East Texas Area Has Turbulent Weather

By The Associated Press
Turbulent weather smashed in to Texas Friday, causing a possible tornado at Waskom in far East Texas and bringing heavy rains to parts of the state.
The Waskom tornado apparently did not touch the ground, but brought battering winds which overturned a trailer house.
Arlie Wells, a service station operator at Waskom, said "something came through" overhead roaring like a train. But, he said, it apparently did not touch ground.
Mrs. J. C. Toland also reported strong winds and hard rain but no extensive damage. A few trees and signs were blown down.
Shortly after dawn the Weather Bureau reported a thunderstorm north of Humble, moving east-northeastward and decreasing in intensity.
At that time, rain was falling over North Texas along and east of the Sherman-Fort Worth-Temple line, and the rain area moved eastward at about 25 miles an hour.
Some of the rainfall totals by 7 a.m. today included Ennis 1.05 inches, Waxahachie 1.15, Denison .79, Washington 2.1, Richmond .85, Farmersville 1.41, Dallas .54, San Antonio 2.1, Austin 1.9, Fort Worth 3.2, Brownwood .86, Texarkana .85, Crandall 1.18, Longview 1.32, Mineral Wells .44 and Junction .45.
The Weather Bureau put parts of East Texas under a severe thunderstorm alert Friday.
Its special advisory also covered northwest Louisiana, parts of Southern Arkansas and the extreme west part of West Central Mississippi. The bureau said: "Scattered severe thunderstorms with damaging winds and large hail are expected until 1 p.m. in the area 40 miles each side of a line from 70 miles south-west of Lufkin to 60 miles north-west of Monroe, La.—This revises

State Candidates Seek Endorsement

By The Associated Press
Organized labor and the endorsement of candidates by various groups drew attention in the Texas governor's race Thursday.
Utterances by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson and Don Yarborough, two of the six Democrats in the contest, dealt with these topics.
Gov. Price Daniel and John Connally wooed support among South Texans gathered for Laredo's Washington birthday celebration.
President J. H. West of the Texas Farm Bureau said at least five gubernatorial contenders will appear at the bureau's "measure the candidate" session next week in Dallas.
Wilson asserted that anti-trust laws should be broadened to prevent abuses by labor unions. He also said unions should be forbidden to use their funds for political purposes.

Krush Letter Chills Negotiation Hopes

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — A tough new message from Premier Khrushchev, insisting that President Kennedy agree to a March summit meeting, chilled U.S. hopes today for an kind of successful negotiations with the Soviet Union at the forthcoming Geneva conference.
The letter, delivered to the State Department Thursday, also raised grave suspicion among officials here that Khrushchev is trying to use the approaching disarmament conference as a device to prevent Kennedy from ordering a new series of atmospheric nuclear tests. Officials judged the 20-page message to be loaded with propaganda.
The State Department forwarded an English translation of the letter to the White House late Thursday afternoon, a little more than two hours after Kennedy left for Florida. Presumably, his special assistant, McGeorge Bundy, relayed it to the President im-

Wrong Turn Leads Youths To Jail Here

Two Alabama youths are in county jail today because of a bad sense of direction.
Earl Morgan Barber and James Albert Lee took a 1960 model sedan from a Snyder used car lot Wednesday night. They stated this morning that it was their intention to drive to California, but when they got to El Paso, they apparently turned the wrong direction off U.S. Highway 180 and headed east on U.S. 80. When they arrived at Big Spring they needed gas, and after filling up at a station there last night they drove off without paying.
The theft of the car had been reported just minutes before to the Snyder City Police Department. They had issued an area alert. Colorado City Police had just heard the Snyder alert, and then the report of the car from Big Spring. They were apprehended as they drove into Colorado City.
Snyder police went to Colorado City last night to return the suspects. According to Chief of Police Chester Simons the boys expressed considerable indignation that after 24 hours of driving they were only 22 miles from Snyder.
Charges against the pair were filed by city police and they were turned over to the sheriff's department. Bond was set at $1,800 which they were unable to make this morning.

