JOE BAILEY TO CONDUCT FIGHT ON NEW BRIDGE

Toll Bridge Operators Will Oppose Free Structure

MAY DELAY WORK

But No Chance to Knock It Out, Judge Sartin Declares

First steps in the long-expected fight of toll bridge owners on Red river against construction of the proposed new $400,000 free bridge between Texas and Oklahoma near Burkburnett have been taken, it was indicated Wednesday when word was received here that former senator Joe Bailey had been retained to oppose the new bridge.

A letter received by County Judge B. D. Sartin from Joe Bailey Jr., the former senator's son, said that his father was to represent "certain interests" opposed to the new bridge. The "interest" were not named specifically, but officials here have expected for some thit that toll bridge operators now doing business on the river would conduct a fight on the new structure. The letter also asked that no further plans be made for the bridge until Mr. Bailey could appear before proper authorities to present his claims.

Plans Ready.

In this connection Judge Sartin said yesterday that word from the state engineering department indicated plans for the bridge had been approved and were practically complete. It was Judge Sartin's intention to advertise for bids at next Monday's meeting of the commisisoner's court. This will not be done now, however, as he expects to be in Austin Monday and Tuesday to represent the bridge interests. Bailey, it is understood, will be in Austin at that time to make a protest to the state highway department.

He has been informed, Judge Sartin has learned, that the highway department is not disposed to give much consideration to protests at this time inasmuch as plans fo rthe bridge have been under way for six months or more. He wil be given a hearing at some future date when one can be conveniently arranged.

May Be Delayed.

Judge Sartin yesterday admitted that work on the bridge might be delayed, perhaps for a year if the fight is carried through the high courts. He expressed conviction, however, that the project could not be stopped.

"There is no question as to its legality," he said, "for the attorney general has approved it and it has the approval of the state of Texas by the legislature, the state of Oklahoma Wichita county and the federal authorities."

It is probable that the bridge will be attacked on constitutional grounds, Judge Sartin believed.

Final plans and specifications of the bridge are now being put in shape by state highway engineers and these are expected here any day.

Cheer Up! More Snows May Come

To you who sweltered under the hottest sun of the season yesterday, The Record News submits this morning its pictorial record of what happened exactly five months ago today—Jan. 18. You may recall that on that day, 9.8 inches of snaw fell and things around Wichita Falls looked like they're pictured above.

With a feeling of windred sympathy, the editor dedicates this to tohes waitersses and waiters, cooks and cashiers in local cafes that perspired and suffered in keeping him fed; to those housewives who labored through long hours of blistering heat and parching wind to perform necessary duties; to the oil field workers who stuck to glaring derrick floors; to the mail carriers who shuffled over furnace-like pavements to bring the editor his bills and love letters; to those yeomen who must have shriveled on the sides of the new Snider buildings now going up—to all and sundry, in fact, who learned through bitter personal experience yesterday just how darn hot it really was. Amen!

28 PERMITS, $9,650 DAY'S NEW BUILDING

They all Come in at Once Wednesday, to Have Big Week

Twenty-eight building permits with a combined valuation of $96,650 were recorded Wednesday by Building Inspector Fred A. Smith. This is probably the largest number of permits ever issued in a single day, but Wednesday is not entitled to credit for all of them since all but 10 or 12 were applied for and approved Monday or Tuesday. They were not issued until Wednesday, however, because of lack of proper blanks.

A figure of $96,650 for three days, however, is one that will stand high. It is especially noteworthy in view of the fact that the largest of any of the permits was one for $30,000 granted in favor of John Young and Houston Cowden for construction of an apartment and business building at Eleventh and Grace.

A permit was also applied for Wednesday for an $18,000 brick veneer residence to be put up by Raymond Myers, local attorney, at 3006 Tenth street.

Other permits ranged down in price to $100 or so for minor repair jobs.

THE WEATHER

"I wish my nose wasn't pug. It's awfully hard to look fierce if your nose is pug and you ain't got a sword scar on your face."

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch.
If We Knew.

If we really knew the fellow
That we talk about so much,
Then the hardest heart would mellow—
With a little kinder touch
We would speak about his error,
Should a fellow chance to fall,
We would talk a little fairer,
Or we wouldn't talk at all.

But we add a lot of rumor
To a little bit of fact,
And the ultimate consumer
Adds whatever we have lacked.
Yes, we add a little to it,
For we nearly always can,
But I doubt if we would do it
If we really knew the man.

If we really knew another
As ourselves we really know,
When man criticized a brother
We would say it wasn't so.
For a lie a mile a minute
Often traveled, often grew,
But there may be nothing in it,
If the man we really knew.

When the jealous bring a story,
When the little rumors start
That may dim another's glory
Or may break another's heart,
Then we carelessly receive them,
Never question, never scan—
But we never wouldd believe them
If we really knew the man.

Weather for Wichita Falls Wednesday, June 17, as reported at 5 p. m. by the Wichita Falls Electric company follows: Maximum temperature, 103 degrees; minimum, 76; present, 101; no precipitation; southeast breeze; clear; maximum wind velocity, 16 miles per hour; average wind velocity, 12 miles per hour; barometer, 29.02.

WEST TEXAS: Thursday and Friday partly cloudy.

EAST TEXAS: Thursday and Friday partly cloudy, probably scattered showers near coast.

OKLAHOMA: Thursday probably scattered showers; somewhat cooler; Friday partly cloudy.

103-Officially, But Its Like 110

The government observation bureau here studied up on the weather yesterday announced that 103 was the hottest it got, but those compelled to walk the streets for any length of time would have taken oath it was nearer 108 or 109. As a matter of fact, thermometers down town did go as high as 106 in the middle of the afternoon.

The sun blistered down from a cloud-splotched sky that only seemed to magnify the radiance and heat. A more or less persistent breeze prevailed throughout the day, but it had the scorching qualities of a draught from a blast furnace.

Notwithstanding whatever controversy there may have been over the temperature, the fact remains that Wednesday was without doubt the hottest day of the year.

Cooler was forecast for Thursday with possibly showers in the Panhandle.

MAN KILLED.

HOLLIDAY ON ITS WAY TO INCORPORATION

Plans Discussed Wednesday Night for Development Of Town

HOLLIDAY, Texas, June 17.—Plans were put on foot here Wednesday night that will perhaps lead to this fast growing city of Archer county becoming incorporated.

Luther Hoffman, prominent attorney of Wichita Falls, and a director of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, made the principal address at the meeting. Judge Hoffman was introduced by J. C. Thomas, president of the Holliday chamber of commerce. Judge Hoffman explained that two forms of city government can be obtained by a vote of the people. One is the commission form, which would permit Holliday to elect a mayor and two commissioners. The other being the old aldermanic form, which requires a mayor and five aldermen. Judge Hoffman gave as his opinion that the commission form would prove best as fewer officials would be required and minor officials could be appointed by the commissioners. Judge Hoffman was listened to with interest by at least 200 tax paying citizens.

Fred L. Haskett, assistant manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, told of the value of incorporating. Haskett pointed out that Holliday could install a water sys-

MEXICAN QUESTION SERIOUS

Katy Converts Freight Locomotives Back To Coal; Oil Too Costly

DALLAS, June 17.—Twenty of the largest freight engines operated by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad between Parsons, Kan., and St. Louis have been converted back to coal burners following a decision to get away from fuel oil and to substitute coal, it was revealed today at the general ofifces of the road here. Passenger trains will continue to be hauled by oil-burning locomotives but freight trains between those points will hereafter be operated by coal burners.

While the Katy is one of the first roads in the southwest to change to coal on such a large scale, it is understood that other lines in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas are seriously perplexed at the cost of fuel oil. Another Texas road, it was learned today, which has recently completed a long term fuel contract in which it paid 65 cents a barrel for residue from refineries must now pay $1.50 a barrel or "a sum," as its chief operating officer said, "which is close to the limit we can stand."

NEW ROADS TO NULLIFY FENCE AROUND LAKE

Waggoner's Plan for Big Resort at Lake Kemp Brings Action

SEEK COUNTY AID

Sartin to Ask Baylor And Wilbarger Counties For Assistance

That the plans of W. T. Waggoner of Fort Worth, to fence Lake Kemp and create public parks at the big Baylor county reservoir, are not to go unchallenged from Wichita Falls, was indicated here yesterday after announcement was made by R. L. More, Mr. Waggoner's agent at Vernon, that a big pleasure resort was to be created on the shores of the lake. A movement is now under way, it was learned, to nullify the effects of the barb-wire fence Mr. Waggoner is throwing around the lake and to make the lake shore accessible without cost as has heretofore been the case.

Open Roads.

The plan simply contemplates opening up of several new roads to the water's edge—public roads which cannot be blocked by the fence and by use of which anyone may reach the lake without regard for the gates or guards Mr. Waggoner proposes to install. County Judge B. D. Sartin, after emphatically condemning the steps being taken by Mr. Waggoner, announced his intention of appearing before the commissioners courts of Baylor and Wilbarker counties within the next few days to take up with them the possibility of opening at least three and possibly four new roadways to the lake.

Judge Sartin explained the present situation by saying that Mr. Waggoner's fences are now being built from half-a-mile to three miles back of the highwater line. Gates will be placed in these to give entrance to the grounds. An entrance fee, of course, will be charged for getting through the gates.

Believes It Will Carry.

If the plan under consideration carries through as Judge Sartin believes it will, the new roads will be ordered opened by Baylor and Wilbarger counties and will extend clear to the waters' edge. Inasmuch as they are public roads, they cannot be fenced; gates cannot bar them and no fee can be charged for using them. Since they run clear to the shore of the lake, it will not be necessary for those using them to traverse any private grounds of the Waggoner estate.

It was pointed out that the present roads to the lake do not run to the waters' edge, but merely skirt the general shore line and then proceed across the dam.

Will Have Co-operation.

Judge Sartin has been given assurance that Wilbarger and Baylor county officials will look with favor on any plan to preserve free access at all times to the lake. He expects wholehearted co-operation in his plans, and stated last night he would appear before county bodies within a short time. The roads, of course, must be ordered in and opened by Baylor and Wilbarger counties since the whole lake front is accessible only through these two counties.

This scheme, if it carries, will serve to offer free access to the lake for fishing and other privileges until a bill may be put through the legislature creating it as a state park. The West Texas chamber of commerce is backing a movement to make it such a reservation.

The elaborate pleasure resort idea of Mr. Waggoner was vigorously assailed by Judge Sartin and others yesterday, who professed to see in it a commercial plan to draw revenue from those who by shouldering a huge bond issue have paid for the lake.

STEEL MEN WILL MEET.

Faiman, Guarded For Months, Not Called to Stand

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—Guarded in a hotel for months as a principal witness in the trial of William Darling Sherherd on a charge of fatally feeding typhoid germs to his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock, Charles C. Faiman was not called as a witness today by State's Attorney Crowe, who said he could not vouch for Faiman, and asked the court to question the witness.

The motion to have Faiman examined by Judge Thomas J. Lynch was opposed bitterly by William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, the defense attorneys, but Judge Lynch indicated that he would call Faiman, examine him and permit both prosecution and defense to crass examine him.

Delay Decision.

Decision on the matter was held in abeyance, however, until tomorrow morning. Counsel will be given further opportunity to cite precedents.

"If Mr. Crowe will say the witness is not worth y of belief I have no objection to the step," argued Stewart.

"I do not say that," stated the prosecutor. "It simply means the state does not vouch for him and does not wish to be bound by his testimony, that of a man jointly indicted with the defendant and a confessed accomplice who more than once has changed his story."

The defense argued that State's Attorney Crowe was not acting in good faith and that the prosecution hoped through the move to broaden its scope of questioning the man heretofore hailed as the state's "star" witness.

Prosecutor Crowe gave his reason for not wanting to have Faiman called as a state witness.

First Denied It.

"The witness at first denied to

PACKED COURT LISTENING TO SLEDGE CASE

Waurika Youth Goes To Trial on Assault Charge

JURY IS COMPLETED

First Evidence Introduced Wednesday Afternoon

WAURIKA, Okla., June 17.—The jury for the trial of Harry Sledge charged with assault in connection with the Ethel Sreywams case was completed at noon today and evidence started this afternoon. The court room has been packed even during the days when the jury was being selected, men, old and young, women of the same status, flappers with eager ears and eyes—all have been here, even the babies who are still in arms are present, hot, tired and fretful.

Despite Judge Pughs' request that women and children not attend they come in swarms, arriving early and staying through the noon hour, fearful of losing their vantage points.

Girl Not Embittered.

