Bush wins big; Stenholm, Counts re-elected

Local, Wire Reports

Texas Gov. George W. Bush easily won re-election and proved that his political coattails are wide and long, as Rick Perry became the state's first Republican lieutenant governor.

With few exceptions, Republicans scored big in Texas. Among Democrats winning were U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm from the 17th Congressional District and State Rep. David Counts from the 70th House District.

Scurry County followed the state-wide trend. Bush defeated Democrat Garry Mauro by getting 79.5 per cent of the votes in Scurry County while Bush collected 68.6 per cent on a state-wide basis.

Rick Perry, a native of Haskell County and present agriculture commissioner, defeated State Comptroller John Sharp for Lt. Governor by getting 51.3 per cent of the votes in Scurry County and 50.3 per cent of the state totals.

An exception to the Republican vote in Scurry County was for attorney general where Democract Jim Mattox got 48.3 per cent of the vote while Republican John Cornyn received 46.5 per cent. Cornyn won, however, getting 54.5 per cent of the state's totals.

Another Democratic exception was for U.S. House of Representatives where veteran congressman Charlie Stenholm collected 53.5 per cent of the votes against challenger Rudy Izzard. In Scurry County, Stenholm was elected to his 11th term with 2,069 votes compared to 1,944 for Izzard, 49.6 per cent to 46.6 per cent.

For state comptroller, Republican. Carole Rylander narrowly defeated Democrat Paul Hobby with Rylander getting 51.4 per cent of the votes statewide and 47.6 per cent in Scurry County.

For Land Commissioner, Republican David Dewhurst polled 57.7 per cent of the votes while Richard Raymond got 39.6 per cent. In Scurry County, Dewhurst polled 56.4 per cent.

Republican Susan Combs won the ag commissioner's post with 56.6 per cent in the state, including 52.8 per cent in Scurry County, to defeat Democrat Pete Patterson.

For District 14 State Board of Education, Republican incumbent Richard Watson of Dublin won re-election over Democrat Allan Butcher. Watson got 56.6 per cent of the district votes while Scurry County gave Watson 50.3 per cent.

For the 11th Court of Criminal Appeals Republican Terry McCall garnered 56.4 per cent of the district's votes and 53.9 per cent in Scurry County.

Elected in uncontested races in Scurry County were County Judge Ricky Fritz, County Treasurer Charlie Bell, County Clerk Joan Bunch, District Clerk Trina Rodgers and Precinct 1 Peace Justice Charlie Reynolds.

John Williamson, a Democrat, collected 64 per cent of the votes to defeated Independent candidate Pamela Bryant for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2.

A total of 4,169 votes were cast in Scurry County, representing 36.6 per cent of eligible voters. There were 521 straight Republican ballots cast and 517 straight Democratic ballots, representing about 12 per cent each.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's what you learn after you know it all that really counts."

Whew!

It's one down and one to go.

With yesterday's general election now in the record books, residents of the Snyder Independent School District will start to focus on the Dec. 5 school bond election.

The $16 million bond proposal calls for major repairs and renovations of various buildings within the district.

There's no doubt about the need, so the only question is how to pay the bonded indebted over the next 20 or so years.

Taxes will rise, and nobody — even school people — like to pay taxes. However, almost half of the funds for improvements can come from the state — if the legislature passes a facilities funding bill.

State leaders, including those re-elected yesterday, have made facilities funding for public education one of the top priorities for use of the state budget surplus.

And the local school board has addressed the legislative "if" question as well. School officials have agreed — even if voters approve the bond issue — not to sell the bonds and indebt local taxpayers unless state funding to help pay the bill becomes a reality.

While we may all have differences of opinion on individual details of where and how to improve school buildings — the obvious needs remain.

Even in face of the present economy, Snyder's progressive attitude continues to serve the community well.

Infrastructure for the industrial park is in place. Lorber Industries is moving forward with its plans and adding additional employees.

We never envision another "boom" for Snyder and Scurry County, but the community refuses to roll over and give up.

If we intend to attract new business and jobs to Snyder, prospective employees and employers will demand good public schools for their children.

It seems that a good opportunity to maintain quality public schools occurs on Dec. 5 — and for that reason we recommend a vote in favor of the school bond issue.

Lindsey coasts as Idom squeaks by

When County Clerk Joan Bunch announced early voting results just after 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, Chloanne Lindsey had a 76-vote lead over Milton Adams for Scurry County Commissioner for Precinct 4.

The race was never close after that as first-time office seeker Lindsey won by garnering 557 (57.06%) votes to Adams' 377 (38.62%).

Lindsey will go down in the history books of Scurry County as the county's first female commissioner when she takes office on Jan. 1, 1999.

Lindsey and Adams were vying for the post that Jerry Gannaway has held for the past eight years. Gannaway chose not to run for another term.

"I am very thankful to the people of Precinct 4 for giving me this chance to serve as their commissioner. I will do my very best to do the job they put me in to do — to hold taxes down and maintain good roads," said Lindsey.

"I just want to thank everyone very, very much," added Lindsey.

Lindsey will have no trouble finding the courthouse when she starts her term as a commissioner as she has served as the chief deputy in the county auditor's office for the past nine years.

In the race for Precinct 2 Commissioner, incumbent Roy Idom survived a strong challenge from political newcomer Linda Sellars.

Idom won by seven votes — 641 to 634.

There were 1,298 total votes cast and Idom received 49.38 percent and Sellars received 48.84 percent — a margin of victory of just over a half of a percent.

Idom took a 306 to 279 lead in early voting and that proved to be enough to win.

Both candidates received 41 votes in Box 6, while Idom received 10 more votes in Box 7 — 284-274.

With only the Fluvanna box out, Idom had a 37 vote lead.

Fifty votes were cast in Fluvanna and Sellars garnered 40 of them.

But Idom captured 10 votes and ended up winning by the seven vote margin.

