

On The BEAM
By A. W. King, Jr.

We can all remember that during the depression days of the 1930s how hard it was for us to get along financially. The City of Loraine was no exception—very few could pay their taxes, consequently the city got behind on its bonded indebtedness. In fact it became so delinquent on its revenue bearing bonds that the bond holders took over the water and sewer systems for a while. In February 1949, however, the city was able to pay off all of the revenue bearing bonds on the water and sewer system. The city now owns clear of debt the water and sewer system. Original Indebtedness on these was $4500. Other bonded indebtedness has been cut down considerably during the past few years also. In 1948 the city paid off $107 of the bonds that had not been refunded. Since then they have paid other bonds of more than $5,000 and will soon pay another $5,000. The bonded indebtedness at present is $62,000. Originally it was $72,778.75.

Some people have wondered why the tax rate has to remain at $1.50. The reason for it is this: In 1942 when the bonds were refunded the last time the city contracted with the bond holders that $1.25 of the tax money would be placed in a sinking fund until the bonds are retired, which will be in 1957 if my memory serves me correctly. The City Council would like to lower the tax rate but it can't do so until the bonds have been paid.

Cotton Crop Is About Half Gathered

At eleven o'clock Wednesday morning the four Loraine gins reported they had ginned a total of 5,284 bales of cotton from this year's crop.

Some are guessing that the crop is half gathered while others guess half way mark has not been reached. Some farmers report they are almost through gathering while others report they have hardly started. The crop south of town was a little earlier than that north of town consequently some farmers in that section are about through gathering.

REV. AND MRS. GREEN MOVING TO LORAIN

Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Green are moving to their home, built last year in Loraine from Hernleigh where Bro. Green has pastored the Central Baptist Church the past three years.

Rev. Green is retiring after 37 years pastoring Baptist churches over this section and at Houston, Texas.

Bro. Green has been preaching since the time of his conversion in 1909 but dates his active ministry from 1915.

In October 1915 he helped to organize the Bethel Baptist Church south of Loraine and became its first pastor. During these 37 years as a minister he has organized six churches and has pastored Baptist churches at Bethel, Big Lake, San Angelo, Knox City, Houston and Sylvest.

He was Missionary of the Big Spring Baptist Association in 1924-25 and the Mitchell-Scurry Baptist Association in 1929-30. At that time the Greens lived in Colorado City.

Rev. and Mrs. Green (the former Dora Ethel Collier) celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary in October 1949.

Grand Jury Finds No Evidence of Fraud In County Elections

The Mitchell County Grand Jury adjourned Wednesday of this week after making its report to District Judge A. S. Mauzey.

By request of a group of citizens of the county the grand jury investigated the report that irregularities and fraud had been practiced in the election box of Precinct No. 1 and reported the following findings:

1. The count by election officials on August 26, was true and correct.

2. Found no fraud or irregularities existed in counting the ballots, and also that no fraud or irregularities of any kind were found.

Evidence presented to the grand jury did not warrant or justify investigation of any other purported irregularities or fraud.

The report was signed by all members of the grand jury as follows: L. A. Strain, foreman, Warren Costin, secretary, L. F. Neal, C. G. Harkins, H. H. Boline, E. B. Bowlin, Ira Hambrick O. B. Trulock, Jr., C. N. Adams, H. W. Hallmark, Dennis Fortenberry and Virgil G. Bond.

This was not a contest of the election but resulted from the requests of citizens than an investigation be made. No candidate for any office had anything to do with the proceedings.

The grand jury returned 7 bills of indictment: three for swindling with worthless checks, three for forgery, and one for theft.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Korean Unification Big Question In General Assembly Discussions; Defense Gets Resources Priority

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

After three months and two weeks the war in South Korea was virtually over, with only small pockets of resisting Communists to be eliminated. The above map shows how United Nations forces broke out of the Pusan beachhead and linked up with troops landed at Inchon. Communists not trapped in the quick advance fled north of the 38th parallel.

KOREA:

What's the Next Move?

Three months and two weeks after Communist forces from North Korea plunged south of the 38th parallel in an attempt to conquer the republic of South Korea, United Nations forces won a victory in the south, destroyed a large part of the invading army, and advanced to that imaginary line dividing north and south Korea.

And although South Korean troops crossed the 38th parallel, U. N. forces sat on their heels awaiting word from the general assembly of what to do next. The assembly was faced with a question it was reluctant to answer: Should U. N. forces go beyond the 38th parallel?

Those who favored crossing the parallel argued that failure to do so would mean a hollow victory for the U. N. The enemy would be saved from the knockout punch. He would be able to regroup his forces, await the time for another invasion attempt. At the very least, the Communists, safe behind their parallel, would be able to keep the country divided. Thus, occupation of North Korea is necessary if the assembly is ever to fulfill its aim—unification of the country under a democratically chosen government.

Those against the crossing argued that a U. N. military campaign to take North Korea might be regarded by Moscow and Peking as a provocation—a reason for marching south. That might mean the war. Even if the dreaded intervention did not materialize, military operations by General MacArthur in North Korea would have a bad effect in the Orient. It would be interpreted by many Asians, with deep-rooted suspicions of western intentions, as another example of white imperialism.

Added to the confusion was the roar of Red China, threatening to send troops into North Korea if U. N. forces advanced north of the 38th parallel. Many observers pointed out, however, that Red invasion of Korea would offer the Nationalists the opportunity to invade south China.

Tiny Snake Scares Ape Back Into Cage

Bushman, a 550-pound gorilla, the main attraction for years at Chicago's Lincoln park zoo, roamed through the monkey house for two hours before he was frightened back into his cage by a small garter snake.

The gorilla walked out of his cage when an attendant left the door unlocked, but before he could escape from the monkey building doors

Headliners

"... I am certain that with time and patience, and with devotion and sacrifice on the part of the free nations, the United Nations will steadily grow in strength and capacity to fulfill its central function, the preservation of international peace and security," former Secretary of State Cordell Hull said in a statement released on his 79th birthday.

"The roots of Communist aggression cannot be left to grow again into a poisonous tree," a voice of America program beamed to North Korea said.

"... The aggressor's forces should not be permitted to have refuge behind an imaginary line because that would recreate the threat to the peace of Korea and of the world," Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate to the United Nations, said in a speech before the general assembly.

DEFENSE:

Military Gets First Call

In the first sweeping priorities regulation issued by the national production administration, the government gave the atomic energy commission and the military first call on the nation's factories and raw materials to assure success of the rearmament program.

