Crash of Gulf Air jetliner kills 112

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — A Gulf Air jetliner crashed and burned in the rugged mountains of this desert sheikdom Friday and airline officials said all 112 people aboard the plane were killed, including one American.

The Boeing 737, en route from Karachi, Pakistan, to Dubai via Qatar on the Persian Gulf, lost contact with the Dubai airport 20 minutes before it was to have landed, airport sources said.

The jetliner "suddenly lowered its altitude and vanished," said one source, who like the others requested anonymity.

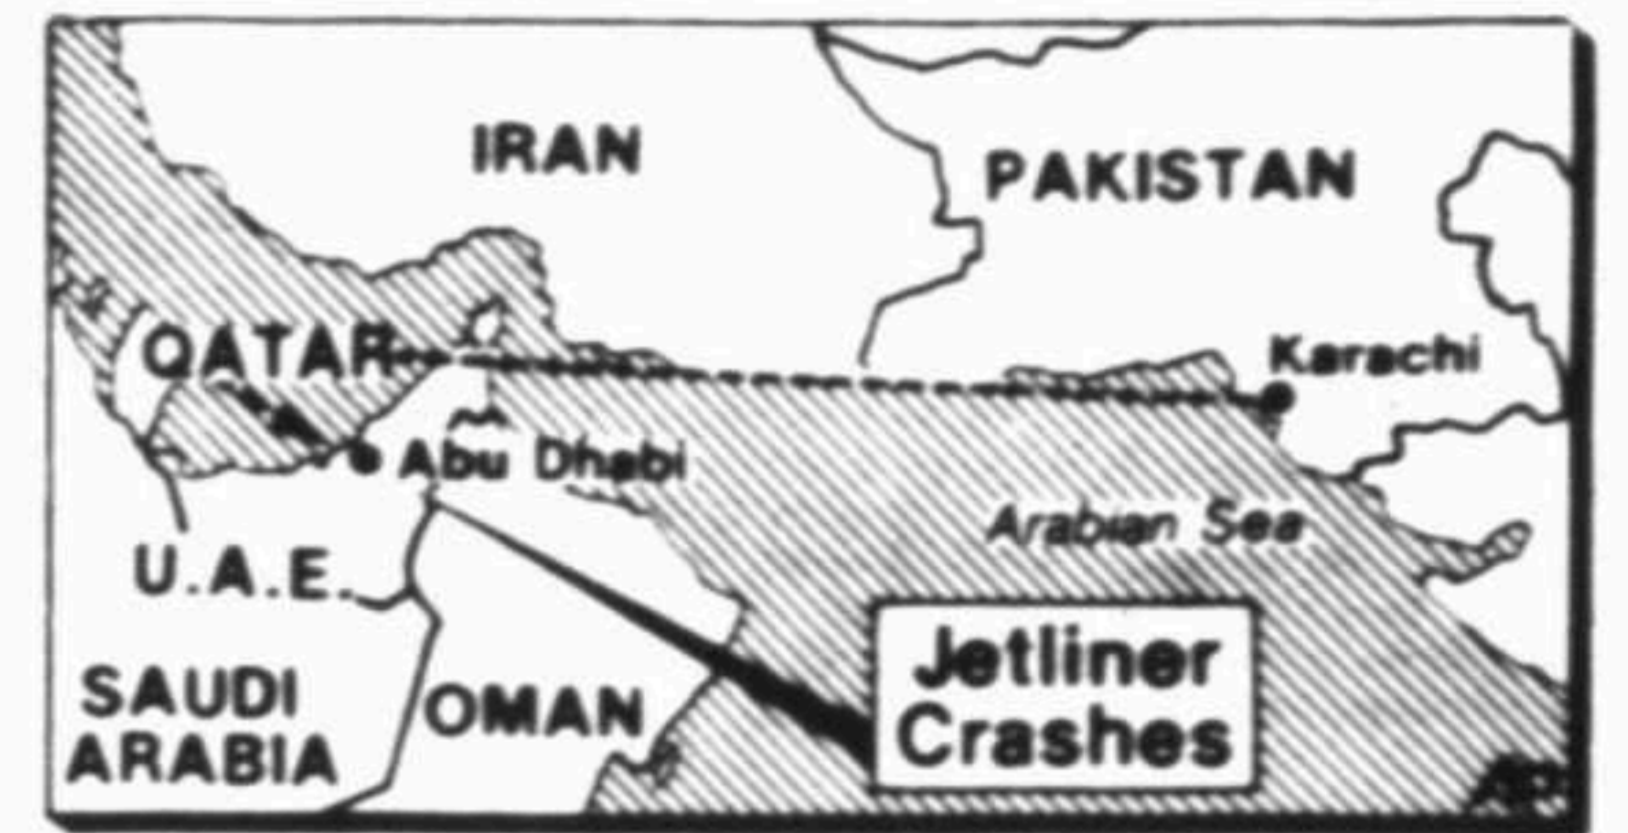

Another said the plane caught fire in the air. One Gulf Air official said the "airliner crashed due to an accident in midair." He refused to elaborate.

The aircraft was still burning at sundown when rescue teams reached the crash site 30 miles northeast of the airport in Abu Dhabi, sources said.

"All passengers and crew members perished in the fire, and rescue men have been extricating incinerated bodies from the wreckage," said a civil defense official who asked not to be identified.

"Charred bodies were moved to hospitals in (the sheikdom of) Sharjah and Dubai," he added. Medical personnel returning from the crash site said bodies were scattered over an area about two-thirds of a mile across. The plane's tail section remained intact, but the rest of the aircraft, including its engines, was smashed into small pieces, they said.

The search for victims was suspended at nightfall, and would resume at sunup Saturday, Gulf Air sources said.

Gulf Air officials said the passengers included 96 Pakistanis, seven Britons, one American and one Iranian. They said that the pilot was Omani and the co-pilot Bahraini.

Information on other crew members was not released immediately, and Gulf Air said none of the victims' names would be available until Saturday at the earliest.

One airport source told reporters it "seems the plane ran into engine trouble shortly before landing." He said "contact with the plane, flight No. 771 from Karachi, was suddenly interrupted about 20 minutes before it was to have landed at 11:45 GMT (7:45 a.m. EDT)."

A Karachi airport official, who declined to give his name, said the airport's control tower recorded a distress signal from the plane at 10:35 GMT (6:35 EDT). He did not elaborate.

Weirton Steel workers vote to buy plant

WEIRTON, W. Va. (AP) — Weirton Steel workers overwhelmingly approved a plan Friday to create the nation's largest employee-owned company, ending more than 18 months of uncertainty for residents of this Ohio Valley company town.

The approval was announced by representatives from the Independent Steelworkers Union and Independent Guard Union an hour after the balloting ended. The buyout will not become final, however, until all lawsuits over the deal have been settled.

More than 85 percent of the 8,000 eligible steelworkers voted on the $386 million Employee Stock Ownership Plan, said ISU president Walter Bish. IGU officials said their union had a 94 percent turnout.

The steelworkers voted on three issues — contract concessions, a new pension plan and the stock ownership plan.

The stock plan was approved by 88 percent, 6,203 to 774. The contract concessions were approved 6,146 to 872, while the pension plan passed 5,943 to 1,036, union officials said.

The vote was announced to the cheers of steelworkers gathered at the Millisop Community Center, where they had cast their ballots.

Afterward, joyful steelworkers took to the streets for an impromptu parade called by the mayor.

"Oh, it was sure it was going to pass," said Mike Horvat, a retired Weirton steelworker. "If they didn't pass it, it would be sending the whole valley down the sewer. Everything depends on it. Everything in the valley is integrated with steel."

Busloads of workers had been carried the two blocks from the mill to the polling place on company and city buses. Hundreds of the workers, many wearing orange hard hats and "Yes! Yes! Yes!" buttons, waited at the center after voting to discuss the plan's prospects for approval.

"It's a big day for Weirton," said Bill Bowen, a Weirton millwright who had predicted easy passage. "After today we'll be a business and we'll have to make a buck."

Bowen said he saw little choice for Weirton workers other than to approve the buyout. He noted that Weirton's parent company, National Intergroup Inc., offered only one alternative — scaling down the mill to a finishing plant employing just 1,500 workers.

"If you've got the chance, why not take a shot at it?" he said. "All they can do is shut it down, and National was going to do that anyway."

Sidewalks around the community center were lined with green flags, symbols of the community's "New Beginning" campaign. The drive was organized 18 months ago when National announced that it would halt further investments in Weirton, 40 miles west of Pittsburgh on the Ohio River, because the mill was no longer profitable enough.

Bish said steelworkers could not afford to give up on the plant the way National did. But he and other supporters of the buyout acknowledged that the price of employee ownership would be high, with smaller paychecks the most immediate result.

National wants $386 million for the mill, to be paid by 1998, including $74.7 million in cash up front and assumption of $192.3 million in debts.

Burned boy returns to Brooklyn

NEW YORK (AP) — David Rothenberg, the 7-year-old who was terribly scarred and nearly killed in a fire set by his father, came home to Brooklyn on Friday and walked stiffly under his own power into his house as hundreds of neighbors applauded.

David came to Brooklyn from LaGuardia Airport by ambulance, but emerged from the ambulance on his feet and walked to his bedroom upstairs. He did not stop to talk with reporters, as he had upon leaving Boston. His mother said he was too tired.

David refused to ride in a wheelchair, prompting his mother, Marie Rothenberg, to say, "He really made me proud."

About 200 people who had gathered for a scaled-down welcome-home celebration cheered the boy as he walked by, wearing a red-and-blue warmup suit, a baseball cap and bandages.

"To be able to witness a miracle first hand — it was fantastic. (David's) got more moxie than anybody I've ever seen."

— Ken Curtis, friend from California

David had said he felt "good" as he left the Shriners' Burns Institute in Boston for the airport. In a barely audible voice, he said he would miss the nurses and staff at Shriners but looked forward to seeing his cat, Fonzie.

His arms were kept elevated and away from his body with splints, and he wore an elastic mask around his chin to keep the skin on his face smooth while it heals. Bright eyes with long lashes stood out in his pink, scarred face.

Bandages covered both hands. Several fingers are missing as a result of the brutal fire.

Ken Curtis, who with his wife,

Judy, housed David's mother at their home in Fullerton, Calif., after the fire, said he was thrilled to be present at the homecoming.

"To be able to witness a miracle first hand — it was fantastic," Curtis said. "He's got more moxie than anybody I've ever seen."

The building where the Rothenbergs live was decorated with balloons and streamers and a massive sheet that said, "You're One Special Kid, David. Glad to Have You Back Home."

Mrs. Rothenberg, who works as a secretary in Manhattan, said she had arranged for a nurse and physical therapist to visit David each day at their Brooklyn home. He is due to enter second grade on Oct. 3.

Residents of the Carroll Gardens section of Brooklyn had planned a boisterous welcome for David, who has been treated for seven months for burns suffered in a fire his father set at a Buena Park, Calif., motel last March 3.

"But that would, I think, be too overwhelming," said Celia Cacace, a community activist. "We'll do that later, after he's settled."

Instead, residents greeted David and his mother in front of the Court Street building where they live. Their landlady, Elba Pepito, insisted that the building be decorated with signs and balloons, though her own husband had fallen ill during the night and was hospitalized.

Mrs. Pepito said Mrs. Rothenberg also planned a private party, to be attended by old friends and by friends she and David made in California after the fire.

Marie Rothenberg smiles at her son, David, 7, as they wait for their flight home to Brooklyn, N.Y., Friday at Logan Airport in Boston.

Gramm courting 'forgotten majority'

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The Republican stalwarts were ready for Phil Gramm when he stopped at Midland Regional Airport Friday morning as part of a 21-city stretch in announcing he will seek the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate.

About 30 area Republicans filled up the back of the airport's conference room to clap and laugh at Gramm's witticisms in answering the media's questions.

Gramm was elected to Congress from College Station in 1978 as a Democrat. He stayed in that position until last January when he resigned to run for the same seat as a Republican, a race which he won against 10 candidates.

He officially jumped into the race

Thursday, although he had been researching his chances since incumbent John Tower, R-Wichita Falls, announced he would retire at the end of his fourth term.

"Ah will represent the forgotten majority, the working people," Gramm drawled in a thick Texas accent. "We will pull together a coalition of the blue collar and the white collar people who share a common concern."

Gramm, citing his experience in Congress, also backed President Reagan's handling of the Soviet and Lebanon situations and called for free trade with Mexico.

Looking back on his five years in Congress, Gramm cited as accomplishments his work to reduce government spending, listing specifically the Gramm-Latta Budget which mandated spending reductions totaling $143 billion in fiscal years 1983-84.

"I take to the Senate knowledge of issues we face," he said.

Since he took office, the growth of federal spending has been brought under control with spending cut by two-thirds, the country is coming out of a recession, and 1.7 million more Americans are at work, he contended.

"We've ignited the economic recovery," he said of programs by President Reagan and conservative congressmen.

Additional statistics which he said came from the Commerce Department and Labor Department included: inflation dropping from 18.5 percent to 3 percent; 3.8 million more Americans at work; unemployment dropping from 10.8 percent to 9.5 percent.

Those figures lead into what Gramm perceives as the dominant issue in this Senate race: "Reagan's economic program. Is it working? Is it fair?"

When the increasing national deficit was pointed out, Gramm blamed the Democrats for it. During Reagan's first year in office, about 90 percent of his proposed cuts were accepted by Congress; 50 percent the second year. The third year the Democrats passed their own budget, he said.

"They propose raising taxes by $29 billion. To the average working family who makes $24,000 a year, this would mean another $1,000 in taxes," he said. "The Democrats' deficit was $13.9 billion more than Reagan's budget."

WEATHER SUMMARY

The Forecast For 8 p.m. EDT Saturday, September 24 High Temperatures

The National Weather Service forecast for Saturday predicts areas of showers in the West and in parts of Florida.

Summer returns for the weekend

Toss those sweaters and warm jackets back in the closets for awhile. The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting warmer temperatures for the weekend.

Although skies should become increasingly cloudy today, highs are expected to reach the upper 80s. Southerly winds will blow in at 5 to 15 mph.

Tonight is expected to be a little clearer, but the partly cloudy skies will bring less than a 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms. But the overnight low should be about 10 degrees warmer, in the middle 60s.

