Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, July 18.—Charges of manslaughter were filed here early this afternoon against G. N. Scruggs, prominent farmer and ranch owner, following the fatal shooting of B. Bently, negro.

Mr. Scruggs was immediately released on $1000 bond.

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, July 18.—B. Bently, about 40, colored, is dead, and G. N. Scruggs is suffering from two wounds as the result of an altercation that took place on the Scruggs farm, five miles northeast of Memphis this morning about 9 o'clock.

Mr. Scruggs in a statement said of the altercation: "I gave the negro orders to do something about the farm Saturday morning and he refused, and I ran him all over the place with a pitchfork.

"The negro called for his wife to bring him his gun and ran into his shack and I did not follow any further. Then this morning I went to the negro's place again, and he drove up in a car, and without warning whipped out a .22 automatic and began firing at me, and I returned fire with a six-shooter, but none of the shots fired took effect, but I was wounded in the right arm and on the under lip. Both of us emptied our guns, and the negro jumped in his car to drive away and I secured more ammunition, followed and killed him."

According to the undertaker, five shots took effect in the negro, three of which were in the face.

Mr. Scruggs is a prominent ranchman of Collingsworth county, and is counted among the best citizens. He was for about 12 years manager of the J. C. Wooldridge Lumber company here in Memphis, and is well known by all the old-timers.

According to Mr. Scruggs there were several eye witnesses to the killing.

STORM REPORT EXCITES HERE

Midnight Wind Brings Downpour

Raining, coming on the heels of a high wind, brought cooler weather and some excitement for Wichita Falls folks Monday night.

Numerous telephone calls seeking information on reported storms came almost as fast as did the lighting flashes which kept the clouds outlined for more than an hour.

Shortly after midnight strong dustladen winds developed followed half an hour later by rain which brought a noticeable drop in the temperature.

Reports of strong winds in the Petrolia and Byers section could not be verified as telephone circuits to these places were reported out of order.

Railroad dispatchers reported rain along the lines out of Wichita Falls for some distance but no storm damage.

Hot? Try These "Keep Cool" Hints

HOUSE—Close it in the morning and open it in the late afternoon or night. Pull down the windows and shades on the east early in the morning. Before 10 o'clock pull down all other widows and shades, bottling up the cool air and bottling out the hot.

FOOD—Go easy on meats and starchy foods—potatoes and pastry. Eat fruit, vegetables, melons and light foods.

BEVERAGES—Drink plenty of cool water, but no ice water. Avoid alcoholic drinks, because they induce perspiration aside from the other harmful effects. Too many fountain and stimulating drinks are harmful.

CLOTHES—Wear loosely fitted and light clothes, and burden the baby with very, very few.

BATHS—The reaction from a cold bath is heat, therefore avoid. Bathe in tepid water. Go in easy into swimming pools and don't swim too long.

EXERCISE — Enough exercise must be obtained to avoid autointoxication and sluggishness, even though exercise induces perspiration. But be conservative, with your strength.

EXPOSURE—Let your summer tanning come gradually.

COMPOSURE — Avoid excitement. Don't worry over a loss of weight—normal persons lose in the summer.

SLEEP — You need more in summer than winter, because of the heat strain. Older persons should break up the day with rest periods.

A blood transfusion resorted to at 3:30 p. m. proved ineffective.

Crushed by Wheels.

According to the report made the company by Foreman R. O. BOGUS NAMES INCLUDED IN SALARY LISTS

Details Of Road Bureau Money Scandal Are Revealed

AUSTIN, July 18. (AP) — Alleged "dummy employes" carried on the payrolls of the state highway department last year ranged from two in February to 20 in December, and were paid at least $16,385 in state funds, Attorney General Claude Pollard declared late today after the third and last defendant in 11 indictments charging forgery and theft had been released under $2500 bond.

L. J. Nachtrab, former highway division engineer, made bond of $500 each on five indictments charging forgery to the extent of $674 in five alleged transactions involving use of the name "Albert Sands" on warrants.

Former Clerk Indicted

H. C. Tompkins, former chief clerk under Nachtrab, was indicted with him by the recent Travis county grand jury on two charges of theft and one of forgery, and H. Joschke, alleged to have been a "dummy" on the payroll was indicted on three charges of theft.

Nachtrab had been at liberty until he voluntarily gave up, declaring he did so as soon as he heard of the indictments.

Investigations were conducted at Attorney General Pollard's direction by his legal investigator, R. V. Nichols, who worked with the grand jury.

The attorney general said investigations will continue indefinitely. Assistant Attorney General Galloway Calhoun and Miss Preble Neal, stenographer were before the Travis county grand jury which reconvened today.

$16,385 In Fraud

"Mr. Nichols' investigation," Attorney General Pollard said, "that there have been carried on the payroll of the highway department during the period beginning in February, 1926, and ending January 1927, dummy employes in numbers ranging from two in February, 1926, to the peak in number in December, 1926, of 20, and that the amounts so appropriated by reason of such dummies ranged from $139.50 in February to the maximum amount of $2,146.66 at a later time, and that the aggregate amount which the records disclose so far as the investigation has proceeded, is $16,385.27."

FAIN-M'GAHA WELL TO BE DRILLED DOWN

Storage Tanks Installed As Crew Prepares To Go Deeper

PAY AT 1474 FEET

Royalty Deal For $10,000 Comes As Sequel To Oil Strike

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, July 18.—Last word from the Fain-McGaha Matthews No. 1 Roxana well Monday night was that the hole was being cleaned out at 1475 feet with a showing of oil estimated at 75 barrels production per day by Ernest Fain, owner. While extra crews were erecting 1000 barrels storage, the drilling crew was preparing tonight to send the bit further into the pay sand, Fain stated.

An interesting sidelight to the oil strike in the Matthews well developed Monday when John Magua, owner of 160 acres adjoining the site of production, sold one-fourth royalty for $10,000. The purchaser's name was not mentioned.

Two Good Sands.

Two good gas sands were struck in the hole, one was at 555 feet and the other at 1379.

In the 1378 sand a gas output of approximately 1,000,000 feet daily was obtained.

The well is reported to be standing 250 feet in oil which came in when the sand was topped at 1474 feet. The hole is in a caving condition and a liner is being run through the casing to stop the caving.

Due to the Roxana-Fain-McGaha strike it is estimated that the major companies, which hold a large amount of acreage in the county will start drilling operations as soon as rigs can be placed in the field.

Long Oil Search.

The strike is the result of quest in Foard county for oil which has been in process for the past several years. Although many wells have been drilled in Foard county the results have always been dry holes.

The No. 1 Matthews is located in the G. S. F. survey, abstract 117, and is about one mile north of Thalia.

Ziggy Sears Has Dixie Series Habit, But He'll Travel With Spuds This Year

Ziggy Sears still has the Dixie series habit!

Until a few short days ago, 10 years with the Fort Worth Panthers in capacity of left fielder, Sears developed the habit under tutelege of Jake Atz.

Sears is on the payroll of the San Antonio Bears now, team which departed Wichita Falls Monday night after dropping three straight to the Spudders.

The Bears have no Dixie series bent or inclination. Wouldn't mean anything if they did, because the Bears are out of the pennant running.

But Ziggy Sears has.

Six years did Sears travel into Southern Association territory with the Champion Cats and Sears is going again.

Ziggy and Mrs. Ziggy will be members of the fan party who will ride The Record News Dixie series special.

COUNCIL VOTES NEW SIGN LAW

Paving Projects Authorized After Hearings

An ordinance regulating the erection of advertising signs in Wichita Falls was adopted Monday night by the city council.

The ordinance sets up various restrictions for the erection of all kinds of signs and prescribes penalties for the violation of the law.

Bids On Tank Base.

W. E. McBroom, city clerk, was authorized by the council to advertise for bids for the constructing of a concrete base for the 500,000 gallon water tower to be erected on the west side of Wichita Falls. The bids will be opened at the next Monday night meeting.

A complaint filed with the council by the Hamilton-Martin Investment company in which it was set out that the levees of the aqueduct passing through the Country Club estates were of such construction that property damage was likely if an improvement was not made was referred back to the investment company by the council with the notation that the aqueduct was under the jurisdiction of the directors of the water improvement district.

After a protest was entered by the Northwestern Compress company, the council ordered the paving of Pecan street, from Mississippi to California. The project consists of paving 2160 feet. The compress company, with its own property and holding the proxies of two other property owners, declared that the protestants owned 1020 feet. Owners possessing the balance of the property, totaling 1140 feet were in favor of the paving.

Paving Approved.

The council also authorized the paving of California, from Pecan to the alley in block 13. The Northwestern Compress company entered a protest against this paving, however, withdrew the protest when the Wichita Falls Cotton Oil Mill agreed to pay the entire cost of the paving. The compress and the cotton oil mill own all the property on the blocks on California affected by the council's order.

Action on a petition filed for the paving of Hollywood, from Hayes to Grant, was deferred until the next Monday night meeting of the council.

"Watchful Waiting" Council's Policy As County Threatens $5000 Suit

Demand that the city of Wichita Falls pay Wichita county $5,032.62 for the care of indigent patients made Monday by the county commissioners court will be taken under consideration by members of the city council when official notice of the court's order is received by the city government, according to statements made Monday night by members of the council.

Wait Official Notice

Although the order was passed Monday by the court the official notice is not expected to be received by the city until Tuesday.

Members of the council said that they had received unofficial information that an order had been passed by the court but until the official notice was received they did not desire to make statements.

The money claimed by the county is for the care of patients at the General hospital and at the county poor farm.

30 Days to Pay

The court set out that if the amount was not paid within the 30 days that a suit will be filed by the county against the city.

That the city owes the amount, which is one-half of the cost of the care of the patients, from Jan. 1, 1923 to Jan. 1, 1927 is the contention of the county. According to an agreement between the two governments, the order sets out, the cost is prorated equally between the two.

The court awarded a contract to F. C. Egan for the painting of the courthouse flag-pole.

Practically the entire session Monday of the county commissioners court was devoted to tax matters, following the adjournment of the county board of tax equalization, which is composed of members of the county commissioners court.

Melon Patch Raiders, Sprinkled With "Freezing Salt," Later Fined in Court

Too frequent raids on the melon patch and peach orchard of Will Bamgardner, a farmer residing two miles east of Wichita Falls on the Petrolia road brought a present of "freezing salt" to five young men about midnight Sunday, according to Deputy Sheriff R. D. Morris, who effected the arrest of four youths subsequently fined in the court of R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace.

The melon patch of the farmer had been raided just a week before, stated Deputy Morris, and several juveniles rounded up for the offense. When the five young men were caught in the field, they were made targets for a shotgun with coarse salt substituted for shot. The firing was so peppery that they abandoned their automobile. Deputy Morris, called by the farmer, checked up on the car and arrested the boys. The four were fined $1 and costs for malicious mischief by Judge Gwinn. The fifth was still at large late Monday.

Ambulance Race May Save Life Of Electra Man Rushed Here

In a race with death, Joe J. Yearly, 23, won, for some time at least, Monday night, when he was brought to Wichita Falls from Electra in a record breaking ambulance run and placed in the Wichita Clinic hospital where an immediate operation for internal injuries prolonged his life.

Yearly was injured June 23 while working in the oil fields near Pampa, while lifting a heavy piece of machinery.

Not considered as serious at the time, Yearly decided to go to a Dallas hospital for an operation. He stopped two days ago at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joe Woods in Electra.

His condition took a change for the worse Monday night and Electra physicians ordered his removal to the hospital and gave him a two to one chance of surviving the trip from Electra to Wichita Falls and the operation.

Marines Fight In Nicaragua

with bullets, throwing confusion into them and finally driving them away.

Bandits are roaming all over Nicaragua, slaying and looting, according to the state department. General Sandino's band was reported to have seized an American-owned mine, the San Albino, presumably in a demand for a large sum of money.

All political parties in the country were said to be united in a drive to break up these bands. The American Marines are cooperating in that work, the state department spokesman announced.

Bandits apprehended are immediately disarmed. General Sandino was believed to have organized the surprise attack upon the Marine forces with the hope of heading off their drive to disarm his forces.

Report of Attack

Eberhardt cabled:

"Sandino with far superior numbers is reported to have attacked the 87 American Marines and Nicaraguan National Guard at Ocotal early yesterday morning (July 16) and to have suffered a decisive defeat after some 16 hours' fighting, when our airplanes made the rout complete, Marines losing one killed and two badly injured. Sandino is reported to have lost about 200."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, filed a protest with the state department against "warfare" between Nicaraguan Liberals and American Marines."

GRAPHIC STORY TOLD OF MARINE BATTLE.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 18. (AP)—A graphic account of the engagement between the American marines and Nicaraguan constabulary and General Sandino's rebel forces at Ocotal has been sent by Arnaldo Ramirez Abaunza, Jefe Politico of Ocotal to President Adolfo Diaz by airplane. He describes the battle as one of the fiercest in the history of Nicaragua.

Sandino opened fire on the city from all directions at 1 o'clock Saturday morning. There were shouts and cheers for Sandino and "death to the Americans."

The fighting became general, but it soon was evident that the stronghold of the Americans could not be taken.

"The constabulary fought bravely in municipality park," says the account. "My machine guns were sending forth death everywhere. A 'Browning' on the comandacia closed the approaches. Two Lewis guns raked the yard. American sharp-shooters kept the corners clear. Anyone so imprudent as to cross met death.

Americans Stand Fast.

"The hosts of Sandino sweep on, attempting to capture the park, to use the stone wall for protection. It is now daylight—the Americans have not retreated an inch. The constabulary maintain their positions. The American sharpshooters are piling up the dead.

"Rufo Marin falls seriously wounded at a corner where seven men have been killed. Rufo is a young man of good appearance and the right hand of Sandino. With his death there is some confusion.

"The fighting decreased a little; the rebels take advantage of the calm and loot whatever is left to loot.

"Porfirio Sanchez with several of Sandino's generals offer me and the director of police safety and protection if we surrender. I refuse.

"Sandino remains at the entrance of the city directing the movement of his troops. He sends a note to the heroic captain Hatfield intimating that as he (Hatfield) had to water he would eventually have to surrender. Hatfield replied:

"Marines DeQant.

"Received your message, and say, with or without water, a marine never surrenders. We remain here until we die or are captured."

"The captain and his gallant men are fighting like lions. The fighting continues.

