Thousands Hear Robinson At Dallas Labor Day Festivities

'JOE' CHARGES G. O. P. SERVES BIG INTERESTS

Smith Characterized By Nominee as 'Friend Of Humble'

SPEAKS AT CISCO

Robinson to Continue His September Tour At Cisco Today

By GORDON K. SHEARER

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith was characterized as a friend of "those who dwell in humble homes," and his labor record was lauded by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, in a Labor day address here this afternoon.

The Republican party has always served the great interests, in contrast to the service rendered to the masses by the Democratic party, Senator Robinson said.

HEAR ROBINSON

Judge W. M. Moore, Judge Edgar Scurry, Charles I. Francis, C. C. McDonald, A. H. Britain were among Wichitans who heard the address of Joe Robinson in Dallas Monday afternoon.

The address opened the nominee's September campaign tour during which he will stump those portions of the south that are being contested.

"By his record of honest service to the great body of his constituents, his understanding and sympathy for plain people, Governor Smith has drawn like a magnet the respect and affection of millions of men, women and children who dwell in humble homes and walk in lowly ways, but those hearts are loyal to all that is best in our government. Their simple faith counts more in the long run than the gratitude of the powerful purchased by favors at the expense of the weak," Robinson said.

Thousands at Park

One of the greatest holiday crowds that ever gathered in Dallas greeted the nominee when he arrived here. Thousands packed Fair park to hear his address this afternoon.

Tomorrow night Senator Robinson will speak at Cisco, Texas, the smallest city ever given place on a campaign tour of a vice presidential candidate. In visiting Cisco, Senator Robinson is paying a compliment to a boyhood school friend, Judge Eugene Lankford, who will introduce him.

In his address today, Senator Robinson said the test by which a fair conclusion may be reached as to the measures and policies which a political party and its measures are likely to advance are: (1)—The record of measures advocated or enacted; (2) the platform declarations; and (3) the disposition of the party's candidates as evidenced by their performances and utterances.

SPUDDERS CINCH TITLE WITH TWIN VICTORY OVER PANTHERS

THE RACKET SPREADS

No longer is racketeering confined to its birthplace—Chicago. Gangsters there have found it so profitable that they have started to extend their reign of terror to other principal cities of the Middle West.

This is only one of the amazing and interesting facts concerning the racket games, as revealed in a special series of articles by James P. Kirby, NEA Service and Record News writer, who has recently investigated gangland activities in the Middle West.

Kirby has spent years in investigating crime, having been probation officer for Cleveland. He is the author of "Criminal Justice," now used as a textbook in Columbia, Ohio State, Tulane and other universities.

The first article will appear in The Record News Thursday, Sept. 6. Seven others will follow on succeeding days. His stories will give you an amazing picture of this new form of organized crime.

Four Injured As Dome of Building At Fair Caves In

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 3. (AP) Three women and a 4- year-old girl were injured today when the dome of the Palace of Fine Arts building at the Pacific Southwest exposition here collapsed, hurling timbers, plaster and wire lath on the numerous spectators beneath.

Collapse of the dome was blamed on settling of earth beneath the building.

Londoner to Attempt Another Speed Record

LONDON, Aug. 3. (UP)—Captain Malcolm Campbell has completed plans for further assaults on the world automobile speed record. He hopes to make 220 miles an hour on a sunbaked stretch of clay near Damascus.

SLOAN JOINS HOOVER RANKS

General Motors Head Deserts Raskob

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (UP)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors corporation, came out for Herbert Hoover and prohibition today in a whole-hearted statement endorsing the Republican candidate and the Republican record.

Sloan's statement, carefully emphasized as an individual position, set the big-business political weather vane to twirling more merrily than ever in view of the fact the two other most important General Motors executives had previ-

Democratic Bolters May Lose Committee Posts at Meet Today

Differences between members of the Democratic county executive committee probably will be adjusted when the committee meets at the call of Judge Edgar Scurry, chairman, at the courthouse Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The adjustment, according to advance information, will take the form of releasing from committee membership all who have expressed opposition to or are known to oppose the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee.

Tuesday's meeting is expected to witness the last fight but one between the constitutional and the Democratic elements in Wichita county. Should the regulars be successful in their plans to oust anti-Smith members from the committee, which is probable, little hope is held for seating of the constitutional delegation to the state convention at Dallas next Tuesday.

Battle at Dallas

A number of the more earnest Smith supporters here already have declared that seating of the delegation selected at the county convention of Aug. 4 would be protested by a delegation of regular Democrats in Dallas next week. Although Judge Scurry has not indicated that he will advocate selection of a delegation to be composed of supporters of the party national nominee for representation of Wichita county at the state convention, such action is contemplated, it is understood.

The possibility loomed that much the same coup would be attempted at the Dallas convention as the regular Democrats successfully staged at Beaumont in May.

At the convention two delegations both claiming to be representatives of Wichita county and both claiming to hold the records of the county convention made the trip to Beaumont. One delegation was headed by B. D. Sartin, one of the state constitutional leaders. The

BOARD DROPS CABE OUSTER

Educators Refuse to Name Successor

Holding that J. T. Cabe is not released of his duties as county juvenile officer until so advised by the county commissioners' court, Burl Bryant, B. M. Dinsmore and J. W. Cantwell refused Monday afternoon to submit a list of three names from which Mr. Cabe's successor might be chosen.

According to state statutes the county superintendent and the superintendents of the two largest independent school districts in a county form ma board which shall, at an order from the proper authorities, present a list of three names from which the juvenile officer is to be named. Mr. Bryant is county superintendent and Mr. Dinsmore and Dr. Cantwell are superintendents of Electra and Wichita Falls schools respectively.

When Mr. Cabe last Tuesday received a letter from E. W. Nicholson, county judge, advising him that the office of county juvenile officer was vacant, he refused to accept this discharge from Judge Nicholson, contending that power of discharge was not vested in the county judge but in the commissioners' court.

Since Tuesday the matter of Mr. Cabe's discharge or retention has been hanging fire, pending further action. Mr. Cabe has continued to occupy his office at the courthouse.

Apparently the next move is up to the commissioners Tuesday. No indication of what action they might take at their meeting was available Monday night.

Vaudeville Dancer May Recover From Poisoning

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Tuchton, 21-year-old vaudeville dancer, was recovering in Bellevue hospital today from the effects of a poison which she swallowed yesterday in a room in the Hotel Stanley.

Mrs. Tuchton was suffering from burns and was unable to talk today. In a note written to her nurse she said: "I realize I made a mistake to do it." She will be able to leave the hospital within two weeks, officials said.

Galloway's Men To Return Wednesday From Road Trip

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 3.—Proclaim a half holiday and call out the band Wednesday, Mr. Akin or Mr. Fairtrace or whoever attends to those duties. For our Spudders are coming home Wednesday, winners of the second half of the Texas league race.

That achievement, toward which the Spudders have been approaching for more than a month, reached fulfillment today. By taking a double header from the Fort Worth Cats, Jeems Galloway's men cinched beyond all mathematical doubt, the second half honors.

The scores of the pastime this beautiful afternoon were 2 to 1 and 2 to 0, and they were scintillating ball games, as good as one can see in any man's league. The Spudders won through timely hitting, brilliant fielding and superb pitching by Mike Cvengros and George Payne.

Payne Allows One Hit

Working the nightcap of seven innings by agreement, Payne chucked one of the greatest games turned in in the Doak Roberts loop this campaign. Only one hit, that on a ball that would have been fielded by Turgeon except for taking an erratic hop, was made off the screw ball master. Only 23 men faced him, of whom one walked and one sacrificed.

After the first inning when he issued the base on balls, and except for the fifth, when the fluke hit was made, Payne turned back the Kittens in order.

Cvengros' hurling in the opener was also a masterpiece. He limited the hostiles to five hits, and except in the seventh kept them scattered along as many innings. Of the 10 Cats who got on base, five on passes, only two led off innings by reaching first. He struck out four, three of them with men on bases.

Paul Wachtel, veteran spitballer, also pitched excellent ball. He gave up only three hits, but those blows were bunched in the second and third innings with a couple of walks and a sacrifice to produce the runs. Lapan, Benton, Turgeon and Fitzgerald produced the knocks that accounted for the tallies.

Wachtel worked seven innings and is charged with defeat. Goff finished.

Jimmy Walkup, too, pitched a corking game in the afterpiece. He

Prince Practices With Guns for Game Hunt

LONDON, Sept. 3. (UP)—The Prince of Wales practiced up on shooting over the week-end in preparation for his forthcoming big game expedition in East Africa.

The prince chose an obscure spot on the sands at Ferring-on-the-Sea, a village between Worthing and Little Hampton, for his practice. Dressed in khaki pants and a sweater, he sat on a soap box with a .22 rifle and a box of cartridges and shot at another soap box painted as a target 100 yards away.

Auto Theft Suspect Not Kin to Jesse James

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3. (UP)—The youth arrested for an automobile theft in Carlinville, Ill., who claimed to be a grandson of Jesse James, is an impostor, Estelle James, granddaughter of the famous bandit, said today.

"My three sisters and myself are the only grandchildren of Jesse James," she said. "There are no grandsons."

ELECTRA BOY DIES

Lewis Bodine, 13, Fatally Hurt When Struck By Auto

W. M. Featherston of Petersburg, Hale county, brother of Solon and C. H. Featherston and father of W. B. Featherston, all of Wichita Falls, was instantly killed when struck by lightning while drilling in wheat on his farm Monday afternoon, according to word received by relatives here Monday.

The brothers and son left Wichita Falls Monday night for Petersburg.

Mr. Featherston is survived by his widow, Mrs. Fannie Featherstop; one daughter, Miss Gladys Featherston; four sons, W. B. Featherston of Wichita Falls, Charles Featherston, a student at Texas Technological college at Lubbock, and Moxley and Billie Featherston of Petersburg; his father, E. B. Featherston of Aspermont; three brothers, W. F. Featherston of Aspermont and C. H. and Solon R. Featherston of Wichita Falls, and four sisters, Mrs. J. D. Roberts of Lubbock, Mrs. J. D. Ashburn of Abilene, Mrs. Mary Gardner of Aspermont and Mrs. J. D. Back of McLean.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed Monday night.

ELECTRA BOY DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 3.—Lewis Bodine, 13, was fatally injured Monday afternoon when he was run down by an automobile driven by Mrs. W. T. Waggoner Jr.

The boy died about 4:20 in the Parmley-Ogden hospital without having regained consciousness.

The boy's father, J. A. Bodine, was an employe of the Waggoner refinery and has resided ni Electra for several years.

Besides his parents Lewis is survived by five brothers. Funeral arrangements had not been made late Monday night.

Host of Indians To Cast Votes This Year

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. (US)—Voting with their white brothers in the presidential election this year will be thousands of Indians who were enfranchised in 1924, the department of the interior pointed out today.

Two-thirds of the American Indians had acquired citizenship in one way or another prior to the year 1924. That year congress passed a law which gave citizenship to all native born Indians.

German Girl Progressing On English Channel Swim

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Sept. 3. (UP)—Miss Annie Meynell, German swimmer, was making good progress on her attempt to swim the English channel today.

She plunged into the water at 4:25 a. m., and six hours later disappeared in the haze. At that time she was about six miles out.

Woman Chosen to Rule Province in Russia

KALUGA, Russia., Sept. 3. (UP)—Serefina Llubimova, an attractive woman of 30 has been chosen chairman of the central executive committee of Kaluga province, a position which corresponds to governor. The peasants of the province excitedly discussed their "young lady governor."

Coolidge's Son Has 'Sax Appeal'

While President Coolidge longs for his son John to settle down to some such pursuit as international banking or railroading, John keeps himself amused by attending pajama parties, singing and dancing and conducting himself altogether like any other young college boy would. John toots a mean saxophone, at which the president looks askance, and also plays the piano and sings popular songs during dance intermissions. Meantime a secret service man is always at John's side to see that his "sax appeal" doesn't carry him away.

'Sunday' Cops $4500 Turtle Race Prize; Electran's Entry Places

PONCA CITY, Okla., Sept. 3. (UP)—"Sunday," an unpedigreed land turtle, today won the title of fastest terrapin in the United States. He came in first in the fifth annual national terrapin derby and won a prize of $4,500.

The prize winning turtle navigated the 75-foot course in one minute and 47 seconds. This bettered the time of one minute and 55 seconds made by Scar Face, a bronze speedster who set the best time in the elimination races Sunday. But today's time came nowhere near the record of one minute and six seconds made two years ago.

Sunday crossed the finish line a scant shell ahead of "Anonymous," who was owned by H. L. Helton, of Fairfax, Okla. The second place winner was given $750.

Caffey, owner of the first prize winner, is a Ponca City night watchman who found the turtle three weeks ago Sunday while on his way to work.

"I just thought he might be lucky so I picked him up and entered him under the name of the Sabbath."

Other prize winners were: "Uncle Joe," owned by Sam Bowden, Electra, Texas, winning a prize of $500; "Lucky," owned by J. J. Lun, Fairfax, Okla., $250; and "Chad," owned by Earl Shadway, Hardy, Okla., $125.

Nearly 10,000 persons witnessed the race which was one of the features of the 101 ranch annual rodeo. Sunday 10 elimination races were held to narrow the field of 4,800 turtles to 50 qualifiers for the derby.

Prospective Rail Strike Discussed at Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. (UP)—A. F. Whitney of Cleveland, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, arrived in Chicago today for conferences with E. P. Curtis, president of the Order of Railway Conductors and other officials preparatory to announcing the result of a strike vote taken among trainmen and conductors of 58 western railroads.

The strike, if called, would affect 70,000 men but it is believed the walkout can be averted by a plan of mediation now under consideration by committees representing the brotherhoods.

Crew of Floridian Brought to Safety

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 3. (AP)—Saying they felt lucky to be alive, the 40 men of the crew of the rammed freighter Floridan, were brought into Seattle today aboard the steamer Admiral Fiske. The Admiral Fiske also was damaged in the collision between the two vessels off the Washington coast Saturday night.

Gene Asks for Peace On Arrival in Paris

PARIS, Sept. 3. (UP)—Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight champion, arrived today from London and reiterated his plea to be left alone.

As he alighted from the train, French newspapermen demanded answers to the same questions that Tunney has been asked dozens of times since he arrived in Europe.

CAL'S SON HITS ROAD TO WORK

But Nature of Future Job Is Kept Secret

SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 3. (UP)—John Coolidge left here tonight for the East, presumably New York, to "look for a job." His trip eastward will be made via Chicago.

The executive offices exercised secrecy as to the itinerary and final destination, but it was generally understood here that John first would visit New York city and later go to Hartford, Conn. John refused to comment on the trip. Recently it was learned he had been made several attractive offers of employment.

The announcement that Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, would return from Europe about September 10 led attaches of the summer White House to believe that John would be in New York at that time. Miss Trumbull is reported to be John's fiancee.

Russian Communists Laugh at Kellogg

MOSCOW, Sept. 3. (UP)—America's newly signed anti-war treaty furnished the principal object of satire today in a Labor day parade of practically all communist boys and girls in the capital.

Many of the hundreds of floats in the parade derided the treaty of Secretary of State Kellogg. One showed the pact supported upon cannons and bayonets.

North Carolina Nominee To Support Al Smith

BOONE, N. C., Sept. 3. (AP)—Asserting he would wholeheartedly support Gov. Alfred E. Smith and the national Democratic ticket, O. Max Gardner of Shelby, Democratic nominee for governor of North Carolina today opened his campaign in an address at the court house here.

Ile de France Plane Rushes Mail to Boston

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 3. (UP)—A seaplane catapulted from the French liner Ile de France landed near here at 8:30 a. m. today with mails for the United States and took off at 11:11 for Boston, whence the mails will be distributed by airplane and train.

CITY OFFICERS ARREST CREW OF AMBULANCE

Dummy Tossed From Plane Thrills 12,000 At Flying Circus

INQUIRY PROMISED

Police Question Right Of Drivers to Join In 'Accident' Scare

Police took a hand in the hoax perpetrated on spectators at the flying circus at the Wichita Falls Air Transport flying field Monday afternoon when they technically arrested the driver of an ambulance and his two companions after the ambulance had picked up a dummy thrown from an airplane and rushed the "patient" to Wichita Falls.

The arrest was made by Homer Bentley and O. A. (Spec) Roberson, city motorcycle officers. The officers declared that they believed the ambulance driver had violated the law in making the "fake" run.

Investigation Ordered

Although the driver of the ambulance and his companions were arrested, no charges had been filed against them, and names had not been entered on the police docket Monday night, further action, officers said, is pending a thorough investigation of the circumstances surrounding the hoax.

When questioned by a Record News reporter, Chief of Police Frank Burns said that he had not heard of the arrest, but when acquainted with the incident declared that he believed that the "fake" ambulance run endangered life and should not have been made.

The ambulance, by pre-arrangement, made the journey to the airport and picked up a dummy which had been thrown from an airplane 3,000 feet in the air in order to add a touch of realism to the thrill given the spectators.

Most persons at the circus were fooled by the hoax. During the early evening the telephones at The Record News were kept ringing by persons desiring to learn of the extent of the "man's" injuries.

Airplanes held thrills for the aviation fans and fish held their thrills to the sportsmen, and fireworks, motoring, swimming and the thousand and one things people can do on a holiday held their thrills for Wichitans oper Labor day.

A crowd of 12,000, the most orderly ever seen at an airport here, followed the whirling, rearing and whining ships as their pilots put them through their paces at the Wichita Falls Air Transport field.

Stunts Thrill Crowd

Gene Brewer of Kansas City gave the fans their greatest thrills of the day in his trapeze work on a rope hanging from Slats Rogers' careening plane. His exhibition was one of the best of its kind on record. Twice the ship landed with Brewer riding on the landing gear.

A parachute leap by L. E. McBride also attracted considerable attention. When the wind caught the chute as the rider's feet touched the ground, he was dragged several feet before he was able to control it and stop its progress over the field.

People in downtown Wichita Falls were treated to the sight of ships stunting low over the city at 3 o'clock. This was the curtain raiser of the flying celebration.

The one accident of the day injured no one and did very little damage to the ship." Robert McKnight's Lincoln Page plane from Dallas, driven by Elmer Purdy of Dallas, cracked a pin in the upper part of the landing gear while landing in the late part of the afternoon.

Fulcher Armstrong's new Eaglerock plane, piloted by Boyd Kennedy and motored by the powerful Hispano Suiza motor, had a runaway in the 25-mile triangular race over pylons. The fast, orange winged ship lapped all other planes in the race twice in the 25 miles.

The thrills of the afternoon for stunt flying were in the main given by Shats Rogers in his rebuilt Curtis ship who did everything but an

Stamford Fete Climaxes Wichita Shrine Trek to West

Twenty-Five Novices Initiated in Ceremonial After Barbecue

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Sept. 3.—The Shriners of Masksat Temple of Wichita Falls headed by their divan officers, arrived in Stamford at 12 noon today, after having paraded in Seymour, Bomarton, Goree, Haskell, and Munday from their special train. Until 3 o'clock time was taken up by the registration of novices, then at a business meeting held in which other novices were elected.