"I want to thank all the people of Scurry County who supported me. I will continue to serve the people of Scurry County with their welfare uppermost in my mind," said Idom.

Grand jury indictment sends 1 to jail

Following a grand jury indictment Monday for forgery, 19-year-old Roseanna Lujan was arrested Tuesday afternoon by deputies.

Lujan is charged with forging a check on Sept. 8 on the account of Claudine Atwood in the amount of $300. The offense is a state jail felony.

She remained in Scurry County jail this morning in lieu of a $5,000 bond.

Incumbents head to Austin following costly campaigns

Scurry County joined the majority of the district in sending incumbent representatives back to Austin.

Despite heavy spending from outside the state, State Rep. David Counts held off a repeated challenge from Republican Scott McLaughlin to retain his District 70 House seat while State Sen. Tom Haywood coasted to an easy victory in District 30.

In a race that featured record spending for advertising, Counts carried all but five of the district's 12 counties — including Scurry where the incumbent got just over 50 percent of the votes.

In Scurry County, Counts garnered 2,070 votes while McLaughlin, who campaigned in front of local polling places on election day, collected 2,044 votes. Two years ago, McLaughlin carried Scurry County.

District wide, Counts collected 14,097 votes (53.6 percent) while McLaughlin picked up 12,207 votes (46.4 percent).

In 1996, Counts was re-elected by 772 votes, but the margin of victory this year was 1,890 votes.

"I really want to thank my friends in Scurry County who worked for me," Counts said Tuesday night. "That's quite a turnaround from last time.

"I appreciate the support of the voters of the 70th District. I enjoy working for you. It is a high honor to represent you in the Texas House. I want to continue to work to bring jobs, improve schools and make family values stronger in our communities. I would like to thank all of my supporters that worked so hard."

McLaughlin, a Big Spring businessman who switched positions on school vouchers during the campaign, carried his home county of Howard as well as Borden, Garza, Kent and King. In Howard, McLaughlin received 56.7 percent of the votes.

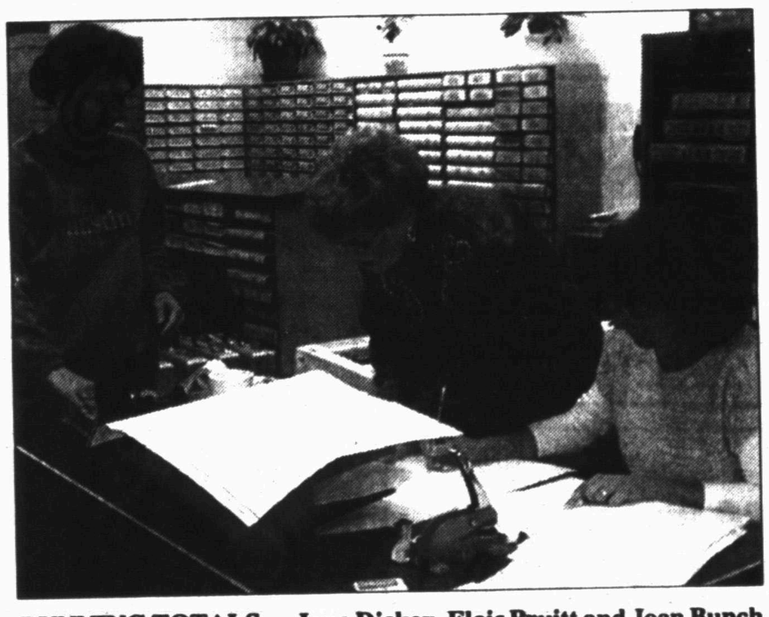

In Counts' home county of Knox, the incumbent got 73 percent of the votes, but only 1,266 total votes were cast. Counts also polled heavily in Nolan County, getting 58.6 percent of the 3,825 ballots cast.

Sen. Haywood carried 25 of 36 counties in District 30 to win re-election by 62.6 percent of the vote over Democrat Greg Underwood of Bowie. The district vote total was 82,984 for Haywood and 49,475 for Underwood.

Haywood, a Republican from Wichita Falls, got 63 percent of the votes in his home county despite persistent questions about his health. Haywood suffers from Parkinson's disease.

Haywood, who describes himself as the "slow-talking senator," received 2,663 votes, or 67.1 percent, in Scurry County, topping the 63 percent margin that

Feds beefing up search again

ANDREWS, N.C. (AP) — More federal agents will comb the North Carolina mountains this week to hunt for bombing suspect Eric Rudolph, who has eluded authorities for almost a year.

Rudolph is charged in the fatal 1996 Olympic Park bombing in Atlanta; the bombing of a Birmingham, Ala., abortion clinic that left one dead; and two other attacks. Authorities think he is hiding in a cave or underground hideaway with a trapdoor for a roof.

"He's in jail," Jim Cavanaugh, a federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms' special agent in charge, said Monday. "We've just got to find that jail."

The search force will grow to about 200 by mid-month and work into the holiday season, officials said.

Federal prosecutors from Birmingham made their first trip to North Carolina's vast Nantahala National Forest on Monday to survey the search area.

"With the leads they're getting and all of the things they've come up with, it reinforces to me that we're on the right track," U.S. Attorney Doug Jones said.

Federal investigators first came to the mountains after the Birmingham bombing in January. The search force gradually dwindled until July, when a resident reported Rudolph made off with six months worth of food and batteries from his home.

The FBI scaled back the search again at the end of the summer when the trail cooled off.

Convicted au pair files for permission to sell her story

BOSTON (AP) — The British au pair convicted of killing a baby in her care has asked for permission to sell her story.

In a motion filed in federal court Monday, an attorney for Louise Woodward asked U.S. District Judge William Young to set aside an injunction that required her to notify an American judge before selling her story.

It was unclear whether she had any deals in the works.

The motion came the same day the family of Matthew Eappen filed a claim for millions of dollars in damages for their son's death.

Ms. Woodward also asked Young to overturn his ruling preventing her from spending any money received from media interviews about the case.

