Curious, Grieving Riot At Bier Of Sheik

Hundreds are injured, windows broken and upper Broadway, New York, traffic demoralized as crowds estimated at 60,000 attempt to force their way into the funeral church where the body of Rudolph Valentino lies in state. Photos show the body on the bier, with a lone mourner weeping at its feet; two of the late "sheik's" adorers expressing their prayerful grief for him on the steps of the hospital as his body is taken away; and a glimpse of the milling crowd about the funeral church. Note the preponderence of men.

"Jim's Sun Sets Forever" Moody Tells the State

Curtain Is Rung Down Saturday On Heated Political Race

AUSTIN Aug. 27.—(AP)—The curtains drew to a close tonight on one of the most unusual gubernatorial races in the history of Texas and the democratic party when Attorney General Dan Moody and Governor Miriam A. Ferguson offered their final pre-election statements on the eve of the election, Saturday.

Tonight before he went to speak at his last rally in the second primary, the young attorney general issued his statement saying that "Jim Ferguson, husband of the governor, stands today on the brink of political oblivion. Tomorrow his political sun will set forever."

Reaction Hits.

In her final statement today the governor said: "A great reaction has occurred in the minds of the people in the last ten days," and that Moody's nomination could have but one result—"embarassment to the democracy of our state."

Former Governor James E. Ferguson was closing his wife's campaign in Groesbeck, where he charged that the oil companies and the ku klux klan had been supporting Mr. Moody in his campaigns for governor.

Moody devoted his 2,000-word statement to a denunciation of James E. Ferguson, and said "Ferguson's record justified the conclusion that his attitude on the klan question is one controlled entirely by political expediency, and if he thought it would serve his political ambitions, he would at one jump leap from the ant-klan ranks into the middle of the klan band wagon and undertake to seize the lines from the driver."

Both the governor and Moody urged the people to go to the polls today.

While the governor remained at the executive mansion, three squares away, an audience that filled the park in which she closed her first campaign, gathered from Austin and nearby cities to hear the young attorney general.

The visitors brought a band with them and a concert preceded his introduction by Dudley Woodward, Jr., of Austin. John C. Ross presided.

Although the temperature was low and the ground was damp from the rains of the past 18 hours the audience was said by Moody supporters to be larger than anticipated.

The other run-off races are those for state treasurer with W. Gregory Hatcher, incumbent, opposing J. B. Ball and Claude Pollard of Hous-

Rudy's Funeral To Be Wednesday

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The burial of Rudolph Valentino has been postponed until Wednesday to await the arrival of Alberto Guglilmi, the actor's brother, who is on his way here from Italy. The funeral will be held Monday, as previously announced by S. George Ullman, Valentino's manager, and the body will be taken back to the Campbell funreal parlors.

Mr. Ullman obtained from Health Commissioner Harris late this afternoon a second 24 hour extension of time for the burial on the ground that the body is not to be shown again to the public. Mr. Harris said he could grant the extension, because the death was not caused by a contagious disease.

STORM LOSS TEN MILLION

Damage Increases As Late Reports Come In On Hurricane

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Estimates of storm damage tonight had mounted until they stood between the five and 10 million mark as reports continued to come into New Orleans from the devastated area of Wednesday night's hurricane.

The death list stood at five, although there were several reports of persons missing in different localities. These, however, were believed to have taken refuge at isolated places where communication had been cut off by shattered telephone and telegraph lines.

Newspaper men who journeyed two hundred miles through the storm-swept area told vivid stories of the storm's toll. Towns, villages and farm houses were twisted masses of wreckage. Cane fields were flattened. Cotton and corn fields were ruined by the improvident harvester. Hundreds of acres of rice fell victim to the storm which deluged them with salt water.

Heavy Vote Predicted Here

WICHITA CO. ALL SET FOR 2ND PRIMARY

Interest High In Races For Governor, Atty. Gen. And Sheriff

A county vote only slightly less than the 10,000 polled in the July 24 election, was predicted by the political sages in Wichita Falls Friday for today's primary. Interest that promised to slacken considerably immediately after the first primary with the apparent withdrawal of Mrs. Ferguson from the governor's race has been considerably bolstered since then by at least three factors, they point out.

Enumerated, these are, a continuation of the anti-Ferguson fight waged by Moody in the first campaign; an especially strenuous campaign on the part of the two candidates for attorney general accentuated by the probability that at least in Wichita county voters will turn out in strong numbers in favor of the home candidate, and third, the interest in the sheriff's race which has at times threatened to eclipse in heat and excitement all of the remaining races on the ticket.

Preparations Complete.

All preparations had been completed for the election late Friday, H. J. Bruce, county democratic chairman stated. Supplies had been taken to every box and judges and clerks had been secured to handle the polls. Boxes will be the same today as on July 24, Mr. Bruce stated, with one exception, that being box 2 which has been changed from the marble works on Seventh street to Travis school on Lee street.

A warning as to proper marking of ballots was issued by Mr. Bruce Friday. A number of ballots voted in the July 24 primary were thrown out, he said, because they were marked with a red pencil, or the choice indicated with an "X." The law plainly states, Mr. Bruce declared, "the the name of the candidate voted against must be scratched with a black pencil, and the name of the man voted for left open with no mark."

The polls will remain open from 7 in the morning until 7 in the evening, it was stated.

In this race no official choice has been made, part of the organization supporting Claude Pollard and a substantial part, including the county chairman, supporting his opponent, James V. Allred.

Rumors Are Not Needed! The Facts Are Sufficient

The Jackson Case and Others, All Matters of Record, Ought to Have a Bearing on Selection of Wichita County Sheriff at the Polls Today; Some Things to Think About.

(AN EDITORIAL)

Exercising the franchise granted a voter is an important thing and not an undertaking to be approached lightly. For that reason the Record News would deem itself lax in its public duty if it did not remind the voters of Wichita county this morning—not of numerous ugly rumors that have prevailed with reference to law enforcement officers here, but of known facts, established beyond a doubt. It is these facts the Record News offers, with a humble hope that they be considered by every one when the ballot box is approached today.

Whether or not Fred K. Smith and his deputies are guilty of charges Dame Rumor has pinned on them in the past two years, the Record News does not undertake to determine. They have not been convicted in a court of law, and for the sake of fairness, the newspaper is anxious to concede them guiltless until they are proven otherwise.

But laying rumor and heresay aside, there are sufficient unchallenged facts on hand concerning the conduct of the sheriff's department under Fred K. Smith to provide any voter with plenty to think about.

For example, the Jack Jackson affair. This presented the picture of a man convicted of murder and under sentence of a long term in the penitentiary; a prisoner in the hands of Sheriff Fred K. Smith, yet a prisoner at liberty to attend moving picture shows without guard. Jackson, under a murderer's sentence, roaming the streets unattended while he was supposed to be a prisoner in the county jail.

When this condition was brought to light and the spotlight of public opinion brought to bear, he was locked up again—and shortly thereafter his conviction and sentence affirmed by higher courts. Then, with the prison gates opening, the sheriff's department and other officials busied itself in an effort to secure a furlough for Jackson—an effort that proved successful. Sheriff Smith, by his own statements to the press, admitted he had aided in Jackson's furlough.

At liberty to straighten up his "business affairs," Jackson, through the solicitation of Sheriff Smith and his deputies, went free again.

Just what this business may have been in detail has never been disclosed, but it is known that one piece of his business was to take a leading part in a particularly bold piece of highway robbery in conjunction with the two other men—ONE OF WHOM HELD A SPECIAL DEPUTY COMMISSION FROM FRED K. SMITH.

Jackson was arrested shortly after the robbery of a Holliday store, and was subsequently charged with highway robbery. The deputy sheriff arrested with him was also charged with highway robbery. His commission, incidentally, was canceled the next morning by Sheriff Smith.

As a result of the Record News' activities in bringing to public attention the facts in the Jackson case, a reporter for the paper was twice attacked by a deputy sheriff in the lobby of the court house and, so far as is known, no punitive measures were ever taken by the sheriff against the offending deputy.

That is just a recital of facts in one case. But there are other issues that reflect seriously upon the efficiency of Fred K. Smith—issues that include freedom granted other prisoners at the county jail.

A negro trusty supposed to be and ordered to be under lock and key, has suf-

$100,000 FIRE HITS ATHENS

Small Boy And a Match Prove Disastrous Combination

ATHENS, Texas, Aug. 27.—(AP) Fire Friday evening destroyed the Wood-Dickerson Motor company, Ford dealer for this county, wreaking damage estimated at $75,000 to $100,000. Forty automobiles and three brick buildings burned.

The fire started with a terrific explosion which shook the city. Workmen were preparing to clean the floors with a liquid cleaner, when a small boy passed and struck a match and threw it on the floor. The flames spread quickly following the explosion and it was with difficulty that workmen escaped with their lives. Only one new car was in the display room and it was saved. The cars destroyed were in storage and in the repair shop.

Don Dickerson, principal owner of the company, made a rough estimate of his loss as close to $75,000. The company occupied three buildings and owned two of them. Dr. A. H. Easterling owned the third building and estimated his loss at $10,000. The loss on both is only partly covered by insurance.

Desperadoes In Clean Get Away From Big Posse

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Eluding posses made up of nearly 100 men, two desperadoes believed to belong to the gang that Wednesday robbed two Covington, Okla., banks late today had escaped into the hills of western Arkansas, after killing one officer and wounding two others, commandeering their car and kidnaping one of them.

Two pitched battles between the outlaws and their pursuers were held during the day, one in Sequoyah county, Oklahoma, and the other near Rudy, Ark.

Descriptions of Martin and George Kimes, ex-convicts in the Arkansas state penitentiary are said to parallel those of the hunted men closely.

Police Chief J. C. Wall of Sallisaw and Perry Chuculate and Bert Cotton, Sequoyah county deputy sheriffs, were wounded in the first engagement with the men. Chuculate died tonight. The outlaws then took the officers' car and fled, forcing Wall to accompany them. Soon afterward, they picked up a farmer who was walking along the highway and added him to the party, presumably as a guide through the hilly country.

"Cheerful Journey" To The West Ended With Death At Childress

CHILDRESS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A "cheerful journey" into the west to take up new work, ended abruptly in death here today for Miss Lila Clark Franklin, 22, girl lawyer of Ardmore, Okla., who was found dead in a hotel. She had been shot through the heart, but officials were unable to determine whether death was due to accident or suicide.

Miss Franklin, whose mother resides in Albuquerque, N. M., arrived here after midnight last night in an automobile with Norman T. Spann, 24, and Carl Farmer, 22 of Headland, Ala. When she did not respond to calls, employes of the hotel entered her room through an adjoining room at 8 a. m. and found her lying dead on the bed, face downward, with a small calibre automatic pistol beneath her. She had been dead several hours.

Spann said that he and Farmer went to Ardmore yesterday to take Miss Franklin on their trip to California, where the young men expected to enter the law school of the University of Southern California.

"She was cheerful all the way and glad she was going to California

POSSES HUNT THUGS AFTER BOLD THEFT

Proprietor And Customer Tied Up And Stretched Out On Floor

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Aug. 27.—Loot estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000 was taken from the Miller-Osborn Jewelry store here this afternoon by unmasked bandits who entered the store and held the proprietor and a customer at the point of a gun while they bound them and rifled the cases and show-windows. The bandits—whether three or five is a matter of disagreement—made their escape from the city in a Chevrolet coupe, heading away toward Fort Sill. Officers were scouring the country late Friday for some trace of the car or the bandits, but the search at a late hour had proven of no avail.