Sunday's forecast calls for continued partly cloudy skies and a chance of late afternoon thunderstorms. Highs are expected to be near 90.

Friday's high of 83 was 16 degrees below the record 99 set for that date in 1933. The overnight low of 55 was just six degrees above the low recorded in 1975.

Man sentenced to up to 665 years

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A doctor convicted of 60 counts of raping and terrorizing women was sentenced Friday to up to 665 years in prison and fined $131,250 after telling the judge that in his case he believed "the truth was stranger than fiction."

Dr. Edward Franklin Jackson Jr., 38, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the sexual attacks on 30 women in their Columbus homes.

Had Judge Frederick T. Williams ordered all the terms served consecutively, they would have totaled 1,370 years. Under state law, Jackson technically will be eligible for parole in 9 1/2 years, but prosecutors said they doubted he would be released that soon.

"In effect, it's a life sentence," said Edward Morgan, an assistant Franklin County prosecutor.

A jury convicted Jackson on Thursday, rejecting his defense plea that he suffered a "one-in-a-million" mental illness that compelled him to attack women in their homes.

Before sentencing Friday, Jackson told the judge he was irritated at the suggestion by prosecutors that he could have stopped himself from attacking women during a seven-year spree that ended with his arrest shortly before dawn on Sept. 5, 1982.

"I knew for a long time that I was ill and I failed to handle that," he said. "But I will not permit it to be said that I did not try my level best, even though I failed to call, as I should have, for help."

Jackson said the trial was fair, and added, "I think the jury tried. I think the truth was stranger than fiction and a little unbelievable."

The internist and one-time hospital board member, dressed in orange jail coveralls, had not spoken in court previously. He did not testify during a five-week trial.

He said any apology he would make to his victims should be as personal and intimate as were the crimes.

"I am sorely tempted to try to tender an apology. I resist that temptation because it would be suspect in its sincerity. And I really think an apology ought to be as personal and intimate as the injury," Jackson said.

Williams then sentenced Jackson to seven to 25 years in prison for each of the 21 rape convictions, and added a $5,000 fine for each count.

Williams also sentenced Jackson to five to 15 years and $11,250 in fines for three attempted rapes; seven to 25 years and $10,000 for two kidnappings; two to five years and $5,000 for four counts of gross sexual imposition; seven to 25 years each for 29 aggravated burglaries, and two to five years for possessing criminal tools.

Dr. Edward Jackson, center, is led to the Summit County Jail by sheriff's deputies Friday in Akron, Ohio, after he was sentenced by Franklin County Judge Frederick T. Williams on 60 felony counts.

Reagan's daughter lambasts Watt

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Watt stood at his greatest peril as secretary of the interior on Friday, as President Reagan's daughter, Maureen, declared resignation his only "truly loyal" choice. A seventh Republican senator and the governor of California agreed.

As Watt sought counsel from a dwindling number of GOP supporters on Capitol Hill, Maureen Reagan, an adviser to the party and her father on women's issues, said the interior secretary would leave if he were "truly loyal to the president."

Though her father accepted Watt's apology on Thursday for having described an advisory panel on coal sales as "a black...a woman, two Jews and a cripple," Maureen complained that in 2 1/2 years Watt had sent "enough apologies to the president to paper the wall."

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said only that Reagan retains confidence in Watt "until I tell you differently."

An aide to Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said Baker told Watt his support in the chamber was "eroding."

Steve Goldstein, press secretary for Rep. Manuel Lujan of New Mexico, the senior Republican on the House Interior Committee, said the congressman had been informed that Watt and his associates "are going to try to weather the storm over the weekend, see how things go, and will meet on Monday."

One White House official, who asked not to be named, said telephone calls and telegrams were "raining against" Watt, but would not be more specific. Another White House official said of Watt "I think he's doing in" to try to keep his job, but "the politics of it are clear" as to what the secretary should do.

In Reagan's home state of California, Republican Gov. George Deukmejian said it "would be very helpful to the president" if Watt were to step down.

If Watt goes, he would be the self-inflicted victim of a mouth that self-rage once too often — and stirred fire across the political spectrum.

The secretary had sought to weather his latest indiscretion with a round of apologies to all concerned, including Reagan, on Thursday. The president accepted that gesture, but six Republican senators called flatly for Watt to leave on grounds he was an embarrassment to the GOP and the administration.

Several other Senate Republicans stopped just short of demanding Watt's ouster, and on Friday, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland became the seventh to cross that line. "I suppose all of us are entitled to one or two errors of omission or commission, and I think Jim Watt has had his," Mathias said.

Watt's aides denied that a resignation was imminent and instead worked to muster support for their embattled boss.

"This is obviously a bad flap to be in," said Douglas Baldwin, a longtime Watt friend and his chief spokesman. "It always takes your supporters longer to put their boots on than your opponents. Our supporters now have their boots on."

However, the sound of those riding to Watt's defense was hardly deafening.

"I think we should not forget that Jim Watt is a man who understands the West," said Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, the only senator to rise in Watt's defense on the floor.

Symms said Watt was "deeply and seriously sorry" about what the senator called Watt's "ill-advised and indefensible" remarks.

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., a close friend of the secretary, counseled him that a decision to step down should be "only between him and the president."

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, told reporters he had called Watt and "I urged him to stick to his guns."

And Sen. Chic Hecht, R-Nev., called Watt and told him he felt his apologies were sufficient.

"I said, 'I wish you could get rid of that terrible disease — out West we call it hoof-and-mouth disease. The secretary laughed and said, 'I wish I could get rid of it too,'" Hecht said.

But aides to several Republicans confided that their bosses had offered Watt little encouragement, telling him instead they feared he had irreparably damaged himself. One longtime Capitol Hill associate of Watt, asking not to be identified, said "My guess is there is serious contemplation on his part and on Pennsylvania Avenue (at the White House) that he step down."

One Senate Republican source said Watt's closest aides were describing the situation as "grave." And "they want to see where it all shakes down over the weekend."

Interior Department officials, who spoke on condition they not be named, said that if Watt is not forced to step down by the start of next week, he then would intend to remain in office through the year — but bow out before the heat of the 1984 election campaign.

FNB files suit against Denver drilling firm

Midland's First National Bank on Friday lodged a $2,087,249.39 lawsuit against LDC (Linc) Drilling Co. Ltd. of Denver, Colo., and a score of LDC general partners for not repaying $2 million in bank loans on drilling rigs and for working capital. The indebtedness includes payments due on LDC bank charge cards.

The suit was filed in 142nd State District Court in Midland.

FNB says LDC and its partners borrowed $1.75 million and an additional $250,000 on Feb. 1, 1982, at 16 1/2 percent interest to purchase two Walker-Neer drilling rigs, accessories and equipment, according to court records.

Other than LDC, defendants in the suit are Petro Pak Corp. of Denver; Jack E. Manning Sr.; Jack E. Manning Jr. and Kenneth A. Miller, all of Englewood, Colo.; Glen D. Aaron II, Dick Cullen, Dennis W. Yockim, Henry Hall and Jack Gregg, all of Denver; P&L Operating Co. of Denver; Charles Parham, P&L president, of Denver; Richard Leeth, P&L vice president, of Evergreen, Colo.; Buck Wilkerson, Richard Doerr, Caryl A. Winterholler and D.C. Sides, all of Cody, Wyo.; George Alther and Saide Alther, both of Midland; K.W.H. Investments of Great Bend, Kan.; Judy Baker and Doyle Baker, both of Spring; William Blackstock and Lincoln Stefansson, both of Calgary, Alberta, Canada; and Ed Clark of Dallas.

FNB's court filing includes records which indicate that Petro Pak Corp., Manning Sr., Manning Jr., Aaron, Wilkerson, and P&L and P&L's Parham and Leeth had guaranteed to pay off LDC's indebtedness up to $3 million.

In addition, LDC's collateral on the FNB loans is $2.3 million in drilling rig equipment, according to court records.

LDC indebtedness to FNB includes $2,064,135.58 due on the loans and $23,113.81 due on MasterCard and Visa charges.

DEATHS William Howard

STANTON — Services are pending for William Curtis Howard, formerly of Stanton, who died Friday in a Grand Prairie hospital following an automobile accident. Arrangements are being handled by Gilbreath Funeral Home in Stanton.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burnell Howard of Stanton.

James H. Kistner

LINCOLN, Ill. — Services for James H. Kistner, 67, of Houston, are pending at Settagast-Koff Funeral Home in Houston. Services and burial will be in Lincoln, Ill.

Kistner, formerly of Midland, died Thursday.

He was born March 29, 1916, in Bogota, Ill. He was employed by the Midland Reporter-Telegram for 22 years, and worked for the Houston Chronicle for 10 years.

Kistner was a member of St. Mark's United Methodist Church in Midland.

He is survived by his wife of 46 years, Doris L. Kistner of Houston; a brother, Alvin Kistner of Manteno, Ill.; and three grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a son, Terry Kistner.

Mack S. Griffin

Services for Mack S. Griffin, 89, of 4509 Fannin Ave., were Sept. 17 in Watts Memorial Chapel in Madill, Okla., with the Rev. Ron Crews of Oakview Baptist Church officiating. Burial was in Keel Cemetery, directed by Watts Funeral Home.

He died in a Denison hospital. Griffin was born Oct. 18, 1893, at Wapanucka, Okla. He was a farmer and rancher for many years. He was a member of the Red River Rural Electric Association of Marietta, Okla., West Side Lion's Club of Midland and the Methodist Church, as well as director of the Marshall County Soil Conservation District in Madill.

Survivors include five daughters, Gladys Griffin of 4509 Fannin, Mrs. Frances Robinson and Mrs. Paul Sandefur of Madill, Mrs. Barton Daniel of Houston and Mrs. James Neal of Mesquite; three sons, Dick Griffin of Ardmore, Okla., Joe Griffin of Lufkin and Robert Griffin of Belaire; a sister and three brothers.

Gramm courting 'forgotten majority'

Looking at a $3.5 billion "make-work jobs bill" passed by Congress this week, Gramm said the Democrats "talk of deficit but don't do anything about it."

Asked about differences between him and Republican opponent Ron Paul, Gramm began reciting a list of accomplishments. "I have a record of a doer. Those running against me will have to match their record against mine."

When questioned further as to why he didn't specifically say anything about Paul, Gramm replied, "I'm not running against anything. I'm running for things; not against people."

Turning to the Democratic race and his opinion of the candidates, Gramm joked, "If I thought one of those guys could do a better job I wouldn't be running."

Democrats seeking the nomination are State Sen. Lloyd Doggett, former congressman Bob Krueger who sought the seat five years ago against Tower and lost, and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, a former Democratic cohort of Gramm.

He agreed with actions taken by President Reagan concerning American troops in Lebanon and the Korean airliner shot down by the Soviets.

Asked if a strongly worded message to Soviet President Yuri Andropov would have worked, Gramm drew to the amusement of the audience, "Well, he gets strongly worded notes from someone every day."

To effectively fight the Soviets, Reagan needs support of the Western alliance, he added. The "Korean atrocity," as Gramm called it, has brought more unity among other nations and also within the United States. The House passed a stronger defense bill last week which Gramm said was a response to the incident.

Naval and air power should be used in Lebanon, Gramm said, to protect the Marines. "People who fire once (at our troops) shouldn't have a chance to reload."

The immigration problem along the Texas-Mexico border won't be solved with a border program. He suggested setting up a free trade area with Mexico.

Local drivers to pay more for insurance

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A "typical" motorist in Midland County likely will be paying between 2.4 and 9.2 percent more for his or her auto insurance, depending on whether the State Board of Insurance adopts SBI staff or Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office rate recommendations.

The three-member board is to consider the recommendations at its auto rate hearing Friday.

TAISO has recommended an average statewide increase of 11.4 percent on Jan. 1, while the SBI staff recommendation is for an average 4.3 percent increase.

Rates for auto insurance vary according to factors such as the age and sex of the driver, type and age of vehicle insured, type of insurance and geographical location.

Another factor is the change in required coverage for drivers. Texas law currently requires coverage of $10,000 bodily injury per person ($20,000 per accident) and $5,000 property damage liability.

On Jan. 1, those coverages change to a minimum of $15,000, $30,000 and $15,000 for the three categories, respectively.

SBI notes the staff recommendations would have resulted in decreases in some rating territories, if the minimum coverage had not been changed by the 1983 Legislature.

A comparison of rate change recommendations show the following in Midland County: —Bodily injury and property damage, current $116; TAISO, $162; SBI, $151.

—Personal injury protection, current, $30; TAISO, $34; SBI, $33. —Comprehensive coverage, $158; TAISO, $164; SBI, $152.

—Collision coverage, current, $280; TAISO, $278; SBI, $262. —Total, current, $584; TAISO, $638; SBI, $596.

Jury finds Gulf Oil liable for damages from gas leak

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury has found Gulf Oil Corp. and one of its divisions liable in a October 1980 gas leak that forced about 70 Mont Belvieu families to leave their homes for six months.

The verdict will allow 14 of the families who sued the two companies to seek substantial damages for inconvenience, property loss and mental anguish, said Tom Coleman Jr., an attorney for the families.

Property values in Mont Belvieu, a small community in Chambers County about 30 miles east of Houston, have plunged since the gas leak and "real estate agents won't touch those houses," Coleman said.

Other Mont Belvieu families also have filed similar suits against Gulf and Warren Petroleum Co., alleging the companies negligently caused gas to escape from an underground storage cavern.

The community sits atop one of the world's largest salt domes, used to store volatile gases.

"These people are living in a very serious, dangerous condition," Coleman said.

The two companies said they purged the community of escaping gases and claim the city is cleaner now than it has been in years.

Hobby says abuses in centers must stop

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Friday cases of abuse and neglect in day care centers must come to an "abrupt end," and said he is considering asking Gov. Mark White to include the issue the next time a special session is called.

"This situation cannot be tolerated," Hobby said in a written statement. "If a legislative mandate is necessary to stop the abuses I will ask the governor to include this issue on the call at the next special session."

Hobby said he was referring to "recent investigations (that) document a number of cases of abuse and neglect, particularly in registered family homes."

The number of day care centers has more than doubled since 1977, and Hobby said that when the Legislature increased funding to pay for 25 new state inspectors earlier this year, "the funding increases may not have been sufficient."

