Hogues struggling with acceptance of death, sentence

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Levy Lee Edmondson Jr. was transported to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice in Huntsville Wednesday afternoon to begin serving his life sentence. Edmondson will have to serve 40 calendar years in prison before he is eligible for parole.

Goldia Hogue, the widow of Department of Public Safety Trooper Troy Hogue, said she wants to thank law enforcement officials for their support during this ordeal.

"I want to thank the DPS and all the troopers and the Texas Rangers for their help and support as well as for all the work they have done," Goldia said.

The trooper's parents, Bobby and Della, say they are disappointed the jury did not give Edmondson the death penalty. They would like to see a law passed where if a person is found guilty of killing a peace officer, they automatically get the death penalty because then a jury would not have to burden to make that decision.

"We wanted to send the message to the rest of the punks of the world that you can't kill a peace officer and get away with it.

"He robbed the community of an upstanding peace officer, one that took his job seriously and one that protected even scum like him," remarked Hogue's mother.

The Hogues were also upset when Edmondson's attorney told the jury that Troy had a good 39 years of living and the defendant would miss dances, marriage and other things.

To that the Hogues responded, "The way we see it, that is Edmondson's fault he will miss all of that. It is not Troy's fault. He committed the murder, not Troy.

"He robbed Troy of never seeing his children marry and never seeing his grandchildren. He robbed Troy's wife of the plans they had to share all of these things together along with the rest of the family."

They added Edmondson robbed Troy's sisters of a brother they loved and looked up to as well as his children of being able to share their accomplishments with their father. They also say he robbed Troy's nieces

Terry and Dorothy Carter take a moment out of their busy day to pose at the store they have owned for more than 40 years. The Carters have decided to retire and spend time fishing and traveling. The furniture store was packed Wednesday with customers looking at all the items on sale.

FAREWELL!!

Carters say goodbye to furniture business for retirement after 47 years

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Terry and Dorothy Carter are retiring after 47 years in the furniture business. The couple owns Carter's Furniture, 202 Scurry, and have decided the time is right to retire.

"We wanted to do some things and do them while our health is good. We feel like this is the right time," Terry remarked. His wife added, "We prayed about this and this is the time. We're ready to retire. We will miss our customers but we won't miss the work."

The business has been very successful, with more than $1 million in volume every year since 1972. In fact, they sold more than $300,000 in merchandise last month.

The Carters have a cabin at Lake Ivie and plan to do a lot of fishing and perhaps some traveling as well.

They sent out letters to invite some people in for a private sale Wednesday and today. The store will be open to the public Friday and Saturday with all merchandise marked down.

The Carters say one of the changes they have seen over the last 40 years in the business is the smaller furniture factories and stores going by the wayside as big factories and chain stores take over.

They do have a potential buyer to purchase the building, trucks and equipment. The buyer will be selling the same brands of furniture the Carters

Thrill ends in death along Chapparral Road

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A place known as "Thrill Hill" was the site of a fatal accident Wednesday afternoon.

Jennifer Hayes, 14, of Big Spring, was killed when the vehicle she was riding in ran through a fence and struck a telephone pole.

Department of Public Safety officials say Jose Luis Antiveros, 16, of Big Spring, was driving a 1989 Chevrolet at a high rate of speed in the 4800 block of Chapparral Road. Antiveros went over the hill, lost control of the car, crashed through a fence and struck the pole.

Hayes was in the back seat and not wearing a seat belt. As of press time, there was no indication as to how she died. She was pronounced dead at the scene around 2:30 p.m.

Antiveros and three other passengers were taken to the emergency room, treated and released. Antiveros, Brian Vanderbilt, 15, and Cori Lewis, 12, were not wearing their seat belts but Matthew Mendoza, 15, was.

Howard County Sheriff's Deputy George Quintero says he recalls one other fatal accident at that particular part of the road. There have been several other minor accidents as well. The speed limit is 40 miles per hour.

People will drive north on Chapparral Road, turn around and pick up speed while going south down the hill.

Two men arrested on gun and drug charges

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Two East Texas men have been arrested in Big Spring for drug possession and theft of firearms.

Big Spring Police Sgt. Victor Brake said the suspects allegedly stole some weapons in Sulphur Springs.

Officers received some information the men were in town and staying at a house in the 1000 block of West Sixth.

James Harold Thomason, 48, and Vincent Otto Peters, 31, both of Mineola, were arrested and charged with aggravated possession of a controlled substance and theft of a firearm.

Officers seized more than five ounces of suspected methamphetamine and eight guns including two handguns, one shotgun and five rifles.

A third suspect, who owns the home, fled the scene when officers arrived. Brake said police know who the person is and detectives are in the process of obtaining an arrest warrant for the white male.

Lack of nursing instructors creating problems for college's program

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Howard College is in the process of hiring new instructors for its nursing program.

According to Linda Conway, the college's associate vice president for instructional advancement, steps are being taken to hire new instructors as soon as possible.

An anonymous caller to the Herald Wednesday said the nursing program at the college is in trouble because the program had been left without instructors.

Because only 20 students are accepted into the associate degree nursing program each year, only 25 to 30 students will be affected.

According to the caller, the last of college's nursing instructors resigned Wednesday, leaving first-year students to be shuffled into the licensed vocational nurse program, and second-year students without instructors.

Conway said, "One of the problems is hiring. We're in the process of interviewing right now."

She added if the college is not able to hire the instructors needed for the registered nurse (associate degree nursing) program by the start of the fall semester, students can start the licensed vocational nurse program and transition into the program next summer.

"They would be taking a different route to get to the same place," Conway said. "We don't have as many instructors as we would like at this point and time, but we will take care of our students."

Conway said all of the students affected have been sent letters explaining what's happening with the program.

As for instructors leaving, she added July and August are traditionally the months personnel

Town waterless after water tank collapses

NOME (AP) — The city's 450 residents were all dried up Wednesday after the city's 63,000-gallon water tank collapsed onto the department's pump house, leaving them without fresh water.

The collapse also crushed the roof of the pump house and spilled hazardous water treatment chemicals, which hampered work crews trying to check the damage.

"The bottom went out of the old one. Effectively, they're out of business," said Mayor David Studdert, who said the city hopes to have water running in a couple of days.

Studdert shook his head at the terrible timing of the collapse — two weeks before the opening of a new 63,000-gallon tank.

"It's disastrously amazing," he said.

Relief efforts mobilized, but at least one was less successful than officials had hoped.

The Texas Department of Public Safety had arranged for dump trucks to travel to Liberty to retrieve as many as 10,000 gallons of drinking water in individual gallon containers left over from this past autumn's flooding.

But the trucks were only able to retrieve 1,000 containers.

Correctional officers indicted on civil rights violations

TYLER (AP) — Two correctional supervisors and four officers at an East Texas maximum-security prison have been indicted on charges that they repeatedly violated inmates' civil rights.

A fifth correctional officer was charged with lying to authorities and the federal grand jury that returned the indictment in Tyler.

The 22-count indictment alleged that officers beat and otherwise abused inmates at the Michael Unit in Tennessee Colony nine times between September 1993 and June 1994.

Charged with civil rights violations were Capt. Richard Roy, 44, of Palestine; and correctional officers David Kersh, 33, of Montalba; Allen Cochran, 26, of Fairfield; and Jeffrey Johnson, 27, James Mayfield, 30, and Thomas Wade, 24, all of Palestine.

They were accused of violating inmates' civil rights by beating them, filing false reports against them and blocking their access to medical treatment.

The indictment also charged correctional officer Jerry Leach, 50, of Palestine, with filing a false report and perjury before the grand jury.

Kersh, Wade and Mayfield have resigned from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, the department said. The others will have their cases reviewed and probably will be placed on administrative leave with pay until their charges are resolved, said Michael Wilson, warden of the 3,100-inmate Michael Unit about 13 miles northeast of Palestine.

"Correctional officers are given the authority to keep our nation's prisons safe and orderly," said Deval L. Patrick, assistant U.S. attorney general for civil rights. "We will not look the other way when officers abuse their authority by violating the rights of prisoners."

U.S. Attorney J. Michael Bradford said in Tyler that the indictments demonstrate "our strong commitment to protecting the civil rights of all citizens."

Bradford also credited a Texas Department of Criminal Justice internal investigation for expediting the grand jury investigation.

The state agency, which runs the state prison system, began an internal investigation in June 1994 after inmates complained about beatings and subsequent cover-ups.

Wilson said the investigation "was just winding down when I got here" in April.

None of the men was immediately in custody.

Justice Department spokesman Daryl Fields said summonses would be served.

"Clearly, guilt or innocence must be determined in court, but our follow-through on our investigation underscores our commitment to TDCJ policy that we will not condone violence or abuse from inmates or officers," said James A. Collins, the state agency's executive director.

Oil, gas workers leave platforms

Erin moves into the Gulf of Mexico

HOUSTON (AP) — Offshore oil and gas workers scrambled ashore Wednesday as Hurricane Erin moved into the Gulf of Mexico.

But with meteorologists now expecting Erin to head north toward the Gulf Coast from Mississippi to the Florida Panhandle, industry officials are hoping the storm will have minimal impact on their abandoned platforms.

By mid-afternoon Wednesday, Erin's winds had climbed back to 70 mph, and forecasters said they expected the storm to pass the 74 mph hurricane threshold by the time it hit land again about 5 p.m. Thursday.

Thousands of oil and gas workers have abandoned their rigs, production platforms and other offshore operations over the last few days, particularly in the eastern portion of the Bill Simmons, 8, makes the most of a downpour Wednesday afternoon that made a lake of the street in front of his home in Victoria. Parts of the city received four inches of rain in under an hour. Flash flood warnings are still in effect.

Gulf. Houston-based Shell Oil Co. has pulled out 900 employees and contract workers from its offshore operations.

"We'll be gradually shutting down production in the eastern side of the Gulf," Shell Offshore spokeswoman Mary Dokianos said Wednesday.

"We're going to be pulling our production people from east of Morgan City by nightfall," Ms. Dokianos said. "We started about 3 p.m. today."

But some company officials hesitated before pulling out the last of their crews.

Dean didn't bother drought-stricken areas

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Many parts of Texas may be soggy from the remnants of Tropical Storm Dean, but the South Texas drought remains as serious as ever.

"We've had some rain, but it certainly hasn't broken the drought," Richard Hagan, top meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Brownsville, said Wednesday.

Falcon Lake, the key reservoir for the Rio Grande Valley, is 42 feet below its optimum level and continues to drop.

Dean washed ashore east of Galveston early this week. Wet weather in its wake was predicted for parts of northern and central Texas into the weekend.

But the dry fields of the Valley have received only a few scattered showers, if anything.

The problem is not only a lack of rain in the Valley, it's a lack of rain in the up-river watersheds that feed Falcon Lake and Amistad Reservoir.

The two reservoirs, created by international dams of the Rio Grande, supply the drinking and irrigation water to more than 2 million people along the vesting their worst crop in several decades, don't want any big rains right now. Wet fields in the next few weeks would hamper their efforts to salvage what remains of a crop already deci-border. Both have dipped to dangerously-low levels as a result of below-normal inflows in the past few years.

"There has not been any big rains to create runoff that would go into Falcon Lake down here or up at Amistad Reservoir," Hagan said. "As far as alleviating that part of the drought, it (Dean) has been no help at all."

Cotton farmers in the Rio Grande Valley, currently harmed by heat, drought and bugs.

But all Valley farmers are worried that irrigation supplies next year will be in jeopardy if no significant rains replenish Falcon Lake.

"The drought is not over, either on the fields or on the lake," Hagan said. "The lake is the big worry right now because if we don't get some rain in the lake this year, next year is going to be pretty grim."

Debris from missing boat found in Gulf

HOUSTON (AP) — Items found drifting in the Gulf of Mexico were aboard a fishing boat occupied by a missing newspaper publisher and two friends, the Coast Guard says.

A fisherman helping to search for the missing boat some 25 miles off Galveston positively identified a fish bucket and ice chest as items the missing men had borrowed from him, Coast Guard Chief Michael Spencer said Wednesday.