At 4 p. m. the parade formed at Oliver street, between Weatherby and Ferguson, and marched west to Swenson, south to Hamilton, east to Ferguson, north to McHarg, west to Weatherby to the center of the square where a band concert was enjoyed by the feaned participants of the parade and others.

At 5:30 a barbecue for Shriners and their wives was held in the lot opposite the Hotel Buena Vista.

The ceremonial was held from 6:30 to 9:00 o'clock at the Stamford high school auditorium after which an entertainment for Master Masons, Shriners and their wives was held.

M. D. Rowe, potentate, officiated in the ceremonial, being assisted by W. H. Caldwell, chief rabban; Ed Patterson, assistant rabban; W. B. Hamilton, high priest and prophet; Ned Chenault, Oriental guide; Albert Eills, recorder; Walter D. Cline, past potentate, and Judge Guy Rogers, past potentate. The degree team which arrived here last night included Herman Munden, Claude Williamson, Ed Tschabold, O. N. Mann, Kindel Faulk, Bob Reynolds, W. B. Ward, Glen Graves, John McMahon, J. L. McElreath, Ollie Reeves, Dick Whittington, W. T. Sadler, Guy Carleton, Charles Hughes, Charles Johnson and Bert Hursh.

Twenty-five novices were initiated into the rites of the Mystic Shrine.

J. M. Thompson and Ray Wilhite were patrol leaders while the band was under the direction of Leon Taylor, and the drum corps under the direction of Joe Bailey. The program for the entertainment of the Master Masons, Shriners and their wives at the high school auditorium followed selections by Stamford Firemen's band.

At 9 o'clock two dances were held for the Shriners and their ladies, one at the Country club, and one at the Stamford auditorium.

America May Lead in Production Of Rubber as British Plan Fails

By LEE GEBHART
(Copyright, 1928, by United Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. (UP)—American private enterprise may take the lead in world rubber production within a few years as a result of the British production restriction plan, which will be automatically repealed Nov. 1, after an unsuccessful six-year test, department of commerce statistics indicate.

The question vitally concerns America's 20,000,000 automobile users who must have rubber tires.

Within eight weeks international attention will be focused on the British rubber market to watch the effect of the removal of the famous Stevenson restriction act. This act caused a near-panic to American consumers and had the direct result of forcing private American enterprise to enter the rubber field.

Prices Jump

In operation since 1922, the restriction plan was successful only in skyrocketing prices and causing deep concern to the United States, but its ultimate result, in the opinion of officials here, may be to force Great Britain to relinquish her monopoly on the world rubber supply.

It's major effect was to cause the United States to appropriate half a million dollars at the height of the restriction to investigate the possibilities of raising rubber in countries not subject to British restriction.

With this survey completed, private enterprise entered the field and whereas America before had produced only a negligible amount of rubber, the projects undertaken by some of the nation's largest rubber companies may make the United States one of the world's largest producers, striking a death blow to the monopoly which Great Britain has had on rubber for many years.

Restriction Schemes

The projects extended and the new ones undertaken as a direct result of the British rubber restriction scheme from 1922 to 1928, are as follows, based on commerce department reports:

The United States Rubber company has extended greatly its plantations and bought additional properties in the Dutch East Indies and British Malaya.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company in the latter part of 1927 purchased about 30,000 acres in the Dutch East Indies beside expanding other plantations there.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber company investigated rubber production possibilities in the Philippine Islands and failing to secure authority to develop more than 2,500 acres, the maximum to any one company, obtained a concession there and also another in Liberia, there reported to be 1,000,000 acres in extent, to be selected by the company after investigation of climatic, soil and transportation facilities. So far approximately 2,500 acres have been placed in cultivation.

Henry Ford secured a concession from Brazil to an area reported to be over three million acres, and although it is understood it has not been started, it is reported most of this area will be devoted to rubber production.

The Intercontinental Rubber company, the only company in the United States devoted solely to crude rubber production, continued its production of Guayule rubber, from a shrub native to Mexico, and greatly increased production.

Thomas Edison experimented with the adaptability of rubber producing plants to the United States, laying the foundation for a domestic rubber industry which, it is understood, he undertook solely for the protection of the country in time of emergency to assure an ample rubber supply being available.

In addition, consumers in the United States formed an emergency body known as the American rubber pool, a combination to combat British restriction, which was the most direct effort by American industry against the British plant to dictate world rubber prices.

Enterprise School To Open Term Sept. 10

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 3.—The Enterprise school, located 10 miles north of Electra, will open on Monday, Sept. 10, according to word received from T. W. Hill, who is a member of the Enterprise school board. A full nine months term of school is expected and four teachers have been employed for the year. Reese Stroud will be the principal and Mrs. Stroud, Miss Smith and Miss Caddell will be the other teachers. All pupils are expected to report on the opening day, for enrollment.

DEMOS FLAUNT G. O. P. 'BUNK'

Franklin Roosevelt Writes Of Smith's Possibilities

Editor's Note: This is the first of two exclusive articles outlining the present political situation. Franklin D. Roosevelt, writing especially for Universal Service, today gives the Democratic viewpoint, declaring Smith's candidacy has changed the nation's politics. Tomorrow Senator George H. Moses will present the Republican side.

By FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT
Democratic Candidate for Vice President in 1920 and a Member of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee
(Copyright, 1928 By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—History shows that the last week in August and the first week in September represent the silly season in political prophesy. In 1886 Mark Hanna thought that McKinley was hopelessly beaten at this same stage of the campaign. In 1904 Alton B. Parker at this stage thought he was elected, and Theodore Roosevelt was calling on Harriman to come to his assistance. In 1912 Woodrow Wilson thought that Theodore Roosevelt would beat him at this same stage of the game.

I am not going to repeat the errors of the past, either in claiming everything or in being despondent, with two months of the campaign ahead.

With this point of view in mind, it is necessary for any sane citizen to look askance at predictions of victory in any city, county or state in any part of the union, whether these predictions are made by Senator Moses or any other so-called practical politician.

Doesn't Favor Bunk

The last thing in the world that I would call myself is a practical politician, but I am at least honest enough to admit, not only to myself but to the public, that any definite prediction about individual states at this time would be pure bunk. Furthermore, I am very much in favor, as is Governor Smith, of taking the bunk out of politics.

Never since 1896 have there been as many cross currents in a presidential election as at the present time. These cross currents are not confined to any section of the country; they exist in the South and the West as well as in the East. It may be worth while to analyze some of these cross currents.

One of the most significant is the undoubted fact that the tendency of business, big and little, to be 90 per cent for the Republican ticket, as it undoubtedly was in 1920 and 1924, has shown a tremendous change this year.

Carrying out this idea of eliminating bunk, the average citizen has at last stopped failing for the old time propaganda that the Democratic party, if returned to power, will hurt the prosperity of the country. The average common sense voter, who is a business man, is not much concerned with what were the tariff issues between the parties in 1878 or in 1892, and he is not falling for the old stuff that the Democratic party would put in free trade and open the flood gates of the products of cheap foreign labor to drown out our own markets.

Demos for Prosperity

It is a very significant fact that I am personally getting letters from literally hundreds of business men all over the United States. A cross section of the average of these letters would read somewhat as follows: "I have always been a Republican and I have always had the feeling in the back of my head in the old days that the Republican party would do more to help business and that there was danger in putting the Democratic party into control. I have been giving a lot of thought to the situation this year, and I have come to the definite conclusion that the Democratic party is just as much interested in the maintenance of national prosperity as are the Republicans. I have watched the business record of Governor Smith during his eight years as governor of the most important business state in the union. I know that he has the support of most of the leading business men in his own state. I am going to support him this year because I believe that, as a practical administrator and as a business man, he will make a better president than Hoover. Furthermore, he has had a splendid experience as an executive in week-in and week-out contact with a legislature. In Washington the president can only accomplish things with the assistance of the congress. I don't believe that Mr. Hoover has the personal characteristics that would enable him to get on with congress and get things accomplished nearly as well as Smith would. In other words I am for Smith because he gets things done."

Representative Thought

That is a fair representation of a large part of the business thought of the United States, and this means that Governor Smith is going to divide the business with Mr. Hoover instead of losing 90 per cent of it as did Governor Cox in 1920 and Mr. Davis in 1924. Along the same line, the day has gone by when the Republican party could hand out the bunk of the full dinner pail and set up the bogey-man of business depression and soup kitchens as they did on several previous occasions.

"Don't forget that the workers in the factories and the mills are far better educated in 1928 than they were a generation ago. It is no longer possible for the head of the factory or his superintendent to post notices saying: "This plant will close down if the Democratic candidate is elected."

Thinking workers—and today most of them are thinkers—know perfectly well that threats of that kind are a joke and that threats of the kind of Democratic tariff revision that will hurt our industries are equally a joke. All of this proves to my mind that in the industrial centers of the United States, no matter in what section, Governor Smith is going to run far ahead of the last two Democratic candidates.

No Farm Relief

Now to come down to the agricultural issues, there is one outstanding fact that neither Mr. Moses nor Mr. Hoover nor anybody else can get away from. This is the plain proof that the farmers of the United States have been rapidly going broke during the past eight years, and I might add that literally hundreds of thousands of farmers have gone broke. During these same eight years the Republican party has promised and promised and promised again some kind of relief for this situation. During these same eight years no relief has been given.

This is a strong statement, but no Republican can get away from that simple fact.

In the corn belt of the United States there are 444 farm failures happening every working day at the present moment. There are three and one-half bank failures in the corn belt during every working day. Eighty-six per cent of all farm land is mortgaged. The farmers of the United States are getting less than any peasant laborer of Europe in return for their work.

Farmers Revolt

What is the answer? It is found in the second important fact—a definite revolt among the farmers of the United States against the complete failure of the Republican party during eight years to accomplish anything for them. There is only one place for these farmers in revolt to go to, and that is to the side of Alfred E. Smith. They are flocking there by hundreds of thousands, not just because they are fed up with unfulfilled promises, but for the further reason that they recognize in Smith a man who does things, a man who carries out his pledges. They are going to take a chance with Smith.

Therein lies another great change from the condition of 1920 and 1924. Governor Smith is going to pick up hundreds of thousands of hitherto Republican votes.

Texas Rangers Invaded New Mexico, Is Claim

FORT STOCKTON, Sept. 3. (UP)—How Texas rangers invaded New Mexico has come to light with complaint of New Mexico officers sent to Washington. Ranger Captain W. A. Wright, stationed here, who led the trip across the border says he is not worried about the outcome. A sign posted in New Mexico read: "Twenty Miles From the Texas Rangers." Wright had his men sworn in as federal officers, went the 20 miles and made a liquor raid.

Electrans to Enter Speed Boats in Race

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 3.—Two Electra enthusiasts of motor boat racing will enter speed boats in the races to be held at Lake Lawtonka, at Medicine Park, Okla., on Sept. 16.

W. T. Waggoner, Jr., intends to enter his fast boat in two classes, one, the C class of outboard motors and the other, class D, in which he will have a special Elto Quad. This small hull and it's 16 horse power motor will develop a speed of 40 miles an hour. The hull is a single step specially built hydroplane.

Ben Miller has a racing Johnson motor and one-step hydroplane which he intends to enter in class B races.

Over $500 in cash prizes have been put up and the racing association there expect boats from all over the southwest and a crowd of spectators numbering to 10,000. The outboard racing association rules will govern all races.

AMARILLO, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—When the sun rises tomorrow "Barrel Stave" Jones will pass out of the fame he acquired by riding his cowpony from Gallup, N. M., to Brule, Wis., to see President Coolidge and he will sling his books over his shoulder to go to school here.

"Barrel Stave," who at 14 years got into the limelight and the news reels is coming to Amarillo to take part in Texas rodeos. He will attend school between exhibitions, the first of which will be at the Tri-State fair, Sept. 22-29.

Workers 'Invited' To Pay $10 Fee And Enter Fold

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN,
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Letters are being received by the 60,000 civil service employes in the District of Columbia inviting them to join the Hoover-Curtis club and informing them that contributions of $10 each will be expected.

This is a species of campaign collecting which has not been resorted to by the Republican national committee for a good many years and the fact that it has been revived now is believed to indicate the organization is having difficulty in raising it's campaign fund of $4,000,000. Of course the law limits the activities of civil service employes. They may vote, belong to a political organization but may not be an officer thereof, and may privately express their opinions on political issues. They may contribute to campaign funds but the law expressly protects them from solicitation within any public building.

'Invitations' Sent

The solicitors in this instance are keeping within the letter of that law by sending the "invitation" to the home address of each civil service employe.

These letters are couched in the most cordial language and contain no hint of the threat which some believe lies behind each one. However, the civil service employes receiving them know just what it meant. Those who join the clubs and through it make the $10 contribution to the Republican campaign fund may reasonably expect not to be molested in their jobs. More than that, if there is a chance for preferment, promotion to a chief clerkship or something like that, the club member believes he would be given prior consideration over a non-club service member.

There is a well grounded belief, however, that the civil service employe who ignores the "invitation" is letting himself of herself in for a lot of trouble. Every so often there are efficiency ratings made of the clerks in the various departments. These ratings fix the classification to which the clerk or other employe belongs and salaries depend upon the classification. The employe who does not evince the proper enthusiasm for the Hoover-Curtis ticket and demonstrate this by submitting to a $10 hold-up may find his or her rating reduced with a subsequent cut in salary of from $120 to $200 a year.

$400,000 Expected

Under these conditions it is a safe assumption that the Hoover-Curtis club of Washington will be able to boast a very large membership. Of course the scheme will not be 100 per cent perfect but it is probable that from 30,000 to 40,000 will thus avail themselves of the opportunity to indicate their affiliation with the party in power. If this be true the Hoover-Curtis war chest will receive contributions from this source amounting to between $300,000 and $400,000, or 10 per cent of the total which Chairman Hubert Work of the national committee says will be needed for this campaign.

"And they talk about Tammany," said one old grizzled veteran of the civil service who admitted that he had contributed his $10, "why even Will Hays, whose campaign slogan was 'get the money, boys' let us poor devils alone!"

Waco Pastor Observes Anniversary Sunday

WACO, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Celebration of the 25th anniversary of the pastorate of Dr. Charles T. Caldwell was observed here Sunday by the First Presbyterian church. Other churches of the same denomination here and in surrounding places joined in the exercises. Dr. Caldwell came to the Waco pastorate from Houston. He succeeded Dr. Samuel A. King. King who held the pastorate of the same church 40 years.

United Press Opens New Salt Lake City Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 3. (UP)—A new United Press bureau was opened today at Salt Lake City to serve the growing newspaper membership of the agency on the west slope of the Rockies.

Coincidentally the transcontinental trunk wire of the United Press, serving state relay points which in turn deliver the news report to the hundreds of dailies which constitute the United Press system in the west, was extended in length and placed on a high speed printer telegraph basis.

The volume of the report was increased approximately 125 per cent.

Morrison Advises U. S. Not to Boast Prosperity

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 3. (UP)—Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor told a labor demonstration today that "We should not boast of our country as a land of prosperity and opportunity" with unemployment at its present stage.

Using, in part, estimates of the U. S. labor department, Morrison placed unemployment now at 3,000,000 persons which he said "means at least 15,000,000 persons, or approximately one-eighth of our population, who are not continually assured of food and shelter."

Sheriff Arrests Man For Crashing Into Car

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 3. (UP)—W. E. Griffin of Guthrie, Okla., was arrested Sunday when he "bumped" his motor car into a parked machine belonging to the sheriff of Shawnee county. Griffin was charged with driving a car while intoxicated.

FAR FROM HOME

Sweetwater Runaway Boy Located In New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (UP)—Eugene Breen, 16, who ran away from his father's ranch near Sweetwater, Texas, seventeen days ago, was found sleeping in a Lower East Side hallway today.

He told police he left home because of stories of life in the city told him by hired help on his father's ranch, but when he reached here the bigness of the city caused him to want to go home.

He said he arrived Friday, but was unable to find two men who left the ranch the day before he went away. Out of funds, he said he telegraphed his father, but received no money. He said he hadn't eaten since he reached here.

Breen was held for investigation.

AD CLUB HEAD TO VISIT HERE

Younggreen to Address October Convention

C. C. Younggreen, president of the International Advertising association, will attend the convention of the tenth district advertising clubs at Wichita Falls, Oct. 22-24, according to word received here Monday.

Notification that Mr. Younggreen will be here to take part in the convention program was received Monday by J. H. Allison, chairman of the program committee of the convention here, in a letter from O. S. Bruck, president of the tenth district. Mr. Younggreen is expected to be one of the leading speakers on the convention program.

Tiny Town Draws Attention to Oil Industry's Largest Title Suit

FORT STOCKTON, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—A two-story stone building sitting on top of a hill holds the records of the greatest oil litigation ever carried on in the history of the petroleum industry.

Here in the Pecos county court house are the maps and deed that will determine ownership of the now world wide famous Yates pool.

Seventeen "vacancy suits" seeking to declare that the land in this famous oil pool is still public land have centered the attention of oil men here this week. Labor day delayed activity in the litigation.

To establish a vacancy, it must be shown that the land was not properly included in any of the surveys. Most of the suits center about the Mrs. M. A. Smith properties. In all 76 suits were filed by W. H. Colquitt, receiver for the Smith oil lands. One of these suits, tried last fall, occupied 18 days. It resulted in a verdict for the receiver. Some of the other suits have been settled by agreement.

Here, a hundred miles from any city of 10,000, the most noted oil and land attorneys will fight out the titles. Of the less than 7,000 residents in this county of 4,134 square miles more than half are in the oil fields. Outside these people there is not a resident to the square mile in what the world's biggest oil well recently demonstrated to be the richest spot in Texas.

There Is No Terror Worse Than A Girl's Loneliness in a Big City

Advice and Comfort for Lonely Girl in a Great City. Can Middle Age and Extreme Youth Really Love Each Other? What to Do With Ungrateful Daughter.

Dear Miss Dix—What does a girl do in a great city when she is—(1) A girl of refined taste, caring for music, art and literature, but too reserved to make friends easily, and so without a single man friend throughout four years' residence in the city to which she has moved.

(2) Too liberal in thought to appeal to the conservatives; too conservative to attract the radical; too independent to have any attention at all for the man who likes the clinging vine.

(3) An agnostic and therefore not a church-goer.

I have always heard of the loneliness of big cities, but now I know how crushing that loneliness can be. I am so tired from the strain of work, and attempted study, from the lack of sunshine and gayety and trying to make ends meet that I have been wondering what it would be like to slip over the side of a ferry, or swallow a little of that powder whose fatal "poison" sign grins sardonically at me every time I open the medicine chest. There must be thousands of girls like me. What do they do?

—Heloise.

Answer—Speaking personally, for I too have been through that inferno of loneliness in the same great city in which you live, you summon all the courage and determination that is in you to your aid, and you dig in, and carry on, until by some miracle that you never understand you win through. Suddenly, it seems to you, the people about you change. Hard, cold eyes look at you with a kindly glance. Silent mouths give you a welcome. The people with whom you are associated, and who have been strangers to you, turn friendly. Doors open to you, and you find yourself one of a warm, affectionate, human group.