Ethel Sfreywaus is not embittered, she only wishes that it were all over and that she might go home hoping to be safeguarded in the future from anything like the experience that she is going to have to relate when called to the witness stand. Lilly Sreywaus, sister of Ethel, was called this afternoon and testified that she and her sister met Ted Elliott, Harry Sledge and Bill Brown, the latter introduced under the name of Smith, down town Saturday afternoon, February, 21. Later they came to the house where the girls were rooming and asked the girls to go driving with them. Lilly refused to go but Ethel accompanied them and they went to another part of town and got Billy Morrison, another girl, but failed to get a girl to accompany Harry Sledge. Later in the evening Ted Elliott came back to the room and asked Lilly to go with him to get Ethel. She refused but went with Chas Beckendorf out to the Sledge farm one-shalf mile north of Duncan where Ted Elliott told her Ethel would be found. Arriving there they found no one but Harry Sledge and Brown who informed them that Ethel had been gone one-half hour. She and Beckendorf went back to town to the sheriff's office where they secured an officer to go with them and went back again to the Sledge farm. Not finding Ethel they finally gave up the search and went home where about 11 o'clock at night Ted Eliott brought Ethel. She was not able to walk into the house and Lilly went out and assisted her into the house and to bed and called Dr. Don McGregor who came to render medical assistance. She described Ethel as being a mass of blood and beaten flesh. Cross examination sought, by indirect methods to improve the reputation of the witness.

Beckendorf Called.

Chas. Beckendorf was next called and his testimony bore out completely what had been testified to by Lilly.

The last witness for the day was Billy Morrison, the girl sho was with Ethel Sreywaus at the Sledge farm. She testified to events alleged to have taken place there.

The defense took up a line of attack on her character all of which she bitterly denied. Billy Morrison made a good witness for the state. She is a small Auburn haired girk self assured and positive in her statements. She will be called Thursday morning for a continuation of testimony and cross examination.

The jury in the case consists of Loy Stout, C. V. Easterling, Billy Slatton, R. C. Wright, Ed. Ewing, Geo. McKinley, H. C. Pryor, D. S. Lester, J. E. Byram, W. S. Hanks, Carl Kerby, and I. E. McKinley.

GIRLS TURNING NIGHT OWLS AT CAMPFIRE CAMP

Topsy-Turvy Night is Observed at Oklahoma Park

Wednesday night was "Topsy Turvy" night at the Campfire girls encampment at Craterville National park, Oklahoma, according to reports reaching Wichita Falls yesterday. Perhaps the most unique of all the campfire ceremonies was being undertaken, said these returning from the camp, that of turning night into day and day into night.

The girls were put to bed at 1 o'clock and allowed to sleep until 4, when they got up, went through their calisthenic drill just as if it were dawn and breakfast time rather than nearing sundown. And so on through the day's program, everything delayed about 10 to 12 hours, but being otherwise the same. The program was expected to end sometime after midnight with the usual story telling hour. The girls were to be allowed to sleep as late as they wanted to the next morning.

The morning was time of the "Treasure Hike," each girl following a trail to find a "treasure" of some sort or other. Tuesday night there was a gypsy trip, with a hike a mile or so away from camp, a night there, and two meals prepared away from the camp utilities.

There are some 85 girls in attendance at the camp, divided among Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Burkburnett, and Vernon, with about 20 girls from the latter place. The camp is in the charge of Miss Glenore Fisk, Wichita Falls Campfire executive.

Change Notion About Calomel; Now Delightful

Old-Style Calomel Gives Place to the De-Nauseated Tablets Known as "Calotabs."

With all of the liver-cleansing and system-purifying qualities of the old-style calomel, but robbed of its sickening and dangerous effects, Calotabs has become the most popular as well as the most useful of all home remedies. For biliousness, constipation and indigestion it is indispensable, for nothing but calomel will straighten out a disordered liver.

SHOOTING IS AFTERMATH OF ROAD FIGHT

Man's Fiancee Sees Him Mortally Wounded At Dallas

DALLAS, June 17.—Charges of murder were filed against Raymond Burton of Dallas after he had surrendered to authorities today following the shooting to death of Ferrell Bickers, 22 during a fight near here last night, witnessed, it was said, by some 26 of their friends who drove to the scene.

Among the witnesses was the 18-year-old fiancee of Bickers, who he was to wed Saturday. The first was said to have been the culmination of an old grudge.

A few minutes after Burton had got into one of the automobiles and left, friends of Bickers, including Miss Sargeant, returned to the scene, Miss Sargeant said. They found Bickers crumpled up on the ground. They called to him and he answered in a feeble voice from the roadside.

Bickers and Burton had previously had trouble and fought early last evening. Both were arrested and gave bond for their appearances in court.

They met again and agreed to continue their fight. Several automobile loads of their friends went with them. Witnesses said the two youths stripped to their waists and fought for some time. Bickers is said to have been getting the best of the fight, when his opponent said he wanted to rest. Burton went to his automobile, drew a pistol and began firing at Bickers. All the spectators fled. In half an hour Bickers' friends returned to find him lying wounded by the roadside. He was rushed to a hospital but it was too late. He died in a few minutes. His fiancee remained at his side until he died.

Yachts For Pleasure Not To Be Stopped, –Guard Fleet Head

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Frequent conflict between coast guard craft seeking rum runners and pleasure boats along the Atlantic coast has prompted Rear Admiral Billard, coast guard commandant to issue orders that vessels "which may be plainly recognized as yachts as craft psed solely for pleasure" are not to be stopped.

Admiral Billard at the same time issued an appeal to all American yachtsmen and owners of pleasure crafts to help the coast guard by "having nothing whatever to do with running tugs and motor boats" and by giving "due heed to coast guard vessels in their vicinity and by being alert to stop promytly when signaled to do so."

Wichitans Make Large Profit On Oil Stock Sales

Estimate Recent Raises Sell $1,000,000 Worth Here

TEXACO LEADS

Humble, Sinclair, Cosden, Marland, all Take Active Pace

A rise in the value of the leading oil stocks ranging from 24 points in two months on Humble stock to five and ten point increases on others of the leading oils has resulted in sales that according to estimates made by local brokers will aggregate something more than a million dollars in Wichita Falls alone.

These sales for the most part have occurred within the span of the last week or ten days following a spectacular raise in the leading oils, the raise generally regarded as a reflection of what is deemed a strong crude and refined market situation.

This influence succeeded in boosting market quotations on stocks, as for instance, Humble in something like two months went from 49 to 73; Texas Company from 43 to 54, with most of this raise coming in the last two weeks; Gulf showed a raise of from five to ten dollars a share, Standard of New Jersey about five dollars a share, Marland went from 34 to 45, Sinclair and Cosden also showed similar increases.

Oil stocks have long been a popular investment in North Texas, and with the big increase in their value in the past few days many have seen a quick way to realiz egood profit. While there is no accurate way of checking up on such sales the opinion has been expressed by one brokerage house that $1,000,000 is a conservative figure for Wichita Falls sales alone.

Texas Company stock leads, with Humble a close second so far as activity is concerned. One house reports 7,000 shares of Texaco sold at $4 profit a day or so ago, another a thousand shares of Humble from one man at a much large profit, and so on.

PIERCE PAYS 25

Pierce Petroleum Corporation has started to run 1,800 barrels a day or half the daily production of the Riverland Company in the new Riverland pool in Tulsa county, Oklahoma. The crude brought a 25-cent premium. Prairie is running the other half.

Superior denies the sale of 205,000 barrels of its Cromwell storage oil to the Kansas City Refining company at a fifteen cent premium. It states the offer was made but turned down.

Deep Kansas Well Starts Fishing As Lightning Strikes

Although it attained 5,306 feet, making it the deepest depth at which petroleum had been found in the Mid-Continent fields, the Watchorn Oil and Gas company No. 1 Morrison ranch, in the southeast corner of the northeast of the northeast of 20-32-21w, Clark county, Kansas, may never be completed.

Late last week a bolt of lightning struck the rig, setting it on fire. The destruction of the derrick allowed a string of tools and nearly 5,400 feet of wire drilling line to drop into the hole.

Robert Watchorn of Oklahoma City, head of the Watchorn company, has ordered a new rig built and a ticklish fishing job started.

Donald H. McIvor, oil reported on the Wichita Beacon, says that geologists last spring made a temperature test of the hole in the Wathcorn test and found that the reading at the bottom of the hole, which was then about a mile, was more than 150 degrees Fahrenheit. Scientists have been watching this test with a great deal of interest since it is the first time strategraphy in that section of Kansas has been explored.

The K. D. Oil company No. 1 White, in the northwest corner of the southeast of 1-22-2w, Noble county, is still making some oil from the Farmers' or Wilcox sand topped at 5,145 feet, but cavings in the hole are reducing the volume appreciably. The 24 hours ending Monday morning it made 100 barrels. The Champlin Refining company of Enid is laying a line to the new wildcat, which is the deepest producing well in Oklahoma and the Mid-Continent.

TEXACO SPENDS $1,000,000 AT PUTNAM-MORAN

Latest Purchase of Diller Pool Made For $250,000

CISCO, June 17.—The Texas company brought its purchases in the shallow district of Putnam and Moran to approximately $1,000,000 today with the taking over of the Leslie Spoonts, C. H. Choate, McCarter and associates holdsings on the Diller brothers ranch, consideration given at $250,000.

Both Spoonts and Choate are Fort Worth men who opened up a very prolific shallow pool at 540 to 565 feet in their first well in section 49, Lunatic Asylum lands, Shackelford county, six miles southwest of Moran and about the same distance northwest of Putnam.

Before the well in section 49 was completed for 250 barrels, the pool was a very small proposition of 10 to 25 barrels pere well. There are two other wells doing about the same as the discovery, some 150 barrels each. All have been brought in since June first.

A lease of 303 acres which contains six old wells and the three new ones produsing about 500 barrels, mostly flush, was taken over by the Texas company.

Oil Gossip

C. W. Clark has made a deal with the Panhandle Refining company on a tract of land on the Bishop farm southwest of the Norday well for $5,000 cash and a fifty-fifty on the oil.

Daniels and Rutls have their No. 1, Salmon, north Montague county, flowing into a thousand barrel tank now. It is possibly the only flowing well in the county. There is no outlet for hte oil and storage is necessary.

The Empire Gas & Fuel Company an dits affiiated companies has just cosed its third employees' Customer Ownership Campaign with the sale of more than 28,000 shares of Cities Service Preferred Stock. This is the largest sale of securities ever conducted by a Doberty organization and it is believed to be, by the officials of the company, a record for employees securities sales in any ten day period by any industrial or public utility organization in this country.

New Currie Pool

BARKLEY & MEADOWS No. 1 Hilborn, northeast of Currie and between Richland and Currie pools, east Central Texas, Woodbine sand district, Limestone county, is a 200-barrel well at 2,990 feet. It was the first of seevral tests in that immediate district to find oil, others having found only gas. It is defined by dry holes on every side but west, offset on the discovery lease, the lease to the north, and a north offset to the Magnolia lease by Shaw-Rathke-Green et al all being dry. The latest addition to the dusters is in Magnolia's No. 3, to the south. Although originally regarded as an extension of the Harmel pool, the dry holes cut it off from that area and established it as just a spot where a well or so might be obtained for the drilling.

EXPANSION OF THE SOUTH IN 60 YEARS

In sixty years the south has learned to compete with the modern world of industry on its own ground, says the National Bank of Commerce of New York in a survey of southern progress since 1830. In this time it is pointed out by the writers of the survey that an entire social system has been made over from an agricultural empire there has evolved a region of balanced development.

Cotton now serves both factory and farm. This is the foreword, "The south in sixty years has overcome the destruction and loss of devastating economic organization requires. In industry its full power is yet to be revealed."

"And then the survey continues that manufacturing has overtaken and far outstripped cotton growing in financial importance. According to the survey the cotton crop of 1860 almost equals the value of all manufactured goods at that time. Today the tables are turned. The total of products of southern industry in 1921 was almost six times the value of the average cotton crop from 1919 to 1923.

Again the survey says that the southern population still maintains more than its per capita shares of agriculture production. Thirty-eight per cent of the country's farm crop and animal products in 1923 came from the 16 southern states and over half the total number of American farms are in this section.

Speaking of rail development, the survey remarks that transportation paved the way for the southern industry revival. The repair of war time damage to trackage and equipment and the notable gain in mileage were the chief forword steps of the era of reconstruction. Now it is asserted the railroads of the south are meeting the needs of both industry and agriculture.

It is gratifying to be told that the basis of a well rounded economic development lies in a varied natural endowment. This survey says that climate, soil, water power, mineral and forest resources furnish materials for balanced agriculture and industry. And we are told the south has them all, and that beginning in 1905, the southern states have built up a vast hydro-electric power system connecting the resources of various sections.

Also that the total water power resources of the southern states form approximately one-seventh of the potential water power of the United States. Texas is a billion dollar agriculture state. Texas is a billion dollar manufacturing state. Texas leads all American states in its exports. Texas should be first.

COTTON NO LONGER RULES SUPREME.

In its survey of southern progress since 1860, the National Bank of Commerce of New York, declares that the south competes with the modern world of industry on its own ground, and cotton no longer rules supreme. Furthermore, the survey says the cotton textile industry is the most notable achievement of the industrial south, in 60 years, rightly heralded as the creation of southern inspiration and effort.

For instance, southern mills in all branches of the cotton industry produced an output value at more than $560,000,000.00 in 1921. This value represented in that year 42 per cent of the total output of cotton goods for the United States. In total yardage of woven goods the cotton growing states showed an output in 1921 which compared with New England's output as 4 to 3.

