Eschle Sees Referendum Best Bet

By TOWELL CARLSON

When John Eschle left the family farm south of Groom to take a degree in accounting at the University of Texas, he may have made the smartest move of his career. Expanding the family's feedlot operation in the face of a disastrous price cycle has taken considerable financial skill.

Eschle and his father, George, began the family feeding operation in 1964 after feeding out some cattle rather than take a loss on them as stockers. That experience plus the grain supplies available convinced them the greatest returns for labor and management on their farm operation could come through feeding cattle.

"We expanded our operation above the 200 head level to custom feeding as prices started to soften for fed cattle," John explained.

Basically, we've been able to get some good customers and we haven't bought the fattest cattle either.

With 4000 head on feed now, a division of family responsibility has put John in charge of feedlot operations while George is in charge of crop responsibilities on their two and a half sections of farmland.

What would it now would take care of our feed demands for about a month so we have a lot of grain," said John, and, basically, most of these cattle are bred.

Right or wrong, John believes futures are here to stay in the feedlot industry regardless of size.

"Some say futures are the worst thing that ever happened to cattle feeding but I don't see them going away. Basically it's a case of price cost analysis. We project our cost of gain, determine the historic spread between selling price and our costs. I think that one important factor that ensures the continuing use of futures in this industry are the losses sustained in the past few years. People are more willing like we are to take a sure $20 profit margin on a steer than go for broke and hope we hit the market right."

Eschle sees the Beef Research and Information Act as the salvation of the industry comparing its potential effect with results achieved by producers of other agricultural commodities like Florida citrus and cotton.

"I've heard some opposition to the referendum from a few local stockers and traders. I can see where they might think it's just another gimmick because the program won't be promoting their product. Calves. Directly. Eschle pointed out. "This industry is characterized by a lot of independent people and that's fine but in order to survive in the food market we're going to have to merchandise our product and that takes money.

John is encouraged by the recent cow slaughter and also by the number of heifers now on feed in the Panhandle. Likewise, Eschle points to the correlation

"We need to merchandise our product and I feel this beef producer promotion groups have done for other farm products." JOHN ESCHLE.

Wednesday's Warning Real Thing

Hopefully a needless rumor was quashed before it did any lasting damage to the Volunteer Fire Department's heavy weather warning credibility following last Wednesday night's blowing of the siren.

Following a warning received at the Fire Department from the Amarillo weather bureau around 10:00 p.m. of a rapidly building cell southeast of Clarendon, the volunteer firemen put a unit out to watch the lightning laced skyline. Fire Marshall B. J. Land and Jerry Hawkins drove southeast from Clarendon on the JA ranch road to observe the incoming cloud.

From the radio equipped emergency vehicle Land and Hawkins confirmed the potential danger of the cloud and radioed the fire house to blow the warning siren to alert townspeople. The time approximately 10:15 p.m.

"My motto is when in doubt salute," said Jack Moreman of the incident. "There were some bad clouds. I'm glad they do blow the siren because sometimes we can't hear it at our place."

Clarendon and several residents reported seeing a dense funnel-like form drift over the city but not touch down.

The rumor of an accidental blowing of the siren by intoxicated volunteers raised hackles at the fire station. "If you don't blow it and a tornado does develop who would catch the blame?" said Richard Massey. "The weather bureau every year tells us to warn people of potentially damaging thunderstorms and the siren is the best confirmation we can give outside of an immediate report from the public."

The cloud's effect indicated it would pass near or over Howardwick so the Fire Department warned that community's City Hall where a siren is also located.

"We can blow that siren anytime we feel there is a danger to the community but people are going to have to use some common sense and be responsible for precautions themselves," said B. J. Land. "The two blast siren simply means threatening weather, and people should observe the sky and be ready to take cover if conditions worsen."

When a single extended blast is heard it means a tornado has been sighted and residents should take cover immediately.

Land acknowledged the fire phone was flooded with calls following the Wednesday night blast alert signal.

"We didn't wait a sufficient time before blowing the second two blast signal because the cloud was moving toward Clarendon at such a rapid speed," said Land. "At that point people should seek cover now instead of asking questions."

Jerry Gage and several other members of the Volunteer Fire Department observed funnels on the northeast side of Clarendon as the storm clouds passed to the north.

Luckily what might have been a tragedy remained an evening of blustery weather.

"We're down here for one purpose," explained Land, "and that's to be of some service to the people in this community. You can assume that someone will find fault with whatever you do. It's just that a warning siren won't do anybody any good if people don't listen and react with some belief. There's no pay in this job for any of the men and they sometimes spend long hours down here after working a full day at their regular jobs."