The order required producers to put military orders ahead of everything else—even if civilian production such as automobiles and refrigerators must be shunted aside.

Effective immediately, the order covers most of the goods and materials the military will need for rearmament. It does not, however, cover electric power, farm equipment, fuels, gas, petroleum, and transportation.

In executing the order, the defense department, or the atomic energy commission, will put a D.O. (defense order) priority rating on war contracts with a business firm. This means the company must give first attention to fulfilling the contract, whether or not it wants to.

The firm with the priority contract has the right to extend its priority to other concerns from which it must get parts or materials to fulfill its contract. This puts the war contractor in the position of requisitioning anything he needs, with the government back of his authority.

The automobile industry was the first to comment on the order. A spokesman for General Motors said a cut of 10 to 15 per cent in truck and car production may take place within the next 12 months.

Already hampered by a shortage of certain materials, the spokesman said "now that much scarce materials will be diverted to the rearmament program, there's nothing we can do but plan ahead for a drastic cut in production of civilian goods."

"We'll feel the worst of it in about a year," he said.

and windows of the house were barricaded.

Edgar Robinson, who had tended the gorilla since he was a baby was the only casualty during the two hours that Bushman was free. Bushman bit him on the arm. Finally baby alligators and a garter snake, which the beast dreads, were used to chase him back into his cage where he had lived for 20 years.

MACARTHUR:

Well and Nobly Done

In the name of the people of the United States, President Truman sent Gen. Douglas MacArthur congratulations on the victory in Korea.

The President said in his message:

"I know that I speak for the entire American people when I send you my warmest congratulations on the victory which has been achieved under your leadership in Korea. Few operations in military history can match either the delaying action, where you traded space for time in which to build up your forces, or the brilliant maneuver which has now resulted in the liberation of Seoul."

"I am particularly impressed by the splendid cooperation of our army, navy and air force, and I wish you would extend my thanks and congratulations to the commanders of those services—Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Vice Admiral Charles T. Jolly and Lieut. George E. Stratmeyer."

"The unification of our arms established by you and by them has set a shining example. My thanks and the thanks of the people of all the free nations go out to your gallant forces—soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen—from the United States and the other countries fighting for freedom under the United Nations banner. I salute you all, and say to all of you from all of us at home, 'Well and nobly done.'"

DRAFT:

Vets May Be Called

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, proposed that the draft take veterans and men with dependents and that the length of service for inductees be stretched from 21 months to 30. For that large group of Americans who felt that victory in Korea would mean a slackening of U. S. armed services' need, it was a rude awakening.

Hershey said the pool of men under 26 years of age, and eligible for the draft under present regulations, is down to 1,500,000 and that the rejection rate runs about 50 per cent.

He recommended:

1. Extending the period of draft service, with six months to be spent in training and 24 months in service.

2. Changing the rules for deferment because of dependency so that collateral dependents wouldn't count.
3. Changing the law to permit induction of veterans under 26 years of age.

Hershey also criticized draft qualifications established by the armed services. He contended they are too tight.

Ambassador

Walter S. Gifford, former head of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, was named by President Truman to succeed Lewis Douglas as ambassador to Britain.

FARM PRICES:

Up 9 Per Cent

The agriculture department reported farm prices rose about 2 per cent in September, pushing the level to 9 per cent above that prevailing before fighting started in Korea.

The sharpest gains were reported in cotton, cottonseed and citrus. Other gains of many farm products aided in pushing the farm price level upward.

Prices of commodities and materials and labor used in farm production also increased during the period, but less than half as much as the increase in prices received by farmers.

Also in the farm news, officials reported the government may have to spend nearly as much on potato supports as last year's $90 million outlay.

This year's potato crop is considerably larger than last year's and there is no indication of any change in the long downward trend in consumption.

Price supports on potatoes will be withdrawn altogether on next year's crop unless the law is changed.

Casualties

The defense department announced U. S. casualties in the Korean war as of October 1 totaled 17,200. The total included 2,211 dead, 11,050 wounded and 3,939 missing in action.

Of the dead, 2,211 were killed in action and 230 died of wounds, the department said.

Fifty prisoners of war and 167 other men were included in the missing list.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Ten Key Men Direct Activities Of U.S. Department of State

This is the last of six articles on the state department and its personnel by Walter A. Shead, Western Newspaper Union's Washington correspondent.

By WALTER A. SHEAD

Washington, D. C.—If you know the top men in any organization whether it be a lodge, fraternal organization, business organization, bank or a government agency, you can judge fairly well the type and kind of personnel that go to make up that organization. Particularly is this true of top men in government who necessarily live in a glass house of publicity.

Any person who has met and talked to Secretary of State Dean Acheson is impressed by his earnestness, his sincerity, his intelligence and his integrity. The son of an Episcopal minister, he was born in Middletown, Connecticut, April 11, 1893. He is a graduate of Groton and Harvard with honorary degrees from Yale and Wesleyan. He is a member of the law firm of Covington, Burling, Rublee, Acheson and Shorb in Washington and a member of many important clubs. He has a farm near Sandy Spring, Maryland, where he lives and which is his hobby. If you have a picture in your mind of a suave, highly polished diplomat, never ill at ease, never at a loss for a word, who does not know the words "quit" or "can't," then you have a picture of Dean Acheson.

His next in command is Under Secretary James E. Webb, a native of Granville county, North Carolina. He is a former marine corps major, tall, athletic and a fighter. He is former director of the federal budget and was with the Sperry corporation before coming into government service, and is a recognized master at organization. He is a law graduate of George Washington University, a member of many clubs and well known business organizations.

JEAN Simmons, newly arrived from England to help promote producer Sidney Box' "Trio," suggested that perhaps there was something wrong with her face—"Because I've looked like myself in only one picture." But her beauty has been triumphant whether she appeared as the native girl in

BROADWAY AND MAIN STREET

Frieda Catches Flu, but the Germ Turns on Charlie

By BILLY ROSE

For as long as I can remember, my Uncle Charlie has been complaining of good health—not his own, mind you, but my Aunt Frieda's.

For 40 winters, to hear him tell it, he has been an easy mark for colds, catarrhs and rheumatic pains, while his wife has never developed so much as a sniffle.

Last February, when I dropped in to see them at their Allen Street flat, Charlie was in bed, runny-eyed and carmine-nosed.

