18 co-workers wounded during shooting spree

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Two weeks of silence and brooding by a young factory laborer erupted in a barrage of shotgun blasts that wounded 18 co-workers, including his stepfather, as they scrambled for cover in a crowded lunchroom, police say.

Leslie Bernard Torrey, 21, was arrested Thursday in a parking lot outside the factory after he walked up to police and said, "I'm the man you want," according to Jackson Police Capt. Calvin Watson.

Moments before, a man carrying a shotgun had walked into the lunchroom at the Pittsburgh Forgings Co., which manufactures forgings for auto and related industries, and fired a volley of shots.

Two of the victims — Jerry Pelham, 47, of Cement City and Oliver Strine, 59, of Jackson — were in serious condition at Jackson Foothill Hospital.

Sixteen others, including Torrey's 52-year-old stepfather, Ernest Baynes, were treated for minor wounds and released.

Torrey, who had worked at the plant for almost a year, stood motionless Thursday afternoon as 13th District Court Judge Robert Crary set bond at $35,000 on a single charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Torrey was held at Jackson County Jail and ordered to appear for a preliminary hearing March 13.

Wearing gray pants, heavy work boots and a nylon windbreaker, the tall, slender Torrey's only words were to his wife, Ivy.

"Don't say anything to them," he ordered when she was surrounded by reporters in the tiny courtroom.

Torrey refused advice from friends to hide his face from photographers. "Why? I did it," he told them.

The judge said bail was set relatively high "for the safety of the community" and because of threats against Torrey's life.

Police were puzzled by the attack. "We just haven't come up with a motive," said Detective Michael Rand.

Members of Torrey's family said he was a high school track star and the father of two young daughters, but suggested he had "things on his mind." They declined to elaborate.

Co-workers said Torrey had been unusually quiet for the past two weeks but had given no indication of what was bothering him. They said he left at lunchtime, returned shortly before the break was to end and began firing at cars in the parking lot.

Action/reaction: Experiment

Q. Why do 95 percent of the kids in Coahoma have to catch the bus 15 minutes earlier so that 5 per cent can get a free breakfast?

A. "It is an experimental program," says Coahoma schools superintendent Andy Wilson, "and we are trying to work out the best way to manage it." He said that state law requires that they start giving the free breakfast program next year, so the school has begun this week in order to work out any problems that may arise. "We will try to adjust the bus routes so that as few people as possible will be inconvenienced," said Wilson. "If anyone has an idea as to how we can comply with the law and not run our routes earlier, we will more than welcome suggestions."

Offbeat: My lot is your lot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A man who built a $190,000 home in suburban Kenner will finally get to move into his mansion, one year after he built it on the wrong lot.

John L. Sagers and Gaylon D. Simmons bought adjacent lots in the expensive subdivision and planned to build homes on their property. Simmons started his home first, but mistakenly built it on Sagers' lot.

The house was two weeks from completion on Jan. 14, 1977, when Sagers discovered the error.

Simmons filed suit asking Sagers to reimburse him for $193,471, which Simmons said represented improvements he had made to the lot.

Last week both sides agreed to swap lots, and Simmons agreed to pay Sagers an undisclosed amount for building his house on the wrong lot.

Still pending is a $343,471 damage suit that Simmons filed against the savings and loan association that financed his house and the contractor who built it.

Simmons charges that the loan company used an incorrect survey to finance his lot and that the contractor's employees incorrectly located the boundaries of his lot.

Valley officials admit force used

Farmers stay locked up

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Defiant striking farmers paraded today around the Hidalgo County jail where 200 of their friends are held and spoke of returning to the International Bridge at Hidalgo, the site of Wednesday's skirmish with police.

About 200 American Agriculture supporters from several states spent their second night behind bars following their arrest at the bridge.

The jailed farmers unanimously voted to stay locked up after a two-hour session with Attorney General John Hill and local officials.

The protesters have refused to pay the $18.75 that would free them.

"They decided they'd spend the night and talk things over among themselves," spokesman Gerald McCathern of Hereford said upon emerging from the negotiating session in the county jail.

Hill, a gubernatorial candidate, said the discussions were "positive." But he told one farmer that the chances for dismissal of all the charges did not seem good.

The farmers were charged with obstruction of a passageway after they blockaded the international bridge.

"I proposed the use of personal recognizance bonds be considered," Hill said after a courthouse meeting with local district attorney Oscar McNis and other officials.

Hill also said there is a possibility of reducing the charge to a class C misdemeanor.

The attorney general was cheered when he arrived but booed when he made his statement.

Hill said his office will "definitely" investigate the bridge incident. The farmers had been corralled into a fenced area by nightstick-wielding police who had tossed tear gas canisters into the crowd.

Several farmers suffered cuts and bruises and one woman was taken to a local doctor several hours after the skirmish.

The strikers are protesting the import of Mexican beef and produce. The scuffles came after they had blockaded a produce truck.

Officials said force was used because the farmers did not keep their word to disperse peacefully at the bridge. The American Agriculture supporters said no such agreement had been made.

Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmolejo, who had ordered the bridge cleared Wednesday, said the crowd that gathered outside the jail Thursday could stay as long as they were not blocking traffic.

After a line of about 75 tractors and trucks rolled onto the scene, two deputies headed out to direct traffic. The sheriff called them back and, looking at the billy clubs, said, "put those damn sticks away."

The gathering in the parking lot broke up at sundown after the prisoners' decision was announced. McCathern said the sheriff had suggested it would be better not to spend the night outside the jail.

"He said it could be a problem. We could get hard to get along with. Maybe one or two fellows get to drinking and the crowd can get rowdy," McCathern said, adding he agreed that a night's rest after the day in the hot South Texas sun was a good thing.

Helmeted riot squads stood by most of the day as the crowd swelled to about 300. Tow trucks were also ready.

Throughout the day, as it became apparent the prisoners were prepared to hold to their demands, requests went out for provisions. Farmers outside the walls quickly returned with sacks of cigarettes, soft drinks and chewing tobacco.

During incident at Hidalgo

Area man is injured

By MARJ CARPENTER

Marion Snell of Ackerly was reported to be one of the farmers who received injuries on the bridge at Hidalgo Wednesday while protesting the import of vegetables and beef from Mexico.

He was said by local persons who went to the border city to have been x-rayed for possible broken bones and returned to the jail.

Jim Baum, a Big Spring candidate for Congress, had driven all night with the local delegation to the border cities, and was allowed inside the jail on his press card.

He was the first one able to talk to the locals other than Janie Reid who arrived Wednesday night by plane and was able to talk to her husband in the jail.

Baum said that Snell had "strawberries below his eyes and on his forehead."

The farmers claim through a spokesman, Joe Flanagan of Corsicana, that an agreement with Mayor Othal Brand of McAllen was violated.

Brand is a local farmer and vegetable packer with vegetable farms on both sides of the river. The farm spokesman said he told the group they could halt a vegetable truck on the bridge, long enough to make their point and that they would be told when they needed to get off the bridge.

The farmers claim that they were told to get off the bridge and they were trying to, but were only given a few seconds before the law enforcement officers began to beat them with clubs and throw tear gas.

A 15-year-old girl, Jill Barrett of Calera, Okla. was injured. She is being held in the juvenile detention center and is reported by Evan Evans, Howard County Democratic chairman, who went to the border, to be "very upset."

Evans said one 70-year-old man had been seriously injured and was taken to a Valley hospital. Bill Wishkaemper, a Lubbock attorney, accompanying the group, was arrested with the farmers. He paid his bond to get outside where he could represent them.

State Attorney General John Hill, who was campaigning in the Valley, went inside the jail and talked to the farmers. He had gotten the district attorney to agree to reduce the bonds to personal recognizance bonds, but the farmers maintain that the charges should be dropped.

Baum issued a statement saying, "First of all these farmers were acting in accordance with a previous agreement made between the mayor of McAllen and the American Agriculture Association leadership. Secondly, even local media have taken exception with local law enforcement agencies concerning their method of dealing with the situation."

The candidate for Congress continued, "Specifically, these law-abiding farmers were exercising their constitutional right to peacefully demonstrate and they were attacked by club-wielding officers while following orders to leave the bridge — many of them with their hands in their pockets to demonstrate their cooperation."

"The use of force against a 15-year-old girl and the beating and resulting hospitalization of a woman were totally uncalled for. Those in sympathy of the plight of the farmer did not view this as an act disregarding the law, but a legitimate attempt to call attention to the severe crisis of American Agriculture in a peaceful and respectful nature. The American farmer is again taking his lumps — this time literally."

The attorney general was reported to have expressed concern that the Department of Public Safety officers were involved. They are usually used as a back-up to local officers when necessary during emergencies.

When an Agriculture Movement national speaker appeared in Big Spring last month, Hill said they had gotten very little response from Valley farmers in the movement. He had just flown here from McAllen.

However, Evans reported that Valley farmers Thursday brought 50 tractors to the courthouse and that there were farmers flying and driving in from all over the United States.

Every flight was booked solid to McAllen for the next few days, according to Evans, who planned to return to Big Spring today.

The local Agriculture Movement office said that James Coates, Dois Ray, David Barr and Jack Wolfe had left Thursday night to drive to Edinburg, arriving at 5:30 a.m. today.

Mrs. Snell said today that she had talked to her husband by telephone and that he told her, "I had my hands in my pockets the entire time this law man was hitting me in the face with a club. We had agreed to do that. They had to take my hands out of my pockets to handcuff me."

"I think it was all worth it," he continued, according to Mrs. Snell. "If it has drawn attention to the matter of importation of beef and vegetables hurting the American farmers."

A captain at the Midland Department of Public Safety Office said this morning that they have not been asked to send any officers to the border city.

Evans said that the farmers had one balogna sandwich each the first day and slept on the grass inside the new compound in Edinburg but that 100 prisoners had been moved out to make room for them.

It was reported to be in the 40s in the Valley this morning, which is considered very cold in that high humidity area.

Plane carrying four missing

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — A twin-engine plane carrying four Arlington, Texas, residents disappeared from radar screens as it was approaching the La Plata Airport near Durango, officials said.

Searchers on snowmobiles and snowcats plowed through deep snow in the area around the airport today, but no trace of the plane was found. One search plane was sent aloft for 30 minutes, but it was forced back by low clouds and poor visibility.

The plane was less than a mile from the airport and had been cleared for landing when it disappeared Thursday evening, airport officials said. It was reported at 7,000 feet, approximately the height of the ridge line near the 6,300-foot-high airport.

The plane, a Beech Baron, had taken off about three hours earlier from Arlington, officials said. Airport officials here said they had been told the persons aboard the plane were Roger A. Marrow, the pilot; his wife, Bobbie; and Marrow's daughter and son-in-law, Cindy and Jay Paul.

Space linkup looms

MOSCOW (AP) — A newly launched team of Russian and Czechoslovak cosmonauts began preparing their Soyuz 28 capsule for docking with the orbiting Soviet Salyut 6 space station, Tass reported.

No time was given for the linkup. The Soviet news agency said Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Gubarez and Czechoslovak Vladimir Remek had completed 13 orbits around the earth since their blastoff from Soviet Central Asia Thursday evening.

During their first radio communications session with ground control, the cosmonauts "reported that they had started implementing the program of preparing the Soyuz 28 ship for a rendezvous with the orbital complex Salyut 6-Soyuz 27," Tass said.

Gas prices deal?

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be a break in the three-month deadlock over natural gas prices. The issue has stalled passage of President Carter's energy package. Key Senate energy negotiators say they are close to moving toward a possible agreement, but that some obstacles remain. The conferees must reach an agreement on the gas price issue before action on the energy bills can proceed. The negotiators were to resume their deliberations today after failing on Thursday to produce the overall agreement that might put Carter's plan back on course.

Striking miners split

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking miners, are divided and uncertain about ratification of a proposed contract that would end the long coal strike, according to interviews with more than 100 local leaders of the United Mine Workers. The local union leader said that the miners are angry over proposed increases in medical bills and curbs on wildcat strikes, but that they also are worried about the sacrifices required if the strike continues. "A majority don't think much of it (the contract). But it will be mighty close," said Carl Willey, of Craigsville, W. Va., president of Local 1254 of the United Mine Workers union.

Right to work until 70

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation which would allow most Americans to work until age 70 and give federal employees the option of staying on the payroll indefinitely, is expected to whisk through Congress. A House-Senate conference committee worked out final details of the bill Thursday. It would abolish most requirements in private business that workers retire at age 65 and ends the federal government's age-70 limit. But executives "in a high policy-making capacity" who would have retirement incomes of $27,000, minus Social Security, would be exempt from the legislation. Businesses could still retire them at 65.

Bank bandits escape

AVINGER, Texas (AP) — The First State Bank of this east Texas community was robbed today of an unknown amount of money. Authorities said many of the town's 700 residents were away during the robbery because the high school's boys and girls basketball teams are participating in state tournaments.