"It is 10 a. m., two airplanes are seen. They fly low and fire on Sandino's forces, and fly away. We all know they will come back with more bombs and planes, and the people become frightened. Non-combatants ask me to speak to Sandino, requesting him to retire for the sake of humanity. This I know he will not do.

"Five airplanes are seen at 3 p. m., they approach in battle formation then they get in line, flying low and open fire with machine guns. They drop bomb's on Sandino's army which now is beginning to retreat.

"The explosions of several bombs are heard consecutively. It was as if hell broke loose—quick—explosions, then a heavy thundering one, something indescribable. The bombardment lasts about 20 minutes.

Americans Feted.

"Five p. m., everything is quiet. All rush into the streets to congratulate Captain Hatfield and Lieutenants Darnell and Bielaner and their brave men for their heroic defense. They are blackened with gun-powder from seventeen hours of continuous fighting.

"On the comandancia floor I see a marine dead—the only casualty among the Americans. I go to the constabulary. There is none dead, only four wounded.

"In the park and inside the houses are Sandino's dead. In one place I count twenty-one and I and I have not looked around.

"We regret the death of Senator Jose Maria Paguaga, who was accidentally killed by the constabulary while attempting to jump over the constabulary wall for refuge. Among non-combatants there were a few casualties, about six."

CLUB HEARS HEALTH TALK

Anti - Tubercular Society Urged By Speaker

Forty-nine citizens died from tuberculosis during 1926 in Wichita Falls, an increase of 30 over 1925, Miss Jean M. Campbell, representative of the Texas Public Health association, said in an address delivered Monday at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Miss Campbell, who is conducting a tubercular survey in Wichita county, stressed the necessity of the organization of an anti-tubercular association in Wichita county.

That tuberculosis is not hereditary was the assertion made by Miss Campbell during her address. Unfavorable living and working conditions, lack of substantial food and recreational facilities, overwork and faulty health habits lead to the propagation of tubercular germs, she said.

Members of the Henrietta, Lawton, Duncan and Ardmore Kiwanis clubs are expected to attend the next meeting of the Wichita Falls Kiwanis club which will be held Monday.

First Methodists Aid Colored Church With Offer of Building For Meeting

By a unanimous vote of members present, the First Methodist church Monday night tendered the use of its building to the Colored Methodist Episcopal conference which will be held here in October.

The action, which is believed without precedent in this section, followed an announcement by Presiding Elder W. J. Johnson that the local negro congregation would not complete its building in time for the conference which meets here in October. It was then voted that the First Methodist building be offered for use during week days of the colored conference.

Approximately 70 members of the church attended the banquet given by J. J. Perkins, chairman of the building committee, Monday night in the basement of the church. More than $206,000 has already been placed into the new building of the church, it was stated at the meeting, and plans are being made to proceed with the work with a view of dedicating and opening the building at the same time. Several talks and a musical program featured the banquet program.

Cleanliness that reduces Laundry Bills

THE GENERAL use of gas throughout your community makes yours a clean, smokeless community. Of course you share in the general benefit—but what is the cash value of this cleanliness to you? For one thing, it is in direct proportion to the size of your laundry and cleaning bill. Your total expenditures for laundering and cleaning clothes would be at least, one-third greater in any coal-using community; you save this difference here. You also save on cleaning drapes, rugs, furniture and automobile upholstery, etc., because of the greater cleanliness of gas. A little thought on these advantages of Natural Gas, in addition to its cheapness and convenience, shows how really fortunate one is to be living and raising a family in a Natural Gas community.

A Bright, Sprightly, Gossipy Woman Is a Joy—But the Woman Who Should Be Muzzled Is She Who Blabs Her Family Secrets, Who Tells Her Husband All of Her Past and Who Loud-Pedals Her Domestic Mistakes Instead of Drawing Attention to Her Virtues.

The charge that women talk too much is as old as creation. Doubtless that was the snappy comeback that Adam handed Eve when her gossip with the serpent resulted in spilling the beans and getting them chucked out of their rent-free country estate.

Anyway, from that day to this, women's conversational ability has been a tradition and an ever-present alibi for men in times of trouble. For whenever a secret leaked out that should have been kept as dark as the grave; whenever a scandal got started; whenever a husband wanted an excuse for going downtown of an evening; whenever there was a scandal jam, why, it was all laid on women's tongues. Men rolled pious eyes to heaven and cried out that women talked too much.

This is a mistake. Women do not talk too much, but they tell the wrong things. It is as desirable for a woman to talk a lot as it is for a bird to sing a lot. What man would want for a wife a dumb woman who sat up speechless of an evening and never enlivened the dinner table with any little gay chit-chat about the neighbors, or any little buget of gossip that she had collected at a bridge game, or on a trip downtown?

How dreary and dull and drab and cold would be the atmosphere of the home if the mistress of it sulked and grouched around and had never a word to even throw at the cat. No. Better a human phonograph; better a woman who chatters as meaningless as a canary; better even a nagger than the woman who doesn't talk at all.

It is not the quantity of women's talk to which objection can be made. It is the quality. They choose the wrong topics and become indiscreetly loquacious about things that they should bite their tongues off rather than discuss.

By this I do not particularly refer to what is known as gossip, for taking it by and large, the gossipers do far more good than harm. They are the secret service agents for law and order, with an eye behind every curtain and an ear at every keyhole. Fear of what the neighbors will say does more to keep men and women walking the straight and narrow path than do all the Ten Commandments. Besides, there is no reason why our friends and acquaintances should take better care of our reputations tha we do ourselves, and so long as we do things to get ourselves talked about we have no just reason to complain because people do it.

I like a babbling woman, and I never turn a deaf ear to the gobsiping woman, until after I have heard the last detail about the awful thing about the A.'s, or how perfectly terrible Mrs. C. was carrying on with Mr. D. at the country club. These talkers serve their purpose and make this a gayer and more entertaining world in which to live.

But the woman I should like to see strangled is the woman who blabs her family secrets and tells things about her domestic affairs that would never become known if she did not herself publish them to the world.

I have known wives to ruin their husbands' credit and precipitate bankruptcy upon them by telling that John's business was bad, and that he was worried about how he was going to meet his notes in the bank. I have known women to smirch a daughter's reputation by tellig about how late she stayed out at night, and what a wild crowd she ran with, and how unmanageable she was. I have known mothers to ruin a son's chances for life by telling how lazy and trifling and unreliable Tom was, and of the trouble he had gotten in by getting his accounts muddled at the store where he worked.

Why do women tell these things that bring shame and disaster on those they love, and that nobody would know if they kept silence? Heaven knows. Perhaps it is just because they are poor, weak, leaky vessels that cannot hold anything without spilling it.

Their excuse always is that they "only" told it to mother, or an intimate friend, and did it in strict confidence. And they never seem to realize what traitors they are to their own households when they reveal its secrets to others, or that when they expect others to keep their secrets they are giving strangers credit for more loyalty and discretion than they possess themselves.

Many wives who wonder why their husbands never tell them anything, and why their husbands sit up dumb as oysters at home, can find their answer in the fact that their husbands cannot trust them; that their husbands are afraid to tell them anything because they know that they will run around to mother's, or to their intimate friend, the first thing in the morning, and tell them all about it, and so it will be broadcast to the world.

Women tell the wroog thing when they tell the men they are going to marry everything they ever did and thought of doing from their babyhood up to their wedding day. This furnishes the husband with an inexhaustible supply of jealousies and suspicions to which he can add as black a hue as he desires. And in times of anger it adds fluency and point to his repertory of abuse and makes every word cut like a knife.

Men have more sense than women about this. A man doesn't consider it incumbent upon himself to confess all of his little sidesteppings, and this is well. For what is done is done, and it adds to no wife's happiness to know about what other woman her husband has loved in the past. The important thing to her is that she is the one he loves in the present and the future.

This holds equally good with women in relation to their husbands.

The wise girl never boasts to her husband of the men she might have married and didn't, nor does she exhibit to him the dents in her heart that some other man has made, nor wallow in the mire of a morbid confessional. Her mistakes and her blunders she shuts up in her little skeleton closet and throws away the key, instead of handing it to husband to open up every time he gets in a temper.

And last but not least, a woman tells the wrong thing when she keeps calling her husband's attention to her mistakes instead of her virtues. Half the time the husband would never find out that his wife wasn't a good manger, or that she made foolish bargains, if she didn't tell him so herself.

The discreet wife throws her biscuits when they are heavy, in the garbage can and maintains a masterly silence, but she gets out a brass band when they are light and flaky.

All of which is well worth consideration from the talkative sex. For it isn't how much women say, but what they say, that gets them in wrong. DOROTHY DIX.

The B. Y. P. U. of this city entertained with a most delightful party in the basement of the Baptist church, Thursday evening, when members of the Epworth league were their guests. Indoor games were played with Misses Ruth Francis playing the piano. Mrs. E. M. Francis directed a very clever contest, with Cecil Grapt winning the Bible as the prize.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cakes and lemonade were served to 30 guests. The committee on arrangements for the B. Y. P. U. was composed of Misses Lucille Owens, Lucille Owens, Lillie Melton and Mrs. E. M. Francis.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Brown, those inseparable neighbors, were planning a party. "Shall we serve lemonade?" Mrs. Jones asked. "Let's make a punch," said Mrs. Brown. "I saw a splendid article on berry juices."

Berry Juice

Berry juices are delicious for fruit punches and are excellent for quenching the thirst when added to plain water or the carbonated waters. You will appreciate a large supply when the sizzling days appear not long hence.

It is easily made—just warm the berries slowly and press out the juice. Add one cupful of sugar to each quart of juice, bring to a boil, pour quickly into jars or bottles and seal.

Select whatever berries you prefer—strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, currants, are all good and a combination of currants and raspberries is delicious.

Another Romance Broken

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT of New York has gone to Reno. He has gone there to seek a divor from his wife, Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt. He is suing because his wife would not. He makes bold to admit that they were just mismated and there is no other man or woman in the case. Cornelius is a journalist. He writes for magazines and for daily newspapers. In the not remote past he was ambitious to become a great publisher. He established tabloid newspapers in five states. He sunk a million dollars in his investment. Then the ghost failed to walk. The Vanderbilts deserted him. Cornelius was compelled to get out on his own and work his little typewriter to the limit.

He is dead game. He moved from a mansion to a hall bedroom and sold his stuff wherever he could find a buyer. His father is worth $40,000,000. He has no use for journalists—that is, in the Vanderbilt family. Just the other day his sister became the wife of Henry Gassoway Davis of West Virginia. Gassoway is a mining engineer. He is an aristocrat who is not afraid of work. Pa Vanderbilt had no use for him. Ma Vanderbilt was ambitious for daughter to marry an English nobleman.

They threatened her. They locked her in her room. She made her escape. She got in touch with Gassoway. They obtained a marriage license. A justice of the peace tied the knot. Cornelius made a neat bit of money in selling the story to the metropolitan newspapers. Now he is ready for the severance of his own matrimonial knot. Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt is a Tennessean by birth. Martin W. Littleton of New York is her brother. Charles C. Littleton, a prominent Republican politician of Texas and a millionaire cottonman is her brother. Jesse W. Littleton, banker and Republican politician of Tennessee is her brother.

Martin W. began his career at the early age of 17 as a section hand on the Texas & Pacific railroad not far from Weatherford in Parker county. He made money tamping ties and walking the track. He saved the money. He bought lawbooks. He became a lawyer. He married a Texas girl. She had some money. She advised her husband to abandon Texas for New York. He accepted the advice and found himself in the great city. Rachel visited the Littletons in the city of New York. There she met young Cornelius Vanderbilt. It was a case of love at first or second sight. This not many years ago.

General and Mrs. Vanderbilt are for Rachel. Their home is her home. Cornelius has no home. He has been banished. He played with the tabloids and lost a million. He refused to accept parental advice. He flouted smart society. This put him on the outside of the holy of holies. Young Cornelius must be a throw-back. Now the first Cornelius Vanderbilt, the founder of the Vanderbilt fortunes, made his start as a clam digger and clam seller. He began in the mud and floated to the top. He was the founder of one of the royal families of New York. He was the first American Napoleon of the rails. He accumulated a fortune of $200,000,000 for his heirs to handle after the founder of the family and the family fortune found rest in a million dollar tomb.

Young Cornelius did not begin in the mud unless tabloid journalism had its origin in the sewer. Now he is wifeless and moneyless, a free lance writer who lives his own life and tells the Vanderbilts and all the balance of the world to go to Hades if they do not like his style. How like the lowly clam digger who became the king of American rails and amassed a colossal fortune in Wall street.

Cost Must Come Down

"THE cost of producing cotton must come down," editorializes the Dallas News. "The world is pretty well agreed as to that. Every farmer wants it to come down. He would rather sell 12 cent cotton at a profit than 20 cent cotton at a loss. The farmer is business man enough to get that."

In 1926 the American growers produced a crop of 18,000,000 bales. Price of cotton hit the earth. Two million cotton growers, mostly tenants or croppers, faced abject poverty. If the cotton growers of the south had produced a crop of 12,000,000 bales in 1926 there would have been high priced cotton, and the tenants or croppers would not have been face to face with financial disaster.

Why should it be the mission of the southern farmer to grow low priced cotton for the textile manufacturers of the world? The latter are never face to face with starvation. They are not in debt year in and year out. They do not eke out a precarious existence from the cradle to the grave.

If there is to be a revolution in the system in the cotton growing states, then the land owners, the bankers and the supply merchants are the men who must destroy the old system and invent a new one.

As for the tenant cotton grower he never will be able, without outside assistance, to crawl out of the rut where he found himself at birth.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 18. (EFS)—That free and extemporary amusement which is to be had all over New York is not absent in the most dignified of streets, Park avenue.

Driving down that thoroughfare the other afternoon I was halted by the traffic lights at Sixty-seventh street. There a young woman was trying to cross in her car. She let out her clutch; the car jerked forward, and the engine died. She started the motor; it roared and the car careened backward. It stopped, bumped crazily forward as though it were drunk, and finally the lady at the wheel had the car in hand, and got across. But not until taxicab drivers had passed remarks, such as: "Them women drivers ought not to be allowed to drive a car."