"What gives?" I asked. "What always gives?" said my uncle. "Your aunt loses the flu. I find it. She's got a constitutional like a horse."

Frieda was in the kitchen warming up a plaster. "Like a pastrami sandwich she treats me," said Charlie. "I'm all over mustard. Every reasonable woman lays down in bed once in a while. But not her—she won't give me the satisfaction..."

MY FAVORITE relatives came to this country around the time Teddy Roosevelt was elected, and the voyage over, according to Charlie, was the roughest in the history of navigation. It took 23 days and even the captain was seasick. Frieda was the only one on board who ate regularly, and she gained an average of a pound a day. When the helmsman took to his bunk—still according to Charlie—it was the who took the wheel. As for my uncle, he spent the entire trip with his head sticking out of a porthole and, the weather being what it was, it was a miracle he wasn't drowned.

Because of this apparent immunity to disease, Frieda has always been one of the favorite daughters of the East Side, especially when any of the neighbors are ill. For years now, she's been carrying soup and solace to their homes, tending their kids and lecturing family doctors on their therapeutic shortcomings.

"Herself, she don't get sick, but to me she brings back the germs," is the way Charlie explains her.

A FEW DAYS AGO, however, my

SOUCOOK MASSACRE

By Richard H. Wilkinson

CHARLIE Poe lived by his wits. Not because he had to but because he liked to. I could name a half dozen jobs he had been offered, all legitimate, all of which he turned down. He couldn't bear the thought of routine and being tied down.

I met him unexpectedly one day last summer in Boston.

"Not doing a y thing," he said when I questioned him.

"What's wrong?" I asked.

"Looking for something," he confessed.

"If you've nothing lined up," I suggested, "how about taking a ride up country with me? I'm making a two-day trip to Burlington."

"Like to," he said.

We started the next morning. Charlie wasn't the cheerful companion I anticipated. Obviously there was something on his mind.

Halfway across New Hampshire we came to a place alongside the road where a dozen or more cars were parked. A sign proclaimed the reason: "Visit the site of the famous Soucook Indian massacre," the sign read. "Nothing like it anywhere. Free lecture. Offers much by way of historical value. A scene you won't forget. Admission 25 cents."

"Stop!" said Charlie. I stopped. We got out and walked over to a shelter beneath which a mar. was selling tickets.

The man with the tickets saw us and urged us to buy, eloquently elaborating on his printed sign. Charlie dug into his pocket and produced a half dollar. Presently about 20 people had purchased tickets and the man got down off his stool and led us through the gate.

We followed him along the path. He talked as we progressed. By the time we reached our objective we were all steamed up with apprehension.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

By Lawrence Gould

Praise Is Not Always Welcome

Should you compliment a person on what he does best?

Answer: Not if you are trying to ingratiate yourself with him. A person is likely to be slightly bored by being praised for something which he knows—perhaps better than you—that he does well. It's the things about which we are unsure on which we appreciate reassurance. Years ago when we were both young, a friend of the great Fritz Kreisler's told me that the artist merely smiled politely if you praised his violin playing but that he "would be your friend for life" if you complimented him on his tennis. Try it on your boss's golf game!

blocks or interruptions in performance, of varying frequency and duration." These presumably reflect alterations between the worker's conscious determination to keep going and the rebellion of his natural instincts against prolonged, painful effort.

Can jealousy make you appear insane?

Answer: Any feeling which is so strong that it "takes possession of you" may make you insane for the time being in the sense of being unaware of what goes on around you. And it's possible—although I don't believe it often happens—that a jealous wife might be committed to an institution on that basis. For that matter, jealous rage and actual insanity have this in common: both involve "regression" to infantile ways of thinking and behaving. It might take considerable skill to decide whether the condition was chronic or temporary.

Do you slow down gradually as you tire?

Answer: Not so far as your work goes, say three psychologists from Tufts College, Medford, Mass. Whereas tests of isolated groups of muscles show a gradual decline in strength after repeated efforts, the effect of fatigue on working ability appears in the form of "periodic

KEEPING HEALTHY

Proteins—Meats, Milk, Eggs, Poultry

By Dr. James W. Barton

AS RHEUMATISM is the oldest disease known to man, it is only natural that various mistakes as to its cause have been made in past years, one of which was attributing the cause of rheumatism to eating too much protein food, especially meat. This idea persisted for hundreds of years until Drs. Alton Fletcher, Toronto, and Ralph Pemberton, Philadelphia, were able to show that starch foods—sugar, bread, pastry—not meat, were an important factor in causing or aggravating rheumatism.

Another condition or disease for which the eating of meat has been blamed for many years is high blood pressure, which is the principal cause of brain and heart strokes.

While most of us are of the opinion that war never does any good, there was one lesson taught us by World War II that is of great importance to physicians and to patients with high blood pressure. In the American Journal of Medical Sciences, Philadelphia, Dr. J.

Kohari-Kucharik points out that during the siege of Budapest in 1945 the supply of animal proteins was exhausted. This circumstance made it possible to study the influence of a diet free of animal proteins on high blood pressure hypertension. He reports observations on patients who had been treated for two to five years and the majority of whom attended the outpatient clinic fortnightly. Because of the war, only 39 of the original 150 patients could be followed. The period during which animal proteins—meat, milk, eggs, poultry—were unobtainable lasted about 10 months. The 39 patients with long-standing high blood pressure did not show any consistent change in blood pressure after this period.

However, for the average individual free from high blood pressure symptoms, the amount of proteins eaten should be in proportion to the amount of physical work done daily. The less work done, the fewer proteins needed.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Glamorize Tired Closets With Colorful Decorations

By Ertta Haley

IS YOUR CLOSET closet just a place to hang clothes and to store unattractive boxes? Do you hate to open it because it's such a dark unattractive corner compared to an attractive bedroom?

Closets, just like other rooms in the house, can have their own particular charm in decorating schemes. They can be done in the same manner as you've done the bedroom or hall, or they can be decorated in a complimentary color scheme.

The old-fashioned, cluttered storage look which many closets have is now a thing of the past. With fresh ideas put into use, the closet can be an attractive adjunct to the room, a bright and cheerful room all by itself.

With proper use of storage space you can not only get more work out of the closet but also make it possible to give the bedroom or hall a vacation from some of the duties to which it's now accustomed.

For example, closets, if large enough, can become a dressing room as well as a storage center when treated properly from a decorative point of view. Even small closets can be used in this way if the door is papered or painted and has a mirror and a small shelf for cosmetic items.

