many positions will be affected, either in Midland or throughout the company.

"We think the majority of people that will leave will voluntarily; they'll take the extra pay and leave," Beathard said.

The severance package is based on years of service to Exxon. The package ranges from four weeks for an employee with one year's service to 78 weeks severance pay for an employee with 25 years or more. Those eligible to retire would get severance pay in addition to retirement.

Beathard speculated that the extra money would be good news to a number of the employees, and predicted that those in the Midland office who took retirement would remain in Midland.

In announcing the cutbacks, which target 1,000 non-hourly workers companywide, Exxon joins a growing list of major oil producers, including Mobil, Chevron and Arco, who are downsizing domestic operations to cope with low oil and natural gas prices, sluggish demand and government restrictions. The companies are also shifting more of their operations from the U.S. to overseas.

Exxon said it is making the operational changes to improve efficiency and competitiveness and to help it compete in a demanding business environment. Other changes announced Friday include consolidation in all departments and affiliates, with the greatest impact on marketing, production and headquarters operations.

Exxon USA employs about 20,000, approximately one-fifth of Exxon's worldwide employment.

The reduction follows a formal study of costs at Exxon USA. The unit added little to last year's $5.6 billion profit at Exxon, the nation's largest energy company.

Exxon Chairman Lawrence Rawl has complained that domestic operations of the major oil companies have been hampered by rising costs for compliance with environmental regulations, and bans against drilling in some of the most promising exploration areas. The bulk of Exxon's first-quarter earnings of $1.35 billion came from foreign operations.

HYDE: U.S. Postal Service honors late worker

(From 1A)

Smith said that it was rare for a person to have "dedicated himself so much to his job and to his community" that he would win "outpouring of support."

Hyde did.

Many Hyde admirers turned out for Friday's dedication ceremony. But many hundreds more, including members of Midland's City Council and the Midland County Commissioners' Court, and members of civic organizations, including Lions International and the Midland Chamber of Commerce, signed petitions in asking the U.S. Congress to name the postal facility after Hyde.

Midland Postmaster Raul Rojal remembered Hyde as a "gentleman's gentleman. He was a very likeable fellow" who was very knowledgable about USPS affairs.

Juan Flores, who is state vice president of National Association of Postal Supervisors, said Hyde was a good family man. "We miss his dedication, his excellent work performance and, most of all, his friendliness."

"Carl was A-1. Everything Carl did, it progressed from the bottom up," Palmer said. "Carl Hyde has been A-1 in making this world a better place in which to live." Hyde, who was a Lions International Ambassador of Goodwill, was "always giving a helping hand."

Fred Thummel, the dedication's emcee and manager of mail processing at the Hyde General Mail Facility, said Hyde was "always upbeat. You know how some folks try to degrade the post office," Thummel said. "Carl could turn them around."

Among those at the dedication were Hyde's widow, Lou Hyde, and sons Carl O. Hyde Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. James Hyde of Arlington, and their families.

"We are so elated," Mrs. Hyde said of the dedication. "We feel so humble that the citizens of Midland would support a thing of this sort."

While Carl Hyde Jr. acknowledged his father's compassion and role as a humanitarian and community builder, "From my perspective, he was a great father."

Bill Collyns, retired editor of the Reporter-Telegram who served in Lions' Club for many years with Hyde, said Hyde was "not only Mr. ZIP to the Postal Service, he was Mr. Lions to people not only in Midland, but to Lions International. He was just a leader in Lionism.

"He was really a gentleman," Collyns said.

Hyde was a trumpet player in the Midland Downtown Lions Club's World Championship Rodeo International Convention Band or the Big Name Band.

Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas, who proclaimed May 15, 1992, as Carl O. Hyde Day, said it would be wise to "pattern our lives after his (Hyde's) legacy."

Hyde was "just one of the best," said Justice of the Peace Bob Pine.

"He was one of the sweetest men I have ever known," said Jim Lunney, retired Midland chief meteorologist.

Millie Howard, a retired Midland schoolteacher, recalled that Hyde must have known "everybody in town by name. He just greeted you with warmth."

Stan Sartain, the Postal Service's director of Customer Service, recalled Hyde's "positive" attitude.

"He was encouraging everyone to be a better person," Sartain said.

Though he could have retired from the Postal Service, Hyde once told Sartain that his postal work was "not only a job but it was his hobby. As a result of his attitude toward the Postal Service, he became known as Mr. ZIP," Sartain said. "He was a great ambassador for the Postal Service."

Wife of Exxon executive apparently got message

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The wife of a missing top Exxon executive made a televised appeal Friday night, saying she would do whatever is needed to have her husband returned.

"I'm making a personal appeal to some people who I want to believe have my husband with them," Patricia Reso said. "I want you to know that I have received your message."

A source speaking on condition of anonymity said it was believed that a message was received Friday and that it included instructions that Mrs. Reso make such a statement.

Sidney Reso, president of Exxon Co. International, disappeared after leaving for work the morning of April 29. His car was found idling in the driveway of the couple's Morris Township home. Authorities have said they have been unable to determine whether he was kidnapped.

"I know in my heart that he is alive," Mrs. Reso said in her statement. "I pray that he is healthy."

"It is so important to me that my kids and I have assurance that he is safe and unharmed," she continued. "I am willing to do whatever is necessary to have him reunited with us. And I hope that he will be released very soon."

A videotape of Mrs. Reso reading the statement was broadcast on WWOR-TV Friday night and made available to other television stations. The station said the Morris County prosecutor's office had contacted the station and asked that the statement be broadcast.

SERVICE: United Express begins flights here

(From 1A)

"It means we're going to be making more trips back and forth, that's for sure. It's less expensive and a lot faster than going through Dallas."

There were city officials, airport staffers and Midland Chamber of Commerce representatives on hand to meet the maiden voyage. After the 30-passenger Embraer Brasilia came to rest on the ramp, chamber M-Squad members gathered near the nose and cut a blue ribbon.

"We're really happy to be here," said Tom Corrington, station manager for the airline. In keeping with United Express' non-traditional operating style, Corrington handed out tickets, loaded baggage and trucked it to the plane.

Then he and Dennis Berry, the airline's director of passenger service, flagged the plane onto the ramp. Berry then took off his earphones, put on his suit jacket and boarded the flight to Denver, briefcase in hand.

Twenty-two passengers joined him on the return flight.

"This is going to save us two hours' time," said Evelyn Bauman of Odessa. She and her husband, John, were going to Denver to attend the 50th reunion of his medical school graduation from the University of Colorado.

Mrs. Bauman remembered United Express' last try in Midland. In 1987 a division of the commuter owned by Aspen Airways left the local airport after a six-month stay, citing low passenger demand. The United Express that moved into Midland Friday is owned by Mesa Airlines.

"I was so disappointed when it left," Mrs. Bauman said. "We have a place in Colorado, so we'll probably be taking it quite frequently."

"If they hadn't had this, we probably wouldn't have got to go," said Margie Newcomb of Gardendale. She was traveling with her family to Wyoming to visit relatives.

"It's going to be different," Ms. Newcomb said, looking around United Express' boarding area in the bottom floor of the terminal.

Passengers walk out onto the ramp and climb a set of stairs to board the plane. Baggage is claimed next to the ticket counters, and there are no security checks.

"You almost feel like you're flying into your own airport on your own plane," said Sarah Sproul, vice president of marketing for the airline. She thinks United Express will be "an excellent gateway for the Midland market.

"We anticipate a lot of Midland-to-Denver business and a lot of through traffic," she said.

The airline has two outgoing flights and two incoming flights each day. Travelers can connect in Denver to United Airlines.

Passenger C.A. Holcomb of Odessa, going to Denver to see his son, summed up the new airline in three words.

"It's mighty nice," he said.

BILL: Smith brings good news

(From 1A)

Means committe, Wednesday and Thursday and would probably vote Friday.

"This is a real victory," said Smith, "one that President Bush lobbied very hard for. I know he personally called members of the House Ways & Means Committee to make sure this relief was in the bill."

Smith also noted that designation of Department of Energy carbonate reservoir research projects will be published in August or September. This research, which will include fields in the Permian Basin, will study reservoirs in depth to determine methods for prematurely plugging of wells. DOE released a list of 14 deltaic reservoirs this month for study.

Hearst names group publisher

Hearst News Service

NEW YORK — Aubrey L. Webb, vice president and publisher of the Beaumont Enterprise, a Hearst daily newspaper, has been named to the additional post of group publisher of Hearst's community newspapers in Texas.

The appointment, effective immediately, was announced jointly Friday by Frank A. Bennack Jr., president and chief executive officer of the Hearst Corporation, and Robert J. Danzig, corporation vice president and general manager of Hearst Newspapers.

"Aubrey Webb has done a superb job in managing the Beaumont Enterprise and we look forward to his applying those managerial skills to our other community dailies and weeklies in Texas," Danzig said.

Hearst's Texas community newspapers include four dailies — the Beaumont Enterprise, the Laredo Morning Times, the Midland Reporter-Telegram and the Plainview Daily Herald — and three weeklies — the Jasper News-Boy, the Hardin County and the Mid County Chronicle.

Hearst also owns two metropolitan newspapers in Texas: the Houston Chronicle and the San Antonio Light. In addition, the company owns the Albany (N.Y.) Times Union, the Edwardsville (Ill.) Intelligencer, the Huron Daily Tribune (Bad Axe, Mich.) the Midland (Mich.) Daily News, the San Francisco (Calif.) Examiner and the Seattle (Wash.) Post-Intelligencer, as well as two weeklies in Michigan, the Marlette Leader and the Vassar Pioneer Times.

Hearst's Texas community newspapers include four dailies — the Beaumont Enterprise, the Laredo Morning Times, the Midland Reporter-Telegram and the Plainview Daily Herald.

Webb, who joined the Enterprise in 1983, has been publisher of the paper since 1988. Previously, he held the positions of general manager and director of advertising.

He was advertising director of the Fresno (Calif.) Bee from 1979 to 1983. Before joining the Bee, Webb held various advertising positions with the Oklahoma Journal, the Daily Oklahoman and the Oklahoma City Times. He began his career as advertising manager for the Denison (Texas) Herald.

He is a member of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association. He serves on the boards of directors of the Texas Daily Newspapers Association and the Texas Press Association and is chairman of the Texas Newspapers Advertising Bureau.

Webb is active in numerous civic and charitable organizations, including the American Red Cross, United Way, Junior Achievement and the Mental Health Association.

Students injured

Staff report

Some children suffered scrapes and bruises when a school bus hit a dip in the road Friday afternoon.

Bus No. 50 — driving westbound on Haynes Street — hit the dip and jostled some students out of their seats, according to Wes Washam, transportation director for Midland Independent School District.

Washam said some children had "cut knees and bruises" in the minor mishap, but there were no major injuries.

DEATHS

Kemp calls on Republicans to support civil rights efforts

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Housing Secretary Jack Kemp said Friday the Republican Party "missed out on the civil rights movement of the 1960s" but can redeem itself now by supporting proposals that would spur economic growth in inner cities.

"To miss out on this opportunity (to revive blighted areas) would miss what historically is rarely given — a second chance," said Kemp, a longtime conservative stalwart in the GOP. "I characterize this as a new civil rights revolution."

Kemp's remarks came a day after only 44 Republicans supported a House-passed bill providing $822 million in disaster relief grants and small business loans for Los Angeles, which is recovering from three days of rioting, and Chicago, which suffered heavy damage from flooding. Another 110 Republicans opposed the emergency measure.

The housing secretary also urged Congress to pass by June 30 broad legislation that would create jobs, improve education and encourage private ownership of homes and businesses in poor urban areas.

Kemp told reporters that unless an urban package is in place before July, the presidential election campaign will delay and possibly scuttle any measure on urban needs. Usually, once general campaigning begins, Congress virtually shelves its legislative agenda.

"We have a window of a month to two months to move," he said. "Once the Democratic convention is held (July 13-16) and the Republican convention is held (Aug. 17-20), we've lost our moment."

The secretary, whose urban-aid pleas within the president's Cabinet were ignored until rioting recently erupted in Los Angeles, also asked Congress Friday to expand a proposed program to create "enterprise zones" in poor urban and rural areas. The plan would create tax breaks for firms that invest in those regions and create jobs.

The president's budget for 1993 called for 50 enterprise zones. Congress included 10 zones in an economic growth bill that President Bush vetoed earlier this year. Kemp said he'd like 350 zones.

Some congressmen depart with loads of cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty departing House members are eligible to leave with leftover campaign money — hundreds of thousands of dollars in some cases — lining their pockets. Most say they won't tap the funds for personal use, although their pledges are not binding.

Instead, they're promising to pay for scholarships, contribute to charity, finance political campaigns and return donations to contributors.

This is the last year that retiring House members elected before Jan. 8, 1980, can pocket any remaining campaign money. In the future, they'll have to use it for charitable or political purposes.

Still, there's no indication that decisions by 55 House members to leave the chamber, a modern record, were motivated by the chance for a money grab.

Many said they quit out of frustration with political partisanship and Congress' inability to grapple with the nation's problems. Some were hurt by a devastating check overdraft scandal at the House bank. Seven have lost primaries. Others are running for another office.

Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging, is eligible to use nearly $200,000 for himself. Instead, he'll finance scholarships for students interested in working with the elderly.

"He's hoping corporations or foundations will be able to match the money," said Roybal aide Jorge Lambrinos. He said the scholarships will be for students attending California State College-Los Angeles, where a gerontology center is named after Roybal.

Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., will return recent contributions and is considering establishment of an educational trust fund. "I will also use some to try to elect Republicans to public office," he said.

In a break with other retirees, 26-year veteran Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., has said he'll use the money for his personal retirement. He could take just short of $300,000.

And some lawmakers were not talking. Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., who could convert about $660,000, "has not made any kind of decision at all," said an aide, who insisted he not be identified by name.

Rep. Bill Dickinson, R-Ala., ranking Republican on the House Armed Services Committee, is "in no hurry to rush into any decision," said spokesman Mike Lewis. He has just over $300,000 in his campaign kitty.

Rep. Glenn Anderson, D-Calif., won't have to think too hard about disposing of the money. "I have no idea what he's doing with the $20" left in the campaign treasury, said legislative director Robin Traylor.

UTPB conducts commencement

Pool wizard stricken

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Minnesota Fats, the sharp-shooting billiard wizard, was in critical condition Friday after suffering a heart attack.

Fats, whose real name is Rudolf Wanderone, was in the intensive care unit at Vanderbilt University Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Wayne Wood.

Fats underwent knee surgery May 5 at the hospital. Wood said he did not know when he had the heart attack.

"I don't think he has family. I've heard that all that he'd like released is that he's in the hospital, and his condition," Wood said.

"He's stable right now. His condition is not deteriorating."

Jackie Gleason portrayed Fats in the 1961 movie "The Hustler." He was born in New York City and played pool all his life.

U.N. leaders announce cease-fire between Serbs, Muslims, Croats

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.N. officials announced a cease-fire Friday among Serbs, Muslims and Croats, a day after artillery duels and house-to-house fighting rocked the capital of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

A cease-fire reached Wednesday broke down in fewer than 24 hours. In an apparent measure of their hostility toward the United Nations, Serb mortar crews Thursday repeatedly struck the Rainbow Hotel, base for some 275 U.N. peacekeeping officers.

"If you hit this place seven times, that's deliberate," said Capt. Douglas Martin, from Canada.

"I don't know what message is written on those shells, but it's not friendly," said U.N. spokesman Fred Eckhard.

But Eckhard said that if the truce holds, the warring parties will meet today for more political talks.

U.N. leaders have harshly condemned Serb aggression in Bosnia.