The men are absolute strangers, J. C. Fronerberger, chief of police stated Friday night, the descriptions furnished him leading him to believe they were visitors from some city here for the day with the hold-up as their object. They were unmasked.

Two in Room

The bandits entered the store while A. H. Osborne, manager, and Frank Richmond, manager of the local street railway company were the only others in the room. After forcing Osborn and Richmond to the back of the store they tied their thumbs together behind their back with shoe-laces and made them lie face-downward on the floor. The robbers then rifled the show cases and display windows and fled. Horsby declared that he saw but three in the store. It is believed however, that two others waited on the outside. A car had been parked on the side street; this they entered and made their get-away. The car is believed to have been a Chevrolet coupe and to have left the city by way of Fort Sill road.

The jewelry store robbed is in the heart of the city, but despite this the only other person to encounter the bandits was a traveling salesman, who, drawn from a nearby hotel by the commotion in the store, was knocked down by one of the men leaving by the front door.

Car Is Sighted.

Motorists on the Fort Sill road reported seeing a few minutes after the robbery a Chevrolet coupe traveling at a high rate of speed on the road north of Lawton, crowding cars off to the side.

The robbery was stated by night chief of police J. B. Clark Friday night to be the most daring and to have been the largest hold-up in point of lot that has been transacted in the history of this city.

ELECTRA GETS FIRST COTTON

Bale Brought In Late Thursday From Red River Farm

ELECTRA, Aug. 27.—Electra's first bale of cotton was brought to the city Thursday night and ginned by the Farmers and Merchants Ginning company. It was raised on bottom land, near the Red river, 8 1-2 miles north of the city, on the G. W. Cross farm, by Roy B. Scales, well-known farmer.

When ginned it made 401 pounds of lint, with 1220 pounds of seed cotton before being ginned and 732 pounds of seed. N. F. Strickland, cotton expert of this city, and former cotton buyer, said it graded class number 3, and with 7-8 staple when sampling the bale, while on exhibit at the First National bank.

No price has been put on the bale yet but Byron T. Johnson, secretary of the chamber of commerce and agriculture, with merchants of the city will present Mr. Scales with a cash bonus within the next few days.

Mr. Scales says that the land on which the cotton was raised will produce a half bale to the acre, and is only slightly effected by cotton worms. It is not in the irrigated district.

JIM'S SUN

ton, opposing Jimmie Allred of Wichita Falls, for attorney general. Even political sages decline to predict the outcome of these races, all admitting that "they are some horse races."

Moody's final statement follows: "From the day this campaign opened until now, the last day before the final primary, Jim Ferguson has been engaged in a frantic and futile attempt to divert the public mind from the record of the present administration. I say Jim Ferguson because he has been the mouth-piece of this administration and is responsible for the things which it has said and what it has done. His whole campaign has been a vain effort to lead the peopple away from the consideration and discussion of these offenses against the name of Texas and the welfare of its people, which have been committed under the administration of Jim Ferguson as proxy governor. He is now out singing his political swan-song—the howl of a poor loser—and is fighting frantically and desperately to postpone his political end.

Wholly Indefensible.

"Mr. Ferguson has found the acts of this administration wholly indefensible before intelligent people. Campaign misrepresentations, vicious statements, and all the cheap political clap-trap that belongs exclusively to the demagogue have been employed by him in his attempts to cause the people of this state to forget his record in public life.

"Circumstances called for him to explain before the people of Texas why he has usurped the power of the office of governor and undertaken to act as dictator in the public affairs of this state, contrary to every principle of free government and of the democratic party; why a highway commission that acted under his dictatorship let contracts without bonds and without bids; why public money was squandered and wasted, as has been adjudged by the courts; why money taken from the people of Texas under contracts which the courts held to be fraudulent was carried off to a bank in another state and stored away in a safety deposit box, as has been proved by indisputable evidence; why the Ferguson Forum became an advertising medium for every kind and character of special favor-seeking interest, as is known to all intelligent citizens of this state; why Mr. Ferguson, though he had not practiced law in twenty years and was unknown as a lawyer, upon election of his wife, accepted employment as the general attorney of a railroad company, as he has admitted to the people of Texas; why favoritism has been practiced in the awarding of public contracts; why the gates of the penitentiary have been swung open and criminals by the hundreds turned loose upon society; why text book contracts have been let to the highest bidders. He has neglected to offer an explanation of these matters, and has sought to take the minds of the people of Texas away from this record, which stands without parallel in the history of this state, and has subjected Texas to ridicule before the American nation.

Deception Favorite Weapon.

"In this campaign deception has been his favorite weapon of defense, as he has sought to lead the people away from his record. He has repeatedly told them that the Ferguson administration had paid the deficiencies of the state government and placed the state upon a paying basis, when the state records show that outstanding deficiency appropriations are now more than three times as great as when the Ferguson administration came into office. He has repeatedly told the people that the Ferguson administration had taken the penitentiary out of debt, when as a matter of fact, it is deeper in debt now than it was when the Ferguson administration began. He has claimed friendship for the public school system of Texas, when the appropriations under this administration for public school purposes were only one-third as much as was appropriated under the preceeding administration. He has branded all those who opposed him as members of or sympathetic with the klan, when as a matter of fact the men against whom he brings this accusation, two years ago were leading the battle, and making it possible for his wife to become the beneficiary of the attitude of the people of Texas upon this question.

"His latest misrepresentation is with reference to re-location of the state penitentiary. His statement that he has discovered the existence of a conspiracy to sell the prison farms and re-locate the state penitentiary in Williamson county is a phantom of his own imagination and a vile attempt to deceive and mislead the voters of Texas. He does not believe that there exists any such conspiracy, and he knows when he makes the assertion that it is a statement which does not even have the appearance of truth or contain one element of truth.

"He brought the name of Texas into disrepute all over this country. He had advocated upon the political stump that the state of Bowie, Crockett, Sam Houston, Fannin, Travis, Austin, Coke, Hogg and Culberson become a state of debt repudiators. By advocating the repudiation of the bonded indebtedness of this state, he has imperiled, if he did not destroy for the time being, the market for Texas securities.

Airmen Doff Parachutes While Carrying Officer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Rather than have an advantage over their injured charge, the three army aviators who brought Lieutenant Cyrus K. Bettis here yesterday from Bellefonte, Pa., refused to wear parachutes as required by army regulations.

Bettis, who was injured in a crash near Bellefonte Tuesday, was strapped in an ambulance airplane. Captain Ira Eaker, who piloted the ambulance, said that inasmuch as Bettis could not use a parachute in case of emergency "we just took ours off and sat on them." Lieutenant John E. Upson and Captain Andrew Smith, flight surgeon, were the other officers aboard.

The condition of Bettis today was said at Walter Reed hospital to be favorable.

Death Ends Boy's Quest for Schooling

CLYMER, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—In the temporary morgue near the Clymer mine today rested the body of 19-year-old Howard Thorburn—his life crushed out in consequence of his efforts to obtain money with which to continue his studies at Gettysburg college.

Howard's father, John Thorburn, met death two years ago under the wheels of a freight train. Howard worked hard for a year, gathering sufficient funds to attend the college during the last term. Summer vacation time found the youth eager to work, for he needed money if he was to return to school. He obtained a post as an electrician's helper in Clymer mine. This was to have been his last week at the mine, for he had made plans to return to Gettysburg. But the death dealing explosion of yesterday claimed Howard as a victim.

KERRVILLE, Texas, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The seventy-first Southern Presbyterian Synod of Texas opened here last night with the election of the Rev. James F. Hardie of Houston as moderator. The largest attendance of recent years was present. The synod continues through Monday morning.

HOW TO SING

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 27.—Song birds in other parts of the country who want to attain stardom like Marion Talley might have the Kansas prairies analyzed by a chemist. A scientist has informed the institute of politics that perhaps cultural traits can be induced by fertilization of the soil in which foodstuffs are grown.

GIRL RESCUES TWO MEN

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—Miss Marion Hover, aged 18, swam out in Lake Michigan and rescued two men in danger of drowning.

where an uncle and brother resides," said Spann. "She expected to practice law there, and considered it a great journey.

"I graduated in the same class with Miss Franklin last spring at Cumberland law school, Lebanon, Tenn. I had not seen her since but we had corresponded in a friendly way, and when I wrote her I expected to go to California by automobile she wanted to make the trip with us.

"The idea of picking her up at Ardmore was really an afterthought. When we reached Baton Rouge, La., we thought we could just as well go by way of Ardmore, so we went slightly out of our way to get her.

"She got ready in two hours. We told her we didn't have enough money to take three people on, so she drew her small account of $100, and we started for what she thought a lark."

Spann said there was no question of an engagement between himself and Miss Franklin as reported. He denied that she had killed herself because of a broken romance as far as he was concerned.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by gunshot wound but left the cause open. Coroner E. P. Knight said he was unable to determine whether it was suicide or accident.

The pistol which killed the young woman was one brought with her. Before leaving Ardmore she remarked it needed repairing, and there was some belief that she was working with it and that it accidentally discharged.

Spann and Farmer were requested by the sheriff fto remain in Childress until arrival of Miss Franklin's mother. A brother, who is a member of the Albuquerque police force, is understood to be on the way here.

ENLARGE POSTAL SERVICE

HOUSTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Authorization to employ nine additions to Houston's 44 mail carriers was received by Postmaster Roy B. Nichols of Houston Friday from the department at Washington. Approximately 200 additional blocks around the city of Houston will get free delivery service, Mr. Nichols announced.

ficient freedom to "borrow" an automobile and attend a dance at Lake Wichita.

Another negro, under sentence of the law, free to go to his home where he was later slain by a member of his own race.

To the average voter the statement as to whether Fred K. Smith has had two terms as he states, or three terms as his opponents claim, is of little or no consequence. The big question before the voters is whether the public of Wichita county wants to condone the known acts of his department and by returning him to office lay the county and the city open to two years more of his type of administration.

The Smith political machine is powerful. It has strong support, and unless the voters of Wichita county turn out and vote, there is a strong likelihood of Fred K. Smith being our next sheriff.

Good citizens cannot and will not forget. The obligation of law enforcement is too important to thrust lightly aside—the relationship existing between law enforcement and peaceful and prosperous communities is a vital one and the answer is in the hands of the voters.

The childish charge brought by Smith supporters that Brailey if elected, will close Sunday amusements and make Wichita Falls a "hick" town is too ridiculous for words. Wichita Falls is beyond the "hick" stage and the only justification for a "hick" charge was when the sheriff permitted convicted murderers to run at large—permitted his deputy privileges to be handed to hi-jackers; permitted prisoners to stage kangaroo trials in the county jail; permitted prisoners certain liberties that enabled them to steal an automobile and to commit a felony—Wichita Falls was a "hick" town in that respect without dispute—but to borrow the battle cry from the advertising department, "It Won't Be Long Now." Brailley is going to be the next sheriff. He solicits your vote today. He promises you that he will rid Wichita county of her infestation of bootleggers and gamblers. He promises you a strict program of law enforcement. And men who have known W. G. Brailey intimately all his life will tell you that Brailey is a man of his word.

A FORTUNE FOR VET

One Legged Veteran Has $13,000 Coming to Him.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Frank Vincent, one-armed, one-legged veteran of the World war, who was last heard from in Portland selling pencils on the street, was being sought today by the United States veterans' bureau which has $13,000 to give him.