Closets do not take much paint or wall paper, and neither do the accessories require much yardage in chintz or cording, so the expense is small. If you do the decorating and sewing yourself, cost can be cut even more, and what a lot of pleasure you'll be able to get from an attractive closet.

Add Extra Shelves

Take a critical look at the closet and see whether or not every inch of space is being properly used. Many closets are high ceilinged affairs and all the space at the top is not in use.

If space at the top is going unused, construct shelves there to use for housing blankets and extra bedding, out-of-season hats and clothing. If you want easy access to the high shelves, you may keep a small step ladder in the closet. Smaller shelves can be constructed on lower levels to hold such small items as purses, jewelry, belts, gloves, scarves, sewing boxes and cleaning equipment like shoe polish, brushes and cleaning fluid. If you have carpentering available, it may even be more practical to have a row or section made with small drawers for these items.

Cardboard boxes in different sizes can be covered to house hats, blankets, seasonal purses, fur pieces and other clothing on the higher shelves so they will be clean.

A good covering for boxes is glazed chintz because it sheds dirt and can be dusted easily. If you have glazed chintz in the bedroom, use the same material. If it's floral, a little different, select one of the colors in the floral and use that.

Be certain to repair boxes first if they are broken. Then make a tissue paper pattern by tracing the box. When cutting the pattern from the fabric make allowances for seams. Stitch the seams together, turn right side out and press seams open. Smooth the cover over the box, gluing firmly in place.

Cording, pleating or eyelid ruffle may be used as a lid trim to add a feminine touch.

Protect Clothing With Garment Aids

Quilted hangers are excellent for hanging clothes because they will not permit the shoulders of dresses, blouses and suits to become pressed if space is crowded. They're easy to make and add a lot of charm to closets, too.

To make them, pad the hanger frame with cotton and then cover with bias strips. If you like, add and padded hangers to closet.

perky bow or a sachet at the hanger top for added effect.

Shoulder covers and garment bags are wonderful for protecting suits and dresses from dust. When cutting the shoulder cover, add a little extra for garment bulk. These should be from six to ten inches long and the top should be shaped to fit the hanger.

When sewing the front and back sections together, add cording to the seams for a gay decorator touch. You can make yards of this cording for trim in no time at all with the aid of the cording foot attachment for your sewing machine.

Garment bags are good for the "best" dresses since they make such attractive storage compartments. These are made in the same way as the shoulder covers, but are usually cut as long as the garment itself. You may have long ones for dresses, and shorter ones for blouses. When sewing front and back pieces together, leave one side open for snaps or a slide fastener so that you can have easy access to the bag, and at the same time a dust-proof container.

Garment bags can be made of glazed chintz or other attractive cotton prints that will compliment the bedroom color scheme, if cotton print is starched stiffly. Plastics are good, too, since you can see what's in the bag.

Keep Shoes Neat In Proper Compartments

Shoe bags have long been popular for keeping shoes neat and orderly. When contained in a bag, you have some protection against the dust that is so often found on the floor. A bag hung on the door of the closet, or against one of the walls of the closet is an excellent way of keeping the shoes in a place where you can get to them readily.

Shoe bags which match the garment bags will do much to make the closet an attractive place, and the bags are easy to make. It's a good idea to quilt the back of the shoe bag for extra firmness. This is necessary when finished should be about 18 inches wide and long enough to house at least four pairs of shoes.

If you have a large shoe wardrobe, and enough wall space you can make a large enough shoe bag to house all of them. It will help to insert a flat wooden piece through the top of the shoe bag to give more strength to the bag and enable it to hang straight. This is inserted like the rod to curtains.

Use the binder attachment to finish tops and pocket edgings for each shoe pouch. This prevents fraying, especially when the bag is cleaned or washed.

For the girl who travels a lot, individual shoe bags are an excellent idea. Make these large enough for a pair of shoes, and have extra long drawstrings at the top for closing them. These can be hung on a row of hooks when at home, to keep the shoes in good order.

The shoe bag idea is also good for keeping evening shoes and summer sandals in order. These can be hung on higher hooks when the shoes are not in use. Sew labels on the bags so you'll know what shoes they house.

Glue Fabric to Box For Storage Use

To permit handy access to a storage box, it's smart to make it with a front opening. Cut one side from a square box. Cover the three remaining sides of the box by glueing fabric in place. Now, rejoin the cut side to the box with gummed fabric labels. Glue fabric to this edge. The front side then can be dropped open for easier use.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

The Rich Boy Wants Adventure

"WHEN I MARRIED," writes

Eileen Johnson from Princeton, "I seemed to myself and to everyone else, one of the luckiest girls in the world. Bucky had come to the small California college town where I lived, with a big car, a big income and a big name behind him. It was like a dream to have him fall in love with me. My father was dead. I am an only child. Mother and I came to the Philadelphia suburb where the Johnsons lived, and Bucky and I were married in circumstances of such beauty and luxury as are every girl's ideal. His people were wonderful to me; their wedding gift, among other things, the tree-shaded home in which I am writing.

"Even from the beginning I knew Bucky was spoiled and sometimes selfish, but Mother had warned me it might be that way, and I had much to make me happy. (He loved me—he really did love me then.) And in a few years we had two little boys to raise; our sons are now 4 and 2. Bucky has never made any special fuss over them, but his mother and father and everyone else were so delighted that I guess I didn't notice Bucky much. I thought he was as happy as I was.

Never Was Happy

"But he wasn't. He says now he never was happy with me, and he puzzles me and hurts me by asking if he is supposed from now on to be satisfied to sit around and listen to people praising the children. He is terribly restless, wants to travel, then wants to go west and buy a camp, then wants to get into Hollywood somehow, buy a picture or work in a studio. He picks queer friends, invests money in their schemes, goes off sometimes for three or four days at a time. He does not drink, but he goes to dances and races and dinner places and joins up with various groups. He is very popular. Meanwhile I am alone.

... really did love me . . .

"We have been married six years; Bucky is 31, I am 27. That is young, isn't it? But our marriage seems to have gone dead. Bucky is just plain bored by me and our home and our children. No plans nor suggestions of mine make any impression. He says he wants to be free.