Rescuers have searched since Monday morning for Port Arthur News publisher for Port Plummer, 52, Port Arthur Refinery worker Michael Rodriguez, 50, and Beaumont lawyer Robert Meroney, 50.

The three men left Port Arthur for Freeport Friday afternoon on Meroney's 31-foot pleasure boat, "Hook 'em II." They were going to a weekend fishing tournament and were to return Sunday night.

The searchers also located life rings, debris, wood pieces and Styrofoam off Galveston and the coast at Sabine. They spotted a 55-gallon fuel drum, but it sank before it could be retrieved, Spencer said.

"Stuff is just all over the place out there, and we're just trying to find out what it is," he said, adding that family members were being asked to identify the recovered materials.

Spencer said that since debris had been positively identified, searchers would focus on an area some 18 miles offshore.

"It makes our search area a little smaller," he said. "Now we're going to focus on looking for people in the water."

Spencer said crews would continue searching throughout Wednesday night from rescue boats.

Heat-related death of child under investigation

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An investigation has been launched into the recent heat-related death of a 12-year-old, a ward of the state at a private treatment facility in Goldthwaite.

Andrew Lemoine died July 27 after working outdoors in 100-degree-plus temperatures. Records indicate he had been taking behavior modification drugs, one of which increases susceptibility to heatstroke.

The Travis County medical examiner, which conducted an autopsy, listed the cause of death as heatstroke.

Fort Worth lawyer Jim Lane said he plans to seek an inquest. He and Susie Lemoine, the boy's mother, have raised questions about his death.

"Did he have a shirt on? Did he have a hat on? What kind of water did he have?" Lane asked. "We have heat advisories all over the place, but they've got this kid hauling rocks."

Lemoine had been living at New Horizons Ranch and Center, a home for abused and neglected children, since June 26.

New Horizons officials were not available Wednesday for comment, but the company's Executive Director Del Barnett has said Lemoine collapsed after spending about an hour building a low rock wall around a tennis court.

Mrs. Lemoine said her son, a ward of the state until age 18, was taking the behavior modification drugs Ritalin and Mellaril.

Khmer Rouge go on trial for killing Americans

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Five Khmer Rouge guerrillas charged in the murder of an American university professor will go on trial next week, an official said Thursday.

They could each receive prison terms of up to 20 years if convicted of premeditated murder, said Plan Chhim, head of the court of Siem Reap province.

Susan Ginsburg Hadden, who taught at the University of Texas, was killed in January 1995 by robbers while touring the 12th century temples of Angkor in Siem Reap province. Her husband was wounded and their Cambodian guide was killed.

The capital of Siem Reap is 140 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

Seven Khmer Rouge suspects were arrested, but two of them escaped from detention in April.

What should be done about park overlook?

Do you think the overlook at Comanche Trail Park should be rebuilt? Do you think nothing should be done? Do you think something new should be tried?

Just what do you think about the overlook, which has been subjected to vandalism and burned?

A town hall meeting is planned for Thursday at 5:30 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Civic Center to discuss the overlook at the "big spring."

Your ideas are being sought and everyone is encouraged to attend and bring your ideas, thoughts and opinions.

This town hall meeting is designed to give you a chance to make your opinions known to those who will make the decision about the overlook. Every bit of information is valuable to these leaders who will make a choice that affects us all.

So take time to be there and be a part of an issue concerning the community in which you reside. After all, it is your city and your decision, too.

Reynolds on the phone - lots to say

Mel Reynolds was on the phone, which I found slightly surprising. By now, I'd have expected him to have developed a phone phobia.

He sounded highly indignant. That's the way he usually sounds when he calls. And, in truth, I prefer his indignation to other conversational phone styles for which he has become renowned.

He was upset because Beverly Heard had just been marched off to jail for refusing to talk - either naughtily or nice - about her allegedly kinky relationship with the Democratic congressman.

"Did you see it?" Reynolds said. "They locked up their victim. This is the very same prosecutor who got on TV and said this case was about the victim, that they had to protect the victim, that he was so concerned about the victim. Then he locks her up. It's nuts."

"They knew in January that she was not going to say what they wanted. So now they lock her up? They put her in jail with people who have committed serious crimes, with murderers. This is their alleged victim, the person they're so worried about, and they put handcuffs on her."

"They've got her in jail, and I'm convinced they (the prosecutors) are going to try to talk to her. That's why they wanted her locked up."

"So if they get to her and she comes out and says I did everything to her, then what? Either she's facing contempt or perjury. It's crazy."

Uh, Mel, but what about that rather spicy taped phone conversation?

"Obviously, it is quite embarrassing, getting ensnared in a conversation that is taped. But did you see the jury? They were laughing. Apparently they don't think it's so serious. One woman there, she's almost 70 years old, she was sitting there laughing."

"And Beverly's voice? It's the most affected, sexy voice you've ever heard. She sounds like one of those numbers for phone sex."

And how is the wife taking all of this?

"Marisol, she's very angry. They want her to fall; they want her to be upset. They want to say, 'Look, she's deserting him.' But she gets up every morning, gets dressed, comes to court with me for the 15 minutes before it starts, then she gets back in the car and goes home."

"She can't be in the courtroom (because she is a possible witness) but she said to me, 'If I don't come, then the story will be that she's deserting him after the tapes were played.'"

Reynolds finally paused for a few moments, then ended the chat by saying: "It is incredible."

Yes, it is a strange case. So far, all we know for sure is that Reynolds is a possible woman engaged in some erotic phone talk.

That isn't what Alexander Graham Bell had in mind for his invention, but if everybody who talks dirty on the phone was in jail, we'd be free of rush-hour traffic.

Of course, the more serious accusation is that he frequently played bouncy-bad with Beverly Heard when she was only 16.

If so, that is not gentlemanly behavior. But, then, it isn't uncommon in the city of Chicago.

go. As the teen-age birth rate tells us, it happens thousands and thousands of times each year.

It is the good fortune of most of the male participants in these illegal acts that they are not black Democratic congressmen. So they don't attract the zealous attention of a white, suburban-bred, politically ambitious Republican state's attorney.

Jack O'Malley is so enthusiastic about this case that he pursued the matter even though Ms. Heard - so chatty on the phone - has decided to clam up in court.

But the way O'Malley sees it, he is doing his duty because he says that Reynolds somehow persuaded Ms. Heard to recant. And that is obstruction of justice, a serious crime.

O'Malley may be right. On the other hand, if Ms. Heard, now a worldly age 19, says she isn't mad at Reynolds for what ever he did or didn't do to her, and if Reynolds' wife hasn't kicked him out of the house for being such a silly rascal, why should O'Malley be cluck-clucking and tsck-tsking all over the courthouse?

I'm not in favor of anyone obstructing justice. But I can understand why any married guy would say to a tattletale bimbo: "What are you nuts, trying to ruin my life? And my wife'll kill me."

Actually, this case would be kind of funny if it weren't for the fact that Reynolds, if found guilty of everything O'Malley has dumped on him, could go to prison for almost an entire century.

If O'Malley can pull that off, he will have truly established himself as one real hard-nosed prosecutor.

Why, just imagine what he might do to someone who snatches a purse.

Nolan Bakery receives expansion grant

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Expansion and more jobs were the topics of discussion during Moore Development for Big Spring, Inc. board of directors meeting Wednesday.

Board members voted to give Nolan Bakery a $150,000 grant so they can expand their business. The two entities also entered into a rent subsidy agreement for three years where the bakery will pay $1,000 a month.

The business will also receive assistance in obtaining a loan from a local bank. Moore Development will guarantee 90 percent of the loan with the stipulation Nolan will stay in Big Spring for at least five more years.

Moore's assistant director, Pam Welch, says all of this will mean the bakery will be able to employ up to 51 people during their peak seasonal times.

Welch says the board also agreed to give Freecom, Inc. a $205,377 grant to build a 3,000-square-foot building with two years free rent. After that, the two businesses will enter a lease agreement for the building.

The building will be for expansion purposes with the prospect of Freecom hiring 10 to 20 more people in the future.

Western Container received a direct loan of $84,500 to be paid off in 12 years. This loan, along with a grant given earlier this year, will assist the business in expanding its operations as well. Welch says once the project is complete, it will mean an additional 70 jobs for people to apply for.

At the last board meeting, the directors accepted the 1995-96 expenditures budget of $743,305. However at Wednesday's meeting, they voted to decrease their operational expenses by $23,898.

and nephews of a loving uncle who was always teasing them.

"He robbed his friends and co-workers of an honest friend who was always there for them."

"He robbed a mother and father of a beautiful son. A son that any parents would be proud to say 'that's my son.'"

The Hagues also commend the jury for their long hours of deliberation. "For the one juror who thinks this is just a drunk kid, we pray you don't meet up with one like him."

"The hard part is we have to forgive him for this if we want to be forgiven. And what makes it even harder is, he just sat there and looked at the jury with this smirk on his face. He nor his family showed any remorse," Hogue added.

The Hagues say they are upset because the Edmondsons have been claiming this was a conspiracy and one of the officers shot their son. They say nothing will ever be the same for the 14-member family including the holidays the officer enjoyed so much.

"I, as a mother, have even prayed for this boy. I prayed he would obey the Lord and become a Christian for if he were that, he would have confessed to what he did and that it was wrong. He would also be remorseful. We don't want to bitter or angry. We don't want him to destroy our lives."

"His lawyer was asking for mercy. Why should he be shown any mercy when he didn't show any when he killed Troy," Mrs. Hogue continued.

Mr. Hogue added he is upset with Edmondson's mother for testifying she forgot about the gun being locked in the trunk of her car. He said he heard "I don't remember" a lot in the courtroom.

"When he was on probation, she knew he should not drink and should not have a gun. If she would have taken that gun out of the trunk, she could have literally saved my son's life," Mr. Hogue said.

College

Director of Nursing Dusty Johnston said, "Normally there are 20 first-year LVN students, 20 first-year ADN program, and 25 to 30 second-year ADN students."

He added only the Big Spring campus is affected by this temporary restructuring, and the LVN program is staffed and ready to go.

Going into the summer, the college did not have two instructors needed for the ADN program and ended up needing two instructors in the second-year ADN program as well.

According to Howard College President Dr. Cheryl Sparks, the students who were accepted into the ADN program were the ones notified by letter of the changes.

Sparks said, "We gave them the option to transition into the LVN program."

Johnson said not all of the student wanted to be LVNs, but are being taken care of.

Dean of Nursing Cindy Stokes said, "They will get the same degree in the same time frame."

What this means is the first-year ADN program has been combined with the LVN program.

Johnson said because the two programs have been combined, the college is now focusing on the second-year ADN program.

Hiring for the ADN program is more difficult than for the LVN program. An ADN instructor has to have at least a master's degree in nursing.

Johnson said in the past, the ADN program faculty in Big Spring would top out at five, but has recently operated with four because of enrollment numbers.

He said the college planned to have five faculty members this fall because of the number of students enrolled in the nursing program.

"We were going to have the numbers for five faculty this fall," Johnson said.

Because of the increased enrollment in the nursing program, a new position would have been added this fall.

Earlier this spring, it was known one staff member would be leaving.

Two other nursing faculty members resigned within the last 10 days to accept higher paying positions, and the resignation Wednesday was also due to a better paying position and the concern about the teaching load this fall at the college.

To alleviate this problem, Johnson said the college is bringing in one faculty member from the Snyder campus, and Stokes will also instruct the second-year ADN class.

He added with those two faculty members in place, one more qualified person to go into the fall semester with will be needed.

Sparks added, "We have not yet met with the second-year ADN students, but plan to next week. We're also hoping to hire someone next week."

According to Johnson and Sparks, the transition of students into the LVN program is considered "Plan B" to ensure second-year students get their education and that first-year students get into the LVN program.

Sparks said, "We're working on our game plan, but it's taking a some time. Despite the transition, we will continue to look for faculty so we may staff at a higher level."

Carters

carry. How did Carter's Furniture come to Big Spring?