Vincent, who accidentally shot himself in April, 1917, while a member of the Wyoming national guard, put in a claim for compensation from the army, but it was disallowed because the law then provided for no compensation for any one hurt before October 6, 1917. Since then the law has been changed.

"Killed in Action;" He Returns Home

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Listed as killed in action prior to signing of the armistice in 1918, Fred Hoffman, 42, has returned home.

Yesterday he arrived in Pittsburgh and called for his sister on the telephone. She fainted. Later a reunion of brother and sister with their 85-year-old mother was held.

Hoffman, wounded and gassed while with the 28th division, said he went to Australia after the armistice and later returned to America, locating in Chicago. Letters he wrote home were returned with the notation that the addressee could not be located.

Youth From Palestine Seeks Entrance To University Of Texas

AUSTIN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—From far off Jerusalem, a young Palestinian in quaint English has written to the president of Texas university, seeking work that will enable him to attend the school.

His name is Muhjiddy Khalyidz. Any one interested in him should write to C. D. Simmons of Austin, secretary of the Texas university board of regents, Mr. Simmons said.

The letter follows:

"President of Texas university, Texas of United States.

"Dear Sir:

"I, the undersigned, a bearer of the short course certificate of the School of Commerce of the American university of Beirut, want to continue my studies at your school of commerce.

"I am a Palestinian, rather poor financially, but I am able and willing to work in order to get my living in the United States and pay you the tuition fees.

"Will you, therefore, make me this most important favor? I mean will you kindly help me in securing some work either inside of the university or outside of it, at some certain free hours of the day, so that I may be enabled to support my daily life and pay the tuition fees?

"If 'Yes,' then let me enjoy the reading of your favorable reply together with your university catalogue at an early date.

"I have the honor to be, Sir Busier, your most obedient Servant Muhjiddy Khalyidz."

"THE BALLOT IS THE THING"

AGAIN the time is coming when the ballot will be the thing. This will happen today. There is a run-off to be settled. It must be settled by the democrats of Texas. There must be approximately 1,000,000 in Texas, all qualified to vote in this remarkable primary election.

More than 830,000 cast ballots on July 24, and more than 550,000 of these ballots were cast against the house of Ferguson. It was a most emphatic notice that a vast majority of the democrats of Texas were arrayed against the house of Ferguson and the decree was entered that the house of Ferguson should depart from the top of Capitol Hill.

Now ballots count. It is the duty of a citizen to register his verdict, to cast his ballot for the candidates of his choice ever keeping in mind that Texas is a proud commonwealth and should be given the very best men who offer for ofice.

All the candidates made known their policies of government. All the records of the candidates were before the people. All the facts were before the people. All the figures were before the people.

In the July balloting Mr. Moody came within 1771 votes of having a majority over all of the candidates in the field or rather the ballots cast for all of the candidates in the field. In the largest vote ever cast in the history of Texas he won a most sweeping victory.

Now Lynch Davidson, who ran third on July 24 and received 123,000 is campaigning for Moody and urging all of his followers to cast their ballots for the attorney general on August 28.

Indeed, all the principal supporters of Mr. Davidson are campaigning for Moody and advising the democrats of the state to go to the poles and make the run-off victory complete by making the majority against the house of Ferguson the largest ever given a candidate for any office in the history of Texas.

There are no new issues before the voters. There are no new complications. It is the same old paramount issue and the same old line-up.

Shall the house of Ferguson be given four terms in the office of the governor or shall the choice of a vast majority in the July primary be the nominee for governor pledged to honesty and government, fealty to the constitution and law, economical expenditure of the tax money taken from the people, the ideals of the early fathers of Democracy and the practices of the great men who have filled the office and lastly a government responsible to the people and not to an individual who is not a servant of the people of Texas.

Texas, a large majority of the people of Texas, demand peace. They demand development of the natural resources of the state. They demand law enforcement in the court house, they demand that public servants shall be men of high ideals as well as high integrity and they point with pride to Grover Cleveland, a great democratic president, who declared a public office a public trust and not a private snap and this they expect of all their servants in major or minor places.

There is a way to make Texas first and the ballot is the thing. Use it.

MEDICAL ADVANCES

COUPLED with the announcement that germs can be propagated and crossed with other germs to produce new species which may or may not be more deadly than the original kind, we learn that highly pedigreed dogs are now subject to appendicitis. That is a deeply refreshing product of civilization. The savages in an uncivilized state rarely have any civilized diseases. They know nothing of social diseases or small pox or tuberculosis. They acquire all these blessings of civilized life and with them pains and aches unknown before.

So, the dogs, as they increase in refinement, and put on the swank of a well-bred atmosphere, acquire the diseases to which their masters are subject. Dogs proverbially are immune to tuberculosis but there is no telling but that the pedigreed animals may even lose that immunity if they become highly-bred enough. One prize winner a day or two ago was found to have an inflamed appendix and an operation effected a cure. He may now go winning prizes galore, no longer handicapped by this useless appendix which seems to behave worse in civilized atmospheres.

Doctors who specialize in cutting out appendixes (could one say with dignity "appendices?") might well derive a considerable income by turning their attention to the vermiform trouble makers of Angora cats and Pomeranion poodles. What woman of wealth holding her pet in great affection could squabble with the surgeon over a few thousand ducats? It is to be hoped, however, that elephants do not become so civilized as dogs and cats. Perhaps the carnivorous animals, so cruel and savage, lions and tigers are merely suffering from appendicitis. What a boon doctors could confer on humanity if they went out into the jungles and cut out the appendixes of all the lions and tigers they met!

This bacteria business is, however, more dangerous. One scientist has been breeding the germs which start all our ills with the result that he can produce new species which give new kinds of diseases. Mark Twain got a lot of fun out of the mud baths at some of the German resorts. They were fine things, he said, for gout, but while a man was in the bath curing his gout, he could readily pick up a case of ringworm left there by some previous sufferer. So, by changing the nature of the germ, a man might lose his typhoid but find his germ had been crossed into a malaria germ.

Well, the doctors know how to color these germs so that it is easier to look at them under the microscope and if the different colors are used for each germ it might be possible merely by the color to tell what a patient had. Burbank by crossing plants took knobs off potatoes and spines off cactus. He also changed the color of flowers and once an admirer asked him to make a blue rose. He said that he worked only to improve plants. Roses, he said, were perfect already. What good would come of a blue rose. None, he thought, and so he never made one.

Of course, if these studies become so useful that a typhoid germ could be turned into one producing only fallen arches, some people would prefer fallen arches to typhoid. Doubtless it would be better still to turn typhoid or malaria into a temporary attack of colic. Yet the study is only in its infancy. It may be possible to learn what is the proper food to give the microbes to make them harmless and when a man is sick instead of dosing him with medicine the doctor's cue will be to feed the microbes in his system plenty of the proper food and in that way they will turn their attention to the food and let the patient get well.

In Canada, the farmers are not allowed to shoot the moose that feed on their crops and ruin them. So the Canadian farmer knowing that the moose likes turnips better than anything else plants a couple of acres in turnips and blithely harvests his crops. If a big thing like a moose can be kidded in this manner, why not a little thing like a microbe?

HAINES IS THEIR HOPE.

COLONEL H. H. HAINES is the republican nominee for governor. He is said to be a high-class executive and an able business man. Major Leonard Withington is the manager of the republican party of Texas, for be it known the republican party of Texas has a business manager who works 365 days the year and takes down a salary for his labor.

Major Withington is a newspaper man. He has been reading the stars. He says they have told him that there is a possibility of Colonel Haines winning the governorship over the democratic nominee.

Major Withington should give the stars another try out. He should scan the political signs of the time. As read by other wise men the reading points to an overwhelming victory for a redheaded democrat today, and the defeat of Colonel Haines by a democratic majority that will be more brutal than ever before.

He is reminded that the republicans held a state-wide primary on July 28 and that the candidates for the major office representing all factions of the republican party cast a total vote that failed to reach the 17,000 mark.

Major Withington is a fantastic dreamer when it comes to republican election possibilities away down here in Texas. A powerful minority party would be a blessing to all the people of Texas, but the signs of its coming are not flattering.

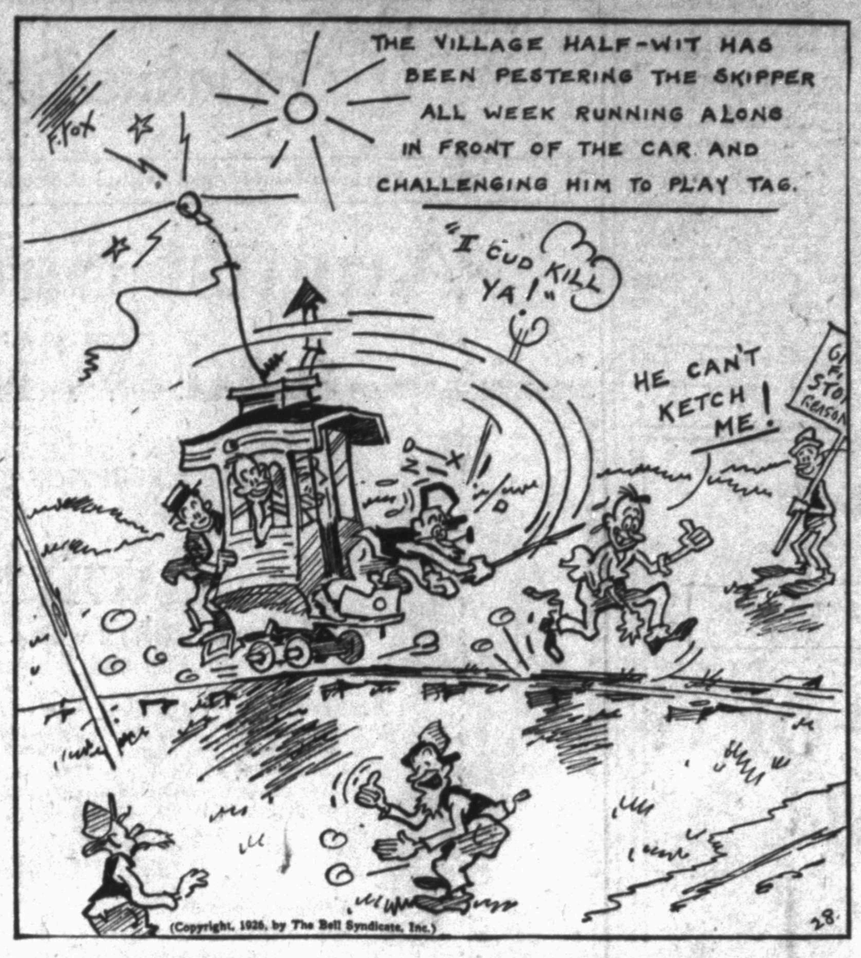

GENERAL RANGEL IN MEXICO.

GENERAL J. M. RANGEL is in Mexico. He was a guest for a few brief years at Huntsville. A pardon turned him loose. Five of his companions were liberated when the general was given his freedom. They hastened to the lower country. They crossed the Rio Grande river. They made a bee line for Matamoros.

Now the liberated must remain in Mexico. They are not citizens of the United States. They are barred by the immigration laws. If the general and Calles are on friendly terms all well and good. If they are not the general may find himself in a prison cell or in a bloody grave in Mexico.