* * *

At Seventy-fourth street three young men were fooling with a bottle of milk, trying to open it. One jabbed a knife into the pasteboard stopper, while the others bent their heads and watched the operation. The milk bottle acted as milk bottles are in the habit of acting when opened by inexpert hands. The milk sprayed out with a great explosion, covering the youths with white liquid. The bystander who seemed to enjoy their plight the most was an elderly gentleman with a beard, nattily dressed in a cutaway coat, striped trousers and top hat. He nearly doubled up with laughter. In fact, he laughed so hard he nearly got run over by a truck.

* * *

No funny-paper story could be more improbable than the things that happened every morning at most suburban railroad stations near New York. At these stations in the morning there is always a line of cars waiting to discharge husbands who are on their way to town. Invariably each car contains one husband and one wife. The husband is driving. He stops the car at the station platform, he kisses his wife, and she slides over into the driver's seat. When he has taken about 10 steps the little woman usually calls him back to ask him for money. He digs into his pocket, hands her a bill, and she drives off.

In the evening the process is reversed. The wife drives to the station and parks the car. Husband's train comes in, and husband gets out. When he reaches the car he leans over and kisses the wife. She slides over from the driver's seat and he takes the wheel and drives off.

Certainly there is nothing wrong in this. And personally I approve of the custom. It is a routine custom into which my wife and I are habituated like other commuters. But just for variety's sake, I should like to see one of these wives (not mine) when her husband bends over to give her the evening kiss, give him a good sock on the nose.

* * *

One of the biggest successes of the recent bills at the New York motion picture houses has been a news reel depicting the president at his birthday party in the Black Hills. A mounted troupe of Boy Scouts, it seems, presented him with a 10-gallon hat, a pair of ornate high-heeled boots, spurs and chaps, neckerchief and colored shirt.

When the picture of Mr. Coolidge was thrown on the screen in that outfit the audience broke into gales of laughter. Puzzled by this lack of reverence, I made inquiry at several theaters where the news reel was shown, and discovered that the spectators never failed to react in precisely that way.

* * *

Engineering progresses with the needs of the city. It is no uncommon thing in New York to see such a technical miracle as the building of a five-story building in order to insert a series of stores on the ground floor.

* * *

According to an interview with Lillian Gish in a magazine, Miss Mabel Normand "must be pursued by an evil genius. She hasn't an unkind thought in her head. It just happens that she is always around when the gun goes off."

PRESIDENT'S DEATH PLOTTED

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi's Idea Of Roughing It — By JAY V. JAY

The figure on the float is Dad. He's thinking about his vacation, or rather the vacation he thought was his. Polly is going to show Dad that she knows how to rough it. Didn't she bring this practical bathing suit, a style designed by Patou? The trunks are short and the top piece blouzed just a little.

It was difficult to convince Dad that Mitzi and Polly could "rough it." The most telling argument Mitzi presented was this culotte skirt of flannel. Mitzi wears it in its trouser form, and Polly wears one with the pleated panel snapped in front, converting it into a conventional skirt. They wear sleeveless sweaters.

Polly changes into a very simple silk sports dress for dinner. At least, will be dinner? Until then Polly chases the birds away with some more or less musical chirpings of her own. It's strange and not very welcome music to Dad's ears. "Dad who has come seeking the solitudes of the pines and the hemlocks."

"Who is cooking the fish?" asks Dad. "Who is building the campfire? Who has opened the can of beans?" Utter silence. "But can't we go out for dinner?" meekly suggests Mitzi. Dad nearly steps all over Mitzi's new braided sandal. "Out where?" asks Dad a trifle sarcastically.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natlee Jones. Becoming interested in Lyra Hilliard, he finds himself falling in love with her. Natlee, overhearing him making love to Lyra, breaks her engagement.

America enters the World war and Phil is one of the first to enlist. Just before leaving for France he meets Natlee again and they plan to be married. The immediate departure of the troops, however, prevents this. The regiment is ordered to France and Phil is wounded and decorated for bravery.

After the armistice, Phil comes face to face with his mother, who has come to France to hunt for him. She is accompanied by Major Aukland, who is devoted to her Mrs. Tracy learns with dismay that Phil intends to marry Pat, a rich French divorcee. Phil compromises with his mother. If she will refuse Major Aukland's proposal of marriage, he will give up Pat for two years. They return to America.

Mrs. Tracy invites Natlee to their home. Natlee seems cold and distant and Phil is then convinced that she is interested in Jerry Kenyon, her father's young business partner.

About this time Phil receives a letter from Pat telling him that a marriage has been arranged between herself and a wealthy Frenchman. Sick at heart, Phil's thoughts turn to Lyra and he goes to her. Fearing for Phil's future if their unhallowed love continues Lyra sends him away from her with a lie. Disillusioned Phil realizes his only chance of happiness is with Natlee if he can but win her again. He drives madly all night in his hasts to get to her. He finds Natlee at home leaning against the old trysting place.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTE LIX

A NEW GENERATION IS BEGINNING

Phillip Tracy stopped the car beside the old elm tree.

"Natlee," softly Phil spoke her name. She turned her head and looked vacantly at him.

"Natlee," he said, "I've come for you." He got out and opened the door of his car.

"My own car will be here in a minute," she said.

In an instant he was beside her. "Natlee, why do I find you so early in the morning at our tree?"

"It is not our tree, Phillip Tracy," He noted with despair that she called him "Phillip." "It is Rod's tree, hallowed by all the times he tried to comfort me. The last time I really saw him was here the night before he went away forever, and I had nothing better to give him then than to tell him I was glad he was going because I knew he would take care—oh, it is too horrible. Even at the time he had made his last gesture of love for me and for you; both of us unworthy."

"Don't you know? Were you not notified?"

"No. I was away from the house all day yesterday. Come, get in the car and tell me all about it."

After a slight hesitation, Natlee Jones entered the blue roadster and sat close to the fur coat which Phil had kept on all through the long night's ride.

With the feel of her next to him, he got back all he had been longing for: all he had never found since that night when they took their first ride in the other blue roadster.

"Natlee, sweetheart, now that I've got you again, I'll never let you go."

The girl peeped around his arm up into his face. "I promised Jerry Kenyon last night whether I would be his wife or not."

"How does he look with two front teeth out?" Phil's voice was triumphant. He had arrived in time.

Natlee laughed. It was the same old incorigible Wynne; the one she had lost the night of the party.

"Wynne, you are a brute. The sight of his disfigured face was what made me let him think that maybe at last I would say 'yes.' But you re not driving me toward my place."

"I know it."

"Where are you going?"

"I don't hardly know myself, Natlee. It will depend upon you."

"Wynne Tracy, when did anything that you wanted to do depend upon me?"

Phillip turned a radiant face toward her. She had called him by the old love name again. She had called him "Wynne." He would tell her now. He would put it to the test.

"Since the time you and I used to ride on the front seats of your father's milk wagons," he answered.

Phil felt Natlee come even a little closer to him.

"Darling, I am taking you into some outside town where we will find a judge or a minister, and be married.

"Are you crazy, Wynne?"

"No, I think I have just become sane.

"I love you, Natlee; have always loved you and always will love you. I was not thoroughly conscious of this until last night, and then my only ambition was to get to you as quickly as possible and tell you so. I was a great way from you both in body and spirit, when I found this wonderful thing out, and I have driven all night, hoping, praying that I might not be too late.

"Natlee, darling, do you—can you love such a foolish, unworthy person as I? If you can't, the world will be a living hell for me, I know you deserve some better man, and I think I could have given you up to Rod, if you had told me you loved him, but I can't think you love Jerry Kenyon, and I'm going to take you away from him.

"I am going to keep you forever more, just for myself, for without you, sweetheart, I would be lost to everything."

Natlee had said nothing, but her face had become as bright as the morning, as she snuggled further into the embrace of Phil's arm.

"What will your mother say, Wynne?" she asked after a long pause.

"She can say nothing, but I think she will be glad. Natlee, do you know that now, for the first time since I came home, I feel that there is something in the future for me. We will do great things together, dear. I wish old Rod was here."

"He is here, Phil. I told you the truth at the tree. I was keeping a tryst with him there this morning. Do you know that before Rod went to France he made his will and left everything he had in the world to you and me—my two truest and best friends, whom I hope will in time become one,' said the will, which I read yesterday, and which you would have done had you been here. Strange we should have gotten this message from him just at this time.

"When I got home from the attorney's office, Dad called me over to his house and told me Jerry's version of the fight. Jerry came later, and between them they made me decide to tell Jerry today that I would marry him. I did not rest much last night, Wynne. About 12 o'clock I dropped asleep, however, and in a dream I saw you in a blue car coming toward me at a terrific pace, calling, 'I'm coming, Natlee, wait for me.'"

"That is what I did say, Natlee, and now that I am here, will you marry me this morning? You can go with me to get the license and then we will rout the preacher out of bed to marry us. After that, we will go back to the hotel and have breakfast.

"Wynne." It was a timid little voice that spoke his name. "Don't you think that it would be very cruel to rout the minister out of bed, and besides, the place where you get the license would probably not be open until 9 o'clock. Let's get our breakfast now. I am very hungry."

"So am I, but I did not know it. Someone always has to suggest things to me. Miss Jones, May I have the pleasure of breakfasting with you for the last time?"

Natlee raised a startled face to him. "The next time we breakfast together, Natlee, you will be Mrs. Phillip Wynne Tracy, sweetheart."

It semed only a few minutes afterward to Natlee Jones that, breakfast was over, license obtained, she was standing in the little living-room of the parsonage and the minister was saying: "I pronounce you husband and wife."

Then racing back to Phillip's home. As they reached the front of the house, Phil made a great honking of the horn, and finally brought his mother to the window.

"Mum, Mum, I've got her. Isn't she a beauty?"

It was not necessary to explain to Anne Tracy what had happened. "Come up here immediately, you two. I want to kiss my daughter," she called from the window.

"Can do it now, Mumsie. We're going over to beard Natlee's father. If we're not shot full of holes, we'll come back for a day."

Anne Tracy sat motionless as they whirled down the street and out of sight. Finally she turned from the window and looked about the room. It was already lonely. From now on it would probably grow lonelier each day. She tried to peer into the future; to find some hope that she might cling to.

She seated herself on the old familiar chaise lounge. The unbidden tears ran down her cheeks. This was a mother's destiny. She it was who had suffered and battled and prayed that this son would grow to be a man worthier than his father—yet before she had finished her work another woman had taken him, and they would carry on together, while she was alone.

Another woman was taking up the duties of wife and mother; a new generation was beginning. She turned her head from the light of the window; the tears were coming faster.

There was a knockat the door. Nonnie came in. She, too, had seen Phillip and Natlee, and needed no explanation of Mrs. Tracy's tear-stained face.

"Don't you worry, Mrs. Tracy. Things aren't ever so bad as they seem," and, with a smile, she handed her a card.

"SICK" GALL-BLADDERS.

The gall-bladder is attached to the liver, and acts as a small reservoir for bile which slowly flows into it from the liver and then gradually the gall-bladder feeds the bile drop by drop into the intestine. If too much bile is being manufactured by the liver, the gall-bladder will be overworked and often becomes inflamed or enlarged. The enlargement is really due to inflammation of the cystic duct which conveys the bile from the gall-bladder to the intestine. When this biliary passage becomes inflamed the swelling of the membrane inhibits the flow of bile and, consequently, the gall-bladder often enlarges. The bile retained in the gall-bladder is then forced back into the liver. This brings on biliousness, headache, nausea and sometimes, jaundice, as the system must re-absorb the accumulated bile and throw it out through the kidneys or some other channel.

Inflammation of the gall-bladder may exist with or without gall stones. The differential diagnosis between inflammation or catarrh of the gall-bladder and gall stones if often quite difficult. The X-ray cannot always be depended upon to discover gall stones, and even the new Graham dye examination does not always show the difference between the inflammatory process and the formation of calcareous masses of stones.

The gall-bladder that does not function properly, either because of gall stones or because of inflammation, can be a serious menace to one's health. Surgeons who are often not sure of their diagnosis recommended an operation for the removal of what they now like to term a "sick" gall-bladder. That expression has grown to mean a gall-bladder that does not function properly. Patients who have been ailing for years with enervation, depression, low blood pressure, slow pulse, biliousness and occasional jaundice are now more frequently advised to have their gall-bladder removed, and the results that follow such operations are often remarkable. If the gall-bladder is "sick" the entire system will be poisoned day after day by the retained bile. The gall-bladder becomes a veritable cesspool of poison, the removal of which marks a quick return to health.

My experience in my private practice has shown me that the largest majority of these cases can be cured by proper dieting. It is first a question of cleaning out the liver and gall-bladder through fasting, and a restricted diet, then teaching the patient how to correct his habits of living so that the gall-bladder will not again become "sick."

Questions and Answers.

QUESTION: G. M. writer: "Could you tell me a remedy for my fingers? They are extremely cold, then they start swelling first in the joints—then working up to the fingertips. The soreness starts by small lumps forming under the skin, then becoming very red. By touching anything cold my fingers get blue and numb. Would like to find a cure, as I have to work for a living."

ANSWER: Possibly you are having some kind of functional heart trouble. Your physician should be able to tell you whether my guess is correct. Send for special articles on heart deranagements and poor circulation.

QUESTION: Miss Ruth R writes: "Please tell me if Rhubarb is good for a person."

ANSWER: If rhubarb could be made palatable without the addition of so much sugar in its preparation, my answer would be "yes," but as it does require this excessive amount of sugar, I never recommend it.

QUESTION: B. F. S. Writes: "Four years ago I was operated on for frontal sinus trouble. All went well till this past August. Since then the incision in my nose and part of my eyebrow has been breaking open about every week, with a discharge of pus and bloody serum. What causes this, and can it be stopped?"

ANSWER: Operations for sinus and antrum trouble are usually disappointing, as one operation follows the other in an attempt to get rid of the pus condition which can be cured only through cleaning up the blood-stream. A ten-day fast should clear up your trouble, and if you will then live on a suitable diet it should not return.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God.

My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God?

My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?

When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me; for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with the multitude that kept holyday.—Psalm 42:1-5.

After days and weeks of distress caused by this skin trouble from which she could get no relief our physician prescribed Resinol Ointment. FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25-CENT BOTTLE

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and 50-cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

Rhodes Is Name Given Newest Town Established On New Denver Branch

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, July 18.—Rhodes is the name of the newest town to be launched near Plainview on the new lines of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railroad which are under construction. Rhodes is the town which will be at the junction of the Fort Worth and Denver's main line from Plainview to Estelline, and the line from Silverton to Lubbock, Lockney and Petersburg 11 miles north of Lockney, and 16 miles east of Plainview and in Floyd county.