But while it lasts there is no experience that is more terrible than the loneliness that every one experiences who goes to a big city in which he or she has no friends or acquaintances. Among the memories upon which I shut the door is that of such an ordeal, when for weeks at a time I would hardly hear the sound of my own voice; when I starved for companionship as a beggar might starve for food; when I tramped the streets until my feet were blistered so that I might look upon my fellow creatures even if I could not speak to them, and when the hours at night in my lonely room seemed endless.

Solitary confinement is one of the severest penalties inflicted upon criminals, but it is scarcely worse than the torture endured by one who is alone in a great city. Many people have not the strength to stand this loneliness, and the Chief of Police of New York once told me that loneliness sent more young girls to the bad than any other cause.

He said that girls from the country and small towns and other cities would come to New York and get a job. At home they were used to family life. They had their parties, their dates and their chums. In the city they were alone with no one to speak to after office hours, with no pleasures and no amusements, and so they fell easy victims to the men who picked them up off the streets and offered them a good time.

How to remedy this situation and provide some way in which the strangers of a great city can get touch with congenial acquaintances, nobody seems to know. But no one will deny that some sort of a social clearing house is a great and imperative need. There should be some sort of place where a young woman and a young man can go with letters of recommendation from their own home towns showing that they are decent and respectable, and where they can be introduced to other men and women who belong to their own class.

In your particular case, Heloise, the problem of how you are to end your isolation is made more difficult by your personal idiosyncrasies. Especially by your reserve. You want friends, but you would have them make all the advances; you want them to cultivate you. Think how egotistic this is. What is there about you that would lead any one to think it worth the trouble to break down your barriers and get at what is fine within you?

You need others more than strangers need you, so my advice to you is to take the initiative. There is no truer saying than that if we wish friends, we must show ourselves friendly. Perhaps the reason you do not attract people is because you do not fit in. You are not adaptable. You bristle with opinions and get into arguments. That makes the average person very tired, so put the soft pedal on your personal views and see if it does not make you a more agreeable compaion. —Dorothy Dix.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Do you think that a middle-aged man who has grown children and a good, faithful wife can really fall in love with a young girl? Isn't it softening of the brain rather than love? Did you ever know of a case where a young girl ever really fell in love with an old man where it wasn't just a pretense to get his money? If it wasn't for breaking the heart of the wife, I would say let every old fool who thinks he is in love with a flapper get a divorce and marry her, and get a good dose of the medicine he needs. What do you think?

—M. J. W.

Answer—I agree with you, M. J. W., that it would make a punishment that would fit the crime, as they sing in the "Mikado." For I have never known of a single case in which an old man has divorced a faithful wife in order to marry a younger girl that has turned out happily, and in which the man did not bitterly repent the mistake he had made.

Many men around 50 go through a period of nervous mental irresponsibility. Up to that time they may have been as domestic as the house cat, happy in their homes and satisfied with their wives, but suddenly all this is changed. They become bored with domesticity and long for freedom and adventure. They look at their wives and realize that they have lost their looks and grown old but they delude themselves into thinking they themselves are still young.

They have a flare-up of youth and romance and they yield to its lure because they realize it is the last call. And if they have made any money there is always some nice little gold-digger hanging around to flatter them, and cajole them, and make them believe that they are still young bucks and the devils with women.

Many a man divorces his faithful old wife and marries a young girl while in this age of irresponsibility, but no sooner is the wedding ceremony safely over than he discovers that his illusion of youth was just a pipe dream, and that he is an old man after all. Also he soon learns that the girl he married has nothing in common with him, that all she wants is his pocketbook, and to run around and have a good time with boys of her own age.

There are no more forlorn creatures in the world than the old husbands of young wives that you see sitting on the sidelines at night clubs, cabarets and restaurants, waiting to pay the bill. And only good to pay the bill.—Dorothy Dix.

Dear Miss Dix—I do everything possible for my daughter. I wait on her hand and foot, but she will not call me mother or even speak to me. She only says: "Did you darn those stockings?" "Did you wash out my blouse?" with never even a "thank you" for doing it. Lately I was sick in bed for two days. She passed my door every day without ever coming in to ask how I was. What can I do? —A Broken Hearted Mother.

Answer—Quit making a servant of yourself for her. Don't do another hand's turn of work for her until she treats you properly. But you brought this treatment on your own head by not teaching your daughter to consider you and be respectful to you when she was a baby. You have to begin training children in the way they should go in the cradle.—Dorothy Dix.

PENNANT FUND MEET TODAY

Committee to Resume Title Campaign

Tuesday will see the Spudder pennant fund actively relaunched with a meeting of the Spudder fund committee in the chamber of commerce it was announced by Horrace Robbins, chairman of the committee, on his return from Detroit.

"We will canvass the work already done, get down to details of resuming the drive, and go after it in a big way," Mr. Robbins declared.

The pennant fund is being raised for a gift of appreciation to the Wichita Falls Texas league team in case it wins the pennant this year. The goal is $7,500. In case the Spudders do not win the title, the subscriptions will be returned.

Wichitans and those in neighboring cities who wish to add to the fund, which was last reported at $3,500, may do so by using the coupon which is printed with this story or by leaving their subscriptions with any member of the fund committee, with Chairman Horrace Robbins, Treasurer, W. E. Huff at 711 Scott avenue, the chamber of commerce, the Record News or the Times.

Straton to Build New Church Edifice

NEW YORK, Sept. 3, (US)—Erection of a skyscraper apartment-church to take the place of the present Calvary Baptist church on West Fifty-seventh street will be suggested in a resolution to be presented to the board of trustees at its meeting on the evening of Sept. 12. This was announced at the regular services in the church today by the Rev. John J. Kelley, assistant pastor.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the church, is the father of the plan.

"Peeping Tom' Goes Down to Sea to Watch the Ladies

But Dainty Misses Give Him a Beating and Toss Him Into the Water

By CORINNE RICH

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—It traveled over to New York today, did the delicious story of the thrashing four society women gave a "Peeping Tom" in Newport. And all the ladies of our "best families" hereabout chorused, "I'm glad of it!" and straightaway sent congratulations to those pugilistic sisters of theirs.

It really was a much better lesson for the man to be given a sound beating for looking at the aristocratic sun-baths nobody on earth was supposed to see that to be turned over to the police.

And didn't it just go to show, say our local ladies, that women, certainly athletic women of the higher classes, can competently take care of themselves!

The Cast

The dramatis personel of the little comedy were as follows:

Miss Robert D. Huntingdon, daughter of Mrs. Moses Taylor.

Mrs. Harriman Russell, daughter of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Democratic and social leader of Washington.

Miss Edith Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward, all prominent in the four hundred of this great city.

One unidentified society woman, a friend of the other three.

One unidentified man, well dressed and driving a Pennsylvania car.

One truck driver, philanthropic but also unidentified.

The Setting

It seems, so the tittle-tattle goes, that the four ladies had been in the habit of taking daily sun-baths—apparently au naturel—at Second beach, a beautiful secluded spot just across the bay from fashionable Bailey beach.

There the August sun shone brightly but not too warm. Huge sand dunes sheltered the bit of beach and made it ideal for swimming and basking in the sun. And evidently the ladies had heard of the benefits from the sun which Mary Garden claims to have derived.

It was pleasant in this retreat from the madding crowd at Newport and the ladies went there often.

The 'Action'

But little by little they began to suspect there was an observer to their sun-baths. They just had a hunch, as women will do, and then they found out they were right.

They had scarcely reached the beach when they heard a motor purr. They looked around carefully and discovered the man in the Pennsylvania car. They resolved to do something about it.

The four women surrounded the car suddenly and berated the man in terms not at all uncertain. In truth, they told him exactly what they thought of a Peeping Tom.

The Climax

Then they grabbed him, pulling him violently out of the car and nearly tearing his clothes off. It was a grand beating they gave the poor fellow; and then as a crowning indignity, they carted him off to the water and dumped him in.

As they marched off for more worlds to conquer, the four hoped their victim wasn't badly hurt. They met a truck driver and asked him to minister to the man's wants, which must have been plenty:

"Sure, an' I was a-watchin' ye," said the driver, "but ye didn't need me to help any. Faith an' begorry, no!"

Folks down here who know the four ladies are betting there'll be no more Peeping Toms in Newport this season.

Proposed Road To Open New Route

RANGER, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—With the building of a proposed highway extending almost straight between Strawn and Dallas, it is claimed that the transcontinental automobile tourist would have about 50 miles less to travel between Dallas and points along the Bankhead highway or the West Texas section of the Broadway of America.

This highway would pass through some of the finest farms in West Texas and in addition, would open up some virgin territory. Towns along the route would be opened to a national highway, which really have a right to that because of their geographical location.

Among the towns that would be on or near the route of the proposed highway are Mingus, Gordon and Judd in Palo Pinto county; Grandbury, county seat of Hood county; Cedar Hill and Duncanville, in Dallas county; Cresson, Burleson, Mansfield, the latter two in Tarrant county. All are thriving and prosperous towns and it is believed the people along the route would work earnestly for the building of a straightaway highway that would give them direct transcontinental affiliation.

While no definite steps have yet been taken for the designation and building of this short cut highway, there has been considerable discussion of the project and it is believed that something will be done in the near future.

'We Step' Wins Beaumont Yacht Club's Regatta

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 3. (AP)—"We Step," an outboard motor boat owned by M. H. Runnels, Houston, proved her superiority here today in the Beaumont Yacht club's Labor day regatta in the Neches river before a crowd of more than 6,000 spectators.

The craft was winner in every heat and the final race of the Class C, 12 horse power motors event, and won the flying colors in the free-for-all.

Gigantic Array Of Communists Parade

MOSCOW, Sept. 3. (AP)—A gigantic army of young communist boys and girls from 5 to 20, marched in military order to Red Square this afternoon to "prove to the whole world" their leaders said, that they were "ready to struggle and die for proletarian dictatorship."

Crosby County Has Youngest Officials

CROSBYTON, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Crosby county is claiming the youngest newly elected sheriff and judge in the state of Texas.

Sheriff Elmer Reed was re-elected to that office in the primary on July 28, without an opponent. He will be 25 years old Nov. 25, and has already served one term, being elected to the office at the age of 23. Elmer, as he is called, is for enforcement of all the laws, the prohibition included, as is evidenced by his attack on the liquor law violators of the county.

Judge Edgar Hutchins was elected county judge at the July 28 primary by a vote of 1,476 to his opponent's 898. Judge Hutchins is 22 years of age and is a graduate of Burleson college of Greenville and the University of Texas. He has taught school in Texas for the past five years, the last two in Crosbyton. In the election, he carried every voting box in the county with the exception of one in which there were 13 votes cast. His opponent got seven of those.

George Harper, Editor For 65 years, Dies

ROBINSON, Ill., Sept. 3. (UP)—George Harper, for 65 years editor of the Robinson Argus, a Republican weekly which he purchased in 1863, died here today. He was 91 years old, and was believed to have established a record by his long continuous service on the same paper.

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES MORGAN, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

"If a man say, I love God, and hated his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God, Whom he hath not seen?"—First Epistle St. John iv, 20.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The news that Fred Stone had been seriously injured in an aeroplane accident saddened everyone who had ever seen this master clown and comedian on the stage. Stone had always prided himself on his ability to master any physical effort easily, and the only one this writer recalls at which he never excelled with golf. This he gave up.

He became such a good boxer that he once battled Corbett, when the latter was in his prime, to a standstill for six rounds and he was urged to become professional middleweight boxer which he declined to do. Well beyond the 50 mark, he aspired to become a flier, and it was during a solo voyage that he was hurt. Probably as soon as he is well enough, he will be back at it.

Years ago, Mr. Stone and his brother-in-law, Rex Beach, the novelist, who is built like the battleship Colorado, were dining quietly in old Rector's when two tackles from the Princeton football team entered as Beach and Stone were leaving. Spoiling for a fight, the football players began ot pick on these two gentlemen, and they would have been just as safe if they had monkeyed with T. N. T., dynamite and percussion caps. Finally one of the college boys snatched Stone's hot and tossed it under the coats and hats hung in the doorway. Mr. Stone responded with a right to the chin. Mr. Beach had already started out through the revolving door, and, when he saw the rumpus, he spun around in it like a squirrel in a wheel in his anxiety to get back. When they finally fished the two tackles out from under the hats and coats where they had been knocked it was evident their next stop should be a hospital. Naturally when they could talk through their bandages they expressed some curiosity about their two opponents. Their comment was interesting.

"We certainly picked on a couple of tough birds."

Bruce Barton, the writer, is a great supporter of Herbert Hoover and admires him very much.

"At first, I didn't think I would like him," remarked Mr. Barton, "because all the people in his department called him 'Chief'."

This, to me, is an interesting angle. Why should a little thing like that at first prejudice a man, and yet I must admit it does me. It is like the stilted form which some business executives use when addressing one another. One man says to another.

"No, J. B., I can't go to lunch with you today. I've got a date with R. P."

That always sounds silik to me as does the employee who refers to his boss as "The Chief." Then there is the man who hates his mother-in-law but still calls her "mother." And the most aggravated case of this kind I have ever run across was the wife, who, after eight years of marriage, still addressed her husband as "Lover" in public. For some reason none of these things sound on the level to me.

Ring Lardner recently in discussing the size and quantity of drinks served by a neighbor of his said:

"They send over to our house and a couple of times a day to borrow the medicine dropped in which to shake up cocktails."

DISSATISFACTION

When she was a baby girlie,
Hardly big enough to walk,
And she knew naught of life's problems,
And its large and varied talk,
Long she wept because the angels
Made her eyes an azure blue;
Mary's eyes were black and flashing,
And she wanted black eyes too.

She has grown into a woman;
Once her hair was golden brown,
But it changed to meet the fashion,
Now she wears a raven crown.
With her make-up, she is handy—
Puts it on so it won't smear,
And it weathers every testing:
Wind or rain or kiss or tear.

Now she's slim; again she's rounded,
In the ruling fashion's rage;
In her looks she's never constant;
She can even change her age.
All the colors, forms, and fashions—
All the systems she has tried,
But, as in her days of childhood,
She is still dissatisfied.

Plane Rides for Deafness

THERE have been a number of stories printed recently about airplane rides as a cure for deafness. Hearing has been restored, it has been asserted, by precipitous descents from high altitudes in planes.

But now Major I. B. March, chief surgeon at Mitchel Field, L. I., comes out with the declaration that these "cures" are not only ineffective, but actually dangerous.

The sudden change in air pressure, he says, is often enough in itself to burst the eardrums. Add to this the fact that there is always a chance of fatal accident when a plane is doing violent stunts, and the further fact that the fright induced in the patient by the sudden dips and swirls may have serious consequences, and you have a pretty strong list of objections.

A good physician, says Major March, can, in his own office, help a deaf person as much as any airplane ride.

Gasoline Tax Reduced

ON SATURDAY the state gasoline tax in Texas was reduced from three cents to two cents per gallon.

The reduction will mean a loss to the state of approximately $7,000,000 in revenue per annum. The state highway and the state school funds are the beneficiaries of the tax.

Since March 16, 1927, when the three-cent tax became effective, it has produced $27,490,598 in revenue, of which the highway department has received $20,617,949 and the schools $6,872,649. The tax produced even more revenue than was expected and has kept the school fund and the road fund fairly well filled.

But Texas schools need a lot of money and we are only beginning to meet the need of highway construction in the state, so at the next session of the legislature we can expect agitation for restoration of the three-cent tax

A Good Place to Live

WHAT are the things that make a town or a city a good place to live?

They vary for different people, of course. To some men, New York is the only city in which life is endurable; to others, it is the last place on earth to be chosen. Some men cling to the small town; others cannot stand such a place for more than a week.

Nearly every place is a better place to live than its surface appearance indicates. We have all seen towns that seem utterly drab, flat and uninteresting; yet in each of them there can be found plenty of people who are quite satisfied and happy with their surroundings. To get used to a place is, nearly always, to find unsuspected points in its favor.

But when one travels across any section of the country, by train or by auto, one finds certain places that stand out in memory as desirable localities. Every traveler knows the experience of coming unexpectedly into a town that seems to breathe attractiveness in every street and building. Beauty of location, charm of atmosphere, tastefulness of construction—certain qualities seem to combine, every now and then, to give a city distinction and grace.

The traveler remembers these places and wants to revisit them. He pays them the silent tribute of saying, to himself, "Here's a place I'd rather like to live, some day." And the inhabitants of such towns are more luck than most of us. Their surroundings help to give peace and contentment.

What are these towns? Well, here are a few that stand out in this writer's memory: Janesville, Wis., for example; Geneva, N. Y.; Ponca City, Okla.; Painesville, Ohio; Storm Lake, Ia.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; Hagerstown, Md.

Every man has his own list, of course, and doubtless no two lists are alike. But one of the chief advantages of summer vacation touring is that it thrusts one, every now and then, into some such place. Hour after hour one drives along through country that is not particularly noteworthy; and then, just as one begins to get a bit tired of it, the road swings around a bend, down a hill—and one is in the middle of a place that will remain in the memory ever after.

Those are the bright spots on the vacation tour. They help to give a significance to all the rest of one's life. The man who has the memory of such spots tucked away safely away has, always, places of refuge. He may never revisit them; but they will be there, in the mind's eye, nevertheless, waiting for him, persuading him that his fellow men can, now and then, build really delightful towns amid really delightful surroundings.

ACCEPT IT AS IT IS

Most of us who are past the first enthusiasm of youth, have come to realize that life can't be remade. We have to accept it for the flimsy, ragged, cowwebby, gay and beautiful or tragic thing that it proves to be for us, and make the best of it.

DO WE DESERVE SYMPATHY?

We heard a Clarendon business man say the other day that he was glad and willing to aid all local organizations such as parent-teachers, Sunday school classes, women's clubs and societies, but that he resented being "high-powered" into some contribution to any of them by any outside promotor or grafter where one had to contribute $10 in order to get $1 for the home club or enterprise. We have all been a lot of chumps along this line and we do not deserve any sympathy unless we stand firm to protect ourselves.

FOR A CLEAN CAMPAIGN

Chairman John J. Raskob's admonition to Democratic workers, at the St. Louis meeting, to use clean tactics and "good salesmanship" in the campaign was particularly noticeable, in view of the extremely bitter fight that is being made on Governor Smith in the South.

Mr. Raskob is a successful business man, who has helped to establish one of the greatest business industries in the United States, and he knows the power of presenting the merits of your campaign without throwing mud at the other fellow. He knows further that the presidential nominee four times has been elected governor of the state of New York by virtue of the confidence that the people have in his ability to get things done, and to do them right.

Were it not for the frenzy that has been created in some quarters concerning Governor Smith's views on prohibition and the whispering campaign of slander and innuendo that has been made against his religion, he would be as popular in the South and West as he is in the East, where his official record, his manly courage, and his fine character are so well known.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — Fontaine Fox

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

Who's Who in the Story

Old Winthrop Martenet, famed but eccentric scientist, who died seven years before the story opens, was survived by

Maxwell Martenet, his rather colorless son, who mysteriously disappeared and has been given up for dead for the last four years by

Julia, his wife, and

Hannan, his son, who inherits his grandfather's strength of character. On his return from abroad, Hannan is given a letter by

Mr. Curry, the family lawyer, written by Old Winthrop himself, warning the young man against

Horace Peters, and finishes with the command, "Don't open the iron door until the clock stops." At Valhallo Notch, Old Winthrop's mountain estate, a strange clock and an iron door guard the secret which Ernest Mallingham endeavors unsuccessfully to discover. His attempts to stop the clock by dynamite finally bury the house, with all its guests, in a landslide.