The increases brought the authorized number of staff workers in the licensing division to 285, he said.

"The day care delivery system must provide the half-million children in centers and registered family homes a pleasant atmosphere free of neglect and abuse," Hobby said.

Kidnapped baby found unharmed

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — A 3-month-old kidnapped baby was found in the suburbs of Dallas on Friday and returned to her mother's arms, four days after she was abducted from a child care center by a woman posing as her aunt.

Little Jessica Davis was found by a couple on their way to work about 6:30 a.m. They heard her cries and found her on the floor of the laundry room of an apartment building, wrapped in a sheet.

Grand Prairie police spokesman Gaylord Hayes said the baby may have been in the laundry room as long as eight hours, but was not harmed.

Police took the baby's parents, Charles and Kathryn Davis, to Irving to identify her. Grand Prairie and Irving are adjacent suburbs west of Dallas.

At a news conference, Mrs. Davis said she "prayed like I've never prayed before in my life" during the trip to Irving. "I didn't know whether to laugh, or cry, or what."

Mrs. Davis said Jessica appeared to be "well taken care of," but she would take her to a doctor for a checkup.

City councilman will testify about alleged police brutality

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A city councilman agreed Friday to testify before a grand jury about alleged police brutality against four out-of-state black men accused of trying to kill a white police officer in a ruckus following a funeral.

Terry Davis, an attorney representing Councilman Donald Watkins, said the decision was made after the Alabama Supreme Court upheld a lower court order requiring Watkins to tell the grand jury his sources of information.

A special grand jury investigating an attack on two white police officers returned an indictment last week against five out-of-state blacks. Davis was uncertain when the grand jury would meet again.

The four were among a group of blacks, some still in choir robes, arrested Feb. 27 at a rural Montgomery home where they had gathered after the funeral of a relative. Police said two white officers chasing a suspect entered the home and were savagely attacked. One of the officers was shot. Attorneys for the blacks said the police didn't identify themselves and those in the house acted in self-defense.

appeal to the state Supreme Court on Monday. The trial for Ms. Foat, 42, of Los Angeles is scheduled to begin in this New Orleans suburb Oct. 11.

Court won't stop feminist's trial

GRETNA, La. (AP) — A state appeals court refused Friday to stop the trial of California feminist leader Ginny Foat for a 1965 murder, rejecting arguments that Louisiana waited too long to bring her to court.

A three-judge panel of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeal, however, sent one issue back to the trial court for additional hearings — whether evidence from a 1965 murder in Nevada can be used against her.

John Reed, Ms. Foat's lawyer, said he would

Woman kills son over dirty room

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman shot and killed her 23-year-old son because he refused to clean up the bathroom, authorities said.

David J. McFadden Jr., of suburban Harvey, died Thursday, a day after he was shot once in the head, authorities said.

His mother, Julia McFadden, 44, was charged Wednesday with aggravated battery and armed violence. Police said homicide charges probably would be added.

Mrs. McFadden told police that when her son ignored requests to clean up the bathroom she pointed a revolver at him and the weapon discharged accidentally.

GOP seeks to restore UN funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration and Republican congressional leaders Friday sought ways to overturn an overwhelming Senate vote to slash U.S. financial support of the United Nations. But the move's leader, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kans., vowed to fight for the cuts.

"Why would I back off?" Mrs. Kassebaum said. "I was not doing it to make a point. I was doing it to bring about a change."

Republican leaders faced little chance of getting the Senate to reverse its 66-23 vote of the day before to chop funds to the world organization by nearly $500 million over the next four years. But they were optimistic that the cutback could be derailed at a later time, perhaps in a House-Senate conference committee.

A GOP leadership official, who insisted on anonymity, said "it was clear that the thing was to send a signal" of dissatisfaction with the way things are run at the U.N.

"That signal's been sent," he said. GOP leaders will work with the State Department in an effort to keep the cutbacks from actually taking effect, the official said.

The Kassebaum amendment is part of a bill authorizing a variety of State Department programs.

Senate leaders postponed final action on the bill until next week after Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., attempted to offer an amendment demanding the immediate resignation of James Watt, President Reagan's embattled interior secretary.

THE postponement headed off a floor debate on Watt that GOP leaders clearly wanted no part of, and it gave leaders and the administration more time to try to drum up support for restoring the cut in U.N. funds.

The Kassebaum amendment would reduce the U.S. contribution to the United Nations by 21 percent in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, then by another 10 percent in each of the next three years.

Backers of the amendment cited escalating costs of running the international organization and what they contended was a general lack of respect shown by UN members towards the host nation. The United States contributes 25 percent of the U.N. budget.

"THE American people at this time, having gone through a recession and with $200 billion deficits, really feel we're not getting our money's worth at the U.N.," she said in an interview. "It isn't going to self-destruct the United Nations. And if it does, then it was a pretty weak reed."

She said she felt she had wide support for her proposal in both House and Senate and has no intentions of backing off.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration hoped the money would be restored in later votes — a statement echoing remarks made by Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn.

'Hitler of the '80s' causes turmoil at Stanford lectures

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — As protesters marched and accused him of racism, William Shockley addressed a small crowd of new Stanford University students Friday, one day after the school apologized for inviting him to speak. About 150 people carried banners outside the auditorium where about 200 students listened to the speech by Shockley, who believes society is evolving backward because blacks are reproducing too frequently. University officials had tried to get him to decline the invitation, but he refused. He was one of three Nobel Prize winners scheduled to deliver lectures about their research Friday. A physics professor at Stanford, Shockley shared the 1956 Nobel Prize in physics for his work on the invention of the transistor. As he had promised, he did not discuss his views on genetics in the speech, focusing only on transistors. Shockley believes that blacks are genetically inferior to whites and that blacks should be rewarded for allowing themselves to be sterilized. "It is obviously very painful for the black minority," Shockley told reporters before his talk. "The black minority is the group that is most important for my ideas to reach because they are the segment of the U.S. population most threatened by dysgenics." Dysgenics is Shockley's term for his theory that society is evolving backward because of "excessive reproduction of genetically disadvantaged."

"Shockley: Hitler of the 80s," read one of the banners of the protesters who marched outside Kresge Auditorium. "Academic racism is not intelligent," said another. Economists Milton Friedman and Kenneth Arrow, both Nobel laureates, also were scheduled to speak to new students Friday. Shockley's selection drew swift and loud protests from students and faculty, and earlier this week, Stanford deans encouraged Shockley to cancel his speech. "Professor Shockley's inclusion in the program has proved a grievous affront to many faculty and students," said James Lyons, dean of students. "I think it was naive to think his racist views would be discounted." Shockley, 73, said he would confine his speech to transistors. "If I were to withdraw, it might lead to the conclusion that I was losing my nerve with advancing age. If I were to withdraw, it might imply a lack of confidence in the positions I have espoused," Shockley said. Stanford President Donald Kennedy changed his Thursday evening welcoming remarks for new students at the last minute, apologizing to those offended by Shockley's appearance. "It is important for universities to cope with these challenges peacefully and successfully, because we can set an example for those parts of society in which freedom is sometimes not practiced so carefully," he said. Rhonda Trotter, chairwoman of Stanford University's Black Student Union, compared Shockley with Adolf Hitler, saying, Shockley "hasn't killed anyone, but he has advocated a sterilization plan." "The decision to invite Shockley was made undiplomatically," Ms. Trotter said.

Customs agent arrested for selling hashish oil

MIAMI (AP) — Customs special agent Joseph Price was part of the problem, not the solution, colleagues said after he was arrested on charges of selling 10 pounds of hashish oil to an informant. Price, a 20-year Customs veteran working with the Vice President's Task Force on South Florida Crime, was arrested outside a motel Thursday night where he had been paid $5,000 by an informant in exchange for five pounds of the marijuana derivative, said Jim Freeman, FBI assistant special agent in charge of the Miami office. The task force was established almost two years ago to curb the flow of illegal drugs into South Florida. Chief U.S. Magistrate Peter Palermo on Friday set bond at $250,000. Price, the father of eight children, also was required to turn over his pilot's license and passport to the court. Price was ordered held at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in South Dade County. Assistant U.S. Attorney Barbara Schwartz received permission to examine the source of Price's bond money if he raises it. Palermo set an Oct. 3 preliminary hearing. Freeman said Price, 55, had given the same informant five more pounds of the oil Sept. 13, and had then been paid $4,000 in anticipation of netting $11,000 more when the oily narcotic was sold. "As far as we could tell this is an isolated incident involving this particular individual," said Freeman.

Tavern owner wins $2 million in trial

SEATTLE (AP) — A tavern owner who claimed his business was firebombed and his customers were harassed won nearly $2 million Friday in a suit against Pierce County and a group of convicted racketeers. A six-member federal court jury made the award to Norm Anderson, owner of the Back Forty tavern, to end a trial before U.S. District Judge Barbara Rothstein.

ABC regurgitates old TV plots for 'new' 1983 fall season

By STEVEN REDDCLIFFE
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

This year, the ABC in the ABC television network stands for Already Been Chewed.

As in the kids' joke about ABC gum. The network's new "Webster," which debuted last week, is an imitation (and a bad one) of NBC's comedy series "Diff'rent Strokes."

"Just Our Luck," a new ABC comedy that made its debut Tuesday night, is "I Dream of Jeannie" without Larry Hagman and Barbara Eden.

And "Hotel," the drama series which made its debut Wednesday night on ABC, is a "Love Boat" that doesn't float.

In "Just Our Luck" (8 p.m. ET), the genie is a hip black guy named Shabu. His client, master, whatever, is a nerdy white guy named Keith, who works as a TV weatherman.

A black genie serving a white master? What is next from ABC, a sitcom about slavery?

If ABC wanted to be bold and inventive (within the context of commercial television, that is), the network would have had a hip white genie serving a nerdy black master. That would have been a stroke of pluck.

But ABC did not, and we are stuck with "Just Our Luck."

T.K. Carter plays Shabu. On the telephone from Los Angeles the other day, he said that the show is not about a subservient genie.

"I'm not subservient to Keith, and he's not subservient to me," Carter said. "We help each other."

The guys are "friends," he said, emphasizing the word.

AND THE CHARACTER is a good, major role for a black actor, Carter said.

"A man can only shoot so many free throws, and a man can only be stopped (by the police) so many times wearing a leather jacket," he said, referring to television stereotypes.

In the premiere episode, Carter's Shabu and Richard Gilliland's Keith were about as equal as the show's silly premise allows.

Keith was sort of stumbling through life, and Shabu was determined to make him hip. And, of course, Keith had a hard time believing he now has a genie.

"People from Wisconsin don't have genies," he said with a sigh.

But the major problem was Keith's job. He is a straightforward weatherman, and television station executives want him to be wilder, weirder, more memorable to viewers. They showed Keith a tape of an antic weatherjerk called Professor Bob. They said that they like Professor Bob.

"Maybe I should just paint the temperatures on my butt and moon the audience," Keith said.

"Professor Bob already did that during the big earthquake," the station manager said.

This was funny dialogue, but, unfortunately, it was the only funny dialogue in the script by Rick Kellard and Bob Comfort.

Carter's Shabu is a television-comic-book character, and on Tuesday night, his hip shtick wore thin rather quickly. Gilliland's nerd seemed borrowed from one of those Old Spice commercials in which a wimpy guy trails some well-dressed stud, hoping for pointers.

All of this was enough to make one dream of "Jeannie."

PRODUCER AARON Spelling recently told me that he hated the fact that a lot of writers had called his new series, "Hotel," a "landlocked Love Boat." It is not a comedy, he said. It deals with some serious topics, he said.

After seeing the two-hour debut episode of "Hotel" (Wednesday night at 8), I think he protests too much.

The fact is, "Hotel" often does resemble Spelling's "Love Boat." It is a Spelling formula show — hundreds of happy endings in one place. The place here is a swanky San Francisco hotel (the exteriors are of the Fairmont in that city).

Two who checked in Wednesday night were Pernel Roberts and Shirley Jones. His character was ending an unhappy marriage. Her character seemed about to. They strolled through San Francisco (the show is big on its San Francisco setting). They took a bubble bath together. They fell in love. A king came to stay in the posh St. Gregory. He fell for a waitress who fixed him the potatoes he loves. And so on and on.

Then there was the dramatic element. Morgan Fairchild, who is from Dallas (but not "Dallas"), played a high-priced call girl who is gang-raped by four snotty rich kids. This happened in the hotel's Dallas Suite.

A little Dallas joke in a subplot about rape — how sensitive.

Comediennes Ruth Buzzi, left, and Lily Tomlin are all smiles as they greet other members of the television series "Laugh-In" during a cast reunion at a restaurant in Los Angeles recently. The show, first telecast in 1967, has gone into syndication for the first time.

Alan Alda hawking Atari

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Alan Alda, who was Hawkeye Pierce for 11 years on "M*A*S*H," is assuming a new role as the advertising spokesman for Atari, makers of video games and home computers.

Alda has completed 11 commercials which will go on the air at the end of this month or early October, said Ted Voss, Atari's senior vice president for marketing and advertising.

The multitasking Alda — actor, writer, director, producer — was given the right in his contract to approve the concept and script of each commercial.

At times, Alda changed the dialogue to put it into his own words.

"One of the commercials that he worked on had to do with how an Atari computer is probably the best roommate a college student will ever have," said Voss. "The original concept was that the student was a boy. We rewrote it so that it was non-sexist."

Voss refused to say how much Alda is being paid for the commercials. Alda's contract, which he signed in June, runs for five years. These are the first commercials Alda has done.

Actor goes from top to bottom

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — C'est la vie. Actor Howard Lang has gone from British prime minister to Roman slave.

Lang portrayed Winston Churchill in "The Winds of War," the highly rated miniseries telecast by ABC last February.

He plays a Roman slave named Medon in "The Last Days of Pompeii," a seven-hour miniseries ABC will telecast next February or May. Medon is a slave in the household of a wealthy shipowner named Diomed, played by Ned Beatty.

"The Last Days of Pompeii," by Columbia Pictures Television, chronicles life in the Roman city of Pompeii immediately before, and as, the eruption of the volcano Vesuvius destroys the city in 79

A.D. The series is being filmed on location in Italy and in England.

Actress liked character because she was 'tired'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tyne Daly, discussing her canceled CBS series "Cagney & Lacey," says she liked her character, Mary Beth, because "she's tired."