Terry's parents drove from Wichita Falls to California in a converted school bus-mobile home to pick Terry up after his tour in the Army Air Force. On their way back home, they were forced to stop in Big Spring because his mother was sick.

The family traded in the mobile home for stock in a second-hand furniture store located at Second and Gregg. The Carters lived on the second floor above the store known as Carter's Stop and Swap.

Terry quit his job delivering for several local businesses to help in the family business. He married Dorothy in 1963 and she left her insurance job to work in the furniture store as well.

Also in 1963, the Carters bought the building once occupied by Rutledge Grocery next door to their business and expanded selling second-hand furniture and antiques.

Four years later, they leased and later purchased a building at 110 Runnels. In 1972, they moved to their current location.

Second parasitic death investigated

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Health officials are investigating this week the death of an 11-year-old boy in San Antonio who died on the same day as another boy and possibly of the same rare and fatal parasitic infection.

Robert Taylor, 11, of Houston, died Monday at Women's and Children's Hospital. Jonathan Davila, 4, died Monday at Santa Rosa Children's Hospital. He had been swimming with family members in the San Antonio River.

Health officials suspect in both cases amebic meningoencephalitis, an extremely rare inflammation of the brain. It is caused by amoebas found naturally in bodies of water, but in particularly high concentrations during drought conditions.

"This is lightning striking twice in the same place," said Roger Sanchez, an epidemiologist with the local health department. "If there is a bright side to this, it's that not both occurred in San Antonio. The other was an imported case."

Jim Schuermann with the Texas Department of Health in Austin said the latest exposure was in Harris County. He said Taylor just happened to be in the San Antonio area when he became ill.

Although the state laboratory has not yet confirmed the diagnosis, "we have no reason to doubt the San Antonio pathologist, who has seen these (cases) before," Schuermann said.

"The child was seen for fever, headache, not eating well and being very sleepy," said Dr. Hugo Carbajal, medical director of the pediatric intensive care unit at Women's and Children's.

Family members later said the child had been swimming in a pond near their home within the past five days.

If confirmed, the case would be the second in Texas this year. Last year, two cases also were reported statewide.

Jordanian extradited for trial in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Jordanian national is being brought from the Middle East to New York for trial on charges of participating in the 1983 World Trade Center bombing there, according to a government official.

The man is named in a federal indictment that officials plan to unseal today in New York, the official said.

The man was extradited to the United States by Jordan and was being flown aboard a U.S. government aircraft to an airfield near New York City, the official said Wednesday night, speaking only on condition of anonymity.

In Jordan, Justice Minister Hisham Tal identified the suspect as Iyad Mahmoud Ismail Nijm, 24, a resident of Jerash refugee camp, the third largest Palestinian refugee center in the kingdom.

In New York, newspapers reported that law enforcement officials believe Nijm was with Ramzi Ahmed Yousef as they drove the explosives-packed van into the World Trade Center's underground parking garage.

The New York Times also reported, citing unidentified sources, that Nijm fled to Jordan the night of the bombing.

Jordanian Interior Ministry sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Nijm was a Palestinian who lived in Kuwait until the 1990 Iraqi invasion of the emirate.

The sources said Nijm fled Kuwait to the United States in late 1990 and stayed there until after the World Trade Center blast.

Tal said that, acting on an American request, Jordanian police apprehended Nijm on Tuesday at his Jerash home and Nijm later told a Jordanian court that "he wants to surrender to U.S. authorities."

"He claimed to be innocent and that he wanted to clear himself of the charges in the United States," Tal told The Associated Press.

Chinese, U.S. relations becoming more wary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public attention to Sino-American relations has focused recently on disputes over Taiwan, trade and human rights, obscuring somewhat U.S. concern over China's growing military potential.

While China is not yet a full-blown U.S. adversary, the Pentagon has been increasingly wary about Chinese capabilities.

Earlier this year, Defense officials simulated a war game with China in which American naval vessels were pitted against Chinese land-based missiles. The U.S. side lost.

China in recent years has been reducing the size of its military forces while increasing investment in weapons systems. And the United States is eager to learn the results as the case involving the arrests of two American Air Force officers last weekend attests.

China says the two, Air Force liaison officer Joseph Wei Chan and a subordinate, Dwayne Howard Florenze, got caught photographing and videotaping military zones in southeast China.

The officers, who had been detained since last week, were released early today and arrived in Hong Kong, where the U.S. consulate office said they appeared to be in good condition.

U.S. officials acknowledged that the two were on a spying mission. "This is what defense attaches do," one senior administration official said.

Although the subject did not come up during this week's talks in Brunei between Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, the spying incident did nothing to enhance mutual confidence.

Survivors of the sinking of the USS Indianapolis watch as the memorial to the warship is unveiled in Indianapolis Wednesday. The ship was torpedoed just before midnight July 30, 1945, and the men spent three days in the water before being rescued.

HONORED

Memorial to World War II battleship unveiled

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — As a bugler played taps, surviving crewmen of the USS Indianapolis paid homage at a memorial to their fellow shipmates who perished in a torpedo attack by the Japanese 50 years ago.

The cruiser was on its way back from delivering key components of the Hiroshima atomic bomb to the island of Tinian when it was sunk July 30, 1945. Its captain was court-martialed for the sinking and later committed suicide.

About a third of the 1,196-man crew lost their lives in the attack. The rest, 884 men, abandoned ship, but only 320 survived three days in the South Pacific before rescuers arrived. Four men died soon after.

It was the worst wartime loss ever suffered by the Navy at sea.

"Memories of that night are still pretty fresh. You don't lose that," said John McGuittan of Chicago, a gunner's mate aboard the Indianapolis.

Wednesday's dedication of the granite memorial in the shape of the cruiser's hull was attended by about 100 survivors, some bitter that the captain was court-martialed.

"I do hold a grudge against the Navy," said Arthur Leenerman of Mahomet, Ill., a radar operator on the Indianapolis. "It was uncalled for. We all hope that somewhere, down the line, he will be exonerated."

The memorial, in a park just west of downtown, has an etching of the Indianapolis and the names of the crew.

Taps sounded as the canvas cover was lifted, and a military band followed with "Anchors Aweigh" as tears streamed down the faces of many survivors.

After the ceremony, relatives and survivors traced names from the granite on pieces of paper.

"There are at least four generations present here, a moment dreamed of for 50 years by survivors and families of those who perished," said Retired Navy Capt. James H. Holds, president of the USS Indianapolis Memorial Organization.

Chicago residents mourn the loss of 550 to the heat

CHICAGO (AP) — Hundreds of people came together Wednesday to mourn the 550 victims of a killer heat that has an anguished city asking how the dead, mostly elderly who lived alone, could have been forgotten.

The tragedy forced Chicago — a city known for its neighborhoods — to wonder how so few could have known of the danger to their friends, relatives and neighbors.

"I came because I felt that these were the forgotten people and that they did not die of the heat, they died of neglect," mourner Zenobia Baker said. "I felt that someone should be here to mourn their deaths because they died such a miserable, uncared-for death."

The church, bedecked with 500 pink orchids on a huge wreath, became silent as concert violinist Rachel Barton, who recently lost a leg in a train accident, played a haunting tribute to the dead. Members of the Chicago Children's Choir sang hymns in between the sermons.

Gruesome images of refrigerated trucks waiting to unload bodies into the medical examiner's offices reminded Chicagoans "we can find a way to keep bodies cold when they are dead and not when they are still living," said Rabbi Eleanor Smith of Beth-Emet, the Free Synagogue.

Mourners echoed her sentiments. "It's a terrible disaster, I think, that people have to die because it got hot," Emma Kala said. "In this day and age, when everything is so modern and people have to live in places where they can't even have a fan or air conditioner, it's tragic."

All but four of the 550 victims died from the heat wave that peaked at 106 degrees July 13.

Rescue of Gila trout continues

SILVER CITY, N.M. (AP) — A helicopter lowered a line over a mountain stream and came away with a big catch — a bucket packed with more than 450 endangered Gila trout threatened by ash from a huge wilderness fire.

The fish were airlifted about 70 miles away to a holding tank, where they will be kept until rainwater flushes ashes out of the stream, a tributary of Mogollon Creek.

The ash is from a fire that has burned 6,200 acres so far in the Gila National Forest in southwestern New Mexico. The fire was still burning Wednesday, officials said.

The fish could have suffocated if the stream had become choked by ash.

Packwood's case torn by partisanship as penalties considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Senate approving its decision not to hold public hearings on Sen. Bob Packwood, the Senate Ethics Committee now must consider penalties in a case torn apart by partisanship.

Feelings are so high on both sides of the public hearings issue that Ethics Committee Chairman Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., says it will be difficult for the panel's three Republicans and three Democrats to work together.

Nevertheless, the committee, which split 3-3 along party lines on public hearings, was scheduled to meet in closed session today to consider what to do regarding allegations that Packwood, R-Ore., engaged in sexual and official misconduct.

At the extremes, the case could be dismissed or Packwood could be expelled by the Senate. In between those possibilities, the Senate could vote to censure Packwood or strip him of his chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee.

Republicans on Wednesday won a 52-48 vote against public hearings. The outcome upheld the committee position and turned aside a Democratic plan for unprecedented Senate intervention in a pending ethics probe.

Three Republicans crossed party lines and voted for hearings and one Democrat opposed them. Six of the Senate's eight women voted for hearings. Packwood did not want them; nine of his female accusers did.

Democrats fumed during an impassioned debate that female victims of senatorial misconduct may never again trust the institution. Republicans warned against undermining the committee's work now and ruining its effectiveness later.

Erin changes mind, threatening Florida-Alabama borders

■ Path through Florida leaves two dead, five stranded at sea

CAPE SAN BLAS, Fla. (AP)—Errant Hurricane Erin lashed the Florida Panhandle with heavy rain and blustery wind today, threatening to come ashore near the Florida-Alabama border with 85 mph winds after killing two people and leaving five lost at sea.

People who defied an evacuation order of coastal areas near Pensacola were asked to sign a statement releasing Escambia County from liability, said Ric Ruminski, Pensacola Beach fire battalion chief.

"It's a scare tactic," he said. "I suggested they be forced to wear a tag on their toe."

At 8 a.m. EDT, Erin's center was located near 29.9 north latitude and 86.6 west longitude, or about 45 miles southeast of Pensacola, and moving parallel to the coast.

Overnight, gusts of 80 mph were measured near Panama City and 75 mph at St. George Island off Apalachicola, said National Hurricane Center forecaster Max Mayfield in Miami. Tides were running 4-5 feet above normal.

He predicted that unless the storm "jogs a little bit," it would move inland late this morning where the tip of the Florida panhandle meets Alabama.

"It's going to ease onto the western portion of the Florida Panhandle," he said. "The core of the hurricane with the really strong hurricane force winds is just offshore."

Some flooding was reported in Wakulla County, southwest of Tallahassee, and the Ochlocknee River bridge over coastal Highway 98 was threatened.

"If the water comes over the road, they're going to be shutting down some power grids as a precaution," said Harold Joyner, operations officer for the state emergency operations center in Tallahassee.

"This is probably our most critical time," said David Miller, Bay County emergency operations coordinator in Bay County, where Panama City is located. "We've ordered a lock-down of all essential personnel. Everyone out there is on their own."

In southeastern Louisiana, more than 9,000 residents had been ordered to evacuate. Alabama officials opened shelters and asked for voluntary evacuation of Dauphin Island and low-lying areas of Mobile County.

With the storm appearing to turn toward the tip of the Florida panhandle, forecasters in New Orleans said the chance their city would take a direct hit had dropped to less than one-third. Officials said almost all of the 109 floodgates lining Lake Pontchartrain had been closed Wednesday night.

The city and its suburbs are below sea level and rely on a complex system of levees, floodgates, pumping stations and drainage ditches to stay reasonably dry in stormy weather.

If the storm hits Pensacola, a city of 58,000, it will be the second time Erin has battered Florida. On Wednesday, Erin blew ashore with 85 mph winds shortly after 1 a.m. near Vero Beach, on Florida's Atlantic Coast. As it roared across the state, it killed two people and knocked out power to more than 1 million people. Erin also sank two ships, and five people were missing.

