Destroyer, 30 Lives Lost...

Britain Suffers Its First Setback

By The Associated Press

Britain suffered its first setback in the campaign to recapture the Falkland Islands, losing a destroyer, a jet and about 30 men in one day. Argentina said about 360 seamen were still missing from its sunken cruiser.

British press reports said a missile fired from a land-based Argentine fighter-bomber 24 miles away hit the control room of the 3,500-ton Sheffield early Tuesday afternoon, turning one of the Royal Navy's most modern warships into a raging inferno.

The British Defense Ministry said the crew was ordered to abandon ship "when there was no longer any hope of saving the ship," and Defense Minister John Nott told the House of Commons as many as 30 of the 270 crewmen may be lost.

Some British press reports said the ship, one of three destroyers in the British war fleet in the South Atlantic, had sunk. But a British reporter with the task force said it was still afloat and burning more than six hours after it was hit.

The Argentine government was silent about the Sheffield, although news of the attack was broadcast by Buenos Aires radio stations quoting foreign news reports. The joint chiefs of staff said in a communique early today that an "air incursion" against the British task force was carried out "with results that still are not known."

The communique said the attack occurred 60 miles southeast of the Falklands about 40 minutes before the Sheffield was reported hit.

British planes made two attacks Tuesday on airstrips in the Falklands. The British Defense Ministry said a Harrier jet was shot down and its pilot killed, while Argentina claimed two Harriers were downed.

The British said a long-range Vulcan bomber, presumably flying from Ascension Island, made a "successful" attack on the airfield at Stanley, the Falklands capital, in the morning and returned safely to its base.

The Argentine communique said the second attack was made in the afternoon by three Harrier jets on a dirt runway at Goose Green, 40 miles west of Stanley. Both airstrips were attacked by British planes Saturday in the first major strike of the air-sea offensive launched by Britain to recapture the island colony Argentina seized April 2.

Meanwhile, Argentina reported the rescue of at least 680 survivors from the cruiser General Belgrano, which a British submarine torpedoed and sank Sunday. The navy said it was "optimistic" that more would be found.

Shocked Britons reacted to the loss of the Sheffield with appeals for an end to the bloodshed and angry demands for retaliation that echoed those heard in the streets of Buenos Aires following the Belgrano sinking.

"Once blood is spilled, more blood is spilled," observed a Buenos Aires man. "That is not good for either side."

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. held an unscheduled three-hour meeting late Tuesday with British Ambassador Nicholas Henderson, prompting speculation of a new peace initiative including a British ceasefire proposal. But there was no indication from London of such a move.

The United States suspended its peace efforts last Friday.

SKYLINE FIRE—Snyder firemen extinguished a fire at the Skyline Motel, west of Snyder on U. S. 180, around 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. The fire was confined to a small area of the roof of the motel's central building and only minor damage was reported. The building had previously been gutted by a major fire last Dec. 20. Mohammad Ilias was listed as current owner of the motel. (SDN Staff Photo)

Budget Alternative

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an attempt to provide a framework for budget discussions in Congress, the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee is proposing a 1983 spending plan that calls for a tax cut delay and reductions in Social Security.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said Tuesday that he would accept a postponement in the 10 percent individual tax cut for July 1983 as one method of reducing multi-billion dollar deficits.

Domenici also proposed that cost-of-living adjustments for Social Security and some other benefit programs be eliminated for one year, starting in July.

The proposal brought reaction from the White House and from Democrats.

Curfew Reimposed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Military rulers clamped a curfew back on Warsaw and at least two other cities in an attempt to prevent further riots by supporters of the banned Solidarity trade union.

Gen. Cieslaw Kiszczak, the interior minister in the martial-law government, reported a second day of unrest Tuesday in Szczecin, the Baltic port and provincial capital 15 miles from the East German border, but gave no details.

PAP, the official news agency, announced that the nightly curfew lifted Sunday had been reimposed in Warsaw — from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. for people under 18 and midnight te to 5 for adults — because of anti-government demonstrations here Saturday and Monday.

Offshore Conference

HOUSTON (AP) — Canada will become energy independent by 1990, despite the scuttling of a major synthetic fuel project and decreased activity by foreign-owned oil companies, a government official says.

"It will be from different sources than we originally anticipated, but we are still confident we will reach this goal," said Marc Lalonde, minister of Canada's energy, mines and resources.

Lalonde told the Offshore Technology Conference here Tuesday that production from the Hibernia oil field off the Newfoundland coast will help Canada become energy self sufficient.

Moves Against Imported Sugar

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is declaring "an emergency import quota" to stem the entry of low-priced foreign sugar into the United States in an effort to avoid huge government acquisitions of sugar under the new price support program.

Critics of the price support program, which Reagan accepted in a political trade last year, say American consumers will pay $3 billion as a result of the quota forcing domestic sugar prices above the world level.

Democrats Combine Voting Places

The Scurry County Democratic Party executive committee canvassed votes from Saturday's primary election and approved a proposal to combine some polling places for the second primary election in a meeting Tuesday.

They also approved the use of paper ballots for the second primary, since the

The topic of voter apathy arises every time an election is held, and it seems that those who bring it up are not able to do much about it. The primary elections last Saturday were no exception. People wonder why other people neglect, or outright refuse to go to the polls.

But, you just mention the possibility of making it more difficult to qualify as a voter and you are labeled some kind of freak, or an anti-American. People demand the right to vote, but they are not necessarily interested in taking advantage of the privileges it entails. People in some countries envy our political system. Others wonder why we tolerate such apathy. There are countries where the vote is rigidly restricted, and there are others where there are virtually no restrictions and people are fined and-or jailed if they fail to vote unless they are hospitalized, incarcerated, or otherwise prevented from going to the polls.

Scurry County's jail wouldn't have held its slackers last Saturday. The Democrats and Republicans together attracted fewer that 2,650 to the polls. That's about 30 percent of those registered.

Even so, we apparently had a better turnout percentage-wise than the state as a whole.

We came across these definitions of a customer that might be of interest to merchants:

A customer is the most important person ever in the store, in person or by mail.

A customer is not dependent on us---we are dependent on him.

A customer is a person who brings us wants. It is our job to handle them profitably for him and to ourselves.

A customer is not an interruption in our work. He is the purpose of it. We are not doing him a favor by serving him. He is doing us a favor by giving us the opportunity to do so.

A customer is not an outsider to our business. He is part of it.

A customer is not a cold statistic. He is a flesh-and-blood human being with feeling and emotions like your own.

A customer is not someone to argue or match wits with. Nobody ever won an argument with a customer.

It is easy to forget these things, especially during easy times.

On Soviet Buildup...

Top-Secret Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid security that extended even to yanking telephones from a sealed-off press gallery, the Senate watched a Defense Department slide show depicting a Soviet military buildup. Some viewers said they saw little that was new.

Republican members of the House gathered in the House chamber under equally tight guard today to view the same presentation today, as the Reagan administration and its allies lobbied for passage of a record $180 billion defense authorization bill in the face of budget-cutting efforts.

With material supplied by the Defense Intelligence Agency, Sens. John Tower, R-Texas, the Armed Services Committee chairman, and Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Intelligence Committee, ran the 2½-hour briefing and question period Tuesday.

Under Senate rules, only members may speak on the floor, but DIA Deputy Director John T. Hughes was the briefer today at a meeting of the House Republican Conference, composed of all GOP House members.

Much of the House side of the Capitol, including press work areas, was closed during the morning presentation. Protests by the Standing Committee of Correspondents, which represents newspaper and news agency reporters, were unavailing. Congressional officials blamed DIA security regulations.

To discourage eavesdroppers at the top-secret Senate briefing, admission was by code word only and the public and press galleries were emptied and placed under police guard on Pentagon orders. Most of the adjoining press room also was sealed.

Ask Us

Q.—Why doesn't the Snyder Daily News give as much coverage to markets and agriculture as it does oil---a whole page devoted to oil and one small corner to agriculture and markets?

A.—We try to use what is available---one may "make" more news than the other on a given day. However, the full page of oil news you refer to runs once a week (Monday) and is sponsored by a group of oil-related businesses. Our markets and agriculture reports run daily, Monday through Friday (except on holidays when markets are closed). Upon receipt of your question, we checked the last week in April and found that we had 56 column inches of oil news and 53 column inches of markets and agriculture reports that week.

Soaking Rains Fall In County

Soaking rains fell on Scurry County last night and early today, and forecasts indicated more could be expected through Thursday.

The latest rains were much more general than those which fell Friday and Saturday, and reports this morning indicated that virtually all of the county had received at least 1.75 inches within a week, and some spots had three inches or more.

The rain reports this morning ranged mostly from 1.20 to 1.50 with heavier falls in some localized spots. Snyder had .91 inch in its official gauge at the city water treatment plant this morning, running the total for the past week to 2.51 inches.

Reports of measurements in unofficial gauges this morning included 1.40 at Hermleigh, with some logging more, 1.30 in the Ira area, 1.25 to 1.50 at Dunn, 1.20 to 1.50 at Fluvanna and 1.30 at Camp Springs.

The gauge at the Lake J. B. Thomas dam recorded 1.40 inches. No appreciable runoff was reported on the lake's watershed. However, Colorado River Municipal Water District officials said streams had been well

United Way Meeting Set

Officers will be elected and amendments to by-laws will be considered at a meeting of the Scurry County United Way set for 10 a. m. May 13 at the city hall.

Brenda Hedges, United Way president, said an amendment to by-laws up for consideration deals with procedure for distribution of funds in excess of budget totals.

A nominating committee is scheduled to present a list of nominees for United Way officers.