"Nobody's tired on TV," she said.

Miss Daly starred in the series of two women detectives as Mary Beth Lacey and Sharon Gless was her partner, Christine Cagney. As sometimes happens when a series is canceled for low ratings, it did better in the summer reruns. The show was first in the ratings for the week ended Aug. 21.

Miss Daly was nominated for an Emmy Award for her performance in an episode called "Burn Out." Mary Beth finds that being detective, wife and mother is almost too much to cope with and she shows her weariness.

Movie mogul's son has quiet sense of purpose

By CAROL OLTEN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Samuel Goldwyn Jr. doesn't spout Goldwynisms or rattle off the superlatives that marked the speech of his late movie mogul father, the bombastic first-generation producer noted for statements such as, "I'll give you a definite maybe," "Let's have some new cliches" and "Include me out."

Now 58, with a quiet sense of purpose and business commitment, Goldwyn Jr. is steering the Samuel Goldwyn Co. on a steady course as a classics distribution system for his father's movies, as well as a releasing agency for specialized new films, many obtained in the foreign or art house market.

The company also is producing a limited number of features, the latest of which is "The Golden Seal," a children's adventure set in the Aleutian Islands.

Goldwyn decided to film "The Golden Seal" in the Aleutians after buying the rights to the James Vance Marshall book about 20 years ago. As in other Marshall books such as "Walkabout," where the isolated landscape of the Australian aborigines served as a backdrop, he felt the environment was as important to the movie as the story and characters.

"THE GOLDEN SEAL," he explained in an interview, "is basically a fable like that of the white whale. The people in the movie go on a search for the golden seal and it becomes symbolic of the dreams they pursue. I bought the book 20 years ago and always wanted to do it, but got put off for various reasons as time went by. Last year I went to the Aleutians and felt like the time had really come to do it."

The movie was shot on a relatively small budget with a cast featuring Steve Railsback and Penelope Milford as a couple who live on a barren island with their young son, Eric. The son (Torquil Campbell) befriends a legendary golden seal after he discovers it in a storm. The problem with the picture wasn't working with the seals, Goldwyn says, but in getting Campbell not to be afraid of them. Also, the Aleutians proved a difficult meteorological territory in which to film. "In an hour, you can go through three changes of weather," Goldwyn says. Besides "Golden Seal," the Goldwyn company is producing two original films this year, including a movie about racquetball called "Kill-shot."

CURRENT PLANS are to produce and distribute about nine pictures in 1984 and 12 the following year. Among the projects are "The Dancing Detective," "Another Time, Another Place," "Lonely Hearts" and "That Sinking Feeling."

One of the films that the company has had remarkable success distributing is "Gregory's Girl," the Scottish comedy directed by Bill Forsyth. "Sinking Feeling" also is a Forsyth comedy with a similar youthful subject: Glasgow lads embark on a mission to steal 40 hotel sinks.

Goldwyn hopes to become increasingly involved with the distribution of offbeat foreign movies such as the two Forsyth films as well as in some of the interesting new films being made in Australia. The Australians, he believes, are being tremendously creative at the present time.

Internationally, he said, "this is a very interesting time in the movies with a whole change in delivery systems going around with video and cable television. A great deal of the business of current theatrical release is hopelessly antiquated. You get a film and have to have a thousand prints for an opening and a $3.5 million advertising campaign. This is a great deal of waste because you never need a thousand prints again after the opening. Pictures should be made and sent up on satellite for delivery. It would save money and you'd get a better image."

GOLDWYN ALSO foresees a future of movies-to-go, via cassette in a sort of fast-food marketing system. "But," he adds quickly, "there will always be a need for movie theaters because people want to go out. The basic movie audience is 14 to 23 years old and this is the age group that goes out as a regular routine of life. But one of the real dilemmas in the movie business is with the people trying to make films for this audience.

"They want to see a story that is identifiable, but they've got to come up with something besides more adolescent sex jokes. Those jokes already have all been told. And we're at the end of the robots and super-technical movie with this summer. The next discovery may be the new Golden Age — movies with good stories that relate to what is happening."

Does this suggest that Samuel Goldwyn Jr. foresees a return to the days of Samuel Goldwyn Sr., the days of "Best Years of Our Lives?" Not at all, says Goldwyn, who was born in 1926 as the only son of the movie mogul and his actress-wife, Frances Howard. "In these old films," he says, "it took at least a reel to get to know the characters. Today, with the way television has conditioned an audience to grab at visual images, this would never work. Movies have the problem of having to deal with that, of getting images moving faster."

In the episode Arnold (Gary Coleman) wants a girl to like him as much as she likes Mr. T, so he tries to look like him.

One-man best seller factory goes into production again

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — That one-man best seller factory, Sidney Sheldon, has gone into production again.

With his last book, "Master of the Game," comfortably atop the paperback best seller list, Sheldon is embarking on his seventh novel, tentatively called "Trust Me." He recently spent two months researching in Europe and was preparing to leave for three months of literary endeavor in Palm Springs.

"I always start with a character but no plot," the writer-producer recently said over breakfast at his Holmby Hills mansion. "I do research on the character's occupation — usually it is a woman because I like to write about women. After the research, I start dictating the story — 50 pages a day; my secretaries are all champions at dictation."

Sheldon ends up with about 1,500 pages of manuscript. Then he goes back to page 1 and begins revising.

"I will throw out hundreds of pages during the year and a half I work on the book," he says. "After a dozen rewrites, I send the manuscript to the publisher."

'Winter of Discontent' in production for fall

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Steinbeck's novel, "The Winter of Our Discontent" is being filmed as a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation for CBS this coming season.

Donald Sutherland, Tuesday Weld, Teri Garr, E.G. Marshall and Richard Masur star in the drama, which is in production by Lorimar Productions in Monterey.

"The Winter of Our Discontent," published in 1961, was the last novel by Steinbeck, who won the 1962 Nobel Prize for literature. It tells of a middle-aged man who is disappointed with his life and seeks a moral compromise.

Actor wants fair break for minority firms in television

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Actor Sidney Poitier called on Congress earlier this week to pursue legislation that would require motion picture studios and television producers to allot a "fair and equitable" portion of their programming funds to minority-owned companies.

Poitier appeared before the House subcommittee on telecommunications, consumer protection and finance, where he told lawmakers he is convinced that there is a conspiracy among the major film studios and the networks to exclude minorities from any "meaningful participation."

"I am not given often to public statements," Poitier said, adding that he could not keep quiet about what he called "a rampant, inexcusable, unjustifiable, immoral discrimination against minorities" in motion pictures and television.

He said he was asking Congress to intervene because "we truly had no place else to go." He sat at a witness table with other black artists, including author-poet Maya Angelou and actors Robert Hooks and Bernie Casey.

Terry Carter, president of Meta-4 Productions Inc., said that the television and motion picture industries are out of step with reality. "The perspective Hollywood reflects of America and the world is a white perspective," he said.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, who chaired the hearing on the impact of broadcast deregulation on minorities and related issues, said that he was concerned about the portrayal of minorities, especially on television.

The hearing was scheduled on Capitol Hill after an earlier subcommittee field hearing in Los Angeles focused on some of the problems minorities face in the movie and television industry. "Far too often, talented minority actors and actresses are reduced to stereotypical portrayals or comedic roles," Leland said. "The richness and vitality of the minority experience in America is rarely, if ever, depicted on television."

A look at the networks' new fall schedules, Leland said, reveals that most of the new programs, particularly dramatic series, do not include minorities in any leading or prominent roles. Leland said that he was concerned about the absence of minority family life on television and also dismayed that the character of "The A-Team's" Mr. T, who now has a Saturday morning show, may not be the best role model for children.

Somers lives her dreams

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — When Suzanne Somers steps on stage in Las Vegas, Kansas City or Korea, those long years of California dreamin' are never far from her mind.

That's why the song, "If My Friends Could See Me Now," is a fixture in the repertoire of the sexy blonde who gained fame as zingy Chrissy in the television hit, "Three's Company."

"I think of my little hometown every night," she said recently, during a four-month stint as the featured attraction with the Las Vegas Hilton's Moulin Rouge show.

"I come from a small town where nobody had ever done anything like I'm doing," Miss Somers says of the San Francisco suburb, San Bruno.

"I used to dream of going to Hollywood, but I had to keep it a secret because it was such an outlandish thing to wish for," she said. "You get laughed at when you say things like that in a small town. So when I sing 'If My Friends Could See Me Now,' it's with a twinkle in my voice."

IT WAS the late columnist Walter Winchell who solidified her show business dreams when he attended a high school performance of "Guys and Dolls" in which she had a starring role.

"He came backstage and said 'You're going somewhere, sister. That did it,'" Miss Somers said. "If only celebrities realized what little words of encouragement can mean to someone. It can be your fuel for years."

After attending the San Francisco College for Women, she worked as a nurse's aide, administering psychological tests. She turned to modeling, then television and had a book of poems published.

Next came several movies, including the role of the sexy, elusive Thunderbird driver who led a frustrated Richard Dreyfuss on a fruitless chase in "American Graffiti."

A chance meeting at an NBC commissary led to a spot on the "Tonight" show, which was followed by her role as Chrissy. That ended five years later in 1981 with a celebrated contract dispute.

HER husband-manager of six years, Alan Hamel, handles all business affairs. She has a son, Bruce, 17, by a previous marriage, who's a frequent visitor to Las Vegas while she's there.

"A 17-year-old boy backstage with all those show girls? Does he like it?" she says, evoking a Chrissy-style snork-snork laugh. "He loves it!"

In real life, she is a far cry from the dumb blonde role she assumed with Chrissy. But she's not anxious to shake the image.

"People always ask 'Are you as dumb as you portray,'" she laughs. "I don't try to shake the Chrissy image because people loved that character. If they like me as Chrissy, that's great. If they like me as me, that's even better."

She says she missed the show and the character, but she's moved on to other projects, including her own stage show, television specials, tours of military bases and pre-production work on a possible 1984 series. She'll also be headlining a special fundraiser in Los Angeles Nov. 10 for Vietnam veterans.

"I'd really like to play her again in some other form, a movie or series or something," she says of Chrissy. "I do play the dumb blonde well. I know her time will come again."

Miss Somers has been waiting for three years to return to television in her own series.

"I finally let go and decided it will happen when the time is right," she says. "I really feel the public will be receptive when I come back on television."

She will be returning to the Hilton's Moulin Rouge Dec. 14, where her singing, dancing and comedy has been a sellout.

Labor Party officials debate invitation to join with Shamir

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Opposition Labor Party officials met Friday to debate Prime Minister-designate Yitzhak Shamir's invitation to join a broad-based government, but expressed strong doubts they would accept.

Labor Party spokesman Omri Marion said the discussions would continue after the Jewish sabbath ends tonight, and that a low-level delegation would "probably" meet Shamir by Monday.

But he said "I don't see any possibility" of Labor joining a Shamir-led government.

Shamir is a close associate of Menachem Begin, who resigned earlier this month. Both men have a tough position on Israel's involvement in the Lebanon war and occupation of the West Bank.

Shamir telephoned Labor Party leader Shimon Peres to arrange discussions after President Chaim Herzog on Wednesday asked Shamir to form Israel's next government.

Herzog said in his formal announcement that he had received several requests from party factions for a government of national unity, and he asked Shamir to make efforts to establish one.

Six Shamir supporters, four Liberals and two independents in the governing Likud coalition, met with three Labor proponents of a national unity government, Israel radio reported. Likud is a bloc of parties led by the conservative Herut Party of Begin and Shamir.

The six Likud men have said they will not back Shamir unless he makes Labor a serious offer, including at least one senior Cabinet post. The three Labor legislators have demanded changes in the government's political program to tempt Labor leaders into participating in a broad-based government.

Journalist says film holds keys to death

NEW YORK (AP) — Two shouted words on news film of the assassination of Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino indicate Aquino was not killed by the man who was shot seconds later by government soldiers, a Japanese journalist said Friday.

Before the first shots are heard, someone shouts "Pusila! pusila!" which means "Shoot him! Shoot him!" in the Visayan dialect used by some government security officers, said Kiyoshi Wakamiya, a columnist for Shukan Sankei.

Wakamiya was standing at the doorway of the plane when Aquino was shot Aug. 21 at Manila's international airport. The shouted words can be heard on two films taken from inside Aquino's plane by ABC-TV News and the Tokyo Broadcasting System. Both have been broadcast previously.

"These films contain the vital keys to the truth of who assassinated Senator Aquino," Wakamiya said at a news conference. "I am an eyewitness, not only of the assassination of Benigno Aquino, but also of the assassination of the alleged assassin."

The "shoot him" phrase is not necessarily inconsistent with government accounts of the incident. The words could have been spoken by officers who spotted an assassin before the assassin fired the fatal shot.

Wakamiya said he is willing to go to Manila to testify before the government commission investigating the case, but he has not been asked. He spoke with reporters in the Brooklyn apartment of a group that opposes the rule of Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

The killing of Aquino, who was returning from three years' voluntary exile in the United States, has sparked widespread demonstrations.

Filipinos defy Marcos, take to streets to protest his rule

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Defying President Ferdinand E. Marcos' threats of a military crackdown, 10,000 Filipinos rallied against his government Friday and were routed by riot police using clubs and tear gas and firing pistols in the air.

At least 15 people were injured and 52 arrested, most of them near the presidential palace where between 500 and 1,000 rock-throwing youths clashed with 500 riot police and troops guarding Marcos' residence. The security forces fired bullets into the air and charged, scattering the protesters.

Another 7,000 demonstrators rallied in the financial district and 2,000 near the U.S. Embassy, to protest American backing of the Marcos government.

Police routed the protesters even though officers were not attacked. It was the first time peaceful marches were broken up since the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino Aug. 21.

The renewed violence came two days after 11 people died in rioting near the palace and a day after Marcos threatened use of increased force to quell protests against his 18-year rule.

Riot police and soldiers set up human barricades on the streets leading to the palace Friday. Youthful protesters burned tires, pieces of wood and posters in the roads, and when police charged they escaped into alleys and surfaced in other parts of the neighborhood in four hours of hit-and-run battles.

Soldiers escort some of the more than 30 youths arrested by security forces during violence in Manila, Philippines, Friday to a military van near the presidential palace.

