Winston Field Celebrated Its 30th Anniversary December 11

By Noble Bryant Young

Dec. 11, 1981, marked the 30th anniversary of the official opening of Winston Field.

Dec. 11, 1951, was marked by a day-long celebration of the completion of the modern airfield on the western outskirts of the city. Prior to the building of Winston Field, the local airport was located along State Highway 350, south of town. The old airport site is now one of the busiest districts in Snyder. Such businesses as the Pizza Hut, Piggly Wiggly, and the Sonic Drive Inn now occupy the old airfield location.

The day's festivities began with a fly-in breakfast at the airport at 8:30 a.m. and concluded with a round of speech making and an airshow that afternoon. The band from Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock added to the celebration by playing two concerts that day. They first played to citizens gathered on the square around the noon hour and then moved to the airport for another concert around 2:30 that afternoon.

Featured speaker for the dedication ceremonies was Major General Samuel Anderson, commander of the U. S. 8th Air Force in Fort Worth. The General praised the citizens of Snyder and Scurry County for their progressive spirit as manifested by the completion of the new facility.

Notable among the out of town dignataries present for the occasion was H. E. (Eddie) Chiles, president of the Western Company. His then new DeHavilland Dove, on its second flight however, was on featured display along with a new Army helicopter, an Air Force C-54 transport, and a Pioneer Airlines DC-3.

Highlight of the airshow was a fly over by a B-36 from Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth. In its day, the B-36 was the largest operational aircraft in the U. S. arsenal.

Also on hand for the festivities were several representatives from Pioneer Airlines, Jack Kemp, public relations director for the airline, told the local crowd that Pioneer had already applied to the CAB for the privilege of serving Snyder.

In addition to Kemp, Pioneer also sent L. S. Wright, pilot, and Mary McMasters, and Marion Slicker, hostesses, to Snyder. They spent the day taking local residents for free rides in their DC-3. Wright praised the new airport as one of the best of its size he had ever seen.

Chamber of Commerce president James Rosser served as master of ceremonies for the event. Local oilman C. T. McLaughlin also spoke to the crowd. He praised the progressive vision of such local men as Harrie and

Weekend update

Truckers Hurt Cause

HOUSTON (AP) — Truck drivers who protested what they contend is selective enforcement of traffic laws by slowing rush hour traffic with a side-by-side convoy only hurt their cause, a highway patrol official says.

"The whole blockade was counterproductive, because we've got more units out there today than ever," said Department of Public Safety Lt. C.L. Taylor. "We sent additional units when this came down in case this was not an isolated incident."

Dozens of truck drivers joined to slow morning traffic on Interstate 10 to a crawl Friday, driving two-abreast as slowly as 35 mph for 70 miles.

Foley Might Back Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House supporters of a compromise four-year farm bill, opposed by an unusual coalition of farm and consumer interests, could get a boost from an influential senior Democrat.

Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington says he's reconsidering his plans to vote against the $11 billion commodity price-support package backed by the Reagan administration. As House Democratic whip, Foley is charged with lining up support for legislation.

"What Foley does, that will have a very powerful effect," said Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, a House Agriculture subcommittee chairman who is organizing opposition to the bill. Critics have labeled the proposal "a blueprint for farm failure."

Border Inspections

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Immigration officials in El Paso say they have not been given descriptions of possible Libyan "hit squads" said to be in Mexico, but are conducting more thorough inspections of vehicles crossing the border.

Earlier this week, The Associated Press reported descriptions of two possible assassination squads from Libya had been posted at the Mexican border port at San Ysidro, Calif.

A notice in the employees' lunchroom warned the inspectors to keep on the lookout for people crossing the border who matched the descriptions.

But Al Giugni, Immigration and Naturalization director in El Paso, said Friday none of the border agencies here have received the descriptions.

Ask Us

Q.--When will the stores in Snyder start staying open for late hour shoppers and what night will it be?

A.--According to the chamber of commerce there has been no organized effort for a late opening. However, many stores do choose to remain open late, especially during the Christmas season. Some stores remain open until 9 p.m. on a regular basis. Even if the retail committee were to decide on a late opening date, it would not be mandatory. The best way to know a store's shopping hours is to consult its advertising.

New Housing Project Slated

Work is expected to begin before the end of the year on development of a residential housing project just off 37th St. in South Snyder.

Mike Graves, spokesman for a local group planning the development, said they could have two single-family dwellings and one duplex ready for occupancy by late January, if their plans proceed on schedule.

The property is located on 36th St. and 36th Place between Ave. D and Ave. E. The developers had looked at the possibility of an apartment complex there last spring, but suspended those plans when mortgage interest rates began to soar.

Recently, they paved the 36th St. portion abutting the property involved. The 36th Place portion was already paved.

Twenty-eight lots are available for development in the project, and Graves said they tentavely plan to build 20 single-family dwellings and eight duplexes. They signed a contract with First Homes of Lubbock the past week to construct the homes and move them to the sites here. The Lubbock firm has provided homes for a huge development of some 500 units there, and Graves said the local developers were impressed with the quality of the products.

There will be both two-bedroom and three-bedroom single-family dwellings, and two-bedroom apartments in the duplexes.

The single-family dwellings will be located on both sides of 36th St., while the duplexes will be on the north side of 36th Place.

CIA Director Under Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William J. Casey is the third top Reagan administration official whose activities are under scrutiny by the Justice Department's criminal division to determine whether a special prosecutor should be appointed.

The division is reviewing whether Casey violated the law by not registering as a foreign agent while representing Indonesia in 1976, government sources said Friday.

President Reagan...

Pleased With Additional Domestic Spending Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the $4 billion in domestic spending cuts Congress has given him in the stopgap spending bill is just "another installment" in his budget-paring battle.

On a 60-35 vote Friday, the Senate approved the measure and sent it to Reagan, who said he is ready to sign the measure as soon as it reaches his desk, perhaps on Monday. The House had approved the measure Thursday.

The president added, however, that the cut is "only another installment in a long and hard program to get the federal budget under control."

The bill, needed to keep the federal government from running out of money at midnight Tuesday, runs until March 31, 1982. Reagan is expected to sign several regular money bills between now and then.

Reagan's veto of an earlier stopgap attempt prompted a half-day shutdown of some government operations last month.

The new bill calls for cuts averaging 4 percent in hundreds of domestic programs. Exemptions were provided for programs that provide direct benefits such as Social Security and food stamps, as well as the judiciary, general revenue sharing, medical benefits for veterans and law-enforcement activities.

Defense also was exempted, although Congress is working on a separate measure to finance the Pentagon that Republicans hope will scale back the administration's 1982 defense buildup by the $2 billion Reagan has requested.

In addition, the bill contains a retroactive tax break for members of Congress and a pay raise for an estimated 40,000 to 50,000 federal executives, many of whose salaries have been frozen since 1979.

In other congressional action Friday:

—The House passed an $11.4 billion foreign aid bill, marking the first time in three years it has approved a regular appropriations measure for U.S. aid programs around the world. The bill now goes to a conference committee with the Senate, which last month approved an $11.6 billion appropriations measure.

—House Democratic Whip Thomas Foley of Washington said he is reconsidering his plans to vote against a four-year farm bill that has already passed the Senate. The possibility that Foley, charged with lining up floor support for legislation, would vote for the $11 billion commodity price-support package is bolstering efforts by President Reagan's congressional backers to win the bill's approval.

—Social Security Administrator John Svahn told a House subcommittee that an estimated 30 percent of the people getting disability payments from the system are physically able to work and will lose their benefits.

—A vote against limiting debate on school prayer eliminated the possibility that the Senate will resolve any of the major social issues pushed by Senate conservatives before next year. More than a year after the election of a Republican Senate and conservative president, the issues of abortion, school busing and school prayer remain unresolved on Capitol Hill — in part because Congress has spent most of its time on the president's budget and tax proposals.

Kerr-McGee Wins Suit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Officials of a nuclear fuel plant declared a "final victory" in the Karen Silkwood case after a federal appeals court reversed a $10.5 million award to the former employee's estate.

"This is a day for which the people of Kerr-McGee and counsel have waited for a long time," Bill Paul, lawyer for the Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp., said Friday.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 that a U.S. District Court jury in Oklahoma erred in making the award to the estate of Miss Silkwood, the plutonium plant worker who became a symbol to the anti-nuclear cause after her death in a 1974 automobile accident.

The appeals court said the federal court had no authority to award personal damages.

The SDN Column

We have been a nation of initials since the Great Depression days which saw the coining of such titles as WPA, NYA, NRA, etc., and now it seems that we have exhausted the alphabet and must double up.

A casual glance at a peice of our mail the other day led us to believe that it was from the National Broadcasting Co. The return address said "NBC" as plain as day. But it was from the National Broiler Council.

There has been a joint use of NEA for years, of course. It not only stands for National Education Association, but also National Editorial Association and Newpaper Enterprise Association.

The practice of referring to presidents by their initials was established by headline writers of newspapers, and appropriately, it began during the depression. It was quickly noted that the initials FDR required much less space in a headline than Franklin Delano Roosevelt, or even the last name of Roosevelt. It followed that Harry S. Truman would become HST when he moved into the White House.

But, somehow, the Republicans never could get the initial fad off the pad in their camp in those days. DDE didn't do much for the imagination when Dwight David Eisenhower was elected president. It sounded too much like an insecticide. Fortuntely, he already had a shortened name held over from his World War II days in the military. Ike was made to order for headlines.

But Ike's chief challenger in his own party found the politicial trail was rough in those days. Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio was championed by the more conservative Republicans in Ike's time, and years later, some confessed that the initials fad had a big role in keeping him out of the White House. Somehow, the letters RAT did not do much for a headline or the ballot box.

The pinnacle of the initial fad probably was attained outside the political arena, however. A writer organized the SPPPPPPP. It stood for the "Society for Prevention of Putting Parsley on People's Plates in Public Places."

Mel Gilbert, executive vice president of SCAT, the local TV cable company, got some unpleasant news the other day.

After Dec. 14, KERA-FM, the Public Broadcasting System's radio station in Dallas, will no longer be available to SCAT. It seems that nobody else in this area is taking it, and the microwave system plans to discontinue it because of lack of interest. It apparently has a number of listeners here because several complaints were received one time when it was off the local cable for a while.

Fifth Graders Express Their Christmas Wishes

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of features the Snyder Daily News is publishing during the Christmas season. One grade from each elementary school was asked to participate in a different project. The following Christmas wishes were expressed by Alice Birdwell's fifth grade class at East Elementary. The thoughts are expressed in the students own words.)

By Shirley A. Gorman

"I wish that the government had more money," writes Seferino Carillo, son of Herlinda Carrillo. "I hope that the poor have money for Christmas and I wish that people would stop littering the whole world."

Joanna Proctor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Proctor, wishes that everyone could have a white Christmas and a Happy New Year. "I wish that my dad would get out of his operation without any problem and I wish that people without any money would have a nice Christmas and a Happy New Year too."

"I wish that the poor people would get food to eat and toys to play with," writes Lupe Torres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Torres. "I wish they will get clothes to wear and have a happy merry Christmas. I wish that my mother will get well and have a happy merry Christmas."

"I wish for everybody who is ill to be well on Christmas and everyday," says Pam Batchelor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Batchelor. "I wish that everybody who travels will have a nice trip and no problems. I wish that people would thank God for having a family and sharing days and love together."

Own Building Sought By Appraisal District

The Scurry County Appraisal District Board is due to complete a series of conferences with taxing entities this week concerning plans for permanent appraisal offices.

Representatives of the board already have met with the governing bodies of three of the six taxing entities, and all have indicated support for the project.

Visits to the governing bodies of the other three are to be made this week.

The appraisal district now has offices in the Wallace Building at 25th St. and Collge Ave. Members of the appraisal board say that the present quarters are not adequate and that the second floor location makes it difficult for many people to reach.

The appraisal office was moved to its present location from the county courthouse when space there was needed by the county tax office, which now collects taxes for all taxing jurisdictions in the county.

At that time, there was some effort made to find permanent quarters, but no suitable building was available for immediate occupancy.

Now, the district is proposing a building of its own. Total estimated cost, including a lot and building, is $200,000. The taxing entities would pay for the building, with payments based on their respective tax levies, which is the same basis used for computing operations costs.

The assessments for new offices would include $50,444 for Scurry County; $37,994 for Western Texas College; $9,450 for the City of Snyder; $2,266 for Hermleigh Independent School District; $7,170 for Ira Independent School District; and $92,676 for Snyder Independent School District.

Appraisal board representatives already have met with the school boards of Snyder and Hermleigh and with the Snyder City Council. They plan to meet with Scurry County Commissioners and Scurry County Junior College district Trustees on Monday, and with the Ira School Board on Tuesday.

Creationism Trial Continues...

Legislation Is Product Of Current Scientific Thinking

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Metaphysics and molecules intertwine in the trial of an American Civil Liberties Union lawsuit against Arkansas' creation law, a model that creationists are pushing in many states. One version has been offered to Congress.

The legislation is the product of current legal and scientific thinking of a resurgent creationism movement headed by Henry Morris, Duane Gish and Wendell Bird, all of El Cajon, Calif. Bird is a lawyer. Morris and Gish, who pokes at evolution as "the fish to Gish theory," are creationist scientists.

Louisiana adopted a similar law that is challenged in another ACLU lawsuit, but Arkansas was the first state to adopt a creationist measure. It is called the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act. The Arkansas trial is the first test of the movement's legislation.

Soon after trial began Monday, U.S. District Judge William Overton made clear that he will let each side have its say pretty much as it wants. Through the first week of trial, which resumes Monday, he overruled every objection by each side that evidence offered by the other side is irrelevant.

Each side kept making its objections for whatever value they may have on appeal.

Testimony ranged from an ACLU witness' discussion of the potential benefit of the sickle cell trait in a malaria-ridden environment to a state witness' testimony that UFOs are "a satanic manifestation in the world for the purpose of deception." Overton is to decide how much weight to give to what he is hearing and reading.

The law, passed in March, says that beginning in September, public schools must teach a creation concept defined by the law as creation-science if they teach evolution, defined as evolution-science.

A relatively recent and sudden creation of everything from nothing is one part of the creation-science definition. Creationists usually say the creation took place 20,000 or fewer years ago. Separate ancestry for man and apes and a worldwide flood are in the definition. Evolution is defined as a long process of gradual development of life from nonlife through the working of natural laws, such as natural selection and mutation, during long ages.

The law forbids religious writings, limiting instruction to scientific evidence and requiring that schools give balanced treatment to the creation view if they teach evolution. The ACLU's 23 plaintiffs include scientists, clergymen and educators who say creation is religion without scientific support. The state disagrees.

Last week was the ACLU's week. It presented 17 witnesses, depositions from seven others and more than 130 exhibits, including segments from the writings of Morris, Gish, Bird and other creationists. The ACLU witnesses said creationists were dishonest, unscientific, illogical and religiously motivated by a fundamentalist, literalistic interpretation of Genesis. The law defines as creation-science what no credible scientist regards as science, they said. On the fifth day, the ACLU rested.

The state case began Friday, but the state presented only one witness before the case recessed for the weekend. He was Norman Geisler of Dallas Theology Seminary in Dallas, who testified, as the state says, that one can have religion without God and can believe that there is a God without being religious about it. Satan believes there is a god, but does not worship him, Geisler said. He linked UFOs and Satan during cross-examination by the ACLU. "Credible scientists such as Carl Sagan believe in extraterrestrial life without nearly as much evidence," Geisler said. Sagan is a Cornell University astronomer.