He was not satisfied with conditions at Huntsville. He may have jumped out of the frying pan into the fire.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

A Romance In Old Brandy

By Michael Arlen.

Talking of dogs, no one will deny that dogs make the best, the dearest, and the most faithful companions in the world. No one will deny that even very small dogs have very large hearts. No one will deny that human beings are as but dirt beside dogs, even very small dogs. No one will deny that all dogs, large or small, are more acceptable to the Lord than foxes, rats or Dagoes. That is, if the Lord is a gentleman. No one can deny that. No one, anyhow, dares deny that. Let us be quite candid. A man who does not glory in the companionship of dogs is no fit mate for any woman. That is what Valerest said. A woman who glories in nothing else but the companionship of a dratted little beast with two unblinking black eyes is certainly no fit mate for any man. That is what Valentine thought.

Valentine and Valerest were sat at dinner. Valerest was the name of Valentine's wife, and she was a nice girl. A pretty maid waited on them. Valentine and Valarest were silent. The pretty maid left them.

Valarest said: "Any man who does not like dogs is no fit mate for a woman."

Valentine thought as above.

"I really don't see," said Valentine bitterly, "why you are so sluky this evening."

Sulky! Ye Gods and little fishes, to be moved by a profound and sorrowful anger—and to be called 'sulky'! O God of words and phrases, O Arbiter of temper and distempers, to sit in silent dignity and resignation—and to be called 'sulky!' Verily, what a pretty thing one word can make of martyrdom! Wherefore Valentine raised his voice and said: "I am not sulky."

"Well," said Valarest, "you needn't shout."

Valentine said: "I never shouted."

A situation was thus created. The pretty maid came in with the sweets in the middle of it. Valentine and Valarest were silent. Mr. Tuppy was not. Mr. Tuppy said "Yap!" Mr. Tuppy lay on a chair, and the chair was beside Valerest. Dear Mr. Tuppy, Sweet Mr. Tuppy! Tuppy was a Chinaman, Tuppy was a dog."

"The pretty darling, the mother's tiny tot" signed Valerest. "And does he want his dinner then, the mother's rabbit?"

"Yap," said Mr. Tuppy.

"Isn't he a darling!" cried Valerest.

"Charming," said Valentine.

"Well," said Valarest, "you aren't very gay tonight, I do think."

It could be asked, need Valarest have said that? Again, it could be asked, need Valerest have said that brightly? Valentine, at that moment, appeared to be engaged in spearing a boiled cherry, which formed part of a fruit salad. It would not appear, therefore, that Valentine was engaged an anything very important. Indeed, there will not be wanting those to say that Valentine's attention might well have been diverted to something more "worth while" (an American phrase meaning money) than even the most notable fruit salad. They will be wrong. For there is a time in everybody's life when even the most homely fruit salad, even one unspiced with Kirsch or liqueur, can be of such moment that everything else must, for that time, go by the board. Therefore it must at once be apparent to even the most impatient reader that The Romance of Old Brandy must be delayed for at least another paragraph while impartial inquiry is made into the fruit salad of Valentine Vernon Chambers.

Ever since he was so high Valentine would always eat fruit salad according to certain laws of precedence. Not for worlds would he have admitted it but that is how it was. He liked the chunks of pineapple best, so he kept the chunks of pineapple to the last. Strawberries he liked next best, if they weren't too sloppy, so they came one but last. As for grapes in a fruit salad, they are slippery and sour, and Valentine though it was no fit place for them. After strawberries, he was partial to cherries. While first of all he would demolish the inevitable bits of banana. Cream he never took with fruit salad.

It will therefor be seen that, as he was only at the beginning of the cherry stratum, the fruit salad future of Valentine Vernon Chambers was one of exceptional promise. But it was not to be. Even as Valentine spoke, brightly, he couldn't help but cast one furtive look at the chunks of pineapple. Nor were the strawberries sloppy. But queer depths were moving in him that evening. From the chunks of pineaple he looked across the table at his wife, and Valerest say that his blue eyes were dark, and she was afraid, but did she look afraid? Valerest, Oh, Valerest!

"Yap!" said Mr. Tuppy.

"There, there!" said Valerest, and she kissed Mr. Tuppy, and Mr. Tuppy loved it.

"By Heaven, that dog!" snapped Valentine.

Valerest said: "That's it! Vent your bad temper on poor little Mr. Tuppy!"

Valentine looked at Valerest.

"I see," said Valentine quietly. Very quietly. "Oh, I see!"

And worse. Much worse. Very quietly.

"I suppose you think," sail Valerest, "that because I'm your wife you can say anything you like to me. You're wrong."

"I think," said Valentine, "that because you're my wife you ought to behave like my wife. And I'm right."

And then he left the room. And then he left the house. And then the house was very still.

Valerest, sitting very straight in her chair, heard the front door slam. She listened. Through the open window behind her came the sound of many footsteps marching away down South Street. She listened. Away the footsteps marched, away. Then a taxi screamed and the incident of the manly footsteps was closed forever.

"Well, that's that!" said Valerest.

"Yap," said Mr. Tuppy.

"Mother's rabbit!" said Valerest absently.

"Mr. Tuppy," said Valerest suddenly, "this can't go on. You know, this can't go on."

"Yap," said Mr. Tuppy.

"I'm not a chattle," said Valerest. "To be used just as a man likes. I will not be a chattel."

The pretty maid came in.

Valerest said: "Come along Mr. Tuppy. I've got a headache. Bed."

Valentine walked. When he had walked for some time he realized that he was achieving the impossible in combing an excess of motive power with a minimum of progress, for he found himself walking in a direction exactly opposite to that in which his destination lay. He corrected this, and presently stood before a house in Cadogan Gardens were a gentle and Cadogan Gardens wear a gentle and sorrowfulair, and Valentine grew more depressed than ever.

Now, years before, his guardian had said: "There may come a time, Valentine, when something happens to you about which you will think it impossible that anyone can advise you. But you may be wrong in thinking that. Try me then, if you care to."

HO HUM!

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 27.—(AP) Life bored Paul Moore, 20. Last night he turned two-gun man in a pool hall just to see how the dozen or so patrons would look lined up against the wall. He did not try to rob them, but fled after looking them over. The police got him, however. "Ho hum" is his philosophy of life.

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Advice to a Business Woman Who Wants to Become a Writer—Experience of One Wise Wife Who Solved the Mother-in-Law Problem.

Dear Miss Dix—All my life I have wanted to write. I am now past 30, and have a very fine position that has taken years to earn in the business world. My work is very hard, and I am so tired at night that I cannot write. During the day when I have time I weave little stories in my mind. What I wish to ask you is—do you think it wise to give up a good position for the uncertainty of writing? I believe that I could make up the story, but have little idea of the phrasing. I have only a high school and business college education. Is a college education essential? I feel that it is time I must do something or give up the idea entirely, as I am getting along in years.

A WOULD-BE WRITER.

Answer: No human being in the world can tell you in advance whether you have the ability to be a successful writer or not. The only way you can find out is to try to see for yourself if you have the divine affatus or not. There is no test by which you or any one else, can tell beforehand whether you have the sacred fire of genius in your soul or not. The mere fact that you have always yearned to write is no indication whatever that you possess the ability to do so.

You might break your heart with longing to be a Caruso without ever being able to sing a note. Your yearning to be beautiful wouldn't make you a Lillian Russell, nor your desire for power ad place make you the president of the United States.

Wanting and getting are two entirely different things, yet many people make the mistake of thinking that just because they desire to do something is a sure sign they have a talent for it. Which is a mistake.

If you have a fine, well-established position in an occupation which you have already made a success, think long and earnestly before you give it up to try something for which you do not know you even have an attitude. Believe me, writing is one of the most arduous of all professions. It is one in which success is won only after years of patient toil, and it's rewards in money are seldom commensurate with the work it has demanded. Only the most famous writers make as much money as a fairly successful business man.

Yet I would not discourage you. There is no other joy in life equal to doing the kind of work we like to do, and the writer who lives in the little world of his own creation feasts on spiritual ambrosia even if he does sometimes lack for bread. So if you are willing to starve for a few years while you are learning your trade, and risk failure in the end, take your courage in both hands and go to it.

As for how to break into print, there is little more advice that one can give than there is about learning to swim by a course in correspondence. All we can say is "The water is fine. Jump in."

Which being interpreted means, write your story and send it to a publisher, and if he sends it back send it to another, and so on, ad infintium, until some editor accepts it, or you become convinced that you have answered somebody else's call to write.

As for qualifications it doesn't matter whether you have a high school or a college education, provided you have a good working knowledge of the English language. Th only thing that matters is a talent for writing. And that is the gift of God.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE GIRL THAT I TOOK HOME

The night we took the first girl home,
The memory lingers like a song.
A firefly glittered in the gloam,
There was no hate, there was no wrong.
In all the world, that summer's night
Only a mystical delight
That tingled to our finger tips—
The years sail on like sailing ships,
Yet, after all, we often find
Some moment harbored in the mind.

And so in mine a thought remains
I think perhaps remains in yours
Whatever wealth a fellow gains,
The only wealth that long endures
Is some old thought of some old day,
Some night that long has slipped away.
That memory may linger on
When all our other wealth is gone.
Old thoughts that never quite depart,
Old ships still harbored in the heart.

I'm old and gray and bent withal;
I have a wife, a gentle dame;
To tell the truth, I can't recall
That other girl, her face or name
And so I guess the wife won't mind
If now and then I look behind
The curtains of the misty past
For she's the girl I took home last.
Yes, after all, though afncies roam,
My wife's the one I took home.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX.

1. What is a magnetic field?
2. What is a transformer?
3. What are the two common kinds of electric currents?
4. Whould you disconnect the current in the meter box in case of an electric storm?
5. In what beside radio, does static electricity prove a nuisance?
6. What is a dynamo?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

FRANKLIN AND THE LIGHTNING

Everybody knows that Benjamin Franklin was the first to tickle the toes of the thunder clouds by sending a brass key up into an electric storm by means of a kite. Everybody jeered at him, as always happens when a scientist begins to work because the experiment seemed to have no practical use. He may not have foreseen all the developments of modern electricity, but he guessed some of them, for when somebody asked him what use his pranks with the lightning were, he replied:

"Of what use is a baby when it is first born?"

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Mercury is generally obtained by separating it from gold or silver with which it so frequently occurs.
2. Gold in this day is generally obtained by the hydraulic method—washing it out of the hills with powerful hoses; being a heavy metal it settles, while soil and gravel wash away.
3. Salt is generally obtained by mining it.
4. Platinum is more precious than gold.
5. Fool's gold is iron pyrites.
6. Sulphur in the United States is mined chiefly in Louisiana.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

VIRGO.

Today's planetary aspects are rather adverse and remain so until after sunset, when they assume a more favorable character and become distinctly encouraging. It is not a good or an auspicious occasion for "starting something," and not suitable for "seeking fresh fields or pastures new." There will be experienced a sense of self-disappointment and you will have less self-confidence than usual. The probability is that your criticism will be directed against your own efforts and not aimed at those of others. In the evening very benign influences will prevail, and these will naturally contribute in a large degree to the success of any, and all, social or family reunions.

