NEGRO TRUSTY, OUT OF JAIL, SHOT TO DEATH

Scott Again Faces A Gallows Death As Pen Head Finds Him Sane

Chicagoan, Charged With Slaying May Yet Pay Extreme Penalty

CHICAGO, May 20.—(AP)—(AP)—Attorney General Carlston said tonight he had asked his Springfield office to send the entire record of Russell Scott, convicted murderer now under confinement for insanity, to Chicago. It was pointed out that in case alienists have found Scott sane, a legal precedent would be set in returning him here for execution because there was no other case in the history of Illinois in which a condemned man had been found in sane and later found sane and returned to be executed.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The Chicago Journal said today that Chauncey Jenkins, head of the state department of public welfare, had announced in Joliet that Russell Scott, convicted murderer now in the Chester penitentiary for criminal insane, had been found sane and would be retured to Chicago to face hanging.

Scott, who was sentenced to hang for the murder of a drug clerk in a loop store, escaped the noose after a spectacular legal fight which saved him a short time before he was to have mounted the gallows. After lengthy court hearings his attorneys convinced a jury he was not mentally competent and he was accordingly ordered confined in the criminal insane ward at Chester for life, or until such time as he might be found sane. Then it was stipulated that the death penalty would still be effective and he would face the rope.

Scott maintained his innocense from the first, declaring he had had nothing to do with the shooting which came in an attempted robbery of the down town drug store.

BULLINGTON UP FOR G.O.P. POST

Wichitan Mentioned For Chairman of Texas Convention

FORT WORTH, May 20.—(AP)—Walter P. Napier of San Antonio, lawyer and active republican, is a strong possibility for temporary chairman of the state-wide republican conference which meets at the Texas hotel Saturday morning. This was indicated by a number of those who arrived in Fort Worth yesterday for the preliminary meetings scheduled for today. Napier is known as a clear thinker and forceful speaker and an experienced parliamentarian: For permanent chairman, Orville Bullington, of Wichita Falls. Will S. West of Brownsville and G. N. Harrison of Brownwood have been mentioned.

The advance guard of the conference seemed loath to pin the matter of a gubernatorial nomination down to any one man.

Two men, however, were definitely eliminated from the list of "those mentioned." These were Harry H. Rogers of San Antonio, lawyer, religious leader, trustee of Texas Christian university, and former district governor of Rotary, and Mike H. Thomas, Dallas, financier and cotton man and just elected president of the Texas Christian Missionary association.

The jurors retired Wednesday night and had only come into court once when they filed with Judge O. M. McKnight a written request for further instruction.

It Was a Political Revolution In Pennsylvania As Vare Delivered His Body Blow To Mellon's Wealth

One-Time Commoner In Keystone State Wrecks all The Rules of Republicanism by Piling up Big Majority While Running on Wet Ticket

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff

AUSTIN, May 20.—And now one who had served as stable boy in the princely domain of the political bosses of Pennsylvania, will deliver orders to the lordly business aristocrats in the castles of yesteryear. Andrew W. Mellon went down in defeat. John S. Grundy went down in defeat. By one turn of the primary election wheel Congressman William S. Vare became the republican candidate for United States senator and George Wharton Pepper was robbed of a toga and Gifford S. Pinchot was denyed a toga.

It was the most remarkable upheaval that has taken place in Pennsylvania, the banner republican state in many years. Pepper was backed by the financial and manufacturing kings and the great organization or machine which recognizes the Mellons as the main spokes in the wheel. Pinchot, a dry of the dryest received his principal support in the anthracite regions where the miners are wet, but voted for a dry candidate because he had been their loyal friend in many hard fought battles.

John S. Fisher, picked by Secertary Mellon and John S. Grundy, the real bosses of Pittsburgh, which like Philadelphia is dripping wet, went down in defeat, although Pittsburghers for the most part, remained loyal to the Mellons and Grundy and their candidates for senator and governor, Pepper and Fisher, carried the Smokey City by a fair plurality.

Senator Pepper voted for the World court. He is half wet and half dry, but he declared for dry law enforcement in all his speeches. Edward E. Biedlerman, picked and backed by Vare and his candidate for governor,

VANCE PICKED AS U.C.V LEADER

Little Rock General Is New Commander of Veterans

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 20.—(AP)—Amidst scenes of great enthusiasm, General M. D. Vance, Little Rock, was today elected commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans. He is commander of the Arkansas division.

General Vance served during the war with General W. L. Cabell's brigade. He was with the command when he met and routed General Steele's invading force. The Cabell's outfit captured 500 supply wagoins in that brush.

Hard at Work.

While the command did not engage in the great battles of the eastern section of the south, General Cabell's brigade was among the hardest working and most diligent detachments of the Confederate army. Its work was described as especially unpleasant due to the fact that the brigade was forced to move faster than the supply wagons. After a short time the supply train was dispensed with entirely, the record shows, and the soldiers subsided upon the sections through which they marched. The men slept in the open without tent or shelter.

Never Once Slept.

General Vance boasts that during the entire conflict he never once slept in a tent. When he went home after Lee had surrendered, he wore three garments, his whole earthly possessions.

Following the declaration of peace he engaged in the mercantile business and organized "three dens of klansmen to combat the carpetbaggers."

VETERANS PLEDGE LOYALTY TO FLAG.

Anyhow, A Bathtub At Carroll's Party Was Sure Filled With Something

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—A "person" sat in a bath tub full of liquid that "tasted like champagne" at a party in the Earl Carroll theatre, it was testified when the producer went on trial today for perjury in connection with grand jury investigation of the festivity.

Arthur Irwin, a reporter for the Daily Mirror, testified for the government that he was present at the party from early in the evening of February 22 last, until five o'clock the next morning, and that he had two drinks from the bath tub.

Minutes of the grand jury hearing at which Carroll testified that there had been no liquor served at the party and that no person had gone into, fallen into, or been pushed into a bath tub, were read in court.

Asked to describe what he saw at the party, the reporter on the stand today testified as follows:

"After the curtain went up on the stage there was a table in front and on the right, elevated on a platform a bath tub. At the right of that there was a table containing glasses and trays."

"Was there any liquid in the bath tub?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"Did you drink any of it?"

"I did. I filled my glass twice."

"What did it taste like?"

After objection by counsel for Carroll had been overruled, the witness testified that he was "positive it tasted like champagne."

"Did you see any person, man or woman, in the tub when there was liquid in it?" the questioning continued.

"I did," the reporter replied, and at this point the case was adjourned until tomorrow.

JUKICH SLATED TO DIE TODAY BY LETHAL GAS

Is One of Three Men Originally Marked for Execution

OTHERS ESCAPE

John Randolph Is Given Life Sentence at The Last Moment

STATE PRISON, CARSON CITY, Nev., May 20.—The state board of pardons today decided that Stanko Jukich will die by lethal gas tomorrow and that John H. Randolph will spend the remainder of his life in prison. Jukich was convicted of killing his sweetheart and Randolph murdered his aged mother.

Jukich will be executed sometime Friday morning in Nevada's "house of silent death." He will be strapped in a chair in a warm, airtight room and liquid hydrocyanic gas injected into the building. Prison officials claim it will be a painless and almost instantaneous death that will follow mixture of the deadly gas with the air in Jukich's grim chamber. He will be the second man to die by lethal gas in Nevada, John Gee, a Chinaman, having been executed in this manner about a year ago.

Three men were originally scheduled to die in the small gas chamber Friday morning but the other two were sent to prison at the last moment.

Others Escape.

The other two were Randolph and Guadoloupe Acost, who was convicted of having killed a man during a knife fight. The death sentences of both of these were commuted to life imprisonment by the Nevada authorities.

Since the conviction of the three men and announcement that they would be executed by lethal gas, hundreds of messages of protest have been received by the governor and othr high officials of the state. It has been charged that the lethal gas method is less humane than any other accepted modes of execution—a claim that those in charge refute on grounds that the colorless and odorless gas produces instant death once a breath is inhaled, and that the end comes without pain.

The body of the condemned man must be left in the chamber for an hour or more after death comes, since it requires this length of time to clear the death-room of its deadly fumes so that others may enter.

MOODY INVADES JIM'S FORTRESS

Speaks Thursday Night To Bellville High Graduates

BELLVILLE, May 20.— Dan Moody, candidate for governor, led a hand to hand onslaught into the Ferguson strongholds of Washington and Austin counties Thursday, spending the day in handshaking at Brenham, Burton, Carmine and Bellville.

When his tour of Washington county ended his friends were assuring him he has probably wrestled its first primary leadership from James E. Ferguson for the first time in the 12 years of Ferguson's running for state office—a county that even followed Ferguson into the American party morass.

Delivers Address

Thursday night Mr. Moody delivered a commencement address to the 16 graduates of Bellville high school, and, as at Giddings earlier in the week, the audience overflowed the school building and the exercises wer ehld out doors.

Superintendent J. T. Shaver introduced Mr. Moody Thursday night. County Judge Douglas Duncan held a reception for Moody at the court house when more than 100 voters assembled to greet the candidate Thursday afternoon.

Friday Mr. Moody will make political addresses at Navasota, Bedias and Madisonville.

DAVIDSON CONTINUES HIS ATTACK ON OIL

PLAINVIEW, Texas, May 20.—(AP)—"With Oscar B. Colquitt driving the political hearse, the Dallas gang is parading Dan Moody before the voters of south Texas as a modificationist and before the voters of north Texas as a prohibitionist," Lynch Davidson, candidate for governor, asserted in an address here today.

"The newspapers that are lined up with Colquitt," he continued, are the same Standard Oil controlled papers that have been working for 25 years to undo what Hogg did for Texas and have always failed. Many of these large newspapers are owned by persons closely connected with oil companies that are affiliated with the Standard. And these are the pall-bearers who are conveying Dan Moody to his political graveyard."

"There is a conspiracy of silence between Moody and Ferguson to ignore prohibition altogether in this race.

SECOND BLACK IS ARRESTED; DENIES GUILT

Victim of Scott Street Shooting Under a 60-Day Sentence

INSTANTLY KILLED

Slayer Unseen After Three Shots Are Fired; One Takes Effect

Charles Hudson, negro, under a 60 day sentence in the county jail for aggravated assault, was shot and instantly killed at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening when a bullet entered the back of his head as he was approaching his home in the rear of 1104 Scott avenue. An hour or more after the shooting police arrested another negro with whom Hudson is known to have had trouble about two weeks ago. This negro, however, stoutly denied any knowledge of the shooting. Both he and Hudson's wife were detained under arrest at the City jail Thursday night. Although three shots were fired, but one took effect, this entering the negro's head from behind, just below the base of the skull. It killed him instantly.

Sentenced May 12

Hudson was sentenced to 60 days in jail on an aggravated assault charge on the morning of May 12 by Judge C. M. McFarland in the county court at law, having been transferred to the county from the city jail on the morning of May 11 following his arrest on the night of May 10, charged with having assaulted and severely cut up another negro, J. D. Mitchell.

Judge McFarland stated Thursday night there had been no remission of the jail sentence and expressed surprise that he was not in custody of the sheriff. "He should have been in jail," Judge McFarland declared.

Hudson's position was explained to police Thursday night by his wife, Mollie Hudson, or Mollie Johnson as she is also known. She stated that Hudson had been made a "trusty" last Monday and had since been allowed to spend the nights at home, returning to the county jail early the next morning for kitchen duty.

Details Meargre.

Actual details of the shooting were something of a mystery to police Thursday night. The negro, his wife said, had reached home shortly after six o'clock, and left soon afterwards to go to a grocery store to get something to eat. She was beginning to wonder at his failure to return promptly, she says, when she heard the three shots. His body was found near the door of their home.

Belief is expressed by police that Hudson was either trailed or beset from behind. The story of his going after food is apparently borne out, they point out, by a sack of sandwiches and chile found near the spot his body fell.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

NOTICE.

Beatrice Burton is now writing another thrilling serial for The Record News. This will be released early in June and Miss Burton promises that it will be even better than "Her Man."

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year, when he asks her to free him because he's fallen in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heartbroken, Sylvia gives him up, much to the satisfaction of her guardian, AUNT AGONY, who wants her to marry a wealthy bachelor, PETER WILK. Aunt Agony says that Ranny will never be faithful to any woman for very long.