It dwindled to a tropical storm inland, then soaked up strength from the warm Gulf waters and picked up hurricane-force winds of 75 mph again this morning.

In the Apalachicola area of the Panhandle, only a few homes and businesses had been boarded up against the storm.

"I'm not worried about it," said 70-year-old retiree Cecil Harrelson of Lanark Village, east of Apalachicola. "Probably the biggest worry is the tornadoes. I'm glad it's moving away from us."

Many residents of the small resort community of Cape San Blas, a peninsula between Port St. Joe and Apalachicola, decided to ride out the high winds instead of heeding a voluntary evacuation order.

"It's not going to be that bad," said Lyn Waymire. "There's never a dull moment. You kind of live on the edge when you live on the coast. I call it Russian roulette."

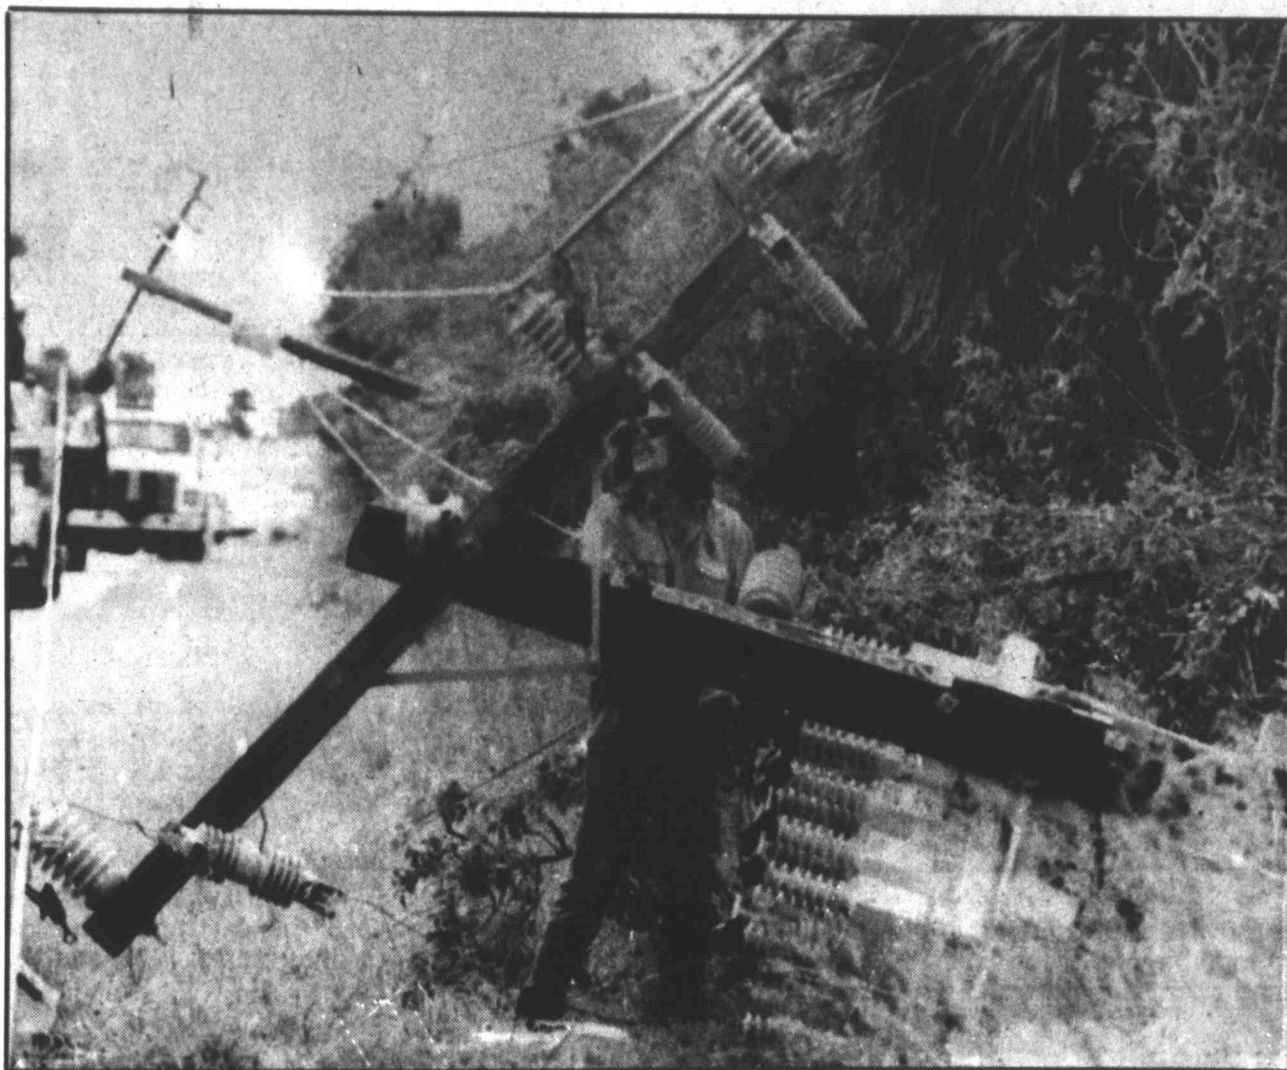

Ms. Waymire's neighbor Sonya Smith enjoyed watching Erin's effects.

"You ought to go out to the beach when the storm gets going. The waves are really something," she said.

Residents of Santa Rosa Island, Perdido Key and other low-lying areas were ordered to evacuate. In Franklin, Gulf and Wakulla counties, officials asked for voluntary evacuations.

Bay County asked only mobile home dwellers to leave. About 300 people were in shelters late Wednesday, said David Miller, the county's emergency manager.

Officials in Okaloosa County, which includes Fort Walton Beach and Destin, urged mobile home residents in the coastal area to voluntarily evacuate. They asked other residents and tourists to remain in their homes, hotels and condominiums, but prepare to vacate ground floors in case of flooding.

In anticipation of strong winds, Panhandle military bases evacuated about 300 aircraft to bases in Georgia, Kentucky, Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Ohio and Mississippi.

Coast Guard officials expected this morning to resume their search for a 44-year-old Georgia man and his 9-year-old daughter, who disappeared in the Gulf after leaving Port San Blas in an inflatable rubber raft with oars. The search was suspended after dark Wednesday.

Gulf County Sheriff Frank McKeithen said neither of the rafters was wearing a life jacket.

"I'm just sick about it," he said.

A gambling ship captain and two crew members went down with a vessel Wednesday in seas off Cape Canaveral on the Atlantic Coast. A tugboat also sank off Georgia during the storm. All five aboard were rescued.

Eight escaped sinking ship; three didn't

PATRICK AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—Eight sailors managed to escape a sinking gambling ship in seas whipped into 20-foot swells by Hurricane Erin. Three others — the captain, cook and a crewman — weren't as lucky.

Coast Guard cutters and aircraft searched Wednesday for the three missing crew members of the 234-foot Club Royale, a gambling ship that sank 90 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral.

The eight survivors escaped in rubber life rafts aboard the ship and were plucked to safety by four Coast Guard helicopters and a passing ship. The Coast Guard said at least seven of the sailors were wearing life jackets.

One sailor almost didn't make it, said Coast Guard diver Clark Everson.

"This huge — we're talking huge — wave slams him," Everson said. "He goes to the other side of the raft. I thought he was going in the water."

None of the sailors speak English, so the Coast Guard said rescuers used hand signals to coax the men from the rafts into wire baskets dangling from the helicopters.

NOTICE OF EFFECTIVE TAX RATE

1995 PROPERTY TAX RATES IN COAHOMA CITY

This notice concerns 1995 property tax rates for Coahoma City. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

LAST YEAR'S TAX RATE:
Last year's operating taxes	$81,289
Last year's debt taxes	$0
Last year's total taxes	$81,289
Last year's tax base	$12,559,587
Last year's total tax rate (per $100)	0.64723

THIS YEAR'S EFFECTIVE TAX RATE:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$80,622
/ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$12,355,828
= This year's effective tax rate (per $100)	0.65250

x 1.03 = maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearing (per $100)*	0.67207
--	---------

THIS YEAR'S ROLLBACK TAX RATE:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for transferred function)	$80,622
/ This year's adjusted tax base	$12,355,828
= This year's effective operating rate (per $100)	0.65250
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate (per $100)	0.70470
+ This year's debt rate (per $100)	0.00000
= This year's rollback rate (per $100)	0.70470

* If the rollback rate is lower than 1.03 times the effective rate, the unit must publish the notices and hold the hearing to adopt a tax rate that exceeds the rollback tax rate.

An Israeli soldier runs after a teen-age Jewish settler trying to go back to the Artis Hill outside the West Bank settlement of Beit El Thursday. Israeli police and soldiers dragged away about 300 Jewish settlers protesting the expansion of Palestinian autonomy.

Settlers removed from West Bank

ARTIS HILL, West Bank (AP) — Israeli soldiers today removed about 300 Jewish settlers from one hilltop in the West Bank as a second group set up a mobile home at another site.

It was the fourth day of the settlers' battle with troops and police. The settlers are protesting the government's plans to expand Palestinian autonomy to the West Bank, where 140,000 Israelis live among 1 million Arabs.

The confrontation on the dusty hill near Beit El, 14 miles north of Jerusalem, began with settlers clapping and singing. About half the protesters were teen-agers and children, some infants. "This is a family issue," said Michal Finkelstein, a settler accompanied by his 5-year-old daughter. "The land of Israel belongs to every man, woman and child."

Shouts replaced songs as soldiers moved in, tearing down two tents and dragging or carrying those settlers who resisted. One settler was thrown over the shoulder of a soldier.

Yehiel Leiter, a settler leader, said the strategy was to tie up the government, the legal system and the army with constant protests and crowd the jails with protesters.

Government spokesman Uri Dromi said the settlers were acting in an "anti-democratic" way by trying to block the government from carrying out its policies.

"All these scenes and demonstrations will not sway the government from its policy," Dromi told The Associated Press.

Further north near Ramallah, about 200 settlers took over a hilltop outside the existing settlement of Kedumim. Some Jewish youths pushed aside an army jeep to allow a flatbed truck to bring in a mobile home.

The army set an afternoon deadline for the settlers to leave.

Chinese expel two U.S. Air Force officers who were accused of spying

HONG KONG (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force officers were expelled by China today after being accused of spying and detained for five days. They arrived in Hong Kong apparently in good condition.

The U.S. consulate in Hong Kong said Col. Joseph Wei Chan and Capt. Dwayne Howard Florenzie arrived about noon (midnight Wednesday EDT) from Xiamen, a city in China's southern Fujian province. The consulate, where both men are based as liaison officers, said they appeared to be healthy.

The Chinese government on Wednesday ordered the expulsion of the two officers, who U.S. intelligence sources said were caught spying on a military facility on China's southeast coast, across from Taiwan.

In Beijing, Foreign Ministry spokesman Shen Guofang said the two "sneaked into a number of restricted military zones in China's southeast coastal areas and illegally acquired military intelligence by photographing and videotaping," the official Xinhua news agency reported.

Shen said the officers, who entered China on July 23, were caught "on the spot" Saturday "by Chinese soldiers on duty." He gave no other details.

22 sailors rescued after trawler ran aground

TOKYO (AP) — A French ship rescued 22 sailors from a remote, storm-lashed island in the Indian Ocean on Wednesday, 11 days after their tuna trawler ran aground and stranded them in frigid winter weather.

The crew of the Japanese ship survived with food, blankets and tents dropped by an Australian air force plane that flew 2,200 miles from Mauritius, the nearest landing strip.

The rescued sailors — 15 Japanese, six Indonesians and a South African — were "healthy and in good condition," said Uta Enomoto of Japan's Maritime Safety Agency.

Their boat, the Japanese Zuiho Maru No. 58, ran aground July 22 off St. Paul, a blown-out volcanic outcropping. They abandoned ship on July 27 when it showed signs of breaking up, and took refuge on the 2-square-mile island.