Viola Lane, pretty but mysterious girl, also tries to unravel the mystery.

John Breck, the caretaker,

Bunty Duck, a guest,

Kate Wynne, a maid, and

Dr. Speck, a physician, all try vainly to penetrate the secret of the iron door.

The tall man glanced at him curiously, walked in and sat down on the only chair in the room. Hannan closed the door and limped back to the cot.

"What's the matter with your foot?" Mallingham wanted to know.

"A little accident," said Hannan with a smile.

Mallingham fixed him with his gray eyes, usually so steady and cold, but now looking a little uneasy and inflamed.

"This is our first meeting," he pointed out, "yet you spoke my name the moment you saw me."

"Easily explained. I've heard any number of interesting things about you. One usually forms a sort of mental picture of a person he hears so much about. Tell me, what made you knock three times?"

"That's the signal, isn't it?"

Hannan lighted a cigarette. Evidently Mallingham had learned the signal by following Peters to the door. Possibly he had been listening outside, or trying to listen. It was not likely he had heard much. The door, like everything else in the house, was soundly constructed.

"You gave me a shock tonight, Martenet," said the other man. "I thought I was immune to shocks, but—well, it isn't every day you see some one you thought was dead."

Hannan smoked with outward placidity, but secretly he wondered what would happen to Horace Peters now that the hoax was exposed.

"I'll settle with Peters later," said Mallingham, as if reading his thoughts. "For the present I'm concerned only with you. Guess why I'm paying you this visit."

"I haven't the least idea, Pelly."

"My name is Mallingham."

"I know." Hannan blew a cloud of cigarette smoke carelessly in the other's direction. "But to your friends you are Mally. I have heard that the surest way to offend a person you don't like is to mispronounce his name. I don't like you, and that's why I call you Pelly."

Mallingham gave him a perplexed scowling glance.

"You overestimate your importance, Martenet. Nothing you might say or do could possibly offend me. You are too insignificant to be capable of giving me offense. I'll tell you why I am here. I'm going to kill you."

"Really, Pelly." For just an instant there was a wary flicker in Hannan's eyes, but the impudent, mocking smile did not leave his lips. "Do you know, the moment I saw you I suspected that's what you had in mind? Please don't kill me tonight, Pelly. Wait till tomorrow or the next day."

Mallingham leaned back and regarded him with a half contemptuous, half bewildered expression. Very casually, as if the object were of no more importance than a handkerchief, he pulled a small pistol from his pocket and placed it on his knee.

"Think I am joking?"

"You are, only you don't know it. The best jokes are the unconscious ones. Why don't you laugh at yourself, Pelly? Hear that noise? It's about a million tons of rock and gravel sagging on the roof and forming an airtight crust. If it doesn't crush us to death, it will suffocate us. In a few hours we'll all be dead. And here you come with a pistol, trying to scare a man who knows he is going to die anyhow." Hannan laughed.

"Oh, laugh," said Mallingham. "You haven't many laughs left."

Hannan leaned over quickly and blew out the candle.

"Why—why did you do that, you fool?" demanded Mallingham a little unsteadily.

"To save the oxygen. The longer the oxygen lasts, the more laughs I'll have."

"Have your little jokes. If you think you have gained anything by blowing out the candle, you are mistaken. There are matches in my pocket. The moment you move from that cot, I shall strike one and shoot you dead. I mean that absolutely."

"Mind if I lie down?" Hannan asked. The cot squeaked as he stretched himself out. "I can stand being bored if I am comfy."

Mallingham muttered something under his breath. Presently he spoke again. "Know why I'm going to kill you, Martenet? Because I hate you."

"Hate me? Why on earth do you hate me, Pelly?"

"Because you are a Martenet. I hate you more particularly because you take after Old Winthrop. I am going to make a confession to you, a confession of weakness. It will be humiliating, but I shall wipe out the humiliation afterward by killing you. Your grandfather died seven years ago, but it seems the grave can't hold him. He is reaching out of the sod—confound him!—and meddling in the affairs of posterity. I run foul of him whichever way I turn. He's been mocking me, jeering at me, frustrating my plans. Oh, I know I talk like an imbecile. Well, Old Winthrop has made me feel like one. With his infernal contraptions he has warped my judgment till I can no longer trust my senses. He haunts all my waking and sleeping hours.

"He has made me stand in awe of things I should laugh at. He has put all sorts of crazy, morbid fancies in my mind. That's why I hate him, and that's why I'm going to kill you. Only tonight, for instance—"

"Well, Pelly, what about tonight?"

"I went to the iron door," said Mallingham. His voice was thick and hoarse, with an edge of malice and an undertone of dread. "I meant to open it, even if it should be my last act on earth. Believing we were all doomed anyway, I couldn't see it made any difference. I was keyed up to something heroic." He laughed ironically. "But Old Winthrop bamboozled me again, damn him! I was afraid of that clock over the door. Yes, I admit it. I told you this was to be a confession of weakness. Afraid of a clock! I felt as if the ghost of Old Winthrop was in that clock, animating it with that diabolical personality of his. Oh, laugh if you like. I ought to laugh at my own idiocy and weakness, but I can't. Well, I opened the door a crack——"

He laughed hoarsely. "Just a crack—that was all. I didn't get any farther. I heard a voice. It was your grandfather's voice. I would have known his voice among a million. It shouted a warning—told me I mustn't enter until the clock stopped. It was a little too weird even for me, Martenet, hard-headed and practical though I am. It unnerved me completely. And there was that devilish clock ticking all the time. Well, all the moss-grown and hoary superstitions that have been handed down to us from the age of primitive man seemed to crystallize in my brain. At the moment I actually thought the voice was Old Winthrop's. Or, rather, I felt it was, for my mind was not functioning. Later, thinking, it over, I knew the voice was not a human one. It was a metallic imitation—another of Old Winthrop's contraptions. The fact remains that I was frightened away—frightened away by a dead man."

"You didn't go back again?"

"No, I didn't—and the only thing that kept me away was fear. It's no good reasoning about such a thing. That sort of fear doesn't spring from reason, but from instinct. I'm afraid of the clock, of the iron door, of whatever lurks behind that door. Have I debased myself enough? Is the picture sufficiently despicable? Well, let me tell you one thing. I'm going to steal a march on Old Winthrop's ghost, yet."

"How are you going to do it, Pelly?" Hannan asked him with a return to his former flippancy.

"There's a way to stop the clock and open the iron door safely."

"You tried it last night, didn't you?"

"How did you know? Oh, I suppose Peters told you something. But Peters was only guessing. Anyhow, the door can be opened. I opened it a crack tonight. And night before last some one opened it from the inside. I know because Miss Lane told me so. She was there when it happened."

"Miss Lane? Who is she?"

"Viola Lane, Dr. Speck's patient. That's all I know."

"Brown hair, hazel eyes?"

"I believe so."

"So her name is Viola Lane? It's a nice name. It fits her, too. Did she tell you some one opened the door?"

"She and the caretaker were in the hall, and she suddenly saw the door start to open. That's all she would tell me. I think she fainted after that. The fact remains that some one knows how to open the iron door safely from the inside, at any rate."

"So it would seem, Pelly," Hannan's voice sounded a bit drowsy of a sudden. "Viola Lane, eh?"

"I have reason to think," said Mallingham in a curiously tense voice, "that the person who opened the iron door was you."

"You flatter me, Pelly. That would require almost superhuman intelligence, wouldn't it?"

"No one is in a better position to know about these things than you are. I don't think I'm mistaken. You were the person. Martenet, I'm going to give you a chance for your life."

"I expect you were leading up to that all the time. The idea is, I suppose, that you will spare my life if I will show you how to operate the iron door?"

"Precisely."

Hannan gave an audible yawn. "But you see, Pelly, my life isn't worth anything. I'm going to die, anyway, and so are you."

"Maybe so, but before I pass away I'll have the satisfaction of laughing at Old Winthrop's ghost. For that matter, it isn't positively certain that anybody is going to die—except you, unless you accede to my wishes. A miracle may happen."

"Pelly, you bore me terribly." A squeak from the cot indicated that Hannan was turning over on his side. "If you don't mind, I'll have a few winks. Go right on talking if you like. You won't disturb me in the least. By the way, Pelly"—Hannan's voice grew drowsier and drowsier—"this house, as you know, was built from the plans of Old Winthrop, my grandfather. He believed in having lots of doors. He put them in the most unexpected places. He used to say that a house without lots of doors gave him a feeling of being crated. Funny old man, wasn't he?" The cot squeaked again.

Mallingham swore impatiently under his breath. "No more nonsense, Martenet. The surest thing on earth just at present is that you will be dead inside 60 seconds unless you do as I say. I shall now strike a match. Then I shall count 10. If you have not signified that you agree to my terms before I reach 10, I shall shoot you through the head. One—two——"

A scratch sounded. A tiny tongue of flame leaped up. "Three—four——" Mallingham broke off with a thick gasp. He sprang up, match in one hand and pistol in the other. He stared down at the empty cot. Directly behind it, in a place where one would scarcely expect to find such a thing, was a small door.

The dying flame bit Mallingham's finger. He threw the stub of the match away and cursed Old Winthrop.

Gangland Invades Staid Portals Of Philadelphia; Grand Jury Busy

By W. G. BRAY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 3. (UP)—With no relish, Philadelphia's staid citizens are watching other cities hail their beloved town as an only rival for Chicago's unenviable reputation as a gunmen's paradise.

In less than a month a grand jury investigation has turned previous fond concepts of what life is like in Philadelphia topsy-turvy, and painted the city as one of America's wealthiest and best organized crime centers.

The murder of Hugh McLoon, a hunchback fight manager and part owner of a cabaret, on the morning of Aug. 9 set the wheels in motion.

The August grand jury will continue its work next Friday, but already the grand jury report reads like the imaginings of a Broadway playwright turning out a Chicago melodrama. As revealed by District Attorney Monaghan, some of the grand jury's leads—followed under threats of death if they did not "lay off"—are as follows:

1.—Hugh McLoon and Daniel O'Leary, gangster, are dead as the result of a feud for "shakedown" hijacking privileges believed by police to be between the organizations of Mickey Duffy, "king of the underworld," and the rival "four O'Leary brothers gang."

2.—Evidence of a $10,000,000 bootleg syndicate involving as its head Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the fight manager credited with staking Gene Tunney when he fought Dempsey for the heavyweight title.

Charges that Hoff has a well organized gang to operate in his interests and that he has been working in connection with "Scarface Al" Capone, overlord of Chicago's machine gun gangsters.

3.—Evidence that the Franklin Mortgage and Loan company, organized by Hoff, Congressman Golder, Samuel Lazar, Charles Schwartz and Nathan Robinson, was employed to handle the finances of the bootleg ring, although Hoff and Golder are no longer actively identified with the firm.

Payments to Police

4.—Records seized from an accounting firm which Monaghan says reveals a systematized method by the ring of graft payments to police officials in sums ranging from $50 to $200,000. Monaghan has predicted the exposure of prominent police officials of a former regime charging that one of them received $200,000 in one month.

Other investigations by the busy grand jurors have involved George C. Klauder, former law partner of Mayor Mackey, who was questioned on his defense of "Trigger" Donnelly, a gangster, and the digging into city contracts let during the early months of the Mackey administration.

Circumstances leading to the drama still unfolding itself to the unwilling gaze of Philadelphians began with the "shakedown" of an O'Leary protected saloon sometime ago, allegedly by William Meister and Stephen Balko, acting as lieutenants of Mickey Duffy. The two men shot an O'Leary gangster in the arm. Later, as they were walking near Race street, a car whizzed by and sprayed them with lead.

Riddled With Lead

It is reported that Duffy lavishly paid for the hospital expenses of the two men. They had not been long out of the hospital when they visited McLoon's cabaret on the night of August 6. Balko and Meister became noisy, according to reports, and McLoon escorted them outside the establishment where they again were caught in a lead shower. After the barrage McLoon lay dying of a slug in his throat. Meister was riddled less seriously and Balko only slightly hurt.

Police are unwilling to believe that McLoon was marked for death, though he was intimate with the underworld. The hunchback rose from office boy in a newspaper to the clerk of Magistrate Edward Carney, known as the "dancing judge." Severing this connection he later joined Boo Boo Hoff's managerial staff in the boxing game. At the time of his death he had branched out on his own.

Hoff first became involved in grand jury probe when he was questioned as to whether he knew of any events that might throw light on McLoon's death.

On August 15 the city learned of a gang murder performed in style. Daniel O'Leary was the victim, and the executioners were five gunmen believed to have been imported from New York.

The scene was an apartment house in the "gold coast" section of the city where O'Leary was spending the night entertaining Mrs. Anna Pechler Marcello, a pretty 16-year-old girl who had deserted her husband to play with the underworld boys under the name of "Jennie Brooks."

Sleeping Man Shot

It was nearly dawn when the five men broke into the apartment. They awoke the girl and often fired their revolvers into the body of the sleeping man. The girl fled. She stopped at a public phone booth and told the police board operator that "a man had been killed." Then she sought refuge in the apartment of Grace Williams, also now held by the police. The two girls and Peterson were seized in a raid on a third apartment the next day along with a quantity of pump guns and revolvers.

Among the dozens of persons in all walks of life summoned by the grand jury in making up its startling report were Petey Ford, characterized by police as a leading trigger man, and Frankie Bailey, another gunman. They were brought from western penitentiary at Rockville, Pa., to confront Hoff. They testified they had been the guests of Hoff on the night they attacked a girl in the Sylvania hotel, an occurrence which resulted in their sentences of from seven to 15 years.

To Resume Probe

The police have been unable to prove their contention that these two men were involved in the sidewalk murder of Charles Brickey, gunman, and the serious injury of Mickey Duffy in February, 1926.

Louis R. Eitman, claiming to be a former employe of Hoff in the "alky" racket, appeared before the grand jury of his own accord. He told of the operation of distilleries in the city and connected Hoff with them. He appeared with his face battered from a beating by "Sailor" Friedman, a well-known pugilist in Hoff's stable who once fought Mickey Walker for the middleweight title, and was reported to have said that he had been warned in Hoff's presence what would happen if he "squealed."

The hold-over grand jury will renew its work Friday.

NEW GASOLINE LEVY URGED

Ousley Suggests Legislative Action

DALLAS, Sept. 3. (UP)—"It is my suggestion that the legislature at its next session levy adequate taxes on gasoline and oil to effect an immediate expansion of road building and pay the interest and sinking fund on outstanding county and district bonds covering state highways," Clarence Ousley said today in a statement to the United Press upon the road building situation in Texas.

Mr. Ousley, who has been commissioned by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce to make a study of the situation, pointed out that that organization has not expressed itself for or against a state road bond issue. He said:

"The East Texas Chamber of Commerce has not as a body or through its officers expressed itself for or against a state road bond issue of $100,000,000 or any other amount. The annual meeting at Greenville on May 3 adopted resolutions declaring the only proper source of income for the construction of state highways to be charges upon the traffic—that is, registration fees and taxes on gasoline and oil used in motor vehicles. This is the East Texas chamber's policy. The legislative and fiscal details of executing the policy have not been considered by the chamber as a body.

Various Proposals

"There are various proposals for bond issues. The most conspicuous is that made by R. S. Sterling of the highway commission for the issuance of state bonds in the amount of $300,000,000 to $350,000,000 and paying the interest and sinking fund from taxes on gasoline graduated over a period of 10 years from one cent to two and three-quarter cents a gallon. The East Texas chamber does not oppose that plan, nor does it endorse the plan. It is not now concerned about plans but solely about the policy of having those who use the roads pay for them, relieving property of highway taxation and reimbursing counties and districts for the state highways they have built.

"It is my personal opinion that the people will not vote approval of a state bond issue in the amount proposed by Mr. Sterling. They might vote approval of a considerable smaller sum. Hence it is my suggestion that the legislature at its next session levy adequate taxes on gasoline and oil to effect an immediate expansion of road building and pay the interest and sinking fund on outstanding county and district bonds covering state highways.

Not a Burden

"We have been paying a gas tax of three cents without any sense of burden. We could pay four cents without reducing our travel or suffering any great burden. Upon the reports of consumption by the highway commission and its estimate of normal increase, I find that such a tax would yield for new construction, after maintenance and payment of interest and sinking fund on county and district bonds, the sum of $20,060,950 in 1929, $24,101,992 in 1930, $28,667,291 in 1931, $33,842,285 in 1932 and $39,718,743 in 1933 without issuing bonds.

"If the legislature will inaugurate such a policy and the people approve a bond issue the tax on gasoline will build and maintain the roads. In either event we will make more progress in the next five years than we have made in all time heretofore."

Connally's Home Town To Celebrate Thursday

MARLIN, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Thursday night at 8 o'clock fellow townsmen of Tom Connally will celebrate his nomination for United States senator. H. O. Jennings, chairman of the committee on arrangements, pointed out that while the celebration is being planned by Connally's "home folks" it is not to be limited to them. Connally's friends from all over the state will be given a welcome.

"We merely wish to pay our tribute," said Jennings, "to our fellow citizen who has won a justly deserved place in the history of our state. We invite everyone in Texas to join us in this manifestation of our love for Tom Connally."

Daughter of Jap Legate To U. S. to Wed Sept. 28

TOKYO, Sept. 3. (AP)—It is announced officially that the marriage of Prince Chichibu and Setsuko Matsudaira, daughter of the Japanese ambassador to the United States, will be solemnized Sept. 28. The prince is heir apparent to the Japanese throne.

Small Plane Record For Endurance Broken

PARIS, Sept. 3. (AP)—Maurice Finat, piloting a "Baby Avionette" of 40 horse power, broke the world's endurance record for small planes by remaining aloft 24 hours, 36 minutes and 28 seconds. The former record, 24 hours, was held by Captain Broad of England.

MERCHANT SHIP SALE OPPOSED

Fleet Advocates to Protest To Shipping Board

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. (US)—Open warfare against the policy of "scuttling" Uncle Sam's merchant marine will be undertaken by advocates of an adequate American commercial fleet, it was learned today.

The coming battle will be aimed at the shipping board's intention to throw on the auction block some of the biggest vessels now sailing the seven seas under the American flag—the 11 ships which constitute the United States line and the American merchant line operating between this country nad Europe.

Included in the group proposed for sale is the giant Leviathan, acknowledged queen of the seas, and described by the shipping board as the mightiest ocean greyhound ever to ply the steamer lanes of the North Atlantic.

The Leviathan is flag-ship of the United States line, the only straight out passenger line still owned and operated directly by the federal government itself. Other vessels of this line are the George Washington, regarded as one of the finest vessels in trans-Atlantic service; The America, largest cabin ship in the north Atlantic; the Republic, with accomodations for more than 600 cabin ships, the President Harding and the President Roosevelt, reputed to be the fastest cabin ships in the service.

Senator Protests

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, today called upon theAmerican people to halt this sale. The bids are to be opened November 15, nine days after the presidential elections and nearly a month before the convening of congress, which stopped the proposed sale of these same vessels two years ago.