She seems to be right, too, for presently he drops Fay and marries Sylvia after all. But their married life is not pleasant, even from the very beginning, for Ranny hates to be tied down, and he falls in love with one girl after another. And he gambles and drinks so much that Sylvia has to give music lessons to earn money to keep up their tiny flat, the Nest.

When the first baby, RANNY JUNIOR, dies of "flu," she refuses ever to go back to the Nest, or to return to Ranny, who, she is sure, doesn't really care for her. But he assures her that he does and swears never to look at another woman so long as he lives. So she comes back to him and they buy the Little White House, where the second baby, a girl, is born. For almost a year they are very happy in a quiet way.

Then an old school friend of Sylvia's, BABS DELANO, comes to town, and Ranny and she fall head over heels in love with each other. The night that Sylvia finds them in each other's arms she takes the baby to Aunt Agony's house. There Ranny comes to Sylvia and begs her to divorce him so he can marry Babs. She refuses and the next thing Sylvia hears of him he and Babs have been terribly hurt in a train wreck, some forty miles from town. She goes to the hospital where they have been taken. Babs is dead, and Ranny hovers between life and death for days. When he is almost well he sends for Sylvia and tells her that he is going to be allowed to leave the hospital the next day. She asks him where he expects to go.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LXVI.

"Where do I go from here?" Ranny repeated. "Is that what you mean?"

Sylvia nodded and shrugged her shoulders.

"What else could I mean?" she asked.

Her voice was low and flat, and almost without feeling.

She was doing her level best to betray no feeling of any kind. She had steeled herself for this last meeting with Ranny. Armed herself with indifference.

She was sure that he had sent for her to ask her if she was going ahead with her divorce, and she was going to answer his questions as tersely as possible and get away:

"Oh, God, help me not to cry. Don't let me cry, no matter what happens."

She didn't want Ranny to have his last memory of her an unhappy one. She didn't want him to know that, in giving him his freedom, she was breaking her own heart. She wanted to do the thing as bravely as possible.

"About your divorce—" she began, and stopped to try to force back the lump that kept rising in her throat.

Somehow the sight of Ranny sitting in that wheel chair, with the sun on his close-cropped blond head and in his eyes, was making it awfully hard for her to go on.

For his illness had made him thin, and he looked absurdly young and boyish, sitting there, with the collar of his bathrobe turned down like the collar of the tennis shirts he used to wear years ago.

He seemed suddenly like the old Ranny—not the one who had married her and forsaken her time after time, but the one who had wooed her. The one who used to kiss her until she her lap on summer afternoons and tell her that she was the prettiest thing this side of Kingdom Come. The one who used to kis sher until she was dewy-eyed and breathless, and tell her that he was going to marry her and make her the happiest woman this side of Kingdom Come.

She shut her eyes for an instant, and shut out the old memories from her inner eye at the same time.

When she opened them again she saw Ranny as the man he was—the man who had left her for Barbara Delano. The man who had run away from her, after he had told her he would never live with her again if she was the last woman on earth.

"I've been to see a lawyer about getting a divorce, just as you want me to—" she began again. And again she couldn't go on.

She clasped and unclasped her hands on the foot of Ranny's bed, but beyond that she showed no emotion. She seemed only to be slowly choosing her words.

The dark blue dress that she wore made her eyes more deeply violet than usual. But there was no more expression in them than there is in the wide-open eyes of a sleep walker.

Her lips opened and closed, forming mute words.

"Sylvia!" Ranny exclaimed, half-rising from his wheel chair, "you don't want to do this thing."

Then he stopped and looked beyond her at the doorway, where Lolly and Mother Phelps, laden with bundles of all shapes and sizes had appeared suddenly.

"Well, for cryin' in low!" cried Lolly, when she saw Sylvia. "What is this? A family council, or what? Are Mother and I in the way?"

"No, indeed!" Sylvia answered, more quickly than was necessary, as she jumped down from the foot of the bed. "I was just telling Ranny what you people know already."

"Oh, about the divorce you mean," said Lolly, opening a box of little cakes and passing them around as if she were at an afternoon tea. "Yes, the Phelpses are getting to be awfully modern and fashionable. Having a divorce in the family 'in' everything. No one can say we're not up to date."

She chattered on in her high, silvery soprano. And although Sylvia didn't hear a word of her prattle, she was glad of this breathing space.

She would wait until Lolly and Mother Phelps got up to go, and then she would ask them to drive her home.

Then, just as they were leaving, she would run back to him for a second—just long enough to tell him she was going to free him after all.

It would be over in an instant. Just a couple of crisp, short sentences, and then she would never have to go through this exquisite agony of seeing him again, so long as she lived. Yes, that was the way to do it, she made up her mind.

If she stopped to talk it over, she was sure to break down and cry. She had all but burst into tears a while ago, when he had told her that he knew she didn't want a divorce.

It seemed like hours until Mother Phelps began to show the first signs of going.

But finally, with a fluttering of plumes, a jingling of bracelets, and a rustling of silks, she drew her furs around her broad shoulders and got up.

"Well, girlies! Ready to go?" she asked, brightly. It was like Mother Phelps to pretend that there was nothing wrong between Sylvia and Ranny.

If she had been caught on top of Mt. Vesuvies during an eruption, she would have pretended to admire the fire-works. That was the kind of woman she was.

She smiled first into Lolly's little painted face, and then into Sylvia's white, tragic one. "Shall I take you home with me, dear?" she asked Slyvia, "or do you want to visit a little longer with Ranny?"

"No, I'll go with you, if you don't mind," Sylvia answered. "It's raining cats and dogs outside."

"Oh, easily cats and dogs; even elephants and ostriches," Lolly mocked her, as she swayed herself across the room to kiss her brother good-bye.

"Let me tell you something, Blond Sheik," she said, looking down at him, "Now that you're losing Sylvia, I want to go on record as saying soberly that I think she's worth a dozen of you. A baker's dozen." And with an emphatic toss of her frivolous little head, and a flash of the highest heels on the market, she was out of the room.

"Well, Randall, dear," his mother said, completely ignoring Lolly, as she usually did, "I'll come here tomorrow for you, about this time, and take you home with me, eh?" She bent to give him a powder and perfume-scented kiss, and the tears stood in her handsome black eyes as she hurried away.

She knew Ranny's weakness just as well as Sylvia, herself, knew them.

But no matter what he did, or what he was, he remained the most precious and wonderful human being in the world to her.

Sylvia followed her into the narrow hall, waving good-bye to Ranny as she went, but saying not a word. The troublesome lump had come back into her throat, and it stayed there. Her eyelids pricked along the edges with the tears she kept forcing back.

"Don't you suppose Ranny knows that Barbara Delano is dead? He never says a word about her," Lolly was saying in a stage whisper, as Sylvia came up to her and her mother.

"Of course he doesn't know about her." Mother Phelps gave Lolly a withering look. They wouldn't dare tell him the truth about her, now when he's so weak. The shock might kill him. When he asked about her they told him that she had left the hospital and gone home. How ridiculous you are, sometimes, Lolly!"

The mother and daughter feud that existed between Lolly and her mother was still on. It had started years ago, when Lolly first learned how to coax things from her father that Mother Phelps couldn't get from him by threats, scoldings or tears. She could never forgive Lolly for having Father Phelps completely under her thumb, as she did have him, beyond all argument.

"NO ONE BUT YOU—FOREVER AND EVER, AMEN," HE SAID SOLMENLY.

Halfway to the stairs Sylvia turned back.

"Want to tell Ranny something," she called over her shoulder. "Go on. I'll be with you in a minute."

She found him standing just inside the door of the little hospital room, holding on to the foot of the bed for support. Beads of sweat stood out on his forehead with the effort of trying to walk.

"Sit down," he said, breathing heavily. "Sit down. I was just going to call you."

He, himself, collapsed on the edge of the bed, as if his feet refused to hold him up a second longer.

"About this "divorce," he said, weakly. Why are you getting it?"

Sylvia opened her shadowy blue eyes. "Why, Ranny—it was you who wanted me to get it!" she reminded him, sharply.

From her purse she took the note he had left at the Little White House for her, and handed it to him. Without looking at it, he crumpled it up in his palm and tossed it into the waste basket beside the bed.

"Let me tell you something that happened to me the day that train Babs and I were on went off the track," he said to her, more seriously than he had ever said anything before, and pain stirred and moved in her heart like a knife being twisted in an old wound.

Beginning with that time, he had hurt and wounded her at every turn.

He had dragged her pride in the dust.

He had never been true to her.

Time after time he had been unfaithful to her.

There came to her mind a whole procession of women who had caught his eye and held it—held it for a little while. Fay Shirley, little Puss March, Jane Brackett, Elsie Leopold, Babs Delano and others that she had never seen—but had heard about. One after another they had come and gone.

They had gone, and here she was still. He said he loved her still.

"No one but you," he was saying now in a thick, husky voice. No one but you." Will you take me back? You know I love you."

She knew that he did. She knew that in his own way he really did care for her.

What he was offering her wasn't the strong, sweet thing his first love had been. But was love always sweet? Was it?

Couldn't it be as bitter as the salt tears she had shed—and still be love? She knew that it could.

What did it matter, after all, that he had broken her heart and broken her pride, and lied to her, and cheated her and robbed her of her happiness? What did anything in the world matter so long as he still wanted her? So long as he was still her Ranny?

She knew that nothing else did matter, or ever would.

"Ranny," she said, and her voice broke on a dry sob.

She put her arms around him with that beautiful, maternal, passionate gesture that a woman has only for the man who belongs to her through thick and thin, through fire and water—for better, for worse; for richer for poorer. 'Till death do us part." But does it part us, after all? Does it?

Forty miles away in Buchanan park the Spring rain was still pelting down in the silver sheets, just as it had pelted down on that other afternoon four years before.

But Sylvia had put that unhappy memory behind her, along with some others that were almost as unhappy as far back as she could remember.

He cleared his throat and told her what had happened to him that day.

"I was lying there in the wreckage, and I guess I was just about as near death as a man can be and still live," he said. "You know they say that when a person's dying his whole life flashes back to him. Well, that's what happened to me. Memories came back to me, and they were all memories of you. Things I thought I'd forgotten—the way you push your hair out of your eyes when you're driving; the way your eyes smile when you're happy and the way you looked the day our baby died."

He laid his thin hand on Sylvia's and she didn't draw it away.

"Two or three feet away from me, Babs was moaning. I thought she was dying and I was terribly sorry for her. But I knew I didn't love her. I knew there never was anybody who mattered a tinker's damn to me but you. I remember saying to myself, 'If I ever get out of this alive, I'm going back to Sylvia.'"

Sylvia looked at him, and his face was blurred and faraway though her tears.

Beyond him, through the open window, came the smell of rain and wet earth. The unforgetable smell of springtime.

It brought back to Sylvia the most unhappy recollection of her whole life. Buchanan park had smelled like this on another rainy afternoon just four years ago, when Ranny had met her there to tell her he didn't love her and didn't want to marry her.

And at that memory, the old hurt, new as the springtime itself—was opening before her and Ranny.

"An hour ago I wouldn't have believed that life could be so lovely for you and me, again," she said, with her wet cheek pressed against his.

There was a pause, and then Ranny gave a chuckle.

"I should be feeling sentimental, but I can't help thinking about Aunt Agony," he laughed. "I'd give a farm to know what she'll have to say when she hears you've come back to me."

"I can tell you exactly what she'll say!" Sylvia cried. She'll say: Alright. Go back to him, if you want to. But he'll only ruin your life again. A leopard never changes its spots, you know.' That's what she'll say. But she'll be all wrong. She'll be all wrong."

And she kissed him again, to prove it.

THE END.

G.O.P. WARNED IN NEW BOOK

Primary Rules Set Forth In Pamphlet Issued By Texas Leaders

DALLAS, May 20.—(AP)—A warning that unless a republican primary is held this year there will be no republican party and that democrats are attempting to confuse republican voters is contained in a primary handbook issued by the republican party of Texas.

The book, compiled by Leonard Withington, secretary of the republican state executive committee and director of organization contains detailed instructions for holding a primary. It especially urges members of the party to encourage women to take an active part in the party.

"They are intelligent, active, interested and not tied to the democratic party with a brass collar," said the book.

