SET IT BACK Normal Time Returns Early Sunday

By The Associated Press

The government offers everyone a silver platter Sunday with one great big hour of sleep on it.

That is the day Daylight-Saving Time ends. The legislature could have prevented Daylight Saving Time in Texas by exempting the state from the federal Uniform Time Act. But it took no action, which in effect ushered Texas into daylight time.

Now, the state and nation revert to standard time at 2 a.m. Sunday. Set your clock back an hour.

If anyone has difficulty remembering whether to set the clock forward or back, a little story has been developed: Spring forward, Fall back.

Beer emporiums and private clubs, which must cut out the boozing at 1:15 a.m. every Sunday, can wait 45 minutes this Sunday and then fill up the glasses for some more drinking.

At dinner Sunday night, it's going to seem like somebody put out the sun. Instead of setting at 6:46 p.m., as it would under DST, the sun will drop at 5:46 p.m. And it will rise Monday at 6:48 a.m. instead of 7:48. —(See Story on Page 2-A).

"These wretched few can no longer be tolerated. They must be held in check and when necessary, be brought to justice legally but firmly by the scruff of their collective necks." — A joint statement by Republican congressional leaders praising those antiwar protesters who demonstrated peacefully at the Lincoln Memorial and condemning those who engaged in violence at the Pentagon.

Funeral Attitude

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Americans are beginning to change their attitude toward funerals, a nationwide survey by funeral directors showed today.

The shift, particularly in large cities on the East and West coasts, is toward simpler, non-religious and less expensive funerals, the survey said.

But in rural areas, particularly in the Middle West and South, the overwhelming preference is still for the funeral with public viewing of the body, religious service and public burial.

Elections Set

DALLAS (AP) — Town councilmen of Highland Park, one of the incorporated cities surrounded by Dallas, voted Thursday to hold a city sales tax election Dec. 16.

Their decision brought to 18 the number of towns and cities in Dallas and Tarrant counties planning such elections.

Farmers Branch residents will vote Dec. 9 on whether to levy a one per cent municipal sales tax.

Dec. 5 is expected to be the date for the elections in Dallas, Fort Worth, Carrollton, Richardson, Grand Prairie, Duncanville, Cedar Hill, Balch Springs, Mesquite, McKinney, Terrell, Mansfield, Lake Worth, Grapevine, Euless and Hurst.

Urges Revolution

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas regents plan to discuss today a professor who, at a peace in Vietnam rally last Saturday, called for a revolution in this country.

The regents are to talk about Larry Caroline in a closed-door session, then raise the matter again in a public discussion.

Caroline, a bearded six-footer, got his job in September. He formerly taught at the state university in Buffalo, N. Y. He is listed as an assistant professor of philosophy.

Caroline told a Capitol rally of more than 800 that "We can't change the American society one thing at a time — the whole bloody mess has to go." Then he went on:

"What America needs is a revolution. You don't get a revolution by marching in a parade. The black people in this country have woken up. When things at a time—the whole bloody mess has to go." will the white people wake up? The black people know they are never going to get anything with the vote."

Ordaz Urges More Trade Opportunities

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, a nation which is a major customer of U.S. goods, spoke out in Congress today for greater trade opportunities for Latin America and other developing areas.

BILLS

He did not refer directly, in a speech to a joint session of the Senate and House, to a wave of protectionist bills now pending in Congress to restrict imports of a variety of products. But Latin American nations, the Scandinavian countries and the European Common Market nations have registered vigorous opposition to such measures with the State Department.

The Mexican president's appearance at the Capitol constituted his major address in this country where he is on a state visit, with his wife, as guests of President and Mrs. Johnson. Johnson also has spoken out against the protectionist measures.

From a 21-gun arrival salute on the White House South lawn to a presidential state dinner Thursday night, the red carpet was out for the first Mexican president to visit the United States in eight years.

The two presidents are celebrating the final ceremonies of the Chamizal Treaty through which the two nations peacefully settled a 105-year-old border dispute.

Before Diaz Ordaz entertains President and Mrs. Johnson tonight at a dinner in the Mexican Embassy, the two heads of state will witness formal signing of a treaty transferring the small strip of land known as El Chamizal—the thicket—from Texas to the Mexican state of Chihuahua.

El Chamizal was carved out of Mexico by a southward shift in the course of the Rio Grande River in 1852. Its restoration to Mexico ends negotiations begun in 1963 by President John F. Kennedy and Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos.

EL PASO

Johnson and Diaz Ordaz are scheduled to take part Saturday in ceremonies at El Paso, Tex., commemorating the peaceful conclusion of the land dispute.

The Interagency Committee on Mexican-American Affairs opened a hearing Thursday in El Paso as a prelude to Saturday's ceremonies. The first day of hearings erupted into charges that those invited to testify were not representative of the Southwest's Mexican-Americans.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A woman whose life was threatened after she testified about irregularities in the James R. Hoffa legal proceedings was shot late Thursday. An ex-convict was arrested and charged a short time later.

Mrs. Mary Ann Gordon Francis, 27, secretary of Teamsters Union Local 515 here, said after she was shot that she "couldn't fight all the money being poured into here to keep me from testifying."

OFFER

She said she was offered $65,000 three weeks ago not to testify before a federal grand jury which is scheduled to convene here next Tuesday, but said she turned down the offer.

She was listed in fair condition today at a local hospital with a bullet wound in the shoulder. Although she is not seriously wounded, Detective Billy Ray Davis said, she "almost died in the emergency room" after going into shock.

Enemy Fails To Win With Suicide Charge

Three Navy Jets Lost In Air Raids

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese infantry battalion hurled back three suicidal charges by a North Vietnamese regiment today and reported 134 of the enemy killed in a jungle clearing 70 miles north of Saigon.

The action near Phuoc Binh, capital of Phuoc Long Province, was the biggest ground battle in a week dominated by intense U.S. air raids on North Vietnam.

THREE LOST

The U.S. Command announced that three U.S. Navy jets were shot down in Thursday's raids and all three pilots were missing. This brought U.S. losses in the past three days to 19 planes and raised to 717 the total of U.S. combat planes officially reported lost over North Vietnam.

American pilots reported shooting down two more enemy MIGs during raids on Hanoi Thursday, bringing their score to 24 Communist jets reported destroyed or damaged in the air and on the ground this week.

The U.S. Command made no report on raids today, but Tass, the Soviet news agency, indicated that Hanoi was hit again. A Tass dispatch from the North Vietnamese capital said that "according to preliminary data," anti-aircraft units shot down six U.S. planes today "over Hanoi and its environs."

CAPTURED

Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency said one of "the many U.S. pilots captured" in Hanoi Thursday was Lt. Cmdr. John Sydney McCain, apparently the son of Vice Adm. John S. McCain Jr., the U.S. Navy commander in chief in Europe, and the grandson of one of the Navy's greatest carrier task force commanders in World War II. Adm. McCain said at his headquarters in London he had been notified his son was missing over North Vietnam.

Hanoi said McCain was hit in the leg when his Phantom jet was "blasted down by a ground-to-air missile before it could strike."

In the ground action north of Saigon, troops of the 88th North Vietnamese regiment attacked across minefields after midnight after laying down heavy mortar barrages on the South Vietnamese positions and a nearby refugee hamlet.

THROWN BACK

They were thrown back three times in five hours from the barbed wire perimeter around a battalion of South Vietnam's 5th Infantry Division.

The government troops captured 73 weapons, including 17 machine guns and rocket launchers and three rarely seen enemy flamethrowers. South Vietnamese casualties officially were termed light, and unofficial reports from the battle area said 12 government soldiers were killed and 24 wounded.

The fighting broke off just before daybreak.

All over the country, in special, secret spots, practice runs are being made by prospective witches and goblins for that big day . . . Halloween. On the outskirts of Rochester, N.Y., on a wind-

Plan To Solve Mid-East Crisis Is Almost Ready

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A drafting team of the U.N. Security Council was reported near agreement today on a plan aimed at opening the way to a permanent settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

PROPOSAL

The 10 nonpermanent members of the 15-nation council were to put the final touches to a proposal to send a special U.N. representative to the Middle East.

The drafting team consists of six of the 10 elected council members—India, Argentina, Brazil, Nigeria, Ethiopia and Mali.

Delegates predicted that the full 10-member group would firm up a resolution in time for the council to act on it next week.

The Indian plan, favored by the Soviet bloc and the Arabs, would give the U.N. representative specific instructions to call for withdrawal of Israeli troops from land they seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the June war.

DANISH DRAFT

The Danish draft, supported by the United States and Israel, would merely give general instructions to the representative.

The Latin American proposal resembles that of India, calling for Israeli withdrawal from "positions occupied by it as a result" of the war.

The Indian draft reportedly calls for peace on the basis of respect for the rights of all states to security and independence and an end to the Arab state of belligerency toward Israel.

It would also specify the need for free navigation through international waterways and settlement of refugee problems.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg canceled an appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Vietnam scheduled for Thursday when he learned that the drafters were on the brink of agreement.

SUPPORT

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant meanwhile sought support for his plan to increase the number of observers from 43 to 90 along the 167-mile Suez Canal and equip them with boats and helicopters.

One Israeli source at the United Nations said Thant's plan would make no difference because "it all depends on the will toward peace on the part of the parties concerned." But an Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman in Tel Aviv said he saw no difficulty in increasing the U.N. observer force if the Egyptian government also agrees.

Reports Arabs Building Up

PORT SAUFIQ, Israeli Held Sinai (AP) — An Israeli commander today reported a gradual buildup of Arab forces on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal.

He estimated there were thousands of Egyptian, Algerian, Kuwaiti and Sudanese soldiers along the tense 167-mile waterway that forms the cease-fire line after the June war.

An Arab force, equipped with large numbers of tanks and artillery pieces, was said to be within 12 miles of the Egyptian port of Suez, where thin columns of gray smoke still rose from oil refineries and storage tanks blasted by Israeli guns three days ago.

The once-bustling city of Suez with its tree-lined Port Ibrahim, the city's waterfront quarter, 120 yards across the canal from Israeli guns, appeared deserted.

But the commander, a colonel in charge of Israeli forces in the area, said Egyptian gunners were still there, he said that in their nervousness, they were spraying the Israeli-held east shore with brief and ineffectual bursts of machine gun and cannon fire almost every day.

There were no shooting incidents along the canal this morning but official sources said the Egyptians fired on the east bank twice Thursday, neither time causing any casualties or drawing any retaliatory fire.

BUILDING UP

The commander said forces on the Egyptian side had been slowly building up since the June cease-fire. The Algerian, the Kuwaitis and the Sudanese soldiers have been identified by their uniforms he added.

Key Witness In Hoffa Case Shot, Refused Huge Bribe

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A woman whose life was threatened after she testified about irregularities in the James R. Hoffa legal proceedings was shot late Thursday. An ex-convict was arrested and charged a short time later.

Mrs. Mary Ann Gordon Francis, 27, secretary of Teamsters Union Local 515 here, said after she was shot that she "couldn't fight all the money being poured into here to keep me from testifying."

She said she was offered $65,000 three weeks ago not to testify before a federal grand jury which is scheduled to convene here next Tuesday, but said she turned down the offer.

She was listed in fair condition today at a local hospital with a bullet wound in the shoulder. Although she is not seriously wounded, Detective Billy Ray Davis said, she "almost died in the emergency room" after going into shock.

Edmond H. "Jitterbug" Pulmon, 38, was arrested less than three hours after the shooting and charged in state and city warrants with felonious assault, assault and battery, discharging a pistol and unlawfully carrying a pistol. Officers said Mrs. Francis identified Pulmon as her assailant.

He was being held in lieu of bond.

HOFFA TEAM

In an appearance before City Judge Riley Graham this morning, Pulmon requested that he be represented by Harold E. Brown, a local attorney who was part of the Hoffa legal team when the Teamsters Union president was tried and convicted here in 1964 for jury tampering.