In asking the American people to help save these ships, Fletcher said:

"Friends of the American shipping everywhere should write to the shipping board and make known their protest against the sale of these great ships, at least until congress has reconvened and has had an opportunity to investigate the facts.

"If we can arouse the people to the seriousness of this situation, the board will soon be convinced that their plan to sell the vessels is detrimental to the welfare of the merchant marine and ought to be abandoned."

The vessels of the United States line ply regularly between this country and England, Ireland, France, and Germany. In addition to passengers they carry mail and fast freight.

Defense Aids

Regarded as an important auxiliary to the United States line and also to the national defense is the American merchant line with its five fast freight steamers operating weekly between New York and London. In addition to freight, these boats also have passenger accomodations. The vessels in operation on this line are the American Trader, American Banker, American Merchant, American Farmer and American Shipper.

These two lines, mutually complementing one another, are said by Senator Fletcher to form the backbone of the American merchant fleet on the north Atlantic trade and passenger routes. In comfort, convenience and appointments, the vessels of the United States line are described by the shipping board as second to none in the lucrative passenger carrying steamer routes between America and Europe.

Cabinet Maker Ready to Stump for Smith At 81

DALLAS, Sept. 3. (AP)—O. Fricke, 81, cabinet maker, has ambitions to be the oldest Al Smith campaigner in Texas, if not in the nation. He notified state Democratic headquarters here today that he was ready to take the stump anywhere in Texas.

Old Homestead Saved From Use As School Site

HOUSTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—Sentiment scored a triumph over progress when J. W. Baker and his wife heard that the board of education had abandoned plans to obtain Baker's old homestead on West Clay avenue for a school site.

The school board's action culminated a bitter fight of more than a month, during which time a condemnation suit was filed and subsequently withdrawn.

Deciding that a new school was necessary the board of education considered possible sites and selected that of Baker's home as the best. They attempted to purchase the property and sent appraisers to Baker, who proudly conducted them through his home, showed them his 10 thoroughbred horses, his 25 goats, and a goodly number of registered Holsteins, and then refused to sell.

"It's my home and I intend to stay here," he told the school board. "These are my hobbies and without them my life would be worthless."

The school board instituted condemnation proceedings, but later withdrew them when other persons interceded for Baker.

Prohi Party Leader to Wage Anti-Smith Fight

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. (AP)—Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, chairman of the national committee of the prohibition party, left for New York today to lay plans for an extensive "anti-Smith" campaign, to be waged entirely separate from that of William F. Varney, presidential nominee of the party.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., Sept. 3. (UP)—The Bellanca sesquiplane Roma, in which Ceasre Sabelli, Pierro Bonelli and Roger Q. Williams plan a non-stop flight to Rome, took off from the ground in approximately 28 seconds, with a load of 9,500 pounds, in a test take-off here today. The three who will make the trip were in the plane.

WISCONSIN TO HOLD PRIMARY

La Follette Race Holds Interest Today

WILWAUKEE, Sept. 3. (AP)—The perennial struggle between LaFollette Progressives and their opponents await decision of the voters in the primary election Tuesday.

On the outcome hangs control of the state machinery of government for the next two years and the offices through which Wisconsin speaks in national affairs.

The governorship and the United States senate seat of Robert M. LaFollette are major offices around which the old struggle for supremacy has been waged by the two factions. Greatest activity has been shown in the race for the Republican nomination for governor, in which the old factional lines have been disturbed by the presence of Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman, playing a lone hand in his attempt to repeat his triumph of two years ago.

Congressman Joseph D. Beck is the LaFollette hope in the gubernatorial race.

Obscured by the gubernatorial race is the contest for the Republican nomination for the United States senate. Opposed by George W. Mead, Wiscon Rapids, Senator LaFollette has shown little concern for the outcome of the primary, apparently confident of a victory that is generally conceded will be his.

Ratification of Mine Wage Agreement Seen

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. (UP)—Illinois coal miners, it was generally expected today, would ratify the wage agreement signed by the joint conference of operators and miners scheduled to become effective Sept. 16 and which will have an important bearing on the wages of mine workers in the central bituminous field.

A referendum among the 90,000 Illinois miners would be taken immediately, Union officials announced. The new agreement reduces the workers' pay from 15 to 20 per cent under the old Jacksonville wage agreement.

First Cotton of Heflin's County Sent to Smith

LAFAYETTE, Ala., Sept. 3. (AP)—The first bale of cotton from the home county of Senator J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama, has been sent to Democratic national headquarters in a contribution to Gov. Alfred E. Smith's campaign fund.

The cotton was shipped to New York today via prepaid express.

Commemoration in Texas of Hero's Death Is Asked

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 3. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody has been asked to refer to the next legislature a resolution designed to effect proper observance in Texas of the sesquientennial of the death of General Casimir Pulaski, Revolutionary war hero.

The resolution was submitted by Ignatius K. Kerwinski, commissioner of deeds for Indiana.

In his letter to the Texas governor, Werwinki said that Pulaski was mortally wounded in the siege of Savannah in October 1779. In 1777 he was said to have won distinction and a great victory at Brandywine, where he was made brigadier-general of the Continental army.

The state of Texas was asked to join in a proposed nation-wide commemoration Oct. 11, 1929. The resolution would provide for the establishment of a state commission which would supervise appropriate observance of the sesquentennial of General Pulaski's sacrifice.

Prohi Nominee to Wage Lone Fight

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. (AP)—William F. Varney, presidential nominee of the prohibition party, has decided to conduct a lone campaign for election. This decision was reached after the chairman of the national committee of the party, who has said four-fifths of the party members favor Hoover, announced he would solicitv campaign funds of $100,000 for the sole purpose of an "anti-Smith" campaign.

The executive committee of the party decided yesterday to keep Varney and James Edgerton, vice presidential nominee, in the field.

DEMOS START DRIVE IN WEST

Work in Eight States Starts This Week

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 3. (AP)—Democratic campaign in eight middle-western states will start this week under direction of the heads of seven of the divisions in charge of special activities, whose appointments were announced here tonight by Sen. Harry B. Hawes, chairman of the central regional headquarters of the Democratic national committee.

Chiefs of the divisions will work in all parts of Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Julien Friant of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, will have charge of farm activities of central executive. Dwight D. Currier of St. Louis was named regional chairman of the lawyers committee, Otto Mahti will serve as regional chairman of the naturalized citizens' bureau and the organization of first voters. College clubs and commerce and industry units is to be under direction of Sol W. Greas of St. Louis.

George H. Moore, former collector of internal revenue at St. Louis, has been made regional vice chairman of similar activities in the central region.

Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis, Ill., named regional vice chairman of the speakers' bureau, started activities several days ago. The central regional publicity will be in charge of Grattan Kerans, with Hugh L. Moore as assistant director.

Dempsey Sends Message To Ranger Sunday School

RANGER, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Jack Dempsey in the role of Sunday school teacher would not sound so strange to the boys' class of the First Methodist church here which got a message from the former ring champion. "Whether your calling be that of an athlete or in some other walk of life, be sincere in your efforts and you will be happy," he wrote M. F. Peters as his message to the class which is asking communications from the boys' heroes.

Court Pays Bonus For Killing of Reptiles

SWEETWATER, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Nolan county commissioners' court set a record here last week in paying bounties when they checked out $30.75 from the county treasury for the killing of 123 reptiles during the past five weeks.

The court has been paying a bounty for rattlesnake rattlers for several months but the 123 rattles brought in last week by several parties set a new record before the court for any one month.

There were several large rattles among them. One had 15 rattles and a button. The width of the first rattle was almost three-quarters of an inch. Another rattle was about as large as this one while there were several with eight and ten rattles.

The court pays 25c for each rattle brought in.

SMITH CHAMPION OF LABOR, SAYS ROBINSON IN DALLAS TALK

CROWDS HEAR DEMO NOMINEE

'Our Joe' Stresses Party Feeling for Masses

the labor measures of the Wilson administrations; and the sympathies of Governor Smith toward labor were contained in the address.

"The Republican party has uniformly served great interests and regarded with indifference and unconcern the needs of the masses," Robinson charged. "This unsympathetic attitude toward the helpless and the neglected runs all the way back to Alexander Hamilton."

The Democratic platform approves the principle of collective bargaining; asserts that labor is not a commodity; decries the abuse of the injunction in labor controversies; recognizes the evils which have resulted from competition of convict with free labor, and recognizes the unemployment that exists notwithstanding the boast frequently repeated by Republican campaign orators that the country is enjoying exceptional prosperity," Robinson said.

Various favorable acts to labor passed during Wilson's administrations were cited by Robinson to prove that "the traditional attitude of the Democratic party is progressive and just toward both skilled and unskilled laborers."

Reviews Record

Robinson passed over his record in congress with the words that it has always been his aim "to treat labor problems in a spirit of justice, liberality and sympathy."

Quoting the executive council of the New York state federation of labor that Governor Smith "has constantly and consistently originated, promoted and administered laws for the betterment and protection of the wage earners of New York," Senator Robinson recited the laws favorable to labor passed as the results of Smith's efforts.

With Senator Robinson were Mrs. Robinson; her brother, Grady Miller; Carey W. Martin, Robinson's secretary; Donald McGregor, publicity manager for the campaign tour, and Charles J. Bothwell, general passenger agent for the Missouri Pacific.

'Smith-Republicans'

In a brief conference with party leaders here, Robinson gave a reason for his Southern tour.

"This campaign is slightly different from those of the past. There has been a break-up of political affiliations. We now have what are called 'Hoover-Democrats,' though in conscience's name I defy any one to define what that is. For every 'Hoover-Democrat' we propose to secure the support of three 'Smith-Republicans.'"

Senator Robinson's speech in full follows:

"To the great throng assembled here and to the thousands who will hear my message by radio, let me express cordial appreciation for the opportunity to present some thoughts relating to a subject believed to be appropriate to this Labor day gathering.

"Reference to the attitude of the Democratic party and its candidates toward labor were omitted from my speech of acceptance delivered at Hot Springs, Ark., on the 30th of August, because of the assurance that this occasion would afford an opportunity to present the subject in greater detail than was practical in that address which necessarily dealt with a number of other important questions.

"The tests by which a fair conclusion may be reached as to the measures and policies which a political party and its leaders are likely to advance are:

"1. The record of measures advocated or enacted.

"2. The platform declarations; and

"3. The disposition of the party's candidates as evidenced by their performances and utterances.

"To the many millions of voters who are directly or indirectly concerned in reaching a just and reliable conclusion as to whether the Democratic or the Republican party is best calculated to promote the comfort and prosperity of those who live by toil, let me invite attention first to the provisions in the national Democratic platform defining the position of our party on subjects of vital interest to workers.

Demo Labor Platform

"1. The Democratic platform approves the principle of collective bargaining, which implies that organized labor shall 'chose its own representatives without coercion or interference' to negotiate with employers.

"The importance of collective bargaining has increased with the development of modern economic and industrial methods. If the principle were repudiated, a general impairment in the efficiency of American labor would result and those who by means of it are able to secure profitable engagements would be inable to effect individual arrangements for themselves.

"The employers of laborers in large numbers have long applied business methods in their enterprises analogous to collective bargaining. While the present system is not perfect in its operation it is nevertheless deemed essential to the carrying on of the nation's business, as well as to the best interests of employees.

2. The Democratic party asserts that labor is not a commodity and, therefore, is not subject to many of those restrictions and restraints which under the law are properly applicable to articles in commerce and in industry.

"From the beginning of civilization physical toil has performed an indispensable part in progress. No language can fully describe the wholesome results of human labor. It is of the utmost importance that labor be exalted above the plane of mere things and given its proper recognition as a function of the human brain and hand. Once this principle is recognized, a basis is established upon which many of the differences which arise between employer and employee may be adjusted with fairness to both.

"3. We assert that one of the abuses which has grown out of the failure to give due effects to the principle of collective bargaining and the principle that the labor of a human being is not a commodity is the abuse of injunction.

"Numerous instances during recent years may be cited in which the power of the courts has been invoked to restrain the liberty of workmen on the allegation that they were about to perform acts which would result in irreparable injury, when upon proper notice and hearing it would have been made clear that the injunctive process was sought merely as an aid to defeat the aims and purposes of those enjoined. In other words, the process has been abused in labor disputes by the granting of injunctions in pretended emergencies. This the Democratic party proposes to end without imparing the righteous authority of the judiciary.

Opposes Injunction

"A sympathetic disposition toward the rights of labor as defined in the Democratic platform, which declares:

"'No injunction should be granted in labor disputes, except upon proof of threatened irreparable injury and after notice and hearing, and the injunction should be confined to those acts which do directly threaten irreparable injury.'

"4. The platform recognizes the evils which have resulted from competition of convict with free labor, and declares in favor of legislation subjecting all products of convict labor shipped from one state to another to the laws of the state of sale.

"In no other way can state laws relating to convict made goods be given effect.

5. A provision in the Democratic platform closely related to the subject of labor is that pertaining to employment. Notwithstanding the boast frequently repeated by Republican campaign orators that the country is enjoying exceptional prosperity, we all know that unemployment is widespread. It is estimated by many statisticians that approximately four million workers in the United States are out of employment. This condition our platform declares to be destructive to the happiness, comfort and well being of our people. Who can conceive of a more pathetic spectacle than that of an honest man, with wife and children dependent upon his labor, going in vain from place to place seeking an opportunity to work and support his family? Whose heart is not moved at the story of hundreds of thousands of good citizens who in this day of boasted Republican plenty are reaching out their hands and lifting their voices in an appeal which meets with no response—an appeal for the opportunity to earn a living.

"What is more certainly calculated to supplant hope with despair than a laborer to have such an appeal disregarded from week to week and from month to month!

"The Democratic platform advocates the adoption of a scientific plan after thorough study under which public works may be carried on aggressively in periods of unemployment. It proposes to deal with the problem of surplus labor resulting from the substitution in industry of machinery for human hands.

"It is clear that the Democratic program is not radical. It is progressive. Noting that living conditions are constantly improving Democrats seek to avert the forces which threaten to interrupt the steady advancement of organized labor.

Labor Measures of Wilson

"It is not practicable to discuss in this address the details of the many measures enacted in the interest of laborers during the administration of President Wilson. It is deemed appropriate, however, to mention some of the most important as proof that the traditional attitude of the Democratic party is progressive and just toward both skilled and unskilled laborers. It should be remembered that many millions who depend on their hands for a livelihood are not organized, and that the nature of their work is such that they are not in a position to secure the advantages of collective bargaining. This is applicable to millions of farm workers and to many other groups.

"The passage of the federal farm act providing long term credits at low rates of interest for agricultural producers was of very great indirect benefit to workers on farms. The same is true of the establishment of the bureau of farm markets, the enactment of the federal warehouse law, the extension of the parcel post and the act creating a federal labor employment bureau. The latter can be made to function more effectively with respect to seasonal demands for labor arising for instance at harvest times.

"Among the Democratic statutes of vital concern to organized labor may be mentioned the act creating the department of labor. President Wilson chose Hon. William B. Wilson of Pennsylvania as the first secretary of labor. Mr. Wilson's personal training and experience earned for him universal recognition as the sincere friend and companion of laborers. His selection afforded indisputable evidence of the sympathetic attitude toward labor of President Wilson and his administration.

"A special act liberalized the anti-trust laws in their effects on labor and farm organizations and recognized the principle that human flesh and blood must not be dealt in as chattels.

"Reference has already been made to the act creating a federal labor employment bureau. Our platform implies that the benefits of this service may be greatly extended in connection with federal construction works in times of unemployment.

Our party created the women's bureau in the department of labor. This was a distinct recognition of the changed conditions which have come with recent years under which women work in almost every sphere of industry.

"The minimum wage act and the child labor law may be cited in further proof of the liberal spirit of the Wilson administration and of the determination of the Democratic party to do everything reasonably practicable to surround the men, women and children who work in factories with safe, sanitary and compensable conditions.

"With this partial and incomplete survey of the measures of Mr. Wilson's time let us pass to the consideration of the attitude toward labor of the Democratic candidates for president and vice president, and particularly in Governor Smith's record.

Sympathetic to Labor

"With respect to the personal records of the Democratic candidates a few words seem appropriate in this connection. During the period that I served in the house of representatives and in the senate of the United States about 25 years, it was my aim to treat labor problems in a spirit of justice, liberality and sympathy toward laborers. I am entirely content at this time to pass over my own record without further reference and to ask your consideration of a number of the labor policies and measures supported by the Democratic candidate for president.

Smith's Labor Record

"This is fully set forth in a declaration by the executive council of New York state federation of labor, March 5, 1928, in which it is declared that throughout the period of his public service, extending over a quarter of a century, Governor Smith has 'constantly and consistantly originated, and promoted and administered laws for the betterment and protection of the wage earners of New York.'

"Among the measures which he espoused are: Limitation of working hours for women and children working in factories; measures for fire protection in buildings where workers are employed; examination of minors for physical fitness; and numerous sanitary safeguards for the protection of the laborer. Increased penalties for violation of labor laws; provision for investigation of minimum wages; ventilation of factories and removal of impurities and excessive heat; protection of employees operating machinery and proper lighting in work rooms; requiring cleaning of factories for sanitary purposes; and numerous regulations designed to create safer and more wholesome conditions for workmen.

"Under his administration as governor the state department of labor has been accorded proper recognition and supplied with adequate funds.

Compensation Law Liberalized

"The workman's compensation law was liberalized in the interest of the beneficiaries. In his message to the state legislature in 1922 he said:

"'What justification can there be for a policy on the part of the state which permits large numbers of its women workers, themselves helpless, to work for starvation wages, for wages insufficient to maintain themselves in health and in decent comfort? Somebody must pay for this and payment is exacted in the form of reduced health, impaired efficiency, human suffering and weakened future generations.'

"He advocated the extension of the law requiring one day of rest in seven to every occupation where experience demonstrates its application is practicable. His plan for amending the workman's compensation law comprehended increased weekly compensation rates in cases of injuries, extending the limitation in which claims for compensation might be filed from one to two years; provision for compensation for all occupational diseases contracted in the course of employment; and extension of the period during which compensation shall be paid for temporary disability resulting from a permanent injury.

"It is not practicable here to even state all the human recommendations which illustrate Governor Smith's attitude toward the men women and children employed as industrial workers. He cried out for the removal from the statute books of the laws discriminating unjustly against women and insisted upon the retention of all provisions designed for their protection. He urged appropriations by the state to supplement local funds for the care of children of widowed mothers.

For the People

"He asserted the underlying theory of our political system is that government exists for the people and that 'the government which is closest to them and most responsive to the demands upon it, economically and efficiently managed, is the best form of government.'

"When you look into the record you will be amazed to see how much the Democratic candidate has accomplished as chief executive of New York in behalf of those who really need the protection of the government.