100,000 On Parade Route

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. received a medal from President Kennedy today amid roaring acclaim for his fantastic space flight.
Returning to the jumping off point of his great adventure, Glenn got a long ovation from perhaps 100,000 persons who lined an 18-mile parade route from Patrick Air Force Base to Cape Canaveral.
Kennedy flew into Cape Canaveral from Palm Beach, and was greeted by Glenn, who escorted him on a tour of major Project Mercury facilities.
Then, in a brief ceremony at Hangar 3, Kennedy awarded Glenn the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The President also presented the same medal to Robert R. Gilruth, Project Mercury director.
Glenn flew into Patrick at 8:40 a.m.
The Air Force C130 jet ferrying the space hero from his two days of post-flight examination at Grand Turk Island taxied up to the base operations office at nearby Patrick Air Force Base.
Accompanying the astronaut in the big executive-type plane was Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who flew to Grand Turk this morning.
A few minutes before Glenn's plane landed, another C130 carrying the other six astronauts and Project Mercury officials landed at the base, which serves as administration headquarters for the Atlantic missile range.
A Secret Service man stepped off the Glenn plane first, followed by Johnson and then Glenn with a big smile on his face.
There was a burst of applause from several hundred people gathered at the field when Johnson and Glenn appeared. Following them off the plane were Robert R. Gilruth, Project Mercury director, and Walter C. Williams, Mercury operations director.
Glenn embraced his daughter, Carolyn, 14, who was waiting at the base of the ramp with other members of the family. Then he quickly hugged his wife and kissed her, holding her tightly for a few seconds.
Then, emotion getting the better of him, he reached for his handkerchief and dabbed at his eyes.
Next he turned to his son, David, 16, and spoke a few words to him.
Mrs. Glenn was wearing a red suit and hat with a veil. Carolyn, who says she prefers the nickname Lynn, was wearing a pale yellow suit and white kerchief.
Both Carolyn and Glenn wore large white corsages. David sported a white carnation in his jacket.
Then Glenn, 40, a Marine Corps lieutenant colonel, spoke with other relatives.
An Air Force honor guard snapped to attention and saluted as Glenn and Johnson walked to their cars. The crowd, now swelled to hundreds, cheered and clapped.
While standing with his family to pose for pictures, Glenn stepped back to say a few words to his parents. His mother remarked: "Quite a trip." Glenn answered: "Some trip. You can't just quite describe it."
Before entering the cars in the motorcade headed for the Cape Canaveral rocket base, Johnson stepped to a microphone.
"It's a great pleasure," Johnson said, "to welcome home a great pioneer of history."
Johnson reviewed Glenn's 4-hour, 56-minute flight and noted that the astronaut had joined Soviet Premier Khrushchev had congratulated the United States and suggested that the two countries pool their resources for exploration of space.
Johnson turned to Glenn and commented: "So, colonel, you must feel you have done something that two presidents have been unable to do."

Only 2 Ira Posts Vacant

IRA—Only two places will be filled on the Ira School District Board of Trustees in this year's election, it was announced today.
Supt. Roy Salas said there apparently was a misunderstanding when petitions for candidates were filed with the county superintendent, resulting in a report in yesterday's Daily News that three posts would be filled.
The terms of Lewis Dunn and Harold Heater expire. Heater, along with O. W. Holladay, Fred Gillett, C. M. (Corky) Kruse and Horace Fowler have been petitioned as candidates.

Cuban Charge Is Ridiculed

RALBOA, Canal Zone (AP) — The U.S. Caribbean Command headquarters ridiculed Cuban charges that the United States is training invasion forces at jungle camps in the Canal Zone.
Havana radio charged Thursday that the United States is preparing troops for a new invasion of Cuba at camps in Los Santos Province of Panama on the Pacific coast.
Lt. Gen. Andrew P. Omara, head of the Caribbean Command, said: "If anything like that is going on it has been carefully concealed from me. I know nothing of such an operation. I don't believe a word of it."

