Womble carries memories of Dallas, Kennedy

By JOHN BROOKS

Managing Editor

There's a funeral notice on Page 6, Section 4 of the Nov. 23, 1963 edition of the Dallas Morning News. It's in alphabetical order, with all of the other funeral notices of the day. You'll find it between Mrs. Anna Janosky and Harry Tucker Lackey.

"Kennedy, President John F. Beloved husband of Jacqueline Kennedy; dear father of John and Caroline Kennedy; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kennedy; brothers Robert and Ted Kennedy; sisters, Mrs. Peter Lawford, Mrs. Robert Shriver. Remains forwarded to Washington, D.C. Friday."

The newspaper's front page has a simple headline, in letters an inch-and-a-half tall:

"KENNEDY SLAIN
ON DALLAS STREET"

It has a picture of the fallen president; a picture of the new president, Lyndon Johnson; and five stories, including details on the president's murder; the condition of Texas Gov. John Connally, who was injured; Johnson's swearing in; the impact of the shooting on the world; and funeral mass details.

Benny Womble of Hereford was in Dallas, saw the president's motorcade pass by just moments before the assassination, and picked up three copies of the Morning News the next morning.

Womble was a B.F. Goodrich tire dealer in Hereford in 1963, and flew to Dallas with Borger and Skellytown tire dealers for a show that unveiled the Goodrich lines for 1964.

"We flew to Dallas that morning and landed at Love Field," Womble said. "We landed just ahead of the president's plane."

A few minutes later, Womble and his friends hailed a cab to take them downtown to the Sheraton. The cabbie had a transistor radio leaning against his windshield, and they heard the announcement about the motorcade that would go through downtown Dallas.

"We ate a bite for lunch at the Sheraton and walked through the breezeway to go up to the top of the Southland Life building," Womble said. "We got out of the elevator and we could hear the sirens. He was only a couple of blocks away."

"From where we were up there, it was about a block high, and we were looking down at a 45 degree angle. A guy was standing there watching the motorcade, and he said 'Someone could do some real damage from up here with a machine gun.'"

With the motorcade gone, Womble and his friends went back to the motel for the beginning of the tire show. The show began with a general meeting. It was an announcement that the show was over.

"A guy got up there and said, 'I have a terrible announcement to make. The president has been shot and killed,'" Womble said.

Benny Womble looks at the Nov. 23, 1963 edition of the Dallas Morning News.

"I was like everyone else, in a state of incredible shock," Womble said. "I had just seen that motorcade, all those big, black long limousines, drive by, with the president waving at everyone."

"It hadn't really occurred to me that someone might do that until that guy said what he did about the machine gun, but looking back, there were so many places, millions of places, where a sniper could have hidden out. There's no way they could have watched that many buildings."

Womble said the city of Dallas almost completely shut down.

"There was nothing going on by that evening. Most of the stores closed as early as 4 o'clock, and you could have heard a pin drop out on the street that night. The people of Dallas were probably more saddened than anyone else. They just couldn't believe it had happened there."

"Everybody was downcast. There were people who hadn't voted for Kennedy, people who didn't like some of the things he had done, but they hated what happened as much as anyone else."

Womble said he has been back to Dallas since the assassination, but has a bad feeling about going back to his motorcade watchpoint. "I just have a real bad feeling. I have been back to go through the museum down there, but I just get a bad feeling."

Womble feels Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing President Kennedy.

"I think Oswald did it," Womble said. "I'm bracing that on what the police and everyone have said. I just know there were a million places where it could have been done all along that route, and the School Book Depository was one of those places."

But Womble lives with the memory of being one of the last people to see President Kennedy alive on Nov. 22, 1963.

"If I had known what was going to happen, I wouldn't have been in Dallas that day. But it's kind of like a soldier on the battlefield. I wouldn't have wanted to be there, but it was an honor to be where I was."

Tax rebates keep rebounding

By JOHN BROOKS

Managing Editor

Hereford will receive a sales tax rebate this month for $66,682. The November rebate is almost $11,000 more than the rebate Hereford received in November 1987.

For the year, Hereford has received $559,766. Through November 1987, the city had received only $515,933.

Similar increases in rebates have occurred statewide. State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office sent checks this month totalling $118.4 million. "The payments to cities and counties continue to improve," Bullock said. "The state's economic recovery continues to pick up steam."

Statewide, year-to-date payments have increased 12.4 (See TAXES, Page 3A)

Groups will aid CSF efforts

Utility companies, schools and some local clubs and organizations are gearing up to help make the 1988 Christmas Stocking Fund drive the most successful ever in Hereford and Deaf Smith County.

Each year, CSF calls on residents of Hereford and Deaf Smith County to relieve some of the hunger and need oppressing the community's less fortunate during the holiday season.

This year, CSF is shooting for its third consecutive record-setting fundraiser. CSF nearly passed from the scene in 1986, but was salvaged by a volunteer committee, and raised a record amount in excess of $10,000. In 1987, the CSF drive surpassed $13,000.

West Texas Rural Telephone Co-Op, Energas, Southwestern Public Service and Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative are joining forces to sponsor a food drive for CSF this year. The local utilities are expected to mount some friendly competition as employees of the firms try to see who can raise the greatest amount of food and materials for CSF.

Hereford school students will be doing their part for CSF once again this year. Eleven schools in Hereford have agreed to stage canned food drives on their campuses during the week of December 12-16. Special collection boxes will be placed at the schools during that week. Members of the Hereford High School Key Club will collect the canned foods from school campuses and deliver them to CSF volunteers for use in food baskets to be given to the needy.

School youngsters in Hereford have proved themselves especially adept at giving a helping hand to CSF.

"We received an incredible amount of canned foods from the school children of Hereford and Deaf Smith County during our 1987 campaign. The kids poured their canned food offerings on us in such abundance it took a crew of volunteers nearly a half-day to sort all of the goods for distribution to the needy. We know our students will be generous again this year," said a CSF spokeswoman.

A number of local study and social clubs have begun to include CSF in their giving plans.

The 1988 fundraising drive for CSF has already been kicked off with a $25 donation from the La Plata Study Club, and some bridge clubs are expected to get in on the sharing act this season.

All funds donated to CSF are used to provide such basis items as food, clothing and housing, as well as emergency medical and humanitarian assistance.

Caring doctor

Dr. A. T. Mims, Hereford surgeon who retired this September, fondles his old stethoscope in his examining room he has worked in for 36 years.

Mims loved by everyone

By ANDREA HOOTEN

Staff Writer

"...One of the nicest, kindest, gentlest men you will ever meet" seems to be the overwhelming reaction in these parts to the name "Dr. Trow Mims."

This is an astounding consensus for a towering, silver-haired surgeon who has poked, jabbed, probed and stuck a lot of bodies in his 36-year practice in Hereford.

"If you had a biopsy done and the results were sour as hell and you were going to die from whatever you had, Trow could tell you those results and you would still love him," said Dr. Hap Cavness, Mims' friend of 36 years who began his dentistry practice in Hereford just months before Mims moved to Hereford in 1951.

"He had one of the best bedside manners around and he could be both empathetic and sympathetic. He epitomizes what a physician should be: he's oriented to catering to patients."

Where does the like of Dr. Mims come from? The soft eyes and easy smile of the 68-year-old seem reminiscent of a certain television doctor — Welby was the name — but Dr. Mims' compassion is not fashioned by script writers and directors but a gut-feeling since seventh grade that caring for people was his forte.

"It's not that I had anyone in the family that was a physician necessarily," Dr. Mims said of his decision to become a doctor. "I just thought it was a noble profession and one in which I could do things for people. And I picked surgery as a specialty because you are actually performing a treatment program and can see results by what you do. The correction isn't totally dependent upon medicines."

Though the surgeon was particularly deft with his hands, his words of comfort could slice through the distressful emotions accompanying an illness.

Sandy Stagner, 39, was wrestling with cancer of the thyroid when she was 29 and found solace while Dr. Mims himself was suffering with cancer of the colon.

"I was scheduled to have cancer surgery and although he had his own problems, I would go in and talk with him for an hour and a half at a time, and he never charged me. How do you deal with a neurotic 29-year-old? To this day, he will see me, call me by my name and ask how I'm doing," Stagner said.

His kindness carried over to the staff which worked under him at Deaf Smith General Hospital, and a sense of respect and professionalism followed, said Carolyn Kubacak, a certified registered nurse anesthetist who was a 17-year-old nurse's aide when she met him. She became his operation room supervisor in 1973.

"His whole manner was one that inspired confidence in patients and he was very knowledgeable about his work," said Kubacak. "The patients just trusted him and his presence (See MIMS, Page 3A)" said. Dr. Mims wore a suit to work each day, a requirement as far as he was concerned, and was equally meticulous with each case he acquired.

"I never took on any case I felt I couldn't do. But when I did take on a case, I made sure I performed as I should and I would always say a little prayer before the surgery that I would do OK," said Dr. Mims as he neatly weaves his fingers.

Prayer and music were aids to Dr. Mims in the operating room. Instrumental background music waiting on a cassette tape player as he performed surgery helped to calm his nerves — a studying habit he picked up at Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

"He couldn't stand the hard rock music — just a lot of the Big Band sound," said Betty Hammock, a licensed vocational nurse who worked in surgery with Dr. Mims the past six years.

Hammock not only knew Dr. Mims' personality behind the knife, but experienced his kindness while she was actually under his knife with four Caesarean sections.

"He's good. He's very good," said Hammock. "He always made Bob (her husband) feel really comforttable. We had three boys the first three C-sections and when we had a boy the fourth time, he was saying, 'You finally got your girl.' He added such a personal touch to everything."

The man spent three-fourths of his life remedying the sick, often giving patients hours of time he might have spent hunting or playing his clarinet.

But retirement was looming and the government's tightened restrictions on how he could care for his patients persuaded Dr. Mims to hang up the stethoscope this September for a more duty-free life of wildlife photography, music and hunting waterfowl with his friends.

"I miss it. I miss work," said Dr. Mims, dressed in his retirement garb of khaki jacket and white shirt open at the collar. "I feel like I could still be at it and enjoying it, but my wife and I have been planning this for a long time, and the days are a lot less worrisome."

Two and a half months later, however, Dr. Mims is still tending to some of his former patients — tying up loose ends, carrying on the tradition of kindness and caring which the man exudes.

With Dr. Mims, patient(s) has always been a virtue.

Speedy Nieman was elected chairman of the Hustlers for 1989 during a regular monthly meeting of the chamber group Friday. He will succeed Tom LeGate.

The Hustlers serve as a goodwill ambassador group for Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Membership in the maroon-jacket group is earned through participation in chamber projects, as well as signing up new members.

In other business Friday, Hustlers made plans to assist in the annual C of C membership campaign next Tuesday, scheduled a ribbon-cutting ceremony for a new business, volunteered to help work the football playoff game Friday night, and made plans for the Fun Breakfast to be held Dec. 1.

One's boudoir, according to the French, should be a brown study, a room for sulking in. The word comes from the French bouder, to sulk. The word ye, in such expressions as "Ye Olde Shoppe," is pronounced like the word the. The letter y in Anglo-Saxon indicated the same th sound as apparent in the current spelling.

As reported in Thursday's Brand, Hereford is still in the running for the location of a corn masa plant. Members of the industrial foundation committee feel Hereford will be selected if the decision is based on factors being considered by the company.

More than 300 farmers in Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties indicated earlier this year a desire to grow enough corn to meet the company's needs. Plainview leaders picked up on that idea this week and staged a rally Thursday night. Plainview is more in the cotton country, however, as most of the corn is north. As the local committee sees it, the only advantage Plainview can boast for this plant is that they are a larger city.

Boone Pickens of Amarillo has been described as a corporate raider, but it is obvious that his reasoning makes sense to many thousands of little shareholders across the nation. Pickens argues that some directors who control large corporations, but own little stock, hold on to retained earnings instead of paying dividends.

This has resulted in billions of dollars being used by these directors to fund huge, unjustifiable salaries, bonuses, expense accounts, paid travel and vacations and other goodies. Pickens has organized a United Shareholders of America association to get stockholders together and demand that their managers do something for the people who invest in the companies.

Leveraged buyouts sometimes occur when an outside speculator finds stocks underpriced, borrows big money to buy up enough stock to gain control, then uses that firm's own money to pay off the debt. Some observers are worried about the huge corporate debt being caused by these takeovers, but it probably wouldn't happen if the hired hands who run the companies had been looking out for the interests of their shareholders.

We believe Pickens has a good idea in forming the shareholders association and, in the long run, it should be good for stockholders across the nation and business in general.

Guest Editorial

King Jim

Jim Wright, the Speaker of the House, is not disturbed one bit by the fact that the American people elected George Bush President of the United States as a Republican.

The day after the election, a statement came out of the Wright organization to the effect that the Speaker will form what is basically a congressional government. He will have his own agenda, he will have his own administration, and will deal with many issues, many of them resembling the Dukakis campaign.

What's going on here?

Is the Speaker of the House going to be able to take over the reins of government in these United States simply because he now has a stronger Democratic majority in the House?

Jim Wright has become a free lance Secretary of State, announcing his own "peace plans" and declaring his right to reveal classified information.

Congress has exercised a stranglehold on domestic policy by sending in a whole year's legislation in one veto-proof bill.

Congress insists that special prosecutors investigate those in the executive branch at the first hint of scandal but when a member of Congress gets caught, his case is handed over to a hand-picked, friendly Congressional committee and that is the end of it.

Congress has passed a lot of laws restricting businesses and organizations in this nation but has conveniently exempted itself from laws regarding racial discrimination, wage and hour laws, other laws regarding its own employees.

The view of the Democratic leadership is that presidents come and go, but their control of Congress is to be forever.

This kind of attitude can spell nothing but trouble for a new administration, especially one which intends to be the executive and not be bullied by Speaker Jim Wright.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

Poverty amid plenty

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner,
President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON—Few issues in our society provoke more concern and frustration than poverty, primarily because most of the information we get about poverty is inaccurate and misleading.

For example, many people believe the federal government has curtailed its spending on poverty programs during the years of the Reagan administration. Not true. Since the 1960s, our country has devoted an increasing share of its resources to the elimination of poverty. Real welfare spending, calculated in 1985 dollars, stood at $21 billion in 1960, increased to $121 billion in 1976 and rose even further to $140 billion in 1986. There are at least 59 federal agencies providing aid to the poor in one form or another. From 1960 through 1985, combined federal-state spending on welfare shot up 525 percent.

Yet according to government statistics, the overall poverty rate increased from an average of 12 percent in the 1970s to an average of more than 14 percent during the 1980s.

So how in the world has the poverty rate gone up while we are spending so much to bring it down? The answer, quite simply, is that it hasn't gone up at all. Up to 70 percent of all aid provided to the poor is in-kind assistance, like food stamps and housing vouchers, that is not included when the income of those allegedly living below the poverty line is assessed. If the true monetary value of all in-kind assistance—such as housing subsidies, food stamps, fuel allotments and the like—were included, there would be substantially fewer people listed as poor.

So why is the poverty data being manipulated to make the problem appear worse than it really is? Well, it may have something to do with the thousands of bureaucrats and social workers who have a vested interest in the poverty programs. They want to keep the money flowing. Thus, it is in their interest to make it appear as if the poverty problem is getting worse instead of better.