"They're trying to kill me," officers quoted Mrs. Francis as saying after she approached them on a city street and told them she was shot.

Mrs. Francis was a government witness in the recent obstruction of justice trial of a prostitute charged with giving false information in an affidavit filed with Hoffa's third new trial motion.

In the trial of Patricia Ann Essex, who had alleged she had sexual relations with jurors during Hoffa's 1964 jury tampering trial, Mrs. Francis said she had seen Mrs. Essex sitting in an office holding more than $1,000 in $20 bills when she went in to notarize the affidavit.

IN A CAR

Mrs. Francis said she was shot while in a car and walked to a point where she found officers directing traffic. Police said she did not elaborate on how she managed to elude her assailant.

Mrs. Francis was convicted Tuesday in another case of trying to kill her former husband. She was sentenced to 3-10 years in prison and was free on bond pending disposition of a new trial motion.

The $71,665.32 report by divisions is out-of-town, $9,181; big gifts, $31,978; special gifts, $4,115; employee, $18,029.88; Webb AFB, $7,223.64; public employees, $63.50; metropolitan, $1,064.50; and rural, $10.

EXPERTS SAY INCOME TAX HIKE WOULD HEAD IT OFF Higher Interest Rates Are Coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Signs are pointing to a new wave of tightened credit—but government officials say lenders and borrowers are unlikely to feel the effects for at least several more months.

TAX NEEDED

And they contend a new credit crunch can be headed off altogether if Congress approves President Johnson's request for a 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

A credit squeeze last year resulted in a shortage of mortgage money and sent the housing industry to its knees. The recovery is not yet complete.

The newest storm cloud was the highest interest rate—5.75 per cent—offered by the Treasury Department in 46 years to borrow money for more than one year. It will apply to $1.5 billion of the $12.2 billion to be borrowed by the Treasury on Monday.

Treasury officials contend the high rate will have no appreciable effect on the ability of banks and savings and loan associations to compete for consumer savings.

High interest rates last year prompted many savers to withdraw their money from savings and loans and banks for investments paying more interest, a factor which tightened the available supply of mortgage money.

One official said California's S&L industry, largest in the nation, is already worried about possible withdrawals of money for higher-paying investments.

KEY TIME

The end of the year could be a key time for the savings industry. That's when the next dividend period ends and when withdrawal of funds is most likely to occur.

Only this week the Securities and Exchange Commission reported that U.S. corporations offered $18.8 billion in securities for sale during the first nine months of this year, more than in all of last year.

This also places pressure on the money market and drives interest rates up.

And government officials contend they will go even higher without higher taxes since this will force the Treasury to borrow even more money.

Some States Threaten To Bolt

CHICAGO (AP) — Most of the states are keeping in time with each other this year, but some are threatening to change step as soon as possible and Kentucky keeps doing what comes naturally.

Sunday at 2 a.m. marks another semiannual session of the great American midcentury game: changing the clock.

The latest ritual—turn the clock back one hour Sunday—is the first mandatory time switch under the Uniform Time Act passed in 1966 by Congress.

No one complains about changing back to standard time. It's that 60 minutes of extra morning darkness and evening light called Daylight Saving Time that prompts ire.

The time act provided that all clocks in any one state must always have the same time, and from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October, that time would be Daylight Saving.

The new law tossed into one crucible all the controversial arguments that DST had caused since its inauguration in 1918. The federal law said that state legislatures could apply for exemption.

COMPLIED
Alaska and Hawaii were exempted. Ohio and Virginia partially observed the new law and 46 states complied in fact if not in spirit.

For millions of persons, changing the clock implies one hour less sleep in the spring and one hour more this Sunday. Millions of others, however, regard clock changing as the war cry to rally legislators and lobbyists against DST.

The latter group consists of farmers with their argument that "chickens don't read clocks," outdoor theater owners who condemn the late sunsets of DST as a blight on their livelihood and anxious mothers who must send their children to school during October's dark mornings.

Passage of the law was applauded by television networks concerned with keeping everyone in time with New York and

Los Angeles, originating points of prime-time TV shows.

SALESMEN
It was warmly welcomed by traveling salesmen who were often forced to eat three lunches in Ohio and Virginia where local-option rules caused a crazyquilt of time zones which changed at each crossroads.

A bill was introduced in the Ohio legislature to place the state on Standard Time permanently, but the newly appointed legislature defeated it despite cries of protests from rural representatives. Virginia made a stab at creating some sort of conformity in 1964 by putting the state on DST from Memorial Day to Labor Day. The law didn't apply to Alexandria or other suburbs of Washington, which kept time by the White House clock.

The states having bonafide complaints against the law were those divided by two time zones. It was common practice in such states to let the eastern part remain on Standard Time all year and allow the western section to adopt DST to give the state a uniform summer time.

States in this category were Indiana, Idaho, Nevada, Nebraska, Florida, Texas, Michigan, Kentucky, North and South Dakota and Tennessee.

MICHIGAN
Michigan, burdened by its westward-reaching Upper Peninsula, has a particular problem. Upper Michigan will be turning its clocks back to Central Standard Time and the lower section of the state to Eastern Standard.

The Michigan legislature exempted the state from the federal law. But the state's residents gathered enough petitions to force a referendum on the issue, thereby nullifying the legislature's act. Voters will have their final say when the conflict is placed on the November, 1968, ballot.

Tennessee went along with DST this year and is happily changing the clock to Standard Time Sunday.

Georgia couldn't make up its mind about DST in April so it went along with its neighbors. The legislature passed a resolution putting Georgia on DST unless two of its five bordering states opposed DST.

NONE DID
None did and Georgia had late sunsets but is now having second thoughts. A bill was proposed to remove the state from DST and it will be considered in January when the legislature convenes.

Arkansas complied with the time act and went on DST for the first time. Some people didn't like it and the issue is expected to be debated at the legislature's special session in February.

Missouri joined the parade to DST this year but some areas of the "show me" state apparently had seen enough and junked DST some time ahead of the

Talks Aimed At Ending The Long African Guerilla War

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Summit talks open this weekend in an attempt to end the four-year guerrilla war along the frontier between Kenya and Somalia in which nearly 3,000 have died.

Zambia's President Kenneth Kaunda will act as mediator at the peace conference in Arusha, northern Tanzania, between President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya and Premier Mohammed Ibrahim Egal of the Somali Republic.

Presidents Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Milton Obote of Uganda have been invited to attend as observers. A closer neighbor to the disputed frontier, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, has not. He and Somalia have their own border troubles.

Kenya and Somalia agreed at the recent African summit meeting in the Congo to settle their long-standing border dispute by peaceful means. If they come to terms, general discussion may follow on Zambia's desire to join Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania in an East African common market.

The war along Kenya's arid northeastern frontier has splintered on since shortly before Kenya became independent of Britain in December, 1963.

Nomads of Somali origin make up the majority of the region's population, and many took up arms in a guerrilla campaign to unite with the neighboring Somali Republic. Somalia broke off relations with Britain and never established them with independent Kenya.

The Somali government in Mogadishu got Soviet assistance to build up its army, and Somali territorial claims against Kenya, Ethiopia and French Somalia have been a constant source of friction.

Kenya charges the Somali government with arming and training the guerrillas. Most of Kenya's 5,000-man army has been engaged in combating the elusive foe, who raid trading centers and police posts deep inside the frontier.

The guerrillas strew the desert roads with deadly plastic mines believed made in Egypt, and development of the area has been brought almost to a standstill.

The war reportedly is costing Kenya $14 million a year.

Young People To Receive CROP Offerings Sunday

Big Spring CROP collection will be taken from house to house on Sunday from 2 p.m.-6 p.m. by youths of eight local churches. Authorized young people will be wearing name tags and passing out leaflets about CROP.

CROP is the community food appeal of Church World Service. Its primary purpose is to provide assistance, high - protein foods, emergency supplies, agricultural tools and seeds not otherwise available to the overseas programs of the churches. Distribution of CROP food self-help supplies and other aid through Church World Service is made under church supervision to people in more than 40 countries on the basis of need, without regard to race, creed or politics.

Gov. John Connally has designated the week of Oct. 29-Nov. 4 as Texas CROP Week. CROP appeals in Texas consist of contributions of farm commodities and collections by church youth contributions. Rice farmers and allied industries in the Beaumont region have already contributed a carload of rice. Farmers of the South Plains will be contributing a carload of maize. Others will be giving livestock, cotton and wheat through their county appeals.

The Rev. Richard Payne, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Stanton, is district CROP chairman, and Robert B. Trull, Palacios, is state chairman.

Big Spring churches participating in this year's CROP program are St. Mary's Episcopal, First Methodist, Kentwood Methodist, Wesley Methodist, First Presbyterian, St. Paul Presbyterian and Webb AFB Chapel.

LURID NEW MEANING GIVEN TERM 'PEN PAL'

Dent In Mail Order Pornography

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional clamor and a controversial Supreme Court ruling have put a big dent in the mail-order pornography business, the government's chief postal sleuth says.

PLUNGED. Complaints about offensive mail have plunged 30 per cent. Chief Inspector Henry B. Montague said, since the Supreme Court ruled 19 months ago that lurid advertising may be weighed against the defendant in obscenity trials.

And 20 legislative proposals to combat pornography have sounded a further alarm to the commercial peddlers of smut. "I think some of these dealers have had second thoughts since the Ginzburg case," Montague said in an interview. "They're awaiting further developments—but for now they've decided it might be wiser to keep their stuff out of the mail."

From 1962 to 1966, Montague said, complaints about offensive—if not legally obscene—mailings climbed from 52,000 to more than 197,000.

The Supreme Court, upholding the obscenity-by-mail conviction of publisher Ralph Ginzburg, ruled in March, 1966, that advertising designed to titillate may be considered in deciding whether the advertised material itself is obscene.

In the following year, complaints to postmasters dropped nearly to 140,000. A California publisher of nudist magazines was convicted last February of sending obscene matter into Iowa. And complaints during the first three months of the current fiscal year are around 17,000—a 50 per cent drop from the corresponding period last year.

MORE. But if the postman is delivering less offensive material, someone apparently is circulating more. It's the opinion of Montague, a quiet, solemn man who seldom laughs, that "there's more hard-core pornography in circulation today even if it's not moving by mail. The ads are in girls' magazines instead of mailboxes. The magazines usually move by truck."

Montague and other federal officials define hard-core pornography as that depicting actual sexual relations or perversion. Virtually all of the hard-core material is pictorial, since the courts have all but eliminated the possibility of obscenity findings for printed matter.

Montague believes congressional pressure also has had a dampening effect on would-be mailers of sex-oriented advertising. Congress is considering a number of bills that would protect postal patrons from offensive mailings.

And President Johnson has signed into law a bill empowering him to create an 18-member commission to report by January, 1970, on a strategy against pornography. The commission won't be named for at least several weeks.

The trend in commercialized mail order activity below the level of "hard-core" pornography, Montague said, is away from photos and film toward books, magazines and pamphlets.

NOT OBSCENE

Most of the mailings about which postal patrons complain are not legally obscene, Montague said. Many involve ads for sex-aid devices, couched in pseudo-medical terms. Some are thinly veiled invitations to join "correspondence clubs," lending a lurid new meaning, in the postal inspection business, to the friendly old term "pen-pal."

As for erotica and pornography entering the United States from outside, a Customs Bureau official said there has been no great change in the volume of material confiscated by inspectors.

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Friday, Oct. 27, 1967 3-A

Fraud Decided In Mail Concerning Aussie Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The search for wealth and the search for oil go hand in hand," the neatly mimeographed letter began.

It explained about oil discoveries in Australia and how investors might make a handsome profit—or lose everything. It suggested a "small investment" of $200 or perhaps $500.

Enclosed were colored maps of Australia, an order blank and a return envelope addressed to a post office box in Freeport, Bahamas Islands.

At the request of the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Post Office Department has now labeled the effort fraudulent. The department issued a foreign postal fraud order Thursday.