In the motion, attorney John P. Ryan also asked that a default against Ms. Woodward — ordered when she failed to respond to the Eappens' civil suit in June — be removed, allowing her to address the civil charges and injunction against her.

Ryan refused Tuesday to elaborate on the motion, citing client confidentiality.

Earlier on Monday, Drs. Sunil and Deborah Eappen asked Judge Young to force Ms. Woodward to pay them several million dollars in damages for killing their 8-month-old boy.

The Eappens did not ask for a specific dollar amount, but are seeking equal punitive and compensatory damages. The figure considers loss of companionship and what the son of the two physicians might have earned in his lifetime.

Attorney Frederic Ellis said the Eappens were unhappy about Ms. Woodward's filing, and were concerned she would try to profit from their son's death.

"They were surprised. Nobody expected this," said Ellis. "What we're saying is, if she decides to sell her story, there's nothing preventing that, but we don't want that money going to her."

Support for partner

By Phillip Alder

Your partner opens one club, you respond one heart, he rebids one spade, and you jump to three spades. What have you shown?

In the good old days, before DVDs and television, all jumps were forcing. You would have had four spades and game-forcing values. But back then there was no bid for a hand slightly weaker than that, one too strong just to raise to two spades, but not strong enough for three. Slowly, experts wisely started to treat the jump raise to three spades as game-invitational, showing some 10-11 points. With a game-forcing raise, you either simply jump to game or, if even stronger, start with fourth-suit forcing and support partner on the following round.

In this deal, if North lacked all his minor-suit honors, leaving him with 11 points, he would raise one spade to three. If he lacked only the club pictures, he'd jump from one spade to four spades. But with 20 points and slam interest, he starts with fourth-suit forcing. (Yes, he could use Blackwood over one spade, but the opponents might have the ace and king of diamonds.)

Against six spades, the defense begins with two rounds of diamonds.

South must play the trump suit without loss. If it is splitting 3-2, or if either opponent has a singleton jack, there is no problem. But what if someone holds jack-fourth? If it is West, South will go down. But if it is East, South is all right as long as he cashes dummy's king and queen first. When West discards on the second round, declarer knows to finesse the 10 on the third round.

Improved Lady Dusters rip Cisco in season opener, 74-55

During her first year on the job, Valery Jackson did some major housecleaning in the Western Texas basketball program. Gone are last year's nickname, last year's uniforms and all but four of last year's players.

Tuesday night Jackson unveiled her new-look Lady Dusters to rave reviews.

WTC forced 43 Cisco turnovers and drained seven three-pointers, notching a 74-55 season-opening victory at Scurry County Coliseum.

After finishing 7-23 last season, the convincing win was a welcome sight to the Lady Dusters.

"It's wonderful," Jackson said. "This got us going in the right direction and it will carry over into practice. We needed this."

WTC opened with an 11-3 run, utilizing its speed with full-court pressure to turn Lady Wrangler turnovers into points.

Cisco's biggest threat came near the end of the first half when it trimmed the margin to 28-22 with 2:15 left on the clock.

But the Lady Dusters answered.

WTC's Kathy Tran, who spearheaded the defensive effort, drained a pair of free throws and Christy Wells drained a three-pointer during a 7-0 Lady Duster run to close the half.

"I called timeout just before we made the run," Jackson explained. "I told the girls that in college basketball, games are won during the first five minutes and last five minutes of each half. It was encouraging how they responded, because they gave us back the momentum going in at halftime."

The six-point margin would be as close as the Wranglers would get, as WTC continued its scrambling style of defense in the second half.

Tran, a freshman wing from San Diego, Calif., had four steals and seven points over the final 20 minutes to lead the onslaught.

Kathy Tran

"Kathy is a very intense player. Her intensity in practice and in games is incredible," said Jackson. "Her play didn't surprise me one bit."

"I try to play at the top of my game, every time I step on the court," Tran stated. "We have to keep up our intensity on defense and tonight we did. We were hyped and ready to play."

When WTC wasn't getting fast break opportunities, it found success down low with Pamela Odhuong'o. The 6-2 sophomore led all scorers with 17 points.

From the perimeter, Wells and Mary Cavasos paced the Lady Dusters with two buckets each from behind the arc.

WTC will look improve its record to 2-0 when it hosts Lubbock Christian JV at 6 p.m. Monday.

Gailey leading team in right direction

IRVING (AP) — Chan Gailey has brought the Dallas Cowboys a change in attitude and one-game lead in the NFC East in the first half of the season.

Gailey is only one win away from matching Barry Switzer's 1997 grand total of six in a 6-10 season that cost the former Oklahoma coach his job.

The Cowboys routed Philadelphia 34-0 Monday night to move their record to 5-3 overall and 4-0 against NFC East foes. Dallas has outscored its division foes 134-27.

Even more importantly, Dallas has defeated the defending division champion New York Giants, the Washington Redskins and the Eagles on the road.

Now, the Cowboys have every reason to think playoffs, heading into the second half of the season.

"I'd be disappointed if they weren't thinking playoffs," said Gailey, the former Pittsburgh offensive coordinator who boldly predicted in July that the Cowboys would be playing in January.

The Giants, whipped 31-7 by Dallas in the third game of the season, come calling on Sunday, needing to chip away at the Cowboys two-game lead over them.

The next week, Dallas tries to make it a sweep of NFC East road venues by traveling to Arizona, beaten by the Cowboys 38-10 in the season opener. Arizona has a 4-4 record, trailing Dallas by a game.

Dallas lost two close games both by the same score, 13-12, to both Oakland and Chicago. The Cowboys won three and lost two while quarterback Troy Aikman nursed a broken collarbone.

Aikman's debut drew mixed reviews although he survived two sacks from the blitzing Eagles defense.

He felt sore on Tuesday but said "I feel pretty good. I took one real good hit on the (left) shoulder and it held up."