Police said the robbery occurred just before 9 a.m., before the bank opened when two men armed with a pistol and a shot gun forced their way into the bank.

Officers said the bandits left town heading south on State Highway 49.

Levelland firm wins contract

The bid to construct the metal portion of a new hangar at the Big Spring Industrial Park was awarded to McRee Buildings Systems Company at a special meeting of the Big Spring City Council, 10 a.m. today.

Win McRee, president of the Levelland company, had been given until today to come up with a personal bond to cover the project. He was able to do so, and was awarded the bid at $524,345, which is $92,518 less than the next lowest bid.

The hangar is to be used by Lockheed Air Services Corporation in the event it is awarded a contract by the Air Force to modify fighter planes here. If Lockheed does not get the nod for the contract, it will cost the city $5,000 to abandon the deal with McRee.

Farm Recent rains improve outlooks in some areas

AUSTIN — Sunshine and warm weather last week have brightened crop conditions in many parts of the state, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said today.

According to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, drought conditions persist in the High and Low Plains. However, relief from the recent freezing weather should stimulate winter wheat growth, Brown said. Some moisture has been provided by snow and ice, he noted, but in parts of the Panhandle rainfall levels have been 66 per cent below normal.

"Recent rains have greatly helped out stands in many areas, and a little sunshine should now help them green up and develop rapidly," Brown said. "Progress so far has been fair, but we have reports of greenbugs on some fields in the Low Plains and Cross Timbers."

Lower Valley cotton producers are anxiously waiting for fields to dry and warm up so planting can proceed, Brown noted. Land preparation is currently underway in the Coastal Bend, and some producers are applying fertilizer.

Sorghum and corn planting in the Lower Valley, South Texas and the Coastal Bend has been slowed by the recent wet weather, but should accelerate as fields dry out, Brown stated.

Commercial vegetable harvesting is proceeding

Festival dates are set

The Big Spring Arts and Crafts Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its first meeting for March 10, at 3 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce conference room. One of the major topics to be discussed at the meeting will be the annual Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival to be held Oct. 21 and 22 in the Howard College Coliseum.

Mel Prather, chairman of the Arts and Crafts Committee and co-chairman of the Festival, said "we needed to call the meeting early this year due to numerous inquiries and calls we are already receiving from individuals interested in buying booths at the festival. Since we are getting so many inquiries, I felt there was a need to finalize plans for the October festival in order to get the information in print and out to these individuals."

"The calls we are getting from these persons," Prather continued, "range from whether they can purchase two or more booths in one location to whether they can specify wall space or not. From the response we are getting, I would not be at all surprised if the booths at the festival were sold out within a month or two after we make our festival dates public throughout the area."

Prather went on to say that there was already a long waiting list for concessions at the festival, and that many artists were already asking if they could send in checks at this time in order to insure they would get a booth at the festival.

However, Prather said "before we can accept their money and reserve a space for these individuals, they will have to complete an entry form. These forms provide us with the individual's name, address, phone number, type of arts or crafts they wish to display, and any special requirements they may have. It also outlines the costs of the booths and the fact that artists are responsible for their own materials, even though every precaution will be taken to insure that nothing is lost."

"As far as booth assignments," Prather said, "the booths will be assigned in registration sequence. The first individuals to get their checks and cards in will be the first to be assigned booth space. And since the festival will be held inside the Coliseum, the number of

Police hunting three escapees

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — Authorities today sought three prisoners who escaped from the Ramsey Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections in Brazoria County.

The three, who escaped Thursday, were identified as Dennis Watson, 48, Riley Futz, 35, and Russell Merritt, 30.

All were serving robbery terms. Watson and Futz were serving life terms and Merritt was serving a 10-year sentence.

Authorities said the three were working in an auto repair shop at the maximum security prison and apparently escaped in a pickup truck.

$5,000 payoff reported

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The owner of a Tyler vocational school paid $5,000 to a federal employee for recruiting federal job-training program students, a former school official has told an Austin newspaper.

The Austin American-Statesman quoted Eligha Walker today as saying that he delivered "$5,000 in cold cash" in December 1975 to an employee of the federal Motivation Education Training Inc. (MET) program.

The paper quoted Walker as saying Jim Bartlett of Midland, former owner of Tyler Career College, told Walker to withdraw the money from the school's bank account and give it to the MET employee.

Walker said 22 students were recruited for the college and were worth about $1,000 each to Bartlett's school in federal reimbursement for their classroom training.

Bartlett and the MET employee have denied the charge.

The paper said Walker told his story to the FBI in Tyler last week and signed a sworn statement recounting the alleged payoff episode at the federal courthouse in Tyler.

Chappie James was unique American

Members of this paper's editorial staff remember Air Force Gen. Daniel James, although only one ever had occasion to talk with the man. James died recently, less than one month after he had retired.

A few years ago, Gen. James and his entourage put down at Webb AFB. The general descended from the plane, looked around and inquired of the greeting party:

"Alright, where is the press?"

The one girl we had sent to interview Chappie James stepped forward and rather timidly responded to the question: "Sir, I am the press."

James was unique in that he was America's first black four-star general. He waged a significant struggle for equal rights within the military. As a first lieutenant, Chappie decided that if he was going anywhere he'd have to make waves. Suffice it to say he made them.

James spent a lifetime defending equal rights for all Americans. He spent 34 years in the Air Force and his performance was invariably exemplary. He fought in three wars and at one time commanded the North American Air Defense Command.

"I love America," Gen. James wrote on a photograph that decorates one of the walls in the Pentagon, "and as she has weaknesses or ills, I'll hold her hand."

There was no doubt that James was first an American, then a military man and finally a black. He encouraged all persons everywhere to try and do better.

Adlai Stevenson once said that "patriotism is not a short and frenzied outburst of emotion but the tranquil and steady dedication of a lifetime."

The life and dedication of Chappie James reaffirms the truth of that definition.

A step ahead

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The needed taste of victory within the White House over tentative settlement of the coal strike must be tempered by the role played by Robert Strauss, the indispensable insider enlisted at the 11th hour for his long experience in how power really works.

Strauss, the notable establishment politician in an administration of outsiders, not only contacted executives of steel companies which own coal mines but was the central figure pressuring other coal operators to accept the union's last offer. The reality for President Carter was this: nobody else had the experience or contacts for that mission. But Strauss, splitting his time between being chief trade negotiator and cabinet member-without-portfolio, is spread too thin.

HIS ROLE belies the claim of administration officials (especially Strauss himself) that the Carter team was well prepared for the coal crisis. The truth is closer to this candid appraisal by one middle-level official closely connected to the coal crisis: "Our grade was D, a step ahead of failure. It was good only when compared with the Marston affair, because this one almost got away from us."

That "D" seems a trifle harsh, considering that the President met his desperate need to show success somewhere. The belated exercise of presidential power was essential to sagging self-confidence at the White House. Still, the unstructured impromptu approach to handling the crisis spells danger ahead.

Contrary to natural White House efforts to rewrite history, the coal question was wholly in the hands of Labor Secretary Ray Marshall until mid-February. Marshall, a college professor without labor mediation experience, had devised no thorough strategy. Both coal state politicians and administration officials privately conceded Marshall was given a one-man assignment beyond his capabilities.

One reason is the idiosyncratic arrangement of the White House staff. Top aide Hamilton Jordan handles a vast array of political questions from coal to Panama. In addition, both labor relations and the canal treaties are under the same Jordan assistant, Landon Butler. While devoting every waking hour to the treaties, they could not focus on coal.

WHEN JORDAN and Butler belatedly turned full attention to coal after the union's bargaining council rejected a negotiated settlement Feb. 12, their effectiveness was limited by lack of experience. Each probably knew more about Panamanian politics than the disordered internal politics of coal. Nor did either have the contacts needed to pressure coal owners into a settlement, which quickly became the necessary administration strategy.

Enter Strauss on Feb. 19. Ironically, a President elected partly for being separated from the establishment has repeatedly turned to Strauss, a quintessential establishment figure. By Feb. 22, Strauss was making telephone calls that he alone among Carter's men was capable of making.

Strauss, a millionaire Dallas lawyer, placed a call to Dallas to the president of First International Bancshares, Dewey Presley, who has a corporate connection to Continental Oil Co., owner of Consolidated Coal Co. Would Presley tell Continental board chairman Howard Blauvelt to expect a call from Bob Strauss? Strauss then called Blauvelt, with the message he was giving all coal operators: "You can't fine-tune this negotiation." In other words, the last United Mine Workers (UMW) offer is the best you'll get.

STRAUSS'S TELEPHONE found Edgar Speer, chairman of U.S. Steel (an important coal mine owner), undergoing a routine physical checkup at the Mayo Clinic. Apologizing for the interruption, Strauss asked Speer's help to win industry acceptance of the UMW offer.

Night leg twitching: Many causes

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband twitches at night. His legs twitch involuntarily after he falls asleep and it keeps me awake. In the morning I am dead tired. He seems unaware that he is doing it. He is 40 and a football coach.

Should he make an appointment with an internist or a neurologist, or would our own general practitioner be enough? Do you think there is anything seriously wrong? — Mrs. H. M.

The "restless leg" syndrome, which this sounds like, affects about 5 per cent of the population, and if I had a specific remedy for it (which unfortunately I don't) it would be a blessing for millions of sufferers.

We do not know the cause, but numerous studies have been undertaken. It seems more common among diabetics, those who have had stomach removal, and those with breathing disorders, such as emphysema. The studies show no defect in the nervous system or in leg circulation, as with leg cramps, for example. It is quite common in tense individuals (which they tell me many football coaches are of necessity), and depression is detected in many victims. Sometimes a mineral imbalance can be a cause.

The twitching seems to be more pronounced during deeper sleep. It might occur more readily after a day of extreme physical activity.

Your family doctor is undoubtedly familiar with the problem.

Numerous drugs and procedures have been tried, from aspirin to vasodilators to sedatives. What helps one person might not another. Except for the discomfort and the fact that it might represent one of the disorders mentioned, it is not considered serious.

But don't tell that to the person who has it. Many have in desperation attempted their own "therapies" and, not too surprisingly, some of these have worked. One reader told me she found relief by massaging her legs with a towel after soaking her feet before retiring. Another found relief by tensing the abdomen when he exhaled. Others find avoiding stimulants — such as tea, coffee and cola — in the evening helps. The most effective tranquilizer seems to be diazepam (Valium is one).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I know this may be a dumb question, but I need an answer. Is it possible to be pregnant and still have your normal monthly period? My abdomen has enlarged to about three or four months size, which is noticeable because I am tall and underweight anyway. — C. P.

Some women may spot during pregnancy, but it would be rare to have a flow similar to that of a normal period. Also, there would be other symptoms by the fourth month — darkening of the nipples, for example, and enlargement of the uterus.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a person have infectious hepatitis, not know it, and be a carrier of it? — Mrs. P. P.

Hepatitis usually makes itself known with symptoms of nausea, weakness, vomiting and fever, and the classic jaundice — a yellowish tint of the skin. However, it can exist without jaundice, a mild condition called "ajnetic hepatitis."

A person may have this for an extended period without symptoms. This is a type that poses problems in control, because it is so difficult to diagnose without liver-function tests.

As with other forms of hepatitis, it subsides with time. If you are involved in a hepatitis outbreak you might get this mild form and never know about it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson, 13, is a beautiful child and smart in his books. But he pulls his hair out on top of his head. Why would he do that?

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: This is in regard to a letter written by Paul Sutphin in Sunday, Feb. 19 edition of the paper.

Mr. Sutphin stated "it'll end with a nuclear holocaust, a cleansing of the earth with a destructive force far greater than the flood back in the days of Noah." Mr. Sutphin does not know if this will be a nuclear holocaust, for there is nothing to give us any indication of what the fervent heat mentioned in 11 Peter 3:10-11 will be. But one thing is for certain, man will not set off this great reaction, whatever it might be.

In one place Mr. Sutphin indicates that the earth will be cleaned up, as you might clean your kitchen. In another place he indicates that the earth will be burned up.

Mr. Sutphin has misunderstood the scripture in Matthew 24:22, for this chapter does not talk about or even indicate a reference to the 2000 years from Christ until now. This verse talks about the tribulation, as the whole chapter talks of the end time. In Matt. 24:21 we find "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, nor ever shall be." Then in verse 22 it talks of the days of this tribulation, being shortened for the elects sake. Verse 22 does not apply to the past 2,000 years.

But as Mr. Sutphin said, there will be an end. How many are going to be ready for the end?

Wiley Madewell
P.O. Box 1931
Big Spring, Texas

Dear Editor: In answer to the headline describing a cry, "We want justice," which appeared in the Sunday Herald, Feb. 26, my answer is, that is exactly what people get here in Big Spring.