The SEC said the company, Simpson-McArthur Ltd., is trying to sell securities in the United States without registering them with the government as required by law. Officials called the literature issued by the firm typical of the illegal appeals for money by some operators in the Bahamas, Panama and Canada.

The fraud order means any mail addressed to Simpson-McArthur at the Freeport post office box will be stamped fraudulent and returned to the sender.

This type order does not give the department authority to intercept mail entering the country.

The SEC began its investigation several weeks ago when it received the company's literature.

Oberlin Students Issue Demands

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) — Oberlin College students who held a Navy recruiter prisoner in his car for four hours Thursday said Thursday night they are boycotting classes today.

Students also said they are demanding that armed forces recruiters be banned from campus and that no students be dropped from school because of political activity.

However, school officials said three Navy recruiters would be on campus today and that students arrested off campus in connection with future civil disobedience demonstrations would be reviewed by the college. These arrests had been overlooked previously. There were no arrests Thursday.

Some 70 students grouped around the car of Lt. Cmdr. C. R. Smith at Tappan Square away from the campus and prevented him from leaving his car.

After the incident, some 300 students marched to City Hall and then marched back to campus to discuss demonstration plans.

Dr. Robert K. Carr, Oberlin president, told students at an assembly Thursday noon that what the students had done was to sow "the seeds of revolution or anarchy."

The students served Smith coffee and donuts while he was trapped in his car but they voted down his request to go to a restroom.

Police moved in after reports of a scuffle between those blocking the auto and another group protesting the action of fellow students.

Police said they feared the fighting would touch off a major riot among some 300 persons at the scene and they moved in with tear gas bombs. Nine bombs were thrown and firemen hosed down the jeering students for four minutes.

Eventually the students dispersed. In Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Thursday the presence of a Navy WAVE recruiter on campus was protested by more than 150 girls at Skidmore College.

The demonstrators carried signs, listened to speeches by faculty members and students denouncing the war in Vietnam, and picketed the administration building.

Mental Health Awards Listed

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Two newspaper reporters and the Austin American-Statesman were cited Thursday by the Texas Association for Mental Health for their coverage of events in the mental health field.

The association's 1967 journalist award for a series went to Mrs. Ellen Brown, women's editor of the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Chris Whitcraft of the Austin American-Statesman received the journalist award for continuous reporting.

The association's 35th convention ends today.

Tech Wins Three Awards

CHICAGO (AP)—Texas Tech won three awards and North Texas State one Thursday as Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society named winners of its annual college press competition.

In all, the society named 23 students and college publications for outstanding performance in 14 categories of newspaper, broadcast, photo and magazine journalism.

First-place awards will be presented Nov. 15-18 during Sigma Delta Chi's annual convention in Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Winners from Texas included: Newspaper feature stories, North Texas State University, third.

News stories, Texas Tech, second.

Sports photography, Darrel Thomas, Texas Tech.

Scene or special photography, Darrel Thomas, Texas Tech.

The competition was open to 95 universities and colleges which have Sigma Delta Chi chapters.

Turkey Day Target For Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hopes high and fingers crossed, Congress is shooting for adjournment of its 1967 session before Thanksgiving Day.

Its leaders believe that with a little luck and no unforeseen snags they can hit that target date after this week's sudden break in the legislative logjam that has dragged the session through almost 10 months.

The big money bills, perennial sources of trouble, have started to move with a rush. Three more were sent to the President Thursday.

But wary leaders, accustomed to having their best-laid plans wrecked, were cautious in their adjournment predictions.

"Only fair," said House Democratic Leader Carl Albert, D-Okla., when asked what he thought of chances for adjournment by Thanksgiving.

"A good chance," said House

GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the Turkey Day get-away prospects were good, if there is to be no tax hike bill.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, appeared to remove Mansfield's "if" by agreeing chances for the late-November adjournment looked good to him. Tax legislation originates in Mills' committee, which could hardly get a revenue measure ready for initial House action before late November.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen was less optimistic than the others. He felt mid-December was a more realistic target date.

The unofficial list of "must" bills for disposal this year has been narrowed. It now includes Social Security, foreign aid, antipoverty and pay raise legislation, plus the remaining money bills. The list may be pared down further as the fever to quit spreads, with only the money measures absolutely demanding action.

None of the left-over bills would lose their advanced position if not acted on by adjournment time, since the present Congress meets again next January and picks up where it leaves off this year.

House-passed bills dealing with aid to education, civil rights and Social Security revision may be brushed aside until next year.

Science And You

Advanced Birdwatching

—By DR. LEONARD REIFFEL

Birdwatching is a classic hobby that has come in for more than its share of kidding, but we may have to change our attitude to keep up with the professional birdwatchers.

A birdwatcher in England plunked down a few hundred dollars for an old World War II radar and set it up to watch birds instead of enemy aircraft. He found very quickly that he could identify single birds on the radar traces. For background information, he first took high speed pictures of known types of birds in level flight and under known conditions. This way he could establish a characteristic wing beat for each particular kind of bird he wished to study. He then arranged the radar to watch a bird of the same type, and he found that the electronic "blip," or return echoes from the radar beam, displayed the same wing beat rate he had found in his photos. Thus, he could use wing beat rate as one clue to the kind of a bird he was "watching" with the radar under conditions where the bird was too far away to see by eye.

He then developed techniques which gave him other clues. He would search around for a bunch of echo blips from a group of birds and then concentrate on one particular blip. If that blip behaved regularly and rhythmically, he could be sure he was getting the wing beat rate from a single bird. Once he knew he had a single bird on the radar, he found he could use the strength of the echo to determine the rough shape of the bird—whether it was long and narrow or short and fat. He proved he could make use of other characteristics of the electrical signal to calculate the approximate size of the bird. All of these clues taken together gave a pretty good fix on what particular kind of bird was being tracked.

Birds have been tracked for five or six miles. It was found in some instances that the bird followed an oscillating flight path—one which moved up and down about 600 feet for every three miles the bird flew. It was later discovered that there were huge air "waves" rushing toward the bird and by watching wing beat rates on the radar, it became obvious that the bird was fighting very hard to go up the air waves and relaxing on the way down, so it was actually attempting, somewhat unsuccessfully, to maintain a constant height.

Clearly, radar birdwatching will allow naturalists to find out a great deal more about the flight habits of birds. Such difficult matters as the study of night migrations can now be dealt with. Here a small surprise has already been uncovered. Instead of migrating in flocks, as is common in daytime, night migrators tend to spread out a great deal. It now seems likely that they keep contact and provide directional guidance to each other by emitting calls rather than by sight.

One other application of these techniques is worth noting. It ought to help us learn basic information on which to base anti-collision procedures for fast-flying aircraft. When an airplane runs into a bird the consequences can be very serious. Radar birdwatching will help reduce the likelihood of such tragedies.

Lawsuit Is Settled Here

A lawsuit involving residents of towns on the northern plains and stemming from a fatal traffic accident in Martin County was settled in 118th District Court here Thursday.

Three people died and two were hurt badly in the crash which occurred at SH 349 and SH 176 in Martin County. The date was not mentioned in the settlement.

Judge Ralph Caton, presiding, said the case was concluded here because all the principals and attorneys, from cities other than Big Spring, agreed to meet here. Originally the suit was filed in Martin County in 118th District Court.

The settlement concerned five lawsuits and involved $20,000 in damages. The money will be allotted to the five plaintiffs by an agreed formula.

No testimony was offered in the hearing nor was any statement made, other than an announcement the cases had been settled.

Defendant in all of the suits was Ernest Andy Brooks. Plaintiffs, in separate actions, were J. E. Helms, Mrs. Frank Helms, Mrs. S. M. Clanton, Molly Crews and Clarence H. Kayler.

Loses Foot To Tiger's Mauling

THOUSANDS OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Tex Scarborough, president of Jungleland, Inc., was recovering in a hospital today after being mauled by a 4-year-old male tiger.

Investigators said Scarborough, 56, put his foot on the edge of the tiger's cage Wednesday to tie a shoe lace. The tiger, "Charley," hooked the foot and pulled it inside the cage.

Roll It Out

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Winter won't bother Ohio State University's golf team. They'll just roll out their new putting green when the snow falls. The 15 x 20 foot carpet, to be used in the OSU field house, is made of artificial grass similar to that in the AstroDome at Houston, Tex.

Dear Abby

Grief Has Addled Her?

DEAR ABBY: My husband's older sister recently lost her husband after a lingering illness. He wasn't buried two weeks when she blew into town asking if we knew any eligible men for her to forget her sorrow with. She says she isn't interested in any "old" men "over 60." (She claims to be 70, but my husband says she's 74!) She tells everyone she has just had a thorough checkup at the Mayo Clinic and they told her she was like a girl of 25.

As soon as she meets a person she tells him about her belongings, property and cash on hand.

We don't know what's come over her. She has dyed her lovely gray hair a hideous orange, and she wears mini-skirts and loud colors. How can we explain her disgraceful appearance and conduct to our friends? She is the talk of this town.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You could explain that you think her grief has gone to her head. (Maybe it has.) In any case, you are not responsible for your sister-in-law's behavior.

DEAR ABBY: The office supervisor where I work has a habit of putting his arm around you, and letting his hand rest firmly on your hip while he is discussing something with you. He is a very friendly type and I am sure he means nothing by it, as he is a happily married man. However, this is very annoying to me. Other girls in the office have told me it was annoying to them, too.

How can I handle this without making a federal case out of something I know is more thoughtlessness than lust?

OFFICE PRUDE: DEAR PRUDE: When this happily married man puts his arm around you, subtly shake it off, or squirm loose. If he repeats the friendly gesture, use your hand emphatically to remove his.

You need not make a federal case out of it. If you smile through it all, you can settle it in the lower courts.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem goes back to 1943 when my husband was in World War II. We were very much in love — and still are. He was in the air corps and I worked on the base. We planned to marry as soon as the war was over. He was sent overseas and soon after I learned that I was pregnant. He got back when I was in my ninth month and we didn't feel like getting married with me in my obvious condition so we told everyone (including our families) that we had been married secretly all along.

Well, it has been nearly 24

We are a devoted couple, Abby, and we "feel" as married as legally married couples, but we want our children to be legitimate, and we want to get this off our consciences. Is there any way we can get married now without embarrassing our families and children? If you can help us we would be eternally grateful. No names, please.

FROM LODI, CALIFORNIA
DEAR FROM: Ask your lawyer to tell you about Section 79 of the California Civil Code which he may agree could answer your problem.

Lawsuit Is Settled Here

A lawsuit involving residents of towns on the northern plains and stemming from a fatal traffic accident in Martin County was settled in 118th District Court here Thursday.

Three people died and two were hurt badly in the crash which occurred at SH 349 and SH 176 in Martin County. The date was not mentioned in the settlement.

Judge Ralph Caton, presiding, said the case was concluded here because all the principals and attorneys, from cities other than Big Spring, agreed to meet here. Originally the suit was filed in Martin County in 118th District Court.

The settlement concerned five lawsuits and involved $20,000 in damages. The money will be allotted to the five plaintiffs by an agreed formula.

No testimony was offered in the hearing nor was any statement made, other than announcement the cases had been settled.

Defendant in all of the suits was Ernest Andy Brooks.

Plaintiffs, in separate actions, were J. E. Helms, Mrs. Frank Helm, Mrs. S. M. Clanton, Molly Crews and Clarence H. Kayler.

DETROIT (AP) — All 12 judges of Detroit's Recorder's Court have called on the city's Common Council to enact measures to have alcoholics treated as medical patients rather than criminals.

Dear Abby

Grief Has Addled Her?

DEAR ABBY: My husband's older sister recently lost her husband after a lingering illness. He wasn't buried two weeks when she blew into town asking if we knew any eligible men for her to forget her sorrow with. She says she isn't interested in any "old" men "over 40." (She claims to be 70, but my husband says she's 74!) She tells everyone she has just had a thorough checkup at the Mayo Clinic and they told her she was like a girl of 25.

