Texas Offers Garner For President In Cheering Statewide Mass Meeting

CANDIDACY OF TEXAN UNITES STATE PARTY

Organization Perfected To Further Campaign For House Speaker

Messages From Senators And Representatives Read to Crowd

By GORDON K. SHEARER

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 22. (UP)—Five thousand applauding, yelling Texans, including many who left the Democratic ranks in 1928, here today started officially the movement to make Speaker John Nance Garner the next president of the United States.

Congressman Sam Rayburn, of Bonham, Texas, was designated as leader of the movement, at a rally which followed a parade led by wildly yelling cowboys from the chapparal-covered section Garner represents in congress. Banners of all the cattle states were carried in the parade. A cowboy atmosphere was kept through the rally.

District Leaders Named

After a preliminary skirmish among aspiring Texas leaders, all slates for the movement's officials were laid aside and each senatorial district named its own Garner committeeman. These men will work with Rayburn.

"Garner for us; U. S. for Garner" was adopted as the slogan on suggestion of Mrs. H. C. Gilmore, San Antonio, and Mrs. A. R. Ellis, of Concan, Edwards county.

Dr. Stockton Axson, of Houston, brother-in-law of the late President Woodrow Wilson, stirred the crowd in the San Antonio auditorium to enthusiasm. Linking of the names of Wilson and Garner as "men who could lead" brought a demonstration.

Garner Called Leader

"We do not want a business man. We need a politician in the true sense of that word," said Dr. Axson. "Garner has studied in the school of political experience. Hoover is a sort of managerial agent. He won't lead. The country needs a leader and Garner can lead.

"Garner can get on with people," said Axson. "Probably the only thing William G. McAdoo and William R. Hearst could agree upon is that Garner should be the presidential nominee."

Mrs. Garner, the speaker's constant companion and secretary, had her share of the applause when H. P. Hornsby of Uvalde said she will be a co-worker with her husband in the White House after November. Governor Ross Sterling declared the impression is fast disappearing that a man from Texas cannot be president.

Mrs. Cecil Smith of Sherman and Mrs. Alex Adams of San Antonio, both prominent club women, endorsed the Garner movement, as did Mayor C. M. Chambers of San Antonio, chairman of the rally.

Modern Moses

Chambers, born like Garner in Red River county, Texas, pictured the Uvalde congressman as the "modern Moses to lead the way out of the wilderness of depression." He called Garner a "leader who can restore confidence" and "the man best qualified to hold the office of president."

Applause met the announcement by Stuart R. Smith, of Beaumont, that the Franklin D. Roosevelt organization in Texas will defer to the "now abundantly apparent" desire to instruct the Texas delegation for Garner.

Messages from U. S. Senators Morris Sheppard, Tom Connally and the various Texas congressmen were read. No attempt to outline a platform was made. Resolutions declared no citizen better qualified by training and endowments for the presidency.

In conclusion, the resolutions said:

"Without criticism or disparagement of other distinguished Democrats whose candidacies are actively espoused, we believe that the nomination of Garner will assure the return of the party of the people to complete control of the government next November."

Adams Urges Unity

Jed C. Adams of Dallas, Democrat national committeeman, was active throughout the day urging a united democracy, such as he declared can rally back of Garner. He referred, in his rally speech, to the disastrous Democratic division in Texas in 1928.

"There are some of those who left the party in 1928 who are not here today," Adams said. "There are some I am glad to have absent. I had rather fight 10 without than one within the walls. If we fight as we should from now until November the man who wields the gavel in the house of representatives will sit in the White House.

"This movement is not a compliment to a native son. John Garner has challenged the notice and the respect of the nation. He has shown a quality of leadership Washington has not witnessed in a generation. Let us go to work for the "Cavalier of the Chapparal." I

'Chapparal Jack' Blushes While Whole House Cheers Him Wildly

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (UP)—Speaker John Garner's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination was spurred today in the house of representatives over which he presides.

Garner stood smiling after President Hoover's Washington speech to the joint session of congress, while an enthusiastic but impromptu demonstration was given for him.

An unidentified person in the back of the house yelled at a quiet moment: "Hurrah for Garner," and the demonstration followed.

The Democrats stood and cheered noisily. Republicans joined in to make it a non-partisan tribute to the speaker. Garner stood, smiling and blushing, as the cheering went on.

Simultaneously in Georgia, Garner's name was filed by proxy through an unofficial supporter, Superior Judge G. Hem Howard of Atlanta. This will put Garner against Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the decision in the March 23 primary, for the convention support of the state's Democratic delegation.

Howard explained he favored Garner and that he personally had no presidential ambitions. The action surprised observers here because Roosevelt has been deemed to have a firm grip on Georgia, which is a "home state" of the New York governor. Roosevelt spends his vacations at Warm Springs, Ga., and has spent months there receiving medical treatment.

"I haven't a word to say," was Garner's only comment. "I didn't know about it until I was informed by the press."

Garner has taken a similar position in regard to the presidential movement for him in Texas, which was promoted today by a San Antonio meeting called to organize a state-wide campaign. "I am busy here," has been his only spoken re-

MURRAY GIRDS FOR FIGHT IN GEORGIA RACE

Alfalfa Bill to File Suit Against Leaving Name Off Ballot

VINITA, Okla., Feb. 22. (AP)—Learning that his name could not be written legally on the Georgia presidential preferential primary ballots, Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma said here tonight he would have his "lawyer friends" file suit in Georgia to force the placing of his name on the ballots.

Murray, en route to Indiana for a series of speeches in behalf of his candidacy for the presidency, was told by an Associated Press correspondent that Georgia election officials had ruled if voters wrote his name on ballots that did not contain his printed name, it would constitute mutilation and invalidate such ballots.

Telephones Aide

"If every other means fail I will go down to Georgia and hold my own primary," Murray declared.

He telegraphed George Henshaw, of Oklahoma City, to "have our lawyer friends in Georgia file suit to compel the acceptance of my name on the primary ballots. Send them an affidavit showing the time of sending that air mail letter."

The air mail letter was sent by Murray Saturday to the Georgia Democratic central committee secretary in Savannah. At the same time he telegraphed the $1,000 filing fee.

Money Arrives

Georgia Democratic officials declared the money arrived on schedule but the letter with Murray's personal application did not get there at the noon deadline hour today.

"I legally filed," Murray asserted, "for I telegraphed the money Saturday night and that was the main thing."

He said it was a "scheme of the big interests to keep me out of the race" and declared they, the "big interests," were "doing all they can to whip me."

PROXY RUNS FOR JOHN N. GARNER

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 22. (AP)—Georgia Democrats in a primary March 23 will express their presidential preference between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and Superior Court Judge G. H. Howard at Atlanta, who has announced he will see the state's votes at the national convention in Chicago for Speaker John N. Garner.

Gov. W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, failed to qualify because his per-

Charges Filed in Waco Baking Company Robbery

WACO, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—Robbery charges were filed here today against Jack L. Tate and Polk H. Gatting for the hold up of the Jones Baking company last Friday night. The bakery was robbed of $400.

Both men were captured by Fort Worth police last Saturday. Tate was transferred to the Waco county jail. Gatting, who was wounded critically in resisting arrest, was under treatment in the Fort Worth hospital.

Fireworks

Political fireworks, particularly Democratic, popped furiously on Washington's birthday. They included:

Detroit—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland told a mass meeting of Democrats "the Democratic hosts are on the march. Their goal is victory and they can not, they will not, be denied."

Oklahoma City—Senator Huey Long of Louisiana told young Democrats "Garner of Texas is a swell choice for president." Unless the wealth of the people is distributed among all the people, a country can not endure, he said, adding: "Since the administration of President Harding the hand that has ruled the country is that of Andrew W. Mellon."

Topeka—Nellie Taloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming and now vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee, declared the trade barriers of the world must be lowered and upon the United States rests the responsibility since "the pernicious policy of a reactionary congress and president started the race in tariffs."

Omaha—Petitions providing for placing the name of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt on the Nebraska primary ballot were mailed to all parts of the state.

OIL MEN WANT COURT ORDER

East Texas Producers Seek To Open Up Wells

HOUSTON, Feb. 22. (UP)—Attorneys representing all parties in the East Texas oil field martial law case gathered here tonight and it was reported that E. Constantin and J. D. Wrather, the victorious plaintiffs, would ask formally tomorrow for an injunction allowing them to produce oil without interference as long as they do not exceed their neighbors' production.

Joseph W. Bailey, Dallas attorney, who represented Constantine and Wrather in their suit, was expected to ask the injunction, which was authorized last Friday in a three-judge federal court decree which held martial law to control oil production was unjustified.

The plaintiffs have until March 5 to draft their formal request for injunction. E. F. Smith, attorney for Gov. Ross Sterling, is here and will ask a stay of injunction pending appeal of the case to the United States supreme court.

All attorneys in the case, including Fred Upchurch, assistant attorney general for oil matters, were asked today to come here for a conference tomorrow with Circuit Judge J. C. Hutcheson Jr., who wrote the decision against martial law. It was believed he intends to clear up legal points involved.

Searchers Abandon Hunt For Missing Aviators

ATLIN, B. C., Feb. 22. (US)—With the thermometer registering 50 degrees below zero, and a blizzard raging, search was abandoned today for William Graham, Alaskan pilot, and Mrs. Edna Christofferson, aviatrix, who are believed to have crashed in this frozen wilderness while seeking a lost coast steamer carrying a $1,000,000 cargo of furs.

NATION PAUSES IN SALUTE TO FIRST LEADER

Full Day of Activity Marks Wichita's Part In Bicentennial

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (US)—The American nation today paused to salute the spirit of the immortal Washington, as President Hoover opened the nation-wide bicentennial celebration here.

Speaking before a joint session of the senate and house of representatives, with the cabinet, diplomatic corps, and supreme court in attendance, the chief executive formally inaugurated the nine-months celebration in honor of the 200th anniversary of the birth of the nation's founder.

The capital city, around which the bicentennial will center, was seething with visitors. Incoming highways were taxed to capacity, hotels were overflowing, the city itself was in gala attire.

Notables Present

At the house of representatives, where the president delivered his opening address, the galleries were filled with notable guests. The rank and file of the visitors, 100,000 in number, had to content themselves with witnessing the ceremonies on the east steps of the capital.

Here, following his address in the house, the chief executive gave the signal for a mammoth song celebration.

A chorus of 10,000 Washington school children and 2,000 adults under the direction of Walter Damrosch and accompanied by the massed bands of the army, navy and marine corps led by John Philip Sousa, took the lead in singing "America."

Beck Speaks

Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania delivered an oration in eulogy of the first president and his preparedness policy.

An unusually warm winter day, with the sun shining brightly, favored the inauguration of the nation-wide celebration. Men stood with bared heads as President Hoover gave the signal for singing of "America," which was carried by radio across the nation to countless thousands of other ceremonies inaugurating a rededication to the ideals of Washington.

That was the keynote of the address by President Hoover to the joint session of congress.

Travel New Highway

Immediately after luncheon, the presidential party proceeded to Alexandria, Va., over the newly opened $8,000,000 Mt. Vernon Memorial boulevard, where he and Gov. John Garland Pollard, of Virginia, reviewed a parade and pageant.

New Word Found To Try on Dictionary

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. (AP)—If you love your work, you are, in the words of national puzzlers' league, an "ergophile."

It isn't in the dictionary, but puzzlers say a lot of words that ought to be aren't there. Especially are words that have a nice, convenient number of letters in them, lacking.

Ergophile's nine letters fit well in word diamonds.