All United Way members are urged to attend the meeting.

Scurry No. 8 In Oil Production

Scurry County retained its position as No. 8 in Texas oil production in 1981 and moved past the 1.6 billion barrel mark in all-time records, according to figures compiled by Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

The state's leader in oil production last year was Gaines County, with 53,259,427 barrels. It replaced Yoakum County as the state leader. Yoakum is now No. 2. Others in the top 10 were Yoakum, 53,217,597; Pecos, 52,206,183; Ector, 48,246,412; Gregg, 42,044,838; Hockley, 41,050,201; Andrews, 39,691,600; Scurry, 34,940,136; Crane, 29,187,247; and Refugio, 25,363,125.

Scurry County now ranks fifth in all-time production. So far, 12 Texas counties have produced more that a billion barrels of oil.

Gregg County is the all-time leader with a cumulative total of 2,773,159,932 barrels. Others in the billion-barrel class are Ector, 2,351,571,490; Andrews, 2,015,569; Rusk, 1,660,936,523; Scurry, 1,623,930,993; Crane, 1,347,623,893; Yoakum, 1,321,540,577; Gaines, 1,284,274,009; Harris, 1,254,476,410; Brazoria, 1,165,246,077; Pecos, 1,118,082,788; and Refugio, 1,093,184,414.

It has been interesting to watch the law-enforced equal employment opportunity. Where women still do not get equal pay, the trend is that way.

And I observe most "difference" in the second generation of women in business, industry, journalism.

The second generation is as capable as, or more than, the first — but is trending "softer" again.

Some women in television news demonstrate excellence.

So, by now an amendment is symbolic more than it is substantive.

Maybe with this gesture the males will merely expunge our own conniences.

What it boils down to, I suppose, is that what we are about NOT to do, in effect, will tell women that they are "not equal."

You lawmakers, legislators, by now have heard all the arguments about what will happen if we do. I have heard the arguments, too.

But the bottom line has become: If nothing happens in the next eight weeks you will have voted that women are NOT equal.

And it occurred to me, if reluctantly, that I really don't want to do that. And it occurred to me that you might not want to either.

The states which can make the difference within the next 60 days are Oklahoma, Illinois, Florida and North Carolina. Southern states.

Southern statesmen, characteristically more deferential toward women, have also been militant defenders of our constitution as is. Our nation is forever in their debt for that.

But there are discrepancies in other states where the male-female relationship will not be adjudicated equitably unless there is constitutional authority.

Yet, I confess that is not the rationalization for my own late-hour reconsideration.

It was a sequence of things which have been happening in the news recently.

What finally moved me off dead center was perhaps more emotional than intellectual.

If I were a woman reading any day's paper I would be resentful as all hell that our laws are so generous with everybody else ...

We forgive criminals, embrace illegal immigrants, kowtow to the gimme-gimmes ...

Any hophead can get a free ride through three layers of jurisprudence demanding his "rights" —

And constitutionally, I, a woman, don't rate as high as that sleazy night crawler!

And lawmakers — most of you lawyers — respectfully I ask that you think hard on this:

You are well aware of the almost binding persuasiveness of precedent. If you let this last chance pass, in any court of law henceforth, it can and will be argued:

"Your Honor, it has been decided in the case of the women versus the people in 1982 that women do not have equal rights under our law."

Thank you.

Linked To Aggressive Children...

Study Released On TV Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is "overwhelming" evidence that violence on television leads to aggressive behavior by children and teen-agers, a new government study says.

"Both prime time and weekend children's television are dominated by action, power and danger. There is an average of five violent acts per hour on prime time and 18 acts per hour on children's weekend programs," the National Institute of Mental Health report said.

The study, "Television and Behavior: Ten Years of Scientific Progress and Implications for the Eighties," is a follow-up to a widely publicized 1972 Surgeon General's report on television violence.

The report is based on a review of several hundred research studies.

"Violence on television seems to be cyclical, up a little one year, down a little the next, but the percentage of programs containing violence has remained essentially the same over the past decade," it said.

"In general, television, despite the concerns of congressmen and citizens' groups, remains a violent form of entertainment," the report said.

"The evidence accumulated in the 1970s seems overwhelming that televised violence and aggression are positively related in children.

"The consensus among most of the research community is that violence on television does lead to aggressive behavior by children and teen-agers who watch the programs. This conclusion is based on laboratory experiments and on field studies. Not all children become aggressive, of course...."

On other issues, the study said:

—Television does a poor job of promoting good health practices. "Much of television's content seems to foster poor nutrition, especially in commercials for sweets and snack foods. Children who watch a lot of television have poorer nutritional habits than children who do not watch as much." The report noted that alcohol consumption is common on TV programs and when television characters drive cars "they almost never wear seat belts."

—Women and the elderly are under-represented on television shows. "The men are mostly strong and manly, the women usually passive and feminine," it said, and the characters usually have better jobs than people in real life.

—Minority groups tend to watch more television than others, and women more than men. Heavy watchers tend to be less educated, "yet among college students television is a favorite pasttime."

Dr. Herbert Pardes, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, said the report focused on television entertainment, not news, advertising or other areas.

The report made no recommendations. Pardes said.

Officials of the National Association of Broadcasters could not be reached by telephone late Tuesday for comment on the report.

Army Tracing Origin Of Abandoned Shell

CUERO, Texas (AP) — Army weapons experts today were to continue trying to trace the origin of a live 81mm artillery shell that a construction crew scooped up from the muddy bottom of the Guadalupe River.

A Texas Highway Department bridge construction crew halted work when a crane operator dredged the 21-inch-long shell from the river Tuesday morning.

The surprised workman was dredging in the river when "he picked it up with a scoop and washed the mud off," DPS trooper David McEathron said. "He realized what he had and laid it back down."

He said the shell was Army green and "looked just like a little missile."

DeWitt County sheriff's officers said the shell could have been stolen from an Army base. It was turned over to the U.S. Army Depot in Corpus Christi.

"They told us it was a live round. It looked live to me," he said. "The only thing we can think of is that it was stolen and dumped off into the river there."

The Vietnam war-era shell was produced in 1971 and bore lot numbers on its side. Members of an ordnance team searched the bridge area with metal detectors, but found no other shells.

The ordnance team used metal detectors to look for other shells at the worksite two miles outside of Cuero on the Old San Antonio Highway.

A sheriff's dispatcher said the highway crew stopped work on a new bridge after the shell was found.

McEathron said another old highway bridge and a railroad bridge over the Guadalupe River had been knocked down by a flood in the area where the projectile was found, and a lot of scrap metal had been thrown off the road.

He said the shell may have been stolen from an armory.

"They're always having armories broken into all over the United States. They could have been just getting rid of some evidence," he said.

McEathron said officials of the Texas National Guard Armory in Cuero were notified and also were attempting to check out the lot numbers on the abandoned shell.

Rains

primed by the recent rains, and any heavy showers in the near future should produce some runoff.

Last night's rains mostly fell under ideal conditions for farmers, with fields soaking up most of the moisture.

Heavy rainfall in the Panhandle and forecasts of more heavy rain prompted the National Weather Service to issue a flash flood watch for eastern counties of the Texas Panhandle.

Counties covered by the watch included Collingsworth, Donley, Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Roberts and Wheeler.

Almost five inches of rain fell at Shamrock late Tuesday. A tornado was sighted near the town of Quitaque in the Panhandle last night. Pea-size hail pelted the Midland-Odessa area early today.

Forecasters said a very moist and unstable air mass would remain over the eastern Panhandle through tonight. A cold front was pushing into the Panhandle to combine with the upper level disturbance to produce a few severe thunderstorms through tonight. As much as two-four inches of rain was forecast.

Uruguay Flight Is Considered

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Many American residents of Argentina are getting ready to cross the River Plate to Uruguay if rising anti-Yanqui sentiment fed by U.S. support of Britain in the Falkland Islands crisis turns ugly.

The U.S. Embassy said Tuesday it was sending some non-essential personnel and dependents of staff members to Montevideo, the Uruguayan capital, "in view of the tragic conflict in the South Atlantic and the unsettled conditions it has created."

The United States is looked on by many Argentines with as much bitterness as Britain.They know the British fleet that attacked the Falklands last weekend used American military facilities on Ascension Island, and they believe the Pentagon provided the British with the location of the Argentine cruiser that a British submarine sank Sunday.

"Yanqui go home" signs are becoming a fixture at patriotic rallies supporting Argentina's claim to the treeless, windswept Falklands.

Rehabilitation Center Fund Raiser Scheduled Saturday

Fifteen top names in show business join hands in a blockbuster one-hour special Saturday to benefit the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

The special runs the gamut of entertainment including the gentle harmony of Rex Allen and the Reinsmen and "Tumbling Tumbleweed;" Ray Price and a medley of his hits plus his latest hit, "Diamonds in the Stars;" the big band show case featuring Johnny Desmond and Helen O'Connell; daytime television's favorite couple, Bill and Susan Seaforth Hayes; stars of the Lawrence Welk Show, Arthur Duncan, Anacani, the Otwell twins and Joey Schmidt; plus the comedy of Jimmy Weldon and the lovable "Webster Webfoot."

Bob Hope, Shari Lewis and Glen Campbell also make special guest appearances.

The one-hour special edition "Rehab Vairety Special," will be telecast by all three Abilene television stations from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. Saturday, and it also will air in Lubbock and Austin at times to be announced.

De De Horn Is Selected

De De Horn, 11, daughter of Noralee Horn and granddaughter of J. B. and Georgia Norris of Snyder has been selected as a finalist in the Miss Northern Texas Preteen Pageant.