"The holding of a republican primary in Texas this year is compusory, not optional," says the foreword. "If we do not hold a state-wide primary we cease to exist as a party and the name republican cannot appear on the ballots at the general election. The name of no candidate, state, district, or county can go on the primary ticket under the designation republican unless nominated in a primary. That is the law.

"The republican party has never quit under fire. It will not quit now.

"We will hold a primary. We will fool the democratic authors of the Terrell election law, who drew it with the express purpose of preventing a second party from ever getting a foothold in Texas.

'We have won the first foothold—we have climbed into the primary class. This year we will win the second step—we will hold a successful state-wide primary. Then we will win the third and last step—elect a governor and other officers."

Walking Newsboy To See Centennial After Long March

HOUSTON, May 20.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Carriker, Houston newsboy, globe trotter and known over the country as "The Man Who Traveled Around the World on a Crutch," plans a stroll to the Sesqui-centennial celebration in Philadelphia, he announced here today.

If he catches a few rides Carriker expects to reach Philadelphia in about two weeks, but if he has to walk all the way, "it's going to take a little longer."

Bitten by a spider when he was working on the Paraguay and Central railway in South America several years ago, Carriker's right side became paralyzed. He was brought to Houston for treatment and his physician told him that walking would aid him. Carriker took the prescription in large doses and during the last five years has traveled approximately 50,000 miles, a great distance of which he has walked.

Carriker's parents reside in Lufkin, Texas.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

May 21, 1925

Henry Starke, lineman, dies as result of burns.

MORE WORK TO BE DONE

EDUCATION in the United States, in Texas and in Wichita Falls has made remarkable advances in recent years, but there is still work to be done.

Dr. Cantwell illustrated this a few days ago when he was awarding diplomas to the Junior high school graduating class. He said that, while he gloried in the achievements of the 250 girls and boys who were concluding their elementary work on that occasion, he was at the same time thinking of and was troubled over those who were not numbered in the class who should have been. He went on to say that had all students who left the ward school classes gone on through and finished junior high school, the class this year would have numbered close to 500 instead of just half that. And while he did not so state, it should be noted that the high school graduating class this year numbered, roughly, just half that of the junior high graduates, or about 125.

These figures tell a story that cannot be passed over lightly. In varying ratio they are duplicated all over the land and they bespeak a condition that leaves much room for improvement in the educational world notwithstanding the great broadening of the scope and variety of educational advantages in past years.

It is not enough that the arts and sciences be simplified and made more understandable through research. Admirable as this work is, it avails little unless this so-called higher education it represents can be made available for a larger number of students. Perhaps education itself is a little at fault in that it is not sufficiently attractive to induce more seekers after knowledge to continue their studies through the higher class rooms; and again, perhaps, the principal thing needed is some more educational work in education itself. In other words, it may be that the pupil needs more intensive instruction in the value of education.

DEMOCRACY NEEDS THE TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

THE experience of Poland is another demonstration of the fact that democracy is in trouble when it departs from the two-party system. In Poland, as in Italy, Spain, France and Germany, the parliament has been the victim of blocs. Thirteen different parties are represented in the Polish parliament. These parties have been unable to get together on any government program. In consequence government has been at a standstill. It could not do the most elementary things.

At the same time the country has been suffering a severe economic depression. Industries have been forced to close. Men have been out of work. The currency, stabalized two years ago, has smashed again. The government has been helpless.

The prevalent discontent gave an opportunity for the war hero, Marshal Pilsudski, to march on the capital, overthrow the administration and take charge. Similar conditions in Italy and Spain resulted in dictatorships. In France and Germany, while warring blocs have not resulted in collapse, they have threatened at times to paralyze governmental service.

If democratic government is to work it must have authority and stability.

NO CONCERN NOW

SHIPPING lanes of the north Atlantic are again encumbered by ice, but master mariners are not displaying undue concern. A radiogram to the Boston Navy Yard reports ten bergs sighted within ten miles off Newfoundland; but sailors off the coast of Alaska or the entrance to Hudson Bay would consider that a negligible matter. However, the captains of the great liners, forewarned and forearmed by experience, prefer to take no chances. Urged by owners to make speed, they are fully aware that every sea mile saved with one of their floating palaces means a considerable reduction in cost; but they had rather take a longer southern route than jeopardize life and property by a short cut. The object lesson of the Titanic in April, 1912, off Cape Race has indelibly impressed a lesson more forceful than all the guides and manuals of navigation have been able to teach.

NOT IN DEMAND

If a general strike meant only a strike of generals it would not do any particular damage at this time.

TWO THUSAND DOLLAR AWARD

THE NEW YORK TIMES, an editorial trade journal of recent date reveals, spent $200,000 for the first North Pole date line ever printed. In other words it expended that amount of money alone in acquiring publication rights to the story and in outfitting and setting up lines of communication—radio, wireless and telegraph—between New York and the operating bases of the Amundsen, Byrd and Ellsworth.

When the Norge flew over the North Pole, a navigator acting as The Times' corresponedent hammered out 200 words on a typewriter dating it NORTH POLE, Wednesday, May 12, 1. a. m. (On Board the Dirigible Airship Norge)—We reached the North Pole at 1 a. m. today and lowered flags for Amundsen, Ellsworth and Nobile.

Two hundred words were included in the dispatch from the top of the world and, as Editor and Publisher remarks, they were therefore secured at $2,000 a word. They were sent out by wireless from the Norge to stations on the Scandinavian coast, wired to Oslo, sent thence to Stavanger and from there by radio across the sea to New York.

Twenty-five years ago such an expenditure for a single story would have bordered on journalistic insanity. But 25 years ago man could not have winged his way over that mythical point marked latitude 90 degrees, north, longitude 0. His advances in recent years have made such a feat possible and one of the great newspapers of the world has just demonstrated its ability and willingness to keep pace in its news coverage sphere.

To bring the important happenings of the day to the breakfast tables of the nation is not such a simple and inexpensive matter as it once was.

A TRAFFIC PROBLEM FOR THE NATION

MAKING the highways safe, declares William H. Connell, president of the American Road Builders' association, is the biggest problem before the country today. Without question, it is one of the country's biggest problems, since it is estimated that last year approximately 25,000 persons were killed and 700,000 injured in motor vehicle accidents. That, even if the figures are anything like accurate, is a tremendous toll. It is a needless sacrifice of life and limb, a sacrifice occasioned in good part by the carelessness and responsibility of persons in charge of vehicles.

It can be halted, but only through vigorous, persistent and united effort. The conditions that should be changed is widespread but the task of dealing with them has been left and properly left, with the separate states. A national conference after careful study, has prepared uniform traffic regulations and submitted them to state authorities and citizens. Adapting these to local needs and conditions is the only duty now faced in Missouir and elsewhere. In this state and in a few other states a strat has been made toward simplified system of traffic control that will increase materially the safety of the streets and highways, the principal aims being to allow only competent persons to handle vehicles and to protect the highways for the benefit of the public at large.

The move is the most promising yet made in the field of traffic regulation. It will succeed if those whom it is designed to protect give it the proper support.

A MEMORIAL DRIVE

THE suggestion has been advanced that the new road winding through Municipal Park and on the lake grounds be created a memorial drive in honor of Wichita county's sons who were involved in the sacrifices exacted by war on the fields of France and Belgium.

Such an idea may well be given thoughtful study.

Wichita Falls and Wichita county, unlike many communities, have never honored their soldier heroes with a lasting memorial. This constitutes no indictment of civic responsibility, but none will deny that such tributes when properly conceived and executed are worthy and laudable enterprises.

The new drive is easily the most attractive now to be found in this territory; it has been a civic undertaking with both city and county sharing the expense after the whole thing has been made possible by the generous land grant of an individual citizen; it will continue for all time as a beautiful and practical utility. There is no special reason why it could not be designated as a memorial boulevard even if it was not originally designed as such.

In view of all this it seems that the city council and county commissioners court might well afford to give a little thought to the matter.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

OLD AGE COMES TO US ALL—DON'T LET IT FIND YOU EMPTY HANDED—START NOW TO SAVE MONEY, TO CULTIVATE AFFECTION, TO LAY IN A SUPPLY OF FRIENDSHIP AND TO STORE UP MENTAL RICHES FOR FUTURE HAPPINESS

What are you storing up for your old age?

Are you laying up any money against the time when you will be old and feeble and no longer able to work?

The hour will strike for you, as it does for others, when your earing powers will be gone, your hands will be too stiff and clumsy to keep on with their accustomed task. Your mind will be too slow to go the pace in the fierce competition in the commercial world.

If you are an employe, you will lose your job. If you are a professional man, you will be superseded by the new men whose stars are just rising on the horizon.

Nothing that you can do will alter these conditions. No miracle will save you from the common fate of all who grow old. But if you have saved up enough money to make you independent, it will be merely a matter of mild regret to you. If, however, you have laid up nothing for the rainy day that is bound to come to you, it will be a tragedy that you will pray death to end.

For in all the world there are no people so piteous and forlorn as those who are forced to eat the bitter bread of dependence in their old age, and find how steep are the stairs of another man's house. Wherever they go, they know themselvs unwelcome. Wherever they are, they feel themselves a burden. There is no humiliation of the spirit they are not forced to endure. Their hearts are scarred all over with the stabs from cruel and callous speeches.

In youth, money is a convenience, an aid to pleasure. In age, it is an absolute necessity, for when we are old we have to buy even consideration and politeness from those about us. This is true even in the households of our own children, for between the father and mother who are able to pay their own way, and are the source of a never-ending flow of gifts and treats, and the father and mother who must be supported, is a great gulf fixed.

It is the difference between having the place of honor or the back seat; between being listened to with respect, and having one's opinions derided; between having one's little peculiarities catered to as interesting characteristics, and being snubbed for one's old-fashioned ways.

Nor is this as unfeeling and hard-boiled as it seems. The average young couple have all they can do, in these times of the high cost of living, to provide for their own wives and children, and it makes their burden crushing to have to add to it the extra weight of the support of the old people of their families.

The fate of the dependent old is so terrible that it is a marvel that it does not frighten every one into trying to provide against it, yet it was recently stated in a journal of statistics that 80 per cent of the men and women more than 60 years of age were dependentdet either upon their children or upon public charity.

Dont let this misfortune befall you. Guard against it. Begin systematic saving while you are young, so that when you are old you will at least have the comfort of being independent.

Are you laying up affection for your old age?

Most of us have a curious and naive belief in what we call "natural affection." We befool ourselves into thinking that people must love us because they stand in a certain relationship to us, and because there are blood ties between us. Never was ther a more fallacious theory.

There is, to be sure, the mother passion for the child she has borne, and the instinctive clinging of the child to its mother while it is young and helpless, but that is all. It doesn't follow as a matter of course that grown-up men and women love their parents just because they are their parents.

DICE WITH DESTINY

By MEIGS FROST

A block from the church I began to get cold in the feet. It dawned upon me that maybe something had happened to Buck Wells—in which case I was a gone goose!

We turned into the church yard and wheeled down to the foot of the steps, and I nearly broke my neck looking for horses on the horizon.

No horses—and no Buck!

I stumbled out of my chair in spite of protests and made my way up to the platform. The coon lifted the chair, and I shuffled over to where the big scene was to be pulled off.

There was no more sign of Buck Wells than there is dust on the ocean. He had deserted me!

I breathed in a long sigh and gave myself up. I was sunk.

They put me back in the chair, and down the aisle we went, with the organ tuning up and the smell of flowers assaulting my nose. The audience crowded into the pews, and Honorah walked beside my ambulance. I could see a minister in the offing holding a book, from which would soon come the fatal words.

Maybe you think I could of bucked out of it? Maybe you think I could rise up and tell the minister that the whole thing was a frame-up, and that I didn't mean to get married—and wouldn't? You may feel that it was up to me to renege right there and hobble out of the church a single man, because this is a free nation and nobody can marry you against your will?

All right. Were you ever in a wheel-chair going down the aisle with your blushing bride-to-be? Were you ever there, with the people all waiting, their eyes popping out and the minister standing there and the best man holding the ring and the bridesmaids giggling and the organ moaning?

You can't back out after you got that far. It's one of the impossibilities. You've simply got to say, "Yes, I'll marry this dame if it kills me!" because that's the only thing left to say. It's psychological.