"They're playing a child's game," a police officer wearily told reporters after one chase.

About 300 students, after burning a police traffic booth in the neighborhood, regrouped near a church and howled "puppets of Marcos" at the police.

The officers, protected by shields, advanced, firing pistols in the air. A religious group in church was singing "The Lord's Prayer" at the time. As the shots were fired, the singing got louder.

Dolls help victims tell story

By KERI GUTEN
Hearst Feature Service

SAN ANTONIO — "And then, what did Daddy do?" The child didn't answer caseworker Ester Diaz's question directly. Instead, she picked up naked female and male dolls from the floor beside her, placed them on a miniature bed and made the dolls go through the motions of sexual intercourse.

Satisfied with the dolls' performance, the child flashed a proud smile at the lens of a videotape camera recording the action.

"Imagine sitting on a jury and seeing something as graphic as that on film. You'd want to lock that man up and throw away the key," said Ms. Diaz, a charter member of the city's Department of Human Resources' child sexual abuse unit.

Caseworkers on the unit have been using anatomically correct dolls — stuffed figures with genitalia included — for more than a year now in interviews with child sexual abuse victims. They have five sets of the dolls: one black set, three white sets and one Hispanic-looking set made by Ms. Diaz' mother.

The dolls have made a tremendous difference in the types of statements caseworkers get, especially from young children who may not know how to verbally express what happened to them, Ms. Diaz explained.

Because of an act passed by the Texas legislature that went into effect this month, that graphic videotaped interview showing the 3-year-old's experience with sexual intercourse with her stepfather would be considered admissible testimony in a Texas courtroom. The law applies to children 12 and under involved in certain civil and criminal proceedings.

"The philosophy of the DHR is to protect the child from testifying against a parent," explained Bill Sproull, assistant regional DHR attorney. "Prior to this law, a child has cried out and made a statement and was then forced to make that statement again in a confronting situation in the courtroom. It's difficult to do that, especially for a young child."

The idea is to limit the number of times a child would have to tell his or her traumatic story of sexual abuse; the initial DHR interview can be taped and submitted to the district attorney's office, the San Antonio Police Department and be used as testimony in court.

Caseworkers are busy taping interview sessions (each about 90 minutes) and learning the ins and outs of complying with stringent rules set out in the law that make a videotape admissible in court. Highlights of those rules are that the child must not be asked leading questions calculated to elicit specific answers, that each voice be identified, that no attorneys are present and that each side be allowed to view the videotape before the court proceeding.

"It's scary to be taped," said Ms. Diaz, who was first in the unit to try it. "It's rather anxiety-provoking for the caseworker. Getting trust from the child is already a difficult hurdle, and with the tape, you have to remember not to ask leading questions. "I think the videotaped interviews will be the greatest thing for the children because they won't have to be interviewed and interviewed and interviewed. It also will help prevent a child from recanting or taking back her story because her statement is taken in private right after the abuse has been reported, before the child can feel any pressure from her family."

Members of the child sexual abuse unit are excited about the prospects of the videotapes. Like the anatomically correct dolls, they consider the tapes a major breakthrough in handling their cases.

Perhaps the most dramatic breakthrough came in 1980 when the unit became specialized as a child sexual abuse unit and not just a unit of the abuse and neglect division of the DHR, Ms. Diaz explained.

"We didn't have any training, so we trained ourselves." Everytime we had a case, we'd come back with information that revealed another characteristic. We'd keep a list on a bulletin board.

"Eventually we developed a mind set of believing the kids. We were skeptical of them at first, thinking they were lying because they were angry with their parents or wanted more freedom. But all those kids couldn't be lying, so we had to believe them."

"To this day, I feel guilty about a teen who had a baby by her father," Ms. Diaz said. "I never believed her. Two years ago, I tried to track her down and couldn't. I wanted to tell her I know better now."

Sandy, 13, is one of many child sexual abuse victims who has benefited from the unit's stance toward believing children.

"Usually people say, 'Are you sure?'" she said from her caseworker's office. "They believed me right off. It was embarrassing to talk about. I cried, and I was afraid my dad would walk in. I started feeling really cold because I was that scared. But after I left the office, I felt better about myself. Every time I talked about it being my fault, they reminded me I wasn't to blame."

Still, Sandy has some reservation about telling about her sexual abuse.

"It didn't bring my parents back," she said of her family who abandoned her after their "secret" was out in the open.

The interviews are tough not only for the victims and their families, but for the caseworkers, Ms. Diaz explained.

"To get the children to open up, I tell them I've talked to others about what happened when people touched their bodies," she explained. "I give them permission to talk by telling them what's happened is not their fault and that I believe them. They think maybe here's the person I can finally talk to."

"I don't know how we ever conducted interviews without the dolls," Ms. Diaz said. "A lot of children don't know the words to use, but they sure can show you. It's also good for teen-agers, who are too embarrassed to talk about parts of the body."

Talk show host takes lumps after knocking city of Newark

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Talk show host Phil Donahue has learned you can't knock Newark without taking some lumps of your own. Donahue ruffled some feathers in the state's largest city recently when he suggested on his television show that Newark and the South Bronx area of New York City are not places to take someone you are trying to impress.

Donahue

Newark Councilman Sharpe James demanded an apology and Thursday he got one on the telephone from Donahue. James says Donahue also indicated he will make a public apology on an edition of his show tentatively scheduled for Oct. 14. The remarks came during an interview with Samantha Smith, the youngster from Maine who visited the Soviet Union during the summer.

Donahue asked whether she had seen only the showplaces in that country. He then said that if a person were invited to America, "Come to think of it, the first place wouldn't be the South Bronx or downtown Newark."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — One ex-astronaut says the presidential bid by another ex-astronaut will get off the ground but fall short of its mark — this time James Lovell Jr., who commanded Apollo 13 during its aborted lunar landing attempt in 1970, says Sen. John Glenn of Ohio "has a doggone good chance to win the Democratic nomination in 1984." But Lovell says President Reagan will be returned to the White House.

Lovell

Lovell, who spoke Thursday in Little Rock at a fund-raising dinner for the Central Arkansas Christian Schools organization, says it won't be a wasted effort, predicting that Glenn would capture the presidency in 1988.

Actress receives probation

NEW YORK (AP) — Monique Van Vooren, the actress and author, received a suspended sentence Friday for lying before a federal grand jury that was investigating whether she pocketed her dead mother's Social Security payments.

Miss Van Vooren, who had faced up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for perjury, was ordered to perform 500 hours of community service during three years of probation.

U.S. District Judge Robert J. Ward also said Miss Van Vooren must receive psychotherapy for her emotional problems.

Miss Van Vooren, 58, pleaded guilty earlier to perjury. She also agreed to pay back $18,000 the Social Security Administration erroneously wired to the account of her mother following the woman's death in 1978.

Miss Van Vooren had admitted lying to a federal grand jury in Manhattan when asked whether her mother had signed a check used to withdraw money from the account. Federal authorities had charged Miss Van Vooren with withdrawing $12,000 from her deceased mother's account, but the charges were dropped as part of a plea bargain.

The judge said there was "compelling evidence" that Miss Van Vooren was responsible for withdrawing some or all of the money, which she has denied doing.

But Ward said it was necessary for his sentence to show "understanding for a somewhat confused woman."

Defense lawyer Roy Cohn portrayed Miss Van Vooren as a woman who led a life of "total cleanliness" even though she moved in the "somewhat fast sets" of the entertainment and literary worlds.

"This has really destroyed her," he said of the perjury charge. He said she had lost friends and professional contracts as a result, and that she had suffered "serious impairment to her mental well-being."

Uncle Sam wants you — if you're a dog

HANSCOM AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — The military is looking for a few good dogs, no experience necessary.

So if you've got a pooch you'd like to send packing, take note. Uncle Sam will pay up to $250 for any qualified recruit.

The Air Force said a dog-procurement team will be at Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford Oct. 4 through 10 to buy dogs for armed forces police dog training.

Second artificial heart implant could come soon

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The second implantation of a permanent plastic heart in a human could be performed "within six months," the head of a review board overseeing the implant program said Friday.

Dr. John A. Bosso, chairman of the University of Utah's Institutional Review Board, said that for the second implant, doctors hope to choose a patient in better health than Barney Clark, the first person to receive an artificial heart.

Clark suffered from degenerative heart disease and emphysema, and lived 112 days with the device implanted in his chest.

But Bosso said at a news conference that before the panel agrees to a second implant, it needs more information from Dr. William DeVries, the surgeon who first performed the operation. He declined to go into detail.

The 16-member panel must approve all scientific research involving human experimentation at the school before it can take place.

DeVries, the only surgeon authorized by the federal Food and Drug Administration to perform the operation, implanted a plastic heart in Clark on Dec. 2, 1982. Clark, a retired Seattle dentist, died March 23 at the age of 62.

Bosso also said the board temporarily has suspended approval for DeVries to implant the heart in a patient whose heart stops on the operating table and cannot be restarted. Bosso said the board wanted to put off a second implant — even in an emergency — until data from Clark's experience was evaluated completely.

Minutes of a closed June 1 meeting of the board were leaked to the news media last week, and they indicated several board members were severely critical of the choice of Clark as the first candidate.

But Bosso said Friday that Clark had been "an appropriate candidate" for the operation. He also said the board has concluded that "the artificial heart program should not be permanently stopped."

Dismayed Lott finds putting touch in LaJet

ABILENE (AP) — Lyn Lott, who has played so poorly he has considered quitting the pro golf tour, converted a new-found putting touch into a 7-under-par 65 and a one-shot lead Friday in the second round of the $350,000 LaJet Coors Classic.

"The putter really felt good and that's the key to any good round," said Lott, who has missed the cut in 19 of 24 starts this season and ranks a distant 198th on the year's money-winning list.

"Lately I've had a death grip on the putter. But today, all I had to do was hold the club and the ball was going in the hole."

Lott, who has yet to win in 10 years on the tour, had a 36-hole total of 139, five strokes under par for two trips over the wind-blown, 7,166-yard Forest Oaks Golf Club course.

His long-time friend, Wally Armstrong, another career non-winner, and Rex Caldwell, shared second at 140.

"A bad day with the putter. A very bad day. I missed seven putts inside of six feet," said Caldwell, who has scored four runner-up finishes this season, including last week in Las Vegas.

"It's a shame. If I'd putted good, I could have gotten out to a big lead," said Caldwell, who had to be content with a round of par 72 and a position one shot back.

Armstrong had a second consecutive 70 in the windy weather that again proved to be a frustrating factor for some of the game's more illustrious names.

"Lyn and I are close friends, have been for a long time," Armstrong said. "Our careers have been a lot alike. Neither of us has won, but we've had some top 60s. I've made a firm decision to quit the tour, on a full-time basis, at the end of this year. But Lyn is still trying to make up his mind."

Sheehan fires 68 in Inamori

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Patty Sheehan, refreshed from a rare day off that included body surfing, shot a 5-under-par 68 to tie Connie Chillemi and Jane Crafter for the first-round lead Friday in the $175,000 Inamori Classic.

One stroke back was the trio of Juli Inkster, Dot Germain and Nancy Rubin.

Sheehan, in a fight with JoAnne Carner for Player of the Year honors, carded five birdies on the soggy 6,183-yard, par-73 Torrey Pines Golf Course after fog caused cancellation of Thursday's play and cut the tournament to 54 holes.

"Three day tournaments usually end up pretty close, so you have to jump out of the blocks fast," said Sheehan, the defending champion of the tournament which was formerly based in San Jose.

Playing in only her second tournament in the last four weeks, she said Thursday's day of rest — including some body surfing at Solana Beach — worked to her benefit although she still feels tired from "the wear and tear of a long year."

"But still I feel I have a little spark in me to pull this out," said the 27-year-old resident of San Jose, who has three tour victories this year, including the LPGA championship.

SCRATCHPAD LA suspends Steve Howe

From wire reports
BASEBALL—Relief pitcher Steve Howe of Dodgers, who twice has undergone treatment for cocaine dependency, was suspended by the club again. Vice president Fred Claire said, "Howe was suspended after a series of events that included his failure to make the Dodgers' team charter to Atlanta on Thursday morning, his refusal to take a test to determine if his conduct resulted from the use of prohibited substances after arriving in Atlanta Thursday evening, and his reported departure from the team today."

Howe, 25, had been suspended by the Dodgers July 16 after reporting three hours late to Dodger Stadium July 15. He was reinstated July 17 after he underwent tests indicating no prohibited substances. He has been on a probationary program since June 29, five days after being released from the CareUnit Hospital in Orange, Calif., where he had undergone treatment for drug dependency. Howe has a 4-7 record with a 1.44 earned run average this season...

Dan Briggs singled home a run in the 11th inning as the Yakut Swallows beat the Chunich Dragons, 3-2, in a Japanese League game while Tony Solaita's solo homer gave the Nippon Ham Fighters a 2-1 win over the Lotte Orions...

FOOTBALL—Maryland quarterback Boomer Esiason will not start against 18th-ranked Pittsburgh today due to a shoulder injury, Coach Bobby Ross said. Esiason, who suffered a strained ligament in his right shoulder in last Saturday's 31-21 loss to 12th-ranked West Virginia, is "highly questionable"...

BASKETBALL—The NBA Board of Governors approved the sale of the Boston Celtics to a group headed by Donald Gaston...

Funeral services were held Friday for Ray Ragelis, 54, a record-setting Northwestern University cager 1951 who led the Big 10 in scoring...

GOLF—Peter Teravainen was tied with David Feherly, Northern Ireland, Jose-Maria Cantares, Spain, and Tony Johnstone, Zimbabwe, at 135 after two rounds of the Bob Hope Classic...

YACHTING—All three major networks, as well as ESPN cable and CNN will carry live updates on the seventh and final race of the America's Cup series on today and CNN plans to have live coverage of the finish. The race is due to start at 11:10 a.m. The race normally takes 4½ hours.

The schedule: ABC — A live report after the race on its Wide World of Sports Show, starting at 4 p.m. CBS — Live updates during its football coverage starting at 2:30 p.m. NBC — Live updates during the afternoon's baseball coverage. ESPN — Regular live updates as cut-ins into its regular programming. CNN — Live reports from WCB-TV in Boston and live coverage of the finish.

Perry calls it quits

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gaylord Perry, a member of baseball's elite 300-victory club, announced Friday night that he is retiring after 21 years in major league baseball.