Miss Horn, a fifth grader in Abilene, will be competing July 17 in Amarillo. The winner there will go to Dallas and from Dallas the next pageant is in Florida.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman signed "Nervous in Northridge" caught my eye. She said she had a baby boy who was so beautiful that strangers used to stop her on the street and say, "That child is much too beautiful to be a boy, he should have been a girl!"

As a baby boy I was never particularly beautiful, but dating back to my earliest recollections, I always felt that I should have been a girl.

As I matured, those feelings became so strong and painful that I often considered suicide rather than living the rest of my life in the "wrong" sex.

When I was 31, I wrote to you about my problem and you recommended a Dr. Paul Walker, who practiced gender identification therapy in San Francisco.

I went to see him, and after several months, he confirmed that I was a bona fide transsexual. I decided to do whatever was necessary to become a woman physically. Dr. Walker explained what it entailed, and he guided me through the necessary stages.

The transition hasn't been easy, but it saved my life, and now I have a body that matches my mind and emotions. Best of all, I no longer have to pray to be a woman — I am one.

FROM HARRY TO HARRIETTE

DEAR ABBY: Last week I received an engraved invitation to my niece's wedding. Enclosed was a mimeographed letter. When I read it I couldn't believe my eyes. It said: "Gift suggestion: Because the bride and groom have everything they need, an ideal gift would be something that can be put into a pocket or purse." (I later learned that this letter was included in all the invitations — not only to family members.)

Abby, the bride's family is extremely wealthy, but even if they were in modest circumstances, is it proper to send a "gift suggestion" along with an invitation?

I believe that a gift is just that — a gift — and I prefer to select a gift myself, but now I feel that I no longer have that option..How should I respond?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Ignore the "suggestion," and select your own gift. It is never proper to "suggest" a gift, unless, of course, the giver asks for suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: Mother's Day will soon be here, and I wish you would say something in your column to remind "young marrieds" to remember their mothers-in-law, too — even if it's only a card or a note. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law, but I was too "busy."

This year I will send her a spray of flowers — to the cemetery — bitterly regretting that I failed to send her flowers while she was living. I should have appreciated her more, written her more about her grandchildren, whom she loved so much, and most of all I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not make the same mistake I made, because next year may be too late.

TEARS ON MY PILLOW

In Crisis Involvement...

Ideology Limits Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is trying to make propaganda gains from the Falklands crisis, but ideology and pragmatism deter it from deeper involvement in the Argentine-British conflict.

Strong support for Argentina's right-wing leaders could compromise the Soviets ideologically, alienate West European countries backing Britain and set a dangerous precedent in the case of the Kuril Islands, which the Soviet Union seized from Japan near the the end of in World War II.

Instead of supporting the Argentine seizure of the British colony in the South Atlantic, the Kremlin assails what it describes as "neocolonialist" British designs and "U.S.-backed British aggression against Argentina."

This enables Moscow to distance itself from Argentina's rightist junta which strongly opposes left-wing movements at home and abroad. It also provides the Soviets with a forum to reiterate their anti-colonialist dogma and to contrast the Soviet position with U.S. support for Britain.

Pragmatically, the Soviet propaganda machine over the past year has sought to divide Western Europe and the United States. Because of West European support for Britain in the dispute, the Kremlin is stepping gingerly so as not to undo the limited gains it has made in Europe on the issue of nuclear armament.

Another factor dictating Soviet restraint is the Soviet occupation of the Kurils. The Japanese claim sovereignty over the islands which stretch from Hokkaido, the northernmost main Japanese island, to the southern tip of the Soviet Union's Kamchatka Peninsula.

Despite these restraints, Soviet propagandists could not ignore fighting between two American friends, Britain and Argentina.

Despite increasingly heated media attacks against Britain and the United States, the Soviet government has not swerved from its official position of neutrality in the Falklands crisis.

British diplomats here have told news correspondents that Soviet officials, in talks at the Foreign Ministry, have been far more reserved than the government-run media. The British diplomats said Foreign Ministry officials assured them Moscow would steer clear of the dispute.

Moscow's interest in the conflict, aside from the obvious opportunity to sour U.S.-Latin American relations while increasing its own stature in the region, is to insure the continued flow of Argentine grain to the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union, having suffered three poor grain harvests in a row, buys $2.7 billion worth of grain from Argentina annually and is its leading partner in trade.

A commentary last week in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda indicated concern that the conflict might inlerrupt grain shipments. The paper said the dispute's "negative influence already makes itself felt, disrupting normal shipping in the southern Atlantic and world trade in general."

Magana May Give Amnesty

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Alvaro Magana said he might propose that the Constituent Assembly offer amnesty to leftist guerrillas who lay down their arms, but he refused to negotiate power-sharing with the rebels.

An estimated 33,000 people have been killed in 2½ years of political violence. The guerrillas boycotted assembly elections March 28, but there was a record voter turnout of nearly 1.5 million.

In Falklands Crisis...

U.S. Silent On Diplomatic Developments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is remaining silent on a new diplomatic development in the Falklands crisis that prompted Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to hold an unscheduled three-hour meeting with British Ambassador Nicholas Henderson.

Haig met with Henderson late Tuesday after cancelling a dinner engagement in New York. The State Department said only that Haig "wanted to stay in touch with the Falklands situation at an extremely delicate and critical phase."

Both the State Department and Henderson refused comment on the meeting, leaving open the possibility a new peace initiative was under way. Officials had no comment on speculation that Britain, after two days of escalating military hostility in the South Atlantic, is proposing a cease-fire.

Haig had gone to Andrews Air Force Base for the flight to New York, where he was to have received an award from the Irish Fund. After taking a telephone call at the airport, he returned to the State Department.

It seemed likely Haig received word that Henderson wanted to relay a personal message from British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, but this could not be confirmed.

Emerging from the meeting at 9 p.m. EDT, Henderson said, "I have nothing to say, I'm afraid."

The meeting took place just hours after a British destroyer, the HMS Sheffield, was reported sunk by an Argentine war plane in the South Atlantic. As many as 30 of the 270 crewmen were feared killed.

On Sunday, a British submarine had sunk the General Belgrano, an Argentine cruiser. Argentina reported on Tuesday at least 680 survivors had been rescued, leaving about 360 still unaccounted for.

With the collapse of Haig's mediation effort last week and an Argentine rebuff of a Peruvian peace initiative over the weekend, the only visible activity toward ending the conflict was taking place at the United Nations.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Tuesday he had given both sides ideas of his own for settling the conflict and was expecting replies today.

The two countries remain divided over Argentina's demand for sovereignty over the Falklands and Britain's insistence that the inhabitants of the islands — virtually all British descendents — be allowed to determine their own fate.

There also were signs that President Reagan was attempting to ease negative reaction in Latin America over his decision last Friday to side with Britain.

Panamanian President Aristedes Royo said he received a letter from Reagan asserting that the U.S. move was based on Argentina's use of force to retake the Falklands from Britain.

Royo, who disclosed the letter to a meeting of the diplomatic corps, was one of several Latin American heads of government who received letters from Reagan. The others were not identified.

The letter was sent on May 2, two days after Haig announced U.S. support for the British cause and the imposition of sanctions against Argentina.

Royo, whose government has staunchly supported Argentina in the crisis, read the letter in Spanish. According to an unofficial translation, Reagan said the United States "understands perfectly the deep national commitment of Argentina to recover the islands as well as the frustrations that follow long years of fruitless negotiations."

Reagan added that "in the coming days, the United States will do all within its reach to find a peaceful solution to the crisis in a manner that reinforces the solidarity of the New World."

The letter was sent a day after several Latin American nations had criticized the United States for siding with Britain.

Venezuela, another outspoken supporter of Argentina, said the U.S. move "breaks inter-American solidarity" on the issue and contravenes last week's resolution approved by Organization of American States foreign ministers. The resolution backed Argentina's claim to sovereignty over the islands.

Ecuador made a similar accusation and Mexico said the Reagan administration's pro-British policies will aggravate the conflict.

Civil Rights Measure Headed For Senate OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only the most conservative members still opposed, the Senate now seems sure to swiftly approve a compromise extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Bill supported by liberal Democrats, President Reagan and the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

With chairman Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. in the majority, the Senate Judiciary Committee voted 17-1 Tuesday to recommend renewal of the measure.

A similar extension has already been approved in the House — 389-24 last October — so final congressional enactment seems certain before certain key provisions expire in August.

Supporters said more than 70 senators have indicated they will vote for the compromise which is likely to be debated and voted on in the Senate later this month. That would be enough to choke off any filibuster from archconservative opponents led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Thurmond, who had opposed the compromise, said he voted for it reluctantly in committee because of the need to make sure the right to "register and vote will be protected against discrimination of any kind."

Sources said Thurmond probably will support some changes on the Senate floor, but vote for final congressional passage.

During a lengthy and sometimes acrimonious committee meeting Tuesday, only Sen. John East, R-N.C. voted against sending the compromise — worked out among a divergent, bipartisan group of senators — to the Senate floor.

East said the compromise punishes the South for discriminatory practices which no longer exist and would extend unfair provisions from other states to the rest of the country.

Another Republican, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., seated next to East, replied angrily, "Let's not blather about a double standard. This stuff (voting rights violations) never started in my state. When we are talking about voting rights, we are talking about civil rights."

East offered about a dozen amendments to weaken the compromise. Most failed by a wide margin, including one to make it easier for municipalities and counties accused of voting rights violations to escape Justice Department scrutiny.

Nine states and parts of 13 others now must seek Justice Department approval for any change in their election laws.

3 Senators Urge Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three senators are urging the Reagan administration to propose a joint industrial complex with the NATO countries to coordinate the alliance's defense production.