It's sponsor, Everett M. Smith, says it is derived from the Greek for work and love. By adding a few more letters to make ergophilistine," he added, you have a perfectly good word for a person who likes a stupid job.

The league members, in convention here since Saturday, also want to put "humidauriculate," in the dictionary. One has only to dissect it to perceive its meaning—"wet behind the ears."

State Prison Reduces Expenses 10 Per Cent

HOUSTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—The annual report of the state prison board, released today, said the state spent approximately 10 per cent less per convict in operating the prison system in 1931 than in 1930, while adding more than a quarter of a million dollars in improvements.

The report, signed by Chairman W. A. Paddock of Houston, commended Lee Simmons, general manager of the system and his subordinates for success not only in decreasing costs but in improving the morale and conditions in the system.

FLOOD WATERS RECEDE AFTER CLOSING ROADS

Henrietta, Gainesville And Waurika Routes Blocked By Heavy Rains

LAKES OVERFLOW

Salvation Army Rescues Six Marooned in Cabin On Iowa Park Road

Flood waters that covered parts of this section during the day were receding Monday night as heavily clouded skies ceased to drop rain on an already water-soaked territory.

Reports received from points in northern Oklahoma indicated that skies there had cleared and that temperatures had risen.

However, sprinkling rain started falling again here shortly before midnight Monday. Although at an early hour Tuesday morning streets were wet and slippery, precipitation had not developed to more than a heavy sprinkle.

It was the opinion Monday of highway officials and keepers of lakes in this area that unless more rain falls, further danger of flooding is unlikely. Some roads that were impassable Monday are expected to be open Tuesday if not drenched again soon with water.

Tenth Day of Rain

Cessation of precipitation here about 6 o'clock Monday morning, after a steady downpour that started shortly after midnight was received gratefully, as Monday marked the 10th consecutive day in which rain had fallen.

Rain falling here since 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon amounted to 2.12 inches, bringing the total for the month to 4.12 inches. High temperature for the day was 49. Minimum temperature was 42 degrees.

Streams were in banks until a miniature deluge started at midnight Sunday, after several hours of persistent slow rainfall.

However, the downpour shed water into small streams, which in turn filled two of the three major lakes of this section to overflow. Highways were inundated. Lowlands were covered as small streams overflowed their banks.

Lake Wichita continued to rise Monday. Eight inches of water was flowing over the spillway late in the afternoon, having gained three inches since 9 a. m. Monday night the lake was rising slowly. G. M. Norris, maintenance engineer, said, however, that he expected the flow of water to gain slightly in the night, after which it would start receding, unless further rain fell.

Lake Kemp rose .80 of a foot Monday, but the water level remained 10 feet below the spillway. Roads were hardly passable in the section.

Dirt Roads Impassable

Water at Diversion lake late Monday was 1.20 of a foot over the spillway level, having risen during the day from .80 of a foot. However, it was believed that water going over the spillway would not increase and that the stream would decrease by .50 of a foot by Tuesday. Roads to and around the lake were impassable.

Wichita river was rising following rains, but was believed to have reached its peak shortly after noon Monday. It did not go out of banks,

How Japs Deal With Chinese Snipers

Bayonet poised for the death stroke while his terrified Chinese prisoner crouched in prayer before him, a Japanese military executioner is shown in the exclusive telephoto picture above, taken just behind the front lines during fighting for control of Shanghai. During the fierce battle around Shanghai's North station at the edge of the international settlement, military courts were dispensed with and no mercy shown accused snipers. Within a few seconds after this picture was taken the Chinese prisoner was dead.

American Editor Describes Killing Of Men, Women and Children 'Spies'

Execution of Peasants in Race Club Viewed by Writer Unknown to Japanese Military Officials

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22. (AP)—Charges that Japanese soldiers were killing defenseless Chinese peasants behind the lines at Kiangwan were printed today in the American-owned Shanghai Evening Post-Mercury.

The accusations were in an article under the signature of T. O. Thackrey, managing editor of the paper, who said that he went to the Kiangwan International Race club without being seen by the Japanese and there looked on while Japanese officers killed Chinese men, women and children.

"I stood there in the grandstand with one of my reporters," Thackrey wrote, "and watched what happened to these Chinese prisoners in the hands of the Japanese.

"A Japanese officer turned one of a group of Chinese in peasant garb to face the sun. His shining sabre flashed up to the hilt in its human sheath. A second figure took its place and once again the sabre found its pulsing scabbard.

"Perhaps, as the official Japanese military communiques say, these corpses once had been snipers or even perhaps spies. I make no challenge, I just detail what I have seen.

"There were women and children among the corpses. Women shot through their padded coats, run through with sabres. Children whose bodies were riddled with bullets. Men garbed as peasants were heaped grotesquely about, their wounds soaking the ground."

Fight Before Senate Today for Direct Relief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. (US)—Another fight starts in the senate tomorrow to extend direct federal relief to the millions of unemployed.

Convicted that suffering among the jobless can be relieved only through federal intervention, Senator Wagner, Democrat, of New York, will go before the manufacturers committee to urge approval of his $750,000,000 relief bill.

SOVIET MOVES FOR DEFENSE

Commisar of War Orders Forces Prepared

MOSCOW, Feb. 22. (UP)—A militant call for the Soviet armed forces to be prepared to defend the Soviet territory in the Far East was issued tonight by Commissar of War Klementi Voroshilov.

"The white guards (czarist exiles from Russia) supported by certain groups of imperialists are openly planning to seize Soviet territory in the Far East," the war commissar's manifesto declared.

Summoning the Soviet army to be prepared to the utmost degree, Voroshilov described the bloodshed in China as contrasting to the speeches of "bourgeois orators" at the world disarmament conference at Geneva. The manifesto was issued on the eve of the 14th anniversary of the founding of the red army.

"East and west they are laying plans for intervention and preparing public opinion for an attack on the Soviets," the war commissar declared. "They are organizing bands of white guards for the attack."

The white guards, former supporters of the czarist regime and bitterest foes of the Soviet, recently have given strong support to Japanese military activity in Manchuria. The Soviet officials have explained red army movements on the Manchurian border by saying they were regrouping certain garrisons because of the danger of a white guard attack.

Wealthy Sportsman Was Not Kidnaped, Cops Told

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 22. (AP)—Harry H. Blagden, state police announced today, has admitted that he "disappeared" voluntarily from a cottage at the exclusive Lake Placid club and was not kidnaped.

The admission, Capt. Charles J. Broadfield, in charge of state police for this northern New York resort region, said, was contained in a letter he received today from Blagden. Written at the summer home of a friend at Arden, N. Y., 40 miles from New York City, the letter said Blagden had gone away to escape worries that had grown so heavy "there just seemed to be no way out."

INVADERS ARE REPULSED AT EVERY TURN

Chinese Troops Make Bold Offensive Movements To Defend Shanghai

NEW DRIVE OPENED

Japs Deny Reinforcements Are On Way "But Wish They Were"

By MORRIS J. HARRIS

(Copy't., 1932, by The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23, (Tuesday). —Japanese soldiers lunged against Chinese bayonets and bullets dealing death over the entire Kiangwan-Chapei front today in a far-flung attempt to complete a surrounding movement to starve out the handful of defenders still stationed in the blasted ruins of Kiangwan village.

The Chinese air force suffered a heavy loss when eight Japanese airplanes destroyed the airdrome of Hungjao, five miles west of Shanghai, with a rain of 25 bombs. All hangars and planes within were consumed by fire that broke out with the bombs' explosion.

Two Vicious Onslaughts

Rebuffed in every onslaught they have made on the center of the Chinese line at Kiangwan, the Japanese flung their full strength at the Chinese positions on both sides of the village. They launched vicious attacks—one to the northwest and the other to the south—just as dawn broke.

Soon the battle had developed into a major engagement over the entire line stretching north of Shanghai.

The Japanese admitted they were suffering severe casualties, after having lost at least 20 killed and 60 wounded during the night's fighting. Japanese admitted 300 casualties in Monday's fighting.

From the Japanese lines a barrage of artillery cut the way for the infantry advance, while airplanes showered explosives on the entrenched Chinese.

The Japanese were clearly on the offensive, seeking to clear the Chinese away from the positions in front, but made slow headway against the smashing Chinese fire. They pushed forward foot by foot, dodging from grave mound to grave mound in the face of the constant spurt of Chinese bullets.

Much of the fighting was hand to hand. The Japanese attempting to rush the Chinese trenches were cut down by the defenders' bayonets.

A look over the area northwest of Kiangwan revealed many Japanese dead which had not yet been picked up.

The scene along the northern sector, behind the Japanese lines, was one of utter desolation. Every building had been burned to the ground.

The terrain was blasted unmercifully by airplane bombs and artillery shells.

While the heaviest fighting went on to the northwest of Kiangwan, the entire line continued active, troops south of Kiangwan kept up a steady fire. The Japanese artillery sought to blast a way through the Chinese positions, which still held.

They used tanks, armored cars, infantry, airplanes and field artillery. The base for this operation was the Kiangwan racetrack and golf course, where weather-beaten signs, put there to keep hunters away warned in English and Chinese:

"No shooting allowed."

The Japanese command explained that the purpose of the surrounding movement was to avoid excessive casualties, among their own troops as well as among the Chinese manning machine guns behind Kiangwan's walls. But the thoroughness of the Japanese artillery preparation and the intense machine gun fire laid down by Chinese when the assault line appeared, indicated that casualties would be enormous.

Japs Ambushed

The first objective of the assault apparently was the village of Mo Hang Chen, two miles northeast of Kiangwan, where, according to the Chinese version of Monday's action a Japanese attacking unit was led into ambush and cut down by machine gunners and riflemen.

While the major action was going on in the vicinity of Kiangwan, the

Rogers and Vallee Meet in Amarillo

'Don't Bet Against Garner,' Says Will

AMARILLO, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—Will Rogers and Rudy Vallee, who live neighbors in Beverley Hills, met for the first time at the airport here today.

"I'm shore glad to meet you, and I want you to come over to see me," said the cowboy humorist. "And I've been wanting to meet you," greeted the crooning troubadour.

"I wondered what all these people were doing out here," Rogers said as he awaited the arrival of Vallee's plane. "It's because Rudy's coming in. I've been through here many times, and the only person I ever saw before was the man who fills up the gas tank."

Several hundred were at the field when Vallee arrived.

Rogers came in from Oklahoma City. Both were going home, Vallee to join his wife for a two weeks' vacation—the first in four years. They left here on the same plane,

When asked by someone in the crowd who the next president would be, Rogers said:

"I don't know, but I wouldn't bet against John Garner."

City Council Tells Petitioners Why 18 Firemen Must Go in Budget Cut

Retirement of 18 of the city's present force of 59 firemen on March 1 is a permanent retrenchment forced upon the city by existing economic conditions according to discussion with which members of the city council Monday night replied to a petition presented by J. C. Mataska asking that the present personnel of the fire department be retained intact.

Reporting that two petitions had received the signatures of almost 1,100 local self-declared taxpayers, Mr. Mataska urged the council to cut salaries of all 59 firemen so that all might be retained, rather than dropping 18 from the roll in order to retain the other 41 at present salaries. The petition deplored the placing of 18 men on the unemployed list, and suggested that the reduction in numbers might endanger property and lives in case of a serious conflagration, or might result in a lowering of the city's good-fire-record credit on insurance rates.

Members of the council set out in the ensuing discussion that a thorough investigation of department organization and of possible effect on insurance rates had been made before the proposed cut in the personnel was adopted. It was shown that the crew organization to be made effective here on March 1 will keep 32 men on duty at any given hour, as against a total of 29 men subject to immediate call by alarm under the present two-platoon system. It was further shown ruins of Chapei were turned over by another heavy bombardment during which numerous fires started.