William V. Mayer, a textbook expert from the University of Colorado, said the Arkansas law is "interference from the uninformed." The law requires that creation be taught in connection with so many subjects "the single most-pervasive idea from kindergarten on up is going to be the biblical account of creation."

He said the creationist approach falsely reduces the alternatives to two and, in effect, tells pupils: "You're going to have to either believe the creation model or be an atheist." That will happen even in elementary school, he said.

Ed Bullington, a teacher in a high school at Little Rock, said he feared the law might turn students into vigilante groups trying to catch teachers violating the law. Ron Coward, who teaches at a high school in Jacksonville, said a circus atmosphere will settle on classrooms as teachers try to obey a law that is impossible to obey.

Dennis Glasgow, science coordinator for Little Rock schools, said presenting the concept of time to second-graders will pose a problem under the law. One way of helping young minds grasp the concept, he said, is through the use of a long string, with one pupil standing far in the past, another standing at the present, and others standing along the string at different points in history.

How will teachers give the sudden creation concept in creation-science the balanced treatment required by the law if time is taught from the evolution standpoint?

"Other than getting a short string about a fraction of an inch long, I don't know," Glasgow said.

The ACLU's contentions are:

—The law violates the constitutional prohibition against statutes that establish religion.

—The law violates academic freedom.

Little Stir Caused By Withdrawl From Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's summons home to Americans working in Libya has drawn a cautious response from U.S. oil firms operating there and from America's allies. Neither is expressing the urgency that Reagan has about the threat posed by strongman Moammar Khadafy.

In Europe, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. found scant public support from NATO allies. No European leader stepped forward to endorse the U.S. call for the voluntary withdrawal of 1,500 American citizens and the invalidation of passports for travel to Libya.

France, in fact, announced it intends to resume normal relations with Libya because it no longer considers Khadafy's government a subversive international force.

Haig, at a NATO meeting in Brussels, made no direct reference to the administration's claim that Libya is plotting to kill Reagan. He said Reagan ordered the "minor steps" because of an "increasing level of terrorist activity" and to protect American lives should "some of the plans that we have had access to perhaps be carried out."

Reporters questioned Reagan himself and former President Ford while they posed for photographs, but Reagan said little more than that he agreed with Ford's assessment that Khadafy is "a serious menace to peace...on a global basis."

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told a news briefing in London, meanwhile, that the U.S. 6th Fleet was ready to evacuate Americans from Libya if necessary.

State Department officials met with executives from U.S. oil firms with operations in Libya, and department spokesman Alan Romberg said the businessmen indicated "that they would be cooperative with what the president is trying to do."

But one oil firm executive, who asked that his name not be used, said no evidence had been offered for the government's assertion Thursday that American workers' physical safety is in "imminent" danger.

Occidental Petroleum, the biggest U.S. oil firm operating in Libya, said it told its 138 American workers there of Reagan's request but it will not encourage them to leave.

If the Americans choose to do so, Occidental will provide transportation, spokesman Gordon Reece said in Los Angeles.

Among other firms:

—Marathon Oil said it has ordered home its eight American employees, and Conoco said it is recalling its 10 American workers and dependents "on an orderly basis." Conoco also said it would assist in the withdrawal of 265 people, employees of Oasis Oil Co. and their dependents. Oasis is owned by Conoco, Marathon and Amerada Hess Corp.

—Exxon, which discovered Libya's first oil field in 1959, said last month it was withdrawing from Libya and relinquishing its right to operate there.

—Mobil Oil announced last month it stopped taking oil from Libya on Nov. 1.

Christmas Wishes

hopes everyone will have a happy Christmas.

Ralph Torres Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Torres, Sr., wishes that his mom would get better, that kids without parents would get presents, and for a nice Christmas and a happy New Year.

"I wish everyone could have a happy Chistmas," writes Antonio Zapata, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Jaramillo. "I wish everyone had a place to live and food to eat and parents to live with and brothers and sisters."

"I wish that some children without homes will get presents just like everybody else," says Holly Joplin, daughter of Robert and La Nelle Joplin. "I wish that everybody would have a safe and very merry Christmas. I wish that all the little kids will grow a little bit and won't be mistaken for someone younger."

Annetta Sosa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Munoz wishes that she won't flunk the fifth grade.

Paul Marble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Marble said he "wishes for more rainfall in the horn of Africa so the starving people will have more crops." He also said he wishes for "no more assassination attempts on the life of President Reagan and for peace in the Middle East."

Jennifer McCullough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCullough, wishes that "all the sick people will become well. all the poor will get presents, and that there will be no more wars."

"I wish for people over in Africa to have a nice Christmas," writes Kelly Scarberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyce Scarberry. "I wish for sick people to get well and for everyone to have a happy Christmas."

Ricky Elam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elam, "wishes that kids that didn't get presents would get them, that Snyder could shine more, and that people who are going from town to town will not have any wrecks and that everybody will have a happy Christmas."

Martin Powledge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Powledge, writes "I wish for the people in the old folks home to have a Christmas tree and a present with a card and for my class to have some new books."

"I wish that all the sick people will be able to get out and have a happy and healthy Christmas," writes Rhonda Echols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Echols. "I wish that peace and joy would come to all the world and that I could get good grades on my work at school until I get out of college."

Jon Derouen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jon Derouen Sr., wishes "for there not to be pollution, food for the hungry all over the world, and for there not to be any more violence and wars."

"I wish that all the people in the old folks home will get a card," says Gary Gunset, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Gunset. "I hope that all people who don't have clothes will get some."

"I wish people would quit polluting America," Brandy Leigh Bessent, daughter of Mrs. Linda Bessent, writes. "I wish I had a baby sister. I wish people would drive more carefully. So many people are getting killed."

Nolan Treadway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Treadway, wishes "that my great-grandmother would get well from her heart attack. I wish people who are hungry could have food and I wish that people who can't have Christmas would be able to."

Solidarity...

Hardliners Want Referendum

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity hard-liners, saying "power should be in the hands of the working people," are demanding a national referendum, claiming it will show Poland's Communist government has lost the public's trust.

The proposed referendum is almost certain to infuriate the government, and union chief Lech Walesa on Friday urged the militants to avoid a "brawl" with the regime.

The proposal was made by union leader Jan Rulewski from Bydgoszcs and other radicals at Solidarity's leadership meeting in the Baltic port of Gdansk.

"The authorities have lost the trust of the public and ceased to be its representative," Rulewski said.

"Either the authorities settle for the accord we want and implement it immediately, or else we ... may reach the moment when we shall have to unsheath our swords," added Lodz Solidarity leader Jerzy Kropiwnicki.

Andrzej Slowik, also of Lodz, commented, "We must also drive the message home ... that one can do just as well without the authorities."

He said one way to do this would be to call a strike aimed at gaining control of the food distribution industry.

"We have reached damned important political issues, but on the other hand people want to eat," Walesa said referring to widespread food shortages in Poland. "Today we cannot get into a brawl."

Many union leaders said the referendum suggested by Rulewski should also call for "free and democratic" elections for the local and national governments.

Approval of such a referendum by Solidarity would pose a stiff new challenge to the regime and drastically sharpen prospects for confrontation between the union and the government.

A resolution passed Friday at the end of the first day of the stormy meeting of the independent union's 107-member national commission advised the Sejm — Parliament — not to enact a proposed law that would restrict the right to strike.

"The commission wants to warn the Sejm against taking any arbitrary decisions that could lead to conflict, especialy in such a tense situation," the resolution said. "We shall not accept decisions which can paralyze the activity of the union."

Union sources predicted earlier that members of the Solidarity commission would endorse a proposal for an open-ended general strike if the government gets "extraordinary" anti-strike powers from Parliament and uses them.

Since Solidarity's formation 16 months ago as the first union free of party control in the Soviet bloc, there have been fears the Kremlin might intervene militarily to end Poland's labor unrest. On Thursday, Tass accused Solidarity of posing a direct threat to Soviet security.

New Candidate Named For Post

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A courtly Peruvian diplomat, Javier Perez de Cuellar, is the Security Council's choice to succeed Austrian Kurt Waldheim as U.N. Secretary-General. He is considered certain to win the General Assembly's endorsement and begin a five-year term on Jan. 1.

Perez de Cuellar, 61, is a lawyer with four decades of diplomatic experience who is well-versed in the intricacies of the 157-member United Nations. He served as U.N undersecretary-general in charge of special political affairs from February 1979 to December 1980, including a stint as Waldheim's special representative on Afghanistan.

A former U.N. associate described the Peruvian diplomat as "first of all a gentleman." Another U.N. source called him a "sweet but soft man" who has difficulty in taking a tough stance even in cases that require him to do so.

Perez de Cuellar's nomination Friday drew enthusiastic reaction from Latin American nations and the United States and China.

China and the United States are among the five permanent members of the 15-seat Security Council with veto power, and they had deadlocked 16 rounds of voting for secretary-general in late October and November.

Peking vetoed Waldheim for a third term because it wanted a Third World candidate. Washington blocked his challenger, Tanzanian Foreign Minister Salim Ahmed Salim, apparently because it considered him too radical.

The 51-nation Organization of African Unity announced it would support Perez de Cuellar in the General Assembly despite its previous endorsement of Salim.

"We think we should give him all the support," OAU Executive Secretary Oumarou Youssoufou said at U.N. headquarters. "We have no bitterness against anybody."

Perez de Cuellar joined Peru's Foreign Ministry in 1940. He served in embassies in France, Britain, Bolivia and Brazil before assuming posts as ambassador to Switzerland, Venezuela, Poland and the Soviet Union.

He came to the United Nations in 1971 as Peru's chief delegate.

Winston Field Serves Local Aviation 30 Years

Wade Winston for whom the airport was named.

Edgar Taylor was County Judge at the time of the airport building and Walter H. Grant, Cullen H. Toombs, Ted Haney, and Doyle Parmer made up the Commisioners Court.

Although promised at the opening ceremonies, airline service was slow in coming to Snyder. County Commisioners named the first county airport board in Feburary of 1952. They, along with members of the local Chamber of Commerce, worked for almost two more years before airline service to Snyder was inaugurated.

The era of commercial air travel in Snyder officially began on Sept. 27, 1953. Beginning that day, Pioneer started service to Snyder with four flights a day. Two originated in Midland and went to Dallas and two stopped here on their way from Dallas to Midland.

Another airshow, featuring military aircraft from Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring and airline personnel and equipment, marked the beginning of the new service. Pioneer named Jim Babcock as station agent for Snyder. Dewey Thames and Lyman Bryant were also stationed here.

Unfortunatly, the anticipated traffic never materialized. Snyder was eventually downgraded to a flag stop for the airline. For the last months of the service, planes would only stop in Snyder when the agent radioed the pilots that passengers were waiting.

Late in 1956, rapidly growing Continental Airlines took over Pioneer's routes. Citing average traffic of only 30 to 40 passengers a month in 1956, Continental terminated service to Snyder on Jan. 24, 1958. Babcock was transferred to the Continental facility in Chicago. Thames left the Snyder area but has since returned and now operates a Phillips 66 station on College Ave.

Lest Snyderites feel slighted by the airline's pulling out, it is interesting to note that commercial service was inaugurated to the growing cities of Breckenridge and Mineral Wells on the same day as Snyder. They too are now without commercial air service.

Although several attempts have been made to establish commuter type airlines in Snyder, ridership has never come up to expectations and all have failed.

Even though the dreams of commercial airline service for Snyder have been unfulfilled, the last 30 years have proved the $800,000 spent to build the airport in 1951 to be a good investment.

Over the last 30 years, usage of the field has increased at a phenomenal rate. Winston field now ranks as one of the busiest and best equipped airports for a town this size in the state.

Snyder's airport consistently receives top ratings from inspection teams of the Texas Aeronautics Commision. In fact, the commision upgraded the field to the General Transport category during their last evaluation of all airports in the state.

In 1951, no one could have foreseen the rise of modern technology that has given us the modern jet and turbine powered aircraft that form an ever increasing part of the traffic at Winston Field. The DeHavilland Dove that Chiles displayed at the opening in '51 represented the state of the art at that time. Its top speed was listed at an astounding 180 mph.

Today's state of the art corporate transports boast cruising speeds between 300 and 500 mph and are becoming faster with each passing model year. Yet they are able to operate freely from the 30 year old facilities in Snyder.

The long, wide runways, originally constructed for the piston powered airliners of the 50's, have proved more than adequate for the high speed executive transports of the 80's.

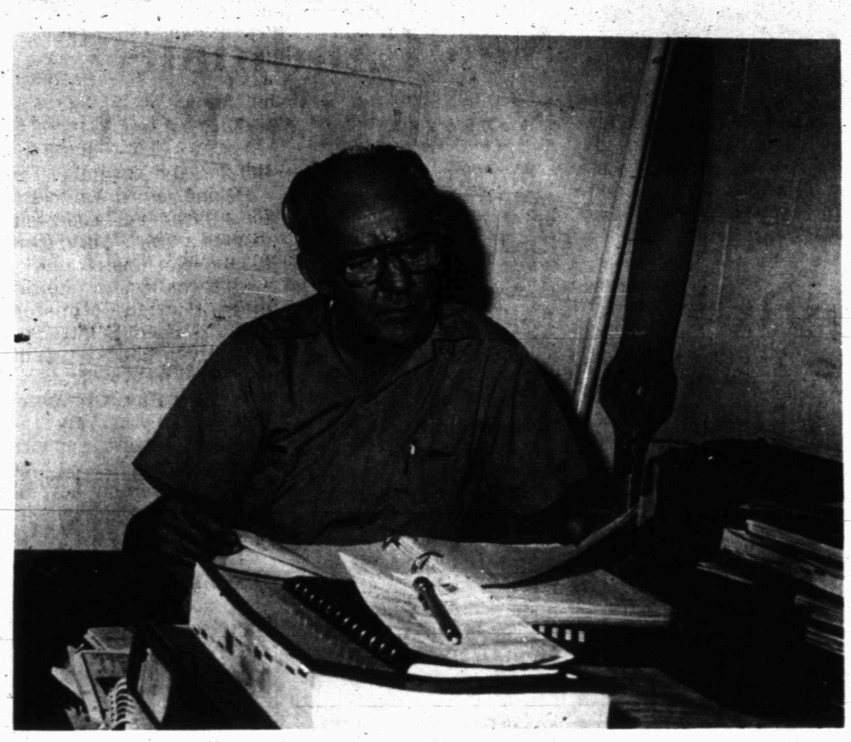

While corporate use of the field has increased over the years, use of the field by local aircraft owners has also shown an amazing growth. When current manager, Noble J. Young, moved to Snyder in 1957, there were about 18 or so locally owned planes based at the field.

Today, a rough count nets about 50 aircraft currently based in Snyder. Compare this growth to that of the city itself.

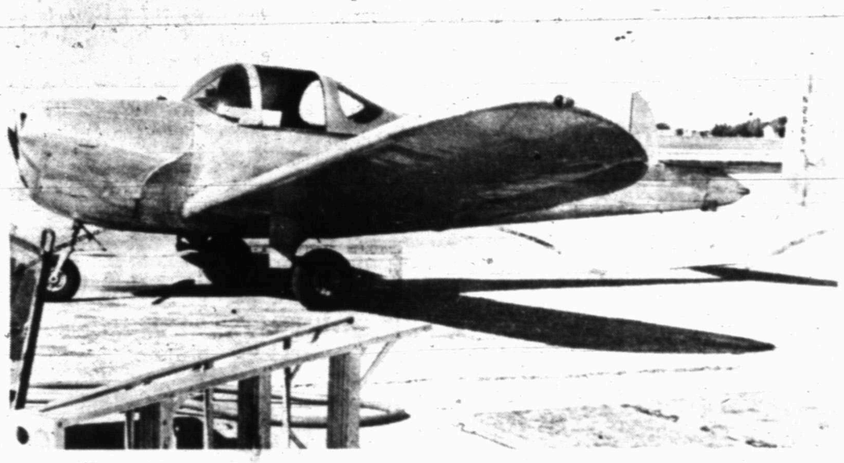

The 1950 census listed the population of Snyder at 12,012. The new 1980 version lists 12,671. These figures not only represent the growth of aviation in Snyder but can serve as an indicator of the economic prosperity of the area.