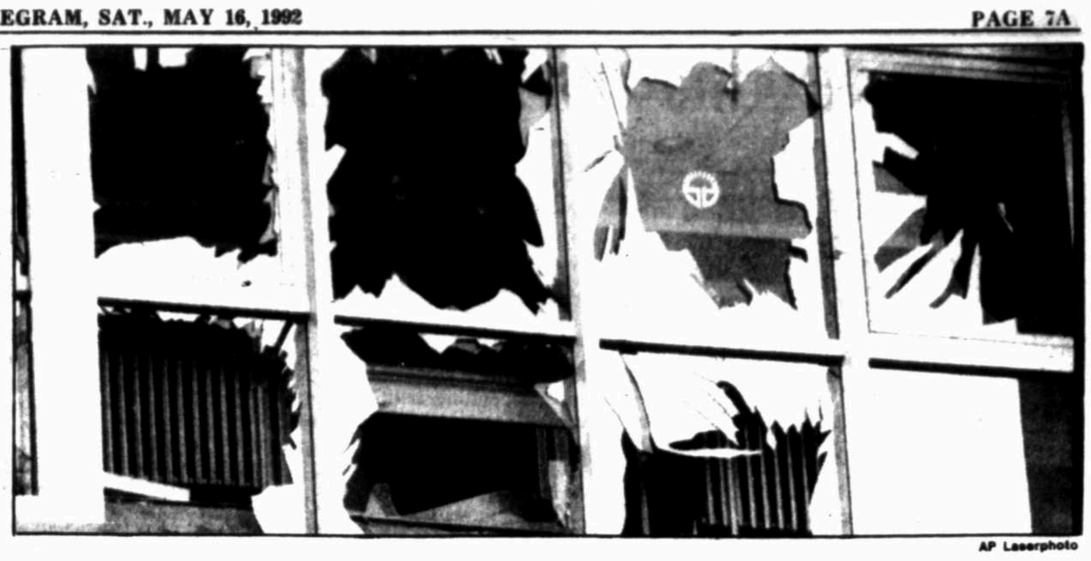

"Any change of borders by force is not acceptable," Friday's resolution said, in a criticism of apparent efforts by Serbia to absorb areas of neighboring republics into a Greater Serbia.

U.N. troops in Croatia, meanwhile, were sent Friday to take control of the eastern Slavonia region that was captured by Serb-led forces last year.

The region, which borders Serbia, was one of the focal points of the bloody, six-month war between Croatian security forces and Serb irregulars supported by the Yugoslav army. A cease-fire has generally held there since Jan. 3.

Thursday's shelling and house-to-house battles in Sarajevo gave way Friday to "an unbelievable calm, a horrible silent night," Sarajevo radio said. Hospital officials said at least six people were killed and 140 wounded Thursday.

Buildings were still ablaze Friday, sending spirals of gray smoke into the sky and obscuring the sun in some parts of the city.

A U.N. peacekeeping soldier looks through the shattered windows of the U.N. residence in Sarajevo Friday. The residence took a number of direct hits during a battle Thursday between the Yugoslav federal army-backed Serbian forces and the Muslim Territorial Defense.

Security Council demands rivals withdraw from Bosnia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council on Friday demanded the withdrawal of the Yugoslav and Croatian armies from Bosnia-Herzegovina and urged all parties to honor a cease-fire.

The resolution, approved by all 15 members, also calls for the disarming of troops and militiamen that are to be demobilized in U.N.-protected zones of the republic of Croatia.

In a thinly veiled jab at the Serbs trying to carve out a Greater Serbia from neighboring republics, it insists that "any change of borders by force is not acceptable."

"I think there is no doubt in anyone's mind that a very heavy degree of responsibility is borne by" Serbs, said the British ambassador, Sir David Hannay. "That is a very, very clear message to them."

Despite the evenhandedness of Friday's resolution, it seemed largely directed at the Serb-controlled federal army.

But local Muslim and Croat militias also have been blamed for truce violations. And in a report to the Security Council Wednesday, Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said individual armed members of the Croatian Army were deployed throughout Bosnia.

The resolution calls on units of Croatia's national army to withdraw.

Of the Serbian actions in Bosnia, Hungarian Ambassador Andre Erdos said: "If the attempt at assembling everyone belonging to the same ethnic community within the framework of one nation-state prevails, and if everybody follows the same logic in Central Europe, I can guarantee that the whole of Central and Eastern Europe could turn in a fortnight into an apocalypse."

The council on Friday asked Boutros-Ghali to consider taking steps to secure the airport at Sarajevo so humanitarian supplies can be flown in.

Opposition seizes Azerbaijan parliament building

MOSCOW (AP) — Several thousand opposition supporters seized Azerbaijan's parliament building and presidential palace Friday, just one day after lawmakers had restored President Ayaz Mutalibov to power.

The whereabouts of the president, who assumed emergency powers after being reinstated, were not immediately known. There were reports of gunfire and an undetermined number of casualties.

The opposition Popular Front appeared to control the Azerbaijani capital, Baku. Its forces stormed the main government buildings and also captured Baku's airport and broadcasting center, the Interfax news agency reported.

The Popular Front, which denounced Thursday's reinstatement of Mutalibov as a "state coup," issued an ultimatum demanding that the president resign for the second time in two months, Interfax said.

Niyazi Ibragimov, a deputy chairman of the Popular Front, said on Azerbaijani TV that the group's main goal was to build a democratic society with equal rights for all people, ITAR-Tass reported. He took note of ethnic Russians' concerns.

One of Mutalibov's first acts on Thursday was to declare emergency rule imposing censorship and a curfew, banning demonstrations and suspending political parties. The decree was to remain in force at least two months.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler expressed deep concern about the situation in Azerbaijan.

"We believe the most effective means of restoring stability is through free elections that will allow the Azerbaijani people to express their own political choices," she said.

She said the U.S. Embassy in Baku reported reported machine gun fire in the streets near the presidential palace and a large demonstration Friday in Parliament Square.

The Popular Front mobilized large demonstrations that forced Mutalibov to resign in March. It criticized him for being too soft in the conflict in Nagorno-Karabakh, a predominantly Armenian enclave in Azerbaijan. More than 1,500 people have died there in the bloodiest ethnic conflict in the former Soviet Union.

Military setbacks in the fierce fighting over Nagorno-Karabakh continued even after Mutalibov's downfall, and his resignation plunged Azerbaijan into a political crisis.

North Korea says it produced plutonium for experiment

BEIJING (AP) — A North Korean official disclosed publicly for the first time Friday that his country has produced plutonium, which can be used to make nuclear weapons.

The official said the material was produced as part of an experimental study on how to use nuclear power for peaceful purposes.

The disclosure came as Hans Blix, director-general of the International Atomic Energy Agency, was on a visit to North Korea to clear the way for international inspections of nuclear sites in mid-June.

North Korea has faced increasing pressure to open its nuclear facilities to international inspections. The United States and Japan have set that condition for improving relations with the Communist government.

Li Sam Ro, the head of Pyongyang's delegation at normalization talks with Japan, said at a news conference in Beijing that plutonium had been produced at a North Korean radiation chemistry research institute in a project intended to study the use of "nuclear power for peaceful purposes."

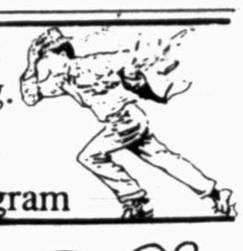

"This is not a plant, not a factory, but a small device for experimental purposes," Li was quoted as saying by a North Korean Embassy official who translated his comments from Korean into English.

"This is not production of plutonium," Li said.

Shigeo Takenaka, spokesman for the Tokyo delegation, said at a separate news conference that North Korean officials told the Japanese the facility was in Yongbyon and had "produced a small quantity of plutonium."

The North Koreans did not say how much had been produced, Takenaka said.

Don't be the last to find out what's happening.

Half of commonwealth states agree to peacekeeping force

TASHKENT, Uzbekistan (AP) — Half of the commonwealth states agreed Friday to help protect each other from outside attack, bolstering Russian President Boris Yeltsin's effort to keep the association alive.

Yeltsin's success was achieved with the absence of Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk at a summit of the Commonwealth of Independent States. Four other presidents also skipped the meeting, including those most opposed to a cohesive commonwealth.

"This was the most effective (summit) at achieving the best results of all previous meetings of commonwealth heads of state," a beaming Yeltsin told reporters after the daylong meeting in this Central Asian capital city.

All 11 delegations agreed on a plan to implement the Conventional Forces in Europe treaty to reduce non-nuclear forces, and there were near-unanimous agreement to cut the number of chemical weapons.

The 11 republics agreed to form a peacekeeping force, and to cut the size of the former Soviet army. In all, they signed at least six documents, after eliminating most of the original 20 proposals.

Russia, Kazakhstan, Tajikistan, Uzbekistan, Turkmenistan and Armenia signed the agreement for collective policing of external and internal borders.

Not signing were Kyrgyzstan, Azerbaijan, Ukraine, Belarus and Moldova, most of which have created their own armies.

In Washington, State Department Spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the United States would like to see continuing cooperation among the new states of the former USSR.

"Competition and conflict over military issues, political issues or economic issues will serve no one's interest and only prevent these states from moving forward with their overriding imperative, building democracy and free markets," Ms. Tutwiler said.

Friday's pact was a halfway step between dissolution of the former Soviet military and a rigid, centralized force.

"This means that the unified forces of the commonwealth will remain," said the commonwealth military commander, Marshal Yevgeny Shaposhnikov.

The agreement likely will not help solve bitter differences on other military issues, including a dispute between Russia and Ukraine over control of the Black Sea Fleet.

And it was impossible to predict how effective the security system would be, since it did not specify whose troops would enforce it.

Under the agreement, each signatory state is prohibited from using force against another, as Armenia and Azerbaijan have done during their four-year battle over the disputed territory of Nagorno-Karabakh.

"Independent states with the right to create their own armed forces are now entering a defensive union," Kazakh President Nursultan Nazarbayev said. "If there is aggression against a member-state of the (collective security) union, it will be considered an act of aggression against all member-states."

Ukrainian prime minister Vitold Fokin, whose government has scorned the joint commonwealth military, said the association did not need another defense treaty that would not be enforced.

Kravchuk stayed in Kiev to meet a visiting Finnish leader. The presidents of Moldova, Tajikistan and Azerbaijan did not attend.

Boat people resume flight from Haiti

GREAT ABACO ISLAND, the Bahamas (NYT) — Haitians have suddenly resumed the flight from their country aboard small boats in numbers that surpass the surge seen in October in the aftermath of a violent military coup.

With an average of almost 250 people a day being plucked from the seas off Haiti in recent weeks, the number being temporarily housed at the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base in Cuba has risen to about 8,500, from a low of 2,000 in March.

On Wednesday, one of the busiest days yet, 903 Haitians on 11 rickety vessels were plucked from the seas.

When relatively few Haitians were found at sea in March, officials thought the exodus had crested. But now, exasperated officials see new urgency in diplomatic efforts to restore Haiti's elected government.

Diplomats from the Organization of American States are to meet Sunday in the Bahamas to discuss Haiti.

Officials seeking to explain the resurgence in refugees point to the dramatic deterioration of living conditions in the island nation, in large part because of a hemisphere-wide trade embargo imposed last November to punish the coup leaders.

Some officials also complain that while the Coast Guard has stopped Haitian vessels from reaching the United States, a sizable portion of those picked up have been admitted to pursue grants of asylum, thus encouraging many others to risk the voyage.

Others stress the calm seas and favorable winds, which may encourage more Haitians to risk voyages in often frail and leaky boats.

In an interview on Thursday, a senior State Department official estimated that the combined costs of the settlement at Guantanamo and the Coast Guard's interdiction had risen to over $60 million since the Sept. 30 coup. Immigration officials said their costs stood at over $6 million.

"The level of exasperation is high," one immigration official said, "not simply out of frustration with the results but because this is beginning to cause a serious money crunch. The figures are rising rapidly, there is no end in sight and none of this is budgeted."

In order to handle the latest surge, the Immigration and Naturalization Service recently sent 40 staff members to Guantanamo to determine which Haitians would be allowed into the United States.

In addition to budgetary problems, the flight of Haitians has fueled tensions between the agencies involved.

Facing criticisms and lawsuits in the United States from advocates for the refugees, the immigration service has dramatically increased the number of Haitians it qualifies to pursue claims for political asylum.

Close to a third of the 29,000 Haitians who have fled since the coup against the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide have been approved for entry into the United States.

State Department officials say the high ratio of Haitians being allowed into the United States is acting as a magnet, encouraging others to claim political persecution and flee their country.

"We feel the rate of those being screened in does not reflect the reality," said a senior State Department official.

The official said the State Department had stepped up its efforts to monitor human rights in Haiti, citing a survey of 2,000 Haitians who had given political motives for their flight but had been returned to Haiti. There was "no evidence that these people are political refugees," the official said.

The Pentagon has also begun to chafe under the refugee burden, complaining that the use of the Guantanamo base was a source of friction with the Cuban government and an unsustainable strain on the resources of the base and the Coast Guard.

Manila candidate charges fraud

MANILA, Philippines (NYT) — Miriam Defensor Santiago called Friday for mass demonstrations across the Philippines to protest what she said was "wholesale electoral fraud" that could rob her of the presidential election.

The anti-corruption candidate announced the demonstrations as her chief opponent, former Defense Minister Fidel V. Ramos, held a negligible lead over Mrs. Santiago in the slow count of the nearly 27 million votes cast on Monday.

Mrs. Santiago's charge of cheating appeared to dash hopes that the presidential election, the first in this nation since the ouster of President Ferdinand E. Marcos in 1986, would end with a quiet transfer of power.

"I declare categorically that wholesale electoral fraud is being perpetrated," said Mrs. Santiago, a former judge who is hoping to succeed President Corazon C. Aquino. "The logic points to fraud." Mrs. Aquino did not seek re-election and has endorsed Ramos.

With only about 10 percent of the vote counted, Ramos had 22.9 percent of the vote, followed by Mrs. Santiago with 21.8 percent. Earlier tallies put Mrs. Santiago in the lead in a tight race that will probably not be decided for at least several more days.

Marcos' widow, Imelda, who was running sixth, bowed out of the presidential race Friday. "Deep in our hearts, we know we won, although subsequent events showed many of the ballots were not properly credited to me," she said.

Vote fraud charges have been swirling since the polls closed Monday afternoon, and some of the most serious allegations have been directed against supporters of Ramos, a West Point-educated general whose mutiny against Marcos in 1986 helped sweep Mrs. Aquino to power.

Nevertheless, election officials and longtime politicians say cheating was not nearly as widespread Monday as in earlier Philippines elections, and the mood throughout the country this week has been one of self-congratulation that this nation was able to stage a reasonably peaceful, relatively clean election.

Election officials attribute the glacial pace of the vote count to computer and telecommunications problems, although they point out that they had always expected the count would take several days, if not weeks.

Ballots must be gathered from across the 7,000 islands of the Philippines and then counted by hand.

Mrs. Santiago, whose campaign vow to end government corruption has galvanized millions of mostly young Filipinos even as it raised charges of demagoguery.

South African politicians trade insults at talks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — White and black politicians accused each other Friday of being power hungry after talks deadlocked on the terms for a new constitution to end apartheid and give blacks the vote.

President F.W. de Klerk's government and the African National Congress, the country's two leading political forces, narrowed their differences but failed to achieve overall agreement on drawing up the document.

"The South African government did not come to today's meeting with the sincere intention of reaching an agreement," said the ANC's secretary general, Cyril Ramaphosa. "They are used to making all decisions by themselves and treating the country as if it belonged to them alone."

Foreign Minister Pik Botha accused the ANC of being under the control of the allied South African Communist Party and preferring Marxist totalitarianism to democracy.

Efforts to resolve differences over the mechanics of writing the new constitution held up for hours the start of the second round of talks, on ending white minority rule. The government, the ANC and 17 other political groups are participating in the negotiations under the Convention for a Democratic South Africa.

Despite the impasse, no party has threatened to pull out.

Zach de Beer, leader of the Democratic Party, a liberal white organization, said an agreement was near and that both the ANC and the government were merely "trying to score debating points" by exchanging insults.

The government and the ANC already agree on the need for an interim government, which could be in place as early as July.

Both sides offered new compromises on Friday, agreeing that an elected, constitution-making body would have to approve all clauses in the new document by a 70 percent majority. The bill of rights would require 75 percent approval.

The main disagreement is over regional governments. The government wants the drafters of the constitution to approve clauses on this issue by at least 75 percent, while the ANC says 70 percent is sufficient.

Rabbis oppose Pepsi's Israeli ad campaign

JERUSALEM (AP) — Ultra-Orthodox rabbis are objecting to a Pepsi-Cola advertising campaign that runs counter to the biblical account of creation, Pepsi's Israeli distributor says.

Pepsi's ad plays on the theory of man's evolution from the apes, which Orthodox Judaism rejects as counter to the biblical account of man being descended from Adam and Eve.

Tempo Beer Industries Ltd., which produces Pepsi in Israel, said Friday that the trouble began when the Orthodox Council of Jerusalem objected to a campaign teaser showing two apes and the inscription "B.C."

Under the slogan "The Choice of the New Generation," the ad implies that Pepsi stands at the pinnacle of evolution. Pepsi is a newcomer to the Coca-Cola-dominated Israeli market.

Majer Ruch, Tempo's advertising director, said the Orthodox Council complained that the ad was "unacceptable" and hinted it might withdraw the kosher certificate it issued to Pepsi.

Such certificates declare an item fit for consumption under the strict biblical dietary laws adhered to by ultra-Orthodox Jews.