Turks Quell Mutiny

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A flash mutiny by disgruntled young army officers that brought Turkey to the brink of civil war was declared smashed today. The armed forces chiefs stood firmly by Premier Ismet Inonu.
The premier signaled that the bloodless revolt had been ended when he went on the air with a brief, pre-dawn announcement that his government was in command.
The rebels led by a group of young colonels and reportedly supported by Gen. Muhsin Gorus, chief of ground forces, apparently caught the government by surprise as they took over strategic centers during the night to pave the way for a coup.
The revolt failed when chiefs of the air force, army and navy, led by Gen. Cevdet Sunay, rallied behind the premier. Sunay then pledged that the general staff were "firm in their decision to prevent any kind of negative reaction."

Youth Leaders Are Urged To Stress American Heritage

BY DICK ROBERTS
Over 100 interested persons gathered last night at the Lamar Junior High auditorium to hear Dr. John C. Stevens, vice president of Abilene Christian College, issue a challenge to today's youth leaders.
Several faculty members and administrative people from Snyder's school system heard Dr. Stevens urge that the American heritage be emphasized in our schools today.
Dr. Stevens called on teachers and historians to be factual and honest; to study our American heritage with an objective eye; and to give credit where credit is due.

AMERICANISM PROGRAM PRESENTED—Dr. John C. Stevens, history professor and vice president of ACC visits with Connie Koonce of the Washington's Birthday program last night. Miss Koonce was complimented by Dr. Stevens on her essay "The American Way of Life" which was printed in Thursday's Snyder Daily News.

reveal the secrets of the communist conspiracy. Early Americans were just as dedicated as are today's communists he said, and we must try to instill some of that dedication in our youth of today.
For some reason, Dr. Stevens said, today's educators are afraid to stress nationalism. They note that "nationalism was the basis for the rise of Nazism. But, said the speaker, we need have no fear of the incitement of nationalism on our true history and heritage.
He called on Americans, and especially teachers of our youth, to set an example of a dynamic free society of all the world to see. "We owe it to the world to maintain our own strength and freedom, and to remain an honorable and dependable friend to the world. We should never sacrifice our principles for expediencies," Dr. Stevens said, but rather should always stand up for those things which we know to be right.
Trust in God, and respect for law and constitutional government should be instilled in our youth. Also the profit motive should be encouraged. According to Dr. Stevens the "profit motive" means the right to work and make a profit, including the right to get ahead. But profit is not necessarily money—it could be satisfaction or pride as well. The "welfare state" will never have a chance in America if our youth are educated in the dignity of work, Dr. Stevens said.
Dr. Stevens called on educators to give our young people a spirit of optimism. He said we should take a long sober look at our problems, but we should never let the defeatist philosophy take hold.
Dr. Stevens was introduced at the Washington's Birthday Americanism program by Gene Dulaney who complimented him on his receiving the American Freedom Foundation Award yesterday.
C. O. Holder, head of the Pro-America League which sponsored the program, defined the purpose of the league as an organization to preserve peace and prevent the encroachment of communism. Other patriotic programs are planned by the league in coming months.

MANILA (AP) — Armi Kuusela doesn't like being called Miss Universe. "I've tried to live it down," says the tall, gracious blonde who won the first Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, Calif., in 1952. "Not that I think there was anything wrong with it. But it was just part of life, just another milestone. It shouldn't influence my entire future." At 27, the Finnish beauty still has the face and figure that won the Miss Universe laurels. But she has a lot more: A husband, four children, and a life she never dreamed of back in Finland. Travel Countryside Her husband, Virgilio Hilario, a Filipino, is president of the Barrio (village) Lieutenants Association of the Philippines, and travels up and down the archipelago looking into conditions in the rural areas. Armi often goes along, as a very special added attraction. Neither Armi nor boyish-looking Virgilio seems the type to fit into the Philippine rural scene. They have slept and eaten in the typical thatched bamboo huts of the countryside and know more about Philippine life than most people. Friends Entered Picture Armi was in a finishing school in Porvoo, Finland, when two classmates submitted her picture for the Maiden of Finland contest. She wanted to be a physical education instructor, but it turned out that it was her physique and not her ability as a teacher that counted. Dormant Spraying Season Limits Scale Insect War