As soon as she meets a person she tells him about her holdings, property and cash on hand.

We don't know what's come over her. She has dyed her lovely gray hair a hideous orange, and she wears mini-skirts and loud colors. How can we explain her disgraceful appearance and conduct to our friends? She is the talk of this town.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You could explain that you think her grief has gone to her head. (Maybe it has.) In any case, you are not responsible for your sister-in-law's behavior.

DEAR ABBY: The office supervisor where I work has a habit of putting his arm around you, and letting his hand rest firmly on your hip while he is discussing something with you. He is a very friendly type and I am sure he means nothing by it, as he is a happily married man. However, this is very annoying to me. Other girls in the office have told me it was annoying to them, too.

How can I handle this without making a federal case out of something I know is more thoughtlessness than lust?

DEAR PRUDE: When this happily married man puts his arm around you, subtly shake it off, or squirm loose. If he repeats the friendly gesture, use your hand emphatically to remove his.

You need not make a federal case out of it. If you smile through it all, you can settle it in the lower courts.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem goes back to 1943 when my husband was in World War II. We were very much in love — and still are. He was in the air corps and I worked on the base. We planned to marry as soon as the war was over. He was sent overseas and soon after I learned that I was pregnant. He got back when I was in my ninth month and we didn't feel like getting married with me in my obvious condition so we told everyone (including our families) that we had been married secretly all along.

Well, it has been nearly 24

We are a devoted couple, Abby, and we "feel" as married as legally married couples, but we want our children to be legitimate, and we want to get this off our consciences. Is there any way we can get married now without embarrassing our families and children? If you can help us we would be eternally grateful. No names, please.

FROM Lodi, California
DEAR FROM: Ask your lawyer to tell you about Section 79 of the California Civil Code which he may agree could answer your problem.

A Devotional For The Day

If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. (Romans 8:9)

PRAYER: Merciful God, when we are burdened with woes and carried away by emotions, grant us Thy sustaining help. Teach us that only through patient endurance can we show the spirit of Christ in us. In His name. Amen. (From the "Upper Room")

These Are The Tides

In a recent column, Joseph Alsop wrote from Saigon:

"After a month spent in a dozen different provinces and three of the four corps areas of South Vietnam, one leaves really bewildered by the defeatism that seems to prevail at home. There is no stalemate here. By any rational test, Gen. William C. Westmoreland at last has the other side over a barrel."

He goes on to say that intelligence and events show conclusively that the Viet Cong countryside base cannot long survive without the active, fairly close-in support of the big units, the enemy's main force divisions composed chiefly of North Vietnamese. And North Vietnam cannot pay the immense manpower bill for the big units. Added to this is the withering of once formidable enemy units, which surely will release substantial blocks of allied troops to increase pressures where the North Vietnamese are struggling to hold on with big units in the face of steady attrition.

Bob Considine, another veteran correspondent, in a recent series, wrote: "Stop griping. We're winning this lousy war. It's not, repeat not, a stalemate. The enemy has not won a substantial land battle for more than two years. . . . Nearly five enemy die for every allied man killed. The enemy is now outnumbered four to one and never had it worse. . . . We are sorely complicating the enemy's three basic needs: 1) food, 2) ammunition, and 3) replacements. . . . This is a different kind of battle from encirclement of the Ruhr. But whatever it is, it is not a stalemate. We're clobbering them."

While none wants to take joy in war, these words — reinforced by many others — are well to remember in order to keep the picture in perspective. It's easy to let the distortions of an ambush or a sneak artillery attack color our glasses with darkness of defeatism. As grueling and as painfully costly as is the war, the truth is that we are wearing down the enemy and not the other way around. There likely won't be any sudden wave of collapse, but these are the tides.

Start Of An Arms Race

A good policy designed to prevent an arms race among South American countries is about to be driven out by a bad policy dictated by commercial gain.

The State Department has approved the sale of U.S. F-5 supersonic fighter planes to Latin American countries. Peru, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Venezuela and Colombia have expressed interest in buying the plane manufactured by the Northrop Co. All of them soon may be clamoring for delivery of the sophisticated plane and its weapons system.

Earlier the State Department had vigorously opposed the sale of 12 French Mirage fighter-bombers to Peru. The U.S. also vetoed the sale by Britain of six Canberra jet bombers to Peru.

The State Department issued a pious disclaimer, saying, "We have opposed and we continue to oppose the introduction of highly sophisticated weapons systems into Alliance for Progress countries." This was followed by an announcement from Robert J. McCloskey, department press officer, that the decision to approve Northrop sales was made "very recently."

There can be only one reason for this about-face. The military-industrial complex, of which President Eisenhower warned us shortly before leaving office, has flexed its muscles and forced a change of position, if not of opinion.

Thus we can look forward to an arms race in Latin America to the great detriment of urgently needed economic and social reforms in those countries. The suppliers will make some money — possibly paid for, at least in part, by U.S. military assistance funds. The State Department will be left to view the wreckage of its policy for curbing the arms race. The American people will perhaps take refuge in the moral that what is good for business must be good for the United States and its foreign policy.

Some Things We Have Done Well

LONDON — In the dither raised here over the Government's white paper called "The Brain Drain," much was said and written about Britain's sinking star as a world power — and nothing about America's corresponding rise. Yet that is what the seesaw story was all about.

THOUSANDS OF young engineers, technologists and scientists have left Britain to find jobs. Since 1961, the world-wide outflow has doubled in the first two categories — and to North America, principally. To the United States it has quadrupled. There are many meanings to be read into this voluntary migration of English post-graduates, and one of the meanings should give real satisfaction to Americans.

Billy Graham

I have just come to my spiritual senses. My father was a preacher, and I promised myself that I would never go to church when I got out on my own. But life went stale on me, and just recently I surrendered to the Christ I have been resisting all along. I can't tell you what joy is mine. I would like the whole world to know that there is happiness and peace in following Christ. Please put this in your column. L.Y.

With all the problems that come to my desk, it is encouraging to receive a letter like yours. I'm glad to use it in my column.

Your experience reminds me of a story I heard out in Oklahoma. A poor old man and his wife lived on a little acreage they had bought during the depression, and they subsisted on the little farm, but didn't have any luxuries, to be sure. One morning an engineer came up the path and asked if he could drill a test hole for oil under the kitchen floor. It was a big decision, for the little shack was all they owned. But finally, they gave their permission. He hit a gusher, and the oil began to pour forth by the hundreds of barrels. Soon the old couple were living in a modern home, driving a sleek new car, and were living better than they ever dreamed they would. One day, the old man smiled reflectively and said to his wife: "Just think, the oil was under our feet all the time, and all we had to do was to tap it!"

Christ stands ready to impart his spiritual riches to everyone who will receive them. All we have to do is to tap heaven's riches.

Never Really Desperate

NEW YORK (AP) — "I've been out of pocket and depressed, but never really desperate," said Julie Christie.

Then one of the entertainment world's most awesome properties studied her flawless features in a hand mirror as she applied makeup and said:

"I'VE COME up with spots all over my face. I'm a mass of hot spots. It's the central heating."

The brilliant young British actress, most recently starred in "Far from the Madding Crowd," was having brunch in the West Side apartment of a friend here.

She was wearing a nondescript robe that didn't take attention away from the pendulous promise of a full lower lip and sea-deep eyes of fathomless gray.

As she answered questions, she ate some broiled sausages, picking them up with carefully fastidious fingers, then trifled with a cantaloupe whose orange cavity had been thrust full of large ripe strawberries.

"YOU REALIZE that people, after all, aren't monsters and won't eat you up," she said, explaining that she felt less shy than on previous visits to America.

What is life to Julie? "It is trees and water and buildings and people. It is nice things. It is something given only once and therefore to be made the most of."

Everybody has the blues now and then, Julie? How do you cure them?

"I'm so masochistic I give myself over to them completely. When I am bored with them and they with me, we part company. There are so many worthwhile things around."

HOW DOES a young girl, who used to carry an air mattress and camp in the apartment of pals because she lacked rent money, feel now that she is in the comfortable area of the great big dollar that confirms success?

"Well" — she toyed with a lock of her hair like a brooding child — "it's not a lethargic situation. It's stimulating. You're constantly having demands made upon you, which is nice."

What is your biggest virtue, Julie?

"Self-honesty. I don't lie to myself, whatever I may do to other people."

And your biggest fault, Julie?

"It may be self-interest, but that doesn't seem to narrow it down enough. Wait a moment, and I'll go ask."

SHE LEFT the room to consult a friend, returned and said: "She said that if evasiveness wasn't my biggest vice, it was certainly vice-like. Also bossiness. Actually, however, I'm not really domineering. I just want everybody to feel and think the way I do."

"Everything about life is so rare and marvelous—even the awful."

What are the things you like, Julie?

"Oh, sunflowers—cats—great and wide and wild expanses of nature — the feeling of mole-skins — the nostalgic smell of lilacs, which reminds me of my childhood—the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace—the walk of ducks and the way guinea pigs move—all kinds of food—and particular companions."

And your dislikes?

"OH, CHICKENS—getting up in the morning and going to bed at night when I still want to stay up—giving up anything—gherkins, discourtesy, English sandwiches, and any sort of viciousness or vindictiveness, particularly in young people, because I feel they should know better."

And your goals now, Julie Christie?

"I'd like to have more control over my mind really, not to be such—not to be—Oh, I'll leave it at that really."

A Vision Of The World

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alexander Wiley, who died Thursday, was not one of the most brilliant minds in the Senate where he served 24 years before being beaten in his try for a fifth term in 1962.

But he did develop a vision of the world and the future which he had to arrive at the hard way. And in the process more and more he was making statements which sound like President Johnson today.

HE WAS an isolationist when he came to the Senate as a Wisconsin Republican in 1939. He was 35 then and found plenty of company in a Senate which was slowly and grudgingly emerging from a belief America could stand alone.

There was another Midwest-ern Republican isolationist there when Wiley arrived—Sen-

Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan—who, like Wiley, eventually became an internationalist after World War II.

Wiley never achieved the public stature or influence of Vandenberg, but both men in the early postwar years helped eliminate some of the political partisanship which had plagued American foreign policy.

For both this was their great contribution to American history although today's generation has probably only a dim knowledge or none at all of either man.

TWO SHINING examples of Wiley's early isolationism were his opposition to the draft in 1940 and to lend-lease in 1941. In 1940 the American Army was hardly more than a Coxey's army at a time when Hitler dominated most of Europe.

To Your Good Health

Color Spots And Pregnancy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I was pregnant several years ago dark blotches appeared on my face, under my eyes and on my nose. My doctor said they would disappear after the baby was born, and they did.

Then three years ago I began taking birth control pills, and in the last year these blotches have appeared again. Could they be from the pill, or is it my type of skin? — Mrs. M. T.

Probably a combination of both. Some women encounter these spots which are called chloasma, or the "mask of pregnancy." It is believed to result from an increase in pregnancy of the hormone which produces melanin, the pigment or coloring matter in the skin, as well as an increase in the level of estrogen, or female hormone, in the body.

SKIN SUSCEPTIBLE When taking the pill you are creating a condition comparable to pregnancy, and your skin type is susceptible to this change. The increased pigment accumulates in the spots blotches. This, by the way, has been reported in other women using the birth control pills. My suggestion is to stop the pills and resort to some other contraceptive method. If the discoloration does not fade, then consult a dermatologist. There are certain ointments which can decrease the pigmentation, but they can be irritating to some skins, which is why I urge you to let a skin specialist do the treating.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a sound in my right ear like escaping steam 24 hours a day. What can I do for it? I think you have a booklet on this. How much is it? — M. T.

"Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures," is the booklet you have in mind. Send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed stamped envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of The Herald, for a copy. Some of these odd ear noises can be stopped. Some can't.

TINEA VERSICOLOR Dear Dr. Molner: I have spent considerable money on ultra violet treatments and salve for what has been diagnosed as tinea versicolor. My husband and year-old child have it also. In the past 10 years I have suffered a lot of mental anguish because of these awful spots on my arms, chest, back and neck.