"His mother always has been lovely to me, but she feels sympathetic to him, too, and tells me I must make more of an effort to interest him, that he has always been a difficult boy to amuse, that I must change myself and try to rise to his level and be a real companion to him. And, of course, that is what I want to do, but I feel so discouraged and sad all the time that I can't even start. He truly doesn't want me, and I can't start all over again to make him love me. So my life seems already wrecked, and although I am still young and pretty and have a rich husband and two adorable children, with a third child on the way, I seem to have nothing at all. What shall I do?"

This troubled young wife has run into a very usual situation. A boy raised as Bucky has been raised really does not have much appetite for the somewhat humdrum life of a husband and father.

Just a College Boy

I say humdrum. But of course, life with a young wife, a new home, a nursery full of children, with plans and hopes and joys and anxieties shared, isn't humdrum at all. Only Bucky isn't developed enough to see it that way. His viewpoint is still that of the college boy he was when Eileen met him. He wants change, adventure, new faces; he wants to take chances on trips and friendships and races and gaming tables and theatrical ventures.

To sacrifice one moment of his hunt for excitement, to the demands of small children, the claims of a wife absorbed in the tremendous business of motherhood, seems to him not only tame but absolutely insufferable. He feels trapped. And if his old friends, his parents, praise his wife and rejoice in his increasing family, that only makes him angrier.

All over America young men, situated as Bucky is, are doing what he is doing.

They are walking out on the only things that will make life worth while in the middle years, and the years after that. Long years, and they come fast. Years when the love of wife, home, family, seem to the men who have destroyed them to be miracles; seem like a promised land out of which they have voluntarily shut themselves.

Bucky may be able to force you to divorce him, Eileen; his wealth may make this possible. You may have to raise those children without their father. When you married a rich boy you ran that risk.

Cleaners Find Everything

Carelessness Causes Considerable Concern

WASHINGTON, D. C.—An attendant rushed out of a small suburban cleaning store here one day not long ago, spotted a man on his way down the street and hurried after him.

"Just a minute, sir," she called, and then told the startled customer, "here's your bundle of checks, your address book and your pack of cigarettes."

The telephone rang in the home of a customer of another laundry and dry cleaning firm here.

"Would the gentleman please drop by," asked the voice at the other end, "and pick up the $100 that has just been found in the pocket of his shirt?"

The attendant and the telephone caller were acting out parts that are familiar to members of the cleaning world, some of whom turn pale at the thought of the damage a forgetful customer can accidentally do.

"Take a fountain pen full of ink or a tube of lipstick," said the manager of one dry cleaning store. "We search carefully for them in men's pockets and in the lining of women's skirts," he explained.

"It's only once every two or three years that a lipstick slips into the wash," he added, "but when that happens, it means a day's work for us, doing the garments over again and spotting the stains out by hand."

Ratio of Elders Doubles in Century

The ratio of elders to those at the main working years of life has doubled in the United States during the past century, and has increased by nearly two thirds since 1900.

One hundred years ago there were only about six persons at age 65 or older for each 100 of the population at 20 to 64. By 1900 the ratio had climbed to eight, and since then it has risen even more rapidly and is now 13.

Although the segment of the population at 65 or over has been increasing, the relative importance of the dependent population as a whole has declined, due to a rapid drop in the ratio of children to the population at the main productive ages. The number of children under 18 per 100 persons at ages 20-64 has been cut in half, from 107 in 1850 to about 54 in 1950.

In very recent years, however, due to the war and postwar spurt in the birth rate, this trend has been reversed and the child population has increased at a more rapid rate than people at ages 20-64. This will continue for at least a decade, even if allowance is made for a steady decline in the birth rate from its present level, and at the same time the population at the older ages will continue its long-term upward climb.

As a result, we are entering a period when the country will have to provide for the expanding social and economic needs of both its large child and aged populations, each growing at a faster rate than the population at the main working ages.

Woman's World Accents Economy

Column Also Tells Latest in Fashions

A great percentage of the ladies who read the Mitchell County News are regular followers of "Woman's World," the sparkling homemaker's by Erta Haley, and are appreciative of its week-in week-out value.

They know that this feature is a world of advice for every woman regardless of style trends, current fashions, home sewing, interior decorating and a multitude of other subjects with which the female of the species is properly concerned.

Yet there is matter in "Woman's World" which well might interest most husbands and fathers, also Erta Haley approaches her subjects matter with the average American family—budget and all—in mind.

The result is a wise study in house hold economy. She tells how to outfit the children for school without going broke; how to redecorate rooms and furniture in ways that are in line with the family finances.

In this manner, The Mitchell County News believes a definite service in the name of economy—a service that is all the more valuable in view of prevailing high prices today and cutting corners where ever possible.

And at the same time "Woman's World" continues to speak serenely and fascinatingly to the ladies of such priceless feminine gadgets as new hats, flounces, ruffles, bows and all those things which after all, are coin of the realm in any woman's world.

You'll find the column in The Mitchell County News this week as usual.

KITCHEN MEMO BY JEAN CLARK

SIX for supper and what to serve? Easy on the budget is Macaroni Meat-In-One. To 3 qts. actively boiling water, add 1 tsp. salt. Gradually add 6 ozs. elbow macaroni. Cook until tender (about 12 mins.). Drain and rinse. While macaroni is cooking, melt 3 tbsps. butter or margarine in top of double boiler. Stir in 3 tbsps. enriched flour. Gradually add 1 1/2 cups milk, stirring until thickened. Add 1/2 tsp. dry mustard, 1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1 cup grated cheese. Stir until cheese is melted. Add macaroni and blend well. Pour half of macaroni mixture into bottom of well-greased 2 qt. casserole. Cover with 2 1/2 cups cooked drained green beans (1 No. 2 can). Top with remaining macaroni. Arrange 6 strips bacon over top. Cover and bake in moderate gas oven (350°F.) 15 mins. Remove cover and bake 15 mins. more.

No matter how clean your home, there's bound to be some dust in the air. An air filter, easily installed, on your forced warm air gas furnace screens out dust, keeps it from going through the house.

Emergency plumbing: A handful of soda and a half glass of vinegar poured down a stopped-up drain usually clears it.

A new control for automatic gas water heaters is marked Warm, Lukewarm, Hot and Very Hot to guide the householder to correct temperature hot water.

The equivalent of a 2 1/2-ton truck is lifted every year when women hang laundry on the line. An automatic gas dryer, controlled to any drying temperature, eliminates such laundry drudgery.

Quicker than a knife, and safer too, are kitchen shears for cutting up chicken, ham, salad trimmings and such.