Tree lovers who can hardly wait for bud-breaking time should realize the same is true of scale insects. Plan thwarting these sucking pests well before the start of the growing season. They are best controlled by dormant oil sprays, which have to be applied under certain weather conditions and before leaves unfold. Perhaps there are 10 to 12 days in late winter ideal for dormant spraying. Temperatures must be above 40 degrees; days clear and windless. In every sense of the word, scale insects are a large family, often named for their characteristic shapes, such as oyster and terrapin scales. They reproduce with fantastic facility and are likened to miniature pumping stations by the way they suck up plant juices. Infested trees slowly decline. Eventually they show sparse foliage and shriveled bark. Densely scale-populated branches die. Many kinds of shade and fruit trees and ornamental shrubs are feeding stations for the hard-to-dislodge invaders. Favorite hosts are the elm, beech, oak, apple, magnolia and tulip. Applying just the right amount of oil to smother the overwintering scale insects without harming trees is something of an art. This is the reason concerned homeowners should leave the spraying to professional tree men. Placing the order now may be wise because of the limited spraying season. Tree experts exclude super-sensitive sugar and Japanese maples from the dormant spraying program because they are prone to oil injury. These fine trees are sprayed only in summer with a safe phosphate insecticide, such as malathion, to kill off the pests in the crawler stage.

Aletti Bar Still Maintains Lively Reputation In Algiers

By INEZ ROBB

When I read the other day that four members of the Secret Army Organization had staged a two-hour reign of terror in the bar of the Aletti Hotel in Algiers, I closed my eyes and murmured, "Where else?"

The incident was extraordinary, well reported because, at the time, 12 brave correspondents were in the bar. Where else? That's where they congregated during the African phase of World War II. That is, the Aletti bar was a home-away-from-home, or club, when correspondents weren't prowling up front in Tunisia.

What is available in the Aletti bar to slake the thirst now, depend on the season. But during the winter of 1943, when the Aletti was my home-away-from-home, the bar had little to dispense except raw Algerian brandy, which sent an overseas cap shooting straight for the ceiling, or Algerian red or white wine.

Of course, there was Algerian champagne at a dollar a bottle. To newcomers it always seemed a stunning bargain—until they discovered that all the bubbles disappeared by the time the first glass was poured. Its taste was that of diluted vinegar.

There must be thousands of servicemen who poured through Algiers and the Aletti during the African campaign who found themselves again in the Aletti bar when they read of the two-hour OAS rampage there.

Before World War II and its take-over by the U.S. Army, the Aletti was one of Algiers' two fashionable, luxury hotels. (The St. George, where General Eisenhower and his staff were stationed, was the other.) The Aletti was designated in the Army hierarchy as a hostelry for colonels or better, with six of its rooms reserved for correspondents.

The Aletti is perched on Algiers' beautiful harbor where, in the winter of '43, one had a nightly ringside seat when the German planes came over to bomb Allied shipping in the roadstead.

Despite this distraction and the fact the hotel had lost most of its windows, particularly on the harbor side, colonels or better and correspondents fought to be assigned to the Aletti. Its chief attraction, far outweighing the bar, was the fact that for two hours daily—from 7 to 9 a.m.—it had hot water.

In a city almost without fuel, hotels or lodgings had hot water twice a week, at best. The fact that we at the Aletti could bathe daily was stupendous. Those of us lodged at the Aletti used to make it a point to be in the tub at 7 a.m. promptly. Then, when we went to the mess across the street, we handed out our respective keys so others could enjoy the luxury of a hot—well, warm—bath, too.

With fast relay work as many as eight to 10 could sneak a bath in an Aletti tub between 7 and 9 a.m.

Once, when I was in Tunisia, a fellow correspondent lodged at the Aletti tried to shoot down the chandelier in the lobby. The Army authorities took a very dim view of this, as I was to learn 48 hours later when I got back to Algiers.

I was scarcely in the hotel when the British town major, an imposing figure in charge of housing in Algiers, came to see me. Why, he asked me, had that news fellow taken violent exception to the chandelier? In view of the fact that I had been absent during this action above and beyond the call of duty, it seemed odd to put me on the witness stand.