Sens. William Roth, R-Del., John Glenn, D-Ohio and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., introduced a resolution Monday that says NATO could be reinvigorated by "a more equitable sharing" of defense costs.

Roth said a cooperative defense-industrial effort would help to check the soaring cost of new duplicative weapons systems that have worked against a strong defense.

The resolution suggests that the administration make the case for a pooling of resources at a NATO summit meeting in Bonn, West Germany next month.

Alliances into which you enter for other than business purposes will prove of mutual benefit to all concerned this coming year. However, be careful with whom you team up for commercial reasons.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are likely to be luckier today in involvements which require team effort than you will be from things where you are acting independently. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This could be a lucky day work or careerwise. Should anything opportune develop you must move on it quickly or all may be lost.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Romantically, this could be a red letter day for unattached Cancers. That special someone may finally enter the picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make the necessary effort today to finalize matters which you deem to be the most important. Expediency is necessary. You might be luckier now than later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Associates place considerable importance on your words today and they'll remember for a long time what you have to say. Offer encouragement to all you encounter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your material prospects look encouraging today. Lady Luck will do all she can to help you get the cash register ringing if she sees you're really trying.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Delegate as little as possible today. Anything you personally put your hand to should turn out more fortunately than if others do it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something propitious is developing for you at this time, but it may be screened from your view. You won't learn of it until later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your dealings today go right to the top person rather than through underlings, if there's something you want done. You're in tune with those who have clout.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The odds tend to favor you today in situations which have competitive elements. Don't duck the challenge if fate tosses down the gauntlet.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Anything within reason which you believe yourself capable of doing today, you can do. In your case, a positive attitude will work wonders.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) By using your smarts today you should be able to build something more substantial from an already profitable situation. Lady Luck will help you spot it.

Hospital Has New Billing Program

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Eastwood Hospital has doctored its billing plan a bit, offering refunds to patients unsatisfied with the service.

"By placing our services under a money-back guarantee, we are letting people know they will get the service they have been promised, or they will get a credit on their account," administrator John Davis said Tuesday.

The 243-bed hospital says that all a patient has to do is ring Extenstion 650 and get:

— $15 back if the admission isn't completed within 45 minutes.

— $10 if a nurse fails to respond to a call signal within a minute.

— $10 if the patient's room isn't cleaned daily or if all equipment in the room isn't working properly.

— $5 if the patient's meal is late or cold.

Jones Leaves City Post

Today was Bobby Jones' last day as city building inspector.

Jones has resigned to accept a position as draftsman with Chevron U. S. A. at the SACROC unit.

Fellow employees at city hall presented him with a gift during a brief, informal coffee session this morning.

Jones began working for the city four years ago as a draftsman and for the past 16 months has been serving as the city building inspector. Previously he had been employed as a draftsman at American Magnesium.

A successor as city building inspector has not yet been named.

Gunmen Shoot & Kill Man

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Two gunmen shot and killed the general manager of a controversial nuclear plant as he drove to work this morning, police said.

Police identified the victim as Angel Pascual Mugica, 45, the second engineer killed since the Lemoniz plant in northern Spain was completed in 1981. His son, who was riding in the car, was shot twice in the hand, police said.

Authorities said the bullets were the type normally used by the Basque separatist organization ETA, which bombed the plant 10 miles from here in 1978.

School Trustees Hold Session

Snyder School Trustees held a brief executive session to discuss personnel matters at noon Tuesday at the Shack. They reported that no action was taken following the session.

The defeat of the French navy at the Battle of the Nile in 1798 cut off Napoleon's troops in Egypt.

Calcium-deficient diet?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, age 52, is in good health. However, he had a calcium stone in one kidney two years ago. He was hospitalized for 13 days and was able to pass the stone.

Since that time he has had no other stones and recent X-rays show nothing is forming. He drinks almost two quarts of liquid daily. His doctor has told him to follow a diet free of milk or milk products. He does get some in baked goods. However, on the whole my husband is rigorously following the diet. When questioned, his doctor says he gets enough calcium in other foods.

This concerns me because I feel lack of milk products will weaken his bones in the long run leading to a tendency to broken bones. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER — You have a right to be concerned. A large portion of fractures in later years are because of weakened bones from calcium loss. And the condition is much more likely in a person who has been on a calcium-deficient diet. Since much of the calcium in many vegetables cannot be absorbed it is likely that your husband is on a calcium-deficient diet.

I don't agree with restricting calcium in most calcium stone cases. Neither do most medical renal specialists. Urologists, on the other hand, frequently suggest restricting calcium. If you don't consume enough calcium your body simply robs your bones of its calcium stores to build up the level in the blood.

Some authorities would say your husband has a metabolically inactive problem, because he has had no stones or evidence of stones for more than a year. In that case those authorities would only ask that he drink enough fluids to pass two or three quarts of urine a day and the fluid should be taken frequently enough to ensure a good flow all 24 hours. Most everyone will agree on this recommendation.

Dr. Roy Maffly of Stanford's medical renal section states in calcium oxalate stones the calcium should only be reduced if the intake is excessive.

To give you a different view on the management of stones I'm sending you The Health Letter number 11-2, Kidney Stones: Treatment Has Changed. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Runoff

ballot will be considerably shorter than for the first primary. There is only one runoff in the county and it involves only the Hermleigh voting box.

The Democrats propose to have all voters in commissioner's Precinct No. 1 to vote on the north side of the Scurry County Coliseum, with Janelda Davis as election judge; all in commissioners Precinct No. 2 to vote at the city hall with M. W. Pilcher as election judge; all in commissioners Precinct No. 3 in the Snyder School administration building with Grady Moore as election judge; boxes 10 and 20 on the south side of the coliseum with Mina Emerson as election judge; and box 13 at the Hermleigh Community Center with Jerry Clift as election judge. Hermleigh has the only runoff, with Claude Nixon and H. M. Lomax seeking the office of Justice of the Peace in Precinct 4.

Police Work Two Mishaps

Snyder police officers investigated two minor traffic accidents Tuesday afternoon.

The first mishap occurred around 5 p.m. in the 2400 block of Huffman Avenue. Involved in the accident were a 1971 Ford driven by Tommy Gene Raymon of Rt. 3, Snyder and a parked 1979 Plymouth owned by Clint Hembree, also of Rt. 3, Snyder. Only minor damages were reported in the mishap.

The parking lot at the Varsity Square Shopping Center was the scene of the sceond mishap around 7 p.m. A parked 1979 Datsun owned by Kathy Rhodes of 1601 Avenue T was struck by an unidentified vehicle which fled the scene of the accident. Damages to the Rhodes vehicle were listed as minor.

HERMLEIGH NEWS

By ADALA DRENNAN

Gayland Groves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Boyd Groves, underwent knee surgery last week. He is in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock in satisfactory condition.

Bill and Darlene Robbins, Lisa and Brad of Snyder were dinner guests of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Faye Robbins last Sunday.

Opal and H. M. Lomax guests over last weekend were their grandchildren, Mirand, Sharae and Michelle Mitchell of Colorado City. Their parents, Linda and Shady Mitchell, attended the Bob Wills show at Turkey Saturday and were Sunday guests of the Lomaxes.

Mrs. Gene Sharp of Snyder and Mrs. Opal Lomax shopped in Abilene last Monday.

Having lunch with Mrs. Carl Gray on her 88th birthday Apr. 22 were her daughters, Leta Lloyd and Lorena Cole. Others were Sue Lloyd of Fluvanna, and Dorthy Patrick and Jimmy Don Lloyd of Snyder. She received a "Love Bouquet" of spring flowers and an ivy plant.

Danny Lloyd of Lamesa spent Saturday night and Sunday with his grandmother, Mrs. Raymond Lloyd.

Guests of Mrs. Faye Robbins Monday morning were Mary Chauncey, Faye Meyers, and Opal Chamness of Snyder.

Friday of last week, Gregg Wilcox of Lubbock, formerly of Hermleigh, visited Mrs. Faye Robbins and others at the school. He was a 1954 graduate of Hermleigh High School and is presently pastor of West Moreland Church in Lubbock.

Recently Mrs. Ada Lomax of Abilene visited her son, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lomax.

Recent guests of the H. R. Gannaways were their three granddaughters, Alana, Tamy and Shirley Fincher.

The Thursday Canasta Club met at the community center with Pearl Watts, Gaye Stahl, Thaba McMillan, and Rachel Lassiter as substitutes. High scores were won by Oma Houston and Verda Johnson.

Many were disappointed when Brad Maule was not on the John Davidson Show as reported. However, it has been learned from the television stations in Abilene that smaller stations do not ordinarily get the shows until about two weeks later. So, as far as is known, he should be on the Davidson show May 12.

Guests of the O. W. Richburgs Thursday evening were the Eddie Galvans, Kirk and Kristie, Effie Wheeler, and Lora Taylor of Loraine Baptist Church; the Jack Richburgs, and Eva Richburg of Lamar Street Baptist Church of Sweetwater.

Milton Winter, who underwent heart surgery recently at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock, is reported doing well and may come home within the next few days.

Doyle Wemken and Warren and Ina Fargason, who have been hospitalized in Cogdell Hospital recently, are at home and doing well.

ANCHOVY POTATOES

Our version of a great Swedish dish.