About a quarter of Israel's 4.2 million Jews are religiously observant. The ultra-Orthodox are a minority among the religious, but they have frequently objected to advertising they consider offensive over the years, and even burned down bus shelters that carried ad posters of models in scanty swimsuits.

A rabbi at the Orthodox Council, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the council had asked Tempo and Pepsi-Cola to withdraw the campaign and indicated it would withdraw its support otherwise.

Ken Johnston, Pepsi-Cola's Israeli manager, issued a statement Thursday saying the campaign was "tested among many groups in Israel and got a positive response."

But the campaign is on hold while Tempo, Pepsi-Cola and the Gitam ad agency seek a solution, Ruch said.

Shaul Yahalom of the National Religious Party said Pepsi-Cola was caught up in a power struggle among eight ultra-Orthodox Jewish communities.

"Evolution is certainly a problematic subject. . . . But there is no connection between this and kosher laws," he said on Israel radio.

Moshe Bornstein, chairman of Tempo's board, told Israel army radio Thursday that he did not approve of the ad. "Anything which is forbidden in the Bible, I won't do," he said.

Advertiser Avner Fuchsman told the radio that Bornstein's stance reflected the fact that 100,000 ultra-Orthodox households are a buying power that Bornstein "or anyone else can't just ignore."

New tax has businesses reeling

AUSTIN (AP) — Last year, the Texas Legislature approved sweeping changes in the corporate franchise tax. On Friday, the first payments came due, to the dismay of businesses seeing sharp increases.

"We've got a lot of smaller taxpayers that weren't aware of how much the change would cost," said Brad Gabbart, head of the franchise tax section at the state comptroller's office.

"As they computed their tax, it's been a rather rude awakening," he said.

The previous tax was criticized as placing an unfair burden on companies with high levels of capital investment, whether or not they made a profit, while many service firms paid little.

Gabbart calls the revised tax a hybrid between a franchise, income and value-added tax.

It requires corporations to pay $2.50 for each $1,000 in capital investment, or a 4.5 percent levy on earned surplus, the net income counted for federal taxes, whichever is greater. The second levy is a new one; the first was reduced from $5.25 to $2.50.

Companies with more than 35 shareholders pay an additional tax on the compensation paid to officers and directors.

The tax is expected to add about $839 million to state coffers this year and $1.2 billion next year, up from $596.7 million in 1991.

The comptroller's office estimates that the state mining industry, mainly energy exploration and production, will see its share of the total tax burden drop from 16 percent to 7 percent. Meanwhile, the service industry's share will climb from nearly 8 percent to 14 percent.

Service companies, such as accounting and law firms, are "the ones who are going to be sad about the whole deal," said Craig Daugherty, a revenue analyst for the comptroller.

"There's a lot of mad business people," Lynn Lopez, part-owner of an air conditioning repair firm based in Spring, said. The repair company's franchise tax bill rose form $125 last year to $1,700.

"Repeal the corporate income tax," it said last week. And, two days later: "Hey Guv," it said. "If you were Ann Inc., where would 4 percent of your income go?"

Court panel reprimands Texas judge

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. District Judge James A. Nowlin, who ordered a controversial state Senate redistricting plan for this year's elections, Friday was reprimanded by a panel of federal judges.

"It is imperative that Judge Nowlin exercise greater care in such matters in the future and he is so directed," said the order signed by Chief Judge Henry A. Politz of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Nowlin also was admonished for actions inconsistent with the code of conduct for federal judges and that "are deemed prejudicial to the effective administration of the business of the courts," Politz's order said.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said, "We are pleased that the federal judiciary has undertaken the painful task of cleaning their own house.

"We are saddened, however, that the panel finds what we have contended all along: That there has been an injustice in the process of redistricting with the people of Texas as victims."

In a separate action, a three-judge panel of the 5th Circuit asked the U.S. Supreme Court to decide which of the two courts should decide a bid by Democratic Party leaders to have Nowlin dismissed from the redistricting case.

Assistant Attorney General Renea Hicks said he did not know if the judicial actions Friday would affect the March 10 primaries, or future primaries.

"Everybody, just in the course of events, has to assume for now that things will proceed toward the general election as they are. But this is an unusual enough case with enough unusual events that who can predict?" he said.

State attorneys described the action against Nowlin by his colleagues as extremely rare.

Nowlin repeatedly has declined to discuss the case. A man who answered the telephone at his office, but refused to give his name, said Nowlin was returning from a judicial conference and not available to comment.

The report from a special investigative committee of federal judges followed a complaint by Lewis Earl, a lawyer from Post, and a board member of the citizen group Common Cause.

Earl had alleged that Nowlin, a Republican appointee, acted in a partisan way when ordering a new state Senate redistricting map for the March 10 primaries.

That plan for election of the 31 senators was opposed by Democratic leaders, who accused Nowlin of having a Republican legislator, San Antonio Rep. George Pierce, secretly make adjustments to the plan.

The report said there was no evidence that Nowlin "had a corrupt or evil motive in asking Rep. Pierce to assist in altering the court's redistricting plan."

But the court said that Nowlin should not have had meetings with Pierce, or directed him to make changes in the map, without letting other parties in the case know.

"Judge Nowlin should have realized that allowing Rep. Pierce to participate in drawing district lines would give a serious perception of impropriety," it said.

San Antonio hosts 'Nashville Now'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Nashville Network's "Nashville Now" variety show on cable TV will originate next week from San Antonio, Texas.

The one-hour live program will broadcast Monday through Friday from the new Fiesta Texas theme park.

Richards gets wish: Chance to ride Harley

AUSTIN (NYT) — Gov. Ann Richards locked up the biker vote Friday.

Hamming it up for the cameras on a new customized Harley-Davidson motorcycle, Richards said she's learning to be careful about what she wishes for — because, in her case, she just might get it.

"I'm just happy I didn't see an alligator or a javelina or something like that," Richards said.

Richards, 58, said she didn't dream that Harley officials would grant her wish when she paused to admire a Harley last month and mused that she'd like to ride one by the time she turns 60.

But there it was — a diminutive white 883 Hugger Harley — parked outside her office Friday. And there she was — all dressed in black, including fringed gloves — sitting upon it doing the Arsenio Hall whoop.

The Steppenwolf song, "Born to Be Wild," blared loudly, and Richards chuckled goodnaturedly as 150 children and adults looked on at her show of middle-age craziness.

She used the opportunity to lecture the children on the importance of taking motorcycle training classes and wearing helmets.

"Upon hearing her desire for a Harley, we decided there was no reason not to have another pretty woman on a Harley-Davidson," said Don Smith, owner of Texas Harley-Davidson in Bedford, between Dallas and Fort Worth, which gave her the bike.

A Harley magazine called Texas Iron — "Dedicated to the pursuit of happiness, beautiful women and Harley Davidsons" — is planning to put Richards' picture on its July cover, said editor Frank Herrera.

Because of the state's ethics laws, Richards could not accept the motorcycle for herself. It will be used by the Department of Public Safety for motorcycle safety training.

She also got a helmet, inscribed "Gov. Ann." But she didn't put it on.

"You all think I didn't want to put that helmet on 'cause I'd mess my hair up," Richards said.

"But that is not the case. If there's anything I learned from Michael Dukakis, it is do not get yourself associated with some machine with a helmet on your head," referring to the much-ridiculed tank ride of the 1988 Democratic presidential candidate.

Richards said she may ride the Harley once she takes the safety course and gets a license. But riding on the back of the motorcycle with someone is out of the question.

"Not on your life," Richards said. "You think I'm going to let somebody else drive me? It's bad enough in a car."

Perot was stringent but loyal boss, company says

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot was a tough boss at Electronic Data Systems Corp., instilling military-style order and dress codes. But he also inspired loyalty with extraordinary personal assistance and with benefits packages that made some rich.

"He was very, very demanding," said Jerry Dalton, a retired Air Force general who led EDS' public relations department from 1980-84. "There are a lot of people who for one reason or another couldn't cut it in his organization. For those who did and produced, he took good care of them."

"We used to say the kind of guy we wouldn't want around EDS was a lazy genius," said Tom Marquez, Perot's first hire at EDS and later a vice president and director. "Ross is very, very interested in people living up to their potential."

Much of Perot's public persona is tied to EDS, the company he started and one that revolutionized the computer services industry. Some of his personality is still reflected in EDS' culture.

His more stringent requirements — he once only hired married men as EDS job recruiters because Perot feared a bachelor might not stay on long — gave way to more modern business practices.

But employees said they put up with his strict rules because of what they described as two-way loyalty — and benefit plans that included lucrative stock options.

"The guy cutting the grass at my house has the same health plan I have," Perot once said.

Perot recruited many employees from the military, believing they were more likely to accept his insistence on a dress code — white shirts for men, no pants for women — and 24-hour availability.

"One of the things we were always looking for is people who were self-motivated," said Marquez, who is now a private investor in Dallas.

He also intervened often on behalf of employees' families in times of crisis, the most familiar instance being his work to help two EDS employees escape from an Iranian jail in 1979.

Dalton said many EDS workers "would go through hell for him ... because Perot knew loyalty goes both ways."

With Perot now a potential independent candidate for president, EDS will no longer discuss him publicly. He's also a business competitor now and EDS has military and federal contracts that could be affected if Perot were elected.

Since leaving EDS, Perot's relationship with the company that made him a billionaire has been alternately cordial and litigious. Many of his proteges remain at EDS, including chief executive Les Alberthal, and lately Perot has praised the company.

"It has done beautifully. I'm very proud of the people. They've done a great job," Perot said earlier this year.

Companies hire EDS to provide experts, design and sometimes operate computer and communication systems. Perot started the company in 1962, when businesses were just beginning to realize computers' potentials in business.

A deal with Frito-Lay Inc. in 1963 gave EDS its first big revenues; its first big profits came from a 1968 deal to manage Medicare and Medicaid claims in Texas.

He sold EDS to General Motors in 1984, a deal that made EDS a giant. The company bought him out in 1986 for more than $700 million.

EDS had revenue in 1991 of $7.1 billion.

Perot is trying to repeat his EDS success with Perot Systems Inc., launched in 1988. The company, based in Herndon, Va., had 1991 revenues of $209 million from 35 clients.

But last week, Perot Systems announced its biggest deals yet, 10- and 12-year contracts worth a combined $1 billion with East Midlands Electricity, a leading utility company in Britain, and Europcar, the largest vehicle rental firm in Europe.

EDS and Perot Systems have clashed several times since his departure, including a court fight over when and how many employees he could hire from his old company.

Not getting that business has turned into a political plus for Perot.

"The good news is Perot Systems does no business with the federal government," he said when asked recently what he'd do with the company if he became president. "We'll just keep that simple."

Big Spring fares well

AUSTIN — Class 4A opened the 1992 state track meet weekend at Memorial Stadium Friday night, but it was a little tame when compared to the 1991 opening night.

A year ago, Jasper set a national record in the 400 relay with a 39.9 seconds, but nothing like that was on the agenda for this opener.

Quinton McLoud of Conroe Oak Ridge did have a 7-foot high jump in the 4A competition, but even that effort wasn't good enough for a record. And Austin Reagan turned in a hot 40.3 in the sprint relay, but that wasn't the 40-second buster of a year ago by Jasper.

King improves by three

■ Midland Lee junior already looks forward to next state try.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

AUSTIN — Midland Lee's Paula King ended her debut in the state golf tournament Friday with a two-day 80-77-157, which was just enough to leave the junior yearning for next year.

The rain-soaked Jimmy Clay course was not kind to second day golfers as play was interrupted with heavy showers, but King was still three strokes better than in the humidity and heat of the first day.

In fact, King was headed to a good round until she hit No. 14 when she turned in bogies on the next four holes to finish at six-over par.

"I'm really disappointed with the back nine," King said. "It should have never happened.

"I know one thing. I'll be back next year and I'll shoot a lot better. I'm coming back."

King was one-under par through the first eight holes when a 45-minute delay in play was called due to rain.

BETHESDA, Md. — The leaderboard at the LPGA Championship has got an old-time, almost nostalgic flavor to it.

Betsy King shot a 5-under-par 66 Friday for an 8-under 134 total and a three-stroke lead over JoAnne Carner in the second round of the $1 million tournament. Amy Alcott, who could join Carner in the Hall of Fame with a victory, was at 138.

Play was suspended by rain late in the afternoon with 45 players still on the Bethesda Country Club course. Among those left on the course, the one with the best chance of making

Reeger's system takes shape on MHS gridiron

■ New Bulldog football coach Ronnie Reeger says his team is progressing on schedule.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Aside from the expected handful of injuries that usually accompany spring training, the Midland High football Bulldogs are well on their way to assimilating the new system of head coach Ronnie Reeger.

After being named MHS coach earlier this year, Reeger is busy installing his Wing-T offense and 4-3 defense. At the end of the two weeks of spring drills, he said Friday all was going according to schedule.

"It's been going real well. People are settling in, though we have had a few injuries. We're getting a lot closer to where we need to be, it seems like, as long as we don't get a lot of kids hurt," Reeger said.

The Bulldogs will conclude their May session next Thursday, when MHS stages its annual spring football game at 7 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

With the expected depletion of the 105 players MHS started spring with — some lost to injury, others to natural attrition — Reeger and his staff have about 85 players to work with.

That means not only will depth be a key to the 'Dogs in their Fall campaign, but that the format of the spring game will be a little different.

"We won't have a No. 1 offense going against a No. 1 defense because we've got so many kids playing both sides of the ball. We will just split them up and try to get two equal teams.

"Naturally, we feel at this stage our offense has to be more important as far continuity in moving the ball. We'll take the kids that we want for the offense and then put a defense against them. We will be moving them back and forth between offense and defense anyway," Reeger said.

Reeger added the Bulldogs probably won't work on their kicking game in the spring game, opting to "just

Angels win series

Staff report

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The Midland Angels defeated the Arkansas Travelers 1-0 to take the nightcap of a doubleheader Friday in Little Rock. With the win, the Angels took their first series victory of the 1992 Texas League season.

Arkansas won Friday's opener, 6-2.

Midland won three of five games against the Travelers, and now open a five game road swing through Jackson, Miss., today.

Former reliever Mark Zappelli started the second game of the doubleheader. Although he came away with a no decision, Zappelli extended a personal streak to 20⅔ the number of conseuctive innings he's pitched without allowing an earned run.

Before the game Zappelli was made the team's official fifth starter, replacing Joe Kraemer, who was moved to the bullpen.

Angel shortstop Rod Correia extended his hitting streak to six games Friday.

Rookie dies following crash at Indianapolis

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Rookie Jovy Marcelo of the Philippines was killed in a crash during practice Friday, the first driver in 10 years to die at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Marcelo

Marcelo, one of more than a dozen drivers trying to find enough speed to qualify for the Indianapolis 500, sustained head and chest injuries and was pronounced dead at 4:35 p.m. EST after being taken by ambulance to Methodist Hospital.

The accident occurred as Marcelo was accelerating after a warmup lap at 172.328 mph. He spun driving into Turn 1 on the 2½-mile oval and smashed into the wall.

The 27-year-old driver didn't regain consciousness.

He is the first driver fatality at Indy since Gordon Smiley was killed instantly in a crash during qualifying in 1982. A spectator was killed by a flying tire during the 1987 race.

Marcelo is the 40th driver and 65th person to die from injuries sustained at the speedway since it opened in 1909.

The search for speed continued after Marcelo's crash, with plenty of activity during the final 90 minutes on the last full day of practice for the May 24 race.

Tony Bettenhausen was the fastest of the non-qualified drivers Friday, turning a lap of 221.033, followed by Didier Theys of Belgium, who got his car up to 220.146.

Celtics survive

Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics — with Larry Bird making his first start since April 3 — fought off questions about their age and pushed their Eastern Conference semifinal series with the Cleveland Cavaliers to a seventh game with a 122-91 win Friday night.