The town will be located on a tract belonging to Earl Fuqua, Amarillo banker, and it will be promoted by T. C. Ward and W. A. Gergstrom, experienced town promoters who launched Roxana, the now oil town in the Panhandle oil fields. J. S. Harrison is now working out the plans for the plat of the city.

The selling of lots in the new town will begin probably around August 1, according to Ward, who is already in Plainview making arrangements for the sales.

Ward displayed a map which shows the improvements which will be placed at the junction town. According to Ward, a depot, 500-foot gravel platform oiling station, water pumping plant, water reservoir, and station, sanding plant, engine house, and several repair tracks will be located at Rhodes in addition to other minor improvements. Ward says that the payroll of the Denver will have more than 65 people on it all of the time at Rhodes, and that during the time the rails are being laid, 1500 people will make their headquarters there.

Rhodes is surrounded by a well-developed diversified farming section and in Floyd county, one of the outstanding agricultural counties of Texas.

ETTA KETT — By Robinson

KID DUGAN — By Dick Dorgan

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 19, 1927.

Friend Al,

Well, Al, I wish you was going to Europe with us because on account of us being good will ambassadors I have been learning to speak French, and I guess I will knock the boys for a loop. You remember when we use to parlee-voo with the Frogs during the war, well who should walk in on me yesterday but a walking delegate from the American Legion and you could have knocked me over with a 155 gun when he said,

"Mr Keefe, I hear you are going to France and we want you to be the advance man of the American Legion when you get to Paris."

I says, "Leave it to me. I'll fix everything up O. K."

He says, "How do you mean O. K.?"

I says, "I'll square it so the Frogs won't think there's another war on them when the boys get there."

When Dugan and I get to Paris, the ticker tape will probably look like a snow storm.

Yours,

Jack Keefe.

This Day in History

ON the 19th of July, 1553, Mary I. was proclaimed Queen of England. She was known as "Bloody Mary" because of the bloodshed that occurred during her rule. The number of heretics and martyrs burned while she ruled reached 300.

"IT'S AN ILL WIND THAT BLOWS NO FELLOW SOME GOOD!"

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

SOME folks say that Nature, the High Lady, is against man. But at the worst she is only indifferent to his fate! Doesn't give a care whether her weather makes him jump with joy or think of jumping on a dust heap and passing away with meditation on the perverseness of things. But there's something about this remote, immovable Goddess that is kindly toward lovers; for she seems continually mixed up in their love affairs, the beauty, the settings, the success of them! If the farmer does not want rain it may be a watery gift from heaven for the lover who finds the lady of his devotions out on the rain-swept street without an 'ella. Wind may drive mad the nervous person who has no lover's iron in the fire; but it drives a pretty girl straight into the arms of an admiring stranger and enables him to put some of her precious possessions, that had galloped off down the street, into her hand. It may be an ill wind for the out-of-love-with-love, but from that violent meeting on, Nature, even in her worst moods, takes a hand in the story and brings it to a happy ending. Then fog, and the same pretty girl indignantly popping against him. But when she sees that she has knocked his hat off, and that he is the same nice young man who gave her back her vanity bag, she cannot pout. She speaks. Hurray—they are almost friends! Then it snows. Again the pretty girl—hopping on one foot with a lost slipper, from a taxi to a friend's party. This time, with a dizzy head—it's a marvel that he gets there! He CARRIES the delightful little person that has begun to colour his dreams with rainbow hues, into the house, and is invited to the party himself! Then rain—and she is delighted to see him and his umbrella!

For the next episode Nature clears her skies. Hand in glove with Cupid. And they label it "Perfect June Weather!"

And you know what happens in June—quite often.

No—Nature may have a contempt for the convenience of the rest of the populace, but she has arranged sets especially for Lovers since the world was made!

A Defense of Working Wives

By Lucy Lowell

HERE is a woman who believes wives should work outside their homes if they wish.

LUCY LOWELL

Most women wish to do something, she explains, and since so much of their work is done for them now, what is there left but jobs? She writes:

"Dear Lucy Lowell:—

"With all manner of electrical devices for shortening hours of labor in the home, wives have too much time on their hands if they don't go to work outside their homes.

"I think it is a very good thing for them, for if they are idle they are sure to get into mischief, especially women who live in cities and have no children. They lose money at bridge and flirt at tea dances and finally end up in the divorce court.

"Even women who have children have a nurse maid, or someone to take care of them, so why shouldn't they work? Business and the professions give women all sorts of opportunity to express themselves and keep up with progress.

"ONE OF THEM."

The thing wrong with this picture, it seems to me, is the idea that a woman can't find plenty of self-expression in taking care of her children.

Leaving some nurse maid—a girl who does the best she can but who, necessarily, is a person of not too much education and ability—to rear children while the mother goes roaming out to some office or shop to preen her ego with the notion of self-expression is nothing short of criminal.

There is no human being who can teach and train and help children to grow, as their own mother can, providing she is a good mother.

And it is her duty to be a good mother. It is up to her to study motherhood; to learn all she can about woman's highest and most important job—rearing children—and to put what she learns into practice.

A woman not willing to do this has no right to children and no right to marry.

And the wife who refuses to have children because she lives in the city where space is cramped and living conditions difficult for little ones, should move to the country.

Which is the more pathetic and tragic figure; the mother who leaves her children to be brought up by a nurse maid, or the wife who refuses to have children and goes to work outside her home to express herself?

What do YOU think?

Dr. Reed Discusses Vital Secrets of Health

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

IF you are an expectant mother, there is one thing in particular you should remember: To begin the care of the child's health at birth is to begin too late. It is now recognized that infant welfare depends on the good health and habits of the mother all through pregnancy. It may be said that it depends on the whole of her life before pregnancy. But that is a much larger question.

CHARLES A.L. REED, M.D.

What needs to be done is to see that all mothers have the chance of coming under medical care during the early months, and are taught to take it.

Women, if left to themselves, are generally content to leave their preparations to the last month or so, and only after many years of propaganda are they beginning in any considerable number to go to the maternity center or their doctor's consulting room at the beginning instead of the end of this critical period.

Much of this let-alone attitude is due to the mischievous and widespread belief, the old bunk, that it is natural that a woman should suffer illness, pain and all kinds of discomfort in child-bed. Mothers have considered it ridiculous to consult a doctor for misery which they had always been taught to believe came in the way of nature, and would not do so as long as their endurance enabled them to keep on their feet. Now, however, more and more of them are realizing that it is not natural to be ill during pregnancy, and that they should take their discomforts to a doctor.

I treated this subject in a recent article, but I find that Lady Barrett, the leading woman obstetrician of England, has recently emphasized some additional points that are of importance. Thus she says it is hard to make mothers believe that they should seek advice before disorders come and not wait until they are actually suffering. Expectant mothers should know that pregnancy is a perfectly natural and healthy condition; that the mother should be in good health and well-being throughout; but it is an exacting process and uses up a large portion of her reserves. She is not as resilient nor as resistant to illness and damage at this time as she is at others. She should therefore place herself under observation from time to time in order that illness and discomfort may be prevented before they occur and not merely treated when things have gone awry.

Propaganda of all kinds in town and country is still badly needed, not to teach mothers what they should know, but to teach them that they have much to learn and to get them to attend the centres where they will learn it.

What does a mother actually get when she goes to the antenatal centre? She should get three things:

Advice about her way of life.

Medical examination to see if her general health is sound, and also to see if she is normal from a child-bearing point of view.

Observation from time to time and warning about danger signals about which she should at once seek advice. At least one medical examination is most important. If the mother should be suffering from any general disease or illness of pregnancy, which demands rest, the doctor will arrange for her to go into hospital, and if he sees that her labor is likely to be difficult he can insure that it will take place under proper supervision.

Tomorrow—Seeing Things.

Our Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

HE never fought in any battle-line and never knew war's loud-resounding roar, nor saw the bursting star-shell's fury shine where peace had reigned supreme for years before. He never swept with swing of marching feet and waving banners high in bright array through ranks close-packed along a city street to tear-wet eyes and music loud and gay. And yet he was a conqueror who knew no fear of any odds or any foe, his faith was flawless and his courage true as that of any knight of long ago. He fought dark hate and fear and dire distress, before the winds of life none saw him bend; he never yielded to the day's duress, but went invincible until the end.

Imagination Your Best Aid in Teaching Child

By L. Lamar Matthews

ON rainy days the Bellamy children play "Prince and Princess." Lawrence waves a gold-tinseled wand over the head of his sister and she is immediately transformed into a Princess.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

Then Edith takes the wand and waves it three times over the head of her brother and he becomes a Prince, who is brave and true and strong.

Sometimes he ties a sash around his little middle and puts a be-plumed hat upon his head. And always she drapes an old lace bedspread around her shoulders and carries in her hand a dilapidated feather fan. On different days they do different things. But ever and always they remember to conduct themselves as a Prince and Princess should.

In a little secret note book, Edith has set down in her own handwriting the things that a Princess must remember.

A Princess is always kind and gentle.

A Princess never speaks in loud, ugly tones.

A Princess never slams a door.

A Princess never handles other people's belongings.

A Princess never makes noises while eating.

There are many other such statements, but these will suffice.

In his secret note book Lawrence has written these sentences, among others:

A Prince always tell the truth.

A Prince never hurts dumb animals.

A Prince is always polite to others.

A Prince never rushes in front of others.

The game started way back in the Winter time when they were convalescing from the measles. Their mother had to think up some means of entertaining them every day and one day she was reading them a story about a Prince who rescued a Princess and lived happily ever afterwards.

"Let's play Prince and Princess," Edith suggested. Lawrence was willing, and so the dual personalities came into existence.

Every now and then Mother had to remind the little girl that this or that was never done by a real Princess.

"For she is of royal blood and the manners of inferior persons never suit her," is what Mother said.

Then there were things that she told Lawrence that a Prince did or didn't do. One day they found some little note books that had been left at the door as advertisement, and they decided to write in the a the rules for royal conduct.

Being highly imaginative children, they played their roles with as much earnestness and zeal as though much depended upon the success of their enterprise.

It is encouraging to see how easily the lessons of courtesy and good breeding can be taught through some fanciful device. That's why it seems a pity to let any child grow up without this teaching.

When a child's manners seem a part of him instead of something that has been assumed for a special occasion, he is truly well trained. For good manners come of good training and those whose training starts in early childhood have a head start over the majority of people.

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Bonnie Sees Folly Again.

"YOU must believe in yourself," Bonnie Clair told Roy Scarlett in the softest voice she could manage. "And you must forget that your wife doesn't — oh, I didn't mean to say that. I'm sorry."

ANN LISLE

"I'm sorry. But I guess it's true," Roy said slumly.

Bonnie had been serving sherry with the delicious dinner she insisted she had cooked, though black Chloe was serving it with an amused and very wise air. Roy always got sentimental and sad on sherry—when he got the sherry. And he had been treated to several other things at Bonnie's little nest of an apartment. The prohibition law was one of the many which didn't interest Bonnie Clair.

Roy hadn't meant to be a cad about Viv. He had merely meant to be pleasantly untrue to her. Not mentally, just emotionally. But now Bonnie was beginning to take possession of mind as well as of body.

"I believe in you," Bonnie said after a judicious interval given over to surrender of her lips and arms and perfumed sweetness.

"You make me believe in myself," he told her.

She found this endless chain of talking about him a bit tiring, so she said with carefully stressed abandon:

"I know you can reach up and take the stars down if you want to. You're a big man. You're the only one who has ever made me feel that I would be proud to surrender—" Roy breathed a deep sigh. "The big man" was a scant five feet five, and Viv was a superb five feet seven even in her lowest heels. Roy hadn't been able to help falling in love with a wife who made him look smaller than he was. He didn't try to avoid falling for a woman who made him feel taller and bigger than he ever felt before.

Bonnie was a wee gypsy thing. She nestled. Roy liked it. He would have enjoyed an evening of such dalliance—of kisses and of having Bonnie find various ways of appreciating his getting the Shannon account. But Bonnie was fed up with Roy's vanity and tired of feeding it. So she said with an air of having completely forgotten duty for love:

"Roy—you dangerous man! It's after 10. And I am hostess at the Bon-Bon, not merely a dancer. I've got to run. Come with me. I can't bear to have you out of my sight a minute. I want to rejoice with you all evening. I'd cut the whole business if it were mine. But I owe something to the people who trust me to run their club, don't I darling?"

"Now how could I trust you if you weren't loyal to your obligations?" Roy asked pompously.

"You're so understanding," she sighed. "I'm just a little fool. I wish—for your sake—I were twice as wise," she sigher. "Now I've got to run. I can't go to the club in this chiffon rag. And, anyway, look how crumpled it is—you big, strong cave man."

Roy beamed and stretched and yawned and behaved like the panther, the sleek black panther, she made him feel. He even ventured something very daring about helping her change her dress. But she laughed and shook her finger and ran away to Chloe's ministrations. He thought of her tenderly, did Roy. She was a fine little girl and as shy and sweet and modest as if she hadn't been in the show business all her life.

Bonnie was in flame and scarlet chiffon with a bit of green in its swirling masses when she returned and let him wrap her cloak of black lined in scarlet about her soft little body. Her costume went perfectly with the Bon-Bon, which was a jewel box of a little club with flame and green walls and a big seashell platform at one end supporting a wailing jazz orchestra and riding high above a fountain which was Bonnie's piece de resistance.

There was a "stunt" at the Club Bon-Bon which had made it the talk of New York. The dozen girlies who disported there were known as Bonnie's mermaids. She called them her trained seals. All the girls wore their hair straight and cut in sleek bangs over their wise young eyes. And all of them wore tight bathing suits under their dresses. From time to time during the evening one of them would climb on a table, scream insanely, rip off her dress and then dive into the fountain. . . And when the girl who had performed her "trained seal" act disappeared to dry off a bit one of the men at her table always took charge of the discarded dress and also disappeared, presumably to see that it was returned to its owner.

The couvert at the Bon-Bon Club was five dollars a person. The ginger ale was two dollars a bottle. Orangeade and such innocuous drinks were two-fifty. . . You couldn't put a "stick" in orangeade, so the house lost by serving it to you. The food was good and not too high. Chicken a la King and chicken salad were only three dollars a portion!