Again the survey says it was long doubted whether it was possible for the iron industry in the south to compare with other sections in steel making or in finished iron and steel products. As a contrast to the days when Birmingham pig iron was sold to steel mills in the middle western and northern states the survey says the time has arrived when freight cars and ships made in the south of southern steel carry finished product to the north, the west and over seas.

Authoritative estimates, according to the survey, show that the southern output supplied about one-half of the steel products for local needs. This is the conclusion from a survey of southern progress.

"The most obvious conclusion from a survey of southern industries is that they are, with few exceptions, actively expanding. Not alone the major industries, but a whole range of minor ones contribute to the expansion. Railroad and power systems are being used to the limit of their capacity. Construction of factories and office buildings gives further proof of growth. It is difficult to cite any resource of the south which is not now being used to some extent."

Texas has vast beds of undeveloped iron ore. Texas has vast beds of undeveloped lignite. Texas has vast reservoirs or lakes of natural gas. Texas has mountains of the finest granite and marble in America. Texas is the largest producer of cotton and wool. Texas has many rivers and streams unharnessed patiently waiting for the control of man.

Now why shouldn't Texas be the greatest of all manufacturing states? It is coming some day.

MAKING MILWAUKEE FAMOUS.

Milwaukee in the days of old, manufactured a beverage that made it famous. Now a district attorney has discovered that Milwaukee has 2500 saloons, and he is going to ask the court to place a padlock on every saloon building in the city.

Milwaukee is wet; Wisconsin is wet, all the senators and representatives are wet, most of the state officers are wet, and two-third of the voters are wet.

Regardless of all this, Milwaukee has a district attorney who swears that he is going to enforce the Volstead act or know the reason why.

TEXAS WHEAT YIELD.

A Texas miller says the wheat crop of 1925 will not go beyond 6,000,000 bushels. Yes, but there is a vast difference between the price of wheat in 1925 and the selling price that the growers received in 1924. In 1923 Texas produced a crop of 2,000,000 bushels. In 1924 18,000,000 bushels. Texas will have to send to other states this year and next until the harvest of 1026 comes in for millions of bushels of wheat.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

What Is Ambition?

"I am ambitious," says the young man. "I want to get along. I want to make something of myself."

For this sentiment he is to be applauded.

Without ambition he would be a rather useless member of society.

In his advancement he cannot help to do something for others—up to a certain point.

But ambition to do something useful, to achieve reputation, perhaps fame, is one thing.

Ambition to be known as having done something good, whether one has or not, is quite another matter.

And if we consider the various ambitions that have profoundly affected the history of the world we find that in many cases ambition can be defined as selfishness, and not much else.

Such was the ambition of Napoleon, who did not hesitate to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of lives in order that he might have despotic power over most of Europe.

Such is the ambition of many men who are now in politics, who think a dozen times about themselves, while they are thinking once about the public good, and who do not care what they do for the people so long as they can keep the people persuaded that they are public benefactors.

Most people who have worked for their living have seen selfish thrusting energetic persons who thrust themselves forward irrespective of how they trampled down others, and who never hesitate to desert those who had helped them up the ladder, if it happened to serve their interests.

This is not ambition, it is selfish meanness—petty determination—to get along, no matter at what expense.

The ambition that made Robert Louis Stevenson a great writer, despite ill health and adverse circumstances was a high and a noble ambition.

Stevenson, in his rise, hurt nobody.

There are many men in public life who seek and hold office solely because they believe they can do something for their countries.

Their ambitions are the right sort.

But the ambition that is born of greed for power or wealth has always exercised a sinister influence, whether it has been exerted in politics or in private life.

When a man tells you he is ambitious, ask him what he wants to become, and in his answer you may get his measure.

If he wants to be the head of the nation, or the head of some great financial power merely because in such a position people will look up to him, and talk about him, he is not ambitious, but merely greedy.

Such was the ambition of Macbeth, of Iogo, and of dozens of other characters in the plays of the man who knew more about ambition and human nature than any other writer—William Shakespeare.

But when a man says he wants to add to the world's knowledge, or its comfort, or its understanding of life and living, his ambition deserves only the highest praise.

A PERSONAL APPOINTMENT.

President Coolidge does not always consult the political leaders of his party in the naming of public servants. He picked William B. Mitchell of Minnesota to be solicitor general of the United States to succeed James M. Beck, recently resigned.

James M. Beck is one of the able lawyers and writers of America. He was born and reared and educated to be democratic, but he quit the democratic drive because of the socialist tendencies of his party. This some years ago. William D. Mitchell is a former law partner of Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the Supreme Court and Washington correspondents say that he is regarded as an independent republican with former democratic tendancies.

He has been a successful lawyer and a successful soldier when the services of a soldier were needed. He had been looked upon as a democrat by his friends, but in the campaign of 1924 he deserted Davis and Bryan and supported Coolidge and Dawes.

He has always been active in military affairs and at one time commanded the Minnesota State Militia, and in 1917 he was in charge of the state troops during a street car strike in St. Paul and restored order without firing a shot.

James M. Beck had hoped to be given a place on the supreme bench or sent to the court of St. James as ambassador from the United States. President Coolidge blasted his hopes, and then Beck handed in his resignation.

As a fence builder, President Coolidge has no superior. He is preparing for 1928. He knows what he wants and he thinks he knows how to get it.

A COOLIDGE PLATITUDE

In addressing the naval graduating class, President Coolidge remarked that each citizen should be ready to take his place when duty calls. He was speaking of war. Five million American boys, the flower of American manhood, in the not distant past, responded when duty called. There hasn't been a time in American history when Americans did not respond.

There are times when the president makes use of the punch. There are times when he deals in glittering platitudes.

He has had plain sailing thus far, but wait until he has a new congress on his hands. Then he will be given the acid test. Politicans gave Wilson the acid test; they gave Harding the acid test. Truth is they have given all presidents the acid test, beginning with George Washington and the acid test has broken many a proud spirit, willing to do his whole duty as chief executive of this republic.

IN FOR A LICKING.

Vice-president Charles G. Dawes, is crusading the country over calling for a revision of the rules of the senate. He is a heroic personage, a regular bull in the china closet. He should know that the American senate is dominated by individuals who are opposed to what they call unwise legislation. Senate rules enables the opponents of unwise legislation to talk to death bills which they regard as unincapable to the business interests of the country.

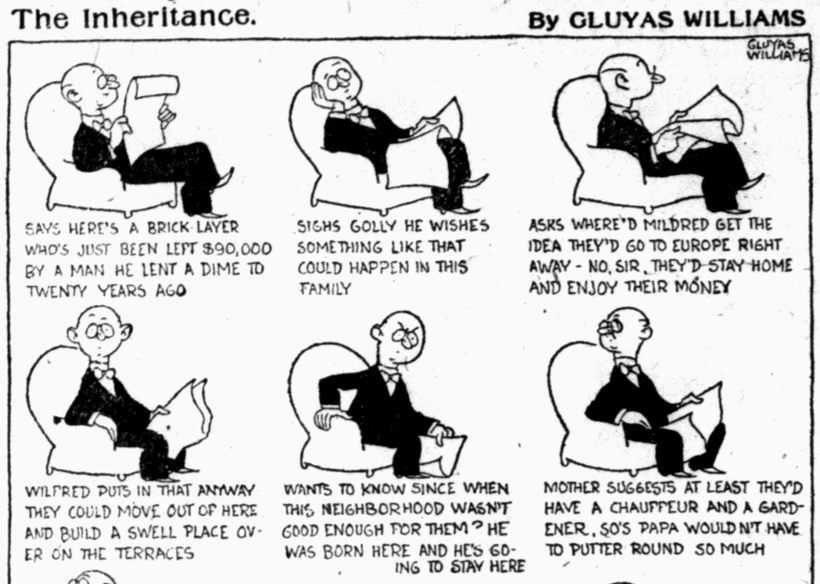

Vice president Dawes is in for a sound licking. There is only one of the 44 democratic senators who will vote to change to senate rules, and two-thirds of the republican senators are violently opposed to a change.

A very successful financier and business man is General Charles G. Dawes, but the politicians in the American senate are not going to dismont when the Vice-president issues an order. They are going to place him in the same old cage and it is up to him to take his medicine gracefully or resign.

He will not resign. Presidents sometimes die.

Potash & Perlmutter Discuss North Pole and Four Point Four Flying

—By Montague Glass

"Yes, Mawruss," Abe Potash remarked the other day, "the time is not far distant when even timid fellers like you and me will be held up some Sunday afternoon by a traffic cop on a monoplane coming from behind a cloud and saying: 'Why didn't you stop when I held out my hand?' And it won't make no difference if we give him an excouse that we couldn't see him on account of two tri-planes and a dirigible being in the way, y'understand, we would be fined fifty dollars next morning in the traffic court ANYWAY."

"Maybe you're right," Morris Perlmutter observed, "but if the garment business don't improve any in the next few years and monoplanes was $200 f. o. b. detroit, y'understand, I couldn't afford a box kite."

"Just the same, Mawruss, the fact they can afford them nor not, won't prevent people from buying aeroplanes any more than it stops them from buying automobiles," Abe said, "because day by day, Mawruss, flying in aeroplanes is looking less like suicide and more like amusement on account of being made safer. In fact, Mawruss, over in Europe they've got regular aeroplane service between London and Paris and between Holland and England with a percentage of mortality no higher than appendicitis and a lot less than typhoid fever, and now I see where a company has been formed to run a daily passenger aeroplane between New York at nine o'clock in the morning and arrive in Chicago in time to be in on auction pinochle game at half past seven that same evening, and if that ain't progress, I don't know what is."

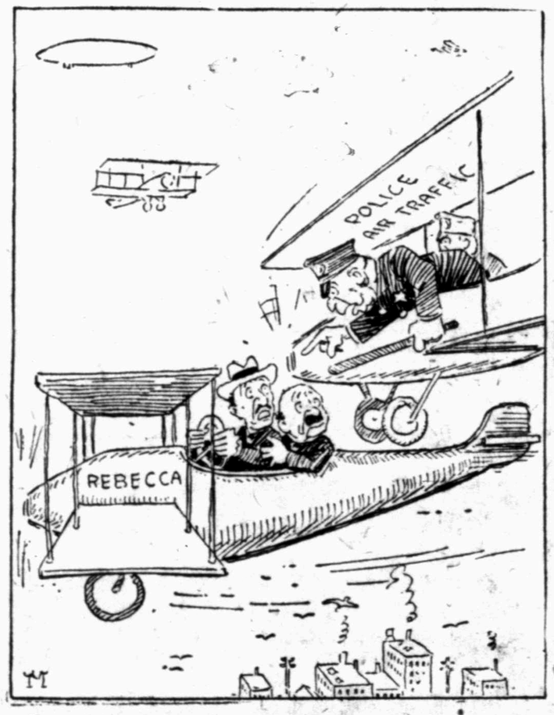

"That's what I say," Morris agreed. "All this here speed in railroad, automobile and aeroplane transportation in a big mapority of cases only results in a loafer being able to waste his time more quickly. Formerly it used to take him twenty-six hours before a traveling salesman could leave his home in New York and behave like a low life in Chicago. A few years ago, the railroads begun to make better time, and by charging up in his expense account eight dollars extra fare, a traveling salesman with a wife and children in New York, could arrive in Chicago in plenty of time to take a blonde dress buyer out to lunch and a matinee afterward, and end up by booking the same size order that he used to get before the twenty-hour Limiteds started to run."

"Sure I know," Abe said. "but in matters like this, Mawruss, you should ought to look on the bright side of things, which if popular priced aeroplanes are ever going to be manufactured, it ain't going to help things if the inventor gets discouraged by thinking how many people are going to be fined twenty-five dollars for parking monoplanes within 10 feet of a fire hydrant. Furthermore, Mawruss, the general use of aeroplanes for pleasure flying ain't going to be stopped by manufacturers figuring on how to prevent aeroplane owners from crashing on account of one arm driving."

All Aboard For Ontario

"Say!" Morris exclaimed. "For that matter, it's always more profitable to invent something for pleasure instead of business. What puts the real big money into improving radio machines, is not the stock market reports or S. O. S.-s from sinking steamers, but such nonsense as supper music by the Paragon Harmony Jazz Octette and pre-breakfast music from a night club which escaped getting padlocked by the Federal district attorney. So therefore, Abe, I look to see amateur flying get onto a quantity-production basis from the fact that a bi-plane can leave New York at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and land its passengers in the first Ontario town west of Buffalo, New York, in time for a half past seven dinner with four-point-four beer."

"Well, why not?" Abe asked. "After all, Mawruss, if a popular priced aeroplane manufacturer is going to rely on the demand for his product which comes from people who are figuring on carrying diptheria antitoxin by air into a snowed-up Alaska settlement, y'understand, his output would be quite limited. The same thing applies to prospective customers who expect to fly to the North Pole for the purpose of proving up what Admiral Peary reported when he went there by dog sleighs. But on the other hand, even if aeroplanes ain't made so safe as all that y'understand, a man with a thirst stands a much better chance of escaping with his life by flying to Montreal when he's in need of Scotch whiskey than by buying it from a New York bootlegger delivered right in his apartment while he is no higher up in the air than Washington Heights or even Murray Hill. In fact there must be thousands of courageous people who would sooner take a chance on cheap aeroplanes than on cheap Scotch, even though you and I are willing to pass both of them up as bein too risky."