Well, there's no use prolonging the agony. You know I'm not a married man, and never was one, so you can tell Honorah Henks didn't snag me!

But it was close! Holy suffering catfish, it was close, lads!

To begin with, Buck Wells hadn't deserted me at all. He had met with a slight mishap There were only two horses in the livery stable on the morning of the nineteenth, and they belonged to Buck and me; but a couple of dudes from New York wanted to go riding, and I'll eat my hat if that condemned livery stable guy didn't go and rent him our ponies at two dollars an hour before Buck was awake!

When he found it out he didn't have time to stop and kill the livery man. He started on foot after the two dudes, and spent most of the morning running in a southwesterly direction from Germantown. I don't know what happened when he caught up with our steeds, but he had a gun with him and the dudes were unarmed. It took him one minute to dismount them and start back, but in the meantime I was getting nearer and nearer the "I do" part of the ceremonials.

Buck reached the church much too late to pull off our platform rescue, and darned near too late to do any rescuing at all. I remember that they were fixing up the insides of the building, and there was some scaffolding near the front, where the carpenters had left it.

I was on my feet—actually standing up there like a man and scared to death, but not showing it—when I heard Buck's whoop, and I have never heard a sweeter sound.

There was a long, wide, high window in the side of the church, near the railing, and on the opposite side I noticed a rope that was tied to the window sill, the other end being fastened to the ceiling of the church directly over my head.

I saw Buck ride up outside the left hand window and stare in at me, and right there I thought of a way out.

That dangling rope gave me the idea. Buck was just outside the window, which, as I said, was wide and high. The poor stiff just sat on his horse and glared in at me, as helpless as a cat in a cuspidor, waiting for me to go to my doom. The brown horse was right close beside his pony.

Just before the minister turned to ask me whether I'd find any permanent joy in paying Honorah's bills the rest of her life, I raised my voice in a yell that startled all present and notified Buck that something was coming off.

As I said, that rope did it. The high end was tied to the ceiling and the low end to the window, above the heads of the congregation and opposite where Buck was holding the horses. My legs weren't good for much, but I had my arms; and if I could once reach that rope I felt I'd be on the way to safety.

Then I bolted from my almost-bride, I tore up a ladder the carpenters had left standing against the window, where the rope was tied; unfastened the knot, grabbed the rope high up, gave myself one terrific push and—swung.

I sailed over the heads of the astounded wedding group and then let go. Buck was sitting, braced, on a white horse, and I came through the window like a ton of brick.

He caught me all right, but I nearly knocked him silly. The brown pony was right beside us, and I fell into the saddle ,and then we sailed out of that danger spot at a general speed of 31 miles an hour.

I think we galloped due west for two hours before we dared to look around or speak.

"You dod-gasted old skunk," I said to Buck, "you nearly let me go through with it!"

Then he told me about the two dudes and the horses, and mentioned that he had punched one of them, which cheered me some.

Two days later me and Buck rode into Pop Beesom's ranch. My leg hurt me a heap, but that did not concern me at all. I had my health and my contracts for brick.

"Well," said Pop, greeting us, "you are back, Shorty, safe and sound. I knew you'd come."

"I don't know whether I'm safe yet or not," I told Pop, "and it's a cinch I'm not all sound. But if you're willing to take on an earnest cow-chase, who promises never, never again to bust off the reservation, I'm looking for steady work.

Pop cussed me a couple of times, and I went down to the shack where the boys were. Since then I've had more sense than ever, as you may have observed.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

MOTHER

Words make not things, but things
make words;
And so our words put on in time
A beauty like the song of birds,
If but the things are things sublime.
And so the name of "Mother" grew
To be the loveliest name we knew,
Because it accents brought to mind
The loveliest thing by God designed.

"Mother!"—and you remember home,
That second dearest word of man.
"Mother!"—and though the world you
roam,
You still come home, for come you can.
Ah, yes, however slow the feet
May travel, thoughts are far more fleet,
And in an instant you are there,
Within her arms, beside her chair.

"Mother!"—and every virtue stirs,
"Mother"—and every sin departs.
"Mother!"—the loveliest name is hers
That time has written on our hearts.
And this I know: when men are weak
If they that name would only speak,
All that is good within them still
Would rise and conquer every ill.
Tomorrow—MOVED.

What Do You Know About It?

Dail, Science Six

1. What element in the air is lacking at high altitudes that in consequence makes breathing difficult? What is lacking?
2. How high does the earth's atmosphere extend?
3. Is gravity more active at a nigh altitude than at a low?
4. What does Einstein believe with regrad to gravity?
5. Is there a place where gravity is non-active?
6. If the sun has a gravitational pull, why does it not pull the earth to it?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

Gravity on Mars.

Gravity, or the pull of the earth, is, as Prof. Einstein remarked of almost everything, highly relative. Theoretically when we fall it is toward the center of the earth, but on a mountain side the center of gravity in the mountain pulls us toward it too. How hard gravity pulls depends on the size of our earth and how close you are to it. On a small planet like Mars there is far less gravitational pull. A high jumper of average ability on our earth can clear a six foot pole. On Mars he would be able to jump fifteen feet with the same amount of energy, while on a tremendous world like Jupiter he could not jump a foot.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. All matter may exist in three states, solid, liquid, and gas, but in some exceptional cases it is rare or unknown in one of them.
2. Fire is rapid oxidation.
3. Water is made up of two parts of hydrogen to one part of oxygen.
4. Water may be split into its component parts by passing an electric current through it, when hydrogen will collect at the negative pole and oxygen at the positive.
5. When hydrogen and oxygen meet an explosion occurs.
6. Water naturally goes against gravity when rising by capillarity as in a blotter, or a syphon.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

TAURUS

Today's planetary aspects are favorable, and there are present simulating vibrations, which will create an urge to do something in the way of accomplishment. Every advantage should be taken of these influences as courage, preseverance, and dogged determination will be sensed, and these are important factors of success. Enterprises of a financial character are most favored by the signs, and initiative will be benefitted. Not only do the signs bespeak encouragement for material interests, but they also promise to stir the emotions. It is an excellent occasion for marriage, as the indications point to harmony, constancy and mutual forbearance.

Children born today will not escape the ailments peculiar to the infantile period. Careful nutrition and good environment will, however, rob these illnesses of all gravity. After overcoming these vicissitudes, physical normalcy will be established, and proper development will ensue. Their characters will be determined and, if not checked, they are liable to become stubborn. Under such conditions, great forbearance must be shown, as these children will resent force, but will always be amenable to persuasion and affection.

If today is your birthday, you are of the "happy-go-lucky" type, and are seemingly indifferent or inpervious to your surroundings. You greet success, as though you had a right to expect it. You treat misfortune as though it were all a part of the day's work. Your attitude is at no time influenced by either optimism or pessimism. You have fair ability, but are too phlegmatic to ever attempt to use it to its greatest advantage. If you can "rub along," you are satisfied, and your ambitions are not apparent to anyone. You have no deep emotions and, although your friends are legion, your feelings are never violently stirred.

In the more intimate relations of life, you, with your whimsical outlook on life, make a genial companion, but you never become an ardent lover. You are saved many troubles and sorrows by such a temperament. On the other hand, you will never experience the thrills of happiness that fall to the lot of those who love devotedly and passionately.

Russian Strike Aid Halted by England

LONDON, May 20.—(AP)—Sir William Joynson-Hicks, the home secretary, disclosed to the house of commons today in answer to questions that during the general strike he stopped a check for 100,000 pounds sterling which, he said, was sent by the Russian trades unions to the trades union congress here for furtherance of the strike.

He admitted, however, that he was powerless to bar further sums now being sent from Russia to the British Miners' Federation. He explained that under the emergency powers he could prevent the admission of foreign money for furtherance of the general strike, but "the case of payments in aid of the miners engaged in a genuine trade dispute clearly stands on a different footing and whatever view may be taken of the motives either of the donors or the recipients, the government has been unable to intervene."

Athenian Club Enjoys Annual Luncheon At Craft Home Thursday

One of the prettiest affairs of spring was given at the home of Mrs. B. B. Craft Thursday, when members of the Athenian club enjoyed their annual luncheon.

The club colors of lavendar and gold were features in the decorations of crepe paper streamers extending from the chandelier to each corner of the table, and in the centerpiece of lavendar larkspur and shasta daisies. Colonial ladies which marked the places also carried out the chosen color scheme as did the four course menu.

Chinese Bandits Holding American Military Attache

PEKING, May 20.—(AP)—Captain Thomas J. Betts of the American army, attached to the American Legion here, is a captive in the hands of bandits in Yunnan province, in one of the most inaccessible parts of China, the legation was informed today. He is a native of Maryland.

Efforts were made at once to communicate by wireless with Yunnan-Fu, capital of the province, but the legation still has only the meagerest information. News of Captain Betts' plight was received in an official telegram from the consul at Yunnan-Fu, who had been informed by an unnamed foreigner at Tungchaun, in northwestern Yunnan.

The American army officer was made captive May 17, the consul reported at Laitowpo, 60 miles south of Tungchaun. In accordance with the practice of permitting officers assigned to Peking to study the language to add to their experience by inland journeys, he had been authorized to make a trip across Yunnan, in extreme southwestern China, to the Yangtze river, over a route which has no railroad and is little traveled by foreigners. He entered Yunnan from the south where the French-owned Yunnan railway runs into the province from French Indo-China.

Mutiny in Prison Is Finally Stopped

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 20.—(AP)—The rebellion of 50 prisoners raging for nearly 24 hours in the county jail, vehement protestations against County Sheriff Fred Kohler's "starvation diet" of stale bread and weak soup, was broken today on the personal plea of Common Pleas Judge Frank C. Phillips to the rioters back of their barricads in the jail "bull pen."

Judge Phillips took matters in his own hands after Chief Deputy Sheriff Martinec had told him the courts would not be able to function today because of Kohler not being able to get prisoners out of the jail due to the barricade and the disorder in the third cell tier.

Judge Phillips faced the rebellious prisoners through their rough barricade and urged them to go back to their cells "because this inquiry of the grand jury is to see that you get justice." One prisoner sang out: "All right, Judge, we'll do it for you, but not for Kohler." And in a moment the barricades were pulled down and the prisoners were back in their cells. Breakfast was served then.

Police Not to Aid Enforcement Squad

SAN ANTONIO, May 20.—(AP) City police and detectives in future will not accompany federal prohibition agents on raids in San Antonio. Co-operation between the two forces are to stop in individual liquor raids after the city officers have furnished the agents with whatever information they can give.

These facts, it was indicated today from reliable sources, would be incorporated in a new regulation of the prohibition enforcement office.

The Ellis home was festive in its decorations of roses, snap dragons and poppies, a color scheme of lovely pinks and blues being carried out. In the games Mrs Bush had high score with Mrs. R. R Pruet second high, each of them being remembered with a lovely gift. Following the games a lovely tray luncheon was served, each tables centered with a tiny colonial lady whose attire carried out the same delightful colors as had the other decorations, the basket she carried filled with mints in an assortment of colors.

THURSDAY BRIDGE

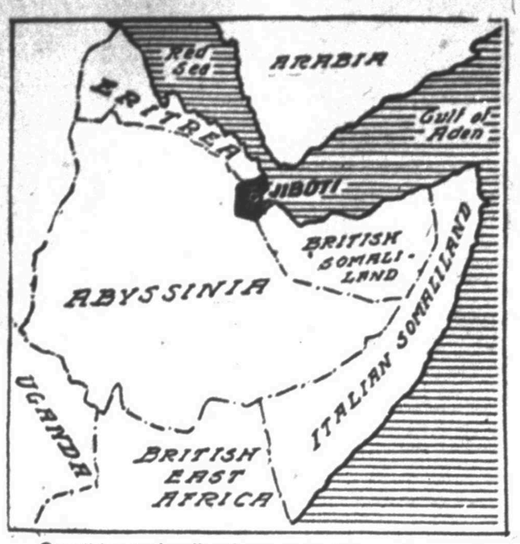
France Objects to Anglo-Italian Pact



Opposition to the alleged agreement between Rome and England allowing the Italian government to construct railroads connecting Eritrea, an Italian possession in northeastern Africa and Italian Somaliland, farther down the coast, is being stirred up in France. France is especially interested since she controls the Port of Jibuti situated at a strategic point between the Italian possessions and also the hinterland. Map shows the territory concerned.