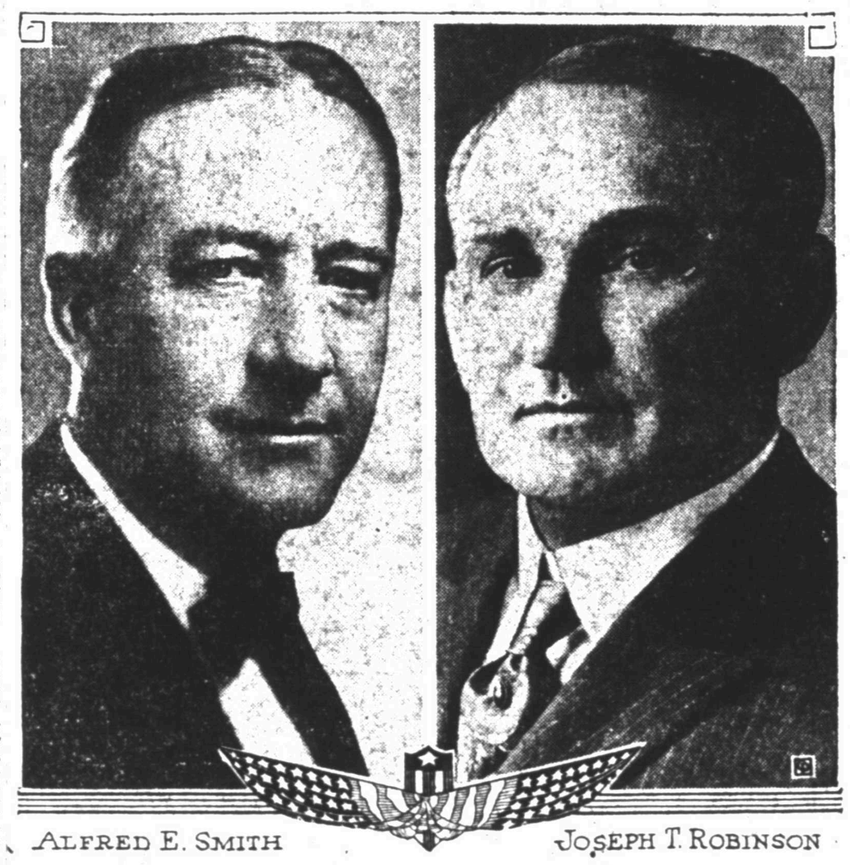

"There is not now, and there never has been, any difficulty experienced by the affluent and the strong in obtaining their rights. Herein lies one of the chief differences between the Democratic and the Republican party. The latter has uniformly served great interests and regarded with indifference and unconcern the needs of the masses. This unsympathetic attitude toward the helplessness and the neglected runs all the way back to Alexander Hamilton. There are and have been in every period of the country's history since the Republican party was founded, great, tender hearted men among its adherents. But I make the point; and am in no sense conscious of injustice or inaccuracy when I assert that the measures and policies of the Republican party have more generally taken note of the powerful than of the weak, of the self-sufficient rather than of the needy.

"Cleveland grasped the distinction between a government administered for the few and that which regarded as of chief interest and concern the vindication of popular rights.

"Wilson kept in mind equal and exact justice to all men under the law.

"By his record of honest service to the great body of his constituents, his understanding and sympathy for plain people, Governor Smith has drawn like a magnet the respect and affection of millions of men, women and children who dwell in humble homes and walk in lonely ways, but whose hearts are loyal to all that is best in our government. Their simple faith counts more in the long run than the gratitude of the powerful purchased by favors at the expense of the weak."

They Both Champion the Cause of Labor

ALFRED E. SMITH JOSEPH T. ROBINSON

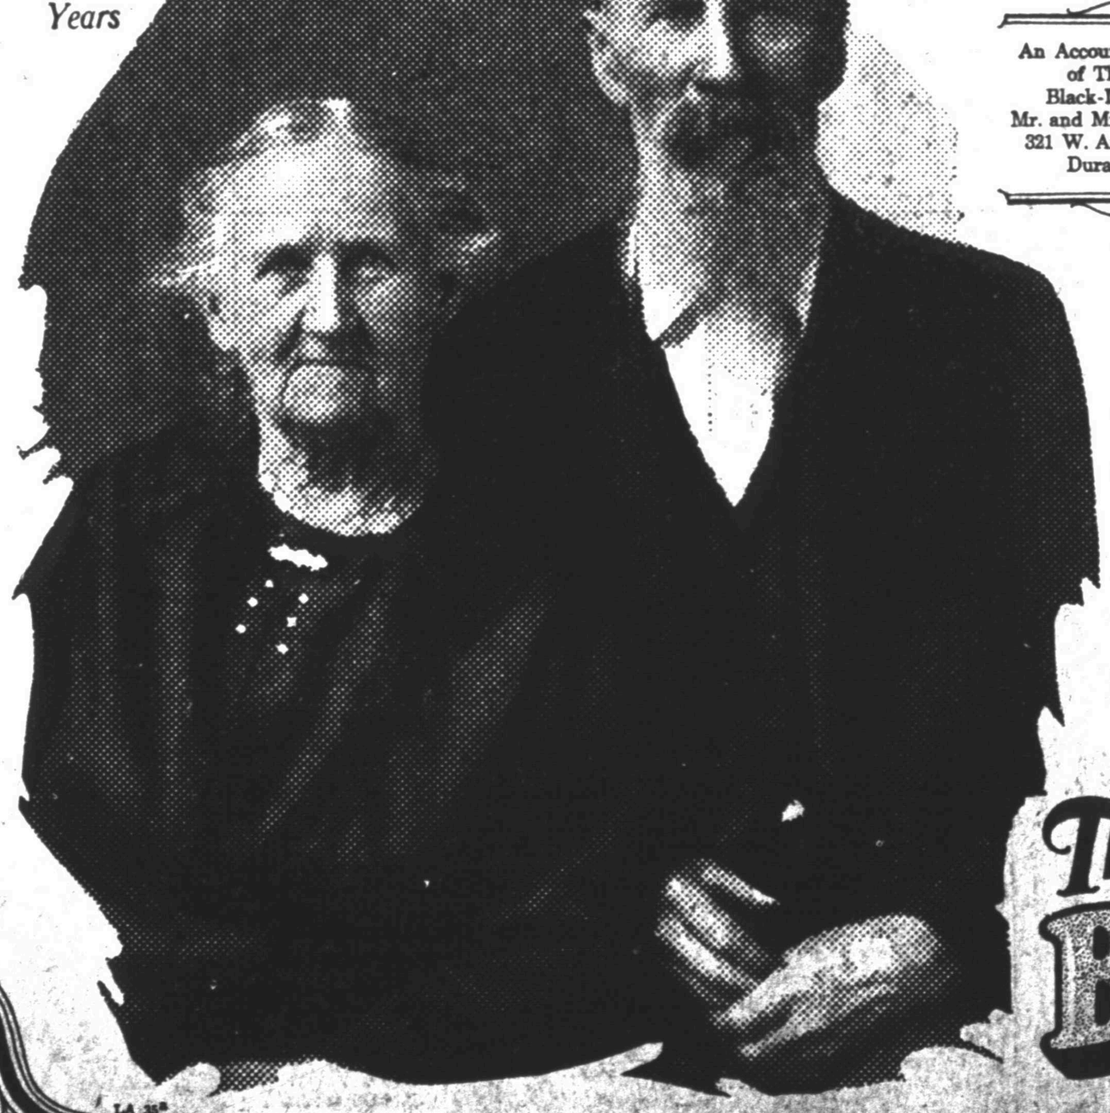

Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic nominee for the vice presidency, shown at the right, outlined the Democracy's views on labor before an enthusiastic Dallas Labor day crowd at Fair park Monday. A feature of the address was Robinson's review of Smith's energetic stand for labor throughout his monumental career.

Threat of Religious War Looms in India

LONDON, Sept. 3. (UP)—Sikhs and Moslems have broken out in serious religious warfare in Khargpun, India, a Daily Telegraph dispatch from Calcutta today said.

Their Combined Ages 149 Years

For 43 and 50 Years

An Account of the Use of Thedford's Black-Draught by Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, 321 W. Arkansas Ave., Durant, Okla.

Mr. Jones Says: "WHEN I lived in Illinois, as a very young man, I used to take Black-Draught. I believe I can safely say that I have taken it for 50 years, off and on. Black-Draught and quinine were then all the medicines I took. In all these years, I have used Black-Draught when I would get bilious. When I do get bilious, I have dizzy spells and my stomach gets all out of fix, and I just get sick all over. I found that, if I would begin taking Black-Draught in time, I could ward off these sick spells, and for years this is what I have done. I have kept my system cleansed with Black-Draught, just a few doses, now and then."

Mrs. Jones Says: "I HAVE been a user of Black-Draught for about 43 years, and find it just as good now as when I began its use. When I was young, I used to have severe headaches, and would have to go to bed. I found that by taking Black-Draught, I would soon get easy, and if I would take Black-Draught as soon as I began feeling bad, it would keep off the sick headaches. Now I take Black-Draught for a bad taste in my mouth, biliousness, and the dull, heavy feeling after meals. It surely does help this."

Spudder Batsmen Bunch Timely Hits

held the Spudders to three blows for six rounds. But Benton, Turgeon and Fitzgerald made a couple of hits and a sacrifice into a run in the fourth and the Spuds counted again in the seventh off Haynes, a rookie southpaw, when Payne drove in a run on the third hit of the inning, with Swenson and Roetz getting the other knocks.

Galloway in Game

Only two errors both by the rival shortstops, were made in the afternoon, which was marked by sensational fielding. The Spudders snapped out of their loose, indifferent defensive work of Sunday, like the real champions they are and which, if you will pardon the expression, "I told you so" in Monday's paper.

Every Spudder at one time or other came up with a fast play, but because of the greater number of chances they were called upon to handle, I think the laurels for the day's fielding go to Benton and Swenson.

Skipper Galloway played his first game in Spudder regalia in the opener. He worked like the old wizard he is at the initial bag and walked once and hit the ball his other two times up, though he didn't get a safe blow. The boss is available and ready to play if needed.

The Spudders went out in order in the first inning of the opening game. Moore walked to start the Cats half but Rollings and Riley failed to advance him, and Eddie was out stealing.

Score in Second

Witchita Falls started the scoring in the second with one tally. Jenkins strolled after one was out. Cox made a running catch of Swenson's liner but his throw to double Jenkins at first was wide. Galloway, making his first appearance at bat as a Spudder showed he still retains his keen batting eye, by working Paul for a base on balls. Lapan hit sharply to right center, Jenkins scoring and Galloway going to third.

Harrington doubled after two were out and went to third on a wild pitch. Cox walked but Cobb lifted to Turgeon. Fitzgerald made a great catch of Harrington's drive in this inning.

Rabbit Scores

The Spudders got another runner around in the third. Benton's hit over Rollings went for two bases. Turgeon was safe on a grounder to Richardson, Benton taking third. Fitzgerald's hoist to Bonowitz tallied Benton.

Moore walked for the second time with one out. Rollings struck out. Riley was passed. Lamb took Bonowitz's liner. Our men went out in order in the fourth. Jenkins, Fitzgerald and Lamb took care of three Kittens in rotation.

Lapan, Cvengros and Benton also failed to get on base in the fifth.

Benton and Swenson made scintillating plays on rollers. Moore walked for the third time, Rollings was called out on strikes.

Again the Spuds were retired one-two-three in the sixth. So were the Atzmen.

The Spudders failed to get on for the fourth straight inning in the seventh.

Fielding Stops Cats

Sensational fielding turned back the hostiles scoreless in their seventh. Benton went back of second for Richardson's grounder and made a perfect peg to first to catch the runner by a step. Cox singled to center. Cobb smashed a long hit to center for two bases, but Fitzgerald recovered speedily and threw to Turgeon whose rifle-like throw to Lapan caught Cox sliding home. Bischoff batted for Wachtel and walked. Mike bore down, and after getting three balls on Moore, hooked a couple of strikes and then caused Eddie to force Bischoff, Benton to Turgeon.

Goff, hurling in the eighth, passed Cvengros with one out but Mike was left stranded there. Bonowitz popped a mashie shot single into short center but two were out and Turgeon was under Harrington's lift.

The Spudders failed to get on in the ninth.

Kittens Score

Atz's men scored their tally in the ninth. Richardson, who started the winning rally in the final yesterday, clouted his second double, a smash to left center. He moved to third while Turgeon was tossing out Cox. Benton fumbled Cobb's grounder, Richardson scoring. Goff fanned. Swenson and Turgeon retired Cobb on Moore's grounder.

Turgeon singled to left but was thrown out trying to stretch it in the first inning of the nightcap. Moore was walked again to start the Cat half, went to second on Rollings' sacrifice, to third on Riley's infield out and Bonowitz was thrown out by Swenson.

The Spudders went out in order in the second. Likewise the Cats.

Rabbit Snatches Foul

Our men failed to get on in the third. Turgeon tossed out Bischoff, Benton handled Walkup's bad hop and threw him out, and the Rabbit also went almost to the left field bleachers for Moore's foul.

Champs Score

Wichita tallied in the fourth. Benton whaled a long double to left-center. Turgeon beat Rolling's throw by a step on his bunt but Harry Kane called him out, Benton goin to third. Fitzgerald singled through the pitcher's box, Benton scoring.

The Spudders retired the Cats one-two-three, aided by Swenson's sparkling stop and throw on Bonowitz' grounder far to his left.

Lapan walked in the fifth but two were out and he was left. Harrington got the Cats' first hit in their fifth, a ball that hopped bad for Turgeon. Benton made a fast play on Richardson's grounder to force Harrington. Roetz took Cox's foul and Jenkins was under Bischoff's lift.

Turgeon was on first in the sixth but Cox went far back for Lamb's drive for the third out. Cobb batted for Walkup and was called out on strikes and the Cats also failed to get on.

Score Second

The Spudders tallied in the seventh. Swenson and Roetz singled to left after one was out. Both advanced on a wild pitch. Lapan walked. Swenson was out at home when Payne failed to hit on the squeeze. Payne singled to left, Roetz scoring.

Only three men again faced Payne in the seventh. Lamb, Fitzgerald and Swenson took care of flies batted by Riley, Bonowitz and Harrington.

Notes of the Game

FORT WORTH, Sept. 3.—Bill Shores will hurl tomorrow at Dallas, the last road game for the Spudders of the season, except for the trips to Houston and Birmingham.

Friday's scheduled game with the Steers will be played Thursday as part of a double header, to enable the Dallas club to make good train connections for Shreveport.

Payne, Cvengros and Cobb went home today. Herb will work the opener of the Dallas series Wednesday.

The Spudders went to a vaudeville show last night. A contortionist was doing his act. Benton's young son, Teddy, kept asking Rabbit "can you do that, Daddy?" The contortionist made a particularly difficult bend, amidst intense silence by the audience. Up spoke Young Benton, "can you do that, mother?"

Rabbit gave his bunny a quarter to keep still the rest of the show.

Several Wichita Falls fans viewed the pastimes.

Fans here gave our boys an ovation when the last man was out in the nightcap. They want us to win and that goes for Jake Atz, Pop Boone and all of 'em.

Star Pitching and Petrie's Batting Beats Buffs

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 3. (AP)—Effective hurling by Cross and Johnson and the timely bingling of Petrie today enabled Beaumont to take a double bill from the Buffs, 3 to 1 and 5 to 4. In the first game the Bisons were virtually helpless before underhand shoots of Cross, a rookie. Petrie drove in two runs and scored the other himself in the initial encounter, and in the second game drove in the tying and winning runs. The scores; first game:

Coyotes Pre-Season Camp Going Great, Says Captain Harvey Black

(The following is the third letter written to the Record News Sports editor by Captain Harvey Black from the Coyotes' training camp at Craterville Park, Okla.—Editor's note.)

Craterville Park, Aug. 31.

Dear Larry:

The camp is going great. Jud Bell and Rollin Dixon are looking good as guards and at tackle Jack West seems to have an edge over the other fellows. Chick Holden and Bill McKinley are looking better than they did last spring.

Clarence Rains is the best offensive end so far. Ed Bell is also looking good as an end though he turned an ankle yesterday afternoon.

Tom Beaty and Martin Hodgkiss look about the same as centers. Dick Hambrick looks good for a quarterback and at halfbacks Pete Powell and Dave Davis look far better than the rest. Bob Clayton from Reagan junior high looks like a find for fullback.

I will tell you more tomorrow,

Yours,

BLACKIE.

YANKEES GAIN GAME ON A'S

Yanks Split With Red Sox As A's Lose Two

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (AP)—Despite a game rally in the ninth, the Yankees lost the second game of the holiday double-header to the Boston Red Sox by a score of 4 to 3, after having nosed out the Bostonese by 8 to 7 in the hard fought opener. The even break never the less gave the champions a gain of one game over the Athletics, who lost two to Washington and now trail by two and one-half contests. Scores; first game:

Tough Boys Meet In Wrestling Go

Bulldog Dutch Henry and Joe Kopecky can't get along at all.

Last week Henry was referee in the Kopecky-Dutch Mantell match and his rulings during the first fall were obviously so one-sidedly in Mantell's favor that Kopecky's loud protests, backed by howls of the mob, resulted in the Bulldog's ejection.

Gory-eyed over his removal as referee, Henry challenged Kopecky to a meeting as man to man and Joe accepted, equally eager to punch the quondam referee.

Tonight, Henry and Kopecky meet in the feature number of Promoter Alex B. Ross' weekly athletic show at Spudder park.

A trio of boxing matches and a onefall wrestling preliminary are also carded for the program Tuesday night.

Country Boy Owens meets Ray Williams of Childress in a six-round go. Virgil Oden vs. Johnny Owens, four rounds, and Curly Robinson vs. Young Trammel, paperweights, four rounds are the other two fistic events scheduled.

The one-fall wrestling prelim will be between Young Yaqui Joe of Wichita Falls and Stanley Price, Lawton, Okla., amateurs.

Veteran Teams In Texas Conference

Close Race Predicted For Football Season

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 3. (UP)—Picking the winner of the Texas football conference is a task that no one cares to undertake at the present time. All indications are that the season will be a repetition of the 1927 season, which was so close that only one game separated the winner—Southwestern university, Georgetown—from the fifth place team.

According to the advance information being spilled from the various camps, every member of the conference will have fully as strong a team as it boasted of last year and about the only prediction that sport dopesters can make right now is that none of the teams will come through the 1928 season without at least one defeat.

Coach Lefty Edens of the Southwestern Pirates, with two football championships to his credit in the three years that he has been coach there, will have a veteran line and backfield around to which to build his 1928 aggregation. The Pirates will be led by Captain Wesley Blackburn, who is playing his fourth year with Southwestern. Blackburn is considered the peer of triple threat men among the six schools of the conference.

Simmons university, Abilene, coached by Frank Bridges, is touted to have the best material of all. With 14 lettermen returning from last season, coupled with several additions from the Olympic club of San Francisco, where he coached in 1927, the Cowboys should be threat to other teams in the conference. Bridges is hopeful of getting into the Southwestern conference in the near future. For that reason, he is pointing for his games with S. M. U. and T. C. U.

Joe Bailey Cheaney, one of the greatest backs ever to wear a Howard Payne uniform, will be head coach of that school, assisted by McAdoo Keaton, another former Yellowjacket star. Seventeen lettermen will heed the opening whistle this fall. Brownwood people are predicting that Cheaney will bring a championship to the down-state city, in his first year. Bill Wright, three-year letterman at center, will captain the Yellowjackets.