In addition to providing a quick and convenient mode of access to the city for users, Winston Field has a rather unique method of operation that is of unseen benefit to the general public.

Most airports of this size contract with a private operator to provide fuel and other services. Since its inception, however, fuel sales and aircraft storage have been directly owned by the county. Proceeds from these sales go directly back into the county treasury. Consequently, the people of Scurry County have a good facility that both enhances the conduct of local business and yet costs the taxpayer very little to operate.

Senior Choir To Perform

The Senior Center's Sunshine Choir and Kitchen Band will be entertaining at four elementary schools during the coming week.

On Monday, the choir will sing at North Elementary at 11 a.m. They are to perform at Central Elementary at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday and at Northeast Elementary at 1:45 p.m. Friday.

The Kitchen Band will present a program at West Elementary School at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The highlight of the week for senior citizens will be the Christmas dinner at 6 p.m. Thursday. There will be no noon meal on that day because of the preparations necessary for the bnquet.

Cleo Wolf will bring a special musical program for Senior Citizens in the Center at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. On Friday at 11:30, senior citizens are invited to join a sing-along in the dining room. This is a regular Friday feature.

Activities in the center are open to all county residents 60 years of age or older and include an exercise class, quilting, bridge, and other table games, ceramics classes and square dancing. The Center also sponsors bowling at 9:15 a.m. Wednesday at Snyder Lanes. Swimming in the indoor pool at WTC and miniature golf have been discontinued for the winter months.

Persons who would like transportation to the Center are invited to call the office at 573-4035.

Final Exams Are Slated

Final examinations for students at Western Texas College will begin Monday and end on Wednesday.

The fall semester will close on Friday and final grades are due in the registrar's office on that day. Dormitories will close at 6 p.m. on Thursday.

Spring semester registration is scheduled Jan. 18-19, with classes beginning Jan. 20. Copies of the spring schedule are available in the office of the registrar in the administration building. Offices on campus will be closed from Dec. 23- through Jan. 3.

Use leftover cold tea to refresh your plants.

Three Mishaps Occur Friday

Snyder police officers spent Friday investigating three minor traffic mishaps.

The first accident of the day occurred in the 400 block of 30th St around 8 a.m. Involved were a 1979 Dodge driven by Maria Teresa Way and a 1980 Pontiac operated by Gloria Benetiz Romo. No injuries were reported in the mishap but a wrecker was needed to remove the Romo vehicle.

Police are also investigating two hit and run accidents reported Friday. The first of these was reported at 4:30 p.m. A 1971 AMC owned by Nancy Myers was struck by an unidentified vehicle which fled the scene. The Myers vehicle was parked in the 1800 block of 26th St. and only minor damage was reported.

The other hit and run happened in the 300 block of Beaumont Ave. around 6:15 p.m. A parked 1979 Lincoln owned by Inez Taft was struck by a vehicle which also fled the scene. Only minor damage was reported in this incident.

Four Sentenced In County Court

Judge Preston Wilson's Scurry County Court passed judgement on four offenders this past week.

The court revoked the probation of Tommy Romero Jr. for commiting another criminal offense during the term of his probation.

Roy Pacheco Martinez pled guilty to charges of possesion of marijuana, less than two oz.. The court fined Martinez $500 for his offense.

Jamie Frank Richmond was assesed a $100 fine after he entered a plea of nolo contendre to charges of unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Alberto Zamora Jr. entered a guilty plea to charges of escape. Zamora was fined $200 for this offense.

Bronchitis with smoking

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had chronic bronchitis since I was 16. I'm 65 now. I've smoked cigarettes since I was 14 and finally quit five years ago. I have been taking a decongestant for my bronchitis as prescribed by my doctor.

Is there any cure for bronchitis? If so, could you direct me where to go? My bronchial problems seem to subside for awhile, then suddenly they become active again. I mean the mucous is heavy and then it slows down till it is almost clear.

I'd like to understand more about this problem and if there is a reason to hope that a cure is in sight.

DEAR READER — I'm sorry to hear that you waited so long to quit smoking. Almost everyone who smokes for a long period of time does develop chronic bronchitis. If you quit early enough you can expect some return of your lungs to normal. If you quit too late the best you can hope for is that the disease will not progress as rapidly as it would have if you had continued smoking.

The most important thing a person can do for chronic bronchitis is to avoid pollutants. As explained in The Health Letter number 17-8, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema, which I am sending you, tobacco smoke is the most common dangerous pollutant the human lung is exposed to. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It includes some of the things you can do in your life style that will help you.

In addition to eliminating pollutants, such as smoking, it is important to maintain adequate moisture in the air you breathe. Avoiding obesity is important because staying lean helps you to breathe better. That is also true of your posture. You need to develop right now all the aids that will maximize your lung function.

Part of the problem you may be having with changes in your condition may be from respiratory infections. People who have chronic bronchitis are particularly prone to them. During these times it is often necessary to take additional medicines. You should avoid exposure to people who have colds or other contagious respiratory illnesses.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it possible for a doctor to tell that you have an enlarged liver by feeling around your stomach and lower extremities but without taking X-rays?

DEAR READER — Yes. It depends a lot on how much enlargement is present. The liver rests under the dome of the right diaphragm. Its front edge is at the edge of your lower ribs. When it is quite enlarged the lower edge may naturally extend well below the rib margin and can be felt by examining this area of the abdomen.

If it is less enlarged the doctor can still often feel its edge as you take a deep breath. The diaphragm moves down during inspiration, forcing the liver down so that the edge just slips under the edge of the doctor's examining fingers. That is why a doctor often puts his hand in this area and asks a patient to take a deep breath.

Also, if a liver is enlarged from some forms of heart failure you can see the liver pulsate with the heart beat.

An X-ray often helps to clarify the impression of the examining physician and radioactive scans will map the area of the liver size as well, usually more accurately.

Water Shortage Plagues Far West Texas Land

FABENS, Texas (AP) — Every other day or so, Ellen Wilson hitches a 1,000-gallon tank trailer to her truck and drives into the tiny community of Fabens. There, she fills her tank with the most precious commodity in the area — water.

Mrs. Wilson and her family have been living for four years in a house near the Mexico border about 7½ miles from Fabens. All of the water at her home for drinking, washing clothes and bathing comes from a 3,000-gallon cistern she keeps filled by her trips into town.

"Four wells have been dug out here in our area over the years and the water was just terrible," Mrs. Wilson said. "This whole valley is in trouble."

Mrs. Wilson's woes and the water problems of the Fabens area are a microcosm of the problems that are plaguing the arid lands around El Paso.

Most of the underground water in the area is undrinkable, containing salt and other chemicals. And rapid population growth is causing available water resources to be used up faster than ever before.

El Paso currently is embroiled in a bitter lawsuit with New Mexico to get water from an aquifer that lies just across the Texas-New Mexico border. City planners are carefully judging which areas can be provided water from the city system without causing shortages.

The result is that people living outside water districts such as the ones in El Paso or Fabens must fend for themselves in the struggle to get adequate, drinkable water supplies.

"Nearly all of the people on the farms out here have to haul water," Mrs. Wilson said. "Some of them have wells, but the water eats all of the plumbing out and just ruins everything."

Fabens' water district evolved from a privately owned water system purchased about 20 years ago, said O.C. "Buddy" Brown, manager of the water district.

"The people in this district obligated themselves when they formed this district through bonded indebtedness," Brown said. "We're only obligated to take care of the people in the district."

The district, which has roughly the same boundaries as the city, has 1,062 customers. The three wells supplying the district produce about 1,900 gallons per minutes, Brown said.

"That's more than adequate to take care of our present needs," Brown said. "But don't get the idea we have water to throw away."

In fact, the water district board has adopted a policy that they won't accept petitions for water service except for areas adjacent to the present boundaries. That policy has come under fire in recent years as surrounding farmland is subdivided for housing and more people clamor for water service.

But board president George Wilson takes a hard line.

"You can't run water lines here, there and yonder for a few people who made a mistake," Wilson says. "They should have moved to town if they wanted water.

"We can't just say, 'All right, we're going to spend a million and bring you some water,'" he said. "We can't do it. We don't have a million. If you do run a line, say, a mile out to some people, the next day you'll have five more applications in five more directions."

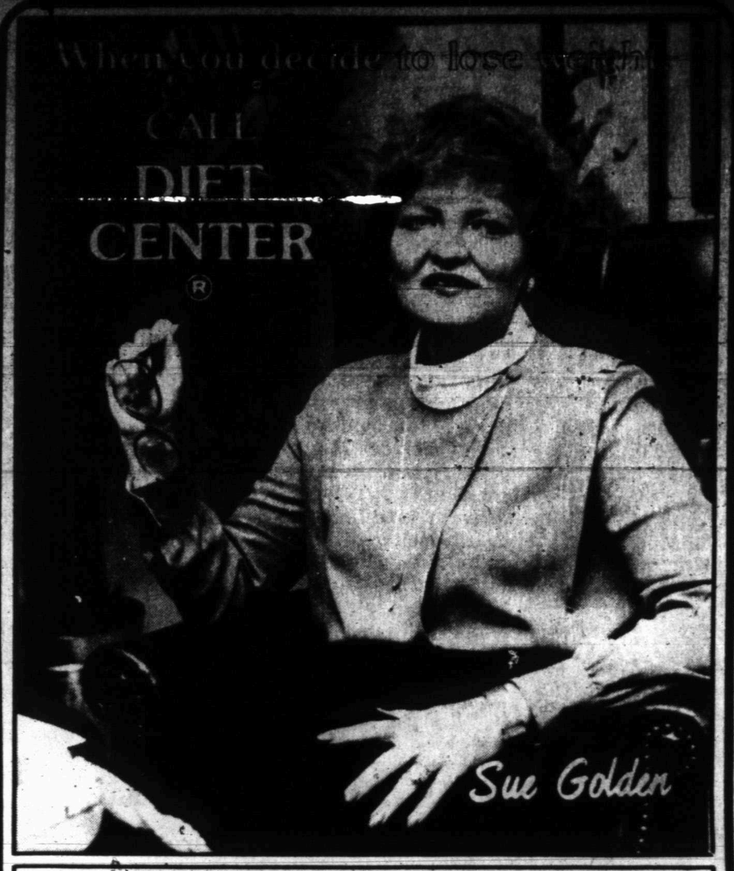

Ruiz Identified As Armed Robber

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — David Ruiz, the ex-convict whose lawsuit sparked an order for Texas prison reforms, was the shotgun-toting robber who stole money from a bar in November, an employee of the bar has testified.

Kimberly Espinoza pointed out Ruiz Friday during a hearing to determine if Ruiz should be released on bond until his trial on armed robbery charges.

Ruiz, 39, was paroled in June. In 1972 he filed a federal lawsuit which sparked a federal court order that the Texas Department of Corrections is violating inmates' rights.

On Nov. 24 Ruiz was jailed in connection with the Nov. 15 robbery of the Scoot Inn in East Austin. Ruiz and two nephews were indicted. A $50,000 bond was set for Ruiz, but he cannot post the bond because of a warrant issued by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, alleging Ruiz violated the conditions of his parole.

Four Vying For Top Honors...

Reef Tourney Headed Towards Finals

Snyder, Abilene High, San Angelo Central and Lubbock Estacado were the four teams still vying for top honors Saturday in the 27th annual Canyon Reef Tournament here.

Host Snyder wrapped up the final semi-finals spot by defeating Lubbock Monterey 36-28 in the late game Friday night. The Tigers were to play Abilene High at 11 Saturday morning in one semi-final matchup. The other was to pit Estacado and Central at 9:30.

Saturday's championship game was to be held at 8 p.m.

Snyder got 10 points from D.W. Lofton and 8 out of Riley Kitchens to lead Monterey all the way. The Plainsmen pulled within three points several times during the game, but were never able to catch up.

The Snyder-Monterey point spread was huge compared to the other three quarterfinals contests, which were all decided by three points or less. In an earlier game, Don Howard's freethrow attempt with four seconds left fell short as Abilene High outlasted a furious assault by Waco Midway to win 45-43. The Eagles were led by Mike Simmons' 15 points. Shannon Daniel got 10. Doak Taylor and Patric Merritt got 10 apiece for Midway.

Central got past defending Reef champion Borger 69-67 when Henry Green ripped the cords with 21 ticks left and teammate Hercules Miller stole the ball away seconds afterward to run out the clock. Miller put up 18 points in the game while Lorand White scored 19 and Jeff Kasner had 16. Scott Hunt popped the nets for 18 points - including 12 freethrows - for the Bulldogs. Stanley Davis had 16 and Dewight Coffer added 11.

Last year's runnerup team, Lubbock Estacado, saved what had been an 11-point fourth quarter lead from going down the drain as the Mats held off Odessa Permian 45-43. Billy Harris scored 12 points and Clint Armstead added 10 for the Matadors. Mike Woolley and Jeff Matcalf led Permian with 15 and 12 points respectively.

In consolation bracket quarterfinals games, Bobby Williams put up 20 points and Jerald Wrightsil scored 13 as Big Spring defeated El Paso Austin, 59-40; Rodney Cannon notched 26, Max Riley 20 and Cletus Irlbeck 17 as Abernathy seared Colorado City, 99-68; Keenan Roberts and Andy Marquez had 28 and 12 as Lubbock High popped Burkburnett 60-53; and Bobby Nunez scored 23 and Jerry Gray had 10 as Fort Stockton beat Sweetwter, 58-48.

Big Spring and Fort Stockton were to play at 11:30 Saturday in the high school, followed by Abernathy and Lubbock High at 1. Winners of those games were to meet in the consolation bracket finals at 6:30 p.m. in the coliseum.

Tigers Take Monterey; Enter Tourney Semis

Coach Larry Scott's Snyder Tigers defeated Lubbock Monterey in a game of defensive strategy here Friday 36-28 to advance to the semi-finals of the Canyon Reef Tournament.

The Tigers, now 9-2, were slated to play Abilene High at 11 a.m. Saturday in the coliseum. The winner was to advance to the tournament championship game at 8 p.m.

Abilene reached the semis with a 49-46 victory over Waco Midway. In other winner's bracket games San Angelo Central defeated Borger 69-67 and Lubbock Estacado nipped Odessa Permian 45-43. Estacado and Central were to play at 9:30 Saturday morning.

Snyder never trailed in Friday's game with Monterey, after jumping out to a 12-6 lead. Monterey cut the margin to 12-10 wih five minutes left in the half, but three charity shots by Curtis Gafford and a field goal from Keith Wallace made it 23-16 at intermission.

D.W. Lofton put the hosts ahead by nine, 25-16 early in the fourth period and it stayed that way until David Alderson and Bryan Lester answered back for the visitors. The advantage was slashed to 29-23 as Mark Lambert cashed in on back-to-back two-pointers, but the 6-4½ athlete fouled out with 3:14 left.