Has any work been done to find a cure? — Mrs. R. D.

Tinea versicolor is a fungus infection of the skin. Other than the brownish spots, it causes no symptoms other than occasional itching. Treatment with medications to subdue the fungus and ointments to loosen the fine scales usually must be continued for several weeks. Unfortunately recurrence is common and retreatment necessary. Ultra violet light may be helpful but more specific treatment for that particular fungus, Malassezia furfur, is required.

Your mention of having had this for 10 years leads me to ask whether you have had your trouble reviewed recently. A medication containing tolnaftate, which has been available for the last year or two, has shown effectiveness against that variety of fungus.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, for a copy of the booklet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Around The Rim

How's That Again?

Since I'm a former state publicity director of the Oklahoma Democratic Party, I hesitate to unravel the following yarn, but here goes:

A Briton who thinks highly of President Johnson, so the story goes, sent him some British tweed, and LBJ decided he would have it made into a suit.

HE TOOK IT to a tailor, who looked at it, measured several times, frowned and said: "I'm sorry, Mr. President, but it isn't big enough."

"Would you like maybe a sports coat?"

The President declined. On his next trip to Texas, he took the material to a tailor who was a life-long friend, who made him a suit.

When the President tried it on, he was well-pleased. He explained what had happened and asked the tailor about it.

"YOU'RE NOT AS BIG a man here as you are in Washington," the life-long pal said frankly.

LBJ gave him the look usually reserved for Robert Kennedy, and the tailor added: "If you had gone to Mississippi they could have made you a suit and topcoat."

"How'd You Like to Foot the Bill for Ethel Kennedy's Brood?" — Headline.

First, do I get Ethel Kennedy's husband's money?

THE NETWORKS and their computers already have taken the fun out of election night. Now Newsweek is going a step farther.

It has had a poll taken which shows that Richard Nixon is the favorite in 1968 in states which will have 622 votes at the Republican convention, and 667 is needed for the nomination. But, Newsweek says, he won't get the nomination and neither will George Romney.

If Newsweek is so smart, how come it ain't Time?

A BIG SPRINGER who had extensive surgery on his knee says he has found putting a leg in a cast for three months makes the muscles of the leg almost useless.

A friend thought about it for a short while and asked: "Would it work on my wife's tongue?"

THE IGNORE experiment is ended. I stuck with the program of writing this column a day in advance for two weeks. That was the period I had set as a trial. And I didn't like it.

So from now on it will be committed to the day of publication. Frankly, I felt the delay injured some of the material. And material like this can't stand it. —WALT FINLEY

Rioting During Campaign Year

WASHINGTON — The battle of the Pentagon is being analyzed by tacticians convinced that it foreshadows the shape of things to come in 1968. Reports out of the underground of the Black Nationalists and the New Left indicate advanced planning for rioting and disorder on a scale exceeding that in Detroit and Newark this past summer.

WHAT THIS MEANS for the election campaign next year hardly needs to be spelled out. It is widely acknowledged in private that the hazards will be greater than in any previous presidential contest. Campaign crowds and the uproar of a candidate progressing through a city will be the fear is, an all-too-handy seed bed for organized violence that normal security measures cannot cope with.

These fears were uppermost in the lengthy closed-door debate over where the Democrats should hold their national convention. Not alone the television industry but powerful forces within the party argued for following the example of the Republicans and going to Miami Beach. They contended that with bridges and causeways effectively policed, disruptive mobs could be kept away from the convention center and the big hotels on the beach.

BUT PRESIDENT Johnson would not hear of it. His response was that Miami Beach wasn't an American city at all. It was a rich man's playground and to go there was a confession that you had to seek a refuge away from the people.

As the choice began to focus on Chicago those arguing the dangers of big-city disorder pointed to the added hazard of the trip two or three times a day to the amphitheater in the stockyards area through the slums of the South Side. How, they asked, will it look to the nation and the world if the route from The Loop to the convention hall has to be guarded by a wall of troops with fixed bayonets?

THEY GOT NOWHERE with their argument. The President said he was confident Mayor Richard Daley could guarantee the safety of convention visitors and he would be backed by a Democratic governor, Otto Kerner, with the resources of the National Guard. So Chicago it was.

The President himself, as he cannot help but know, will be the No. 1 target of the extremists. An ugly aspect of the Vietnam peace rally was the vehemence of the attack directed at the President as the author of all the death and destruction in Vietnam. He was held up as the hated symbol of a hateful war. To only a slightly lesser degree Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is also a target for this hatred.

THE PRESIDENT in 1968 has only the narrowest choices. He can decline not to run for re-election, and that would somewhat ease the tensions. Such a choice is, however, contrary to his temperament, since it would be a confession of defeat and is therefore no choice at all.

He can confine his campaigning almost entirely to television in the security of the White House or a television studio. But barnstorming through the country, pressing the flesh at airport fences, is dear to him. This is the rapport with the people that he prizes. So television, a medium scarcely kind to the President, is not a choice.

THE RISKS CAN be minimized although they cannot be eliminated. Riot training for airborne units of the Army is to be accelerated. An alert system is being developed under which an incipient riot can be controlled before it becomes unmanageable. The forces thrown around the Pentagon to provide restrained control of a fixed position were in line with the planning for the coming year. How the demonstrators broke through and gained entrance to the building, even though it was only a token entrance, is a question that needs to be answered.

Military Opinion Prevailing?

WASHINGTON — What do the American people really know about how the Vietnam war is being fought and whether the military men who are supposed to be trained to win wars have been restricted in their operations by civilian officials?

To understand the dilemma of the average reader, it is necessary to note a UPI dispatch from Saigon on Tuesday, which said:

"U.S. PLANES today bombed North Vietnam's largest MIG airfield at Phuoc Yen outside Hanoi for the first time in the war."

This airfield, which is considered to be the key to the defenses around the whole Hanoi area, might well have been attacked long ago but, for some undisclosed reason, permission to do so has been denied.

BUT WHY WASN'T this important target bombed two years ago? For the answer to this people would have to read the printed testimony released two days ago by a subcommittee of the United States Senate. The record of the hearings held on Aug. 28 and 29 runs 132 pages—about 60,000 words—and covers the testimony of Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, Gen. Wallace M. Greene, Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps, and Maj. Gen. Gilbert L. Meyers, formerly deputy commander of the Seventh Air Force in Vietnam. Their statements leave no question about the position of these military men—they were not permitted to bomb certain targets the Joint Chiefs of Staff had selected.

THE CIVILIAN officials who vetoed their plans did not testify at the same time, but in earlier hearings had stated that attacking these targets was not in line with the objectives of the war. The policy decided on instead was one of "gradualism" — which means a steadily increasing pressure with the hope that this would discourage the North Vietnamese and bring them to the peace table. After two years of effort, the policy has failed, and now the United States is beginning to do what its military commanders recommended in 1965.

Gen. Johnson said in his testimony:

"THE DECISION to apply gradually increasing pressures in contrast to as large an effort as possible against substantially the same target systems was one that was made approximately two years ago. My view at that time was that the most effective way to employ airpower in the North was as heavy a blow as possible over as short a period of time as possible. This view was not accepted."

Gen. Johnson added that "from a military point of view, a sharp blow against the important targets" would have been more effective than the more gradual approach.

GEN. MEYERS expressed the same view, and revealed that the restricted bombing policy has had an adverse effect on the morale of pilots. When asked whether the American forces had the capability in 1965 to destroy or impair all the targets in North Vietnam, including the Port of Haiphong, he answered in the affirmative. He said that "We have been slapping them on the cheek, over a long period of time, and we should have been hitting them on the jaw and knocking them out."

BUT WHO IS going to decide such issues when they arise in the councils of the government? The civilians have had an idea that to adopt a more vigorous course might antagonize the Communist allies of the North Vietnamese. The military men feel that the decision should be based on their advice. They believe that American lives are being risked needlessly and that the casualty lists can be substantially reduced over a period of time if the military policies which they advocate are sanctioned by the commander-in-chief — namely, the President of the United States. Officials Meet Here To Discuss City Sales Tax

By REBECCA NUGENT
What are West Texas cities going to do about the city sales tax?

That was the question presented 57 officials from 13 area cities Thursday night meeting for two hours at the Cosden Club to discuss possibilities of a concerted effort. This morning the question remains unanswered.

NO CONCLUSIONS

No definite conclusions were drawn, although it was generally understood another meeting would be held the second week of November following the state meeting of the Texas Municipal League.

In the spotlight is the permissive city sales tax available to Texas cities on a local-option basis. The one per cent tax would be levied on any goods covered by the state tax.

"Since passed by the state legislature, 15 of 16 cities voting on the issue have passed it by surprising majorities. Approximately 25 more have scheduled elections during November and December," said City Manager Larry Crow as he gave a brief recap of what is happening across the state. For the most part, however, the delegates hesitated to commit themselves. They were "just listening," as Midland Mayor Hank Avery put it.

CONCERN

One by one, a pattern took shape as city officials explained the situation "out our way." Generally, their first concern was presenting a solid front, preferably setting elections on the same or near the same date. With that thought in mind, they seemed to favor an early December date, thus benefitting from publicity of Dallas - Fort Worth and possibly Abilene votes.

Reaction of the public to additional taxing was another concern, although Seminole Mayor Clarence Wright summed it up saying he thought "the people would go for a sales tax a lot quicker than an increase in regular (property) tax."

Midland and San Angelo, the two largest cities represented at the meeting, agreed there were advantages of a united front, but due to problems peculiar in their cities, would probably not be able to join if a December date was selected.

TOWN MEETINGS

"We're in the midst of setting up town meetings in early November to discuss such issues as the sales tax and might be jeopardizing the whole purpose if we announce we're going to hold an election before the first meetings are even held," said Midland Commissioner

Hugh McCullough. Although he felt a sales tax election is "eminent," Midland would have to consider Stanton and Odessa as when making plans. Odessa was not represented at the meeting. San Angelo had another problem, according to Mayor Ray Dorrance. He told delegates a program is under way in his city which would involve several million dollars in capital expenditures.

"Personally, I hope we hold off until we find out what our bonded indebtedness will be, then we can show the people the sales tax route is one way to cover the bond issue."

"In Big Spring, it looks like we'll be having a county bond issue Dec. 9," said Crow. "Petitions are circulating to call for an election to establish an airport authority and authorize bonds for airport improvements." Although some think it would be a good idea to hold it near the sales tax election, others feel it's a "shaky approach."

With all signs pointing to calling an election as soon as possible — and together — Avery issued a note of caution. "If you ever call one, give it everything you've got," said the Midland mayor. "Don't be ill-prepared. We've been busy in Midland and haven't had time to give it 105 per cent effort, but you can be sure when we call one, we'll give it all we have."

The success of each election can help or hurt those cities which follow, he said. Before the discussion was officially launched, City Attorney Tom Huckaby described technical problems within the permissive sales tax procedure which may face the cities.

"The state legislature set up the method initiating the tax on a quarterly basis," said Huckaby. "No taxes may be collected in the quarter when the election is held, nor in the following quarter."

Huckaby said even though taxes will be collected the third quarter following the election, the city would not receive the funds until they are remitted at the end of the period by the state comptroller.

"This means if you hold an election at the first of a three-month period you won't actually receive the revenue until nine months later."

TECHNICALITY

Another technicality could force city authorities to hold the sales tax election when voters elected city officials. A provision states the election must be held no less than 30 nor more than 90 days after the ordinance calling for the election is passed.

"Should this 60-day period cover the date set for the city contest, the two must be held at the same time," said Huckaby.

He also pointed out that 20 per cent of the people who voted in the last election can petition for the election — a figure which would only number about 400 in Big Spring.