Beer Makers Are Immune, Unless They Sell Their Product

AUSTIN, May 20.—(AP)—While beer drinking in Austi nmay not always proceed without official interference, it can go on without prosecution in either the state or federal courts, it has been developed here by the failure of city foficers to secure hearings on charges of "possessing intoxicating liquor" made against owners of beer.

United States Commissioner Marshall O. Bell has announced that acting on official instructions, he will not accept cases involving only the possession of beer.

City and county officers said today that "possession" cases cannot be filed in state courts because the state drug department has declined to analyize samples of alleged beer, and send its members as expert witnesses in cases on trial. Officials of the state department pointed out that to make tests of liquor for officers, and to allow members to act as expert witnesses would so tax the equipment and personnel of the department that no other work except that involving liquor cases would be carried on.

Alimony Market Futures Fall Off

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—(AP)—Discount on futures in the alimony market fell off sharply here yesterday when Mrs. Emma Charlotte Louise Richardson informed the court that she had accepted $1,000 for her alimony claim of $21,200 against John Howard Richardson, screen actor, a discount rate of about 95 percent.

In her court action Mrs. Richardson had charged that when she obtained a divorce six years ago Richardson was ordered to pay her $75 a week, but that he had paid virtually none of it. Since his divorce Richardson has married Florence Stone, stage and film actress.

The invaders found Superintendent I. L. Shaffray alone in the office and forced him to open the safe. While they were gathering up the loot, employes began arriving. Men in one room and the three women in in one roo mand the three women in another room.

Emanuel Price, head of the concern, declared that there is a scarcity of gold leaf in Chicago and that it would be necessary to telegraph to other cities for a supply. The leaf is used principally in sign lettering.

Students Dancing In Lieu of Lunch

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20. (AP)—"Dancing and other social activities are crowding out the legitimate noon lunch in the high schools all over the country, to the great detriment of the health of young people," said Dr. Edna Bailey, supervisor of University high school, Berkeley, Cal., at the American Health congress here today.

She advised elimination of these distractions and the provision of hot lunches by the schools to do away with "running out to candy stores for hot dogs and chocolate bars."

Stops Chatter and Keeps The Motor Cool

When your clutch, reverse and brake bands slip and chatter, and your motor overheats, you are using the wrong oil.

The transmission bands are lubricated from the crank case by the same oil that is used in the motor. If the wrong oil is used, or if your oil is seriously diluted, these bands become oil-soaked, gummy and slick—and chattering and slipping result.

Use Flivolene—change the oil in your crank case every 500 miles—keep your transmission bands properly adjusted, and you will get the best service from your Ford at the least cost.

Flivolene is manufactured and guaranteed by the Humble Oil & Refining Company, refiners and marketers of the high-grade line of Humble Motor Oils. You can buy it wherever you see the Humble Signs.

GAS IS RAISED FOLLOWING WAR ON MAJORS

Boost In Prices Affects Wichita Falls Thursday

DALLAS, May 20.—(AP)—A one cent raise in gasoline was announced here today following a call issued Tuesday for a state-wide convention of independent oil station dealers to fight the major companies. The Magnolia Petroleum company and the Texas company posted the increase today, bringing the price to 20 cents a gallon at Dallas county filling stations. This is the second raise in ten days.

C. C. Hailey, executive secretary of the Independent Service Stations association of Dallas county, said he did not know whether there was any connection between the raise and the efforts of his association to combat what they term an attempt by the major companies to exterminate them. Oil companies said the increase was due to a per cent increase in crude oil.

Major company officials said that those independent dealers who have signed contracts will be furnished from tank wagons at 17 cents a gallon, but that those who have not signed will have to pay 20 cents, the retail price.

Many independents have declined to sign contracts on the ground that the contracts would eventually require them to lease their stations to the major companies.

Mr. Hailey said that letters and telegrams from independents favoring a state-wide organization of service station men were coming in at the rate of 50 a day.

All of them are enthusiastic over the new organization," he said. Replying to a statement attributed yesterday to W. M. Harrison of Fort Worth, president of a refinery, that the fight of the Dallas county dealers would increase the price to the public, Mr. Hailey said this could not be the result, as all that the independents were asking was a square deal from the major companies. Mr. Harrison is vice president of the Texas Independent Oil Men's association and he said this organization did not favor the stand of the Dallas county men. Hailey replied that Harrison's organization did not represent the service station men and that this organization was not the spokesmen of the independent retailers.

A one cent rise in gasoline, jumping prices from 19 to 20 cents, was announced in Wichita Thursday by all filling stations.

Spuds Have Lots of Fun At Waco's Expense, Winning 15 to 2

Brainard's Men Grab An Easy Scrap When White Hurls In From

Murderers Row Gets in Action and Steady Rain of Hits Descends on Luckless Cub Hurlers

BY BLONDY CROSS.

WACO, May 20.—Brainard's merry men cruellly clouted the youthful and somewhat apologetic Shep Cannon from the dome today in two and a third rounds and then continued to enhance their already top-heavy batting averages at the expense of Lino Aguilar, the Mexican flinger who worked every day down here.

Wichita Falls knocked the game into the bag early but hung around and dilly-dallied with the boys the rest of the afternoon while Lester White, the phenomenal young right-hander from Long Beach, indulged in a nine-inning workout. The Spudders lugged away the contest by a 15-2 score, checking out of Waco tonight having done damage enough for three days in one stand. They head for San Antonio where in the shadow of the Alamo, figuratively speaking, the invaders attack Mitze's men Friday and Saturday. It looks like Carl Williams on the knob in the opener at Tamaletown. Boss Brainard had intended to use him today, but got anxious over night to see Long Beach Lester do his stuff again.

Two-base hits, Brainard, Washburn, Turgeon 3, Bodie, Mueller, Lamb. Home runs, Davis, Bodie, Brainard. Double plays, Distel, Turgeon to Washburn 3; Boggess, Pratt to Mueller. Bases on balls, off White 7; off Cannon 4; off Aguilar 5. Struck out, by White 2; by Cannon 1; by Aguilar 3. Pitchers' record: 6 runs, 6 hits off Cannon in 2 1-3. Losing pitcher, Cannon. Stolen bases, Fitzgerald. Sacrifice, White. Time 2:15. Umpires, Held and Daly.

Long Beach came through. He didn't exactly fling as good a game as that first start last week at Wichita Falls against San Antonio, but he didn't have to. But the difference is so slight it took a microscope of the higher powers to spot the line of demarkation. Lester working behind a commanding lead, could be expected to slow up, but if he did it wasn't apparent.

Two runs and eight hits were combed from the startling slinger's slants, one of the blows being a home run hit over Waco's trick left field fence by Windy Davis on the initial pitch of the game. Lester scattered 'em out the rest of the way with the exception of the fifth when a walk to Davis, a single by Boggess and a two-sack rift down the third base line swished by Mueller scored the other Waco tally. Lester was slightly liberal, putting eight Cubs on the runways by four ball donations. Forgetting that fifth-frame tabulation Long Beach heaved himself out of it all.

The Distel-to-Turgeon-to-Washburn combination functioned on double plays three times, enabled to do so by Lester's ability to make the lowly cellarites hit to the wrong places with men on first. Sharp and heads-up fielding could have scored three more time-killings. Not to say that the boys weren't hustling, just a little laxity sopped up at intervals. She was such an easy one to win.

Another for Ping.

The great Bodie socked another homer. It came in the form of a stiff smash that carried nine miles over the right garden protection with the speed and appearance of a hard hit but sliced golf ball. Turgeon was on at the time. Pete was present again in the ninth when Brainard golfed one four bases and 20 blocks to left. In fact, Peter Eugene was quite conspicuous through out the afternoon. The loud little keystoner drew a base on balls the first time up but came back to pack off the slugging palm. Three timber-shivering doubles sprang from his lusty bludgeon. Everybody got a hit. A narrow minded scorer stole bingles from Fitzgerald and Distel who in truth connected for two each but were awarded only one apiece.

Bodie cops the golden rods for runs batted in, the pudgy person chasing over a quartet. Lamb was next with three. Lester himself sent two scores scurrying across. Turge pushed a couple in. The skipper accounted for two, Distel and Query for the other two.

Three in Second.

A pass mixed up with a string of one-basers sprayed all over the outfield by Fitz, Distel, White and Lamb punched the board for three Spud checkers in the second. Six rampant runners loped across the dish in the third, Shep getting out of there in the meantime. Brainard inaugurated the drive with a two-base liner to right center, but was cut down at home on an annoyingly fast relay from the outer regions after Washburn put the agate up against the boards for a keystone rush. Fitz punched a wayyard too-hot-to-handle drive to short, but Lopez was fortunate enough to knock the play down and hold Washburn to no further advance than third. The brain befuddled Brazos village official scorer labeled it an error. Cannon walked Distel and Pratt awakened sufficiently from a deep slumber to jerk the youngster and commandeer Aguilar into service. The shift augured naught. Query was promptly passed, forcing in a run. Then White slapped a sacrifice hoist to right center, scoring another. Lamb walked and Turgeon and Bodie followed with tumultuous two-baggers. Before the roaring rippers had been retired the six runs were in, the game forgotten and they had begun discussing plans for amusement after supper.

Bases on balls to Washburn and Query mixed in with this and that, but namely a bad hop bingle by Distel that the scorer called an error on somebody and a double by Lamb counted two in the sixth.

You already know how the other four runs were made—Turge's doubles and the Bodie-Brainard non-stop wallops.

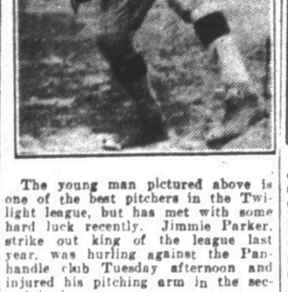
WHAT IS A LIAR?

CAMBRIDGE, Eng.—Lecturing here, Mrs. Sarah Barnes defined a "liar" as 'a woman before she is married," and "a man after he is married."

Arm Goes Bad



The young man pictured above is one of the best pitchers in the Twilight league, but has met with some hard luck recently. Jimmie Parker, strike out king of the league last year, was hurling against the Panhandle club Tuesday afternoon and injured his pitching arm in the second inning.

The Panhandle batters were finding his stuff and hitting it, but he pitched on until the arm went completely back on him.

Parker has many followers in the league and is a great favorite with every team he has faced this year.

Errors Costly In Texhoma Win At American Expense

7 to 3 Game Copped By Heavy Hitting and Many Boots

Numerous errors in the field and Ronie Glidewel's wildness late in the game gave Texhoma a great chance to put a wrinkle in the American Refinery's pennant sail by winning a twilight league game Thursday afternoon, 7 to 3.

Raymond Windham showed the lack of practice in the field and three costly errors were chalked against him, while Jimmie Parker, Speck Roberts and Johnnie McMahon led the hitting attack with two hits in three times at bat.

Johnnie McMahon's catch in the seventh inning of a line drive off the bat of Norman Rosser was the feature fielding play of the game. It was labeled for at least two bases when McMahon speared it with one hand while still on the run.

Trout pitched steady ball for the eTxhoma crew and was rewarded with airtight fielding in the pinches. Shadie Hale and Andy Taylor taking several balls on bad hops with their bare hands and tossing to first base in time for a putout.

Ronie Glidewell pitched great ball until the infield blew up back of him. He allowed but two hits in five innings but Texhoma scored six runs on the hits and numerous errors.

Jimmie Parker may have a sore arm but he showed a good batting eye and a fine pair of legs. He collected two singles and was safe once on Windhams' error. He stole four bases, including home, and advanced on two passed balls.

The Americans broke off to a two run lead in the first two innings. In the first, Roberts led off with a single to left. Christan flied to deep left with no advance. Roberts stole second. McMahon singled to left, scoring Roberts and Francis hit into a fast double play, Hale to Boone to Kellogg.

A single by Martindale, a sacrifice and a double by Windham gave them their second score.

An error by Windham on Parker's grounder started Texhoma off for one run in the third. Parker stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Gordon walked and was trapped off first. Parker stole home and Gordon was safe at second.

An error by Roberts, a stolen base, an error by Martindale and a passed ball scored two more for Texhoma in the fourth. Two walks, two straight errors by Windham and a two-base wallop by Taylor scored three runs for Texhoma in the fifth.