The St. Edward's aggregation, from Austin, always known for their strong defensive tactics, will produce a team that will be strong on defense this season, according to Meagher, head coach. The team will be built around Sammie Dyer, in the backfield and Sarafiny, in the line, both veterans of several years experience.

Trinity university, Waxahachie, will have a veteran line, but Coaches Barry Holton and Leland Wilkins must find material for a new backfield combination. The forward wall will be one of the best in the state as it is composed of three and four-year veterans.

Austin college, Sherman, is the dark horse of the conference. With the problem of building practically a new team, confronting them, Coaches Cecil Griggs and Tricky Ward will take over the destinies of the Kangaroos. Sherman sports writers and fans are already claiming a championship for "dear old Austin" on the basis of the material the coaches will have. For the present, other teams are content to wait developments in the Kangaroo camp before they make any boasts. Just how the Kangaroos show up in the first few games will decide the psychological force they hold over other teams.

The season is scheduled to get under way officially, September 10, when uniforms and equipment will be issued at the camps.

WINDSOR BESTS SNAPPERS, 10-4

Pal Batsmen Rout Garcia And Hail

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 3. (AP)—Palestine won its fourth consecutive game from San Angelo here Monday afternoon, 10 to 4, making a clean sweep of the titular play-off series for the duel championship of the Lone Star and West Texas leagues.

The champions are scheduled for a three-game series starting Tuesday at Texon with the Big Lake Oilers, recent winners of the Denver semi-professional baseball tournament.

Hit Lustily

The Pals continued their lusty hitting this afternoon, poling 18 safeties, including home runs by Coor and Rawlings. Smalley and Dockery of the Pals each clubbed a double and three singles. Rawlings stacked two doubles beside his homer.

The Pals batted Garcia from the box in the second stanza and hung up a four-run lead. They continued at a stiff clip against Hall. San Angelo helped the Palestine cause along by making five misplays.

Snappers Score

Windsor held the Snappers to eight hits. Singles by J. Williams and Kent with a base on balls to Wiley scored a run in the first for San Angelo. Comeaux singled in the fifth and Higginbotham followed with a home run. Hits by Kent and Higginbotham with a long fly to left by Doty accounted for the other San Angelo marker in the ninth.

Dockery's homer came with two men on base in the second. There was none on when Rawlings hit his homer in the third. Score:

Football Mentors To Discuss Rules

FORT WORTH, Sept. 3. (AP)—The new lateral pass rule is expected to be the principal point of discussion Friday when more than 200 of the leading football coaches and officials of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma meet here. All changes in rules will be thoroughly threshed out, but the one dealing with what is now known as the "protected backward pass," is the one which will receive the most attention.

Dana X. Bible, head coach at Texas A. and M., and member of the National Rules committee, will conduct the discussion as he has been doing for the last several years. Bible is now in New York.

Joe Utay, chairman of the Southwest's Association of Football officials, will serve as secretary and the meeting and will prepare a list of interpretations and send them to all members of the association.

Clean-Up Campaign Started in Electra

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 3.—Electra's clean-up campaign, started by Mayor George E. Hagland and sponsored by the Electra Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, started Saturday with the mailing of a personal letter to each land owner in the city.

Extensive improvements in the vacant lots, alleys and premises of the Electra property owner is hoped from this campaign. Boy Scouts will be pressed into service this week to deliver hand bills to every house in the city, asking co-operation in the venture.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (389) OUR PRESIDENTS

In the election of 1836 Martin Van Buren of New York, Democrat and vice president, was chosen president. Shortly after his election the wonderful progress of the country was interrupted by hard times, caused by speculation in western lands. People everywhere overestimated the growth of their cities and villages and many bad investments were made.

Conditions soon were stabilized, however. Steamers began making regular trips across the Atlantic and immigrants from Europe came rapidly.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-28.

During Van Buren's administration there was a sharp little war with the Seminole Indians of Florida but the trouble soon subsided.

Van Buren was given only one term. He was defeated by William Henry Harrison, a soldier of the War of 1812 and an Indian fighter. Harrison was a Whig. Van Buren retired to his home at Kinderhook, N. Y., but was the candidate of the Free Soil party in 1848. He was defeated in that, too. He died at Kinderhook, at the age of seventy-nine.

Sun Bathing

When you are contemplating a sun bath, either in the nude or at the beach, it is well to keep in mind the fact that an overdose of the sun's rays is always injurious.

I find that many people suffer from the mistaken belief that if a little sunshine is good, a great deal is better. Extreme sunburn is often very dangerous, as the skin becomes so swollen and injured by the burn that the proper elimination of the poisons, which are normally discharged through the pores, cannot take place. This has a disastrous effect upon the kidneys.

Even a faint glow of sunburn on the skin affects the body in a proportionate manner, and is injurious as long as it lasts. It is much better to measure one's sun bath over several exposures and receive an increasing tan each time, than to try to become burnt through the effects of only one or two sunburns.

One whose skin is well tanned has benefited by the ultra-violet rays of the sun which are needed to produce such a dark color. However, the mere darkening of the skin is of no benefit but must be considered only as a necessary change which occurs to the skin as a protection against too much sunlight.

In taking your sun baths, remember that the sunlight must strike the body directly without the obstruction of clothing or even glass, which would divert the ultra-violet rays. Heating the body with sunlight through clothing is of no more benefit than heating from a stove.

It is well to time yourself at first so that you do not take an overdose of this valuable remedy and increase the time of treatment as your skin gradually tans.

When taking a sun bath, one should avoid overheating, which is indicated by a quickening of the pulse. When this occurs, quietly rest in the shade for a time before finishing your regular time of exposure.

Sometimes people bathing on the beach are sunburned on a cloudy day because they do not feel the heat of the sun. This is because the ultra-violet rays which produced the burn do not warm the skin, but do penetrate through the clouds and moist air. If you wish to stay on the beach for a long time without being sunburned, it is wise for you to expose your body to the sun for only a short time, and for the remaining period keep it covered with a blanket or robe. In this way many hours can be spent on the beach so that one can benefit from and enjoy the inhalation of the clean, fresh, moist, salt air.

Nude sun bathing is now being recognized by all physicians for diseases such as anemia, tuberculosis, rickets, asthma, catarrh, chronic tonsilitis, and disorders of metabolism, such as nephritis and diabetes. There is a German proverb that states that the hearse calls twice as often on the shady side of the street as on that which is more favored by the sunshine.

The modern bathing suit has taught us to cultivate bodies more beautiful and pleasing to the eye. Even in ordinary street clothes, the women of today have adopted such practical styles that the air circulates over the whole body, giving the skin a continuous air bath for which it has been hungry for several generations. For some reason, men have been more conservative about reforming their style of dress. However, the lighter underclothing adopted by both sexes allows a freer circulation of air and undoubtedly contributes to the increased longevity of the human race.

Take advantage of the waning summertime so that you can avail yourself of this most valuable health force—a simple and inexpensive treatment for which there is no better substitute in the physician's pharmacopoeia.

Questions and Answers

Question: A. H. writes: "I am 73 years old, and am bothered with a twitching or jerking in my legs when retiring, sometimes keeping me awake for an hour or more. Will you please let me know the cause, also if there is a remedy?"

Answer: The jerking in your legs is doubtless caused by a poor circulation of blood. I would advise you to take some exercise about an hour before retiring. After the exercises, sit in a tub of warm water, immersing the legs in the water for about two or three minutes. This will help the circulation and should prevent the jerking. If you will write me in care of this newspaper, inclosing a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to send you a special chart of exercises without charge.

Question: Mrs. M. G. asks: "What is the best method of keeping grapes?"

Answer: Sound grapes may be kept in good condition for a long time by wrapping each bunch in waxed paper. After tying the ends they should be placed on some soft material, such as cotton batting, and kept in a cool place. They may also be packed in California redwood sawdust and stored in a cool place. Another method, frequently used in Europe, is to place the stock of each bunch of grapes in a small bottle of water containing a piece of charcoal. If a temperature of about 38 degrees is maintained, they will keep in good condition for a long time.

Question: Ruth asks: "What would you think best to do for sciatic rheumatism? The party in question has been in bed close to four years with it. He is on a milk diet now?"

Answer: What is called "sciatic rheumatism" may be due to an inflammation of the sciatic nerve and caused by rheumatic toxins; or, the nerve may be pinched some place between where its branches emerge from the lower spine. An osteopath or chiropractor could quickly correct the trouble if it is caused by pinched nerves, and a diet to cure rheumatism would bring about a cure of the trouble if it is caused by the rheumatic toxemia.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to
FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By MILLER J. HUGGINS

Miller Jerome Huggins, manager of the greatest baseball club in the world, the New York Yankees, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, on March, 27, 1880, he was a second baseman as a player and broke in with Mansfield, Ohio, of the old Interstate league, in 1899. The Yankees have won five pennants under Huggins' direction, which has caused him to become one of the foremost figures in baseball.

MILLER J HUGGINS

"I got a big snort," Huggins told me, "out of a story about a negro evangelist. This preacher's main drawback was his nearsightedness.

"Nevertheless, his eye ailment did not affect his forcefulness, and the colored converts would file down the aisles to the pulpit by the dozens.

"During one service a man of huge proportions came striding down the aisle and dropped to his knees before the rostrum beside a row of other negroes. He was barefooted, and two enormous feet stuck up behind him, the heels glistening.

"The evangelist was shaking the hand of each colored convert, and at length he arrived at the side of our hero. The nearsighted old preacher peered earnestly at the darkey, patted him affectionately on the shoulder, and murmured:

"'Bless you, brudder.' Then kneeling behind him and putting a hand on each heel, he said: 'And bless these two dear little boys!'"

Sir Austin Chamberlain's Ship Stops in France

LA ROCHELLE, France, Sept. 3. (UP)—The liner Orcoma, bearing Sir Austen Chamberlain on his vacation trip, touched here today but the British statesman, who has been ill, did not come ashore. Lady Chamberlain received the French official greetings in her husband's name and signed in the gold book at the city hall, writing her name just below that of Secretary Kellogg.

Continuation of Higher and Bullish Stock Market Forecast This Week

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. (US)—Bull leaders achieved further success in attracting public participation to the stock market during the past week in the fact of the "red flag" flown by the money authorities. The signal of danger, while ignored by the participating public, is recognized by the powerful operators responsible for the danger, but they feel, as one exchange firm put it: "The trouble is far down the track." From the manner in which they skyrocketed their favorites as last week closed they must believe they have plenty of time to prepare.

They refuse to take "money" serums at the moment and discuss fundamentals. In so far as most industries are concerned fundamental developments give many bullish talking points so that there is likely to be even more active markets experienced in the near future than those witnessed last week. The big test in a little more than a week when money will begin to tighten because of the mid-September turnover of funds and a call rate of 12 per cent or higher would be no surprise at that time.

Beginning of a distribution period, it is pointed out, requires a rather lengthy period of big markets for successful unloading.

Tight Money Expected

Tighter money tomorrow and then gradual easing as the week progresses is generally expected in Wall street. The September 1 dividend and interest checks, estimated at $400,000,000, have been sent out and most will go through the banks tomorrow morning. Tomorrow afternoon the banks must make adjustment with the reserve. As the week progresses a part of the new September money should make an appearance, it is thought, and as there are no other outside demands of consequence the market should have additional funds available for the balance of the week. There has been some belief that the new clearing house regulations here, effective this week, would mean big withdrawals of loans for the account "of others" but bankers declare they see no evidence of such development right away.

"Selected stocks" apparently are those in which technical corners are made possible by the very limited amount available for loaning purposes.

Reserve Board Criticised

Criticism of the reserve board continues—mostly from those who are holding stocks for a speculative profit. The investor never suffers from such necessary action as the reserve authorities have taken. When correction of a speculative position is necessary the reserve cannot think about what the effect hereon will be to the daily fluctuations in the stock market. It must think of the long distance results to business and finance and act accordingly. As a result of its action for the last few months the reserve now is in a position to relieve serious stress at any time by loosening money strings. Had it not strengthened its position the ultimate crash that would follow a speculative orgy could not be checked before considerable damage had been done.

There is no change of any lower rediscount rate for the next four months at least, under present conditions.

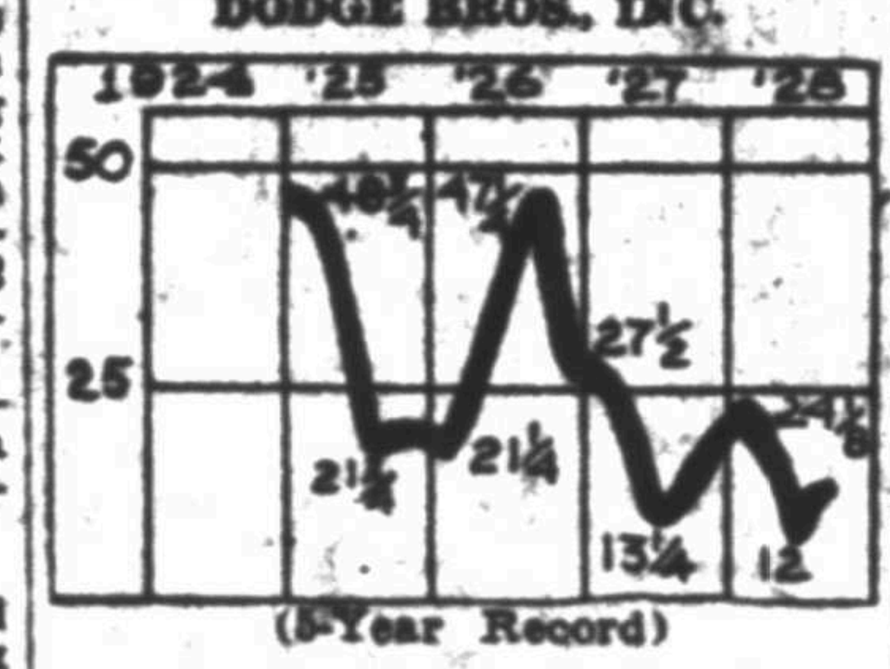

Loan Increase Looms

New York stock exchange figures on brokers' loans will be made public Wednesday or Thursday afternoon. They are expected to show an increase of about $100,000,000. However the new service of the exchange will offset this gain to some extent as it is expected that it will show a further drop in the ratio of loans to value of listed stocks. As of the close of July the total loans amounted to 9 per cent of the market valuation of listed stocks. That the ratio is lower as of August 31 will be seized upon as a bull point but it should be borne in mind that the greater part of loans are made on approximately less than 10 per cent of listed stocks.

STOCK-A-DAY

DODGE BROS., INC.

(5-Year Record)

The future of Dodge Bros., Inc., seems definitely destined to be linked with that of the Chrysler corporation and to be under the engineering and sales dominion of Walter Chrysler. The company succeeded in 1925 to the business of Dodge Bros., formed in 1914. The Dodge interests split away from the Ford organization in the latter year and by 1926 had become the third largest manufacturer in point of units. In 1927 the company dropped to fourth including commercial car output. So far as passenger car production is concerned, figures indicate that it was about fifth or sixth in this respect. From the standpoint of net income, the company dropped from fourth place in 1926 to seventh in 1927.

The company has many subsidiaries including an assembling unit in Canada and a wholesale selling company in England. A growing export business is reported. The concern in 1927, branched out from the four cylinder to the six cylinder field, having previously concentrated on "fours" selling slightly above the Ford and Chevrolet prices.

Reflecting this transition period, the company's net dropped in 1927 to a net income of $9,641,427. This compared with $21,501,920 in 1926. The best year Dodge ever had was 1925. In the first three months of 1928, net income equaled $1,981,000, or the equivalent of $2.33 a share on the preference stock and 21 cents a share on the common.

The corporation owns in fee six plants in the neighborhood of Detroit, moderatly equipped, and also has factories at Evansville, Ind., Stockton, Calif., and Toronto.

Funded debt of the Dodge corporation amounts to $60,026,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of 837,500 shares of $7 cumulative preferred of no par value; 1,830,288 shares of class A common of no par value, and 500,000 shares of class B common of no par value. Class A and class B common are identical in all respects except that class A has no voting power and class B has exclusive voting power.

The required rate on the preference shares has been paid. No dividends have been paid on the class A or class B.

As of April 30, 1928, current assets amounted to $45,196,901; current liabilities to $16,880,723, and net working capital to $28,316,178. Book value of the preference shares amounted to $48.91 a share. Current assets of the combined Dodge and Chrysler corporations exceeded current liabilities as of April 30, by $77,458,022.

State Deaths

T. E. PHILLIPS
Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Sept. 3.—The funeral services for J. E. Phillips, who died Saturday about noon at the Clinic hospital in Wichita Falls, were held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Baptist church, Dr. Glen N. Neafus, pastor of the church, having charge of the services.

The pall bearers were Curtis Hill, John Moore, J. E. Sewell, R. A. Dahl, and J. A. DeSha.

Mr. Phillips had been ill for several months, and underwent an operation at the Clinic hospital about three weeks ago, but little hope for his recovery had been held.

He is survived by his wife and two children, Welton and Maxine, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Phillips of Cordell, Okla., three brothers, Ora, Everett, and Kenneth, and three sisters, Misses Elisa, Ruth and Olena Phillips, all of Cordell.

Other out of town relatives who attended the funeral were his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Fate Carter, Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Brown, all of Cordell, and Mr. and Mrs. Hipps of Byers, and Mrs. Virginia Chambers of Electra, a sister of Mrs. Phillips.

Friends from out of town were Mrs. Claude Perry, Miss Jewell Rainey and Mr. Massey of Wichita Falls.

Burial took place in the Highland cemetery.

HASSELL READY TO COME HOME

Fliers to Leave Greenland In Motorboat

JULIANEHAAB, Greenland, Sept. 3. (UP)—(Via Radio)—Rescued after two weeks of difficult travel over the ice, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, forced down on the Sukkertoppen ice arm while attempting a three-stop flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, were ready to start for Holstenborg.

The fliers stood the hardships of their trek over the ice in wonderful fashion and are in excellent physicial condition.

Hassell and Cramer reached Mount Evans at midnight Sunday.

After resting today, they were ready for the trip to Holstenborg, which will be made by motorboat, although the time for their departure has not been set.

Their airplane, the Greater Rockford, in which they set out from Rockford, August 16, was not damaged when they made their forced landing on the ice after flying far off their route to Mount Evans.

The landing was made August 19 and since that date the two fliers had been attempting to reach safety before their food supply was exhausted. Their smoke signals were seen Sunday and their rescue was effected by members of the University of Michigan Greenland expedition at Camp Lloyd, south of Mount Evans.

Hassell and Cramer were forced down while on the second lap of their flight. The first flight, from Rockford to Cochrane, Ont., had been completed without accident. After a delay of 24 hours at Cochrane, due to unfavorable weather, they took off at noon, August 18, for Mount Evans, their second stop.

Apparently, everything went well with the plane until they reached the Labrador coast, ready to start with the water jump to the coast of Greenland. The radio signals which Cramer was sending out were received satisfactorily by operators in the United States up to that point. Then silence covered the flight.

The plane shot out over the northern waters however, and finally after striking bad weather, reached the coast of Greenland nearing the end of the 1600-mile flight. The big craft was sighted on August 19 by natives of Fiskernaes, a remote village, on the coast of Greenland. At that time the fliers were far off their course, but after circling the village they headed north toward their original destination, Mount Evans.