"Obviously, he was drunk," I said after not too much thought. "That's the only sensible explanation I've had." The town major huffed. What the masculine correspondent had told him I never learned. But my explanation obviously satisfied the town major. Anyway, we heard no more of the incident, which became famous as "The Great Aletti Chandelier Ambush."

It was interesting to learn the other day that the Aletti still maintains its lively reputation. (Copyright, 1962, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Columnist Gets Ideas From Mail

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:
Absolute silence doesn't help you to work better, it's distracting. Psychiatrists have found most people's mental powers are at a peak against a background of soft music.

But that is no endorsement of the plea by teen-agers that they can't do their homework except while listening to rock 'n' roll records.

Economists say that in the last 40 years Americans have used more material resources than the rest of the world's population did in the previous 4,000 years.

Some Parisian restaurants now offer diners a whiff of oxygen as an appetizer. Our night club comics might copy the idea by dispensing a little laughing gas to their gagged patrons.

A study found women purchase about half of U.S. shoes, children a fourth—and men only about a fifth.

It is getting easier to get a close shave while riding in Manhattan taxicabs. Several cab drivers have installed electric razors for the convenience of passengers.

Our quotable notables: "There is no reason why any child should lack a complete knowledge of life since there is no censorship of drugstore windows"—Don Herold. Sign in a public library: "No children allowed."

The National Institute of Dry Cleaning lists the average life expectancy of straw hats, neckties and women's panties at a year; bathing suits and men's gloves at two years; suits, three to four years; men's overcoats four years, and women's fur coats 10 years. I still have several neckties bought before the second World War.

Wisecrack of the week: "Most American families," says Walter Slezak, "begin the month by balancing the budget—and end it by trying to budget the balance." It takes up to 12 times as much distance to stop a car on ice or slippery snow as it does on a dry pavement.

Worth remembering: "Forty is the age when men begin to want a change of pace—and women a change of face."

It was Kin Hubbard who observed, "A rich grandmother never gets in the way."

Thanks For 'The Twist'

TURNERS FALLS, Mass. (AP)—Hard-boiled? Perhaps young America isn't quite what some dramatists have pictured it.

When principal George F. Wrightson permitted the "twist" at a Turners Falls High School dance, the school newspaper said the student body had "received one of the greatest compliments ever given to it by adults."

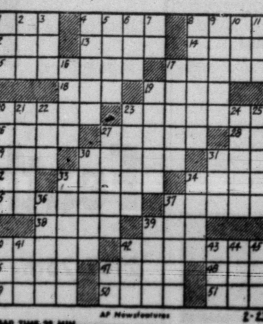

The page one editorial said: "The 'twist' is a dance that has caused much controversy, and we must realize that it was no small thing for Mr. Wrightson to allow us to do this dance."

"It showed trust, understanding and a type of pride on his part," the student body thanks him for this honor showed us."

The world's oldest preserved, fully identified ship is Sweden's "Vasa." The 140-ton armed galleon capsized and sunk in Stockholm harbor on the first day of her maiden voyage in 1628. The ship was raised intact in 1961 and will be restored as a historic monument.

Junior Editors Quiz on RECORDINGS

QUESTION: How does a groove in a record, record your voice?

ANSWER: Sound is made up of different vibrations hitting a part of the inner ear specially suited for picking up these vibrations. A record works in a similar way. You speak into a microphone. The microphone picks up the vibrations of your voice and changes them into electrical impulses. Next the impulses travel to a magnet, and attached to the magnet is a very sensitive special cutting needle. The needle rests on a revolving wax disk. As the electrical impulses reach the magnet, they cause the magnet to move the needle which, as it moves, makes cuts in the wax disk. These cuts are grooves. One type of vibration moves the needle more sharply than another type. Therefore, grooves are ever so slightly wavy. Other records are made from this master wax disk, with the grooves reproduced exactly as they were made. When the needle in your phonograph runs along the grooves as the record turns, it behaves just as the cutting needle did. Its vibrations are transformed into electrical impulses matching those original ones and this reproduces the original sound.

FOR YOU TO DO: Study your phonograph records with a magnifying glass and see if you can discover differences in the small grooves there. A red or yellow transparent children's record is best for this.