The Chinese got a head start in today's action by laying down on Hongkew and the Japanese consulate in Shanghai the heaviest bombardment they have put on since the battle started four days ago.

Rooftops in the international settlement were crowded with fascinated foreigners and natives all during the night as the Chinese, displaying an artillery strength nobody suspected they had, rained shells into the strong Japanese positions in Hongkew and bombarded the Japanese consulate on the Shanghai Bund.

Chinese Take Offensive

During Monday's fighting the Chinese took the offensive first sending over an assault line against the enemy's Hongkew strongholds and later by attempting to storm the Japanese positions at Woosung, which had been weakened to provide manpower for the still unsuccessful Japanese push against Kiangwan.

Japanese headquarters declared that neither at Hongkew nor at Woosung were the Chinese able to gain an inch. But an official Chinese comminque boasted that a rapid advance was made all aicng the line of battle, and that the hard-pressed Japanese retreated steadily despite the fact that they brought up reserves to stop the onslaught.

It was—said the Chinese communique—a red letter Monday, and now that the offensive was under way it would be pressed unremittingly until the Japanese were pushed back into the Shanghai international settlement.

An official Japanese spokesman admitted the Chinese still were in control of Kiangwan and said a strong body of troops was entrenched there.

Japs and Chinese "Explain"

This spokesman declared the Japanese attackers got ahead of their schedule in their assault on Kiangwan, a position the high command did not intend to attack too strongly in order that casualties on both sides might be kept down.

The Chinese version of the action around Kiangwan was considerable different. It gave the Chinese command credit for having executed a smart movement. The Chinese contended that when the Japanese turned their flank they quietly withdrew, allowing the attackers to walk into a pocket in the village of Mo Hang Chen, two miles northwest of Kiangwan, where machine gunners and riflemen swept them with bullets.

Estimates of casualties, which have been very low since the action started, began to get a little closer to what seemed to be the truth. The Japanese admitted 300 in Monday's fighting. Chinese hospitals and foreign soldiers guarding the boundaries of the French concession reported that 344 wounded Chinese had passed through the gates. This did not include scores of wounded Chinese civilians.

American officials complained to the Chinese authorities that Chinese troops had fired across Soochow creek on members of the 31st U. S. infantry who were working on their barbed wire defenses. No casualties were suffered by the 31st.

At Chinese headquarters it was said that their soldiers had mistaken the Americans, who were wearing blue dress uniforms, for Japanese bluejackets.

The Japanese high command added propaganda to its munitions of war during the fighting Monday evening. Aviators "bombed" Chapei with thousands of pamphlets which were supposed to have been issued by the headquarters of the Qoumintang, the Chinese National party.

The pamphlets said that the 19th route army, in opposing the Japanese at Shanghai, was opposing the wishes of the National government; that they were traitorous to their country, and that they had precipitated the Shanghai crisis by attacking the Japanese without warning.

Dr. T. K. Jen, chief of the Chinese Red Cross hospital, issued a statement that several of his Red Cross trucks transporting wounded from the battlefield had been deliberately attacked by Japanese airplanes. He estimated that more than 200 wounded soldiers remained on the battlefield because of the attack on the ambulances.

Olney Police Chief Recovers Loot Here

Intensive work on the part of Police Chief Anderson of Olney Monday afternoon and evening resulted in the arrest of two Wichita Falls youths as suspects in a burglary of the P. J. Keeter grocery at Olney Sunday night. Mr. Anderson fired several shots in an effort to stop a third youth as he sped from officers in an automobile about 8 o'clock Monday evening.

Canned goods, tobacco, coffee, meats and other grocery supplies were recovered by Mr. Anderson and members of the city police department in a field south of Wichita Falls Monday afternoon. Mr. Anderson and Deputy Ben Howle of the sheriff's department arrested the two youths as they returned from the loot Monday evening. Efforts to stop a third youth failed but officers were notified to be on the lookout for his car.

Washington Paid Nation's Tribute

Alexandria to hold a reception at the historic old Gadsby's tavern, distinguished in the days of Washington, and recently restored for this occasion. The president and his aides, however, continued on to Mt. Vernon, where Mr. Hoover laid a wreath on the Washington tomb in the name of the American people.

This morning, at Wakefield, Va., ceremonies were held at 10 a. m., the hour at which Washington was born 200 years ago.

Wreaths Placed

Throughout the afternoon, various patriotic organizations held commemorative exercises at the Washington monument, Washington circle, and other places of interest.

Immense wreaths were laid at the base of the monument by the D. A. R., the Sons of the American Revolution, Sons of the Revolution, Children of the American Revolution, and the American Legion.

Tonight, at the Mayflower hotel here, a bicentennial ball was held, with all guests in costume, and a second ball was held in Gadsby's tavern, Alexandria. The latter is the duplicate of the birthnight ball in honor of Washington himself, held Feb. 22, 1799.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

believe he can poll two million more votes than any other candidate."

Jesse Jones Wires

Jesse H. Jones, member of President Hoover's reconstruction finance corporation, telegraphed his sentiments from Washington.

"Texans have not had an opportunity to render so great a service to our nation since the Alamo and San Jacinto as they now have in offering John Garner for the presidency," he wired.

William G. McAdoo sent greetings and best wishes to the meeting.

Governor Sterling said "we are launching a drive that will land a great Democrat and a great Texan in the office that was first held by George Washington."

The chief executive said "we are in the midst of the most destructive economic war our people have ever faced and which is causing more casualties than our nation suffered during the world war."

He said he wanted to pay tribute to Congressman Patman, "who has been credited with causing Mr. Mellon to be sent with his knee breeches and silk stockings to the court of St. James, where it is said he will spend part of his time collecting the private money that has been loaned by Wall street, forgetting the billions of dollars our government has loaned to foreign nations."

He said that "there has hertofore been an impression that a man from Texas has no chance whatever of reaching the president's chair, but I am glad to know the idea is fast disappearing."

Even Jim Ferguson, former governor, and bitter political enemy of practically every leader here today, came to the rally bearing the palm of peace. His endorsement of Garner was charactristic of the stormy petrel's campaign utterances, he said:

"John can have the shirt off my back."

action. He generally smiles broadly when he says it.

The leaders of the Texas congressional delegation joined in sending fullsome telegrams to the San Antonio meeting, heralding Garner as their candidate.

Representative Marin Johnson in one of these said Garner has the courage and candor of Jackson, the rugged honesty of Grover Cleveland and the far-seeing vision of Woodrow Wilson.

Representative Wright Patman pointedly said in his telegram that "the plain people prefer Garner's rugged individualism to Hoover's ragged individualism." Both Texas senators and the other representatives sent messages.

Meantime, Senator Marcus Coolidge, Democrat, Massachusetts, predicted in a statement that Massachusetts will select delegates to the convention favorable to the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith.

"There cannot be much doubt now that he has given his consent to have his name go on the ballots in the spring primaries," Coolidge said.

sonal entrance blank had not been delivered to Miss Stella Akin, secretary of the state executive committee at noon, central standard time, today, which was the deadline for entering the primary. The candidate's personally signed statement as required by the primary rules.

Murray to Fight

Governor Murray announced at Oklahoma City he intended to go ahead with his campaign in Georgia and said he would stump the state and ask the voters to write his name in on the ballot.

"Unless one qualifies under the rules, there is no legal way by which his name can go on the ticket," said Chairman Lawrence Camp of the state Democratic committee when the Murray announcement was called to his attention. Officials of the Democratic party expressed belief any ballot on which the name of Murray or any other candidate was written would be invalidated.

Garner in Dark

In Washington Speaker Garner said he had no knowledge of the filing of Judge Howard's name and also he knew nothing of the judge's announcement that the state's votes at the national convention would be cast for the speaker if Howard carries the Georgia primary.

"I know nothing about it and I have nothing to say," was the speaker's sole comment.

After he had qualified as a candidate, Judge Howard issued a statement in Atlanta, saying he wanted Georgians to understand that if they vote for him, "the state's vote, so far as I can influence it, will be cast for John N. Garner of Texas." He said he would not make an active campaign.

The $1,000 entrance fee required of candidates by the party rules was paid in currency to Miss Akin by State Representative L. T. Gillen, who filed Judge Howard's name.

Murder Suggested As Cadet Dies of Wound

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 22. (AP)—Cadet William McClure Miller Jr., 25, of Kelly field, died in station hospital, Fort Sam Houston, today from a bullet wound through the left temple.

Military officials and police, who had first believed the wound self-inflicted, had abandoned the suicide theory for that of robbery and were looking for a man said to have been seen running from the place where the cadet, critically wounded, was found in his car early Sunday morning.

Head Cold Pains Now Relieved in Three Minutes

A simple head cold often produces intense suffering from headache, neuralgia, etc., and you can get soothing relief in three minutes with "B. C." a reliable, pleasant acting remedy.

"B.C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time.

"B.C." should also be used for the relief of muscular aches and pains, reducing fever, and quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit forming drugs. Get "B.C." wherever drugs are sold in 10c and 25c packages.—Adv.

Catarrh Causes Head Noises and Deafness

This Method Opens Clogged Nostrils and Relieves Catarrhal Deafness

Few people realize what a serious diseases catarrh really is. Deafness and head noises that drive the sufferer nearly frantic are frequently due to this complaint. Unchecked, this disgusting, dangerous ailment often destroys smell, taste and hearing, slowly undermines the general health. Its neglect may make you a wornout catarrhal wreck.

As catarrh is a disease of the blood, the only real relief comes from treating the blood itself. So go to Allison's Drug store or your druggist for an ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ point of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day. Drive the catarrhal poisons from the system by treating the blood, and the disease itself must vanish. Parmint has proved successful in so many cases because it acts directly on the blood and mucous membrane.

Life will be much more worth living if you can breathe freely again, hear plainly, smell, taste and arise in the morning refreshed and strong, with head and throat free from phlegm. For your own sake give Parmint a trial—and with your whole system crying for relief from catarrh you should start Parmint treatment now.—Adv.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this relieves the soreness and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

"clear road ahead!"

It's great to feel that way . . .
and you do . . . when the blood has the "feel" of enough rich red cells

REGARDLESS of age—be fortified with plenty of "red blood." That s-p-e-l-l-s happiness.

So frequently work, worry, colds and sickness reduce the red-cell count in the blood . . . then our spirits go down as the blood cells are lowered.

The process may be so gradual that we wonder "what is the matter."

It is well to give thought to those invisible—yet precious red-blood-cells—the "ships," if you please, that "sail" in the blood, carrying nourishment to all parts of the body.

"That tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

Why not take steps to overcome this trouble? A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

First Methodist W.M.S. Studies Korean Topics

"Without information there can be no inspiration," Mrs. S. A. Trevathan reminded members of the Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church Monday morning when she gave a masterly analysis of the subject, "Why Study Missions?" as a special feature of the opening session of the mission study class on Korea. The class met in the church parlors at 10 o'clock and the study was under the direction of Mrs. W. D. Cline, superintendent of mission study.

The meeting was opened with a song of particular missionary significance led by Mrs. Stanley M. Raub, with Mrs. J. E. O'Brien at the piano. Taking as her subject, "Christ as a Missionary as an Example to Us," Mrs. Ralph deShong gave the devotional message, dividing her topic into Christ's mission. His message, and His work, and reading Scripture passages touching on each point, closing with that passage in St. Luke's gospel which the speaker declared showed that Christ was supported by the very first woman's missionary society in the world. Mrs. C. A. Spragins offered prayer to God as the universal father of all mankind, pleading for the brotherhood of man to be brought about throughout the world.