"The time has come," said the 45-year-old Perry. "Twenty-five years in professional baseball, 21 in the big leagues, 690 major league starts, 314 wins, two Cy Young Awards. It's all been great."

"But now it's time to get back home to the peanut farm and make a living there."

Perry, who was picked up by the Kansas City Royals in July after being released by Seattle, is the only pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in both leagues. He retires with a 314-265 lifetime record and an earned run average of 3.09 covering 5,352 innings. He said his retirement was immediate.

Bulldogs lose, 34-12

MIDLAND HIGH, which was expected to be the passing team in the game, couldn't seem to break anything open. Weiborn, under heavy pressure a lot of the time, completed 16 of 35 passes for 253 rough yards. The six interceptions destroyed any chance the Bulldogs had of making a comeback and gave Permian good field position during the second half.

"They did a good job of taking away our patterns and covering some of our receivers," said Culpepper.

Permian must not have cared much about being shut out in the first quarter nor about taking so long to score its first touchdown. When the Panthers

November comes early as Iowa hosts Ohio State

By Associated Press
The Big Ten championship normally isn't decided until Ohio State and Michigan tangle in late November, but November may come early this year.

Today's game in Iowa City between third-ranked Ohio State and No. 7 Iowa is being billed as a Big Ten showdown. And while both coaches poo-poo that idea, there is little doubt that the winner will have cleared a major hurdle en route to the Rose Bowl.

Both teams are coming off big road victories. Ohio State trimming Oklahoma 24-14 and Iowa outlasting Penn State 42-34. But intersectional contests are not the same as conference games.

"As important as last week was, this game is bigger," says Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce. "This is the one we have been waiting for. They are a fine football team, one that is very physical and very well-coached. We played a fine football game last week, but we are going to have to be even better this week."

Iowa's Hayden Fry says he "thought Ohio State was one of the three best teams in the nation at the end of last season, and they are on a roll again. They certainly deserve all the nice things folks are saying about them."

But as far as the Big Ten crown being on the line, Fry adds: "That's the worst statement I've heard. There are so many teams in the Big Ten capable of beating the others. I certainly don't see anyone going through the conference undefeated."

The game will feature two of the nation's top quarterbacks. Ohio State's Mike Tomczak tops the NCAA's pass efficiency chart, having completed 36 of 50 for 507 yards and six touchdowns. Iowa's Chuck Long, who threw for a school record 345 yards against Penn State, is third with 29 of 47 for 549 yards and three TDs.

Today's only other pairing of Top Twenty teams finds 12th-ranked West Virginia at No. 19 Boston College.

College Football

Meanwhile, top-rated Nebraska entertains UCLA, runner-up Texas hosts North Texas State in a night game, No. 4 Arizona is at home against Fullerton State under the lights, William & Mary at fifth-ranked North Carolina, No. 6 Alabama at Vanderbilt at night, Tulsa at No. 8 Oklahoma, No. 9 Washington at LSU under the lights and Kansas at No. 10 Southern California.

In the Associated Press Second Ten, No. 11 Auburn visits Tennessee, No. 13 Notre Dame is at Miami, Fla. (CBS, 8 p.m.), South Carolina at No. 14 Georgia, No. 15 Florida at Mississippi State, No. 16 Pitt at Maryland, No. 17 Michigan at Wisconsin and No. 18 Southern Methodist at Texas Christian under the lights. Florida State, the No. 20 team, is not scheduled.

UCLA has its work cut out at Nebraska, which has scored a mere 184 points in three games, 84 of them last week against Minnesota.

The Bruins are 18-point underdogs, which may be a first, and Coach Terry Donahue calls Nebraska "the best and deepest team we have played since I've been a head coach, for sure. It certainly ranks with the good teams you have seen over the years. This is one of them, I promise you."

"I expect us to go into the game with a good, solid game plan, lay it on the line and see what happens. I think our team will play very hard, play with courage and give it a hard shot. That's the kind of team we have at UCLA. I have a lot of confidence in our team's character and its ability to go out and compete."

Another enticing quarterback duel is on tap between West Virginia's Jeff Hostetler and Boston College's Doug Flutie.

Flutie suffered a mild concussion against Rutgers last week — when he came to the sidelines he thought the Eagles were still playing Morgan State, their Sept. 3 victim — but he should be ready for West Virginia, whose defense put a few knocks on Maryland's Boomer Esiason in last week's 31-21 triumph.

Ray Perkins is 2-0 as Bear Bryant's successor at Alabama, but both victories have come at home — one in Birmingham, one in Tuscaloosa.

Despite last week's loss to Michigan State, Notre Dame Coach Gerry Faust feels the Irish "have the potential to be a very good football team, and I think we'll bounce back and play very well. We didn't play that poorly either offensively or defensively, but we can't give up the big plays the way we did last week-end."

Liberty beefs up for rubber match

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Skipper Dennis Conner took weight out of defender Liberty on Friday in a last-minute search for speed to keep Australia II from sailing away with the America's Cup and ending 132 years of U.S. yachting dominance.

"We'll sail lighter," Conner said as Liberty underwent her changes in a Barrington, R.I., shipyard across Narragansett Bay. "We've sailed light only a few times all summer."

Conner admitted only that ballast was being shifted, but shipyard manager Paul Doppke said the boat could be as much as 1,000 pounds lighter by Saturday and an America's Cup official said changes might continue until just hours before the race.

Whatever was being done, it was certainly a rare move on the eve of an unprecedented seventh and decisive race in this, the most dramatic series for sailing's oldest prize.

At stake is the longest winning streak in sports. The silver America's Cup, first won by the schooner America in 1851, is the only international trophy never to change hands and remains bolted to a table at the New York Yacht Club's Manhattan mansion.

"They're under tremendous pressure," said Warren Jones, executive director of the Australian syndicate. "I'm glad it's them, not us."

"They're going to get rid of some of the ballast," Doppke said. "They'll keep taking it out until it floats to the mark."

A blue line was painted on the ruby-colored hull, marking the new water line. Mark Vinbury of the International Yacht Racing Union said Liberty was being remeasured Friday evening to make sure it still met specifications for 12-meter racing yachts, but he said the changes might not be completed until Saturday morning.

The alterations, prompted by two straight Aussie victories which evened the series at 3-3, came after Conner and his crew studied weather reports for Saturday. They were hoping for winds of about 15 knots, and the forecast called for southwesterly winds of 10-20 knots.

Australia II, the most successful challenger in 25 American defenses of the Cup, is 4,500 pounds lighter than Liberty and therefore faster in calm seas and mild winds.

"We have to sail a perfect race to beat them," Conner said.

The challengers said Australia II designer Ben Lexcen witnessed one remeasurement of Liberty early Friday, but they remained suspicious.

"They are very calculating people," Jones explained. "Anyone who thinks they're panicking doesn't know them as well as we do."

Alan Bond, the Australian millionaire, making his fourth try for the Cup, is amused by the turn of events.

"It's another one of their cheap tricks," Bond said.