I am well aware that the streets of our major cities are filled with people who are obviously in desperate straits, but that is another problem entirely. Many of these unfortunate are simply unable to look after themselves. A substantial percentage of them are afflicted with schizophrenia, drug addiction or other mental and emotional disorders. The problem is not a lack of programs to help them, but rather that they are unable or unwilling to take advantage of the programs.

There are bills pending in Congress to provide more relief to the street people. I suspect we would get better results if we simply assigned certain individuals to go among them and inform them of the programs already available, and show them how to take advantage of those programs.

I do not mean to seem callous or indifferent to the plight of the poor. But the best remedy to poverty I know of is a healthy, growing economy that provides an infinite variety of opportunities. We have such an economy and the vast majority of Americans have found productive places in it. The fact that a relative handful has missed the boat does not suggest there is anything fundamentally wrong with the system, only that we need to do more to help people see and take advantage of the myriad opportunities available to them.

No Way To Pick Judges

(The General Election) settled one thing in Texas. This is absolutely no way to select judges for the state's highest courts. If you think the presidential campaign set a Guinness record for distortions and mud-throwing, consider the contests for the Texas Supreme Court.

Ads used by the Ted Z. Robertson campaign referred to the famous "60 Minutes" episode that asked if justice is for sale in Texas. That's curious because the program focused on Robertson's acceptance of a $120,000 campaign contribution from rancher Clinton Manges.

But the Robertson ads pointed to Chief Justice Phillips as the kind of problem on the high court that attracted "60 Minutes." Nothing could have been further from the truth. Phillips was not even on the court at the time of the program. It was a gross and cynical distortion.

This campaign, which made the presidential contest look clean by comparison, provides an eloquent case for changing the system. When a candidate for the Texas Supreme Court has to raise upwards of $2 million to hold his seat on the bench, and when 90 percent of that money comes from lawyers and groups of lawyers who practice before that court, or from those often the targets of lawsuits heard before the court, then how can Texans maintain confidence in the integrity of their judicial system?

Incumbents' Club Prevails Again

The Capitol Hill incumbent protection club did it again in last week's elections.

More than 98 percent of those who sought re-election to the House of Representatives were successful.

It has become so hard to unseat a Washington incumbent that some of them didn't even have an opponent. And almost 90 percent of those who did swamped their opposition by landslide margins of 80 percent or more.

Now, Democratic congressional leaders are claiming their party has a bigger mandate to run the country than does George Bush. That is nonsense.

The best that can be hoped is that voters in congressional districts and states will make a stronger effort to recognize when they are being used rather than represented and take matters into their own hands.

How can a Congress that has become virtually impenetrable claim to be representative of the people in a national sense? Answer: It can't.

What could be done to unstack the deck? Terms could be limited.

Free mailing privileges could be curtailed sharply.

Contributions from political action committees, most of which go to incumbents from groups seeking legislative favors, could be reexamined.

But the chances of any of this happening are slim and none.

Why? Because Congress itself would have to initiate such restrictions. And an incumbent protection club will not do anything to jeopardize the reelection chances of its members.

Literature Stand Serves Students

The State Board of Education deserves plaudits for continuing to stand up for literature in the face of know-nothings' attempts to censor anything saltier than a cake recipe in school textbooks.

Although the forces of ignorance objected to nearly 100 pieces of classics and other literature, the board ignored all such requests.

... Texas is the nation's largest purchaser of textbooks, and if it succumbs to the censors, not only Texas students but also students in most other states will have their intellectual development stunted.

Election Turnout Effort Paid Off

While the (General Election) turnout wasn't as large as predicted, more Texans than ever went to the polls, 5.4 million of them. A lot of credit for that huge number of votes can go to the registration campaign conducted this year by Secretary of State Jack Rains.

Early this year, Rains set a goal of registering 1 million new voters and getting 50 percent of them to turn out in the general election. He sought the help of the business community and anyone else who would lend a hand.

The goal of 1 million wasn't quite reached, but more than 900,000 additional voters were registered. And the turnout was 66 percent.

The "Voter '88" campaign was a success. The only thing to do now is set higher goals.

Dear editor:

I'm just letting you know about an article in The Amarillo Globe-News about drug testing of professional drivers. The Department of Transportation should do all it can to get rid of drugs being used by some truck drivers. I believe it should be mandatory at least every six months.

There are some dummies who believe drugs belong on the road, so all companies should have a drug screening on all truck drivers. The big wind Tuesday did not slow down the reckless drivers, but the majority of the professional drivers had the courtesy and respect for other drivers to slow down.

I really hope the DOT does have mandatory drug screening. If you don't think there is a problem, get on a CB radio and park near a big truck stop. It isn't that all the apples are bad because of one bad apple, but we need to get rid of the bad one.

Sincerely and a friend of truck drivers, Jesse Grijalva

Dear editor:

The Hereford High School Sophomore class chili supper was a success!

First, thank you sophomore parents for the giving of your time, energy and talents to bring all the necessary resources together to make this year's supper a success. You are a great group of sophomore parents—it couldn't have been accomplished without you.

Several businesses gave graciously to help our cause. They are Arrowhead Mills, Moore's Jack & Jill & Lone Star Ins. Agency. To them we also say thank you.

The HHS Class of 1991 and its officers and sponsors thank you.

Sincerely
Gayla Kimball and Neal Nedlock

DRAWER ORGANIZATION

Dear Heloise: I organize my desk drawers and bathroom drawers with cereal box bottoms cut about 2½ inches deep. I line the drawers with several of them. In my desk drawer, one holds pencils, another scissors, rubber bands, tape, brads and staples. This helps the all-American "junk drawer" in my desk stay a bit more organized.

The cereal box bottoms in my bathroom drawer hold combs in one, makeup in another and various hair accessories in another. — Sharon Jones, Merrillville, Ind.

YOUR EYES

ANOTHER REASON TO STOP SMOKING

Have you ever thought about how smoking affects your vision? Not only is tobacco smoke irritating to the eyelids, but excessive inhaling of the harmful gases in cigarettes can impair night vision and may lower the normal, efficient operation of your eyes.

In some individuals who are heavy smokers, nicotine may restrict blood vessels in the eyes and thus reduce the supply of oxygen. Carbon monoxide, another harmful ingredient in cigarette smoke, reduces the blood's ability to combine with and carry oxygen. If the oxygen to the eyes is reduced enough, their ability to adapt from dark to light may decrease.

Some smokers tend to have a narrower field of vision. A lowering of the oxygen supply lowers sensitivity to side movement. A driver may not see an auto approaching from another lane as sharply as he should.

When smoking is discontinued, these visual problems generally disappear. Night vision and peripheral vision improve. And, of course, you will be a healthier person.

A time when we cherish having family and friends near.
Moments to reflect, be happy, to pray.
And give thanks for the love we can never repay.

It's also a time for us to thank you.
For growing together — old friends and new.
At Thanksgiving time we just want to say.

WTHS beats 'Lopes, 42-7

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The West Texas High School Comanches broke open a close game with a touchdown just before halftime and added three second-half touchdowns to defeat Abernathy 42-7 in a Class 2A area playoff game here Friday night.

WT, now 8-3-1, will play Eastland in the regional round next week.

The game's beginning was similar to last year's contest, also played at Whiteface Stadium. In the 1987 area playoff, WT claimed an early 14-0 lead before Abernathy stormed back for a 29-21 win.

After WT scored on a 19-yard run by Terry Mongold and a two-yard scamper by Tucker Stroud for a 15-0 lead, Abernathy cut the lead to 15-7 on a 16-yard run by Steve Peebles with 2:08 to play in the first half.

Abernathy had driven 88 yards in nine plays and was boosted with a pair of pass interference calls against the Comanches, but the Antelopes gave up a quick score to WT and couldn't muster a scoring threat the rest of the way.

WT, behind the running of Layne Moffitt and Mike Fair, moved 77 yards in nine plays, and still had 39 seconds left on the clock when Mongold passed to tight end Travis Moss for a 23-yard touchdown pass.

Moffitt scored on a 26-yard halfway through the third quarter, and WT added two scores in the fourth quarter.

One was a 15-yard fumble return when Moss stripped the football from Antelope quarterback Russell Miller and Corey Lynch caught the football in the air at the 15 and ran it into the end zone.

Third-string tailback James Cruz scored the final six points.

Clarification on records

The Brand carried a listing of career leaders in Hereford High football statistics Thursday and there was at least one error. Two games were not included for the all-time pass reception leader Bobby Baker (1986). His record stands at 61 catches for 814 yards and 11 touchdowns and came in 14 games.

The statistical listings included two categories for passing. It appears Mike Wartes, now athletic director at Canyon, is the all time passing quarterback for Hereford. His 10-game yardage total is above several players who went into playoff games, and his attempts and completions are only slightly behind two others who had playoff games.

Todd Shire (1986) has the most touchdowns passes, completing 15 in 14 games, while Jason Scott this year has the top percentage completion mark at .614. There is no complete record or interceptions.

Sanders a pleasant Heisman surprise

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Football Writer

On the cover of the 1988 Southern California football guide, surrounded by memorabilia from USC's 100 years of athletic excellence, is a picture of "Quarterback Rodney Peete, Heisman Trophy Candidate."

Among the items pictured are the Heisman Trophies won by Mike Garrett (1965), O.J. Simpson (1968), Charles White (1979) and Marcus Allen (1981), Rose Bowl rings and watches, even a photo of John Wayne, who was known by his real name of Marion Morrison when he played for USC in the 1920s.

On the cover of the 1988 UCLA football guide, looking downfield for an open receiver and about to cock his arm, is "Quarterback Troy Aikman, Heisman Trophy Candidate."

On the cover of the 1988 Oklahoma State football guide, kneeling amidst four trophies, two jerseys and a helmet is ... Coach Pat Jones?

"Pat and I sat down during the summer and discussed just what we wanted to do with the cover," said

Oklahoma State sports information director Steve Buzzard. "We have three great skill position players in Sanders, Gundy and Dykes."

"Truthfully, if any of the three warranted preseason hype it was Dykes. But we decided it wouldn't be fair to the other two to put just one of them on the cover so we decided to show Pat and Oklahoma State's growing football tradition."

In case you missed it, the Heisman Trophy race is no longer a two-man race between the Hollywood hotshots. Barry Sanders, all 5-foot-8 and 197 pounds of him, has galloped off the Oklahoma prairie squarely into the Heisman picture.

You can almost detect the note of sadness in the voice of UCLA SID Marc Dellins when he says, "We've certainly been watching Barry Sanders' statistics the last few weeks."

Despite some early heroics by Sanders, who rushed for 304 yards against Tulsa in the third game of the season, Dellins and Tim Tessalone, his USC counterpart, monopolized most of the September-October publicity.

Sanders rushed for 320 yards against Kansas State on Oct. 29, the first player in history to have two 300-yard games in a career, much less the same season. Last week, he tacked on 312 against Kansas, plus five touchdowns, giving him a single-season NCAA record of 31 TDs — he has at least two in every game — and putting him ahead of Allen's 1981 pace when he rushed for a record 2,342 yards (Sanders has 2,003 with two games remaining).

In between Kansas State and Kansas, Sanders rushed for 215 hard-earned yards against Oklahoma, perhaps his most impressive game of the season and the one that really thrust him into national prominence. Through nine games, Sanders is averaging 222.5 yards; Allen averaged 212.9 in his Heisman Trophy season of 1981.

Since the Downtown Athletic Club of New York, which sponsors the Heisman, brings several players into town for the presentation, Aikman and Peete are almost certain to be in the Big Apple on Dec. 3. They may be there to bid sayonara to the Heisman.

Sanders will be in Tokyo, where Oklahoma State winds up the regular season against Texas Tech in the Coca-Cola Bowl, a game which originally was scheduled for Sept. 17 but was moved before Sanders started running wild.

"It's a delightful public relations problem," said Bill Esposito, the DAC's media liaison.

It's not so delightful for CBS-TV, which will televise the Heisman announcement from 5:30-6 p.m., EST, following the Army-Navy game.

"We've set up a contingency plan that we will bring him live via satellite out of Tokyo for the show," CBS spokesman Mark Carlson said. "We more than likely will take him right from the lobby of his hotel and do the interview the last five minutes of the show."

"We'll bounce it off a satellite, bring it down into New York and hope there are no transmission problems."

Oklahoma State has agreed to make Sanders available during the Heisman telecast, which is 7:30-8 a.m. Sunday in Japan (the Texas Tech game starts at 1 p.m. Sunday Japan time). If he wins, he will have a long-distance conversation with host Jim Nantz.

West Virginia quarterback Major Harris also may be invited to New York. Miami quarterback Steve Walsh also is thought to be a leading candidate, which presents another problem. Miami plays Brigham Young on Dec. 3 and ESPN, which will televise the game, has not yet announced the starting time. It will be either 4:30 or 8 p.m., EST.

The ironic part is that if Sanders wins, he will do it without much TV exposure. Oklahoma State has appeared on ESPN — once.

UNLV should be tops in West

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Nevada-Las Vegas basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian laments that his Runnin' Rebels can hardly be considered a candidate for best of the west, with six new faces among his top eight players.

Big West Conference coaches, ambushed by Tarkanian with frustrating consistency, tell the doleful coach to look elsewhere for sympathy.

As has been the case for most of the 1980s, UNLV is expected to remain the best in the west again this season. Arizona, coming off a Final Four season, is considered most-likely to give UNLV a run for the honor.

Most national pre-season polls predict Tarkanian's Rebels will finish in the top 10, with rankings ranging from No. 4 to No. 9. The same polls post Pac-10 Arizona as the West's other Top 10 contender, with most rankings placing them below the Rebels.

Is Tarkanian's 1988-89 edition that good?

No way, he says.

"Six of our top eight kids are new,"

Tarkanian told writers at the annual Big West Conference media day last week. "I dare any writer to find any school in the last 20 years to be ranked as high as we are with six of their top eight kids being new."

Don't listen to the whining of Tarkanian, argue the coaches and the pundits.

"Just when you think you're starting to close the gap on UNLV, the gap suddenly becomes larger," California-Santa Barbara coach Jerry Pimm told the writers. "Maybe we're all fooling ourselves; maybe catching UNLV is impossible."

Street and Smith's Basketball Yearbook puts it this way:

"Some programs don't rebuild, they reload, right? That being the case, one could say Tarkanian has crates of ammunition at his disposal."

Before sending flowers to the beleaguered Tarkanian, consider this:

— One of the two returning starters is Olympian Stacey Augmon.

— Newcomers David Butler and Moses Scurry were All-Americans last year at Mount San Jacinto Junior College in Pasadena, Texas while forward George Ackles was a pre-season All-American out of Garden City (Kan.) Junior College.

— And newcomer Greg Anthony has been hailed by Tarkanian as the point guard he'd most like to build a new team around.

Big West coaches were nearly unanimous in picking the Rebels to win it all in the conference this year. Only one coach — Tarkanian — picked UNLV to finish second.

Fellow coaches see Utah State finishing second, followed by Santa Barbara, New Mexico State, California-Irvine, Fresno State, San Jose State, Long Beach State, Cal State-Fullerton and Pacific.

Utah State is playing its first year under Kohn Smith, a former assistant to Bobby Knight at Indiana. The Aggies return four starters, but must replace the team's two top scorers from last year, Kevin Nixon and Jeff Anderson.

Coach Lute Olson's Arizona Wildcats are seen as the team most likely to derail the Rebels as the top team in the western states.

The Wildcats produced a Final Four team that finished 35-3 last spring and won the Pac-10 title with a 17-1 record.

