LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. — Some kids lost their homes, others just their homework. But teachers had hugs and kind words for everyone Monday as Thurston Middle School and the rest of Southern California went back to work after a week marred by fire and smoke./8A

Shooting victim

A Midland teen was in critical condition at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Monday night after shooting himself in the head while apparently playing Russian roulette. Police received a 911 call at approximately 7:05 p.m. alerting them to a 14-year-old male shooting himself in the yard at 1706 S. Marshall St., said Sgt. David Garcia. The boy had loaded a shot into a 22-caliber six-shot revolver, spun the barrel and pulled the trigger with the gun aimed at his right temple twice before the gun went off, Garcia said. A 9-year-old female witnessed the shooting, Garcia said. No more information was available Monday and police were still investigating the incident.

Jail inmate sues

Jail inmate George A. Hall has filed a class-action lawsuit in federal court in Midland against Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter. Hall, who is jailed in the Midland County Dentention Center for bail-jumping, violation of parole and other charges, is complaining of discomfort, health risks and racism. He and approximately 50 inmates are seeking $2.5 million in damages.

Police sift remains site

Discovery spurs missing-person investigation

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

Law enforcement officials will resume searching an area northwest of Midland today where hunters stumbled onto human remains, including a skull, on Sunday.

The remains were found on property off FM 1788, about eight-tenths of a mile north of Highway 158, where an all-day search was conducted Monday by the Midland Police Department, Midland Sheriff's Office and other area agencies.

By Monday evening, officials confirmed that almost an entire human skeleton had been found on the land. No other confirmed information on the remains was available late Monday.

Police Sgt. David Garcia said police were not speculating on the identification of the remains until a pathologist's report was made.

Garcia said a police detective had contacted the parents of missing teen-ager Elizabeth Henry early Monday, but said the call was made simply out of courtesy so the Henrys would know about the discovery before they heard it through the media.

Jittery Senate weighs diaries, historic motion

■ Debate, sometimes emotional, sometimes stuck on legalities, rages for hours.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A nervous Senate debated sex, privacy and allegations of possible criminal conduct Monday in a historic effort to enforce a subpoena for Sen. Bob Packwood's "very, very personal" diaries.

Sen. Bob Packwood says the diaries include references to history-making events and matters that "are very, very personal."

"The Ethics Committee cannot turn a blind eye" to potential violations of criminal law and standards of conduct, Sen. Richard H. Bryan, the panel's chairman, said in asserting a need for the diaries.

Members of the panel rose one by one to support the subpoena in generally quiet statements. But the argument between Bryan and Packwood, R-Ore. turned heated over Bryan's assertion last week that Packwood may have violated the law.

"The chairman has branded me all over this country as a criminal," Packwood complained, jabbing his hand in the air.

Publication of White House salaries stirs discomfort

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Tense whispers and the indignant crackling of Page A15 of The Washington Post broke the morning quiet at the White House. Salaries of nearly every employee filled the page — right there in boldface! If you listened hard, you could almost hear jaws drop.

An embarrassment in any office, the publication of salaries angered some White House workers, embarrassed others, and was prime news inside the Beltway. Never mind Somalia and Haiti; did you see what Dee Dee makes?

"It's going to be nasty," one middle-level aide said grimly after the Monday morning staff meetings.

In a comical understatement, White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said the list "has created a little curiosity." Her salary: $100,000.

The list unveiled a White House pay scale that doesn't always make sense:

■ Myers makes $19,500 less than Marla Romash did as spokeswoman for Vice President Al Gore, and $18,000 less than Rahm Emanuel, an aide in the communications operation.

■ Clinton's economic policy director, Wall Street millionaire Robert E. Rubin, makes $100,000, which is

Staff report

Midlanders will go to the polls today to cast ballots on 16 constitutional amendments.

Interest in the election has been limited, even in Midland, which traditionally has a high voter turnout in all elections. However, only 1,750 ballots were cast here during early voting, which was held during the last half of October. That number represents only 3 percent of registered voters in Midland County.

Bettye Calvert, Midland County elections administrator, expects only about one-third of the county's registered voters to cast ballots for this election.

The following is a list of polling places for today's constitutional amendments special election. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

First lady Hillary Clinton passes out a copy of President Clinton's health-care reform plan in Washington on Monday.

First lady fires back, accuses insurance industry of greed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton accused insurance companies Monday of waging a deceitful campaign against the Clinton health plan to protect profits and preserve the ability to cut people off when they get sick.

"It is time for you and for every American to stand up and say to the insurance industry, 'Enough is enough. We want our health care system back,'" she told more than 2,000 pediatricians.

But the industry said it was the first lady who was guilty of deception and promised to press its $6.5 million advertising campaign that raises questions about President Clinton's health plan.

Mrs. Clinton's voice was fraught with emotion as she spoke of the "struggle" for health reform and praised the American Academy of Pediatrics for fighting for children.

Clouds, high in mid-50s on tap

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a 30 percent chance of light rain, a high in the mid-50s and north winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should have a 20 percent chance of rain, then turning fair with a low in the lower to mid-30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 60s.

After an overnight low of 37, Monday's high reached 61, compared to the record high for that date of 87 set in 1952. The record low was 22 set in 1989.

STATE

In West Texas, partly sunny skies helped push daytime temperatures into the 50s and 60s. Extremes ranged from 52 at Sanderson to 70 at El Paso.

Forecasts call for mostly cloudy to cloudy skies across the region today with a chance of light rain in the panhandles and south plains. Lows will be in the 30s and 40s with highs ranging from the 40s in the panhandles to the 70s along the Big Bend of the Rio Grande.

In North Texas, skies were mostly cloudy with temperatures in the 50s to low 60s. Winds increased significantly during the afternoon and were out of the south and southeast at speeds of 15 to 20 mph.

Skies were cloudy across most of South Texas Monday with temperatures in the 60s and 70s.

A new front is expected to move into the region this afternoon and evening, bringing a good chance of showers and thunderstorms. Lows will range from the 40s across the Hill Country to the 50s and 60s elsewhere. Highs today will be in the 60s in the Hill Country with 80s in the valley and 70s elsewhere.

NATION

Wintry weather swept across the Eastern United States on Monday, shattering dozens of low temperature records from the Atlantic coast to the gulf states.

Near-freezing temperatures across Florida cleared beaches and filled homeless shelters.

It was 30 degrees in Pensacola early Monday, breaking the mark of 34 set in 1930. The temperature fell to 27 degrees in Tallahassee, breaking the record of 36 set in 1954. And Jacksonville, Miami, Fort Myers and Daytona Beach all had their coldest days since 1954.

Some of the nation's other cities where low temperature records for the date were broken or tied included: Atlanta; New Orleans; Austin; Batesville, Ark.; Baton Rouge, La.; Birmingham, Ala; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Dayton, Ohio; Jackson, Miss.; Marquette, Mich.; and Moline, Ill.

Nearly two months before winter's official Dec. 21 start, more than a foot of snow fell on some upstate New York communities, including 13 inches at Aldercreek and Forestport. In Pennsylvania, 19 inches fell on Sabinsville and 18 inches on Litchfield.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

STIRS: List is prime news inside Beltway

(From 1A)

$5,000 less than his aide, Gene Sperling. Rubin, who originally was going to work for free, set his own salary and spread the extra salary dollars among his staff.

■ Sandy Berger, the No. 2 man in the National Security Council, earns $110,000 and Gore's national security chief, Leon Fuerth, makes $119,500.

But no matter how the salaries compare in Washington, there will be little sympathy from a general public with a median household income of $30,786.

"I think it would cause discussion in any organization to have the salaries of everybody publicized " Myers said. "We've tried as best we can to see to it that everybody's salaries match their responsibilities. Nothing can be done perfectly."

She refused to comment on her own salary, but two sympathetic insiders sniffed that Myers' pay might be higher if she were a man. They hoped Myers might be able to use the publication of the list as leverage to get a raise.

Of the 17 people listed with salaries of $125,000, four are women. Of the 26 listed who make at least $100,000 but less than $125,000, 13 are women.

Knowing the list would enrage workers, the White House refused for months to release the salary figures. Even on Monday, the list's accuracy was confirmed by an official who spoke only on condition of anonymity. Most employees refused to speak on the record, given the sensitive nature of the paycheck issue.

The White House may find a silver lining in the publication of the list: It appears to show that President Clinton, who makes $200,000, has kept his promise to pay his employees less than the previous administration did.

The highest salary is $125,000, compared to $134,000 for the highest-level salaries in the Bush administration. Lower-level employees suffered the same pay cuts.

That didn't seem to bother White House workers. What hurt was scanning the list and seeing better-paid colleagues.

One aide spit out a colleague's name and sneered, "I've got to meet with Mr. $118,000."

Jeff Eller, who heads up the press division that caters to local media, makes as much as Myers, and his workers generally earn more than Myers' staff, which works with Washington-based reporters. Both points have caused some ill feelings in the communications offices, which have a yearly salary budget of at least $2.1 million.

Steven Cohen, assistant to communications director Mark Gearan, is in the office at all hours — whenever his boss is working. He makes just $25,000, the lowest salary level published by the Post.

One low-paid aide who works about 50 hours a week shrugged when asked about the list. "I'm not even on it," he said, scuffing the floor with a shoe. "What does that say about me?"

FIRES: First lady accuses insurers of greed

(From 1A)

"Harry and Louise" television ads run by the Health Insurance Association of America that question key features of the Clinton plan.

"One of the great lies that is currently afoot in this country is that the president's plan will limit choice. To the contrary, the president's plan enhances choice," said Mrs. Clinton.

She referred sarcastically to the "homey kitchen ads" that end with a woman sighing, "There must be a better way."

"What you don't get told in the ad is that it is paid for by insurance companies who think their way is the better way," said Mrs. Clinton.

"They like being able to exclude people from coverage because the more they can exclude, the more money they can make," she charged.

Charles N. Kahn III, the health insurers' executive vice president, called Mrs. Clinton's attack on the ads "a total misrepresentation of the facts."

"It's just another example of the administration trying to paint us as the black hat to somehow help their cause," Kahn said.

The ads by the industry-created "Coalition for Health Insurance Choices" state at the end that the Health Insurance Association of America provided "major funding."

An earlier ad warned that Clinton would force people "to pick from a few health care plans designed by government bureaucrats." The latest warns that Washington would cap spending on health care and say "that's it."

Kahn said the ads may have prompted the White House to abandon an earlier proposal to limit the number of fee-for-service plans in each health alliance.

He said health insurers support comprehensive reform, including doing away with exclusions for pre-existing conditions and allowing all Americans to keep coverage when they change jobs or take ill.

The health insurance industry trade group's 271 member companies sell 35 percent of all private insurance.

Five major companies — Aetna, Cigna, Metropolitan Life, Prudential and the Travelers — have defected from the trade group.

The main target of the insurers' fire is Clinton's attempt to limit the growth of private insurance premiums to keep costs down and his plan to put most people in huge, exclusive health insurance purchasing cooperatives or alliances in their home regions.

Mrs. Clinton blamed the insurers for bringing the health care system to "the brink of bankruptcy."

WEIGHS: Ethics panel debates subpoena

(From 1A)

Bryan retorted, "My statement was only to the possibility of such criminal violations and was made in the context that this Senate needs to know of the potential gravity of the offense."

The debate, sometimes emotional, sometimes stuck on legalities, raged on for nearly seven hours before senators gave up for the night and decided to continue today.

Packwood had said earlier that his more than 8,000 pages of writings include entries on the sex lives of fellow lawmakers. He added Monday that the diaries included references to history-making events and matters that "are very, very personal."

Even as he offered a last-minute compromise to a hushed Senate, Packwood described how he had put his innermost thoughts to writing, including "family heartaches, disappointment, irritation with the car repairman."

He said a deal might be worked out if the committee would describe to him the potential criminal conduct it said it recently discovered in the diaries.

A Packwood aide said Monday morning that the senator was trying to negotiate a last-minute compromise, but there was no evidence of any talks once the debate moved to the Senate floor.

There, Sen. John Warner, R-Va., defended Packwood's contention that the committee chairman went too far in his statement about potential criminality.

"This proceeding has been seriously tainted by the word 'criminal,'" Warner said, adding that Bryan could have characterized the diary information simply as "misconduct."

Bryan said he mentioned possible criminal conduct to counter "a barrage of disinformation" by Packwood and his lawyers, who suggested the panel was on a fishing expedition.

She said a vote in favor of the committee subpoena "sends a message to citizens throughout our nation that sexual misconduct in this Senate will be investigated to the fullest possible extent."

Failure to back the committee, she said, "would send a clear message also to every woman in this country: if you are harassed, keep quiet, say nothing. The cards are stacked against you ever winning."