FRED B. ISON DRY GOODS

IRMA ICICLE SAYS
"When frozen foods go on sale you can buy 'em in enormous quantity if you have a big 6 cu. ft. freezing locker to store 'em in! That's the way to save money! It amounts to many dollars a year! And the savings are even greater because you have no costly home freezer investment."

And no depreciation, either—to say nothing of the fact that you can leave town with out worrying about failure and food spoilage! Its cheap, too; less than a nickel a day!

4400 FARMERS KILLED
300,000 INJURED

DON'T "CULTIVATE" ACCIDENTS ON YOUR FARM

A field half plowed—a furrow left unturned—work stopped by accident!

To the farmer, working against time and weather, delay can mean the difference between a crop and no crop, a good year or a lean one. So accidents have no place in his schedule; they cost money, delay production—and the growing season keeps rolling along.

Yet, farming ranks third most hazardous in eight major industries. Think of it, while the death rate for all industry is 29 per 100,000 workers, in agriculture it is 55 per 100,000! One farmer in every 15 is injured on the job! Total—4400 killed, 300,000 disabled by injury every year.

The wise farmer knows where his hazards are—and avoids them. Falls, machinery and animals account for most accidents down on the farm. Their annual cost—$75,000,000. Yet, they're so easy to prevent. Just a little caution is all it takes.

Don't "cultivate" accidents and losses! Instead, "cultivate" safety and success!

Her Mother

Young Nancy was told not to ask her grandmother a lot of questions when she came for a visit because they were annoying to her. "But it's not the questions that annoy her," explained Nancy. "It's the answers that bother her."

He'll Make Good

Her Mother — "My daughter sings, plays the piano, paints, understands botany, zoology, French, Italian—in fact is accomplished in every way. And you, sir?" Prospective Son-in-Law—"Well, in an emergency I suppose I could cook a little and mend the socks."

'Sno Use!

Eskimo Lover — "What would you say if I told you I had come a hundred miles through ice and snow with my dog team, just to tell you I love you?" Eskimo Sweetie — "I'd say that was a lot of mush."

Behind Time

Little Freddie's mother was in the hospital, and he was paying a visit to see his new brother. He wandered into an adjoining room which was occupied by a woman with a broken leg. "Hello," he said. "How long have you been here?" "Oh, about a month?" "Let me see your baby," he then asked. "Why, I haven't a baby," the woman replied. "Gee, you're slow," said Freddie. "My mama's been here just two days and she's got one."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

You can brush out the cuffs on men's trousers easily if you take out the stitches holding the cuff and replace them with metal snaps. From then on, unsnap the snaps, brush, then snap the snaps.

Idle riding boots need boot trees—or a reasonably accurate facsimile—to keep the calf of the boot from getting out of shape. Make your own facsimile by rolling up three or four sections of newspaper; then jam the roll down into the boot leg. Shoe trees in the foot of the boot should be used, too.

Instead of tying the two ends of a broken shoelace together to make it do until you can get a new one, take a little extra time to lap the broken ends over each other and sew them together. A "fix" like that will last longer and look better than a knot.

Nymph Fishing

Zoologically speaking, a nymph is an insect in its immature form. At one stage of its existence, the nymph breaks away from the stream bed and swims up to the surface of the water to moult into an adult fly. Fish, both large and small, devour these nymphs voraciously. The fisherman who can successfully imitate the nymph's journey from bottom to surface will enjoy many well-filled creels. To accomplish this, the fisherman casts his nymph as he would a wet-fly, but allows it to sink all the way to the bottom. From there he fishes it upward in a slow and erratic manner until it breaks the surface of the water to complete the cast.

Soaking the nymph in water, or rubbing it in mud, increases its sinkability when cast. Sometimes a split shot or two on the leader is needed to get the nymph all the way to the bottom. Never oil the nymph or grease the leader or line. Cast upstream and fish as short a line as practicable. During the cast, you can let the fly drift close to and sometimes beyond you before it finally works up to the surface. Trout have been known to strike at the nymph almost between the fisherman's legs, even in fast water.

Nymph fishing produces strikes in every sort of water where trout are feeding. The tip-off on trout which are feeding on nymphs is their "tailing." This is the exposure of the tail-fin of the trout above the surface as he noses downward to meet the up-coming insect. When trout are "tailing" in this manner they will almost never strike a dry fly, or any other fly except those which resemble nymphs, and even those fail to produce strikes unless fished from bottom to surface in the natural path of the living insect.

To impart natural action to a nymph, the angler brings it toward the surface with short, erratic motions, utilizing the pulsing action of the feathers or hackles to enhance the simulation of life.

The strike which comes to a nymph is sometimes so fast and delicate the angler's reaction may be too late to hook the fish. Often the only indication of a strike is a momentary halt or check in the progress of the line at the point where it enters the water. The angler should be alert to see his hook instantly when this halt occurs. Some fishermen find that a bit of white thread tied to the butt end of the leader aids in keeping track of the nymph in fast, turbulent water. Remember at all times, a nymph is an active, energetic creature whose one thought is to reach the surface to moult. Simulate that action and strikes will be more plentiful.

At Long Last!

While long-suffering casting rod addicts were wondering if it ever would be done—the Martin reel people came along and did it! Manufactured, we mean, a reel from which nothing can be lost when it is being taken down or reassembled. Here, in this extremely light-weight reel, there is an entirely new idea in the way of taking it down. When disassembled, there are no parts to be lost for the simple reason that the take-down screws are assembled to the gear cover. It's amazing that someone hadn't thought of such a device years ago. In addition to that most welcome feature, the Martin Model 10, shown here, has an extremely delicate bearing adjustment and anglers will appreciate the ease with which backlashes can be eliminated by the combination of the delicate bearing adjustment and an extremely light spool which starts and stops so quickly, and easily.

A 200 pound shark has a liver weighing about 30 pounds.

Watch Your Step!

When streams are clear and right for fly fishing, there are three things a fisherman should never forget. First, he should always remember to stay out of sight of the trout. Second, he should remember that vibrations made by footsteps along the bank of a stream have a frightening effect on trout. And third, a fisherman should remember that waves, created by wading in still water such as beaver ponds, will cause trout to stop feeding.

GOP to Retain Seats

OKLAHOMA CITY—Indications are that here in the central west plains states the November election will maintain a status quo insofar as the political complexion of the United States senate is concerned. There is, however, a slight chance for the Democrats to gain a seat if the bitterly contested race in Missouri can oust Sen. Forrest C. Donnell, the Republican incumbent.