A long triple by Glidewell and a single by Roberts gave the Americans their last run in the fifth inning.

One more was chalked up for Texhoma off Connally in the sixth. Parker singled to center and stole second. Trout walked. Gordon and G. Boone struck out. Davis walked, filling the bases. Hale dropped a single in right and Red Rounsaville heaved the pill to Connally in time to cut Trout off at the plate, but too late to stop the fleet Jimmie Parker who was already over with a tally.

Exporters Slam Steers, But Steers Slam Right Back

Beaumont Finally Wins a Wild Game by Score Of 14 to 13

BEAUMONT, May 20.—(AP)—A home run with two on base and two out in the ninth decided a 14-13 victory for Beaumont today, giving the Exporters two of their three games against the Steers. Ten runs in Beaumont's fourth off three southpaws, wiped out an eight run lead gained by the visitors off Diviney and Ross. Successive home runs by Devivieros, who hit another on his next time at bat, and Brown closed the scoring in the record round. Eight hurlers toed the rubber and only Hovlik was effective. Hungling's pinch triple in the ninth which Brown lost in the haze covering the field gave Dallas a tie in the last of the ninth. Robertson opened Beaumont's half with a single to left and went to second on Woebr's error. Dunning, running for Robertson, moved up on Hovlik's sacrifice, but was out on a close play at the plate on Reagan's grounder to Riley. Reagan went to second on the play. A pass put Connolly aboard and Oliver then stoned for two errors in centerfield which aided in Dallas' scoring when he drove the ball high on the center field wall, scoring Reagan with the winning run after two hours and forty-five minutes of hectic play. Carpentier Back In Ring Again To Test Powers

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Georges Carpentier of France tonight rested on the eve of his return to the ring at the cross-roads of a long pugilistic journey.

Unshaken in the confidence that he can regain the light heavyweight peak, the debonair veteran accepts his ten round test tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden with Eddie Huffman of California as a final stand against tides of misfortune which have been steadily enveloping him. He must win decisively to go on.

Stecher and Santel Ready For Big Match Tonight

Capacity Crowd A Certainty When 2 Champs Meet Here

3,000 or More to Attend Stecher on Way From Atlanta, Ga.

THE CARD

Place: American Legion arena, Eleventh and Ohio.

Time: Main bout, about 9 p. m.

Main Event: Joe Stecher, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, vs Ad Santel, light heavyweight champion.

Preliminaries: Nick Velcoff vs Tommy Thompson; Stanley Price vs Ray Jeffries.

With Ad Santel bubbling over with confidence, an advance seat sale assuring a capacity crowd, Joe Stecher on the way and due to arrive early Friday morning, the weather man remained Thursday night as the only undetermined factor in Friday evening's world heavyweight championship wrestling match being staged by Promoter Alec Ross. Stecher, reigning champ, is en route to Wichita Falls from Atlanta, Ga., where he threw Jim Londos Wednesday night. Santel is now in Wichita Falls, having moved in from his training quarters at Lake Kemp.

Fair and Warm

Predictions Thursday night were to the effect that fair, warm weather would be the climatic offering for today; and that being the case, an unprecedented jam is certain for the big bout. Advance seat sales Thursday were nearing the S. R. O. mark and orders from out of town points as well as this city continued to pour in. Ross put a force of men at work Thursday in the American Legion arena installing additional seats so that approximately 3,000 will be provided

Start About 9

The main match which will bring Santel and Stecher together will start about 9 o'clock, the length of the preliminaries being the determining factor, of course. Nick Velcoff, the Bulgarian lion, and Tommy Thompson of Chicago will appear in the semi-wind-up, wrestling one fall to a finish. Two paperweight champions, Ray Jeffries of Waco and Stanley Price of Lawton, Okla., will open the evening's fun. Both weigh in at 75 pounds and will go for 15 minutes.

Santel yesterday declared himself to be in the pink of condition and that he was confident of giving Stecher the greatest battle of his career.

GOLF
As Champions Play It

By BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

What is the proper method in playing a downhill putt? Is it possible to "go for the cup" and yet put enough underspin on the ball to play safe? Or should the overspin be used on all putts? If so, must the downhill putt be played short deliberately?

The answes to this question depends on the manner in which the player putts. If he cuts his putts, downhill putts will not give him as much trouble as they give a player who hits the ball accurately, which means that he hits it with an overspin. I do not believe in underspin on a putting green. Touch is the necessary thing in playing a downhill putt. Shorten up the backswing of the putter, as this gives one less chance of error. Never play a downhill putt short. Always give the ball a chance, so you have an uphill putt back again, providing the ball does not hole out.

"Have a Camel"

Open one up! The tobacco tells its own story

CAMELS are made of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. To prove what we say about Camel's tobacco quality, make this test:

Take a Camel and any other cigarette. Tear off the papers and place the tobaccos from the two cigarettes in separate piles. Now shake them up and examine the tobaccos. Your own eyes will quickly show you the difference, how the Camel tobacco is longer and of a riper color. Then gather up the two piles separately—and smell them.

You will at once notice the rich, fragrant aroma of Camel tobaccos not found in the other.

This marked difference is even more apparent when you "taste the smoke." It is solely because of the quality of the tobaccos and the skill of the blending that Camels never tire the taste, never leave a cigaretty after-taste.

Camels are so good that we know you will like them. Give them every test known and you will find Camels the highest quality cigarette made, regardless of price. Have a Camel!

Tommy Cochran Eliminates Rotan As First Step In State Flights

Defending Champ From Wichita Falls In Good Form On Houston Links

21 Holes Required Before Local Man Is Returned Winner; Wynne of Ft. Worth Shooting Amazing Golf

HOUSTON, May 20.—(AP)—The defeat of several veteran stars, including the downfall of George Rotan, four times winner of the title, after a 21-hole contest with Tommy Cochran, defending title holders, and the sensational play of H. S. Wynne of Fort Worth featured the first day of match play in the twentieth annual championship event of the Texas golf association.

The Rotan-Cochran battle, although par golf was lacking, found both players fighting hard for the right to continue in the tournament at the River Oaks Country club.

Cochran, after turning up two on Rotan, missed a hole after a shot and the Houstonian evened the count before the match had worked half way around the final nine. Rotan then clipped off good shots and moved into the lead. The pair reached the 17th tee with the defender dormie two.

Here Cochran played his first real golf shot of the match. He hit a long drive that found a resting place between two roots in the rough and he placed his second "stonie," getting a birdie three. Rotan was down the middle but off line on his pitch. His third was on and he held a four.

On the 18th both hit remarkable drives. Cochran was on the edge in two with Rotan's pitch being off to the right. His ball was in some water and he dropped back, the ball stopping in high grass. His third was short of the green and he finished with a five while Cochran scored a par four to halve the match.

Extra Holes Divided.

The first two extra holes were divided in 5's and 4's with Rotan three putting the short number three hole to lose the match. Cochran was on the edge of the green on this hole in one while Rotan was in a trap. He played a great shot out but the ball rolled about 18 feet over the pin and it was five before he holed out. Cochran used three putts but was low by a single shot.

Among the other star players eliminated during the day was Charlie Dexter, three time winner of the tournament; Jack Speer, state municipal champion; Clarence Hubby, runner up in 1925; Commodore Heard, the grand old man of Texas golfdom and James Harned of Dallas.

Wynne in Shape.

H. S. Wynne, who was forced to compete in a sweat-fest before being given a berth in the championship flight, accounted for the defeat of two of the above mentioned players. During the morning Wynne bowled over Charlie Dexter, who was badly off form and in the second round he eliminated Commodore Heard. The latter scored well but was unable to keep pace with his opponent.

Ossie Carlton, medalist and former title holder, had little trouble in his morning match but during the afternoon he was forced to the 18th green before he could claim a victory over Ed Stewart of Fort Worth.

Siewart, after turning one down, had the match all square at the 16th. Carlton moved back into th lead on number 17 and with a win on the home hole pushed his margin to two up.

Cats Score One

SAN ANTONIO, May 20.—(AP)—Fort Worth today defeated San Antonio for the first time this year. The score was 9 to 1. The Bears, previous to today, had trampled on the Cats five times. Southpaw Jimmy Walkup held the Bears to six hits, while the Panthers hammered Jim Lindsay and Lefty Bill Ward for 14.

The game was marked by fast fielding by Joe Rabbitt making the prize catch in the opening round when he pulled down Ziggy Sears' long drive to right with his bare hand after a hard run. Score:

New York Makes It 9 Straight by 5 to 4 Win Over Browns

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Continuing their home run attack New York made it 9 straight today, vanquishing the Browns, 5 to 4. This ties the record of the Philadelphia Athletics for the longest winning streak of the year. Babe Ruth delivered his fifteenth circuit blow in the fifth inning, and in the same session Pat Collins drove out a homer with one on base. Ruth's fifteenth home run of his record year of 1921 was not made until May 31, in the Yankee's 40th game. Today's game was but the 32nd of the season for the home club. Sisler returned to his job at first after a brief lay off due to a twisted ankle and hammered a four bagger and a double. Score:

Duke and Ryan Primed for Monday

Duke Trammel and Dago Ryan will meet Monday night in another 10-rounder. Both men were a bit peeved over the results of their fight last week and both are wanting to get at the other once more.

The fight was not overly popular with local fans and Duke wants in the ring again to show that he earned the decision. All of this will be unwrinkled in the next meeting here and with both men out to show they are right there should be a great fight at the open air arena Monday night.

The preliminaries have not been matched, but several good ones are promised.

Unemployment In Texas Decreases, Department Shows

AUSTIN, May 20.—(AP)—There is littl eunemployment throughout the state at the present, declared E. J. Crocker, commissioner of labor who has just returned from a ten days inspection tour through north and east Texas. Those recently employed are dreceiving the highest rate ever paid in Texas, he said. This is particularly true of the building industries.

The eight state free employment bureaus located in Denison, Sherman, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston, Abilene and Laredo are all moving large numbers of persons to sections of the state where labor is needed at the present time. Last year, these bureaus which are in most instances open only during the har vest season, placed 224,650 persons. The state bureau with the assistance of the Austin chamber of commerce placed an additional 58,000 who were near starvation in 53 drouth stricken counties of the state, Mr. Crocker stated. With promise of the largest wheat crop in the history of the state, and with a splendid chance of a good cotton crop, Mr. Crocker declares these figures will probably be exceeded this year.

Housewives Told To Quit Drudgery

ATLANTIC CITY, N J., May 20. Housewives of America must be educated out of drudgery an dif need be "forcibly pulled out."

This was the text of an address today by Mrs. Mary King Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, before the National Electric Light association.

The federation, assisted by the association, began a year ago to take stock of housekeeping equipment in American homes.

"The survey," she said "is the signal for an organized exodus of American home makers from the bondage of needless household drudgery into the sovereign freedom of companionship and character building in family and community.

"You have helped arouse the home makers to a better understanding of the future service organized electrical and other physical energies can and should render to loose the bonds of benumbing drudgery and to set free mother energies for their full measure of rightful service to home and family."

Famous Whiskers Of Gen. Burnside Taken Into Court

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—The cheek whiskers of the late General Ambrose E. Burnside, civil war hero credited with having created the particular style of hirsute adornment which bears his name, are in a court tangle.

Miss Ella C. Patterson of Milwaukee is suing Colgate & company for $150,000 for using her uncle's famous features as "a sort of springboard from which to pocosely and humorously launch a sales argument in its advertisements."

Miss Patterson complains that the company advanced its sales of shaving soap at the expense of her uncle's war record and tonsorial peculiarities. She cites an advertisement that says:

"Most of the men who used to think burnsides made them look dashing and dauntless are trying now to keep the albums bound in plus from coming to light."

Miss Patterson says that as a result of the "malicious and unauthorized" use of the general's picture many persons in her home town have spoken of her as one who sold permission to the defendant to picture that accompanied the advertisement.

Counsel for the defendants seek to have the case quashed on the ground that that is no cause of action.

Fat Porkers Bring New Record Price

KANSAS CITY, May 20.—(AP)—Fat hogs reached the highest price on the Kansas City livestock market in six years when a top price of $14.50 a 100 pounds was established today. The previous peak price for the six-year period was $14.30, attained in March of last year. The high record price for this market is $23.40, reached in July, 1919.