The men found shelter in a hut on the leeward side of the island, and the Australian plane also dropped protective clothing to fight potential hypothermia from the gales of the Southern Hemisphere winter.

Enomoto said the rescued crew would be taken to Amsterdam Island, near St. Paul, by the French research ship.

Prayer pilgrimage ends at Tokyo temple

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's emperor and empress laid flowers today at a Tokyo temple dedicated to the estimated 100,000 people killed in a single night of U.S. firebombing during World War II.

The visit ended the royal couple's closely watched weeklong prayer pilgrimage to the most heavily damaged Japanese cities, marking the 50th anniversary of the war's end.

It was their first visit to the temple in downtown Tokyo, which is dedicated to the victims of the March 10, 1945, firebombing which destroyed about one-fifth of the city.

Of the ashes stored inside the temple's crematorium, 70 percent have yet to be identified.

Emperor Akihito, wearing a dark suit, and Empress Michiko in a subdued light gray dress, quietly placed bouquets of white chrysanthemums, the symbol of the nation's monarchy, in front of two tablets.

Prognosis poor for former star

DALLAS (AP) — A new test could have detected cancer in the lungs of baseball great Mickey Mantle before he underwent a liver transplant, a research doctor said.

The University of Pittsburgh Medical Center Transplant Institute developed and uses the blood test, which detects albumin produced in the liver.

If a cell in the blood is detected showing an albumin product, that cell undoubtedly came from the liver, said Dr. Brian Carr, who developed the test.

"Normal liver cells only stay in the liver, therefore if a liver cell is found in the blood, it must be a liver cancer cell," he said.

Had Mantle's doctors known of the cancer, he would not have been a candidate for the transplant, Carr said. "A rare resource (a donated liver) could have been given to someone with a better chance of survival, he said.

Mantle's cancer is a potentially aggressive form known as a hepatoma. It can easily recur in his new liver or migrate, because even after a transplant, cancerous cells can remain in a recipient's blood and lymphatic system, experts say.

Mantle's doctors discovered several cancerous spots on the former New York Yankee's right lung during a routine follow-up exam to his June 8 liver transplant.

The spots didn't turn up during a full-body scan three days before Mantle's transplant to replace a liver badly damaged by hard drinking, hepatitis and cancer. Mantle's gastroenterologist, Dr. Daniel DeMarco, said doctors suspect the cancer was in the lung at the time, but was so small it was undetectable.

MANTLE

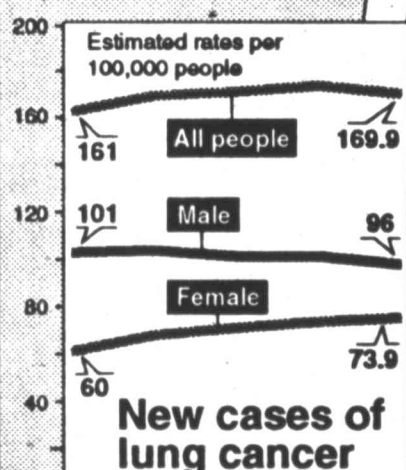

Mantle's latest battle

Mickey Mantle, who received a liver transplant June 8, has now been diagnosed with lung cancer. Mantle has been undergoing a series of chemotherapy treatment.

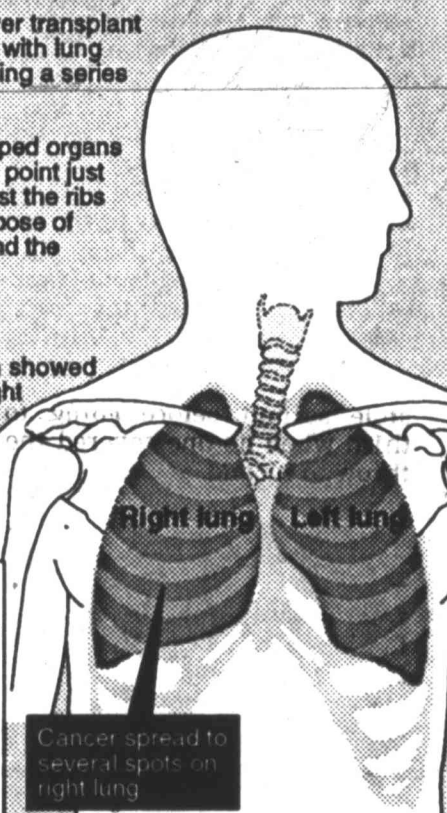

THE LUNGS are paired, cone-shaped organs extending from the diaphragm to a point just above the clavicles. They lie against the ribs in front and back. The primary purpose of the lung is the uptake of oxygen and the elimination of carbon dioxide.

DIAGNOSIS

Doctors said a recent examination showed several cancerous spots on his right lung. The cancer apparently was very small and undetectable when Mantle received his liver transplant.

Source: American Cancer Society; Complete Home Medical Guide

Cancer spread to several spots on right lung.

TREATMENT

Mantle is receiving "aggressive" chemotherapy treatment for his lung cancer. Chemotherapy works by aiming intense doses of chemicals at cancerous cells in an effort to kill them. Normal tissue is inevitably harmed as well, contributing to the nausea and hair loss associated with chemotherapy.

Rangers defeat Athletics

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jeff Frye's three-run homer led the Texas Rangers to a 5-4 victory over the Oakland Athletics on Wednesday.

Frye's second homer of the season, a line drive over the left-field wall, came with one out in the fifth. The next batter, Will Clark, hit his ninth homer of the year into the right-field bleachers. Clark drove in the Rangers' first run in the first with a single. It was only the third win in the last 16 games for Texas.

Scott Taylor (1-1), making his second major league start, allowed a two-run homer by Scott Brosius in the third and a two-run double by George Williams in the sixth. He gave up eight hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Taylor, who spent seven years in the minors before joining the Rangers last week, became the first Texas starter to win in 16 games. Todd Van Poppel (1-4) took the loss.

Bass Club lends a helping hand to community

By STEVE REAGAN

Wal-Mart wanted to do a good thing for the Big Spring Bass Club. The bass club decided to do Wal-Mart one better.

A pair of Big Spring families won't have to endure this summer without air conditioning, thanks to the Bass Club and the discount chain.

Monday, Wal-Mart will donate two air conditioners to the club, which in turn will install the units at the homes of two local families without air conditioning.

Bass Club Secretary Sue Lindsey said the idea for the donation came after two evaporative coolers at Wal-Mart became slightly damaged. Though still fully operational, their retail value was decreased.

Wal-Mart officials initially decided to donate the units to the club, which normally meets in the non-air-conditioned union hall near the Big Spring Fina Refinery. But Wal-Mart employee and Bass Club member Linda Mills had a better idea.

"She was the one who came up with the idea that we really didn't need the air conditioners," Lindsey said. "She suggested that we find two families here who really needed (the units)."

Club members were immediately receptive to the idea,

Lindsey said.

"Who cares as long as we can help somebody?" she asked. "Why keep them when we can donate them to someone who needs them?"

Club officers, including president Gary Burt, vice president Don Lindsey, Sue Lindsey and treasurer Effie Schultz, will be on hand at the Wal-Mart parking lot Monday evening to receive the units.

The families who receive the units have been selected, but their names won't be released until after Monday.

As for the bass club, there's no immediate fear of its members melting under the summer heat.

The club moved its monthly meeting Tuesday to a pavilion in Comanche Trail Park, where members felt the full effects of the recent cool spell that has given Big Spring relief from 100-degree heat.

"We almost froze to death," Lindsey said, laughing.

Teams surrendering mighty early in '95

We've seen the usual trading-deadline frenzy in baseball, but it seems some teams are waving the white flag awfully early.

Look at the situation: Detroit trades their one All-Star, pitcher David Wells, to Cincinnati for two minor-leaguers and a player to be named. At the time of the trade, the Tigers were 40-47 and mired in fourth place in the American League East, but they were only 8 1/2 games out.

The 1973 New York Mets were in last place Aug. 28 and reached the World Series. Stranger things have happened, but the Tigers don't seem to think so.

Ditto for the Toronto Blue Jays, who shipped David Cone to their AL East rivals, the New York Yankees. As of Monday, the Blue Jays were dead last but only 10 games out with two months remaining. Keep in mind that both the Tigers and Blue Jays - and nearly every team - are in the hunt for a wildcard playoff spot.

Guess wildcard spots aren't that big of a deal. These pennant-fever, let's win-now trades make sense for both the contenders and the pretenders, but you've got to feel for the fans at Tiger Stadium. Both of them.

Detroit had something to play for, since the wildcard is well within its grasp, but trading Wells basically tells the fans, "We could try for that last playoff spot, but we're not going to."

Perhaps the deal will prove profitable in the long run, but how many fans will give up on the Tigers in the meantime?

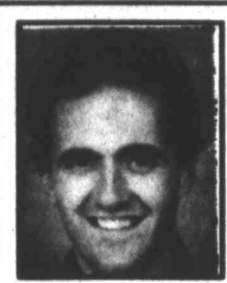

The point hasn't hit home? Well, Ranger fans, how would it suit you if your favorite team traded Kenny Rogers to Philadelphia for three minor-league pitchers?

The Ballpark in Arlington wouldn't seem so pretty.

What to do? Well, the trading deadline could be later in the season, but hey - it used to be June 15. Besides, the deadline isn't all that meaningful. Trades can be made long after July 31 - the only difference is that players must clear waivers, which usually is easy.

You could send a carrier pigeon to each team owner with a note saying, "Could you wait awhile before forfeiting your playoff hopes for a few prospects?" Wouldn't work. Owners jump at the deal when it comes, as they should.

Just live with it. As one of the sport's sayings goes: "Baseball is too much of a business to be a sport, and too much of a sport to be a business."

NCAA rolls over Tide

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The NCAA Wednesday put Alabama's football program on three years probation, banning the Crimson Tide from playing in a bowl game after this season and forfeiting 11 games in 1993 when an ineligible athlete played.

Alabama, although not banned from television, will lose perhaps two dozen or more scholarships.

The NCAA cited the Tide football program, which has never been on probation, with exhibiting "a distressing failure of institutional control."

A statement released by the NCAA said Alabama was censured for three chief reasons:

—A player obtained from boosters six impermissible loans totaling $24,400.

—Another player was allowed to play in 11 games in 1993 even though he had signed with an agent and athletic officials were aware that a potential violation of rules had occurred.

—The school's faculty athletics representative provided "false and misleading information" to the NCAA.

Mascot tossed in Lubbock after bench-clearing brawl

Minor-league umpiring crew grows infamous for ejections

LUBBOCK (AP) — Umpires have managed to keep the games interesting in the Texas-Louisiana League this season. For one thing, almost anyone can get ejected from the game if they run afoul of a particular umpiring team. Not even a mascot whose name is derived from the name of a hero of the battle of the Alamo and Buddy Holly's band is immune.

So far this season, the umpiring team has ejected a PA announcer at Abilene, two scoreboard operators and Davy Cricket, the team mascot for the Lubbock Crickets.

Umpires Mel Chettum and Vince Price ejected the mascot and the two scoreboard operators as well as several players during the second game of a doubleheader between the Crickets and the Abilene Prairie Dogs on Wednesday night.

During an earlier game at Abilene it was Chettum who ejected the PA announcer after he read a message about an eye-glass store moments after Chettum had made a controversial call.

Both benches emptied in the second inning of Wednesday's game after Lubbock third baseman Britt Bonneau was hit by a pitch by Abilene starter Earl Steinmetz.

Abilene manager Charley Kerfeld admitted following the game that he ordered Steinmetz to throw the purpose pitch.

Asked why, Kerfeld said, "Because (Lubbock manager Greg) Minton is an idiot, and he ran when he was down 9-0. And if he does it again, we'll throw at him again. Only this time it won't be just the players fighting."

"If he doesn't know how to manage, he shouldn't be managing. You don't (steal) when you're down 9-0. I learned that in grade school."

Abilene scored nine runs on seven hits and two Lubbock errors in the top of the second inning.