4 medium (1½ to 1¾ pounds) baking potatoes, pared and very thinly sliced

Salt and pepper to taste

2 small (each 2 ounces) onions, very thinly sliced and separated into rings

2-ounce can flat anchovy fillets, drained and halved crosswise

¼ cup butter

1 pint half-and-half

In a 2-quart (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches) ungreased baking dish arrange half the potatoes; sprinkle with salt and pepper; top with half the onion; arrange half the anchovies at equal intervals over the onion; dot with half the butter. Repeat layers. Drizzle the half-and-half over the entire surface. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork, most of the half-and-half has been absorbed and top is brown-flecked — about 45 minutes. (If top browns too quickly, cover with foil before end of baking period.) Remove and let stand 5 to 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings. (The large-size baking dish is needed to prevent the liquid from bubbling over; thus, portions will not be deep.)

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Modern experts have devised all sorts of special responses to major suit openings. One of these is the splinter bid. A jump to four of a minor suit is a forcing raise with a singleton in the suit bid. A jump to three no-trump shows a singleton in the other major. These splinter bids also show 11 or 12 high card points. With more points you either use the Jacoby two no-trump or simply bid a side suit.

These splinter responses have extended to some rubber bridge games and North's three no-trump call showed 11 or 12 HCP and a singleton spade.

This made it rather easy for South to move toward a slam despite the paucity of high card points in the combined hands. He started with a four club bid to see if North could show signs of life.

North's four diamond call showed the ace and South was able to bid four no-trump. North's response showed two aces and South could now bid the easy slam.

Had trumps broken 3-0, South would have had to do a little work. When they broke 2-1 he claimed with six natural trump tricks, two ruffs of spades and one spade discard on the club queen.

Boot ease

If you're adding to your winter wardrobe by investing in a pair of leather boots, consider the new low-heeled ankle boots. You'll find them in lots of different colors — metallics are the newest — but a basic color like dark brown or black is probably your best choice. They look terrific with fuller skirts, especially when you team them up with sweater tights or textured stockings. Another option are the shorter, modified western boots in fashion now; they look smashing with casual pants and denim skirts. If you prefer classics, you can't go wrong with a knee-high leather boot with a sensible, mid-high heel — it goes with just about everything.

Black beauty

Black women often find that their hair tends to split and break too easily; that's because black hair is genetically more fragile, averaging only about half the thickness of Oriental or caucasian hair. If this is your problem, follow these basic tips: Always leave conditioner on hair for at least three minutes after washing, to allow absorption. If your hair is chemically processed or colored, use a deep conditioner every three weeks. Since black hair tangles more easily, use a product to make grooming and combing easier — some spray-on detanglers also add shine. Be extra careful when using heated hair appliances — always keep the temperature low since high heat will further damage the fragile strands.

Electricity From Geothermal Wells

MILFORD, Utah (AP) — Residents here are using electricity produced from geothermal wells.

Phillips Petroleum provides steam and hot water from underground wells to Utah Power and Light, which now generates electricity in an experimental unit.

The utility is constructing a 20,000-kilowatt power plant near the geothermal wells, scheduled for operation in 1984. That will provide enough energy for 20,000 people.

Auxiliary Will Honor Area Nurses Thursday

Thursday has been confirmed National Nurses' Day by the American Nurses' Association Board of Directors and designated National Recognition Day for Nurses by a joint resolution of Congress.

In announcing the ANA board action, Barbara Nichols, president, said, "Our health-care system would collapse without the nurses now working, and too often, the care given by nurses is taken for granted. Recognizing the contributions of nurses on a special day is appropriate; it is one way of educating the public about nursing."

The Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary will host a tea tomorrow in the doctor's lounge at the hospital from 2-4 p.m. to honor all nurses in the Snyder area. This includes those working in hospitals, schools, home health care, doctor's offices, family planning, nursing homes, and public health.

Fringe benefits

Bangs can add a lot to your appearance if you cut them according to your face shape. A long face looks best with bangs cut straight across the forehead — extending them deeply into each side of your face will make it look too narrow. You can make a round face more oval-shaped by cutting bangs that are slightly shorter in the center, tapering to longer lengths on the sides. Square faces look best with wispy bangs that frame the face softly, parted in the center and brushed to each side.

Camp Boothe Oaks To Hold Open House

Ray Alexander, camping services chairman, and his committee will host an open house at Camp Boothe Oaks near Sweetwater on Sunday, May 16 from 3-5 p.m.

The general public is invited to see the West Texas Girl Scout camp that cookies built and maintain.

Visitors will be conducted on tours throughout the campsite by Girl Scout guides.

A demonstration of solar cooking will be given and guests are invited to taste the food.

Linda Walker, camp director, says parents and campers will have an opportunity to meet some of the summer camp staff.

Members of camping services committee include Ray Alexander of Big Spring, Elsie Anderson and Ed Barkowsky of Snyder, Marshall and Elizabeth Billingsley of McCaulley, Shotti and Dick Burton of Abilene, Ed Deaton of Roby, Cliff Clements of Big Spring, Wilma Finke of Sweetwater, Lynn Ford of Sweetwater, George and Deanna Gantt of Roby, Thomas L. British Citizens React To Loss Of Destroyer

LONDON (AP) — After three days of heartening battle dispatches from the Falklands, Britain's confidence was shaken by a two-minute announcement in the middle of the prime-time evening news.

Defense Ministry spokesman Ian McDonald grimly told the nation that British lives had been lost for the first time in the month-old war to regain control of the Falkland Islands from Argentina.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, known by supporters and critics alike as the "Iron Lady," was "devastated" by the loss of the destroyer Sheffield and some 30 of its 270 crewmen, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported.

McDonald said the 3,660-ton destroyer was hit by an Argentine missile Tuesday and was engulfed in flames. Most of the crew managed to evacuate the burning hulk safely and were rescued, he said.

He also reported a British pilot killed when a Sea Harrier jet was shot down in a raid on an airstrip in the Falklands.

Stunned members of the House of Commons demanded and got a statement from Defense Secretary John Nott, then bowed to the suggestion of an opposition member that Parliament adjourn out of respect for the dead.

"There are certain occasions when the fewest words are the most eloquent," said the Conservative leader of the house, John Biffen.

Portsmouth, the Sheffield's home port on the south coast, was "in a state of mourning," reported a woman at the Keppel's Head Hotel. "Many people in here have friends on the Sheffield, and we are waiting to find out the worst."

"We never expected this, although I suppose we should have," said Joan Verhees, head of a Porstmouth club for wives and sweethearts of men with the fleet.

The swift recapture of South Georgia, the bombing Saturday of the Port Stanley airfield and the sinking of an Argentine cruiser had cost only one British casualty, a seaman who suffered a shrapnel wound in his leg, the government reported earlier.

City Gets Mixed Drink Tax Funds

The mixed drink tax resulted in a check for $3,889.77 for Scurry County and a check for $3,355.02 for the City of Snyder for the first quarter of 1982 State Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced.

Texas collects a 10 percent tax on all mixed drinks sold in the state. The cities and counties receive 15 percent each of the state tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries. Bullock said the state-wide mixed drink taxes were up 21 percent over the same period last year. He said his office mailed $10 million to 21 counties and 404 cities as their share for the first quarter.

Other counties and cities in this area receiving checks included Howard County $6,090.61 and Big Spring $4,407.85; Nolan County $2,896.75 and Sweetwater $1,407.02; Mitchell County $444.14 and Colorado City $369.37; Dawson County, $227.05; Fisher County $109.06 and Rotan $109.06.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

On behalf of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Board of County Development, we would like to take this opportunity to say "thank you" to everyone who so generously donated items for the Paris tornado victims and to our civic clubs (AAUW, API, Altrurian Daughters, Kiwanis, Rotary, Jaycees, Shriners) that gave monetary contributions to defray the expenses of transporting these goods to Paris.

It is encouraging to be reminded that, in spite of the hurried pace of today's society in general, Scurry County folks still care enough to help others in their time of need.

Since we don't know each of you by name please accept this as a personal "thanks" from us!

Tigers Erase Odessa Ector

By BILL McCLELLAN

Make no mistake about it, Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers can play in the wind and rain.

Snyder's Black and Gold came up with some timely hitting and baserunning and took advantage of several errors here last night to post its 12th straight victory, 7-3 over the Eagles of Odessa Ector.

The win puts Snyder at 2-0 in second round District 2-AAAA play, 20-5 for the season, as they prepare to host Andrews here Friday at 4 p.m.

Even though facing superior fielding, Odessa might have made a run at the loop leaders had it not been for 12-strikeout, four-hit pitching by three Tiger hurlers. Tommy Gressett, 3-1, picked up the win. The senior pitcher fanned eight batters over five innings before Coach Lewis brought in John Wilson for the fifth and Gerald Don Hicks for the sixth.

Snyder started out slowly against Ector righthander Simon Rodriquez, who also pitched a good game. Rodriquez tossed to just eight batters over the first two innings.

Lewis defended his Tigers in that regard by pointing out that they had not played in a week.

"It throws our timing off quite a bit," he said. "Not so much the fielding, but the hitting. And, it effects the pitchers somewhat too," he added, explaining why he relieved Gressett - to give Wilson and Hicks some work.

Snyder got rolling in the bottom of the third as Curtis Gafford led off with a bunt single and Brent Roemisch followed with a walk. Next up Wilson grounded to the third baseman, but the throw to first was off the mark, and suddenly the bases were loaded.

It appeared Rodriquez might get himself out of the mess when he fanned the next two Tiger batters, but instead it only set Ector up for tragedy. Barry Davis knocked a two-one pitch upwards at about a 60 degree angle, where the gusting wind played havoc with it. Second baseman Joel Rodriquez thought he had the ball pinpointed, but at the last moment it veered off to his right, falling untouched just yards away from second base. With two outs already on the scoreboard, Snyder baserunners were running all-out, and all three crossed home plate on the combined single and error.