Seminar On Wheels Is Scheduled

By JACK C. LANDAU
CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. (AP) — Commuting business executives will inaugurate a religious "seminar on wheels" next Monday.

Aboard a special car on the New York Central Railroad will be more than 50 members of the New York City Council of the First Congregational Church here who travel daily to their New York City jobs.

Instead of playing bridge or reading, their time will be spent discussing various themes centered around the conflict between religious ethics and commercial business practices.

Each Monday for eight weeks they'll participate in a course entitled "Living My Religion on My Job," based on a book written by Moorhead Wright, a General Electric Co. executive and a member of the church.

The idea was conceived by The Rev. Dr. Edwin D. McLane, minister of Christian education at the church. Dr. McLane said discussion groups during the week-day evenings tended to drag because the executives were tired.

Dr. McLane said the group is composed of top business executives with national firms, executives in smaller businesses and professional men.

Juliet, Frank Call It Off

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dancer Juliet Prowse will be the third Mrs. Frank Sinatra.

She and the singer abruptly broke off their engagement Thursday night, blaming career trouble.

Sinatra and Miss Prowse announced six weeks ago that they planned to marry. They hadn't gotten around to setting the date, although April and June had been mentioned.

The break came suddenly. A terse announcement said: "A conflict of career interests has led us to make this decision jointly. We both feel it is better to make it now rather than later."

A publicity spokesman added: "Neither will be available for comment. There will be no amplification."

Sinatra, 46, long a bachelor, a millionaire with a string of gorgeous girls, surprised even many close friends when he announced he planned to marry the leggy dancer from South Africa.

Miss Prowse, 25, never married before and new in Hollywood, was much less famous than some of Sinatra's dates and less flashy than others.

Sinatra's two previous marriages to childhood sweetheart Nancy Barbato and actress Ava Gardner—also were plagued with career troubles. His skyrocketing fame as a crooner rocked the first, and Miss Gardner's prominence for a while outstripped his own.

Hoss, Brother Take Spill During Work

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dan Blocker, 33, "Hoss" of the Bonanza series, and his TV brother, Robert Pernell, 32, who plays Adam, were injured during the sequence filming Thursday at Iverson's Ranch in the San Fernando Valley.

An NBC spokesman said Pernell's mount fell and Blocker's went over him. Both men were taken to Northridge Emergency Hospital and then transferred to the care of a bone specialist, Dr. Jack Mosheim, who said Blocker suffered a fractured left collar bone and Pernell sprains of neck muscles. Blocker will be in a cast for four weeks, the physician said.

Who Can Be a Christian?

One of a series of reports about the Christian Churches, Churches of Christ, the largest religious body to originate in America.

Do you wonder if it is possible to become a Christian? Do you wonder if it is possible to have a new outlook on your life?

The Christian Churches believe that becoming a Christian is simple—though it is not always easy. It means taking one important step that will give you an entire new outlook on your life.

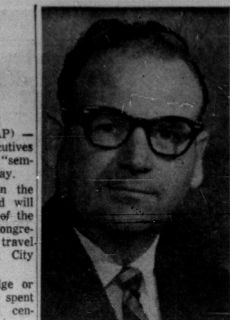

The step is first recognizing that Jesus is your personal Saviour—that His life here and His death on the cross were the sacrifice that can open the door to friendship with God and to eternal life—if you will only accept it. You can do this with an affirmative declaration of life to the proposition that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the Living God."

The step toward a new path will put fresh purpose and joy into your life. You will want to be baptized as Jesus was. You will discover new interest in reading the Bible and warmer fellowship in the church. Quiet prayer will bring you closer to God and help for your life.

The door of every Christian Church is open to you.

WAC Officer's Plans For Retirement Change Quickly

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Little more than a week ago Lt. Col. Elmer Gorman was an ex-schoolmarm planning on retiring from the Women's Army Corps and going back to college.

But after almost 20 years of Army life, Col. Gorman is used to changes and being a part of the making.

Last month she was in South Viet Nam, attending a conference on U.S. military aid to that Communist-haunted country. She has attended meetings in Latin America, visited Bangkok and Tokyo.