The ethics committee is seeking authorization for a lawsuit that would request a court order to force compliance with the subpoena.

All eyes were on Packwood in the crowded yet hushed Senate chamber as he made his case. By turns combative and accommodating, he accused his colleagues on the ethics panel of acting as "prosecutor, jury and judge," but told the rest of the Senate the matter could be settled short of a showdown vote.

The debate focused on the clash between the ethics committee's determined inquiry — which began with allegations of sexual misconduct and intimidation against Packwood — and the Oregon Republican's assertion of his constitutional privacy rights.

Bryan, D-Nev., spoke of the Senate's unprecedented moment when he told senators, "No member of the Senate, under investigation in any form by the Senate Ethics Committee, has ever in the history of the committee, refused to comply with a document request."

The committee has been investigating allegations that Packwood made unwanted sexual advances to more than two dozen women and attempted to intimidate some of the accusers to keep them quiet.

Monday's debate, however, focused on the committee's discovery of entries outside those areas, which Bryan said could involve criminal conduct.

When the committee requested those entries, Packwood's lawyers — who had been copying committee-designated pages — refused to provide them. The committee, having reviewed the diaries from 1969-89, then voted to subpoena the diaries from Jan. 1, 1989, to the present.

The full Senate now is deciding whether to vote to enforce that subpoena request.

Packwood, who has argued the committee has violated his right to privacy, spoke in his own defense.

Miss Henry disappeared from her home on Aug. 19, 1991.

Garcia said the remains were found Sunday at about 2:30 p.m. by people who were hunting on the land. They contacted the Midland County Sheriff's Office after they discovered a skull. Officials could not confirm Monday who the people were that were hunting on the land, nor was the name of the landowner available.

Sheriff's officials, along with Midland Police officers, conducted a cursory search of the area late Sunday and had the bones X-rayed, Garcia said. The officials had been joined by Department of Public Safety officers, the Texas Rangers, FBI officials in Midland and members of the district attorney's office on Monday.

Garcia said the law-enforcment officials were conducting line searches of the area Monday, since the bones had been scattered over a wide area.

"They will pick a certain area, line up in a straight line and just begin walking and looking," Garcia said. "With the wild animals out there, the remains were found over a wide area of property. It will probably be impossible to find of the remains."

Officials did not release the amount of property that would be searched.

Miss Henry is one of three Midland women who have been missing from the area and never found. She disappeared from 3610 Apollo Court after she placed a 911 call, which ended after she said she was tied up and then screamed.

After the call, police arrived at the home to find the garage door open, the back door unlocked and no signs of struggle.

June Gilkerson, 24 years old at the time of her disappearance on Nov. 8, 1986, is believed by investigators to have been kidnapped and killed shortly after her abduction. Her body has never been found.

Two men are serving prison sentences in connection with her abduction: David Alderink, 20 years in state prison, and Kenneth Wayne Parker, serving two consecutive life sentences in the federal penitentiary.

The two men had schemed to kidnap Ms. Gilkerson — Alderink's lover at the time — and sell her into prostitution in Mexico, according to testimony at Parker's trial.

Defendant, 11, sobs as prosecutor describes stoning death of toddler

Boys, who were 10 at the time of the Feb. 12 slaying, are youngest children in Britain ever to be charged with murder. Their arrests created a national furor.

PRESTON, England (AP) — One of two 11-year-old boys accused of luring a toddler from a crowded shopping mall and battering him to death with bricks and stones sobbed and whispered "Daddy, Daddy" after a prosecutor described the crime Monday.

The body of 2-year-old James Bulger was dumped on a railroad track, where it was cut in two by a train, the prosecutor said.

The boys, who were 10 at the time of the Feb. 12 slaying, are the youngest children in Britain ever to be charged with murder. Their arrests created a national furor, raising fears of a decline in British morals amid a rising juvenile crime rate.

The age of the defendants and the broadcast around the world of a fuzzy security videotape showing the blond toddler leaving the mall hand-in-hand with an older boy, drew international attention to the case.

On the opening day of their trial Monday, the young defendants sat on a specially raised platform so they could see over a brass railing as they listened to Prosecutor Richard Henriques describe the last hours of the toddler's life.

Under British law, the boys cannot be named or identified in any way because of their age. Judge Michael Morland ordered that they be referred to as "Child A" and "Child B."

"Bricks, stones and a piece of metal appear to have been thrown at James on that railway line. He sustained many fractures to the skull," he told the 12 jurors in Preston Crown Court.

"Notwithstanding their age, it is alleged they both intended either to kill James or at least to cause him serious injury," he added. "They both know their behavior was seriously wrong."

The defense will not make its opening argument until after the prosecution has finished presenting its evidence, which could take several weeks.

Throughout the day, Child A remained calm and impassive as he listened to the grim details of James' torture and death. In brief recesses, he removed his suit jacket, then loosened his tie.

Child B, dressed neatly in a suit and tie, cried silently, clinging to his social worker and mopping his face with tissues.

Child B's parents, who are divorced, sat slumped on a wooden courtroom bench, their faces etched with emotion, as they listened to the allegations against their son.

Child A's parents did not come and he was accompanied only by a social worker.

James' father, Ralph, arrived in the courtroom after testimony had begun. His wife, Denise, is 8 months pregnant and not expected to attend the trial. James was their only child.

The boys have also pleaded innocent to attempting to abduct another 2-year-old boy earlier the same day. His mother saw a boy beckoning her son and retrieved him.

Henriques said both boys were equally involved in the abduction and slaying of James.

U.S. plans to narrow focus of embargo against Haiti

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Ranking administration officials said on Monday that because a strengthened U.N. embargo on Haiti might do more harm than good, they were framing a narrower plan to impose new penalties on those who have opposed democratic rule there, rather than on Haitians in general.

At some later date, one official said, the United States might well be willing to support the sweeping sanctions urged by France and by the exiled Haitian president, the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide. But first, the official said, "we would like to try a somewhat less blunt instrument."

So calls went out over the weekend to a number of countries — France, Switzerland, the Dominican Republic, Britain, and some others — urging them to follow the American lead in freezing the assets and revoking the visas of the 40 or so principal figures in the resistance to Aristide's return to power. At the top of the list are Gen. Raoul Cedras, the army commander, and Col. Joseph Michel Francois, the chief of police in Port-au-Prince, the Haitian capital.

A resolution to the same effect is being drafted at the United Nations. It is not clear yet how much support it will command, nor has the administration received answers to its appeals to individual countries. A potential weakness in the American plan is the traditional reluctance of Switzerland to freeze assets in its banks.

A State Department planner said: "We want the people running the show to suffer, not those who live at the bottom of the heap already. They have bank accounts all over, and houses, too, and they like to fly off for elaborate vacations. Maybe this will give them second thoughts without punishing the average Haitian."

Since it became clear last week that the Saturday deadline set in a U.N.-sponsored agreement for Aristide's return would not be met, a number of academic and diplomatic experts have suggested the United States has only two choices: sending in the Marines or leaving the problem to the Haitians to resolve on their own.

But the administration, top officials insist, sees no real appeal in either alternative. President Clinton's intention, they say, is to keep pushing, through sanctions and other pressure tactics, for adherence to the agreement that was signed on Governors Island in New York harbor in July.

Inevitably, that means delay and embarrassment for Clinton. Having lined up firmly behind Aristide, the president must watch while anti-Aristide forces dance in the streets of Port-au-Prince, celebrating what they call their victory over Washington and calling for fresh elections. Aristide remains in Washington.

The administration is also loath to expand sanctions already voted by the United Nations, which affect weapons, munitions, and fuel.

In practical terms, total sanctions against Haiti would be simple. Some products could flow across the border with the Dominican Republic, but because the two countries occupy the island of Hispanola, shutting off ports and airports would shut off almost all shipments. In addition, there is near-universal condemnation of the Haitian military's actions among other nations.

Even in death, Federico Fellini assumes cinematic proportions

Relatives and close friends gathered Monday for an all-night wake at the director's favorite stage at the Cinecitta film studio, with a scene from one of his movies in the background and the lighting done by a longtime collaborator.

The funeral will be held Wednesday and broadcast live on state television.

A crowd of Romans gathered outside his apartment in the heart of this city he loved and poked fun at. Many handed condolence cards to the doorkeeper. Television crews and reporters crowded the entrance.

Fellini died Sunday after a heart attack and respiratory problems two weeks ago caused him to lapse into a coma. He was 73.

The all-night wake began Monday evening at Studio 5, the master's favorite, at the sprawling Cinecitta complex. The public was to be admitted Tuesday.

Fellini's colleagues had asked if the wake could be held there, said Cinecitta spokesman Franco Mariotti. The studio agreed, as did Fellini's wife of 50 years and sometime leading lady, Giulietta Masina, he said.

"He worked his whole life at Cinecitta. So it seems right that his final image should be here," Mariotti said. "If a king dies you have the wake in the imperial palace."

Workmen reconstructed the set of the final scene of his 1987 television movie "The Interview," an autobiographical celebration of cinema. That movie was full of the grotesque, pathetic and crazy characters that peopled his films.

At the end, Fellini is seen holding a director's megaphone as he gazes at the sky and asks, "Will we still be able to make movies?"

It was in Cinecitta that Fellini realized his conceptions of the grotesque, bizarre, earthy and fantastical nature of the human condition. Four of his 20 moves won Oscars, and Fellini received a special lifetime Oscar this year.

After "The Interview" came out, Fellini told reporters:

"All meetings, relationships, friendships, experiences, trips, begin and end for me in the studios of Cinecitta. All that exists outside the gates of Cinecitta is an enormous storehouse to visit, to plunder, to transport avidly and tirelessly inside Cinecitta. Maybe it is a privilege, maybe a servitude — but it is my way of being."

Opening lead: Seven of ♣

Usually, it does not matter whether you know the best way to play a particular combination—there is little to choose between the best and next best. But some common holdings offer vast differences between the two. The heart suit in this hand is an example.

North's jump to two no trump showed a 13-15 point balanced hand. Since it could contain four hearts, South checked by bidding the suit, then chose the suit game when North denied three hearts, but confirmed three spades by taking a preference.

After the club lead, declarer was looking at two potential heart losers and one in clubs, at least one certain trump loser and still had to worry about the bothersome fourth heart. Declarer tried dummy's queen of clubs on the opening lead only to learn there was a sure loser in the suit when East produced the king.

In with the ace of clubs, declarer wisely refrained from drawing trumps. The third trump in dummy might be needed for a heart ruff and if declarer took two high trumps the enemy might be able to draw a third round when they gained the lead in hearts.

Since cashing the ace of hearts and leading toward the closed hand would present a guess and risk a defensive ruff, declarer instead led a low heart to the ten, losing to East's jack. East cashed a high club and continued the suit for declarer to ruff. The king and ace of trumps were cashed, the nine of hearts was run successfully and the ace was cashed. It did not matter if a defender ruffed with the master trump. As the cards lay, the ace held, so declarer returned to hand with the king of diamonds and ruffed the last heart. That limited the losers to one trump, one heart and one club.

Rush Limbaugh avoids jeans, dislikes the political statement

NEW YORK — Don't bother looking for blue jeans in Rush Limbaugh's closet. He doesn't own any.

They make a political statement he doesn't agree with.

Limbaugh

"The generation I grew up with wore T-shirts, tie-dyes and jeans. Peace signs all over them," Limbaugh said. "At my little college, we had our contingent of antiwar protesters on campus, and they were all blue-jean clad."

Playboy magazine, which published a lengthy interview with the pugnacious commentator in its December edition, tried to change his wardrobe. Magazine officials tried to present him with a pair of size 44-longs.

Playboy's Cindy Rakowitz, vice president of public relations, got as far as the reception area at Limbaugh's WABC Radio studio.

"He never really agreed to be here," Rakowitz said. "We just thought it'd be a nice gesture."

LONDON — Tibet's exiled spiritual leader, the Dalai Lama, was clearly pleased Monday as he unveiled a likeness of himself at Madame Tussaud's wax museum. He laughed and then put his hands together and bowed before the statue.

"It's quite similar," said the man Tibetans worship as a "god-king."

The 58-year-old Buddhist monk and Nobel peace prize recipient gave the exhibitors a pair of glasses for the statue, which is dressed in maroon and yellow robes and stands in a room with past and present world leaders.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Crystal Gayle will sing a song specially written for the occasion when she performs in Washington on Veterans Day at the dedication of the Vietnam Women's Memorial.

The memorial, a bronze sculpture of three woman and a wounded soldier in Vietnam, is set near the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

The song, "'Til The White Dove Flies Alone," was written by Rod McBrien and John Linde to honor the 265,000 American women who served in the armed forces during the war.

LOS ANGELES — Andrew Dice Clay has signed a deal with the Fox Broadcasting Co. to create a pilot for a television series.