"We want justice." What is justice? Letting an attempted abduction go unchallenged? Letting crime grow rampant in our city and neighboring counties?

The very text of a talk made here was of violence and killing and even a threat to destroy our city. Those people did not build our city. They will not destroy our town. There will still be law abiding, God-fearing people in Big Spring and Howard County long after the rabble-rousers are forgotten.

Why the threat to shoot back, if they are so law-abiding? If one lives in an honorable way, he will not be shot at. Why the threat to our law enforcement officers that were here to protect the people in the march, to shoot them if they uphold the law? It was not because a man was brown that he was shot in the line of duty but because of his wanton defiance of the law and disregard to the rights of others.

Trichotillomania (hair pulling) is a sign of an underlying emotional disturbance. It can be temporary as when a youngster is faced with problems at school or in the home. The hair will not come in white. More attention needs to be paid to the youngster's emotional needs.

As I've mentioned before, many of these strange habits in children are blessings in disguise, because they do call attention to their emotional state.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

I, for one, give a big salute to our men in blue who risk their lives in the performance of duty.

And another thing, what is this about the Mexican flag waving and tri-color head bands in America? Is their allegiance with Mexico?

What is wrong with Old Glory and the red, white and blue? It is this grand old flag and what it stands for that gives one the right of freedom of speech. Yet it is trampled under foot with words of hate, violence, killings and the threat to burn our city.

There are those who call themselves Mexican-Americans? Mexican first? American last? Webster's dictionary defines the hyphen. It is a symbol used to divide a compound word or a single word. So it seems to me that when a man calls himself a Mexican-American that what he is saying is "I'm a divided American." A hyphen is a line that's small. It can be a bridge or be a wall. A bridge can save one a lot of time, a wall one always has to climb. The hyphen use is always up to the individual. Used as a bridge, it can span all the differences of man. If one uses the hyphen as a wall, he makes his life mean and small. So be wise in making the decision. Mexican-American? We're AMERICANS, and that says it all.

Athletic invitation

Around the rim

Bob Burton

As spring is just around the corner, and the temperature soars through the pleasant range with every intention of reaching the too-durn-hot level as soon as possible, I want to issue an invitation to all slug-a-beds to try the athletic scene in Big Spring.

Most of you men and women use weather as an excuse to stay quietly behind closed doors, where not even Charlie Rich can get you whipped into any kind of a healthy frenzy. You look at the sky and claim either rain or dust or heat or cold as a good excuse to stay right where you are, in air-conditioned indolence.

YOU ARE PROBABLY very happy, in fact, you have probably stopped reading already, but there are always spring stirrings within the soul. Perhaps you will remember the childhood sports and games, perhaps you'll just smell some fresh air once too often, but you are sure to get a crazy idea to exercise.

My advice is to take yourself up on it. Like the advertisement from a sporting goods company, you can make weekends happen. And, if you start now, by the summer you'll be better than those who simply sit on their cans waiting for baseball to get off the ground.

Golf, tennis, softball, swimming, and bicycling are local activities. If they take too much precious time, try running a mile. Our harried sports editor did (and no one has less time for sports during his time off than our sports editor does) and look how healthy he is! He gets the heart of a lion for just a few minutes a day after work.

Running is about as dull as the finish on an old pickup, but the longer you do it, the better it gets to feel.

And if you are looking to go out of town, try some camping (maybe even some hiking) around Texas. The Guadalupe Mountains, Big Bend, Possum Kingdom, all are within driving distance for either short or long stays.

THAT FUNNY man in the White Owl commercials says "We're gonna get you." Sometime this spring it is sure to hit. You will feel a sudden unaccountable urge to do something you generally would avoid like the plague. Do it. Do it again and try to stick with it. For all the frustrations of exercise, it pays dividends in appearance and in the years it can add to your life.

It may not turn your eyes blue and your hair flaxen like Glenda's, but you'll feel better. Go, Team, Go.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a teenager who will be moving to a new town very soon. How can I choose the right friends in this new town? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: I'm glad you're concerned about this, because the friends you choose will probably have a great influence on you. If you choose friends who do not care about God, you will be strongly tempted to forget Him and what He wants you to do with your life. On the other hand, if your new friends love God and want to serve Him, you will be richly blessed and helped. The Bible says, "Make no friendship with an angry man; and with a furious man thou shalt not go: Lest thou learn his ways, and get a snare to thy soul" (Proverbs 22:24-25).

What can you do? First, you should commit this matter to God in prayer. God is concerned about your friends, and He wants you to have friends who will help you. "Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established" (Proverbs 16:3).

Second, decide in advance — prayerfully and thoughtfully — what kind of friends you will seek. Sometimes when a person is in a new situation he may be lonely and may latch onto the first friend he finds. But you should think through the kind of friends you want and need. For example, you should decide right now that you will not seek out people whose habits and actions are wrong. The Bible warns us, "Enter not into the path of the wicked, and go not in the way of evil men. Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away" (Proverbs 4:14-15).

Also, when you move, seek out Christian fellowship. In all likelihood the best friends you will have will come from your church group or from a campus Christian group such as a Bible study. Part of the secret of finding friends is knowing where to find them.

Remember what the Bible says: "A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother" (Proverbs 18:24).

Strong-arming

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we have told how the criminal godfathers are scheming to get their hands upon the ultimate financial prize: the U.S. Treasury. This is another installment.

There is disturbing evidence that the mob is already siphoning off federal funds intended for the care of the sick and elderly. Criminal figures have threatened doctors and clinics with violent reprisals unless they kick back a share of their federal payments.

These seamy underworld connections have remained hidden behind a murky curtain of legitimate enterprises, dummy corporations and holding companies. Notorious mobsters like Meyer Lansky and Joe Colombo reportedly have been linked to nursing homes, hospitals and clinical laboratories, though their ownership has been obscured by this corporate web.

In 1976, a federal grand jury heard secret testimony that some mobsters have used fraud, extortion, arson, assault and other strong-arm tactics against Medicaid practitioners in New York City. Witnesses testified that Joseph Pagano, a member of the Vito Genovese crime family, was involved.

THE MAIN WITNESS, a psychiatrist from a Bronx clinic, was nearly killed a few days after he testified. As the doctor drove home at night, a Mercedes sped alongside his car, and a shot rang out. A 45-caliber slug smashed through the car window and grazed the back of the doctor's head. "I knew they'd get me," the doctor reportedly gasped as he was rushed to a hospital.

Our reporter Bill Halamandaris has been following the case since the psychiatrist was brought before the grand jury. The doctor is still in jeopardy, so some details must be withheld to protect his identity. But much of the story can now be told.

The case began, according to federal prosecutors, when the psychiatrist was caught balking the Medicaid program. Inspectors discovered that he had inflated his billings to the government by more than $10,000 in a single year.

When confronted with this evidence, the psychiatrist agreed to cooperate with the prosecutors. He charged that crime lords had arranged for hundreds of thousands of dollars to be siphoned off from federal health programs.

The doctor told federal officials that

Pagano was a silent partner in the Bronx welfare clinic where he practiced. Pagano allegedly received 20 to 25 per cent of the facility's net income, the doctor said. As the price for practicing his profession, the psychiatrist was ordered to make monthly payments to an associate of Pagano.

He also described other organized crime operations. The mob threatened owners of Medicaid clinics with beatings or vowed to burn down their buildings if they didn't cough up the monthly payments. In return, they were offered political "assistance" and "protection" from competition.

"Let me put it this way," explained one Medicaid practitioner from a battered section of the Bronx. "I can guarantee nobody will open up another clinic within 20 blocks of my place."

Using threats, the mobsters forced some welfare clinics to pay as much as several thousand dollars a month to stay in business. Others were ordered to employ the services of businesses and agencies controlled by the mob.

FOOTNOTE: WE ARE unable to reach Pagano for comment. He has been convicted of drug trafficking, perjury and stealing more than $1 million from a Bronx meat packing firm. Law enforcement sources say he is still deeply involved in gambling, extortion, drug trafficking and loan-sharking in New York. The late Vito Genovese, in the opinion of many knowledgeable sources, was the model for the book and movie "The Godfather."

WATCH ON WASTE: Sometimes it costs the taxpayers a little extra when old soldiers fade away. This occurred when two distinguished four-star generals, Daniel "Chappie" James and F. Michael Rogers, retired from the Air Force recently after years of outstanding service.

No one begrudges the final honors paid the two generals. But it is questionable whether federal funds should be spent on farewell bashes.

Pentagon spokesmen have confirmed that the government anted up more than $4,900 for Gen. James' retirement party. For Gen. Rogers, the Defense Department paid $1,300 for a change-of-command ceremony and a going-away party.

Both events were held during duty hours, with hundreds of Air Force employees excused from work to attend.

Exercise prerogative, Nagel tells voters

Harry Nagel, city manager, urged local citizens to become more involved in the city by voting in the city election when he spoke to the Republican Women at noon Thursday.

"I do not endorse or comment on council candidates or take sides, but I do wish that more people would vote," he stressed.

He told the group "the city is big business. While I have been talking one minute, $10.52 of your tax money was spent for city business. The city spends $5.5 million each year and that is big business."

"The more that the citizens demand from government, the more it costs them," he added. "Government spends part of the tax dollar for administration of programs demanded by citizens who appear to want some type of government agency to take care of them from the cradle to the grave," he added.

"A lot of these things could be better handled by private business but that does not seem to be what the citizen wants," he stressed.

Girl planned to kill her parents so she could inherit family car

DALLAS (AP) — A 17-year-old girl who once was a close friend of murder defendant Lucinda Stout, 16, testified Thursday that Miss Stout had told her that she planned to kill her parents so she could inherit the family car.

Anna Villasanna testified that three days before Sharon Stout, 34, the defendant's mother, was stabbed to death, and Miss Stout's father, Harry, 36, was shot twice, Miss Stout studied the options of running away or killing her parents.

Miss Villasanna said Miss Stout decided on the latter because "she'd be poor and wouldn't have any money."

"If she killed them she would have the car and she could live with her Uncle Steve," testified the girl.

He agreed wholeheartedly, during a question and answer period that "trash pickup here was antiquated back in World War I. When we tried to change it, a small but vocal group demanded that we not put the trash out front even though we were trying to improve the system. We headed the group. We don't know how the people who failed to speak up felt," he continued.

He discussed the work of the present council in turning the former Webb AFB into an industrial complex, going into the process in detail. He commended local leaders who have worked hard on the project.

He said, during the question session, "One of the most controversial subjects is dogs. People are mad if you pick them up and mad if you do not. Everybody says that all dogs are a problem except their dog," he added.

Mrs. Jane Thomas presided during a business session and presented a plaque of appreciation to Mrs. Betty Wrinkle, who served as president last year.

Winston Wrinkle told the group that Sam Hunnicutt has agreed to serve as Republican chairman and Mrs. Mary Randle as assistant. Mrs. Randle spoke briefly to the group.

They also heard a report that Bill Clements, one of two candidates for Governor of Texas in the Republican primary, will be in Big Spring at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday with a place to be announced.

More Briscoe appointments

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Morris T. Higley, Childress newspaper publisher, and Bill Holman, Henrietta bank president, were appointed Wednesday to the board of directors of the Red River Authority.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe also reappointed Alvin Barnes of Wichita Falls and William H. Summers of Whitewright to the board.

Judge Paul G. Peurifoy of Dallas was re-appointed presiding judge for the 1st Administrative Judicial District.

Charles S. Coates Sr., Brenham, was designated as chairman of the State Board of Control.

Valley fray triggers remarks of candidate

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Ray Hutchinson charged today that Gov. Dolph Briscoe has been "irresponsible," by not going to the Lower Rio Grande Valley and attempting to cool down the confrontation between farmers and law officers.

"It is one of the most volatile situations this state has faced in many years," Hutchinson told a Capitol news conference shortly after flying to Austin from McAllen.

"Briscoe should have been down there day before yesterday. He, as usual, was absent at a time of need and open up the opportunity to politicize the situation in the terms of the governor's race," Hutchinson said.

He said he was offered an opportunity to go to the jail Thursday where 200 farmers are being held but declined.

He said he did not think Attorney General John Hill's efforts helped the situation. Hill is Democratic candidate for governor.

"The farmers don't know which is worse, being ignored by the governor or used by the attorney general," Hutchinson said.

Weather Snow falling in West Texas

By the Associated Press
Snow began falling early today over much of West Texas and in the Panhandle as a new winter storm moved into the state.

The latest storm moved into western portions of the state on the heels of a strong cold front that moved bitter cold Arctic air deep into the state.

Forecasters predicted very cold temperature readings for North Texas for early Saturday with lows expected to dip into the teens across much of the northern portion of the state.

Forecasters called for cloudy skies with precipitation of some sort expected over most of the state. It was expected to be snow in western and northern portions, sleet in central portions and rain with a few thunder-showers in southern sections.