Mrs. Trevathan's address followed. The speaker took as her text, "The Master Is Come and Calleth for Thee," and she stressed the fact that the missionary imperative is on the church women of today as much as, or more than, ever in the history of Christianity, that God is giving us opportunities of service hitherto unparalleled. She stated that "the eyes of the whole world are on the churches of America today." Declaring that the study of missions is in reality an extension course in the Bible, she showed how the names of the heroic figures in the missionary history of the church might be used to complete the 11th chapter of Hebrews up to date. "The study of missions will deepen and broaden the spiritual life of the individual because missions is the one supremely unselfish endeavor of the ages," Mrs. Trevathan said.

A brief sketch of James Dale Van Buskirk, author of the text to be studied, "Korea, Land of the Dawn," was given by Mrs. Cline. Using a wealth of outside material, the first chapter of the textbook, a map, and a group of photographs of Korean scenes, Mrs. Homer Lee introduced the study of Korea, which she described as a country about the size of the state of Kansas yet having a population of 21,000,000 people, and possessing a most unique and amazing history which dates back 4,000 years and more to an antiquity second only to that of China, India, Babylon and Egypt. Mrs. Lee described the style of dress of the Koreans and a few of the customs of the people.

As a fitting close to the lesson, Mrs. Stanley M. Raub, accompanied by Mrs. J. E. O'Brien, sang "In Christ There Is No East or West," and the Lord's prayer by the group was the benediction.

The next mission study class will be held Monday morning, Feb. 29, at 10 o'clock in the church parlors.

D. A. R. Chapter Holds Service At Auditorium

Plans made by the Maj. Francis Grice chapter, D. A. R., to plant 10 pecan trees on the Memorial auditorium grounds on the afternoon of Feb. 22 instead of holding the beautiful colonial tea that has been an annual event, could not be completed Monday on account of the weather. The trees will be planted at the earliest date possible but the exercises held to celebrate George Washington's 200th birthday were held in the legion room at the auditorium.

Mrs. E. C. de Montel, regent, was in charge when the salute to the flag, led by the Children of the American Revolution, opened the meeting. A beautiful invocation was given by Dr. Nat F. Grafton.

Mrs. de Montel gave an inspirational talk on what the D. A. R. stands for. In part, her talk was as follows: "We are loyal to the past, in that we as a society, hold sacred those deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice which were displayed by our forefathers, who were privileged to assist our great American hero, George Washington, in the formation of this wonderful republic of ours; we are loyal to the present, because as a society we stand firm with our government against all attacks of communism, socialism and any organized force which might threaten the safety of the nation and government; we are loyal to the future in that one of the most important phases of our work is to seek to inspire in all young Americans, whether American by birth or by choice, intense love of country and flag and all that which the feeling of patriotism implies."

A short address on the character of George Washington was given by Roy J. Daniel and the song "America," with Mrs. Luke McCrory at the piano, closed the meeting. Veterans of the Spanish American and of the world war were present for the program.

Mrs. Fred Sehmann gave an interesting topic from the text book, "The Contribution of Hosea."

"Hosea brought hope and light from God to his people. He presented God's love. Even though he was a famous city bred statesman he found a way to scatter happiness to all people. He understood well the meaning of repentance and felt it was his mission to bring Israel out of idol worship and sin," the speaker said.

Camp Fire Girls Hear Ivan Murchison Lecture

About 20 members, including three from Byers, braved the weather Saturday afternoon to attend the second of the series of three lectures by Ivan Murchison on "Home Beautification," the theme of the Camp Fire Girls' 20th birthday.

This course is being offered girls to help them with the requirements of the birthday honor which includes both group and individual requirements, dealing with setting up a room or ensemble for group projects and making of individual count books dealing with furniture history and types. The rooms will be exhibited at Freear's during birthday week, March 13 to 19, when the public will be invited to see them and judges will decide on the best setup. The budgets for the different rooms will be based on a $10,000 six-room home, and groups will furnishd their rooms in keeping with this budget according to government bulletins on the subject.

The discussion Saturday centered on different periods of furniture. "We must have some idea as to different periods of furniture in order to know what types will produce desired effects, and which types we may blend in the combinations for our homes, just as we must know what types of footwear and other accessories accompany certain types of wearing apparel," said Mr. Murchison.

The vividness of the various periods was not only described by the speaker, but accentuated by the pieces of furniture assembled by Mr. Murchison which reflect the modern reproductions in use today. "The names of monarchs, nations, and creators of furniture styles give us the names for our various types of furniture today," he stated. "Of the 40 eras which have been honored by reproductions, of furniture used in their times, only a dozen have exerted an influence at all profound."

Mr. Murchison named and described these period pieces and stated that 65 per cent of the furniture manufactured today is based on the 18th century design. French styles rich in decorative furniture and notable for their luxurious creations, were told of in interesting terms by Mrs. Murchison.

American furniture, Mr. Murchison said, parallels in its development the furniture of Europe. The colonial type, one of the most popular styles in America today, may be combined with 18th century designs. Designers of Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton were widely imitated by colonial designers. "Traces of their work," the speaker concluded, "are seen in reproductions sold throughout the country today."

The third and last of the series of lectures will be given Saturday, Feb. 27 at 2 o'clock.

The sketch of George Washington given by Mrs. John Hampton was the feature of the program. With perfect poise and an unusually beautiful command of language, Mrs. Hampton gave a vivid talk. The unusual physical features of Washington were described and his traits of character given in detail. That he was emotional and sympathetic, generous and possessor of a keen sense of humor was stressed and illustrated with a number of clever personal anecdotes Washington's love of family was emphasized in his devotion to the children of Martha Washington and to her grandchildren, two of whom he took to rear.

A.—Jane McCrea was born about 1757. Her father was a Presbyterian clergyman, a native of Scotland. Her mother died when she was very young. She was brought up by her father who died when she was less than 20 years of age. She then went to live with her brother who was an ardent patriot. Her fiance, David Jones, was a loyalist. Since he was located near Fort Edward she insisted upon staying in his vicinity, or she was in correspondence with him, but did not wish her brother to know of her attachment. It was finally planned that she should run away to Burgoyne's lines where David was located. She was to be accompanied by some Indians. On the way she was killed during an Indian attack. Q.—Were the men who wrote the constitution men of marked ability at that time?—E. W.

A.—Elson says: "An abler body of statesmen has not assembled in modern times than that which made our constitution in 1787, nor has any assembly met with truer motives, or produced a grander result. The whole number of delegates was 55, and there was scarcely a man among them who had not been distinguished in the state or in the field, who had not been a governor, a member of congress, or a commander in the army. A few had served in the stamp act congress in 1765, others had set their names to the immortal declaration in 1776, and one had framed the plan of union at Albany in 1754. Could these men have looked into the future, they would have seen two of their own number become presidents of the United States, one a vice president, and many others foreign ministers, members of the supreme court, cabinet officials, and United States senators."

Philippine Independence

IN CONSIDERING the question of giving independence to the Philippines, it is essential that we put ourselves straight on the facts before we start arguing.

The origin of this knotty little problem often seems obscure, and it is easy to get confused about them. A little examination of the record of history would make many of the current arguments more valuable.

Secretary of War Hurley, appearing before a senate committee the other day, made the following remark about the independence issue:

"I believe the responsibilities assumed by the United States when it destroyed the sovereignty of Spain have not been fulfilled, and that the independence of the Philippines should be given when certain conditions have been performed which assure the stability of the government when it is established."

It is the first clause of that remark that deserves a little thought. What are those responsibilities? More important, how did we happen to assume them?

We took the Philippines by force, and we took them because somebody at Washington decided that it would be nice if we had some island possessions in the orient. We were fighting Spain—ostensibly, anyhow—to free Cuba, and the exact way in which kicking the Spaniard out of the Philippines helped to set the Cubans free is something no one has ever explained satisfactorily.

The Filipinos didn't want us at the time. We had no business going near them, once Dewey had sunk the Spanish Asiatic fleet. In order to possess the islands we had to fight the native inhabitants a lot harder than we had to fight the Spaniards. And after gaining possession, we promised solemnly that we would give them their independence.

Remembering those facts ought to clear things up a bit. It would remind us that our "responsibilities" are things that we shouldered of our own accord, over the objection of everybody concerned; and chief among them would seem to be the responsibility for making the Filipinos independent.

A New "Obscenity" Bill

THE New York legislature is considering a new "obscenity statute" which looks as if it would make an excellent law. It would put the responsibility for the sale of an obscene book on the publisher instead of on the retailer, as is the case now; and it would not only free book-sellers from the harassings of official and unofficial snoopers, but would probably prove a more effective weapon against improper publications than the present law.

The book-seller has to take many of his books on faith. There are 10,000 or more printed annually; how can he go through them all? In many cases he decides to play safe whenever any small group protests the sale of a book—and thus makes possible an unofficial but highly effective censorship.

The new law would put it entirely up to the publisher, and would compel him to stand back of every book he issued. The arrangement would be more logical and more effective.

Passenger Parachutes?

A BILL was introduced in congress the other day which would require all air transport lines to provide parachutes for every passenger, much as steamship lines are required to provide life-preservers; and, as might be expected, it has stirred up a good deal of argument on both sides.

In theory, perhaps, the idea is a good one. Any transport company certainly is under a moral obligation to do everything it can to insure the safety of its patrons. But, as officials of the transport companies have been pointing out, there are plenty of obstacles in the way of this measure.

In most airplane crashes there would not be time for all the passengers to jump to safety even if they did have parachutes. Novices might operate their chutes correctly, if they did manage to jump in time, and they might not. Besides, the expense of providing parachutes for everybody would put most air transport companies out of business.

A Wise Measure

REPRESENTATIVE HAMILTON FISH of New York has not always appeared before the public as the sponsor of wise and enlightened legislation. But the resolution he introduced recently to prohibit exportation of arms or munitions from the United States to any nation engaged in war looks like the sort of bill behind which liberals and peace-lovers might well unite.

Of course, this would be costly to the munitions-makers, in case of a large-scale war anywhere on the globe. But it ought to be an excellent thing for the nation as a whole.

Acting as purveyor of arms to a nation in war-time can be a very good way of getting directly embroiled in the conflict—especially so since circumstances usually are such that you can't sell to both of the combatants. Representative Fish's resolution ought to be adopted.

SO THEY SAY!

The system of war reparations was foolish, but I am not yet ready to believe that Germany cannot pay.—Winston Churchill, British statesman.

Even the leaders who cry for absolute, immediate and complete independence (for the Philippines) do not expect to obtain it unless accompanied by special economic assistance from the United States.—Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war.

Portrait of a Man Talking To Himself

I wish I didn't have to do a column . . . I mean more than once a week . . . Maybe some day I won't have to do more than one pillar every 7 days and then there will be time to loaf . . . And play . . . And see June . . . She's been waiting a decade to go gay with me—and if I had any Moxie I'd chuck the whole routine and go somewhere with her and the children and laugh a little . . . There is this comforting thought, though . . . The day can't be far off . . . And then "Whoopee!" . . . She's waited this long, and I know she'll mark time as she has done all these busy years—and then she won't regret it . . . Wonder what a wife thinks about with a husband like me? . . . Maybe just as well that I don't know what she thinks about . . . I'll bet it's good, though . . . Heheheh . . . I told her when I first met her it wouldn't be long . . . That was so long ago . . . She's complained twice in all those years . . . And I would cuddle her and tell her: "If I stop now, honey, all that exertion will have been wasted. In another two years we'll go where you want to go," etc. . . . And she'd look at me the way women look—when they think things they won't say . . . After all, if it weren't for June—I know all this wouldn't have happened . . . And when I tell her that, she dismisses it with a shrug and tells me that nothing else matters but me—not even the kids . . . And I'd say: "Aw, don't say that!" . . . And she says: "But that's true!" . . . I think we ought to have more babies.