Then Lubbock's Scott Hoyes reached base on an error and stole second before going to third when no one covered the throw to second.

Bonneau was up next and was hit on the second pitch.

"I knew it was coming," Bonneau said. "I don't know what they were thinking, but if they're going to give us second base, we're going to take it."

Minton also said his team wasn't conceding the game in the second inning.

"There's nothing that says a team can't try to score some runs when it's losing," he said. "They played their first baseman 35 feet behind the runner. There's no rule that says I can't take a base. When you play someone 35 feet behind me you're showing me up."

"I think he (Kerfeld) had a brain cramp and wanted to retaliate, and it cost his (starting) pitcher a win."

Steinmetz was ejected along with Bonneau, pitcher Noah Peery and the mascot. Peery wasn't in the game, but he had to be carried from the field by Minton to avoid further altercations.

Then the umpires ejected scoreboard operators Steve Cooper and Arni Sribben for flashing a sign on the scoreboard that showed an eye and a pair of glasses.

Only Davy questioned his ejection.

"I was just standing there by the third-base line, and Mel pushed me from behind," Davy said. "He shoves me and says 'Get this — bug off the field.'"

By the way, Abilene won the game 12-5 to gain a split in the doubleheader after Lubbock won the first game 8-2.

Look to the skies Friday night

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

This Friday is one night to be thankful you live in West Texas with the flat land and sparse trees.

Why? Because there will be a stargazing party at the Big Spring State Park and a chance to see the constellations up close.

For the past several years, park officials have hosted the event with various astronomy clubs bringing their telescopes pointed at the sky.

The West Texas Astronomy Club of Odessa, South Plains Astronomy Club of Lubbock along with Starbeams and Heliowinds of San Angelo will have telescopes that give a close-up view planets and nebula.

A slide show presenting galaxies and constellations will be given as well. Some of the constellations you will be able to see this time of year include the Swan, Scorpion, Sagittarius, Leo the Lion, Hercules, Northern Crown and Big Dipper.

This stargazing session is scheduled for Friday at 8 p.m. If there is bad weather it will be rescheduled for Saturday at the same time.

Bring a flashlight and binoculars with you to the upper picnic pavilion. The cost is $3 a car and Park Manager Ron Alton suggests carpooling because of limited parking spaces.

Admittance is free if you have a Texas Conservation Passport. The front gate closes at 9:15 p.m. so arrive early.

For more information, contact Alton at 263-4931.

Program puts older volunteers to work with inner-city teens

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — In Diana Crosdale's 12 years, she's seen drug deals go down, classmates display weapons and three older brothers sent off to jail.

Every Tuesday afternoon, Crosdale turns to a group of older volunteers for help in avoiding a similar fate.

The volunteers teach her and 20 other inner-city youngsters how to cook, sew and stay out of trouble.

"They've taught me that you can always have someone there for you in your life," Crosdale said. "They are like my grandmothers."

The Spices of Life program is aimed at helping at-risk girls avoid pregnancy, drugs and violence.

Each week, the girls, ages 10 through 13, get a practical lesson from their older friends in everything from craft-making to nutrition. They also get a lesson in life.

"We talk to them about how they need to build themselves up, how they don't need boys and how they don't want to get pregnant at a young age," said Angelina Spiak, 77, one of the volunteers.

Ruby Crear, a Bridgeport police officer, started the pilot program last September, using a $2,000 federal drug enforcement grant.

Crear said the idea for the program grew out of her own impoverished upbringing in Mobile, Ala., and her struggle as an unwed teen-age mother. At age 25, Crear, who was then working as a nurse's aide in a nursing home, befriended a man in his 70s who helped lift her low self-esteem.

"He taught me about believing in myself," Crear, 42, said. "As a police officer, I find that kids today are never taught they can be something. So many girls become pregnant because they feel no one believes in them or loves them and that a baby will do that for them. We're trying to show them that that's not the answer."

At a recent session, a video producer showed short films on the dangerous lure of gangs and the tendency for girls to place too much emphasis on getting a boyfriend, sometimes at the expense of their friendships with other girls.

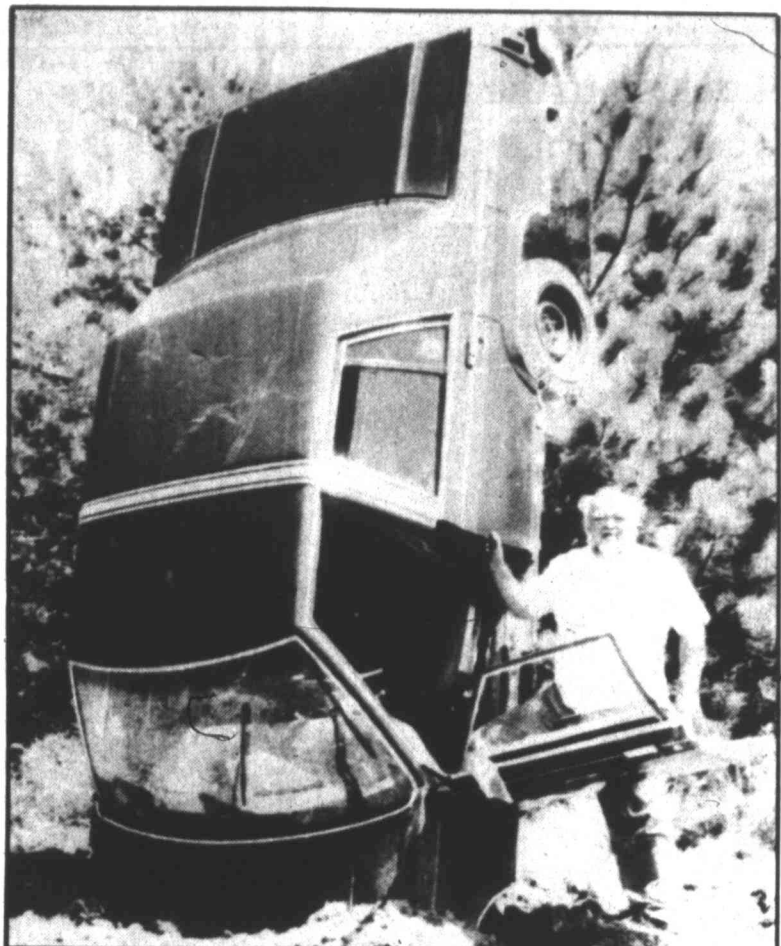

Crosdale talked about her three brothers, all in their teens. Two are serving time on drug charges; the third was recently released from prison.

Chanel Cruz, 10, said she knew a teen-age boy who was fatally shot in her neighborhood.

"It makes me feel bad. I don't want people to get hurt over stupid things," she said.

'Authentic assessment' confuses parents of California students

By JANET O'NEILL
Scripps Howard News Service

"A" means you're awesome.

"F" means you flunk.

That's what parents and students are used to seeing at report-card time, but some educators contend the five-letter alphabet just can't tell the whole story.

"Traditional grading really doesn't give people much information," says Steve Mitrovich, principal at Deer Creek Elementary School in Shasta Lake, Calif.

As part of efforts to achieve what some educators call "authentic assessment," Deer Creek did away with the A-to-F scale in fourth-grade science and social studies last fall.

"Huge numbers of students were failing" those subjects, Mitrovich says, and teachers pushed for change. Six weeks into the school year teachers met with parents to explain the pilot program, which replaces the letter grade with a "pass" or "incomplete" to reflect effort, participation and completion of assignments. In addition, students are rated from 1 to 4 depending on how they accomplish objectives and grasp academic concepts, and the quality of recorded work.

It gives more specific information about why they're not succeeding, but it doesn't say, "You're a failure," says Mitrovich. Ah "F," he believes, can cause students to "stereotype themselves" from an early age.

Now a student can earn a "P" by completing most of the assignments, but still score a low number that shows where there's room for improvement.

"A part of me likes the grade," says Kim Kingstrom, who has a fourth-grade son at Deer Creek. "But the (new system) gives much more information, so I feel it's probably a little more positive."

Debra Duryee, whose fourth-grade daughter attends Deer Creek, points out that students first encounter the A-through-F scale that year. "The pass-incomplete system) just kind of eases them into the whole grading concept," she said.

While she acknowledges that many people are slow to accept change, she supports the experiment. "It is more detailed without putting the pressure on the kid," she says. "It's educating the parent and the child."

At Buckeye Elementary School in Redding, Calif., kindergarten report cards changed two years ago from a check-the-box format to a lengthy narrative.

"We started observing in all areas," says teacher Lisa Whitehorn, explaining the need to look at the "whole child" and track a student's development.

The philosophy behind the narrative report card helped spawn three multi-age classes this year at Buckeye, each containing 5-, 6- and 7-year-olds. All those students now receive the narrative reports twice a year, with a parent conference in alternate quarters.

"It's supposed to be a celebration of learning," says teacher

Lucy Canavan, who has a multi-age class, as do Whitehorn and Connie Champe.

The basis for the narrative is a kind of growth chart, a continuum that looks at the child's developmental stage. Through their ongoing observations in the classroom, teachers note progress in a number of areas ranging from social development including interaction with other children and learning skills — to emergent literacy, or reading and writing.

"It was developed by teachers who knew their students didn't fit into little boxes," says Whitehorn.

Old report cards, for example, listed a skill such as recognizing shapes with an accompanying check mark, indicating simply "observed" or "not observed."

Instructors believe the current system forces them to examine how they're teaching.