Snow accumulations of one to three inches could be expected over a wide area of the northern and western portions of the state.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Travelers advisory Panhandle and South Plains. Occasional snow north, changing to light rain south today and tonight decreasing Saturday. Light rain changing to freezing rain mixed with snow tonight.

Snow accumulations of 1 to 3 inches and some locally heavier amounts will cause hazardous driving conditions today and tonight into Saturday over Panhandle and South Plains.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS: Chance of rain Sunday and Monday. A slow warming trend through Tuesday. Lows 20s north to 40s south. Highs near 50 north, 60s south to 80s Big Bend. Colder most sections except west of mountains today through Saturday. Highs mid 20s north to mid 40s south and upper 60s west of mountains. Low lower teens north to lower 30s south and mid 40s west mountains.

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast for the Southwest. Snow is expected from the Central Plains to northern Texas. Snow flurries are forecast across the Great Lakes into New England. Rain and showers are forecast for Florida. Most areas will be cold.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 ALA-TEEN can help your battered friend

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace:

My best friend is in serious trouble and I don't know what to do. She's really a neat kid. I respect and like her a lot. Her problem is her mother and father are alcoholics which is bad enough, but lately they have been beating her. Because of this, she has started to smoke pot so she can "escape" reality.

I told her to tell her school counselor, but she said she was afraid to because the counselor might call her parents, and that if he did, her parents would beat her to death.

Please tell me what to do. Belinda, West Covina, Calif.

Dear Belinda:

Please have your friend contact ALA-TEEN, a division of ALA-NON. They will give her the assistance she desperately needs. Look up the address in the phone book. Tell her that everything will be kept confidential. Belinda, you are a good friend.

Doctor Wallace:

When I grow up, I want to be just like you, answering people's letters and giving advice. But, how do I get started?

C. A. F., Modesto, Calif.

Dear C. A. F.:

I'm a firm believer in that if you really want something, you can get it.

First, study and get good school grades.

Second, when the time comes, work on your school newspaper.

Third, spend leisure time reading.

Double program presented on roots of 4-H, crisis

Mrs. Wayman Etchison presided at the Home Demonstration Club's covered dish luncheon held Feb. 24 at the home of Mrs. Ross Callihan. Cohostess was Mrs. Bell Conger.

A devotion from Guidepost Magazine was presented by Mrs. Etchison, giving points for improving individual use of time and energy to benefit the body.

Roll call was answered with reasons for refinishing furniture.

Preceding the luncheon, a program entitled "The Five C's of Crisis" was presented by Mrs. Marion Sewell and Mrs. Francis Zant. Mrs. Sewell quoted Wilfred A. Peterson as saying, "He who hopes to avoid all failure and misfortune is trying to live in fairyland; the wise man realistically accepts failures as a part of life and builds a philosophy to meet them and make the most of them."

The five C's were identified as critique, contend, communicate, cope and conquer. Holmes Stress Impact Charts, denoting types of stress which occur during a lifetime on a stress point scale, were distributed to members. Stress indicator charts defining indication of inner tension were also distributed for individual study.

Mrs. Zant closed the program with the advice to "Relax and stay that way."

Following lunch, a second program on the roots of the 4-H organization, was given by Mrs. Callihan. According to Mrs. Callihan, the organization began developing in the last decade of the 19th century in response to needs of rural people for better agricultural education to help rural youth better appreciate and use their opportunities.

The first real participation events for boys, and later girls, in 4-H, Mrs. Zant said, were corn-growing contests.

National headquarters for 4-H is the U.S. Department of Agriculture, with state headquarters being the State Land Grant University. Each state has a 4-H leader and youth development staff administered by the State Director of Extension.

4-H work in local areas is supervised by county extension agents with the help of local volunteer leaders.

Mrs. Zant told how today's 4-H program includes urban as well as rural youth of all racial, cultural, economic and social backgrounds. Participation encompasses club membership, special interest groups at local levels, involvement in short-term projects, 4-H educational television and a special 4-H nutrition education program for low income city youth.

The overall objective of 4-H is the development of youth as individuals and as responsible and productive citizens.

The four-leaf clover, the official emblem for the organization, was adopted in 1977 at a meeting of club leaders in Washington, replacing the previous 3-leaf clover emblem. The four leaves are symbolic of the four H's which make up the 4-H pledge each member takes. It reads:

I pledge my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service, and my health to better living for my club, my community, my country and my world.

The 4-H motto, proposed by botanist Carrie Harrison and officially adopted in 1927, is "To make the best better."

Club members were reminded to prepare their entries for the Creative Homemakers Style Show on March 14. Entries are to be submitted by calling the Howard County Extension Office by March 3.

Seventeen members and one guest, Mrs. Frank Yandell, attended the meeting.

Faith and Charity tell Rainbow about projects

The Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, met in the Masonic Temple Tuesday evening for initiation. Worthy Advisor Robin von Rosenberg presided.

Terri Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Evans, received the Degree of the Order.

Out-of-town guests from the Norman Read Assembly of Midland were Mrs. Kay Twerd, Worthy Advisor Penne McAdams, Susan Pickeing, Michell Eastic and Anga Scrogin.

Other guests and attending board members were Charlie Clay, Marvin Watson, Mrs. Jerry Spencer, Mrs. Odell LaLonde, Louise Hamilton, Candy Andrews and Mary Ben Wright.

Gaylene Bruton, Charity, announced that her charity project will be collecting donations for the Easter Seal Drive for crippled children in the area on March 18. Afterwards, she is planning a pizza party for all girls and adults who help with the project.

Dana Hodnett, Faith, challenged everyone to turn in to her 100 ruined nylon hose per week throughout this term. The hose will be given to the nursing homes and state hospital to use in physical therapy. This project is being undertaken by Rainbow Girls throughout the state of Texas.

Good Sams make plans

The Western Drifters Good Sam Chapter met at 6:30 p.m., Feb. 28 for their monthly business meeting and a potluck supper. Present were 16 members and three guests.

Plans were made for the March 10-12 rally at the Old Florey Park, Andrews.

Yearly dues are now due and payable through March. Anyone interested in joining the club is urged to call C. Milton Brown or Mrs. Vern Vigor.

Potholes provide man with hobby

BRIDGEVIEW, Ill. (AP) — Potholes, the bane of motorists, have given Leroy Lape a new hobby. He collects the hubcaps that fall off in front of his house when cars crunch into a gaping pothole nine inches deep and 2½ feet long.

Brown visits here today

Reagan Brown, State Secretary of Agriculture who is a candidate for the position again in this year's elections, will greet friends and well-wishers from 4 to 5 p.m., today in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Conference Room.

Brown, on a political swing through West Texas, is destined to be the speaker at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce annual membership banquet this evening.

alone, I've picked up 50 hubcaps near the curb," said Lape, 42, a driver in The Chicago Tribune's circulation department. "I've got 'em for all kinds of cars, Fords, Chevys, everything."

Lape, who lives on a busy thoroughfare in this suburb south of Chicago, says he has returned 17 hubcaps to drivers who came back looking for them.

"All I want to do is help others recover their losses," he said. "But most of the people who hit the hole don't even know their hubcap has popped off. If they keep falling off, I'll keep picking them up."

He said he started collecting the wheel covers four days ago after a "lady" came by with a big Oldsmobile and started crying because she had lost her hubcap. "I started collecting them just to see if I could find hers, but I didn't," Lape said he doesn't know what he will do with the unclaimed hubcaps. His hobby may not last much longer because the pothole will be repaired, he thinks.

He said he has missed some of the hubcaps because he sleeps during the day, and other people pick them up.

Charlie Chaplin back in spotlight

'Little Tramp' stolen from his grave

CORSIER SUR VEVEY, Switzerland (AP) — Police say they have no clues to the grave robbers who stole Charlie Chaplin's body from a small, unguarded Swiss village cemetery two nights ago.

They said no ransom demand has been received, and they would not speculate on other possible motives for the theft.

But they were discounting the theory that the theft was masterminded by a mentally deranged person.

"If it were extortion, normally one does not hear from such people for two, three, maybe 10 days," said Jean-Felix Paschoud, the Chaplin family lawyer.

The thieves dug up the heavy wooden coffin and carried it off between nightfall Wednesday and dawn Thursday. A cross at the head of the grave was undamaged, and the police took it to a laboratory to check for fingerprints.

Chaplin died Dec. 25 and was buried two days later in a small cemetery on a rarely traveled dirt road near this Lake Geneva village where he had lived since 1952.

There was no elaborate grave marker because he had said he wanted his grave to be as simple as the others in the cemetery.

The little graveyard is surrounded by a stone wall about three feet high. The nearest house is about 50 yards away.

The thieves left the grave open, with the freshly dug earth mounded alongside. Mayor Ferdinand Volet said the hole apparently was discovered by visitors to the cemetery, but the police did not learn of the desecration until a municipal worker saw it and reported it Thursday afternoon.

The film star died in his sleep at the age of 88, a few hours after celebrating Christmas Eve with his family at his hillside estate, Manoir de Ban, overlooking the village.

There have been at least five other thefts or attempted thefts of remains of famous people in recent years.

The day Chaplin was buried, the urn containing the ashes of opera star Maria Callas was taken from a Paris cemetery but was found nearby several hours later.

Last August, four men were arrested in Memphis, Tenn., and accused of trying to steal the body of singer Elvis Presley 11 days after he died.

Last June, a body bag containing the charred remains of movie producer Mike Todd — who died in a 1958 plane crash while married to Elizabeth Taylor — were stolen from his grave outside Chicago. They were found 75 yards away several days later.

In 1974, students and monks opposed to the Burmese government took over the hearse carrying the body of former U.N.

Secretary-General U Thant, but police reclaimed the body.

In 1973, the body of Marshal Philippe Petain, who headed the Vichy government after France's surrender in World War II, was taken by fascists from its traitor's grave on the Atlantic island of Yeu. It was found in the back of a panel truck near Paris and returned to the island.

We live our lives surrounded by noise. Some we get used to and are barely conscious of. Some we can't stand—it drives us up the wall.

Yet for relaxation and inspiration millions of us turn to music. We do not think of it as noise. That is because it is sound with a purpose, with mood, message, a beautiful theme.

As music refines the clamor of noise, RELIGION unravels the confusion of everyday experience. Events, incidents, problems and trials that in themselves make little sense—become for the earnest believer challenges and stepping stones in his pursuit of Christian aims.

Join the millions who gather in Church each Sunday. Like you they are tired of noise and confusion. Their souls respond with courage and strength to the spiritual theme that runs faithfully through the Christian experience of life.

Do they come to hear the noise?

Woman accosted at bar

Hamilton Jordan's Amaretto and cream

WASHINGTON (AP) — It seems as though Hamilton Jordan could use a security cordon. When he goes to a bar he's besieged, like a star, so he may sip in private from now on.

That, in lame limerick, sums up the official White House version of the Sarsfield's caper. All 33 pages of it.

No one has yet produced a trace of the risqué limerick Jordan is alleged to have scrawled to the young woman who claims he accosted her at the bar and, spurned, spit a drink on her.

She remains as anonymous as she was when the Washington Post Magazine printed her version of the episode two weeks ago.

Jordan, his companions and their bartender on the night in question all deny her account. The bartender says the woman was pestering Jordan. And the 33-year-old presidential aide adds that he seldom goes to public places because he often is bothered by people who don't respect his privacy.

Both sides stipulate that the encounter was unpleasant. It also seems that during it, Jordan got slapped. Beyond that, the events of the night of Jan. 27 are as hazy as the atmosphere at midnight in Sarsfield's, now Washington's most publicized bar.

It could be that the whole mess was an accident. According to the bartender, one Daniel V. Marshall III, Jordan was drinking Amaretto and cream. "We use the cheapest Amaretto—it's 40 proof," said Marshall.

That concoction of liqueur and cream sounds like enough to make anybody spit. Perhaps the woman just got in the way.

Whatever happened, there are some conclusions to be drawn from the episode.

For one thing, bartenders are supposed to have names like Joe. No one can say, let alone sing, "Set 'em up Daniel V. Marshall III, I've got a little story I want you to know."

Fortunately, the senior associate counsel to the president of the United States went to Marshall to get a story, not to tell one. The interview produced a 24-page statement which the bartender concluded by saying that he saw no spitting, no touching and no improper conduct on Jordan's part.

White House press secretary Jody Powell arranged the defense exhibits. "I've always kind of thought that in barroom disputes, the bartender was generally considered to be the best judge," he observed. That makes sense. But White House response did more to magnify the story than to quash it. A quick shot would have worked better than the cannon Powell used. His defense dossier moved the item from the gossip columns to the front page.

Still, the overreaction is more understandable in view of the questions Powell encountered later. Take this one, put to Powell at a White House news briefing:

"I am asking what your comment is to the propriety of someone with access to secret information going into singles bars or other bars? I am just asking whether you think that is proper or improper?"