Every one stared as Bonnie brought her "new victim" to her table. Roy felt that he really was a big man. Wasn't he defying MacNeil Shannon for this wonder girl of his? He felt like a hero as he arose to dance with the hostess. He felt hurt and maudlin almost to the point of tears as he realized that he wasn't commanding Bonnie's complete attention. He wondered who had caught his girl's eye.

Bonnie also was wondering. Sam Kerby, the famous theatrical producer, had come in with a little china-blue-eyed blonde. An elderly, would-be flapperish little person. But vaguely familiar to Bonnie and strongly reminiscent of something Bonnie felt it was to her advantage to remember—at once.

"It's Folly Duane!" Bonnie said with sudden triumph. "Sure—I remember now. Folly and the red-haired kid."

She started toward Sam Kerby's table, dragging Roy with her. And Folly's china-blue eyes widened with fear as she saw Bonnie coming.

To Be Continued.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Fine Note Paper.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Noticing your answer to a reader tonight regarding letter paper, I'd like to ask you this: What of the popular orchid papers they are showing now? Don't you think the delicate tints pretty?

2. Also, what do you think of the cut-out letter?

3. Do you approve of paper engraved like this:

Miss Jane Brown
47 Lincoln Place
Los Angeles, Cal.,

and having the name and address on the center of each sheet—the paper being monarch size?

4. Is a colored sealing wax correct?

5. And is the initial stamp, the last initial, such as G, the proper stamp? E. T. G.

NO, I really can't say that I do. I am fundamentally devoted to white or light gray paper of an appropriate size, and of an excellent texture. To me orchid shaded paper comes under the classification of "bizarre."

2. The cut-out monogram is very popular now and is, I think, quite effective if it is beautifully done. But when it is beautifully done, it is also extremely expensive.

3. The form you give is the form usually printed—although it may be engraved—on the sheets that one uses for business letters or professional letters. This form is not correct for social letter paper. And even when this form is used on writing paper used for business letters, no abbreviations are used.

4. Yes.

5. Yes. Either the last initial is used or the two or three initials are made into a monogram.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

DONLEY GAINS IN TAX VALUES

Bank Deposits Also Show Sound Progress

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, July 18.—Bank statements issued this month and the county taxable values show a decided increase over a year ago in Donley county. While banks as a whole are more conservative than a year ago and are not putting out as many loans the financial reports of this county seem to indicate that the people are less in debt and are living more at home with the farmer practicing diversification and a live at home program to a greater extent than ever before.

Total deposits in the three banks of this city are more than one million dollars, amounting to $1,087,371.11. Loans and discounts are very low amounting to $602,712.63. Cash and sight exchange amounts to $564,532.92, a very good figure for this year. These figures indicate the prosperity of Donley county and show the county to be in excellent financial condition.

From reports given out by the tax assessor the taxable values of the county will be close to the $7,000,000.00 mark for the year. This is an increase of $566,000 over the rendition of January 1st, 1926. This increase in county valuation was brought about in a number of ways. A few valuations were raised but in the main the increase came from a high line built through the county by the Central Power and Light company, and a pipe line from the oil fields.

IOWA PARK PERSONALS

IOWA PARK, July 18.—R. T. Danner returned Wednesday from South Carolina where he and his family spent a month's vacation. Mrs. Danner remained for a longer visit with her mother, Mrs. Langford at Beaufort. She will probably remain for another month.

Mrs. J. N. Cunningham and two children left Saturday for Amarillo where they will spend two months with Mrs. Cunningham's mother, Mrs. Geo. Perry.

Grandma Bledsoe had a severe attack of pleurisy last night but is some better this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis left Wednesday evening for Denton where Mrs. Lewis is attending summer school. They had been here for the funeral of Mrs. Lewis' father, W. H. Johnson, and while here were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Sisk.

The first Lindbergh stamps were received by the local postoffice Thursday morning. They are long blue stamps containing the picture of the Spirit of St. Louis and sell for 10 cents apiece. The postmaster, C. C. Burrows, stated that he had sold none yet, but expected to have calls for them.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williams and family arrived home Wednesday from Little Rock and Hot Springs, Ark., where they had spent two weeks visiting relatives. They reported a splendid time, and reached home just ahead of the rains in time to avoid the bad roads.

Thelma, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Bain, has been suffering for about a week with an attack of erysipelas.

W. R. Davis and son, J. Frank, have gone to Wellsville, Kan., where Mr. Davis is making improvements on his place. They expect to be gone about a month.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Barbour returned last week from a trip to California and Yellowstone Park. They went in their roadster and were gone a month. A part of their way lay over the Old Santa Fe trail over which the early pioneers travelled when travel was more hazardous than it now is.

R. B. Sisk had the unusual experience of driving a truck from Breckenridge to Fort Worth one day this week without a stop on the way. When he reached Mineral Wells he drove down a side street until he reached a street which had only two traffic signal lights and as those being in his favor he passed through the town without a halt.

Miss Ruth Galey returned Tuesday from Denton where she attended summer school. She will teach next year at Panhandle.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tarbro went to Mineral Wells this week. They were to meet a brother of Mrs. Tarbro there and go camping for a couple of weeks, probably in the Davis Mountains.

Mrs. Mark Hines and two daughters, Margaret Sue and Blanche were here Thursday on their way home to Petersburg after a two weeks' visit in Mount Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Dunn are visiting in Grapevine.

Mr. and Mrs. Boon Smith and daughters, Misses Dosia and Viola returned Friday from a trip to Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Miss Rae Golden has as her guest her cousin, Miss Annabell Poole of Lubbock. The two girls are planning to go to Moran Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hall on their return home.

Mr. and Mrs. King Abernathy left this week for a two weeks' trip in their car to Waco, Houston and Galveston where they will visit with relatives.

While returning from Denver, Ill., to her home in Quincy, Mrs. Dan Kane, formerly Ruth Davis, passed a car with a Wichita Falls license tag on it. She stopped and spoke to the occupants and learned that they were Mr. and Mrs. Menke and daughter, Anna Marie of Wichita Falls who were visiting in Quincy, and were to go to Chicago before returning home. They found that they had friends in common in Iowa Park, both being friends of the Goetze's and Mertens, north of town.

Mrs. Gussie Akins and two brothers, Lenevill and ...m Nugent have been visiting relatives in New Mexico, and are now at Hereford with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Majors, who are well known in Iowa Park, Mr. Majors having been lease foreman on the Ruyle farm for about 10 years before going to Hereford. The visitors are expected home Saturday.

A card from J. E. Keller was read at the Methodist church Sunday morning giving an answer to a number of cards which had been sent him by friends. Mr. Keller, who is recovering from an operation that was performed immediately upon his arrival at Colorado Springs where he went with his family on a vacation, stated that he was resting preparatory to another operation.

John Frederick Cornforth and his friend, Jack Blackstock are the guests of Mrs. Alice Trice, stopping off on their way home to Waco after three months spent in Oregon. They visited Yellowstone Park and the Grand Canyon on their way home.

HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 228 Schaeffer St., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at sometime in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

THE HOME STAND SO FAR: SPUDDERS 9; OPPONENTS 1.

• • •

And now the question seems to be, where'll we go, Birmingham or New Orleans?

• • •

SPUDS ALL FOR BARONS

All the grandstand managers and holiday seekers can catch more fun in N'Orleans, but the athletes themselves much rather would play at Birmingham. You can make much more coin with a Dixie series in the bailiwick of the Barons than the home of the Pels, the word has gone around. So while lots of folk are pulling for a New Orleans spurt and pennant victory, the Spudders themselves are praying, if ball players pray, that Birmingham holds its head up and cops the rag.

• • •

OYSTERS OUT OF SEASON

Zero in sports: These philanthropical guys who buzzed, "Sure! Great stuff; we oughta do something noble for them Spudders," and then when a pennant fund was started shriveled right up so pie-eyed quiet you feel like you're walking in a graveyard whenever you pass through a crowd of them. So quiet it would take 20 of them at once to make a noise louder than a whisper.

• • •

WELL?

Whipping through the day's news, observes the prima donna around a mouthful of breakfast food, "Here's woman wins divorce suit and $50,000 because husband neglected her."

"Gosh," oogled this lesser half, "is that fair to the poor devil?"

"Cheap," answered she and calmly commented, "It's bad enough to be cussed and beat up, but to be ignored . . . that's downright unbearable."

Yus, yus, the lady of the family reads the paper at breakfast in our house, not the gentleman.

THE QUESTION BOX

Question: Dear Sir, Please tell me who's leading the league.

Answer: What league!

Question: Hello, that you? Well, who won the game today?

Answer: Faith. (Don't strike. No fair, now)

Question: Who's the town's most important man?

Answer: It is NOT the mayor.

Question: Well, who is?

Answer: The bettle brow who hit the ball hardest in yesterday's game.

Question: Kind sir, what did he do that for?

Answer: Oh, the match was fixed and far be it from HE dishonestly to break a trust with fellow matman.

Question: Hey, you! Who's the bigger fool, you or I?

Answer: You are if you read this stuff (isn't it terrible?) to the end and really think you're learning something.

Question: Please, please, you cunning man, tell me how to clean out mosquitoes.

Answer: You lose. That's not a question; it's a request.

Question: Well, HOW can I clean out mosquitoes?

Answer: Have you ever tried Epsom salt? (You lose again; no answer).

Question: Why do motor cops?

Answer: Enough, Sill. Perhaps they can't help it, but enough now. Throw this slop.

CLEVELAND, July 18. (AP)—Boston and Cleveland broke even today, Boston taking the first, 14 to 5, and losing the second, 4 to 0, when Buckeye kept the hits so well scattered that the Red Sox were shut out. Summa also gathered a double and a single in three times up in the second game. Burns hit his 38th and 39th doubles of the season, placing him one ahead of his record year in 1926. The score:

CUBS SPLIT WITH GIANTS.

NEW YORK, July 18.(AP)—An even break in a double-header with the Giants today cost the Cubs the leadership of the National league, Pittsburgh nosing them out by a single percentage point by winning two games.

Chicago won the first game here by 6 to 4 on Hartnett's homer with Grimm on base in the tenth, after the Giants had failed to score in the ninth with the bases filled and none out. The New Yorkers won the second half by 3 to 2 after taking the lead on a homer by George Harper with one on base. The score:

ESTELL AND STEENGRAFE ALL SET FOR CUB DOUBLE HEADER

Waco Outfit Baits League Leaders In Brace at Spudder Park This Afternoon.

It hardly could be called a crucial series, but it isn't expected to be anything along the order of soft pickin's.

The dashing Mr. Derrill Pratt and his whim-whaming Wacoans blow into town today and launch a three-game assault on the citadel defended by the well-known Williams wallopers this afternoon.

Two sallies are on the books for Tuesday's p. m., first contact timed for 3 o'clock.

To throw back the invaders, Williams has Saliva Tom Estell and the mighty Milton Steengrafe. These righthanders are ready for the affray and the customers can feel reassured of a bargain bill worth far more than the money.

The Waco team comes to Wichita Falls comparatively fresh, having rested through Monday. The Monday game was played Sunday with Dallas.

The Spudders will be out for revenge or something on the Cubs for this team remains the only one in the league that holds an edge over Wichita Falls on the seasonal series. Waco has won five games to date from the Spudders and has dropped four to Williams' men.

Although two-thirds of the crop was destroyed by drought this year, the Union of South Africa will produce 12,000 bales of cotton.

Dempsey Ready For Mr. Sharkey

Flynn Says Ex-Champ Will Unjoint Adversary

By LEO P. FLYNN.
Manager of Jack Dempsey.
Copyright 1927 By New York American and Universal Service.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 18.—I let Jack Dempsey do a little work today when I decided that he needed it. He did no boxing but he went through enough work to get up a sweat. That is all he needs.

He was hitting better today than he has hit all week, when he arrived here he was hitting from the ground but now he is putting them in short and snappy. That is the Dempsey of old. All his punches when he fought Willard and those other birds, were short and dynamic. He is getting back to that style, and you can tell Sharkey for me that he is going to get a lot of jolts that will knock him loose from his gizzard.

Sharkey Not So Good.

Honestly, I don't think much of this Sharkey person. Mike McTigue had him licked until a dental plate broke in Mike's mouth and ruined the fight. Do you think Mike could stand up against Dempsey that long; Ask Mike himself.

One thing I want to deny is the report that I am trying to make a flat footed fighter out of Dempsey I am merely trying to get him out of the habit of boxing away up on his toes.

To hit properly with any amount of horsepower, it is necessary to have a foundation. You've got to have a heel on the ground at sometime during your swing. Any golfer will tell you that.

Dempsey came out here with the idea that he had to box up on his toes. That is a lot of extra work and it takes away from the hitting power. I put Dave Shade in with him and Dave showed him what was wrong. He demonstrated how to weave and box in the right way, shifting from one heel to the other.

Jack is a natural fighter, and it doesn't take him long to shake himself from foolish ideas that somebody might have taught him.

The reason Dempsey worked today and will work tomorrow is I thought he needed the work. There is nothing mysterious in that. I have heard that Tex Rickard called me up last night and asked me to put Jack back to work, but that is a lot of hokum.

Look Out Kearnes.

When he needs work I will give it to him, and when he doesn't need it we will let him rest. He is just at 195 pounds now and that is the weight he will fight at.

He was too light when he fought Tunney and I don't intend to let him make that mistake this time. He had a lot of worry at that time, but he is a different fighter now. Nothing is going to worry him in this fight—not even Jack Kearns. If Kearns tries to start anything he will have to tell it to me, and I am the kind of a bird who can tell it right back again.

You will see a different Dempsey in the ring Thursday night.

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 18. (AP)—Jack Dempsey has slightly injured his left arm in training, Leo P. Flynn, temporary manager of the former champion, admitted tonight. The arm was hurt several days ago blocking punches of sparring partners, Flynn said.

Spudders Sweep Series When Fussell Wins 15th

Eminent Wronghander Quite Right — Jenkins Clubs Two Homers—Griffin and Benton Slug Wild With Lamb Piping In

BY BLONDY CROSS

Statistically speaking, Monday's sunny melee was just another win for our swanky Spudders, but it was a great moral victory for the Ladies.

For the fem fans crammed the stands, it being "Ladies' Day," and without paying so much freight as a thin or plugged nickel, witnessed the spectacle of the great Fred Fussell running true to form. And when the eminent left-hander is right, it is well worth the admission fee to see, even if there wasn't any admission fee.

JENKINS.