In South Dakota, Iowa and Kansas, all now held by Republicans, it appears the GOP will hold its own. Here in the Sooner state of Oklahoma a tangle-dangle race is being conducted between Congressman Mike Monroney on the Democratic side and the Rev. W. H. (Bill) Alexander, Oklahoma City Christian church pastor and lifelong Democrat, on the Republican side. Monroney appears to be an easy winner.

Therefore, in their determined fight to recapture the senate, the Republican party apparently has little chance of gaining a seat in this area, and it does have a chance of losing in Missouri. They need seven seats to win control.

Local issues are playing a big part in the Missouri election and the GOP state organization is pulling all the stops on the gambling issue in St. Louis and Kansas City, the murder of some gang leaders in the latter city; resurrection of the old Pendergast issue and the fact that the man favored by President Truman in the primary, Emory W. Allison, lost out to former Congressman Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., who is conducting a whirlwind campaign. Hennings is a colorful figure and while he was considered a New Dealer when he served in the lower house from 1935 to 1940, he made his primary campaign as an independent, although he came out strong for civil rights. Senator Donnell is considered the official i-dotter and t-resser of the senate and is an expert on legal grammar. He has a lack-luster personality and is considered a poor speaker, despite which facts, he has a large personal following in Missouri. Republicans and Democrats alike agree that Hennings is giving the Republicans a tougher race than Allison could have had he been nominated in the primary.

Hickenlooper Favored

In the tall corn country of Iowa, farmer Albert J. Loveland, who resigned as under-secretary of agriculture, is making what appears to be a losing race against proboscious Bourke B. Hickenlooper, the GOP incumbent.

In some circles it was believed that Hickenlooper's back-firing and unsuccessful charges against the atomic energy commission and of Communist infiltration in the state department, would hurt him in Iowa. However, he blasted all opposition in the primary and apparently his Washington failures have not hurt him with Iowa voters. Loveland is an advocate of the Brannan farm plan which is one of the main issues in the Iowa campaign. Although Iowa elected a Democratic senator in 1948 it is considered essentially a Republican state. There are those who believe the GOP may turn to Iowa for a presidential candidate in 1952, with the spotlight turned on Allan Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Carlson Has Edge

Kansas, traditionally Republican, of course will turn the trick again although some election interest is being engendered by the creditable showing being made by Paul Aiken, who resigned as assistant postmaster general to make the race on the Democratic side against Gov. Frank C. Carlson, the GOP nominee. Sen. Harry Darby, appointed by Governor Carlson to fill the unexpired term of the late Clyde Reed, is not making the race.

Alexander Weak

Rev. Alexander, the GOP senatorial nominee in Oklahoma, is a young, handsome, wavy-haired enthusiast, a ready talker who leaves his would-be followers little choice or room to stand on his ultra-narrow platform. He is not catching votes in Oklahoma when he brands all Fair Deal, New Deal and Democratic adherents as Socialists, and brands the President and all around him as stupid misfits. He admits he has been a lifelong Democrat and filed on the Republican ticket after the state organization informed him they were for Congressman Monroney.

Murray Is Candidate

"Mike" Monroney, a former newspaper man, won an impressive victory in unseating the veteran Elmer Thomas in the primary. Local interest is whetted in this Oklahoma election because Johnston Murray, son of "Wild Bill" Murray, colorful governor of an earlier era in Oklahoma politics, is the Democratic gubernatorial nominee. This should make for some hot politics in that state before the election.

Treat the Family to Yeast Rolls
(See Recipes Below)

Bake with Yeast

NO MATTER how simple a meal, its appeal can be enhanced greatly with freshly baked, yeast-leavened bread or rolls. There's a certain home-like charm about baking with yeast and the wonderful fragrance that fills the kitchen with the baking of this kind which most home-makers enjoy.

With a good basic recipe that you have learned to perfection, you can turn out many different styles and varieties of rolls. They're fun to make, and it's nice to serve them fresh and sweet-smelling right from the oven.

HERE'S A GOOD recipe for bread type rolls which is easy to follow:

*Rolls

- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 4 1/2 tablespoons shortening
- 3 cup lukewarm water
- 1 package yeast, compressed or dry granular
- 4 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Scald milk, add sugar, salt and shortening; stir until dissolved. Cool to lukewarm. Place lukewarm water into a large bowl and sprinkle or crumble in yeast. Let stand until dissolved, about 5 to 10 minutes. Add lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in 2 1/2 cups flour and beat until smooth. Add remaining 2 1/2 cups flour and mix thoroughly. Turn dough out on lightly floured board and knead until dough is tightly stretched and shiny, feels springy and elastic and does not stick to the board. Place in a lightly greased bowl and brush top with melted shortening. Cover with towel, let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until double in bulk, about one hour and 25 minutes.

DAD AND THE

youngsters will love these little doughnuts, and they're no chore to make since you simply have to drop spoonfuls of the batter into frying fat, thus saving the fuss and bother of rolling and cutting. They are made from a yeast-leavened batter that will keep nicely in the refrigerator for a day or two, so you can have nice, fresh doughnuts for several days.

Glaze them, if you want to be fancy, or toss them in plain or cinnamon or orange sugar.

Kitchenette Doughnuts (Makes about 3 dozen)

- 1 package yeast, compressed or dry granular
- 3/4 cup lukewarm water
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 3/4 cup melted shortening
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- 3 1/2 cups sifted flour (about)

LYNN SAYS: Use These Success Tips When Baking with Yeast

A yeast dough is rather sticky when you first begin to knead it, but this does not mean that too little flour has been used. As kneading continues, the dough becomes smooth and satiny.

Moderately soft doughs make the best breads, so do not use too much flour during kneading.

If you like crusty rolls after baking, place the rolls in a pan about one inch apart.

Fat for frying
Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk; add sugar, shortening and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 1 cup flour and beat well. Add eggs and beat well. Add softened yeast and mix until dough is smooth. Add remainder of flour to make a stiff batter. Add vanilla and mix until light and bubbly, about one hour. Stir down and cover; let rest for 10 minutes, while heating fat to moderate temperature (350°). Drop batter from teaspoon into hot fat and fry doughnuts about 1 1/2 minutes on each side until golden brown.

SUGARY CINNAMON Twists are a good way to keep cool weather meals interesting as well as nourishing. Try them, too, for refreshments, with a mug of hot mulled cider, milk or a cup of steaming coffee.