That merits the Amaretto Cup for pomposity.

Powell replied that if the administration kept classified material from all officials who go into bars, very few people would have access to government secrets.

He also noted that reporters have been known to enter bars and drink hard liquor.

"They usually go unnoticed, which is not the case with people like Jordan. Whatever happened at Sarsfield's, the bartender's story touches on one of the facts of Washington life: the real celebrities are the people in power."

"When celebrities come in, politicians are one of the few people that people run right up to," said Marshall. "And these girls ran right up and just started talking to him, and a couple of people came up and asked Hamilton questions."

It's enough to drive a man to Amaretto and cream.

Printed name of juvenile

Newspapers indicted

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A Kanawha County grand jury has indicted the Charleston Daily Mail, newspapers for printing the name of a 14-year-old boy charged with delinquency in the fatal shooting of a classmate.

State law forbids the printing of the name of a juvenile involved in a court proceeding without the permission of the court.

The editor of one of the papers, the Charleston Gazette, said the newspaper will challenge the indictment on constitutional grounds.

"There is no question we violated the law," said Editor Don Marsh. But he said the law was an abridgement of the Constitution.

Marsh was named in the indictments along with Gazette Publisher W.E. In the same issue, the Gazette, a morning paper, carried a column by Marsh which described the newspaper's reasons for printing the name.

"My own feeling is that the public interest in being informed of acts of violence in schools outweighs the undesirability of breaking a law, particularly a bad one," Marsh wrote.

The Daily Mail, an afternoon paper, published the name in a story the same day. A Daily Mail story on the day of the shooting did not include the name of the charged youth.

Maurice said he had no comment and was awaiting the advice of counsel.

Small towns win victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small towns won a victory this week with publication of new federal regulations broadening their eligibility for community development aid.

All cities and towns, no matter how small, will now be able to apply for three-year commitments from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Secretary Patricia Harris said Wednesday.

The money can be used for a wide range of projects, such as improving the town park, repairing streets, upgrading sewer systems, subsidizing social services, buildings curbs and gutters, rehabilitating historic buildings, preparing an industrial park site or operating a runaway youth home.

Acknowledging the outcry of criticism of proposed regulations that would have limited eligibility, the secretary said, "We knew even when we proposed draft regulations that only the communities themselves could make final regulations workable."

A group that includes the National Association of Smaller Communities and the Mississippi Conference of Black Mayors had filed suit in an effort to pressure HUD to change the proposed regulations.

But one HUD source said the agency had decided to make the changes before the suit was filed and had conveyed that decision to attorneys for the small towns.

The earlier regulations would have prohibited towns of fewer than 2,500 people from seeking multiyear grants for community development programs involving more than one project.

"We received a heavy volume of comments beginning the day after the draft rules were published," said Secretary Harris. "I think these rules show once again that listening to the voices of those affected by federal action is HUD's best, common sense approach to making wise decisions."

HUD's $4 billion Community Development Block Grant program is the government's chief weapon for battling community decay. Cities of less than 50,000 population compete annually for $500 million that is not earmarked for big cities.

The half-billion dollars in "discretionary grants" are awarded by HUD. The new regulations include nine factors that will be used to evaluate applications.

"The funds will go to cities with the greatest needs, based on poverty and substandard housing," and whose applications best address local problems of low- and moderate-income families, according to HUD.

HUD said it also is encouraging states to apply for smalltown grants on behalf of communities that lack the technical capability to cope with federal regulations such as those issued Wednesday.

PRINCESS ANNE

Princess Anne will be back in the saddle next month

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, who gave up competitive riding for motherhood last year, will be back in the saddle next month, less than six months after the birth of her son, Peter.

The 27-year-old princess has entered the Badminton Horse Trials, a three-day event in the west of England scheduled for April 13-15. The princess will ride her Olympic horse, Goodwill, and a new mount, Flame Gun. Anne's commoner husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, is also entered.

Both the princess and her husband are former Olympic equestrians for Britain. Phillips was in the gold medal-winning British team that won the three-day event at Munich in 1972. Anne made the British team for Montreal in 1976, but had little success.

You are cordially invited to Friendship Ministries Family Night Concert Friday March 10 at Hillcrest Baptist Church.

This internationally traveled touring group with headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colorado, is composed of 15 Christian college age young people from six states and two provinces of Canada.

They tour 11 months out of the year and travel more than 50,000 miles each year with a ministry that reaches schools, colleges, military bases, youth homes and churches.

A unique part of their program features "The Little Friends" colorful puppets that are both inspirational and entertaining. All ages enjoy this special feature.

Much of the music that "Friendship" performs is

Excuses offered

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Assumptions that the church's involvement in social issues has caused its lag in growth is a "myth we've concocted to cover our failures in evangelism," says the Rev. Dr. Kenneth L. Teegarden, president of the Christian Church Disciples of Christ, urging intensified evangelistic efforts "whether new style or traditional."

familiar. Old hymns and gospel songs are called "Message Music." Friendship's quality sound is achieved through arrangements produced by Jerry Nelson, Don Wyrzten, John Peterson, Bob Krogstad and other leading composers and arrangers in Christian music.

The group will perform many of the selections from their new long play stereo album entitled "Jesus Loves Even Me." Also included in this one night family concert will be several drama sketches.

The special one night family concert will be held at Hillcrest Baptist Church March 10 beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Estate plan seminar set Sunday

A three-part seminar in Estate Planning will kick off the sessions in Preparing for the Mature Years, one of six courses offered in the annual March Special Seminars at First Methodist Church, beginning March 5.

Taught by Dr. Marshall Rhew, associate director of development at McMurry College in Abilene, the seminar will deal with wills, family trusts, charitable remainder trusts, gift annuities, gifts to people and charity, gifts of life insurance, residence or farms.

Because of the depth of the subject, Dr. Rhew will hold two additional two-hour sessions on Monday, March 6 following the opening session on Sunday night, March 5.

Dr. Rhew stresses that since the Sunday night session will not be a complete session, those attending will want to attend one of the Monday sessions also. "This is a workshop seminar," Dr. Rhew emphasized, "and the slide presentations we will present on Monday are vital to the comprehensiveness of the course."

The seminar is open to the community. Pre-registration is required. For further information, call the church office, 267-6394.

Anglicans ordain women

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Against a background of dissent, New Zealand's Anglican Church has ordained its first four women priests. This makes three of the 22 national branches of Anglicanism — previously in the United States and Canada — that have ordained women, plus the mission diocese of Hong Kong.

84,000 Women offered roles in youth work

In a renewed effort to prepare young women for happy, productive lives now and in their adult years, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (whose members are commonly identified as Mormons) has called more than 84,000 girls from the ages of 12 to 18 to major leadership responsibilities in what has become one of the world's most extensive and effective youth programs.

In their callings these young women serve for a year planning service projects, conducting meetings, tailoring programs to fit their needs and the needs of the groups of young women they lead. In a year the present group will give up their leadership positions in favor of another group who will then have the unprecedented opportunity for learning to lead a group of their peers.

The program extends to 64 countries and is conducted in 18 languages and is an on-going program for growth and development. The youth leaders are backed up by about 49,000 dedicated adult women leaders who serve without pay as advisors and confidants to the girls as they go about their assigned responsibilities to make a program in which all young women have a chance to develop talents, give service, and offer friendship to one another.

The unique program, known as the Young Women's program of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, is the latest refinement of a program which was started more than 100 years ago. In 1869, Brigham Young, famed Mormon colonizer and second president of the LDS Church, founded a society known as the Young Women's Retrenchment Association for the growth and development of the girls

TOM RUSSELL

Festival scheduled March 6

Tom Russell will be one of the singers at the Festival of Praise at the Big Spring City Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. March 6.

The vitality of the tenor soloist reveals a varied background of achievement and experience ranging from the concert stage to the Southern-style camp meeting.

A graduate of The University of South Florida with a master's degree in vocal performance, Russell has appeared numerous times with symphony orchestras and has toured Europe on three occasions performing in churches and for American military installations.

Russell is a teacher, songwriter, arranger and recording artist.

His message apparently reaches out to people on both sides of the generation gap. He mixes the old with the new — the stately with the upbeat — and presents the entire assortment of songs in a sensitive, professional manner.

He will be one of many singers appearing at the Big Spring City Auditorium, Monday, March 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Airport slates concert

Airport Baptist Church is holding a concert, Sunday, March 5, at 7 p.m. The Rev. David McNary invites the public to attend the event at 1206 Frazier.

Two musicians, Wayne McClellan, baritone and James Steel, pianist, will be featured.

McClellan, a Hardin-Simmons University senior music education-voice major from Dallas, has extensive experience in both choral direction and performance. He has directed a small singing ensemble for the State Baptist Student Union Convention, lead music in revivals in seven states, helped direct a junior high boys choir and directed the Sweepstakes Trophy winner in the H-SU All-School Sing. He is also a member of the H-SU Concert Choir, a group noted for performances in Poland and the Soviet Union. A member of a H-SU Graduate Performance Choir, he was a semi-finalist in the All-American Choir and has toured with singing groups in three countries and 13 states.

Vice president of the H-SU chapter of Music Educators National Conference, past music coordinator for the college department of First Baptist Church, Abilene. He is president of H-SU's Student Foundation, a member of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, and has been named to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Steel, an H-SU senior organ and music education major from Rising Star, served as organist for the Texas Baptist Student Union Convention in 1975 and 1976. He has arranged numerous pieces of sacred music and presented many sacred piano-organ duo concerts.

and member of Music Educators National Conference.

They will present a program Sunday night along with the warden from one of the prisons at the First Baptist Church here. The group includes on the front, Joe Hicks, Melinda Priddy

Prison warden to speak here

Following the recent tour of Texas prisons by "His Children," a vocal group from the First Baptist Church, a program will be held Sunday night with one of the wardens as main speaker. It will be at 6 p.m. at First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Lucile Garrett Plane, warden at Mountain View prison for women, will speak after the vocal group presents several numbers.

Warden Plane is a graduate of Sam Houston State University and Stephen F. Austin State University with post-graduate work in public administration and psychology.

She obtained her B.A. from Arizona State and has extensive graduate work in counseling.

From March 1975 to the present date, she has served as warden at Mountain View. Prior to that, she was project director and chief probation officer in Deep East Texas.

St. Mary's activities include Lenten supper

St. Mary's Episcopal Church continues their Lenten series Wednesday with evening prayer at 6:30 p.m.

This is followed by a Potluck supper and film entitled "The Supper."

The church has also scheduled an Inquirer's Class to start Sunday. Future meeting dates will be set up then. The class is in preparation for the Bishop's visit April 30.

The past Thursday marked the 100th Anniversary of the first Anglican service held in what is now the Diocese of Northwest Texas.

On Feb. 23, 1878, Bishop Garrett celebrated Holy Communion on Capt. Trent's Ranch, Calahan County near Baird. Mrs. Clara Johnson, communicant of St. Mary's, is a descendant of Capt. Trent.

The 10th anniversary of the Rev. Harland Birdwell's service at St. Mary's will be held in May. Plans are being made for a celebration at that time.

used, but for the last 100 years, the script has been one written by a priest named Joseph Alois Daisenberg in 1860, attributing Jesus' death to the Jews.

After drawn-out controversy about it and considerable village ferment, the town council decided Feb. 8 to use for the 1980 production a 1750 text by a Benedictine monk, Ferdinand Rosner, ascribing Jesus' death to universal humanity.

Although drawing thousands from around the world, the play for years has been criticized by many Bible scholars and theologians, both Jews and Christians, as falsifying fact and doctrine by blaming Jews collectively for the crucifixion of Jesus, himself a Jew.

The substantial elimination of that element by the village's recent decision to substitute a different script was praised by U.S. Christian and Jewish representatives as a broadly influential step, setting a truer, fairer pattern for passion plays.

The newly chosen presentation "centers the responsibility for Christ's death where it should be—in the sin of all humanity," says Bible scholar Eugene Fisher, head of the U.S. Catholic Bishops' Office of Catholic-Jewish Relations.

He says the change gets rid of an internationally attended portrayal that for years has been a "purveyor of prejudice and injustice." He notes that the classic Christian concept is that believers share in Christ's redemption only as they acknowledge their part in his death.

The Oberammergau play has been presented every 10 years since 1634 when it first was performed to fulfill a vow made during a plague epidemic. Now a tourist attraction, it drew 500,000 from 113 countries in 1970.

Over the more than three centuries, at least five different versions have been

Face to face, U.S. church leaders and President Carter laid out their ideas and impressions of each other's performance. They traded compliments, some criticisms and expressed thanks for both.

It was a remarkably frank, yet reciprocally supportive and friendly exchange, the first meeting between Carter and leaders of most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

"I'm thankful for what you've done," Carter told them, but added he felt they should keep up a more vigorous role on social problems.