Those represented were Sterling City, Kermit, Sweetwater, Slaton, San Angelo, Colorado City, Midland, Lamesa, Snyder, Seminole, Coahoma, Stanton and Big Spring.

conference, he stated. Emphasis number two will be on factors directly affecting performance: first, methods and procedures evolving under the press of more and more people, and second, money to foot the municipal service bill.

Here's a glimpse of the program:

Williams will draw on vital, sustained, close-up experience with the league, legislation, and the major municipal issues of recent years to keynote the conference.

View from the top of state government will come at one of two luncheon sessions from Governor John Connally, under whose direction the state has vitalized its role in direct state and city relations and its liaison function between the federal government and Texas cities.

Both Lt. Governor Preston Smith and Speaker of the House Ben Barnes are scheduled for opening session addresses.

The president will moderate a half-day municipal sales tax forum that will plumb every aspect of the newly available revenue source for Texas cities — the need, revenue estimates, the law, and public support — all fleshed out with the experience of 15 cities where local citizens have approved the tax.

TML officers will be elected, and at the annual business session the framework of league policy will be drawn for 1967-68.

Conference Slated For City Officials

For the first time in a decade city officials meeting early in November for the 55th Annual Conference of the Texas Municipal League won't be searching for a new source of municipal revenue. But they will look carefully at ways and means of implementing the new sales tax source granted them, on a local-option basis, by the State Legislature earlier this year.

TML President Judson F. Williams, mayor of El Paso, stated this week that more than 2,500 delegates representing city governments all over the state are expected Nov. 5-7 in Houston for the conference. The program brings together authoritative speakers from government and business, he said.

A municipal sales tax forum, featuring the experience of 15 Texas cities whose citizens have already approved the tax, is part of the varied three-day program.

Emphasis will be on legislative activity and political analysis — taking into consideration the place cities have assumed in the partnership of governments dealing with the growing problems of urbanization.

No more thoroughgoing appraisal of cities' relations with other levels — methods, accomplishments, future needs — has ever been offered the delegates in every segment of an annual

U.N. Action In Vietnam Gets Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing support for a resolution aimed at obtaining United Nations action on the Vietnam war is generating Capitol Hill speculation President Johnson might be receptive to the idea.

The resolution sponsored by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has gained backing of 56 other senators—Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives, war policy backers and opponents.

While the discreet language of the resolution would merely urge the President to consider directing U.S. representatives to the United Nations to seek action, its passage would be interpreted as an appeal to him to do so.

Approval would express the sense of the Senate and not be binding on the President. But one informed source said he doubted Mansfield would seek to put Johnson in a position of rejecting a suggestion for a possible step toward peace.

The opposite appears to be the case, the source said—that Mansfield expects the President would act on the resolution, with his hand strengthened by the strong support already indicated.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., one of the most outspoken critics of Johnson's Vietnam policies, advanced another reason why a resolution on U.N. action might be welcomed by the President. He said it "may be the

Farmers Promised High Election Year Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is promising farmers in politically important Midwest and South-west a record income for important livestock feed grain crops if they cut production during the 1968 election year.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman outlined Thursday a 1968 program to change this year's government-encouraged two to three per cent overproduction of corn and sorghum grain to a corresponding underproduction next year.

A record grain crop this year has caused grower prices to decline sharply. The program will seek idling of 30 million of the 115 million acres farmers normally use to grow these crops. This year 20 million were diverted compared with 35 million in 1966.

Freeman said farmers are still "cross and contrary" in their attitude toward the farm price situation.