"Why Didn't You Stop When I Held Out My Hand?"

"Then in that case, Abe," Morris said, "it ain't unlikely that just so soon as Mr. Ford or any other automobile manufacturer, perfects a cheap aeroplane and gets onto quantity production for the four-point-four beer tourists in New York and Boston, y'understand, Congress would slip over an amendment to the Volstead Act, and they would put padlocks on aeroplane factories."

Will Develop Skilled Fliers.

"And even if they didn't put padlocks on the factories, there would always be a certain amount of risk in buying aeroplanes for four-point-four flying," Morris contiued. "Here only a few years ago, Abe, Mr. Bryan wanted Congress to pass an act that if an American went to Europe and drank the wine of the country, which ranges all the way from dry martinas to straight Scotch, he would automatically lose his citizenship and wouldn't even be allowed to come back to America under the quota of the country where he got shikker. So therefore, Abe, the chances is that General Andrews has already got plans for organizing a government air fleet to shoot down returning four-point-four air tourists anywheres between Niagara Falls and Rouses Point."

"Maybe Mr. Ford could make such aeroplanes bullet proof at that, Mawruss," Abe suggested, "and anyhow, Mawruss, it would be bound to train up a large quantity of fearless American flyers for the next war who could outfly European flyers, even if the European flyers was perfectly sober and the Americans only ninety-five-point-six sober and four-point-four otherwise."

"Well then why not cinch the matter and make it impossible through a constitutional amendment for an American to smoke except by flying to Canada for his tobacco?" Morris said. "That would make Americans absolutely at home in the air, if nowheres else."

"Maybe it would, but that's the big mistake that Mr. Bryan and his friends make," Abe concluded. "They've got an idea that Americans are men with the spirit of a dicky bird."

Irrigation

The Best Type of Dam at Lake Kemp

One of our citizens recently returned from a trip through the western states. On account of his interest in our irrigation project he made it a point to visit several irrigated areas.

In every case he found that where the source of supply was from a reservoir the waters were impounded by a concrete dam.

Concrete in a dam has an air of massive permancy and infinite durability which an earthen dam seldom has.

This gentleman is now inclined to critize the dam at Lake Kemp as perhaps not being the best type of structure. He just happened to run across concrete dams in his travels and had he investigated further he would have found many other dams built of earth.

There is no best type of dam. It all depends upon the conditions at the dam site. If there is but little earth, lots of rock, and a good foundation a rock dam is practicabl. If it is comparatively easy to deliver cement at the dam site and there is plenty of concrete aggregate then a concrete dam would probably be selected as the most fitting.

Conditions at the Lake Kemp dam site were such that the hydraulic fill type was undoubtedly the cheapest and best.

As for permenancy if an earthen dam is built with adequate spillway it is practically everlasting.

More Truth Than Poetry

POETRY FOR THE PEOPLE

Do not fear to face a fact;
Tell the truth!
Let your statements be exact;
Tell the truth!
If a man whom you abhor
Asks you what you dodge him for,
Say: "Because you're such a bore!"
Tell the truth!

Of all quibbling make an end,
Tell the truth!
When a concert you attend,
Tell the truth!
Say to Mrs. Jones, "How sad
That your singing is so bad,
Honestly it drives me mad!"
Tell the truth!

When the folks next door drop in,
Tell the truth!
Say you have a case of gin—
Tell the truth!
But observe, "It's not my aim
To regale you with the same,
Though I know that's why you came,"
Tell the truth!

Though your friends all leave you flat,
Tell the truth!
Though avoided like a rat,
Tell the truth!
Lone forsaken and forgot,
Pitiful will be your lot,
Which of course is why you'll not
Tell the truth!

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

THE YOUNG MAN WHO IS PURSUED BY LOVELORN DAMSELS—WHY IT PAYS A GIRL TO KEEP HER KISSES FORHER FIANCE—HOW CAN AN EMBARRASSED GIRL FEEL AT HOME WITH BOYS?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man making not enough money to support a family. But I have been keeping company with two girls, both of whom want to marry me.

One girl is at work and makes a fairly good salary, and she says we could get by if we married, as she would continue to work. And when I tell her that I do not want to marry this way, she gets peeved and says I don't care as much for her as I say I do. The other girl is in high school. Recently I told her that I was not coming to see her any more, and she cried as if her heart would break. She could not attend school, and continued crying until she became so ill that they had to call in a physician and I had to go back to see her to save her life.

I am very much troubled and can't decide between the two girls. What shall I do?? FRED.

Answer—A man who has the fascination for the female sex that you have, Fred is too dangerous to be permitted to roam around loose. You should be locked up in monastery or somewhere where you could not break so many susceptible hearts.

Considering your own personal safety, I should say that your only salvation is in flight, for certainly one or the other of the lovelorn damsels will get you if you don't watch out.

If you are not making enough money to support a wife and don't know which one of the two girls you prefer, obviously you are no fit candidate for matrimony. A wife and a home are expensive luxuries in these days of the high cost of loving and living, and no man is justified in undertaking them until he has the price.

A man has to think a whole lot of a woman and believes she is the greatest thing in the world before he can enjoy spending his hardearned dollars on her instead of himself. He can't do it gracefully and graciously for a wife who has forced herself on him and who has rushed him into matrimony before he was ready for ti.

And don't count too surely on your wife helping out on earning the family living affter you are married. Many firms won't employ married women, and a girl loses her job when she takes a husband. And generally there are babies, you know, which put an end to a girl working out of her home.

So that's that about No. 1.

As for your schoolgirl crybaby, tut, tut, tut, my boy! It is an old trick. Thousands of men who tried to break away from women that they didn't love have had their backbones melt down in a gush of tears and have been led to the altar. It flatters a man's vanity so to have a woman cry for him that he hasn't the nerve to resist. And women know this, and trade upon it. Don't worry about the girl dying for love of you. They never do.

So my advice is to wait until you are older, until you have more money and know which one of all the women in the world you want for a wife before you marry. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Is there any sense in the old fashioned way of not kissing a man until he asks you to marry him? If a girl tried to apply that in real life, would she find herself deserted and labeled as a prune, a dead one? Why can't a girl enjoy a man's company and his love making without any more intention of marrying than he has? Of course, I don't advocate that this sort of mushing should keep on for any length of time, but just until a girl meets her real mate, or until she tires of her sheik. A man will enjoy a girl's society until he gets bored with her; why shouldn't a girl do the same? CURIOUS.

Answer—Kissing isn't a matter of "sense." It is a question of decency and delicacy, and to a person of refined sensibilities there is nothing more repulsive and shocking than the thought of a girl letting herself be pawed over by every chance acquaintance and her lips being free to the many who care to take them.

Electra Officer to Serve Pen Sentence Appeal Is Denied

J. S. Phillips, former justice of peace at Electra, must serve a two-year penalty imposed on him in a district court last summer for collecting fines from couples parked on the highway, as the result of a decision handed down by the court of criminal appeals, denying his appeal on two exceptions.

The appeal amounted in the main to a test case of roadside parking, in that it brought it under the scrutiny of the higher court. The opinion, written by Judge E. A. Berry of the commission of appeals and adopted by the main court, stated that the couple parked on the side of the road were violating no known law and consequently were not subject to arrest.

Phillips was convicted here for having arrested a young man and young woman by the side of the road near Electra and collected a $7 fine from them, without authorization, as the jury in the case decided.

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Norfolk, Virginia. — "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up ever getting well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicines I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is." — Mrs. J. A. JONES, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

The GILDED ROSE

CHAPTER 69.
A Rendezvous.

"Briscoe was censured at the inquest," continued the young man briefly. "There were callous letters he had written—and then the girl's parting message to him—"

"And you mean that he has been trying to influence Rosilyn?" Mrs. Ridgeway's face was anxious. "I thought he was making himself rather conspicuous in dancing attendance on her—but you were away so much—and she is young and ignorant—that cliff adventure seemed odd, though I'd trust Rosilyn's integrity to the uttermost."

Her son's face had a shamed look.

"I've been a fool. And worse. I see that now, when it's maybe too late. I—oh, it's difficult to express—but I'm fond of her—I'm not nearly good enough for a girl like Rosilyn—if I only had a second chance—"

The mother's heart leaped with a new hope.

"And Lydia Harbrook" Her voice was gentle and sympathetic now. "Is all that over and done with, Landis. Rosilyn is worth a hundred Lydias."

"I know she is. I've been blind as a bat. She can't respect me."

"She loves you, Landis. You've made her suffer, but I know she loves you still. And she has a splendid, noble nature. She could have ruined Lydia Harbrook, but she wouldn't stoop to such a thing."

"I don't quite understand." The young man had a puzzled air.

Mrs. Ridgeway hesitated, then she said:

"It will be a shock to you to hear that Lydia drugs. A syringe was found in her bedroom, and then cocaine. It was cocaine, because I took the packet to the drug store, and the druggist proved it was. Besides, have you ever noticed the tiny marks on Lydia's arms? Have you ever wondered at her unflagging gaiety, when gaiety is an asset. Have you ever marked the uncanny brilliance of her eyes, and the way she looks at one and almost through one, at certain times? Then her reactions? Lydia can go as flat as a pricked balloon. And she seems to be losing the ethical distinction between right and wrong."

Landis was stunned.

"Lydia—drugs? It's unbelievable."

Mrs. Ridgeway said:

"Rosilyn discovered her in the very act. But it was not till I myself found out, that the child even admitted the truth about Lydia. It was noble, though mistaken, of Rosilyn to shield her, considering that Lydia's manner towards the child, and Lydia's appropriation of yourself, and Lydia's insolence, have been unbearable.

Landis almost groaned aloud, in heaviness of spirit.

The deed was done now. Rosilyn, his girl-wife—gone!

"Have you no idea of her whereabouts, mother, I'd take the car at once—"

"She merely stated in her note, which arrived this morning, that she had gone off with old Annie for a holiday somewhere, and would send her address later. I've a conviction, Landis, that the child is wounded to the heart, and like all hurt creatures, wants to hide herself for a while. I don't blame her."

"Nor do I. I only blame myself. And—" with sudden heat—"I blame that swine Briscoe. He's turned her against me. He's—"

"Steady. Be honest, Landis. Wasn't your own behavior sufficient in itself to change Rosilyn towards you, if it were possible she should be changed? She's staunch and loyal and sincere."

"But she's ignorant of the world and trusting. And a man like Briscoe—"

"Then get after Briscoe. Not that you can possibly think he's with Rosilyn."

"He's capable of anything. The inquest sort of woke me up to the fact that I've tolerated men about the place I never ought to have introduced either to you or Rosilyn. I've been damned careless and selfish."

His mother touched him on the arm with a gesture of affection that was rare in her.

"Come, come, Landis! It isn't too late yet!"

Like a man possessed, he strode out of the house so beautifully decorated with his wife's money, following a blind instinct that might lead him to her.

In the lobby of Lydia's hotel he faced the erstwhile charmer.

"Don't snap my head off, Landis! I've nothing to do with this affair! Surely you're capable of looking after your own wife yourself, without trying to hope me in as nursemaid!" And Lydia's lips curled insolently.

He glared at her in wrath. Was this cold, callous creature the warm, flesh-and-blood woman he had once loved madly?

But the spell was broken now. The scales were lifted from his eyes, and he saw her in true colors.

"Have you any idea where Rosilyn is?" he rapped out like a pistol shot.

Lydia put her two hands to her ears in pretended dismay.

"Don't shout at me!" Then she added, with malice:

"Maybe I've a fair idea where your wife is, maybe I've more than a fair idea that she's not alone?"

"Speak out! But don't insult her!"

"S-sh! Don't create a scene! Where are your manners?"

"Manners be blowed! What do you know? Out with it!"

Lydia led him to a more secluded corner, and proceeded with maddening deliberation, to light a cigarette.

He refused one, watching her with an almost positive dislike. The reaction against her influence had been absolute. She realized it.

She would hurt him all she could.

"I won't beat about the bush. But don't murder me! It's Rupert Briscoe you ought to get after. He's the snake in the grass, if you only knew it."

"Well" Landis' hands were trembling, as though he yearned to get them on Briscoe's throat.

Lydia lowered her voice discreetly. "I'm not supposed to know about it, but from something Rupert said only a day or so ago, he's more than a little bit interested in your wife. And I'm afraid, strange as it may seem to a husband of your charm! (though of course these fascinations haven't been leveled much in her direction, have they-) that your wife reciprocates Briscoe's interest."

"You lie!" said Landis, in her very face. "You lie."

Lydia laughed shrilly. She rose.

"Go down to the Marshland inn, you fool, and you'll find them both together there! Then give me the lie direct again! I know what I know, and your precious wife is—"

But Landis, like a man demented, had traversed the lounge in two strides to the exit, and was gone.