William P. Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church and president of the National Council of Churches, told Carter, "We feel a double sense of affinity with you and your hopes and dreams."

That is so, he said, because Carter approaches his duties of office "in the broader perspective of... an active Christian layman" and also because of shared concern for the "health of our nation."

Carter said he sought to balance as best he could "within the bounds of constitutional restraints" both his responsibilities as a government official and a Christian layman, "but I have fallen short of what I should do."

The meeting took place Feb. 24 in the White House with 28 leaders of denominations of the Northern Ireland conditions better

NEW YORK (AP) — The security situation in Northern Ireland seems to be improving, says the Rev. Dr. Eric Gallagher, former president of the Irish Methodist Conference and a key figure in the Irish Council of Churches.

He told a dinner of United Methodists that the toll of those killed and bombed has decreased.

Youth emphasis weekend slated

ALL ON $45 A WEEK!
A fellow went to a counselor and said, "I've got a problem." The counselor said, "Tell me about it." The fellow said, "Well, I'm married, I have three children, my wife and I both have new cars, and we've got two homes, one in the city and one in the country."
"You don't seem so bad off," commented the counselor. "What's the problem?"
At this, the fellow said, "I make only $45 a week!"
How easy it is to over-extend oneself and be short on financial resources. BUT WHAT ABOUT SPIRITUAL RESOURCES? Spiritually, many of us are over-extending. We're trying to live our whole lives, coping with all the stresses and strains, on just a little "dab" of Christianity, and our lack of happiness and genuine success is the result. I'd like to help you with your "spiritual budget". Visit us soon!

Auto tags will be available in Coahoma

County tax assessor-collector Zerah Bednar said this morning she will assign an office deputy to Coahoma March 7-8 for the purpose of selling auto license tags.

Mrs. Bednar reminded that the time for registering vehicles is getting short and that those who do not display new tags after April 1 will be in violation of the law.

The office deputy can be contacted at the Coahoma City Hall on the appointed days, working from 8:30 a.m., until 4:30 p.m., each day.

Coody's wife, Lynette, graduated with Stenholm from Stamford High School. Introducing Stenholm will be Gordon Wood, Stenholm's former high school football coach. Wood presently coaches in Brownwood.

The banquet, which will express appreciation to Stenholm, is slated for 7 p.m. in the parish hall of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

General co-chairmen of the event are Eugene Olson and Leroy Lundgren. Ticket sales are headed by Fareed Hassen and the Stenholm finance committee. Roy Craig and Bob Prichard are handling publicity. Storm closes some schools in Illinois

A snow storm closed some schools in Illinois and slickened roads across wide areas of the Midwest before moving eastward today. Many residents who'd seen at least two blizzards this winter just went on about their business.

The Midwest storm scattered from 2-to-6 inches, stalling traffic and making roads unsafe. Most Illinois schools were expected to remain open although parochial schools were closed in the East St. Louis area.

A warm front across Florida and along the Gulf Coast spread rain and snow across the Southeast Thursday night and early today. There was some snow and sleet in parts of Tennessee, Georgia and the Carolinas. Snow was expected from New England into New York and New Jersey today.

A new California storm — expected to be less intense than earlier ones this week — threatened to further undermine beachfront homes in Malibu today and could send a section of Pacific Coast Highway crashing into expensive houses below, officials say.

National Weather Service meteorologist Betty Reo said there was an 80 percent chance the new storm would dump heavy rain on Southern California.

Heere's Wayne!

It was really cold Wednesday, sitting in the stands watching the Steers rout Lamesa in their first diamond match of the season. (How cold was it?)

It was so cold that Wayne Henry, clad in his bass fishing outfit, found his moustache frozen to his spiffy new Steer hat (they're on sale from the Quarterback Club for $5).

Henry, whose son is a junior outfielder for the Steers (Greg), ran the new scoreboard during the game. Upon discovering that the inning button didn't work, it only showed "1". Henry ingeniously signalled the existing inning frequently by flipping the switch on and off, the number of times being determined by the inning, of course.

His special morse code failed to make an impression, however, as many of the fans who braved the arctic conditions came by throughout the course of the game and told him they were sure it still wasn't the first inning.

Wayne, whose wife Rhonda, I mean Linda, uh Londa, has called me everytime I call her husband Ed, was highly impressed with the efforts of the home crew.

"These guys are winners," he said. "They've played as a team for a long time and they are winners."

I have to agree with him. As a team the Steers showed just as much cohesiveness Wednesday as they did last season. Henry even thinks they are a better team this year than the 1977 crew.

Overall, that could be a very good estimation. It's still a little early, but for a team that went from having a Frankie Rubio to not having a Frankie Rubio, the Steers have managed quite well.

LOGBACK ROLLING ALONG

Steer assistant Coach Ron Logback is pulling up his cleats and moving to Lubbock Coronado as an assistant coach to Jack Quarlis. Quarlis and Logback met while coaching at El Paso Coronado and El Paso Irving, respectively, and the Lubbock mentor wanted Logback on his team.

"For quite a nice raise," Logback is taking his skill and field expertise to the Lubbock school. A defensive genius of sorts, Logback's services will be missed considerably.

But this is the time of the year in which everyone, from junior highs to pro teams, plays musical coaches. Just this week, Midland High Coach Jerry Hopkins resigned his position as top Bulldog to return to his old school of Sonora.

If you remember, ex-Permian Coach Gil Bartosh just recently took over the mentorship of the Midland Lee squad, and Midland ISD Athletic Director Sam Cox isn't looking forward to "going through the whole process of searching for another coach."

Big Spring is luckier than Midland in that respect. A replacement has already been found for Logback. Terry Brewster, head coach and athletic director at Ballinger, will be coming to join the Bold Dog ranks.

Brewster is a Jacksboro product who attended A&M and Howard Payne and signed as a free agent with the Cincinnati Bengals after college. After tryouts with that pro club, he returned to Ballinger to coach. Brewster's 6-3, 260 pounds, and according to Athletic Director Don Robbins, he's a heckuva coach.

OH PHYLLIS, YOU'RE SO CUTE

CBS' Phyllis George, the best-looking Cowboy fan next to my favorite spotter, was offered a very "impressive" deal to switch to NBC recently, according to Howard Smith, AP sports writer.

This "deal" would've included a role on the "Today" show, plus some really big bucks. CBS reportedly countered with an offer to match or improve anything NBC should offer.

Phyllis evidently decided to stay with Brent and Irv, and will soon sign a multi-year pact with CBS Entertainment which will give her $250,000 a year over a four-year period.

Sources say that she will turn up as a hostess here and there and will try her hand at acting. Sounds just like her favorite football player Dandy Don Meredith. Hope she can act better than he can.

FASTER THAN SPEEDING BUFFALOES

Stanton's Todd Smith, three-sport junior letterman for the Big Red Buffs, was the only Stantonite to be named to the 5-A All-District team this week.

Smith, who was a finalist for the 1977 Brad Stevens Award, and who is already a prime candidate for next season, was the Buffs leading rusher in '77, and is a member of the state championship mile relay team.

Smith, along with Mitch Elmore, Oscar Perez and Ernest Byrd took first place last Saturday in the Comanche Relays (3:30.3). Todd is also a respectable runner in the 440-yard dash.

As a team, the Buffs finished second in Ft. Stockton, and are entered in the Robert Lee Invitational today.

REMARKABILITIES

"Don't call me champ. He's the champ. You don't have to call me champ to be my friend. I shall return. I'll let him (Spinks) hold the title for a few months and enjoy it. Then I shall return." — MUHAMMAD ALI, following his loss to Leon Spinks.

"There is only one perfect time in sports, apart from individual triumphs in knockouts and no-hitters. That is the never-never land of spring training when every man is Alice, and the looking glass is there for all to step through." — ROBERT RUARK.

Arnie has returned!

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A violent thunderstorm, packing heavy rains that flooded the Rio Pinar course, forced a postponement today of the second round of the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

The round was washed out in mid-morning. Only a handful of players had started play and none had completed their rounds when the day's competition was halted.

The second round now is scheduled for Saturday. There was no immediate decision on the rest of the tournament schedule. It is possible that single rounds will be played both Sunday and Monday. It's also possible that a double round of 36 holes will be played Sunday.

The first round leaders, Arnold Palmer, Tom Kite and Bob Murphy with matching, 7-under-par 65s, all had late starting times Friday and all still were in the clubhouse when the storm, with rain, winds and lightning, struck the heavily-wooded course.

Play was suspended for about an hour before the heavy rains flooded the fairways and made the course unplayable.

But Palmer, brutally honest as ever, admits it isn't the same. The passing years, growing wealth and worldwide fame such a few men have enjoyed have dulled the sharp edge of his desire.

"It's now a yearning, no longer a burning. Twenty years ago I was 28 years old and broke. And that's a hell of a lot of difference," said the living legend who now counts his personal fortune by the millions of dollars.

"I could sit here and tell you the desire is the same, but it just isn't there. It's obvious. My golf game has shown it over the past few years."

Hawks eliminated from Region V Tournament

By DANNY REAGAN

ABILENE — The Howard College Hawks took the fighting man's route to the Region V Tournament this year, and but for the blind justice of a two-point bounce of the basketball, they would still be there today.

As it turned out Thursday night, however, the locals' gallant efforts, that included a 20-game winning season and a gutsy playoff win, were thwarted by a pair of free throws with :19 seconds remaining in their opening-round game against the Cook Jr. College Lions.

The 74-72 loss sent the Hawks home for the season, but they made their mark on the tourney, despite their short stay. Houston Kashmere star-warriors Russell Sublet and Big Joe Cooper turned quite a few heads watching the action at Hunt's P.E. Center on the campus of McMurry College. Cooper busted the Region V record for rebounds. He hauled down 20 before the game was over and scooped many big names underneath his in the record book with his sterling performance.

Sublet, who revelled in the wide-open, run and gun style of play in the first quarter, pumped in 19 points during the first half, and made a bid for all-tournament honors by finishing as the contest's leading scorer with 29 markers.

defense eating their dust. The fast break gave Cook many three-on-one edges down the court early in the game.

If not for the deadly aim of Sublet and "Tennessee Bomber" Robby Randolph (15 total points), HC could very easily have found itself down by double figures with scarcely five minutes gone in the game.

Glue-fingered rebounding by Cooper and Eugene Williams (10 total points) also aided the Hawks' cause to neutralize the sprint-minded Lions. By the end of the first frame, Cook found that HC could run with anyone. The Hawks held the lead 27-26, at that time.

Cook methodically slowed the pace of the game, due more to a increasingly-effective HC defense, however, than whim or fatigue on the Lions' part.

The Hawks carried a 47-44 bulge into the locker room with them at intermission, and built up a seven-point lead midway through the third period before Cook caught up and went into a semi-stall to thwart Sky King Cooper and his flight crew on the boards. The play worked, the momentum slowly shifted and a bevy of Hawk turnovers (21 all night), contributed to a 64-all score at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

The two teams didn't pierce the cords on either end of the floor for the next 2½ minutes, and a total of only 18 points was scored during the entire last frame.

The Hawks had one last opportunity to tie the score, as they came down the court with :14 seconds left. A final shot by Randolph with couple of ticks left on the clock fell short of its mark, and the locals saw their 1978 season draw to a close with the final buzzer.

Playing in their final game for the Red and Gray were sophomores Russell Sublet, Joe Cooper, Eugene Williams and Johnny James.

Hogs find 'killer instinct'

HOUSTON (AP) — Ron Brewer, one of Arkansas' dreaded Big Three, glanced at the destruction of Southern Methodist's upset bid and observed that the fourth-ranked Razorbacks apparently have developed a much needed killer instinct.

"Last year we'd get ahead of teams and then let down," Brewer said after the Hogs had dissected SMU 94-73 in the quarter-finals of the Southwest Conference basketball tournament at the Summit Thursday night.

"Now we feel we've got to have the killer instinct," Brewer said. "When we get a team down we have to punish them."

And oh how they punished the stunned Razorbacks as the University of Houston eventually punished Texas Tech en route to a 93-82 victory in the other quarter-finals game before a sellout crowd of 15,600.

The two victors meet tonight in the semifinals for the right to face SWC co-champion Texas Saturday night in the finals for a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) playoffs.

Houston Coach Guy Lewis was agast after watching the Hogs dispatch the Mustangs, who finished their season at 10-18.

"I don't think any team in America could have beaten Arkansas tonight," said Lewis, whose Cougars are one of only two teams to accomplish that feat this season. "They were awesome."

The Razorbacks, who lost their No. 1 ranking in the nation when they lost to the Cougars on Feb. 18, showed every sign of being able to take their revenge against Houston in the semifinals.

Arkansas, led by its All-SWC trio of Brewer, Sidney Moncrief and Marvin Delph, hit 11 of its first 16 shots and

Ritchey makes 6-AA elite list

COAHOMA — Mike Ritchey, 5-11 junior for the Coahoma Bulldogs, was named to the 6-AA All-District squad released recently.

