Work on the farm to market road is expected to get under way before long.

The Highway Department has promised the City it will pave Main Street from the highway to the end of the street from curb to curb if property owners along the right-of-way will build the curb and gutter. The highway department will maintain it after it is built.

The highway department believes that if this street is paved from curb to curb it will eliminate a lot of the sand that accumulates down town after a rain.

In our opinion property owners along the route, if they are able to do so, should be bappy to build the curb and gutter along their property. It will not cost a great deal and will add immeasurable to the value of the property. Members of the City Council should be able to furnish a close estimate of the cost of the project to the property owners.

LORRAINE YOUNG PEOPLE RETURN FROM WASHINGTON

Maurice Coldey and Marie Backhaus of Lorraine were in a group who returned last week after a trip to Pullman, Washington, where they attended a Luther League convention.

Maurice and Marie left with a group from this district from Lamesa, Texas, on August 18. They traveled by car and stopped over to see the more important sights as they were enroute to Washington. Some of their stops included Yellowstone National Park, Pikes Peak and the Royal Gorge in Colorado. The group also made a sightseeing trip to Lake Louise, Canada.

The five day session of the League was a wonderful treat for the 2000 young people from all over the U. S. and Canada, and also representatives from New Guinea.

On returning a southern route was taken which carried them through the Redwood forest, one of the U. S. wonders. In San Francisco they crossed the golden gate bridge and enjoyed seeing the many other views in Southern California.

Memorial Service At Methodist Church Was Inspiring

A memorial service was held at the Methodist Church Sunday. The service was a great occasion for all present. Many contributions were made in honor and memory of loved ones who had been former members.

Two solos were rendered that were as inspiring and uplifting as any sermon that has ever been preached. Miss Jeannie Ruth Hooper, daughter of E. A. Hooper, contractor for the church, sang "Jesus, Savior Pilot Me" which was very fine. Mr. Roy Beights sang in memory of his mother, "The Unclouded Day". It was excellent and uplifting. When these two had finished a new spirit could be felt among the people.

Presentation of contributions was made which ranged all the way from $1 to the gift of a lovely organ for the church.

Mrs. J. M. Bruce gave $1200 in memory of Mr. Askins to fulfill his desire and wish of helping build a Methodist Church in Lorraine. Mrs. Marion Mahon gave $1000 in memory of her husband for the complete lighting of the auditorium. The Beights family gave the organ to the church as their gift. By this time there was hardly anyone with dry eyes. It was a fine service.

These were the largest contributions made but they were not the most important. All contributions were appreciated and, were important. It is important enough that it means the completion of the building, said the pastor, Rev. S. H. Salley. It will take more money but he feels sure the people will see it through.

A total of $6849 was pledged for the building fund thru these contributions, plus the organ from the Beights families. All of this was raised in cash with the exception of about $1100 which is expected to be paid in this week.

"Our lives was a memorial in the day and it was made so by the good people of the church and others who helped make it a success. The four girls of Lorraine gave $50 each to the fund and it was greatly appreciated," said the Rev. Salley.

BOEN-FASTER

Miss Ruth Boen and Lonnie Fester were married at the Methodist parsonage Saturday night at 9 p. m. with the pastor, Rev. Salley officiating.

The couple will make their home on a farm near Buford.

Fifteen Years Ago In Lorraine

(Taken from files of the Mitchell County News September 6, 1934)

Cotton is moving fast in the Lorraine territory considering the time of year. Farmers in all directions are wanting hands but they seem to be scarce. Up to noon Wednesday the four Lorraine Gins had turned out a total of 360 bales. Cotton was selling for 13.35 and seed were bringing $35 per ton.

A small tornado evidently struck at the Wiley Walker farm Sunday afternoon. The wind struck with such force that it unroofed the barn, tore up a wagon, and tore a hole in the roof of the Walker home. No damage was reported anywhere else in the rain fell in that locality.

Lightning struck and killed a good mule Sunday belonging to J. M. Bruce.

The Lorraine Band will again furnish free entertainment for the people of this territory Saturday night with a concert at the band stand. Everyone is invited to attend and hear some good music.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Russia Threatens Yugoslav Regime; Truman Takes Arms Row to People; Excise Tax Cut Stymied This Year

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

YUGOSLAVIA: War Clouds

Was the United States ready to go to war on behalf of Yugoslavia? That was a paramount question as the hard-boiled struggle between Yugoslavia and Russia reached the threat-of-war stage. Diplomats pondered the question: What would the United States do if Stalin sent the Soviet army to overthrow Marshal Tito's regime in Yugoslavia?

BRITISH and American diplomats, however, ruled out the likelihood of a shooting war. They regarded Moscow's threat to "take more effective measures" in Yugoslavia as only a part of the war of nerves. British newspapers took a different view. They regarded the Soviet note as the "worst threat of war since 1939."

No one outside the Kremlin could know for sure what was coming next. But the threat that began 14 months ago to upset Tito when the Cominform read him out of the Communist party developed long ago into frequent shootings along the satellite borders.

Diplomats in Belgrade frankly were worried. As an example of the jittery situation, one embassy thought it had an inside tip on an "invasion" date.