Back from that team will be All-American Sean Elliott and All-Pac-10 forward Anthony Cook.

Olson expects another strong team, even though it will be less experienced. The Wildcats are adding muscle inside, thanks to 6-foot-11 redshirt freshmen Mark Georgeson and Sean Rooks.

"The key for us is we're not a team with the experience who can come out of the chute like we did last year," Olson said last month in unveiling his 1988-89 edition.

Olson said his club is probably stronger inside than it was a year ago, and probably about the same on the perimeter.

In the Pac-10, Stanford, Oregon State and UCLA are expected to finish in the top four, followed by California, Washington, Oregon, Washington State, Southern California and Arizona State.

The conference saw a resurgence last season which is expected to continue this year, with the Pac-10 being one of the most competitive conferences in the country.

In the Western Athletic Conference, Colorado State and UTEP are considered the teams most likely to take the conference crown. If Colorado State wins, it will be the first time in the 27-year history of the WAC. The Rams are coming off their best season in the school's history, 22-13, and finished third in the NIT. They have three starters and two top reserves returning.

UTEP has tradition on its side, winning five straight WAC titles before slipping to fourth place last year.

In the West Coast Athletic Conference, Loyola Marymount will be looking for a point guard to run the team as well as Corey Gaines did last season, when the Lions averaged a staggering 110 points per game and swept to a 28-4 mark.

Fundits say the teams to beat for the WCAC crown are St. Mary's and Pepperdine.

Louisville to duke it out with Blue Devils

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Louisville has been to its share of NCAA Tournament Final Fours in the last 10 years, and Duke wants to make the trip more often. Early indications are that both could enhance their record in the 1988-89 season. Coach Denny Crum has led the Cardinals to six Final Four appearances, including four in the 1980s. Four of the starters from last year's team that went 24-11 and reached the final 16 are ready to make a run at Seattle.

"There wasn't any area we didn't make progress in last season," Crum said. "... I see no reason why we can't be better, despite our personnel losses. I think we can be a real outstanding team."

Mike Krzyzewski's first Final Four trip with the Blue Devils was in 1986.

After reaching the final 16 in 1987, Duke went to Kansas City last March and lost to eventual national champion Kansas. Three returning starters, some key reserves and a top-flight freshman put a third trip within reach.

"I just think we need to go about business the right way, have fun with what we're doing, experiment, and somewhere around the end of February, first of March, hopefully all the decisions we made ... will be good ones and we'll be healthy," Krzyzewski said.

Those two teams won't be alone in the quest to go west to Seattle. North Carolina has its starting five back from last year to battle Duke for Atlantic Coast Conference supremacy. Florida State has five starters back and should be a significant threat to Louisville in the Metro Conference.

Instead of Kentucky, Florida and Georgia are the picks in the Southeastern Conference. North Carolina-Charlotte has that city's new 23,500-seat coliseum in which to defend its Sun Belt title.

The Blue Devils return senior forward Danny Ferry and junior forward Robert Bricey. Senior guard Quin Snyder will direct the attack, but Krzyzewski says the underclassmen have to be ready to take command as well and everybody will have to pick up on defense.

The best of Duke's three newcomers is 6-foot-10 Christian Laettner, who, like Ferry, can score from anywhere.

"Christian Laettner looks like ... a youngster who can help us a little bit more than the other two at the beginning," Krzyzewski said. "He is more versatile. He can play inside ... he can go outside a little bit."

North Carolina starts without junior J.R. Reid, who underwent surgery in late October to repair a stress fracture in his left foot and who likely won't play until January. Coach Dean Smith has a stronger Scott Williams to help inside, and senior guard Jeff Lebo to direct a newly adopted up-tempo style.

Georgia Tech raised hopes by recruiting three junior college players who will allow 6-9 Tom Hammonds to play power forward instead of switching between forward and center as he did last season.

North Carolina State lost center Charles Shackleford to the NBA and, despite experience at the other four positions, the Wolfpack may have to rotate three players to duplicate Shackleford's production.

Louisville returns 6-9 senior Pervis Ellison, the cornerstone of the 1986 national championship team. Seven-foot center Felton Spencer is considered improved from last season, when he produced seven points and four rebounds a game as a reserve.

Guards LaBradford Smith, Craig Hawley and Keith Williams have the necessary experience.

"We will have to stay injury free," Louisville assistant Jerry Jones said.

A close loss to Iowa in the first round of the NCAA Tournament ended a surprisingly successful season for Florida State and coach Pat Kennedy. Forward Tony Dawson and 6-7 point guard George McCloud will try to lift the Seminoles above successive 19-11 records.

Florida is without 7-2 Dwayne Schintzius for the start of the year due to disciplinary reasons, but the Gators will have an imposing front line when he rejoins 6-7 Livingston Chatman and 6-7 Dwayne Davis.

Tennessee has five starters back from a Don DeVoe-coached team that managed a 16-13 record. Georgia, picked to win the league, lost Toney Mack to academic troubles and three of its probable starters will be facing major college basketball for the first time this season.

Kentucky's basketball program is under the cloud on an NCAA investigation into numerous alleged infractions, and further dimming hopes for success is the loss of four starters from last season.

North Carolina-Charlotte was a preseason choice to win its second straight Sun Belt title. Three years ago, the 49ers were league doormat, but Jeff Mullins turned the team around and led it to a 22-9 mark last season, the first 20-victory season since 1979.

The backcourt of Phil West and conference most valuable player Byron Dinkins will help chances of repeating, and despite losing Dan Plondke at center, 6-10 sophomore Sam Robson will give Mullins more height in the middle.

Murray State knocked off N.C. State to reach the second round of the NCAA Tournament, and then gave Kansas a scare before losing. Four starters are back as the Racers defend their Ohio Valley Conference title, but losing their experienced centers could open the way for Middle Tennessee.

East Tennessee State and Tennessee-Chattanooga are the top choices in the Southern Conference. Louisiana Tech brings back all-conference center Randy White and three other experienced players from its American South title team of last year.

North Carolina A&T's domination of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference — seven straight titles — could end this season as South Carolina State surges. Campbell and the rest of the Big South Conference must wait until 1992 before the NCAA grants the league an automatic tournament bid, but the Camels have four returning starters among 10 lettermen who should help them win the title.

Sooners top slim Midwest

By OWEN CANFIELD
AP Sports Writer

Last season, the Kansas Jayhawks won the national title despite 11 losses, more than any champion in NCAA history. This year, they won't win it even if they go undefeated.

The reason is as simple as NCAA — the Jayhawks are on probation for the next three years due to recruiting violations.

The penalty bars the Jayhawks from post-season play this year, while also stripping them of one scholarship in 1989 and disallowing paid campus recruiting visits during that period.

"We're facing an uphill fight, but we did last year, too," said Kansas guard Scooter Berry. "We still have goals, and Coach Williams has shown us he's not the kind of guy who will give up."

That's Ray Williams, a former assistant at North Carolina who was named coach after Larry Brown left for the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA.

Not only will Williams have to carry the burden of probation in his first year, he'll have to do it without 1987 player of the year Danny Manning, the first player picked in the NBA draft.

"I've looked for him. I've even called out his name," said Williams. "But I'm afraid he's never coming back."

Neither are four other first-round picks from the Big Eight Conference, which placed three teams among the final eight in 1987 and saw two of its own — Kansas and Oklahoma — play in the championship game. Derrick Chievous of Missouri, Mitch Richmond of Kansas State, Jeff Grayer of Iowa State and Harvey Grant of Oklahoma have taken their talents to the pros.

IMPATIENT ROOKIE

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — His first training camp is always a tough time for a pro football rookie, as noted by wide receiver Brett Perriman, a No. 2 draft selection by the New Orleans Saints.

Looking back at training camp in July and August, Perriman, who played his college football at Miami, said what he remembered most was feeling impatient.

MIKE'S ROUTINE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike Webster, a long-time stalwart at center for the Pittsburgh Steelers, is 36 and probably won't play too many more seasons. But in training camp during the summer, he acted like a rookie trying to make the team.

His daily routine: Up at dawn, then breakfast, almost an hour lifting weights, followed by two hours of practice with the team. Then a half hour of weights again and lunch. Two hours of afternoon practice and weights for the third time that day. Dinner and a team meeting. At 10:30 lights out.

The league hasn't been stripped clean, though. Stacey King of Oklahoma, for example, is considered one of the premier centers in the nation and is a big reason the Sooners again have their sights on the Final Four.

"We got a taste of the honey, but we didn't get the whole ball of wax," says the 6-foot-10 King, who averaged 22 points and eight rebounds per game as Oklahoma went 35-4. "We're strictly business now. We've got some unfinished business."

The Sooners also have a terrific guard in senior Mookie Blaylock, who led the nation in steals with 150 and averaged six assists per game.

The only starter missing from Missouri's lineup is Chievous, but the biggest impact player could be freshman Anthony Peeler, a 6-4 guard from Kansas City, Mo., who is considered one of the top newcomers in the nation.

A top newcomer in the Big Eight a year ago was freshman forward Richard Dumas of Oklahoma State. This year he's the only returning starter, but the Cowboys have several young newcomers with talent, including 6-10 Thomas Jordan and 7-foot Johnny Pittman.

In the Big Ten, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa are favorites for the league title and would surprise no one by going a long way at tournament time.

Illinois, 23-10 last year, has no player taller than 6-8. But 6-5 Nick Anderson and 6-6 Kenny Battle make up a powerful frontcourt, and the Illini are hoping for big things from 6-8 Marcus Liberty, a Proposition 48 casualty last year.

At Michigan, Bill Frieder is worried about who will take over for four-year starter Gary Grant at point guard. It's a valid concern, although junior Rumeal Robinson is a great talent. In the front court, forwards Glen Rice and Terry Mills can hold their own with anyone.

Iowa has three starters back, and they're all dandies — guard B.J. Armstrong, forward Roy Marble and center Ed Horton.

Defending champion Purdue, which reached the final eight of the NCAA tournament last year, was hard hit by graduation. Indiana is without four starters from a year ago, and freshman standout Jay Edwards dropped out of school in September to enter a chemical dependency program.

Bradley of the Missouri Valley Conference not only lost Hersey Hawkins, who led the nation with a 36-point average, but also two other starters. So Stan Albeck's team isn't expected to win the regular-season title as it did last year.

Instead, the favorite's tag goes to Wichita State, which went 20-10 last season. The Shockers return seven of their top eight players including 6-10 center Sasha Radunovich, who led the team in scoring and rebounding.

Wacker going whacko over job rumors

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Jim Wacker wants to board up the rumor mill. No, he isn't quitting as the Texas Christian head football coach. Period. No ifs, ands, or maybes.

There has been tailgate party talk at Amon Carter Stadium that Wacker would take a half payout on the rest of his contract, which lasts until 1991, and return to Southwest Texas State University, where he won two NCAA Division II national championships.

The rumor mill ground out the toll that Wacker would replace retiring athletic director Bill Miller and football coach John O'Hara. It would cost somebody, either SWTSU or dissident TCU alumni, an estimated $300,000 to swing the deal.

Once done, the TCU revolutionaries would summon Curly Halman from Southern Mississippi to take control of the Horned Frogs' sagging football fortunes.

Wacker quickly scotches this gossipy scenario.

You ask Wacker how he is doing and he quips "I bet you are doing a lot better than I am the last two weeks."

The Frogs have lost heartbreakers to Texas Tech and Texas as their season unraveled. It's a season in which TCU is expected to do big things with 32 seniors.

The Frogs will have a losing season no matter what happens against Texas A&M on Saturday.

Wacker deals head-on with the rumors.

"There ain't no way I'd go back to Southwest Texas," Wacker said. "I hope I got three more years to go here. I hope to be here a long, long time."

Wacker continued "I didn't even know Bill Miller was retiring and the last thing I need is to be athletic director. I'm into coaching stuff and I sure want to put that rumor to rest."

Wacker's critics charge he hasn't been much of a coach since he took TCU to the Bluebonnet Bowl in 1984.

They claim his small college coaching techniques don't carry over to major college football. They give him an "A" for recruiting and a "D-minus" for X's and O's on the chalkboard.

They claim he's too disorganized on the sidelines to keep into the flow of the game.

They say his emotion-charged speeches have lost their meaning to players who have heard the same pep talks time after time.

Wacker says what has happened at TCU is that the school is still over-comeing what he calls "the devastation of 1985."

The NCAA hit the Horned Frogs with severe penalties after seven players admitted there was an alumni slush fund which issued a regular payroll.

response from our recruits this year. Not a lot of people in the league are knocking 'em dead right now."

Then Wacker says: "It will still be special when it (TCU getting to the Cotton Bowl) happens. I'll guarantee you nobody will be able say it was easy."

Wacker loses two senior quarterbacks and is looking for a strong-armed passer on his recruiting rounds.

"Finding a quarterback is critical," Wacker says. "We need to find one who can throw as well as run. We need to do better job in the passing game."

Wacker says he doesn't listen for ticking packages when he opens the mail.

"I have a lot more favorable mail," he says. "You can count the number of negative responses on less than one hand. Our fans are the greatest in the whole world. They aren't spoiled."

Wacker says he can understand the alumni being somewhat disgruntled. Wacker's teams in five years are 2-15 in November.

"I'd be upset if they were not not disappointed," Wacker says. "I think they understand some of the difficulties we've been through."

"We're making progress and we will do it right. Our kids are going to class and will get their degrees. I'm dang proud."

Then there's the rumor that a strong Wacker-backer has left $25 million in her will for TCU if they leave Wacker alone through 1991. ...

Enough. Wacker has shut down the rumor mill.

Single fears college football won't learn

DALLAS (AP) — Athletic director Doug Single, presiding over the death penalty recovery room at Southern Methodist University, thinks bigtime college athletics learned next to nothing from the sanctions his school endured.

"I still think the business is getting more and more out of hand," Single said. "I have overt concern for the business. The pressures are more and more paramount. Drug use. Recruiting infractions. It's pervasive."

"The business has got to start cleaning up. That's important. If not, Congress will step in with tough legislation or you'll see a massive federation of fed up schools realigning with others."

The bottom line was that the death penalty forced Gieber to make a choice. "I was forced to give up something I loved," he said. "SMU or football."

That's what's wrong with the sanctions. It punishes the innocent like Gieber. It leaves people like Single to clean up the mess made by others.

"It might be the best thing to happen to the program," Single said. "SMU has a unique chance to reshape the environment, an opportunity to show we can come out of this and run a clean program and be competitive. That's the only thing that will save us."

But no matter how hard Single scrubs to keep SMU squeaky clean, the mess continues elsewhere.

Within the last month, Kansas' basketball and Arizona State's track and field programs have been placed on probation, both barely escaping the death penalty that accompanies two major infractions in five years, the sentence that shut down SMU football for two seasons.

Single thinks a program would have to virtually commit murder before the NCAA comes down on it the way it did on the Mustangs.

Meanwhile, the big sports news on the campus last weekend was SMU's victory over Notre Dame.

In soccer.

The first federal highway ran for 600 miles between Maryland and Illinois.

One of the fed-ups would be SMU, starting over after two years without football at a school that produced players like Doak Walker, Kyle Rote, Don Meredith and, more recently Eric Dickerson and Craig James.

It won't be a tentative, toe-testing-the-waters start, either. SMU is plunging right back into the Southwest Conference next season, playing a full schedule, including a date with Notre Dame, under new Coach Forrest Gregg, a Hall of Fame product of the program.