His ticket to the bench turned into two points for the Tigers as Riley Kitchens basketed two free throws on the foul. Kitchens then put up another bucket for the hosts as Snyder's lead went back to seven, 33-26.

Despite late success from the charity stripe, it appeared the freethrow line might be Snyder's undoing in the early going. The Tigers had cashed in on only five of 13 attempts, including the front end of four bonus shots, before John Wilson scored a pair from the line midway through the final quarter.

Snyder actually won the game from the line however, as Monterey outscored the Tigers from the field 26-24. But the visitors only shot two freethrows - making both - while Snyder went to the line 21 times for 12 points.

Snyder bucketed one charity shot on a technical charged to Monterey coach Joe Michalka, who was vocally expressing his displeasure with the way the game was being called.

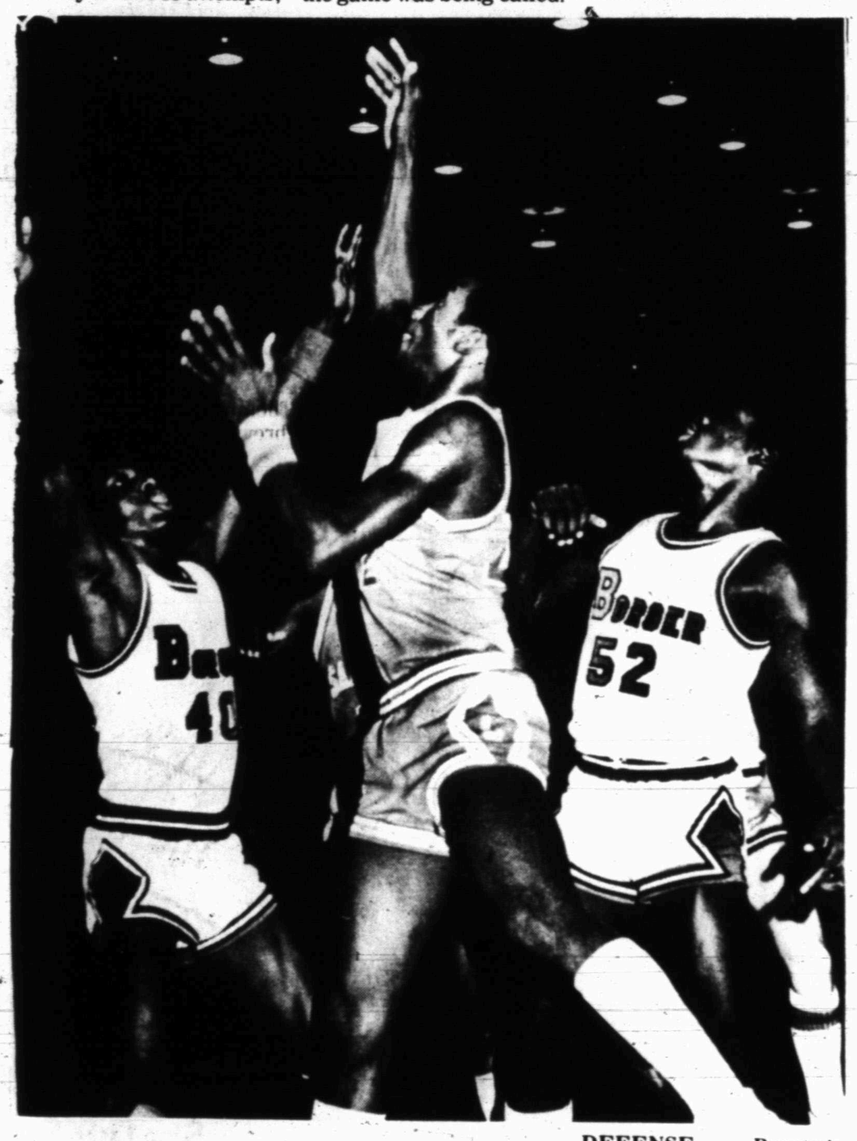

Lofton's 10 points was high for Snyder. Kitchens added 8 and Wilson got 6. James Caldwell scored 5 points while Curtis Gafford had 3 and Wallace and Brad Robertson had 2 apiece.

Lambert paced Monterey with 12 points; Lester had 10.

Dallas Remembers Last Year...

Cowboys Ready To Get At Eagles

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have been plotting revenge since July.

When the players went to training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif., bitter feelings remained from the previous season's encounters with Philadelphia.

"We've been after them since day one," growled Cowboy defensive tackle Randy White.

The Eagles had dethroned Dallas as champions of the NFC's Eastern Division, and did it in what the Cowboys considered an insulting manner.

With the homefield advantage in the championship game, the Eagles's pregame remarks were tinged with respect, awe, even a tone of fear at the mention of Dallas.

It was, however, a complete psych job. The overconfident Cowboys were struck down 20-7 and the Eagles went to the Super Bowl.

"They said a lot of things before and after the NFC title game last year ... a lot of childish, high school things," White said. "We haven't forgotten."

Sunday, in Texas Stadium, the Cowboys get their chance.

The Eagles have lost three games in a row and still must win one of their two remaining games to tie up a wild card berth in the National Football League playoffs.

Dallas, favored by a field goal, is riding high with an 11-3 ledger, owning a two game lead over Philadelphia with two to play.

"I felt we fought our way into the Super Bowl last year and we earned our right to be there," said Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil. "If we don't get there this year then we haven't earned the right to be there."

The Eagles have only one victory in Texas Stadium in 10 tries.

"The only time we've ever beaten Dallas at Dallas is when we went down there (in 1979) after losing three in a row," said Vermeil. "But going to Dallas you have to earn your victories. They don't give you anything. They are extremely well coached. Who's better than Tom Landry?"

Philadelphia can still win the NFC East by defeating Dallas Sunday and St. Louis the following week if the Cowboys also lose to the New York Giants the next Saturday.

Danny White has been cleared by doctors to start at quarterback for the Cowboys.

Ali Beaten Again

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) - The Odyssey of Muhammad Ali is over, ended once and for all on a brisk December night by Trevor Berbick, who scored a unanimous 10-round decision, that wasn't very close.

It ended with Ali stalked around the ring by Berbick, absorbing a barrage of blows to his midsection, each punch rippling the folds of flab that marked his body.

It ended in a ring where the beginnings and ends of rounds were signalled by a hammer, clanging against a cow bell, because the promoters hadn't bothered with details such as a standard boxing bell.

It ended with the fans on their feet, chanting, "Ali, Ali, Ali," the way they had in Malaysia and Manila, in Zaire, in Germany and elsewhere in the world in a variety of exotic sites where Ali had spun his magic for more than two decades. But this time Ali could not respond to the challenge.

Now, one month short of his 40th birthday, Ali admitted the adventure had reached its conclusion. There would be no more fights for this man, who wrote boxing history by winning the heavyweight championship three tines.

"It is too late," he said softly after returning to a packed dressing room. "The legs won't do it. I couldn't beat Father Time, but nobody ever does."

There were financial problems that left it in doubt until just a few hours before fight time. The program was delayed and several preliminary bouts were canceled. There was a comical, almost amateurish approach, with a mad scramble for basics such as gloves, water buckets and a bell.

Tulsa Runs Past TCU

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - With guards Mike Anderson and Steve Harris drilling 14 points apiece, No. 14 Tulsa handled Texas Christian, 72-62, in the first round of the Oil Capital Classic college basketball tourney Friday night.

The win pits the Hurricane against co-host Oral Roberts in the championship Saturday night. ORU outlasted Connecticut 69-67 in the other first-round game.

Tulsa broke open a 23-22 contest to lead 37-24 at halftime and coasted to its fourth win in five games. The Horned Frogs fell to 3-2.

The Hurricane, which also got 12 points from center Greg Stewart, built leads of 21 points late in the game. But TCU guard Darrell Browder hit eight of his 20 points in a two-minute span to help narrow the final margin. The Frogs got 12 points apiece from Doug Arnold and Joe Stephan.

In the first game, Oral Roberts forward Kevin McGee hit two free throws with 26 seconds left and the Titans held on against rallying Connecticut.

Oral Roberts, which had five players in double figures, outscored the Huskies 12-1 in the closing four minutes of the first half to take a 45-35 lead at intermission.

But Connecticut found 6-foot-11 center Chuck Aleksinas open for three quick layups in the second half and the Huskies pulled even at 55-55 with 11:29 left.

Oral Roberts led 67-64 with 2:06 remaining when the Huskies' Cornelius Thompson hit one free throw, missed the second and Bruce Kuczenski grabbed the rebound for a layup to tie it at 67.

Kuczenski missed a chance to put Connecticut ahead when the front end of a one-and-one refused to drop with 45 seconds left.

After McGee drew a blocking foul on a layup attempt, Connecticut had two chances to tie the score but time ran out as there was a scramble for the ball under the Husky goal.

Connecticut, led by Thompson and Aleksinas with 16 apiece, lost its first game in five starts.

The Titans, 5-1, got 12 points apiece from Lester Gill, Jeff Acres, and Lance Williams, 11 from Mark Acres and 10 from Chris Cantrell.

Monahans Defeats Tiger Girls, 50-41

Snyder's Felines relinquished a 28-24 halftime lead and went down to defeat for the second straight time in District 2-AAAA action Friday night, losing to Monahans 50-41.

The Felines, 5-5 for the season and 0-2 in district play, dropped in back 16-10 in the first period but outscored the Loboettes 18-8 in the second for a 28-24 lead at intermission.

Monahans, defending 2-AAAA champion, made up the difference in the third period by taking it to the Felines 14-7 for a 38-35 advantage. The Loboettes also won the fourth quarter 12-6.

Tela Lindsey led the visitors with 19 points while Roxanne Coreer had 10. Sandy Mize got 9 and Tammy Dillon added 8.

Monahans is 1-1 in district play.

Snyder was led by Pam Perceval's 17 points. Carmen Rios notched 9 while Tracey O'Day had 6 and Brenda Anderson 4. The Felines' leading scorer, Michelle Townsel, was held to just five points, and fouled out for the second consecutive district ballgame.

Snyder resumes conference action Dec. 15 at Lamesa. A junior varsity game will be held at 6:15; the varsity tilt at 8.

Hess To Head SFA Staff

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) - San Angelo State University head football coach Jim Hess has been appointed athletic director and head football coach at Stephen F. Austin State University, it was announced Friday.

Hess, who compiled a 65-23-3 record in eight seasons as head coach at Angelo State, will be succeeded at the San Angelo school by his offensive coordinator, Jerry Vandergriff.

Hess, 44, guided Angelo State teams to four Lone Star Conference championships and one NAIA national championship, in 1978. In the last five years, his teams were 47-10-1.

Hess, a Farmersville native, succeeds Charles Simmons, 50, who lost his job after a 1-10 season this year and a 19-44-1 record in his six years as head coach at Stephen F. Austin.

Angelo State also announced Friday that defensive coordinator Mike Martin has been named assistant head coach. Martin has been with Angelo State for eight seasons.

Fugitive Eludes Dragnet After Woman Killed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal fugitive wanted for questioning in the deaths of nine women in four states eluded a police dragnet just two hours after a man gunned down two women — killing one — at a nearby restaurant.

Authorities said the man, Stephan Peter Morin, 34, slipped past police early Friday at a motel officers were trying to seal off and escaped on foot.

Morin, a native of Providence, R.I., was described by police as "extremely dangerous," and thought to carry a 38-caliber pistol in a boot holster. He has brown shoulder-length hair, brown eyes, wears an earring in one ear and has a 2-inch scar on his outer left forearm, FBI spokesman Joe Lattus said.

Carrie Marie Scott, 21, of Corpus Christi and Dru Valdes, 25, of San Antonio, were shot early Friday in a parking lot outside Maggie's Restuarant, which located several miles away from the motel where police sought Morin.

Miss Scott died later at a San Antonio hospital. Ms. Valdes was wounded in the shoulder. Police believe the gunman was trying to steal the dead woman's car.

Police said Morin was wanted for questioning in the shootings and in the slayings of four young women in Las Vegas, Nev.; two at St. George, Utah; one in Golden, Colo.; and another in Corpus Christi.

Officers said they found the automobile of murder victim Janna Bruce, 21, of Corpus Christi at the motel while searching for Miss Scott's attacker. Miss Bruce's body was found Dec. 3 floating in a water-filled culvert on Mustang Island. She had been strangled.

Two hours after the Special Weapons and Tactical (SWAT) team surrounded the motel, two women emerged from the room under surveillance and police reported that Morin escaped out a bathroom window before the area was sealed off by officers.

Police identified one of the women as Sarah Clarke, described as a traveling companion of Morin's, and the other as Pam Jackson, who was reported abducted from a Corpus Christi nightclub on Nov. 30. Both women were being questioned Friday.

The FBI reported that Morin had been sought for interstate flight to avoid prosecution since 1977 on a charge he abducted and raped a 14-year-old girl in Morin County, Calif., a San Francisco suburb, in September 1976.

His police record showed that he had been in trouble with the law since 1966 when he was arrested twice for automobile theft in a six-month period in Florida.

Morin lived in Las Vegas from from 1976 until December 1980, police said, during which time the Nevada and Utah killings occurred. Officers said Morin then traveled through Colorado to Wichita, Kan., and went to Corpus Christi on Nov. 8.

VA Reminders Are Mailed

More than a million and a quarter VA pension recipients received reminders this month that it's time to take the annual look at their income to make certain they still meet the legal eligibility rules, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

A questionnaire, required by law, was sent with November checks, and, with certain exceptions, VA pensions must complete and return it by Jan. 1, 1982, or face suspension of their payments.

Persons who would like assistance from Dever's office on these questionnaires or other matters are reminded that the office will be closed Dec. 23-Jan. 3. The office is located in the Western Texas College administration building and can be reached by calling 573-8511, extension 212.

Burial Benefits Help Families

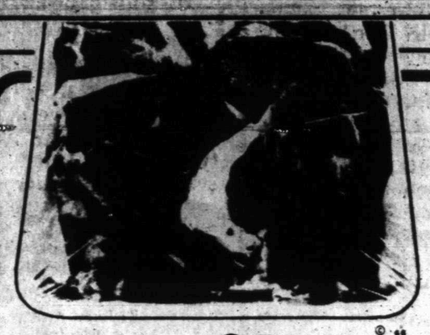

An awareness of VA burial benefits can often spare the family of a deceased veteran anxiety and financial hardship following the veterans's death, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

VA will furnish a headstone or marker to memoralize a veteran or mark the grave of a veteran buried in a national, state, or private ceremony. Interment in a national cemetery is available to veterans discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, and the eligible veteran's spouse and, minor children, and, under certain conditions, unmarried adult children. Some national cemeteries have no remaining spcae, however.

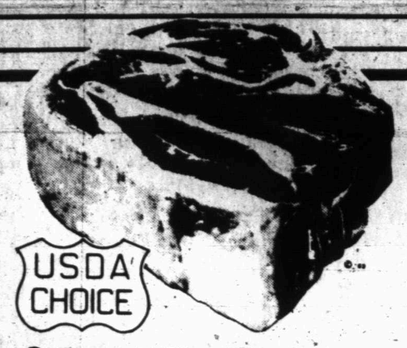

Recent legislation broadened eligibility for memorial headstones or markers, Dever said.

Persons wishing information about VA benefits and programs may contact Dever's office in the Western Texas College Administration building. The office is open each weekday and has evening hours while classes are in session at WTC. The office will be closed Dec. 23-Jan. 3 for the holidays.