EMERSON WAS RIGHT

"Confidnce," Emerson once explained, "comes from having done the thing before." Some fortunate beings, it seems, are born with the quality, and no amount of poundings and reverses can disperse it. Most of us, however, generally start life in a spasm of quirks and fears and achieve serenity of mind only after having "done the thing before." Once having "turned the trick" the shadows of uncertainty disappear. After a while, when the business of achieving becomes monotonous, some even fancy they could perform miracles with their peepers shut. It is a strange transition—from the clammy, calamitous state of mind to cast-iron conceit.

However, to roam back to the subject of confidence. In the affairs of the ring, where one cannot glitter without it, confidence often comes from having beaten one good man. At any rate, there have been innumerable cases of boxers who, starting their fistic careers in trepidation, have wound up champions. Not, however, without the gladdening of the heart which comes from "having done the thing before." Or, more familiarly speaking, from having "done up" some gladiator of note who was worth "doing up."

GREB DID IT

Just now every one seems to be interested in the sudden rise to Queensberry glory of Gene Tunney, and in the explanation of his swift catapaulting from semi-obscurity to headline after headline in the sporting prints. Tunney changed, practically over night, from a listless, uncertain pugilistic in-and-outer to a fighting man of poise, power and heavyweight championship possibility. Whence cometh this unexpected will and talent to conquer the most formidable ringsters of his day—even unto the king. Dempsey?

It wasn't so long ago that Tunney did lack the requisite confidence of a champion fighting man. This, too, despite the fact that he never failed, barring once, to whip the man who opposed him. Gene was too intelligent not to understand that the third and fourth raters he humbled meant very little when the exploits of a Dempsey were considered. Whipping the pushovers instilled but a small measure of confidence in him. So little, in fact, that he had no burning desire aroused to go after bigger game.

For a long time Tunney refused offers to meet the tougher ones, even though hazardous "shots" meant considerably more to him financially. This state of mind continued until Tunney had taken the measure of his first good man—until he had "done the thing before." After the Greenwich Villager had given the fearsome Harry Greb such a thorough thrashing in their third battle there came a great change in the Tunney fighting front.

Then He Dumped Carp and Tom

He figured, and rightly so, that he must have been "good" to have defeated such a doughty ring type as Greb—a boxer, many have calculated, who would have given even Dempsey a busy time for eight or ten rounds. From that time on Gene Tunney's rise, his remarkable improvement, was patent to all who viewed his displays. There was nothing panicky in his ring technique. He boxed with the air of one who knew what he was about. There was a new determination in his demeanor, too—a pleasant conceit that permitted no opponent's fame no matter how great, to disturb his equilibrium. The masterly fashion in which he manhandled the supposedly dangerous Carpentier, and finally dispatched him, was but an inkling of the Tunney still to come. The Carpentier victory increased Tunney's faith in himself, and the result was the brilliant, unexpected knockout of Tom Gibbons.

MEANER THAN EVER NOW

The knowledge that he has beaten three of the outstanding boxers of his day—Greb, Carpentier and Gibbons—has accordingly heightened Tunney's faith in himself three-fold. He is three times as dangerous as he ever was, which makes him amply fitted to combat anyone in the world. That includes Harry Wills and Jack Dempsey.

Jack Johnson and Jess Willard, in their struggles to the championship, went through something of the same sharpening of the confidence that Tunney did. Johnson, in the nine years he consumed before snaring the highest honors of pugilism, suffered many reverses. Jack fought in fits and starts. At times he performed like a champion. And almost equally he often looked like a confirmed third-rater.

Jess Willard at the start was probably the crudest specimen, the least confident fighter, that ever won the championship. In 1911, his first year, Williard actually jumped out of the ring in a bout with big Joe Cox. A year later Jess, after beating Luther McCarty and knocking out Sailor White and Soldier Kearns, lost a decision to Gunboat Smith. Jess spent most of the time running away from his smaller opponent, after sampling one of the Gunner's "occipitals." Even a year later, after beating Carl Morris, One Round Davis and Boer Rodel, the last two by knockouts, Willard still lacked class enough to whip Middleweight Bearcat McMahon. McMahon even trimmed the Kansas Giant out of a 12-round verdict.

After that Willard knocked out Dan Dailey and Boer Rodel. This paltry glory must have had an inspiriting effect on Jess, though. In his next battle he knocked out Jack Johnson, and won the championship of the world.

HOME RUN BY TANNER UNTIES KNOT IN EIGHTH THEN DUTCH BERNSEN POLES ONE IN NINTH

Hit Batsman, Walk, and Single by Bubber Jonnard Knocks Over Winning Run in Final Frame

Turgeon walked in the eighth stanza. Then with two away, Distel singled sharply to center, and Skipper Bud Tanner followed on the next ball pitched with a smashing home run over the port barrier to overtake a Beaumont lead and jump one marker out front Wednesday at the Spudder plant. Manager Dutch Bernsen, pinch-hitting, led off in the Beaumont ninth with an explosive drive over the same wall, tying the count, but a hit batsman, a walk, and high-powered one-baser slapped between short and third by Bubber Jonnard in the domestic portion of the round sent Freddy Dorman scurrying across the pan with the necessary margin. Wichita Falls took the series' second, and exciting slugging affair from the cellar habitues, 10-9.

An even dozen round base busts including a pair of three-baggers and a double by Leach, Dutch's homer, and the staging of a double and a triple play were not sufficient to win for the Exporters. However, poor base running came near to upsetting the Harvey entry. But the Spudders slammed a total of 16 safeties, three of which were of the non-stop variety, two doubles, and a triple. Distel, Turgeon, and Tanner punched the ticket for an unhampered voyage. Fitzgerald connected for the triple. Jonnard and Dorman whopped the two-baggers.

That Triple Play

That three-ply killing at the expense of our noble Spudders came in the fifth chukker. Fitzgerald had poled his three-cushioner. Dorman drew a pass. Then Golvin slammed a line to right field. Freddy was off in a hurry, so was Ormand. The Beaumont right fielder sprinted in, made a daring ankle snare of the drive, recovered and launched a perfect throw to first, Kirke snagged the pill, doubling Dorman off, pivoted and shot 'er to Pinto at the plate to cut away Fitz who had scampered for home on Ormand's chunk to the initial station.

She was a topsy-turvy frolic, first one club and the other climbing on top.

Bob Osborn started on the hill for Tanner, but gave way in the sixth to Williams. Carl gets credit for the victory. Lefty Gus Forman opened for the Shippers. He went out in the fourth. Lefty Larry Pinto assumed the pitching role. O'Neal hurled the ninth round, getting credit (or discredit) for the loss.

Shippers Score First

Ormand and Woehr led away in the first stanza with singles, and Leach followed with a line drive to left that Tanner muffled, choking the runways. Kirke forced Leach at second, Ormand checking in. Bob passed Taylor, but Deviveros fouled out to Golvin just off first, and Metz bounded out to Turgeon. Distel evened the count in the Spudder portion of the round with a four-base blast to port. Buddy hoisted out to Metz at second. Bodie singled between short and third, but quick work by the right side of the Exporter inner works on bouncer by Fitzgerald retired the side, Metz scooping up the ball, tossing to Deviveros at the keystone, cutting Ping away, and Deviveros bulleting the sphere to Kirke at first to double Fitz.

Hale, first up in the Beaumont second, walked. Foreman flied out to left, and Ormand hit into a glossy double killing, Golvin to Distel to Golvin. The Spudders unbalanced accounts by coming in for two runs. Dorman slapped a crackling one-baser between short and third. Golvin grounded to the box and Foreman threw to second after Freddy, but Deviveros dropped the ball. Turgeon forced Golvin at second. Jonnard singled to right center, sending Dorman across. Osborn struck out, and Distel singled down third base way, scoring Turgeon. Tanner aviated to center.

Beaumont narrowed the margin in the third on a walk and lusty wallop down the first base line for three cushions by Leach. Kirke whiffed. Turgeon raced over to spear with his meat hand rifle crack by Taylor, and threw the runner out at first. Leach hugged third. Deviveros walked, and was forced at second by Metz.

Gus Goes Out

Beaumont took a momentary lead in the fourth on single by Hale, infield out, base on balls, and double on a line over short by Leach. The blow sent two runners across. But the Spudders reared back, clawed Foreman from the hurling eminence before the couplet was finished, and scored three. Golvin was issued a four-ball coupon, and then Pete Turgeon dynamited a rocket far into the wilderness back of left field. It was the wee one's fifth homer in four days. Bubber Jonnard, fiery Spud backstop, followed with a blast to port for two bases. Osborn expired at the plate, Distel sent Jonnard over with a single past second. Bernsen pulled Foreman, and Pinto inherited the chunking chores. Tanner and Bodie hoisted to the outer regions.

The Beaumont gentry exported enough runners around the paths in the fifth to knot the tabulaton again. Bingles by Taylor, Metz, and Ormand coupled with an error at second and an infield out scored the two runs, bringing the count to 6-6.

That triple play held the Spuds from the scoring counter in the last half of the fifth. Then in the sixth, Bernsen crew forged a marker out front. Two errors, an infield out, a walk, and a single by Metz scored the tally and proved the sudden demise of Osborn. Williams clambered onto the dome with two and a pair on. Pinto hoisted to Fitz.

Ormand combed a single to right off Williams in the seventh and counted when Leach immediately rifted another three-base liner down the starboard foul boundary.

FORT WORTH 2-5; HOUSTON 1-16

FORT WORTH, June 17.—(AP)—The Cats and Buffaloes split a twin bill here today, the champions taking the first after a hard battle, 2 to 1, and dropping the second, 16 to 5. Johns and Benge hooked up in a great hurling duel in the opener, the former allowing but one hit and the latter three. Davis' home run with one aboard gave the leaders their two runs. Wachtel was pounded unmercifully in the first inning of the nightcap when the Buffs scored 10 runs and cinched the game. Head replaced him but was ineffective also. The score:

DALLAS 8-7; SAN ANTONIO 4-3

DALLAS, June 17.—Dallas took both ends of a double-header today, defeating San Antonio 8 to 7 and 4 to 3. The Bears staged a five-run rally during the ninth inning in the opener to tie the score, only to lose in the Dallas half when Watt filled the bases and Collard tried for an out at first instead of the plate. Gross' terrific hitting featured the two games. The scores:

Heydler Plasters A $100 Fine On Rogers

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—(AP)—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals will be fined $100 and Manager Art Fletcher of the Phillies $50 for their dispute in yesterday's game, President John A. Heydler of the National league announced late today.

Heydler said that in refraining from imposing a suspension he had borne in mind Hornsby's previous excellent record for peacefulness, also the hotness of the day which was not inductive to good temper.

YOU KNOW ME AL —By Ring Lardner

Jimmy Shipley broke into the Ludlam and Riggs lineup Tuesday in center field. On Gabe Harris' long triple he started for town at the crack of the bat and hit a runt in the ground. His ankle was twisted and he had to leave the game. Skinny Griffin took his place in center field.

* * *

According to Andy Taylor, the Travelers are looking forward to a fourth of July trip to Stamford for a two-game series. Why not take Hoop Cannon along? That is his home town and he might give some pointers on the home town boys' weaknesses.

Texhoma and American Today They're Tied for First Half Honors

Texhoma and Americans today. It will probably be Ronie Glidewell and Choc Thompson on the hillock. This should produce a lot of thrills and just enough snappy plays to be exciting.

* * *

Skipper Medford was asking questions the other day about young Dick Gordon, Grace Methodist star. Must be seeking new material for his nine.

* * *

Len Smith, Ludlam and Riggs utility player, failed to bring out any sort of a first baseman's mitt to the game Tuesday and trotted out on the initial hassock with a catcher's pad. This was soon discarded, however, for a finger glove. Gabe Harris was also using a finger glove on the same sack. Both put up a merry battle there, considering each is a pitcher.

In That Tuesday Game.

Lee Courtney was all grins when Jimmy Parker raced over into right center to spear Highfill's line drive. To back this up Jimmy got the ball back into the infield in time to double a runner off third. Highfill was ready to call out the police to have Jimmy arrested for highway robbery.

The secret of Riley Rawls' ability as an outer gardener is the fact that he is out for every game of the league and takes his daily swing through the outfield workout. The old saying of "practice makes perfect" is beginning to show in the Traveler and First Methodist outfielder. Johnnie McMahon, Texhoma outer gardener, is another that has been working out with Riley. Johnnie has missed the last couple of days, and many have expressed the belief that he surely must be sick.

Faichney Working Out.

First Baseman Don Faichney has been working out with the Travelers in the last few games and should be ready to step into the game in a few more days now. Don has been with several high stepping ball teams in the past few years. He was with the University club the year they won the city championship. Last year he was with the Pond Laundry club. The Travelers are expecting a lot from Don when he rounds into shape,

"I am figuring on using a dark horse in this playoff if I can land the man I want," advises Manager Rabbit Gordon of the Texhoma club the other day.