THE QUESTION of American involvement was not quite as academic as it might appear. With the issue squarely joined between Communism and the west, and with the U.S. serving as the arsenal of the west, involvement as a result of any warlike Kremlin move was an ever-present possibility.

EXCISE TAX: Not This Year

All hope for any reduction this year of federal excise taxes appeared doomed as congress took the door on the issue. Excise taxes are collected on such items as furs, jewelry, luggage, cosmetics, transportation and telephone bills.

CHAIRMAN DOUGHTON (D., N.C.) of the tax-writing house ways and means committee issued a statement saying that he sees no prospect for a reduction in these taxes now. He gave as a reason the federal deficit threat of more than five billion dollars in the current fiscal year.

To clarify the subject for consumers, he added: "I believe it is important to make this clear so that consumers will not postpone the purchase of goods subject to tax in the hope of an immediate reduction."

BUT HE HELD out hope of tax relief in the future. He said he had requested the congressional staff of tax experts to begin now a study of possible tax revisions and reductions for the consideration of congress next year. There was a hint, however, that if present excises are lowered, some other taxes may be increased—unless federal expenditures are reduced.

There remained a middle course, Doughton went on, which might provide a reasonable reduction in government expenditures, to require some increase in taxes where the increase can be borne without disturbing the economy, and to provide for a reduction in those taxes which are crippling enterprise and interfering with business expansion.

ACID TEST:

Fails For Granny

The gambling grandmother of Gardens, Calif., had a relapse. MRS. SULA BELL STIMSON, 49, had been stricken with a compelling urge to gamble. She reached the stage where she forged checks with which to obtain funds for poker playing. She just couldn't resist the yen to see what that next card would be.

Last November she was brought into court for her weakness and was placed on probation for three years. Last April she was arrested again and a physician testified she had undergone a personality change from a normal housewife to a person afflicted with a craving for gambling.

HE SAID doses of glutamic acid had been used with some success in similar cases, recommended such treatment for Mrs. Stimson. The court agreed, and she was released to the custody of her family with court orders to continue the treatment.

It didn't work. The gambling grandmother had succumbed again to the fascination of the poker deck. The acid test had failed.

U.S. AGENCIES

Six Departments Undergo 'Streamlining'

As a result of congressional action several government agencies went under the streamline plan and some mild reshuffling came about. Some 3,300 federal employees were affected as six of President Truman's reorganization plans went into effect under terms of the reorganization act of 1949.

Summing up, here is the gist of what occurred: The U.S. employment service went back into the labor department; the post office department and the maritime and civil service commissions were revamped with greater efficiency as the aim; the bureau of public roads became part of the commerce department; the national security resources board and the national security council became parts of the executive office.

TRUMAN: To The People

President Truman submitted his arms-for-Europe proposal to the people through the medium of the golden jubilee convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Miami.

DECLARING the armament proposal was the "price of peace," he termed it this nation's guarantee against war and urged approval.

The President, contending that peace with freedom and justice cannot be "bought cheaply," urged that congress immediately approve the 1.5 billion dollar arms outlay.

He conceded the cost was "considerable," but added that it "represents an investment in security that will be worth many times its cost."

There were those in congress, however, who were in noticeable disagreement with President Truman. These included several congressmen who have been stalwart supporters of administration policy.

THE DISSENTERS argued that it was "pouring money down a rat-hole" to attempt to prevent war or adequately arm the north Atlantic pact signatories as the Truman proposal planned. Others declared the program was simply "putting small arms in the hands of constabulary of little nations."

U. S. military experts agreed that even with the program operative as envisioned by the President, Russia could overrun the continent in 60 days.

Claiming this, they added that since the U.S. would have to pay for World War III anyway if and when it came, the wiser course would be to build up national defense and striking power to the point where no surprise attack on this nation could be successful.

ELECTRONICS:

Machine Has 'Brain'

The parade of "mechanical brain" devices appeared never-ending. The newest group—an automatic computer called Binac—is smaller, cheaper, brighter than the others.

It can calculate 12,000 times faster than a human being and does problems 25 times faster than more complicated machines. The inventors predicted it would usher in another industrial revolution in which machines can take over many jobs now done by man.

BINAC, built to order for Northrop aircraft company, was designed especially for complicated engineering problems such as in designing new military aircraft and guided missiles.

But Binac was not the last word in the field of mechanical "brains." A larger, general-purpose type of "magic brain" called Univac was under construction. Its first customer will be the U.S. census bureau.

UNIVAC, it was said, could even play chess, but only about as good as an average player, not an expert. It is expected that the machine also would be able to write simple melodies and lyrics because musical harmonics follow simple rules.

With Univac, according to reports, the American people will find out a lot of things they didn't know about themselves—that is, statistically speaking.

ONLY BUREAUCRATS NOW BEAT PATH...

Unhappy Designer May Convert to Rat Traps

...TO DOOR OF THIS MOUSETRAP MAKER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

A BETTER MOUSETRAP

"HOW ARE THINGS as of early September?" we asked the man who built a better mousetrap, this being our regular seasonal inquiry into business conditions.

"I can't quite make out," he replied, with a glance at the paths made to his door. "The paths seem fairly active, but the activity could hardly be called path-beating at this moment."

"Would you say there was a slump?"