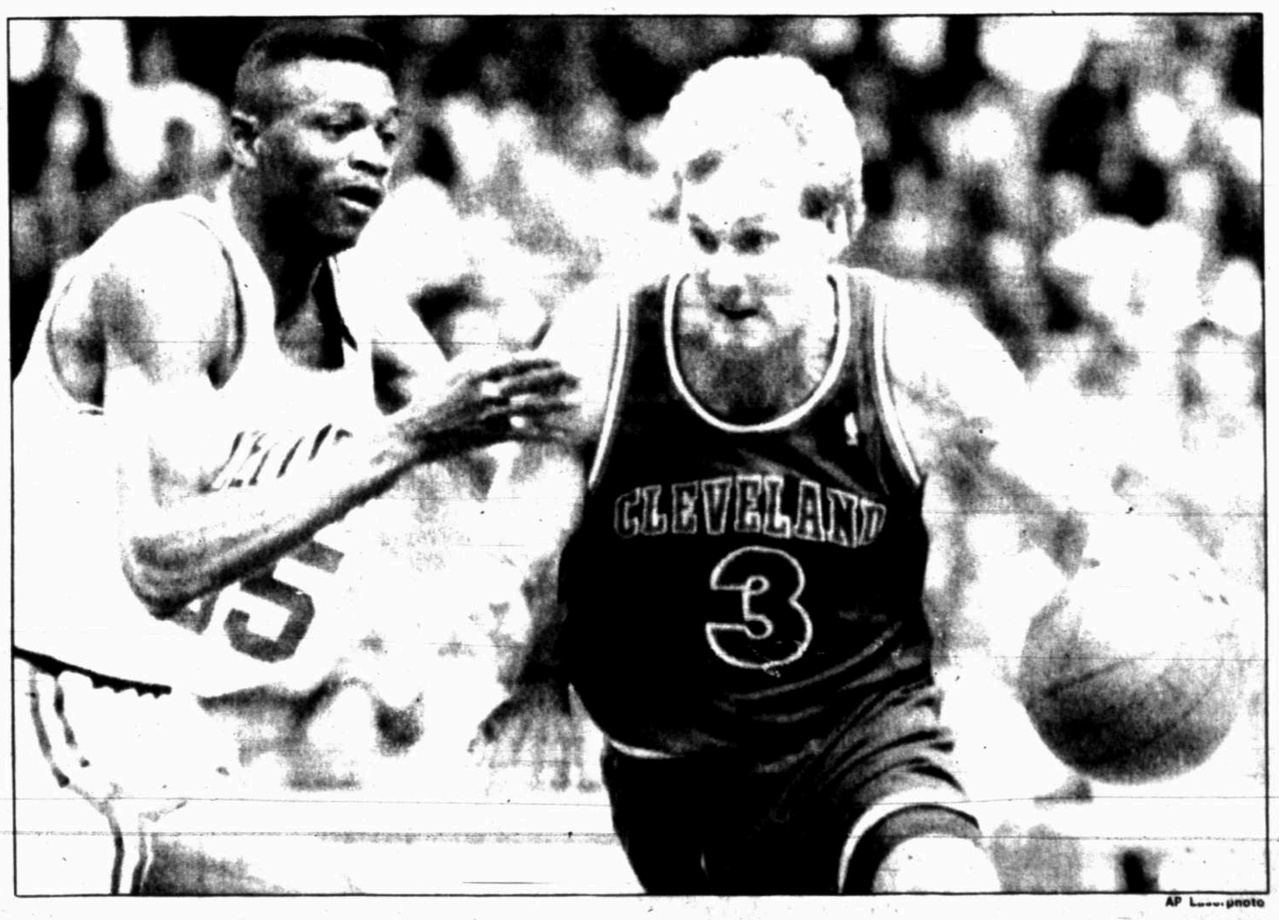

Reggie Lewis scored 26 points and Bird had 16 points and 14 assists to lead Boston, which won for the ninth time in 15 games when they have trailed in a playoff series 3-2, including a 6-2 record at Boston Garden.

Game 7 is Sunday at Richfield Coliseum. Boston is 17-3 in seventh games while the Cavaliers will be playing a Game 7 for the second time. They beat Washington in 1976, before eventually losing to the Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals.

Kevin McHale had 22 points, 16 in the second quarter, for Boston and finished nine for 12 from the field.

On defense, the Celtics were able to hold down Cleveland's front line. Only John Williams came close to his average with a team-leading 18 points. Brad Daughterty, who had 28 in Cleveland's

Clemens mows down California on four hits

Associated Press

AL

BOSTON — Roger Clemens pitched a four-hitter for his second straight shutout and the Red Sox beat the Angels, 3-0 Friday night.

Clemens (5-3) struck out six and walked one as he beat Jim Abbott (2-5) for the third time in four career decisions. Clemens, who pitched his sixth complete game of the season, got his third shutout this year and the 32nd of his career.

Abbott pitched a six-hitter for his second complete game of the season, walking five and striking out one.

Brewers 7, Rangers 3

MILWAUKEE — Franklin Stubbs, battling a 2-for-30 slump, hit the first grand slam of his career as Milwaukee beat Texas in 10 innings.

Robin Yount opened the 10th with a double off Jeff Robinson (4-3). Greg Vaughn followed with a broken-bat single and took second on left fielder John Cangelosi's throwing error.

Dante Bichette was walked intentionally and Kenny Rogers relieved and struck out Kevin Seitzer. On the next pitch, he allowed Stubbs' fourth home run of the season.

Indians 5, Twins 0

CLEVELAND — Charles Nagy pitched his second career shutout, and Carlos Baerga and Mark Lewis drove in two runs each as Cleveland stopped the Twins' five-game winning streak.

Nagy (4-2) gave up six hits, struck out three and walked none as Cleveland ended a five-game losing streak. Nagy rebounded from two bad outings in which he gave up 23 hits and 10 runs, pitching his first shutout since a 3-0 victory over Milwaukee last July 4.

Nagy, who has all three of Cleveland's complete games, matched a career best with his fifth six-hitter.

Mariners 2, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO — Dave Fleming, who has all three of the Mariners' victories in their last 16 games, won his fifth consecutive decision.

Fleming (5-1), who leads major league rookies in victories, allowed one run and six hits in seven-plus innings as Seattle stopped an eight-game road losing streak. He walked five and struck out two.

Todd Stottlemyre (4-3) allowed two runs and three hits in seven-plus innings as the Blue Jays lost for just the third time in 12 games. He struck out three and walked five.

Yankees 3, Athletics 2

NEW YORK — Scott Kamieniecki outpitched Bob Welch and New York earned its third straight victory.

The Yankees, swept last weekend in Oakland, beat the A's for just the 10th time in their last 40 meetings.

Roberto Kelly hit a two-run homer in the first and the Yankees added a run in the fourth when Andy Stankiewicz grounded into a double play with the bases loaded. Oakland got two-out, RBI singles from Terry Steinbach in the fourth and Carney Lansford in the fifth.

Orioles 2, White Sox 0

CHICAGO — Mike Mussina allowed four hits in 8⅔ innings as the Baltimore Orioles beat Chicago for their 12th victory in 15 games.

Mussina (5-0), seeking his first career shutout, struck out five and walked two as the Orioles won their fifth consecutive road game. After Robin Ventura singled with two outs in the ninth, Gregg Olson relieved. He gave up an infield hit to Frank Thomas, then retired George Bell on a groundout for his eighth save in nine chances.

Cards roll over Houston for sixth straight win

Associated Press

NL

HOUSTON — Felix Jose's go-ahead two-run homer off reliever Doug Jones sparked a four-run ninth inning as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Houston Astros 7-5 Friday night for their sixth straight victory.

Jeff Bagwell, who hit a three-run homer in the third, had given the Astros a 4-3 lead with a run-scoring double in the eighth off Cris Carpenter.

Phillies 8, Reds 0

CINCINNATI — Terry Mulholland, Philadelphia's last healthy starter, pitched a five-hitter for his third straight complete-game victory and Ricky Jordan drove in four runs to help the Phillies beat Cincinnati.

Mulholland (3-3) snapped the Phillies' three-game losing streak by holding Cincinnati to five singles. He struck out five and gave up one walk.

Cincinnati failed to get a scoring threat after the fourth inning as Mulholland retired 10 straight. The Reds have lost three straight games.

Padres 9, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Gary Sheffield hit a two-run double in San Diego's three-run first inning and Craig Lefferts won his third straight decision.

Tony Gwynn had four hits and Benito Santiago added three doubles as the Padres tied a team record set twice previously with seven doubles.

Pittsburgh starter Denny Neagle (1-2) walked three in the first and retired only one batter before leaving.

Braves 4, Expos 2

ATLANTA — Ron Gant drove in two runs to increase his National League-leading total to 31 and Terry Pendleton extended his hitting streak to 12 games as Atlanta beat Montreal.

Kent Mercker (1-0), pressed into action in the first inning when starter Mike Bielecki suffered back spasms, got the victory. The left-hander allowed two hits and walked three in holding the Expos scoreless for 3⅓ innings as the Braves won for only the second time in seven games.

TRACK: Big Spring's Roberson fifth in 800

(From 1B)

Light rain hampered action, beginning with the 200 meters at 9:30 p.m., as Austin has been plagued by stretches of rather strong showers the last two days.

Big Spring's Syreeta Shellman fought off a bad case of nerves to win a third place medal in the shot put with a toss of 40-6½.

Shellman came into the meet with a state ranked 42-2, but she said a bad case of the nerves kept her from reaching that mark.

"I was scared and nervous and it just never went away," Shellman said. "I'm just a junior, so I don't think I will be nearly as nervous next year. I just wanted to come down here and get a medal this year and next year I'll go for the gold.

"I really wanted to get my personal best in the state meet, but I guess nerves got in the way."

Big Spring's Anne Rodriquez finished fifth in the 800 with a season best 2:17.7. She led the race for the first 350 meters, but it took a heavy toll as far as making a victory run.

"I ran my fastest time, but I didn't have enough at the end," Rodriguez said.

Another Steer, Nick Roberson, also finished fifth in the boys 800 with a season best 1:57.0.

"I'm not surprised," Roberson said. "I knew this was going to be really tough down here. I ran my best time and was still fifth."

Roberson was the only Big Spring entry to be in two events. He also anchored the Steers' 1600 relay team, which finished fifth, but beat district foe Sweetwater with a 3:21.2.

Roberson passed the Sweetwater anchor leg at the tape. Sweetwater had beaten Big Spring by almost three seconds in the Region I meet two weeks ago in San Angelo.

"We ran a 3:19 at the Odessa qualifiers meet last week," Roberson said.

Dallas Madison won the 4A girls team title with a 58-43 margin over Wichita Falls Hirschi, while Austin Reagan won the boys crown with a huge 78-47 margin over Wilmer-Hutchins.

While the majority of action Friday dealt with Class 4A, two Class 3A conference records fell in the field events.

Orangefield's Wayne Guidry broke his own 3A record in the pole vault with a 16-6, three inches better than his effort of a year ago.

Carla Spears of Luling set a new 3A girls triple jump mark with a 40-4½, beating the old conference record by five inches.

Tech falls, 6-1

HOUSTON (AP) — R.D. Long's three hits led a 13-hit attack Friday as Houston defeated Texas Tech 6-1.

Both teams are 29-25 overall and 15-19 in the Southwest Conference.

Jeff Wright (4-1) scattered 10 hits in going the distance. He walked two and struck out two. Wes Shook ruined the shutout with a solo homer in the seventh, his fifth.

The Cougars pounded Tech ace Mark Brandenburg (10-7) for six runs, five of them earned, in seven innings. He struck out three and walked one.

Long, the No. 9 hitter, had two RBIs. Phil Lewis, Ricky Freeman and Carlos Perez each added two hits off Brandenburg.

GOLF: Andrews' Campbell captures state medalist title

(From 1B)

But she came back on the course and hit her first ball out of bounds that led to an ultimate double bogey. It looked like King was going to right herself until her string of bogies late in the round.

King finished in a tie for 10th place overall, climbing four slots from the first day.

Still, it was the placement of some of King's opponents that led her to yearn for more.

For instance, El Paso Andress' Sonja Perales fashioned a 72-73-148 to finish second in the medalist chase, six strokes behind Class 5A champion junior Jennifer Waterhouse of Clements. King defeated Perales for the Region I title two weeks ago in Lubbock. Perales was making her third state appearance, finishing 16th, sixth and second.

Also, Abilene Cooper freshman April DeVries carved out a 79-76-155, two strokes in front of King. King won the District 4-5A medalist title over DeVries on the district tour. Cooper's Marcie Edwards, another junior, tied King with 157. Those three should form another key district battle next year for medalist honors.

Behind DeVries and Edwards, Cooper finished second in the team race with a two-day 656, six strokes short of Houston Kingwood.

"I'll do better next year. I'll be ready for this when I come back," King said. "I'm glad I came this year, but I'm leaving with a feeling that I could have done a lot better."

In Class 4A, Andrews won its third consecutive girls team title with a back-nine rally.

Andrews posted a two-day 666 to win by three strokes over Bastrop. However, the Lady Mustangs had to make up 14 strokes on the last nine holes of the tournament.

Lisa McQuaters paved the way with a 71-73-146, but finished second in the state medalist race.

Other Andrews girls were Tori Hester, 78-83-161; Valarie Brown, 86-95-181; Andra Fleming, 94-87-181; and Shannon Rollins, 91-99-190. They went into the second round trailing by one mere stroke before seeing Bastrop's lead climb through the first nine holes.

Andrews' Chad Campbell won the Class 4A boys state medalist title with identical 73s for a two-day 146.

However, the Andrews team surrendered its one-stroke lead from the first day to place second in the team chase to Highland Park's 619. Andrews had a 627 total, losing nine strokes on the final day.

Other Andrews boy's scores were Ronnie Lopez, 77-77-154; Manuel Hernandez, 75-85-160; Derrick Pursley, 82-85-167; and Marcus Mainord, 82-95-177.

San Angelo quarterback eyes baseball career with Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — High school sports star Shea Morenz, recruited by the University of Texas as a quarterback, says he might pursue a baseball career instead if the Houston Astros are interested.

Houston, which has the top pick in the June free agent draft, is said to be considering Morenz, The Houston Post reported.

"I've talked with them a little, and they've expressed interest in me," Morenz said Thursday. "They said I'm one of quite a few they're thinking about taking. The signability aspect is what they're interested in most."

Morenz hit .510 this year with eight home runs as a right fielder for San Angelo Central.

Should he opt to attend college, he is expected to play both football and baseball for the Longhorns.

"I never really saw myself in a position to be the No. 1 pick," Morenz said. "I just thought I was going to UT and was really excited about it.

"This has happened all of a sudden. I'll have to see what happens and weigh all the different scenarios."

No two golf swings are exactly alike. Within this fundamental axiom lies the Kenneth Smith difference.

Each of our clubs is handmade to fit one, and only one golfer - you.

Every aspect of your clubs is unique, precisely fitted to your swing, and yours alone.

From the grips, each meticulously sized to fit your hands exactly, to the36 shaft flexes (instead of just 3 or 4), to your choice of four shaft materials, to various club head designs, to choice of wood stains...and the list goes on and on.

The perfect fit for you... and only you. Because they fit better, they play better.

That's the Kenneth Smith difference - and your key to lower scores.

Since 1919, the company's clients have included such notables as Clark Gable, Bing Crosby, baseball greats Ty Cobb, Mickey Mantle and Bret Saberhagen, professional golfers Gay Brewer, Horton Smith and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, King Hassan of Morocco and King Leopold of Belgium, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and President Richard M. Nixon, Congressmen, Hall of Fame athletes and many other golfers who wanted "truly" custom-fitted clubs.

LPGA: Rain interrupts play

(From 1B)

an impact was Helen Alfredsson, who was four under with one hole left.

The round will be completed Saturday morning, when the cut will be established, followed by the third round.

In a season thus far dominated by the tour's younger players — the last eight tournaments have been won by players under 30 — the older echelon appears to making a comeback. King and Alcott are 36 and Carner is 53.

Furthermore, 40-year-old Alice Ritzman and Elaine Crosby, 33, were next on the board at 139. Liselotte Neumann, a comparitive youngster at 25, was also at 139 after shooting a 68.

Jan Stephenson was alone in seventh at two under.

"I said someone from the over-35 crowd would win this, and it looks like we're coming through," King said. "I just think it's the law of averages. The young players have played well the whole year, and the older players had to play better at some point."

King, who was tied for the lead with Ritzman and two others after the first round, had six birdies and two bogeys. She began to make her move on No. 5, sinking a 20-foot birdie putt, then holed a 35-footer for a birdie on No. 6.

King had three birdies on the back nine to pull away from the field and put herself in position to win her fifth career major.

"If you asked me before the year which tournament I wanted to win, I would have said this one," she said.

Carner, meanwhile, is looking to win any tournament even though she has 42 victories since joining the tour in 1970. But she is winless since 1985.

"My goal is to be the oldest person ever to win a tournament," she said. "That's enough incentive to keep me going."

Carner is already the oldest woman to win an event, but she's got her eye on the mark held by Sam Snead, who was 52 when he won his last PGA event.

Carner had a bogey-free round that might have been better had she not missed 6-foot birdie putts on Nos. 10 and 11.

"It was great," she said. "I really could have shot a number if I knocked in some putts."

Alcott parred the last eight holes to stay in the hunt, while Ritzman had nine straight pars until closing her round with a bogey on No. 9.