WICHITA FALLS TRAPSHOOTER LOSES IN TITLE TOURNAMENT WHEN WACOAN SMASHES 200

Miller and King Tie in Doubles Event, But Former Wins Championship in Shoot-off

FORT WORTH, June 17.—E. F. Foresgard of Waco, grizzled veteran of the Texas traps, won the 1925 Texas state singles championship Wednesday by breaking 200 straight over a field of more than 80 shooters at the local traps on the Lake Worth road. Incidentally in his run of 200 in the championship event, he made the high run of the tournament, 391 unfinished. The entire performance of the new champion was of record setting calibre, and the old man received a big ovation when he broke the last target. This is his sixth state championship.

Phil Miller and R. A. King tied with 96x100 in the state doubles event, but Miller won the title in the shootoff.

Three shooters were tied for high honors in a special 100-target event called the cotton dealers' derby. Each of them broke 100 straght. They are C. L. Dupuy, Lufkin; E. F. Woodward, Houston; E. F. Foresgard, Waco, and Phil Miller, Dallas.

Temple won the 1926 shoot over Houston in a heated selection Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Guy B. Sherrill of that city was elected president. C. L. Dupuy of Lufkin was re-elected vice-president, and W. A. Spencer of Temple was named secretary.

Heights Forfeits To Christians, But There's Ball Game

Church Team Beats Pick Up Crew, 6 to 5

Floral Heights Methodists forfeited to First Christians yesterday in the Sunday school league by not showing up for scheduled game.

As a paractice affair the Christians took a 6 to 5 game from Johnnie McMahon's Rubeville Rubes. The game was only a five inning affair that was full of thrills. The managers agreed on four innings, but an extra inning had to be added to decide a tie.

Rusty Cunningham, Texhoma mascot, celebrated his donning of a Texhoma uniform by playing a great game in centerfield. Not a ball got by Rusty and he turned in a nice game. Nothing more than a single fell back of second base into his territory. He also drove in a run with a neat bunt down the first base line that caught the infield flat footed and scored Skipper McMahon from third base.

Jimmy Parker and Shad Taylor both hurled good baseball for the two nines, but Taylor emerged the victor. McMahon led the hitters with three safe blows. He also caught a nice game behind the platter. Judge Dickey played a bit in left field for the christians, his only fault being in playing too close to the inflied.

J. B. McMahon, the Rubes' skipper's father, was the umpire.

TEN-YEAR BATTLE ENDS.

Relatives of Dead Business Man Gain Possession of Estate.

NEW ORLEANS, June 17.—(AP)—After a legal battle of nine years, ten relatives of Isaac Herdman, said to have deserted his family in Russia more than 40 years ago, today were in possession of his estate of approximately $500,000 which he amassed here after arriving as a penniless immigrant.

Herdman, who died in 1916, was a large owner of real estate properties here. Investigation revealed the presence of relatives in Russia who were brought to New Orleans by persons interested in the case and yesterday a court order was signed recognizing their claims.

Red Wells, Fort Worth, welterweight, vs. Benny Clark, Dallas, welterweight. Six rounds.

Bobby Wells, Fort Worth, featherweight, vs. Clyde Barrett, Wichita Falls, featherweight. Four rounds.

Some believe that Blas Rodriguez, the meteoric Mexican battler who has been winning handily the past several weeks in Wichita Falls and Vernon, will have his string of victories cut tonight when he mingles with Dick Dixon, in the legion arena. But the majority of fight fans apparently believe that Blas will merely make Dickey another one of his victims. There is quite a bit of interest attached to the bout.

Dixon is the heavier of the two. He is a cooler fighter, no doubt. He will have the reach, but is not quite as fast. Dickey is clever. If anybody near his weight in the southwest can beat Rodriguez, Dixon should be the man.

Avalon is a newcomer, but may prove a Tartar for Kid Rich. The Wichita Falls boy fought in Vernon last night, and can hardly be expected to be in shape to cope with a formidable opponent tonight.

Clark and Red Wells are well known to Wichita Falls fans.

CHICAGO, June 17.—Sheriff Blake, in addition to pitching a fine game scored the winning run which gave Chicago a 5 to 4 victory over Philadelphia. Blake's double and Adams' single in the ninth inning decided the game. Home runs by Brooks, Fonseca and Harper, and a running one-hand catch by Harper in deep center depriving Weis of a possible homer, were features. The score:

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

CHAPTER 69.
A Rendezvous.

"Briscoe was censured at the inquest," continued the young man briefly. "There were callous letters he had written—and then the girl's parting message to him—"

'And you mean that he has been trying to influence Rosilyn?" Mrs. Ridgeway's face was anxious. "I thought he was making himself rather conspicuous in dancing attendance on her—but you were away so much—and she is young and ignorant—that cliff adventure seemed odd, though I'd trust Rosilyn's integrity to the uttermost."

Her son's face had a shamed look.

"I've been a fool. And worse. I see that now, when it's maybe too late. I—oh, it's difficult to express—but I'm fond of her—I'm not nearly good enough for a girl like Rosilyn—if I only had a second chance—"

The mother's heart leaped with a new hope.

"And Lydia Harbrook " Her voice was gentle and sympathetic now. "Is all that over and done with, Landis. Rosilyn is worth a hundred Lydias."

"I know she is. I've been blind as a bat. She can't respect me."

"She loves you, Landis. You've made her suffer, but I know she loves you still. And she has a splendid, noble nature. She could have ruined Lydia Harbrook, but she wouldn't stoop to such a thing."

"I don't quite understand." The young man had a puzzled air.

Mrs. Ridgeway hesitated, then she said:

"It will be a shock to you to hear that Lydia drugs. A syringe was found in her bedroom, and then cocaine. It was cocaine, because I took the packet to the drug store, and the druggist proved it was. Besides, have you ever noticed the tiny marks on Lydia's arms? Have you ever wondered at her unflagging gaiety, when gaiety is an asset. Have you ever marked the uncanny brilliance of her eyes, and the way she looks at one and almost through one, at certain times? Then her reactions? Lydia can go as flat as a pricked balloon. And she seems to be losing the ethical distinction between right and wrong."

Landis was stunned.

"Lydia—drugs? It's unbelievable."

Mrs. Ridgeway said:

"Rosilyn discovered her in the very act. But it was not till I myself found out, that the child even admitted the truth about Lydia. It was noble, though mistaken, of Rosilyn to shield her, considering that Lydia's manner towards the child, and Lydia's appropriation of yourself, and Lydia's insolence, have been unbearable.

Landis almost groaned aloud, in heaviness of spirit.

The deed was done now. Rosilyn, his girl-wife—gone!

"Have you no idea of her whereabouts, mother, I'd take the car at once—"

"She merely stated in her note, which arrived this morning, that she had gone off with old Annie for a holiday somewhere, and would send her address later. I've a conviction, Landis, that the child is wounded to the heart, and like all hurt creatures, wants to hide herself for a while. I don't blame her."

"Nor do I. I only blame myself. And—" with sudden heat—"I blame that swine Briscoe. He's turned her against me. He's—"

"Steady. Be honest, Landis. Wasn't your own behavior sufficient in itself to change Rosilyn towards you, if it were possible she should be changed? She's staunch and loyal and sincere."

"But she's ignorant of the world and trusting. And a man like Briscoe—"

"Then get after Briscoe. Not that you can possibly think he's with Rosilyn."

'He's capable of anything. The inquest sort of woke me up to the fact that I've tolerated men about the place I never ought to have introduced either to you or Rosilyn. I've been damned careless and selfish."

His mother touched him on the arm with a gesture of affection that was rare in her.

"Come, come, Landis! It isn't too late yet!"

Like a man possessed, he strode out of the house so beautifully decorated with his wife's money, following a blind instinct that might lead him to her.

In the lobby of Lydia's hotel he faced the erstwhile charmer.

"Don't snap my head off, Landis! I've nothing to do with this affair! Surely you're capable of looking after your own wife yourself, without trying to hope me in as nursemaid!" And Lydia's lips curled insolently.

He glared at her in wrath. Was this cold, callous creature the warm, flesh-and-blood woman he had once loved madly?

But the spell was broken now. The scales were lifted from his eyes, and he saw her in true colors.

"Have you any idea where Rosilyn is?" he rapped out like a pistol shot.

Lydia put her two hands to her ears in pretended dismay.

"Don't shout at me!" Then she added, with malice:

"Maybe I've a fair idea where your wife is, maybe I've more than a fair idea that she's not alone?"

"Speak out! But don't insult her!"

"S-sh! Don't create a scene! Where are your manners?"

"Manners be blowed! What do you know? Out with it!"

Lydia led him to a more secluded corner, and proceeded with maddening deliberation, to light a cigarette.

He refused one, watching her with an almost positive dislike. The reaction against her influence had been absolute. She realized it.

She would hurt him all she could.

"I won't beat about the bush. But don't murder me! It's Rupert Briscoe you ought to get after. He's the snake in the grass, if you only knew it."

"Well " Landis' hands were trembling, as though he yearned to get them on Briscoe's throat.

Lydia lowered her voice discreetly.

"I'm not supposed to know about it, but from something Rupert said only a day or so ago, he's more than a little bit interested in your wife. And I'm afraid, strange as it may seem to a husband of your charm! (though of course these fascinations haven't been leveled much in her direction, have they-) that your wife reciprocates Briscoe's interest."

"You lie!" said Landis, in her very face. "You lie."

Lydia laughed shrilly. She rose.

"Go down to the Marshland inn, you fool, and you'll find them both together there! Then give me the lie direct again! I know what I know, and your precious wife is—"

But Landis, like a man demented, had traversed the lounge in two strides to the exit, and was gone.

Tomorrow—"She's Dead."

MAIL BAGS PLAIN NOW.

Blue Stripes Costs a Cent, So Uncle Sam Eliminates It.

SAN ANTONIO, June 17.—There formerly was a blue stripe in every mail bags that passed through the San Antonio postoffice but the plain bags have put in their appearance. When Uncle Sam looked over his last budget and noticed the blue stripes he said "Why?" but nobody knew.

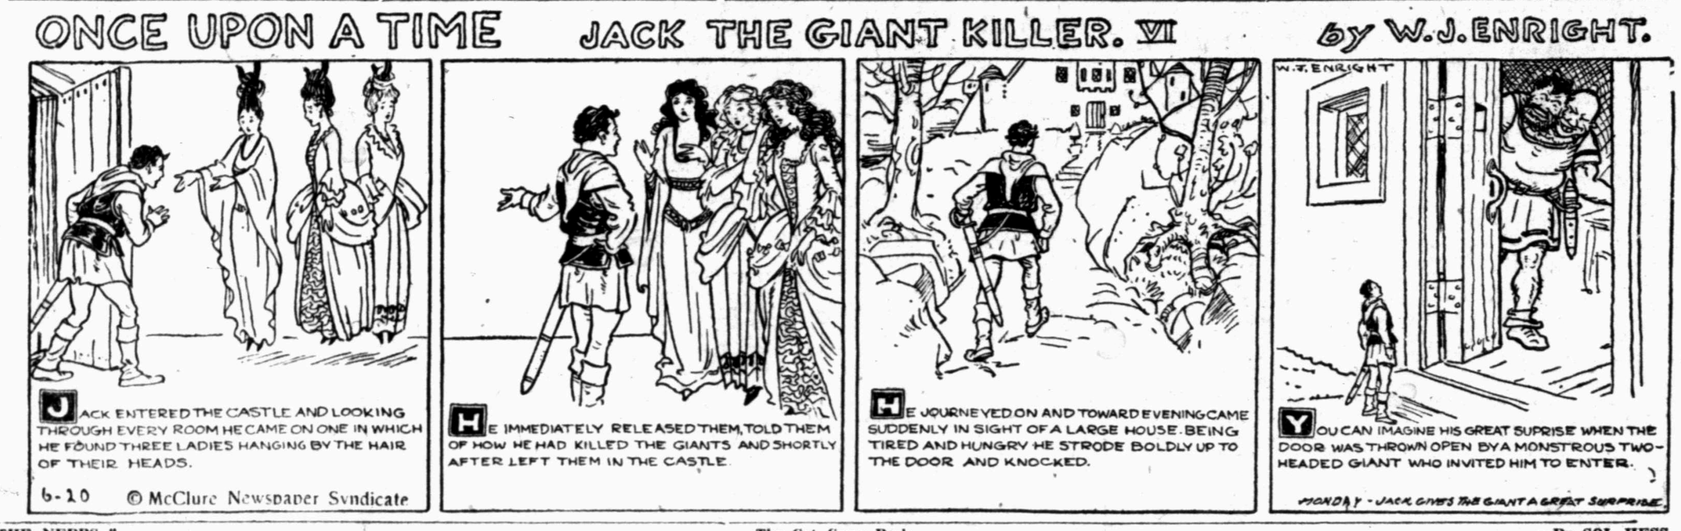

It costs a cent a yard to put them in the canvas and reduced the value of the canvas when it ceases to be a mail bag. It was taken out of new mail bags being manufactured by the postoffice department and Uncle Sam is saving $59,000 a year.