The Diceman and Fox executives are searching for a writer and executive producer for a half-hour sitcom starring the abrasive comedian.

"It'll take on various social issues, relationships, social commentary seen through the eyes of Andrew's character. It won't be the Dice character, but an ordinary guy with an attitude," Clay publicist Robert Pietranton said in a statement Monday.

Clay also is working on a "No Apologies" concert video and a comedy album, both to be released this month, the publicist said.

The special-effects machine overwhelmed smoke alarms at Jackson Hall in the Tennessee Performing Arts Center on Wednesday night. Security guards ushered performers and production crew outside.

That left the three women out in the cold with a host of male performers including Grandpa Jones, Carl Perkins, Ricky Skaggs and Ronnie Milsap. The men were on hand for cameos in the "Silver Threads and Golden Needles" video.

CORVALLIS, Ore. — Veteran tennis hustler Bobby Riggs says he's changed in the 20 years since his failed war against women's liberation and Billie Jean King in their "Battle of the Sexes" exhibition match.

"I consider myself just a loveable, old man who just loves women. I've reversed 100 percent," said Riggs, who spent the weekend in Corvallis visiting a friend and — what else? — playing tennis against women.

"What makes Bobby Riggs run is competition," he said. "I wouldn't sleep well tonight if I'd lost to these girls."

Riggs, a former tennis pro, lost to King in 1973 before more than 30,000 spectators in the Houston Astrodome and a national television audience.

Rancher's honor certainly deserved

It isn't every day that an acclaimed historian and rancher such as Midland's own J. Evetts Haley is lauded for his contributions to ranching in Texas. It's even more rare when someone of Haley's stature as an author is voted into a Hall of Fame in the same year as one of his historical subjects.

Yet that's exactly what will happen in the fall of 1994 when Haley, 92, is inducted into the State Fair of Texas Heritage Hall of Fame along with six other notable Texans including the late George W. Littlefield of Austin, for whom the Texas Panhandle town of Littlefield is named.

Haley, who first came to Midland about 1906, lived here during much of his youth, although in 1921 he moved to Canyon to attend what was then called West Texas Normal College. That was a move that put him in touch with his love for the history of West Texas and its people.

Inspired to tell the stories of the great individuals he met while gathering the early history of this region, Haley wrote voluminous biographies on Charles Goodnight, George Washington Littlefield and Jeff Milton. His masterpiece, "Charles Goodnight: Cowman & Plainsman," has been called the best book ever written about a Texan by a Texan. His "George Washington Littlefield, Texan" highlights the life of one of the greatest Texas ranchers. During his working life, Haley also wrote some 30 other books and literally hundreds of magazine articles.

During all the years he was writing and conducting historical research, Haley was also tending to the never-ending chores on a cattle ranch and managing ranches for other people. There's no question that he is fully deserving of the honor being bestowed on him by the Heritage Hall of Fame.

Congratulations are certainly in order.

Make your voice heard on 16 amendments

The most important "job" Midlanders have to do today is to stop at their polling place to cast their ballot in the Nov. 2 Constitutional Amendment Election.

That is, if they have not previously voted!

There are 16 amendments on today's ballot, ranging from one that would prohibit enactment by the legislature of a personal income tax without approval by the state's voters; to one that would authorize issuance of up to $1 billion in general obligation bonds to finance construction of additional state prisons and mental health, mental retardation facilities, which would address the serious overcrowding currently in county jails throughout the state; to one that would provide for an exemption from ad valorem taxation for pollution control equipment some businesses have been required to install.

It's time to make your voice heard on these and other important issues. One of the great privileges of our system of government is being able to make your opinion known on matters involving us as a people. Don't pass up this opportunity to make your voice heard.

Vote today!

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 2, the 306th day of 1993. There are 59 days left in the year. This is Election Day.

On this date:

In 1795, the eleventh president of the United States, James Knox Polk, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

In 1865, the 29th president of the United States, Warren Gamaliel Harding, was born near Corsica, Ohio.

In 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th states admitted to the union.

In 1917, British Foreign Secretary Arthur Balfour expressed support for a "national home" for the Jews of Palestine in what came to be known as "The Balfour Declaration."

In 1947, Howard Hughes piloted his huge wooden airplane, known as the "Spruce Goose," on its only flight, which lasted about a minute over Long Beach Harbor in California.

In 1976, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter became the first candidate from the Deep South since the Civil War to be elected president as he defeated incumbent Gerald R. Ford.

Five years ago: A computer "worm" unleashed by a Cornell University graduate student began replicating wildly, clogging thousands of computers around the country. The student, Robert Morris, was later tried, fined and placed on probation.

One year ago: Basketball star Magic Johnson retired again, this time for good, because of fear caused by his HIV infection. Movie comedy producer Hal Roach died in Los Angeles at age 100.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Big government main cause of nation's ills

While the president and presidentess were detailing exactly how the government plans to meet our health care needs, Martin L. Gross was getting out his latest book, whose effect is to to make one yearn for one of those hospital beds the Clintons say will always be there for us.

Murchison

The Clintons propose the biggest expansion of government since the New Deal. Gross calls today's government "the worst in the history of the Republic" — a "center of waste and irresponsibility (that) is not only bankrupting the nation, but over the last 30 years has turned its back on those who fed it: the over-taxed, overworked, neglected middle class."

Gross, in "A Call For Revolution: How Washington is Strangling America — And How to Stop it," backs his contention with statistics, including what he refers to as "the nation's longest compendium of porkage and stupidity." Congress shells out $1 million for a Utah study of how to cross the street safely, $5 million for renovation and new construction at an Air Force base earmarked for closing, $100,000 to find out why people hate beets. Just this sort of grotesquerie adorned Gross' previous best-selling book, "The Government Racket: Washington Waste from A to Z."

With Clinton's new taxes in effect next year, government at all levels will cost us 42 percent of the Gross Domestic Product. We now have twice as many cabinet slots as during the Truman era, a mere 40 years ago. With only 535 members, Congress employs 30,000 workers. Bountiful welfare "is killing the work ethic among the poor." The revolution Gross calls for clearly needed to commence day before yesterday: term limits, a balanced budget amendment, initiative and referendum (giving voters direct say in the making of laws), sharp cuts in bureaucracy, abolition of political contributions and so on.

Against this raw and windswept scenery come the Clintons to propose creation of the greatest governmental megalith ever — federal health care. That is what it amounts to, never mind the Clintons' protestations. Washington would run the show. No American would be allowed to resist the compulsory membership dues — premiums priced and administered by a National Health Board. Prices of new drugs would have to be cleared with the government.

For dissatisfied customers, a review process is provided, starting with the Federal Health Plan Review Board and proceeding from there to the U.S. Supreme Court. And this is just to hit a few of the high spots in this deeply collectivist plan, which owes far more to Otto von Bismarck, a role model for many of the Clintonites, than to Thomas Jefferson, who feared for the people's liberties should power become centered (as it has) on Washington.

Don't the Clintons get the picture? Big government is bad government. Not that the Clintons would likely listen to a critic such as Gross, but is he wrong when he says: "The money drained from the economy to run massive, untested, unproductive government programs — from Washington to the cities — is, I am convinced, the main cause of the nation's economic ills"? If he is wrong, how? Should we be glad that government sops up 42 cents of every dollar we earn?

Now health care. And the regurgitating thing is, the president and presidentess can't even prove their plan would work the way they say. Trusting in their facile assurances, we are supposed to consign to the federal government one-seventh of the U.S. economy — a portion that, once consigned, would become irretrievable.

Martin Gross, who doubtless wrote the book several months ago, doesn't mention the Clinton health care plan, but the folly of federalizing so large a chunk of the economy should be obvious. What we've already got in the way of government doesn't work.

CHARLEY REESE

School choice segregates by parents' income

The phony conservatives — neo-conservatives if you are in to political taxonomy — such as Jack Kemp, Bill Bennett, and that crowd are now touting school choice. All that shows you is what a bunch of phonies they are.

Reese

What's wrong with school choice is that it asks the wrong question.

The correct question is, Do you want to offer public education to children? If the answer is no, then abolish the whole system. The more than $180 billion public education costs, if left in private pockets, would create a market for private schools.

But if the answer is, yes, I want to keep a system of public education, then you must reject school choice.

School choice is a pirate ship sailing under false colors. The neo-cons claim that it would inject the benefits of the free market into the public education. That's false. It would not, because no government program can ever respond like a free market institution. A school denied adequate resources by a political system cannot add those resources just to keep students from leaving. In other words, the principals and teachers, unlike the owners in a private business, do not control their own finances. Consequently, they cannot respond to changes in student population.

What school choicers really want is the privilege of converting part of the public school system into their own tax-paid private school system. They want parents to be able to move children to the best-equipped, best-staffed schools in the best neighborhoods while poor children are left behind in the worst-equipped, worst-staffed schools, in the worst neighborhoods. This would create an utter sham of a public education system. It would amount to nothing more than re-segregating schools, this time on the basis of parent income instead of on the basis of race. It would rationalize the crime many public school systems already commit. That crime is providing vastly unequal resources to the children in their system.

The true conservative position is that once we commit to a government program of public education, we undertake the moral obligation to see that the program benefits every child, regardless of race, income, or neighborhood equally.

I hold with Andy Jackson, who said, "It is to be regretted that the rich and powerful too often bend the acts of government to their selfish purposes ... there are no necessary evils in government. Its evils exist in its abuses. If it would confine itself to equal protection, and, as Heaven does its rain, shower its favors alike on the high and on the low, the rich and the poor, it would be an unqualified blessing."

If a public school is underfinanced, finance it properly. If it is unsafe, make it safe. That's the proper commitment every American should make to every child in America. The Kemp-Bennett crowd's plan is: let the wealthy flee but let the middle class subsidize them, and let the poor suffer because they don't vote for us high-tone Republicans anyway.

There are exceptions but there is a correlation between parental income and parental concern about their child's welfare. Those very children suffering most from parental neglect or indifference would be the ones left behind by the exodus to the best public schools.

But in fact there should be no best public school. Not one should be any better equipped, any better staffed, or offer any better courses than another. If any do, the children of the system are being cheated.

These neo-conservatives, these Wall Street Republicans with their phony-baloney populist rhetoric, deserve to go into the ashcan of history. It says all you need to know that Republicans are paying Mikhail Gorbachev, an unrepentant though bumbling communist, $50,000 to speak at a high-tone, high-price Republican fund-raising dinner. Of all the people on earth, that ex-KGB pimp and party hack is the last one a decent American should invite to speak. It was his incompetence, not his intentions, that scuttled communism.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Now baseball is nothing but a designated game

Someone once wrote that the only uncomfortable thing that lasts longer than the National Basketball Association season was pregnancy.

Grizzard

One could say the same for that silly sport of hockey. They puck it up and down the ice for what seems like an entire year, until a bunch of guys with no teeth with names out of a Victor Hugo novel skate around with the Stanley Cup.

They play pro basketball for six months in order to eliminate Sacramento, and then they start over and play until the Fourth of July. With no Michael Jordan in the league anymore, they might as well call the whole thing off anyway.

Wouldn't bother me. The last time anybody was able to get to a pro basketball game, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was a tall guy named Lew.

But now they're doing the same thing to the baseball season. I love baseball. I've always loved baseball.

And baseball used to make absolutely perfect sense. There were two leagues, the National and the American. At the end of a 154-game season, the winners of the two leagues played in the World Series. In the daytime. On real grass. Under the sky, not a roof named for it.

And each team in each league could use only nine players at a time. Then somebody said in the American League there could be something called a designated hitter.

The pitcher on each team — pitchers are notoriously poor hitters for some reason — could stay in the dugout when it came his time to bat and somebody else could go up there and hit for him.

Why God hasn't intervened for that transgression is still a mystery. God got even with North Carolina for putting slaw on barbecue. He (or She; excuse, please) did. He or She sent North Carolina good ol' Jesse Helms.

But they still weren't through messing with baseball. They also split each league into two divisions. Gave away franchises in foreign countries, allowed artificial grass, put roofs on stadiums and started playing the World Series in the middle of the night and on the brink of November.

They still weren't finished. Beginning next season, each league will be split into three divisions and there will be another round of playoffs.

You play 162 games from April until October and the issue of the best team in each league still isn't settled without two rounds of playoffs.

The federal government couldn't screw up baseball any worse than baseball has screwed up baseball, and I mean that as the insult that it most certainly is.

Baseball is a pure game, an orderly game. The reason the uneducated think it's a dull, slow game is that they don't realize the intricacies involved on every pitch.

"A lot of stuff goes on out there," is how it was described in George Will's baseball book, "Men at Work."

But now there is an obvious move afoot to junk-up baseball.