The Pack's leading-scorer Ritchey impressed the league coaches with his ability to make the long ball drop. Coahoma's Tim Greenfield, 5-9 senior, and Dusty Douglass, 5-10 senior, were named to the Honorable Mention squad.

District champion Colorado City placed three members on the first team — Cornell Ausbie, Kevin Gieger, Ronald Proctor — and three on the Honorable Mention list: Blake Hammond, Bill Jordan and Ricky Sanchez.

Cee City's Mike Hart was given district coaching honors.

Optimist Relays are postponed

The Big Spring Optimist Relays, scheduled to get underway at 10 o'clock this morning, have been cancelled, according to Athletic Director Don Robbins.

"Cruz Rodriguez was out at the stadium at 5:30 this morning," Robbins said, "and reported back that the track was frozen solid from yesterday's precipitation. We had to let San Angelo know by 6 o'clock this morning, so we called it off."

Later in the morning, a sudden snowstorm also complicated matters for continuation of the Relays Saturday. Twenty-nine girls teams from the West Texas area were scheduled to compete today, and 38 boys' teams were to contend against each other Saturday.

The Relays may have to be cancelled for 1978, as scheduling problems hamper the naming of a make-up date. The only open date all the junior highs have is March 25 and that is the date of the ABC Relays. "We can't have two meets at once," said Robbins.

Next week the San Angelo Relays get underway, followed by the Pecos and Canyon Reef Relays. After the ABC Relays date, meets at Snyder and Sweetwater follow. The Sweetwater meet is the same weekend as the district meet in Midland, April 15.

had the Mustangs down 16-4 before working up a sweat.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton played his "Go-Go" second team almost three minutes in the first half and still led 51-26 at halftime.

In the second half, it was more of the same as the substitutes came into the game to stay with 14:31 to go.

Sutton, too, was pleased with his team's performance.

"That's more like we played when we beat Kansas on the road and Houston at our place," Sutton said. "There's no substitute for athletic ability and I think our quickness hurt them at the start of the game."

Although the Cougars took longer to put away the pesky Red Raiders, the final outcome was just as decisive. Tech, slowed by sharpshooter Kent Williams having to play with a catcher's mask to protect a broken jaw, could not match the Cougar fire power.

Tech hit only two of its first 14 shots but amazingly held slim victory hopes until the second half when sophomore guard Ken Williams ignited the Cougars to finish with 20 points.

Houston edged into a solid lead in the first half when they put together five-point play. Houston's Cecile Rose completed a three-point play and then Williams added two more free throws on technical fouls called against Tech Coach Gerald Myers, enraged at the foul call.

Asked later if the five-point play was the game's turning point, Myers said "It didn't turn the officials around."

With the exception of graduating Mike Russell who scored 34 points, the Red Raiders were mostly cold shooters, finishing with a 43 per cent for the game while Houston hit 49 per cent.

"When you lose to a team three times there is no question which is the better team," Myers said after losing to the Cougars for the third time this year. "They were just a better team than we were."

Lewis was forced to use his starting lineup more than Arkansas but he said that wouldn't make any difference for tonight's semifinals game.

"I don't think they'll (Houston players) be tired," Lewis said. "They're in great shape."

NBA ref is hit with fine

NEW YORK — Referee Richie Powers has been fined $2,500 and suspended without pay for three games for advising the New Jersey Nets and Atlanta Hawks that he would not enforce league rules regarding zone defenses.

Powers confirmed that he had told both teams, through their coaches and captains, that he would permit the teams to employ "exotic defenses" as long as neither team complained. This is contrary to Rule 12, Section 1, prohibiting the use of zone defenses in NBA play.

Jr.-Sr. Puffers win

Played in 30 degree weather, the first football game of the 1978 season saw the BSHS junior and senior girls defeat the frosh and sophomore girls 24-6.

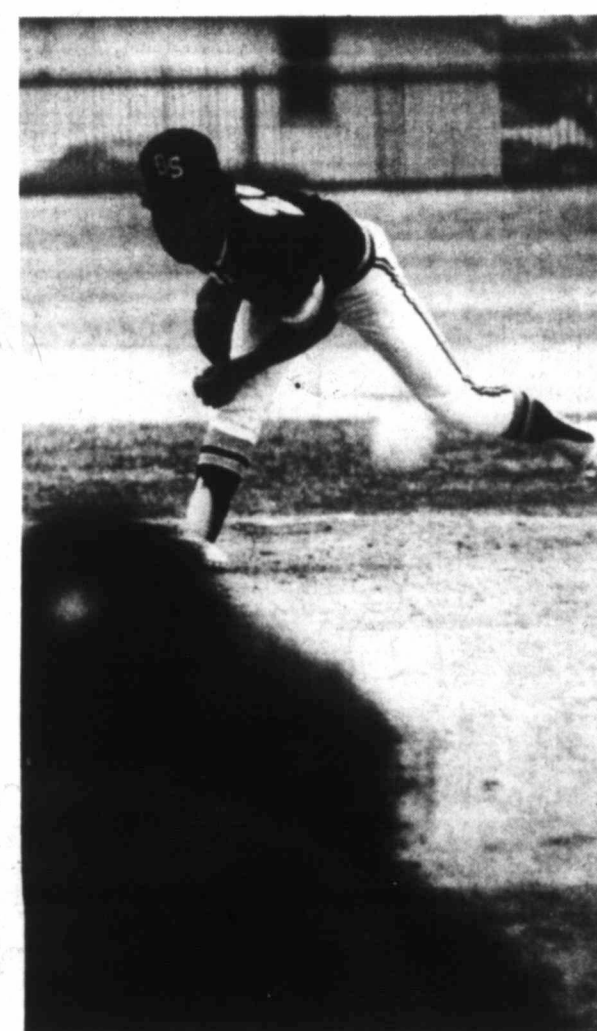

This was the fourth annual March of Dimes benefit Powderpuff football game, and the junior and senior classes now hold a 3-1 edge in competition. The lower classes won the contest the second year it was played.

The student council now has a traveling trophy which is presented to the winners. The Key Club awarded trophies for outstanding girl on offense and outstanding girl on defense. Rose Magers was named the top offensive player, and Karen Tibbs garnered defensive accolades.

Both girls were members of the winning volleyball team, a fact which may say something about their physical conditioning.

Approximately 200 people braved the cold to attend the game, and the student council reported selling gallons of coffee and hot chocolate, but no cold drinks. The Key Club provided entertainment at half time.

TORRES FIRES! — Steer senior Ricky Torres, known previously for his ability on the football field, showed his prowess on the baseball diamond Wednesday afternoon as he hurled his team to a 10-4 victory over the Lamesa Golden Tors in the season opener for the locals.

Prep faves roll along

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fans were anxious for bluechip college prospect Jerry Davis to show his stuff, but what they saw was Huntsville's stuff Davis and his Corpus Christi West Osco team, 86-58, in the semifinals of Class 3A schoolboy basketball.

The runaway victory, paced by 6-foot-2 sophomore Lloyd Archie, set up a championship game Saturday night between Huntsville and Mineral Wells, which overcame a 15-4 first half deficit to beat Terrell, 61-55.

Neither Huntsville nor Mineral Wells has ever won a state basketball title.

Dimmitt and Whitehouse shot their way into the Saturday morning 2A finals. Dimmitt used a 31-point scoring spree by Rocky Rawls — a bespectacled 5-10 senior who looks as if he would be more at home with his nose buried in a book — to defeat Mission Sharyland, 60-50.

Whitehouse routed Rosebud-Lott, 68-42, with Dwight Pettigrew scoring 24 points and grabbing 15 rebounds.

Kenneth Dodd, feverish from a flu-like illness, scored 25 points and Chuck Hall, a two-time all-tournament player, tallied 22 as Krum whipped Waelder, 54-39, in the B semifinals.

Krum's Saturday morning opponent in the finals will be Avinger, which converted 28 Silverton mistakes into 31 points in a 59-49 triumph in the other semi-final match.

Mat Russell and Melvin Ray each scored 20 points for Mineral Wells, and Terrell lost the ball 31 times without getting off a shot. The mistakes led to 29 points for Mineral Wells.

The Thursday night finale was to have been Davis' show, but the acrobatic 6-6 senior hit only three of 17 shots against the Huntsville zone in the first half as Huntsville took a 42-25 lead.

He finished with 24 points before fouling out with 42 seconds left in the game, 11 below his season average.

Archie connected on 9 of 12 field goal attempts and added three free throws for 21 points and set up numerous other baskets with his passes.

He and Davis each had 13 rebounds.

The other four Huntsville starters all scored in double figures, with Edgar Crawford pitching in 19, Royce Craft 13, Curtis Wallace 11 and Dallas Williams 10.

All but Craft, who was all-tournament last year, have another year of eligibility.

More Indoor seeds fall

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Just three seeds — Jimmy Connors, Eddie Dibbs and Sandy Mayer — remain today as the quarter-finals begin in the U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships and Mark Cox is gunning for the top man.

The last time the Englishman met Connors was in the Stockholm Open of 1976 and Cox won. Cox defeated eighth-seeded Roscoe Tanner and unseeded Australian Phil Dent in the earlier rounds of this $225,000 event. Both are hard-hitting southpaws. So is Connors.

In second-round action Thursday, fourth-seeded Dibbs won a battle royale against Cliff Drysdale 4-6, 7-6, 7-6, fighting out 18 points in the final tiebreaker. Unseeded Jose Higueras upset his fellow Spaniard, No. 5 Manuel Orantes, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3, and in a night match, seventh-seeded Sandy Mayer downed Stan Smith 6-2, 6-3.

Higueras goes up against Englishman John Lloyd today. Bob Lutz is to play Tim Gullikson and Connors will play Cox tonight.

Wilkinson returns to old love—football

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bud Wilkinson, who once bade goodbye to football to pursue other challenges, has acceded to his lifelong love for the sport and returned.

The silver-haired Wilkinson, still magnetic at 61, was named Thursday field boss of the National Football League's St. Louis Cardinals, thus ending his 15-year coaching retirement.

"I think we all have opportunities in our lives when what we're doing we enjoy but there's a new frontier out there," Wilkinson said.

"The athletic scene has a uniqueness about it. I think it's fun. I think that's what life's all about. I think I'm relatively current. Pro football is a high level of sophistication, but I think the factors that win are what win at any level."

Wilkinson left the University of Oklahoma in 1963 after coaching the Sooners to three national championships. He entered the field of politics but lost to Democrat Fred Harris as the Republican nominee in Oklahoma for the U.S. Senate, then he became the director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

Later he served as a football television commentator. He was also a special consultant to the White House under President Richard M. Nixon and afterward was administrator of the Public Employees Benefit Service Co.

"I felt that I would be here for a long enough period of time to have a fair opportunity," Wilkinson said of his 4-year contract with the Cardinals. "I had nothing to do with my age. "I haven't coached for a few years, but I've enjoyed all the things that I've done. I know that anyone who has personally competed in athletics is able to recognize the depth of the experience."

Wilkinson, a former University of Minnesota guard and quarterback under Bernie Bierman, first coached as an assistant at Syracuse and later at Oklahoma.

He succeeded Jim Tatum as Oklahoma's head coach in 1947 and proceeded to construct a 145-29-4 record that included a collegiate record of 47 consecutive triumphs between 1953 and 1957.

Where's 'Disappearing Dick'

By the Associated Press

This is about two one-time sluggers first basemen trying to make comebacks. Only one, however, has really been away.

That would be Disappearing Dick Allen, who had his water and his salary turned off — i.e., suspended — by Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley, who caught him taking a shower during the sixth inning of a game in Chicago last June 20 in which, he was still eligible to play.

Allen, 36, showed up unexpectedly at the A's spring training camp in Mesa, Ariz., this week and was welcomed back with open arms by Finley.

Meanwhile, in Fort Myers, Fla., 29-year-old John Mayberry is trying to regain his 1975 form when he batted .291, walked 34 homers and drove in 106 runs for the Kansas City Royals. Mayberry slipped to .232 and .230 the last two years, with a total of 36 home runs.

"I'm going back to my old way of hitting," Mayberry said, which apparently means forgetting about home runs. "I've been too home run conscious. You can't force home runs. When I was hitting, really hitting, I wasn't thinking home runs all the time. When you're hitting, the home runs will come. Doubles are quite a weapon, too.

"Trying for home runs killed me. I'd wind up grounding out or popping up. Everybody tried to tell me what I was doing wrong. I listened, but what I was doing wrong was trying to force home runs."

Now, Mayberry is only trying to force his way back onto first base and fight off the challenge of young Clint Hurdle, who batted .328 with the Royals' Omaha farm club.