Aikman threw two touchdown passes in his first action since suffering the injury in the second half of the Denver game in the second game of the year.

He said the Cowboys aren't playoff quality yet — but they are getting there.

"We're just trying to get our respect back," Aikman said. "It's presumptuous to talk Super Bowl at the stage."

Gailey said he wouldn't settle for a 5-3 record the second half of the season.

"I expect to be 8-0," Gailey said. "I'm very excited where we are and where we can be. I see a lot of potential. We have a chance to be a very good team."

The Cowboys came out of the Eagles game with a beat up offensive line.

Right tackle Erik Williams suffered an injury to his right foot and was listed as doubtful for the Giants' game.

Deep snapper Dale Hellestrae and center Clay Shiver suffered sprains to their right knees and were listed as questionable.

Austin OKs stadium

ROUND ROCK (AP) — Voters in the Austin suburb of Round Rock overwhelmingly have embraced the plan of pitching legend Nolan Ryan to bring in a minor-league baseball team.

With most of the votes counted from Tuesday's election, voters authorized money from the city's hotel-motel tax to build a $13 million, 7,500-seat stadium that would house a Texas League baseball team now located in Jackson, Miss.

The Jackson Generals, a Double-A farm team of the Houston Astros, would become the Round Rock Express and play in the new stadium starting in the 2000 baseball season.

Defective Nike shoes get recalled

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) — Nike said Tuesday it is recalling 350,000 pairs of its "Air Face Up" basketball shoes because of a metal decoration that has caused dozens of cuts.

The shoe, which went on sale in June, has a small metal rivet on the outside of the shoe, which can be bent to form a sharp edge.

Nike said it has received about 35 reports of high school- and college-age basketball players being cut while wearing the shoes. Two players required stitches.

Nike first made the connection between the design flaw and the injuries in mid-October and notified the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

"We want to move fast," Nike spokesman Roy Agostino said. "We want to get it out of the marketplace and eliminate any need for concern."

The "Air Face Up" shoes being recalled have model numbers 830080, 139358 and 630327. The model number is located on the label on the inside tongue of the shoe, above the UPC code.

The shoe, which sells for about $85, is a mid-cut with a 2-inch-long window in the heel. The words "Nike Air" are on the outside tongue of the shoe, and the word "Team' appears on the back.

Shoes may be returned to the place where they were purchased to receive a replacement pair of different shoes or in-store credit, Agostino said.

In need of quality pitching, Rangers meet with Johnson

ARLINGTON (AP) — Texas Rangers general manager Doug Melvin and manager Johnny Oates spent about two hours talking to free-agent pitcher Randy Johnson, according to published reports.

The Dallas Morning News and Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today that the Rangers officials met with Johnson, his wife, Lisa and agents Barry Meister and Alan Nero on Tuesday afternoon at Johnson's home in Paradise Valley, Ariz.

Johnson had earlier met with representative of Arizona, Houston and Los Angeles. The Anaheim Angels and New York Yankees also plan to meet with the pitcher who was traded from the Seattle Mariners to the Houston Astros late this season.

Melvin was optimistic following the meeting.

"I don't think he'd have us at his home for that long if we weren't on his short list," Melvin said.

Teams cannot discuss money with free agents until 15 days after the end of the World Series, but they can do what amounts to recruiting before then.

The Houston Chronicle reported Tuesday that Astros owner Drayton McLane Jr. and general manager Gerry Hunsicker are believed to have offered Johnson a three-year contract worth between $33 million and $36 million.

The club wouldn't divulge numbers, but Hunsicker on Tuesday railed against the newspaper report, calling the dollar figure "aggressive."

"We met with him and made a serious offer, but as far as (revealing) the term or dollars involved, it's just not appropriate," said Hunsicker, who acknowledged that any deal would be for more than one year.

Johnson, 35, reportedly wants a three-year contract with an average annual salary of about $12 million. Outfielder Juan Gonzalez is now the highest-paid Ranger with an $8.5 million salary.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

Children need vaccines. Period.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was disappointed that you favor childhood immunizations. At best, these blood-polluting vaccines compromise the immune system; at worst, they cause disability.

DEAR READER: Not true. While you raise an important issue, I'm afraid I'm going to disappoint you again. Although some people — including a few well-meaning physicians — have spoken out against childhood immunizations, I believe these critics are dead wrong.

To begin with, every intelligent adult recognizes that there are risks in our environment. We all want to minimize these risks for ourselves and our children. However, we cannot do this by wishful thinking. For example, we may be tempted to fantasize away cancer and serious infections by "positive thinking" and a trust in the goodness of nature. But in the real world of malignancies and microbes, such an approach is dangerously irrational.

Tetanus, diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), rubella (German measles), polio and hepatitis are extremely serious diseases that can kill or maim susceptible individuals. Today, because of medical technology, we can completely prevent these afflictions.

When deciding whether to allow children to be immunized, parents (and doctors) must carefully examine the risks and benefits. No vaccine is completely safe. No matter how many millions of people have been inoculated, a small percentage will experience mild or severe reactions to the immunizing material. To be candid, there is inherent risk in any medicine or vaccine.

However, with childhood immunizations, the benefits clearly outweigh the risks: The bad consequences of naturally occurring childhood illnesses are far greater than the potential reactions to the protective vaccines. Therefore, I believe that such immunizations are necessary and appropriate to prevent tragedy. Moreover, the U.S. Public Health Service and the American Academy of Pediatricians have strongly urged parents to have their children immunized.

As adults, we want to be reasonable. Depriving children of protection from disease seems to me to be an unreasonable act bordering on child abuse. Yes, there are small risks involved in vaccinating children. However, the risks of NOT vaccinating them are so much greater that I am surprised at parents who refuse to give their children an ounce of prevention. These immunizations, carried out under the supervision of qualified physicians using certified vaccines, can help youngsters grow into healthy adults. Please don't be mislead by anti-science quacks and zealots who want to ban vaccines and turn the clock back a century.