"We're modernizing it, is all," say those behind the changes. Money-izing is what they're doing. Can't there be a few things left in this world that aren't given power steering, an automatic timer, doesn't do your thinking for you, or isn't diluted for quick cash?

I liked hotels better when they had big, brass keys, not a plastic card to get inside your room.

I liked country music better before there were guitars you plugged in. I liked bacon better when I could hear it sizzling in a pan and smell it frying. That was before you could zap it in a microwave.

Now, baseball will be like basketball and hockey. It will last much too long, give too many also-rans a second, undeserved chance, and Port-au-Prince will probably get a team, and somebody one night will shoot Jeff Blauser of the Braves, my favorite baseball player.

The "Nightmare Before Christmas." Soon, that might describe the baseball season.

The World in brief

■ Red Cross warns of massacres

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Fighting between Muslims and Croats in central Bosnia is breeding massacres of civilians, expulsions and other abuses, humanitarian groups warned on Monday.

Months of fighting has stoked ethnic hatred between the two groups, whose anti-Serb alliance has unraveled in territorial disputes. They are feuding over land uncontrolled by ethnic Serbs, who hold more than 70 percent of Bosnia after 19 months of war.

Tensions are highest in the Vares pocket, a patchwork of territory controlled by forces of the Muslim-led government, Croats and Serbs. Bosnian Croat troops massacred dozens of Muslim civilians a week ago in the village of Stupni Do, just south of Vares.

■ Turnaround in Peru draws investors

LIMA, Peru — Once crippled by guerrilla violence that left more than 25,000 dead and $23 billion in losses and considered by many to be ungovernable, Peru these days is drawing a rash of investors ranging from the United States to South Korea who are looking for big returns.

Foreign executives — many of whom admit they are taking big risks — are doing what as recently as mid-1992 was considered unthinkable for the profit-minded — pouring hundreds of millions of dollars into one of the poorest and most chaotic countries in the third world, buying mines and television stations, fishing companies and airlines.

Though the investments are still small by world standards, they are enormous by Peruvian standards. They are also the strongest sign yet that Peru may be on its way back from what many experts had predicted 18 months ago would be virtual collapse from rampant guerrilla violence.

■ Raids mark 4th day of settler uprising

BEIT EL, Occupied West Bank — Jewish settlers blocked roads and torched an Arab classroom on Monday, in the fourth day of defying a government they say has sacrificed them for peace with Palestinians.

The rampage erupted Friday when Muslim militants killed a settler. The settlers also took over some vacant government homes, proclaiming themselves squatters.

The scope and intensity marks a turning point in the settlers' resistance to the Israel-PLO negotiations and underscores how easily extremists on both sides can upset the peace agreement.

■ Salinas cautions Mexico on free trade

MEXICO CITY — Mexicans should not pin their hopes for prosperity on free-trade agreements with the United States and Canada, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari said Monday in his annual address to the nation.

In his three-hour State of the Union address, Salinas defended the progress of his administration's economic and democratic reforms and continued to push for ratification of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

But Salinas cautioned Mexicans against expecting too much from what would be the world's largest free-trade zone.

Vietnam's famed general fades, doesn't die

By Goerge Esper
Associated Press

'My spirit is still young, my heart still remains young.'
— Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap

HANOI, Vietnam — Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap is like the old soldier of the British war ballad who never dies — but only fades away.

He is 82 now, this legendary warrior who defeated the French at Dien Ben Phu and held off half-a-million American troops a decade later.

"My spirit is still young, my heart still remains young," he says. To prove his point, he arises each day at 5 a.m. and exercises for an hour.

He wields little power today in a new Vietnam that has borrowed some ideas from its old adversary, the United States, for an economy that is changing course from communism to a Western-style free market.

His hair is white and he still wears the four red stars of his glory days across the collars of a military tunic. He is animated when he speaks, spreading his arms to show distance, waving his fingers for emphasis.

"I was a journalist when I was 18 and that is why I understand the curiosity of journalists," he tells a reporter during an interview with The Associated Press.

He prefers speaking in French. But at the end of the interview, as he bid his guest farewell, he spoke his only words of English haltingly: "Best wishes to you."

This engaging manner, his smile and wit mask the ruthlessness that resulted in the deaths of thousands who opposed communism in North Vietnam after World War II.

Despite his being shunted aside, he still implores the Communist Party line and is still the advocate for a renovated socialism, as he puts it, which incorporates the best ideas other nations have to offer.

He wants reconciliation with the United States after a savage war during his watch that cost the lives of nearly 60,000 Americans and as many as 2 million Vietnamese.

Giap declined to give out any official figures but did not challenge the 2 million estimate. He said the majority were civilians, but in mobilizing for war, Giap drew no distinction between them and soldiers.

Vietnam bears no grudges, he says, and the United States should lift its trade embargo and establish diplomatic relations with Hanoi.

"The Vietnamese people only wish peace and friendship," he says. "I am surprised President Clinton, who is very intelligent, is still maintaining a policy which is obsolete. We always wish friendship and cooperation between the two nations."

Giap says Vietnam waged the long war to bring peace. "You can call me a general of war and at the same time you can call me a general of peace."

In his view, the United States underestimated Vietnam.

"Americans thought they were coming to wage a war against a young and very badly equipped army but the Pentagon didn't understand the war was not only against one army but against an entire nation. President Ho Chi Minh said it was a national war of all the people."

He outwitted America's fleet of warplanes including the mighty B52 bombers, he says, by jamming their radar and setting up fake targets as decoys.

"The B52s are bombing here, but we are there," he says cutting an imaginary line with his hands.

"They are bombing a fake target, of course. You understand, I cannot tell you everything," he says with a smile.

In retrospect, he says the lesson of Vietnam for the United States is this: "In spite of all the gigantic military and economic force, you cannot win over the spirit, the wish for peace and independence."

He speaks well of his old foe, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, praising him for his education and military knowledge and calling him a hero of World War II.

"Gen. Westmoreland has the sense of responsibility to carry out his task as entrusted by his government. But he's just like other generals who were defeated partly because of himself personally and partly because of the policy of aggression of the U.S. government. He could win the war against the German fascists but when he came here he was against a whole nation."

When the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government fell and the North captured Saigon, it was Gen. Van Tien Dung, chief of the general staff, who was hailed as the hero.

Giap was dropped as defense minister in 1986 and from the policy-making Politburo two years later.

Emerging from scandal, prince has new confidence, image

By William E. Schmidt
N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — For the residents of the bleak South London housing project, it might as well have been the man from Mars. There, marching across their concrete courtyard one morning last month, was the Prince of Wales, smartly dressed in a gray double-breasted suit and dodging the dog refuse as he led a phalanx of pin-striped London business executives on an inner-city tour.

The prince was on a royal mission, this time a discreet pitch to cajole British businesses to invest their companies' talents and resources in rescuing decaying urban neighborhoods. While the executives gathered around, Prince Charles walked up to surprised tenants, shaking hands and posing questions in his excruciatingly polite manner: Are there jobs for people? Do you find the local public transportation adequate? Is your rubbish collected every week?

When three women standing beneath a ramp caught his attention with a shrill yell of "Hellooo Charlie," he stopped, leaned over the railing and asked if they lived in the modern but badly battered high-rise apartment building overlooking the courtyard.

"Can't we get these things pulled down?" one of the women said.

"I was just asking that myself," the prince said, casting a disapproving look toward the gloomy building.

For the prince, who turns 45 this month, such is life these days in the royal fast lane. Nearly a year after he and the Princess of Wales separated, culminating a long period of public scandal and embarrassing private disclosures, Prince Charles has emerged at last from the fog of tabloid sensation with what friends call a renewed sense of confidence, and what some British newspapers and critics describe as a retooled image.

In the last 10 days alone, the prince seemed to pop up everywhere, talking about nearly everything. On Wednesday, he delivered a speech in Glasgow, condemning the "spiral of despair" faced by children in urban public housing tracts; on Thursday, at the Oxford Center for Islamic Studies, he used his royal platform for an unusual foreign-policy broadside, denouncing Saddam Hussein for his brutal treatment of Shiites in the marshes of southeast Iraq.

On Oct. 22, the same day he visited the inner-city housing project, he told an interviewer on a London pop music station that one of his favorite performers was Tina Turner, the American soul singer.

Sydney police find fifth body in forest

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Police found a skeleton Monday in a forest where the remains of four murdered backpackers were discovered earlier.

Police said the unidentified skeleton was unearthed during a search of the Belanglo State Forest near Bowral, 60 miles southwest of Sydney.

Police searched the area after the bodies of two Australian backpackers, James Gibson and Deborah Everist, both 19, were found by a gold prospector a month ago. The couple disappeared in 1989.

In August 1992, police found the bodies of British tourists Joanne Walters and Caroline Clarke, both 22, nearby. They were last seen alive four months earlier.

Police theorize all four were murdered by a sole serial killer. All had been stabbed. Miss Clarke also was shot.

Wisconsin gets OK to experiment with welfare limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration gave Wisconsin permission Monday to experiment with a two-year limit on welfare benefits and allowed Georgia to cap payments to families who have additional children while on the rolls.

The governors of Wisconsin and Georgia say their reforms will reduce long-term dependency on welfare, but advocates for the poor say the changes punish some of the country's most vulnerable families with children.

President Clinton popularized the idea of a two-year limit on welfare benefits during his 1992 campaign and promised it would be the cornerstone of national welfare reform.

But a senior official of the Department of Health and Human Services said the administration's decisions on experiments like Wisconsin's should not be interpreted as "the direction in which welfare reform is going."

"Our approval of Wisconsin's demonstration shows that the Clinton administration is serious about providing states with the flexibility needed to test innovations," said HHS Deputy Secretary Walter D. Broadnax.

In its negotiations with Wisconsin, the administration won some compromises in the "Work Not Welfare" experiment designed to protect families of recipients who cannot find a job or who are forced from the rolls of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), the formal name for welfare.

Wisconsin agreed it would not halt welfare payments to families who are unable to find work in the local area as a result of lack of appropriate jobs. In addition, families which exhaust their cash benefits still will be covered indefinitely by Medicaid, the HHS official said.

Families also will receive help with their child care expenses for a year after going to work.

In an interview late Monday, Gov. Tommy Thompson, a Republican, called Wisconsin's plan "a revolutionary concept. ... Welfare was never set up to be a permanent thing."

But advocates for the poor contend Work Not Welfare hurts low-income families.

"This is not a program to replace welfare with work. It is a program to replace welfare with nothing," said Mark Greenberg, senior staff attorney with the Center for Law and Social Policy, a liberal research and advocacy organization in Washington.

Greenberg said Wisconsin's experiment is inconsistent with the president's stated goals for welfare reform and reflects a willingness by the administration to "sacrifice poor families in the name of furthering state flexibility."

"The president has always talked about providing work opportunities for families instead of welfare. He has never advocated simply terminating benefits and leaving parents with no means to support their families," Greenberg said.

Wisconsin officials had been pressing the White House in recent weeks to waive federal welfare regulations to permit Work Not Welfare.

The federal government must approve any changes that states want to make in AFDC and Medicaid.

Wisconsin will test its reform in two counties. With exceptions, AFDC benefits will be limited to two years in a four-year period, and once benefits are exhausted, recipients would be ineligible for 36 months.

Earlier Monday, Georgia officials announced that the administration had agreed to waive federal welfare rules to allow the state to reduce welfare payments when an able-bodied adult refuses an offer of full-time employment or quits a job without cause.

The state also will be able to deny increases in benefits for families that have additional children after they have been receiving welfare for at least two years.

The average AFDC payment for a family of three in Georgia is $140 a month. Parents who have additional children get $45 more a month.

Greenberg said the caps "appeal to the worst popular stereotypes about AFDC families" and could cause great harm to families with infants.

Gov. Zell Miller said Monday's decision "places Georgia among the nation's leaders in welfare reform."

Officials investigate possible drug overdose in actor's death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — River Phoenix lay dying on the sidewalk while his brother pleaded with a fire department dispatcher to send help for the actor, who collapsed outside a nightclub.

"You must get here, please, you must get here, please," his brother said. "I'm thinking he had Valium or something."

First, the 23-year-old actor was writhing on the sidewalk. Then he lay motionless, as if sleeping. Within an hour, Phoenix was pronounced dead early Sunday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

An autopsy Monday was inconclusive, said coroner's spokesman Scott Carrier. Results of blood and chemical tests will take weeks, he said.

But paramedics were told the actor had been taking drugs, county fire Capt. Ray Ribar said.

"It was the classic cocaine overreaction — it just nails some people and stops the heart," he said.

Phoenix, who received an Academy Award nomination for the 1988 movie "Running on Empty," collapsed after partying with his brother, Joaquin "Leaf" Phoenix, 19, and actress Samantha Mathis at the Viper Room in West Hollywood. The club is owned by actor Johnny Depp.