Although Allen played 54 games with Oakland last season, the A's haven't really seen him hit the way he used to. Allen's 351 career homers would place him third among active players, but sometimes it's difficult to be sure whether or not Disappearing Dick is an active player.

In other training camp news: —Second baseman Rich Dauer will be lost to the Baltimore Orioles for at least two weeks after burning his right hand while he and his wife were making popcorn.

—Kansas City pitcher Steve Busby, who hasn't pitched in the majors since injuring his arm in 1976, was impressive in hurling 10 minutes of batting practice. "Busby is throwing 400 percent better now than he did last year at this time," said General Manager Joe Burke.

—Jason Thompson and Steve Kemp, Detroit's first round picks since 1960, agreed to report to camp today after the Tigers automatically renewed their contracts.

Park talking behind closed doors

Seamy, odious, ugly details

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tongsun Park is reportedly giving the House ethics committee what two members call seamy, odious and ugly details on using commissions from U.S. rice deals in an alleged attempt to buy congressional influence for South Korea.

"We covered the most odious episode in the story today," Rep. Bruce Caputo, R-N.Y., said after Thursday's closed-door questioning of Park.

"It was a conspiracy of American businessmen, congressmen and Koreans to make blatantly improper payments over a sustained period of time with U.S. taxpayers' money," Caputo said.

"The details are revolting," he said.

Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., said, "the whole thing is ugly."

Reps. Fenwick and Caputo refused under committee secrecy rules to reveal any of Park's testimony but said he gave new details on payments that already have been disclosed.

Witnesses at the committee's public hearings in October said Park got more than $9 million in rice commissions as South Korea's only U.S. rice buyer and used some of that money to try to buy influence in Congress.

Park denies the influence-buying charge and says he contributed to more than two dozen congressmen because they were his friends and because he hoped to further his rice business.

Former Rep. Richard P. Hanna, D-Calif., goes on trial next month on charges of helping convince the South Korean government to make Park his rice dealer and of conspiring with Park to try to buy influence in Congress.

Former Director Kim Hyung Wook of the South Korean Central Intelligence

Agency has testified he helped make Park Seoul's rice dealer after Hanna promised some of the commission money would be spread among other congressmen "to help Korea's cause."

Much of the U.S. rice on which Park earned his $9 million commission was bought for South Korea through the U.S. Food for Peace program.

Meanwhile, special counsel Leon Jaworski said Thursday he had met with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance on the ethics committee's efforts to have former South Korean of officials testify. But he said "no agreement's been reached."

Vance has publicly supported South Korea's position that diplomatic immunity prohibits its turning the officials over to the committee for questioning.

Jaworski had said earlier that the committee needs the testimony of Park and several former South Korean officials including former Ambassador Kim Dong Jo to determine whether there was any misconduct by congressmen.

Judge's salary base is set

MIDLAND — The base annual salary of newly appointed County Court at Law Judge Willie DuBose will be $22,733, the same as that received by Midland County Judge Barbara Culver.

Judge DuBose will also receive $100 a month for being a member of the county juvenile board. Judge Culver receives $150 a month for being the juvenile board chairman and juvenile judge.

Republican County Commissioner Win Brown, who cast the lone vote against DuBose and the salary he is to receive, called the move "cronyism."

DENIES ASSERTION — Tongsun Park and his attorney, William Hundley, left, leave hearings of the House Ethics Committee Thursday. DC-10 crash

Pilot error ruled out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some 100 federal investigators sifting through the charred wreckage of a Continental Airlines DC-10 and interviewing survivors have found no obvious cause for the plane skidding off a runway and bursting into flames.

But National Transportation Safety Board Chairman James King said Thursday that pilot error and the condition of the runway, which was wet, have been tentatively ruled out as contributory factors.

The crash Wednesday killed two of the 198 persons aboard and injured 74. Eleven firemen also were injured.

"The investigators will be paying special attention to the wheels, landing gear and braking system," King said. Specialty teams also will look at the cockpit instrument readings, the power plant and human factors.

The pilot, Charles "Gene" Hersche, 60, who was making his last flight before retiring, should have been able to stop the plane on the remaining 5,000 feet of runway after aborting takeoff when two of four tires on his left landing gear blew out, officials said.

King said it was determined that the "engines operated normally during acceleration and deceleration and the braking action functioned normally initially." However, as the plane approached the end of the runway, "the crew didn't feel that the brakes were working."

In a deposition, Hersche, of El Paso, Texas, said the DC-10 was traveling at just under 156 knots — the critical takeoff speed — when he heard a "very loud, metallic noise."

After that, the plane traveled another 5,000 feet before it swerved to one side. Its left wing slammed onto the runway and caught fire.

Hersche said he had slowed the plane to about 10 knots, but couldn't get it to stop completely. "We weren't going fast," he said. "It just didn't stop. I can't tell you why. It seemed all the way that it should have stopped."

King said one of the few determinations investigators were able to make Thursday was that the two victims probably died of smoke inhalation, rather than from burns as previously thought.

The probe was set back temporarily when investigators found the flight data recorder malfunctioned during the aborted takeoff. But King said investigators hoped to reconstruct the lost information by interviewing the pilot, crew members and passengers.

NTSB investigator Rudolph Kapustin said the probe would also look into the histories of the tires and whether the plane's escape chutes, some of which burned, met federal flame-resistance standards.

In the past, the DC-10 has had other tire problems, although Continental spokesman Bruce Plowman said only 29 tire failures have occurred on 16 DC-10s operated by his company between 1975 and 1977. The planes made 50,000 takeoffs and landings annually during that period, he said.

Plowman said Continental buys all its tires from Goodyear and B.F. Goodrich, both of Akron, Ohio, and that the tires are retreaded in accordance with federal guidelines.

Crime up in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Serious crime in the nation's fifth largest city is up 10.3 percent over 1977, but Houston Police Chief Harry Caldwell says the figures are "really not as meaningful as I would like."

"We don't want to read something into it that's not there," Caldwell said. "As we get more population we can expect more reported crimes."

Statistics released Wednesday by the Houston Police Department indicate murders, assaults and rapes showed the greatest increase.

There were 376 murders and non-negligible manslaughter during 1977, compared with 321 during 1976, a 17 percent rise. The number of rapes reported rose from 690 to 965. Statistics show the rape squad solved 43.9 percent more rapes in 1977 than in the previous year.

Carter may join Braniff hassle

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he is prepared to take action if he finds that Britain is violating an Anglo-American air treaty in its ban on Braniff Airways' low fare trans-Atlantic flights.

That could include barring a British air carrier from flying into Houston, as recommended by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Carter said Thursday during an appearance at the National Press Club that he did not think the British were in violation of the treaty, but admitted he didn't at that time know enough about the issue to make a judgment.

He said if there is a violation, he will protest to British Prime Minister James Callaghan.

The president also said that if he thinks the British are wrong, he probably would approve any recommendation sent him by CAB to try to correct the situation.

The board on Tuesday sent the White House an order which would suspend British Caledonian's Houston-London service if Britain continues to block Braniff from offering low fare service between London and Dallas-Fort Worth.

Braniff was to have inaugurated the service Wednesday, but has been grounded by the British government, which wants the American carrier to offer the same fares as British Caledonian, which are higher.

The CAB order also would suspend British Caledonian's Houston-London fares for a year. During that period, the airline would have to offer the same reduced fares proposed by Braniff. This would apply if the British let Braniff fly at the low rates.

Carter said Thursday he had not seen the CAB order. His staff was studying it.

The Braniff cut-rate fares, approved by the CAB, run from $349 round trip on standby to $479 round trip with 21-day advance purchase. The British rejected the standby fare altogether and said the advance purchase requirement should be 45 days and the price $481.

There were reports that because of the dispute, some White House officials were considering repudiating the entire U.S.-British air transport agreement signed last year.

The differences over Texas-London fares are only one aspect of the British-American dispute. The two governments also are at odds over U.S. efforts to ease restrictions on low-cost charter flights.

Ridin' fence They call it confusion with Marj Carpenter

Mitchell County, which started out with two original school districts with the Colorado River as boundary, eventually changed into 24 school districts, named everything under the shining sun. It is very confusing.

Everybody had their own district, some of which have already been mentioned in this column including Iatan, Cuthbert, Looney, Hyman, Dorn, Payne, Seven Wells, and others.

But by 1928, there were also Carr, Conaway, Spade, and Rogers teaching ten grades; Lone Star, Buford, Valley View, Looney, Hyman and Dorn teaching nine grades.

Those teaching eight grades included Longfellow, Payne, Seven Wells, Fairview, Shepherd, North Champion, Lowe, Horn's Chapel, Little Sulphur, Baumann, Landers and Silver. Cuthbert and McKenzie taught seven grades.

Back in 1908, the schools in Mitchell County included Center School, Champlin, Longfellow, Seven Wells, Valley View, Zellner, Shepherd, Looney, Rogers, Cuthbert, Westbrook, Conaway, Union, Liberty, Fairview, Horn's Chapel, Iatan, Daniels and Oliver.

In those early schools, the length of the school terms was from three to five months and students worked the rest of the year. Parents furnished textbooks until the free textbook law passed in 1919.

One of the earliest schools in Mitchell County was in 1891 when Womack School was built. In a book on Mitchell County compiled by J. Lee Jones Jr., it is said that the first school was taught by G. L. Gordon on a six-month term. It also lists Spring Valley School as beginning in 1894 located on the M. M. Hines section. The following year, another school was built on the Edd Sweatt farm, a mile west of the other school. In 1899, the school was moved again to the A. A. Daniels farm one mile east and the name changed to Daniels. There was a Rogers School, organized in 1890 four miles northeast of Westbrook.

In 1890, there was also a Childers School five miles south of Westbrook, with the name changed to Womack the following year. A G. W. Hooks taught in the Childers and Womack schools. The Westbrook School was there as early as 1891. The Loraine School was organized about the same time and in 1890, the J. M. Dorn family started their school. Cuthbert's was established about 1891.

A school at North Champion was established around 1907. Chapel Ridge in the Buford community started about 1897. A school was started at Silver the same year.

The Chapel Ridge School was later moved to the S. S. Redman farm at the present site of Buford in 1902 or 1903 and the name changed to Center Point. Spade's first school was in 1899. It was then called Liberty School.

A Red Bluff school, later called County Line, was located one mile west of the swinging bridge on the Colorado River four miles north of Cuthbert Store. Around 1905, a school there was moved across the river. A school building called Bluet was moved south of the swinging bridge to the Ed Strain farm.

In 1930, the Mitchell County School districts tried to straighten out some of the confusion by grouping the schools. Group one had McKenzie, Silver, Landers, Lowe and Payne. Group two had Looney, Baumann, Lone Star, North Champion, Valley View, Shepherd and Loraine.

Group 3 had Longfellow, Buford, Seven Wells, Horn's Chapel, Little Sulphur, Dorn and Colorado City.

Group four had Rogers, Fairview, Cuthbert, Conaway, Carr, Iatan and Westbrook. Group five had Spade and Hyman. Eventually, they all changed into three big ones — Colorado City, Westbrook and Loraine. Jones' research on the subject was endless and amazing.

One thing for sure — confusing as it may seem looking back at it all — the early settlers in Mitchell County definitely believed in education. They built and moved schools around every few miles. If you think you're confused, talk to me.

A few of the locations still have something there to mark it — others are completely gone. But there was schooling — out in early Mitchell County in areas where I thoroughly enjoy ridin' fence.

Group looks to Austin

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce transportation committee met Wednesday and discussed a number of topics including upgrading U.S. 87 and aiding the Big Spring Airport in any possible way.

A number of local private plane owners and city officials met with the committee to discuss the problems associated with changing air traffic from the Howard County Airport to the Big Spring Airport.

According to federal regulations, the population of Big Spring is not sufficient to support two operational airports that receive public funds.

Therefore, the Howard County Airport must be closed down as a publicly funded airport, and the transfer of funds from it to the Big Spring Airport must be completed within a certain period of time.

The Chamber Transportation has offered the city and the airport officials any assistance the chamber is able to supply.

Another topic of discussion was the attempt to improve U.S. 87 and, possibly get an interstate designation.

"According to all I have learned from a recent meeting in Kansas and the research I have done," said Travis Floyd, committee member working on the project, "it looks as if no federal funds will be available for building an interstate until 1992, and the possibility of getting the money then is pretty slim."

"So, our best hope is to go to Austin, and try to get state funds to make the stretch from Big Spring to Sterling City completely four lane. Then, we need to work to get all of U.S. 87 up to interstate standards so that our request for the designation — rather than any other route — will be granted."

It was also pointed out that work on both the state funding and the federal route designation should be expedient if the towns along U.S. 87 hope to get the interstate designation. During the next meeting of the transportation committee, the problems of getting cotton and other products in and out of Big Spring will be the major area of attention. Many local rail and trucking representatives will be invited to be present at the meeting, as the committee attempts to find ways in which they can help the companies and their customers.