When the end of fighting in World War II came, she was an executive secretary for the Allied Control Authority—and heard the talks between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his opposites in the four-power authority, including Soviet Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

Col. Gorman was among the pioneers in today's WAC organization. She joined up in July 1942 to abandon a teaching career and go into military service, she says she thinks it was "principally patriotic reasons, perhaps with a bit of pioneer spirit."

Col. Gorman was a teacher in upstate New York public schools, at Pulaski, Massena and Rochester for 10 years, then for two years was employed in Personnel placement work and served with the Oswego, N.Y., office of Civil Defense.

She has been making plans to retire from the Army and go to a school, probably here in Washington, to get a doctorate.

But, unknown to her, her plans were being rewritten. The present WAC commander, Col. Mary Louise M. Rasmussen, will leave the directorship, effective Aug. 1. The Army began checking records. They pointed to Emily Gorman as the logical choice from about 30 lieutenant colonels of the corps.

The director moves up to full colonel rank while in office. She had wide experience in the WACs, especially in training and personnel aspects.

Among other assignments, she was chief of the WAC Training Center Administrative School at Ft. Lee, Va. She also had served with the Continental Army Command headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va., as deputy chief of plans and training.

Presently she is assistant chief, foreign military training division, in the office of Army deputy chief of staff for military operations. This accounts for her trip to Viet Nam, where U.S. Army personnel are aiding in the training of South Viet Nam's growing army.

Her teaching career provided an invaluable background for her work in the WACs, Col. Gorman says. And schooling is part of Army life, she adds, saying that "Army officers always are either going to school or teaching somebody."

Stock Market, Zoo Are Man's Hobbies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Carol Soo-Hoo of Berkeley, a technician at Mare Island Naval Shipyard, has two hobbies: Making money in the stock market and using the profits to buy animals for Fleishacker Zoo here.

Recently he bought a 3-year-old female gorilla, Pogo, for the zoo. But Missus, the zoo's 6-year-old female gorilla, throws a tantrum if her boy friend, Bwana, 4, even looks at Pogo.

"So we're going to get Pogo a mate and Mr. Soo-Hoo will pay for him," said a representative of the San Francisco Zoological Society.

Gorillas cost about $5,000.

Early Egyptians desired air conditioning soaked their walls with water. The desert winds evaporated the water and in the process the houses became cool.

The Way Grows Much Brighter

When God Gives Us Our Marching Orders

LONG THOUGHTS

WRONG?

Who can measure the length of a thought! Especially the thought of a child! A good thought is like the acorn, which becomes the Live Oak tree, which may live for a thousand years. Some thoughts are much longer than that. Aristotle urged upon men the 'golden mean,' and many business men today are following him; he lived three hundred years before the beginning of our era. The decalogue, or Ten Commandments, are long thoughts about how women and men should live. Perhaps the thoughts stirring in this child's mind have been dropped there by a parent or by a teacher or by a neighbor. Isn't it rather wonderful that you and I can start a train of thinking and of living, in a child, that may go on forever? How long is "forever?" That is how long some thoughts are.

Can you remember a word spoken to you in the long ago? Some of us treasure what seemed a chance thought passed to us by a careful teacher many years ago. When the soil is right and a mind is eager to know, seeds are precious. Have you learned a lesson that you count of great value? Do you wish that someone had passed it to you when you were young? Then why not do for some other child what you wish had been done for you? Would you not like to live forever in the esteem of another? Perhaps the child is our opportunity for some worthwhile immortality. Help her leave for posterity some long thoughts. What a pity that a good thought or a bit of wisdom we have garnered through many years should die with us! It does not need to die. The child near you is the good soil into which you may drop the good seed thought. "A sower went forth to sow." Every woman and every man is a sower. Is the seed good that we sow? What will the harvest be, for the thoughts we are putting into the minds of retentive childhood? Your thoughts and mine may become inspiring or discouraging thoughts to these precious persons that we love. Is it important then that we think straight, clean, sweet, kind, loving thoughts? These should be long thoughts. Attend your church regularly.