"After eight minutes of seizures, arms flopping, his knuckles hitting the sidewalk, his head banging back and forth, his feet flopping up and down, after about eight minutes of that, he finally became still, completely still," witness Ron Davis told "Hard Copy."

Several yards away on a pay telephone, Phoenix's brother was frantically trying to get help. The dramatic four-minute 911 emergency call provided a chilling account of the actor's final minutes.

"Where is the guy? (paramedic) ... Please, 'cuz he's dying, please!" the actor's brother told the dispatcher.

"He's laying on the cement," Leaf Phoenix said.

"Is he breathing?" the dispatcher asked.

"I don't know. The last I checked they said he was breathing," he said, yelling to a companion. "Is he ... breathing? (back to dispatcher) I don't know if he's breathing. Please, you got to get over here! Where's the ambulance?"

Moments later, a calm Leaf Phoenix told the dispatcher: "He's not having the seizures anymore. He's just passed out. ... He just looks like he's sleeping."

Phoenix had been in the midst of filming the movie "Dark Blood" with Judy Davis and Jonathan Pryce.

Phoenix had been cast opposite Tom Cruise and Brad Pitt in the film version of novelist Anne Rice's "Interview With a Vampire." Filming had been scheduled to begin Nov. 25 and Phoenix's role as the interviewer will be recast, Warner Bros. said.

Phil Alden Robinson, who directed Phoenix in last year's "Sneakers," said he was talented and willing to take risks in his acting.

"There are two rivers flowing through him," Robinson said. "One is the adventurous young man and the other is a very old-fashioned, gentlemanly, kind soul."

The actor's family, gathering in Los Angeles, said in a statement: "His beauty, gentleness, compassion, vulnerability and love is a gift for all eternity."

Columbia returns to Earth; tests go on for astronauts

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Columbia glided to Earth under a rising sun and setting moon Monday after the longest space shuttle flight in history. Then, its seven astronauts went to bed — sort of.

After 14 days in orbit, the crew was carried off Columbia on stretchers to preserve the effects of weightlessness for tests that will be conducted on some of them for up to 45 days.

"Our best model for simulating weightlessness is putting people to bed," said project scientist Frank Sulzman.

Columbia floated through a clear morning sky over the Mojave Desert before 35,000 spectators cheered its 7:05 a.m. touchdown. The astronauts returned to the Space Center in two aircraft; which left Edwards at 2:07 p.m. and at 2:18 p.m., said NASA spokeswoman Nancy Lovato.

At 14 days, 13 minutes, the mission exceeded by nearly five hours the previous shuttle flight record, set by a crew aboard Columbia last year. It was the fourth longest flight of any kind in U.S. space history.

Columbia logged 5.8 million miles and circled Earth 225 times after its Oct. 18 launch from Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

Touchdown meant the end of the line for all but five of 42 rats that survived the flight. A team of 100 scientists waited to quickly dissect them after being unloaded from Columbia. Six other rats were dissected in space.

Tom Utsman, NASA's shuttle director, said Columbia sustained some damage to its protective heat tiles and to a thermal shield in the engine area, but the damage wasn't major.

"I don't think it's a show-stopper by any means," he said.

The crew, which included two physicians, a biochemist and a veterinarian, focused on medical research to better understand how the body changes in weightlessness.

NASA wants to know what causes side effects of space travel and how those maladies can be counteracted. Common ailments include motion sickness, anemia, weakened muscles and bones, and lightheadedness upon return to gravity.

The crew will be subjected to "grueling" tests over two weeks, Sulzman said. Some will undergo more tests over 45 days. All will then be part of the on-going lifetime study of NASA's astronauts.

NASA's next shuttle flight and the last one for 1993 is the monumental Hubble Space Telescope repair mission.

Slated for a Dec. 1 liftoff, the 11-day flight by the shuttle Endeavour is considered the most ambitious mission in shuttle history.

Endeavour's astronauts are to perform a record five and possibly seven spacewalks to correct Hubble's distorted vision and make other repairs.

The four designated spacewalkers, each with spacewalking experience, have spent nearly 400 hours training underwater for the excursions.

NASA recently cleared the telescope's replacement camera for flight. Additional tests were ordered after some data indicated the new wide field and planetary camera might be off focus; last month's checks concluded everything was fine.

Charred communities return to 'somewhat normal' system

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Some kids lost their homes, others just their homework. But teachers had hugs and kind words for everyone Monday as Thurston Middle School and the rest of Southern California went back to work after a week marred by fire and smoke.

"In every classroom, I've got two or three kids that have lost everything," said Mark Dressler, a theater and language teacher at the ridgetop school, where fire razed 14 of 26 classrooms Wednesday.

"It's kind of hard to feel sorry for yourself when they have a smile on their face and they're anxious to put their lives together," said Dressler, whose files and lesson plans were destroyed.

Assisted by cool weekend weather, firefighters were able to douse or contain most of 13 major wildfires that broke out last week along a 200-mile arc from Ventura County through Los Angeles to the Mexican border.

The fires, whipped by Santa Ana winds from the deserts east of Los Angeles, burned across 171,368 acres, damaged or destroyed 830 buildings, including at least 700 homes, and injured 62 people, most of them firefighters.

On Monday, firefighting crews enjoyed more of a truce than an outright victory.

The Highway Patrol issued a wind advisory for desert highways north of Los Angeles, and the National Weather Service predicted canyon winds up to 35 mph Tuesday, with stronger gusts.

Northeast of Los Angeles in San Bernardino County, winds kicked up Monday while fire crews stockpiled equipment, replenished supplies and prepared for new outbreaks.

"We're definitely keeping everybody around for a while," said Capt. Gary Hankins, spokesman for the San Bernardino County Fire Department and the California Department of Forestry.

"We can't control high winds, but we can ensure we have adequate firefighters," Gov. Pete Wilson said.

Home and business owners, including 366 burned out in Laguna Beach alone, trooped to federal offices in four counties for help with rebuilding loans. Red Cross volunteers issued meal and clothing vouchers, and many Californians organized their own aid operations.

"Donation for five families here," said a sign on the door of Earlene Moses' gallery, one of dozens in this seaside artists' haven. "They need everything. Please help."

At Thurston, kids will double up in classrooms on a short schedule until trailers are ready next week.

"All my homework was in the part which burned, which made me happy," said Joey Moldenhauer, 13. "I would rather not have had the school and homes burn. Now the animals and some people are without houses."

After a half-day of school, most of the 560 students assembled on the athletic field — a green square surrounded by blackened residential hillside.

"Tomorrow we are going to start school and return to a system that is somewhat normal," Dressler told them. "We teachers are here to help you guys. I sustained losses to my classroom too. Let's hold together here and be each others' friend."

Inmate escapes

PALESTINE — A Texas inmate serving a life sentence for rape and robbery made a brief escape Monday from the Beto I Unit, officials say.

Gary Guidry, 20, escaped around 1 p.m. by jumping from a prison truck and running into the nearby woods, prison officials said. He was recaptured without incident about two hours later.

Guidry escaped near the intersection of Farm-to-Market roads 635 and 3328 but prison spokesman Charles Brown had no more details about how Guidry, a mechanic at the unit, fled from the prison truck on which he was riding.

Guidry is serving a life sentence for two counts of aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon and one count of aggravated sexual assault with a deadly weapon out of Nueces County. He arrived at the Beto I Unit near Palestine on June 17.

Escapees arrested

LUBBOCK — Police on Monday arrested three Alabama prison escapees, two of whom were found inside a vehicle linked to a Lubbock homicide.

Daniel Josey, 20, and Edward Stephens, 30, were taken into custody at about 3:30 a.m. They face charges of escape, vehicle theft and possession of a firearm, said police Sgt. B.K. Hurst.

Charles Dickson, 25, was arrested at 11 a.m. at the Sunset Motel. He faces a charge of escape, said police Sgt. Randy McGuire.

Josey had been convicted in Mobile, Ala., of criminal mischief and third-degree burglary. Stephens was convicted in Montgomery, Ala., of first-degree robbery. Dickson was convicted in Mobile of theft, third-degree burglary and criminal possession of a forged instrument.

Hospital board appoints director

■ Longtime Midland resident Ora Williams succeeds Margaret Williams as MMHMC board representative.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Ora Williams, who has the "hope (that) I can make a difference for the better" in the community, has been appointed a director of the Midland County Hospital District.

She is succeeding Margaret Williams, a retired Midland schoolteacher and former hospital-board president, who recently relocated to the Dallas area.

"I think Midland Memorial Hospital (and Medical Center) is a great place," said Ora Williams, who is not related to Margaret Williams. "It has come a long way" since the hospital was established as a 75-bed community hospital in 1950 and since has expanded to a 335-bed regional hospital and medical center.

Ora Williams, who has lived in Midland since 1950, is serving out Margaret Williams' four-year term, which expires in 1996. Then, if she so chooses, Ora Williams may campaign for election to the seven-member board, which oversees the hospital's health care for the indigent, uninsured and under-insured patients and monitors the hospital's operation.

The board was established in 1977 after Midland voters approved the Midland County Hospital District, a taxing entity which funds health care for Midland's indigent and those who are uninsured or under-insured and who haven't the resources to pay for hospital services.

"There are so many people who just can't afford health care," Mrs. Williams said. "They are on fixed income.

"We are in hard times now. And so many people have lost their jobs. That's what makes the difference — the economy."

Mrs. Williams said that he was "elated" to be appointed by the board to the post.

"It is a very prestigious job," she said. "I am in there with a lot of beautiful people. They extended their arms of love and friendship to me. They made me feel so comfortable."

Mrs. Williams, a Midland homemaker, came to Midland from Bremond in the Waco area in 1950 to visit her brothers. She started her work career here as an elevator operator in the old Shell Building — the Petroleum Building.

In 1953, she was married to Joe L.

Diver gives back to sport by coaching

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

When she was a young teen in Chicago, her friends dared her to try a double summersault off the diving board. When she succeeded, her awe-stricken friends urged her to try out for the high school diving team.

"I tried everything and came out OK. It's just something I caught on very quickly and the more I did it the more I liked it," said 28-year-old Jennifer Mangum.

That talent evolved Ms. Mangum into a championship diver, who sports national and world titles. A Midland High School teacher, Ms. Mangum still competes as well as coaches young divers locally, and gives talks around the country about how pressure on athletes can lead to eating disorders.

She attributes her success as a diver to her physical abilities and enthusiasm.

"I'm very quick and very strong and because of my quickness and strength I spin very well. And I have no fear. And my size helps because I'm small. And I have a desire to be good. I have a lot of desire," she said.

Those traits have been with Ms. Mangum since she was a high school freshman trying out for the diving team.

"The coach asked me if I could do this and do that. Anything they asked me I'd try," she said. "I really didn't have any fear."

By her junior year, she was the best on her high school team. That year, she fared fourth in the state, and sixth the next year.

Due to her potential, she was recruited by six universities. She chose Texas Tech in Lubbock, where she studied math and physics. She dove for three years until the school dropped the program.

COP helps telephone users prevent crime

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Someone going from car to car peering in the windows, a man carrying a stereo down the road late at night and a person screaming may indicate criminal activity.

What should an observer do?

Call the police.

To urge Midland-Odessa residents to keep their eyes open and the police informed, a program — Cellular on Patrol (COP) — began Monday that allows cost-free cellular telephone calls to law enforcement agencies.

"COP gives people the opportunity to report things that seem suspicious," said Sherry Witt, regional director for Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems, developer/underwriter of the program.

"There are things we see every day but we don't really see them," she said.

A brochure describing what activities might warrant a call, who to call, and how to call, and a window decal for a participant's vehicle are available at Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems and their agents, Newman Outdoor Advertising, the Reporter-Telegram, the Odessa American, News West 9 television and KNFM radio.

There are more than 10,000 cellular telephone users in Midland and Odessa, Ms. Witt said.

Rising crime rates have prompted the need for citizens to help prevent crime, law enforcement officials said.

"The more eyes and ears we have out there the better off our community is going to be," said Odessa Police Chief James Jenkins.

Midland Police Chief Richard Czech concurred. "As I've said for years, the Midland Police Department and other police departments cannot do the job alone," he said.

Mobile telephone customers, who want to report suspicious activity, can call *MCOP in Midland County for police/sheriff, *ECOP in Ector County for police/sheriff, and for car accidents outside city limits, *DPS for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Loop 250 undergoes extensive construction

Staff report

Construction of a nearly three-mile portion of Loop 250 began Monday.

Jones Bros. Dirt & Paving of Odessa started the work on the westernmost end of Loop 250 that extends from about a mile west of Midland Drive to approximately a mile east of Midkiff Road, said Mike Cherry, the Texas Department of Transportation engineer in charge of the project.