The football team will have scholarship athletes, not nearly as many as the competition because of the sanctions, but an interesting cross section of players who bought the idea of using their freshman year as a group redshirt season, something that would have happened to most of them at high-powered programs anyway.

Fourteen came in this fall, despite the penalty-imposed limitation that prevented the university from paying for campus visits. SMU can add 25 scholarship athletes in 1989-90 but must cull them from a sanction limit of 45 campus visits, not the 95 that others get.

"It's a unique challenge for a student-athlete," Single said. "It's an opportunity to play for a school that is rich in tradition, for a top flight coach, with a lot of exposure. You'll take your lumps, but by the time you're a junior or senior, you'll have something special."

Mitch Gieber figured he already had something special. Gieber was a recruited wide receiver on the last SMU team. When the death penalty hit, others left. He stayed.

"Staying wasn't an easy decision by any means," Gieber said. "Analyzing my situation, I came here to get a degree. I love this school. It wasn't in my mind to go somewhere else and start over from scratch."

Gieber holds no bitterness against the players who took things that shouldn't have been offered, putting SMU in this fix.

"If I was a kid who grew up in poverty and had that stuff flashed in front of me ... I can't fault them. I can see what they did."

On the House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — We are thinking of buying a house. We are trying to decide between a 1½-story house and what is called a raised ranch. Can you tell us something about them?

A. — By a 1½-story, you are presumably referring to a house which has an attic, finished or otherwise. That kind of house permits the master bedroom to be on the first floor and the children's bedrooms on the second. A house of that style provides extra storage space on the second floor under the eaves. The upstairs floor has knee walls and sloping ceilings. Some of its advantages are concerned with the size of the lot it can be built on, but your letter indicates you may be getting ready to buy an existing house rather than having one constructed.

A raised ranch blends with different styles of houses, but must be designed carefully to avoid an awkward appearance. It can be built on flat land or a sloping lot. It utilizes what ordinarily might be the basement. It usually has more livable space for the money than a regular ranch, but is a bit more difficult to maintain. Try to base your final decision on other factors than styling, including location, availability of shopping, houses of worship, schools, recreational facilities and so on. Of those, the most important is location.

Q. — We have a stucco house we have decided to paint. Can stucco be painted successfully?

A. — Yes. Just be sure to use a paint that will adhere to stucco. Ask your dealer for a latex paint that is formulated for use on stucco. He will have several different types.

Farm and Ranch

Farmers should determine future plans

FSA plan discussed

Deaf Smith County farmers should plan now to develop a conservation system on highly erodible land. Harvey Branniman, left, observes as Pat Reilly, range conservationist with the Hereford Soil Conservation Service, outlines a plan in accordance with the Food Security Act of 1985. Deadline for developing these plans is Jan. 1, 1990. Failure to comply may cause the farmer to lose benefits from the USDA program.

Deaf Smith County farmers should plan for the 1990 deadline for developing a conservation system on highly erodible land, said a spokesman from the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District.

The Food Security Act of 1985 (FSA) requires that producers must, by Jan. 1, 1990, be actively applying a conservation plan on highly erodible cropland or else become ineligible for certain farm program benefits.

Erosion in 90 percent of the highly erodible fields in Deaf Smith County can be controlled by management practices such as conservation cropping systems. These systems involve a rotation of high residue producing crops, such as wheat, with low residue producing crops such as cotton.

In this county, such a plan involves growing wheat on one-third of the highly erodible field each year or on the entire field one out of three years on dryland cropland. On irrigated cropland, wheat must be grown on one-fifth of the highly erodible field each year or on the entire field one out of five years.

A variation of the latter plan would entail growing 20 foot wide strips of wheat or grass at designed intervals in cotton or onions. Grasses and legumes are also used in rotation systems to improve the physical condition of the soil. Conservation cropping systems also help control weeds, insects, and diseases.

Fields classified as highly erodible land are determined by their susceptibility to wind and water erosion; it is not a judgment call on productivity.

For assistance in developing an FSA plan in order to remain eligible for USDA payments, contact the Hereford Soil Conservation Service field office at 364-6995.

Wheat growers set meet

The Texas Wheat Producers board will hold a wheat symposium in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Texas Wheat Producers Association on Dec. 1 at the Amarillo Civic Center.

The meeting is being held in conjunction with the Amarillo Farm and Ranch Show.

Mike Moeller, the state's deputy agriculture commissioner, will open the session at 9:30 a.m. Moeller will give an overview of problems the 1989 session of the Texas Legislature will face. Moeller will address water, pesticide and workman's compensation problems and rural development.

Dr. Bill Tierney of Kansas State University will focus on changing supply and demand situations for wheat farmers and discuss marketing alternatives.

Skimpy soybean harvest hurts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The skimpy U.S. soybean harvest this year not only has helped boost prices for American farmers but it has helped trigger rapid expansion among foreign oilseed competitors, says the Agriculture Department.

Drought left soybean output at a 12-year low of 1.5 billion bushels, down 21 percent from the 1987 harvest, with Corn Belt producers suffering the brunt of the yield losses.

The USDA says soybean prices could average $6.75 to $8.75 per bushel in the marketing year that began on Sept. 1, compared with $6.15 last season and $4.78 in 1986-87.

Meanwhile, the department's Economic Research Service is also keeping an eye on oilseed developments overseas, particularly in Argentina and Brazil, where planting for next year's harvest began in September and will continue through next month.

"Total Argentine oilseed area is expected to jump 16 percent to just under 9 million hectares, of which 7.7 million hectares are soybean and sunflower seed," the agency said in a recent outlook report.

For the first time, the report added, Argentina's planted area of oilseeds is expected to exceed its grain area. A hectare — the metric unit — is equal to about 2.47 acres.

In Brazil, soybean plantings are forecast to expand more than 9 percent to 11.5 million hectares.

The expansion in South America, which could be even greater if world soybean prices edge higher, comes on the heels of record soybean harvests this year in both Argentina and Brazil.

As a result of the larger yield of soybeans and a reduced amount used for crushing, or processing, into oil and meal, both countries have ample supplies available for export in 1988-89, the report said.

Together, Argentina and Brazil could export around 7 million metric tons of soybeans and 15 million tons of soybean meal in the coming year, up 48 percent and 32 percent, respectively, from 1987-88.

One metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of soybeans.

The United States remains far in front as the world's leading producer of soybeans, but the reduced 1988 harvest and short supplies have given other producers a big step up into the global market.

Scott, Young wed Saturday in Dallas

Marriage vows uniting Karen Gail Scott of Dallas and Dr. Scott MacGregor Young of Los Angeles were said Saturday afternoon in Highland Park United Methodist Church in Dallas. Rev. Bill B. Smith, minister to singles of the church, and Dr. Stephen M. Johnson, associate pastor of Northwest Bible Church in Dallas, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Scott of 236 Centre, Hereford, and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gail M. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Donovan, all of Wray, Colo.; and the late Mr. and Mrs. Herman John Scott of Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada.

Dr. Young is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Norman Young of Hinsdale, Ill. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hecker of Boca Raton, Fla. and the late Dr. and Mrs. Alexander James Young of Omaha, Neb.

The church sanctuary had two candelabra at the altar which were flanked by two large floral arrangements of eucalyptus, lilies, lilies, stock and hybrid delphinium with seasonal beauty berries. Scottish heather accented both bouquets.

The bride's sister, Judith Solomon of Gruver, served as matron of honor. Best man was Dr. Norman Young of Reno, Nev., brother of the bridegroom.

Maid of honor was Barbara Scott of Lubbock, sister of the bride. Cynthia Young of Phoenix, Ariz., sister of the groom, was a bridesmaid.

Groomsmen were James Cleworth of Fort Worth and Brad Gurney of Dallas. Ushers included Craig Solomon of Gruver, Brian Berry and Stewart Smith of Dallas, and Cesar Garza of Plano.

Flower girls were Bethany Brooke Solomon and Bonnie Nadyne Young, nieces of the bride and groom, respectively. They carried baskets filled with rose petals and decorated with pastel pink ribbons and flowers.

Candle lighters were Seth Ryan Solomon and Zachary Norman Young, nephews of the bride and groom, respectively.

Special selections included in the prelude were "We Gather Together", a Thanksgiving song of harvest by Kremser, which honored the couple's parents and grandparents. "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by J.S. Bach was chosen to honor the couple's mothers. Other prelude selections included musical pieces by William Walond, Karg-Elert, R.V. Williams, and other works by Bach.

Organist was Philip E. Baker and pianist was Sue Farrar, who composed and sang "Love God" from the musical "Ruth" which she authored. Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary" heralded the procession of the clergy and attendants while the "Austrian National Hymn" by Hayden proclaimed the bride's arrival. "Praise to the Lord" was sung and Mrs.

Cesar Garza read selected passages from Psalm 37. A Gaelic melody, "Be Thou My Vision" was sung by Scott Bardin.

Following the recessional of "Toccata from the Fifth Symphony", pealing of the Porter Memorial Carillon was featured.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown as did her sister, Mrs. Craig Solomon, when she married. It featured imported Chantilly lace and pleated tulle over lustrous satin. The pleated tulle skirt fell to the floor and was complemented by a tunic overskirt of lace cascading into a cathedral-length train. The figure-molded bodice of lace over shimmering satin had long-fitted sleeves which came to points over the bride's wrists. The off-the-shoulder neckline of soft lace folds were daintily etched with seed pearls and sequins.

The bride also wore a beaded and jeweled wreath featuring a spray of pearls and leaves on either side. Tufts of tulle finished the back of the headpiece and a bordered circular veil of the same illusion dropped to the waist.

The bride carried a loose-stemmed bouquet consisting of calla lilies, gardenias, bridal white roses, pearl stephanotis and matching satin ribbon.

Her jewelry consisted of a pearl necklace and matching earrings belonging to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Roy Donovan.

Bridal attendants were attired in ballet-length princess silhouette styled dresses. Each was styled with a burgundy velvet fitted bodice and the skirt and double puffed sleeves were of burgundy moire taffeta. The back of the dress formed a V-shape and the waist was marked by a velvet bow. Their loosely-tied bouquets consisted of eucalyptus, lilies, white and pink roses accented with pink pastel ribbon.

The flower girls wore wreaths of bridal roses in their hair and were dressed similarly to the bridesmaids in dresses of burgundy moire taffeta accented with velvet bows.

A reception followed in the Great Hall of the church as Michele Scott, sister of the bride, and Mrs. George Virgos of Los Angeles, Calif. presided at the registry. Serving cake from the bride's table were Marj Adams, Cindy Carlisle, and Brenda Bailey while Debbie Berry, Margie McGee, Margaret Howard and Mrs. Brad Gurney served at the groom's table. Punch and coffee were poured by Mrs. Robert Admire of Denton and Mrs. Robert Ochterbeck of Houston.

Others assisting included Carol Matthews, Ruth Crosby, Renee Conyers, and Mrs. Jeff Havlock.

The bride's cake, an ivory creation 37 inches tall, was of a citrus flavor with apricot filling. It was trimmed with touches of pink and burgundy and featured flowers of ivory. A cross with double wedding rings centered the cake as did two doves.

MRS. SCOTT YOUNG
...nee Karen Scott

The cross was borrowed from Mr. and Mrs. Cesar Garza, who featured it at their wedding. Beef sandwiches, ham balls, crab Marilyn, relish, and fruit and cheese trays were also served.

The groom's cake, a concoction of amaretto mocha flavor, was monogrammed with the couple's initials at the top. Sue Farrar and Miss Nancy Cook played the piano and stringed bass, respectively, during the reception.

The bride wore a traveling costume of a blue silk dress featuring black polka dots and was accented in the front by a large black silk bow as the couple embarked on a wedding trip to Hawaii. They will be at home after Nov. 27 at 1232 Brockton Ave., Apt. No. 4, Los Angeles, Calif., 90025.

The bride is a graduate of Hereford High School and Texas Christian University Harris College of Nursing. She has worked at St. Paul Medical Center as a registered nurse and is a member of the American Society of Post Anesthesia Nurses.

The groom is a graduate of Dartmouth and UCLA Medical School. He completed his medical residency at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School and is currently a Renal Fellow in the UCLA transplant program.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Donovan of Wray, Colo., were special guests as was Mrs. Lois Nicholson of Loveland, Colo., the bride's great-aunt. Hereford residents attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ottesen and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Solomon.

Other out-of-town guests represented the Texas cities of Hawkins, Houston, and McAllen; also, Overland Park, Kan.; Kennard, Neb.; Hinsdale, Ill.; and San Diego, Calif.

Chamber Singers to give concert Dec. 4

"A Choral Fanfare for Christmas" will be presented by the Hereford Chamber Singers at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, in the Hereford High School auditorium.

All members of the community are encouraged to come to this Christmas musical where there will be no charge for admission but donations will be accepted to defray expenses of the concert.

The concert will feature the choir in both sacred and secular favorites, including "The Many Moods of Christmas" by Robert Shaw; Anita Kerr's "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree"; "Wexford Carol" by Catherine Bennett; and "Merry Christmas With Love," by Linda Spevacek. Bill Devers directs the group which is entering its 15th year of spreading its motto, "Human Relations Through Music." Elva Devers is the piano accompanist and will be joined by Jan Metcalf on the clavichord for this concert.

A special number for this concert will be Marvin Curtis' "Ring out Those Bells" sung by the Singers and accompanied by the Ladies Handbell Choir from the First Baptist church directed by Archie Coplen. The handbell choir will also be ringing a selection of their own.

In addition to the choral numbers for the concert, Jan Walser and Linda Gilbert will be featured in a piano duet, and the ladies' sextet, "Gentle Touch," will also perform a selection.

The Chamber Singers began a new season this fall with 45 members and a new president, Dr. Trow Mirra. Other members of the board of directors are Bobby Boyd, secretary; Terri Laing, treasurer; Ann Meyers, Rose Ann Smith, Sandi Eblevins, and Bill Devers. Elva Devers and Susan Shaw are co-chairpersons for this Christmas concert.

In June of 1988, the group performed at World Expo 88 in Brisbane, Australia, and received accolades for their musical performance as well as for their friendliness and amiability.

Recently, the choir provided entertainment for the District II meeting of the Texas Library Association held at the Deaf Smith County Library and at a special family dinner which featured a meal of Korean food at the First United Methodist Church.

Guest for the day was Andrea Hooten.

Due to the holidays, there will be no meeting of the Toastmasters Nov. 24 or Dec. 1. The next meeting will be held Dec. 8 at the Ranch House Cafe at 6 a.m. and will feature election of new officers. An evening meeting is set for Tuesday, Dec. 13 as officers for 1989 will be installed by guest dignitaries from Amarillo.

Accent on Health

Prepare Holiday Turkey Properly

Improper thawing of a turkey, and mishandling of leftovers, are the two most common mistakes holiday cooks make during Thanksgiving and Christmas. That is the opinion of Lenwood Scholtz, Assistant Director of the Texas Department of Health's Food and Drugs Division.

"A turkey should be thawed in the refrigerator, or under cold, running water (at 70 degrees or below)," Scholtz said. "Many people make the mistake of thawing the turkey at room temperature, allowing the surface to stay warm before the rest of the turkey can thaw. That creates conditions where bacteria can reproduce and cause food poisoning."

Scholtz said thawing in a microwave oven is only safe when the food will be immediately cooked. When thawed, the turkey should be thoroughly rinsed and dried, inside and out. If you plan to keep the leftovers, cut the meat off the bone and refrigerate it. A safe rule of thumb is to freeze any portions you want to keep beyond two days of refrigeration Scholtz advised.