"I might think so, but Harry Truman says no."

"Does he think much about mousetraps?"

"You know Washington. There are experts in everything available. The President has aides who claim to be specialists in mouse habits and mousetrap trends in our economic system. There is a federal mousetrap commission at work now."

"Has it been here?"

"I think so. There has been a group here which acted like a federal committee. It came up the paths backward, asked where it was, and immediately wanted to know where there was a good place to eat."

"What did it do after eating?"

"It showed up every day at 11 and quit at 3, announcing after a week that it had studied my business thoroughly and would have an early report with a complete solution to all problems in the mousetrap field."

"You think it will find that you are prospering and that there is no cause for concern?" we asked.

"I am sure of it," said the man who built a better mousetrap. "The commission left in a very happy mood and announced nothing was worrying me."

"Strictly on your own," we asked, "what is the real situation in the mousetrap industry?"

"I am optimistic. It can't be that the country has caught all the mice. Hence the drop in demand for traps must be due to something else. People may be making old traps last longer. I had a fellow come in with some holes and ask that we build a trap around 'em."

"Are you operating in the red at the moment?"

"Yes, but don't let the President hear it. He would hold I am sabotaging public confidence. He may even say I want depression for my own selfish ends."

"So what?"

"Well I guess I should do some deficit financing and expand. After all I don't want federal control of mousetraps."

The man who built a better mousetrap paused a moment and reflected.

"I shall have to style my mousetraps," he resumed. "I must bring out smarter models with startling new innovations. Streamlining might help and possibly some mechanical devices that will make it possible to bait a trap by pressing a button. This will cost a lot of money, but I can borrow it or something."

"Have you thought of turning out a trap with fewer holes?" we asked. "Wouldn't half as many holes mean that people with mice would need twice as many traps?"

"Aha!" exclaimed the M.W.B.A. B.M., showing us the door. "I knew it. You are one of those economic experts direct from the capital. Scram!"

We scrambled.

VANISHING AMERICANISMS

No, I never go away for the summer. Not with a climate like New York.

You can have either the meat or the fish course—the price is about the same.

I give the kid a quarter allowance—and he saves 15 cents a week out of it.

Forty necklaces, bracelets, rings and brooches, one worth $50,000, were in the loot taken by the bandits who stuck up the Aga Khan and the Begum. This leaves them down to their last five tons of ice.

After relieving them of their diamonds, do you suppose the bandits said, "Now drive carefully, as you are operating with dimmers."

President Truman received 100 boys at the White House recently and showed them around. He explained to them how it feels to grow up and have to live in hot water.

Can you remember—Away back when they turned around to look at a daring bathing suit?

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By INEZ GERHARD

ARNOLD MOSS has succeeded in so many fields that it is hard to know where to begin describing him. He entered college at 15, has a master's degree. He has been a success on the stage, radio and screen, as actor, writer and producer. As narrator for "Duel in the Sun" he was so good that he was engaged for the same stint for "Arch of Triumph." His latest picture is "Reign of Terror," for Eagle-Lion. During the war he did broadcasts in four foreign languages, narrated six pictures for the navy. The coming season will see him on the stage in "Twelfth Night," and on television as well. He is married, has two young children—and makes interviews a pleasure.

Daytime serials may be broadcast in Korea, if Miss Ok Yul Kim, an announcer, and Mr. Young Ho Song, a director, both with the Korean radio network, have their way. Here to tour New York's radio studios and study American technique, they visited "The Road of Life" and "Young Dr. Malone" broadcasts, said they'd recommend them to their government-operated radio system.

George Burns and Grace Allen cut their European visit short by two weeks, came rushing home to Hollywood early this month. Could he be that they had last-minute preparations to make for their new comedy show, starting September 21 on CBS.

Lon McCallister has made only two pictures for Warners, but they represent the high and low of his career. In 1941, in "Gentleman Jim," he did a bit role. The Story of Seabiscuit he co-starred with Shirley Temple and Harry Fitzgerald.

The Fiction A MISUNDERSTANDING

By Richard H. Wilkinson

I'LL NEVER FORGET the spectacle of Joe Abbott and Count Obeld fighting. Thinking of it, I am more apt to shudder than smile. Though it certainly had amusing aspects.

You see, Joe is an American. And he wasn't used to the way they did things in Luandia.

Anyway, when Joe and I stopped off at Cabindas on our world cruise, we were much pleased with the place.

That night we had dinner at the Plaza and it was there that we first saw Kandace. She was sitting alone in a booth, and when she caught Joe staring at her boldly, she nodded and smiled at him.

Instinctively I knew, when I saw the tall dark man come through the door, that Joe was in for trouble. And I was right. The tall dark man strode toward the booth and there was something about him that caused my blood to creep. I stood up, but was by no means quick enough. The stranger had grasped Joe by the coat, flung, jerked him to his feet and slapped his face.

After a while a messenger came in and handed me a note. I read it and looked sourly at Joe. "Now you've done it. That was 'Count Obeld and that was his girl you insulted.'"

"Insulted?" said Joe.

"And he wants to fight a duel with you. He realizes our boat sails first thing in the morning, so in order to accommodate us he'll await our pleasure at dawn. He will do you the honor of permitting you to choose your own weapons."