"Construction activity should be contained within the actual Loop 250 right-of-way except when we are building the overpasses at the interchanges of Midland Drive and Midkiff Road," Cherry added.

Work on the Midkiff interchange near Midland Park Mall is not expected to begin until after the Christmas holiday, he added.

The initial work should not interfere with the normal traffic flow along the frontage roads currently in use, Cherry said, but motorists are urged to use caution because trucks and equipment will be entering and exiting the construction work sites.

The $6.3 million project, estimated to be completed by March of 1994, is the first phase of a $10.5 million construction plan that will create a continuous four-lane Loop 250 from Interstate 20 to just west of Garfield Street in Midland over a three-year period, Cherry said.

Transportation department officials will meet with area merchants to explain the projected work sequence and to reassure them that traffic interruptions will be minimal through the Christmas shopping season, Cherry added.

Symposium to feature Goldwater, other aviators

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

World War II flying ace Francis "Gabby" Gabreski, former United States Sen. Barry Goldwater, and post-war supersonic test pilot Scott Crossfield will headline the American Airpower Heritage Museum's symposium, "A Sleeping Giant Awakens," on Nov. 11, 12, and 13 at the Confederate Air Force's headquarters at Midland International Airport.

"The symposium is designed to foster research of the World War II era and to enhance public knowledge of the events of 50 years ago that helped shape today's society," said Terese Buckley, the museum's curator of education.

The symposium's highlights include:

■ Goldwater, the former Arizona senator, the 1964 Republican Party presidential candidate, and a World War II pilot, will speak on "The World Today" in his 11:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 12, address, in the CAF Hangar.

Goldwater, a non-rated test pilot who has logged more than 15,000 flight hours, has flown the Lockheed U-2, subsonic reconnaissance airplane; the Lockheed SR-71 Blackbird supersonic reconnaissance aircraft; the Rockwell International B-1 bomber, and the XV-15.

■ Gabreski, who was America's leading ace in the war's European Theater, will talk on "The Eighth Air Force's Fighter Operations and the Role of the 56th Fighter Group" in the 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 13, luncheon in the CAF's Hangar.

Gabreski was an ace in two wars: in World War II wherein he flew Republic P-47 Thunderbolt fighters for the U.S. Army Air Corps and in the Korean War wherein he flew North American F-86 Sabre jets fighters. Gabreski shot down 28 enemy aircraft in the European Theater in the P-47 to become The Eighth Air Force's leading ace.

■ Crossfield, a World War II naval aviator and flight instructor who set many supersonic speed records in the post-war years, will speak on "Onward and Upward or Research Airplanes — Act II," at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13, in the CAF Hangar.

An aeronautical engineer, test pilot and project engineer in the early X-series aircraft, Crossfield was hailed as the "fastest man alive." He has set many speed records, including the first man to fly Mach 2 and Mach 3 — two and three times the speed of sound. In the 1950s, Crossfield, a civilian test pilot for the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics (NACA), flew the B-52-launched North American X-15 rocket-powered aircraft at 1,500 mph at 50,000 feet. In the 1960s, he became the first pilot to "reach Mach 3 and survive.

Aside from talks by the principal speakers, the symposium will feature more than 20 sessions on various World War II aspects, such as women's role in in the war; the building of America's industrial-military might; the facts and myths of the "Memphis Belle," a Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress; the legend of the B-17 Flying Fortress, and a psychological viewpoint of World War II.

"By providing a platform for enlightened and enthusiastic speakers," Ms. Buckley said, the American Airpower Heritage Museum's symposium will entertain and inform the audiences.

Entertainment in the form of the musical revue, "World War II Red, White and Blue" by Midland playwright Linda Thorsen Bond, will be presented in a song-and-dance program from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 12, in the CAF Hangar. Renee Spicer of Midland Community Theatre note and Kurt Kiser of Odessa's Permian Playhouse will be singing 1940s love songs in the revue.

Ms. Spicer, who has been featured in the theatre's "Peter Pan," "Nunsense," and "Educating Rita," works for WJP Partners and is Saint Mark's United Methodist Church's choir director.

Kiser, who appeared in "Love Letters" in the Permian Playhouse and in "A Slice of Texas Toast" in Midland and Odessa, is news director of KOSA-TV in Odessa.

Kathy Robbins is musical director of the Bond revue. Billy Cook will be working with historian Patsy Edwards on the costumes, and Jim Ross will be the show's pianist.

Following the musical, the Dow Jones Average dance band will be playing big-band music from the World War II era.

The $25 per-person admission price to the revue includes the evening meal and dance. Registration may be made by telephoning symposium co-sponsor Midland College at 685-4518.

Registration information for the symposium may be obtained by telephoning the Midland College Continuing Education number, 685-4518. Additional information may be obtained by calling Ms. Buckley at CAF Headquarters at 567-3010.

Cost of the two-day concurrent symposium sessions is $60 per day per person, $45 per day for CAF and AAHM members, and $10-per-day rate for students.

Admission to Goldwater's and Gabreski's luncheon talks are $15 each, and the admission price to Crossfield's evening buffet dinner address is $25 per person.

The symposium's two-day academic presentations and panel discussions on Nov. 12 and 13 will include studies on the "Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress — A Legend in Its Time"; the building of America's "Arsenal of Democracy"; "Escape and Evasion in the European Theater of Operations"; a study of the "Women Airforce Service Pilots (WASP)"; "Worker, Wife and Wench: The Images of Women in World War II"; the history of "Nose Art" on warplanes; "Looking at World War II from a Psychological Point of View," and "Memphis Belle: The Machinery of Myth and the Myth of the Machine."

Symposium speakers will include Tim Wooldridge, author of "Winged Wonders: The Story of Flying Wings" and former chairman of the National Air and Space Museum; Werner Seitz, former German Luftwaffe pilot; Jeremy Howard-Williams, a World War II British Royal Air Force nightfighter pilot; Don Sachs, an aviation consultant formerly with the Boeing Aerospace Company; Roger Bilstein, University of Houston history professor and author of such books as "Flight in America: From the Wright Brothers to the Astronauts" and "Order of Magnitude," and James Corum, author of "Roots of Blitzkrieg" or "Lightning War," and professor of comparative military studies at the U.S. Air Force School of Advanced Airpower Studies at Maxwell Air Force Base.

Two years ago, prior to the formal opening of CAF Headquarters in Midland in 1991, the museum hosted the symposium, "Prelude to Pearl Harbor: The Interwar Years," which featured historians and air-combat veterans. Among the guest lecturers were Joseph Jacob "Joe" Foss, U.S. Marine Corps ace in World War II, and David Eisenhower, political scientist and grandson of Dwight David "Ike" Eisenhower, who was Supreme Allied Commander for the D-Day invasion of Europe on June 6, 1944, and two-term president of the United States at mid-century.

MANGUM: Championship diver coaches students

After the program was cut, her participation in diving dwindled and stopped for a few years.

But while coaching high school divers in Lubbock in 1988, her students persuaded her to return to the sport. "Once I started diving, I was hooked again," she said.

In 1990, she entered her first Masters Nationals Competition, for amateur divers 21 years and older competing in age groups. She took first in three indoor events: one meter springboard, three meter springboard and platform. Outdoors, she took one first and two seconds.

The next year, she won all three indoor events plus the grand masters. At the outdoor competition, she placed second in all four events.

Then in 1992, she won four indoor events and placed second in three outdoor events.

That same year, her performance was recognized in world competition. At the World Championships in Indianapolis, Ms. Mangum took first on the one meter and three meter, and second on the platform.

This year, Ms. Mangum won all four outdoor events at the Masters Nationals Competition. She didn't compete at the indoor meet.

Ms. Mangum said her best event is the one meter because she does well; her favorite event, the three meter because of the challenge; and the platform is her fun event.

Ms. Mangum said she plans to continue to compete at the Masters, and will consider trying out to qualify for the Senior Nationals Competition.

Her interest in diving doesn't end with competition.

Since this summer, after moving to Midland from Lubbock, she has coached divers at the City of Midland Aquatics, and Midland and Lee high schools.

She came to Midland for her teaching career, and the diving program and facilities offered at the COM Aquatics center.

"I wanted to build a strong junior Olympic (under 18 years old) program and I felt I couldn't do that in Lubbock," she said. "Here we already got a pretty good start."

Coaching helps her give back to the sport by developing other divers, and helps her diving at the same time, she said.

During her years as a diver, Ms. Mangum has learned first hand the pressures placed on athletes.

For four years while in college, Ms. Mangum suffered from bulimia that began in her quest to be a leaner diver.

These days, she speaks around the country to various groups, coaches and athletes about how pressures to be good can lead to eating disorders, especially among elite athletes.

"It is very prevalent in sports that are judged subjectively," she said.

While not educating people on eating disorders or coaching divers or diving herself, Ms. Mangum spends much of her time in the classroom teaching. So does her husband, Paul, a fellow high school teacher.

As a high school algebra and geometry teacher, Ms. Mangum said she would like to see some of her students — about one-third — show more enthusiasm for academics as other activities.

Ms. Mangum also enjoys singing with the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale.

Officials investigate death of teen killed during house party

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities Monday were investigating the death of a teen-ager who was beaten and shot, apparently by rival gang members, at a Halloween party.

The youths who organized the weekend party also hosted a 1991 birthday party where a teen-age girl was fatally shot gang members. The two shootings occurred about a block apart and many of the same youths attended both parties.

"It was like lightning striking twice," said Johnny Vargas, whose daughter, Valerie, 14, organized Saturday's party with two other girls.

The youth killed Saturday night was identified as Joseph Cedric "C-Dog" Paddio Jr., a 16-year-old Elsik High School student. Paddio was beaten and then shot with an assault rifle and a shotgun, police said.

Witnesses said the victim was accused of being "on the wrong turf."

The shooting occurred about a block from the site where Jennifer Mroz, 12, was fatally shot Nov. 16, 1991, while at a birthday party for Valerie Vargas. Miss Mroz was struck by a bullet fired randomly from a passing car by gang members.

"It brought flashbacks," Vargas said. "It's another terrible tragedy. She (Valerie) is depressed because this is the second tragedy she's been around in two years."

Police and witnesses said Paddio was a member of the Rolling 60s, a black street gang, and was among 50 to 100 teens at the Halloween party, which had spilled out into the yard and street.

The youth's father, however, has denied his son was a gang member.

Witnesses said a carload of teens from the Lords of Alief, an Hispanic gang, crashed the party and one of them went into the house to call Paddio outside for a fight, saying he was on their turf.

When Paddio emerged from the house, five male and two female gang members ambushed him, beating and kicking him, witnesses said.

"They were just hitting him, even the girls were hitting him," said Celina Cabral, 15. "Then they shot him right in front of me."

Witnesses and police said those attending the party would not talk to police about the shooting.

"They're not talking, because if these people (attackers) find out somebody talked, there will be retaliation," said Leonardo Soria, who said his daughters were at the party prior to the shooting.

COP: Mobile telephone users can help in crime prevention

Emergency calls — 911 — are also free on area cellular telephones, a standard industry practice.

Successful COP programs began in San Antonio two years ago and in Corpus Christi last year, Ms. Witt said.

The program will spread to Abilene within the next six months and eventually to all of West Texas, she said.

In the 1970s, she was a secretary for Memorial Hospital and subsequently went into private-duty nursing.

Mrs. Williams, who is a 65-year-old wife, mother and grandmother and graduate of the leadership program, Operation Blueprint, said that she finds Midland to be a "friendly community, a hospitable community."

As the people's hospital representative for Southeast Midland, Mrs. Williams said she does "have a lot to learn" about the workings of the hospital and health care. "And I am willing to do that."

Judge orders Texas to negotiate on tribal casino

EL PASO (AP) — A federal judge on Monday ordered the state to negotiate a compact within 60 days which will allow an Indian tribe to operate Texas' first casino.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland ruled the state must negotiate with the Tigua Indians, formally known as the Ysleta del Sur Pueblo, as provided under the federal Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

The 1988 act says tribes can operate untaxed versions of any gambling contests that are legal in the state. The Texas lottery, which allows games of chance, opens the door for the Tigua's proposed gambling operation, according to Bunton's ruling.

"The court finds that the state is required to negotiate with the tribe concerning the casino-type games of chance that the tribe has proposed," Bunton wrote in his ruling.

"I'm beyond words right now," said an obviously elated Vince Munoz, the tribe's gaming commissioner.

Patricia Guillermo, a spokeswoman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, said the state will appeal the ruling to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The state has up to 30 days to file its appeal.

Margaret Justus, a spokeswoman for the governor's office, said it will be filed "as quickly as possible." She declined to comment on Bunton's ruling because the litigation is ongoing.