For Alcott, being in contention was half the battle.

"Winning is an elusive thing," she said. "I'd like to be able to touch it and tuck it in like a little baby. But first, you have to play yourself into contention."

First-round co-leader Brandie Burton shot a 73 to fall back into a group of nine at 141, while Donna Andrews, who also started the round in first place, shot a 75.

Former U.S. Open champion Jane Geddes was at 4-under until No. 18, when she hit her tee shot out of bounds and took a 7 on the par-4 hole.

Kite controls Byron Nelson

IRVING (AP) — Tom Kite played a bogey-free 65 at the end of a long day and held a one-stroke lead Friday in the uncompleted second round of the Byron Nelson Classic.

Kite was in the portion of the field that returned to the TPC at Las Colinas at daylight to complete first-round play, then finished second-round activity shortly before dusk.

The other half of the field, 78 players, are scheduled for second-round play Saturday morning in the tournament that was disrupted Thursday by severe thunderstorms. The third round is scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Kite, 42, fresh off a victory in Atlanta last weekend, completed a 67 early in the morning, then came back with the 5-under-par effort that put him through two rounds at 132, eight under par on the TPC at Las Colinas, still wet from the 2½-inch rain a day earlier.

His old friend and former teammate at the University of Texas, Ben Crenshaw, was a stroke off the pace but, like Kite, said the lead means very little at this stage.

"It isn't a lead at all," Kite said. "Half the field still has to play."

"All it means right now," Crenshaw agreed after his scores of 65-68, "is that we have two good scores."

Marco Dawson, a refugee from the mini-tours now in his second season on the PGA Tour, had another one, an even better one.

After matching par 70 in the early morning, Dawson came back with a 7-under-par 63 late in the day and tied Crenshaw for second.

Ray Floyd, the 49-year-old who has been on such a tear all year, Robin Freeman, Dan Forsman and Phil Blackmar followed at 134.

All are through until Saturday afternoon. Before that, however, half the field will attempt to catch them.

Three share Seniors lead with 67s

KINGWOOD, Texas (AP) — Larry Mowry, Harold Henning and Gibby Gilbert each shot 5-under 67s Friday to share a one-stroke lead after the first round of the PGA Senior Tour Doug Sanders Kingwood Celebrity Classic.

Mowry, 47th on the seniors money list this year, fired a blistering 30 on the front nine, the lowest nine-hole score in the 5-year history of the tournament. But a double bogey on No. 14 brought him back to the field when he went into the trees, pitched into a chuck-hole and three-putted. On the back nine, he had just one birdie, a two-putt on the par-5 16th.

CRASH: Driver killed at Indy

(From 1B)

"This kind of an accident always affects you," said the somber Theys. "These cars are very safe, but if you hit your head ...

"It's very hard to put that out of your mind, especially when you know that person." Theys added. "It's very hard to make a compromise when you jump in a car the day after. You say to yourself, 'I need to be safe and I need to be fast to be competitive and make the show.' That's very hard to make that compromise."

Antonio Ferrari of Italy, who owns the car in which Marcelo was killed, was close to tears as he left the Euromotorsports Racing garage several hours after the accident.

"He was so good guy," Ferrari said halting accented English before walking quickly away.

Fellow car owner Dale Coyne, who was in the second turn watching one of his drivers practice, saw Marcelo removed from the 1991 Euromotorsports Lola and said, "Everybody's bothered by this. Jovy was a nice kid with a lot of enthusiasm."

There are six spots remaining in the 33-car lineup for the 76th Indy 500.

"Nobody really knows what it's going to take, but just about everybody is saying they won't be comfortable with anything under 220," said Dominic Dobson, another of the non-qualified drivers.

"Like us, people are just sort of sneaking up on it," said Dobson, who didn't get out on the track for the first time until Thursday.

start a drive and see what we can do.

"We expect the game to last about two hours; we hope to run 90 to 100 plays like we did last Saturday (in MHS' first intra-squad scrimmage under Reeger)."

With two weeks of practice to evaluate, Reeger said he is pleased for the most part with the players' performance.

"We're looking at Brad Heidelberg at quarterback right now, though we do have a couple out because of grades. Our running backs are doing a good job of what we're asking them to do, and the offensive line is not in bad shape.

"The kids are trying to make themselves mentally tougher as well as physically tougher. They've really done a good job of understanding what we want to do offensively and we haven't put that much on defensively.

"Everybody's had their moments, good and bad. But it's injuries that can really cause us problems if we have many of them."

Lemieux may return in cast

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins star Mario Lemieux, initially expected to miss the rest of the NHL playoffs with a broken left hand, may return midway through the Wales Conference finals against the Boston Bruins.

Lemieux skated Friday with a small, plastic cast on his broken hand and shot with both hands on his stick. He previously could shoot with just one hand.

"It's feeling better," the league's leading scorer said. "It's better than it was before. I'm able to do more things than I could before. It's healing better ... but it's still a broken hand and it takes time."

Some Penguins are guessing Lemieux might return for Game 5, scheduled May 20 in Pittsburgh. That would be less than three weeks after Lemieux was hurt when he was slashed on the gloves by Adam Graves of the New York Rangers. Graves received a four-game suspension for the slah. The original prognosis was that Lemieux wouldn't heal for four to six weeks.

"It's tough having to sit and watch at a time you'd like to be playing," Lemieux said. "This is when you want to be right in the middle of it. But I'm not surprised ... we've still got some great players on this team."

And now the Penguins have hope their best player might be back, even if it's not a 100 percent Lemieux.

"Mario Lemieux playing at 50 percent is better than any of us at 100 percent," center Bryan Trottier said.

Avoid the Panic of 65

Will you be ready to retire?

Chances are, you'll be more than ready. But will you be financially ready?

Current estimates indicate you'll need 60 to 80% of your annual income at retirement for each year you're retired. Sounds like a lot of money, doesn't it? But Fortis Financial Group can offer you a variety of investment opportunities to help you work toward a secure retirement.

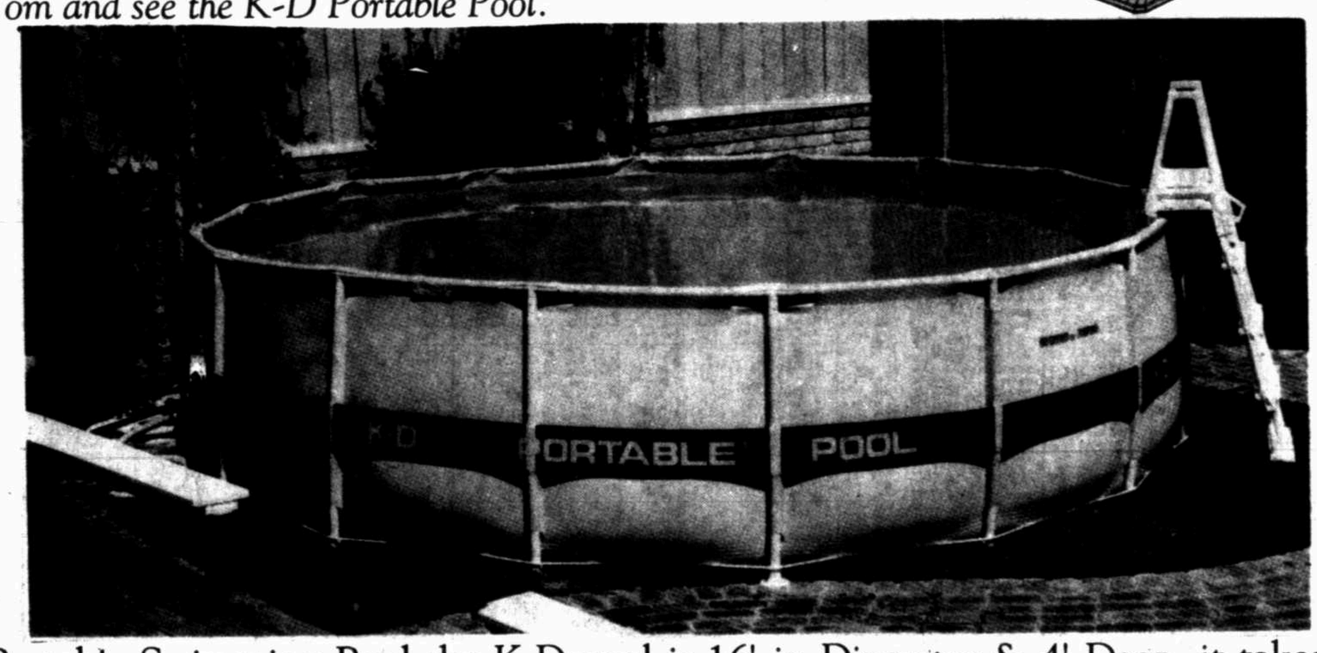

No matter how many years you have to retirement – whether it's 5 or 40 – your financial representative can show you how Fortis retirement plans, mutual funds, variable annuities and variable universal life insurance can help you avoid the panic at age 65.

For more information on how Fortis can help you plan for a retirement you can look forward to, call today:

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Annual Women's Day planned

The Bethel Missionary Baptist Church 10th Annual Women's Day Services are planned for 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. today.

Dinner will be served following the services.

In addition, a 3 p.m. Sunday service featuring the theme "Women on Praise and Worship" is planned.

The Bethel Spring revival is set for Monday through Friday. Evangelist is the Rev. Earl Jackson of the King Star Baptist Church, Kingsville.

Jackson is vice-president at large of the National Baptist Convention USA and moderator of the Corpus Christi District association.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Church hosts ladies banquet

First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., is holding its Spring Ladies Banquet for mothers and daughters at 6 p.m. Thursday in the church's Lynn Hall.

Guest speaker will be Jeanette Clift George, founder and artistic director of the A.D. Players, the Houston-based Christian theater company that offers plays throughout the world.

For her work with the company, Mrs. George received the Matrix Award for outstanding contribution to the community through her playwriting, the Delta Gamma Fraternity Shield Award for distinguished achievement through professional and volunteer services and an honorary membership in Alpha Delta Kappa International Teacher's Sorority.

Mrs. George's extensive background in professional theater includes acting Off-Broadway and touring with the New York Shakespeare Co.

She played several seasons of summer stock in the East, at the Playhouse in the Park, Philadelphia, and at the Arena Stage, Washington. She has performed her one-woman show at the Gramercy Arts theatre in New York, at Dallas' Theatre III and at many civic clubs and other venues across the country.

In Houston, she was a member of the Alley Theatre's acting company.

She made her film debut in World Wide Pictures "The Hiding Place," portraying Corrie Ten Boom, a Dutch woman who saved the lives of scores of Jews during the Nazi occupation.

In addition, she is the author of two books, "Some Run with Feet of Clay" and "Travel Tips From a Reluctant Traveler."

For more information about the luncheon call the church, 684-7821.

■ Choir to present musical

The Children's Choirs of First Presbyterian Church will present "Babble at Babel," a musical by Trilby Jordan and Albert Zabel, at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The Preschool, Kindergarten and First Grade choirs will present a short concert before the musical, which was performed by the first through sixth graders.

The Children's Choirs, directed by Rebecca Engelstad, are made up of more than 80 voices, age 4 through sixth grade.

The musical is based upon the familiar Bible story of the tower of Babel found in Genesis 11:1-9.

A reception will follow in Lynn Hall.

■ Chime Choir presents concert

The Chime Choir of Ranchland Heights Baptist Church will present its final concert of the season Sunday.

The choir, directed by Marie Jo beck, has been in existence for three years. The performance will be during the evening workshop at 7 p.m.

For more information call 683-1947 or 697-4471.

■ Children's musical presented

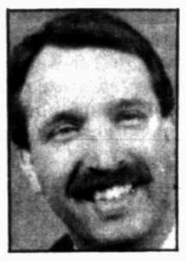

"Fat, Fat, Jehoshaphat," a children's musical, will be presented by the Third through Sixth Grade Choir of Kelview Heights Baptist Church during the 9 and 11 a.m. services Sunday.

The musical, which tells about a king in Jerusalem, teaches through song and drama the power of prayer, said a release from the church.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson, invites the public to attend.

■ Spring renewal program set

The Christian Church, 2608 Neely Ave., will host its annual Spring Renewal Sunday through Tuesday.

Jones

Guest speaker will be J.K. Jones, professor of preaching, Ozark Christian College, Joplin, Mo. The guest musician will be David Reynolds, minister of music, Boulder Christian Church, Boulder, Colo.

Jones' theme for the renewal is "Pursing God."

Services will be at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday and at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. Fellowship and dessert will follow the Tuesday service.

Child care will be provided. For more information call 684-7681.

■ City wide musical presented

The Greater Ideal Baptist Church, 411 S. Tyler St., is presenting a city wide musical workshop today beginning at 9:45 a.m.

Registration is $3 for the workshop, which runs from 9:45 a.m. to noon. Lunch follows the workshop.

The city wide musical featuring the combined choirs of the city is set for 7:30 p.m. today at Greater Ideal Baptist Church. For more information call 686-0155.

■ Narthex recitals to be held

Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., will serve as the host for "A Pair of Narthex Recitals."

The first concert, planned for 3:30 p.m. May 24, will feature bass-baritone Michael Jordan, on the staff at Midland College. He will be accompanied on piano by Shari Weiner-Santorelli.

The second concert, planned for 3 p.m. June 7, will feature soprano Marilyn Covington and baritone Ron Whitaker. They will be accompanied by Jane Clancy Debenport.

Each recital will present art songs from various nations and a sprinkling of operatic arias.

The concerts will be presented in the Narthex of the church, outside the sanctuary.

■ Luncheon, style show planned

A Ladies Luncheon, Style Show and Seminar with guest speaker Dr. Donald Whitaker is from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. today at Mid-Cities Community Church, 8700 W. Highway 191.

The event is sponsored by the church's Ladies Ministries.

In addition, Whitaker will speak at 10 a.m. Sunday in the church's morning worship service.

His Midland seminar is free. For reservations to it and the lunch call 561-9159.

Ron David Moore to perform

Staff report

Ron David Moore performs at the Midland Church of God, 5107 Thomason Drive, at 7 p.m. today.

Moore

Moore has been performing most of his life. He received his first guitar when he was 8. At 12, he was performing as part of a Southern gospel trio with his brothers. When the trio stopped performing, Moore, then 19, got an audition on steel guitar with the Hinson Family when they passed through his hometown of Horrell Hill, S.C.

"I didn't hear from them for a couple of weeks after that," Moore said. "I'm a persistent person, and I called until they gave me a chance to come up and see them again. I went and never came home."

During the next four years, he also was with the Hemphills and the Happy Goodman Family.

In 1979, he began a long association with country music. He became part of T.G. Sheppard's band, playing acoustic and steel guitars and singing harmony, and in 1980 he began writing songs.

He next signed with Tree International, and his songs have been cut by a number of artists, including Sheppard, Gene Watson, Conway Twitty, George Strait and Johnny Lee.

Then, he rededicated his life to Christ.

"After I was saved, I started praying a lot, asking that God's will be accomplished in my life, and that I would do what He wanted me to do," Moore said.

The immediate result was a shift in musical priorities.

"I'd go into the office to write secular songs, and something just didn't feel right. I wrote five contemporary songs in a relatively brief period, and sat down and talked with Larry (Shell, his publisher). He knew where I was coming from; he could see the change in me. I think a lot of publishers might have thrown me out the door, but Larry went ahead and let me demo the songs."

The public is invited to hear Moore perform.

N.Y. Times News Service

As Los Angeles was torn by fires and killings in the wake of the verdict in the beating of Rodney G. King, the Roman Catholic leader of Los Angeles, Cardinal Roger Mahony, sent a message to Pope John Paul II urging him to pray for "the City of Angels."

The Vatican replied that the Pope was praying "for the restoration of civil harmony and a renewed spirit of solidarity."

The messages were among the dozens issued by religious leaders since the outbreak of violence. Many condemned the acquittal of four white police officers accused of beating King, who is black, but they insisted that resorting to violence was not the answer.

Churches and synagogues across the country also scheduled special prayer services of reconciliation.

Mahony, the head of the nation's largest archdiocese, sent the message to the Vatican by fax following the riots. He recalled the pope's visit to Los Angeles in 1987 and added, "I now ask you to keep the City of Angels very much in your prayers during these days."

From his headquarters in Minneapolis, the Rev. Billy Graham said, "This event is another indication that our nation is in need of a moral and spiritual revival."

At a hastily arranged prayer service in Manhattan, the Rev. Joan B. Campbell, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, expressed "shame, disbelief and fear" over the jury's decision.

Church dislikes 'minorities' label but seems stuck with it

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Words, through usage, sometimes take on connotations beyond their original intent. That was behind a problem tackled by the United Methodist Church. But no solution was found.