Prices advanced 10 to 15 cents today, bringing the increase for this wee kto 25 to 50 cents, which is 75 cents to $1 higher than quotations May 1.

A broad demand for limited receipts reflecting diminishing cold storage stocks of pork products, and increased consumption of pork as the result of unseasonably cool weather were assigned as causes for the market's strength.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, May 20.—(AP)—The cotton market was quiet today and prices fluctuated narrowly within a range of ten points. The weather continued to be the dominating influence. Better weather in the western belt was offset by low temperatures. The market opened about steady as Liverpool was nearly as due and early weather news was somewhat mixed. After gaining one to two points in the early trading, prices eased off to levels two to founr points below the close of yesterday but rallied later on the forecast for fair weather in the Carolinaas where rain is needed. At mid-session prices were five to ten points above the early lows. After mid-session prices fluctuated narrowly within the earlier range. The close was a little off from the best except on July, which closed at the top and eight points net higher for the day. The other active months closed two to three points net lower.

At the start, Liverpool being about as due first trades here showed no change to three points down. Prices eased off slightly in the early trading, July reaching 17.52, October 17.09 and December 17.07, or two to four points under yesterday's close. These proved to be the lows of the day.

The market rallied moderately later in the morning, July trading up to 17.62, October to 17.14 and December to 17.14, or five to ten points above the lows and two to eight points above the previous close. These prices were the highs of the day. After fluctuating narrowly within the earlier range after mid-session, July closed at the high point and the new crop months a little off from the best.

Exports for the day totaled 10,078 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Moderate rallies followed an early decline in the cotton market today. October sold up from 17.52 to 17.60, but reacted in late trading and closed at 17.52. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 3 points on July, but generally 2 to 8 points net lower.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points in response to relatively easy late cables from Liverpool and reports of beneficial rains in the eastern belt. July sold off to 18.13, and December to 17.43 in early trading, making net declines of about 6 to 11 points on active positions.

At these figures prices steadied up at mid-day on covering by July shorts and some local or commission house buying of later deliveries. The latter may have been due partly to failure of the detailed weather reports to show any precipitation of consequence in the Carolinas although there were very fair rains in Georgia and Alabama. Weather news from the south west was considered more favorable, only a few light showers being reported, and after advancing to 18.27 for July and 17.52 for December, the market reacted.

No fresh factor of importance was mentioned to acount for the closing setbacks. July closed within a point of the best. Other months were relatively easy in later trading. December closing at 17.46. Generalbusiness was quiet the entire day, as traders sw are waiting for more decisive crop developments.

Liverpool cables said local buying and trade selling in that market had been supplied by hedging or liquidation, with a broadening demand for cotton clothe in Manchester for India, but that many of fers were unworkable.

Exports today 10,078 bales, making 7 $48,506 so far this season. Port receipts 7,412. U. S. port stocks 882,139 bales.

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—An enormous turnover in Hudson Motors, which closed 4 points higher at 63¾, on total transactions of 303,100 shares, or nearly one-fourth of the day's total business, overshadowed all other developments in today's stock market. The general list rallied in sympathy with Hudson, final quotations disclosing a long list of net gains ranging from one to six points.

Wild fluctuations took place in Hudson as a result ofthe publication on financial news tickers of an erroneous report that the directors had declared only the regular dividend which was corrected 20 minutes later by the announcement that the regular quarterly cash dividend had been raised from 75 to 87½ cents and that in addition a stock dividend of 20 per cent had been authorized. The stock, which was selling just above 60 when the directors were in session, quickly tumbled to 57 on the publication of the erroneous report, but rallied to 63¾ after the correct announcement.

Other motors, particularly these believed to harbor a large short interest, moved in sympathy with Hudson, but within a much narrower range. Moon, Packard and Stewart-Warner all closed a point or so higher.

Rails also gave an impressive demonstration of strength in respone to the publication of excellent traffic and earning reports. Buying was spread over a broad list, among the score or so issues to show net advances of 1 to nearly 3½ points being Atchison, New York Central, Lackawanna, Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and New Haven.

The first April railroad earnings report to make its appearance, that of the Kansas City Southern, showed net operating income of $535,031, a gain of $191,023 over the same month last year.

The day's news was again largely constructive in character. Directors of the Ingersoll-Rand company declared a special dividend of $1 on the common stock and the Virginia-Carolina Chemical corporation announced the payment of $7 back dividends on the prior preferred stock.

Sales of ordinary life insurance was $25,357,000 above the same month last year and the third largest monthly total in history.

Trading in the oil shares was enlivened by a jump of 5¼ points in Atlantic Refining to 123¾, a new high for the year American Telephone rallied 3 points to 147¾, and the "rights" to subscribe to new stock, trading in which was transferred from the New York curb market to the "big board" totaled as high as $6 each.

Call money renewed at 3½, but advanced to 4 when banks called about $30,000,000 in loans, presumably to strengthen their reserve position. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sharp rallies to around the 3-cent level in French franc and Belgian francs following the announcement that the French government would use every resource at its command to support its currency, featured foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.86.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, May 20.—(AP)—Owing largely to an unexpected advance in Liverpool quotations, wheat market here took a sudden upward swing today. Anxious bidding on the part of traders short of wheat to fill May contracts here was a notable feature. Chicago closing prices on wheat were strong, 1⅜ to 4 cents net higher, with corn ⅝ to ⅞c up; oats at ⅛ cent decline to ⅛ cent advance, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents off.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, but the advances brought out realizing sales, especially in oats. Unseasonably cool weather received attention as adverse for both feed grains.

Provisions were governed chiefly by the changes in the hog market, advancing at first but afterward turning weak.

CITY EXPENSE

penses for the city during the past year in comparison with expenses during the preceding three years, and will include details of the expense allowed for the current year under the budget adopted more than a month ago.

The budget for the current year allows a total expense of $435,295.70, an increase of only approximately $25,000 over the actual expense figure for the year before.

Fire Department Leads

The largest single item of expense over the entire four years covered in the report is the fire department, although the expense figure for the past year for this department was less than that of police department expense. The amount included in the budget for the current year for fire department expense is far and away the largest item in the budget, showing $143,100, of which $99,955 represents operating expenses and $43,150 improvements and additions.

A detailed report of fire department expense over the period covered by the past four years follows:

Year—	Amount
1922-23	$51,962.81
1923-24	63,617.66
1924-25	63,687.90
1925-26	72,472.11
Budget, 1926-27	99,955.00

Next after the fire department the police department shows the largest operating expenses, these being in detail:

Year—	Amount
1922-23	$41,947.33
1923-24	$47,000.70
1924-25	50,485.26
1925-26	79,791.00
Budget, 1926-27	85,040.00

An amount of $3,100 is allowed for purchase of new equipment by the police department during the coming year.

City administrative expenses totaled only $20,523.73 during the past year, the report shows a summary for the last four years reading as follows:

Year—	Amount
1922-23	$21,341.68
1923-24	20,999.01
1924-25	17,241.56
1925-26	20,523.73
Budget, 1926-27	19,575.00

Street operation expenses show a comparatively large increase in the budget for the current year over the actual expense for the past year. $11,000 is included for the purchase of new equipment. The report follows:

Year—	Amount
1922-23	$53,829.95
1923-24	51,517.19
1924-25	49,246.80
1925-26	54,213.32
Budget, 1926-27	61,280.00

The budget for the current year shows a substantial decrease in the amount allowed for park and cemetery operation expense:

Year—	Amount
1922-23	$15,718.93
1923-24	25,903.51
1924-25	23,548.59
1925-26	54,923.22
Budget, 1926-27	43,195.00

Sanitary expense for the current year will also be materially decreased under the figure for the preceding year for the reason that street sweeping expense has been transferred to the street department. The report follows:

Year—	Amount
1922-23	$19,476.30
1923-24	19,705.73
1924-25	39,238.53
1925-26	32,570.07

LIQUOR ISSUE UP IN OREGON

Senator And Governors Races Have This To Face

PORTLAND, Ore., May 20.—(AP) The liquor question will be an active issue in Oregon's primary action tomorrow. The campaign which closed today was marked by spirited fights for nominations for United States senator and governor.

For the republican nomination for governor, three candidates are in the race. They are I. L. Patterson, of Polk county, a state senator; Jay H. Upton, another state senator; and William A. Carter, Portland attorney. Representative M. E. Crumpacker of the third Oregon district and Norman S. Richards are the leading candidates for the republican nomination for representatives. Richards has raised the prohibition issue, indorsing government control of liquor. Another candidate, B. F. Mulky, favors prohibition is the republican standard bearer for that office and will be the successor of Pinchot. Eidleman, like Vare, is a wet and for the modification of the Volstead law.

It was a straight fight between Fisher and Beidleman, although in the city of Pittsburgh and elsewhere the followers of the Mellons and Grundy, whether wet or dry, voted primary ballots for the candidates favored by the third richest man in America and those who are allied with him in the many gigantic business enterprises where the Mellon money has been placed.

It was a black eye, a body blow in a sense, for the Mellons and all their followers, of high or low degree. It has been the proud boast of Pennsylvania republicans that they have ever been represented in the senate by gentlemen of birth and breeding and wealth. Now a commoner fresh from the ranks of commoners is their candidate for United States senator, and another commoner, just as fresh from the lowly walks of life, is their candidate for governor, and the two commoners overwhelmed candidates backed by the most powerful figure in the Coolidge administration.

There were many cross currents and cross wires. Miners and union labor men who are not miners, while they voted for Pinchot, picked Beidleman as their choice for governor and should he be elected, with the machinery recently manufactured by Governor Pinchot and his lawmakers, will be the most autocratic governor, if he cares to be, that Pennsylvania has ever known. He will name the chiefs of the bureaus and the commissions created by Pinchot lawmakers, and this will place the Vare machine in the saddle in the city of Harrisburg and the boss of Pennsylvania republicans will hold forth in the city of Philadelphia and not in the city of Pittsburgh.

Vare, "Billy" Vare they call him in the east, is native born. His father was a contractor who amassed a fair size fortune. His three sons succeeded him in the contracting business. They amassed fortunes and became political lieutenants of the noted Boise Penrose.

They began away down the ladder in the political world and worked uppermost rung by rung and remained faithful to the cause of Penrose until death claimed that most famous of all republican bosses.

With the passing of Penrose, Mellon and Grundy were recognized as gigantic figures who pulled the wires and George Wharton Pepper and David S. Reed became their senators. These men are aristocrats, men of wealth and culture, lawyers of distinguished ability who faithfully represent in the senate the vast industries of their state. Now Billy Vare has been named as the successor of the aristocratic Pepper, Beidleman has been named as the successor of the aristocratic and thoroughly independent Governor Gifford S. Pinchot.

Vare has arrived. Beidleman has arrived. In the city of Philadelphia where Vare was born, the republicans gave him 220,000 majority over George Wharton Pepper, also a native son of Philadelphia and a scion of one of the oldest and proudest families of the commonwealth. It wasn't a political landslide. It was a political revolution. A man who is known as the second Alexander Hamilton of finance in American history was defeated for leadership by the son of a contractor who not only nominated himself for United States senator but nominated a candidate for governor whose name had been tossed aside by the Mellons and the Grundys and other powerful figures in the political and financial life of Pennsylvania.

President Coolidge is a wise man. He put a padlock on his mouth while the campaign was on. He permitted Andrew W. to do the work. Boss Vare is a Coolidge republican, he is a big business republican, he is a wet republican and no doubt, ere this time, the Mellons and Grundys and the Vares and the Beidlemans have made a gentleman's agreement to continue republican political business according to business methods and do their utmost to role up huge majorities for God and home and the republican party.

As for the democrats, they nominated William B. Wilson as their candidate for United States senator. He was labor commissioner in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson. He began life a breaker boy in the mines. He carries a union card. He is as dry as Gifford Pinchot. He will be pitted against Vare. Now what will happen to the candidate who is as dry as Pinchot in a wet state good for 350,000 majority?

Studebaker Pledge to the Public on Used Car Sales

1 All used cars offered to the public shall be honestly represented.

If a car is suitable only for a mechanic who can rebuild it, or for some one who expects only a few months' rough usage on a camping trip, it must be sold on that basis. Each car must be sold for just what it is.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

This is possible because tremendous reserve mileage has been built into every Studebaker, which it is impossible to exhaust in years.