"You have to give Barry at least a single because no one touched the ball," said Lewis. "The wind caught it and pushed it over (out of normal fielding range), but we shouldn't have scored three runs on it, so you have to charge an error somewhere there too."

Ector answered in the fourth inning, as the rain began to pick up and Gressett had trouble controlling the ball. Abel Juarez was thrown out, but Joel Rodriquez doubled and Larry DelBosque and Artie Rodroquez both walked to fill the sacks. Next up Jay Garcia hit into a fielder's choice that scored Joel Rodriquez and Kevin Smith answered with a two-run single to make it a 3-3 ballgame.

That was it for the Eagles, who brought up only 11 batters over the final three innings. Wilson got into trouble when he came on in the sixth as DelBosque singled and Artie Rodriquez was hit by a pitch. But Snyder turned a double play off of Garcia, and Wilson struck out Smith to end the inning. Hicks, who had figured to come on earlier in the game but couldn't pitch in the rain because he wears glasses, struck out the side in the final inning.

Snyder took the lead for good in the fourth. David Rios got aboard via an error and Casey Peterson sacrificed him to second. Another error pushed Rios across before the inning ended, 4-3.

The Tigers got their final runs in the fifth. Sandwiched between two outs, Perry Echols and Britt Vincent both reached base when they were hit by pitches. Rios then uncorked a ball into deep right field which scored two. Rios himself made it home on the play when the Eagles tried to throw him out at third and the ball got away from thirdsacker Juarez.

Lady Golfers Compete In 4A State Tournament

AUSTIN -- Snyder High School sends a group of its girls here this weekend, hoping to bring back the type of honors it gained in a similar effort months ago.

Coach Jan Kruse's SHS girls golf team - only in its second year - competes against the state's best Thursday and Friday at Jimmy Clay Golf Course. The girls will by trying to duplicate the performance of the Snyder High School volleyball team, which won the State Volleyball Tournament back in December.

Snyder has sent as many as three teams to state in one school year, but has never claimed two championships (other than individual) in that time, at least in recent school history.

Also representing SHS this weekend will be track standout Brenda Anderson, who competes Friday evening in the Class 4A shot put event of the State Track Meet.

Snyder ladies won both the District 2-AAAA title and the Region I championship this season, shooting an 811 in the latter effort to qualify for this weekend's State Golf Tournament.

Also representing District 2-AAAA will be a team from Fort Stockton, which carded an 815 in the regional meet. Brownwood's Russell Giles will also compete. She earned regional medalist honors.

Regional runnerup medalist is Snyder's Lisa Franklin, who shot a 188. Teammate Theresa Hildreth turned in a 191 as second runnerup.

Other Snyder girls participating will be Laurie Donelson, Tracey O'Day and Diane Risenhoover. Hildreth, O'Day and Risenhoover are seniors. Franklin and Donelson are sophomores.

Tuesday At College...

WTC Honors Athletes

Western Texas College held its Athletic Awards Assembly yesterday, honoring its cheerleaders and athletes in five sports.

The assembly precedes the annual WTC Banquet, which is sponsored by the college booster club and will be held Saturday night at Snyder Country Club. Former Western Texas College men's basketball coach Nolan Richardson will serve as guest speaker.

Letter jackets, certificates, plaques and other forms of recognition were awarded the athletes in men's and women's basketball, rodeo, golf and judo yesterday.

Women's basketball coach Joe Cushing was the first to present awards. Chosen as Most Vaulable Player for the 1981-82 season was New Deal freshman Vickie Teal, one of several girls who set school records under Cushing during the cage term.

Best Defensive Award went to Amarillo sophomore Valerie Wells, while Cindy Maddox was presented the Duster Heart Award. Most Improved Players were Dorcas Perkins of Lubbock and Cindy Goltl of San Angelo. Both are sophomores.

Presenting the men's basketball awards was WTC president and athletic director Dr. Don Newbury, substituting for former coach Larry Dunaway, who resigned earlier this season. The awards, selected by Dunaway, were: Best Defensive Player -- Dwayne Hunt, freshman from Jeffersonville, Ind.; Most Improved -- Clarence Cephas, sophomore from San Marcos; Pride Award -- Derrick Grow, freshman from Arden Hill, MN; Freethrow Award -- Grow; SAE (steals, assists and extra effort) Award -- Jerrold Whitmore, freshman from Los Angeles; and Outstanding Rebounder and Westerner of the Year -- Darren Lee, sophomore from San Diego.

Coach Dave Foster, whose WTC golf team recently captured conference and regional titles and will participate in the NJCAA National Golf Tournament soon, presented Richland sophomore Jeff Seger as his Most Vaulable Player for the year, and Petev Petri of Austin Round Rock and Ronnie Fletcher of San Angelo as co-Freshman of the Year.

Rodeo Coach Bob Doty did not present special awards as such. His men's team finished second in the Southwest Region behind Sul Ross State University - a four year school - and will compete in the College National Finals Rodeo, June 15-19 in Bozeman, Mont.

Special awards in judo, presented by Dr. Shell Hillis, went to sophomores Marjann Morrow of Snyder and Blake Riggs of Midland and freshman Tania Mackey of League City. Most Improved was freshman Chuck Wood of Sulpher, while the Outstanding Player of 1982 was sophomore Mark Thomas of Alaska.

Also presented to the 100-plus audience were WTC cheerleaders Lori Hollowell, a sophomore from Clyde, and freshmen Dana Kight of Roscoe, Nancy Leath of Midland, Kim Neves of Snyder and Janet Wallace of Haskell. Mickey Baird introduced the cheerleaders.

Boosters Slate Roping Event

Western Texas College Rodeo Booster Club will host the Scurry County Roping, Saturday at the old rodeo arena on West 30th St.

Entries close 5:30 p.m. Thursday at Brewster's Saddle Shed, located behind Fenton's. Fees are $30 per event, team and calf roping. Team roping will be three head, progressive after two, and contestants may enter up to five times. Calf roping will be three head.

As of Tuesday afternoon, 60 teams and 13 calf ropers had entered. The club expects 100 teams and 25 calf ropers.

The roping is open to all Scurry County residents and Snyder, Ira or Hermleigh school districts. Members of the Western Texas College rodeo team will not participate. There are no age limits.

Four buckles, worth over $2,400, will be awarded to the top ropers. Action begins with the calf roping at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Concessions will be available and there is no admission charge.

Juan Ramirez Still Fighting For Citizenship

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — When missionaries found Juan Ramirez in the Ecuadorean jungle, he was wracked by convulsions, near death, his paralyzed body wasted by parasites. He was unwanted, scorned by his family, an outcast because of his deformities.

Today, eight years later, Ramirez is educated, articulate and healthy and still fighting. He wants to remain in the United States, but the U.S. Immigration Service says only a special bill in Congress will allow him to stay.

The bill was approved by the Senate Oct. 27, but a House subcommittee on immigration said in February that Ramirez must first exhaust "administrative remedies" that might grant permanent residence.

When Ramirez was found by missionaries in Ecuador in 1974, they said his left foot was twisted nearly upside down, caused by polio when he was 3. His right foot protruded at a 90-degree angle.

"He was suffering from malnutrition, four or five kinds of worms and amobeas, and a low hemoglobin count which brought on the convulsions," said Dr. Devota Nowland, an Armada, Mich., osteopath who helped bring Ramirez to America.

"He was treated as an outcast by people outside of his family and would have suffered a great deal or died had he not been brought to the United States," she said.

Ramirez is now 22 or 23 — he doesn't know when he was born. He was one of seven illegitimate children, Miss Nowland said in an interview. One of his mother's suitors "killed Juan's sister in a drunken fit," she added.

Ramirez now denies this, or that his mother sold him, "but he doesn't want to remember," Miss Nowland said. Missionaries and others told her Ramirez was sold to a woman who ran a small cafe in Chaco, she said.

Ramirez said he peeled vegetables for "one or two meals a day" and slept on a straw pallet. At age 15, he weighed 60 pounds.

If he returns to Ecuador, Ramirez believes he would still be an outcast.

"I used to have problems...they would push me down," Ramirez said softly. "They thought of me as a dog."

His brothers and sisters were "undecided if they accepted my handicap. They didn't know if they liked me or not."

Voice shaking, he said of his mother: "I was her son, and even though I couldn't help her, I think she still loved me."

He doesn't know where his family is. "They're sort of moving around. They go where my mother can find work, field work, milking cows," for perhaps 50 cents a day.

Juan had corrective surgery at 15 in a missionary hospital in Quito.

His hips and legs remain shriveled, but he gets around slowly with leg braces and crutch.

Miss Nowland, on vacation in Quito, brought Ramirez to Michigan. She tried to adopt him, but Ecuadorean law prohibits a single female from adopting a male. She sought help.

Through a Fargo, N.D., adoption agency, Ramirez found his way to a farm owned by Vic and Olga Karges near Hazen, N.D. They too tried to adopt Ramirez but he was then past 16 and too old, the Immigration Service said.

Miss Nowland had started the process of trying to extend his temporary visitor visa. The Kargeses now lead that effort.

Ramirez started school in Hazen. Three years later he went to the Anne Carlsen School for the Physically Handicapped in Jamestown, N.D.

He graduates June 6 and wants to study electronics in a vocational school.

But he can't apply for citizenship because he has no blood relatives here, no job skill, isn't a refugee and isn't "a professional of distinguished merit or ability," said Gerald Coyle, the Immigration Service's district director in St. Paul, Minn.

"The only relief is what they are doing — trying to get a private bill through Congress," Coyle said. "There will be no (deportation) action in this case until the matter is resolved by Congress."