The state had been negotiating earlier this year with the tribe on a Class III gaming compact, a treaty required before the Tiguas could begin work on a proposed $70 million El Paso County gambling facility, which would offer table games and slot machines.

But Gov. Ann Richards said existing state law does not authorize her to negotiate on the Tigua's proposal and the tribe subsequently filed suit on April 15.

At the same time, Tigua leaders decided to go ahead with plans to construct a high-stakes bingo parlor on tribal land. The Speaking Rock Bingo facility, conceived as a precursor to the casino, is scheduled to open later this month.

Trial set to begin this week in "toxic tort" lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — More than 800 plaintiffs have filed a lawsuit against a West Texas chemical plant, but only three people and their families actually will be represented in a trial expected to begin this week.

All the plaintiffs claim their health was damaged after being exposed to emissions from the Hoeschst Celanese plant west of Pampa.

The trial is expected to begin Thursday before State District Judge Eugene Chambers. It would have started Monday but was delayed because of another trial in Chambers' court.

The three plaintiffs were chosen to test the facts of the lawsuit, which was filed in January 1988 following twin explosions that ripped through the Celanese plant in November 1987, killing three and injuring 40.

Plaintiffs in the so-called "toxic tort" case are asking for unspecified monetary damages, said Amarillo attorney Tom Upchurch, co-counsel for the plaintiffs.

Upchurch and Celanese officials said the two sides agreed to test the case using three select plaintiffs because it is not a class-action lawsuit, and the remaining lawsuits will not be affected by the outcome of this trial.

"We have a special agreement that leaves the defendants and plaintiffs free to go forward with the other cases as they choose," Upchurch said. "It is one way to test the facts of the case without the expense and time of a jury hearing all of the cases. And this agreement guaranteed we would get a trial without any further delay."

Both sides said they hope to use this trial to formulate strategy for the remaining cases.

All lawsuits allege that exposure to potentially harmful emissions from chemical spills, vapor ventings and solar evaporation pond emissions at the plant damaged their health.

But Doug Gordon, vice president and general counsel for Hoechst Celanese Chemical Group, said railroad workers, contractors or people living near the plant have not been harmed by plant emissions.

Gordon cited a mortality study released last week by Celanese as proof of the plant's safety measures. Celanese commissioned the study for use in the trial.

The study examined causes of death for 1,359 former employees of the Celanese Pampa plant from 1952 through 1991. The study found that the number of employee deaths caused by heart disease and most cancers was lower than the regional, state and national averages.

The study said the rate of death by prostate cancer among male employees was significantly higher than the state and national averages, although a Celanese news release said there is no known relationship between prostate cancer and chemical exposure.

NAFTA legislation includes $10 million center for Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas would get a multimillion-dollar trade center under language a Texas congressman inserted in the draft legislation needed to implement the North American Free Trade Agreement, congressional sources said Monday.

One critic immediately denounced the proposal as "pork on steroids."

Said another Senate staffer familiar with the NAFTA negotiations: "Let me be frank with you: This is the only thing that I'm seeing that's blatant pork."

Staffers on the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee signed off Monday on language creating the Center for the Study of Trade in the Western Hemisphere, the Senate aides said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The measure mandates that the center be established in Texas.

The sources said the proposal was p[illegible]ed by Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle of Austin, the third-ranking Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee and chairman of its powerful oversight subcommittee.

Pickle's spokesman, Eddie Reeves, said he couldn't comment on the proposal. But Reeves did note that Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen sought to create such a center when he was in the Senate.

"It's my understanding it's something that Sen. Bentsen had an interest in, and now that he's no longer in the Senate it's something we became involved with," Reeves said.

The language approved Monday by the negotiators would direct the head of the Customs Service to consult with the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board in making a $10 million grant this year to one or more institutions of higher education to create the center.

A copy of the language shows that $10 million would be provided the first year "and such sums as may be necessary in the three succeeding fiscal years."

Even though the measure is now all but certain to remain in the NAFTA legislation, the entire bill remains in jeopardy — particularly in the House, where a vote is expected Nov. 17. House opponents suggest they are only 10 votes short of the 218-vote majority they need to ensure the trade pact's defeat.

The NAFTA legislation can't be amended and must be approved on an up-or-down vote, assuring that the trade center measure will be in the bill if it isn't removed by President Clinton.

The bill already calls for the Congressional Budget Office to perform a review of NAFTA's effects on the U.S. economy, one aspect that the trade center would be tasked to study. The CBO would be required to report to Congress three years after implementation of the treaty and every three years after that for the 15 years necessary to fully implement NAFTA.

Salinas: Mexico should not pin hopes on trade agreement

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexicans should not pin their hopes for prosperity on a free trade agreement with the United States and Canada, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari said Monday in his annual address to the nation.

"The key to our development does not lie outside the country, but rather in our own efforts: in savings, productivity and quality," Salinas said in the State of the Union address before Mexico's Congress.

His speech was interrupted several times by opposition lawmakers who called for greater reform and raised banners against the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Salinas defended the progress of his administration's economic and democratic reforms and continued to push for ratification of the trade treaty.

All three countries must ratify the pact for it to go into effect in January. Experts say Mexico has the most to gain from NAFTA, which faces strong opposition in the United States and in Canada.

But Salinas cautioned against unrealistic expectations of what would be the world's largest free-trade zone.

"Benefits will not be forthcoming in the short term, nor will they produce spectacular results," he said. "With or without the agreement, the evolution of our economy will not be substantially altered in the immediate future."

He said economic reforms at home were the underpinning of Mexico's ambitious plan to join the ranks of developed nations.

Salinas noted that inflation has been reduced from 52 percent in 1988 when he took office to 12 percent last year and single digits so far this year.

But strict monetary policies and the fight against inflation, plus a world recession, have taken a toll on the economy. Salinas said gross domestic product grew at a rate of 1.3 percent in the first half of 1993, lower than the previous four years.

Salinas also said in his address that Mexico, with 64 years of near one-party rule, was becoming more democratic.

The issue of democracy has become an important one in recent ye..rs and especially as U.S. lawmakers prepare to debate NAFTA later this month. U.S. opponents of free trade argue that Mexico needs more political reforms before the pact is approved.

Opposition parties charge that fraud by the governing Institutional Revolutionary Party stole the presidential election for Salinas in 1988. Charges of fraud have been leveled in numerous state and local elections since.

Passage of NAFTA in Mexico is assured, and the pact has been approved by the Canadian parliament. But Canada's Liberal prime minister-elect, Jean Chretien, has said he may not implement the treaty unless changes are made.

NAFTA faces another tough fight on Nov. 17 before the U.S. Congress. Some lawmakers fear it will lead to a huge loss of American jobs and greater pollution.

Three inmates have executions delayed

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A state district judge Monday halted the execution scheduled after midnight of a death row inmate condemned for killing a woman in Tarrant County more than seven years ago.

Richard Jones, 33, had faced lethal injection for the February 1986 abduction and stabbing death of Tammy Livingston, 27, of Hurst.

State District Judge C.C. Cooke in Tarrant County issued a reprieve about 9½ hours before Jones could have been put to death.

Jones was among three inmates scheduled for execution this week. The punishments in the other two cases were put off as well.

Jones was on parole for about four months after serving some two years for aggravated robbery and for being a parole violator when Ms. Livingston was abducted from an arts and crafts store and killed.

The woman's body was found inside a Fort Worth home. Evidence showed her killer tried to burn the corpse after the fatal stabbing, according to Texas prison records.

Jones was arrested two days later when he attempted to have his girlfriend cash a personal check stolen from the victim.

25 youngsters receive treatment

FORT WORTH (AP) — Twenty-five youngsters were treated Monday afternoon for exposure to fumes from a faulty boiler, officials said.

The students at Meadowbrook Middle School experienced breathing problems, starting about 1 p.m., said Fort Worth Fire Department battalion chief Robert Coche.

The students were nauseated by vapors caused by a boiler that ran low on water, he said.

"It went up through the stairwell and got in the hallway and individuals smelled it and it kind of nauseated them," Coche said.

Medstar Ambulance Service supervisor Derrick Peters said none of the students appeared to have been seriously injured.

"None (injuries) appear to be life-threatening," he said.

■ Police release man in surfboard case

BROWNSVILLE — Authorities have released a Houston man who Mexican police arrested last week on suspicion of smuggling 50 pounds of marijuana across the Rio Grande inside a surfboard.

Federal judicial police in Matamoros, Mexico, released 34-year-old Jim Howard Maples on Friday. He was stopped again after crossing the international bridge in Brownsville — this time by Cameron County sheriff's deputies.

Senior Chief Deputy R.C. Williams of the Cameron County Sheriff's Department said Maples was questioned and released, with no charges filed.

They arrested Maples early Thursday as he returned to his car on the Mexican side of Boca Chica Beach near the mouth of the river, Williams said.

Mexican officers alerted Cameron County deputies, who say they located a surfboard stuffed with more than 50 pounds of marijuana on the U.S. side of the beach.

■ Officials charge Texan in fatal Ohio fire

FINDLAY, Ohio — A former area resident has been charged in a fatal fire that gutted a discount department store more than 11 years ago.

Hancock County Prosecutor Bob Fry said Weaver would face additional charges once he is returned to Ohio.

Weaver is in prison in Texas. He was sentenced earlier this year to 20 years for setting five fires in the San Antonio area.

Authorities said Weaver became a suspect in the Meijer fire after two former girlfriends told police he had bragged about setting a fire in Ohio in which a woman died.

Linda Pever, 42, of Arlington, was killed and Jim Hindman, 30, of Findlay, was injured in the Meijer fire. They were employees at the store.

■ George W. Bush resigns from Harkin

In a short statement, Harken said Bush had resigned from its board of directors and as a consultant "in order to devote his time to other matters."

Bush, owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team and eldest son of the former president, has already filed campaign organization papers with the Texas Ethics Commission and is expected to formally announce his candidacy for governor next week.

He is expected to be a front-runner in the GOP primary.

After a private meeting with Bush in August, Rob Mosbacher Jr., the son of President Bush's former commerce secretary, said he would sit out the 1994 race. Both Dallas lawyer Tom Luce, a former adviser to Ross Perot, and Texas House GOP leader Tom Craddick quickly backed away, too.

■ Fishermen kill deer after it attacks them

AZLE — Two men fishing in a North Texas lake say they were forced to fatally stab a deer after the animal jumped out of the water and attacked them.

Ron Smith, 40, a painter from Euless, said the deer punctured his hand after pinning him to the ground with its antlers. He was treated and released at Harris Methodist Hospital in Azle.

Smith said he and his nephew, Aric Alvarez, had just started fishing at Eagle Mountain Lake Sunday morning when they saw a deer swimming toward them. The deer climbed out of the water, circled behind the two men and attacked, he said.

"We hadn't been there but five minutes. I had just popped my first beer and put my first minnow out," Smith recalled. "It totally ruined my day."

When the deer attacked, Smith said, it tossed him into the spillway and waded in after him. Smith scrambled ashore and the deer followed and pinned him to the ground, he said.

Alvarez said he jumped on the deer's back and grabbed Smith's knife, stabbing the animal repeatedly in the neck.

"It's nothing anybody would expect to have to do on a fishing trip," Alvarez said, sitting in the emergency room a few hours after the attack.

Jim Reed, a Fort Worth game warden, said the deer looked healthy and did not appear to be rabid. It is not unusual for deer to go into rut — the breeding season — at the end of October, he said.

Trading post operator finds challenge in odds and ends

By Chris Vaughn
Associated Press writer

PLAINVIEW (AP) — It's only a slight exaggeration that if Pete McDonald ain't got it, you don't need it.

Spread somewhere over a 20-acre compound outside Plainview are literally hundreds of air compressors, two dentist chairs, a couple of dough mixers, thousands upon thousands of tools and caster wheels, two explosion-proof phones, a few parking meters, a few more stage lights, some bomb carriers, a weighty amount of heavy machinery and enough bolts, screws and whatchamacallits to outfit an aircraft carrier.

"You can't sell everything, but it don't matter," the 73-year-old McDonald says, tooling around his entrepreneurial estate in a golf cart in the shadow of a gaudy sign boasting, "You don't need what he doesn't have."

It has taken 57 years in the trading post business to get what he has got. And despite the overwhelming, at times unimaginable, amount of inventory in his cluster of warehouses and three yards, he knows where it all is.

"I get a challenge out of people telling me, 'You can't sell that,' " he said, proudly reciting stories of a B-29 bomber engine, two truckloads of U.S. Army condoms and a U.S. Treasury money cruncher he bought and sold.

McDonald's Trading Post has been a fixture in Plainview for nearly six decades — first downtown from 1936 to 1949 and then out to his current location on South Columbia Street.

His sprawling business lies within the city limits now, but when he relocated a couple of years after he returned from World War II, he had to pave roads through the prairie country.