The worthy wronghander allowed three hits until the eighth when he slowed down behind a mammoth lead and gave up four almost all at the same time, trimmed the San Antonio Bears, 12-5, and strung up his fifteenth win of the season.

The illustrious Fussell was never bothered. He blanked the boys as free as you please for seven stanzas with a deadly delivery that brooked no random rallies by anybody, took it easy in the eighth and saw three runners trickle across, then clamped down and naughted the enemy again in the ninth, making it a series sweep for Wichita Falls, the Bruins flopping in all three games.

The great Griffin and boisterous Benton got more hits apiece than anybody else, each poling a quartet, but the sad-mugged Mr. Jenkins grabbed the slugging crown with two home runs and a natty little single that was a run-getter, also. Mr. Jenkins, so to speak, was half our attack, driving home six of our dozen tallies. His two non-stop blows added onto 14 others brings his home run total up to 16 for the season so far.

The diminutive Lamb was present to the extent of a brace of two-sackers and a single. Three of Griffins' clouts were of the two-cushion variety. All of Benton's blows were one-basers.

Pay Off, Gents.

We didn't start so auspiciously, Laffy striking out, but before we finished starting we looked pretty fierce. After George whiff-whiffed, Turge drew a base on balls. Griffin uncorked a larrup over first base for two sacks and Pete camped at third. Lamb bounced one at Philbin who muffed, Turgeon scoring, Griffin holding second and Lucy snatching a life at first. Your dark boy friend T. (Dynamite) Jenkins followed up on the next pitch with a screaming drive over the Security National bank sign in right center. Mr. Jenkins has given that bank quite a bit of extra publicity this summer. He deserves a bonus. He should take the matter up with Mr. H. Cotner and the bank directors. Whether the blow gets any money or not, it scored three runs and gave our side a four-tally lead right at the beginning. Rabbit and Wally closed out the frame, the former popping to third and the latter walking and getting cotched off first.

We upped and made it five in the third. Griffin opened with a single through the short field. On a hit and run play, Lamb duplicated Griff's blow and Pug legged it to third. Lambie ducked his dome and headed for second on Jenkins' third strike. Long heaved the sphere to second and Lucy put on the brakes. There followed one of the most hair-raising chases of the season with Lucy stalling the boys long enough for Griffin to cop a sneak and abscond with the platter. Lambie made it back to first base safely after giving everybody a run and looking like he was going to get smeared almost any moment. Benton threatened with another bingle through short and Swenson shoved a bullet rift into a double play. Fias to Philbin to Leslie.

This Jenkins Again.

The so-called fortunate seventh saw us grab three more with Mr. T. N. T. on most of the promotion end. Griffin hit a two-base hopper to left and the lambasting Lamb lifted a ditto to left center, Griff scored. He should have held third and taken it easy. Then he wouldn't have had to run, but could have walked home, for the noble Jenkins came up next and besides calling attention to the Fox-Brown Chevrolet advertisement that adorns the top tier of the port palings, paved the road for unmolested advance on the plate with his number two home run, a smoking smack that cleared the palings with margin to spare. Benton beat out an infield tap to first, but Swenson popped to second. Tobin fouled out to third and Fussell fanned.

Mr. Mitze's men came back scrapping in the eighth even though faced with an eight-run barrier, and scored three. Klein struck out. Philbin singled to left and Brown singled to center. Najo followed with a double to left, Jenkins almost spearing the sphere. Philbin scored and Brown stopped at third. Leslie singled down the third base line, scoring Brown and Najo and took second when Jenkins' throw-in got past Turgeon. Olle walked. Long grounded out to Benton, Rabbit making a sweet play with LaFayette on a bad hop. Wirts, batting for Newman, hoisted out to Lamb in right.

Lefty Sep Good clambored atop the knob for Santone in the last half of the eighth, but not so good. The boys in white took to the port-side stuff like a flapper to a new pair of shoes. Four lusty wallops by Griffin, Lamb, Jenkins and Benton behind a walk to Turgeon scored four runs.

Fussell was not inconvenienced in the ninth.

MAKES NO DIF TO J. SHARKEY

Bostonian Yurps Let Him Come Any Style

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—It won't make any difference to Jack Sharkey what sort of tactics Jack Dempsey employs in their battle next Thursday night at the Yankee stadium.

The Boston sailor is ready to meet the ex-champion at any style of milling, fancy stuff or rough house slugging. He said so today, and accompanied the remark with a jerk of the right hand at an imaginary chin.

Furthermore, if Dempsey has any surprise maneuvers calculated to upset Sharkey's plans of battle, he is wasting his time, in the sailor's opinion.

In effect Sharkey said today:

"Dempsey might as well come out and fight. This secret stuff won't do. I'll know him anyway."

Any way Sharkey figures it out—and he has a nonchalant way of discussing the fight, as if he was a disinterested third party to the subject—he will win by a knockout.

Cocky Cuss

"If Dempsey rushes me from the start, trying to break through quickly, he is doomed to disappointment. I will be waiting for him with more punches than he ever saw before.

"Dempsey said once he saw a half dozen Firpos before him after taking the South American's first punch. Well, he will be trying to pick me out of a dozen Sharkey's after he has sampled my wallop.

"If Dempsey doesn't open up at the start, but lays back for an opening I'll left hand him to pieces and knock him out anyway."

Sharkey's cool confidence has won him a lot of backing but his almost indifferent fashion of training during the past week has also stirred some skepticism among expert observers.

Lots of Pep

Today Sharkey put more pep but not much punch into five rounds with three sparring partners in the glass enclosed gymnasium atop Madison Square garden.

Comparing Sharkey's workout with their impressions of Dempsey, several who have given their critical eye to both men offered this conclusion:

"Sharkey is unquestionably much the faster, but unless he's keeping it under cover, he hasn't a punch to compare with Dempsey's. The sailor seems to have plenty of stamina, especially as he has been training in more confined quarters than Dempsey. His defense looks good for everything except a smart left hook and Dempsey has that."

MACKS GET "BEVO"

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 18. (AP)—"Bevo" Lebourveau, Toledo American association outfielder, and leading hitter of the league in 1926, has been traded to the Philadelphia Athletics in exchange for two players and a cash consideration, it was announced here tonight by President Meade of the Toledo club. The trade will became effective at the close of this season, Meade said. Neither the names of the players nor the amount of the consideration were divulged.

Youngsters Flash In First Round Of Longwood Tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 18. (AP) The best of the younger tennis players of the country came through the first round and part of the second without upsets today in the 35th annual Longwood bowl singles championship at the Longwood Cricket club here.

A heavy rain which started soon after 4 o'clock cleared all the courts except the one on which George M. Lott, Jr., 20-year-old Chicagoan who is considered possible Davis cup material for this fall, was easily defeating Horace Taylor of Boston in a second round match.

Lott, first seeded player in the tournament, took his opponent, 6-0, 6-1. In the first round Lott defeated H. B. Shaw of Boston, 6-1, 6-4. In another first round match Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., winner of the Longwood bowl in 1924, was pressed for a time in his second set with Frank Luce Jr., and over academy athlete. The Pennsylvanian, however, tightened and defeated Luce 6-3, 7-5.

The other seeded players who settled their first matches today managed easily.

The men's doubles will start tomorrow afternoon and the following eight teams have been seeded in order: Lewis N. White, Austin, Texas, and Louis Thalheimer, Dallas, Texas; Norval Craig, Los Angeles, and Ben Gorchakoff, Los Angeles; Cranston Holman, San Francisco, and Lionel Ogden, Los Angeles; H. L. Johnson Jr., Boston, and A. Ingraham, Providence; John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., and Kenneth Appel, also East Orange; J. L. Barr, Dallas, Texas, and Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, Texas; Berkeley Bell, San Antonio, Texas, and James Quick, Dallas, Texas; John Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., and H. Bancroft, San Francisco.

First round summaries today included: James Quick, Dallas, Texas, defeated F. G. Boggs, Boston, 6-1, 6-1.

B. F. Gorchakoff, Los Angeles, defeated C. O. Wellington, Boston, 6-2, 6-3.

C. A. Smith, Charlottesville, Va., defeated George Scott, Boston, 6-0, 6-3.

TURK TACKLES MATSUDA NEXT

Ali Hassen Grappels Finish Match Friday

Ali Hassen, Turkish welterweight sensation, jumped at an opportunity to tackle Matty Matsuda, world's welterweight champion, said Matchmaker A. B. Ross Monday.

Hassen is to meet Matsuda at the Ross stadium Friday night in finish match, Ross said, and the Turk comes confident of turning back the wily Jap in what would be the Nipponese's first Wichita Falls defeat.

The wrestling match is to be the main event to an otherwise all-star boxing card. Jack Matlock, slugger of parts, takes on the willowy and speedy-stepping Roy Edwards of Hollywood in an eight-rounder. Dempsey Moore, local amateur pride, goes after Bobby Burns of Houston, amateur light heavy champ of Texas. Fighting Sam and Sundown Kid, a couple of black boys, are carded for a four-round curtain raiser. The Moore-Burns bout is to be six rounds.

MOE LEADS WESTERN

SEATTLE, Wash., July 18. (AP)—Roy Moe, Portland, made a 69 score over the par 73 course to lead the first 18-hole qualifying play in the western amateur golf tournament here today. Chuck Hunter, Tacoma, with a 72, was the next high man.

Did You Know That—

BELIEVE IT OR—

Pretty warm day Monday. For instance, the great Fussell perspired off almost a pound an inning. He went to the slab at the start of the affray weighing 152 pounds. At the end of the afternoon's toil he balanced the scales at a slim 145 1-2 pounds.

• • •

Speaking of weight reduction, Frank Tobin, Fred's battery mate yesterday, came to Wichita Falls March 2 pegging the springs at 205 pounds. Your Texas temperature has shrunk Tobin down to a mere 181 lbs. Tough for a guy to work under such conditions.

• • •

The mighty Fussell got rough in the pre-game hitting practice and with one lusty sideswipe, hit a ball with such terrific force that the bat splintered into three pieces and slivers went sailing all over the infield. "I had just hit two against the scoreboard," explained the great man. "That's the kind of power I hit with and the durn thing just couldn't stand up under it.

• • •

DUCK, QUICK.

An infield punch at Spudder park has the same effect of a golf ball on pavement. An infielder's life isn't worth 30 cents. The pill is liable to jump up and hit him in the Adam's apple or take a bounce and knock his digestive organs awry.

• • •

Howard Fitzgerald was back in hickory practice yesterday, banging 'em away. The lefthander still is a bit string-haltered as result of ligament strain registered in the game of Monday a week ago.

• • •

MONEY FIELDERS.

The home guard jerked off a number of sharp fielding plays in the final drubbing given the Bears. Jenkins' galloping one-hand ankle catch of Flaskamper's drive to left in the fifth with a runner hotfooting it for the plate was the gaudiest snag of the matinee. Griffin loped almost to the center field screen in the fourth and plucked from over one shoulder Klein's arching wallop. This catch had sparklers attached, too. Benton did a dab of dirt to Leslie in the second when he scurried over toward the keystone and dug out of the dust with one paw the Bear first sacker's warm turf burner and slung him out by a couple of inches. There was a touch of irredescence, also, to that double killing knocked off in the third by Swenson, Turgeon and LaFayette on Flasaempkr's slam at third, the defense trio working like well-oiled lightning.

• • •

ANOTHER BRYAN.

The fame of Honus Mitze's eloquence is far flung. The scrappy little Bear pilot struck home with his oratory yesterday. So fiery and forceful were his arguments and vocal assault launched on Umpire Daly in the third stanza that Daly gave Olle first base on a catcher-interference charge. Daly had no intention apparently of giving anybody anything until Mitze opened a verbal broadside, stalked dramatically up and down the first base line between Daly and Kane out by the initial sack and then turned and uncorked another oratorical outburst on the at first seemingly adamant Daly. Mitze won his point and his point must have been right, because no Spudder raised an argument to the contrary.

• • •

GOT HIM TOLD.

The great Fussell told Brown what he was going to pitch to him in the ninth and then struck out the Bear right fielder for the goodnight close-up.

Said the eminent one, "What'll you have?"

Replied Mr. Brown, "Curve."

Then the eminent one, "All right, here's a curve!"

And the great wronghander heaved a spiral in there that Brown almost broke his back swinging at for the third strike.

• • •

Rabbit Benton has poled eight safe hits in his last nine trips to the dish. He whammed four for four Sunday and four out of five Monday.

• • •

We had a new lead-off man in Tobin yesterday. Tobin was first to bat in three innings.

• • •

Mr. Jenkins, evidently knows what he wants to do when he wants to do it and then does it. He announced before the game intention to sock at least one home run ere the afternoon was out. You know the rest.

I'm living "from hand to mouth" these days

SINCE I discovered what a marvelous cigarette I can make with Prince Albert, I'm rolling 'em and smoking 'em all day long. A hand-to-mouth existence that is all pleasure. I've made cigarettes before, but never any that tasted like these. Let me tell you about them.

First you get some Prince Albert and the makin's papers. You put a pinch in a paper and roll. The fragrance of the tobacco speeds-up the rolling process. You can hardly wait to taste such tobacco. Then you light up and pull that cool P.A. smoke into your system!

Mild and mellow as morning in the tropics. Sweet as maple sugar, with a sweetness that never cloys. P.A. is easier to roll, too. It's crimp-cut and stays put in the paper. If you've never made them with P.A., it's high time you got started. Try this better tobacco.

Prince Albert makes a wonderful cigarette, no doubt about that. And it is equally enjoyable in a pipe. No bite. No parch. Nothing but pipe-joy in every load. If you've always wanted to enjoy a pipe, but never found the right combination, try P.A. on my say-so.

P. A. is sold everywhere. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

OIL INDUSTRY NOT ONLY ONE AFFECTED BY OVER PRODUCTION

READJUSTMENT IN PROCESS

Agriculture and Other Industries Affected

The oil industry is not the only one affected in the United States by "over-production," according to a statement issued by Edward Prizer, chairman of the board of directors of the Vacuum Oil company.

Agriculture, coal, textile manufacturers, lumber and the boot and shoe industries are going through the same readjustment process as the oil industry, due to the fact that the supply is greater than the demand.