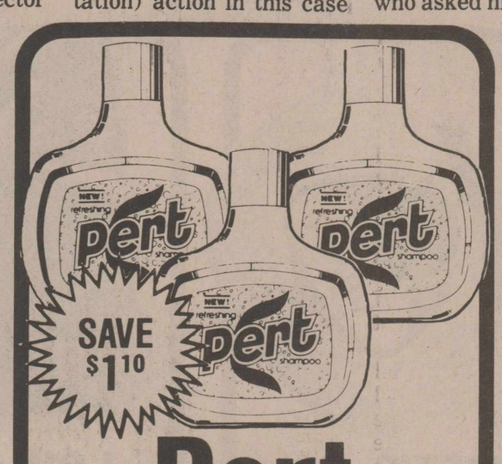

A staff counsel for the House Subcommittee on Immigration, Refugees and International Law, who asked his name not be used, said the subcommittee rejected Ramirez's special bill because he hasn't tried other administrative avenues to stay in the U.S.

Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., said he's asked the subcommittee to reconsider its action and plans to tell each member "the adversity this boy has overcome, and why he deserves a chance to stay here permanently."

The alternative is to reopen the deportation hearings, said Betty Hum, the Kargeses' lawyer.

Harding Withdraws From State Treasurer's Race

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — He began this year unopposed for re-election, but State Treasurer Warren G. Harding now says he cannot take any more and has withdrawn from the battle.

Harding, 61, made the announcement to a surprised Capitol press corps Tuesday. He said he could not continue to campaign and "subject my family to further hurt and grief."

Four candidates lined up to challenge Harding just days before the Feb. 1 filing deadline after news broke that a grand jury was investigating the treasurer's office.

Indicted April 23 on two felony counts of official misconduct accusing him of having two state employees work on his campaign, Harding polled a poor second in last Saturday's Democratic primary.

But he did squeeze into a runoff with former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards.

Harding's withdrawal hands the nomination to Mrs. Richards. The incumbent's withdrawal means the race won't appear on the June 5 runoff ballot.

An hour after Harding told a Capitol news conference he was pulling out, Mrs. Richards was in the same room saying, "It feels good to be the first woman in 50 years to hold a statewide office in this state."

That was a little premature, since she still must face a Republican opponent. Millard Neptune, 71, was presumed to be a stalking horse for a stronger candidate who would step in later, but Neptune says he now likes the idea of staying in the race.

Harding, accompanied by family members, read a brief statement and left without answering questions. He just pointed to a lapel pin and saying, "The flag of Texas — long may it fly." He would not say if he was resigning, but no letter of resignation was submitted to Gov. Bill Clements on Tuesday.

In his statement, Harding said, "While it is yet still possible for me to win, I cannot and will not engage in the kind of bitter campaign it would require.

"I would not subject anyone, opponents or otherwise, to what I and my family have been subjected to."

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle issued a statement saying Harding's decision "was not part of any plea negotiation" and that it "does not affect" an ongoing investigation of Harding's office, which prosecutors say includes allegations of sexual harassment of treasurer's office employees by Harding.

The penalty for each official misconduct count ranges up to 10 years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

At her news conference, Mrs. Richards said that when she heard Harding had withdrawn, she "just couldn't believe it." About 20 of her supporters stood in the back of the room and broke into applause several times.

She read a telegram she sent Harding:

"Dear Warren," it said, "I read your statement with understanding and sympathy. I pledge to you that as state treasurer, I will serve in that office in a manner that will be a source of pride to you and to all Texans. Your withdrawal today will help to unify the Democratic Party, and I am grateful to you for this act of dignity which means so much to me and my family."

Mrs. Richards said Harding should not have feared personal attacks in the runoff campaign.

"I insisted from the outset that this was going to be a clean campaign," Mrs. Richards said. "We were not going to get into what I call 'mudslinging' politics. I have never known from the very beginning the extent of Warren's problems. I just said I was not going to campaign on his indictment."

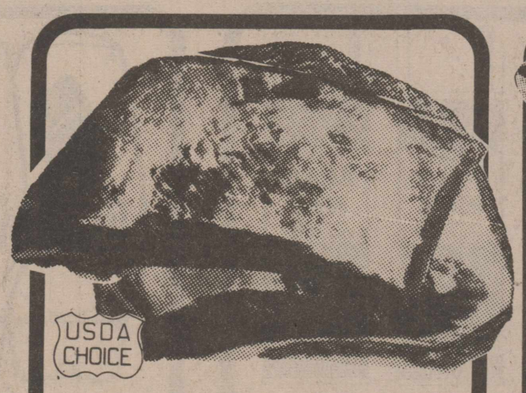

She suggested Harding's decision might have been a practical one, based on Saturday's results.

Harding received 34 percent of the vote Saturday to Mrs. Richards' 46 percent. Waco busnessman Lane Denton was third with 13 percent. John Cutright of Austin received the remaining votes.

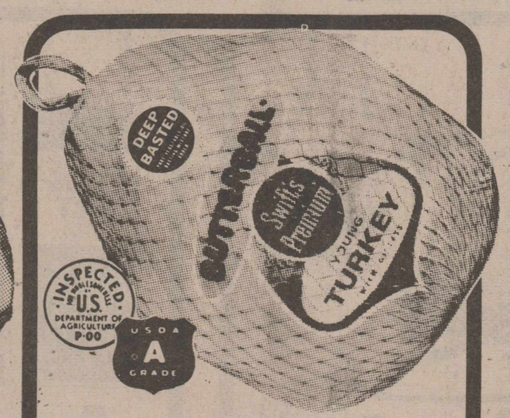

"Unquestionably, you could look a the numbers and know it was going to be virtually impossible for him to defeat me in June," Mrs. Richards said.

After already spending $600,000 in the primary race, Mrs. Richards said she would save about $500,000 from not having to wage a runoff campaign.

Founded in 1804, the first settlement of religionist George Rapp is now a National Historic Landmark, according to Rand McNally's 1982 Mobil Travel Guide. The Harmony Museum, established in 1809, illustrates early life in the Harmonist commune and features a clock tower which is believed to be the oldest in the western hemisphere.

In Sex Case...

Jurist Fights To Save Job

LANCASTER, Wis. (AP) — William L. Reinecke, a small town circuit judge whose comments in a sexual assault case brought him to national attention, chooses his words now slowly and with great care.

One phrase got him into trouble. He described a 5-year-old girl as an "unusually sexually promiscuous young lady," and now faces a recall election May 11.

Reinecke, 51, has been on the bench for 14 years in this community of 4,000 in southwestern Wisconsin. He leaned back in a chair in his second-floor chambers and placed a booted foot on the window sill as he talked of the events leading up to the recall.

It has been "an agonizing experience," he said.

Reinecke made the controversial remark last Dec. 22, in sentencing Ralph Snodgrass, 24, of Gays Mills on a first-degree sexual assault charge involving the girl. Snodgrass was put in jail for 90 days under a work-release program and placed on three years probation.

Crawford County District Attorney Rod Satter said the child's mother was outside last Oct. 16 while Snodgrass was sleeping in the nude in her home. Satter said the girl crawled in bed and initiated sexual contact.

There was no intercourse, "no aggressive behavior on the part of the defendant" and no injuries, Reinecke said.

The judge said the girl's behavior probably resulted from her having seen Snodgrass and her mother have "sexual contact in view of that young lady."

Authorities learned of the case about a week later when a teacher noticed the girl was experiencing discomfort and a physician examined her.

When word got around that Reinecke had called a 5-year-old "sexually promiscuous," some Grant County residents formed a group called Citizens for Children and organized the recall drive.

The state Elections Board certified 5,027 signatures on recall petitions. Only 3,798 were required to force a recall election.

Ellen Day of Fennimore, who presented the petitions to the board in March, said at the time: "I feel real good that the people of Grant County are that concerned about their children."

The recall group has endorsed attorney James Dahlquist, 31, who says that other "very significant problems" with Reinecke's tenure are part of his campaign. He did not spell out the problems in announcing his candidacy.

Norman Kvalheim, 55, also entered the race.

Reinecke could be out of a job May 12.

That prospect, the divorced father of eight says, is worrisome.

"This is the first time I've ever been criticized publicly for anything I've done as a judge," said the slightly built man with dark thinning hair.

"You know," he said, "the defense lawyers described her as a very sexually curious child. That probably would have been a more appropriate statement."

He said that in summarizing the case in court "I was attempting to use a phrase that was descriptive."

"I used the wrong phraseology. Looking at the dictionary definition, it was in no way inaccurate," he said. "But I probably just should have said the child was involved in unusual activities instead of saying she was sexually promiscuous."

Definitions in Webster's New World Dictionary include "showing little or no taste or care in choosing," and "without plan or purpose."

Reinecke, who has apologized publicly for the remark, said he and the defense both recognized the incident was not the child's fault.

"I clearly told the jury at the trial the law of Wisconsin is that whether the child consents to the act is not an issue. The child is incapable of consenting," he said. "The adult is to blame."

Why do his opponents continue their drive after his apology?

"The apology came too late and gave no indication that the judge had changed his attitude regarding children who are the victims of sexual abuse," said recall backer Jerry Brendenmuehl.

Still, Reinecke says he is known as a firm and fair judge and that people come up to him on the street and tell him they're behind him. He has received letters from throughout the country and abroad but hasn't noted how many are for or against him.

"Some are neutral, some are supportive and then there are those who are very supportive," he said with a grin.

Reinecke said he has been heartened by the public support given him by his former wife and 41 lawyers from Grant and nearby Crawford counties.