Astro-graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Thursday, Nov. 5, 1998

In the coming year, you should weed out any persons who have caused you heartaches or headaches in the past. This will be for your own benefit. Replace them with solid, productive relationships that'll bring you the happiness you deserve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Rather than having to make returns later, carefully examine all merchandise before making any purchases today. Make certain they doesn't contain any flaws. It's going to be one of those days. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be discriminating as to the companions you choose to spend your time. Today could turn out to be a bummer if you are with someone who provokes confrontations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Walk away rather than confront someone who is behaving in a disagreeable fashion today, especially if this involves a co-worker. It's to your advantage not to get involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What you say today could get repeated. So if your peers are gossiping about a pal who isn't present, don't make any contributions. It's you who will later be blamed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) More talk than action will yield you a big fat zero today. So if you feel challenged by something, tackle it head on rather than try to circumvent it with words.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you do more talking than listening today, you could deprive yourself of some very valuable information others possess. Listen attentively when knowledgeable people speak.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Avoid places of business where you feel you've made some bad purchases in the past. History has a way of repeating itself and you could make a bum acquisition again.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Monitor your words carefully today. Don't make any thoughtless comments when conversing with a valued friend. It could provoke a mistrust in the relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your mind is not on your tasks today, you run the risk of making errors that won't be easily corrected. Concentration is a must. Don't let your mind wander off the job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A crafty acquaintance of yours could try to put a wedge in a relationship by telling you half truths about the other person. Check out the facts yourself before casting judgments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Alibis or excuses will fall on deaf ears today. Rather than use that ploy to get you out of hot water, don't get in the tub in the first place. It's easier to do things right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This might be one of those days when your mental brain waves are operating on low voltage. So if there is anything important you must learn, don't trust it to memory.

Man jailed for assault, intoxication

Following a call reporting a family disturbance in Hermleigh Tuesday night, deputies took one subject into custody.

At 9:48 p.m., deputies arrested a 63-year-old male in the 900 block of Willis in Hermleigh for public intoxication and Class C assault/family violence.

An offense report was filed also.

In other activity, Jimmy Barton requested an officer at Wilson Motors at 8:48 a.m. in reference to criminal mischief done to one of the vehicles. An offense report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

Peace officers also handled several calls of motorists locking their keys in their cars and reports of livestock being on the road.

Another probe

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Another brother of former President Carlos Salinas de Gortari has sought court protection from arrest, on the belief that prosecutors have named him in a new warrant against his eldest brother, Raul Salinas, Mexican media reported.

Sergio Salinas sought a court injunction Tuesday to avoid the possibility of being arrested on supposed charges of illicit enrichment, family lawyers told the government news agency Notimex.

High Plains cotton farmers hoping for dry weather

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Cotton producers in the Texas High Plains who had to irrigate far more than they normally would have to keep their crop alive through the summer this week hoped for dry weather so they could get back into the field to complete their harvest, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Harvest of upland cotton began in earnest last week, only to be stymied by weekend rains, said Dr. Randal Boman of Lubbock, Extension agronomist. Some areas received as much as five inches of rain. Hail storms damaged cotton near Dimmit.

As of Friday, Oct. 30, about one-third of the crop had been harvested. Farmers on the High Plains are expected to produce 2.1 million bales of mostly irrigated cotton, more than two-thirds of the statewide crop of 3 million bales, said Dr. Carl Anderson of College Station, Extension agricultural economist.

In Texas, the upland crop is 42 percent less than 1997 and 31 percent less than the crop of 1996, according to figures released by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service.

"The High Plains crop, even though most experts project it to yield well, is going to be expensive. Producers had to irrigate heavily, sometimes using twice as much water as normal to make a crop," Boman said.

In most cases, dryland cotton seed never got the chance to germinate. Boman expects only about 200,000 acres of non-irrigated cotton to be harvested.

The area set a record low for rain from April until July, coming in two inches below the previous record set during the Dust Bowl in 1934.

"In spite of the drought, quality is not as low as could be expected," Boman said. "The color is exceptionally good and fibers have little stain. When compared with 1997, there is less trash (leaf bits and pieces) in the cotton that has been ginned," he said. "The length of the cotton fibers is only a little shorter and the fiber strength only a little weaker than last year. Processors desire a fiber that is long (up to a certain point), fine and strong."

However, Boman said, exposure to weather in the field could decrease quality greatly. Bolls, for instance, are more likely to be stained from rainwater and dirt and contaminated with leaf and limb matter when harvested.

"We need some drying weather, then a few light frosts to condition the plants, then a slammer frost to shut the plants down," he said. "Up until now, producers have had to apply defoliant so plants would drop their leaves and the bolls could be harvested. That adds to production costs and drops profit margins even lower."

Anderson said there have been other years when the weather has hurt the cotton industry; however, he has not seen a year when it has hurt the crop this badly.

"This is one of the worst (statewide) cotton crops ever," Anderson said. "The 1998 drought is expected to cause a direct loss of $704 million to cotton producers."

Cotton is considered Texas' number one cash crop. In normal years, it accounts for 12 percent of all agricultural production in Texas, and Anderson expects this year's loss to severely damage the state's agricultural economy.

However, he said, he did not expect many farmers to go out of business because of the poor crop. "Producers will grow other crops because of the higher risks associated with cotton and the lack of a cost-effective pest control program at this time.

"Farmers will be trying to maintain rotation patterns that include a little less cotton and a little more grain," he said.

In other areas of the state, drier weather this week is being welcomed. Joe Pena of Uvalde, Extension agricultural economist, said Southwest Texas producers are still trying to clean up and recover from the floods of mid-October.

Field restructuring, silt removal and barn replacements will take years to recover from, Pena said.