Children born today will, during infancy, enjoy normal health and they promise to develop along ordinary lines until just prior to the attainment of their majority. At this time the signs denote that they will experience a rather serious illness, which, unless skilfully treated, will leave them in a weak and debilitated condition. Their characters will not be strong and it will be only later in life that they will learn to say, and to mean "No." They will, in their early years, get into lots of trouble, which will tax love and affection to the utmost. Resolute discipline will accomplish much with these children.

If today is your birthday you are meticulously careful, orderly, systematic and methodical. "A place for everything and everything in its place" is a religion with you and nothing distresses you quite as much as untidiness or a lack of neatness. You are never guided by impulse, but bring to bear on consideration of any problem, deliberative thought and mature judgment. You are not superficial, but go to the bottom of everything and when you are "all courant" with any subject, your knowledge of it is profound. Naturally, you are not pyrotechnical nor quick. What you do, however, is always well, correctly and thoroughly done. You are a clear thinker and your opinions are carefully heeded by all those who know you well and can appreciate the conscientious efforts you always make to arrive at a just and proper conclusion. You will apply your safe and sane methods to affairs of the heart—unless you mate in Virgo.

THE SONG OF THE SOFA-SQUIRREL.

By Clifton Ballard.

The Sofa-Squirrel, after dark,
Is fond of walking in the park
Where many pleasant nuts are found
And pretty Bench-Birds flutter 'round
And sometimes, for a summer spree,
He seeks a beach beside the sea
Where Flappers flap and Flippers flip
And dainty One-piece Dippers dip,
And then, again, at some hotel
He stays a while and plays the swell
Among the Hammock-Hounds who bay
The moon in their romantic way,
But better, far than sand or sea
He likes his sofa, if there be
Some sweet companion there to pet,
A blonde, a red-head, a brunett.....
It matters not, if she is kind
And not too obstinate of mind;
And if the room is not too light.
OH BOY! the kid is there, all right!!

Chicken-feed!

Mrs. Owens: "That's funny. It had such beautiful feathers."

Owens: "What is the plummage got to do with it!"

Mrs. Owens: "I thought that fine feathers make fine birds."

A COMMUNIQUE FROM DR. TRAPROCK.

90 North, August 17th, Hon. Sir, I am glad to be able to report a splendid midsummer season for our joint venture, THE FUN SHOP Hotel and Cottages, and when I say "joint" don't misunderstand me. The place is no joint, but a ren high-class dump and all the folks up here are very ker-tish.

The Crown Prince Gustavus of Sweden came back, as promised, and took the royal suite overlooking the aurora. He brought with him his three brothers, Olaf, Wittlaf, and Pilaf, and the four of them have had rare sport playing polar tennis which is done on skis with a rubber-cored snowball.

The hot weather which I understand has prevailed down your way has also been noticable here and has done some damage. The ice-glazed skylight over the swimming pool caved in and that night when the temperature went back to normal for August, (approximately 20 degrees below) the pool froze over. This almost ruined Prince Wittlaf who went down in the early morning to take his plunge. He did a brodie from the spring-board, sprained his chin and bent the royal bridgework.

The next day it was hot again. The seals suffered a lot, some of them being reduced to mere shadows. Also, some of our semi-detached igloos threatened to collapse until, by a happy thought, I turned the big fan from our ventilating plant on them and you could actually hear the idloos stiffen up.

Yours to hand saying that my wife demands my immediate return. Tell her that the return message is that Dr. Traprock has just left the club. You know me, hey, M. F. J.? More anon.

Yours,
Walter E. Traprock.

I'M THE GINK

I am the parasitic ginkette. My sisters work, but I don't. I am the star and hope of the family. At least I think I am. I sleep late each morning and arise for a comfortable bath. I always look neat and trim. I never shop about to see if I can find cheap frocks. I buy the best and my sisters pay. Of course I am more attractive and will some day make a rich marriage. Meanwhile I do nothing and if the marriage doesn't come along, why I don't worry much. I am comfortable and that's enough.

READ THIS FIRST:

MERRY LOCKE, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. Since the time she was 16, Merry has had men galore at her feet. Her only ambition is to have a good time.

At 20 she fails in her course at business school, to the disappointment of MOMS, her mother. When her father suddenly dies, she takes a job in LILLIE DALE'S beauty shop. At that time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is TONY GAINES, a serious-minded young bachelor who wants to marry her.

But during their engagement, Merry goes out with other men, and Tony stops coming to see her. Later Merry hears he has gone to Montana to live. A letter comes to the house from him, but is lost before Merry has a chance to see it. She returns his ring and tries to forget him.

Helen, her oldest sister, marries BILL HEPWORTH. CASSIE marries MORLEY KAUFMAN, with whom she quarrels constantly. JINNY, the youngest of the sisters, is engaged to DERRICK JONES, who lives next door.

For a time Merry finds herself without a beau. Then BILL ERSKINE, a bachelor friend of Morley Kaufman, comes to town and falls in love with her. Bill is a traveling man, and when he is away on the road he sends Merry all sorts of expensive presents. He lends her a thousand dollars to buy a share in Lillie's beauty shop, and when Merry finally traps him into a proposal of marriage he sends her a diamond wrist watch as an engagement gift. Moms thinks it very queer that he sent that instead of a ring, and Merry begins to think it peculiar, herself, when the time for their marriage draws near and Bill avoids mentioning it in his infrequent letters. At last she decides to write to him, and ask him how many wedding announcements she ought to order. "That," she makes up her mind, "ought to get some sign of life from him. Merry spends the holiday at "Crows Nest." Morely asks Bill why he doesn't marry Merry. Bill says, "Don't worry about Merry."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIII

That Sunday was the most miserable Sunday that Merry Locke ever spent. Years afterward she looked back upon it as a horror.

All day long she pretended to be having a good time. She smiled until her face ached.

But all day she felt like a fish out of water. She was in the crowd, but not part of it. She dod not "belong" somehow or other. She was a rank outsider.

It wasn't that anyone snubbed her, that made her feel that way. They were all lovely to her. But they talked about people Merry didn't know, and about things she had never heard of—of Sally Neal's engagement and the new dressmaker who made Abigail Pike's wedding dress.

They had all gone to Abigail's wedding. Merry had only read about it the week before, sitting at the manicure table in Lillie's beauty shop.

Even their way of talking was not her way. They used as much slang as little Jinny, but it was slang that Merry had not heard before. Most of it was Greek to her.

After breakfast a long yellow car came tearing up the stony road through the woods, bringing the Secord girls and their two men friends. The Secords were twins, but they did not look alike. Julie was tall and dark, and Peg was small and blond.

Neither of them was pretty. But they were jolly and lively and they made a great deal of noise. They had "pep," so Morely said.

"Hi, you!" Peg Secord yelled at him, jumping out of the yellow car. "What are you going to give us for breakfast? Coffee and toast and the correct time, or something better?"

"Something much better," Morley answered with a grin. He took them into the house for a Scotch highball.

Their two friends, with their eyes on Merry, lingered.

"Who's the new girl?" she heard one of them ask Cassie, who looked up, surprised.

"Why, you surely know my little sister, Merry!" she said to them. "You met her at my house on New Year's day? Don't you remember?—We had Tom-and-Jerry to drink, and Muriel did her imitation of Raquel Meller? Don't you remember?"

Oh, yes, they remembered the party on New Year's day perfectly, they said. The drinks and the dance and all the rest of it. How could they have forgotten such a corking party, they wanted to know.

"But we didn't meet Merry," said the taller one, with a wink at Cassie. "At least I didn't. If I had I'd never have forgotten her—and that's a snal, as the teamster said cracking his whip."

His name was George Leffingwell, but Cassie called him "Sky." So did all the rest of the crowd. Doubtless because he was so tall, Merry decided.

The other man was engaged to Julie Secord, so Cassie said, and his name was Jack Anderson. He was short and stocky with close-cropped hair and a nice smile.

He was the only one of the crowd who did not drink. Everyone else went around all day with a tall glass of gingerale with a "stick in it.

In the afternoon it rained, and they all gathered togehter in the big living-room where Morley had built a fire.

Cabby Marsh sat down before the radio, and "tuned in" on a jazz orchestra that was beating out the happiness and heartbreak of life, a thousand miles away from the Crow's Nest.

Then he came across the room, and sat in the deep window seat where Merry, all alone, was smoking a cigaret and trying to look cheerful.

"Isn't that sassy music?" he asked. "Let's you and I trot off a heat together, what do you say?"

He danced marvelously. Merry thought. She followed him easily through the steps of a new dance that was half tango and half Charleston. While he danced he hummed, his lips close to her ear.

From a shadowy corner of the big room, Muriel sat watching them. There was a queer little smile on her scarlet mouth, and Merry realized that she was jealous of her and Cabby.

She did not care. She was enjoying herself for the first time that day, and she was not going to let Muriel Kaufman or anyone else spoil it for her * * * Not if she knew it!

She threw back her golden head smiled up at Cabby with eyes that had stars in their clear green depths.

"Do you know I'm just crazy about you-oo-oo?" he crooned into her ear, along with the music that filled the room.

She only laughed—a soft little laugh.

"Well, I am," he went on crooning. "Ab-solute-ly cuckoo-oo-oo—" He pressed his mouth against the wave of perfumed, shining hair that covered her ear.

When the dance was over, Muriel called him to her dusky corner. There was a sharp little edge to her voice when she did it, Merry thought.

At six o'clock, when it was time to freshen up for supper she went into the bedroom ahead of the others.

For one thing, she hated to dress with a lot of other girls. She liked to have a mirror all to herself, and plenty of room for her perfume and powder and brushes.

For another, she hated to have the Secord twins see her imitation-ivory toilet things. She hated them to see the sleazy silk underwear that she had on—the silk stockings with cheap cotton tops.

Their own dressing bags were open, showing a gleam of silver and tortoise shell. Their nightgowns of fine, hand-embroidered linen lay over the foot of their beds. The dresses they had brought with them were spread out on the window seat, with sachet bags tucked inside of them.

With a secret heart-ache Merry stood looking at these things, and then back at her own shabby bag. Her eyes smarted with sudden tears, as she knelt down and took out the clothes she was going to put on.

Then she closed the bag, and carried her things into the bathroom. She would dress in there, safe from curious eyes.

She lay in a deep hot bath until she was glowing and tingling. Then she cold-creamed her face, splashed it with cold water, and dusted on powder.

In the mirror her skin was white satin, her eyes green jewels set in their jet black lashes.

"Anyway, I'm prettier than the rest of them," she told herself with defiance, pulling on the hated stockings with the cotton tops.

Outside, in the bedroom, there was a sound of shrill voices, and a sudden sharp knock came on the door.

"Hi, you in there! We're going swimming!—Want to go along?" asked Muriel's high-pitched little voice.

"Adore to," Merry answered.

"Well, then, shake a leg. We're going up to the Crow's Nest. I missed my train this morning, and I just got here. Better late than never was the way I figured it!"

He turned to Merry, and with Cassie and Morley watching him, took her in his arms and kissed her. "Been lonesome for me?" he asked, and Merry cried as she clung to him.

"You'll never know how lonesome!" she sobbed, "I've almost died—I've been so lonesome."

Halfway home, they stopped at a roadhouse along the way for a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Only instead of coffee they had more gingerale with a "stick" in it.

"So little Sister missed me, did she?" Bill asked, beaming affectionately across the table at Merry's wistful face.

"I'll say she missed you! She wouldn't swim or dance, or do anything but mope around in corners all by herself," said Morley, who did not know about the snubbing that Muriel had given her.