Sugary Cinnamon Twists (Makes about 2 dozen)

- 1 package yeast, compressed or dry granular
- 3/4 cup lukewarm water
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 egg
- 3 cups sifted flour (about)
- 3/4 cup melted butter or substitute
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon cinnamon

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk; add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast and eggs. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise in a warm place for about 1 1/2 hours, until doubled. When light, punch down. Let rest for 10 minutes. Mix together the 1 cup sugar and cinnamon. Prepare a 12x9-inch pan by greasing with butter and sprinkling with 3 tablespoons of the cinnamon sugar. Roll dough into a rectangle 10 by 20 inches. Brush lightly with butter; sprinkle a thin layer of cinnamon sugar over the dough. Fold the dough over in thirds so as to have long narrow strips of dough in three layers. Seal edge and flatten strip with rolling pin or hands. Cut crosswise into 1-inch strips. Roll each strip under hands. Place hands at each end of strip and twist by moving hands in opposite directions. Pick up dough at the two ends at the same time and let dough shape itself into a twist.

Place twists side by side into prepared pan. Brush tops of twists with butter and sprinkle with remainder of cinnamon sugar. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a moderate (375°) oven for about 25 minutes.

Baking time of bread depends upon the size of the loaves. A pound loaf will usually bake satisfactorily in 45 to 50 minutes in a hot (400° F. to 450° F.) oven. Plain rolls bake in 15 to 20 minutes at this temperature.

Don't forget to add salt to your bread and rolls when mixing. It gives a lot of flavor to yeast doughs and also helps to control fermentation.

Flour added to the dough after mixing will result in dark streaks and coarse textured bread and rolls.

Growing in Prayer

Lesson for October 22, 1950

LIFE MAGAZINE, which does not set up as an authority on religion some years ago carried a story about a little girl who was going to be confirmed in the Episcopal church. In describing the requirements for confirmation, the reporter said she had "graduated from 'Now I Lay Me' to the Lord's Prayer."

Most Christian ministers, including those of the denomination in which she was confirmed, would agree that (1) if that is as far as she had "graduated," she still had a very long way to go in learning about prayer, but (2) the little girl had got about as far as thousands of "Christians" ever go. They learn the Lord's Prayer when they are children and that's that. When they grow up they don't actually pray, themselves; they leave it up to Grandma or the preacher—or the tiny tots who "sound so cute" saying "Now I Lay Me."

Dr. Foreman

The Lord's Prayer

THIS is not meant to say anything against the Lord's Prayer, or to imply that we are wrong every time we use it. But our Lord did not mean that prayer to be used as a magic formula, he did not intend it as a substitute for our own free prayers. We know this is so, because in the first place he himself never used that prayer again, and in the second place, although dozens of prayers by Apostles and others are recorded in the New Testament, the Lord's Prayer, as such, is never used. Then what is the Lord's Prayer?

It is his suggestion as to the lines along which, and the spirit in which, we ought to pray. (See the book by William Douglas Chamberlain on the Lord's Prayer, "The Manner of Prayer.") One truth suggested by the Lord's Prayer is that we are not alone in the world. Every verb, every pronoun referring to the one who prays, is in the plural—OUR Father . . . lead US . . . We have to remember that God is Father of others, not of ourselves alone; that we dare not be selfish in asking special favors of him for ourselves.

Maturing in Prayer

PRAYER at its lowest level is nothing more than "Gimme." The untaught pray-er may even talk to God as if he were a personal servant, a kind of celestial bell-boy on call whenever we ring for him.

The growing Christian will grow in prayer as in all things; he will pray to the point where, even when he prays as an individual, he will be remembering how many ties bind him to other individuals; he will pray less and less for his own necessities and more and more for what he may share with others. The beginning Christian, the childish Christian, will pray as a child prays. If his prayers were all arrows they would all point toward himself. As for the mature Christian, if his prayers were visible arrows they could be seen pointing into all the world; he will have those in every land for whom he prays, for his heart bears their names in love and faith.

Learning God's Will

A GOOD deal of worrisome argument has gone on over the question: Can prayer change the will of God? We shall be less bothered by that question when we discover two truths.

One is that in the Lord's Prayer, and in the Bible generally, we have already revealed to us the lines along which God's will moves; and the other is that prayer itself is a means of learning God's will.

If we know that God's will is against something, then, if we have any sense, we know there is no use in praying for that thing. If we know God's will desires something, then we can be confident that our prayers in that direction will be heard with favor.

A study of the Lord's prayer, from this angle, will teach a Christian how to pray in accordance with God's will. Paul knew this. When he prayed that his Philippians friends "love may abound more and more," he knew very well that this was precisely in line with the will of the Father who is eternal Love.

Use Chewin'-Gum Laxative—REMOVES WASTE... NOT GOOD FOOD

When you can't sleep—feel just awful because you need a laxative—do as millions do—chew FEEN-A-MINT. FEEN-A-MINT is wonderfully different! Doctors say many other laxatives start their "flushing" action too soon... right in the stomach. Large doses of such laxatives upset digestion, flush away nourishing food you need for health and energy... you feel weak, worn out. But gentle FEEN-A-MINT, taken as recommended, works chiefly in the lower bowel where it removes only waste, not good food! You avoid that weak, tired feeling. Use FEEN-A-MINT and feel fine, full of life! 25c, 50c, or only 10c.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q Will my group hospitalization policy prevent me from receiving treatment in a VA hospital for a service-connected disability?

A No. The policy has no bearing on your eligibility for hospitalization for service-connected causes.

Q My house caught fire the other day and in my rush to get out, I lost my bridgework, which I obtained through VA because of a service-connected disorder.
Will VA replace it?

A Yes, so long as you can produce affidavits explaining the conditions of the loss. The affidavits are necessary to show good faith and lack of carelessness on your part.

Q I expect to join the Army soon, and I wonder if I'll be entitled to GI Bill benefits when I get out. I did not serve in World War II.

A Under the present law, you will not be entitled to GI Bill benefits. Those benefits are limited to World War II veterans who meet certain eligibility requirements.

Q My GI Bill entitlement will run out just two weeks before I finish my final semester in college. Must I pay for those two weeks myself?

A No. Under the law, if your entitlement expires after you have passed the half-way mark in your quarter or semester, VA will carry your policy on the rolls until you finish that quarter or semester.

Q I intend to study in Paris
under the GI Bill. Will VA pay my way across?

A No. You are required to pay for your own transportation.