In discussing the oil situation, Mr. Prizer said:

"In confronting its present difficulties this industry's situation is not unique. A considerable number of highly important branches of the nation's business face similar problems. Among these are agriculture, bituminous coal, textile manufacturers the lumber industry, the boot and shoe industry and the growers of cotton. All these—and the list is by no means complete—confront the fact that, for various reasons, their producing capacity has for the moment at least somewhat outrun the demands of the consuming public.

"In some quarters there has been disposition to assume that the oil industry has more or less deliberately fostered, or at any rate has made no effective effort to avoid, the conditions which have now become so serious. On this ground some of itu critics have protested that the industry ought to be let alone to stew in its own juice. But it seems nowhere to be assumed that the wheat farmer, or the cotton growers, or the coal operators, or the textile manufacturers, or the boot and shoe makers, are in any wise to blame for their troubles. Some of the unfriendly comments seem to proceed from the assumption that the Machiavellian oil industry deliberately overproduced itself into trouble. The truth is that even the "oil barons" are not quite such fools as deliberately to make trouble for themselves. Whatever their congenital deficiencies in intellect, the "oil barons" have learned by long experience that they have small chance of public sympathy in such a situation.

"Nearly all industries at times have to go through the uncomfortable and unprofitable experience of deflation following periods of over-production. In general these experiences are remarkably alike, no matter how different the industries may be. For example, a few years ago inventors perfected the "combine," a machine that harvests threshes and sacks wheat in a single operation. A farmer and two boys, with combine and tractor, can produce from May to October 8,000 to 10,000 bushels of wheat at a labor cost probably under 20 cents per bushel.

"When the combine first came, most wheat was already being raised at a loss, but where the climate is dry, land cheap and fields large the combine has nevertheless been profitable. Consequently wheat growers in areas where the combine is impracticable confront over-production, low prices, losses.

"Petroleum's experience is precisely parallel to it. While engineers were perfecting the combine scieptists were bettering the methods of seeking petroleum and thereby increasing its output. So petroleum presently faced over-production, low prices, losses."

Marland Geologist Inspects Panhandle

AMARILLO, July 18.—D. D. Christner, district geologist of the Marland Oil company of Texas, with headquarters at San Angelo, has been a visitor in the Panhandle lately.

When a consulting geologist some years ago Mr. Christner passed on a number of areas near Amarillo and Borger that have since come into the limelight. In 1919 he approved the Henry Schafer ranch as a potential oil pool.

He was the first to forecast oil in the Toyah basin of the extreme western area of Texas.

Mid-Continent Deep Well Makes 2355 Bbls

The most interesting as well as deepest producer in the Mid-Continent field, Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 McCully, SW corner NE SE of 30-19-4w, in the Greater Logan area between Marshall and Lovell, northwestern part of the county, made 2355 barrels in the 24 hours ended Saturday morning being but five barrels less than its previous day's output which was 2360 barrels. This wonder well is almost 6000 feet deep, producing from a total depth of 5989 feet, in the second Wilcox sand.

The Skyrocket Oil company at No. 1 Jameson, in western Hutchinson county, and north of the Canadian river, has succeeded in sidetracking 8 1-4 inch tools, and has gotten the 8 1-4 inch casing by and the string is hanging below 2500 feet. Plans are to pick up the gas and lower the pipe through it.

In the area southeast of Stratford, in Sherman county, the Phillips Petroleum company-Prairie Oil and Gas company at No. 1 Price, in section 33, block B2, of G. H. & H. survey, was shut down at 900 feet to fight quicksand.

Empire Gas and Fuel company gave its No. A1 Magnolia fee in section 91, block 4, of I. & G. N. survey, in the Roxana-Bryan pool of northern Carson county, a 60-quart shot from 3183 to 3216 feet and it jumped from 100 to 156 barrels the next 24 hours.

Nunn-Stubblefield Oil company at No. 1 Cooper, in section 5, block 9, of I. & G. N. survey, to the northeast, was drilling ahead and the formations are reported as checking high. Officials of the company are anticipating finding oil shortly.

Great Plains Drilling company in No. 1 Bivins, in section 13, block Y2, of T. T. survey, in southwestern Hutchinson county, was drilling below 2920 feet and found 10,000,000 feet of gas there. More than 75,000,000 feet of gas has already been cased off in this test. Oil is expected at 2970 feet. Plans call for drilling to 3200 feet.

South of Dumas, in Moore county, the Douglas Oil company has started to pull the big pipe at No. 1 Beauchamp in section 112 block 44, of H. & T. C. survey, that had water at 4085 feet and was ordered abandoned. It will be plugged back and gas sands from 2935 and 2305 to 3040 feet tested and the well saved as a gasser.

In the Oil City-Merchant area, north of the Canadian river, and in southwestern Hutchinson county, the Phillips Petroleum company No. 1 Yake, in section 36, block 47, of H. & T. C. survey, is a 60 barrel well after a 140-quart shot from 2802 to 2852 feet.

Gas Lift For Morton Well In Moore

AMARILLO, July 18.—The gas lift is to be installed at the A. D. Morton and company's No. 1 Reeder, in section 191, block 3T, of T. & N. O. survey, near Dumas, in Moore county, and the most northwesterly producing well in the Texas Panhandle.

Three inch tubing was being run in the Morton well Saturday and it is believed that the well should average 300 to 400 barrels a day when connected up and flowing. The fluid level is steady and the supply of gas adequate so oil men anticipate that Mr. Morton will complete the well for a real producer.

Friday the well flowed natural 90 barrels and 5 per cent of which was water.

Thursday it swabbed and flowed 165 barrels. Its maximum output was 180 barrels early in the week, and after it had been agitated while cleaning out after being shot with 120 quartes from 3382 to 3408 feet.

Word from Dalhart says that material is beginning to arrive there for the gas line that Mr. Morton proposes to lay from the Reeder well to the capital of Dallam county. Gas must be in Dalhart by Dec. 1, according to the terms of the franchise given Mr. Morton.

Roxana Pottawatomie Well Tops Sand

TULSA, Okla., July 18.—Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Coleman NE corner NW of 33-7-5, six miles south of Maud in Pottawatomie county, topped what is probably the Wilcox sand at 4165 feet, where it is showing water. The test has 800 feet of oil in the hole from the Viola lime topped at 4055 feet. There was 200 feet of water in the hole Saturday noon. It is drilling ahead.

Hale Center "Throws Party" For Men Drilling Shallow Producer

AMARILLO, July 18. — "Hale Center Welcomes."

The above sign greeted folks at Hale Center Friday, as they arrived at the little Hale county town, which has become famous lately because of the discovery of an oil well there at the remarkably shallow depth of 407 to 423 feet.

The occasion for the welcome was the celebration that Hale Center folks had arranged in honor of the men who had drilled in the shallow well, and also as a welcome to newcomers in the neighborhood.

To make the welcome all the more lasting a barbecue was staged at the shallow well, officially known as the L. L. Donnell Petroleum company No. 1 Mullican, in the center of section 21, block B, of R. M. Thompson survey.

The celebration and barbecue was participated in by every Hale Center man, woman and child, and a visit to the little town that J. Frank Norfleet had made famous proved that all but a mere corporal's guard were present at the gathering, some 12 miles southeast.

The crowd came early and stayed late, and there was plenty to eat for everyone, and it was estimated that fully 2500 people had been entertained.

"Hale Center appreciates that these oil folks have done to advertise our town and county and district," said M. S. Hudson, a business man of Hale Center, who spoke before the crowd was invited to "pitch in" to the barbecued beef, stacks of bread, pickles, onions and lucious cake. Great pots of coffee and other liquids were also available.

Hale Center folks, like others who came from Amarillo, Tulia, Plainview, Lubbock and adjacent towns, all were "From Missouri", so under the direction of Mr. Donnell and John Kegans, the No. 1 Mullican was uncapped and a strong odor of oil came forth from the casinghead. A wire was run into the hole and it revealed the fluid standing within 40 feet of the top, indicating that there was 383 feet of oil in the hole. Plans to tube and pump the well are being made.

It was planned to spud in the No. 2 Mullican, located north and west, but this phase of the celebration had to be called off as the mast for the F. W. Axtell drilling machine buckled and it was to be repaired and the actual spudding in will take place several days later.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 18.(AP)—Advances in the cotton market late last week were followed by reactions today, owing to weakness in Liverpool, reports of rather more favorable weather than expected over the week-end and talk of an easier technical position. October contracts broke to 18.09, a net decline of 41 points, and a drop of about 45 points from the high level of Saturday. That delivery closed at 18.20, the general market closing steady at net declines of 24 to 34 points.

Very heavy selling developed in early trading. After opening easy at a decline of 23 to 29 points, the market sold off to net losses of 34 to 43 points before midday under liquidation and local or southern selling. A sharp break in the market for Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria appeared to be the chief factor so far as the news was concerned. There also was a feeling that the markets had been over bought on the advances of the previous week and that the technical position had weakened.

Trade interests were large buyers on scale down orders during the progress of the decline, which suggested that contracts liquidated by speculative longs were going into firm hands, and there was also covering which absorbed offerings on the break of about $2 per bale from the closing prices of last week.

The market was steadier during the afternoon. The volume of business which had been active while the early selling movement was in progress tapered off on the rallies an dthese were not fully sustained, but last prices showed recoveries of about 10 to 12 points from the lowest.

A private report made the condition of the crop 75 as of July 6 against 75.5 as of June 22, and 74.6 as of July 12 last year, but the figures appeared to be without any particular effect on the day's market. The compartively high condition was accompanied by comment on the heavy infestation of boll weevil.

Port receipts today 4816; U. S. port stocks 1,072,722. Exports 2011, making 11,022,698 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 18.(AP)—Intermittent rallies on bullish weather and weevil reports today failed to retrieve the early losses brought by unfavorable cables and the cotton market closed with net losses for the day of 26 to 29 points.

General long liquidation and weakness of the Egyptian market sent the Liverpool market tobogganing to cause first trade losses of 25 to 28 points on the New Orleans market. After a slight momentary rally, the market turned easy again and before the decline was checked October sold for 17.94, December 18.18, and January 18.25, 36 to 38 points under Saturday's close.

A forecast for showers and cloudy weather brought a rally of 10 to 12 points in mid-session but the market turned easy again. The downward movement again was checked by fears of a bullish boll weevil report and prices moved 18 points above the lows to 18.12 for October, 18.36 for December and 18.43 for January. Realization in the last minutes of trading absorbed virtually all of the gain.

Exports were 2011 bales.

New High Records For All Time Established by Stocks On Wall Street Exchange in Monday's Trading

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 18.—Individual stocks made new high prices for all time and for the year in today's stock market. One reason for the optimism in Wall Street is the prospect of a greater purchasing power on the part of the farmer. It is based on crop estimates and current prices.

Estimate on the wheat crop is nearly three per cent larger than last year and the value nine per cent. While the country may experience a smaller cotton crop the higher prices now prevailing should equal the farmers' 1926 income. Economists estimate that eight leading crops this year will show an increase in value over last year of approximately $490,000,000, or about seven per cent.

Another reason for the buying of standard stocks is the favorable business outlook. Northwest business should improve owing to the prospects of a bigger wheat yield; the record high rate of building contracts throughout the country in June indicates a turn for the better in that industry and the four per cent increase in bank deposits is a helpful factor.

Money held at four per cent. Commodities were lower. Cotton weakened, although some of the big speculators believe 1927 will be another boll weevil year. Aside from the boll weevil, it is estimated that at the end of the crop year—July 31—we will have exported and consumed in this country for the season 18,000,000 bales of lint cotton. This would compare with the 1926 production of 17,911,000 bales.

A rise in German market featured the international money market.

Erie was the leading feature of the rails and sold at the highest price since the road was organized. Erie is finally going into the dividend-paying class. Most of Wall Street has always figured that Erie would never pay a dividend, and it will come as a surprise if it hears of a $4 annual payment in the near future. Millions of dollars have been plowed back into the property in double-tracking, elimination of grades and curves to bring the road into a high state of efficiency so that when dividends are inaguurated they will be permanent.

Northwert rails were higher on prospects of bigger tariff due to the higher yields on wheat. Southern Railway responded to talk of an increased dividend. Kansas City Southern and the Missouri Pacific issues all closed higher.

General Electric and Westinghouse Electric sold higher. The latter developed an upward trend in belated recognition of the change in control of the company and the lower working agreement with the General Electric in the handling of patents and other lines. American Radiator responded to rumors of a stock "melon."

While automobile stocks were quiet, the accessory issues moved against the short interest. Gabriel Snubbers, a stock which the bears have been fighting the last fortnight, sold into new high territory above 52. Those who hold Gabriel look for a price of 60. The balance sheet shows for the first six months of this year an increase in cash and Liberty bonds of 53 per cent; an increase in current assets of 40 per cent; and net current assets, after a reserve to cover federal taxes for the first six months, not due until next year, show a gain of 27 per cent. Without setting aside this reserve net current assets increased 36 per cent. The valuation of patents has been reduced 12 per cent, and the per share book value of the common stock increased 25 per cent. Bosch Magneto sold up on rumors that the government had dropped its suit against the company following its defeat in the latest court decision.

Canada Dry Ginger Ale was a strong specialty. The stock reached a new high in response to its earnings for the first six months which totaled $1,273,528, compared with $846,405 in the first half of 1926. Earnings in the first six months are in excess of the entire year 1925 and 72 per cent of the net earnings for the entire year 1926. Profits in the first six months were equal to $2.82 a share.

Some demand developed for Liggett & Myers following ratification by stockholders of the increase in stock. This may result in a stock dividend. The company's business in Australia and India and Europe is showing a steady increase. Insiders look for a stock distribution of 25 per cent.

Quiet buying of McCrory Stores has been in progress by the same crowd that put Woolworth to 900 and the old Kresge stock skyrocketing. McCrory has opened a large number of new stores in the last six months and several more are scheduled before October 1. Earnings this year, it is estimated, should amount to $7 a share.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 18.(AP)—Clear, cool breezy weather allayed fear of black rust today, and the wheat market underwent a decided setback. Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 2⅛ to 2⅝c net lower, corn unchanged to ⅝c up, and oats ¼ to 1⅛c down and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Corn futures deliveries displayed firmness throughout the day owing largely to 1,526,000 bushels decrease in the corn visible supply, and as a result of mixed reports about progress of the corn crop. Oats ruled easy, influenced by wheat.

In the main, provisions reflected the upward trend of hog values and of corn.

A flying thrush collided with a cyclist near Edinburgh recently, temporarily blinding the man and stunning itself for a few minutes.