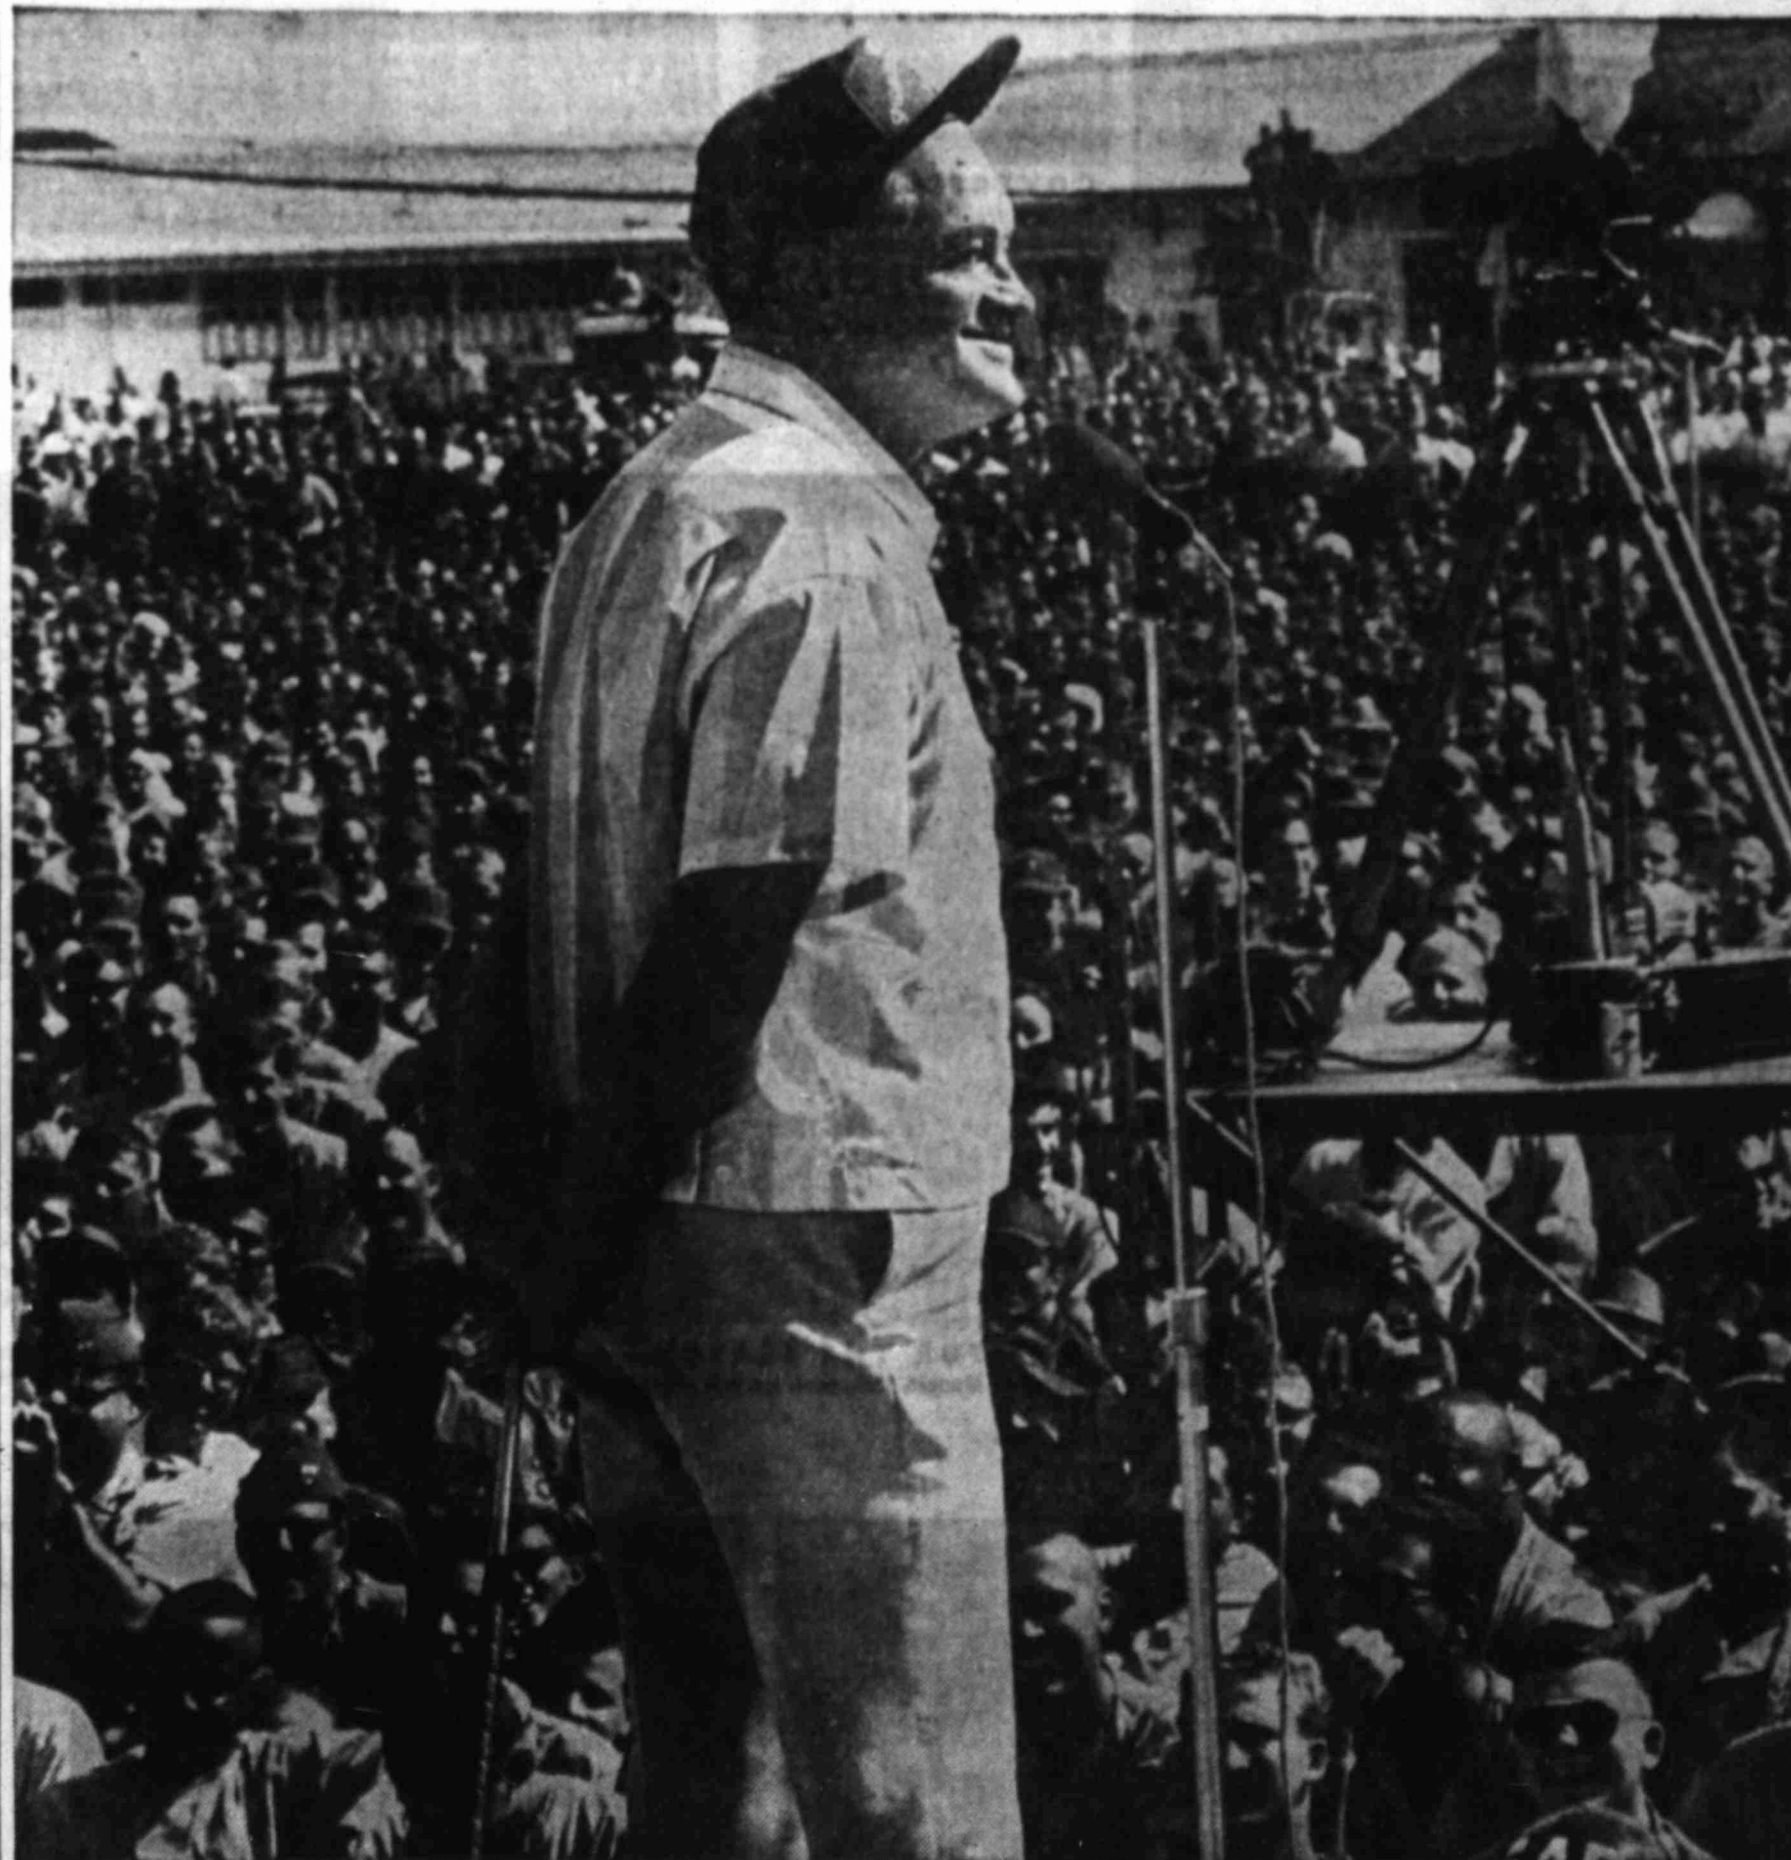

Freeman said the feed grain program—under which an estimated $1.3 billion in government payments will be made to co-operative growers—should give producers nearly $200 million more than the record income they received for these grains in 1966 and $400 million more than this year.

Payments this year totaled about $1 billion.

Quick Tricks Boost Beauty Of Coiffure

By MARY SUE MILLER

Conditioning shampoos and treatments are basic to lovely hair. Nothing has yet been devised to take their place. There are a few quick hair care tricks, however, that boost health, bounce and sparkle if used in addition to the basics. For instance:

When you have an hour or so of privacy, part your hair in several places and leave for the duration. This both airs and exercises the scalp.

Massage your hairline, while you read or watch TV in solitary comfort. Start from the ear and move across to the center, using firm rotary motions.

To halve the time of brushing, work with two brushes. Bend from your waist, let your head dangle forward, while you brush and you double the effectiveness of brushing.

Apply pomade to the ends of your hair occasionally and thus prevent ragged splits. This goes for oily as well as dry locks. To make a fast job of it, film the palms of your hands with pomade and lightly twirl the ends between the palms.

When the day is smoggy, foggy or windy wear a hat. It saves damage and the lengthy repairs thereof. That extra shampoo, extra set, extra conditioning treatment.

BUYING TIPS Stainless Steel Stays Popular

By GENEVIEVE SMITH WOOD

Sterling, silver plate, stainless steel — which one for your table?

Sterling — pure silver with a small percentage of alloy added to give toughness and hardness — is still the dream of most women. But stainless steel is the metal that's making news, thanks to its wide range of beautiful patterns and its easy care.

Today you can choose from a good array of rather ornate patterns if you wish to use stainless steel for more formal dining. This ware is particularly strong in its range of contemporary patterns. Of course, you can find the less expensive stainless steel in purely utilitarian designs almost anywhere. In general, however, it is most widely accepted for informal dining. This acceptance has greatly increased the demand, because it becomes a second set for the breakfast table and patio meals.

Silver plate is the less expensive alternate for sterling. In the best quality it is well designed and truly beautiful, and will last many years if not abused.

The best quality plate is called heavy or quadruple plate in the trade. The reason it wears so long is because the points of heaviest wear are reinforced with extra silver. Cheaper plating has no such reinforcement, and the plate also is lighter.

FEELING OF BALANCE Like china, the designs on silver are stylized enough to be harmonized easily with any interior. They are generally classified as ornate, semi-ornate, and undecorated or simple designs that depend on shape and line for decorative interest.

If you choose a silverware design that is not decorated, be prepared to see tiny scratches on the surface that will come from use. These scratches enhance the beauty of the silver.

In considering your pattern, be sure to handle the different pieces to get their feel. Handle a knife as though you were actually using it. . . does it have good balance? Do this with the fork. Remember that gracefulness of design as well as balance, is particularly important in spoons.

If your budget dictates careful buying — and whose budget does not? — let your first purchases be those you will use the most. Serving pieces such as a gravy ladle, salad servers and the like, can wait until later.

If you are buying place settings, get four or six as a start.

SILVER, QUALITY

Sterling is priced on the basis of its weight and intricacy of pattern, and the meticulous care with which that design is executed. Probably there is no industry with as much pride in the products as that shown by American silversmiths. Some of the names and hallmarks go back to Colonial days.

The beautiful white metal of silver plate and sterling must be polished from time to time. Stainless steel requires no polishing.

The best care you can give silver, whether sterling or plate, is daily use. It actually thrives on use and becomes more beautiful with time. If you have more than you use daily, store the unused silver in a tarnish-proof chest or in tarnish-proof wrappings, and alternate its use from time to time.

Never use your silver in cooking. For example, scraping uten-

Ark Recreator Has Own Ideas

HAIFA, Israel (AP)— Noah's ark was a 6,000-ton vessel shaped like a squashed cardboard box—nothing like everyone imagines it looked, says artist Meir Ben-Uri.

He has built a model ark to prove it. He based the design on a five-year study he made of the numerical values of the Hebrew words—each letter has an equivalent number—in the three verses in the Book of Genesis which tells of the instructions God gave Noah.

"The ark has puzzled me for a long time," he said. "We all think of it as a ship, but Noah was a simple man and no shipbuilder. So I decided to work it out for myself what it really looked like."

He argues that a rectangular vessel would have needed so many support beams there wouldn't have been enough room for the animals.

It wouldn't even have gotten off the ground when the floods came because it wouldn't have had enough buoyancy, claims Ben-Uri.

Since the Bible doesn't mention a keel to balance it, he reasoned the floating zoo couldn't

Rev. Suiter To Speak

The Rev. N. L. Suiter, Vernon, who twice served the Church of God on Galveston Street here as pastor, will speak at the 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. worship services Sunday.

On Reformation Day, it is traditional with the church to honor the old and retired ministers of the church, said Rev. Bob Bohanon, urging members and friends of the church to attend.

On Wednesday, the Rev. Jim O. McClain Sr., missions representative for the Church of God world missions department, will be the speaker at the annual missions service.

He is one of the outstanding personalities in the denomination, which is the oldest of the Pentecostal churches. Established in 1886, it reached world status in 1918 and presently operates in 72 countries with 4,170 missionaries and foreign ministers. The church has a historical distinctive due to a glossolalia phenomenon (tongue speaking) which makes it a leading voice for Pentecostals among evangelicals.

"It's simple, but it must have been a major achievement at the time," remarks Ben-Uri.

Nautical engineers confirm that the artist's ark is seaworthy.

FORM IS BAD SUBSTITUTE FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS IN WORSHIP

True worship is cast against popular worship in the blistering language of the prophet Amos in Sunday's uniform lesson taken from Amos 4:4-5; 5:21-24.

God demands sincere motives and a heart as requisite of worship. All the liturgy, though clad in pomp and beauty, is mockery unless it is accompanied by ethical righteousness and obedience.

Amos employs an exaggeration to stress the emptiness of the Israelites' worship. Increase the fervor of sacrifices, etc., he says, but it won't make any difference in God's judgment. He speaks of the "day of the Lord," the inevitable time for God's awful judgment. God does not always deal out judgment immediately, but He does deal it out in His own good time.

The increase of sacrifices or frequency of worship is an affront to God when it is a salute to the conscience. The demand then and today is for righteous living, not merely for mechanical religious activity. To substitute form for confession, repentance and faith is to risk idolatry in worship. The Israelites had no immunity from God's judgment because they were chosen ones, and neither do the nominal members of the Christian body.

Amos was bold enough to say some things that long needed to be said in his days. The same clarion message is needed now at a time when there is a great temptation to separate religion from morality.

Baptists Consider Record Budget

LUBBOCK — Texas Baptists meeting here Oct. 31-Nov. 2 will consider approval of a $12.8 million budget and at the same time will receive the first report of a 100-member evaluation group appointed at last year's annual meeting. It is an increase of $575,000 over the budget of this year.

T. A. Patterson, executive secretary of the 1.8 million member Baptist General convention, said that the proposed budget "is a bold declaration that we are concerned about people and their needs."

This will be the first time since its formation last year that the "Committee of 100" will report. The controversial organization was designed to give laymen more say in Baptist affairs.

Reformation Day To Be Observed

Four hundred and 50 years ago a Roman Catholic priest and monk, concerned with reforming himself, initiated a reform which convulsed all of Christendom. On Oct. 31, 1517, Martin Luther nailed the 95 theses, which were statements concerning the sale of indulgences, to the door of the Wittenberg church. These statements were merely a call to debate, but they touched off the reform which would spread throughout the entire world.

This anniversary will find observance Sunday in Reformation Day in many religious bodies, and certainly among the Lutherans. The Rev. Robert S. Knutson, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, will speak on the Lutheran theme of the year: "In Christ, Life—New Life," stressing that man has access to the most precious gift—the grace of God through Christ.

FOUND NO PEACE
 "As a priest, Luther was faced with an image of God as the terrible judge who is always counting sins of His people and holding them against them. If the sins were not confessed one by one, they would not all be forgiven. Luther was unable to find any peace in this situation," said Rev. Knutson.

"In 1512 he became a Doctor of Theology at the University of Wittenberg and began to lecture on the Psalms, Paul's letters to the Romans, Galatians, and the epistle to the Hebrews. During these studies he was confronted by the passion of Christ and especially the words on the cross, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?'"

Perhaps Luther was not the only one who felt alone, separated from God. If God did what He did in Christ, what then is expected from man? Luther concluded that it is only this: that man come to terms with his continuing unworthiness, that he accept God's goodness with belief, trust, and commitment.

LIVE BY FAITH
 "This, Luther perceived, was the meaning of Paul's use of Habakkuk's phrase: 'The just shall live by faith.' There is nothing that man can do which will make him good enough for God. He can only accept God's grace and mercy as the gift it is. This is the meaning of justification by faith and it is the foundation stone for Lutherans."

"In his 1520 tract Luther limits the sacraments to two: baptism and the Lord's Supper. His view on the Lord's Supper was a point of contention. He denied the doctrine of transubstantiation of the Roman Catholic church. He instead held to the real presence of Christ in the sacrament. Christ is truly present in, with, and under the bread and wine. This, for the humanist Erasmus, made the breach between Luther and the Catholics irreparable."

LARGEST OF PROTESTANTS
 Today the Lutheran Church is the largest of all the Protestant churches with churches in every country in the world. There are 8.6 million Lutherans in the United States. Ninety-five per cent of them are in three bodies. The largest of these is the Lutheran Church in America (LCA), which is represented in Big Spring by Trinity Lutheran Church at 1801 Virginia. The second is the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, represented in Big Spring by St. Paul's Lutheran Church at 810 Scurry. The third of these major bodies of Lutherans is the American Lutheran Church (ALC). There are several smaller bodies of Lutherans which make up the remaining five per cent.

Parallel lines always converge at the same point on the horizon. If we stand in the center of a highway, and look straight ahead, we discover that the lanes seem to disappear at one central point. The artist must deal with this curious fact when he paints a canvas. We call it perspective. It is the way our eyes see the picture. If we stand at a different position, the scene changes, and the vanishing point is moved to a new place on the horizon. By changing our position we change our perspective.