That lad in the pressroom knows a good item, at that . . . The flower he took from the Sacco-Vanzetti funeral in Boston . . . And when he got to New York he threw it on the altar of the Immaculate Conception church on 14th St. . . . The altar of Blessed Mother Mary . . . And he tells me the edifice has been renovated and things torn down, and moved about . . . But when he went in there the other day there was the flower he had hurled at the very same spot . . . And he wondered if I would be interested in an item like that . . . It's 4:30 and if I go to sleep now I'll never get up by 9 to answer that darn thing . . . My eyes burn so . . . I'll be too tired and then there are so many things to do tonight . . . I hope Mark's show goes big . . . He's been waiting for the big wallop a long time, too . . . Then he'll get rich and get fat . . . I mean fatter . . . It amazes me . . . The way Mark and I have remained pals for 10 years . . . Goodgahd! . . . Ten whole years on Broadway and without an argument! . . . It's his sex appeal, I think . . . The big bum . . . When any one is in a jam of any kind he calls up to say: "Is there anything I can do for you?" . . . Wonder when he's gonna call me up?

Well, everybody imagines Mrs. Irving Berlin is at Sloan's, and she isn't . . . Because all blessed event cases are on the same floor there and the Berlins wanted a room on another floor so the other babies wouldn't disturb here . . . But the baby-bringer refused to break the rule, so Irving and Ellin moved out and rented an entire floor at the Doctors' Hosp . . . Welcome, stranger . . . Very interesting item about Jeanne Eagles' daughter . . . Never knew she had one until last week . . . The kid remained in the background so Jeanne could progress . . . Chamberlain Brown, the casting man, has just signed her for seven flickers, and that's dandy . . . And she'll call herself Julie Eagles . . . I hope she "gools 'em" . . . I guess that means the famous Eagles-Barrymore war will be carried on by their issue . . . Ethel Barrymore Colt still is striving for recognition, and if Julie clicks I can see Jeanne chuckling . . . Julie is going to make a picture version of "Rain"—and what she will think about, as she plays the role her mother made so famous is something I'd like to make memos about . . . Polo is quite the fad out in Hollywood, they tell me . . . At the Brown Derby the other evening two movie producers were talking about the game . . . They said that they were importing polo horses from Argentine, too . . . So a wisenheimer yelled: "That'll be the first time in the history of the game that the horses will have better blood than the players!"

Wish I had that photo of Walker that Station Master Egan, of the Pennsy depot, has on his office walls . . . Seems that that's the only one of its kind . . . Very funny, the way Jessel teases Jim . . . I mean at banquets . . . Every time Jim concludes his always engaging talks Jessel, as roastmaster, stands up and gets a howl with: "You'd think the mayor would get tired of that same speech." . . . But it isn't the same continuity, at all . . . It may be the same wordage, but manages to move the verbs around . . . Wonder what the hell a verb is, any how? . . . Broun it was who once said; "Only a coward is afraid to repeat himself" . . . There's another hard-to-figure-out-guy . . . He sends you a letter saying he is "Eternally Grateful" and then tosses you around . . . Then when he sees you he offers a paw and says: "Hello, Walter!" . . . Shucks. When I get mad at a guy I stay mad . . . Wonder how old Texas Guinan is? . . . She's young at heart, though . . . How she screamed the other sun-up in that restaurant . . . Because I looked so scared . . . I found out one thing . . . That that was her real laugh—and the laugh she's been using for the past 10 years, when other people told gags, was counterfeit . . . What a really remarkable actress she is . . . Off-stage.

Wonder if that's true? . . . I mean about that German scientist arriving here . . . With a powder he claims will cure tubercular people . . . What a miracle that would be! . . . He has been told by the A. C. A., I hear, that they've experimented and the results are "remarkable" . . . Bobby Crawford, the sponsor of that new hit show, thought, as did so many other witnesses that night, that his piece on the stage was spellbinding me . . . If they only knew what I was really thinking about! . . . Half the time I was thinking that the authors would have given anything to have a melodrama on their platform of what was actually happening! . . . Yes, indeedy . . . Here today, etcetra . . . I only want to live long enough to see Gloria and Walda grown into girlhood . . . And have the necessary stuff to get them beautiful frocks, and furs, and things that girls seem to like so much . . . That'll be 10 years hence . . . And I don't want any suitors around until long after that, too . . .

EXPLANATIONS OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

WASHINGTON'S BICENTENARY — The year 46 B. C. had 14 months, two supernumerary months having been added by Julius Caesar to initiate the Julian calendar reform. When George Washington was born the date was Feb. 11, 1731, and England and its colonies were still observing the old Julian calendar, in which the year began not on Jan. 1 but on March 25. The father of our country was 20 years old (1751) when the English parliament finally adopted the Gregorian calendar, by clipping 11 days off September, 1752. In addition the beginning of the year was advanced to Jan. 1. It is an error to make the calendar reform retroactive by celebrating Washington's birthday on Feb. 22, instead of 11 days earlier. And the same wrong application of chronological retroactivity is made in the celebration of Washington's bicentenary in 1932, instead of 1931.

THE SHORT CIRCUIT BEETLE — The short circuit beetle (Latin name scobicia declivis) is so called because of its habit of boring numerous holes in the aerial lead telephone cables. Short circuit is then caused by moisture entering the cable. The activity of the bettle entails great expense and trouble to the telephone companies.

The Story Of John N. Garner

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

CHAPTER III

Nearly every important event in the life of John N. Garner has occurred in the month of November. The eleventh month of the year—in which elections, including presidential elections, are held—has been his lucky season.

He was born in November, and it was on Nov. 25, 1895, at the age of 26, that he and Miss Etty Rheiner were married at Sabinal. They spent the honeymoon in a boarding house in Uvalde, while the first little home was being built for them. This was a small, plain, five-room cottage. It is to be doubted whether the Garners have ever been any happier in the mansion house they now own in Uvalde, than they were in this tiny home where they made their start in life together.

On Sept. 24, 1896, their first and only child, a son, was born. He was named Tully, after Mr. Garner's law partner. Garner's first title as judge had been won by virtue of an appointment to fill an unexpired term. He was re-elected for a second term, but suffered his first and only defeat in his entire career, when he again ran for the same office. His fondness for practical jokes was probably responsible for this defeat.

There were a great many Mexicans in Uvalde county, and "Tio Juan," as he was known to them, had always been very popular, and still is to this day. Frequently, in his capacity of judge, he would be called upon to authorize the expenditure of county funds needed to render medical assistance to some destitute Mexican.

Medicine for Mexican

According to the story that has become a Rio Grande tradition, one day, during the campaign, he concluded that too much money was being spent in that manner. Accordingly, with a friend, he purchased a box of pills, and an ill peon applying for aid, three of the pellets were given to him, with large saving to the county.

But upon inquiring into the sick Mexican's condition the next day, the young judge was shocked by the information that the man had died. Right then he vowed never to try to be a doctor again.

Judge Garner was then called upon to authorize the burial of the corpse, which he did with a heavy heart. Aside from his own remorse he agreed with his political friends when they told him the incident would cost him the election, the story being circulated all over the county that in his zeal for economy he had killed a Mexican.

As a matter of fact, John Garner wasn't the only practical joker in Uvalde county by a long shot. There were others, and they enjoyed themselves at his expense, after the quaint old custom on any frontier. The Mexican hadn't died at all, but had made a remarkable recovery under the stimulating influence of the Garner brand of economical cure-all, but the truth didn't get out in time, and young John N. Garner, in his second attempt to win a public office, tasted the bitter ashes of defeat.

Is Not Discouraged

Many another ambitious man, suffering such a set-back, has ended his career before he had really started it, but one licking was no more than a temporary disappointment to John N. Garner. He liked public life and was determined to keep on. He looked about for other fields to conquer. One was at hand.

About this time an important event occurred. William Henry Crain had represented the old seventh congressional district of Texas since the 49th congress. In the nineties this district included Uvalde county. It was said of Crain, who had been educated by the Jesuits, that he spoke the purest English of any man in the house of representatives. He died in Washington in 1896, and young Judge Garner was elected a delegate to the convention at Corpus Christi that was called to nominate his successor.

It is characteristic of the fundamental instinct of the budding statesman of Uvalde county that he went down to the convention with his own vote, and 10 proxies in his pocket.

There was a tie, and it took three days for the convention to make a nomination. Garner found that he had the deciding vote. Judge James B. Wells, of Brownsville, was the strongest political factor in the district. He favored the nomination of Rudolph Kleberg, of Cuero. After some 70 fruitless ballots had been cast, young Garner went to Judge Wells, and said that he would go for Kleberg, but that in return he wanted to be chairman of the district congressional campaign committee. This was arranged, and right then and there John N. Garner made up his mind that what he really wanted to do was to go to congress himself.

A Large District

Surveying the district in which Uvalde county was located, and checking it on the map, young Garner saw that it was as large as the state of New York. That agitated the gray matter for some little time, and he finally concluded that the best way in which he could hope to realize his ambition would be to cut that district in two. But how to go about this was a problem.

He very quickly perceived that the first essential step was to become a member of the legislature, and attend to it himself. It was not a thing, he realized, that he could afford to leave to others to do for him.

He became a candidate for the legislature, was elected, and took his seat in 1898. With him to the state capital at Austin went the young bride and the baby, then 2 years old.

Still slender and boyish looking as to figure, he wore a long-tail black jim-swinger coat, a flowing tie, and a derby hat, which settled well down on his head, almost to the ears.

From beneath the brim a strong nose was thrust out, sunburned to a brick-red color by the burning glare of the plains, and generally in a state of peel from the effects of sun and wind.

Mrs. Garner, noting the unbecoming effect of the derby one day, quietly went out and bought him a soft slouch hat.

"Here, John," she said, "is a new hat. You'll look better in it than that other one."

Changes Hat Style

Without a word he switched hats, and has stuck to the soft felt variety ever since. Friends are always giving him new hats. But for this he would probably wear his old ones indefinitely. He loves them, and hates to part with them. Few men in congress have ever been more indifferent to clothes.

He provoked considerable good-natured joking back in Austin, at the turn of the century, as he settled down to the business of being a legislator.

And now the young firm of Garner & Co. congratulated themselves most heartily that the junior member had mastered the pot-hooks of stenography. There was no money in the slender family purse for a private secretary. Mrs. Garner took over the job, and hasn't been fired yet. She is still holding it down in the speaker's private office room in the capitol.

The senior member of the firm busied himself at once with the task of carving out a congressional district as his own exclusive property. To arrange this, he quickly saw, would not be easy. However, Providence helps those who help themselves. The 1900 census gave him his opportunity. This showed that the population of Texas had increased to such an extent that the state was entitled to more representatives in congress. Garner ran for a second term, won again, and once more went up to Austin. He was now stripped for action.

By cultivating friendships, he succeeded in his second, and last term, in having himself elected chairman of the redistricting committee of the house. As chairman he redistricted the whole state. When the job was finished, and the report had been submitted, it was seen that among other new districts he had created one which included Uvalde county.

Nothing to Hide

Then young John Garner got out in the middle of the aisle, faced his fellows, and went straight to the point. He didn't try to conceal anything. He frankly told his colleagues that he wanted to go to congress, and that he had fixed it so that he could do so. He hoped the house would stand by him.