"Cabby Marsh called her the 'war widow'," Morley chuckled. "He lost his mind over her, but she wouldn't look at him * * * Why don't you marry the girl, Bill, and get it over with? She's a mighty sweet kid."

Merry started at him in astonishment. It was so unlike the grouchy Morley to say anything nice about anybody * * * She wondered if Cassie had put him up to saying this to Bill.

"Don't worry about us, Morley," Bill answered dryly. "We know what we're doing, don't we, Merry? We'll sneak off and get married one of these days, and fool you all."

And during his three-day visit, that was the only time he so much as mentined the word "marry" to her!

Bill brings Merry Bad news. Cassie lets Merry in on a secret. All are in Chapter XXXIV of "The Petter." Read it tomorrow.

Preacher Knows That He Can Ride

GREENVILLE, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Assuring himself a ride in life as well as in death, the Rev. I. W. Humphreys of Greenville Friday traded his house and lot for an automobile and a funeral.

The agreement between the preacher and the undertaker was that the house and lot were to be exchanged at once for the automobile and that when Rev. Mr. Humphreys dies the undertaker will burry him free of any further charges.

The trade has been consumated in part by a transfer of the property for the automobile, but the preacher must die to collect the remainder of the bargain.

Danish Scientist Finds Preventative For Cattle Malady.

COPENHAEN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Dr. S. N. Vendel, a Danish doctor, believes he has found the cause of the foot and mouth disease, so destructive to cattle, in a fungus of the so-called Monilia family to which also belong the touchwood fungus and the tropical diarrhoea fungus. His theory is that his fungs acts as a primary agent in infections and creats favorable conditions for other bacteria to become malignant. Iodine is said to have proved effective against the action of the fungus in early stages of the disease.

May Transfer A Fortune In Booze

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Transfer of 250,000 gallons of pre-war whiskey, worth at bootleg prices nearly $15,000,000 from the bonded concentration depot to the Sibley warehouse in a district marked by several slayings attributed to liquor feuds, awaits sanction from Washington. The warehouse figured in a scandal about two years ago when it was alleged that a large amount of liquor stored there had disappeared.

Prohibition administrators conferred today on the vehicles of conveyance and the mobilizing of a guard to escort the liquor in the transfer of about five miles. Most of it is private stock which was stored in the warehouse when prohibition became effective.

EASY FOR HIM

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 27. Big Pat McDonald, who throws weights for fun and for a living keeps traffic in order on New York's Broadway, thinks nothing of saving a life or two in the surf on his vacation. Many saw him rescue a girl from the undertow. "Nothing more than I did the other day without many finding out about it," he remarked.

BIG STATION IS TERRORIZED

Immigrant Laborer Runs Wild With Gun In Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—(AP)—An immigrant railroad laborer armed with a shotgun, reserve ammunition crammed into a woman's handbag and a knife dangling from about his throat, last night killed one man, wounded three others and kept the Illinois Central railroad terminal in an uproar for 15 minutes before he in turn was killed.

Slow action of his old model single barreled gun played a major part in the termination of the madman's volleys before they found other victims, the time required for his last reloading giving an ex-service man a moment's advantage.

In that instant Charles Danloff, a barber, opened fire and killed the laborer instantly after he had escaped the fire of a policeman and charged through the station concourse.

The one clue to the cause of the shooting was a shouted "I'll get even with all of you," after he had emptied his weapon into the back of the Michigan Central's depot passenger agent. From the words and the fact that the man singled out persons in uniform authorities were led to believe that a grudge against the road was responsible.

BOON FOR HUSBANDS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—A married man should have one night a week off, in the opinion of Judge Samuel Gray, a bachelor. And so he freed a hubby accused of desertion after quarrels that started when he would not explain where he went every seventh night.

Strip Poker Is Lots of Fun, But Sometimes It Costs

DALLAS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A man naked and a woman in pink silk teddies driving about the city were arrested at the first blush of dawn here Friday. Two motorcycle policemen blushed as they drew alongside the automobile and saw the sartorial condition of the occupants. And everybody blushed when the couple explained that they had engaged in a little game of strip poker with bad luck and were on their way home with all they had left.

They weer arrested. The woman said her home was in Oklahoma City and the man gave Dallas as his residence.

Later in the day the woman was brought into police court in clothes supplied by the jail matron. When her male companion was called, Dean Gauldin, city prosecutor, told the judge he could not be prosecuted because he was in jail naked. "Wrap him in a blanket or something and bring him in; there are no women here and I guess us men can stand it," said the judge.

In a few minutes the prisoner was led in wearing a pair of trousers five sizes too large, which had been borrowed from a hefty policeman. He was barefooted.

"What's all this about?" asked the judge.

"They were riding around naked," said the prosecutor.

"I wasn't naked; I had on my teddies," said the Modern Lady Godvia with a withering look at the prosecutor.

"Twenty-five dollars fine for each," snapped the judge.

The fines were paid. Friends brought the man a suit of clothes and he departed. The woman left in a taxicab alone, adorned in her jail clothes.

SPUDS FAIL IN WACO OPENER

Pratt Crew Rallies In 8th To Snatch Contest By 8-7

WACO, Aug. 27.—The Cubs opened a series with Wichita Falls here today by taking the first game, 8 to 7 in a hard hitting battle. The Spudders took the lead in the second and held it until the eighth when after the locals had scored three runs. Manager Pratt went in as a pinch hitter for Gladwell and singled to right, bringing in the tying and winning runs. Briscoe for the Cubs and Turgeon for Wichita Falls, cracked homers, there being no one on base. The locals used three pitchers and the visitors two.

Benton and Lamb slammed the ball to all sectors, the former getting four hits out of five and the latter three out of five. The Wichita Falls team connected for 15 hits in all.

Buster Ross, young Wichita Falls lefthander, slipped up in the eighth. However, three errors were made in this inning, including one by Ross himself. Shores, a rookie, succeeded him but was pounded hard.

Wichita Falls had bad by far the better of the argument up to the eighth, knocking Tuero hard and then smashing Caldwell. Waco finished with Jimmy Priesmuth, lefthander, on the hill.

The Spudders played without their regular first baseman, LaFryette, who was sick. And in the second inning, Umpire Osborne put Fitzgerald out of the game for protesting a called strike.

Longhorns Begin Training Sept. 10

AUSTIN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Coach E. J. Stewart of the University of Texas Longhorn will begin fall training for the Longhorns on September 10, when he is expecting about 40 men to report. The first three or four days will consist of light work to condition the men, Stewart said, and will follow various forms of exercises and learning to handle the ball, punting, passing, sprinting and the like. Scrimmage does not begin until a week or ten days after training starts.

After the first few workouts at scrimmage, the Longhorns will be pushed hard, as the game on September 26, with the Oklahoma Southwest Teachers' college is the hardest first game the Steers have faced in years, Coach Stewart declared.

The Longhorn coach is urging that a large number of athletes report for fall training. Despite the size of the enrollment of the university, fewer men report for football training when the seasons open than in smaller schools. Stewart said.

Coach Stewart is particularly pleased with the addition of Milton Kelly as the new trainer for the Longhorns. Kelly is from the university of Kansas.

Chapin vs. Tilden In Tennis Finals

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—(AP)—William T. Tilden and Alfred H. Chapin Jr., of Springfield, Mass., won their way to the final round of the Newport invitation tennis tournament tody Chpin defeating B. I. C. Norton of San Antonio, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4, after Tilden had come from behind to vanquish Manuel Alonzo of Spain, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

The youthful New England player outdrove the former South Africa player in the back court for rallies and was brilliantly effective in a sweeping net assault, finishing off the exchanges with decisive volleys.

After a convincing display of base line steadiness in the first set Norton was placed on defensive during the remainder of the match by the increasing power of Chapin's strokes and made a futile effort to challenge the wush of his opponent with the counter-advances into the fore court.

MOLLA RULES U. S. NET GAME

Miss Wills Must Defeat Her to Re-Establish Supremacy

Photos show Mrs. Mallory (right) at the time her reign was ended in 1923 by Helen Wills, congratulating Miss Wills. Below, Mrs. Mallory's smile of victory.

When Helen Wills ends her voluntary exile from the tennis courts and returns to her place she will face a different situation than existed up to a few short days ago.

The status then was this.

The two leading challengers for Miss Wills' title, held for three years, were Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory.

By reason of her decisive defeat of Miss Wills last year and again this in important tourneys Miss Ryan loomed the more formidable by far. Mrs. Mallory's sun had almost set, critics believed. She had reigned seven years when Miss Wills dethroned her in 1923. She had been the outstanding sensation of the net world for 10 hectic campaigns. Her failure to check Miss Wills in three attempts in the national tourneys of 1923-24-25 had convinced experts that Miss Wills was her superior.

Mrs. Mallory has, however defeated Miss Wills in tourney play in that interval.

Victories Mark Vet's Return.

But meanwhile Miss Elizabeth Ryan, after 12 years of conquest in England returned home to seek more net honors in the United States and promptly challenged Miss Wills' claim to net honors. Her most spectacular triumph over the California girl came in the Seabright tourney last summer when the veteran star playing shoeless on the wet court, defeated Miss Wills.

Miss Ryan had further demonstrated her skill year after year by defeating Mrs. Mallory consistently—something like nine times all told.

So, of the two, Miss Ryan stood out. The tennis world confidently expected that she would be the one to challenge Miss Wills at Forest Hills this year.

But Mrs. Mallory's victory over Miss Ryan in the finals of the national meet has changed all this.

By her victory Mrs. Mallory wiped out that string of defeats handed her by Miss Ryan. With the same deadly stroking she nullified in a measure the victories Miss Ryan has scored over Miss Wills.

When Miss Ryan and Mrs. Mallory faced each other in their titular match there met the only two American players who have defeated Miss Wills in tourney play since her reign began in 1923. This alone makes Mrs. Mallory the outstanding challenger for Miss Wills' honors.

But her feat in winning the national title for the eighth time—a world's record—and this 13 years after her first victory, also makes her the outstanding figure of the net world right now and places her above the younger star temporarily at least.

Some idea of the magnitude of Mrs. Mallory's achievement can be realized when it is pointed out that Nill Larned—grand old man of the tennis world—reigned but seven years all told. R. D. Sears another hero of the earlier days of tennis, also held the title seven times but failed to make it eight. Bill Tilden, greatest of all present day players, has ruled but six years. Mrs. Mallory had overshadowed the records of all other women players when she was dethroned in 1923. Now she returns to the throne again to reign at least until next summer.

Miss Wills must defeat Mrs. Mallory decisively in net play before the young western girl's supremacy will be established again.

Reese Has Good Grid Outlook With Electra Material

ELECTRA, Aug. 27.—Fifteen aspirants responded to the call issued by Jim Reese, Electra high school athletic coach, for football practice Wednesday evening. Reese believes that this will be the best football year that Electra high school has ever known, inspite of the fact that ineligibles ruined his hopes last season of winning over the well known enemies of the Electra team, namely, Wichita high and Vernon.

Reese says he has spent a very profitable summer, having attended a football training school. Until the opening of school, Murray Moore, who proved himself a splendid athlete on the local grid a few years ago, and who was a guard on the state university team last year, will assist Coach Reese.

STAFF COMPLETE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 27.—(AP)—The make-up of the football coaching staff was announced today by William J. Gingham, director of athletics at Harvard. It includes: Head coach, Arnold Horween '20; line coach, James L. Braden, Wisconsin '22; end coach, Charles R. Carney, University of Illinois. Fall practice will start September 15.