The following suggestions in preparing and serving holiday turkey can help ensure against salmonella poisoning, perhaps the most common form of food poisoning in the home.

-Prepare the stuffing immediately before cooking. You may wish to mix the dry ingredients in advance, but eggs, oysters, butter, or other moist ingredients should be added at cooking time.

-Cook the stuffing separately. Cooking the stuffing in the turkey cavity may result in its not being fully cooked in the center.

-When fully cooked, the dense portions of the meat, such as the thighs, should have reached at least 180 degrees Fahrenheit, measured with a meat thermometer.

-Never leave the turkey, the stuffing, or gravy unrefrigerated for more than two hours.

-If you are using a microwave oven, rotate the turkey to ensure uniform cooking.

-Be certain to wash your hands, cooking surfaces, utensils, and all foods thoroughly.

Freeze syrup from canned fruit to make a sauce for gingerbread, coffee cake or nut bread.

Between the Covers

Debbie: My Life by Debbie Reynolds is at the top of the new book list this week. This is the personal story of a young kid with personality, and guts.

Debbie came from a Texas and California background that was more impoverished than affluent. She was a very active Girl Scout, winning the Girl Scout cookie-sales championship in Burbank at the age of 13. At 16 years of age Debbie enters a beauty contest in hopes of winning a free scarf and blouse, and comes away with the title Miss Burbank and a Warner Brothers screen test.

Mary Frances Reynolds soon becomes Debbie Reynolds. This is also a story of a survivor who has continued to forge a career in nightclubs, television and theater when the movie offers seemed to end. When the envied marriage to Eddie Fisher ended with a scandalous love affair with Elizabeth Taylor, Debbie continued on and today is happily married to Richard Hamlett, a successful real-estate developer.

Debbie: My Story is a vivid remembrance of the Golden Age of Hollywood and of the devastating price of success. This book will touch everyone who has ever been moved by a performance by this courageous, and loving lady.

Tex! the Man Who Built the Dallas Cowboys by Bob St. John is the biography of Tex Schramm. As head of the powerful NFL Competition Committee, Tex was the driving force behind the new rules that have put more excitement and scoring into the game. The implementation of the computer, instant replay in the NFL and cheerleaders were brought about because of Tex.

Laying the groundwork for the merger of the American and National Football Leagues, in which St. John takes the reader behind the scenes, is also attributed to Tex Schramm. Tex first came to the NFL in 1947 as publicity agent for the Los Angeles Rams and later began the struggle to make the Cowboys a viable franchise.

In 1960 Tex set up the Cowboy headquarters in a single rented room of the Automobile Club Building in Dallas, and from there turned this local team into a "media star" that's become popular in every part of the country. Some behind-the-scenes stories are also revealed in this book such as: some Cowboys better known for their off-the-field activities like Pete Gene and Lance Rentzel; what newspapers didn't tell about the financial woes of Tony Dorsett, or the signing of Herschel Walker; what Tex really thinks of Coach Tom Landry and quarterbacks Don Meredith, Craig Morton and Roger Staubach. I hope he can continue to help the Cowboys; they seem to need it more now than in the past.

Leaves of Fortune a novel by Linda Barlow is the story behind the Templeton Tea Company legacy. The cast of characters include: Helen Templeton, visionary founder of the Templeton Tea Company; Delilah Templeton Scofield, smart, sexy, head-strong, determined to put her own mark on the family dynasty.

In 1986 Minerva Templeton must surrender the empire to one of her heirs, and the most beloved headstrong granddaughter Delilah seems to be the likely candidate. Delilah had moved to California, married, and founded her own successful herbal tea company, but now at the untimely death of her husband and grandmother's decision to retire, she returns to make peace with the family and claim her place as head of Templeton Tea.

Other titles of interest are: Fade by Robert Cormier, the author of the Chocolate War; Elvis and the Colonel by Dirk Vellenger; and Spirit of Christmas put out by Leisure Arts Magazine.

The library will be closed November 24, 25, and 26 for the Thanksgiving holidays. Have a safe and happy holiday and we will see you again Monday, November 28.

The French explorer La Salle was murdered in 1687 by mutineers in what is now Texas.

The opera "Faust" by Charles Gounod was first performed in Paris in 1859.

Nuptials said by Fortenberry, Baker

Former Walcott resident Heather Fortenberry of Canyon became the bride of William K. Baker, Jr., of Canyon on Aug. 20 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Canyon. Pastor Ken Burkhard officiated.

Parents of the bride are Donald and Ann Fortenberry of Friona. Baker is the son of William and Patricia Baker of Rockwell.

Honor attendant was Juanita Fortenberry, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an off-white evening formal edged in crocheted lace and carried a bouquet of seasonal flowers. A hat trimmed with a bow completed her ensemble.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at Steak and Ale Restaurant in Amarillo. The bride's cake was ivory in color with small lavender pansies trimming it.

The couple is at home in Canyon. The bride graduated from Friona High School in 1982 and graduated from West Texas State University in 1988. She is currently employed at Horace Mann Middle School.

The bridegroom attended Allen Military Academy and is a candidate for graduation from WTSU where he is majoring in wildlife biology.

Out-of-town guests included Rusty Campbell, Lynne Turley, Rusty Turley, and Mila Burkhard.

Dr. McElroy gives program Thursday

Los Ciboleros Chapter, DAR, met in the Community center lounge Thursday afternoon with Margaret Bell and Margaret Ann Durham serving as hostesses.

Regent Violet Reinauer conducted the opening ritual with the assistance of chaplain, Lois Gililand. Helen Rose led the pledge of allegiance to the flag, followed by singing the national anthem by the assembled group. The membership recited the preamble of the Constitution led by Rose and read the American's Creed in unison led by Charlotte Clark.

Rose gave the national defense program, choosing the good in public service. She used the illustration of Margaret Thatcher, Prime Minister of Great Britain, who has demonstrated the standards desired in all public and elected officers for outstanding moral values.

Clark read the President General's Thanksgiving message. Kathryn Ruga introduced guest speaker, Rev. Steve McElroy Minister of First United Methodist Church.

Rev. McElroy spoke on the theme of Thanksgiving using Psalms 136 as his scripture reference. Rev. McElroy concluded his program by challenging all to be thankful for our lives and those around us—the important thing to each individual, and especially to be thankful for our heritage as Americans.

Minutes of the October meeting were read and approved as read. The treasurer's report was given and filed for record. Several committee reports were noted: Patricia Robinson gave the Registrar's report; Lois Gililand presented report on illness within the membership; Rose reported on the progress of the American History Essay contest; and Wanda Jones requested the assistance of the membership with survey on the motion picture, radio and television programs.

Nomination committee were elected members named to this committee: Juanita Brown, Ruth Fish, Mildred Drake, Argen Draper, and Clark. This committee will present slate of officers at the January 1989 business meeting.

Members present were Ruth Newsom, Rose, Gililand, Robinson, Drake, Jones, Fish, Brown, Bell, Ruga, Durham, Reinauer, and Clark.

Herman Wouk's war novel "The Caine Mutiny" was first published in 1951.

Whitton likes role in 'Fine Romance'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You might get the idea that Margaret Whitton's new series for ABC, "A Fine Romance," is a travelogue with gags.

Whitton and Anthony Andrews star in this lighthearted adventure as a battling divorced couple who find themselves paired up as hosts of a television travel show.

The one-hour show is filmed on location in Europe — London one week, then off to Paris, Rome, Greece and other romantic places. It's all picturesque background for Whitton and Andrews to get into mischief and swap roundhouse punches and makeup kisses.

"We filmed the pilot in Italy, in Rome and Florence and Pisa," Whitton says. "We'll be filming all over the continent."

"A Fine Romance" will be one of the last ABC fall series to reach the home screen. Like all the series, it was delayed by the writers' strike, and its European locale adds further delays.

In addition to the TV series, Whitton, a rabid New York Yankees fan, went to Milwaukee for "Major League," a theatrical film about baseball with Charlie Sheen, Tom Berenger and Corbin Bernsen of "L.A. Law."

"I have box seats behind the batting cage for the Yankee games," she says.

Whitton grew up in Philadelphia, where she fell in love with reading at an early age.

"I still love to turn off the phone and curl up with a good book," she says. "I'm not really sure why I turned to acting, even now. I think it's a borrowed imbalance. I can't focus on it. One of my memories as a kid was that I wanted to be a jockey. I wanted to be an Ikette with Tina Turner."

"I wanted to be a journalist at one point. A writer. I was always writing stories as a kid. I think acting was just a way for me to realize all the fantasies in my head. I think of actors essentially as greedy people who want to live a lot of lives. Maybe it's some memory."

She broke into acting on the New York stage, both off and on Broadway. Between roles, she worked as a dog walker. Her first television appearances were on the soap operas, "The Doctors" and "One Life to Live."

"I still consider myself a New York actress," she says. "You can mess it up at the evening show. You can try anything at the matinee. But with film, once it's in the can you can't change it. The soaps subsidized my stage work."

Her first prime-time series was "Hometown," which CBS aired in the 1985-86 season. It was a sort of "thirtysomething" before its time. The pilot script by Julie and Dinah Kirgo had been around for a while, but it wasn't until "The Big Chill" became a hit movie that CBS agreed to put it on the air.

In "The Best of Times," she worked with Robin Williams and Kurt Russell. She played the hooker who parked her trailer on the county line and took credit cards.

She was also in "9½ Weeks," "National Lampoon Goes to the Movies" and "Love Child." She was Michael J. Fox's amorous aunt in "The Secret of My Success." "I seduced him endlessly," she says.

She describes Louise, her role in "A Fine Romance," as a woman "who doesn't have all her sensors on."

"She flies by the seat of her pants and ends up in these situations. Louise is a person to whom things happen. You can go in all directions with her."

"The romance with Anthony will be prickly, just like in real life. He can't resist her. He thinks he wants the staid, stolid English life, but he's attracted to Louise against his will and better judgment. The humor is so off-the-wall I'm surprised ABC went for it."

The pilot for "A Fine Romance" has already been televised on London Weekend Television. There, it's called "A Ticket to Ride," which is the name of the travel show in the series in which Whitton and Andrews are the hosts.

'Gorillas' almost well-rounded

Both Universal Pictures and Warner Bros. had been preparing films based on the life of Dian Fossey, the American woman whose much-acclaimed work among African gorillas ended with her mysterious murder. They averted a collision course by agreeing to co-finance and co-release the $24 million film "Gorillas in the Mist."

The result of this corporate wisdom is now reaching the nation's theaters. "Gorillas in the Mist" is an admirable film, packed with high adventure and gorgeous landscapes and distinguished by a stunning performance by Sigourney Weaver.

Dian Fossey spent nearly 20 years consorting with, writing about and trying to protect the beleaguered mountain gorillas of the Virunga Mountains in Central Africa. Her foes were many: an uncaring government, native poachers, brutal suppliers to zoos, indifferent world opinion. She fought them by any means possible, losing many battles and winning few.

The screenplay is by Anna Hamilton Phelan ("Mask"), based on Fossey's own works, an article by Harold T.P. Hayes and the screen story by Phelan and Tab Murphy.

The complex tale passed through many hands and the results give that indication. Necessarily episodic to encompass so many years, the script makes a sudden, jarring turn late in the film.

"Gorillas in the Mist" begins with Fossey in college, falling under the spell of the great African archeologist, Louis Leakey (Iain Cuthbertson). She volunteers for duty, and he sets her adrift on a project among the African gorillas. She manages to win the respect of native helpers and then, miraculously, the gorillas themselves.

The crusader is joined in Rwanda by an Australian photographer for National Geographic, Bob Campbell (Bryan Brown), and a passionate romance ensues. But her sometimes irrational methods of saving the gorillas puts him off and he leaves. She turns into a ranting zealot and makes a lot of enemies. It is this rather abrupt change of character that prevents "Gorillas in the Mist" from being a well-rounded film.

Weaver delivers a breathtaking performance — sexy, brave, feisty — the stuff of which Academy Awards are made. Her work among the gorillas, apparently involving no doubles for her or the beasts, is spectacular. Bryan Brown is perfect as the decent man who cannot tolerate Fossey's excesses.

'Stealing Home' is mishmash

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

From Elia Kazan's "America, America" to John Boorman's "Hope and Glory," remembrance of childhood has made stirring films. They require selective memory and an artistic soul. Those factors, unfortunately, are missing in "Stealing Home."

Steven Kaupmann and Will Addis, sitcom writers who graduated to such features as "Back to School" and "The Couch Trip," thought it would be a dandy idea to write a movie script based on their experiences of growing up in the 1960s. Not only write it, but direct it. Together.

Despite good performances and one that is exceptional, "Stealing Home" becomes a mishmash, chaotic in structure and full of momentous scenes that don't come off.

The title itself is a misguided attempt at allegory. The biggest moment in Billy Bryant's young life was stealing home during a crucial baseball game, star of the film, Mark Harmon, appears in about a half-hour of footage, the teen-age Billy being played quite effectively by William McNamara.

Jodie Foster has the role of her life, and she plays it brilliantly. She captures the quicksilver qualities of Katie, dominating the screen whenever she appears. Within the constraints of his role, Harmon performs ably, but the reasons for his torment are never made clear.

The Warner Bros. release was produced by Thom Mount and Hank Moonjean. The rating is PG-13 for language and sexual content.

Pecans and Christmas

The ever versatile pecan is often featured in many yuletide sweets. Whether the baked goods are pecan pies or pralines, holiday revelers are sure to enjoy the creation using pecans.

Pecans featured in holiday recipes

Pecans and Christmas—they just seem to go together. Barbecue them, make a batch of pralines or bake them in a pecan pie.

Who can imagine the Christmas season without fruit cakes, cookies, candy and pecans? And who could even think of pecans without thinking of pecan pie...truly a Southwestern tradition.

Following are some holiday recipes that best utilize pecans:

Imperial Pecan Pie

CRUST
1-One-third cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Two-Thirds cup shortening
3 tablespoons water
Mix flour and salt together; add shortening and cut into flour with fork or pastry blender. Add water and mix gently with for in stirring motion. Gather pastry into a ball and place in pie tin. With tips of fingers, spread pastry along bottom and sides of pie tin, shaping a high, fluted edge. Makes one 9" pie shell.

Filling

1 1/2 cups (firmly packed) brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup water
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1 1/2 cup pecan halves
3/4 teaspoon vanilla

Combine first five ingredients in small bowl and mix well. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add evaporated milk and mix well. Stir in pecan halves and vanilla. Mix well and turn into unbaked 9" pie shell. Cook in preheated 400 degrees F. oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees F. and cook an additional 35 to 40 minutes, or until filling is puffed in center and is well browned. Let pie cool before cutting.

Pecan Pralines

Imperial
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 1/2 cups pecan halves

In large (3-quart) heavy saucepan, combine sugar, soda, buttermilk and salt. Cook over high heat about 5 minutes (or to 210 degrees F. on candy thermometer); stir often and scrape bottom of pan. Mixture will foam up. Add butter or margarine and pecans. Over medium heat, continue cooking, stirring constantly and scraping bottom and sides of pan until candy reaches soft ball stage (234 degrees F. on candy thermometer). Remove from heat and cool slightly, about 2 minutes. Beat with spoon until thick and creamy. Drop from tablespoon onto sheet of aluminum foil or waxed paper. Let cool. Makes about 20 pralines, 2" in diameter.