Standing there in the aisle, his face flushed with eagerness, his boyish figure tense with anxiety, he took a sheet of paper from his pocket and drew upon it a map, marking off the proposed new Uvalde district, which, he showed, stretched for more than 400 miles along the Rio Grande, from Brownsville westward, a district containing 22 huge counties, some of them larger than some of the smaller states of the union. All were sparsely populated.

The house listened, and was hypnotized by the young man's engaging candor. But it adjourned without taking action.

Digestion and Assimilation

After mouth digestion the food passes from the mouth down the throat, through the esophagus, and into the stomach. The stomach is a highly elastic, muscular organ which will hold about three pints and, when full, is about a foot long and four inches wide. When empty, however, the stomach contracts and occupies very little space.

The stomach acts as a storehouse for food until it has been acted upon by the gastric juice which is secreted by glands within the stomach walls. These gastric glands secrete very powerful digestive juices containing hydrochloric acid and pepsin which not only kill the bacteria present in food, but are used to digest protein.

You will realize what a wonderful apparatus the stomach is when I tell you that the stomach glands will secret from two and a half to five quarts of gastric juice each day. The stomach is lined with circular, longitudinal, and oblique muscular fibers. These muscles keep contracting in such a way as to thoroughly churn the food and mix it with the gastric juice.

After digestion has taken place, the pyloric muscle relaxes slightly and allows the more liquid parts of the food to pass through into the duodenal part of the small intestine. The larger particles are usually held back until there is a good deal of surplus hydrochloric acid which has not been absorbed by the food. This produces a reflax nervous impulse to open the pylorus, allowing all of the food to pass through into the duodenum.

When the duodenum feels the food passing into it from the stomach, an impulse is sent to the liver, gall bladder and pancreas and their yellowish green liquid mixture is formed and emptied into the partly digested food. The gall bladder, which is simply a storehouse for the liver's bile until it is needed, also empties into this duct.

The bile assists in rendering the food alkaline, and counteracts the acidity which was produced in the stomach. This assists in breaking up the fat globules, producing a kind of soap, and it also acts as a destroyer of bacteria, killing by its alkaline strength those bacteria which were not destroyed by the hydrochloric acid of the stomach.

The pancreatic juice is one of the most important secretions that are thrown into the intestines because it contains three powerful digestive ferments: Tryspin, a substance which digests the proteins which remain undigested from the stomach; amylopsin, for digesting the starches which were not digested by the saliva; and steapsin, which digests fats. The action of these digestible fluids makes the small intestine of great importance to our being.

The small intestine is lined with glands similar in shape to the glands of the stomach. Their secretions assist in the digestive processes, and in addition they secrete a peculiar fluid which converts cane sugar into grape sugar, since cane sugar cannot be used by the blood until it has been converted into the latter form.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Skull Fracture

Question: Miss Bertha writes—"Seven months ago I was the victim of an automobile accident from which I suffered a fracture of the skull and cheek bone, and am now recovering from a nervous breakdown. Can a person marry who has a skull fracture?"

Answer—If you have recovered from the skull fracture, I do not see how it would interfere with your marriage. If seven months have elapsed since the accident, there is very little danger that you will have any further trouble.

Lois Corbin, a pretty working girl, falls in love with Bruce Durand, the nephew of Charles Durand, one of Chicago's wealthiest men. Ashamed to have Bruce know where she lives, Lois leaves her family and goes to share an apartment with Margaret and Ariene, two of her girl friends. Ariene falls in love with Bruce herself, and sets about to get him. She tells him that Lois has gone out with another man one night when Bruce calls for her, when in reality she has gone to a movie because Ariene has told her that Bruce could not come down that night. Bruce is driven by jealousy to fall deliberately into the trap Ariene has set for him. Lois sends her engagement ring back to him and moves into a little room down on Rush street so that she will not have to live with Ariene.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Durand have heard that their nephew has announced his intention to marry a girl who is not in the social register, and Mrs. Durand insists that they return at once to America and settle Bruce so that he will not do anything foolish.

Lois gets unbearably lonesome there, and finally swallows her pride and goes back to her home. Her mother is elated because she has come back to live with them, and even Lois is glad to be there once more, she realizes that [illegible] her place, after all.

Bruce is sorry that he has made a second date with Ariene, because he can't think about any one else, except Lois. However, he goes for her, and on the way to the club they pass his home. Ariene insists on going inside, and Bruce decides that this is as good as any other way that he knows of to kill time.

Bruce is obviously bored with Ariene, but she is having a good time. He plays the radio, and they make an attempt at conversation. Bruce finally suggests that they leave, and as he helps Ariene on with her coat she puts her lips up and kisses him. At that same moment he is aware that someone is watching them.

Mr. and Mrs. Durand have chosen this moment to enter their home. Mrs. Durand believes this is the girl in whom Bruce is interested, and immediately demands an explanation. Mr. Durand insists on them waiting to talk to Bruce when he returns home that evening. When he takes Ariene into her apartment Margaret is still sitting up reading. He asks her where Lois is and Margaret tells him that Lois doesn't live there any longer. Ariene walks into the dressing room and closes the door.

CHAPTER XXXI

This was the first day since Margaret had worked at Scanlon & Scanlon that Lois had not come down to work. "It would be," she told herself. "She wouldn't come on the very day that I have something good to tell her." She hadn't even been there when Mrs. Corbin had called. Hazel, one of the other girls who relieved Lois at the switchboard, took the message.

Mrs. Corbin had called to say that Lois was sick, Hazel told her, and that Lois wouldn't be down at all today. Margaret warned Hazel that if a call came in for Lois to be sure to let her answer it because it was very important. She wondered what was the matter with Lois. Worrried sick probably, over the whole affair. She wished she had time to run out there during lunch, but she didn't, and anyway she wasn't sure that she would be welcome at the Corbin home on account of the fact that she had lured Lois away from it.

Bruce called in at 10 o'clock. Margaret answered him and told him the circumstances. He seemed terribly worried. Wanted to know what the trouble was, how she was feeling now and so on. Margaret had to say that she didn't know to everything he asked.

"It will do him good to worry a little," she said as she came away from the switchboard.

"What?" Hazel asked, puzzled.

Margaret was not aware that she had been talking out loud. "Oh, nothing," she said quickly. She didn't want anything to get out around the office concerning Lois. The girls knew too much as it was.

Margaret had guessed correctly. Lois had worried herself into a state closely bordering on a nervous collapse. All night long she had tossed feverishly in her bed and Mrs. Corbin had been up with her giving her sedatives to quiet her nerves. No one knew what the trouble was. Mrs. Corbin attributed it to overwork and not the proper kind of food.

"That's the way it always is," Mrs. Bailey said when she heard about it. She came over immediately to give Mrs. Corbin advice on how to treat Lois. "Girls get high flung ideas into their heads about living out. Their own home ain't good enough for them. Then they get out and find out what it's like. They don't get the right food, always eating irregular times, and my goodness, it's no wonder that she's down sick."

Mrs. Corbin was making some beef broth.

"She'll be all right, Mabel," she went on to Mrs. Bailey. "I know as well as you do that she wasn't gettin' the right kind of care, but then everybody has to learn those things for herself."

"That beef broth 'll fix her up fine," Mrs. Bailey said. "I don't mind if I have a taste of it myself."

Mrs. Corbin got a soup dish out of the cupboard and filled up for Mrs. Bailey. Then she went on upstairs with a steaming bowl of it for Lois.

"I'm so sorry to make all this trouble for you, mother," Lois said. It was nice to have Lois so considerate of her, Mrs. Corbin thought. Perhaps it did her good to go out on her own for awhile. She would appreciate her home more now.

"Nonsense," Mrs. Corbin said lightly, "don't you suppose I'm glad to do this for you? Mothers aren't happy unless they are doing something for their children. Didn't you know that?"

Lois shook her head. She didn't see why they should. Children were selfish, as a rule. All those whom she knew certainly were. Take Arlene for instance—oh, why must her name pop into Lois' head! She was trying to forget her. Think about something else. Quickly. The office. Wonder whether Mr. Scanlon would be angry with her for staying off. Fire her maybe. Then what would she do? The first time she had stayed out since she had begun to work there. Hazel was gone at least two days out of every month and plenty of times she was late coming back from lunch. Some girls could get by with things like that though. Lois couldn't. At least she thought she couldn't. Mustn't think about the office, then. Think about something that wouldn't worry her. She tried and tried to turn her mind into some channel that would afford her some pleasurable thinking, but she found that she was in a bad spot just now. She couldn't think of a single thing that didn't worry her.

She wished she could tell her mother all about it. But she was sure that she wouldn't understand. Anyway what could she do about it if she did? She certainly couldn't bring Bruce back to her. Bruce again—then her mind went wandering over their whole affair from beginning to end. She could understand now some of the things she had read concerning love causing people to suffer. She had thought it was all story book stuff until now. She wondered whether the few happy evenings she had passed with Bruce were worth the tears and heartches they had caused her.

What was that old saying, "better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all?" Wonder whether there was any truth in that statement? Margaret said that she'd find somebody else to like better than she liked Bruce. He may even be just around the corner. Lois doubted that. Still one couldn't tell. She couldn't imagine liking anybody even as well as she liked Bruce, let alone liking him better.

Where had that idea gone that she had about making a good stenographer out of herself? Guess she'd better be thinking of things like that than to have men on her brain all the time. Yes, she'd continue on working toward the goal that she had set for herself; that of being a court reporter. She'd forget about everything else that had occurred in her life. There was something terribly fascinating about the legal game. A man fighting for the life or the death of another man. A battle of words. Winning, losing, what did it matter? Another life or another death. The world was harsh, cruel.

Lois was beginning to learn that. She desired to be a part of this relentless whirl of life that caught one somehow in its revolutions and carried one on with it to one's destination. She desired to sit on a magic carpet . . . she was sitting on a magic carpet. It was rising slowly into the air. Everything was fragrant and fresh. Slowly and more slowly the flimsy carpet carried her upwards. When she looked down at the earth below she was frightened. Everything looked so small; she was leaving it all behind. Where was she going . . . where was she going?

"She's asleep," Mrs. Corbin told Mrs. Bailey who was waiting to hear how Lois enjoyed the soup. "I didn't want to waken her. She needs a lot of rest. Poor dear."

Mrs. Bailey decided that she would have to be leaving now. Mrs. Corbin went with her to the door. When she opened it she saw a young man drive up to the curb in a yellow roadster.

Roosevelt Hopeful About Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 22. (AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York today wired the Roosevelt-for-President league of Pennsylvania that "It is by no means impossible that my dream of electing Democratic presidential electors from the great state of Pennsylvania will come true."

"We have a wonderful opportunity to further the cause of good government through a united and militant Democracy," the governor said in his greetings to the league.

The league met here to make its organization state-wide and the executive committee announced the selection of four candidates for delegates at large who will oppose Democratic state organization candidates only in case the latter refuse to abide by the state committee's instructions to vote for the presidential candidate receiving highest vote in the state in the April primary.

Attack on Young Girl Leads to Fatal Shooting

GILMER, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—Glaston Thomas, 22, was shot to death today at Glenwood by R. B. Blalock, 50, who informed officers that Thomas had criminally attacked a 14-year-old girl.

Blalock surrendered to officers immediately after the shooting, which occurred on a road near Thomas' home. A pistol bullet fired at close range, struck Thomas in the chest.

BIDISTRICT SERIES OPENS AT OLNEY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

We hope by this time that all school officials and coaches in district four have understood distinctly Dean Rider's statement that the local student body had nothing to do with the attack on the referee during last week's basket ball tournament here. The local student body should not be blamed for the acts of an unrestrained zealot. Even though he was an ex-student of the school and was rooting heartily for the Coyotes, he carried matters too far in attacking the referee. That is the kind of support the Coyotes do not want.