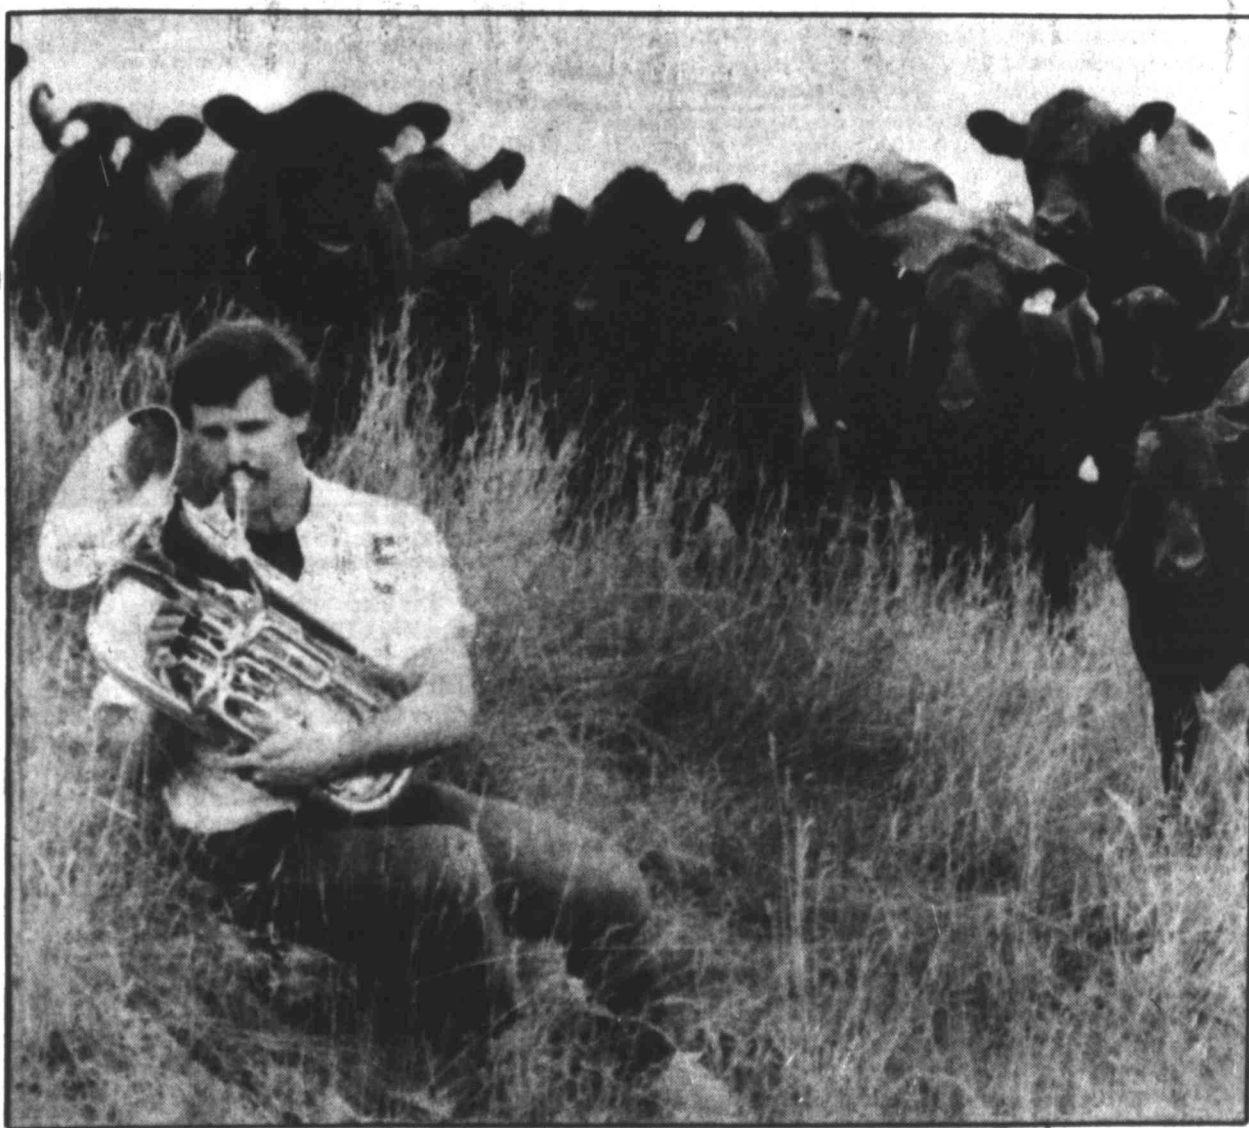

"The narrative holds children responsible for where they are," Champe said. "We're accountable for the narrative."

Daleanna Cossey, who has two daughters in the multi-age program at Buckeye, favors both the class configuration and report card.

Galileo Probe Starting Its Suicide Mission to Jupiter
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Six years after launching, the unmanned Galileo spacecraft is entering the final phase of a $1.6 billion suicide mission to penetrate the unexplored atmosphere of Jupiter.

A 747-pound, cone-shaped probe separated from the Galileo orbiter on July 13 and began a slow descent to the biggest planet in the solar system.

Barring any problems, the probe will plunge into the planet's atmosphere on Dec. 7, piercing Jupiter's dense clouds. The heat and pressure will destroy the probe before it reaches the planet surface. Meanwhile, the Galileo spacecraft will continue to orbit Jupiter.

It will be the first time a man-made object has penetrated the atmosphere of so distant a planet — 560 million miles from Earth in December.

During the dive through the atmosphere, instruments will gather and relay to the orbiter information on the combination of helium, hydrogen and other gases that could offer a snapshot of the gas mixture that formed all the planets.

Sent aloft aboard a shuttle in 1989, Galileo used the gravity of Earth and Venus to sling it through space. Its journey has included passes by asteroids. Last July, Galileo recorded fragments of Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 hitting Jupiter.

The probe separated from the Galileo orbiter with the detonation of explosive nuts and a pushoff from titanium springs.

The probe's instruments will measure atmospheric composition, pressure, radiation, winds and temperature; record lightning flashes; and use a laser beam to locate cloud layers.

Looking to the Future After 75 Years

Women's Right to Vote

Women who were fighting for the right to vote sometimes marched in parades. They were called "suffragists."

More than 100 years ago, in 1872, a woman named Virginia Minor did something that was against the law. She went to the polls and tried to vote. The man in charge of the polls would not let her.

Ms. Minor went to court about the matter. She took her case all the way to the Supreme Court of the United States. The Supreme Court ruled that being a citizen did not give women the right to vote.

States could deny women the right to vote if their legislatures, or lawmaking bodies, voted not to allow it.

Ms. Minor's attempt to vote was just one event in the fight for women's rights.

From a poster encouraging lawmakers to give women the right to vote.

Aug. 26, 1920

The date Aug. 26 is important. It marks the 75th anniversary of the date that women gained suffrage, or the right to vote.

On that date, the 19th Amendment to the Constitution was approved. (Tennessee was the last state to ratify.) Women finally had full voting rights.

The 19th Amendment to the Constitution says, in part:

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

Women do vote!

We are already hearing about the next presidential election to be held in 1996. It is on the news.

In the last presidential election, in 1992, more women voted than did men.

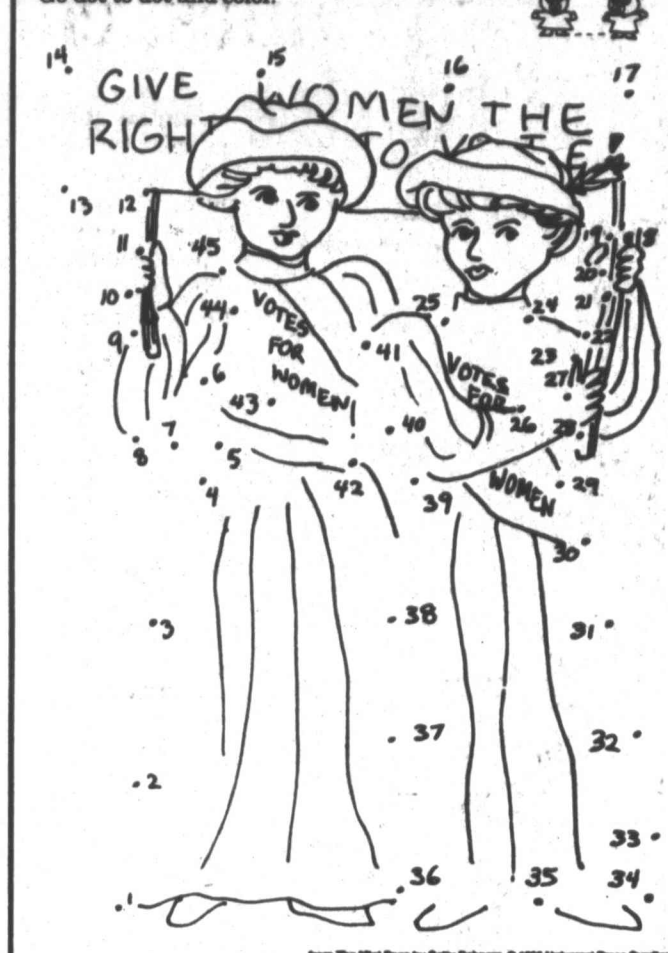

Women: 60.6 million

Men: 53.3 million

When people run for office today, they must keep in mind how powerful the women's vote can be.

For use with issue: Women's Right to Vote

Main idea: This issue is about the 75th anniversary of the 19th Amendment. The following is a list of activities to be used with this issue. They are listed in order of difficulty. Ask the children to do the following:

1. Design a poster for the anniversary of the 19th Amendment.
2. Pretend the year is 1920. How do you think women felt before 1920 not being able to vote? Why is it important that all people who are able to vote do so? Do you plan to vote when you reach voting age? Why do you think more women than men voted in the last presidential election?
3. Discuss the following: What do you think it meant to women to be able to vote for the first time in 1920? How do you think women felt before 1920 not being able to vote? Why is it important that all people who are able to vote do so? Do you plan to vote when you reach voting age? Why do you think more women than men voted in the last presidential election?
4. Make a graph of the number of men and women who voted in the last presidential election.
5. Look through your newspaper for articles on elections. Are there any articles on the upcoming 1996 presidential election?
6. Pretend it is the time when women were fighting for the right to vote. Write a letter to the editor of your newspaper telling why they should be able to vote.
7. Find the following words: amendment, citizen, influence, movement, harsh, convention, polls, denied, delegate, committee, unfit. Define and make up a new sentence for each one.

Women's Struggle for Rights

Remember the ladies

Abigail Adams (1744-1818)

Women have struggled for their rights since our country began. Like many women, Abigail Adams had quite an influence on her husband, who became the second president of the United States. In 1776, her husband was a delegate to the convention that was writing the Declaration of Independence from England.

She wrote to him: "Remember the ladies ... or we will not hold ourselves bound by any laws in which we have no voice."

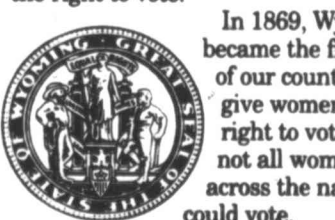

The Constitution

The U.S. Constitution did not say that women could not vote. Each state had its own qualifications or laws for who could vote.

At first, only white males who owned property were allowed to vote in most states.

Women in most states were not allowed to vote in any elections. Many felt this was unfair.

From the 1850s on, women fought for the right to vote.

Sojourner Truth (1797-1883)

Power, but no vote

Even without the vote, women still had a lot of power.

One of the first movements women became involved in was the fight against slavery.

One of the leaders in this fight was a former slave, Sojourner Truth. She made many talks against slavery.

Women meeting with a committee of the U.S. Congress. They are arguing in favor of giving the vote to women.

Even without the vote, women signed petitions. They met and talked with members of Congress to try to influence their vote. They wrote many letters.

Another movement was the temperance, or anti-alcohol, movement.

Women were also interested in laws that protected children against harsh working conditions. They worked for safer working conditions for all workers.

Women's clubs were also very organized and strong. Women used them to work for voting rights.

Why not let women vote?

Here are a few of the reasons that were given as to why women should not be allowed to vote:

- Women wouldn't have enough time to get involved with elections and still take care of their families.
- The polls were unfit places for them to go. At that time, there might be some drinking, gambling and fighting at polling places.

The Mini Page thanks the National Archives, the League of Women Voters of the United States, and the National Women's History Project.

Next week, brush up on your back-to-school safety rules.

The women's answer

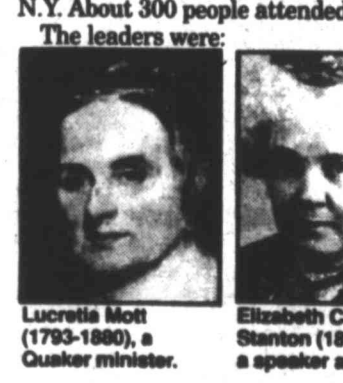

The women answered back:

- If men could find time to get involved in elections while they were working and supporting their families, then so could women.
- Women could make the polls a fit place for people to go.

The first women's rights meeting

In 1848, the first women's rights convention was held in Seneca Falls, N.Y. About 300 people attended.

The leaders were:

Lucretia Mott (1793-1880), a Quaker minister.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton (1815-1902), a speaker and writer.

The black anti-slavery leader

Frederick Douglass also attended.

The group made a list of ways they felt women were being unfairly treated. They demanded the right to vote.

Using the words of the Declaration of Independence, they said:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident (obvious); that all men and women are created equal."

Susan B. Anthony

was the most outstanding women's suffrage leader. The 19th Amendment was called the Susan B. Anthony Amendment.

WHAT YOU NEED: Fingernail file - plastic tub like the kind eaten or cottage cheese comes in

WHAT TO DO: Get in an insect-like mood. Pretend you're less than an inch tall and you have to get everyone to pay attention to you. Hold the tub from the bottom. Use the file to saw against the top edge. If you keep doing it, you'll do the same thing crickets can do - drive everyone within earshot crazy.

Dear Jillian,

How do crickets make that loud noise?

Questions, name & address

Dear Jillian,

Cricket do it by moving their folded wings back and forth.

The warmer it is, the quicker crickets chirp. Count the number of chirps you hear in 15 seconds. Add that number to 43 and you'll get the approximate temperature.

SO WHAT:
You just did what a cricket does. The file vibrated the tub, which vibrated the air, which vibrated your eardrum, which your brain turned into a sound. The tub made the sound louder just like a cricket wing does.

Each wing has a file with a row of teeth-like bumps. There is also a thin spot on each wing that scrapes against the file on the opposite wing. The whole wing vibrates and gives off that loud sound. It happens when the cricket moves its folded wings back and forth.