Lin Wilson of Corpus Christi, Extension director, said the Coastal Bend also is still recovering from the floods. Many areas are still too wet for activities, rice yields are down and large volumes of harvested hay have been lost because of flooding, he said.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: soil moisture very short to short. Good rains ranging from .5 to2 .5 inches fell. More rain is predicted for this week. Cotton harvest 60 percent complete. Peanut harvest continues with good yields. Sorghum benefitting from rain and delayed freeze.

SOUTH PLAINS: soil moisture short. Wet conditions have delayed harvest of crops. Cotton in fair condition; 85 percent of bolls are open. Sorghum harvest is 48 percent complete. Sunflower harvest is complete Ranges will benefit from moisture.

ROLLING PLAINS: soil moisture short. Area remains dry, but cooler temperatures have provided some relief. Cotton harvest continues at a slow rate. Wheat responded to rain received last week and planting continues. Peanut yields average to fair.

NORTH TEXAS: soil moisture very short to adequate. Armyworms still causing problems in newly planted fields. Peanuts in poor condition. Cutting and baling of hay continues. Trees being invaded by beetles decause of the stress of the summer drought.

EAST TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Warm season grasses short; planting of ryegrass and small grains in progress. Good emergence of wheat; few hay cuttings continue. Poor peanut yields; most to be baled. Spraying for borers continue in peaches.

FAR WEST TEXAS: soil moisture short to surplus. Warm days and rainfall have greened up much of area. Cotton fair to poor, rains halted harvest in some areas. Wheat is being planted due to recent moisture. Livestock in fair condition.

WEST CENTRAL: soil moisture very short to adequate. Cotton defoliating and stripping continues. Forage and grain sorghum production was poor to fair. Wheat producers continue to scout fields for armyworms. Early pecan varieties nearing harvest. Pecan harvest poor.

CENTRAL TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Ryegrass germination increased with recent rains. Bermudagrass production slowing with cooler temperatures. Producers getting final cutting of hay. Established wheat making good progress.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: soil moisture surplus. Continuing to recover from the October floods. Cool, open weather helping all fall growth. Peanut harvest resumed, but suffered heavy losses from the flood. Onion planting delayed because of the rains.

Food safety at school: "Safe Sacking"

Twelve million cases of food poisoning occur annually. For most people, food poisoning is usually unpleasant, but not terribly serious; however, 9,000 people die annualy from foodborne disease. Unfortunately, most bacteria that cause foodborne illness cannot be seen, smelled or tasted. The way to control their growth is to prevent conditions that allow them to multiply.

Children's sack lunches can post a challenge because you need to pack nutritionally-sound lunches, but also need to make the portable meals safe and fun to eat. Just remember to practice "safe sacking."

- Keep hot foots hot and cold foods cold to prevent growth of bacteria that can cause foodborne illness.
- Send hot meals (soups) in an insulated thermos.
- Pack cold foods (salads) with ice packs in insulated lunch bags.
- For drinks, pack frozen juice boxes that will thaw by mealtime.
- Wrap sandwiches tightly, then put them in a sealed bag or container. Refrigerate if made ahead.
- Wash the top of beverage containers, or use a straw or cup.
- Clean plastic lunch boxes daily with soap and water. Only use paper or plastic or plastic bags once.
- Wash fresh fruit and vegetables before putting in a lunch or eating.
- Keep sandwiches in the refrigerator until leaving.
- Wash hands before preparing lunches and before eating them.
- Use frozen juice boxes or freezer gels to keep lunches cool.

Keep in mind, certain foods are not safe at room temperature, such as:

- Cooked or uncooked meats.
- Cooked vegetables
- Dairy products

Try these "safe at room temperature" foods instead:

- Fresh or dried fruit
- Fresh vegetables
- Breads
- Cookies

Republicans now rethinking strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats' surprising showing in House and Senate races left Republicans rethinking their strategy and strengthened President Clinton's hand in his struggle against impeachment. "It's got to take some of the steam out of it," the Senate's top Democrat said.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich saw his predictions of big Republican gains in the election blown away. "We have to look carefully at what happened and at what lessons Republicans have to learn," Gingrich said today.

Gingrich rejected the suggestion, pushed by Democrats, that the voters sent a message against impeachment. He said Republicans were not about to "take a major constitutional duty and reduce it to the level of who can spin best."

Presidential press secretary Joe Lockhart said when the 106th Congress convenes in January, "the atmosphere should be more positive" toward issues Clinton has pushed — school construction, Social Security and health insurance reforms.

In an election in which all but six of 401 House incumbents were returned, the GOP retained control of Congress, its third majority in a row. But the Republicans' already-slim margin was trimmed. In the Senate, with only Nevada's race still undecided, the Republicans had made no headway. Republicans also lost their hold on governors' seats in California and four other states but nearly offset that by picking up four new governorships.

"It's disappointing," said Sen. Don Nickles of Oklahoma, the Senate's No. 2 Republican. Some Republicans groused that their party had neglected issues most important to the country or miscalculated by focusing too much on Clinton and his affair with Monica Lewinsky:

—"If you make it a referendum on a president with a 67 percent approval rating, you shouldn't be surprised if the election goes against you," Republican Gov. Tom Ridge said as he coasted to re-election in Pennsylvania.

—Millionaire publisher Steve Forbes, angling for the Republican presidential nomination in 2000, said the GOP leadership "will have a lot to answer for."

—Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott said, "We need to talk more as Republicans about our commitment to tax cuts and growth and local control of education."

—Influential conservative Christian broadcaster James Dobson said Gingrich and Lott must be held accountable for Republican losses, a result, he said, of their ignoring issues pushed by conservatives and caving in to Clinton on the budget. "When the team is losing you get rid of the coach," he said in a telephone interview.

Police want to question Vermont man in slaying of doctor in New York

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Investigators said today they are looking for a Vermont man for questioning in the fatal shooting of abortion doctor Barnett Slepian.

James Charles Kopp of St. Albans, Vt., is being sought as a material witness in the case, meaning he's not a suspect, but police believe he has information that would help in the investigation.