Clarendon Trucks Stolen Over Weekend

Donley County Law enforcement officials continue to investigate two vehicle theft incidents reported over the weekend. Sunday Buddy Ford reported the theft of a 1969 one ton Chevrolet pickup from his property.

Stolen sometime Saturday night Ford reported the truck's theft at 8:00. A radio bulletin was put out on the pickup when officers were unable to locate the truck within the city.

Sheriff's office business led personnel unexpectedly to the truck when it was located approximately one mile east of the Pullman Switch road east of Amarillo. The vehicle was equipped with an auxiliary fuel tank and the driver had been unable to switch to the reserve tank when the truck ran out of gas.

The motor had been tampered with in an effort to start the truck again but no person or persons were spotted in the vicinity of the truck.

Ford reported the truck had been loaded with cement bags, a hydraulic pump, hurt personally during the cattle crash but didn't make any money out of the yard during the period either. Holding the operation together and modernizing for the next profit cycle became the prime objective.

"With 4000 head we are a small yard but I think we can do better than larger yards. I believe we can feed a little cheaper and cattle get more attention in the lot. We don't have as many buyers coming around but I've never had any trouble getting the cattle right," explained Eschle.

"Most of our steers go to Iowa Beef at Amarillo but our heifers can go anywhere. We've sold them from Amarillo to Shreveport."

The Eschle's rely on four Harvestore sealed silos to hold the high moisture corn and hay they feed. With completed automated milking system this spring, the yard could potentially handle 6,000 head of cattle—a figure John is shooting for when cattle profits stabilize.

"We went from feeding hay silage to popping milk with a natural gas outfit but the cost of processing the grain just ate our lunch," pointed out Eschle. "With the addition of our newest 25x65 Harvestore, we plan to feed high moisture corn and wheat."

Eschle stopped his expansion program about two-thirds completed when beef prices plummeted. Should markets revive, expansion to the 6,000 level would not involve greatly increased overhead costs.

The kind of cattle we've been feeding in this feedlot aren't the showy kind, that's for sure, but they haven't hurt us too bad either. We buy a lot of southern-type cattle and we like to see a little Brahman in them, they do better. The last pen of Holstein steers we fed made us wary of feeding cattle with much dairy blood in them. We lost $250 a head on that deal," said John.

Eschle feeds a "ration" with a lot of corn, some molasses and alfalfa pellets. The yard is run with three full-time employees, a bookkeeper and some part-time help during crop harvest. For John it remains a seven day-a-week job. From 1964, when George and John fed their first cattle, to 1977 with the cattle industry hopefully on the threshold of another profit cycle the Eschle-Feedlot has been baptized by the fire of low cattle prices and demands for greater efficiency. Still John believes in the integrity of the industry and is confident the farm's greatest profit potential lies with feeding cattle.

To have weathered the disasters of recent years it makes a person believe Eschle knows what he's talking about.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced June 6 as the beginning of a two-week registration period for the Beef Research and Information Order referendum and issued rules for the referendum.

Anyone who was a cattle producer during 1976 can register to vote, either in person or by mail, at local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices between June 6 and June 17.

A list of those who register will be posted daily at ASCS offices and a final listing will be posted five days after registration closes.

Those registered can vote between July 5 and July 15 at their ASCS office. For approval of the Beef Research and Information Order, at least 50 percent of those registered must vote, and two-thirds of them must favor it.

Long Hot Summer Could Produce Highest Electric Bills

A long hot summer could produce some of the highest electric bills in years. West Texas Utilities Co. officials warned this week.

And according to some weather observers, official and otherwise, a hot summer is long overdue. West Texas, like much of the nation, has enjoyed five relatively cool summers in a row. The law of averages, therefore, would indicate a change.

One of the consequences would be more use of air conditioning, requiring more electric energy. This could run bills up sharply. There already are indications that customers may soon be joined out of their summer lull. During the first 21 days of May, temperatures in Abilene averaged 5.4 degrees above normal and electric usage went up accordingly.

A change back to even the normal weather pattern could bring the impact of higher usage and higher costs, a company spokesman said.

Historically, the four peak months for electric usage in the WTU territory are June through September. The peak day usually comes in August. Last year, the system's electric load peaked at 5 p.m. on August 11.

Weather records for Abilene and San Angelo show that June through September temperatures have averaged below normal for the past five years. The result, WTU officials say, has been that the customers have grown accustomed to relatively lower summer electric usage.

WTU officials are not worried about meeting the energy demand. The company's generating system is adequate to supply all the electricity needed even on an extremely hot day. But they are urging customers to practice conservation in order to hold their usage and bills down.

The key to lower bills this summer will be efficient handling of home cooling. Proper ceiling insulation and adequate attic ventilation are two of the most important factors. WTU engineers also suggest that thermostats be set at 78 degrees, that houses be opened up to take advantage of nature's cooling when the outside temperature is less than 75 degrees, and that shades be kept pulled on the sunny side of the house.