They landed the same day on the ice off Sukkertoppen.

outside loop. Boyd Kennedy gave an exhibition of the performance of the new Eagierock, and Ben Branson from the municipal field, and Chester Bales in an Eaglerock advertising "Lilac Time" were the other stunters.

Ships of the day included Frank Hover, piloting Charles Gray's Ryan brougham monoplane; Roy French in an Eagierock; Bill Long in a Swallow, McKnight's Lincoln Page that was disabled; Whitie Owens' Cannuck, L. H. Gray's Swallok, M. M. Kay's Jenny, A. J. Lanier's Commandair and Benny Griffith's Peerless Princess.

Several visitors were on the field. They included H. Hargraves of Kansas City, who landed for gasoline in his Indoor Sport and immediately took the air again on his way to Los Angeles; and M. T. and D. S. Ramsey of Abilene, who were visiting in their Travelair ship.

The Labor day celebration at Lake Wichita also attracted good crowds. In the afternoon there were parties at play, picnicking, boating and big boat racing. The real throngs came at night. Dancing, the amusements and the fireworks were the main attractions of the night.

TOO DAINTY

Girls Couldn't Compete With Boys in Pie Eating Contest

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 3. (AP)—The feminist movement received a setback here today when the Beaumont trades and labor council was unable to induce 12 girls to participate in a pie eating contest at its annual Labor day celebration.

Finally, after much coaxing, eight were recruited, but the daintiness with which they handled the custard was in marked contrast to that of a group selected from 50 boys who made a dash for the platform when a call for pie eaters was sounded.

Raskob's Chief Goes for Hoover

ously bolted to Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

In his statement, Sloan faces in an opposite direction from John J. Raskob, who resigned as chairman of General Motors finance committee to assume charge of Smith's campaign. He also disagrees with Pierre du Pont, who offered to resign as chairman of the General Motors board of directors that he might support Smith.

The General Motors board declined to accept Du Pont's proffered resignation and instead gave him an indefinite leave of absence. Sloan, stressing in his statement the personal side of his allegiance to Hoover, makes no mention of any thought of resigning because of his political convictions.

Disagreeing with his former conferes on the effect of prohibition, Sloan says it has already been beneficial, has increased national efficiency and purchasing power, and given the United States an advantage in competition with foreign trade.

Sloan's Statement

The text of Sloan's statement is as follows:

"I am in favor of the election of Mr. Hoover for president. In making this statement I want to emphasize that it is my position as an individual and has nothing to do with any business enterprise.

"I am for Mr. Hoover because I believe in him personally, his record, his experience, and what he represents, also in the organization behind him. History demonstrates that this country has been more generally prosperous under Republican administration and as a result of Republican policies.

"We have never been so prosperous as a whole as under the administration of Mr. Coolidge.

"I am confident that Mr. Hoover can be counted upon to carry forward all the policies and principles which have contributed to this prosperity. He has the experience and capacity to do this constructively. Likewise he has the ability to recognize that we must adjust our course from time to time."

"To my mind, picking out the chief executive for any government is no different in principle than picking out an executive for any other business. I believe I should pin my faith on the ability, integrity, honesty of purpose, and principles that the executive stands for. I do not think I would be led astray even if in some detail I may differ. No executive or administrator can satisfy all, the people all the time on all questions.

Doesn't Want Change

"Would the stockholders of any business, the management of which has built up generous profits, made liberal disbursements in dividends, increased prestige and the value of the corporation's securities, brought prosperity to the organization, be likely to change that management? As stockholders in the United States, have we not received excellent dividends in the way of reduced taxes, improved standards of living with quite general prosperity? Why then is a change logical?

"I appreciate there are problems unsolved—some of them important. There always will be. Prohibition is one of these. Having been intimately connected with industrial problems for many years, I am thoroughly convinced that prohibition has increased our national efficiency, has added to the purchasing power of the people, and given us an added advantage in our competition for foreign trade.

Sticks to Prohibition

"At the same time, I recognize that conditions respecting the observance of the law are far from satisfactory and time may prove the necessity for some adjustments. If so, I am for having those adjustments brought about by an executive in sympathy with the economic benefits that the closest possible adherence to the prohibition idea is sure to bring about.

"It seems to me, therefore, that we should ask ourselves whether this or any other problem is likely to be any more constructively handled under a change of administration. I see nothing to justify any change. Therefore, I am for Mr. Hoover."

Negro Stabbed, Three Jailed by Officers

Jessie Young, negro, was in the Wichita General hospital, suffering from knife wounds in the back, another negro man and woman, uninjured, were all in the city jail Monday night as the aftermath of an affray "across the tracks" Monday night. Neither of the men was seriously injured.

Witnesses told Bob Miller, police officer who investigated the affray, that a woman stabbed one of the men with an ice pick after Young was attacked with a knife.

Rabbit Breeders To Plan Exhibits Tonight

Committees appointed to make arrangements for showing of rabbits at the community fairs to be held at Burkburnett Sept. 28 and 29 and at Iowa Park Oct. 4, 5 and 6, are expected to have a report at the meeting of the Texas-Oklahoma Rabbit Breeders' association Tuesday night. Routine matters of the organization also will be discussed.

The association meets with E. B. Lecroy at the Phillips' camp on the Archer City road.

BANKERS FORM PLAINS ASS'N

Lubbock Man Named First President

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Sept. 1.—That the bankers of the South Plains believe in working on so-called banker holidays was demonstrated here Labor day when more than 40 of the bank officials of this section gathered in this city for the purpose of organizing the South Plains Bankers' association.

The morning session was opened with O. B. Norman of the Lamesa National bank presiding, and Carl Rountree, local attorney, and representative-elect extending the welcome address. The welcome was responded to by B. Reagan of the West Texas National bank of Big Springs. The morning program consisted of discussions of why the country banks' sources of revenue are decreasing and the need for a local bankers association by Morgan L. Copeland of the Brownfield State bank of Brownfield, and C. F. Drexel of the Citizens' National bank of Lubbock.

The afternoon session consisted of business and organization. Officers elected were C. F. Drexel, vice president Citizens' National bank of Lubbock, president; O. P. Thrane of the Snyder National bank, vice president, and Morgan L. Copeland, cashier of the State Bank of Brownfield, secretary and treasurer. The by-laws committee consists of W B. Slaton of the First National bank of Slaton; W. C. McDuffie, First National bank, Brownfield; F. A. Norman, Citizens' National bank, Lubbock. Among the strong resolutions passed at the meeting is the South Plains bankers go on record as favoring the collection of exchange on all bill of lading cotton drafts to the extent of one-fourth and one per cent.

Demo Committee To Meet Today

other delegation was headed by Charles I. Francis, vice-chairman of the Democratic state executive committee.

After a lively contest the delegation headed by Mr. Francis was recognized by the executive committee. The constitutionals carried their fight to the floor of the convention to be overwhelmingly snowed under.

Following their defeat at the first state convention the constitutionals returned to Wichita Falls and set themselves to the task of perfecting an organization in Wichita county. Their success was rewarded by a harmonious county convention on Aug. 4, when a slate of delegates, allegedly prepared by Mr. Sartin, was elected without opposition.

It is believed that organization of an opposition against the delegation then selected is the primary purpose of the called meeting of the executive committee Tuesday. Before any delegation can be selected by the committee unruly anti-Smithsonians must be pruned from the central organization, Judge Scurry has declared.

The method by which the revamped executive committee will seek to discredit the constitutional delegation at the state convention has not been revealed. The probable course, however, is a denial by the executive committee that the delegation selected is representative of the wishes of the voters of the county and was not lawfully selected. A number of the committee members, favoring Al Smith, have predicted the selection by the executive committee of a delegation of Smith supporters.

It is understood that the state executive committee is overwhelmingly pro-Smith and that the convention will be at least two to one for support of the nominee. The regular element plans to make use of these facts, believing that for the sake of harmony the executive committee would welcome an opportunity to refuse recognition of the constitutional element.

Program Arranged For Realtors' Meet

A program on "The Sale of Property" has been arranged for the meeting of the real estate board Tuesday noon at the Kemp hotel, according to officers of the club. The Tuesday meeting will be the first since June.

Tuesday's program will include discussions on "How to Find the Prospect," "How to Appraise Property," "How to Finance the Payment" and "How to Close the Deal."

Robbins Returns

Horrace Robbins has returned from a trip to Detroit during which he attended a special two-day bond school of the Detroit Fidelity and Surety company.

Reva Ray Brown Becomes Bride Of Robert Mathis at Pretty Ceremony

Dignity and simplicity marked one of the most beautiful church weddings of the year Monday evening at the First Presbyterian church, when Miss Reva Ray Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy J. Brown, became the bride of Robert E. Mathis of this city. Dr. Nat F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, read the ring ceremony.

Pre-nuptial music included a violin solo by Miss Mary Meredith, "At Downing" (Cadman), with Mrs. O. E. Maer as accompanist at the organ, and a vocal solo, "I Love You Truly" (Bond) by Miss Virgie Mae Adams. Mrs. Maer played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the wedding party approached the altar.

Orchid and yellow were used in the flowers that bedecked the church and in the costumes of the wedding party. Gladioluses in the wedding colors featured the decorations for the church, with southern smilax and palms as a background.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Guy J. Brown, wore a lovely bouffant model in white crepe satin and lace, trimmed in tiny pearls. Her Juliet veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. Slippers of white satin and white hose completed the costume.

Leading the bridal party were the eight bridesmaids, dressed in delicately tinted orchid georgette gowns in a bouffant style, garden hats of orchid georgette and orchid satin slippers and hose.

The bridesmaids entered two by two, Misses Geraldine Monroe and Wilma Brown leading Misses Louise Kay and Dolores Peavy, Maxine King and Mary Ferguson, Camille Avis and Margaret Hines. Bouquets of yellow marigolds were carried by the bridesmaids.

Miss Doris Brown, sister of the bride, followed the bridesmaids in the procession, wearing a yellow gown in a pattern similar to those worn by the bridesmaids. Miss Brown wore a yellow georgette garden hat and carried a bouquet of orchid asters and baby's breath.

Little Miss Jaculine Dickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Connard Dickey of Fort Worth, was flower girl. Miss Dickey who immediately preceded the bride and her father, wore a dainty little orchid georgette which was an exact minature of those worn by the bridesmaids, and a maline orchid bow on her curls. She carried a basket of rose petals and baby's breath.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom, who was attended by Robert Hill as best man. Groomsmen were Edward Smith, Harold Knotts, Walter Allen, and Ward Phenix.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party and a few friends were entertained at the home of the bride's parents at 1616 Tenth street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Mathis left for a short wedding trip to Colorado. Mrs. Mathis wore a tan and Bavarian ensemble in kitten's ear cloth for a going-away costume, with a tan and brown felt hat and accessories to harmonize.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathis will make their home in Wichita Falls on their return from their wedding trip.

Out-of-town guests present for the ceremony included Mrs. Julian W. Reynolds of Albany, Ga.; Mrs. Connard Dickey of Fort Worth; Mrs. Robert Criner of Dallas; Mrs. O. J. Butts of Fort Worth; and Mrs. W. R. Ward of Fort Worth.

RADIO PLANT PASSES TESTS

KGKO On Air Here Early Tuesday Morning

KGKO, the National Security Life Insurance company radio station of Wichita Falls, has tasted the air and likes it. The public has heard the station and likes it as has been attested to by telephone calls and a stack of telegrams.

An informal test program was given by the station, starting at 12:01 o'clock Tuesday morning, with WRR of Dallas and KTSA of San Antonio assisting.

The formal opening program is to be given at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The 8 o'clock program will be preceded by a 30-minute test program to start at 7:30 o'clock. Air fans have been requested to telephone to the studio, 25104 and 24445, to report the reception of this program in order to assist the Wichita Falls station to get a better start.

Test Successful

The test broadcast held early Tuesday morning showed that the newer and more modern equipment of the station will enable Wichitans to tune out KGKO with the greatest of ease when they want some other station, according to station officials.

The entire equipment of the station is new and embodies the latest patents in the radio world. The broadcasting set has been so built that in the first test program it was found possible to tune out the local station and tune in stations just one point away. This remarkable feat was accomplished on the receiving set in the receiving room of KGKO immediately under the gigantic aerial that was broadcasting.

KGKO has 1000 watt equipment and will broadcast on a 500 watt power under the temporary permit of the department of commerce. The permit also set the temporary wave length of the station at 222.2 meters and the kilocycles at 1350. This wave band will obtain for about a month at which time it is expected that it will either be changed or made permanent.

The 500 watt power of older stations has enabled them to reach two thirds the way across the continent. As KGKO is just about half way from each seacoast, and as the equipment is of the newest type, it is expected that it will, under all normal conditions, carry the word of Wichita Falls to the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Charles Baker, radio engineer of station WFAA, assembled the equipment of KGKO, and Glen Henson, chief supervisor of WFAA, is here for the opening.

Tuesday night's opening will be a song by R. E. Shepherd, who gained fame throughout the south as the "singing mayor of Wichita Falls". Mrs. Shepherd will play the piano accompaniment. They also will give request numbers.

Zack Hurt will be the announcer of the new station, and Mr. Shepherd is the publicity director.

Zack and Glen, former KTSA and KFOB station artists, will be permanently attached to this station and will also be on the opening program. Zack was married in Fort Worth Saturday. With his wife and Glen Hewitt, he arrived here Sunday.

Several entertainers from Dallas, Paul Seeds Panhandle band, I. B. Thompson's Hawaiian quartet, Paul Seeds' orchestra and The Bluebonnet trio which includes Miss Frances Phillips, Miss Lorene Tucker and Miss Jean Fisk, will complete the program artists.

More Animals For Zoo On Way Here

A big steamship is due in New York harbor from an African port bearing lions, a zebra and other animals for Wichita Falls. Dr. R. H. Graham of the Lions club, sponsor of the Lions club municipal zoo in Scotland park, announced Monday night that the ship should now be in dock.

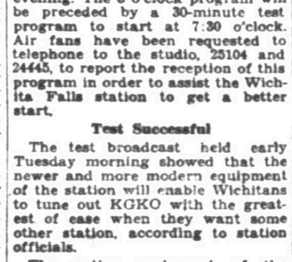

The animals are to be shipped to the Kansas City zoological gardens. That part of the cargo intended for Wichita Falls will be loaded into a car there with other animals for the local zoo which are now in Kansas City, and sent here by express.

INSPECTS CHEESE PLANT

C. F. Lochridge, county agent of Stephens county, was in Wichita Falls Monday afternoon looking over the Kraft cheese plant here with G. C. McGown, Wichita county agent. Mr. Lochridge was visiting with his father, L. N. Lochridge, president of the First National bank of Iowa Park, Monday. He planned to return to Breckenridge Monday night.

STRAND: Esther Ralston in "The Sawdust Paradise," Paramount's second picture with sound. Two Vitaphone shorts. Pathe news.

GARDEN: "Life of Riley," Western. Comedy.

GEM: "Drifting Sands." Serial. Comedy.

Now from gay Hollywood comes word that Gloria Swanson is at work on her first talking motion picture. There will be lots of "firsts" of varying kinds from now on. Big stars each will have their "firsts" and the big producers each will have their firsts. Miss Swanson's picture will be named "Queen Kelly."

"Queen Kelly" sounds quite plebian, sorta like "king of the washboard." It seems, too, that Gloria is married to a prince or a dook, earl or count of some kind, isn't she,—or wasn't she? Movie stars change so rapidly that we make no attempt to be accurate about such items as the latest hubby.

Radio Corporation of America's "Photophone" will be used in "Queen Kelly," and a whole trainload of equipment and experts have arrived in Hollywood from New York for the work.

Colleen Moore is by nature admirably adapted to play the part of the little French maid in "Lilac Time" and should make a tremendous hit in the opening Friday at the Strand.

Tuesday is the last day of John Gilbert in "Four Walls" at the Majestic.

Esther Ralston in "The Sawdust Paradise," Paramount's second picture with sound, seems to be a much better effort than most of the vitaphone picture Warner Brothers have been turning out. That doesn't mean all of Warners by a long shot, but it does mean most of them. After all, this is only natural. Paramount is generally rather careful and does things only after using every possible aid at its command. After letting the other fellow experiment, Paramount steps forth. "The Sawdust Paradise" shows advances in a number of ways, and Esther Ralston is one of them. It is a worth while picture.

May McAvoy is a large part of the show "A Reno Divorce" at the Olympic even if she is rather tiny.

J. J. Bell's popular British novel, "Kitty Carstairs" is at the Mission in movie form as "Beyond London's Lights." It's a story of English life, and F. B. O. employed an almost complete British cast to lend the proper atmosphere to the action. The picture will remain over Tuesday and Wednesday.

Whoop 'er up comedy is heading for the Olympic Thursday. George Sidney and Charlie Murray will be there in "Flying Romeos." Goggles on their chins, and cookoos in the cockpit probably will stamp this film as the hokum comedy of the air.

And if anyone ever asks you about it, which they probably won't, I think there isn't anything much better or more refreshing once in a while than a good, wild, uproaring, old fashioned "hokum" comedy.

TEXTILE PLANT TURNS TODAY

First Tuf Nut Machines To Start

Tuesday will see another new industry added to Wichita Falls' growing list when the Tuf Nut Garment Manufacturing company plant at Fifth street and Travis avenue begins operations.

Only a few have been employed for the start as it was considered impossible to take a full crew of inexperienced women workers and put them all to work at once.

One by one the machines will be started, and the new machines will be added as the operators become expert enough to continue by themselves without instructors.

By the end of the week it is hoped to have 25 machines in successful operation.

There are 150 machines in the plant, and they all will be running as soon as the operators can be trained. This, it was said, might take several months.

There will be no formal opening at present, and none is contemplated until well after the complete plant is in operation, according to P. E. McLain, manager.

ACADEMY TO OPEN TODAY

Registration of Students Starts Term

The Academy of Mary Immaculate will open for registration Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Classes for the year will be started Wednesday morning.

These announcements were made at the academy Monday evening along with the the statement that present applications for enrollment indicate a good increase over last year's enrollment, which was 300.

Many of the boarding students have arrived, and a considerable number spent Monday night at the school. The others are expected Tuesday.

The remainder of this week will see half day classes which will be held in the mornings. Next week the regular full class days will start.

Pupils are enrolled at the academy from 6 years of age on through high school. The school is affiliated for credits with the University of Texas and the credits are accepted at any school or college in the country.

Here's a "Custom-made" Oil!

THERE'S a grade of Conoco Amalie Oil for your particular motor. Exhaustive tests have proved that Conoco Amalie lubricates your motor exactly as you and the manufacturer of your car want it lubricated. Conoco Amalie is "custom made" for you.

Manufactured from the cream of 100% Pennsylvania Crude, Conoco Amalie stands up under practically every operating condition. It fights friction, seals the pistons, protects every moving part, reduces wear and tear and thereby insures a greater trade-in value for your motor.

Why endanger the very life of your motor by allowing "tramp" and unbranded oils to be poured into the crankcase? Why not play safe and insist upon Conoco Amalie?

Ask for it wherever you see the Conoco sign.