Albie Booth's Opinion

The most caustic comment on the new football rules adopted recently comes from Albie Booth, Yale's little boy blue last season. Booth, returning from a hospital where he had been confined with attack of pleurisy, was asked by a United Press correspondent what he thought of the new edicts, and Booth replied: "To hell with 'em."

Did You Know That

The longest drop kick for a field goal on record was a 65-yard boot executed by J. P. Ross of the Birmingham Athletic club 40 years ago, and that his deed received official recognition as a world's record only a few days ago!

Well, don't think I'm getting Winchelly, for I didn't know it either until a few minutes ago, when I was looking through some Associated Press copy and came across the story.

The story says this bird Ross dropped back to his 35-yard line and drop kicked the leather right through the goal posts 65 yards away to give his team a 5 to 4 victory over the University of Alabama. In those days a field goal counted five points.

Ancient History

The Sporting News, baseball newspaper, says that back in the dim, dark days of baseball innings were called "hands." The first set of rules, the paper says, was compiled in 1845, and in them the "innings" were so referred to.

Brain Bell, sport columnist for The Associated Press, is careful not to start an argument with a baseball paper "which should know its baseball," but he says that in the South 25 to 30 years ago "hands" had no reference to innings. A "hand," he says, was an out, and the boys' rallying cry was "Only two hands out."

Maybe both are wrong. Do you remember that far back?

Olney vs. Crowell

Well, they say Olney will enter the bidistrict games with Crowell Wednesday night as underdogs, but we are inclined to believe that in this particular case there isn't any such animal. From what we have seen of the Cubs, and from what we have heard of the Crowell Wildcats, we believe the two outfits will open the fracas on even terms.

We have a hunch the Cubs will be more daring in the approaching series than they have been this year. Olney, from what we hear, has played a steady, careful game so far, taking very few chances on long shots. In general, this is a good policy; it is foolish to heave at the hoop from too far back. But some say that the Cubs have overworked this conservatism. During the Harrold championship game in particular we heard some critics say the boys were not daring enough; that they waited too long to shoot, when the chances were good for a field goal.

If the Cubs do cut loose, and yet maintain the same heady, deliberate game they played here at Wichita Falls, they certainly will be hard to beat.

But Crowell also is going to be double tough. Crowell, remember, is haunted by memories of their loss to Nocona last year, when a victory meant a trip to Austin for the state tournament. Crowell started out in the bidistrict series last year like the well known house ablaze and then fizzled out. We may well expect the Wildcats to take adequate precaution against such a showing this year.

Spudder Offices Moved

The Wichita Falls Baseball club's headquarters on the sixth floor of the Harvey-Snider building were moved "around the corner" on the same floor of the building yesterday. The suite of offices at No. 657-658 that had served the club so long were deserted for a new suite at No. 636-637.

Max Baer Whips Old Tom Heeney

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Feb. 22. (AP)—Finishing with a great 10th round rally, Max Baer, the former Livermore "butcher boy" pounded out a 10-round decision over old Tom Heeny, of New Zealand, here today.

It was a rousing battle from start to finish, with the veteran Heeney putting up unexpected opposition to force his younger opponent to the utmost.

Unimpressive in the training and on the short end of 3 to 1 odds, as they went into the ring, Heeney bored in steadily, and in the early stages had all the better of the battling. He battered Baer steadily at close range with jolting uppercuts and made good use of a 12½-pound weight advantage. Baer found the range after the third and banged his stocky opponent around the ring with lusty rights to the jaw.

SECOND GAME AT CROWELL

Teams Clash on Cats' Court Friday Night

The Olney Cubs, champions of district four, and the Crowell Wildcats, champions of district three, will open the interscholastic league bidistrict series Wednesday night at Olney, officials of the two schools announced Monday.

The second game will be played at Crowell Friday night. If a third game is necessary, it will be played either at Olney, Crowell or Electra on Saturday night, it was announced. The winner of two games of the three-game series will be adjudged bidistrict champion and will enter the state interscholastic league championship tournament at Austin in March.

Arrangements for the bidistrict series were perfected at Electra Monday morning, when Coaches Albert Acker of Olney, Grady Graves of Crowell, and school officials of the two towns met to discuss dates and sites for the games.

In case each team wins one of the first two contests, necessitating a play-off, the schools heads will meet again for the purpose of determining the site of the game. It was announced as definite, however, that should a third game be necessary, the site will be selected from Olney, Crowell or Electra.

Each of the first two games will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced.

The Olney Cubs won the district four championship at the tournament here last week, defeating a favored Wichita Falls team in the semifinals, and winning over the Harrold Hornets, champions of Wilbarger county, in the final.

The Crowell aces swept to the district three championship by defeating Wheeler in the semifinals and Memphis in the final of the tournament held last Friday and Saturday at Childress.

Childress High Girls Win Matador Tourney

Special to The Record News.

MATADOR, Texas, Feb. 22.—Childress High school won the first annual girls basket ball tournament here Saturday by defeating the girls from Tell, 27 to 22. Tell had won a bye to enter the final game and it was necessary to determine the second and third place winners by a toss of a coin. Quitaque won second place and Tell third. Trophies were awarded the captains of the first, second and third place teams.

Officials of the tournament named the following as an all-star tournament team and they were given gold miniature basket balls: Forwards, Tiner, Childress and Bradley, Quitaque; centers, Garrett of Dickens and McDowell of Goodnight; guards, Anderson, of Quanah and Scott of Childress.

The second all-star team was named as follows: Forwards, Sheid of Tell and Griffith of Childress; centers, Scarlett of Quanah and Owen of Childress; guards, N. Smith of Tell and Martin of Whiteflat. They were awarded silver miniature basket balls.

Eleven teams in all entered the tournament, which was a success from every standpoint. Vera Tiner of Childress was high point scorer with 102 points in four games.

15-Round Bouts In Illinois Are Approved

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 22. (AP)—A bill designed to make possible a heavyweight boxing championship match in Illinois which may or may not be held, today became a law with the signature of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. Only 10-round matches heretofore have been permitted.

An amendment to the state boxing law to permit 15-round heavyweight title bouts was introduced early this year when an effort was being made to match Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker.

Schmeling, it was said, would be willing to defend his title against Walker in Chicago, but only in a 15-round engagement. The amendment was introduced by Senator R. V. Graham of Chicago, but before the legislature could pass it and sent it to the governor, the fight was moved to Miami, and finally was dropped in favor of the coming battle between Schmeling and Jack Sharkey, at New York this summer.

Goree Girls Win Knox County Championship

Gardner 'Pooh-Poohs' Wizard Pilots

Managers Relatively Unimportant, He Says

ATLANTA, Feb. 21. (AP)—What! A baseball team needs a wizard of a manager to get anywhere!

"Pooh! Pooh!" says Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league.

"The part a manager plays in his team's success is relatively unimportant," says Gardner. "There are 18 different dispositions he has to deal with. There are just about 12 plays in baseball. The manager has to know when to use one of these plays. Outside of that he is usually just sitting on the bench.

"Just as a bridge player has to have the "tickets" to win—no matter what system he uses—a baseball manager has to have the players.

"You will notice that a wizard of a manager in one town is often not a wizard in another when that town has transferred him at great expense. He has to have those pitchers and those hitters to be a wizard.".

Gardner thinks the trend in the minor leagues is toward playing managers.

"They want a manager who can get up there and play."

Gardner was here on a visit.

Independent Cage Teams Urged To Enter Church Tourney Here

Independent basket ball teams in the surrounding territory who plan to enter the Floral Heights Presbyterian church invitation basket ball team here next Friday and Saturday, were urged Monday to send in announcements of their intention of entering immediately, in order that proper plans for the tournament may be completed.

Church officials anticipate a field of 16 teams in the tournament. So far only seven teams have signified their intention of participating. Teams desiring to enter should get in touch with the Rev. Nat Grafton, pastor of the church.

The tournament, an annual event which attracted wide interest here last year, will be run off on the church court. Later on a second tournament will be held, it is planned.

The seven teams entered so far include the First Christian church, First Presbyterian church, Howard's Service station, Los Caballeros, all of Wichita Falls; and the Clara and Iowa Park Independents.

Texas Christians Beat Agges, 26-24

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Feb. 22. (AP)—Ad Dietzel sank two field goals tonight in the final minute of play to give Texas Christian university a 26 to 24 victory over the battling Texas Aggie quintet.

Until the brilliant center delivered in a pinch it looked as though the Frogs might be eliminated from the Southwest conference race. By winning, they obtained a slight margin over their rivals for the leadership, the Baylor Bears, as a result of having played one more game than the Bruins.

The Aggies jumped into an early lead and held the advantage through most of the first half. The score was tied at 10-all at the intermission. That was one of eight times that the teams were deadlocked. The Christians got a three-point lead midway in the second period but the Farmers came back to hold a two-point advantage just before the final minute.

Dietzel was the high scorer with 14 points. Even in defeat, Joe Merka, Aggie sophomore center, was outstanding. He kept pace with Dietzel in scoring until forced from the game on personal fouls in the last few minutes. He outjumped Dietzel most of the time.

The Frogs had eight victories as a result of tonight's conquest, against two defeats. The Bears had won seven and lost two and expected to draw up even with the Schmidtmen in their tilt with Rice tomorrow night.

Muller Meets Jap On Mat Here This Week

Dr. Eddie Muller, the Austin chiropractor, and Titsu Higami, the Jap who threw Russian George Ligosky last week, will meet in the headliner of this week's wrestling show, Promotor Whitey Grovo announced Monday.

Muller appeared here several weeks ago, losing to Teddy Waters. Silent Condell and Paul Orth, both known here, will appear in the semifinal. Another preliminary will be added, Grovo said.

BOY, 16, LEADS GOLF TOURNEY

Pro's Son Shoots 69 to Pace Houston Field

HOUSTON, Feb. 22. (AP)—A 16-year-old golfer led the field today in the first qualifying round of the Houston Country club's 18th annual invitation tournament.

Willie Maguire Jr., son of the club's veteran professional, shot a par 69 and goes into the second round tomorrow with a first rate chance to win the tournament medal.

Gus Moreland of Dallas, the defending champion, had a 70 for second place. O. S. Carlton of Houston and E. J. Rogers of Oklahoma City each had a 71 to tie for third place.

Johnnie Dawson of Chicago and Gaston Peek of Houston each had a 73.

While the first flight was struggling around the course, the local second and third flighters were playing their first rounds. Visitors in the two latter classes will start tomorrow, and match competition will begin Wednesday.

The rain held off today, but there had been a super abundance previously and boats were brought to the course this morning for use on three holes. It was found later they would not be needed, but the flood conditions necessitated omitting hole No. 8 and substituting for it the practice pitch hole, with three for par, and the conversion of the par four 18th into a short par three hole.

CITY APPROVES FIRE BUDGET

Salary Cuts Would Bring 'Poverty' Wage to All that other cities, including Beaumont, have for many years used with unusual success the system to be instituted here.

Application of strict business methods, necessitated by a greatly reduced city revenue, makes the curtailment of fire department expenditures imperative, members of the council declared. Alderman J. M. Spoonts emphasized the impossibility of reducing payments on bonded indebtedness out of each year's tax revenue, and declared that reduced revenue above that fixed outlay must be met by reduced governmental expenses.

"Even after dropping 18 men from the department—against our will," said Alderman R. O. Harvey, "we have no assurance that we can retain the present salaries of the remaining 41. We want to, but unless tax payments exceed our just expectations, the city will have great difficulty in paying the salaries of the 41 men."