The Buffalo News had reported Monday that police were investigating why a Vermont man with ties to the anti-abortion movement was jogging near the Slepian home. The story did not identify the man, and investigators today wouldn't say whether Koop had ties to the anti-abortion movement or whether he was believed to be the jogger.

Slepian, 52, was killed by a sniper Oct. 23 while at home in the Buffalo suburb of Amherst with his wife and four sons. Police believe his killing was connected to four other shootings of doctors who performed abortions in Canada and the United States.

Police issued a 1997 photograph of Kopp, 44, a white man with brown hair and a goatee. Other than that, authorities gave no personal information on him today.

"We don't have any idea where he is. We are looking for him everywhere we can," said FBI Special Agent Bernard Tolbert. Canadian authorities are also looking for him, Tolbert said.

A material witness warrant was issued based in the sighting of a 1987 black Chevrolet Cavalier that was seen in Amherst in the weeks before the shooting. The car was traced to Kopp.

Investigators wouldn't say how many times the vehicle had been spotted.

The warrant gives authorities the power to detain Kopp until he provides the evidence that police believe he possesses. Tolbert would not say what information Kopp is believed to have.

Former wrestler elected governor of Minnessota

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Body is now The Governor.

In one of the most stunning upsets in U.S. political history, former professional wrestler Jesse "The Body" Ventura was elected governor Tuesday over Minnesota's most famous political name and a rising Republican star.

"It's truly mind-boggling," Ventura told cheering supporters. The Reform Party candidate said his victory "stunned the world" and proved that the American dream still exists.

With 92 percent of precincts reporting today, Ventura had 714,327 votes, or 37 percent of the total. Republican Norm Coleman had 661,761 votes, 34 percent, and Democrat Hubert Humphrey III had 541,609 votes, or 28 percent.

The bald, mustachioed 47-year-old Ventura proved an irresistible alternative to pinstriped politicians who wound up playing his straight men. When asked how he would deal with stubborn legislators, the wrestler-turned-actor-turned-mayor flexed his substantial biceps.

Haywood polled in his home county of Wichita.

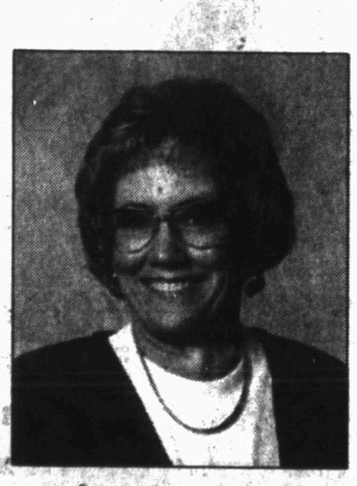

Underwood led the voting in Cottle, Dickens, Fisher, Foard, Hall, Haskell, Knox, Stonewall and Swisher — the largest of those counties being Haskell where 2,094 votes were cast.

"It has been a long campaign," Haywood said, "and Pat and I greatly appreciate the kindness we have encountered along the way. It's a reminder that the best minds in Texas are not in Austin, but in Wichita Falls, Floydada, Snyder and other rural towns throughout the state of Texas."

In 1873, radio electronics pioneer Lee DeForest was born in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

In 1891, petroleum fields were discovered in the region of the Caspian Sea.

Dear Abby

Confident Interfaith Couple Celebrates Happy Marriage

DEAR ABBY: I read with great interest the column in which a young man asked whether or not to marry his girlfriend of another religious faith.

I met my husband more than 15 years ago. I am Christian; he is Jewish. Ours was a similar situation, and friends and relatives from both of our families advised us not to marry — arguing, "What would the children be raised?"

The Christians wanted my husband to convert, and the Jews were upset that he was marrying out of the Jewish faith. My husband finally got fed up and told everyone to mind their own business because we were 27 years old and could decide for ourselves in a country that grants everyone religious freedom.

Today we're happily married and the parents of three wonderful children who celebrate and respect both religions. They pray all the time and have a deep respect for God. In the meantime, many of our friends and relatives who married within their faiths have divorced, and some of them do not have children with whom to share their faith. Furthermore, some of them have stopped attending worship services at all.

One relative recently told me that our children cannot respect two religions. I told her firmly, "You have to get over this issue. The children have a Jewish dad and a Christian mom. They do respect both religions, and they could probably teach you something about tolerance."

Perhaps John (the Apostle) put it best: "Love is from God; everyone who loves is born of God and knows God." (I John 4:7).

I hope the couple go ahead and follow their hearts, and I send my best wishes for happiness to them.

DIANA K. RUBIN,
PISCATAWAY, N.J.

DEAR DIANA: It is my belief that couples who love each other, respect each other's differences and are willing to compromise can overcome just about any barrier they encounter. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to couples considering marriage to someone of another faith is right on the mark. Honest communication and compromise are fundamental to success, along with self-awareness and basic familiarity with each other's religion. It's not always easy to know how you'll feel about the religious identification of your children when you're not even married yet and don't really know the difference between a baptism and a bris.

Another resource for Jewish/Christian couples, in addition to meetings with clergy, are programs like "Let's Talk" or "Yours, Mine and Ours," sponsored by Reform Jewish Outreach. Couples meet with the guidance of a trained facilitator to explore common issues of child-rearing and family holidays and to search out solutions that work for them.

U.S. medical volunteers return safely from flood-soaked Central America

HOUSTON (AP) — The poverty and despair Operation Rainbow volunteers encounter on their medical relief missions are acute, even in the best of weather.

Their visit to Nicaragua on Oct. 24 was typical of missions the Sugar Land, Texas-based group has undertaken over the last 20 years: Go into the primitive wilderness and perform orthopedic reconstructive surgery for indigent children.

Then, Hurricane Mitch struck last week.

"You could see people floating down the river, dead," said Michael McCall, medical supply organizer and one of 16 volunteers who returned to the United States on Tuesday after nearly a week of dwindling fresh water and no power.