Philadelphia is grabbing the Tunney-Dempsey bout now. Which reminds us that some of the spectators at the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in Jersey City found themselves in the outskirts of Philadelphia.

Sesquicentennial promotors figure the fight fans would bring their wives along and leave them at the baking and canned fruit exhibits for the afternoon.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

MELVIN OTT

Regardless of all other happenings John McGraw of recent years, seems to have fallen into the happy habit of digging up for immediate exhibition at least one bright young star. This has not only added some life to the late season play of the team but has greased the turnstiles at the Polo Grounds.

A few years ago it was Frankie Frisch. Then along came Travis Jackson. Last year Freddy Lindstrom, still fresh from the Toledo school campus, broke into the limelight.

And now McGraw has as his leftfielder Melvin Ott, 17 years old and with the din of a Louisiana high school cheering section still in his ears.

McGraw yanked Emil Meusel from the Giant outfield the other day following a protracted batting slump on Emil's part, and sent young Ott to fill the vacancy in the outfield. McGraw announced his intention at the time of permitting Ott to play the outfield until Ross Young, ill in a hospital, was able to resume his place in center.

Ott, little heralded when he joined the team, had drawn some attention as a pinch hitter for the team before McGraw made this startling move. Sent in three times to pinch hit during the early part of the team's road jaunt Ott delivered on two occasions.

McGraw figures that the lad can hit a good batting gait against big league pitching while playing regularly despite his inexperience. And the Giant team needs all the batting strength it can muster.

Speaking of the Giants, the recent action of Frankie Frisch in leaving the team flat and McGraw's move in announcing a shakeup in his infield which would shift Frisch from second to third and Lindstrom to the middle bag, are cause for much speculation by fans.

Frisch explained his sudden departure from the team with the statement that he was tired and wanted a rest. McGraw explained his move by stating that Frisch had failed to live up to expectations as a second baseman—that he had been guilty of errors of judgment and had not handled some situations satisfactorily.

This is startling in view of, first, the brilliant and heady playing of Frisch under all conditions up to this season, and second, the confidence McGraw has had in the young Fordham athlete ever since the latter's debut.

The whole situation is mystifying to the fan world at large.

Dallas And Hunter Collapse In Riotous Melee At Beaumont

BEAUMONT, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The Exporters beatt he Steers in a game full of interesting situations. The victory came from a string of hits in the sixth a partial collapse of the league leaders in the seventh after Spike Hunter had pitched an excellent game through five rounds. Dick Morgan weakened in the seventh and gave way to Diviney who had the pleasure of seeing two of the first three men face him hit into double plays, one to retire the side in the seventh and a single in the eighth paved the way for another.

Manager Snipe Conley protested the game in the eighth inning when he discovered a Beaumont player on the bench in a road uniform. The protest came after Conley had been ejected during the seventh after disputing over a foul ball decision. In the home half after Beaumont had scored twice, the visitors lapsed into a bit of delay and Umpire Donohue awarded Hansen a base on balls while the Dallas team debated as to whether or not to send Slim Love in as a relief for Hunter.

The day was "Deviveros Day" and when the young infielder came to bat in the sixth, he was presented with a large bouquet, a handbag, a sack of cash, collected from the stand. He promptly fanned with a runner on second base.

HISTORY IN THE UNMAKING

There used to be a character in George Creel's town in Missouri, a transplanted Kentuckian, a self-appointed colonel and a veteran of Shelby's command, who was a born orator and an inspired romancer.

One sunny afternoon he was holding forth to an attentive and sympathetic audience upon the part he had played in the war between the states. It was rather to be inferred that he was one of the main reasons why the Confederacy endured, against odds, for four years. He progressed to where he was enriching history with an account of the first engagement in which he had participated.

"Gentlemen," he proclaimed, "envisage the scene. There we stand, a little group, armed for the most part with nondescript weapons, with flint lock muskets, with scythes, with axes, even with cudgels. We are underfed, half shod and ragged, yet inspired by the dauntless resolution and splendid valour which sustained the southern heart. Over the slope and straight against our line come pouring the northern hordes, those relentless invaders of our beloved southland, lusty and strong and equipped with every appliance for conducting warfare that modern science can provide.

"We are outnumbered three to one; we are weak from hunger while they are lusty with bacon and beef. But none among us quails. A righteous belief in our sacred cause inspires us, every one. Each one feels himself a giant. And what is the result? Suddenly we leap forward in the charge. We grapple with them, we fight like demons. And, gentlemen, such is the impetuosity of our attack, such the ferocity of our blows that soon the blue lines break and in mad disorder routed the enemy flees, unable to face that irresistable torrent of southern manhood."

From the audience spoke up a gray bearded listener.

"Say looky here Kurnel," he said. "I was in that there fight myself and whut really happened wus that them plegged Yanks give us a fust rate lickin' and run us ten miles acrost country."

With a magnificent gesture of surrender the Colonel rose to his feet.

"Gentlemen," he said, "another instance of a good story spoiled by a damn eyewitness!"

LIGHT GLOBES CUT.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—A 5 to 7 per cent reduction in the price of electric light bulbs has been announced by the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing company.

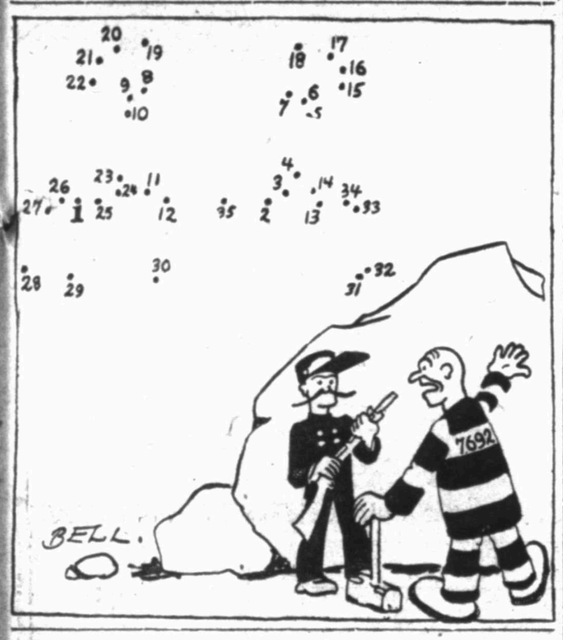

The cut, made possible by reduced production costs, will be effective September 1. Company officials said the reduction would save electric bulb users of the nation approximately $1,000,000 annually.

Mackey mounted the scaffold at 7:50 o'clock this morning. He was pronounced dead 12 minutes after the trap was sprung.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—An early advance in the cotton market today met a renewal of realizing and after selling at 17.99 early, December reacted to 17.78, closing at that figure. The general market closed barely steady, net unchanged to four points higher.

The opening was firm a an advance of nine to 18 points. Active positions sold about 20 to 24 points net higher in early trading in response to relatively firm late cables from Liverpool and prospects for renewed showers in the southwest. The latter evidently disappointed some of yesterday's sellers and the market for a time was extremely active and firm on covering or rebuying together with purchasing for trade account and commission houses. October sold up to 18.03 and January to 18.07, but as earlier in the week offerings increased as prices approached the 18-cent level.

Reports that the tropical storm had lost its intensity and was fading out of he eastern belt no doubt tended to offset the southwestern shower predictions and while there was no improvement in private crop advices, the weather news was evidently considered a little more favorable on the average. Aside from this, the failure of reiterated reports of crop deterioration to bring in more fresh buying at 18 cents or above, probably increased a disposition to take profits on long cotton for over the week-end, and the afternoon market was rather unsettled.

Buying orders came in on the setbacks and there were little flurries of covering, but the bulges offerings from one source or another and the lowest prices of the day were reached in late trading. October sold off to 17.80 and January to 17.80. The market closed at the lowest prices of the day.

Private cables attributed an early decline in Liverpool to hedging and liquidation with rallies later on American buying. Houses with European connections were among the early buyers here, which some of the local traders regarded as indicating that foreign spinners were becoming a little uneasy over the crop outlook. It was reported the estimates of the Egyptian crop had been reduced to 25 per cent less than last year.

Exports today 7,188, making 354,134 so far this season. Port receipts 26,227; U. S. port stocks 621,124 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The cotton market was only fairly active today and although telegraph communication was somewhat better, it was still sufficiently crippled as a result of the storm to interfere with prompt communications with interior customers. As Liverpool came in much better than due and cables reported that the Egyptian crop was estimated at 25 per cent smaller, the market gained 19 to 23 points in the early trading, the advance being helped by early reports of quite general rains in the belt. The advance attracted profit taking and selling by professionals on the reaction theory and as support was rather lacking prices gradually eased off 13 to 17 points from the highs, but rallied again near mid-session about 10 points on reports of cold rains in Texas. Prices eased off again in the afternoon and made new lows near the end which practically wiped out the early gains. The close was a little above the lowest on near months sowing net gains of five points to a net loss of one point.

At the start Liverpool was 13 to 18 penny points better than due and it was reported the American spot interests were liberal buyers in that market. First trades here showed gains of 13 to 18 points and prices continued to gain in the early trading until October traded up to 17.97, December to 17.90 and January to 17.83, or 19 to 23 points above the previous close. These prices proved to be the highs of the day.

The market soon eased off on profit taking and selling by ring traders and October traded down to 17.80 and December to 17.73, or 17 points down from the highs, but rallied 10 points on bullish weekly statistics. Prices eased off again during the afternoon to 17.75 for October, 17.71 for December and 17.66 for January, or 17 to 22 points down from the highs, practically wiping out the early gain. The close was a little up from the lows. Hester made the week's mill takings 199,000 against 138,000 bales.

Exports for the day totaled 4,188 bales.

BRADSTREET REPORT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Bradstreets' tomorrow will say:

Weather and crop development have had varying effects on business. Widespread and continuous rains have acted to return the seasonal trend toward enlarged fall buying, have injured harvested crops still in the fields and increased the fear of insect damage to cotton in the southwest but have very generally improved he corn crop east of the Missouri river. on balance the general trend has been toward improvement, the betterment in the corn crop in the middle west, the slightly more confident tone of the textiles, part of this based upon a stiffening of raw cotton due to reduced crop estimates and a further acceleration of the pace of industry tending to offset the failure of retail buying, although stimulated by clearance sales, market weeks and style shows, to expand as much as expected.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Constructive forces were again at work in today's stock market, which was influenced by a revival of strength and activity in the oil shares. Week-end profit taking was rather heavy in the general list but offerings were absorbed, closing was rather heavy in the general list but offerings wer well absorbed, closing quotatitons disclosing a long list of net gains ranging from one to 7¼ points. Business, however, was in reduced volume, tottal sales of 1,396,200 shares being the smallest in about a month.

The day's business news was largely bullish in character. The weekly mercantile reviews reported further improvement in most lines of industry although heavy rains over a widespread area have rectarded fall buying in some lines. Reviews of the oil industry called attention to the fact that a record volume of gasoline was being handled a firm prices, no important reduction in tank wagon prices having been made this year. Last year several of the large refining companies cut prices in August, with the prevailing quotation then several cents a gallon below the current price.