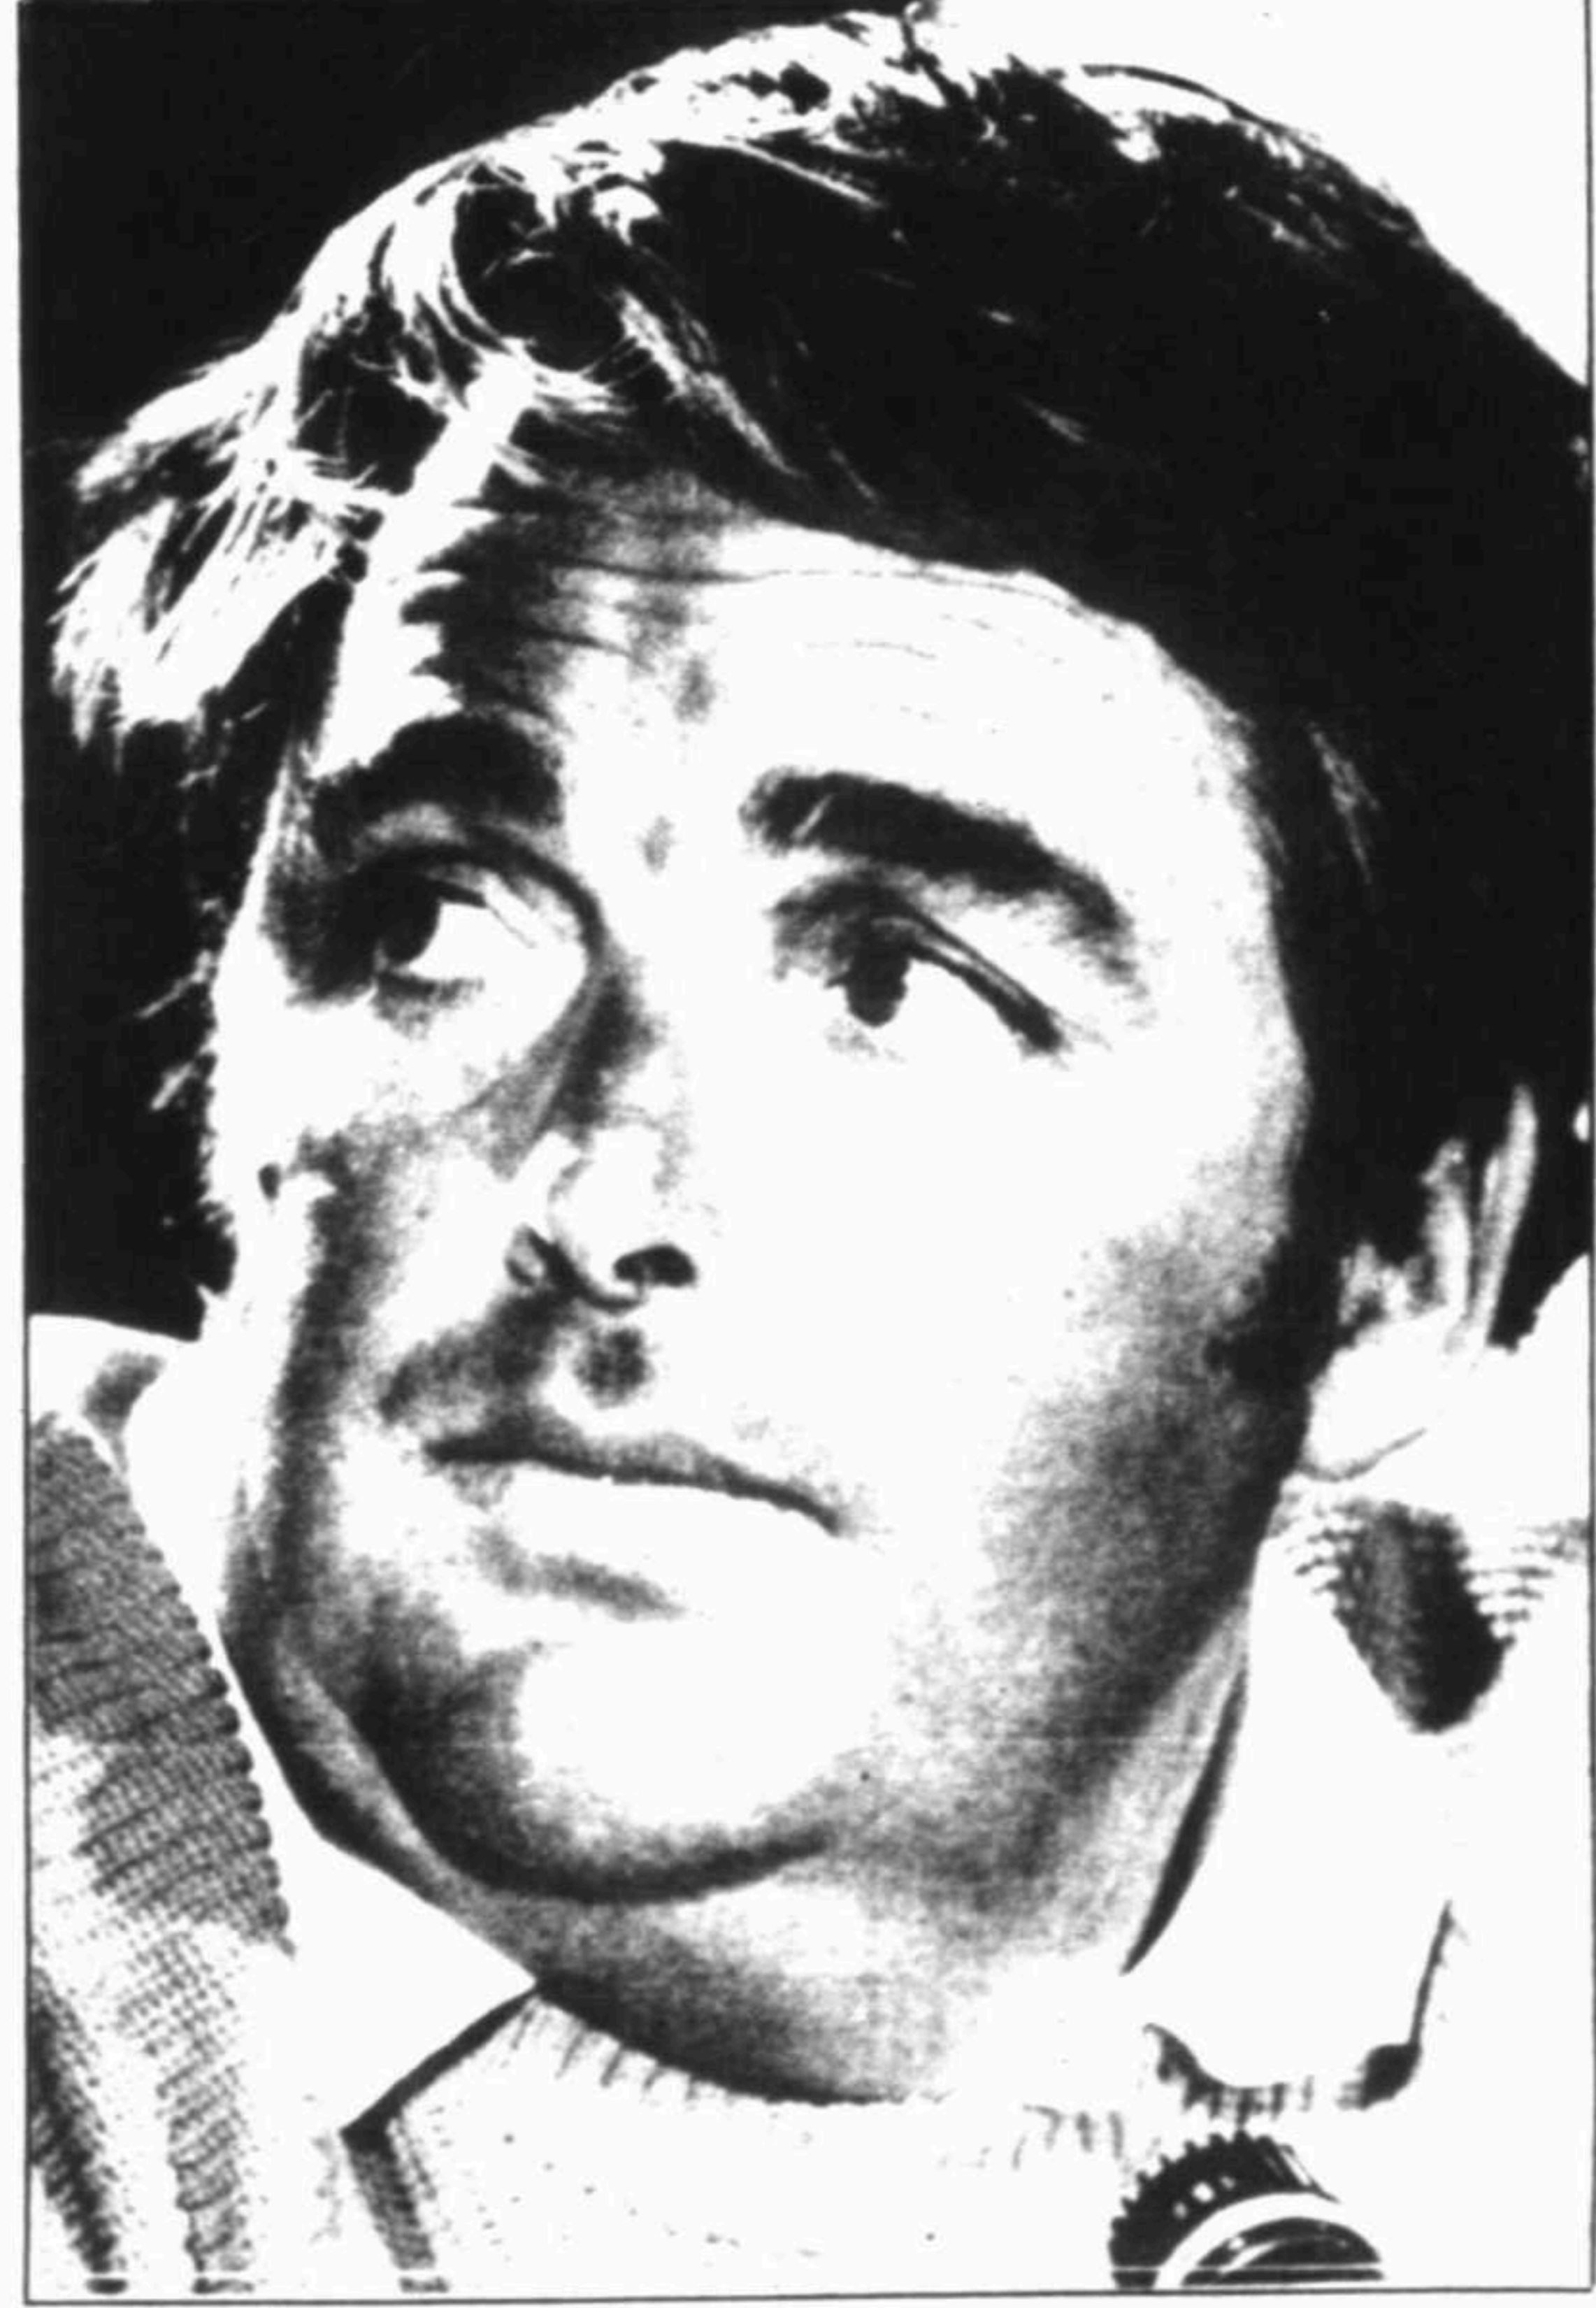

Not since Resolute overcame a 0-2 deficit against Northern Ireland's Shamrock IV to win a best-of-five series 63 years ago has a U.S. defender been within a single loss of handing over sailing's most cherished prize.

Australia II's celebrated winged keel enables it to maintain more speed in the zig-zag tacking maneuvers on the 4.5-mile windward legs. The challengers have led after the key first leg in five of six races, reaching the mark an average of 45 seconds in front. All told, they have won 12 of 18 windward legs by an average of 14.3 seconds.

The Aussies have been untouchable upwind in the last two races. Their astonishing 2-minute, 29-second bulge at the first mark in Thursday's sixth race forced Conner to take action.

While the Americans awaited a late report on the winds, which would determine how much weight would be removed, the Aussies were on Rhode Island Sound trying to sharpen their starts. Conner has beaten skipper John Bertrand across the line five times by an average of 17 seconds.

"We feel like we've lost a little bit of an edge there," Jones said. "We're trying to rebuild our confidence in our starts."

Dennis Conner...searches for speed.

It's not a matter of confidence in the Liberty camp, but Conner has admitted during the series that he feels pressure.

"We've got a boat problem," main-sheet trimmer John Marshall admitted. "And the boat's name is Australia II."

But Marshall said the popular belief that the Australian will win if Bertrand does "an adequate job" is an oversimplification.

"It's just not that easy to beat Dennis," he said.

Vasquez sparks Crane to victory

CRANE—Quarterback Joe Vasquez ran 23 yards for one touchdown and passed 61 and 28 for two others as Crane's Golden Cranes defeated the Van Horn Shortorns, 38-6, here Friday night.

The win was the fourth without defeat for Crane.

Junior Bishop kicked a 36-yard field goal to give Crane a 3-0 lead with 7:59 left in the first period and then Vasquez broke loose for 23 yards with 2 minutes in the opening period.

Lonnie Mitchell took the 61 yard scoring pass in the second period and after fullback Todd

Rodgers scored on a 16-yard run in the third period, Rodgers took a 28-yard scoring pass from the versatile Vasquez.

Coahoma rallies to ground Owls

BIG LAKE—Reagan County jumped to a 14-0 halftime lead, but Coahoma stormed back with a 19-point second half for a 19-14 victory here Friday night as Richard Seals scored from one and four yards out.

Seals carried 35 times for 243 yards.

Tailback Timothy Thompson scored on a 24-yard run in the first period and Howard Williams punched in from one yard out to give Reagan its intermission edge.

After Seals scored on a one-yarder, John Swinney passed five yards to David Shaw to open the fourth quarter as the Bulldogs pulled to within a point of the Owls.

LaHaye to speak in Midland

Dr. Tim LaHaye will speak at 7 p.m. Oct. 7 at Green Tree Country Club.

LaHaye is an author, educator, minister and president of Family Life Seminars, a San Diego-based ministry.

LaHaye and his wife, Beverly, have authored more than 20 books on marriage and family living, temperaments, secular humanism, Bible prophecy and interpersonal relationships, including "How to Win Over Depression," "The Act of Marriage" and "The Battle for the Mind."

The two co-host a weekly television program, "LaHaye on Family Life," seen nationwide on 51 stations and three cable networks. The show is aired locally on Dallas KXTX Channel 39 Sundays at 8:30 a.m.

The topic of the Midland session is pressure. Based upon his most recent book, "How to Manage Pressure Before Pressure Manages You," LaHaye will examine the causes of stress. He will also discuss the mental, physical and spiritual means by which stress can be relieved.

For more information or for reservations call Teresa Wisniewski, 687-5466, or Laura Dalglish, 687-3673.

Tim LaHaye

Prison film to be screened

The First Church of the Nazarene, corner of Wall Avenue and F Street, is showing the film "Changed Lives in San Quentin" Sunday at 6 p.m.

The film, released by the International Prison Ministry, features the stories of four criminals. Interviews in it were conducted by Art Linkletter and Chaplain Ray, director of IPM.

The showing is free. The public is invited to attend.

Anglican service scheduled

The Anglican Church of North America, diocese of the Southwest, is holding morning worship Sunday at 10 a.m. at Ellis Funeral Home chapel, 801 Andrews Highway.

The Anglican Church uses the 1928 edition of the Book of Common Prayer. The bishop of the diocese is the Rev. H. Edwin Caudill.

Building fund campaign starts

A united campaign by the members of First Baptist Church is underway to fund the church's 1983-84 building fund.

The campaign, "Arise and Build," is being conducted through Oct. 2. The long term goal is $1,500,000 in pledges or gifts by Dec. 31, 1984.

Alamo gets interim pastor

The Rev. John S. Rasco has been named interim pastor at Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive.

A native of Alabama, Rasco received an undergraduate degree from Howard College, Birmingham, Ala.; a master of theology degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.; and an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene.

Churches he has served include First Baptist, Hodgenville, Ky.; Avondale office/parking building, Fla.; First Baptist, Texarkana; and First Baptist, Odessa. He was pastor at the Odessa church for 23 years.

Rasco is married to Helen Taft Hawkins of Columbus, Ga. They have one daughter, Audrey Chartier, and three grandsons.

Sunday marks Rasco's first service at Alamo. His sermon topic will be "This is God's Church" in the morning service and "Three Prayers from Calvary" in the evening service.

The public is invited to attend.

John Rasco

String trio, choir to perform

The Adonia String Trio will join the Sanctuary Choir of Memorial Christian Church in presenting a festive musical service during the 10:50 a.m. service Sunday.

Debra Patchell will also be featured singing the "Alleluia" by Mozart. Miss Patchell will be returning this month to New York City to study voice.

The public is invited to attend. Memorial Christian is located at 1001 Andrews Highway.

Communication to be subject

A seminar for Midlanders who are seeking tools for better communications in relationships, will be held Sunday and Monday at The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity and Trinity School.

The Rev. John DeFoore and his staff from the John DeFoore Counseling Center, Boerne, will present "Adventures in Living," which are jointly sponsored by Holy Trinity and Midland Speakers Council. DeFoore founded the Pastoral Care and Counseling Center, Boerne, in 1978 and is executive director of the organization.

An evening session will be conducted Sunday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Trinity School, 3500 W. Wadley Ave. On Monday, a "men only" session will be held from 7-8 a.m. at Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., and a "woman only" session will be held from 9:30-10:30 a.m. at the same location. A nursery, coffee and donuts will be provided in the morning sessions.

Children of junior high and high school age are invited to the evening sessions Sunday and Monday from 7-9:30 p.m. Both will be held at Trinity School.

There is no charge for the workshop, but donations will be accepted. For more information call Janice and Bob Henry, 684-7890; Joan and Mark Pace, 683-2080; Janet and Jack Swallow, 683-7964; or Laura and Jim Brown, 683-1460.

Revival will begin Sunday

Dr. Howard Norton, professor of Bible at Oklahoma Christian College, will conduct revival services at the Golf Course Road Church of Christ Sunday through Wednesday.

Norton is the pulpit minister of the College Church of Christ, Oklahoma City, and editor of

Baptist board discusses convention

DALLAS — The Texas Baptist Executive Board meeting this month in Dallas elected a new convention treasurer and voted to recommend a $53.7 million cooperative program budget to the annual Baptist General Convention of Texas, held in Amarillo in November.

Roger W. Hall, vice president for estate planning at Southwest Baptist University, Bolivar, Mo., was elected treasurer of the 2.2 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas. He succeeds Jay L. Skaggs, who plans to retire in December after serving in the position for 12 years. Hall will serve as treasurer-elect until Jan. 1.

The 1984 missions budget is an increase of $3.7 million over this year's budget of $50 million.

It allocates $19.4 million for Southern Baptist worldwide mission causes which includes support for about 6,000 missionaries in the United States and foreign nations. The remainder of the budget remains in Texas to help support 21 children's homes, colleges, universities and hospitals plus other state missions causes.

In other action, the board granted a 90-day extension for The Hayman Company/Delphinance Corp., to develop a new contract involving a proposed 21-story building in Dallas.

Last March the board unanimously approved a recommendation of its long range property committee that it lease a parking lot adjacent to the Baptist Building at 511 N. Akard St., Dallas, for construction of a 21-story office/parking building. In payment for the lease, the convention would be given an "equity position" in the building representing 173 parking spaces.

Fred Roach of Dallas, chairman of the property committee and president of Texas Baptist Men, said that The Hayman Company had asked for an extension to develop another contract based on new feasibility studies.

Religious leaders express dismay, condemnation over KAL dowing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious leaders express dismay and condemnation at the Soviet's shooting down of a South Korean airliner, but they also insist the event must not deter efforts to curb the arms race and secure peace.

Calling the attack which took 269 lives "an act of murder," Archbishop John R. Roach, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said it also shows the "danger and fragility" of current international relations.

"Despite this massive and evil tragedy, U.S.-Soviet negotiations on nuclear arms limitation must continue," he added.

United Methodist Bishop James Armstrong of Indiana, president of the National Council of Churches, and its general secretary, Presbyterian Claire Randall, telegraphed Russian church leaders that the shooting demonstrates the "disastrous consequences" of relying on armed force.

They said it also "highlights the important roles of our respective churches in seeking to heal political divisions separating our nations if trust and hope are to replace fear, anger and the growing arms race which claim a rising toll of human lives."

Lutheran Presiding Bishop David W. Preus of the American Lutheran Church said the attack was both "personal tragedy" and a "blow to the entire human family's hopes for peaceful resolution of conflicts."

But he said "we must continue talking with our adversaries and friends to seek safeguards"

With 'weak knees,' congressman's wife emerges as potential candidate

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Kathryn McDonald, widow of the late Georgia congressman who died with 268 others aboard the downed Korean jetliner, says she'll carry on "in the tradition of Jefferson and Jackson" if elected to fill her husband's seat.

"This is a tremendous challenge and one I never sought," Mrs. McDonald, 34, said Wednesday in announcing she will run in a non-partisan Oct. 18 election to fill the late Rep. Larry McDonald's seat.