A total of 19 Operation Rainbow volunteers performed three days of reconstructive surgery on children in the town of Esteli, which was cut off by flood waters as Mitch unleashed more than two feet of rain.

Government officials believe more than 7,000 people died in the flooding, including 2,500 or more in Nicaragua alone. And the dying won't stop just because flood waters are receding, another American who returned Tuesday said.

"The weak, children, those who are undernourished, they're all people who will probably succumb or have serious problems," said Dr. Andrew Infosino, an anesthesiologist who also hails from the San Francisco area.

Dengue fever, malaria and cholera are among the diseases that could prey upon flood victims left homeless among the raw sewage and other unsanitary conditions in the storm's wake.

"If you have cholera, it isn't but a couple of days before you get so dehydrated you die," said Dr. John Herzenberg of the Baltimore area. "The problem is you can't transport these people, there are no roads."

In a phone interview with The Associated Press, Esteli attorney Migdalia Gurdian Centeno estimates more than 2,000 are homeless or sick in the city of 100,000 in northern Nicaragua.

"They don't have help from the government and they are dying from hunger and sickness," she said.

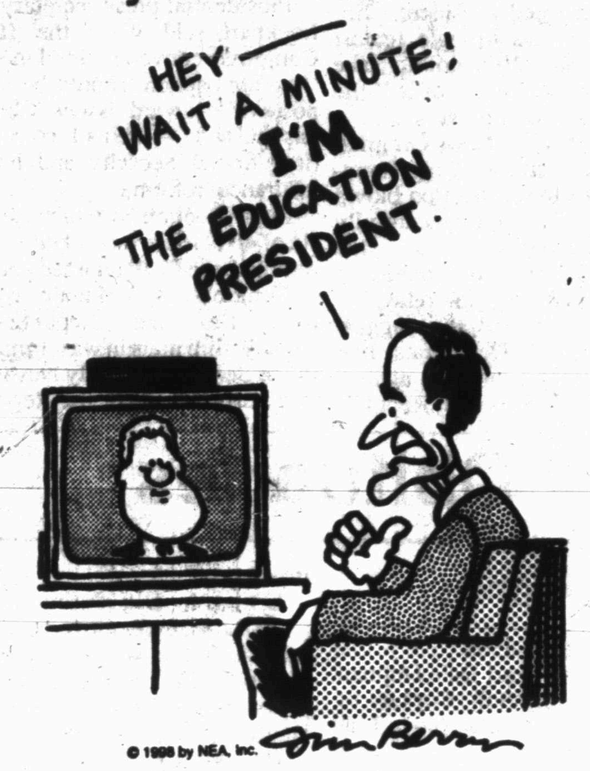

The group's members gave away extra clothing, towels, food and shoes to victims, anesthesiology technician Raul Sanchez said. He noted that even in the face of tragedy, Nicaraguans were the "most wonderful, warm people."

Three other volunteers couldn't fit on the military helicopter that airlifted most of the group to Managua on Monday. Charity officials were hopeful they would arrive at Bush Intercontinental Airport in Houston on Wednesday.

Most of the 16 who returned were from Northern California, with others from Utah and the Baltimore area. They took connecting flights from here to their hometowns Tuesday.

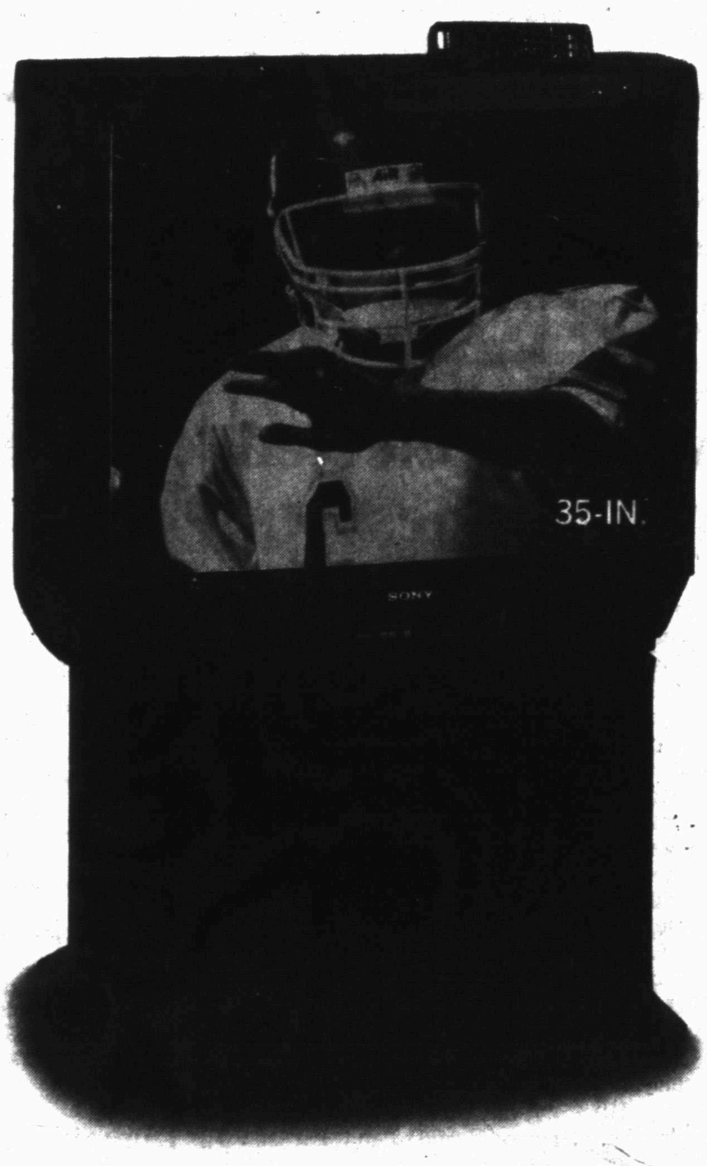

Some talked about anticipating a good meal. Others were willing to settle for a hot shower.