Rails made further response to the unusually favorable July earnings reports, the combined net income of the first 40 class one roads to report being nearly 30 per cent above that of July 1925. Atchison and Southern railway established new high records for all time at 151½ and 133⅝, respectively while Union Pacific and Great Northern preferred touched their highest levels in a year or longer. Atchison's net income last month almost doubled that of July last year $8,446,943 against $4,724,336.

Buying of the oil shares derived some stimulus from the publication of the semi-annual report of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, showing earnings of $5.56 a share, exclusive of any earnings of the LaGo Petroleum and Transport company in which it has a major interest. Resumption of active bidding for the General Asphalt issues sent the common up five points to 90⅝ and the preferred up to 7¼ to 135¼.

Baking issues developed another outburst of strength under the leadership of Continental Baking "A" which jumped six points to 93. Heavy accumulation of the tobaccos sent Consolidated cigar, Congress cigar, Reynolds "B" and Tobacco Products "A" to new high levels for the year. Amalgamated Leather responded to the publication of an unusually favorable semi-annual report by crossing 20 to the year's high. New 1926 peak prices also were attained by Brunswick Balke Collender, Howe Sound, Union Tank Car, White Sewing Machine and several others.

Call money held firm at 50 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges fluctuated within a narrow trading area, sterling yielded, however, to the pressure of grain and cotton bills, the demand rate ruling 3-16 of a cent lower around $4.84 11-16. French francs were firm above 2.85 cents on buying influenced by the improvement shown recently in the weekly statements of the Bank of France. German marks were firm above the recently "pegged" price.

THEFT CHARGE FILED

Charges of theft of property over the value of $50 were filed in the district court Friday, naming L. C. Howell, brought to Wichita Falls Thursday night by City Officer E. H. Carmichael from Corsicana. Howell is alleged to have stolen a large number of ice coupon books from the Wichita Ice company where he was a former employe.

PLAINS SHOWS GOOD COTTON

Reports of Deterioration Not Effecting Northwest Texas

FORT WORTH, Aug. 27.—(AP) While reports of deterioration of the cotton crop in east and south Texas for the latter half of August were received by the freight traffic department of the Rock Island railway here, reports of bright prospects have come in from the Panhandle and northwest Texas generally, the semi-monthly report of the railroad showed Friday. A large cotton crop will be produced there with good weather until the end of the growing season, it was stated.

Summing up reports from west Texas for the harvest season of 1926 to date, the figures of the railroad show that in adition to making one of the largest wheat crops on record, and at a good price, that section of the state will be fortified by a large feed crop to go through the winter and a promising yield of cotton, in addition to fine cattle and range conditons.

Reports from field agents in the Panhandle and upper South Plains country indicate that the cotton crop prospects are most encouraging, with little or no insect damage and seasonable weather for the growing plant. Wheat has been harvested over the entire area, and from 60 to 65 per cent of the crop has been moved, with 20 to 25 per cent being held by the farmers for speculative purposes.

Whole Town Out To Greet Trudy As She Returns

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle was given a home coming ovation today such as New York never before has given a woman.

Packed throngs that witnessed her triumphant procession up the canyon of lower Broadway were estimated as greater than those that welcomed returning heroes after the World war. It was the day of days for the youthful swimmer who was the first of her sex to conquer the English channel and in a time better than any man had ever achieved.

A triumphant parade, brass bands, fluttering flags, showers of confetti and ticket tape and thunderous shouts of applause marked her progress up the famous thoroughfare.

The crowd that gathered outside the city hall, where Mayor Walker presenting her with a scroll commemorating her deed, reached such proportions, that 100 extra policemen were called to prevent serious trouble. Six women and children were injured when crushed in the mass of humanity.

HOW OLD ARE YOU?

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—A suggestion for birthday parties where a candle for each year would crowd the table: At a dinner to August Heckscher, philanthropist, there was one candle marked with degrees like a thermometer to indicate he had lived 78 years.

12 County Boxes To Be Without Election Supervisors Today

OTHERS NAMED BY CHAIRMAN

Smith And Candidates For Precinct Offices Make A Petition

Despite the petition of Fred K. Smith, candidate for sheriff, and four precinct candidates for the appointment of election supervisors for today's primary election, twelve of the county's 39 voting boxes will be without those officials, it developed Friday.

Names of but 54 citizens of the county, agreeable to the signers of the application to act as supervisors, were handed H. J. Bruce, county democratic chairman. The law requires that two supervisors be appointed to each box, he stated Friday, and the 54 provided for only 27 of the 39 boxes. Of the boxes to lack supervision, eight are located in Wichita Falls, one at Electra, and the remaining three at Clara, Valley View and Allendale.

Had Sufficient Signers

Despite the ruling in other counties of Texas that precinct candidates' signature to the petition for supervisors was without weight save in the one precinct in which he was candidate, Bruce held that in Wichita county the application signed by five candidates, of which four were precinct candidates, entitled the petitioners to the supervisors. The five signatures, he pointed out, represented more than one-fifth of the total number of candidates on the Wichita county ballot.

Typewritten forms containing a statement of the duties of the supervisors were carried by Mr. Bruce Friday to each of the voting boxes. At the bottom of the sheet is a blank oath to be filled in by the supervisors.

Boxes 13, 17, 18, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24 in Wichita Falls will have no supervisors. A complete list of the appointments follow:

Box 1, Harry Newton and Mrs. W. B. Wood; Box 2, A. B. Shannon and H. K. Anderson; Box 3, A. J. Davis and Mrs. Phleat Martin; Box 4, Morris Paige and J. H. Nix; Box 5, James Denison and Nannie Moore; Box 6, Abe Barrett and Everett Hughes; Box 7, Mrs. J. W. McCormick and Mrs. Ray Ballard; Box 8, Tom Olden and Charles Wheat; Box 9, Walter Reed and Lee Sprinkle; Box 10, Geo. Davis and Mrs. Will Milliken; Box 11, W. B. McNeely and L. J. Bullett; Box 12, W. S. Scott and Bill McClure; Box 14, Harry Gray and Mrs. A. R. Jameson; Box 15, Joe B. Carrigan and Eugene Mathis; Box 16, P. B. Roberts and Hugh Larkum; Box 19, Gardner Harris and Bob Taylor; Box 26, (Cashion) A. B. Hilyard and John Wilson; Box 27, J. W. Baren and O. B. Wofford; Box 28, B. F. Blair and J. R. Foster; Box 29, Ed Steel and Will Beckham; Box 30, (Thrift) Ira Colley and Bill Gatewood; Box 32, Iowa Park, Dalton Hill and Eli Copeland; Box 33, A. B. McGregory and Scott Ralston; Box 35, Jess Crawford and Dave Brown; Box 36, Abe Thomas and W. O. Mahaney; Box 37, Jack Bradley and E. R. Moore; Box 38, H. Jones and G. R. Wimberly.

ONE MORE VOTE

One additional absentee vote was received through the mail Friday by Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, bringing the total cast in the run-off primary to 237. There are a number of ballots still out, Miss Hall stated Friday, but unless they arrive today, cannot of course be counted.

French Net Stars Ignore "Lenglenism" In Preparation for Davis Cup Matche

Bralley Predicts His Election Today In Race For Sheriff of County

A prediction of victory by a majority of at least 1500 was made by W. G. Bralley, candidate for sheriff, in a statement issued Friday evening.

A total vote of 19,508 was cast in the sheriff's race in the first primary, he pointed out, of which 4,703 was cast for him. This was an amount only 550 less than a majority. His opponent, Fred K. Smith, received 308 less than Mr. Bralley, or 3375, approximately 1889 votes short of a majority.

"I had many personal friends Mr. McFall's followers, "Mr. Bralley declared Friday in commenting on the announcement of McFall in favor of Smith's candidcy, "and I believe that a majority of those that voted for him voted against the incumbent on the clear issues of good government that had arisen in the race.

In commenting on the request of Sheriff Fred Smith and others for supervisors at the various voting boxes, Mr. Bralley stated he had refused to ask for a share in the appointment of the officials. Mr. Bralley notified H. J. Bruce, county chairman, early Friday of his attitude in the matter.

"I have run a clean race," Bralley declared, "and the issues are apparent. I believe that I will be sent into office with not less than a 1500 majority."

Adair Returns From Denton Trip

H. J. Adair, publicity director for the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, attended a good roads meeting at Denton Thursday afternoon in behalf of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce.

The meeting was held for the purpose of organizing a Dallas-Northwest highway, which road is to run from Denton northwest and connect with highway No. 5 between Nocona and Henriettta. An attempt will be made to have this road designated as a state highway and to get it in shape for travel at the earliest possible time.

About 100 people attended the meeting, delegations being there from Dallas, Denton, Lewisville, Slidell, Montague. Nocona and Wichita Falls. An organization was perfected with Lewis T. Carpenter of Dallas selected as chairman, and W. H. Carson of Nocona, as secretary. An executive committee of five members composed of County Judge T. G. Jackson of Denton, M. H. Milligan of Lewisville, Charles Bennett of Montague, E. H. Brown of Wise county, and Judge H. C. Calloway of Montague county, was appointed to investigate the right-of-way, prepare surveys and lay plans for opening the road through the proposed route.

Mr. Whitehead is getting the copy ready for the September number of the official magazine of the West Texas chambr of commece, "West Texas Today."

One of the most pleasing features of his visit was his request for a three page artitcle about the Texas-Oklahoma fair, which he intends to have in the September number of the magazine. HUNT DEATH CAR DRIVER

Small Boy Killed When Run Down On Bridge Street Friday

A search was under way Friday night for a man whose automobile early in the morning ran down and fatally injured Billy Scott, small son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Scott, 405 Bridge street. The boy died in a Hines ambulance on the way to the hospital. His head was crushed and he had sustained serious internal injuries.

The accident happened in front of the lad's home. The car, which members of the family declared was going at a rapid rate of speed, ran for a considerable distance before it could be stopped.

The driver, after alighting, picked up the unconscious form of the child, handed it to Mr. Scott who ran up, and asked "is this yours?"

Mr. Scott took the baby in his arms and said something about getting a doctor. The man, the father asserted declared he would run and get one, jumped in his machine and drove off. Nothing further was heard or seen of him.

The car, which was thought to be a Dodge sedan, carried no license number on the rear, it was asserted. Mr. Scott declared, however, that he would recognize the man if he ever saw him again.

The body of the little boy is being held at the undertakers pending the arrival of some out of town relatives. Funeral services will probably be held today.

KAN. PAPER ASKS STORIES

Wichita Eagle Will Print Data On Irrigated Valley Here

The Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce received a request Thursday which they were only to glad to comply with. The Wichita Daily Eagle of Wichita, Kan., has requested the chamber of commerce publicity director, H. J. Adair, to give them a full description of the famous Wichita irrigated valley which treatise they intend to publish in their columns.

The request stated that people all over the central west were looking to the Wichita irrigated valley as a model and ideal irrigation project and one which has been so thoroughly designed and carried out that it will serve as an example for other sections of the country planning a project of like nature. In fact there is some agitation along this line at Wichita, Kan., at the present time.

Mr. Adair has responded with an offer to write a series of articles which will take up the Wichita valley irrigtion project from the beginning of its history and describe every move down to the present time. Just now there are a number of interesting facts to be told about the crops being produced this year, and Mr. Adair feels that he has ample subject matter to give several good articles.

This thought to be one of the best propositions yet encountered for getting favorable publicity for the irrigated valley as the Eagle has a large circulation in the central west, and these stories will be most valuable in interesting prospective settlers in this section of the state.