3 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

The public can deal in confidence and safety only with the dealer whose policy is "one price only—the same price to all." For to sell cars on this basis, every one of them must be honestly priced to begin with.

4 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used.

It is assumed, of course, that the car has not been smashed up by collision or other accident in the meantime.

Our fine used cars are sold at the lowest time-payment rates in the industry. Only a small down payment necessary to secure one of these attractive values. See them today!

Drama Of Real Life Too Much For Disabled Veteran As He Sees Himself Marching Along

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 20.—(AP)—A drama of real life, surpassing in human interest anything possible of projection on the silver sheet halted a stirring scene in a picture production here last Monday, it was revealed today.

Salvattre A. Capodice, one of the eleven men of the 67th company, fifth regiment of marines, to come back from Belleau Wood alive stood by the side of the road, wearing the blue uniform of the French army. On his chest were pinned the medals of three nations, genuine medals for valourous service on the bloody battle fields of France. That he wore the blue of France instead of the olive drab of America's marines was explained by the fact that the scene was part of a motion picture, "What Price Glory," and he had been chosen to portray a French billeting officer.

Down the road the second division, his own, that took its place almost at the posts of Paris in the darkest days of the great war. As the tramp of 2000 marching feet drew nearer Capodice's nerves strained, his chest came out and he lived again with the fellow marines eight years ago almost to a day.

As the column came opposite him he dug his crutches deeply into the earth. He stood unsteadily on his one leg and gazed spell bound at the sight before him. It was a reproduction of the biggest hours of his life—and the most tragic. A broken, crippled figure, he saw his youth pass in review. It was his own company marching to meet the enemy, each with a song on his lips.

It was too much for Capodice. He stiffened to attention to meet them but he broke. Captain Vical, formerly a member of Marshal Foch's staff, caught him as he fell. The veteran's body shook with sobs and he was in complete collapse.

The scene was halted and his fellows in the cast rushed to his side. "I'm sorry," he sobbed. "It was so real—I—I couldn't help it—I saw myself coming up that road—everything flashed before me—the shells, the gas and all of the dreadful things. But, I'm ready now; we'll do it again."

It was just another drama of real life, enacted often, but rarely seen.

Wonder Just Why Dodgers and Giants Spurned Brown of Braves

Why did the New York Giants and then the Brooklyn Dodgers pass up Eddie Brown, outfielder now with the Bosting Braves?

We give up. Why did they?

We have the spectacle of Brown, twice spurned by the wise ones, playing wonderful ball at bat and afield for the lowly Braves. He is not only hitting a la Babe Ruth, but what is more, is playing the outfield brilliantly.

Of course the Giants may be excused in a way for parting with Brown after a season. Eddie had been playing with San Antonio two seasons when the New York club grabbed hi mfor a trial. He had hit .325 his last year with the Texas outfit. He broke into 70 games for the Giants and managed to hit .281. But just about that time McGraw's plans called for further strengthening of his outfield by trades, and he let Brown go to Indianapolis. The excuse given was that Brown couldn't throw. He hit .338, .361 and .328 in three years with the Hoosier team. His first two years he banged out a total of 435 hits.

This caused the Dodgers to sign him. The other big league club owners laughed. "He's got a bum arm or he wouldn't have played three years in Indianapolis," they piped. Which may or may not be taken as a lefthanded compliment to the good right arms of Hoosier folk.

Brown didn't throw any strikes from the outfield in his two years with Brooklyn. But he hit a few points over .300 and the Dodgers needed base hits to back up Dazzy Vance and the other hurlers.

One shortcoming was noticed by Robinson. That was Eddie's apparent mediocre ability as a fly chaser.

When the winter trade winds blew Robinson fell onto the scent of a possible trade with the Braves. He wanted a catcher, a pitcher and a better outfielder than Eddie. So he traded Brown, Jim Johnston and Zack Taylor to the Braves for Jess Barnes, Mickey O'Neil and Gus Felix, young gardener.

The trade has turned out beautifully for the Braves. For the simple reason (stated) that Brown is not only hitting like a demon, but, given free rein in his work, has turned out to be one of the best ball hawks in the National League. H may not be any Follies beauty for grace in action. But he ranges all over the ball yard and in a sort of surprised manner grabs everything that it is humanly possible to grab.

Wherefore there is joy in the Brave club house.

And Eddie gets as much satisfaction out of it as anyone with a bum arm can.

Place a want ad in the Record News and watch the results. Phone 4121.

FUND BOARD REORGANIZED

Dawes Whips His Senate Committee Into Line Again

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP)—Reorganzation of the special senate campaign expenditures investigating committee was affected today by Vice President Dawes after three of the five members appointed yesterday had declined to serve.

Those who tendered their resignations, with an explanation that press of other business made it impossible for them to serve, were Senators Reed of Pennsylvania; and Deneen of Illinois, republican and Bayard, democrat, Delaware.

This left as members of the committee, Reed, democrat, Missouri, who is expected to be chairman, and LaFollette, progressive republican, Wisconsin.

To fill the three vacancies the vice president named Senators Fernald of Maine and Goff, of West Virginia, republicans and King, democrat, Utah.

The committee scarcely will organize before the senate considers a second resolution to give it power by supplying the necessary authorization for funds to pay the expense of witnesses and other costs incident to the inquiry.

The beginning of the investigation, which at the outset probably will deal with expenditures in the Pennsylvania and Illinois republican primaries, will be deferred until after the adjournment of congress, perhaps a month from now. The work will be carried through the summer and the fall until the November elections.

A Month's Work Ahead.

It was because of the prospect of months of work that the three members resigned. Senator Reed said he could not serve because of a press of business and a desire to go abroad this summer with the battle monuments committee of which he is a member.

Senator Deneen as secretary of the republican senatorial campaign committee has been assigned to take charge of the Chicago headquarters of that committee and consequently did not feel he could retire from that work. Senator Bayard is treasurer of the democratic senatorial campaign committee and felt that his duties as such precluded his serving on the investigating committee.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN

Well Dressed Actor Admits He Had Only One Nickle

NEW YORK, May 20.—Even as with many of New York's street corner beggars, so is it with the jobless and hungry actors. "Clothes make the man." While "Tin Cup Charlie" garbs himself in his most appealing rags, the impoverished stage light must shine equally far in the opposite sartorial extreme if he would impress the Broadway booking agents into finding him a role.

On Times Square the other day, a beggar accosted a passer-by who, by his spats, cane, waxed mustache and monocle, looked like "real jack." The personage was an actor who confessed he himself had "only a nickel for two doughnuts."

Full Outline of Social Work Here Given In Thursday Reports

FULL PERIOD OF ACTIVITY SHOWN

All Organizations Having Part In Chest Are Represented

An outline of the activities of the social workers and members of the Community Chest was given Thursday night at a regular meeting of the Municipal Welfare board when members of the various organizations admitted to the chest were invited to be present. A better understanding of the workings of the organizations represented by the workers in the conference was the purpose of the meeting.

Problems confronting the workers and their efofrts to keep within the budget together with the psychology needed in handling the cases were discussed in detail.

Captain Fred Wilks of the Salvation Army told of the relief work of the army which has been exceptionally heavy during the past six months. The financial situation, in connection with the budget allowed in the community chest shows that at present the army is $1,500 overdrawn, of which $500 has been for relief work and $1,000 for repairs to the army post.

To Dispose of Property

Captain Wilks said the organization expects in the future to dispose of the two properties owned by the army and purchase a third property. It is the aim of the organization to construct on the top floor a place for girls who have no where to go for recreation outside of her own room.

Mrs. Iva E. Austin reported on the work of the Young Woman's Christian association of which she is secretary.

Miss Ivo Wilson, girls' work secretary of the Y. W. C. A. showed that in Wichita Falls there are ten organizations of Girl Reserves in ten public schools of the city, with a membership of eight hundred.

Frank B. Creighton, Boy Scout executive, showed that the Boy Scout organization is now a corrective but a preventive institution, providing employment and pleasure for boys to keep them out of mischief. There are 19 troops of Scouts in the city represented in every denomination of the churches except the Lutheran and the Nazarene, he reported. There are 412 Boy Scouts in Wichita Falls, he said.

The question of a summer camp for boys and girls was brought up, and it was found that a camp site is hard to find, and that the Camp Fire Girl Reserves have been confronted with the same problem that the scouts have had in finding a place for the outdoor camp.

Miss Henrickle Reports

Miss Katherine Henrickle, superintendent of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society, reported on the work of the organization, how the children are received into the society through the courts, by parents' release or through relatives, how they are given to foster homes and how they are kept in boarding homes.

The home service department of the Red Cross was given by Mrs. T. B. Smith, executive secretary, who does special work with ex-service men.

WATER QUESTION ARGUED FRIDAY

McPherson to Speak At Business Council Luncheon

Discussion of the city's proposed $1,450,000 bond issue to be voted on in June, the bulk of which will be used in improvement of the water supply system, will be taken up again Friday noon at the regular weekly session of the chamber of commerce business council.

A. M. McPherson, engineer, will speak in opposition to the matter and present his views on the proposition that the expenditure is not needed.

Arguments in favor of the issue were heard last Friday and those opposing it will be brought up today.

NEW ROAD TO LAKE OPENED

Paved Highway Through Municipal Park Is Ready for Use

The city's attractive scenic drive—the new Holliday-Park-Lake "loop" has been opened to traffic and in the past two days has been explored by hundreds of local motorists.

The road marks the finish of the city's deal with W. F. Weeks, local attorney who made possible the new municipal park and golf grounds by donating the land necessary on provision that a roadway be built through it. This has been done, and in addition to assuring the perpetuity of the park, gives an inviting circuitous drive.

Holliday street from Eleventh to the city limits is the first link, while the second is the newly completed stretch of paving that winds through the municipal park and on to a termination with the lake road at a point near the pavilion. The lake road and Grant street form the return route.

The last four miles of paving were uncovered two days ago and now an uninterrupted shoot may be taken over the highway.

Too Many Churches Have a Defeated Gospel, Bash Tells Grace M. E. Men In First Of Annual Class Banquets

First Christian Pastor Speaks Thursday Night to 75 Men and Says City Needs a United Campaign In Behalf of Christ

"Too many churches have a defeated gospel," Dr. Floyd Allen Bash of the First Christian church said in his address to the Men's Bible class of the Grace Methodist church in their first banquet and get-together held Thursday night when seventy-five men were present.

J. Houston Simmons, president of the class, presided at the meeting. J. T. Bentley is teacher of the class, which has grown from an average attendance of seven to more than 40 members at the present time.

"Many churches are acting as though the church has no hope of winning men," said Dr. Bash in continuing his address on "Too Many Prophets of Failure Leading Churches."

"They give attention to children and seem to infer that men are hopeless," he said. "The fact is, Jesus never talked to win children but always to men. His disciples were men. He gave the Great Commission to a dozen men. They went after men and won men by the thousands. Some modern pulpits are milk dispensaries when they ought to be general headquarters where men may get their marching orders from God. Men lead the world and Jesus came to lead the men.

Men Can Be Won.

"This city needs a great united persistent campaign to win men to Christ and the church. Men can be won. Wichita Falls has gone away ahead of her churches in growth. Our population has grown much more rapidly than our church membership. This stands as a challenge to the Christian manhood of this city. Church men are playing at the task of winning men. We can never evangelize the world by simply winning the children. Win a dad and you likely get the whole family. The first and greatest task of the church is the winning of men."

Pitman Entertains.

The invocation was said by Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of the church. J. S. Pitman entertained with a piano solo, "Stars and Stripes Forever." The Methodist male quaretett composed of H. L. Hunter, George Taylor, E. O. Alberts and Leslie Miller sang a negro spiritual, "Steal Away," and "The Hand That Was Wounded for Me." George C. Taylor sang a group of numbers playing his own accompaniment on the guitar.

A sing song was also featured when three numbers were sung by the assembly. The benediction was said by Mr. Bentley.

The banquet was served by the Ladies Aid of the church under the direction of Mrs. J. T. Bentley and Mrs. Annie Friberg.

A large quantity of silks and dresses valued at approximately $500, taken by police about two weeks ago in a raid on a McGregor street residence, was positively identified Thursday night by J. J.