Joe shook his head and tried to grasp it. "That punk—the dope who smacked my jaw—wants to fight a duel? You mean like they do in Sabatin's books?" "And I can choose my own weapons," Joe went on. He stood up. "Come on."

I followed him, not quite daring to use force in stopping him again, yet ready for any emergency. We went back to the Plaza. The count and his girl were, of course, gone. Joe made inquiries, wrote down an address and beckoned me to follow. A taxi deposited us before a pretentious looking house of white adobe. A servant admitted us and presently Count Obeld appeared. "You're giving me the honor of choosing my own weapons," said Joe. "I'll take these," and he knotted up his fists and held them under the count's nose.

"Those!" said the amazed count. "Yeah," said Joe, "and on your honor as a gentleman you can't refuse. Also, why wait till dawn?"

WHAT followed was pitiful. We trooped into the back yard. Joe and the count took off their coats and squared off. Grinning, Joe stepped in and delivered a quick one-two on the nobleman's chin. Blood appeared on his mouth. He swung wildly. Joe set him back on his heels. The count came in again and Joe knocked him down. He got up and came back for more.

"Listen, old horse," he said, "you're as dumb about the customs back in America as I am about them over here. Only I didn't have the guts to fight you your own way —and you, well, by gosh, there are danged few Americans can take it the way you have. And right here and now I rise to remark you have my apology, and I'll tell that dame so, too, if you'll tell me where she lives."

Well, the count only caught on to about one-third of what Joe meant and grinned and offered his hand.

Ten minutes later the three of us were sitting around a fire in Kandace's living room, laughing and talking and drinking punch and telling each other that it was too bad there wasn't a perfect understanding about customs of different countries, and agreed that if such were the case every one would be happier.

Answer to puzzle No. 16

PUZZLE NO. 16

Marines, Car Get Lift From Driver of Truck

Cherry Point, N.C. — Three Brooklyn Marine Reservists recently enroute to the Marine Corps air station here, for two weeks of active duty training, saved themselves 150 miles of the long drive when a big-hearted truck driver gave them and their car a lift from Baltimore to Norfolk on his automobile delivery trailer.

The men, all attached to VMP-132 of Floyd Bennett field, Brooklyn, N. Y., met the trailer driver in a diner outside of Baltimore and told him about the trouble they were having with their car, a 1931 sedan and hoping it would hold together for the trip.

The trailer driver suggested they run their car up on a grease rack in a nearby service station and run it on his empty trailer. This was done and the Marines settled down for the long ride. They are now trying to figure out a way of hitching another ride—with the car—when they are ready to return to Brooklyn upon completion of training.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Reason Retreats
In Face of Love

By Lawrence Gould

Can you keep a girl from "throwing herself away"?

Answer: Rarely. If you give her concrete proof that the man she's in love with is a scoundrel, that may stop her marrying him, though she's more apt to resent it than be grateful for it. But a girl who loves a man you think unworthy of her usually loves him (unconsciously) for the very qualities you disapprove of. He appeals to the repressed side of her nature, whose existence, as a "nice girl," she is unaware of. Marrying him provides an opportunity to gratify this side of herself, and at the same time, repudiate it by trying to "reform" him.

Do aggressive people develop high blood pressure?

Answer: As a rule, no, a committee headed by Dr. Henry A. Schroeder told the Medical Advisory Council of the American Foundation for High Blood Pressure. The two notable characteristics of the "hypertensive personality" are that the person is unable to assert himself and that he tends to follow rigid patterns (like the man who feels he cannot leave the office until he has "cleaned up his desk"). The apparently aggressive people who develop high blood pressure are those who are timid at heart and "put on an act" to hide their panic.

Is there a "routine" in treating mental illness?

Answer: There's no rigid formula, but every successful course of treatment goes through certain stages. According to Dr. Eugene Ziskind of Los Angeles, these are what a layman might call: (1) winning the patient's confidence, (2) encouraging him to get the things he fears or is ashamed of "off his chest"; (3) helping him realize that they are not as terrible as he imagines; (4) giving him a healthier attitude toward life, and (5) getting him back to his family and his job. It sounds simple, but may take much skilled and patient effort.

Blood Pressure and Weight Related

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS KNOWN that overweight people have a greater tendency to high blood pressure than those of normal or less than normal weight. Many of us have read or heard of the little book "Life Begins at Forty," others have heard that Osler stated that men past 60 should be chloroformed. Osler did not make the statement because the best mental work of outstanding inventors, musicians, professional men, authors has been done after the age of 60.

Referring to blood pressure and body weight it is interesting to know that the greatest number of heart strokes (coronary thrombosis) occur after 40 years of age and grow fewer after the age of 60. In a series of cases reported from Finland, the results showed that the average body weight in women increased as the blood pressure rose. Among those with high blood pressure, considerable more overweight was found than among those with normal blood pressure. More cases of high blood pressure were also found in women of excess weight than in those of normal weight.

In men, excess weight up to the age of 40 did not seem to affect the blood pressure. Similarly after the age of 60 excess weight did not seem to affect the blood pressure. However in the 40 to 59 age group, men with high blood pressure showed considerable more excess weight than men with normal blood pressure, and overweight men showed more tendency toward high blood pressure than those of normal weight.