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., City Manager V. R. Smitham, and all the commissioners urged that reduction of 59 salaries to a point which would permit retention of that entire number would place each man on a salary too low for a fair living. It was shown that the fire department in 1931 cost the city about $66,000; that the reorganization to be made effective March 1 complies with the state fire commission's requirements; and that assurances have been given by fire insurance experts that the city's credit will be affected in no way by the change.

Mr. Mataska admitted that he had given no information whatever to signers of the petitions, and that he himself had obtained no information relative to the annual cost of fire department maintenance. He declared his agreement with the council that their paramount duty was to keep governmental expenditures within the limits of tax revenue, and expressed his belief that they "are doing all they possibly can to achieve that end."

Alderman J. S. Bridwell stated that several citizens who came to discuss with him the proposed reduction in the fire department personnel approved the step without hesitation when acquainted with the financial elements involved.

All members of the council expressed appreciation of Mr. Mataska' interest in behalf of local firemen, and declared that no consideration other than absolute necessity prompted the permanent reduction of the fire department personnel.

Harry Hines and Dr. S. S. McKenney, representing the chamber of commerce and Wichita Falls Ministerial alliance, respectively, obtained consent of the council to use the Memorial auditorium on the nights of March 23 and 24 for mass meetings on behalf of "Good Government and Law Enforcement." The permit was granted on condition that no prior engagements had been made for use of the auditorium on those dates by Building Manager George Mobley, who is confined to his home with illness. Dr. Dan A. Polling, renowned radio speaker, is to head the speakers for the mass meetings.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 22. (AP)—(USDA)—A generally steady to strong trend prevailed on fed steers and yearlings at most points but a few markets noted some weakness after outside demand had been taken care of. Most consignments were of quality to sell at $4.50@6.50 with plain dogies downward to $4.00 and below. A sizable quota of mostly good steers moved within a spread of $7.00@8.50, the outside price taking best weighty steers in Chicago. FLOOD WATERS BLOCK ROADS

10th Day of Rain Overflows Streams, Lakes

although river "bottoms" were flooded.

Creeks and irrigation ditches flooded the Iowa Park highway and farm land in that section Monday morning. High water covered about one-third of the highway between here and Iowa Park. At one point, at Plum creek, water over the roadway was 18 inches deep, according to D. M. Puckett, state highway engineer. However, traffic was not halted. Most of the inundated area had been drained by nightfall Monday.

At one place during the morning, flooding of this section started to take on serious proportions.

Inundation of a tourist park beside the Iowa Park highway six miles northwest of here occasioned the rescue of an entire family shortly before noon by Salvation Army workers.

Family Rescued
The group, consisting of a man and his wife with five children occupied a small cabin in the tourist park Sunday night, parking their car and trailer beside the building. Early Monday morning rising waters prevented their escape to the highway, and finally entered the cabin itself. A telephone call to the Salvation Army here by a resident of the community summoned aid. Flood waters had reached a depth of several inches in the building when the marooned family was rescued.

A small area in Country Club Estates was flooded with backwater from Holliday creek. Water here was receding late Monday and was expected to be drained by Tuesday.

Bus lines were operating over most of the territory served by dirt roads. However, service to Gainesville, over highway 5, was suspended. The Wichita-Waurika line was suspended Monday after the road was flooded 12 miles south of Waurika. Traffic over this route probably will be resumed Tuesday, it was said, while Gainesville service probably will be resumed by Wednesday.

Water that backed up from the Dry Fork of the Little Wichita to inundate the road three miles east of Henrietta closed the route to traffic Monday morning. Rapidly receding water, however, was expected to reopen the highway by Tuesday morning.

Annual reports of County Auditor Paul Barnett upon 1931 business of Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, and Mrs. A. B. Eichelberger, district clerk, were received by the court, and ordered filed. The reports showed that a total of $1,789.22 from excess fees already has been turned over to the county by Miss Hall, and that $433.80 in excess fees is payable to the county from the district clerk's office.

During last year receipts of the county clerk's office were $18,204.95. The office paid $11,365 in salaries to six deputies and Miss Hall received $4,000 in salary and excess fees.

Alteration Starts On Old Penney Building

Alteration of the Stringer & Robertson building, 713-715 Eighth street, at the cost of $1,000 is covered by a building permit issued by the city engineer's department Monday.

The building formerly was occupied by the J. C. Penney company. Upon completion of alterations and improvements now under way, estimated to require about 30 days, the east half of the building is to be occupied by the City Jewelry company, it was learned Monday.

The principal change to be made in the building will be the construction of a new and modern entrance. A large panel of the brick wall next the alley is to be removed and replaced with a plate glass display window. A 12-foot recess also is to be provided at the front door, affording extensive display space in the windows flanking the entrance. Work is being done by M. A. Vordenbaum, contractor.

During the ensuing week, a similar program is to be presented at Harrold, it was announced. Mr. Creighton stated that a city-wide contest among Boy Scouts has been instituted to select 10 scouts best qualified to put on scout work demonstrations in nearby towns.

George C. Wyatt, 95-year-old resident of Warren county, Missouri, took out a 1932 hunting and fishing license.

Highway Committee to Consider Three Major Projects at Luncheon Today

Three major projects will be considered at a luncheon of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce highway committee at the Wichita club Tuesday, J. S. Bridwell, chairman, announced Monday afternoon.

Plans for arranging for a delegation of the Wichita Falls committee to attend a Canada-to-Gulf highway program meeting at Frederick, Okla., Thursday will be discussed. Sam Hawks, chairman of the Oklahoma highway commission, and representatives from the various states interested are expected to attend the meeting.

Ways and means of extending and improving the recently designated Texas highway No. 66 from Reynosa, Mexico, to Wichita Falls via San Antonio, Stephenville, Mineral Wells and Jacksboro, will be discussed. It is planned to extend the route from Wichita Falls via Oklaunion, Texas, and north over the free bridge on Red river on Texas highway No. 28, and on north through Frederick, across Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota. Assurance has been given that the route will receive federal designation from Canada to Mexico.

The highway group also has been asked to aid in planning the annual meeting of the Texas highway No. 5 association, with emphasis on plans of closing the only remaining unpaved gap in North Texas on the route east of the Panhandle. This gap is between Henrietta and Gainesville, in Clay, Montague and a portion of Cooke county. Donley county is unpaved in Northwest Texas.

Cooperation in recent plans to rush closing of a gap on U. S. No. 277 between Wichita Falls and Lawton, also will be a major item to be considered at the meeting. The Oklahoma highway commission recently approved paving plans and announced a contract to be let in the near future. The paving project will shorten the distance between this city and Lawton and provide an all-weather road with exception of a short distance.

$500 Reward Offered for a Name

The distributors of one of the fastest selling lines of cosmetics in Hollywood are going to introduce a new Bath Soap which they claim is unexcelled for its soothing and cleansing effects. Before spending thousands of dollars in advertising it, they want to be sure the new Bath Soap has the best possible name, and are therefore offering a five hundred dollars reward to the person who suggests the name they choose as most suitable. Readers of this announcement are urged to send in their suggestions for a name at once, because two hundred and fifty dollars extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and post-marked before Feb. 28, 1932. Each contestant must send only one name; otherwise he will be disqualified, and the name must be mailed to Hollywood Marvel Products Co., Studio B-999, 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Everyone is invited to submit a name and in case of ties duplicate prizes will be given. Officials of the firm say that any name may win the seven hundred and fifty dollars, even if submitted on a postcard or scrap of paper; so send your suggestion at once.—Adv.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Allison Drug store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?—Adv.

DRAINAGE OF VALLEY URGED

Greever Presents Needs To Irrigation Board

Recommendations unanimously adopted last week by members of the Wichita Valley Development association calling for drainage facilities in the irrigated districts were presented formally to the board of directors of district No. 1 Monday afternoon, and are to receive consideration by that board immediately, it was learned by The Record News.

No definite action was taken by Monday's meeting of the board either with reference to drainage or to the 1932 budget, according to G. A. Remington, general manager, because of the absence of two directors. Chairman Harry Gray Jr., Homer Lee and Rhea Howard were present Monday, while Orville Bullington and J. T. Harrell were absent. A meeting is to be held at the earliest possible hour, Mr. Remington said, for action of the entire board on the matter of drainage, and on the new budget.

D. B. Greever, president of the Wichita Valley Development association, presented to the board the resolution adopted last week by that organization. It is as follows:

"To the board of directors of the Wichita County Water Improvement districts Nos. 1 and 2:

"Whereas, an emergency exists in the underground and surface drainage condition of a great portion of the land embraced in Wichita County Water Improvement districts Nos. 1 and 2, which condition is a serious deterent to the development of our irrigated valley and to the prosperity of our community, it is unanimously resolved that we recommend to your body that districts Nos. 1 and 2 proceed at the earliest possible date in such manner as you may deem most suitable with the construction of an open-ditch type or other practical drainage system throughout the valley, the cost of said operation to be taken from the operation and maintenance funds.

"This recommendation is made in the earnest belief that in no other way is it possible to properly conserve the assets of our irrigated valley.

"Respectfully submitted,

"The Wichita Valley Development association."

Discussion of the drainage problem last week by members of the development association, Mr. Greever said, resulted in the unanimous decision that a dredge should be purchased by the irrigation districts, and that work of providing drainage ditches should be pushed with all possible speed, beginning where relief is most needed.

Efforts are being made, Mr. Remington said, to convene the entire board of directors Tuesday night.

Opening of Federal Labor Bureau Delayed

The emergency federal employment office in Wichita Falls did not open as scheduled Monday, but will be opened later this week. The office has been located and office furniture was being moved in Monday, but office supplies have not been obtained, Harry Awker, manager, said.

Space for the office is being furnished by the American Refining company without cost and furnishings are supplied by the Wichita Falls Camber of Commerce. Mr. Awker daily expects to obtain supplies and location and hours will be announced as soon as the office is equipped to handle applications. The public is expected to cooperate in furnishing sources of work for unemployed persons.

Muerer to Report On Muenster Cheese Plant

A report on the operation of a cheese factory at Muenster, Texas, by J. F. Muerer of the Windthorst community is expected to feature the regular meeting of the Valley Development association board Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the chamber of commerce offices in the Hamilton building.

Location of a cheese factory here to aid in solving problems facing dairy interests is a major aim of the association. Committees of the Wichita County Dairy association will report on similar plans Saturday morning, Feb. 26.

The first private telephone call from Honolulu to the United States was made to Tryon, N. C., when Frank Moore talked to his brother, John, in the Hawaiian city.

SCHOOLS NAME CENSUS TAKERS

Brown Urges Wichitans To Aid in Report

When there's a knock at your door, don't be too sure it is a peddler or a beggar. At least for a month beginning March 1 it is more likely to be a census taker gathering information on the city schools.

W. W. Brown, secretary of the Wichita Falls board of education, Monday announced the names of census takers employed by the board. Mr. Brown urged that Wichitans answer knocks at their doors promptly in order to avoid any delay in the enumeration.

The list of census takers and their districts follow: T. W. Brumbalow, Sam Houston district; J. E. Park, Alamo district; Brumbalow and Park, Crockett; J. T. Rundell, Carrigan and Ben Franklin districts; R. A. Jarrott, San Jacinto; S. L. Butler, Fannin; Jarrott and Butler, Huey; W. A. Franklin, Austin; Joe B. McNeil, Bowie; W. E. Walker, Travis; McNeil and Walker, Barwise; and A. E. Holland, the entire negro district.

The census will be taken for all children who will be between the ages of 6 and 18 Sept. 1, 1932.