Before her husband's death Sept. 1 when Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was shot down by a Soviet fighter pilot, few outside Georgia's 7th District had seen or heard Mrs. McDonald, and she said she had "weak knees" and "butterflies in my stomach" as she announced her candidacy.

Her political experience has been confined to helping with "numerous" California state House and Senate campaigns and operating a political consulting firm and direct mail marketing business before her marriage to McDonald in 1976, according to her campaign materials.

When reporters questioned whether her political track record had prepared her to do her late husband's job, she responded, "I am the most qualified to carry on his work — work that was endorsed by landslide margins during the last five elections."

Born March 21, 1949, in Glendale, Calif., she attended college there, serving as state secretary of Young Americans for Freedom. She also was active in the California Conservative Union, and met her husband during the group's banquet in 1975.

Mrs. McDonald's has been affiliated with the John Birch Society, which her husband chaired at the time of his death; the Floyd County (Ga.) Democratic Association; and the Northside Independent Methodist Church.

Biographical material provided by her campaign said Mrs. McDonald had been briefed "in the past" on defense issues by the U.S. Department of Defense and had traveled with her husband on fact-finding trips to foreign nations.

She said that if elected her first act in Congress would be to sponsor a joint resolution to "stop aid and trade to communist countries."

She stressed that she would not swerve from McDonald's conservative record, saying she would be "in line with the Democratic Party in the tradition of Jefferson and Jackson as my husband was."

Although she had made few public appearances before her husband's death, Mrs. McDonald faced reporters frequently in the days following the shooting down of the Korean airliner, labeling the incident "murder" and vowing to continue his work.

The couple has two children, Larry Jr., 2, and Lauren Aileen, 8 months.

Pop artist back in galleries

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — At a posh Rodeo Drive gallery, a paint-spattered Peter Max, the art icon of the flower-power '60s, was furiously at work — on video, at least.

To recorded music by a trendy rock band, Max wielded brushes on 12 identical television screens. Dozens of his brilliantly hued, cartoony graphics flashed on the video, interspersed with equally colorful but brushier, more abstract contemporary works.

A few steps away, the real Max held court, dark-suited and distinguished, with the faintest dusting of silver in his black hair and walrus mustache. He and Timothy Leary, another '60s luminary, were as much of a draw as the exhibit they were opening.

You can't buy his work on ashtrays and bedsheets these days, but at 46, Max is definitely returned to the status of celebrity artist.

"I have an opening like this every two or three weeks someplace in the country," Max said during a pre-show interview on a recent evening. "Since March of 81, I've had over 85 TV shows."

But for almost 10 years, through the 1970s, Max shunned the press and the adoring public. He gave up the whirlwind pace dictated by what he said was a $750 million studio business because he was "shell-shocked" by his own success.

"My work was really, I would say, almost exploited," he said. "It was on mugs, it was on bedsheets, it was on dresses, it was on silks and scarves and ties — 70 product lines."

Being the "in" artist of the day was fun at first, he says. But "I was under stress all the time, to keep up with it — more accounts, more people, more things. It's as if you had to write a whole newspaper."

Things came to a head during a vacation at John Wayne's villa in Mexico, he says.

"I think after my third day of just being in a lounge chair, sketching and seeing the birds fly around and the big winds up there, I said, 'What am I doing in the city? It's crazy!' I realized I'd been going for three or four years, non-stop, without a vacation, ever. If I was sick for a day, I had to get over it, quick. It was a real hardship."

"So after three weeks I came back and went to the fellow who was working for me, running the operation, and I told him that he'd better wind the company down and let everybody go."

Within a year he'd sold his five-story midtown Manhattan studio and was down from 52 employees to two assistants who helped him at the sprawling apartment he shares with model Roseanne Vela.

"I thought I'd figure out what to do six months down the line, and 10 years went by," he said. He worked continuously, and there were exhibits, but he avoided most shows and the news media.

Art publisher Lawrence Ross, owner of the Rodeo Drive gallery, dragged Max to an art show at the Coliseum in New York in 1981.

Noisy crickets herald coming of fall season

DALLAS (AP) — The coming of fall is a noisy event in Texas, where thousands of crickets perform their annual mating rites in the shadow of downtown skyscrapers and in the fluorescent glow of suburban shopping centers.

"Instead of having autumn leaves, we have autumn crickets," said C.C. Rice, manager of Elaine Powers Figure Salon in Dallas. "There are thousands of them — millions of them ... It's like an Alfred Hitchcock movie."

Parking expensive

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Parking at Beverly Hills High School is expensive — no matter what kind of car the students have.

The Beverly Hills Board of Education boosted the student parking fees this year from $197.50 to $270 per semester.

"The increase in price is not to flaunt the wealth or affluence of our students but to discourage students from driving to school and to encourage car pooling, bicycling and walking," he explained.

MS READ-A-THON
MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS PERMIAN BASIN CHAPTER NATIONAL MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS SOCIETY

The MS READ-a-thon is a unique educational program developed in 1974 by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. It has proved successful in thousands of schools in serving as a strong motivational tool to stimulate children between the ages of 6 and 14 to read books of their own choice and for their own enjoyment. It has often been particularly effective with poor readers and non-readers, traditionally a difficult group of youngsters to motivate. It is not restricted to children who have a connection with multiple sclerosis; it is open to all school children in the first through eighth grades who want to participate.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Surgery not only way to remove kidney stones

Dear Dr. Solomon: You once had an article on how gallstones could be gotten rid of without an operation. I don't have gallstones but I would like to know about kidney stones. Is there any way to get rid of kidney stones without an operation? — Francine, Baton Rouge, La.

Dear Francine: Two new methods for removing kidney stones have been introduced on a test basis and neither requires the kind of major surgery that is generally associated with the removal of kidney stones.

One technique involves breaking up the stones and removing the fragments by suction. This method was used on more than 100 patients at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and was successful in all but six. Patients were hospitalized an average of four days and were able to return to work within a week. This compares with the standard surgery that requires from one to two weeks' hospitalization and possibly six weeks of recuperation.

The other method for removing kidney stones involves placing patients in a tank filled with water and destroying the stones by means of shock waves. The duration of treatment ranges from 30 to 60 minutes. The stones are reduced to powdered fragments which the patient then passes. Tests with more than 400 patients have shown that 90 percent were free of stones after only one treatment. Only a few cases required two or three treatments.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Parents sometimes seem to be the last to learn what's going on. My neighbor has a daughter who was away at school and she went to her dentist when she came home during a school vacation. The dentist suspected she was causing herself to vomit in order to lose weight and he convinced her to let him tell her mother. What could the dentist know that the mother did not know? — Mrs. R.K., Austin, Texas

Dear Mrs. K.: It is not unusual for the first signs of anorexia nervosa, which is what you appear to be describing, to be evident in the mouth. For example, individuals who vomit very often, whether voluntarily or involuntarily, may have an erosion of tooth structure since vomit is highly acidic. They may also experience unusual sensitivity as the result of loss of tooth enamel over a period of time.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Why do I read so often about someone having a ruptured spleen as the result of an accident? We don't hear about a ruptured appendix or a ruptured gallbladder because of an accident. — Don, Philadelphia

Dear Don: The spleen is situated below the rib cage and is therefore not protected by the ribs or by other organs. This makes it susceptible to rupture from trauma.

For example, a child may fall off a bicycle or get hit by a baseball. Either of these relatively common events can result in a ruptured spleen.

For Randy, Washington, D.C.: The lungs appear to be quite large when you see a cut-away diagram of the human body; however, they actually weigh about two pounds.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

College clinic offers help to stutterers

HOLLINS, Va. (AP) — Model Bert O'Neill of Philadelphia came to the stuttering clinic at Hollins College for help after he tried to get modeling jobs in New York and "was turned down because of my speech."

"I've been a stutterer all my life," the 34-year-old O'Neill said. "I would have enjoyed being an actor, but my speech precluded me from that ... You really can't go that far in life without basic communications skills."

O'Neill was one of 19 people undergoing a recent three-week speech modification course at the clinic, formally called the Hollins Communications Research Institute. The clinic has been helping stutterers since 1974 under the direction of Dr. Ronald L. Webster, clinic founder and a Hollins psychology professor.

One of the clinic's more famous clients was Annie Glenn, wife of Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, former astronaut and a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"We have a very soft spot in our heart for Hollins," Glenn said on a campaign trip here. "Annie was an 85 percent stutterer all her life. Five years ago she went through the course."

Marketing good

medicine for doctors

Copley News Service

The American Medical Society slapped constraints on doctors advertising in the early 1900s to combat medicine-show quackery and promote the view that doctors are healers above the commonality of merchants.

Though it became legal for doctors to advertise four years ago, most retained an aversion to the trappings of competitive commerce, and few hawked their services.

Today, however, the glut of doctors, along with a public clamor to cap rising medical costs, is changing that. In fact, the desire by doctors to get their message to the public has created a new industry — medical marketing.

"Historically, when the number of doctors in an area increased and each physician's patient load thinned, each raised his prices in order to maintain his (profit) margin with fewer patients," says Kevin Sullivan, senior partner in Sullivan Luallin Associates, a public relations firm that handles a number of health-care accounts.

"But now the public is saying, 'Hold it! The prices are high enough.'"

"Whoops! Here comes competition. And the doctors are in a dilemma."

The nation's supply of doctors is expected to reach a total of 643,000 by the year 2000, up from 310,000 in 1970.

If doctors expect to live by their chosen field, say advocates of medical marketing, they're going to have to adopt different attitudes.

"All the professional skill in the world is useless to a physician who is sitting by himself in an empty office with an empty waiting room," said John Pinto, president of J. Pinto & Associates, a public relations and advertising firm that specializes in medicine and high technology.

"The reality is that physicians are in business. In this over-doctored environment, health care is becoming a buyer's market, and doctors are finding themselves faced with the need to participate in the same good business practices that have always been practiced in other sectors of commerce."

So, as the conservatives continue to quail at the thought of self-promotion, the more adventurous are following their professional neighbors — the hospitals and larger clinic groups — into an exploration of the services of marketing consultants.

A Florida clinic is allowing its patients to boost its image by wearing T-shirts announcing that they've achieved wellness through the clinic's efforts.

Quietness of gold market puzzles analysts

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — Times have been very quiet in the gold market these past several months.

Too quiet, say some investment analysts, who think it unlikely that a commodity that has stirred so many strong feelings for so long can languish in neglect indefinitely.

Since it took a $100 drop last February, the price of gold has been drifting between $400 and $450 an ounce. That's not so surprising, its followers say, when you consider the current state of the economy — inflation in remission, interest rates high.

Gold is traditionally considered a haven from inflation. In a period when inflationary storms have abated, it's logical that fewer investors would be seeking that kind of shelter.

At the same time, high interest rates make interest-bearing investments such as Treasury bills more attractive by comparison, and increase dealers' cost of carrying gold inventories with borrowed money.

Still, it struck many observers as remarkable in the past few weeks when heightened international tensions over the shooting down of a Korean passenger plane and fighting in Lebanon barely budged the gold price.

Workers approve contract

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Workers at Ford Motor Co.'s Rouge complex overwhelmingly approved a contract Friday night that will cut wages and benefits for 4,000 company steelworkers by $4 an hour.

United Auto Workers union Local 600 members voted 5,788-3,033 to approve the 34-month contract, said union spokesman Steve Wyatt. The pact takes effect Monday.

The move means Ford will "rescind" plans to close Rouge Steel, recall some laid-off workers and continue modernizing the plant, said company spokesman Richard Judy after the vote.

The approval "is a major step toward making Ford's steel operations fully competitive in the domestic steel market," Judy said. "We are greatly pleased with the vote."

"The membership responded," Local 600 President Mike Rinaldi said. "The issue was a tough one. They took our recommendation and ratified it. Those who opposed it — we're not angry at them. We understand their frustrations and problems."

The steelworkers balked all year at concessions, but the nearly 10,000 other workers in the complex — such as assemblers in the car plant — feared that some of them would lose their jobs if the accord was rejected and Ford closed Rouge Steel, workers said. That closing would allow steel workers with high seniority to claim jobs now held by other Ford workers at the complex.

Steelworker Ziggy Kasprzak, with 11 years seniority, said he voted "no" because steelworkers are bitter that Ford did not modernize the mill to keep it efficient and profitable.

BUT several workers at Rouge's car assembly plant, who asked not to be identified, said they voted in favor of the pact, acknowledging that it will not cut their pay.

The concessions pact was drawn up a week ago after Ford announced it would close Rouge Steel within a year. The company and the United Auto Workers had been negotiating concessions since the spring but had been unable to reach agreement.

Ford, citing unspecified losses at Rouge Steel, demanded cuts of $5 an hour, while the UAW would agree to about $4 an hour.

UNDER terms of the pact, Rouge Steel's $28 average hourly labor cost will be reduced by $4.13 by slashing one week vacation and four paid holidays in both 1984 and 1985. The settlement, expiring July 31, 1986, also would reduce incentive pay by 20 percent and cost-of-living payments by 25 cents an hour.

The 63-year-old mill was built by auto pioneer Henry Ford in the heart of a massive automaking complex outside Detroit.

Drivers killed by steel beam

HOUSTON (AP) — Two truck drivers were killed in a freeway accident Friday when a steel beam fell off the lead vehicle and struck the trailing truck, which rammed it through the cab of the first truck, police said.

The accident, which occurred about 4 p.m. on U.S. Highway 290 in northwest Houston, began when the beam tumbled from a load aboard a truck belonging to the Womble Company Inc., police said.

It smashed into a vehicle owned by the Builders Supply Co. of Houston, striking driver Wayne Richard Ebar, 34, police officer C.W. Berryman said Ebar died shortly after ambulance crews arrived.

WHO'S WHO FOR SERVICE

A large grid of classified advertisements for various services including plumbing, electrical, home repairs, and more. Includes sub-headers like 'Air Cond. Service', 'Carpet', 'Fences', etc.

A GOOD USED CAR... MORE CAR FOR THE MONEY.

Year in and year out...cars depreciate in value. You've heard it. But it's not true! Cars only depreciate each year in price, not in value, because the next year's models have arrived.

There's a difference between price and value. Today's late model used cars, specially those that received good care, actually can give you as much value as a new one. When you can buy a good used car for thousands of dollars less than a new one...that's real value. Our reputation for offering good value for the money is your best assurance...buying your used car.