BARBECUED PECANS

1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoon cider vinegar
2 cups pecan halves
1 teaspoon butter or margarine
Seasoned salt
Mix Imperial Granulated Sugar and Vinegar in quart jar; add pecans and shake to thoroughly coat nuts. Place in shallow baking pan and toast at 250 degrees F. stirring frequently, until lightly browned. Add butter or margarine and seasoned salt to taste, about 1/2 teaspoon, and toss to coat nuts. Continue baking until toasted. Cool and store in tight container. Refrigeration keeps them crisp. Yield: 2 cups.

RUBBER DOESN'T ERASE

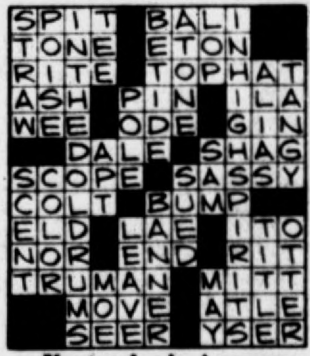

NEW YORK (AP) — Pencil erasers are made from synthetic rubber and pumice, a volcanic glass, plus a soybean-based filler. It's not the rubber that erases errors, as is commonly thought, but pumice that actually scratches out mistakes.

Special thanks to Donnie Tice and her Camp Fire Group for helping clean toys at the Red Cross office.

We are collecting toys at the office and Stevens Chevrolet Company on north Hwy. 385 will also serve as a collection point. We have been working all year, cleaning and repairing toys as they came in to avoid the last minute rush, but there is still a lot to do and any volunteers are welcome to help. Applications for those persons needing toys for their children are being taken at the Red Cross office. We are taking the applications for the Christmas stocking committee at the same time.

Extra special thanks to the United Way volunteers who have worked so hard to raise the funds that all of the United Way Agencies need to do our work. Thanks, also to those that have to answer the hard questions about our agencies.

Our instructor are taking the CPR and First Aid Updates and will be using the new material this next month. Call the Red Cross office to schedule any classes.

Less Fat In

Thanksgiving Turkey

A beautiful golden roasted turkey is the centerpiece for the traditional Thanksgiving turkey. And even if you're counting calories, it's hard to pass up that succulent meat and the gravy that goes with it.

The good news is that turkey itself is low in total fat and in saturated fat, the kind that adds cholesterol in our diets. A 3-ounce serving of roasted dark meat has 175 calories, 7 grams of fat and 2.1 grams of saturated fat. The light meat contains 150 calories, three grams fat and .9 grams saturated fat. So if you're trying to cut calories and saturated fat, eat the white meat.

The most effective means of cutting down excess fat is to remove and discard the turkey skin and any other visible fat.

But what about the gravy? If you plan on having some, try one or more of these methods for reducing the fat content:

-Using a bulb baster, metal skimmer or long-handled spoon, skim fat from the gravy as it cooks.

-Float a paper towel on top of the gravy to absorb fat.

-Allow time to refrigerate the gravy. Then remove the congealed fat from the top.

-If you use canned stock or broth in the gravy, refrigerate the can. When you open it, the fat will be floating on top so you can skim it off.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

IS YOUR OIL LOW?

BRADFORD, Pa. (AP) — As many as half of today's car owners are operating their engines at least one quart low on motor oil.

Part of the reason, say lubricant engineers at Kendall Refining Co., is because new designs in engine technology have contributed to lower oil consumption. After consumers find their new car isn't using as much oil as in years past, they neglect to check the level between scheduled oil changes.

Chef gives turkey tips for dining

NEW YORK (AP) — A plump, juicy, golden-brown turkey is a time-honored tradition on most holiday tables. And so is the annual debate on how to carve the bird!

Chef Lou Buchenot of the Wilkinson Sword Kitchens, who typically serves up to 30 guests at his own holiday celebrations, has the following suggestions:

— First, remove dressing and place turkey on a cutting board. With a small utility knife, cut off the wings and slice through the thigh and drumstick to remove.

— Second, with a carving knife, cut breast meat into 1/4-inch thick slices, starting where the wing was removed. Use a long-flowing motion and hold the blade at a 45-degree angle.

— Third, separate thigh from drumstick. With thigh on a flat surface, cut 3/4-inch slices parallel to the bone. If desired, slice drumstick into serving-size pieces, cutting away from the bone.

— Fourth, arrange turkey attractively on a platter.

Buchenot recommends seasoning the turkey with fresh sage, celery seed, basil, ginger, salt and pepper. Place turkey in a baking pan on a rack and add sliced carrots, celery and turnips underneath.

Breakfast foods healthy, appetizing

When you have overnight guests during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, you might consider preparing special breakfast foods for them. Nothing creates a cozier atmosphere than the aroma of delicious foods.

As the weather is turning cold, a bubbly version of French toast makes for a hearty breakfast for guests. Prepared the night before, it's ready to serve in no time.

BAKED FRENCH TOAST

1 baguette French bread, cut in 1 1/2-inch slices
6 large eggs
1 1/2 c. milk
1 c. light cream or half-and-half
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
1/4 c. butter or margarine, softened
1/2 c. firmly packed light-brown sugar
1/2 c. chopped walnuts
1 tabsp. light corn syrup
Maple syrup

Butter 9-inch square baking pan. Arrange bread slices, overlapping, to fill pan completely. In medium bowl, combine eggs, milk, cream, vanilla, cinnamon and nutmeg; mix well. Pour over bread slices; cover and refrigerate overnight.

Next day; preheat oven to 350 degrees. In small bowl, combine butter, sugar, walnuts and corn syrup; mix well. Evenly spread over bread. Bake 40 minutes or until puffed and golden. Serve with maple syrup. Makes 6-8 servings.

Another breakfast treat which can be prepared ahead of time is rhubarb muffins.

RHUBARB MUFFINS

2 1/2 c. unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 c. firmly packed brown sugar
1 c. buttermilk

1 tsp. vanilla extract
2 1/2 c. chopped rhubarb
1/2 c. chopped walnuts

1/2 c. granulated sugar
2 tbsp. butter or margarine, soften
Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease 12 muffin-pan cups or use paper liners. In large bowl, combine flour, baking soda, cinnamon and 1 teaspoon salt; set aside.

In medium bowl, combine brown sugar, buttermilk, egg and vanilla; mix well. Fold in rhubarb and walnuts. Add to flour mixture, mixing just until moistened. Do not over-mix.

Spoon batter into prepared muffin cups, dividing evenly. In small bowl, with fork, blend granulated sugar with butter; sprinkle some of the sugar mixture over muffin batter in each cup. Bake 20 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool; wrap and store overnight.

Makes one dozen.

Another appetizing breakfast dish is stove-top cheese souffle.

STOVE-TOP CHEESE SOUFFLE

2 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 tbsp. all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1 c. milk
1 c. shredded Swiss or cheddar cheese
4 large eggs, separated

In medium saucepan, melt butter. Add flour, mustard and 1/4 teaspoon salt; cook 1 minute. Gradually stir in milk. Cook, stirring, 1 minute, or until thickened. Remove from heat; stir in cheese until melted.

In small bowl, with electric mixer at high speed, beat egg whites until moist, stiff peaks form. In large bowl, beat egg yolks; gradually beat in cheese sauce. Spoon into double-boiler top; cover. Place over simmering, not boiling, water. Cook one hour, or until knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Makes 4-6 servings.

Avoid holiday hassles of shopping by buying early

The Christmas holiday season is fast approaching and Hereford merchants are offering a variety of quality merchandise and services to the early shopper.

The main advantages to shopping early are: you don't have to fight the crowds, stand in long lines, and the selections are better.

Here are some tips for developing a successful strategy for Christmas shopping:

MAKE A LIST

Before you head for the mall or downtown, sit down and make a list of the names of people you want to buy gifts for. This way you can check off each name as you find gifts.

If you have any ideas about what to get, jot them down. But don't be too rigid. If you decide that the perfect gift for your mother is a baby blue cardigan sweater, you may spend a whole day looking for precisely that item and end up frustrated.

Sometimes it's actually best to buy on impulse-when a particular item just "jumps out" at you and seems to capture some part of the special essence of the person you're buying for. If that happens, go ahead and get it, as long as it's within your price range.

PERSONAL APPROACH

If the person you are buying for has a hobby, or collects something, maybe you can find a book about a special interest or an item to add to a collection.

Another good idea is to select something that the person wants or could use but wouldn't buy for him or herself, maybe something that's not quite practical, something a little extravagant or whimsical.

Remember that newlyweds and young people starting out on their own are usually spending all their money for major purchases like furniture. A little questioning should reveal some of the many items that they're planning to buy as soon as they have some extra money.

Once you have chosen your gifts, all that's left to do is wrap them and then hide them. Now, just relax and wait for Christmas Day. You'll forget all the little hassles of shopping as soon as your loved ones start to open their presents.

Use tapers for holiday dinner table

Create a festive mood at your Thanksgiving dinner table this season by using candles to illuminate your dining space. Avoid scented candles, since they will mask the aromas coming from the kitchen.

Here are some suggestions:

-Core six large apples and arrange them in a circle at the center of your table. Inside each, place a short, white tapered candle.

-Tie a wide velvet ribbon around three squat candles. Place several groups on a large table, surrounding each with a spray of dried or fresh flowers.

-For a decorative way to display floating candles, try placing them in wineglasses. You might even sprinkle a few rose petals at their base for a softer, more romantic look.

-Wrap Boston Ivy or another kind of leafy vine around candlesticks.

-Arrange clusters of grapes in a large bowl. Then take several long, thin tapers and carefully wedge them between the grapes.

Stores still expecting to have profitable holiday season

NEW YORK (AP) - In the coming weeks, as stores and shopping malls fill with people buying Christmas gifts, it might look like any other holiday season.

But the bustle will mask the fact that cautious consumer spending has forced retailers to take a subdued approach to this Christmas and their prospects for meaningful sales growth in the foreseeable future.

Nonetheless, stores are expected to have a profitable season.

"Last year, I played Ebenezer Scrooge," said Robert Buchanan, an analyst with the investment firm A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis. "This year I'm a little more upbeat, especially with respect to earnings, because of the constructive steps the retailers have taken in recognition of slower sales."

Said Michael Wellman, vice president for marketing at K Mart Corp., "Christmas is going to be very competitive, but no reason to the gnashing one's teeth over the consumer who doesn't seem to have much enthusiasm."

Estimates of sales growth this season range from 4 percent to 6 percent over Christmas 1987 levels, or about the pace of inflation so far this year. That's what economist David Wyss calls "a mediocre Christmas, not a terrible one."

Boasting local products

Deaf Smith County has much to brag about including marketing numerous homegrown products. Among some of the locally produced items displayed at the recent Christmas Carousel were beef, microwave popcorn on the cob, refined sugar and various grains, fine wines, fresh produce, flour, Mexican food, and cotton. Other local items exhibited included the Hereford 'Trifles' game, Baby Bull Chips (a selection of chocolates), and the Side Saddle magazine touting the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

By giving helping hand

Beat holiday depression

Thanksgiving is only a few days away and then begins the hustle and bustle of the Christmas season. Many people look forward to the holidays but there are numerous others who suffer from holiday depression. Perhaps you are one who also experiences the holiday blues.

Advertisements, television specials and Christmas carols bombard you with images of happy families joyfully celebrating the season. You tend to compare your own life to these glowing portrayals and feel inadequate.

Maybe you have idealized memories of past Christmases and forget that those times weren't really completely perfect. Or maybe you have gone through changes in your life which have left you feeling lonely, less connected to other people: divorce, or the death of a family member, or a move to a new city, or the kids growing up and leaving home.

The solution? Stop comparing your own situation to idealized media images. Every family is unique and has its own traditions. Remember that no family is perfect.

Just for the holidays, why not try to be more understanding of others' flaws? Forget about old grudges and really try to feel and share the holiday spirit.

If you are away from your family and feeling lonely, reach out to others. There are probably people in your own neighborhood or workplace who feel the same way you do. You also might want to volunteer some of your spare time to a local charity. Giving of yourself to others is a sure way to capture the real meaning of Christmas.

What ever you do, accept the uniqueness of your own situation. Celebrate Christmas in your own special way.

Rather than spending time worrying about why you are not happy, put all your energy into doing, especially doing for others, and you'll soon chase away the holiday blues.

"SHOOTING PAINS"

If you're a victim of sciatica, you know what "shooting pains" are all about. The sometimes excruciating pain of sciatica frequently affects the hip, thigh and back of the leg. The ankle and foot are sometimes affected, too. But that's not where the problem is.

The sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body, extends from the lower spine to the back of the thigh and knee. Then it divides. One nerve goes down the front of the lower leg, and the other goes down the back of the leg.

It's the inflammation of the sciatic nerve that causes the pain. This can be triggered by an irritated nerve root. What causes the irritation? The cause may be traced to a misalignment of the spinal column that's putting abnormal pressure on the roots of the sciatic nerves as they pass between the vertebrae.

Through x-rays and other procedures, the doctor of chiropractic can locate the misaligned vertebrae. Using a gentle adjustment, he can align it properly again to help eliminate the cause and the pain.

Famous tree lighting to be televised

NEW YORK (AP) - Rockefeller Center was still a muddy construction site when Christmas was first celebrated around its now-famous tree.

That was in 1931, in the midst of the Depression, when construction workers happy to be employed got their Christmas Eve paychecks around the tree they had set up in the dirt.

Two years later, the formal tree lighting tradition at the midtown Manhattan site began when the tree was decorated with 700 lights and placed in front of the then 8-month-old RCA Building. In 1936, the Rockefeller Plaza outdoor ice skating rink was opened.

This year's tree lighting, with more than 18,000 multicolored lights, takes place at 5:30 p.m. Dec. 5 and will be nationally televised later that evening.

The tree is a 75-foot Norway spruce from Raritan Township, N.J.

Other Christmas attractions at Rockefeller Center are the display of trumpeting angels in the adjacent Channel Gardens and the "TubaChristmas" concert, set for Dec. 11.

The Christmas show at Radio City Music Hall runs from Nov. 11 through Jan. 4.

Cheese for holidays

With the holiday season approaching fast, it's a good idea to begin thinking of refreshments to serve during various holiday occasions. Mini cheese balls, which can be found in most local markets, go great with a fast and fabulous easy-to-make hot crab dip.

Success of party depends on people, hosts, food

What better time to have a party than during the Thanksgiving and Christmas season! The success of a good party, however, depends on several factors.

Remember to always have a good mix of guests. Don't invite the same group of friends who see each other often. And don't be afraid to invite people from different backgrounds. Don't think that because they're from different worlds they won't have anything to talk about; it's stimulating to meet people with interests and occupations different from your own.

Next in importance are the hosts. There are two secrets to being a good host: one is to convey the feeling that you're really enjoying yourself; the other is to make everything seem effortless, as if it's been no trouble at all. In addition, a good host, like a good guest, should be receptive, listen well and above all have a sense of humor.

Your dinner party menu is also very important. Don't serve elaborate or heavy foods and don't experiment by making something you've never tried before. Choose a dish you know well and really like. Also, remember to serve food that doesn't require your getting up and down constantly, making it impossible for you to concentrate on any conversation. Men usually like soup, which makes for an easy first course, and most people love desserts even if they talk a lot about their weight.

Break from traditional

A twist on the traditional is suggested for holiday tree decorations this year.

"Part of the fun in decorating for Christmas is doing the unexpected," says Bette Rosenberg, home fashions director for Spiegel, catalog merchandiser and marketer.