ATTENTION FARMERS

We want to announce that 2380 acres of the most highly productive farm land, in the Roscoe area, will be sold at auction in January, 1982. Most of this land is of the "Blackland" nature. Most of this land has ASCS yields in excess of a bale to the acre. The tracts will be offered in half-section and quarter-section lots. Minerals and royalty will be released with all tracts.

Agriculture Roundup Given For State Of Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A lot of cotton was harvested in western areas and the plains the past week as open weather prevailed.

Harvest operations are past the half-way point in these areas and are nearing completion in some counties, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Yields and quality of the crop generally are good.

Cotton trailers continued to stack at gins despite the fact that most are operating around the clock. Farmers are field-storing a lot of cotton in modules so that they can continue harvesting without having to wait on trailers that would otherwise be tied up at gins.

Some cotton harvesting also continued in north central and eastern areas due to delays from recent rains, noted Pfannstiel. In addition, some peanuts are still being dug in north central counties.

Sugarcane harvesting remained in full swing in the Rio Grande While harvesting of the state's other sugar crop — sugar beets — was about complete in the High Plains.

Citrus harvesting also continued active in the Valley along with harvesting of some fall vegetables. Winter vegetables such as cabbage and carrots are making good progress.

Some parts of Texas are starting to get dry and that's beginning to hamper small grain growth, said Pfannstiel. Most early-planted wheat and oats are providing good grazing for livestock but will need rain soon for continued growth.

Livestock are going into the winter season in good shape, with some light feeding under way in most areas, added Pfannstiel. Marketings remained light due to continued weak prices.

Reports from district Extension directors showed the following conditions:

PANHANDLE: Cotton harvesting is in full swing, and harvesting of a few sugar beets continues. Farmers are preparing cropland for the coming season. Wheat is making good growth, with some fields being irrigated. Cattle are in good shape and have good grazing. Cows with calves are being fed.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton harvesting continues to make rapid progress and is nearing completion in some southern counties. Crop yields and quality are fair to good. A few sugar beets are still being harvested. Wheat continues to make excellent growth and is providing good grazing for cattle.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton strippers are moving at a rapid pace, with harvesting past the half-way point over the area. Up to 75 percent of the crop is in in some counties. Cotton yields are good and range up to a bale per acre. Wheat looks good but needs rain; most fields are being grazed. The pecan crop is excellent.

NORTH CENTRAL: Harvesting of cotton and peanuts continues due to recent rains which caused delays. Some planting of wheat and oats continues; early-planted fields are providing grazing. A good pecan harvest remains active. Cattle are in good shape; some light feeding has started.

NORTHEAST: A little cotton remains to be harvested, but the soybean harvest is complete. Soybean yields were good. About 90 percent of the pecan crop is in; yields and quality generally are good. Wheat and oats are making good growth and providing grazing for livestock. Some stockmen have started feeding hay to cattle.

FAR WEST: Cotton harvesting remains in full swing, with about half the crop in. Most gins are boasting huge backlogs of cotton; a lot of cotton is being field-stored in modules. Small grains continue to look good but could use rain as could ranges. Livestock remain in good shape. Deer hunting is actve.

WEST CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is still going full blast, but is nearing completion in some counties. Yields have been good but prices are poor. Small grains are starting to show some moisture stress due to recent dry conditions. Some oats are providng good grazing. Livestock remain in good condition; some supplemental feeding has started. A good to excellent pecan harvest is winding down; prices are low.

CENTRAL: Harvesting of a good peanut crop is virtually complete, but an excellent pecan harvest continues. Wheat is making excellent growth but greenbugs are becoming a problem in some fields. Most wheat and oats are providing good grazing. Livestock, pasture and range conditions remain good.

EAST: Cotton harvesting continues; about 75 percent of the crop is in. Harvesting of a good pecan crop is about complete. Wheat and oats continue to make good growth and some fields are being grazed. Livestock are in fair shape; hay feeding has started.

UPPER COAST: Christmas tree sales are going well in Orange County. A few scattered fields of soybeans are still being harvested. The pecan harvest is winding down; this year's crop ranged from poor to excellent. Winter pastures are making good growth. Livestock are in good condition; some feeding is under way.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Harvesting of a good pecan crop is nearing completion. Wheat and oats are making good growth and are pro- viding some grazing for livestock. Livestock are going into the winter season in good condition; some hay feeding has started.

SOUTHWEST: Harvesting of field crops is generally complete except for some fall vegetables. Winter vegetables are making good progress. Dry conditions are starting to hamper ranges and small grains. Cattle remain in good condition but prices continue poor.

COASTAL BEND: All field crops are in with the completion of the soybean harvest. Harvesting of a good pecan crop is virtually complete. Some wheat planting continues. Early-planted wheat and oats are providing some grazing. Pastures and ranges are in excellent shape. Livestock are in top condition going into the winter.

SOUTH: Sugarcane and citrus harvests are in full swing and pepper harvesting remains active. Winter vegetables such as cabbage and carrots are making good progress. Livestock remain in good condition for this time of the year; marketings are light due to weak prices.

In Mexico...

Border Angel Serves People

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Dozens of women and children had waited more than an hour outside a ramshackle wood and cardboard compound when a blue and white van pulled up.

Inside was a tall, white-haired man clad in pajamas and a white jacket.

The waiting crowd eagerly cleared a path for him as he slowly descended.

"Buenos dias," some told him as they shook his hand reverently.

Frank Ferree, an 87-year-old living legend nicknamed the "Border Angel," had returned with another supply of white bread, donuts, fruit and vegetables for some 300 improverished families.

"They like to see me," he said, surrounded by smiling faces. "They think I've come back from the tomb."

He suffered a heart attack last year but has resumed his trips four times a week to distribute food, clothing and medicine to the poor here and in Reynosa, another Mexican border town.

"I'm getting stronger," he said. "I couldn't stop if I tried."

He has been nominated this year for the Nobel Peace Prize by a retired philosophy professor at Pan American University in Edinburg, Texas. Ferree said if he won he would use the prize money to build a hospital for crippled children.

A native of Valentine, Neb., Ferree plunged into fulltime welfare work after holding a variety of jobs across the country.

During World War I, he ran communication lines on the Western Front in France and marched into Germany with the occupation forces.

After the war he delivered mail on horseback and lived in several states before moving to Harlingen, Texas, in the 1940s.

One day while surveying along the Rio Grande, he noticed field workers eating scraps discarded by his crew.

He said that incident led him to start distributing food to the poor on both sides of the border. He founded Volunteer Border Relief in 1956.

"Thirty or 40 years ago, it used to be the cotton pickers here and across the border who were suffering," he said. "Now it's the families who have moved to the border from the interior of Mexico. They want to come over (to the United States)..."

Ferree and several fulltime volunteers rely on contributions and donated food and clothing. They live in a modest dwelling with an outdoor toilet in Harlingen.

Ferree said no one takes a salary. He lives on a $481 a month veteran's pension.

"It's going to be a beautiful day for a lot of people," Ferree said one morning before a recent trip to Mexico, 30 miles away. Beside his chair was a worn copy of Billy Graham's book, "Angels—God's Secret Agents."

He enthusiastically mentions receiving a letter from President Reagan.

"I commend you for your charitable work on behalf of those in need," Reagan wrote Sept. 8. "Your efforts reflect the best of the American spirit — sharing with those who are in want."

Ferree dined at the White House in 1960 with President Eisenhower, who learned of his work along the border. Friends raised money to send him to Washington.

Two Dallas men donated the van used to collect and distribute goods.

Before driving to Mexico, Ferree and his volunteers stopped at a grocery and a bread company for last minute donations of day-old products and partially spoiled fruit and vegetables.

Anything is welcomed by the hungry on Ferree's rounds.

Unemployment runs at 30 percent in Matamoros, a city of 200,000 across from Brownsville, Texas. Many families live in primitive conditions, without indoor plumbing or electricity.

At the distribution center, barefoot children stopped their games to stare curiously at the van coming down the dirt road. They recognized the blue-eyed, elderly man and raced off to stand in line for a sweet handout.

Blood Drive Set Thursday

The Scurry County Advisory Council for Blood Services met Thursday at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Building. The council is trying to organize donors and potential donors in this area.

During the holidays, the need for blood is greater than ever. On Dec. 23, between the hours of 2-8 p.m. at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, you can give this lasting and worthwhile gift.

Volunteers who are not able to donate blood are also needed. You can help by being a member of the telephone committee, taking information, making or serving refreshments afterwards.

If you wish to be a donor or a volunteer in other areas please contact Susan Thomas at the Senior Citizens Center, 573-4025.

600 People Mail Answers

Nearly 600 poeple in Texas have mailed their responses on the proposed national soil and water conservation pogram outlined by the Secretary of Agriculture, reports George C. Marks, state conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Temple.

When the review period ends on Jan. 15, the responses will be summarized and a report prepared for the secretary.

SCS has been designated to collect the comments in Texas. The mailing address is P. O. Box 648, Temple, Tex. 76503.

The main features of the proposed national conservation program are increased roles for local and state governments in conservation work and targeting a greater portion of USDA dollars and staff to critical soil and water resource problem areas.

The program is the USDA response to the Soil and Water Resources conservation Act of 1977. SCS and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices throughout the state have a supply of a leaflet that summarizes the program and containing a postage-paid response form.

Tech Offers Grad Course At College

Texas Tech University will offer a graduate course in educational administration and supervision at Western Texas College in the 1982 spring semester.

EDAD 5310 is useful to supervisors, principals, team leaders, grade level chairmen, and central office personnel and applies to supervision and mid-management certificates. Topics covered include the role of the supervisor, supervisor-principal interaction, planning and leading change, teacher evaluation, inservice, and clinical supervision.

Registration will be held at 6 p.m. on Jan. 14 in the WTC Academic Science Building, with the first class to follow. Persons wishing further information may contact Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice-president.

Testimony Ends In Sheriff's Suit

TYLER, Texas (AP) — U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice says he will rule next month on whether suspended Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith should be reinstated and whether prosecutors can proceed with criminal charges against him.

Both sides rested Friday in a civil suit filed by Smith against District Attorney Hunter Brush. Justice instructed lawyers for both sides to submit briefs by Jan. 4. He said he would rule sometime after that.

Smith has been accused, among other things, of using his county car for personal out-of-town trips, making personal long-distance phone calls on county telephones, and using deputies to patrol an apartment complex in exchange for a free apartment for his girlfriend.

Charges against him include official misconduct and bribery.

Smith contends Brush sought indictments against him because of his deputies' testimony in the trial of Kenneth Bora on a charge of shooting Creig Matthews, an undercover police officer who helped obtain several drug indictments in 1979.

Matthews now says Bora, a former Tyler area nightclub operator, was framed. Sheriff's deputies testified they had doubts about undercover officers' account of the Sept. 15, 1979.

In testimony Friday, Brush denied he sought retaliation against Smith for the deputies' testimony. He said he started investigating Smith after allegations that the sheriff tried to get a shoplifting charge against a woman dropped in hopes of receiving sexual favors if he succeeded.

Brush said those allegations involve a May 9 trip Smith made to Dallas to talk with Skaggs-Alpha-Beta grocery store officials about "handling" a shoplifting case against a woman.

Tyler Police Department officials filed a case of official misconduct case against Smith and filed affidavits from Skaggs officials who said Smith tried to get them to drop the shoplifting charge, Brush testified.

According to affidavits filed by the police officials, Smith said he expected a sexual favor from the woman if he could get the charges dismissed, Brush said.

Brush said that Smith, who he earlier had informed of his intention to present information about the allegations to the grand jury, told him: "You need not take this thing to the grand jury."

Brush said that he answered that law required him to do so, and that the sheriff replied, "I want to help you and I'll do anything you want me to."

Dear Abby

Man's Better Half Tempers His Worse Side

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have known for some time that my husband has been seeing another woman. I know who she is, but there's nothing I can do about it. I took this man for better or worse, till death do us part, and I will never break my marriage vows.

Yesterday I found a note in his jacket pocket. It was written in his own handwriting. It somehow made me feel better. Please put this in your column, Abby. It might help other wives, for I'm sure there are other husbands who feel the same way, but the animal in them is just too hard to control.

FEELING BETTER

DEAR FEELING: I'm all for making as many people as possible feel better, so here's your husband's note:

HOW I REALLY FEEL
She makes me feel dirty and guilty.
My wife makes me feel clean again.
I hide when I am with her.
I am proud to be seen with my wife.
I know she is a whore.
I know my wife is a lady.
My feeling for her is lust.
My feeling for my wife is love.
She only satisfies the animal in me.
I feel secure in my wife's love.

DEAR ABBY: My father died when I was so little I don't even remember him. I will be 11 years old next month. My mother has a very good friend of hers living here at our house. He has been here over a year. All my friends know my father is dead, but what do I say when someone asks me whose car is always parked in front of our house? They know we don't have one. I hate to lie.

NO ANSWER IN FARIBAULT, MINN.

DEAR NO ANSWER: Don't lie. Tell them the car belongs to a friend of your mother. It does, and he is.

DEAR ABBY: I recently opened my own business, so I got myself a mechanical device whereby a recording of my voice tells the caller I am out and asks him to leave his name and address so I can return his call.

That proved to be a total flop. People kept calling and hanging up the minute they realized they were talking to a recording.

Then I engaged an answering service. A very courteous, businesslike person answers my phone and asks the caller to please leave his name and number so I can call him back. Most of the callers say, "Never mind. I'll call again." They won't even leave their names. This is infuriating!

These same friends used to complain that they could never get me, and now that I have an answering service I am no better-off now than I was before!

Abby, why are people so rude? I am hurt and angry. Please print this because I'm sure I'm not the only one with this problem.

OUT OF TOUCH

DEAR OUT: I can understand why some people become inhibited when they realize they are in communication with a "machine," but an answering service performs (or should) the same service as a personal secretary. You either need new friends or a new answering service.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: How would you define success?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I like Christopher Morley's definition: "There is only one success — to be able to spend your life in your own way."

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Jones, Davis United In Evening Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. MONTY BEN DAVIS

Vickie Jean Jones and Monty Ben Davis exchanged wedding vows November 3 at seven in the evening at First Baptist Church. Jim Patrick officiated the double ring ceremony. The couple wrote their own vows.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon McMurran of 3203 Hill Avenue are parents of the bride and the groom is the son of Ms. Eltine Lloyd Davis of Midland and Horace Davis of Post.

The altar was centered with a brass archway entwined with English ivy and flanked by brass heart-shaped candelabra. A unity candle was encircled with apricot flowers and greenery. Two ficus trees accented with apricot ribbon stood at the entrance.

Wanda Stansell of Fluvanna was pianist. Teresa Stansell Merritt of Odessa sang "Surround Me with Love" and Endless Love."

Joe Green, grandfather of the bride, gave her in marriage. She was attired in a white lace dress accented with sequins and fur featuring a long train and scalloped neckline. A wide brimmed hat with floor length streamers and white satin slippers completed the ensemble.

She carried a cascade of tiger lilies, staphanotis, open English ivy, and apricot kalanchoes with apricot streamers.

In keeping with tradition, she wore a pinky ring of diamonds and gold for something old and her dress was new. She borrowed a strand of pearls from Susan Parsons and diamond earrings from Sally Bolton. Her garter was blue.

Sally Hurt Bolton of Odessa served as matron honor. Bridesmaids were Susan Parsons of Lamesa and cousins of the bride, Gina Ainsworth of Post and Tammy Rimer Strunk. They were dressed in flowing patterned apricot evening gowns made of satin by Givenchy. They carried brass candlesticks with a ring of assorted apricot flowers.