EMERSON WAS RIGHT

"Confidnce," Emerson once explained, "comes from having done the thing before." Some fortunate beings, it seems, are born with the quality, and no amount of poundings and reverses can disperse it. Most of us, however, generally start life in a spasm of quirks and fears and achieve serenity of mind only after having "done the thing before." Once having "turned the trick" the shadows of uncertainty disappear. After a while, when the business of achieving becomes monotonous, some even fancy they could perform miracles with their peepers shut. It is a strange transition—from the clammy, calamitous state of mind to cast-iron conceit.

However, to roam back to the subject of confidence. In the affairs of the ring, where one cannot glitter without it, confidence often comes from having beaten one good man. At any rate, there have been innumerable cases of boxers who, starting their fistic careers in trepidation, have wound up champions. Not, however, without the gladdening of the heart which comes from "having done the thing before." Or, more familiarly speaking, from having "done up" some gladiator of note who was worth "doing up."

GREB DID IT

Just now every one seems to be interested in the sudden rise to Queensberry glory of Gene Tunney, and in the explanation of his swift catapaulting from semi-obscurity to headline after headline in the sporting prints. Tunney changed, practically over night, from a listless, uncertain pugilistic in-and-outer to a fighting man of poise, power and heavyweight championship possibility. Whence cometh this unexpected will and talent to conquer the most formidable ringsters of his day—even unto the king. Dempsey?

It wasn't so long ago that Tunney did lack the requisite confidence of a champion fighting man. This, too, despite the fact that he never failed, barring once, to whip the man who opposed him. Gene was too intelligent not to understand that the third and fourth raters he humbled meant very little when the exploits of a Dempsey were considered. Whipping the pushovers instilled but a small measure of confidence in him. So little, in fact, that he had no burning desire aroused to go after bigger game.

For a long time Tunney refused offers to meet the tougher ones, even though hazardous "shots" meant considerably more to him financially. This state of mind continued until Tunney had taken the measure of his first good man—until he had "done the thing before." After the Greenwich Villager had given the fearsome Harry Greb such a thorough thrashing in their third battle there came a great change in the Tunney fighting front.

Then He Dumped Carp and Tom

He figured, and rightly so, that he must have been "good" to have defeated such a doughty ring type as Greb—a boxer, many have calculated, who would have given even Dempsey a busy time for eight or ten rounds. From that time on Gene Tunney's rise, his remarkable improvement, was patent to all who viewed his displays. There was nothing panicky in his ring technque. He boxed with the air of one who knew what he was about. There was a new determination in his demeanor, too—a pleasant conceit that permitted no opponent's fame no matter how great, to disturb his equilibrium. The masterly fashion in which he manhandled the supposedly dangerous Carpentier, and finally dispatched him, was but an inkling of the Tunney still to come. The Carpentier victory increased Tunney's faith in himself, and the result was the brilliant, unexpected knockout of Tom Gibbons.

MEANER THAN EVER NOW

The knowledge that he has beaten three of the outstanding boxers of his day—Greb, Carpentier and Gibbons—has accordingly heightened Tunney's faith in himself three-fold. He is three times as dangerous as he ever was, which makes him amply fitted to combat anyone in the world. That includes Harry Wills and Jack Dempsey.

Jack Johnson and Jess Willard, in their struggles to the championship, went through something of the same sharpening of the confidence that Tunney did. Johnson, in the nine years he consumed before snaring the highest honors of pugilism, suffered many reverses. Jack fought in fits and starts. At times he performed like a champion. And almost equally he often looked like a confirmed third-rater.

Jess Willard at the start was probably the crudest specimen, the least confident fighter, that ever won the championship. In 1911, his first year, Williard actually jumped out of the ring in a bout with big Joe Cox. A year later Jess, after beating Luther McCarty and knocking out Sailor White and Soldier Kearns, lost a decision to Gunboat Smith. Jess spent most of the time running away from his smaller opponent, after sampling one of the Gunner's "occipitals." Even a year later, after beating Carl Morris, One Round Davis and Boer Rodel, the last two by knockouts, Willard still lacked class enough to whip Middleweight Bearcat McMahon. McMahon even trimmed the Kansas Giant out of a 12-round verdict.

After that Willard knocked out Dan Dailey and Boer Rodel. This paltry glory must have had an inspiriting effect on Jess, though. In his next battle he knocked out Jack Johnson, and won the championship of the world.

HOME RUN BY TANNER UNTIES KNOT IN EIGHTH THEN DUTCH BERNSEN POLES ONE IN NINTH

Hit Batsman, Walk, and Single by Bubber Jonnard Knocks Over Winning Run in Final Frame

Turgeon walked in the eighth stanza. Then with two away, Distel singled sharply to center, and Skipper Bud Tanner followed on the next ball pitched with a smashing home run over the port barrier to overtake a Beaumont lead and jump one marker out front Wednesday at the Spudder plant. Manager Dutch Bernsen, pinch-hitting, led off in the Beaumont ninth with an explosive drive over the same wall, tying the count, but a hit batsman, a walk, and high-powered one-baser slapped between short and third by Bubber Jonnard in the domestic portion of the round sent Freddy Dorman scurrying across the pan with the necessary margin. Wichita Falls took the series' second, and exciting slugging affair from the cellar habitues, 10-9.

An even dozen round base busts including a pair of three-baggers and a double by Leach, Dutch's homer, and the staging of a double and a triple play were not sufficient to win for the Exporters. However, poor base running came near to upsetting the Harvey entry. But the Spudders slammed a total of 16 safeties, three of which were of the non-stop variety, two doubles, and a triple. Distel, Turgeon, and Tanner punched the ticket for an unhampered voyage. Fitzgerald connected for the triple. Jonnard and Dorman whopped the two-baggers.

That Triple Play

That three-ply killing at the expense of our noble Spudders came in the fifth chukker. Fitzgerald had poled his three-cushioner. Dorman drew a pass. Then Golvin slammed a line to right field. Freddy was off in a hurry, so was Ormand. The Beaumont right fielder sprinted in, made a daring ankle snare of the drive, recovered and launched a perfect throw to first, Kirke snagged the pill, doubling Dorman off, pivoted and shot 'er to Pinto at the plate to cut away Fitz who had scampered for home on Ormand's chunk to the initial station.

She was a topsy-turvy frolic, first one club and the other climbing on top.

Bob Osborn started on the hill for Tanner, but gave way in the sixth to Williams. Carl gets credit for the victory. Lefty Gus Forman opened for the Shippers. He went out in the fourth. Lefty Larry Pinto assumed the pitching role. O'Neal hurled the ninth round, getting credit (or discredit) for the loss.

Shippers Score First

Ormand and Woehr led away in the first stanza with singles, and Leach followed with a line drive to left that Tanner muffled, choking the runways. Kirke forced Leach at second, Ormand checking in. Bob passed Taylor, but Deviveros fouled out to Golvin just off first, and Metz bounded out to Turgeon. Distel evened the count in the Spudder portion of the round with a four-base blast to port. Buddy hoisted out to Metz at second. Bodie singled between short and third, but quick work by the right side of the Exporter inner works on bouncer by Fitzgerald retired the side, Metz scooping up the ball, tossing to Deviveros at the keystone, cutting Ping away, and Deviveros bulleting the sphere to Kirke at first to double Fitz.

Hale, first up in the Beaumont second, walked. Foreman flied out to left, and Ormand hit into a glossy double killing, Golvin to Distel to Golvin. The Spudders unbalanced accounts by coming in for two runs. Dorman slapped a crackling one-baser between short and third. Golvin grounded to the box and Foreman threw to second after Freddy, but Deviveros dropped the ball. Turgeon forced Golvin at second. Jonnard singled to right center, sending Dorman across. Osborn struck out, and Distel singled down third base way, scoring Turgeon. Tanner aviated to center.

Beaumont narrowed the margin in the third on a walk and lusty wallop down the first base line for three cushions by Leach. Kirke whiffed. Turgeon raced over to spear with his meat hand rifle crack by Taylor, and threw the runner out at first. Leach hugged third. Deviveros walked, and was forced at second by Metz.

Gus Goes Out

Beaumont took a momentary lead in the fourth on single by Hale, infield out, base on balls, and double on a line over short by Leach. The blow sent two runners across. But the Spudders reared back, clawed Foreman from the hurling eminence before the couplet was finished, and scored three. Golvin was issued a four-ball coupon, and then Pete Turgeon dynamited a rocket far into the wilderness back of left field. It was the wee one's fifth homer in four days Bubber Jonnard, fiery Spud backstop, followed with a blast to port for two bases. Osborn expired at the plate, Distel sent Jonnard over with a single past second. Bernsen pulled Foreman, and Pinto inherited the chunking chores. Tanner and Bodie hoisted to the outer regions.

The Beaumont gentry exported enough runners around the paths in the fifth to knot the tabulaton again. Bingles by Taylor, Metz, and Ormand coupled with an error at second and an infield out scored the two runs, bringing the count to 6-6.

That triple play held the Spuds from the scoring counter in the last half of the fifth. Then in the sixth, Bernsen crew forged a marker out front. Two errors, an infield out, a walk, and a single by Metz scored the tally and proved the sudden demise of Osborn. Williams clambered onto the dome with two and a pair on. Pinto hoisted to Fitz.

Ormand combed a single to right off Williams in the seventh and counted when Leach immediately rifted another three-base liner down the starboard foul boundary.

FORT WORTH 2-5; HOUSTON 1-16

FORT WORTH, June 17.—(AP)—The Cats and Buffaloes split a twin bill here today, the champions taking the first after a hard battle, 2 to 1, and dropping the second, 16 to 5. Johns and Benge hooked up in a great hurling duel in the opener, the former allowing but one hit and the latter three. Davis' home run with one aboard gave the leaders their two runs. Wachtel was pounded unmercifully in the first inning of the nightcap when the Buffs scored 10 runs and cinched the game. Head replaced him but was ineffective also. The score:

Skipper Medford was asking questions the other day about young Dick Gordon, Grace Methodist star. Must be seeking new material for his nine.

* * *

Len Smith, Ludlam and Riggs utility player, failed to bring out any sort of a first baseman's mitt to the game Tuesday and trotted out on the initial hassock with a catcher's pad. This was soon discarded, however, for a finger glove. Gabe Harris was also using a finger glove on the same sack. Both put up a merry battle there, considering each is a pitcher.

In That Tuesday Game.

Lee Courtney was all grins when Jimmy Parker raced over into right center to spear Highfill's line drive. To back this up Jimmy got the ball back into the infield in time to double a runner off third. Highfill was ready to call out the police to have Jimmy arrested for highway robbery.

The secret of Riley Rawls' ability as an outer gardener is the fact that he is out for every game of the league and takes his daily swing through the outfield workout. The old saying of "practice makes perfect" is beginning to show in the Traveler and First Methodist outfielder. Johnnie McMahon, Texhoma outer gardener, is another that has been working out with Riley. Johnnie has missed the last couple of days, and many have expressed the belief that he surely must be sick.

Faichney Working Out.

First Baseman Don Faichney has been working out with the Travelers in the last few games and should be ready to step into the game in a few more days now. Don has been with several high stepping ball teams in the past few years. He was with the University club the year they won the city championship. Last year he was with the Pond Laundry club. The Travelers are expecting a lot from Don when he rounds into shape,

"I am figuring on using a dark horse in this playoff if I can land the man I want," advises Manager Rabbit Gordon of the Texhoma club the other day.

WICHITA FALLS TRAPSHOOTER LOSES IN TITLE TOURNAMENT WHEN WACOAN SMASHES 200

Miller and King Tie in Doubles Event, But Former Wins Championship in Shoot-off

FORT WORTH, June 17.—E. F. Foresgard of Waco, grizzled veteran of the Texas traps, won the 1925 Texas state singles championship Wednesday by breaking 200 straight over a field of more than 80 shooters at the local traps on the Lake Worth road. Incidentally in his run of 200 in the championship event, he made the high run of the tournament, 391 unfinished. The entire performance of the new champion was of record setting calibre, and the old man received a big ovation when he broke the last target. This is his sixth state championship.

Phil Miller and R. A. King tied with 96x100 in the state doubles event, but Miller won the title in the shootoff.

Three shooters were tied for high honors in a special 100-target event called the cotton dealers' derby. Each of them broke 100 straght. They are C. L. Dupuy, Lufkin; E. F. Woodward, Houston; E. F. Foresgard, Waco, and Phil Miller, Dallas.

Temple won the 1926 shoot over Houston in a heated selection Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Guy B. Sherrill of that city was elected president. C. L. Dupuy of Lufkin was re-elected vice-president, and W. A. Spencer of Temple was named secretary.

Blas Rodriguez, Torreon fleyweight, vs Dick Dixon, Fort Worth bantamweight Ten rounds.

Harmon (Kid) Rich, Wichita Falls, welterweight, vs. Jack Avalon, San Antonio, welterweight. Ten rounds.

Red Wells, Fort Worth, welterweight, vs. Benny Clark, Dallas, welterweight. Six rounds.

Bobby Wells, Fort Worth, featherweight, vs. Clyde Barrett, Wichita Falls, featherweight. Four rounds.

Some believe that Blas Rodriguez, the meteoric Mexican battler who has been winning handily the past several weeks in Wichita Falls and Vernon, will have his string of victories cut tonight when he mingles with Dick Dixon, in the legion arena. But the majority of fight fans apparently believe that Blas will merely make Dickey another one of his victims. There is quite a bit of interest attached to the bout.