Insurance companies have been pointing out for years that as excess weight accumulates the blood pressure rises and that increased blood pressure occurs more frequently in persons of excess weight than in other persons.

A noted United States physician, Dr. Fishburg, has stated that the presence of overweight and high blood pressure in the same person is often due to hereditary predisposition to these two conditions.

The lesson from the above is that weight begins to increase and also the blood pressure at the age of 40, when "life begins," because more and richer food can be bought and less physical work is done or exercise taken.

HEALTH NOTES

While the chances of a youngster getting infantile paralysis are not as great as some physicians have reported in cases where tonsils have been removed, when it does develop it is generally of the serious bulbar type of paralysis.

Ulcer of the stomach is common in salesmen and other tense individuals.

You should not wait for your semi-annual visit to your dentist if you feel a painless lump or thickening in the lips or tongue, or if you are troubled with persistent hoarseness.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Housewife Needs Workroom of Her Own

By Ertta Haley

THE MEN of the house have their libraries, dens or workshops, the youngsters their playrooms or dens, but what does the lady of the house have? Frequently, nothing! Homemakers need a room of their own, a sort of private retreat where they can follow their hobbies, home management or entertain a guest or two just as much as anyone else in the family. In many houses this is a very real possibility, too, if space is utilized properly.

So many houses have small rooms which may be used as a spare guest room, or as a sort of a den, or as a catch-all for things that really could go into the attic or basement. Since these rooms are small, few have thought of putting them into real, busy use.

The room I have in mind can be as small as 8x8. When all the space is carefully and fully used, this can be converted into a "room of her own" for the lady of the house who not only so much deserves it but also needs it.

Here she can do her marketing if there's a telephone at hand; here she can catch up on letter-eight shelves running from top to bottom on one side of the closet. These may be made into drawers, if desired, but at any rate have the sections which can be used for spools of thread, needles and pins, fasteners, trimmings, tape measure, scissors, pinning shears, patterns, sewing books, remnants to use in mending or quilting as well as sewing machine attachments.

If you do not feel that you have room for an ironing board in the closet, perhaps you'll want to place a card-table in the closet. Another possibility is a board that can be used for pressing and cutting. For the latter purpose you should have a board that is at least 27" wide and 60" long.

Now available are card tables which all fold into a small suit-case which would also be handy for the room. This will serve for pressing and sewing, and some cutting operations. It can double as a table for refreshments or bridge when you entertain.

The closet might also be used to

THE READER'S COURTROOM

Shooting Blanks No Defense

By Will Bernard, LL.B.

Is it a Crime to Shoot Blank Cartridges at Somebody?

A playful youth got very drunk one Christmas Eve, and decided to "have a little fun." Taking an old-fashioned shotgun from the attic, he loaded it with powder and went down to the railroad station. As the next train rolled into the depot, the youth gleefully fired away at the engineer! Arrested for assault, he protested that he wasn't guilty — since there weren't any bullets in the gun. However, the court found him guilty anyhow, pointing out that the frightened engineer couldn't tell the gun wasn't loaded! The judge commented: "Fun is too energetic, even for Christmas Eve, when it looks like a little free-and-easy homicide! Shooting blank cartridges at a man is among the outdoor sports that are forbidden!"

A woman adopted a little boy, but soon decided that she didn't like the youngster after all. Late one night she deposited him on somebody's doorstep, rang the bell, and fled. However, the woman was soon picked up by police and charged with violating the state's child-abandonment law. At the trial, she insisted that the law applied only to natural children, not to adopted ones. But the court found her guilty anyhow. The judge said that, when a person adopts a child, she is responsible for him.

Said His Honor: "This young man was not well matched against this accomplished woman. She repulsed, he demurs, she urges, he yields. The contest was unequal. A woman can always exercise an undue influence over the man she professes to love!"

store one or two folding chairs that you want handy in case of entertaining.

Use Decorations To Reflect Personality

In a room of her own, each homemaker has a real opportunity to reflect her own personality effectively. The room can be gay, smart, subdued but charming, with bright or brilliant colors.

If the room is small, take it easy on pattern since too much decoration will make it seem too full and crowded looking. With a little more space, you can use some pattern, if this is wisely done.

A picture or two, your favorites, of course, may be used on the walls, but too many of these will only add clutter. Much of what is used depends upon the proportions of the room.

With lots of natural light, you need but few lamps. If the room is on the shady side of the house, and you lack space for lamps, use the pin-up types on the walls as they will be space-savers.

Have at least one comfortable chair in the room, as you will do much of your work in it. Other chairs may be added as space and necessity dictate, but when space is lacking, store folding chairs in the closet.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Aid Yourself by Aiding Others

ONE OF THE CRUELEST problems life could bring to any woman came some years ago to Lily Drake. When her husband came home in 1946 Lily had a girl of 3, and a year later a boy was born.

The boy was still an infant when his father was killed in a motor crash. They were driving along quietly enough in a summer dusk, but the man in the convertible behind them wasn't. Ward Drake was crowded against a bank, the car tipped over, little Ned was hurt, and the man of the family killed.