The words in question, widely used in the current idiom of the church, media, politics and government, are "racial and ethnic minority."

While the description at first impression may sound neutral and merely a numerical classification, as it doubtlessly was first intended, it has seemed to some to take on negating implications.

"Some think it is kind of diminishing," said the Rev. Yolanda Pupo Ortiz of Baltimore, who chaired a special Terminology Task Force of the church's Commission on Religion and Race.

The usage, in churches and elsewhere, has come to denote a blanket category including blacks, Hispanics, Asians, American Indians and Pacific Islanders.

Four years ago, representatives of the 9 million-member denomination had asked that replacement terminology be found and presented for approval to the church's current governing conference here.

"We couldn't find a substitute," Ms. Ortiz said in an interview.

Not that the 17-member task force hadn't tried. Through hours of meetings and discussions over the past quadrennium, some alternative was sought.

Research indicated the term "minority," was, indeed, a problem. In a churchwide survey, many racial and ethnic lay people and bishops perceived it as a manifestation of racism, and therefore not acceptable.

They considered it "patronizing, exclusive, and reinforcing the perception and attitudes of a superior racial, ethnic majority extending mission support to an inferior dependent minority," a report said.

Some feel the phrase implies minority ethnics are a fringe on the edge of society, not fully part of it, Ms. Ortiz said. "But others don't interpret it that way at all. You have to look at the context in which it is used."

One thing driven home to the task force, she said, is that "language is a powerful tool. It can be used to divide people or to heal and help each other."

United Way Shining Stars

NAME: Pat Caldwell
OCCUPATION: Office Assistant, Gas Engineering, Chevron,USA
VOLUNTEER POSITION: Section Chairman, Soliciting, Retail Division

Although Pat had been a contributor to United Way campaigns in the past, she took her first step as an active volunteer in 1991, when she signed on with the United Way of Midland as a Loaned Executive for Chevron USA.

As a Loaned Executive and an integral part of the Pilot Campaign, it was Pat's responsibility to take the United Way's message on the road, visiting companies and setting up rallies where the employees could learn how they could help the United Way and it's member agencies with their contributions of money and volunteer time.

This year, as a Section Chairman for Soliciting in the Retail Division, Pat will meet with local presidents and CEO's of companies, seeking not only contributions from the local employee base, but also corporate contributions from the company itself. She will be followed by this year's Loaned Executives who will meet with the employees themselves.

The United Way is important to Pat because of its impact on individuals in the community. "I'm a people person and it helps people," she says. "It helps in the respect that, through its member agencies it builds character, promotes growth in the individual and gets their lives back on track."

AP Laserphoto

Khallid Abdul Muhammad, National Assistant to Louis Farrakhan, speaks out Thursday in Los Angeles on what he termed the injustice over the handling of the black defendants arrested in the Reginald Denny beating. Celes King, right rear, is the state chairman of CORE (Congress on Racial Equality).

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A white police officer accused of striking the most baton blows on black motorist Rodney King was ordered Friday to be retried on an excessive force charge despite defense claims it could incite more violence.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg said there was sufficient evidence to retry Officer Laurence Powell on the charge.

A jury in suburban Simi Valley deadlocked on that charge, voting 8-4 in favor of acquittal. Powell, Sgt. Stacey Koon, and Officers Timothy Wind and Theodore Briseno were acquitted of all other charges.

The April 29 verdicts touched off riots that left 51 people dead in the Los Angeles area and unrest in cities including San Francisco, Seattle, Atlanta and Las Vegas.

"Based upon my view of the evidence presented at the just-concluded trial, ... I find that the interests of justice require that there be a second trial in the case of people vs. Powell," Weisberg said.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of six years in prison.

"I'm happy. I'm very happy ... and I'm sure Rodney's happy, too," King's aunt, Angela King, said outside the courtroom.

Elsewhere, police said they arrested at least 41 people in minor disturbances Thursday night and a man suspected in a drive-by shooting.

Rival gang members pledged to negotiate a truce to stop the violence, and developer Donald Trump said he had agreed to allow local, state and federal agencies to use the closed Ambassador Hotel as a riot relief clearinghouse. A Trump group bought the hotel for $64 million in 1989.

Weisberg scheduled a hearing for May 22 on a change of venue for the retrial. He was criticized for picking the largely white Ventura County community of Simi Valley for the original trial.

The judge chose Simi Valley after an appeals court ordered the case out of Los Angeles County because of political turmoil stirred up by the King beating. That order remains in place.

District Attorney Ira Reiner appeared at a news conference with prosecutors Alan Yochelson and Terry White, both of whom tried the first case and were named to handle Powell's retrial.

Reiner insisted the trial could be held in Los Angeles, but said if it is moved he wants it sent to a similar urban area.

The new trial will feature the same "compelling" evidence with a heavy focus on the videotape of the March 3, 1991, beating, Reiner said. He declined to say whether King, who didn't testify in the earlier trial, would do so this time.

Powell's attorney, Michael Stone, argued at the hearing there was no reason to believe a retrial would bring a different verdict or that prosecutors could deliver new evidence against his client.

Stone also argued that Powell couldn't get a fair trial because of the rioting. Jurors would be influenced to convict for fear of retaliation and "the risk of sparking another series of riots in urban cities across the United States," he said.

"Is anybody going to suggest that such a fundamental question of justice should be decided principally on the hue and cry of the crowd?" Reiner countered at his news conference. "That is not the American system of justice."

Addressing the rioting issue, Weisberg noted that "a single criminal trial cannot cause or solve the major socioeconomic problems that exist in society."

"This retrial would deal solely with whether Mr. Powell is guilty or not of the charge against him," Weisberg said.

Weisberg suggested the political atmosphere in Los Angeles may have changed sufficiently in the past year to erase the change of venue order.

Some see double standard of justice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The swift prosecution of four black men accused in a white trucker's beating could pile anger atop frustration felt by many over the acquittals of white officers who beat a black motorist, activists say.

"The resources that have been offered by every law enforcement agency throughout the nation to apprehend, try and convict African-Americans is unreal," said Compton City Councilwoman Patricia Moore.

"The legal community must ensure that these young men get tried fairly and justly. They've already been tried in the media."

Damian Williams, 19, Henry Watson, 27, and Antoine Miller, 20, were charged Thursday with attempted premeditated murder and related charges in the beating of truck driver Reginald Denny. Gary Williams, 33, was charged with robbing Denny.

Black activists including members of the Nation of Islam were forming a defense fund for the four, said Celes King, former president of the local NAACP.

District Attorney Ira Reiner, whose office on Friday was granted a retrial of one of the officers in the King beating, said the Denny case could go to trial within weeks.

Black leaders say their constituents will be watching closely for more signs of different standards of justice for whites and blacks.

Fired San Francisco police chief denies ordering newspaper seizures

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police Chief Richard Hongisto was fired Friday for allegedly instigating the removal of more than 2,000 copies of a gay newspaper from street racks after the newspaper ridiculed him.

The unanimous decision by the five-member Police Commission was a political embarrassment to Mayor Frank Jordan, who has weathered criticism across the city's political spectrum for several key appointments, including Hongisto's, since taking office in January.

"I think that Chief Dick Hongisto has made a positive impact on the police department of San Francisco. But I cannot condone what happened in this particular incident," Jordan said at a news conference Friday.

Hongisto called a news conference hours after his dismissal to deny the allegations.

"I never in any way ordered the confiscation of 2,000 newspapers for destruction or anything of that sort," he said.

He conceded he suggested some officers "take a look at the newspaper."

"I suppose that what transpired is once I suggested they take a look at the newspaper, the idea grew in their minds to larger proportions and they got carried away with the act," he said.

Hongisto, on the job for only six weeks, was accused of suggesting to a subordinate that copies of the current issue of the free, twice-monthly Bay Times be removed from news racks.

The issue features a doctored cover photo of Hongisto holding a police baton in a lewd manner. The accompanying headline reads: "Dick's Cool New Tool: Martial Law."

Hongisto had ordered mass arrests during May 1 and May 8 sweeps of areas where demonstrators had gathered to protest the acquittal of most charges against four white Los Angeles policemen in the videotaped beating of black motorist Rodney King.

"We believe that the chief initiated a conversation and suggested to a subordinate, and thus conveyed to the subordinate, that large quantities of newspapers should be collected," Commission President Harry Low said after a closed-door hearing that began Thursday night and lasted more than eight hours.

Richard Hongisto

The commission heard from Hongisto, police investigators and Officer Gary Delagnes, one of three vice officers who allegedly took 2,100 copies of the paper from its racks May 8.

The papers, found in the basement of a police officer whose name has not been released, have been returned.

Deputy Chief Thomas Murphy was named acting chief, and Jordan said he hoped to appoint a permanent replacement in 60 days.

District Attorney Arlo Smith, who also investigated the incident, said Friday he would not file criminal charges because taking a free publication is not illegal.

U.S. Attorney William McGivern said the FBI and Justice Department were investigating whether taking the papers violated any federal civil rights statutes.

Bay Times publisher Kim Corsaro said she would sue Hongisto.

"The whole scenario is still utterly remarkable to me that a chief would order removed a newspaper that's critical. That's a gross violation of constitutional rights," Corsaro said.

Hongisto, 55, has called himself a card-carrying member of the American Civil Liberties Union, and his April 1 appointment was hailed by activists from the city's gay, black, Hispanic and liberal communities.

Hongisto, a former San Francisco County sheriff and longtime friend of Jordan, also ran for mayor last year, winning about 9 percent of the vote.

He has been embroiled in controversy several times during his years of public service.

While San Francisco County sheriff in 1977 he went to jail to avoid evicting poor tenants from a dilapidated downtown hotel, but later took up a sledgehammer on live television to beat down their doors.

He also was forced out as Cleveland's police chief in 1978 and resigned after nine months as the head of New York's state prison system.

He served as a city supervisor from 1980 to 1990 and was city assessor when Jordan picked him as police chief.

■ Rancher pleads guilty to smuggling laborers

LOS ANGELES — A rancher accused of smuggling Mexicans across the border and enslaving them pleaded guilty Friday to reduced charges and agreed to pay $1.5 million to the workers.

Edwin Mitchell Ives pleaded guilty to conspiracy, harboring illegal aliens, transporting illegal aliens and four labor violations in exchange for the government dropping slavery and extortion charges.

Ives, 53, faces up to 18 years in prison and $800,000 in fines when he is sentenced this summer by U.S. District Judge Consuelo B. Marshall.

His Los Angeles firm, Griffith-Ives Co., also pleaded guilty to racketeering and wire fraud counts. Ives and his company agreed to pay $1.5 million restitution to victims.

The rancher and his employees smuggled more than 100 illegal immigrants to work for paltry wages in flower fields on ranches Ives owns in two Southern California counties, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Alfredo Jarrin.

■ Olympia & York files for bankruptcy protection

NEW YORK — By seeking partial bankruptcy protection, Olympia & York showed that even the the world's largest property developer is not immune to post-1980s real estate hardships brought by recession.

Once a pinnacle of financial might, the Toronto-based business empire on Friday defended the rush late Thursday to file legal papers in Canada and the United States to protect some of its assets.

"This is not a bankruptcy. This is not a liquidation. This is not the end of Olympia & York. This is a restructuring," Gerald Greenwald, Olympia & York's president, said at a Toronto news conference.

Nevertheless, the move tarnished the once-impeccable image of Olympia & York Developments Ltd., a vast conglomerate with investments in skyscrapers, railroads, and oil companies in North America and Europe.

■ Justice O'Conner remains richest on court

WASHINGTON — Justice Sandra Day O'Connor remained the Supreme Court's wealthiest member in 1991. And Justices David H. Souter and Clarence Thomas, the court's two newest members, appear to be its least wealthy.

According to financial statements filed Friday by all nine of the high court's members in compliance with the Ethics Reform Act, O'Connor and her lawyer husband held assets worth between $1.77 million and $4.53 million at the end of last year.

The federal law requires only broad ranges of estimated worth for assets and exempts personal property and the primary residence.

Souter listed assets worth $65,000 to $150,000; Thomas, $65,000 to $165,000.

Justice John Paul Stevens was the court's only other millionaire at the end of the year, according to the financial forms. He listed his assets at between $1.13 and $2.5 million.

Two justices whose 1990 statements suggested they might have been millionaires — Harry A. Blackmun and Anthony M. Kennedy — apparently dropped out of that category in 1991.

■ U.S. warns Iraq before northern elections

WASHINGTON — The State Department warned President Saddam Hussein on Friday to refrain from taking repressive actions as the people of northern Iraq prepare to hold their first free elections.

"We continue to monitor developments in Iraq, and the coalition retains the capability to respond, as necessary, to Iraqi actions which threaten peace and security," department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

Kurds and other groups in northern Iraq will choose an executive leader and members of a legislative body on Sunday as part of their quest for increasing self-rule.

Tutwiler welcomed private and public statements by the Iraqi Kurdish leadership that the elections will deal only with local administrative issues and do not represent a move toward separatism.

The Kurds have been relying for their protection on an air force assembled by the United States and other countries which went to war against Iraq in January 1991.

■ Third ex-Robb aide cooperates with lawyers

WASHINGTON — Prosecutors have won the cooperation of a third former aide to Sen. Charles S. Robb in an investigation that knowledgeable sources say is now aimed at discovering the Virginia Democrat's role in disclosing the wiretapped conversation of a political rival.

Sources familiar with the inquiry said the Justice Department recently notified Robb that he has become a target of the investigation into the wiretapping of a telephone conversation by Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder. Two former aides have pleaded guilty and are cooperating with the investigation.

A third former staffer, David K. McCloud, is scheduled to appear in federal court in Norfolk, Va., Wednesday to enter a guilty plea and formally agree to cooperate with the investigation, said his defense attorney, Plato Cacheris.

Cacheris said negotiations with federal prosecutors are near completion but "there are still some mopping up operations." McCloud, now a public relations executive, was Robb's chief of staff. Cacheris said he expects his client to plead guilty to a minor charge relating to the illegal disclosure of the tape's contents.

Urban discussions

Judge pulls gun on defendant after outburst

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A judge waved a gun after an outburst by an unruly defendant and invited the man to "take your best shot." Defending his actions Friday, the judge said the recession had prompted anger at authorities.

Broward Circuit Judge J. Leonard Fleet brandished the gun in a crowded courtroom during a probation hearing Wednesday for Gordon Meyette, who had violated probation.

Meyette, 43, spoke out of turn and when Fleet criticized the outburst, he muttered to a bailiff: "If I had a gun, I'd kill that judge."

Fleet, incensed, pulled out a .38-caliber revolver.

"There's one bullet in the cylinder. Do you want to take your best shot? If you're going to take a shot, you better score because I don't miss," Fleet said.

Actually, the gun wasn't loaded, Fleet said Friday.

He said his method was "unusual" and would be criticized.

"Perhaps it would have been more discreet had I devised some other method to get my message across to those who so frequently show disrespect for law and order," the judge said.

He said his method worked. Meyette and other prisoners in the courtroom acted more respectfully after the incident.

Meyette ultimately apologized and told the judge he made the comment because he was angry with the criminal justice system, said his attorney, Lawrence Wolk.

"The current economic decline has generated an enormous anger within our general population," Fleet said. "People are, with increasing frequency, lashing out at law enforcement officers and criminal court judges."

In 1988, a Central Florida judge who waved a gun in court was censured by the state Judicial Qualifications Commission. Commission chairwoman Brooke Kennerly declined to comment on Fleet's case Friday.

Astronauts say training didn't prepare them for rescue job

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Endeavour's astronauts said Friday their more than one year of training did not prepare them for the difficult job of capturing a whirling, 4½-ton satellite.

"It's something we couldn't train for," said Pierre Thuot, who failed twice to latch onto the satellite with a 15-foot handle called a capture bar. "We don't have a simulator that can put all the components together."

Richard Hieb said he, Thuot and Thomas Akers weren't quite sure what to do once they grabbed the Intelsat-6 satellite with their gloved hands in a last-ditch, unrehearsed rescue effort.

"We've talked a lot in the last day or two about how a lot of people on the ground must have been watching their TV and saw us make the capture and then say to themselves, 'Well now what are they going to do with it?' " Hieb said during an orbital news conference.

"I have to admit, we kind of wondered the same thing at the time because it wasn't really obvious how we were going to get that 9,000 pounds turned around and get the capture bar put on it," he said.

The longer they held the satellite, the better they felt about the whole thing, Hieb said.

The Endeavour was scheduled to land at Edwards Air Force Base in California at 3:57 p.m. CDT today to complete its nine-day inaugural voyage.