Flower girl, Amy Beaver of Fluvanna, wore an apricot checked gingham dress covered with a white eyelet apron. She carried a basket of silk apricot flowers.

Twin cousins of the groom, M'Lis and M'Lise Lloyd, of Fluvanna lit the candles. They wore apricot floor length dresses accented with wrist corsages made of miniature apricot flowers.

Best man was Billy Wayne Busbee of Midland. Groomsmen were Terry and Randy Davis, brothers of the groom, and Jim Ketter, all of Midland.

Guests were seated by Dave Strunk of Snyder and Toya Bolton of Odessa.

Donny Lloyd, cousin of the groom, of Farmersville was ring bearer. He wore a brown suit and carried a white satin heart-shaped pillow accented with apricot.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a white eyelet cloth and held a three-tiered heart-shaped cake surrounded by four heart-shaped cakes connected with apricot ribbon. The table was centered with an arrangement of apricot flowers and candles. Suzanne Johnson of Midland, Cindy Russell Stanley of Kermit and Renee Kelley of Big Spring served the cake and apricot sherbet punch.

The groom's table was covered with a terra cotta cloth and held a Texas-shaped centerpiece with a saddle and dried flowers, cactus, and barbed wire as a fence. Keri Stallings of Midland and Lisa Smith of Gail served the horseshoe-shaped chocolate cake.

Lisa Warren of Big Spring registered guests in the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip to Kansas City, the couple is at home in Midland. Both are enrolled at Midland College.

The bride attended Howard College on a cheerleading scholarship and Midland College. She is employed in the land department of Woods Petroleum Corporation.

The groom attended Howard College on a rodeo scholarship and Midland College. He is employed by Plainsman, Inc. and is a professional bullrider.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hacker of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sonya Marla Hacker, to Larry Joe Bagwell of Dallas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bagwell of 2103 Avenue N. The couple will exchange vows February 27 at four in the afternoon in First Christian Church at Hereford.

A Warning About Christmas Plants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The most traditional of all Christmas plant gifts — mistletoe, holly and poinsettias — can be hazardous to your health.

The warning comes from Dr. Frederick F. Newirth, vice president and medical director for Fireman's Fund American Life Insurance Co. He says a curious child who eats a leaf, stem or berry stands a chance of suffering stomach and intestinal irritation, diarrhea and bradycardia.

Those small, innocent-looking white berries on mistletoe contain poisons that can kill when eaten in large quantities, says Newirth. All parts of a poinsettia plant — stems, leaves, flowers, buds and the milky sap — contain a toxic substance that irritates the mouth, throat, stomach and eyes.

Holly is not often regarded as dangerous, notes Newirth, but the berries can cause extreme vomiting, diarrhea and stupor. The poison actually gets stronger as the leaves begin to die.

ALMOND COOKIES

My sister Phyllis uses a food processor to make her own version of a popular sweet.

2½ cups fork-stirred unbleached flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
1 large egg
1-3rds cup corn oil
1 tablespoon frozen orange juice concentrate, just as it comes from the container
2 teaspoons almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Egg wash: 1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water until blended
Whole blanched almonds

Stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. In a food processor with the metal blade, process together the sugar and egg for 1 minute. With the machine running, through the feed tube pour the oil, orange concentrate and extracts; process until blended. Turn off the machine and uncover; add ½ of the flour mixture; cover and process until blended. Repeat with the remaining flour mixture. Chill if necessary before shaping. Using a level tablespoonful for each, roll dough into balls. Place a couple of inches apart on buttered cookie sheets; with your fingers flatten each ball into a 2-inch-wide round. Brush with some of the egg wash and press an almond in the center of each. (Freeze remaining egg wash for use another time.) Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until edges are golden brown — about 12 minutes. Makes 45.

An ill-timed blemish doesn't have to ruin your self-confidence — follow these tips to hide it. First, make sure your face and hands are clean, then apply a light layer of moisturizer. Next, go over the blemish and the rest of your face with your foundation, using a small cosmetic sponge to blend well. Now, go back and cover the blemish with cover-up cream; use a makeup brush to dot it on lightly, then pat the spot gently with the sponge to

Opening lead: ♠Q

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Experts have a large number of unusual-sounding plays in their arsenals: compound squeezes, winkles, smother plays, Vienna coups, to name a few. These techniques sound esoteric, but once learned are easily recognizable.

Today's unusual hand came up in a rubber bridge game. North opened a strong two-spade bid. Although he lacked the classic number of defensive tricks, his playing strength more than justified his bid. Clearly North-South should contract for seven spades or seven notrump, but a slip of the tongue by North landed his partnership in seven diamonds.

South won the opening club lead with his ace and drew two rounds of trumps, discovering the unfavorable diamond break.

Declarer, an experienced player, realized the hand could still be made through a trump coup. All the necessary elements for the coup were present. Declarer and East held an equal number of trumps, dummy had the needed winners, and there were notrumps in dummy to finesse for East's 10.

The technique was simple. As declarer ran dummy's spades, East became trapped. He had to play before South and when he eventually ruffed South over-ruffed, drew the remaining trumps and made his grand slam.

MRS. GREGORY ERWIN PAVLIK

Ayers, Pavlik Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

Patti Lynn Ayers and Gregory Erwin Pavlik were united in marriage on November 14 at 37th Street Church of Christ. Kenton Harvey, minister of the Aledo Church of Christ, officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ayers of Aledo and the groom is the son of Erwin Pavlik and Shirley Pavlik of Snyder.

The church was decorated with candles and baskets of white and blue carnations and greenery.

Musical selections included "This Is My Task," sung by the congregation at the beginning of the ceremony. "There's a Tree in the Forest" was sung by the honor attendants as they approached the altar and Foy Don Mills Jr., brother-in-law of the bride, sang "All of My Life" as the bride was escorted down the aisle. Other selections were "The Wedding Song" and "A Baby for Bobby."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white chiffon and Chantilly lace. The Queen Anne neckline was bordered with Chantilly lace and tiny seed pearls. Lace covered the entire bodice of the empire waisted gown. The sleeves were fitted in style with a bishop overlay accented by Chantilly lace and satin bows. The full skirt flowed gracefully to the floor into a cathedral length train. Ruffles of Chantilly lace bordered the bottom of the skirt. A matching fingertip lace mantilla completed the ensemble. Her bouquet was off-white sweetheart roses with blue carnations and spider mums.

Serving as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mitzi Eleis Mills of Anton. Terri Janae Ayers of Aledo, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Becky Lucas of Levelland, Melissa Shurbet and Kelyon Williams. They wore silver blue velvet gowns with ruffled necklines, raglan sleeves and skirts softly gathered at the waist.

Best man was Stan Pavlik, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were John and Roger Pavlik, brothers of the groom, Daryl Fitzgerald, Don Mingus, and Steve Hedges of Big Spring. John and Roger Pavlik also served as ushers.

Candlelighters were Steve Hedges and Kathy Willis of Levelland.

A reception was attended by approximately 200 guests at the Christian Student Center on the WTC campus following the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple resides in Clovis, New Mexico.

The bride attended Lubbock Christian College, Texas Christian University and Harris School of Nursing and plans to complete her education at Eastern New Mexico University in Clovis.

The groom is a graduate of the USAF Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado and is now serving as 1st Lieutenant in Air Force Intelligence Training.

Symposium To Focus On Women, Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives from women's organizations, corporations, universities and social-service agencies will attend a one-day symposium on "Women, Work and Family," to be held at Hunter College here Feb. 4, 1982.

The Association of Junior Leagues Inc. is sponsoring the conference as part of its 60th anniversary observance. The discussions will center on the impact that the increase in the number of women in the workforce in the 1980s will have on the women themselves, within the family structure and on volunteerism.

"Marriage" Is A Fast Moving Novel

MARRIAGE. By Gwen Davis. Arbor House. 265 Pages. $12.95.

What happens in a marriage where the wife is more successful than her husband and begins to think there's more out there than she'd originally settled for?

Chris is a song writer whose career is bringing her fame and money but her husband, Harry, doesn't have the killer instinct he needs to get ahead in the record business. Out of a job, he starts a restaurant and when that fails he becomes part-owner of a health-food store in southern California.

Chris is torn between the desire for freedom and the reluctance to put her daughter and son through a family breakup such as she experienced as a child. It is during a family vacation in Mexico that she finally comes to her decision.

Though Chris and Harry and their children all come alive under the author's capable pen, the most compelling character is Evelyn, Chris' mother, who is bulldozing her way through life, criticizing, and keeping a sharp lookout for a third husband, preferably wealthy.

Gwen Davis, author of a number of novels, including "The Pretenders" and "Touching," has an eye for detail, an ear for dialogue, a sense of drama and a narrative skill that combine to make "Marriage" both a fast-moving and a moving novel. JoyStilley Associated-Press

Modern Technology Has Changed Carpets

By BARBARA MAYER
Ap Newsfeatures

Many home furnishings products are made today as they were in the past. Furniture, fabric, china and glassware come readily to mind. But modern technology has played a major role in shaping present day carpets and rugs.

So far, technology has changed the preponderance of carpeting from natural to manmade fibers, from woven construction to tufted and from a sameness of texture to a variety, including cut pile, flat looks and shag.

Despite the rapid technological changes which already have altered its product, leaders of the carpet industry predicted more changes to come at a recent panel discussion in New York sponsored by the National Home Fashions League.

Marjorie Rhodes, a textile stylist, predicted that new computer-controlled coloring and patterning machinery will lead to carpet that looks like an abstract painter's canvas.

Heretofore, multicolored carpet has been used mainly to hide soil. But the new machinery which can apply as many as eight colors in a soft or hard-edged precise pattern will lead to the use of multiple colors for the sake of design, she said.

The machinery, developed by a Georgia machinery manufacturer, has been sold to at least three large American carpet mills and to two Canadian manufacturers and styling work has already started on new carpet designs, said the textile stylist.

Another prediction made at the panel is that easily-installed carpet tiles will replace roll goods, especially in office and other commercial installations. Carpet tiles already account for 35 percent of the European commercial market, but only a very small portion of the American market, according to Norman Rosenblatt, a contractor.

The advent of flat electric cable has made carpet tiles the best choice in new and refurbished buildings, he said. The cable, which is laid directly on the floor, saves construction costs. But its use precludes installation of rolled carpeting, since cutting the carpet could damage the cable and laying it would prevent future access to the cable.

The tiles, however, are installed without cutting and can be picked up and reset if the cable must be moved or repaired. "All of the five or six major jobs we are working on are tile projects," the contractor said.

It seems likely that once carpet tiles are widespread in commercial installations, their use will spread to the home since the distinction between commercial and residential carpet is breaking down, according to the panel.

"A handmade oriental rug took 15,554 hours to produce, tying each knot by hand. Yet, using modern machinery, we can produce a good rug the same size in 30 seconds," said Walter Guinan, an industry consultant, summarizing the contribution technology has made toward mass production.

Such technolgoy has benefited the consumer by keeping prices down in comparison to other consumer durables such as automobiles, added Guinan. And it has changed the consumer's expectations, said Ted Einstein, partner in a New York area carpet retail firm.

"Today's consumers think more about quality and less about fads, yet they are looking for wider and wider choices," said Einstein. He sees consumers as more intelligent shoppers than they used to be. "The old weight-price formula (which says the heavier the carpet, the more people will pay for it) no longer applies," he added.

The trends Einstein sees reflected in consumer demand at his own stores are for velour-like surfaces with shorter pile heights.

Once, color was considered the most important determinant in choice. Today, texture has replaced color as a consumer's first concern.

What do carpet industry leaders see in the future? A National Home Fashions League survey turned up the following opinions:

"The trend in color for residential carpet is toward soft yet clear peaches and roses, though white and neutrals continue strong. Pattern for residential markets is subtle, a play of color for an airbrushed effect. In commercial uses, the trend in pattern is toward minigeometrics," said Robert V. Dale, Karastan Rug Mills.

"The trend is toward velours — low tightly-constructed carpet with a rich velvety texture. Cranberry, burgundy and eggplant will be trendsetting colors in velours Salmon and mauve will be the big fashion colors," according to Gerald Leifer, Collins & Aikman.

"As times grow more turbulent, the need for the therapeutic uplift of cheerful colors becmes more important. Soil-resistant finishes help make the softened color palette possible," said Lee Kolker, C.H. Masland & Sons.

common sense ruling

The Supreme Court of the United States restored some common sense to the nation's playing fields and locker rooms recently by its refusal to mandate unisex sports in the nation's schools.

In unanimously affirming, without comment, an appellate court ruling that separate but equal athletic programs for boys and girls were not necessarily unconstitutional, the court has spared school districts many costly and controversial choices.

The court ruled on a suit filed by Karen O'Connor against the Prospect Heights, Ill., Board of Education in 1980, when the 11-year-old girl was refused permission to try out for the boys' basketball team at MacArthur Junior High School.

By declining to rule in her faver, the Supreme Court in effect left such decisions to local school districts, some of which already allow girls to play on boys teams. And by merely affirming an appellate court decision, the Supreme Court avoided laying down rigid and potentially disruptive rules for equal boys' and girls' sports, while making it clear that girls' athletic programs may no longer be relegated to second class status.

The court's decision should cool a quixotic demand for mandatory participation of boys and girls in mixed team sports that arose after Congress adopted Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, stating that "no person...shall on the basis of sex be excluded from participation...under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

Since that law was passed, schools and colleges have undertaken a long overdue expansion of their sports programs for girls.

The law does not require the admission of girls to boys' teams, however, and the court has quashed a needless extension of federal authority by leaving this decision where it belongs---in the hands of local school trustees.

"There's an economic indicator. He had to lay off Rudolph and turkeys are cheap this year."

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Most of us don't know exactly what we want, but we're certain we don't have it."

Snyder has a reputation.

It's a good one, and one that folks in positions of influence have helped mold over the years.

Before we moved to Snyder, we heard a lot about the city that was known for its fine public buildings, it's downtown renovation, it's diversified economy and it's far-sighted leadership.

Snyder was and is known as one of the bright spots in West Texas. Snyder has a reputation for demanding the best--sort of a tradition that has developed over the years.

Snyder's business community has grown in the past few years as sales tax figures will testify. Snyder's shopping district has become regional in nature with folks from neighboring towns taking advantage of the good selections available here.

It appears that the Christmas season is off to a good start, and the additional persons coming to view the three football playoff games were an added bonus.

The Canyon Reef basketball tournament, always held in December, is another factor in attracting outside money.

The lone disappointment this Christmas season is the Christmas lights around the square. There's really no one to blame, and finding a culprit wouldn't solve the problem.

The solution is to start immediately to solve the problem for next December. Snyder needs new lights and decorations. We'd like to see the chamber join forces with any and all interested persons and raise the necessary funds to repair and purchase new decorations.

We envision lights not only around the square, but out College Avenue and both directions on 25th street. Snyder could then have the reputation for being the best decorated community in West Texas.

We think such a venture would pay dividends in the long run and now is the time to begin such a project.

Perhaps a combined effort of the chamber, city, county, civic and ladies organizations can "turn on" Snyder next December.

Coffee Breaks Out For Police

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Police officers in Key West are being forbidden from taking coffee breaks.

City officials said some officers were abusing their coffee break time, stretching what should have been a 10- or 15-minute break into a 30- or 40-minute session. Sometimes more than one officer would go on a coffee break at a time, they said.

NEW ORLEANS (NEA)—When the Republican Governors Association held its annual conference here recently, the discussion of next year's political prospects was appropriately titled "1982: A Year of Political Opportunity and Danger."