Supplies in the cattle division arrived in 108 cars of grown stuff and calves with 50 cars and 10 cars of calves due to some later.

The morning session yielded no sales of either cattle or calves, with 75 cars of beef steers on show, not a hoof had reached the scales at the time of the market report.

Hogs in seven cars and around 100 in the truck division made an early start, the market being steady with the Friday sales, top at $10.40, bulk $10.25 to 10.35.

Packing sows made a spread of $7.75 to $8.75. Pigs for slaughter made $7.75 to 9.75.

Four decks of range yearlings and lambs came from Eden and sold at $10.50. In the truck division genuine lambs made $12.00 and $11.00, medium lambs $10.00 and feeder lambs $8.50. The market was steady.

WOOL MARKET

HOUSTON, July 18.(AP)—The amount of the combing and clothing class of foreign wools held in bond in the Massachusetts customs district at the end of June was 29,000,000 pounds, compared with 72,000,000 pounds the same date last year.

The bulk of the difference in quantity was made up of combing and greasy wools, which on June 30 totalled 23,300,000 pounds against 54,400,000 pounds a year previous. The amount of the clothing class was only about 15 per cent smaller than a year ago.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 18.(AP)—The stock market lapsed into summer dullness today, but the undertone continued firm. Heavy profit taking, inspired by the belief that the recent repid advance to new high ground had impaired the market's technical position, was offset by a resumption of pool activities in the rails and specialities, more than a score of which attained new peak prices.

Plenty of money was again available today for loans on stock collateral, but the official rate on call loans was again maintained at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady. Week-end market letters interpreted the improvement in certain lines of business as an indication that the recent decline was only seasonal, and held out hope for a brisk upturn this fall. The bureau of labor statistics weighted index showed a small decline in the price level for the tenth consecutive month, but it is still nearly 44 per cent above the 1913 base.

The so-called "merger rails" again came to the spotlight. Erie touched a new high record at 62⅝ on reports that a strong banking group had taken a long pull bullish position in the stock. Kansas City Southern crossed 70 for the first time and was followed into new high ground by Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred and Peoria and Eastern.

Buying of the industrials was of a highly selective character. United States Steel common, American Smelting, General Railway Signal, United States Industrial Alcohol, and some of the other recent favorites sold down a point or two, and Commercial Solvents B broke 11⅝ points.

Foreign exchanges were slightly easier. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 5-32 and French franc just below 3.91½ cents.

HOODOO EXISTS IN HUTCHINSON

Ten Rigs In Sanford Area Burned Down

AMARILLO, July 18.—The hoodoo still oppresses the Sanford-Paramount area of southwestern Hutchinson county.

Late Friday the Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 1 Sanford, in section 85, block 46, of H. & T. C. survey, caught on fire and the rig burned down. The well was making between 50,0000,000 and 60,000,0000 feet of gas. Rocks blowing from the gas sands struck the rig and caused a spark.

This is the tenth well in the Sanford-Paramount area to be burned down, due to gas causing fire.

Tex Thornton, noted well shooter, is again on the job, after a days rest from shooting out the fire at the McMillen Oil corporation's No. 2 Sanford, in section 82.

No-Man Oil and Gas company at No. 1 Sanford, in section 83, had a show of oil at 2893, and another at 2933 feet. It is now below 3050 with gas or water at 3015 feet and was drilling ahead in hard white lime.

Alamosa Oil company No. 1 Sanford, in section 83, due west of the discovery well of the Paramount Oil corporation in section 82, swabbed 60 barrels from 3004 feet and immediately shut down. This well filled up 1800 feet in 15 minutes when the pay was touched a week ago.

Antelope Oil company No. 1 Sanford, in section 82, had 30,000,000 feet of gas at 2570 feet.

McMillen's No. 1 Sanford, in section 82, had 1000 feet of oil in the hole from 2881 to 2891 feet and was cleaning out.

Boy Scout News

TROOP TWO.

Troop Two, Bill McClure, scoutmaster, held its meeting at the First Methodist church Thursday night, due to the fact that the camp season opened Friday and some of the scouts wanted to go then.

The meeting opened with the scout laws and scout oath, led by John Weiler, assistant scoutmaster.

Scoutmaster McClure gave a talk on the proper behavior of a Scout during the meeting.

A large number of tests were passed during instruction period and Troop Two is out for that Advanced Pennant at the next Jamboree.

A discussion of camp was held and it was announced that most of the Scouts from Troop Two will go the second period, although a few will attend the third period. The "Order of the Broken Arrow" was discussed and Troop Two hopes to have one boy each period join this order.

Dues were collected and roll was called, with 25 members answering.

Melvin Giles, who has been operated on for appendicitis, is reported to be doing nicely. Troop Two is glad to hear this, for Melvin is one of the "stand-bys."

R. T. Craig, a merit badge scout of Troop Two, is moving to Fort Worth. The troop hates to lose him but wishes him luck in his new home.

"Oh Chief, Oh Chief," was the favorite game. Ed Elter and Cooper Jones were elected leaders of two sides and challenge games were played for some time. Gaylord Giles and Bill Morton, also "Fat" McDaniel and "Skinny" McDaniel, had a fight. The score was a tie—nine to nine.

The meeting closed with the scout oath and laws.

Troop Two has done more for the camp grounds than any other troop in the city. Last Sunday 10 members went to the new Scout camp and cleaned up. They had to haul about 17 truck loads of rock and invented a new motto—"Grab a rock, grab a rock." The boys had dinner and supper and a swim while at the camp.

Last Tuesday night Melvin Giles' patrol had a meeting and a good many things were discussed. Watrmelon and cantaloupe were served.

Troop Two challenges any troop to anything at anytime at any place on any day at any way.

Troop Two and Troop Three will have a tennis match on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the corner of Eleventh and Harrison streets. All tennis players of Troop Two will meet at the home of Ed Elter at two o'clock.

COUNCIL SERVICE.

Local headquarters has founded a system whereby Scouts are awarded service stripes for work done for the Wichita Area Council. Red and white stripes are presented a Scout when he has served the Council 15 hours; white and black stripes for 25 hours' service, etc.

Jerome Allen, Howell Adair, Walter Cope and Billy Steger have earned their 25 hour service stripes and Robert Southler, Ed Elter, and Nolen Hale have earned their 15-hour service stripes. If these boys will call at Scout Headquarters they will be presented with their stripes.

TROOP FIFTEEN

Troop Fifteen, A. King Davis, Scoutmaster, opened their meeting Friday night with the Scout oath, led by Edward Mulligan.

Roll was called and dues were collected by Walter Cope and the scoutmaster announced that a different Scout would have charge of the meeting each Friday. Walter Cope had charge of the meeting this Friday.

The Scoutmasters' Bulletin was read by a visitor from Troop Eleven.

Some of the boys were glad the Jamboree was postponed but most of Troop Fifteen was "a-rarin' to go" Thursday night.

After the business meeting, tug-o'-war, skin the snake, and black man were enjoyed. Ed Mulligan's team won tug-o'-war and Walter Cope's team won skin the snake.

Scoutmaster Davis treated the boys to ice cream, an exceedingly welcome refreshment on such a hot night.

The meeting closed with the pledge of allegiance, led by Eugene Cope.

TROOP TWO, BURKBURNETT

Troop Two of Burkburnett, Brooks Robertson, Scoutmaster, held their meeting Friday night. Since the scoutmaster was absent the boys visited Troop Three and planned a big field day for all Burkburnett Scouts.

About six or eight boys from Burkburnett will attend the second period at the Scout camp.

JAMBOREE

The rain last week ruined the outlook for the Jamboree so it was postponed indefinitely. It will be held approximately on August eighth. The definite date will be announced later.

Events in the Jamboree will be fire by friction, tower building, pup tent pitching, push-em-over, and swing ball, as well as the usual four events, visitors, attendance, advancements and uniforms.

Scouts from Petrolia, Vernon and Electra will participate and there will be visitors from those three cities, as well as from Dundee, Henrietta and Burkburnett.

TRANS-OCEANIC FLIERS HOME

Byrd, Aides, Chambrlin At New York Monday

NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—Through the same sort of fog and rain that obstructed their air paths to Europe, five trans-Atlantic fliers came back to their homeland today.

And as the gloomy weather through which they flew could not keep the airmen from achieving their main purpose so today it could not quench the enthusiasm of the thousands of their countrymen who welcomed them home.

The city tug Macom tied up during the morning to the liner Leviathan on which the fliers had come back. Commander Richard E. Byrd, leader of the scientific air expedition in the monoplane "America" was the first to board the Macom, there to be greeted affectionately by his aged mother.

Chamberlin Too.

He was followed by his pilot, Bert Acosta, his engineer, George Noville and his relief man, Bernt Balchen. After them came Clarence Chamberlin, pilot of the plane "Columbia" which preceded the "America" across the sea.

As harbor craft tooted a shrill welcome and gay bunting flapped from every mast, Acosta and Noville were greeted by their wives and Noville also by his parents. Byrd's wife awaited him at the Battery and Chamberlin's was with him, having accompanied him back from Europe.

Charles A. Lindbergh, the pioneer New York to Paris flier, was on the Macom with a grin of welcome, and so was Floyd Bennett, Byrd's first choice for pilot who was seriously injured in the first test of the "America."

The progress of the Macom up the bay was a triumphal marine parade, the guns of Governor's island booming a salute and fireboats leading the way with waving plumes of water.

At the Battery a crowd of thousands augmented enormously just as the Macom docked by the workers in surrounding office skyscrapers released for lunch, broke into prolonged cheers and jostled forward to get a glimpse of the air quintet.

Speed Up Broadway.

Quickly the fliers and their families were placed in automobiles and speeded up Broadway, festoons of ticket tape drifting down on them from the windows of the financial district in Manhattan's traditional welcome to its heroes.

As the procession moved along rain began to fall causing considerably inconvenience to the crowd which melted away except from the points where ceremonies were to be held. The rain gave amusement to Commander Byrd.

"Wherever I go," he told the throng at city hall, "I seem to carry the rain and the storms with me."

At city hall the fliers were greeted by Mayor Walker and were each awarded the city's medal of valor. The the procession was continued through streets almost deserted because of the rain to the eternal light at Madison Square where each aviator laid a large wreath on the monument erected in honor of those who gave their lives for their country.

Rest in Hotel.

After that the five dispersed, the "America's" crew going to its hotels to rest until attending a theatrical performance tonight and Chamberlin driving to Mitchel field and thence to Teterboro, N. J., the airport hamlet of 20 inhabitants which is home, to receive a combined welcome from the people of Teterboro and its larger neighbor, Hasbrouck Heights.

Although Colonel Lindbergh went down the bay on the Macom to welcome home the aviators he came to know at Roosevelt field when all were preparing for their Atlantic flights, he did not ride in the procession. A place had been prepared for him but as the parade started toward city hall he slipped away. A police officer who recognized him asked if he was not riding in the procession.

"No," said Lindbergh with an evident desire not to run any chance of attracting any of the glory due the most recently returned heroes to himself. 'I'm not going along. I've had my day."

Negro Orphanage Makes Appeal For Funds

Funds for the maintenance of the Dickson colored orphanage are badly needed, according to a statement issued Monday by W. L. Dickson, in charge of the orphanage.

"The institution is undergoing a struggle to obtain funds for its maintenance," said Dickson." We are feeding, clothing and educating 275 negro children and we are appealing to the white people of Wichita Falls to help us, that we might be able to prepare these boys and girls along all lines of industry."

The board of directors of the institution includes the following Wichita Falls business men: Roy B. Jones, J. C. Hunt, Reece S. Allen, J. W. Culbertson, P. P. Langford, J. A. Kemp, J. I. Staley, G. C. Wood and R. E. Shepherd, active director.

The institution was organized in 1899 and chartered in 1900. During the time it has been in existence 7959 negro boys and girls have been educated in the orphanage.

Funds must be obtained, according to Dickson, due to the fact that land notes are past due and for the construction of the administration building that is being erected.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wolf Monday received news of the death of Mrs. Clifford Lambert of Cordell, Okla., niece of Mrs. Wolf. Mr. and Mrs. Wolf left for Cordell Monday night.

80-CENT TAX RATE APPROVED FOR COUNTY

ELECTRA ROAD LEVY REDUCED

County Rate To Remain Unchanged

Agreement to set the Wichita county tax rate at 80 cents per $100 valuation and the Electra special road district tax at 45 cents per $100 valuation was reached Monday by the county commissioners court.

Formal Vote Aug. 8

The agreement came following the final adjournment of the county board of tax equalization, which is composed of members of the county commissioners court.

The county rate is the same as in 1926, however the Electra road district rate is 5 cents less than in 1926, when it was 50 cents. Retirement of part of the road district bonds, lowering the amount of interest to be paid in 1927 resulted in the lowering of the road district rate.

Official orders creating the 1927 rate cannot be entered until the next regular meeting date of the county commissioners court, according to the state laws. The next regular meeting date will be August 8.

Work on Roll

However, the agreement was made Monday for the two rates in order to allow A. C. Howard, county tax assessor, to start compiling the 1927 tax roll.

The readjustments in the tax roll were turned over Monday to Mr. Howard by the county commissioners court, and, according to Mr. Howard, compilation of the roll will start immediately.

Wichita Falls First in Playgrounds, National Park Report Shows

Wichita Falls has twice as many playgrounds as any city of its size in the United States, according to a report received Monday by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, from the National Playground association, which recently made a survey of the playground activities in the entire country.

The playground system in Wichita Falls is among the best in the United States and ranks with that of cities many times larger than Wichita Falls, according to the report.

There are 10 playgrounds equipped with apparatus in the city, according to Mr. Bunnenberg, in addition to five community centers which are used as playgrounds but are not equipped with apparatus.

Equipment for an additional playground was purchased Monday by Mr. Bunnenberg. The location of the new ground has not yet been determined.

Motion pictures of the activities on the city's playgrounds will be taken Wednesday, according to Mr. Bunnenberg. The pictures will be shown in one of the theaters in Wichita Falls and at the motion picture presentations in city parks. Mr. Bunnenberg will take the reel to the national convention of playground superintendents for presentation there during the latter part of the summer.

Guardianship
A BANK'S concern for the welfare of its patrons projects far into the future. Wisdom dictates that a board of directors be men of composite judgment and broad business experience.
This bank's directors and officers have as their mission in life to give our patrons the benefits of this institution's perpetual existence.