Good weather was forecast, although high winds were expected later in the day and could force a last-minute detour to Kennedy Space Center.

The Endeavour touchdown will feature the first use of a shuttle drag chute.

Kevorkian counsels woman before her suicide, doctor's lawyer says

CLAWSON, Mich. (AP) — Dr. Jack Kevorkian counseled a seriously ill woman and was by her side when she committed suicide Friday, the attorney for the suicide machine inventor said.

Susan Williams, 52, died at her home after taking a dose of "self-administered carbon monoxide," attorney Geoffrey Fieger said.

She suffered from severe multiple sclerosis that left her incapacitated and blind and had used a wheelchair for about 12 years, he said.

"Her life, for all intents and purposes, was meaningless," Fieger said.

Her body was found in a bedroom, with a mask covering her face and nose, said police Lt. Daniel Zalewski. The mask was connected to a 3-foot canister containing carbon monoxide and it appeared she had pulled a lever on the canister before dying, he said.

"The canister was still hissing when we got here," Zalewski said outside the small, two-story house about 20 miles north of Detroit and not far from Kevorkian's Royal Oak apartment.

No charges had been filed by Friday afternoon, said police Lt. Mike Walsh. Oakland County prosecutor Richard Thompson, said he had no evidence that Kevorkian had violated a court order barring him from assisting suicides, but added that an investigation was continuing.

Kevorkian, free on bond on two pending murder counts in an earlier case, would refuse to eat if he is imprisoned, Fieger said.

"He will starve himself in prison. You can count on him ending his life in prison," Fieger said.

Kevorkian, 63, was present when Mrs. Williams died, but did not assist in the death, Fieger told reporters.

"So she was the person who put the mask on her face, she was the person who turned on the can of carbon monoxide, she was the person who ended her own life without the aid of anyone whatsoever," Fieger said.

Kevorkian a retired pathologist, is awaiting trial in the October deaths of two other Michigan women. He also assisted another woman in her death.

Suicide machine inventor Dr. Jack Kevorkian, 63, left, leaves the home of Susan Williams in Clawson, Mich., Friday with his attorney Geoffrey Fieger, middle. The woman is unidentified.

Kevorkian was in the house when police arrived shortly after receiving a call of a reported suicide. Mrs. Williams was pronounced dead about 15 minutes later by a doctor.

Fieger said Mrs. Williams' sisters and her 29-year-old son, Don, also were with her.

Zalewski said family members were "very calm, upset, crying a little" when police arrived, but "there were no hysterics."

Mrs. Williams' 81-year-old husband wasn't present but was aware of his wife's decision, Fieger said.

"The husband is ... in very frail health," he said. "He's with another member of the family."

Fieger said Mrs. Williams contacted Kevorkian in March asking for help in committing suicide. Kevorkian told her he was barred from doing that but would counsel her and aid "in the sense of being compassionate, being present at the time of her death."

Fieger read from a letter he said Mrs. Williams had written Thursday.

"I don't want to live ... any longer and feel I have the right to end my life. ... The quality of my life is just existing, not living. ...

"Dr. Kevorkian has counseled me not to do this until I am absolutely sure this is what I want. ... I pray Dr. Kevorkian will be exonerated of any wrongdoing in this case. I am so thankful he was able to help me."

Kevorkian did not appear at his attorney's news conference. Fieger did not disclose his whereabouts but said he would turn his client over to police if asked.

Kevorkian gained international attention in June 1990 when he helped a Portland, Ore., woman commit suicide. Janet Adkins, an Alzheimer's patient, died in the back of Kevorkian's van in Oakland County. She was intravenously hooked to a machine Kevorkian invented and died after pushing a button that allowed a lethal flow of drugs into her veins.

A murder charge against Kevorkian was dismissed in December 1990 after a judge ruled Michigan had no specific law against assisted suicide. A court order at the time barred him from assisting any more suicides and Oakland County Circuit Judge David Breck continued the order in March.

Jury acquits founder of network hiding child victims of abuse

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — A woman was found innocent Friday of kidnapping and mistreating children in the underground network she set up to help youngsters fleeing abusive fathers.

A Cobb County Superior Court jury deliberated three hours before acquitting Faye Yager.

Mrs. Yager, 44, cried and hugged supporters who watched the four-week trial. She said she plans to continue her network, which she says has hidden about 500 child victims of sexual abuse and satanic worship.

She blasted Cobb County District Attorney Tom Charron, claiming he targeted her for prosecution and influenced a woman who accused her.

She was charged with kidnapping, cruelty to children and interference with custody in her 1990 handling of two Florida children, Alecia and Jarrod Watts, who were 8 and 10 at the time.

Mrs. Yager testified the children's mother, Myra Watts of Merritt Island, Fla., who said she was fleeing an abusive husband, gave her permission to question the children during a four-day stay in Atlanta.

Mrs. Watts claimed Mrs. Yager held the boy for two hours without her permission. The children testified Mrs. Yager yelled at them and called them liars. They said they fabricated stories of abuse by their father so Mrs. Yager would return them to their mother.

The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which has clashed with Mrs. Yager over her practice of hiding children from their parents, said her operation was badly hurt despite the innocent verdicts.

Law penalizes welfare family for college savings

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Determined to work and study her way out of poverty, Sandra Rosado secretly began saving for college when she was 16. She never dreamed she and her family would be penalized for doing so.

Her mother, Cecilia Mercado, has been ordered to repay $9,342 in welfare benefits the family of nine received in 1988 and 1989 because Rosado's savings had pushed their assets over the eligibility limit.

Rosado was able to enter college this fall with a scholarship, but only part time. She had been forced to deplete her savings so her family could remain on welfare, said the family's attorney, Joanne Gibau of New Haven Legal Assistance.

"The choice was you spend the money or you're not going to get benefits," Gibau said Friday.

"It's so stupid," said Rosado, 20, a student at South Central Community College. "If kids want to save up for college, they should let them. I'm not out on the streets selling drugs for my money.

"I just wanted to be the first one in my family to be successful," Rosado said at a youth center where she's worked part time in an athletic program since age 15.

The case has illustrated what supporters and critics of the nation's welfare programs say is a major flaw in the system.

"The trouble is when you try to combine an insistence with helping only the truly needy and try to preserve incentives for savings, for work and family formation, you have an obvious conflict," said Yale professor Theodore Marmor, co-author of "America's Misunderstood Welfare State: Persistant Myths, Continuing Realities."

Under federal law, families receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children can have no more than $1,000 in assets. The limit was set in 1981.

The state learned of Rosado's secret savings of $4,900, and those of a younger brother, during a routine computerized scan of Connecticut bank accounts two years ago.

AP Laserphoto

Sandra Rosado

The Connecticut Supreme Court on Monday ruled the savings had to be included in the family's assets, and ordered Rosado's mother to return $9,342 collected over a 13-month period.

But the state, after winning its two-year legal fight, said it didn't want to penalize her after all. It said it had pursued the case only because of federal regulations.

"All the research in this area shows that education is one of the surest ways out of poverty, yet we have a federal law that penalizes poor youngsters who are motivated to get jobs and save for their education," said Audrey Rowe, commissioner of the Department of Income Maintenance.

Rowe has asked the federal government for the authority to let college savings be excluded in Connecticut from the $1,000 limit, and for a waiver of the refund in the Mercado case.

To help families get off welfare, President Bush has proposed giving states the option to raise the eligiblity limit up to $10,000 for families already on AFDC.

U.S. Sen. Joseph I. Lieberman, D-Conn., said Friday he'll introduce a bill next week to let Connecticut waive the refund without any penalties. "This is an outrageous example of what's wrong with America's welfare system," he said.

Attackers rob man set to prove people's goodness

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP) — Fred Turner says he set out walking across America to prove that most people are good. He only got as far as the state line. He was robbed and pushed off a bridge that links South Carolina and Georgia.

Battered and bruised, Turner said he'll complete the trip to California someday, but for now he wants to regroup.

Effingham County, Ga., sheriff's Lt. Al Mauro said Friday there were no leads on the men who Turner said pushed him off a Savannah River bridge on Wednesday.

"He didn't give us much to work with," Mauro said. Turner gave police a description of his attackers, "but it was nothing that wouldn't fit a thousand other people," the lieutenant said.

When Turner, 53, left Beaufort on May 6 he said he wanted to prove to himself that only one of every 100 people is bad.

"I found my one bad one," he said.

Actually, Turner found two. He said they pulled up next to him in a faded red pickup truck while he was walking across the Tuckaseking Bridge at the Georgia-South Carolina line.

AP Laserphoto

Fred Turner

"They asked me if I was the guy walking across America. I told them yes and they said, 'Good, give me your wallet,' " Turner told The Beaufort Gazette in an interview published Friday.

Turner suspects the men saw a newspaper story published May 6 about his trip.

Turner said that after they took his money, one of the men pushed him in the chest. Turner said he lost his balance and went tumbling over the bridge railing.

"This could've happened two months from now and I wouldn't feel so bad. I only got through one state. I started wondering, 'Am I going to go through this in nine states?' " he said.

Turner suffered two black eyes, some bruises and a stiff back because he did a bellyflop when he hit the water.

Mauro estimated it was a fall of 75 to 100 feet. "I think it was the backpack that saved him" by cushioning Turner's neck and providing some buoyancy until it became waterlogged, Mauro said.

Turner said with his backpack still strapped to his shoulder, but weighing twice its normal 50 pounds, he drifted with the river current to a nearby shore on McKenzie Island. He spent the night at a vacant cabin and was picked up by Thursday morning by two fishermen.

Sandra Hall, owner of Hall's Bait Shop where Turner stopped to call the police, said she could tell Turner was banged up.

"He's brave to do it," she said. "My faith in people isn't that strong."

ACLU to challenge law limiting gays

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union said it will challenge a law prohibiting gay student groups from receiving public money or using buildings at state universities.

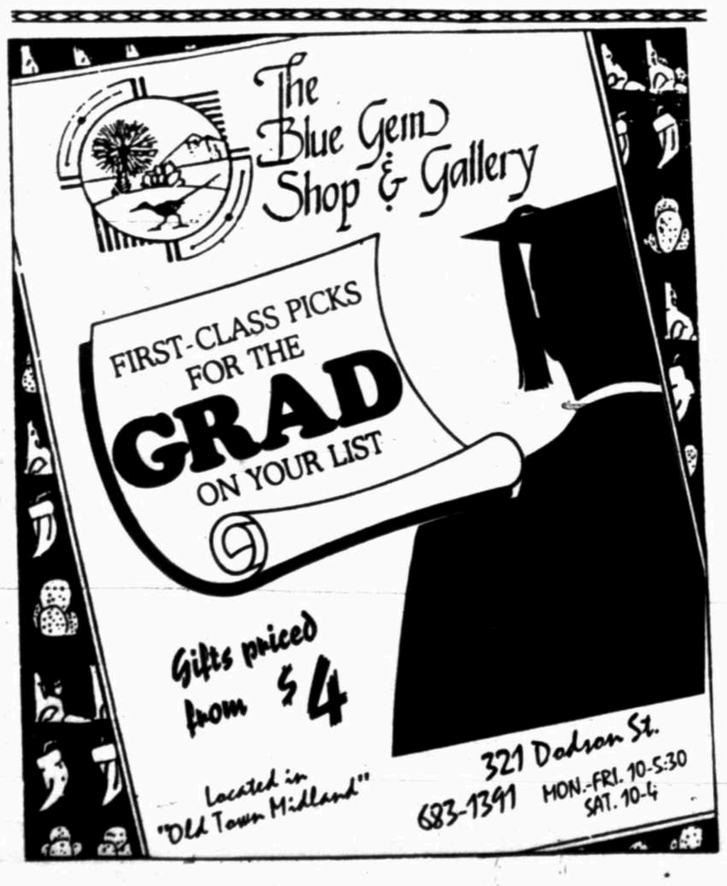

The law, signed Thursday by Gov. Guy Hunt, makes it illegal for state schools to fund or allow its facilities to be used by any group "that fosters or promotes a lifestyle or actions prohibited by the sodomy and sexual misconduct laws."

State law prohibits oral and anal sex between unmarried persons.

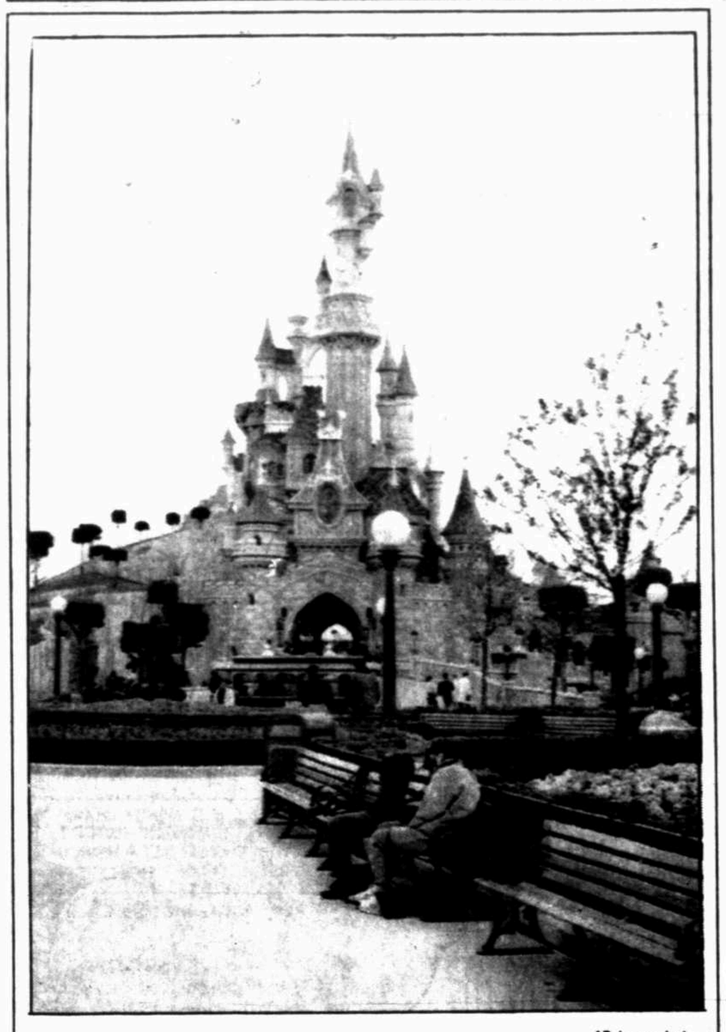

Ruth Harlow of the ACLU's Gay and Lesbian Rights Project in New York promised a fight. "If any public university in Alabama revoked funding for a gay and lesbian group, we would challenge that," she said.

The law was passed in response to the furor surrounding a gay student group's drive for recognition at Auburn University. The Student Government Association refused to grant a charter to the group, but administrators overruled the student government and granted the charter.

Visitors to Euro Disneyland in Marne-la-Valle sit on park benches last week. Since the park opened one month ago, most of the visitors have been non-French Europeans.

Euro Disneyland attracts crowd outside of France

MARNE-LA-VALLEE, France (AP) — Rain or shine, fun-seekers from Budapest, Birmingham and Bologna flock past the pink-and-blue castle towering over the latest Magic Kingdom.

A month after its gala opening, the jury is still out on Euro Disneyland's prospects, but one trend seems clear: Most of the visitors aren't French.

Britons, Germans, Italians and Spaniards have descended on the theme park. Tourists come from the former East Germany, Poland and Hungary. Tour buses from Czechoslovakia appear in the parking lot.

A backlash to a perceived American "cultural invasion" hasn't materialized, said Euro Disney's executive vice president, Jim Cora.

"You hear the French won't wait in line. But they do wait, and don't grumble," he said. "All I see is people coming out and having a great time."

But what is striking about the park 20 miles east of Paris is the number of non-French here. The park is a Tower of Babel: English, German, Italian, other European tongues, Japanese, Mandarin and Cantonese.

The newspaper Liberation on Tuesday headlined: "Waiting for Parisians, Mickey Seduces Foreigners." The story said attendance was below expectations.

Euro Disney's stock plunged 4 percent on the Paris exchange Tuesday and on the New York Stock Exchange, Walt Disney Co.'s stock fell $1.62½ to $148.37½.

Disney later denied the report, saying the newspaper confused the park's daily capacity with its actual expectations for average attendance.

Nevertheless, Euro Disneyland is on track to receive 11 million visitors its first year, with daily attendance ranging from 20,000-60,000 a day, Cora said.

Occupancy at the park's five hotels has been at 65-70 percent and should reach 90 percent this summer, he said.

The grownups seem to have the best time. Couples without kids shop and pose for snapshots. Grown men, sometimes wearing Goofy hats, seem to have video cameras attached to their faces.