"For example, a twist on the most traditional Christmas decoration of all, the tree," she says, "will surely catch everyone's eye." Some ideas for decorating the tree:

- Dolls with checkerboard dresses, stuffed animals and miniature wooden rocking chairs.
- Snowmen, gingerbread teddy bears and wood cryons.
- Birds-of-love ornaments and hand-painted angels.
- Clowns in black and gold lame costumes and twinkling glass ornaments.
- White pine cones, sleighs and doves.
- Candles, baskets of flowers and carousel horses.
- Blue and gold ornaments and white candles.

Classic cold pack cheese meets holiday countdown

Why not face up to the calendar and its seasonal predictions. Anticipate swift-moving holiday weeks with a parade of friends and family.

Whether your hospitality is perfect planned or completely spontaneous, one fact is certain: today's busy lifestyle doesn't allow the luxury of devoting unlimited time to food preparation. So, keep this successful strategy in mind; rely on the ease of informal buffets and tailor menus to quick-fix convenience

Make cheese wheel ahead of time, preserve in freezer

Make this peppery appetizer now and keep it on call in the freezer for holiday gatherings.

PEPPER-COATED CHEESE WHEEL

One 8-ounce container soft-style cream cheese with chives
1 1/4 cups shredded Muenster cheese (5 ounces)

One 3 1/2-ounce package sliced pepperoni, finely chopped
2 teaspoons paprika
1/2 teaspoon ground red pepper
Melba toast rounds and assorted crackers

In a medium mixing bowl stir together cream cheese, Muenster cheese and pepperoni. Shape mixture into a 4-inch ball; flatten into a wheel shape measuring 4- by 1 1/2-inches.

On waxed paper combine paprika

Create sweet fruit compote

Follow a meal with a warm, sweet fruit compote. If there's any left, chill and serve for breakfast.

GINGERY APRICOT-BANANA COMPOTE

One 17-ounce can unpeeled apricot halves

3/4 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon finely chopped crystallized ginger
1 medium banana
1/4 cup toasted coconut

Drain apricots, reserving 1/2 cup syrup. In a medium saucepan combine reserved apricot syrup, orange juice and crystallized ginger. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Stir in apricots. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer, uncovered, 3 minutes. Remove from heat.

Transfer fruit and syrup to bowl. Cool slightly. Serve warm or chill, covered, several hours or overnight. Slice banana; gently stir banana into apricot mixture. Serve in dessert dishes. Sprinkle with coconut. Makes 5 servings.

foods. This is where the versatility of cold pack cheese comes to the rescue as a classic entertainer throughout the holidays.

Perhaps you've already discovered the rich taste of this distinctive sharp cheddar cheese and its smooth spreadability on toast or crackers and as an idea recipe ingredient. This season, offer guests a new taste experience that may very well compete with the traditional large party cheese ball - mini cheese balls. They're flavorful finger foods made from naturally aged sharp cheddar cheese and cheese marbled with port wine. Best of all, there's no recipe for these nutritious snacks because they come conveniently packaged by the dozen in local markets. If an edible centerpiece intrigues you, mini cheese balls can be held together with toothpicks and arranged in circular layers, pyramid style, on a serving plate.

Expand your stock of convenience foods to include the few ingredients you'll need for a fast and fabulous hot crab dip. It begins with natural sharp cheddar cold pack cheese that comes in handy containers in the dairy case or by the piece in the specialty cheese section. Reach into your freezer for frozen crabmeat and have a few other staples ready to go. Garnish the prepared dip with scallion, offering a choice of raw vegetable dippers: brilliant red cherry tomatoes, sugar snap peas and baby carrots. You'll be sure to collect a dividend of compliments.

HOT CRAB DIP

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup (8-oz.) Wispide sharp cheddar cold pack cheese
1/4 cup chopped green onion
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
16-oz. pkg. frozen crabmeat, thawed, drained and flaked

In medium saucepan, melt butter. Add flour; mix well. Gradually add milk; cook stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Add Wispide; stir until melted. Blend in green onion, Worcestershire Sauce, parsley flakes and crabmeat. Heat just until bubbly. Yield: 2 1/2 cups.

Exercise very important especially during holidays

During the rush of the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday seasons, it's easy to forego your regular exercise routine. But you may benefit from exercise more during the busy holidays than at other times of the year.

Exercise can keep your appetite in check, and help you to avoid overindulging on tempted goodies or at holiday parties.

Noted films to be shown during yuletide season

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - The film world has long been fascinated with the yuletide season.

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," the time-worn tale of Scrooge and Tiny Tim, may well be the most recurrent of the Christmas movies. It appeared in several versions during the silent era, then MGM made a 1938 "A Christmas Carol" with reginald Owen as Scrooge. In 1951, the English did their own version with Alistair Sims as the legendary penny-pincher (the British had done an undistinguished "Scrooge" in 1935).

Albert Finney was unrecognizable in the title role of the 1970 "Scrooge," and a recent version starring George C. Scott has become a television perennial. A couple of years ago, the Walt Disney company enlisted all of its cartoon stars for a featurette "Mickey's Christmas Carol."

The song "White Christmas," sung by Bing Crosby in the 1942 film, "Holiday Inn," became Irving Berlin's greatest hit and resulted in the 1954 movie, "White Christmas."

Frank Capra's unbiased sentiment often resulted in Christmas scenes, notably in "Meet John Doe" and "It's a Wonderful Life." The latter shows up regularly on holiday television.

Oddly, most films with "Christmas" in the title have fared poorly at the box office.

"The Christmas Tree," starring William Holden and Virna Lisa, was a 1969 bomb.

In 1944, Universal cast its biggest star, Deanna Durbin, in a grim melodrama with Gene Kelly. "Christmas Holiday." Audiences voted overwhelmingly for Deanna to return to musicals.

Other misfires: "Christmas Eve," three wayward sons (George Raft, Randolph Scott, George Brent) return to their mother (Ann Harding) for the holiday (1944); "Christmas in July," a tame satire of the advertising industry by Preston Sturges (1940); "Christmas in July," a soap opera with Barbara Stanwyck and Dennis Morgan (1945). Disney had little luck with "One Magic Christmas," a Capra esque fantasy starring Mary Steenburgen and Harry Dean Stanton.

The most successful film about Christmas has been George Seaton's "Miracle on 34th Street," starring Edmund Gwenn as a department store Santa Claus who claims to be the real thing. The film, which also starred Maureen O'Hara, John Payne and a young Natalie Wood, has become a television perennial and has now been colorized, much to the distress of purists.

Experts recommend that you exercise before your evening meal. That time of day is best because energy used by the body in exercise comes from glycogen, which is released into the bloodstream as glucose. The body recognizes this higher blood-sugar level and remains satisfied longer.

Exercise also helps you burn up those extra calories you may be enjoying. You increase your calories burn rate while you are exercising and for hours afterwards. Experts believe that you may burn calories more efficiently for up to 24 hours after you exercise.

Exercise even can help you avoid the "holiday blues" that can cloud your enjoyment of the season's festivities. A 10-week study at the University of Kansas showed that those who did aerobic exercises were significantly less depressed than those who didn't exercise.

When you're looking for the best exercise to squeeze into your crowded days, remember that the most efficient form of exercise is cross-country skiing. Cross-country skiing uses all of the major muscles in the arms and legs, tones your body, and burns the highest number of calories per minute.

Cross-country skiing exercise machines, which duplicate the motions of skiing, are gaining popularity as a fast way to get all the benefits of the real thing, no matter what the weather.

You can tone your entire body and control your weight by using the machine as little as 20 minutes a day, three times a week.

Beneficial for everyone!

Not everyone has the same problems with paunchiness as jolly old Santa, but everyone can experience the health benefits of a cross-country ski exerciser. Experts say that by using the machine not only can you keep fit and lose weight, but that holiday depression can be diminished.

Hanukkah begins Dec. 3

By The Associated Press

It was in the year 165 B.C. that Judah Maccabee and his followers defeated three Syrian generals and recaptured and rededicated the temple at Jerusalem.

Jews around the world still celebrate the event, Hanukkah, an eight-day holiday which this year begins the night of Dec. 3.

Hanukkah, the festival of lights, is one of the few holidays that unites Israeli Jews, divided at other times along religious and secular lines.

Secular Jews observe it as a celebration of the victory by the small band of Jewish rebels over their mighty Syrian rulers as a symbol for modern-day Zionism.

Religious Jews emphasize an ancient miracle said to have occurred at the temple after it was liberated, when an eternal flame burned for eight days on oil that should have lasted one day.

Whatever their level of observance, almost all Israeli Jews at some time light the menorah, the holy lamp that recalls the story of Judah and his followers.

Jewish tradition holds that when the rebels were purifying the temple of pagan rituals performed by the Syrians, they found enough oil for only one day to relight an eternal flame. But miraculously, the flame burned eight days until more oil arrived.

While the traditional menorah is described in the Bible as having seven candlesticks, a special candelabrum with nine candlesticks, the nanykkyah, is used only to celebrate Hanukkah.

For the eight days of Hanukkah, Jews celebrate by lighting an additional candle each night on the candelabrum. A ninth candle in the middle, known as the "shamash" or servant in Hebrew, is used to light the other eight.

In Israel, menorahs adorn public buildings and flicker in the windows of homes. At Jerusalem's Western Wall, commonly known as the Wailing Wall and the 1st remnant of the rebuilt temple destroyed in 70 A.D., a large oil-burning lamp is lighted each night by leading rabbis and biblical scholars.

In the United States, Hanukkah is often marked by giving lavish gifts. But Hanukkah presents are rarely exchanged in Israel. Children receive small sums of money, known as Hanukkah "gelt" in Yiddish, or the traditional four-sided spinning top called a "dreidel."

Many believe that Hanukkah gift-giving became popular in the United States because of the holiday's proximity to Christmas.

Unemployed workers grateful for holiday

TYNER, Ky. (AP) - Christmas season brings a special cheer each year to more than 100 unemployed people in the Appalachian foothills of Jackson County, a warm, happy feeling that comes from receiving a long-awaited paycheck.

The small army of jobless workers descends on the Christmas Ridge Handcrafts factory near the community of Tyner every year in late October. They man an assembly line until mid-December making thousands of natural pine and fir wreaths for shipment across the country.

"It gives them an opportunity to buy things at Christmas for their children and grandchildren that they might not otherwise have," says Carol Parrett, quality control chief at the factory, operated by the non-profit Christian Appalachian Project (CAP).

Unemployment in the southeastern Kentucky county has hovered well above the 18 percent mark for most of 1988, peaking at 18.5 percent in February.

Mr. Parrett says most workers in the wreath factory are women, many of whose husbands and sons must travel 40 to 80 miles out of mountains to find work in larger towns.

Bernie Hale, marketing director for the factory, says Christmas Ridge Handcrafts plans this year to produce about 65,000 wreaths that sell at between $13 and $30. The factory, in three old school buildings, shipped about 51,000 wreaths in 1987, he says.

"The income from the wreath business is out back in to help create more jobs for the area," says Hale.

He said about $1 million the factory is projected to earn this year would go to support other CAP craft businesses.

Ms. Parrett says the wreath factory began more than 20 years ago, when about 10 women put together the decorations in an unheated tobacco barn a local farmer allowed them to use. Output and employment has grown steadily each year since then.

Production of the wreaths begins with bending wire, about the same gauge as used in thick clothes hangers, into 10-inch hoods.

Crafty presents

Arts and crafts of every kind make good Christmas gifts as created by the home craftsman. Individualized sweatshirts are currently popular as are quilted cosmetic cases and handbags. Several arts and crafts shows and bazaars have been held throughout the area with more on the agenda as Christmas approaches.

Make holidays memorable

It's your first Christmas in your own home, and you want a tree which will give your house or apartment some holiday cheer.

But you have a small living room and limited cash, so you can't hope to set up a huge, elaborate tree like the one your family had each year while you were growing up.

Remember, though, that your family probably collected their tree ornaments over many years.

Here's how to begin your own tree tradition. Start with a small, but well-shaped tree. If you're going to put it in a corner or against a wall, only the part that actually shows has to look good.

Buy a box or two of colored balls, a few strings of lights, and some tinsel. Now you can set up a very basic, but attractive tree.

Then, rather than buying lots of cheap ornaments, take your time and shop around. Buy two or three beautiful, good-quality ornaments that you really like and know you will cherish for years to come.

Each year, you can add a few more special ornaments. You might want to get a dated ornament each year to enhance the sense of tradition.

Try making some of your ornaments yourself, and ask family and friends to contribute a few. Before you know it, you'll have a tree to rival the one which your family proudly displays.

Fine jewelry focus on wrist

This holiday, the fine jewelry focus is on the wrist. The spotlight shines on the newest trends in bracelet designs that will add more sparkle to this and future holiday celebrations. What's in store?

-A hot trend that continues to get hotter is the "tennis bracelet", a circle of diamonds for the wrist to be worn with your watch.

-Big, bold gold links in dozens of shapes and sizes are available in shiny polished matte or "distressed" finishes.

-Cuffs of varying widths make a strong fashion statement, either in gold or more affordable sterling silver and are truly striking when accented with colored gemstones or pearls.

-Speaking of colored gemstones, the newest rage is the cabochon cut, that is rounded, not faceted, in a convex shape. Rubies, emeralds and sapphires are particularly "rich" when set with diamond accents in jigsaw puzzle-like geometric settings. Cabochones in semi-precious stones such as amethyst and garnet are being featured as "top" stones in the increasingly popular torque style bracelets.

One of the best reasons for selecting a bracelet as a gift is that it looks best when worn in multiples, mixed or matched, so the recipient can never have too many.

Pearl bracelets even are created in multi-strands to give the illusion of many separate strands and are particularly "new" with an antique clasp.

Other trends to be watching for this holiday season include:

- Charm bracelets reminiscent of the '50s now updated with coins;
- Hinged cuffs or bangles featuring scroll or Greek architectural motifs;
- Combinations of gold and sterling silver for those who can't decide which metal they favor most;

-For the lucky lady who already owns a diamond tennis bracelet, a "jacket" which transforms the slim circle of diamonds into a bangle.

See your local professional jeweler for the widest selection of bracelets in every price range.

Toy manufacturer lists trends

By The Associated Press
Toys, toys, toys, toys, toys, toys. Toys to the left of us: toys to the right of us.

Toys up this aisle and toys down that one.

Baubles, trinkets, playthings, dolls, video games, board games, card games, construction games.

It's little wonder that Santa's beard is white.

The nation's retailers are expected to provide some 150,000 items to choose from this holiday season, with more than 5,000 of them new this year.

Yet, caution seems to be the watchword for both customer and retailer, says Douglas Thomson, president of the Toy Manufacturers of America, a trade association.

"Retailers are cautious, extremely slow in placing orders this year," he says, "and in the kinds of toys they order, too. They're taking fewer chances. Customers are more conservative, too."

Industry growth is seen as "a little flat," as it was in 1986 and 1987, when sales were the same, $12.5 billion.

Thomson sees this year as a continuation of the "cooling off and consolidation" time, still "quite good," but less successful than the 1983-1985 period of exceptional business that he says was caused by a sudden consumer interest in Cabbage Patch dolls, the Trivial Pursuit board game and Transformer toys.

He sees these trends in toys for this season:

-A continuing resurgence of popularity in video games, especially among young boys. Led by Nintendo products, this area has had the biggest effect in sales and will continue, he says.