Dixon is the heavier of the two. He is a cooler fighter, no doubt. He will have the reach, but is not quite as fast. Dickey is clever. If anybody near his weight in the southwest can beat Rodriguez, Dixon should be the man.

Avalon is a newcomer, but may prove a Tartar for Kid Rich. The Wichita Falls boy fought in Vernon last night, and can hardly be expected to be in shape to cope with a formidable opponent tonight.

Clark and Red Wells are well known to Wichita Falls fans.

Heights Forfeits To Christians, But There's Ball Game

Church Team Beats Pick Up Crew, 6 to 5

Floral Heights Methodists forfeited to First Christians yesterday in the Sunday school league by not showing up for scheduled game.

As a paractice affair the Christians took a 6 to 5 game from Johnnie McMahon's Rubeville Rubes. The game was only a five inning affair that was full of thrills. The managers agreed on four innings, but an extra inning had to be added to decide a tie.

Rusty Cunningham, Texhoma mascot, celebrated his donning of a Texhoma uniform by playing a great game in centerfield. Not a ball got by Rusty and he turned in a nice game. Nothing more than a single fell back of second base into his territory. He also drove in a run with a neat bunt down the first base line that caught the infield flat footed and scored Skipper McMahon from third base.

Jimmy Parker and Shad Taylor both hurled good baseball for the two nines, but Taylor emerged the victor. McMahon led the hitters with three safe blows. He also caught a nice game behind the platter. Judge Dickey played a bit in left field for the christians, his only fault being in playing too close to the inflied.

J. B. McMahon, the Rubes' skipper's father, was the umpire.

TEN-YEAR BATTLE ENDS.

Relatives of Dead Business Man Gain Possession of Estate.

NEW ORLEANS, June 17.—(AP)—After a legal battle of nine years, ten relatives of Isaac Herdman, said to have deserted his family in Russia more than 40 years ago, today were in possession of his estate of approximately $500,000 which he amassed here after arriving as a penniless immigrant.

Herdman, who died in 1916, was a large owner of real estate properties here. Investigation revealed the presence of relatives in Russia who were brought to New Orleans by persons interested in the case and yesterday a court order was signed recognizing their claims.

CHICAGO 5; PHILADELPHIA 4

CHICAGO, June 17.—Sheriff Blake, in addition to pitching a fine game scored the winning run which gave Chicago a 5 to 4 victory over Philadelphia. Blake's double and Adams' single in the ninth inning decided the game. Home runs by Brooks, Fonseca and Harper, and a running one-hand catch by Harper in deep center depriving Weis of a possible homer, were features. The score:

Everett Scott Bought By Nats For Only $4,000

Champions Obtain Veteran Shortstop via Waver Route

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Everett Scott, shortstop, who played in 1,307 consecutive major league baseball games, nearly 500 of them with the New York Yankees, a record that is expected to stand for all time, today learned that he was worth only $4,000 to the club he had captained through two world series.

Scott was sent to the world champion Washington Senators by the Yankees today at the waiver price and baseball followers see something of far greater importance than the mere transfer of a ball player in the transaction. A general change of faces at the Yankee stadium such as took place at Shibe park in Philadelphia a decade ago is said to be in prospect.

Today the Yankees, league champions in 1921, 1922 and 1923 and world champions in 1923, appeared on the field with only four of the veterans, outside of pitchers, in action.

Wally Schang was behind the bat. Aaron Ward at second, Bob Meusel in left and the recently returned Babe Ruth in right. Scott had been disposed of before the Yankees encountered the 10 to 1 defeat administered by the Tigers today.

Addition of Scott to the Washington roster indicates that Manager Stanley Harris never again will take the chance he did last year when poor infield reserve nearly cost him the world series. Experts agree that the Indianan has many days of baseball left in him despite his 12 years of major league service. Scott came from the Boston Red Sox to the Yankee after they had won a pennant and aided them to win two more and a world flag as well.

Scott will contend with Roger Peckinpaugh fo rthe regular shortstop position in Washington.

HOLLIDAY

tem at a small cost, securing water from the irrigation canal which comes within one and a quarter miles of the city. The speaker also told how insurance rates could be lowered, the saving of which would make up the difference in taxes. Haskett said:

"I understand that water sells for 60 cents a barrel in Holliday, which is one and one-fifth cents a gallon. With a small waterworks system water can be sold for 50 or 60 cents per thousand gallons. Water works will assure a lower insurance rate, which is now $9 per hundred—when obtainable. It is possible to lower the rate to one-third that amount and old line companies will accept business. Another important matter is sanitation, which will assure better health conditions and thus reduce the cost of sickness. The people of Holliday should not be uneasy about the paving of the principal street. The street will be paved with bond money already voted. Incorporating will not prevent this money from being spent within the city."

Bob Anglin, secretary of the Iowa Park chamber of commerce, made a short talk, giving the importance of incorporation and and the value it will bring to Holliday.

After the speech making had been concluded the audience appointed a committee of seven taxpaying citizens to make further investigation and have proper data prepared to be filed with the county judge of Archer county so that the question can be voted upon. The committee personnel is S. T. Lowe, Dr. J. W. Parrish, J. C. Thomas, C. M. Taylor, C. Murray, V. Campbell and J. M. Howard.

Judge Olson all acquaintance with Shepherd and all knowledge of the letter from him. Later he denied it in the state's attorney's office, and after that he told still another story. I will not call him as my witness because I am not prepared to vouch for his story."

Judge Harry Olson, chief justice of the municipal court of Chicago, was chiefly instrumental in causing the investigation of the death of young McClintock, and, terming himself "counsel for the dead," marshaled the evidence against Shepherd before the coroner's jury.

The letter mentioned in Mr. Crowe's statement of reasons for declining to sponsor Faiman was alleged to have been written by Shepherd to the National University of Sciences, conducted by Faiman and to have inquired about a course in bacteriology, one of the many sciences purported to have been taught by the school.

The letter was the subject of extensive testimony today by Patrick J. McMahon, alias John P. Marchand, formerly a salesman of courses at Faiman's school.

Marchand, like Faiman, has been under guard of detectives from the state's attorney's office at a downtown hotel since March 13, last.

Pastor's Prayers to Acquit Men Granted

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 17.—(AP)—The prayers of the Rev. George F. Bennett and his Roman Catholic parish at Weehawken for the acquittal of 12 men charged with giving protection to bootleggers have been answered.

Ten of the men, including nine Weehawken police were acquitted last night by a jury in Hudson county court here. Two others were discharged befor th case went to the jury.

Father Bennett was the principal state witness. He testified that he had run upon the men at the Weehawken river front last August. He threatened to punch the face of the first bootlegger who would attempt to continue landing cases of liquor from the rum runner tied at the dock.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

DETROIT 19; NEW YORK 1

NEW YORK, June 17.—Detroit defeated the Yankees today, 19 to 1, a home run by Gehrig saving the Yankees from being shut out. The Tigers scored 13 runs in the sixth inning, equaling the record for the season established by the Philadelphia Athletics. The Tigers also set what is believed to be a major league record when they scored 11 of these runs before a batter was retired. During this bat fest, six hits were made and two errors committed by the Yanks in addition to seven passes being issued by the four Yankee twirlers who labored in the inning. Cobb got a home run with the bases full while Heitmann got a single and a triple in two times up. Eighteen Tigers batted during the inning. It took Ruth to put the side out, all three batters being thrown out during the inning, flying to him. The score:

Let's All Go To Denver In 1926

CLEVELAND, June 17.—(AP)—The delegation to the International Rotary convention from Denver staged a snowball battle in public, square here today. The demonstration was in support of Denver's slogan "Sunshine and Snow balls, Denver, 1926." The next year's Rotary convention will be held in that city.

The snow which fell in Colorado two weeks ago was brought here in a refrigerator car. Trucks hauled it to the square where the Denver Rotary clubs' delegation and a group of girls in bathing suits snowballed each other and the crowd. The snow balling was preceded by a parade.

REBUILT USED CARS

It is an established fact that A USED CAR is no better than the firm from whom it is bought. While the Fox Brown Chevrolet Company is a new firm, the organization is not at all unfamiliar with what is necessary in merchandising used cars. It is only natural that every effort on our part will be made to build an enviable reputation in the sale of used cars.

We consider one of the best ways to do this is to sell used cars that will give as much service and transportation for the money invested as any new automobile on the market.

We invite you to call and inspect the used cars that we have for sale. They have been reconditioned by a corps of competent mechanics, and all worn parts replaced by new ones where needed.

"ON THIN ICE" WILL BEGIN AT OLYMPIC TODAY

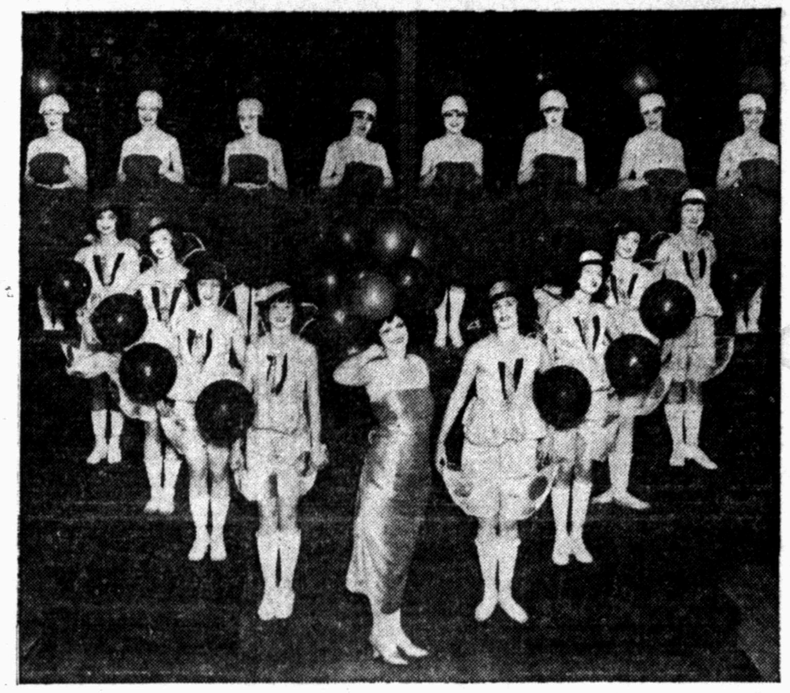

That no two persons see the same act or object in the same way is the latest contention of psychologists, who more and more are coming to figure prominently in criminal trials.

This reflection is suggested by the announcement that "On Thin Ice," a play of crooks and innocents sent to jail on circumstantial evidence begining today at the Olympic theatre, with Tom Moore and Edith Roberts in the leading roles.

A leading psychologist explains what he calls 'subjective doubt."

"Take two persons and let them be in a room where a crime is committed. One will describe a certain size gun drawn from the trouser pocket of the murderer, and will positively swear that its colors was, say steel. Another spectator will testify that the revolver was ivory, and was whipped out from the coat pocket. Now where is the truth? Both have seen something, but their versions are different.

"A lawyer in a certain case demonstrated this vividly in a trial by transferring an object from one pocket to another. He then asked each member of the jury to describe the action There were twelve differen' and distinct versions, triumphantly proving that there is no such thing as objective truth, and that even the testimony of two or more men that such and such a thing happened, is no evidence of its veracity."

The above is a scene from the three-act comedy "Uncle Tom From New York," played by the Garden of Mirth Musical Comedy company now playing at the Palace. The play features Lake Kellum, Paul (Rusty) Scott. Jack Miller and Clyde Hodges.

Lion Members Hear Good Program Wed.

Members of the Lions club were treated to an unusual program of musical, singing and reading selections yesterday noon at their weekly luncheon at the Kemp.

Miss Maurice Mounts treated the club to two piano solos that called for repeated applause; Miss Alva Ruth Walker gave two readings that provoked much favorable comment, and Miss Loraine Russell sang two solos, accompanied at the piano by Miss Louise Johnson.

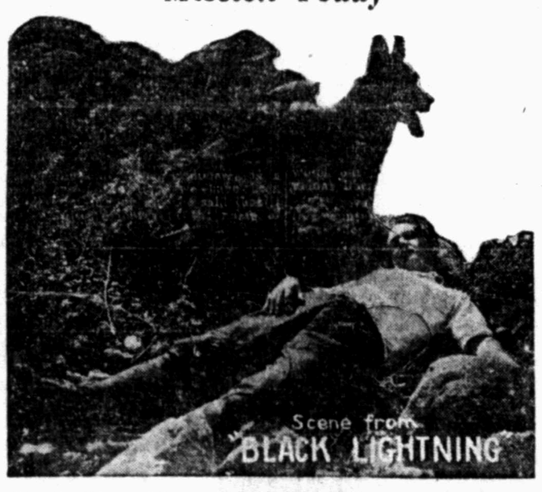

It was decided by the club to purchase "go slow" signs to be placed around the city parks, warning motorists to watch for the children who are continually running across the street in front of passing cars.