Lily faced it, and was going along well enough when the real trouble developed. Her little son is an imbecile. No one knows whether the jarring crash of the accident brought it on, or whether it was rooted further back. For a little while Lily felt as if she couldn't face this blow. She had an office job at that time, received a pension, and whatever her mother's slender income added, for they all lived together.

She investigated the situation for defective children and found the right place for Ned—but at $300 a month. You, who don't know anything about it, may ask why small babies' care need cost so much. This is very special care. Children of this type never can be left alone. Day and night they must be watched. Almost every child needs a nurse; nurses are well paid. Little Ned needs daily changing and airing; small garments are replaced as often as four times a day.

As any mother of an imbecile child knows, he cannot be kept at home. Neither child nor mother can stand it. So Lily tried everything, she borrowed money, she tried to find some kind old woman who would take him to the country.

Then heart-broken, she put him into a state institution, and rented one of the cottages on the grounds, to be near him. She commuted to the city, 40 miles away. She got up at 5:30, caught a 7:15 bus, then a street car, then office hours and a counter lunch. And then the whole story backward, in burning summer heat and winter blackness. Then she broke down.

Conscience deep in debt but undaunted, Lily began to make herself useful in the institution. She had been a war nurse; that training was invaluable.

She studied the children; Ned she could not help, but he loved to be near her in a quiet, wistful little way, and many another child was brought to more normal work and play through Lily's interest. She is now one of the managers, at $400 a month, her cottage rent free, and little Jane, although aware that one of the children in the big tree-shaded hospital is her brother, seems not at all disturbed by the situation.

But best of all, in this most heroic and satisfactory solution, is the fact that Lily has found herself. She loves her work; her fresh striped uniforms, her swarms of small adorers, her serious talks with the mothers and guardians who so much need her advice, and the cheer she brings them. For an attractive woman, obviously loved by her charges, not finding them

Be Smart!

A high fashion theme that will add smartness and versatility to ever so many dresses, come Autumn, is the dress and jacket combination. This may be chosen in sheer wool, jersey, tweeds, checks and plaids with a plain fabric for contrast. There will be bare-top dresses with matching jackets and sleeveless dresses with jackets. The trend is toward hipbone length and simple design. In itself this fashion is a wonderful double-duty idea, giving the same outfit a range from daytime casual to dress-up! Another new jacket idea for evening includes separate jackets of taffeta, often lace-trimmed.

FRED B. ISON Dry Goods

Not many folks are lucky enough to find enough money to keep things moving—most of us have to work for what we get.

Farmers who let good milk cows work for them get along better than those who dig their living out of the ground exclusively. The farmer who keeps a few good milk cows and sells milk can realize his dream of owning his own farm, building a new home, buying a new car, a new radio, refrigerator or anything he wants and needs more quickly than his neighbor who depends on row crops alone. Try it and see.

The Coming Stretch

BASEBALL'S 1949 stretch is now only a few furlongs away. And this next one can be a nectarine full of juice.

Oddly enough conditions in the two leagues have been somewhat reversed since last April. At that time the Red Sox and Indians were to make the American league race. The Dodgers, Cardinals, Braves,

Grantland Rice

Pirates and possibly the Giants were to churn up foam in the National.

As the case is today only the Cardinals and Dodgers appear to have anything to say about the coming stretch in the National league while the Yankees, Indians, Red Sox and Tigers may all be lumped together through September in the American.

This American league September stretch may be one of the best in many years, even close to the 1948 scramble.

Past results have shown us what can happen when these stretch runs in the two leagues start. The Pirates twice have had a seven-game lead shot from under them in former years. In 1934, the Giants lost six of their last seven games to give the Cards the pennant by two games. Dizzy Dean was the spearhead of the St. Louis team.

The White Sox put on a 19-straight rally in September as far back as 1906. The Cubs picked up a 21 consecutive game streak a few years ago to blot out the Pirates. There have been any number of leads shot to pieces in late August or September.

On copy paper the Red Sox still look to be the strongest team in baseball with the upsurge of Farnell, McDermott and Stobbs, hooked to the power of Williams, Dom DiMaggio, Stephens, Doerr, Pesky and others. The Yankees, Indians and Tigers are now well balanced, with Red Rolfe's hired men carrying the more effective pitching in Newhouse, Trucks, Hutchinson, Houtteman, and Gray. Dartmouth's Rolfe has done a fine job with the squad he opened with. For that matter so has Casey Stengel. From now on everything depends on how the stretch run is handled.

Both Yankees and Indians still recall the 11-game deficit Joe McCarthy and his Red Sox wiped out last summer and fall. And certainly McCarthy has never quit in his belief the Red Sox will win.

The Yankees were the most consistent A. L. team until early August, when Red Sox, Indians, Tigers and Athletics were involved in winning spurts and dizzy downward spirals that looked to be headed for oblivion.

There has been more in and out, up and down, good and bad baseball played in the American League than anyone has seen for many summers. And a good part of it has revolved around erratic pitching.

The National League

The Cardinals are even now an old team, largely products of 1941 and 1942, and by next year they will be over the hill. I can't see any other team coming along to fill in the gap, not even the once-challenging Phillies.

The Cardinals or some other club had better collar the Dodgers this summer or it will probably be too late for some years to come. Burt Shotton's young pitching staff and young team is just picking up the seasoning and experience needed and by 1950 will outclass the National league, Cardinals included.