This is true of life. How we look at our afflictions and our troubles is very largely determined by our inner attitude. In a very real way our ideas about God will determine our perspective.

The Church can help you to place all areas of life in balance. Many people today are confused and disturbed because they see things in the wrong perspective. Visit your church this Sunday and see if the world doesn't look better next week!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Texas, SMU, Aggies Favored This Week

Associated Press Sports Writer

Three Southwest Conference games that are an absolute must for four teams can trim the contenders by half or create the maddest scramble in years as the football race moves into its final six weeks Saturday.

It is possible for the next to least active team in the standings — Baylor — to take over the lead, so close is the competition. The big game is at Austin where Rice's surprising Owls, now topping the race with only one victory, clash with surging Texas.

Rice actually has a better offense and defensive record of defense in the conference — a smashing 397 yards per game. Yet Texas, which recoiled from two straight losses to win three in a row, is a touchdown favorite.

A Texas victory could land Baylor or Texas A&M in the driver's seat. The Bears have played only one conference game and tied it — 10-10 with Arkansas. Should Baylor upset Texas A&M at College Station Saturday it would be in first place. But should Texas A&M win, it would go to the top.

Rice can retain undisputed first place if it clips Texas. Southern Methodist and Texas Tech, with 1-1 records, battle at Dallas with the losers to fade from contention barring a tie.

Arkansas, which hangs on to a mathematical chance with a 1-1 record, plays Kansas State in a nonconference game.

Texas Christian, which can be counted out of the race since it has two losses, also has an intersectional test, hosting Nebraska.

Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Texas and Southern Methodist are the teams that must win Saturday to hang in the race. Two losses mean finish if conference traditions are upheld.

There will be some 65,000 in the stands at Austin as Rice and Texas make their greatest bids.

Some 40,000 are due to watch Texas A&M try to make it three in a row and Baylor try to win its second game of the season.

A throng of 35,000 is anticipated at Dallas where Tech pits its hard running game against the aerial antics of Southern Methodist's desperate Mustangs.

A crowd of 40,000 is due to watch Arkansas against Kansas State at Little Rock but only 25,000 are due at Fort Worth as Texas Christian tries to win its first game in the last eight appearances.

A perfect record last week (four out of four) prompts the following predictions:

Texas-Rice at Austin (7:30 p.m.) — Texas is a narrow choice.

Texas A&M-Baylor at College Station (1:30 p.m.) — A strong vote for the Aggies.

Southern Methodist — Texas Tech at Dallas (7:30 p.m.) — Southern Methodist in a Garrison finish.

Arkansas — Kansas State at Little Rock (8 p.m.) — Arkansas by four touchdowns.

Texas Christian — Nebraska at Fort Worth (1:30 p.m.) — Nebraska 20, Texas Christian 7.

Steve Spray Is Leader In Las Vegas Tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Young Steve Spray fired a seven-under-par 64 Thursday, the best in his brief career as a professional, and led the way at the midway mark with a 36-hole score of 133 in the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament.

Spray, 26, from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, tumbled the 7,000-yard, par-35-71 Paradise Valley Country Club course with a brilliant 34-30, two strokes shy of the course record.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus remained in strong contention with a 69 for 137 and gallery favorite Arnold Palmer, who aimed at a 68 in order to beat the cut and qualify for the final 36 holes, made it and beat the cut by one stroke with a score of 144.

Big George Bayer, whose 66 led the field Wednesday, was unable to bag even one birdie and fell back with a 77 for 143. Two strokes back of Spray were Bob Goaly with a 67 and Terry Dill with a 68 for their 135's.

Tied with Nicklaus at 137 were Frank Beard and Ken Still each with a 70. Julius Boros shot a 73 for 140 and Bill Casper for 142.

"Actually," said Nicklaus, "I played a little sloppy. I had to chip a lot but my game was good around the greens."

Nicklaus had two eagle 3s. A No. 3 wood shot on the sixth left him 2 1/2 feet from the cup and a No. 5 iron on No. 17 was eight feet short and he sank it.

Are you willing to go as low as $1793
for a new VW?

We don't sell status.
Just a car. One that gets about 27 mpg, averages 40,000 miles on a set of tires, and hardly uses oil between changes.
Of course, the fact that it's practical is no secret.
And everybody is going to know that you're saving money. But that's the price you pay for Volkswagen.

Deserters In Saigon Turn To Many Trades

SAIGON (AP) — A number of U.S. servicemen desert in Vietnam and try to live by dealing on the black market, pimping or occasionally by peddling marijuana, a U.S. military police source reported today.

The number of deserters at large runs from 40 to 100 at any given time, the source said, and their freedom lasts from a few days to several months.

The deserters are able to go underground most successfully in Cholon, Saigon's Chinese section. Those with luck make contact with black marketeers who furnish them with counterfeit PX ration cards to make large purchases for resale on the flourishing Saigon black market.

Some of them also join up with prostitutes and live partly off their earnings, the source said.

A few peddle marijuana to other GIs, but the drug is so easily available this isn't very lucrative trade.

American MPs and civilians checking identification cards at the various post exchanges are given photographs of service men absent without leave and most are caught this way, the police source said.

Once caught, the men are returned to their units and a trial by court-martial.

Some slip away from their units while awaiting trial on other charges. Many are marijuana users.

Most deserters serve their sentences in a stockade in Vietnam and then are sent back to their units to complete their one-year tours in the war zone. Sentences served in the stockade are considered "bad time" which doesn't count toward either the 12-month Vietnam service period or the time required for discharge.

The police source said no deserters are known to have escaped from Vietnam. This would require considerable money to get a fake passport and be smuggled out of the country.

Special Has Knotts As Barney Again

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Knotts, who plays slight, nervous little men better than almost anyone else, left the Andy Griffith show three seasons ago to pursue his own career. But Don's retirement as Barney Fife, deputy sheriff of Mayberry, has been tentative.

Two seasons ago he returned to the series for a couple of guest shots—playing Barney—and walked away with an Emmy for his performance.

Thursday night he was back with Andy again—this time in a special variety show called "The Don Knotts Show." He was not called Barney in this, but the character was the same and so was his relationship to Andy Griffith in the sketches.

The best portions of the show were the dance and song numbers starring guest star Juliet Prowse, Tony Charmoli's dance numbers and the sets and costumes were most decorative.

All in all, it ranks merely as a special program in this season of special specials, very special specials and extra special specials.

The producer of ABC's "Good Company," David Susskind reportedly wanted more controversy in the series than it has been having, and they got it last night from a master.

Jack Paar, obviously, has lost none of his taste and talent for a good fight in the months he has been away from network television and living the good rural life in northern Maine.

As the subject of the Thursday night show, Paar, obviously stung, went to work on Ed Sullivan, who had been quoted recently in a news magazine with an uncomplimentary remark about Paar. But where Paar in the old days might have operated with a rapier-like wit, he went after Sullivan using his tongue like a bludgeon. Maybe feuding like dancing, requires plenty of practice.

Paar was egged on by host Lee Bailey who seemed downright uncomfortable in the role of goad. He devoted most of the program to attacking Sullivan—but was in fact much more interesting when he was describing the operation of his broadcasting station, WMTW-TV, with its antennae atop Mount Whitney where, in cold weather, the maintenance crew lives in enforced isolation for a week or more at a time.

Recommended weekend viewing:
Tonight — "Justice for All," NBC, 10-11 EDT, documentary on the legal problems of the poor.
Sunday — "Hud," ABC, 9-11 p.m., broadcast of a 1963 feature film which was a critical hit and won several Oscars, with Paul Newman, Patricia Neal and Melvyn Douglas.

A Big Cut

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Wilmington and New Hanover County will have to cut a total of $550,000 from their budgets this year because of a clerical error. New Hanover Auditor Perry Sheppard said Thursday property valuation was $229 million although it was tallied at $249 when the tax rates and budgets were figured. He said the tax rates already have become law and cannot be changed until next year.

Opening lead: King of ♠
The blind lead of a king from an unguarded doubleton is a desperation maneuver that seldom pays off, unless the player holds a control in the trump suit or else has some reason to place his partner with strength in the suit. It should be avoided on any occasion where the opposition may have stretched their values to reach the final contract.

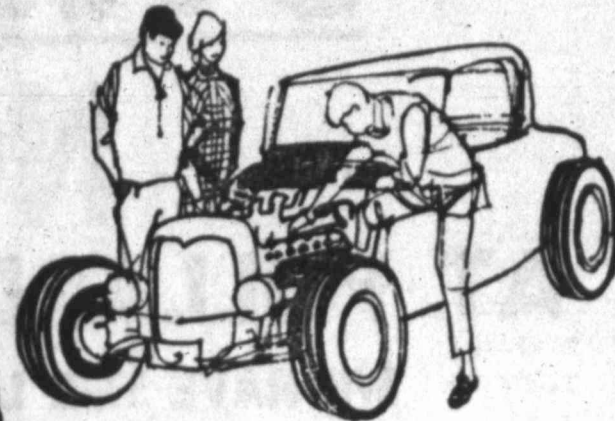

Against the confidently bid game of his opponents, West reasoned that a passive defense was not apt to be productive. In an attempt to make an attacking lead, he chose to open the king of spades against South's four heart bid. If East by some chance held the ace, then a third round ruff might be obtained. Or, if the latter had the queen, West might still develop a delayed ruff inasmuch as he held a control in the trump suit.

The lead proved to be devastating. South, having no reason to diagnose West's actual holding, played the latter for the queen as well as the king and, therefore, ducked to retain control of the suit. West continued with the four and declarer played the seven from dummy, fully expecting to win the trick with his jack. To his surprise, East put up the queen and returned a third round of spades which West ruffed with the four of hearts.

The defense had their book in and, after West exited with a club, South was obliged to lose two more tricks when both the heart and diamond finesses failed. West's deadly assault produced a 200 point profit on the deal for his side.

South could have saved a trick by putting up the ace of spades at trick one, however, there was no way to prevent the ruff and avert the setback, altogether. With another opening, however, declarer has time to develop dummy's diamond suit and eventually obtain a discard for his 10th trick.

Key And Circle K Clubs Stage Kiwanian Program

Key Club and Circle K Club members, youth auxiliaries of the Kiwanis Club, were guests at the Thursday luncheon of the Big Spring Kiwanians. The Big Spring club sponsors the Key Club in the high school and the Circle K Club in the Howard County Junior College.

Leon Taylor is sponsor of the Key Club and Dr. Dawson De-

Viney is sponsor of the Circle K. Both sponsors are Kiwanians.

The Key Club and Circle K members were in charge of the program. Don Bradford, president of the Circle K, presented Tom Carroll who led the club singing and Danny Johnson of the Key Club who led the Pledge of Allegiance.

Other youths who took part in the program were Jerry McMahon, David Vasquez, president of the Key Club, Charles Lacy, Mike Graves and John Choate. Spokesmen told of the work and activities in 1966 of the club and of plans for 1967. The Key Club is enjoying a record year in the high school with 35 members. The Circle K Club has 10 members at the present time but is engaging in a membership campaign.

Also at the meeting Thursday were Dr. M. W. Talbot Jr., R. W. Whippley and Carroll Davidson. They were on hand to urge the signing of petitions asking the Howard County commissioners to call an election on creating a county airport authority and issuing bonds for improvement of the Howard County airport.

Most of the Kiwanians signed the petition.

Mask Brought In The Police

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Larry Solomon found out that wearing an ape mask really draws attention. If it's worn around a bank, it draws police too.

Solomon, who works in the data processing department at a Memphis bank, picked up the mask during his lunch break Thursday and slipped it on to spring on one of the drive-in tellers.

But Mrs. Jo Burnett, who was returning to work in another building, spotted him in the alley and called police.

Eight squad cars and nearly a score of police roared up to the bank.

"They were very understanding after they found out what it was," Solomon said.