Last year's home video game sales were estimated at more than $1 billion.

-Board games will continue to be strong. Pictionary, from The Games Gang, has been a sales leader, he says, with nearly 10 million copies sold since it was introduced.

(The Games Gang now follows up with Balderdash, promoted as "the hilarious bluffing game," based on definitions for zany, yet real words. There's now a second edition of Pictionary and a Junior version.)

"Back to basics" toys remain popular, like the "good play value" of Fisher-Price product, make-believe-type toys and "construction" toys, from Duplo and Lego and Tyco as well as Fisher-Price.

Pope John Paul II became the first pontiff to visit Canada when he made a 12-day tour of the country in 1984.

Book tells of Thanksgiving

"Celebrate Thanksgiving" by Jay J. Harris is a new publication from Media Books that includes many interesting facts about the holiday, a complete script for a brief, informative non-religious ceremony, plus holiday recipes and suggestions on what to do with the leftovers.

"It'll be a dinner with a new dimension that will delight adults and children alike," the publisher says. "They'll be fascinated as they take turns telling the story of the Pilgrims ... why this small band of English men and women dared to come to a strange new world ... how a persistent woman led President Lincoln to make Thanksgiving a national holiday."

A chapter about Thanksgiving foods tells how the turkey got its name — and explains how growers separate good from bad cranberries by bouncing them.

The National Turkey Federation's directions for preparing the bird are included in the "Help for the Cook" section.

Some South Africans, newly returned from Hitler's Third Reich, played key roles in organizing secret organizations such as the Broederbond, which sought, while citing God's approval, to justify the white-supremacy core of Afrikaner mythology.

Mail-order gifts going Yuppie, gadgets offered

EGG HARBOR TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Higher postage and upscale demand are causing some mail-order companies to offer gadgets like $400 picture telephones alongside the Santa Claus toilet paper and windshield ice protectors.

For years, Spencer Gifts Inc. got by with its offerings of elastic bra extenders, personalized calendar fowls and other inexpensive, unusual household items and gadgets.

"It's nothing you need and everything you'd like to have," Laurin LeTort, the company's vice president of human resources, said recently.

But the changing consumer profile, higher postage rates and intense competition have forced changes.

"The mail-order industry has become a booming business, especially with more expensive merchandise, such as what L.L. Bean and J. Crew offers," LeTort says of the clothing retailers. "For years, Spencer Gifts and several other companies stuck with lower-price products."

"But with postage increases and higher wages, it's become difficult to operate at that level."

In recent years, Spencer has concentrated most of its energy on retail stores, usually in shopping malls. The company has more than 600 stores in 46 states, LeTort said.

Spencer also plans to change the focus of its catalog merchandise, in an effort to keep up with its changing customers.

A first step has been the introduction of several "AZZ" stores and catalogs, featuring more expensive products and gadgets, such as the $400 picture phone, a $30 baseball cap with a solar-powered fan, a $70 inflatable raft complete with built-in toy machine guns, and a $200 neon telephone.

Spencer Gifts stores are geared to attract younger consumers, while catalogs from Spencer Gifts Inc. traditionally have attracted women over 45 years old in rural America, company President John Hacala said. "But now 50 percent of American women are in the work force, and time is not available to hit the stores as much, so they like to shop out of a catalog for the things they really need," he said.

Spencer Gifts eventually will change its catalog offerings to reflect the shopping trend, Hacala said. The company also must select more expensive products for financial reasons, he said.

"We can't continue concentrating on 88-cent products," Hacala says. "You can't pack and ship that merchandise cost-effectively."

The final figures are not in but Spencer Gifts, a wholly owned subsidiary of MCA Inc. in Los Angeles, projects sales of $300 million for 1987.

In the catalog business, LeTort said, the company is "about the last of the few survivors at the lower end of the market. We need to reposition ourselves to go after a higher profit margin."

By switching its focus, Spencer Gifts will transfer its mail-order operation in Atlantic City to Williamsburg, Va., where labor is more readily available at lower wages than in the Northeast. More than 200 full-time jobs will be affected, although another 800 or so people traditionally have been hired as temporary packers during the busy holiday season, Hacala said.

He says the company's national headquarters will remain in Egg Harbor Township.

Thanksgiving meal unlike first holiday

PLYMOUTH, Texas (AP) - While thousands of Americans will sit down to a feast of turkey, stuffing, cranberry sauce and other assorted fixings this year, the first Thanksgiving celebrated by Pilgrims and Indians was a more modest affair.

Venison and cod, lobster and sea bass, squash, beans and artichokes probably comprised at least part of the historic peace-feast between the Wampanoag Indians and the Pilgrim settlers 387 years ago.

In the fall of 1621, the 52 men, women and children who survived the first year in the New World after leaving England on the Mayflower decided to hold a celebratory feast. Fifty others died of frostbite, pneumonia and starvation. Just four adult housewives survived the first winter.

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors," Edwin Winslow, a Pilgrim, wrote in a first-hand report of the feast.

The three-day secular celebration was held sometime between Sept. 21 and Nov. 9, according to historians at Plymouth Plantation, a Pilgrim village re-creation in Plymouth.

Two primary references from the first Thanksgiving remain, including a diary kept by Gov. William Bradford. They show that the feast included cod, sea bass, wildfowl such as geese, ducks and swans, wild turkeys, corn meal and five deer brought by the Indians, about 90 of whom attended.

The turkeys, though, were dry and stringy, and the meat was probably boiled. Some of the vegetables were eaten raw but most were boiled. Cranberries, plentiful in New England, also were served.

Beer was the liquid of choice, even for children, since the water was considered unreliable. Among the desserts served were pudding and ashcakes, cornmeal cakes baked in ashes.

There was no cider, because apple and other fruit trees would take years to bear fruit after planting. No potatoes, no corn on the cob, no molasses, no coffee or tea either.

The Pilgrims and Indians broke a variety of breads at cloth-covered tables sitting on benches: some of the important men had chairs. There were some knives and forks, but no spoons, hands were the utensils of choice.

The feast was formalized under President George Washington, who set aside Thursday, Nov. 26, 1790, as the first official day of Thanksgiving for the many signal favors of Almighty God. But it wasn't until 1863 that Thanksgiving Day became an annual holiday, decreed by President Abraham Lincoln during the Civil War.

These days, the town of Plymouth stages events to commemorate the first Thanksgiving, including a public dinner at Memorial Hall that normally attracts about 2,000 people.

Many of the town's attractions, including Cranberry World Visitors Center, the Mayflower II replica and the 1627 Pilgrim Village remain open on the holiday.

Holidays come, go; added pounds don't

Temptations at the Thanksgiving table will cause major concern for the 40 percent of the U.S. population that considers itself overweight this year.

As Americans everywhere "dig in" to mouth-watering turkey dinners, many weight-conscious individuals will ask: Is it possible to eat traditional holiday foods without destroying my weight loss efforts?

"Absolutely yes!" says Weight Watchers area director Vivian Lipman who counsels, "It's not what you eat—but how much. Portion control is the key to eating smart throughout the holiday season."

To prove her point, Lipman offers the following traditional Thanksgiving recipes from Weight Watchers for guilt-free dining. In addition, she suggests a few tips for overcoming the urge to binge.

-Plan to do something special with family and friends—besides eat—that day.

-Prepare your plate in the kitchen to ensure you dish up the correct portions and aren't tempted to "double dip" at the table.

-Try timing your forkfuls with the slowest eater at the table or put down your fork between bites.

-Avoid the kitchen if possible—and those tempting leftovers between meals. Put a picture or sign on the refrigerator door to remind yourself of your goal.

By Neiman Marcus

Hot-air balloon among gifts offered

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - That winter wish list for well-stocked wallets, the Neiman Marcus Christmas Book, this year proves that not everything is better in pairs, providing a lift for Yuletide spirits with a "his-OR-hers" hot-air balloon.

But the company that introduced his AND-hers camels, dirigibles and Spangled Cats is not saying that togetherness is out of vogue with the affluent.

Featured in the catalog is the Neiman Marcus Cloudhopper, a 30-foot hot-air balloon that fits into an automobile trunk or the back of its owner.

"We only have one balloon, the Cloudhopper," said company spokeswoman Pat Zajac. "Only one can ride in it. Of course, if 30 people want one, that's no problem. We are prepared to provide as many Cloudhoppers as the world wants."

Constructed by Per Lindstrand of Thunder & Colt Balloons, England, the "fantasy of free-flight" sells for a mere $18,000. Lindstrand, says Ms. Zajac, was the first man to cross the Atlantic in a hot-air balloon.

"We always look for things that are unexpected, unusual," said Ms. Zajac, "and this is the world's first backpack balloon."

"It's the most compact balloon ever offered to the public," she said. "It's a backpack balloon that fits in the trunk of a car as a whole unit."

Not all the catalog gifts are for loners. The upscale "Easy Rider" can hit the road with other bikers on a limited edition Harley-Davidson

Heritage Softail motorcycle with customized seat, matching helmet and his-or-hers black leather jacket with silver studs.

"Malcolm Forbes would love it," said Ms. Zajac, referring to the publishing magnate who owns a collection of motorcycles. "You are seeing more CEOs and business people out on the road with their motorcycles."

"Liz Taylor loves the color purple. Malcolm has supplied her with her own violet motorcycle."

The wanderlust may strike Christmas shoppers in a more down-to-earth way.

For $25,000, you can take a 10-day bicycle tour of Italy's Tuscany Region on custom Cinelli touring bikes, which may be personalized with your monogram or family crest.

The romantic tour for two, "the Tuscany Gran Turismo," comes with a deluxe motor coach and a driver-guide to accompany the riders, who can room at luxurious country inns and villas through the trip.

This year, the Neiman Marcus gift selection contains a touch of humor and whimsy. There's a silver-plated baby bottle for a budding corporate chief executive officer at $25.

"We have taken the baby from silver spoon in mouth to bottle," said Ms. Zajac.

Other novelties include an edible chocolate chess set, giant milk and white-chocolate postage stamp replicas, brooches of metal and precious stones depicting official birds of the 50 states and a set of howling coyote salt and pepper shakers, handmade in Albuquerque by a native artist.

Ms. Zajac said 3.2 million N-M catalogs were mailed to shoppers worldwide this fall.

"Through the years, we have tried to appeal to the humor and the child in all of us," she said. "We try to approach the merchandising of the Christmas with humor and whimsy. If nothing else, it is a wish book for those who read it."

Craft idea emerges

Everything old is new again for the upcoming holidays when your decorations and gifts are inspired by the beauty and elegance of Victorian England. Sunny O'Neil, a recognized authority on Victorian Christmas traditions and decorations, uses apples in many of her designs.

The pomander ball (see directions) is a personal favorite Sunny has used for Smithsonian lectures, speaking engagements, and holiday tours of her own farmhouse in suburban Washington, D.C. The spiced apple fragrance will fill your home with a delightful aroma and pomander balls make wonderful gifts, too. Why not make several at once?

POMANDER BALL
Materials: Apple, Whole cloves, Cinnamon, Paper Bag, and Ribbon

Apples are a favorite choice for pomander balls because they are easier to work with and dry faster than oranges. Any apple will do, even if it is slightly bruised. Use your thumb to insert cloves into the apple but protect your thumb with adhesive tape first. When the apple is completely covered (do it all at one time, if left half-finished even for a day it spoils) place it in a paper bag with three teaspoons of cinnamon.

After the apple is completely covered with the mixture place it in a warm dry place - it should be dry in about two weeks. It gives off a marvelous scent so why not keep it in the kitchen so you can enjoy it?

After the pomander is hard and dry, it may be decorated as shown.

Serve new dishes with Thanksgiving dinner

Thanksgiving to most people means a time to gather with family and friends and feast on traditional holiday foods. If you would like to incorporate a few new dishes with your Thanksgiving meal, here are some easy to prepare dishes.

HERB-BUTTER-AND WINE BASTING SAUCE

1½ c. unsalted butter
½ c. dry white wine
2 tbsp. salt-free herb blend
¼ c. chopped parsley, ¼ c. minced chives
2 tbsp. chopped fresh thyme or marjoram or 1 tsp. dried thyme or marjoram leaves

1. Clarify butter; In small saucepan, over low heat, melt butter. Let stand 5 minutes, until milk solids settle. With basting bulb or gravy separator, remove clear liquid (clarified butter) on top (there should be about 1 cup). Discard milky residue.

2. In clean, small saucepan, combine clarified butter, the wine and herb blend. Bring to boiling. Remove from heat; stir in fresh herbs and ½ teaspoon salt.

Makes about 1½ cups.

CRANBERRY-RHUBARB SAUCE

1½ c. sugar
1 pkg (12 oz) cranberries
1 pkg (16 oz) frozen sliced rhubarb, thawed (4 c.)

2 c. kumquats, thinly sliced and seeded, or 2 oranges, chopped
¼ c. chopped candied ginger

1 c. coarsely chopped walnuts
In large saucepan, combine sugar and ½ cup water. Bring to boiling; cook, stirring, until sugar dissolves. Add cranberries, rhubarb, kumquats and ginger. Return to boiling; simmer, stirring, 5 minutes, or until thickened. Stir in walnuts.

Makes 6 cups.

SMOOTH AND CREAMY EGGNOG

6 large eggs, separated
1 c. sugar
1 c. rum, ½ c. brandy
6 c. milk
3 c. heavy cream, whipped until soft peaks form
Ground nutmeg

1. In large bowl of electric mixer, at high speed, beat egg yolks until very thick and light. Gradually beat in sugar. At medium speed, beat in rum and brandy. Refrigerate 1 hour, stirring occasionally.

2. In another large bowl, beat egg whites until stiff; set aside. At medium speed, beat milk into egg-yolk mixture; transfer to large punch bowl. With rubber spatula, fold in whipped cream and egg whites.

3. If desired, store in covered jars or bowl in refrigerator for a day or up to a month before serving. Pour into punch bowl; serve in punch glasses, sprinkled with dash nutmeg.

Makes about 25 servings.

BISCUIT STUFFING

5 day-old flaky biscuits
7 day-old corn muffins
½ c. butter or margarine
10 celery stalks, thinly sliced
1 large Spanish onion, diced
1 tsp. poultry seasoning, ½ tsp. paprika
½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
¼ c. chopped parsley
½ c. chicken broth

2 large eggs, beaten

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Coarsely crumble biscuits and muffins onto jelly-roll pan. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter. Bake 25 minutes, until lightly toasted.

2. In 8-quart Dutch oven, over medium-high heat, melt remaining butter. Add celery, onion, pepper, poultry seasoning and paprika; saute until vegetables are soft.

3. Remove pan from heat; gently stir in parsley and crumbled bread until well mixed, keeping bread pieces as large as possible. Add broth and eggs; toss to coat.

Makes 11 cups.

QUICK CRANBERRY PIE

4 c. cranberries
2 c. sugar
1 c. chopped pecans, 2 large eggs
1 c. unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ c. melted shortening
½ c. butter or margarine, melted
1. Grease 10-inch quiche dish or pie plate. Preheat oven to 325 degrees F.

Spread cranberries over bottom of dish; sprinkle with 1 cup sugar and the pecans.

2. In small bowl of electric mixer, at high speed, beat eggs until frothy. Add remaining sugar; beat in flour, shortening and butter; at medium speed, beat until blended. Pour batter over cranberries and nuts; bake 1 hour, or until golden. Serve hot or cold, with sweetened whipped cream or ice cream, if desired.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.