The downfall of the Braves and the Pirates has been one of the jolting factors in the older circuit. Those who know Billy Southworth and have known him for years can't understand a group of ballplayers backing up under his leadership. He has always been too able a leader and too fine a character in the past. This has affected a ball club that never was too hot, even when it won a year ago. The Braves will be too far back of the Dodgers by 1950 to have a look in.

Old and New Ball

Baseball has had at least one mystery we have never been able to penetrate. How was it that in other years, though the pitchers could do anything to a ball except cut it in two, the batting averages of many players were so high?

The answer could come with spit-ball moisture—they could use emery—they could fix it up—they could blacken it—and there were times when they froze it.

Jesus and the Psalms

Lesson for September 11, 1949

SOME parts of the Old Testament
Jesus never once mentioned.
Others he quoted again and again.
Could this be because some parts were more helpful to him than others? At any rate, the Psalms were one section of his Bible which he often quoted.

Worship

ONE USE Jesus made of the Psalms was in public worship. Whenever he went up to the Temple he would join in singing or in listening to the great choirs singing these ancient hymns. Many of our own best-loved hymns, while not direct translations, are based on Psalms. For example, "Still With Thee" is from Psalm 16; "Dr. Foreman
"God Is My Strong
Salvation" from Psalm 27; "The King of Love" from Psalm 23; "O
Worship the King" from Psalm 104.

In private worship also we know Jesus used the Psalms. One of the Hebrew names for them was "The Book of Prayers," and Jesus, like many another who has loved these Psalms, found in them the natural expression of what was deepest in his heart when he turned toward his Father in heaven.

A striking proof of this comes from the story of Calvary. The cry, "My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" is a quotation from Psalm 22:1, and "Into thy hands I commend my spirit" is from Psalm 31:5.

Thus, two out of three prayers he uttered in his last moments were from the Psalms. So the reader today, pondering in a quiet moment these immortal poems, either from the printed book or better yet, as Jesus did, from the treasures of memory, may often find in them prayers which seem breathed from his own mind and to which he need only say, Amen.

Truth about God

JESUS also found in the Psalms a revelation of truth. It would be too much to say that Jesus derived his ideas of God from the Psalms. But certainly some of the great teachings about God which we hear from Jesus we can read already in the Psalms.

Jesus did not use the Psalms stupidly, of course. He would never have supposed that you could take just any sentence about God out of some Psalm or other, and quote it as the last word about God.

For instance, during his temptations the thought was suggested to him that he could jump off a high building and not be hurt; had not God promised just that in a Psalm? Now it is true that Psalm 91:1-2 does say that God will keep you from "dashing your foot against a stone" but Jesus knew that does not mean that God will guarantee to keep you out of trouble or harm no matter how foolish you are!

Christ in the Psalms

JESUS found in the Psalms also prophecies. There is a rather thin line between illustration and prophecy.

For instance, when the Jerusalem boys and girls were making such a noisy welcome for him, and the dignified priests were protesting, Jesus quoted Psalm 8:2 in defense of the children: "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise."

Did he mean that the Psalms had predicted that of one occasion, or did he mean that the Psalm expressed a truth always good.

At all events, we do know that Jesus often took a Psalm, or a part of one, as a prophetic picture of himself. He knew himself to be the true King of Mankind, "the Lord's Anointed," as his use of Psalm 110:1 plainly shows.

Yet he also knew that he must pass through suffering to his throne (Luke 24:26). When the leaders of his people rejected him he was not surprised, for he thought at once of Psalm 118:22-23.
When he hung on the cross, and saw the soldiers gambling for his clothes, Psalm 22:16-18 would surely come into his mind.

And can we doubt that in his last agonies, one who knew the Psalms so well would not have remembered also the later lines from the same prophetic Psalm? It begins with the tragic question—Why? But it rises to a song of triumph—"When he cried unto him, he heard!"

IF YOU'VE suddenly decided to embark on canning, there's still time to put up jellies, pickles and late arrivals.

Peaches, pears,
grapes, plums and apples are now reaching markets to be available for preserving.

All these fruits have a definite canning appeal whether you're past master at the art of preserving or a new bride about to embark on her first jelly-making adventure.

buttered bread and serve with cheese-stuffed celery stalks and

G-Man Hoover Scans Career

Has Served Bureau For Past 25 Years

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It was 25 years ago that John E. Hoover, a librarian turned lawyer, took command of a run down police force whose officers could neither make arrests nor carry guns.

In a quarter century, much has happened.

America's criminal glossary has been swelled by such terms as "G-man," "G-heat" and "public enemy." The era of gang warfare as a national characteristic and kidnaping as a big time source of racket money have flowered and faded. The careers of "Machine Gun" Kelly, Dillinger and Karpis have boomed in the news headlines and ended at morgue and prison gates.

And along the way, "John E." has become "J. Edgar" and the sad sack police force of May 10, 1924, has blossomed into the pride of a nation which once maintained that law enforcement was a strictly local problem and no business of Washington's bureaucrats.

In honor of his silver anniversary as head man of the federal bureau of investigation, director Hoover reviewed the FBI story and told how it all began.