'Teens Alive' promotes positive values, choices

By KARIN GRENNAN
Scripps Howard News Service

SANTA PAULA, Calif. — Two guys sit in a locker room. One has decided to have sex with his girlfriend because everybody's doing it. The other talks him out of it.

The sketch was simple and squeaky clean, but the 70 teens in the audience clapped as if a Pearl Jam concert had just ended. The setting was a Teens Alive National Leadership Conference at Thomas Aquinas College in Santa Paula, Calif.

Adults didn't need to convince these teens to say no to sex, drugs and violence. They're already said no. They are living it. They came to the conference because they wanted to hang out with others who feel the same way.

"It stresses the fact that there are other teens that believe the way we do," said Catherine Wurts, 16, of Ventura.

Margaret Blewett started Teens Alive in Thousand Oaks, Calif., last year.

As a member of a county commission studying teen pregnancy, she tired of talking about problems and wanted to present a solution. She and a couple of friends organized a conference promoting chastity before marriage.

"Love and Dating in the '90s" attracted 300 participants, including some from other states.

"As we were planning the conference, we realized that to bring them together for one day and encourage them to say 'No' and send them out into a culture that encourages kids to say 'Yes' would be unfair," said Blewett, 36.

"We had to have an on-going program that would help them live a whole new way of life."

Blewett wanted Teens Alive to address drinking, drugs, violence and premarital sex by promoting positive values. She selected speakers and selected 30 teens who showed leadership ability at the conference to help organize more activities.

The teens suggested and helped plan a soccer tournament and a dance with a series of ballroom lessons.

Monica Sanchez of Oxnard grudgingly went to the first ballroom lesson because friends pushed her.

She returned for the next and the dance and the conference because she had fun.

"They don't like sit you down and teach you stuff. You go out and do things and learn things at the same time."

The most attractive part of Teens Alive is the kids who attend, said Sanchez, 16.

"The people that I did talk to were polite and they were, like, intelligent. They didn't talk about bonehead things ... I saw that they were a positive group standing for something good, and I wanted to be a part of it."

Sanchez was already a good kid. She belongs to the youth group at her church and decided three years ago she wants to save sex for marriage.

While every conversation doesn't revolve around morality, it's obvious everyone shares similar values.

It's not that kids outside Teens Alive don't feel the same way, Brian Conley said. It's just that teens don't usually talk about values.

Conley, 16, said at Teens Alive, kids talk about feelings and beliefs and that gives him strength to stick to his convictions.

Teens Alive caught the attention of Richard Wall, a Kansas lawyer. He is starting a chapter because it supports good kids while so many other programs focus on rehabilitating kids who have already made other choices.

The positive approach also appealed to Bryan Bashinski, a junior high teacher starting a chapter in Missouri.

"This movement focuses on the joys and the positives of living a chaste life ... you don't hear, 'You shouldn't' or 'Don't.' You only hear care in their voices."

Blewett hopes to have Teens Alive representatives in 20 states by next year.

Sanchez doesn't want to push her choices on others, but she feels comfortable enough to tell her peers why she made certain decisions.

A.J. Merrifield, 20, has a T-shirt that says, "Life is Short. Pray Hard."

His message is that many youths don't agree with media and pop culture characterizations that living clean isn't popular.

"I want to spread the word that values and virtue are cool."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Popularity peaks outside the home. Don't let situations be vague; your clarity is long overdue. Keep your eye on the long term, and don't settle for less. A foreigner makes a difference in your choices today. Make a long-distance call. Tonight: Celebrate the weekend. ****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You might feel out of sorts because of the amount of work that surrounds you. Listen carefully to a co-worker who may have a suggestion to eliminate some of the red tape in your life. Stay focused, and realize you might have to put in additional hours. Tonight: Clear your desk first. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A misunderstanding could cause a wounded heart. Be willing to distance and see past your "stuff." You might be able to understand what is really happening. Extend yourself to others. A loving attitude goes far as you deal with another. Tonight: Make love, not war. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Family matters dominate in an unusual way. You need to clear your chest. Be aware of your limits when criticizing. The tables could turn. A clearer insight into what is happening on the domestic scene may be helpful. Explore solutions. Tonight: The action is at home. ***

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You might hear news that may put you in a funk and to which you could overreact. Recognize that you might be more sensitive than you realize. Others seek you out, and you change moods easily. Focus your high energy on fun matters. Tonight: It's party time. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Money situations, change and someone else's point of view may be tripping you up. Worrying won't help you, either. Find solutions; don't add fuel to the fire. A family member tries to pull you out of the doldrums. Carefully consider a life change. Tonight: Order in. **

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

You might be wired by a change in attitude. Get past that, and brainstorm to find a solution. Answers come through open communications. Your smile melts barriers and frees you from an obstacle. Romance flourishes if you are ready, willing and available. Tonight: Call the shots. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Office gossip or news from a distance may have you out of sorts. Realize your limits, and figure out what you need to do. Make security and family primary concerns. Take some time off, and trust your intuition. You are more right on than you realize. Tonight: Take a night off. **

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A change in plans need not throw you. Look at this as an opportunity, not a hindrance. Discuss what is on your mind. A fun-loving attitude helps you deal with a grumpy partner. Communications excel because your intent is obvious. Tonight: You are the party. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): One-to-one relating could be stressful. You need to evaluate your position with a boss and a financial matter. Be clear about your choices with a loved one. Finances flow, and you are intuitively correct about a business decision. Tonight: You are a force to be dealt with. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Gain perspective, and seek out expert knowledge. You might need to resolve a problem, rather than existing with it. Be willing to take action and do what you need to do to handle things. An unexpected last-minute offers enticing. Tonight: Start your weekend. *****

IF AUG. 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The emphasis this year is on your personal life. You might spend much time evaluating your domestic situation, where responsibilities are heavy. You have many solutions available to you as you overcome your own restrictions. A relationship can make a big difference in your choices, whether you are single or attached. Romantic moments are many, if you are available. Your work situation improves in 1996. A pay raise is likely. SCORPIO expects a lot from you.

Sick conversation needs healthy dose of variety

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently sold her home in one state and moved to a retirement center in another. When I asked her how things were going, she said that her apartment was very comfortable, but she'd have to make friends outside the center.

about how to steer conversations to more interesting and stimulating topics? — WORRIED ABOUT MOM IN WASHINGTON

DEAR WORRIED: When people are out of the mainstream, it's not unusual for their focus to narrow until there's little to stimulate them besides their aches and pains. Changing the subject is as easy as mentioning something your mother read in the newspaper, saw on television or was told. Or, she can ask a question that has nothing to do with health or present circumstances.

There must be others besides your mother in the retirement center who are able to socialize beyond its walls and who crave intellectual stimulation and conversation beyond the level of complaining about their ailments.

Of course, there are always some who think that the question "How are you?" is meant literally, and instead of giving the most appropriate response, which is, "I'm fine, thank you," proceed with delivering an organ recital. Ella Wheeler Wilcox once wrote a wonderful poem on this subject:

TALK HEALTH
Talk health. That dreary never-ending tale
Of mortal maladies is worn and stale;

You cannot charm or interest or please
By harping on that minor chord, disease.

So, say that you are well and all is well with you
And God shall hear your words and make them true.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, I took my grandchildren to see the movie "Casper." We loved the show, but I was appalled to see the female character smoking!

I also went to see "The Bridges of Madison County," which I didn't care for, but again, I was annoyed to see the lead character smoking!

Abby, why on earth are they promoting smoking when we have finally educated people to understand the disastrous consequences of smoking? — A.B. AVERY

DEAR A.B. AVERY: I can't speak for "Casper," but "The Bridges of Madison County" depicts life in a small town at least 40 years ago. In those days, we were not aware that cigarette smoking was a killer.

You are hereby notified of the opportunity to request a public hearing and/or submit written comments concerning air quality permit amendments applications Nos. 6429, 6580, and No. PSD-TX-151 by Sid Richardson Carbon, Ltd. for expansion of Carbon Black Production Units 1, 2, and 3 in Big Spring, Howard County, Texas. The location is North Midway Road at Interstate 20. The modified facility will emit the following air contaminants in amounts significant enough to require a Prevention of Significant Deterioration permit: oxides of nitrogen and sulfur dioxide. In addition, the modified Carbon Black Production Units 1, 2, and 3 will emit: particulate matter, acetylene, reduced sulfur compounds, and carbon monoxide. No other pollutant emission increase will result from this facility.

The Executive Director of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) has determined that the proposed facility will not violate any state or federal air quality regulations and will not have any significant adverse impact on soils, vegetation or visibility. All air contaminants have been evaluated and "best available control technology" has been designed for the control of these contaminants. He, therefore, has made the preliminary determination to issue these permits.

The degree of PSD increment predicted to be consumed by the proposed facility and other increment consuming sources in the area is as follows:

Averaging Time	Increment Consumed (lb/yr)	Increment Allowable (lb/yr)
3-hour	389	512
24-hour	77	91
Annual	8.1	20

A copy of the administrative record, including all materials submitted by the applicant and additional information, are available at the office of Mr. Charles Sims, Regional Manager, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, TNRCC Odessa Regional Office, Air Program, located at 2626 J.B. Sheppard Parkway Blvd., Building B-101, Odessa, Texas 79761, telephone (815) 362-9897 and at the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission at 12124 Park 35 Circle, Austin, Texas 78711-3087, telephone (512) 238-1174. Interested parties may inspect these materials during regular business hours (8-5, M-F) and submit written comments and/or requests for hearing to the Executive Director of the TNRCC. Any person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the proposed facility may request a hearing from the Commission. Requests for hearing must be in writing and shall state the nature of the issues proposed to be raised in the hearing. Comments should be limited to the air pollution aspects of the proposed project and should not concern land use aspects which are beyond the jurisdiction of the TNRCC. All air pollution related comments and requests for a public hearing must be received in writing by September 2, 1995. All written comments submitted to the Executive Director shall be considered in determining whether to issue or not to issue the permits. All comments will be available for public inspection at the TNRCC office in Austin.

Wednesday's Puzzle solved:

08/03/95

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Aug. 3, the 215th day of 1995. There are 150 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Aug. 3, 1492, Christopher Columbus set sail from Palos, Spain, on a voyage that would take him to the Americas.

On this date:

In 1894, workers at the Pullman Palace Car Co., their strike broken, ended their walkout.

In 1914, Germany declared war on France.

In 1921, baseball commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis refused to reinstate the former Chicago White Sox players implicated in the "Black Sox" scandal, despite their acquittals in a jury trial.

In 1923, Calvin Coolidge was sworn in as the 30th president of the United States, following the death of Warren G. Harding.

In 1936, the U.S. State Department urged Americans in Spain to leave because of that country's civil war.

In 1943, Gen. George S. Patton slapped a private at an army hospital in Sicily, accusing him of cowardice. (Patton was later ordered by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to apologize for this and a second, similar episode.)

In 1948, Whittaker Chambers, a former Communist, publicly accused former State Department official Alger Hiss of having been part of a Communist underground, a charge Hiss denied.

In 1949, the National Basketball Association was formed.

In 1958, the nuclear-powered submarine Nautilus became the first vessel to cross the North Pole underwater.

In 1981, U.S. air traffic controllers went on strike, despite a warning from President Reagan that they would be fired.

In 1988, the Soviet Union released Mathias Rust, the young West German pilot who had landed a light plane in Moscow's Red Square in May 1987.

Ten years ago: In South Africa, thousands of chanting mourners, defying a government decree banning mass funerals, buried 11 victims of rioting in the eastern Cape township of Zwijde.

Five years ago: A day after Iraq invaded Kuwait, thousands of Iraqi soldiers pushed to within a few miles of the border with Saudi Arabia, heightening world concerns that the invasion could spread.

Today's Birthdays: Broadway composer Richard Adler ("Damn Yankees") is 74. Author Leon Uris is 71. Singer Tony Bennett is 69. Actor Martin Sheen is 55. Movie director John Landis is 45.