What is the campaign costing him?

"In dollars and cents, or heartwise?" he responded.

The dollars and cents came from his campaign manager, Pat McNamara. About $5,000, McNamara said. Plus another $5,000 i no one takes 51 percent o more of the vote May 1 and a special election mus held June 8.

"Heartwise," Reineck said, the pressure will b off him if the vote is heav next month. A good tu nout, he believes will be i his favor. But the farmer he said, may be in th fields instead of voting.

"After all, we are a rur county," he said.

Winner Emerges In 3 Hour Pun-Off Battle

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Forget Saturday's primary election or the subsequent run-offs. We have a winner in the 5th Annual Pun-Off.

While politicians were still counting their votes Sunday, a crowd of Austin pundits punished themselves all afternoon listening to each other's pungent humor on the grounds of the O. Henry Museum here.

"Don't laugh, even though you may be tempted to," cautioned emcee Peter Madison to a crowd that numbered about 1,000. "What we're looking for is good ol' Texas gut-wrenching groans."

The crowd was not to disappoint him.

The three-hour battle pitted man against woman, preppie against "pun krock," oldster against youngster, minister versus atheist.

When it was over, the winner was a 24-year-old waitress named Biz Dana, eliminated in the timed pun-off, but an overwhelming favorite of the crowd in the "Punniest in Show" prepared pun category.

Thirty-four contestants battled wits when they were given a category and ten seconds to answer each other's puns. The one without a pun on his lips at the bell lost.

Number 11 is quick on his feet. The category is food.

"Let-us have some food puns, he says."

Groans.

Number 16 is at sea. The category is letters of the alphabet. The pun she has offered features a letter already used by her opponent — that's against the rules and she must quickly come up with another.

With the bell just about to ring, she recoups — "One of you is enough. I wouldn't want double you."

The crowd cheers. Number 16 advances to the semi-finals.

The category is medical terms. Contestants waiting in the wings can't resist and call out their own puns to the two on the stage.

"With friends like that, who needs enemas."

"Suture self."

Number 17 is about to be gonged. But his mind finally registers and with lightning wit, he moves into the semi-finals: "Urine in all these contests, aren't you?" His opponent is stumped, gonged, eliminated.

The category is common first names:

"Phil-er up."

"Regular or Ethyl?"

The category is fish. (Fish?):

"Fish jokes are all wet."

Not a pun, not a pun. Hurry! The clock is ticking!

"I guess I'm fin-ished."

The crowd goes wild.

The tense finals of the timed pun-off is won in the category "seasons" by Lenore Johnson, with the sterling, "summer good, summer bad." Her opponent is baffled and settles for second place.

"Punniest in Show" gives each contestant 90 seconds to tell the excruciating long set of circumstances that lead up to the pun-chline.

The judging in this part of the contest, says Madison, is purely arbitrary, but Biz Dana is clearly the crowd's favorite.

Here is her winning pun:

Joe is a young, married college student who has taken a part-time job driving a van for a kindergarten school. The bus is decorated with characters from a popular children's television show.

At work the first day, Joe makes his first stop. A fat little girl gets on the bus and says, "Hi, my name is Patty." He goes to the next stop.

Border...

Patrol Now Walks Beat

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Border Patrol is now walking the beat in downtown El Paso with members of the local police department, and authorities said the double-teamed patrols are having a chilling effect on crime.

"For March, as compared to March 1981, we had a 32 percent reduction in reported crimes in the downtown area (during daylight hours)," said acting Border Patrol Chief Dale Cozart. "We don't claim credit for all of that, but we think the foot patrols have been a big factor."

For the first 10 weeks of the joint foot patrol operation there have been 299 misdemeanor arrests and 4 felony arrests, said Capt. Bill Long of El Paso Police Department. The Border Patrol footmen also apprehended 2,931 illegal aliens during that period, he said.

The patrols are unique because they team one Border Patrol officer with one local policeman. Border officers usually patrol by car or helicopter, officials say.

"Of course, the El Paso sector itself is unique..." Cozart said. "It's the only place along the border that has such a large population and large residential and business areas right on the border."

El Paso, with a population of more than 400,000 people, is separated from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, by the Rio Grande. Juarez boasts nearly 1 million residents and the cities are so interrelated that Cozart refers to them as an "international metroplex."

The downtown areas of the two cities, pressed against the river, are directly across from one another, making it easy for illegal aliens to cross from one to another simply by wading or walking across on stones.

Cozart said many of the crimes in the downtown area, the section of the city with the highest crime rate, are committed by illegal aliens who can easily escape across the border.

"Foot patrol arrests way more than car patrols," Long said. "With seven officers on the street, we're arresting 9 to 10 people a day. And that's not counting the Border Patrol guy who might be picking up illegal aliens."

Cozart said the seven border patrolmen on the beat apprehended more than 2,200 illegal aliens since the program began in early February.

Although the combined program has been under way for less than three months, foot patrols downtown are not new, Long said.

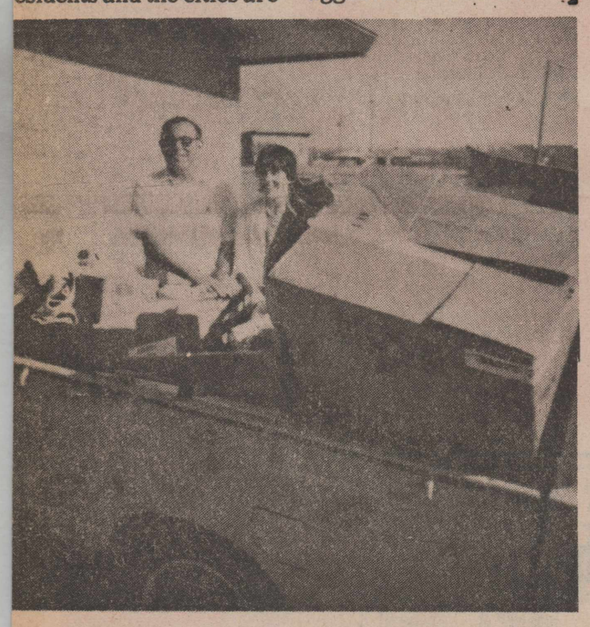

In the 1970s, the police department, using federal grants, kept as many as 30 officers on downtown beats. But the money eventually ran out and the city couldn't afford to keep them going.

"Immediately after we did away with it, we had a different type of crime in the downtown area," Long said. "We started having aggravated robberies in downtown businesses — robberies at gunpoint. In downtown during the day, we usually didn't have that type of crime."

The Downtown Merchants Association demanded that foot patrols be resumed.

Last November, the merchants convinced the city council to have the patrols during the December holiday season when business — and traffic across the border — is at its peak.

"After we started the foot patrol again, the robbery problem stopped," Long said.

HOSPITAL COLLECTIONS—Employees of Cogdell Memorial Hospital did their part for the victims of last month's Paris tornado by collecting a truck load of items for the victims in response to the Jaycee's disaster relief drive. Shown with the donations are hospital employees Jay Taylor and Robin Anderson.

For Nurses...

Urge Bigger Health Roles

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Health-care costs could be dramatically reduced by bringing nurses out of the background as "handmaidens to doctors" and into a more central role as advisers on nutrition, diet, exercise, child care and pregnancy, says the dean of the School of Nursing at State University of New York at Binghamton.

Margaret Tyson, R.N., says consumers could be relieved of some of the skyrocketing costs of health care if the growing trend to permit nurses to offer services formerly performed exclusively by doctors is allowed to develop.

"Why is it necessary," she asks, "for a Europe-bound traveler to see a doctor for an inoculation, when, in fact, nurses routinely administer inoculations? The doctor collects a fee simply for making a signature. Now that is ridiculous."

Nurse-midwives, despite opposition from doctors, are already working in several areas throughout the country and nurses could be making equally important contributions in other areas, Miss Tyson says. With the new emphasis on preventive medicine, she feels nurses have much to offer, especially in the treatment of drug and alcohol abuse.

The dean agrees that the growing number of men who enter the nursing profession will improve the image and pay scale for nurses. At the same time, men often suffer discrimination when they seek careers in nursing — an ironic reversal of affirmative action, she notes.

Miss Tyson sees nurses moving to the forefront of medical care if their status improves in the near future.

"They will be better equipped and more willing to ask key questions that can lead to advances in medicine," she says. "Nurses are in the best possible position to do that because they are, and should be, in intimate contact with their patients."

When Miss Tyson, who holds a doctorate in nursing education from Columbia University, began her career in 1943, she and her co-workers stood up when a doctor entered the room. She was paid $60 a month plus room and board and considered herself lucky, she recalls.

"Things have changed," she says, "but they must change even more if we are to begin solving the problems of this country's health-care system."

Hobbs Sets Registration

Hobbs School will have kindergarten pre-registration day on May 10 from 10 a.m. to noon for all children who will be five years old before Sept. 1, 1982.

Parents should bring their child's birth certificate and health and immunizaton records.

The kindergarten teacher and the nurse will be present to meet with parents.

If you wash dishes, clothes or yourself, use RID-X in your septic system.

LESS THAN 65¢ A MONTH HELPS KEEP SEPTIC TANKS AND CESSPOOLS FROM BACKING UP AND BREAKING DOWN.

Every time you do a wash, your detergent, soap and bleach wash away some of the bacteria your septic tank or cesspool needs to work. That can mean back up and break down. And costly repairs. Rid-X helps prevent all of that by putting back the bacteria. Rid-X and one extra flush of your toilet a month may be the only attention your septic system needs.

RID-X KEEPS YOUR SEPTIC SYSTEM IN ITS PLACE.