It is a story of politics, good and bad, of an era that created a new enforcement approach, and of a criminal punk with a machine gun and a smart wife who did a million dollar publicity job for the FBI. Above all it is the biographical tale of an unimportant federal employee who took an unimportant appointment in 1924, and, without changing jobs, has become one of Washington's and the nation's most potent figures.

LOOPHOLES in the Law

By WILL WILSON

Past President, Texas District and County Attorneys Association

(Editors Note: This is one of a series of short case histories, all taken from court records, showing how legal loopholes of ten enable criminals to escape punishment in Texas. Will Wilson is chairman of a special steering committee of the State Bar, which is working for revision of the antiquated Criminal Code and Code of Criminal Procedure in order to eliminate these loopholes.)

John Smith saw Joe Brown steal his watch. He had Brown arrested and the watch was found in his pocket. Smith told the officers that he had paid $49.50 for the watch, and misdemeanor charges of theft were filed against Brown.

When the case was tried in the county criminal court, Smith said he had made one slight mistake. He actually had paid $50 for the watch instead of $49.50. Since it was new when stolen it was considered worth the purchase price of $50. Smith was a convincing witness and, after all, he had actually witnessed the theft, so Brown was promptly convicted.

Upon appeal the case was reversed. The higher court held that the theft of a watch valued at $50 constituted a felony, rather than a misdemeanor, theft. Thus the county criminal court lacked jurisdiction over the case. There was no question about Brown's guilt, but he was given a new trial simply because the watch was valued at 50 cents more than it was originally said to be worth.

Such delays in punishing criminals, made possible by legal technicalities, hamper justice and encourage crime. Proper revision of Texas' criminal statutes, as advocated by the State Bar, would eliminate such technicalities.

Cancer Second In Cause Of Death

Austin, Texas, Sept. 1—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, in speaking of cancer, said that it ranked second in cause of death in Texas, being exceeded only by heart disease. Last year approximately 6900 Texans died of this disease. One of the reasons so many people die of cancer is because the disease usually exists some time before it is recognized. By then it has progressed from a small local cancer to a large and dangerous one.

In the beginning cancer is not painful so many persons do not consult a doctor. Any lump, especially in the breast, should be looked upon with suspicion. Other suspicious symptoms are any sore that does not heal about the tongue, mouth or lips; sores caused by broken teeth or ill fitting dental plates should receive attention; irregular bleeding or discharge from any opening of the body is a danger signal. Persistent indigestion with loss of weight is a symptom of cancer of the stomach. With any of these signs one should go immediately to a doctor. Many times the suspicion of cancer will have been unfounded but it is much better to be safe.

It is desirable to treat all diseases in their early stages, but in no case is it more important than cancer. Periodic examinations made with cancer in mind affords the best protection against this disease. Surgery, X-ray and radium are the main weapons which are used to combat cancer.

FARM PROGRAM

from the County Agricultural Conservation Committee

Winter Cover Crops

The winter cover crop practices have been approved for Mitchell County.

They are for fall seeded legumes (hairy vetch and winter peas), and for fall seeded rye on sandy land.

The AAA payment rate for hairy vetch seed is $15.40 per hundred; for Austrian and Dixie Wonder peas $5.80 per hundred. The payment for rye is $1.50 per acre.

Should payment be desired, secure a written approval from the county office before seeding the legumes or rye.

The winter legume practice must be carried out in accordance with the specifications set forth below or a good stand and good growth must be obtained and not harvested for hay.

The winter legume seed must be properly inoculated with fresh inoculants and seeded not later than December 1, 1949. Phosphate must be applied at a rate of not less than the equivalent of 200 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate per acre.

The following minimum seeding rates per acre are required when these crops are seeded alone. When a mixture of these crops is seeded, the rates may be reduced proportionately.

Austrian winter and Dixie wonder peas: 40 pounds broadcast; 30 pounds planted with grain drill; 15 pounds regular width rows.

Hairy vetch: 20 pounds broadcast; 15 pounds planted with grain drill; 10 pounds drilled with small grain; 8 pounds regular width rows.

The crop must not be harvested for hay. The crop must not be grazed to an extent that will prevent the maintenance of a good protective cover at all times. Seed may be harvested.

No payment can be allowed for rye grown in combination with vetch should the vetch qualify for payment.

The rye practice ($1.50 per acre) is applicable only to sandy land subject to wind erosion.

To meet specifications the rye should be seeded at the rate of not less than 40 pounds per acre. A stand and growth that would justify harvesting as a feed crop must be obtained. The crop must be left on the land or turned under. A volunteer crop will not qualify.

Fall seeded cover crops not only restore badly needed organic substances to the soil but also hold the land from blowing and washing away. The legume cover crop (vetch and winter peas) will take nitrogen from the air thereby adding to the soil's fertility, also.

Payment will be made for applying phosphate to the legume crops. The phosphate strengthens and helps the plant become established earlier, as well as producing a desired effect upon the land.

Terracing funds are still available. Help build a thousand miles of 1949 terraces in Mitchell County—1000 miles of terraces will protect over 15,000 acres of Mitchell County soil. Let's keep the dirt from floatin' and blowin' around; terraces and fall seeded cover crops can both help. Ask the boys who use them.