"We shopped, saw a parade, ate a hot dog," said Grace Durham, a tour operator from Milton Keynes in England, who came to inspect what she'll be selling in package tours.

"I'll tell clients it's large, expensive ... and different. For Europe, anyway," said Mrs. Durham, one of a group of seven women wearing Mickey Mouse ears.

"We need it in Europe because the trips to France are getting kind of stale," she said. "Once you've seen the Eiffel Tower, it's all the same — unless you like the food."

Some complain about prices. Visitors pay $42.50 to get in. The cheapest Disney T-shirt is $16.

Frenchmen Laurent Piron thought it would be more expensive. "The prices here seem normal," he said.

"But it's too big. You have to walk around a lot, and that's hard with a kid," said Piron, 28, from Nantes, who was spending the day at the park with his wife and baby. They family had a four-hour drive at each end of the trip.

Joachim Radigk drove six hours from Dusseldorf to spend four days at the amusement park and one of its hotels.

"I think it's great. Nothing the same has ever been in Europe before," said Radigk, who spent the first morning with his friends scouting out which rides to take — later.

"America is too far away, so we took the short way, to Paris," said Radigk, 25.

Masaki and Atsuko Onuma visited the park on their honeymoon, two days after getting married in Tokyo.

"It seems bigger than Tokyo Disneyland — there are fewer people, and no lines," said Mrs. Onuma. She should know: she's visited the Tokyo park 11 times since it opened in 1983.

Bush's offspring face life's perils, plusses

WASHINGTON (AP) — While their father runs the country, President Bush's five children have pursued their own far-flung careers, buying a piece of a major league baseball team, owning a Blockbuster Video franchise or building water pumps in Nigeria.

The proximity to power has been both a curse and a blessing for the president's offspring.

The Democratic Party keeps dossiers on the Bush children. Family members complained that S&L regulators went after third son, Neil, particularly hard when the Denver thrift of which he was an outside director collapsed. And newspapers regularly scrutinize business deals of his older brothers, George W. and Jeb.

But daughter Dorothy LeBlond, 32, has found the family tie helpful.

She is a fund-raiser and special events organizer for the National Rehabilitation Hospital. Her father has turned out for the hospital's black-tie fund-raising gala and charity golf tournament; her mother hosted a tea at the White House for the nonprofit facility.

Both George W. and Jeb are prominent players in Republican politics in Texas and Florida respectively, and each is assumed to be considering a future run for office. George ran a respectable race for Congress in 1978.

But the fourth Bush son, Marvin, 35, of Alexandria, Va., speaks bitterly of his own "total aversion to politics."

"At one point it was partial. After seeing how ugly politics can be ... I have absolutely no interest," said Marvin, part-owner of a score of Blockbuster Video stores and a partner in a small investment advisory firm.

"Standing on the sidelines and watching my brothers get blasted unfairly ... has been like torture for me," said Marvin in a brief interview.

"Being the son of the president (has) been restrictive," said George W. Bush, the eldest of Bush's children. "There's a lot of things I can't do which I might have tried normally."

The president himself recently complained the "ugliness of this campaign" and its impact on his children.

Jeb Bush, 39, a Miami real estate developer and former Florida secretary of commerce, said, "There's a standard set for members of the first family that ... (only) someone who was unambitious" could meet.

"You can't be overly successful, and certainly you can't fail, because it will be magnified," said Jeb.

George W. Bush, 45, is managing general partner of the Texas Rangers, the baseball team that he and 17 limited partners purchased for $46 million in 1989. Although his partners put up the lion's share of the money, Bush is the team's leading spokesman and salesman, and sits on major league baseball's ownership committee.

He also is a director of Harken Energy Corp., the Texas company that merged with Bush's own small oil company in 1986. Two years ago Harken won exclusive exploration rights off the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Bahrain, despite never having drilled a well overseas.

A Wall Street Journal investigation found no "evidence of wrongdoing or influence-peddling by George W. Bush or anyone else connected to Harken."

There has also been press scrutiny of George's sale of $848,560 worth of Harken stock in June 1990 at $4 a share shortly before the company reported poor earnings.

The stock price later tumbled further, although it has risen as high as $8.75 in the last year. It currently sells around $2 a share.

George W., who also is a senior adviser to his father's re-election campaign, said the attention paid to his business deals has been "just ridiculous. ... There is no 'there' there."

Jeb Bush is president of the Codina Bush Group, a real estate development company in Miami, and chairman of two affiliated companies, Bush Klein Realty, Co., and Bush Real Estate Management. His main partner is Armando Codina, a wealthy, Cuban-born developer.

"We're proud of what we've done in a horrible market," he said. "We've managed to hang in there."

But taxpayers picked up the tab for most of a $4.6 million loan that a Florida bank, Broward Federal Savings and Loan, made in 1985 toward the purchase of a Miami office building by Jeb Bush and Codina.

The loan went into default, the bank went under, and the government absorbed a $4 million loss while Bush and Codina were ordered to pay $565,000.

Jeb Bush is also a consultant to a water pump manufacturer, M&W Pump Corp. of Deerfield Beach, Fla., which operates internationally, and co-owner of a small factory in Nigeria that sells hand pumps in Africa and other developing countries.

Neil Bush, 37, was caught up in the savings and loan scandal as an outside director of Denver's high-flying Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association, which collapsed at a cost to taxpayers of $1 billion.

Regulators accused Neil Bush of conflicts of interest for voting to approve a $100 million Silverado loan to partners who were major investors in his Denver oil business. One forgave Bush a $100,000 loan.

Neil eventually paid $50,000 to settle conflict of interest charges, folded his oil business and moved to Houston to start a new career as a cable television executive.

He went to work as director of finance for TransMedia Communications, Inc., a sports cable company owned by a longtime Bush family friend and backer.

Researcher: Be mean, get better sooner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mean people have a better chance of recovering from a heart attack than their kinder, gentler brethren, a medical researcher said recently.

Dr. Richard Milani said his research found that people with symptoms of hostility were more likely to succeed in an exercise program for rehabilitation after a heart attack or some other major cardiac event.

The problem with these hostile people, aside from the obvious one, is that their inner meanness may have helped cause their heart problems to begin with.

"The presence of hostility isn't a good thing," said Milani, who is director of the cardiovascular health center of the Ochsner Medical Institutions in New Orleans. "This is not something that we would promote."

Milani and his colleagues surveyed 160 people who had some major heart problem. Most of them were heart attacks, but there also were people who had undergone bypass surgery or angioplasty.

Rehabilitation depends on exercise training, and Milani wanted to find out if hostility or depression is a way of predicting how well patients will respond to the exercise training.

"Some people do better than others in cardiac rehabilitation," said Milani, who presented his preliminary findings at a meeting this week in Baltimore of the American Federation for Clinical Research.

The research was admittedly crude. The patients were asked, basically, "Do you get angry easily?" or "Do you feel blue?"

"We're almost going up to you and saying, 'Hi, are you a nice person?'" Milani said.

After sorting out the hostile from the depressed, Milani said the researchers examined them to see how well they were responding to the exercise.

It turned out that the hostile people were more likely to have exercised before, and once they had their heart problem, they were more likely to improve their exercising, Milani said.

"If they were depressed, it was just the opposite effect," he said.

Milani said based on what he's uncovered thus far, he's beginning a more refined research project to examine people who have been diagnosed as hostile or depressed. The people who responded to the earlier survey were just those who exhibited symptoms but had not been diagnosed.

Milani said he wasn't sure why the hostile people seemed to do better.

"Maybe they're more aggressive when they undertake the program," he said.

Jury awards woman for botched hairdo

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A jury Tuesday awarded $2,500 to a woman who said her hair fell out in clumps after a hairdresser botched a frost job.

Missy Freshour said her light brown hair touched her shoulder blades before a hairdresser at a JCPenney hair salon left her under a dryer too long during a color touch-up Feb. 15, 1991.

She filed a $10,000 damage lawsuit in Palm Beach County Circuit Court claiming her hair was so damaged she was forced to cut most of it off.

Ed Enfield, manager of the JCPenny in Palm Beach Mall, said the hairdresser no longer works at the store, but he stood by her work. "As far as we know she did everything right," he said.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Be generous in spirit and your life will become much more rewarding. Something that is revealed to you this summer makes career planning a necessity. Do not give up on a dream! Friends prove their loyalty again and again in the fall. New financial gains will give you the freedom to puruse your real interests in December. Do not let a loan or legal matter slide in early 1993. Romantic ties continue to deepen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your travel dreams could become a reality when you receive a nice windfall. Confirm an appointment you have made for next week. Use honey, not vinegar, to keep important doors open.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Ignoring weekly cleanup duties would be a mistake. You will shine in social settings today. Let other people see how much fun you can be. Colorful attire adds to your allure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are in for a smooth landing now. Exciting people and places brighten your social life. Try a new hobby or take a class in the arts. Bargains abound for comparison shoppers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Endless chatter is not the way to get a weekend project completed. A friend who offers to help could turn out to be all talk and no action. Your social plans change.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You and a loved one may talk a mile a minute without ever resolving the question at hand. Be ready to give a little when other viewpoints are offered. Make intelligent concessions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Have more patience with yourself and those around you. If possible, go for a long walk when tensions mount. Sports also offer a healthy outlet for pent-up energy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You know how to turn on the charm to promote your personal ambitions. Afternoon is the best time to take a short trip or entertain a visitor who lives nearby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are unlikely to make much headway if you try to beef up your support only among your friends. Contact people at a distance. Your intuition points the way to a wonderful opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day to keep busy behind the scenes. You are unlikely to benefit from seeking the spotlight. Be careful not to set something in motion that will clutter the scene for weeks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An overly suspicious mood could threaten friendly relations or a romantic relationship this afternoon. Focus on shared interests instead of any chagrin you may feel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial complications could make you feel anxious or ambivalent today. This is not a good time to make far-reaching decisions. Put a romantic relationship on hold.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The social whirl could take on new meaning, but only if you have your antennae up for subtle developments. An advantageous relationship trend continues.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have high standards and will demand the very best from themselves and their loved ones. Although these Taureans can be ruthless with anyone who attempts to deceive them, they will deal gently with those who are honest and diligent. Music and painting have a calming effect on these excitable children. A trip to an art museum or concert hall puts them in a mellow mood. Wise parents will encourage these Taureans to explore their creative, imaginative side.

New book by Joan Benny excludes daddy-bashing

LIMA, Ohio — Joan Benny wasn't sure her book about growing up the daughter of Jack Benny would sell. There was no daddy-bashing in it.

"That's why it took me so long to get around to writing the book," she said Thursday. "I thought ... who's going to buy a book about a nice man and a happy family and a nice life?"

Unlike the scathing scribblings of Patty Davis, daughter of former President Reagan; Christina Crawford, daughter of Joan Crawford; and Gary Crosby, son of Bing Crosby, Ms. Benny calls her dad "the kindest, nicest man I ever knew."

Her "Saturday Night at Seven" has sold well. Her father died in 1974.

"I think people find it refreshing to hear that there were people who had very wonderful lives in Hollywood," Ms. Benny said.

NEW YORK — Mikhail Baryshnikov is returning to the New York City Ballet as a guest dancer.

Baryshnikov

Baryshnikov, 44, was a member of the company in 1979.

In June, he will dance in three performances of George Balanchine's "Duo Concertant" and three performances of Mark Morris' new solo work, "Three Preludes," ballet officials said Thursday.

Baryshnikov, who has toured with the White Oak Project danced as a guest with New York City Ballet twice during the 1980s.

AUGUSTA, Maine — Richard Dysart, who plays fatherly attorney Leland McKenzie on "L.A. Law," returned to a river where he frollicked as a boy to help rid his hometown of a dam.

Dysart took to a boat Thursday near the Edwards hydroelectric dam, which has blocked the Kennebec River since 1837.

"We used to swim out there in the summertime, dodging the pulp that was still coming down. A little dangerous, but the water was nice and clean," said Dysart, who grew up on a farm in the area.

The actor spoke on behalf of conservation and sporting groups that want 18 more miles of the central Maine waterway opened naturally. They say removal of the dam would restore natural spawning areas and recreational opportunities upstream.

Anthony Buxton, lawyer for the dam's owners, said Dysart was "well-intentioned but poorly informed." Removal of the dam could bring on environmental disaster by whipping up a tide of toxic-tainted sediment, he said.

Dam foes hope the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission will deny a license for it to operate after 1993.

NEW YORK — The Friars Club has named Arista Records chief Clive Davis its man of the year.

Davis was cited for raising more than $5 million in the fight against AIDS, along with his other professional and humanitarian achievements.

Expected on the dais at a June 6 fete for Davis are Mayor David Dinkins, Lorne Michaels, Francis Ford Coppola and Brooke Shields. Roger Moore of James Bond fame will be the master of ceremonies.

Past winners include longtime Friar Frank Sinatra, Henry Kissinger and President Wilson.

NEW YORK — Longtime NBC News commentator John Chancellor will retire sometime next year, a network spokeswoman said Friday.

No firm date has been set, said NBC spokeswoman Peggy Hubble.

Chancellor, 64, has talked with NBC News President Michael Gartner about leaving and they agreed it would be several months after the 1993 presidential inauguration, Hubble said.

"So we're talking probably spring or summer of 1993," Hubble said.

Until then, Hubble said, Chancellor "will continue to play a major role in our political coverage and continue giving his commentaries three times a week on 'NBC Nightly News.'"

She said she spoke with Chancellor on Friday morning and he told her, "'I wouldn't exactly call it retiring.'" Hubble said he plans to continue lecturing, writing books and working on other television projects once he leaves NBC.

"After 43 years I think he's really looking for a different focus, a different kind of deadline," Hubble said.

"He even reminded me that until he retires he's got 175 more commentaries to do."

Chancellor has covered every presidential election since 1952 for the network. He joined NBC in 1950.

He anchored the "Today" show in 1961-62 and became "Nightly News" anchor in 1970. He began doing commentaries when Tom Brokaw replaced him as anchor in 1982.

He left NBC to be director of Voice of America under President Lyndon Johnson, from 1965 to 1967.

Amarillo remembers 'Goober,' the dog who was everybody's friend

By Max Albright
Associated Press writer

AMARILLO — He's buried behind a bar on Amarillo Boulevard, with a tombstone and inscription reading, "Goober, Our Friend."

Goober was a dog.

"He was a bar dog," said Marv Brookner, who explained that Goober, also known as Ol' Goob, used to hang out at beer joints on Amarillo Boulevard.

"Goober was a heck of a dog," Jimmy Shields said. "He was everybody's friend."

To many people who knew him, Goober lived life as a friendly and free-spirited personality who just happened to bark and wag his tail like a golden retriever.

"Everything about him was good," Barbara Lowe said. "He wasn't what you would really call a dog."

Ol' Goob was more like a person than a dog, Brookner said.

"He didn't understand chains; he didn't understand fences; Goober was a free dog," Brookner said.

When Goober got picked up by the city's Animal Control Department, the word would go out on the boulevard: "Goober's in jail." A jar would be set on a bar and people would quickly donate bail money for Goober.

Goober loved to ride in cars, and his friends would see him walking and stop and pick him up. This is the origin of the Goober-the-hitchhiking-dog stories, stories about how Goober would thumb rides up and down Amarillo Boulevard and even to Fritch.

The bar dog also went on trips with his friends. Stories circulate how, once on a fishing trip to Greenbelt Lake, Goober rescued someone from drowning and did the same thing another time at Lake Meredith.

The golden retriever went with some of his human friends to dip cattle at Happy. For good measure, the friends also dipped Goober. Then the wet dog jumped in the back of a pickup truck. When the pickup sped off, Goober slid out and broke his hip.

Instead of having him put to sleep, the late Charlie Hooten paid about $1,100 to have Goober healed with an artificial hip replacement, said Brookner and Shields. Goober had a left-back artificial hip and steel pins in both back legs, Brookner said.

In the last years of his life, Goober retired at Marv's Bar, 5945 E. Amarillo Blvd., and bar owners Marv and Doris Brookner adopted him.

Goober became the star of the bar.

"He would go around and meet everybody in the bar, just like he was saying 'hello,'" Marv Brookner said. Bar customers bought Red Barron beef sticks for Goober, and Marv Brookner sold about $50 worth of beef sticks every week.

Another beer drinker at Marv's Bar remembered Goober as a survivor: "He hung on as long as he could." Marv Brookner estimates Goober lived about 18 human years.

But in November 1990, Goober died.

About 30 people came to his funeral and burial behind Marv's Bar. Marv Brookner said they realized Goober had more friends than most humans. Goober's friends also raised money for his headstone.

"I say goodbye to him every night," the bar owner said.