The convergence of an unusual combination of circumstances will indeed make next year's gubernatorial elections a volatile, high-risk enterprise in which either party could suffer debilitating losses or enjoy exhilarating gains.

Illustrative of the high stakes involved is the fact that gubernatorial races are scheduled to be held in 36 of the 50 states, producing contests for fully three-fourths of all state executives' seats.

Democrats currently control 27 of those positions while Republicans hold 23 posts, a ratio that will remain unchanged after the recently elected governors of New Jerssey and Virginia are inaugurated next month.

The 1982 list of gubernatorial contests includes races in the nation's eight most populous states—California, New York, Texas, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Florida and Michigan—whose residents consitute almost half of the country's total population.

Republicans are more vulnuerable in that category because they hold a 5-3 edge among those states, but Democrats are more vulnerable overall because they hold a 20-16 margin in all states holding gubernatorial elections next year.

Richard Wirthlin, president of Decision Making Information, A Santa Ana, Calif., survey research firm, told those attending the GOP meeting here that the gubernatorial races will be on "cutting edge" of next year's politics.

"Clearly, what happens to the unemployment rate is going to be a very critical determinant of how we stand with the voters in 1982," said Wirthlin, who regularly conducts political polls for President Reagan.

As recently as four years ago, Republicans held only 12 governorships, with Democrats in control of all but one of the remaining 38 posts—but a GOP net gain of only three seats next year could give the Republicans a majority of the state executives' positions for the first time in more than a decade.

Atop the list of states where the Republicans believe they have an opportunity to wrest control of the governorship from the Democrats is New York, where Gov. Hugh L. Carey's popularity appears to have slipped markedly in political polls.

In Connecticut, Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill, the former Lieutenant governor who assumed his current office after Gov. Ella Grasso became ill, also appears to be highly vulnerable to a GOP challenge.

In Alabama, there are reports that Democratic Gov. Forrest H. "Fob" James Jr., who supported Reagan's presidential bid last year, may return to the party he left earlier and seek re-electon as a Republican.

But there also are reports that former Democratic Gov. George C. Wallace, still one of the state's most popular political figures, may again bid for the governorship.

Two of the country's most popular state executives, Iowa Gov. Robert D. Ray and Michigan Gov. William G. Milken, are both Republicans who would be highly favored to win if they seek re-election.

But neither man has yet announced his intentions, and Miliken is considered the most likely of the two to decide against another race, thus providing the Democrats with a chance to capture Michigan's governorship.

The Democrats have a similar opportunity in Ohio, where Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes is barred from seeking another term by a constitutional provision.

In addition, Republican Govs. James R. Thompson of Illinois, Albert H. Quie of Minnesota and Frank D. White of Arkansas are high on the Democrats' list of GOP state executives susceptible to defeat next year.

Thus, if Wirthlin's worst fear—a deep and protracted recession—is realized, the Democrats could return to the halcyon days of the mid-1970s when they controlled the country's governorships by a 2-1 margin.

Some people have faith in the healing power of certain ministers. Probably few have as strong a faith as some people in Jerusalem who believed Peter's shadow might heal the sick.

"And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women. Insomuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by might overshadow some of them." — Acts 5:14-15

at wits end

by erma bombeck

I have always been led to believe that marketing is an exact science.

It's a revealing science. After years of watching commercials, I have gained some real insights into people I never knew before.

Elderly people don't sweat and never need a deodorant. Young people never suffer from irregularity. Black people never get clogged-up nasal passages and people with short hair are never worth the price of an expensive hairing coloring.

Women don't buy cars. At least not on television. So what if the statistics show that 42 percent of cars are bought by women? On the tube, they ride in them, on top of them, and walk on the beach with cars in the background, but they don't buy them.

According to commercials, Hispanics never get colds or if they do, never find a remedy for them. Chicanos don't get headaches or dial long distance, and Asian-Americans never do laundry.

As for native Americans, I've never then seen them use any product on television. They exist on a diet of margarine.

As far as television is concerned, women may go around only once in their lives, but they never do it with gusto. They are never rewarded with a beer at the end of the day.

Watching television, you'd think that all consumers weighed less than 36 pounds. The only plump women on television get clogged sinks and dance with their cats.

Consumers don't wear glasses. They are worn only by docors who want to relieve you from hemorrhoids or swollen tissues. And the only people who eat dry sandwiches for lunch are construction workers. The men in the three-piece suits brown-bag only freshness. It comes with the territory.

I've remained silent through a lot of television commercials that put a strain on credibility. Dancing underwear, butter that talks, dogs that sing and soup cans that march on a town, but the other night when a 36-pound woman said with a straight face, "I have to watch my weight," I threw a lamp at the set.

I've had it.

Even though it appears your financial picture will be bright in the year ahead, don't forget that the sun doesn't shine every day. Tuck a little away for those rainy periods.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's wonderful to be optimistic, but by the same token, be realistic today and see things for what they are, not just as you'd like them to be. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You know your budget. Try to live within your means today, even if you are with extravagant friends and feel that for appearance's sake you should keep up with them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be a slow starter today and fail to attend to things that should be taken care of. Don't be annoyed if your mate prods you a bit. It's for your own good.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful not to jump to conclusions today. Your early assessments of situations could be faulty. A second analysis will reveal hidden factors.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be content with your lot in life today, even if you talk to another who tells you how well he or she is doing. This person could be exaggerating greatly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to put too much stock in lavish promises today. Others may mean it now, but unfortunately they won't be able to follow through later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make haste slowly today. That which you do impulsively may have to be undone or repeated if you make mistakes. Problems are unlikely when you take your time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may receive an invitation early in the day when you're not in a fun mood. Don't reject it. Later, it'll be just what you'll want to do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have the ability today to rectify adverse situations and turn them around to your advantage without hurting others in the process.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) People with whom you associate today may brag or boast a bit about their accomplishments, but don't follow suit. Playing it humble will make you stand out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's no doubt that you can do what you set your mind to today, but be certain that the goals you establish for yourself are worth the effort and the price.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be disappointed today if, at first, everything seems to be working against you. When the results are tallied, you'll come out on top.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could profit rather handsomely at this time from situations others are developing in which they may invite you to participate in some manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your considerate actions today will win the respect and loyalty of persons with whom you'll be dealing. Warm gestures will impel them to cultivate your friendship.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are now in a cycle where achievement of lofty goals is within your capabilities. Raise your sights toward targets in which you'll be able to take pride.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have the ability today to inspire enthusiasm. This is a good time to promote projects or enterprises in which you truly have faith.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be extremely alert in financial or business situations today. There could be a change in conditions which may prove beneficial to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Partnership situations should prove fortunate today, especially if you are allied with someone who equals your imagination and vision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your possibilties for personal gain are very promising at this time. You could reap rewards from two sources. Give that which might offer a return top priority.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't let situations which affect your self-interests fall under the control of others at this time. No one can manage your affairs better than you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You should now be able to begin to conclude to your satisfaction a situation which has caused you some frustrations lately. Take positive action.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Lady Luck tends to favor you in this cycle where your newest interests and hopes are concerned. Be expectant, but also do something about your desires.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions look very promising at this time regarding your status and earning abilities. Put your bright ideas to work. Make the cash register ring.

Speculation Causes Penny Shortage

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Unfounded speculation that copper pennies will increase in value once the U.S. Treasury begins circulating a new zinc alloy coin next year has created a penny shortage throughout Texas banking officials say.

Although bankers contend that the copper in the pennies will not be worth more than face value of the coins for as long as 100 years, they say hoarding of millions of the pennies is creating an artificial shortage and hindering change-making at the height of Christmas shopping in Texas.

This is causing many banks to ration pennies and pay up to $1.20 for 100 of them, restaurants to "round down" their sales to the nearest nickel, and stores to post signs imploring folks to cash in their pennies, a check of Texas' four Federal Reserve Banks shows.

Federal Reserve Banks in San Antonio, Dallas, El Paso and Houston report that penny supplies began drying up last March when the announcement came out of Washington that copper pennies would be replaced with a 97 percent zinc cent sandwiched between copper beginning in 1982.

"We have run out of them completely on occasion, and when we run out of them the banks normally will too, since we're the supplier of them" said Herb Barbee, manager of the cash department of the local Federal Reserve Bank.

The San Antonio reserve gets 18.5 million pennies each month from the mint and distributes them to 320 banks throughout South, Central and West Texas, but over the past several months few of them have made their way baek to the Federal Reserve.

In Dallas, Federal Reserve official Robert Blackwell said his bank distributes $500,000 worth, or 50 million, pennies each month and there still has been a shortage.

"Basically, it's not a natural shortage. What's happening is people are doing a little speculating that when the new penny comes out the first of next year, the copper penny will be worth more. It's pure speculation," said Blackwell, whose institution serves 450 banks as far west as Lubbock and Amarillo and as far east as Shreveport, La.

At El Paso, assistant vice president Jack Collier said the 6.4 million pennies the Federal Reserve Bank there sends to 75 banks in West Texas and New Mexico never return once they are distributed.

"We used to get bags after bags of pennies from our customers each day," Collier said. "Now they are very rare. All we're getting is our usual allotment of new pennies each month."

Collier said the mint had circulated $13 billion worth of copper pennies in the United States during 1981 and "I can't imagine them being worth anything for the next 100 years."

"Years ago, somebody said the wheat leaf penny would be worth something someday, but I never saw anything come of that," said Ann Shuler, head cashier at the Del Rio National Bank which has begun rationing pennies to its customers.

Mrs. Shuler said people were hoarding the coins and her bank was resisting paying a premium, although some Del Rio businesses were hanging signs requesting pennies.

Austin National Bank has been paying $1.20 for 100 pennies, and Barbee said some San Antonio banks were paying $1.05.

Roy Swarl, president of the Grant County, N.M., Bank served by the El Paso Federal Reserve, belittled the rumors that people should hold onto their pennies.

"The price of copper would have to be $120 a pound before the metal in the coin would be worth more than face value," while the current price of copper is 80 cents a pound, he said.

One Austin bank official, who asked not be identified, contended the Federal Reserve was holding up distribution of an adequate supply of pennies "apparently because they want to get the zinc penny off to a good start."

Barbee conceded that his South Texas Federal Reserve Bank was still receiving the same amount of pennies it did in 1979, but said the hoarding and population growth were the main factors reducing penny supplies.

"The mint has been allocating pennies to us on the basis of 1979 usage and we, being farther south, have experienced a considerable amount of growth. Unfortunately, while the mint figures that's the most equitable way to [illegible] pennies, it's really not fair to us when we're experiencing a growth pattern. So the demand for pennies is high and unfortunately the supply has been curtailed."

"Last week the Federal Reserve let us have $50 worth of pennies and I have 11 tellers, so we're rationing them out," said Peggy Cunnningham, assistant cashier at the First National Bank of Edinburg.

"We're limiting how many we give to our commercial customers," added a spokesman for the Corpus Christi National Bank.

"We've pretty much got a good supply. We order as many as we can and limit customers," said Kim White, assistant vice president of the First National Bank of Bellaire in suburban Houston. "A lot of groceries stores and restaurants have signs up saying 'we need pennies.' Some are giving a coke and 50 cents for a roll of 50 pennies."

Barbee said the shortage could continue until early Spring, when Texas begins getting some of the new zinc pennies now being minted.

"Once they come out with the new pennies, we're anticipating the [illegible] probably going to flood the market with them. Although they've begun minting them now, we may not receive them probably until the last part of the first quarter of 1982, or maybe the second quarter of 1982," he said.

In the meantime, he figures most of the pennies being distributed by the Federal Reserve are "underground" in people's mayonnaise jars.

Cornerstone Is Deleted

CHICAGO (AP) — The planned cornerstone of a huge North Loop redevelopment project — a [illegible] Hilton Hotel — won't be built because the hotel chain couldn't get the tax break it wanted from Cook County, Mayor Jane Byrne announced.

Soviet Union Stands On Threshold Of New Era

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Union stands on the threshold of a new era, a giant weighted down with missiles, bloody memories and visionary plans, a superpower whose path is strewn with challenges:

—Its communist neighbor and ward, Poland, is transforming itself.

—Its own economy, after a relative boom in the 1960s and early 1970s, is lumbering through a time of uncertainty.

—Its army is dangerously ensnared in a guerrilla war in Afghanistan, and is American adversary, under a new leader, is talking tough again.

—Perhaps most important, its own leader, the ailing Leonid Brezhnev, may have to be replaced at any time.

Where is this formidable nation headed from the twilight of the Brezhnev era?

In interviews and writings, a dozen experts who know the Soviet Union intimately — academics, economists and diplomats — agree that a time of decision is approaching for Moscow's leaders: more guns or more butter, liberalization or tighter controls, decentralization of the economy or still more central planning.

Dimitri Simes, a Soviet affairs specialist at Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies, says the new leadership will have to be "more bold, more decisive, more confident" to deal with accumulated problems.

Daniel Bond, who follows the Soviet economy closely, believes it has sufficient underlying strength for survival.

But what will the Soviet Union be like in the decades to come?

The most commonly held view is one of small steps, of gradually more economic decentralization, of learning to live with socialist "friends" who follow divergent paths. Some expect a little political liberalization, others more authoritarianism.

Above all, as the world's largest nation redefines itself and its brand of socialism, those watching it are mindful of its fundamentally conservative, cautious nature.

Russia, the 19th-century poet Fedor Tiutchev observed, is the "homeland of patience."

On Jan. 27, 1959, in a sevenhour speech to the 21st Congress of the Soviet Communist Party, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev boasted that the Soviet gross national product would overtake the American GNP by 1980. But Soviet production today is less than two thirds the U.S. output.

After growing at an annual rate of 4 to 5 percent in the 1960s and early 1970s, the Soviet economy has remained hobbled by deep-rooted problems — perennial agricultural shortcomings, a slip in the growth of labor productivity and in the growth of the labor force itself, the inertia of a system that prizes stability over innovation.

The grain crop, heart of Sovet agriculture, has stagnated or actually declined in each of the past three years. Industrial production per man-hour grew at more than 3 percent a year in the 1960s but by 1979 had stalled, reports Bond, a Soviet specialist at Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates in Washington.

U.S. analysts speak vaguely of declining worker morale, pointing to evidence of worsening alcoholism and absenteeism. Bond suggested that a reported sharp rise in the infant mortality rate may be a symptom of a general "health crisis."

At the same time, expansion of the work force is slowing. U.S. Commerce Department demographer Murray Feshbach forecasts that the annual net increase in the working-age population will fall from a 1976 high of 2.7 million to a low of 285,000 in 1986.

Economist Victor Perlo, an American Communist who has published a book in Moscow on the Soviet economy, defends italainst its detractors. He notes by way of comparison, for example, that labor productivity in the United States has actually been declining. But Perlo agrees "there are serious problems in economic management."

One, he said, is the old Soviet phenomenon of "storming," in which a factory falls behind schedule in the first part of the month, then works overtime in the final days to meet the month's quota. Such inefficiency takes a heavy toll of Soviet production.

Another heavy burden on the economy is Soviet military spending. U.S. experts estimate 11 to 14 percent of Soviet GNP is devoted to defense. The current figure in the United States is 5.5 percent, but President Reagan wants to boost that to 7 percent by 1986. Soviet economic health may depend to a great degree on the course of the superpowers' military buildups, programs that each blames on the other.

Good weather and normal farm production could give the Soviet GNP a respectable growth rate of 3 percent in the next two years, Perlo forecasts. "But this may prove impossible to sustain," he wrote, "since the Soviet economy will continue to be plagued by serious long-term problems."

Across the Polish frontier, the problems are of the kind that make history.