They also urge that air conditioners be checked to see if they are in good working order, and that air conditioners not be left running if everyone leaves the house for a substantial length of time.

between strengthening cattle prices and the futures market.

"When you think about the recent cattle numbers on the Amarillo market and still see higher prices too it means the cattle market is coming back," said Eschle. "It's going to have to continue until we get the cow herd in line with demand again."

John believes the cow calf man has been badly hurt by the recent market crash and likewise, old sources of capital have dried up.

"We've had some interest in the feedyard shown by south Texas ranchers in feeding out cattle on a bus back basis. They would rather be sure of a locked in profit margin," said Eschle. John explained he wasn't

Anglins Open Ponderosa Antiques

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Anglin recently opened their new antique shop for business in the old Ruby Grocery building. Remodeled, the building will house their collection of antiques and other objects the couple have collected for display and sale.

Centerpiece of the shop is the Anglin clock collection. The couple first became interested in clocks following a trip to Europe in 1970 when Mrs. Anglin visited her daughter and son-in-law, Master Sergeant and Mrs. Chester L. Eastep stationed in Germany.

Church with Dr. James O. Brandon, Pastor of the Church, officiating. Interment was in Citizens Cemetery with the arrangements under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Pratt was dead on arrival at Medical Center Wednesday evening, May 25, 1977. She was born on May 17, 1910 in Wood County, Texas and was married to John Henry Pratt on December 31, 1931 at Dallas, Texas. She came to Clarendon from Tyler. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Shopping and traveling through the German countryside Mrs. Anglin became fascinated with the variety of handmade and old clocks encountered. Because servicemen collected clocks but found it difficult to move all their possessions when transferred, Mrs. Anglin was able to pick up some unusual clocks in what Americans would term a garage sale.

At one such sale, Mrs. Anglin was able to buy two clocks: one small alarm clock over 100 years old and a rare type known as a wag clock. This was the start of their clock collection now housed at the Ponderosa.

The Anglins were fortunate enough to interest Mr. and Mrs. Eastep in clock collecting and before the couple left Europe they had purchased a number of types before returning to the United States. The Easteps bought and shipped eighty clocks to the Anglins during their European travels. Mrs. Anglin herself returned to Germany in 1971 to purchase more clocks and some antique furniture.

The Anglins first displayed their clocks in the glassed-in office space of the Anglin Motel on Highway 287. With the purchase of the Ruby Grocery building, display area is increased greatly.

The Anglins belong to the National Clock Club through which they buy, sell and trade clocks. At the new antique shop the couple will sell not only clocks but pottery, jewelry, paintings, picture frames, canvases and a collection of constantly changing antique items.

A well-dressed lady of the 1920's waits expectantly in Anglin's collection of antiques.

- ★ Your air-conditioner will operate inefficiently if filters are not cleaned regularly. Dirt and lint, collected on the filters, restricts air flow to the coils. Clean filters every two weeks.
- ★ Let nature help you save energy by shading your home with trees and shrubs to help cut down on summer cooling costs. Draw draperies against afternoon sun.
- ★ Remember to keep outside doors, windows, and fireplace dampers closed. If you have window units, close the heating vents near the floor, as cool air falls and can escape through vents.

Christ's Terms of Unity

"THERE IS...

ONE BODY
ONE SPIRIT
ONE HOPE
ONE LORD
ONE FAITH
ONE BAPTISM
ONE GOD

The body is the one church or kingdom founded by Jesus Christ (Ephesians 1:22, 23; Colossians 1:18). Christ is the Saviour of the body or church (Ephesians 5:23), having purchased it with his own blood (Acts 20:28).

The Spirit is the one Holy Spirit of God. Jesus taught that one must be born of the water and the Spirit to enter the kingdom of God (John 3:5).

The hope is the one hope of eternal life after the grave, which is desired by every normal person. Eternal life will be a life of bliss and glory with the Father, the Son, and the Spirit of Heaven.

The Lord is the one Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the Messiah, the King of kings (1 Timothy 6:15).

The faith is the one faith made possible by the revelation of God to man, as that revelation was expressed through the Patriarchs, Moses, the Old Law, the Prophets, the Christ, the Holy Spirit, the Apostles, and finally the Bible.

The baptism is the one baptism valid in our age. Authorized by Christ and administered in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, the one baptism is for the forgiveness of sins (Acts 2:38). It is described as a burial in water (Romans 6:3-5; Colossians 2:12).

The God is the one God and Father of all, the Designer and Maker of the universe, the Creator of man, the Giver of every good and perfect gift (Ephesians 4:4-6).