An independent labor movement, Solidarity, has risen up under Poland's red-and-white banner, enlisted half the Polish work force and stood up to the Communist Party to demand fundamental change, including a decentralization of economic authority and greater political democracy.

Labor unions beyond party control violate the commandments of Marxism-Leninism. But for a year now the Kremlin, guardian of the communist faith, has allowed Solidarity to exist.

The American specialists, while not ruling out eventual Soviet army suppression of the Polish experiment, make two points: the "free union" idea is unlikely to spread to the Soviet Union, and the Soviets may be learning to co-exist with ideologically wayward partners.

One key difference between Poland and the Soviet Union is the strength of Poland's Roman Catholic Church, which "has provided an institutional network outside the Communist Party and allowed a certain maneuverability in Polish political life that hasn't existed in the jsoviet Union," says Blair A. Ruble, a research associate at Washington's Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies.

Adam Ulam of Harvard University, a historian of the Soviet Union, points to another difference, a legacy of the postWorld War II period.

"In EASTERN Europe, there is a feeling you don't have in the Soviet Union — that the Communist Party is basically alien, imposed from outside," he says.

The analysts note, too, that a Polish-style upheaval is less likely in the Soviet Union because Moscow's leaders have been far quicker than the wpoles to crush dissent in its early stages and are more adept at controlling consumer expectations and appetites. Although word filters out periodically of scattered work stoppages in the Soviet Union, analysts can produce no evidence of an upsurge in labor unrest.

The immediate question: Would the U.S.S.R. tolerate a neighbor, Poland, that established a pluralistic system in which the Communist Party is not the only power center?

Some analysts say they believe Moscow will accept a "new" Poland as long as it stays loyal to the Warsaw Pact militarily. The Soviets stress that each country is unique and that they already live side-byside with disparate forms of socialism. But they routinely warn that if the socialist system is threatened in Poland, they will take action. 8

Simes says a "new ballgame" has developed for the Soviets on their western doorstep.

Ruble agrees. "Over the course of the 1970s, Eastern Europe has become less of an economic asset and more of an economic drain," he says. Moscow has to subsidize East European economies with cheap Soviet oil, and in Poland alone it is stuck with $4 billion or more in questionable loans.

"It's going to become very expensive for the Soviets to maintain their East European empire."

Simes maintains that the Soviets, with their plodding centralism, could learn from economic experiments in socialist neighbors like Hungary, where privately owned shops and other "market socialism" ideas have been introduced. "It could be a very important educational experience for the Russians," he says.

At the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress last February, party chief Brezhnev held up some of the East European innovations as exemplary. But most doubt the 74-year-old Brezhnev will be the man to put such policies into action.

The Soviet government is taciturn about such things, but Brezhnev doesn't appear in robust health, and all sorts of ailments have been ascribed to him in the West. In any event, his age alone focuses increasing speculation over succession.

"The honest answer is, we don't know," an American government official says. "We just don't have a good feel for high politics in the Kremlin, no matter what anybody tells you."

But using past performance as a guide, the Kremlin-watchers have developed a favored seenario: Brezhnev will be succeeded first by an interim leadership from the old guard (the average age of the 14 full members of the Politburo is 70), followed in two or three years by a more permanent new team.

Most view longtime Brezhnev associate and stand-in Andrei Kirilenko as a likely immediate replacement. But he's the same age as Brezhnev.

Ruble notes that the "Brezhnev generation" will be replaced by men who came to political maturity in the post-Stalin period. "It may make a considerable difference in style," he said.

He cited the example of Soviet Georgia party chief Eduard Schevardnadze, who consults public opinion polls in his republic and whose speeches are "very blunt about shortcomings."

Simes, like Columbia University "Sovietologist" Seweryn Bialer, believes the succession might erupt into a fierce political struggle as the special interests of the Moscow bureaucracy vie for preeminence.

Once entrenched, Simes says, a new leadership could overrule powerful factions and "put less emphasis on consensus, more emphasis on seeing the country run again...They need a strong chief executive. They haven't had one in Brezhnev."

But, he adds, the new leaders "will have to understand that the autocratic government that exists in Russia may very well keep its hand on all levers of power but simultaneously allow economic reorganization, decentralization and private initiative — that these things, in short, are not incompatible and that they will have to do it because otherwise they will not survive."

Russians rely on central authority. Americans on the people's common sense. Frenchman Alexis de Tocqueville wrote a century-and-a-half ago. "Their courses are not the same; yet each of them seems marked out by the will of Heaven to sway the destinies of half the globe."

The ideology put into practice in Russia in 1917 spread to govern one-quarter of humanity. But as a global power the Soviet Union's fortunes have been mixed. Poland and the bloody maze of Afghanistan are the latest in a string of troubles and reversals dating back to Stalin's al enation of Communist Yugoslavia in 1948.

But Ruble cautions, "My problem with rolling off a list of Soviet setbacks is not to delude ourselves into thinking that the end of communism, in the Soviet Union or elsewhere, is at hand."

The Soviets' ace-in-the-hole, says economist Bond, is their country's natural wealth. One Soviet geographer estimates the U.S.S.R. has 59 percent of the world's coal reserves, 41 percent of its iron ore, 80 percent of its manganese and 54 percent of its potassium.

"They have the means to survive on their own terms," Bond says.

The country is given to largescale projects. Two of the most crucial are the Baikal-Amur Railroad, which will open vast areas of Siberia to resource development after it is completed in 1984, and a new pipeline system that will carry Siberian natural gas to Western Europe.

Long-range plans envision populatingg the mineral-rich vastness of Siberia, computerizing society, spreading nuclear powerhouses across the land. Still, analysts say economic stagnation is possible.

Ruble and others believe the new leadership will give local enterpises greater power of decision and planning, perhaps trying some of the "market socialism" techniques introduced elsewhere.

The Russians set fire to Moscow before Napoleon Bonaparte's triumphal march into the city in 1812.

Nuclear energy's safe, and we need it . . .

let's let it work for us.

When electric lights first replaced gas lamps in some hotels, guests had to be reassured that Mr. Edison's newfangled invention was safe.

We Americans have always been determined and resourceful people—determined to build a better life for ourselves, and resourceful in controlling the hazards involved. From the Mayflower to the Columbia space shuttle, that's the way we've been—cautious, but not easily scared.

Every new technology we've developed has been frightening to some: steamships, automobiles, even the cotton gin, and electricity itself.

Some people still think of nuclear power that way. They're afraid that using one of our most plentiful and inexpensive energy resources involves uncontrollable hazards and unacceptable risks. In fact, it does not.

We're already using nuclear fuel equivalent to about 1.2 million barrels of imported oil daily to generate electricity. In 24 years of commercial nuclear operation, there has never been a nuclear-related injury to any member of the public. That's a record few if any industries have ever matched. It demonstrates clearly that generating electricity with nuclear fuel is at least as safe as doing it any other way.

We routinely accept other risks that are many times more dangerous, because we have become accustomed to them. Just being 30 pounds overweight is at least a 450-times-bigger risk than generating all our electricity with nuclear fuel.

At your electric company, we need to use nuclear fuel to help generate the electricity you use. We're convinced the risk is acceptable. Nuclear energy is essential, if future generations are to enjoy as good a life as we do now.

Life Expectancy Reductions
Activity or Risk	Days Off Your Life
Cigarette smoking (1 pack a day)	1,600
Being 30 pounds overweight	900
One diet drink per day (saccharin)	2
All-nuclear electricity	0.04-2*

*Government scientists estimate 0.04, nuclear critics estimate 2.

In Hawaii...

Marijuana Becoming Fast, Dangerous Business

HONOLULU (AP) — Two experienced hikers gone with barely a trace. A California couple shot dead on a mountain trail. Booby traps in the woods. Armed men on patrol.

Hardly paradise. For Hawaii's tropical sunshine is perfect both for tourism — and for growing marijuana.

Marijuana is big business, bane and blessing to an economy dominated by tourism. Maui wowie, Kona gold, Puna butter, and Kauai electric are widely sought on the mainland. The federal Drug Enforcement Agency estimates that a pound of high-quality pukalolo (Hawaiian for crazy tobacco) brings $4,000 on the East Coast, twice its price in Hawaii.

The profit margin for growers is wide; risk of prosecution slim. Dangerous and deadly tactics are used to protect crops — so much so that they threaten to make the state's wilderness off-limits to lawabiding citizens.

At first it seemed that Richard Blevins and Scott Hardie were lost in the woods on Oahu. Their pickup truck was found, stripped and overturned, on a dirt road near the island's northwest tip. A cap then turned up on a jungle trail miles away. In a third tocation, hikers discovered a cardboard box believed left behind by the two men.

Finally, searchers stumbled upon acres of marijuana plants watered by a crude irrigation system and protected by booby traps and armed men.

That was an ominous turn. Blevins, 30, and Hardie, 28, were Vietnam veterans, experienced hikers who knew the trails of central Oahu well. According to one police scenario, they met armed marijuana growers while hiking on Aug. 29. They were forced to their truck and driven to the north shore where they were murdered and tossed in the ocean.

The Honolulu Police Department investigating the case, uprooted marijuana plants weighing 3,477 pounds in the area where the men were believed to have been hiking. The investigation is still open. Their friends still go out hiking two or three times a week, hoping to find some clue to what happened.

There is no doubt about the fate of John and Michelle Klein, of Woodland Hills, Calif., whose bodies were found in March. They were shot seven times, police say. The two — he a lawyer, she a publicist — had gone hiking on the Kuilau trail, part of the state forestry division's 75 miles of groomed trails on the lush island of Kauai.

Why they were shot is a mystery. Though police say it's only one of many possibilities, they may have stumbled on someone's marijuana. Six months after the couple's death, police harvested nearly a ton of the weed within a mile of where their bodies were found.

"A lot of people think Hawaii is paradise," says John Y.Y. Lee, resident agent for the DEA. "It's not. It's a jungle. I get scared to go hiking or hunting. If I do go, you bet I pack a gun with me."

There are plenty of man-made obstacles. A pipe bomb discovered by searchers looking for the missing hikers 19 miles northwest of Honolulu could have injured anyone within 150 feet, says Police Capt. Frank Sua. On Kauai, police followed a tripwire baek to a rat trap spring-loaded with a shotgun shell.

Major Roy Higa says 24 hikers or hunters on Kauai have reported threats. "People with rifles urge hikers on, or tell them not to come further," he says. "Sometimes a shot is fired as a warning."

Warning shots have been fired at police on Kauai and Hawaii Islands during raids on marijuana patches; state foresters once saw a sign on a plot they had cleared saying "next time you won't be so lucky." Officers on such expeditions now routinely wear bullet-proof vests.

At Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, says ranger Dan Sholly, growers cultivate marijuana near volcanic earthcracks, then conceal the cracks with grass and ferns. The rifts are two feet wide and 50 feet deep. "A person can fall into it and get lost," he says.

The increasing sophistication of the traps is matched by scientific breeding of marijuana to yield a more potent and higherpriced product.

Sua says the narcotic is stronger in the newer crops. And David Ames, superintendet of Volcanoes National Park, says: "It's an extremely hardy weed. It can grow anywhere."

From collapsed lava tubes in a national park to remote ridge lines on Kauai, the hemp is found from sea level to 8,000 feet. Patches planted in sugar cane fields lead to large losses for sugar companies on Hawaii Island, say police, who arrested one man for substituting pot for cane on land belonging to Davies Hamakua Sugar Co.

Police found patches near a ridge-top camp protected by a crisscross of cables strung to keep helicopters from landing. The camp itself lay under a screen of camouflage; the ammunition found reminded some officers of the Vietnam War.

From private, state and federal land, backyard plots to mountain "plantations," the police haul through October is more than 53 tons, an amount conservatively estimated to be worth $22 million.

Police don't speculate about how much they leave behind. "I can't, I don't want to, and I just don't know," says Lee. "It's quite a bit, I know that. It's big business."

"Obviously it's a major industry. There's a vast underground economy there," says Robert Schmitt, chief statistician for the state Department of Planning and Economic Development. "We can make a fairly rough assumption that as much as was harvested is left unconfiscated.

Police say 80 to 85 percent leaves Hawaii. "There has to be a lot of dope going out," says Lee. "The locals couldn't smoke it all."

But many locals do. A survey by the state Department of Health found that 55 percent of Hawaii residents 18 to 25 years old and 38 percent of those 12 to 17 smoke marijuena. More than three-quarters of parents and two-thirds of teachers interviewed in a newspaper poll consider marijuana a serious problem in intermediate and high schools.

On the mainland, Hawaii ranks with California as a domestic supplier. With a year around growing season and no customs checks, the islands are ideal producers. All that's needed is a way to get it to market.

Private boats leave from coves scattered on 750 miles of coastline; small planes take off from abandoned military airfields. Packages are mailed at the post office and dropped at the airport as unaccompanied baggage. In 1979, a ton of marijuana was shipped to California in crates aboard a freighter. That led to the arrests of five people.

Authorities using drug-sniffing dogs attempt to inspect and intercept some packages at the airport. But the effort is modest compa ed with the volume of passengers and packages moving through each day.

Uprooting the crops seems far more effective to police.

"I would say, for us whatever is visible is easier for us to target," says Higa. "For us to get the snippers is more difficult. Wewould have to go undercover, and that costs more money."

Secret statewide marijuana raids using National Guard helicopters began in 1978. They occur about twice a year on each major island, timed to coincide with the growing season.

With search warrants, officers also can confiscate backyard crops. But only a handful of people are arrested with each harvest, and seldom do they get more than a fine or a suspended sentence.

"It's like the old Prohibition days," says Kauai Mayor Eduardo Malapit. "People are beginning to accept marijuana growing to the point of complacency, rather than obedience to the law."

"Like Prohibition," says Ames, "a tremendously large number of people are [illegible] probably [illegible] doing any harm. But it is still illegal. So the criminal element distributing it is more dangerous than the drug itself."

Tourism is down, welfare payments have been cut — all the economic incentives point to quick profits from an illicit crop. "If I was going to get involved in drug [illegible], I wouldn't get into anything but marijuana."

Spooked Heifer Does Damage

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Next time farmer Reuben Liechty wants to haul his heifer to auction, he says he'll hire a professional.

Liechty was driving the 1,200-pound cow to auction from his farm in Spencerville Monday when his truck's tailgate broke. The heifer jumped off the truck at DuPont Road and Indiana 3 and decided to take a walking tour of the nearby Windsor Woods subdivision.

She tramped her hooves into faded lawns and peered into the living rooms of some residents. Somebody called the county police, who in turn called Charles Borden of the local humane society.

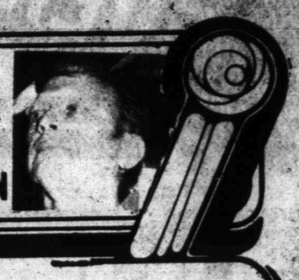

By now, the heifer was spooked.

"We finally got it pretty well contained in a field," said Borden. "But I had to tranquilize it." Three drug darts were fired into the cow's hide, and she collapsed before officers could lure her back into Liechty's truck.

Another call was made — to the Hefner Wrecking Service.

The drugged heifer was hauled up a ramp onto the truckbed where she was tied down. The truck was soon back at Liechty's farm, the bonds were removed and the cow sprang to her feet.

Rx HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Consult Your Pharmacist

Don't hesitate to call your pharmacist about medication expiration dates or potency. Ask your pharmacist to put medication into safety containers if children are at home. Keep basic first aide equipment on hand at all times--include a fever thermometer. Prevent tragic accidents by keeping your medicine cabinet locked.