"I started with more than $10 but damn sure less than $100," he recalls.

Shoppers largely outside the Plainview area flock to both his business and his wife's store, Evalene's Imports, which is next door.

He has shipped one thing or another to Saudi Arabia, Canada, the Philippines and Iran. Name a major city, and he'll tell you he knows someone there. Name a country, and he'll likely tell you he's been there.

"Look at the fun I've had," he said, jokingly maintaining that a junk dealer isn't supposed to have money. "This business is a challenge. It's a game. I've made a good living at it. I can't complain."

In fact, he does little complaining. He spends half his day joshing with customers, giving away something here and there to old friends and colorfully speaking of the art of the deal. He doesn't even complain that his name "Pete" was given in honor of one of his father's old mules.

"You've got to have a little fun. There's enough to worry about."

Study reports psychological makeup of pedophile priests

By Don Finley
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN ANTONIO (NYT) — Roman Catholic priests accused of sexually abusing children demonstrate less psychological distress over their acts than non-cleric pedophiles, a new study concludes.

The clerics also had a lower sex drive and fewer sexual experiences and fantasies than the non-cleric molesters, said Dr. Daniel Hardy, president of the Isaac Ray Center at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago.

"It would be expected that Roman Catholic clerics would be lower on the sexual experiences scale since they have taken vows of celibacy," Hardy said. "Likewise, fewer sexual fantasies might be expected from a group which considers such thoughts as well as deeds to be sinful."

Hardy presented the findings here last week at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Psychiatry and the Law.

The study was conducted by researchers in the center's sexual behaviors clinic, which was established in 1986 at the encouragement of the Archdiocese of Chicago "for assistance in helping them evaluate, assess and, more importantly, to treat members of their clergy who had been accused of sexual misconduct with minors," Hardy said.

They were compared with 41 non-cleric alleged molesters and 29 "normal" subjects, using a standard evaluation known as the Derogatis Sexual Functioning Inventory.

The priests on average suffered less psychological distress than non-clerics over their acts — a finding that may have more to do with the older age of the children they usually victimize, Hardy said.

"The victims are adolescents," Hardy said. "When the age of one's object of sexual desire more approaches adulthood — in other words, the normal age — the less obviously psychologically disturbed is the offender."

Clerics also tended to have fewer victims than other molesters — four children on average, compared with about two dozen for non-clerics.

Although the percentage of clerics who engage in sexual misconduct with children is probably no higher than in the general population, the damage to victims can be greater, he added.

"Child molestation is more shocking and possibly more traumatic when committed by individuals who occupy positions of trust and responsibility, who are expected to be morally pure such as clergy."

Hardy said several hundred priests have been evaluated by the Chicago center and more have been referred to one of four similar programs in the United States and Canada.

Expert travel Advice

Deciding where to go on vacation can often be a difficult choice. Everybody has different tastes, needs and wants in a holiday vacation and it can often be a chore to find one that satisfies the whole family.

This is what is wonderful about cruising: there is so much to do for all ages that no matter what the occasion or group, a cruise is a perfect vacation.

Because different cruises suit different people, Ramona Drickey, the owner of Cruise Connection and her office manager, Debbie Marszal, constantly review the cruises that are offered.

The best way to do that, according to Ramona, is to actually go on the cruise itself, visit shore based hotels and get as much information about destinations as possible.

Ramona has recently come back from San Juan, Puerto Rico, (her fourth trip this year) where she investigated hotels, cruises and other aspects of the holiday industry there.

She started her trip by spending a week in San Juan completing her training course to become a Puerto Rico Travel Expert (PRTE).

In addition to the back ground study and research she did before the trip, she spent the week attending seminars, demonstrations and field trips to get in-depth experience of the town's tourism industry.

This included visiting over 15 different hotels to acertain their strengths and weaknesses.

Many people take vacations both cruising and staying in hotels, so knowledge of both is essential.

After the five-day conference, Ramona spent seven days aboard the Windward cruise ship on a deep-Caribbean cruise.

Constantly taking cruises coupled with on-going training makes a considerable difference to the advice Cruise Connection can give.

Cruise Connection is located at Mission Square, North Big Spring, in Midland.

Call 686-1001 for more information about cruises. There are surprises in store because cruising is much more afordable than most people think.

Debbie Marszal (left), the manager of Cruise Connection, and the owner, Ramona Drickey stand in front of a scale modal of a cruise ship. Offering cruises to many wonderful locations they are specialists when it comes to fabulous, relaxed vacations at competitive prices.

Official: Ex-prison director to vacate mansion

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas prison officials announced Monday that former executive director James Lynaugh, who has continued to live in a prison-owned mansion even though he has quit the department, will be vacating his rent-free house in about a month.

"It is not, nor was it ever the intent of Mr. Lynaugh or this agency that he continue to reside in the executive director's residence indefinitely," James E. Riley, the department's interim executive director, said.

Lynaugh, 53, stepped down Oct. 1 as head of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice to take a $130,000-a-year job with the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston and Texas Tech Health Science Center.

The Houston Chronicle reported last weekend that despite his departure, Lynaugh continued to live at his state-paid Huntsville home across the street from the Walls Unit prison.

"Traditionally, the agency has permitted employees who were entitled to state housing and who were leaving agency service or transferring to another state agency a reasonable amount of time to relocate their family and residence," Riley said in a prepared statement.

"In fact, Mr. Lynaugh has already made plans to relocate his residence within the next 30 days."

Criminal Justice Board Chairman Carol Vance had defended Lynaugh's continued use of the Huntsville home, saying it had not cost the department any money.

Lynaugh said over the weekend he had not planned to remain in the house for a lengthy time.

Lynaugh is setting up a managed health care program that state officials say would save taxpayers $7.2 million during a two-year period.

"Mr. Lynaugh and other TDCJ employees who transfer to the managed health care system are entitled, at the employee's option, to the same level of benefits of employment they enjoyed while a TDCJ employee," Riley said.

History students turn oral project into written legacy

By Claudia Feldman
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — When grown-ups step into Reagan High School, they take in the high ceilings, the big windows, the shiny lockers, the clanging tardy bells, the singsong PA announcements, and they can't help it, they flash back to their own school days.

It looks so much like it did back when. Maybe nothing's changed.

But it has.

"When I was in high school," said Lynn Krumvieda, a baby boomer world history teacher at Reagan, "what was important was my yearbook picture. And the prom."

Today, Krumvieda's students don't care much what their yearbook pictures look like. They say they hope to be alive by the time the book comes out this spring.

And sure, they'd probably like to go to the prom. But they'd like to go to the moon, too. They say more pressing problems include being in the same building with the few students so involved in gangs and guns and alcohol that it's life-threatening even to bump into them.

Last spring, when it was time for Krumvieda's world history class to start work on the annual oral history project, she gently prodded them to come to a consensus on a topic.

"What legacy will you leave the next generation?" she asked. "What really touches you?"

Someone said communism, or maybe AIDS. Then someone said it — violence.

The students explain casually, matter-of-factly, how violence has touched their own lives:

"Two of my friends were killed in a drive-by shooting."

"My ex-boyfriend killed somebody."

"My sister was beaten by her husband."

"All I see is young people dying — everybody is dying around me. That's what I'll remember when I grow up — not the prom."

Murders committed by juveniles in Harris County have almost doubled, from 32 in 1991 to 62 in 1992. The county's juvenile probation department received 30,000 referrals in 1992, up 25 percent from 1991.

It's sixth period on a Friday, and if that weren't good enough, Krumvieda's students are still basking in the success of their recently released book, "Violence in our neighborhood ... anguish of our streets." They've been interviewed by a slew of reporters, local, state and national. Students, parents and different organizations around town are clamoring for hard-to-get copies.

"Oprah's next," one student joked.

"I want royalties," teased another.

It took the history students, many of them juniors last year, seniors now, five months to pull off the oral history project. They divvied it into chapters — guns, gangs, domestic violence, child abuse, the media. Then they scoured their community for good subjects for interviews, be they perpetrators of violence or those trying to stop it.

Finally the students spent hours of their weekends transcribing taped conversations and smoothing them all into book form.

Anna Gonzalez, 17, interviewed Maria Jimenez, founder of Madres Por La Vida (Mothers for Life).

Gonzalez said, "I was here Saturday mornings, Sunday mornings to get my work done, and so were a lot of other people. It brought out the best in us."

"Empowerment" is the word Krumvieda uses. Since her students have written a book, they believe they can make a difference in their community, a dent in the problem.

They also gained a sense of urgency.

Gonzalez said, "After our work was all done, I found out that I knew three boys who had committed murder."

Anne Cobb, 17, interviewed a teen-ager charged with assault. Are you angry? Cobb asked.

"About what? It seems like the crime was getting caught, not the crime itself. That's what I'm angry about 'cause I guess I'm still a criminal, ain't I?" he answered.

Cobb said the problems of all teen-agers are made worse by feelings of alienation.

"We've got no one to talk to," she said. "Parents think that since they're older, they've been through it, they have the answers. They don't. I hope to see more teen-agers getting together and helping each other."

Juanita Rodriguez, 17, interviewed A.L. Burns, a police service officer who files criminal charges for battered women.

Rodriguez remembers when a friend allowed her boyfriend, then her husband to beat her up. "I could never understand it. I still don't understand it, but there are a lot of women who think they can't have a life without a man."

Xenia Alvarez and two other world history students interviewed Gloria Roberts with the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

"At first I was just in this for the grade," Alvarez said, "then we went to talk to a lady who works with abused children. I asked her what experience really touched her, and she said it was the time a little girl was put in boiling water just because she looked like her dad. Gloria Roberts showed us a picture of the baby. When I see somebody getting hurt, I want to hurt back. But when you're a social worker, you can't do that."

Fernando Vasquez, 18, interviewed a teen-ager involved in a gang. Vasquez asked how many friends he had lost to violence.

The teen said: "Jose, Rene, Little Joe, Eddie, Enchiladas and that's it."

Vasquez said, "You're 17 and five of your friends are dead because of violence. Not because of accidents or anything, but because other people took their lives. Do you see anything wrong with that?"

The teen said, "Well, it's making me think, you know. All my friends are dying, and I think, 'When am I going to be the next one?'"

Robin Montes, 17, interviewed Donna Ringo-Ringo with the Victim's Assistance Center, which is devoted to helping victims of violent crime.

Do the women show signs of violence? Montes asked.

Ringo-Ringo answered: "They all have signs; it depends what you're looking for. Some have bruises all over. We have one lady whose husband ripped her teeth out; some with broken arms, broken legs, cigarette burns, hair ripped out — just pulled out leaving bald spots."

Montes, who has attended several schools within the Houston Independent School District, has known fear herself. "At some schools you have to watch your back. You can get into a fight just by bumping into someone.

Montes said she was happy her mom read the oral history book cover to cover.

Most folks ask the Reagan students if they have solutions to skyrocketing teen violence.

They do. Their suggestions include more after-school activities, the abolishment of school suspensions, which they call vacations, and teen courts, where students mete out justice under the supervision of adults.

Stay tuned, said Krumvieda. Solutions may very well be the title of next spring's oral history project.

Lady Rebs battle Dons

■ Midland Lee opens the Class 5A playoff tonight against Amarillo Palo Duro.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff writer

Midland Lee outside hitter Heather Huff, kill leader for the Rebel volleyball team, came very close to not making it back into the starting lineup during her senior season.

Today, Huff will be making her second trip to the Class 5A playoffs as the Lady Rebels (11-13 overall) face District 3-5A third place winner Amarillo Palo Duro (18-11) for a bi-district matchup at Lubbock Coronado at 7 p.m. But last spring, her thoughts were not focused on the playoffs.

On April 5, long before most people's thoughts are turned to watching a white ball floating over a net, the Lee girls were deeply involved in spring workouts in preparation for the fall season.

On April 5, Huff's world — at least in the sometimes melodramatic high school sports arena — came to an abrupt, screeching halt when she tore the rotator cuff in her right shoulder.

On April 5, Lee coach Anita Corder thought she was going to be without one more of the six starters that helped the Lady Rebels make it back into the Class 5A playoffs last year. She had already lost three to graduation, including the District 4-5A outstanding hitter Tanisha Mills, middle blocker Carrie Zamora and setter Courtney McHugh, both all-district performers.

Huff had surgery to repair the shoulder, which is the one she hits with. A little more than two months later, however, she was back on the court.

"She really got after her rehab," Corder said at the beginning of district play. "It was miraculous. Her recovery was as speedy at Troy Aikman's. To me that was incredible."

Huff was scheduled to be released by her doctors to get involved in full-blown workouts Aug. 9. She made it back June 18, reminiscent of the Cowboy quarterback's race over the summer to recover from back surgery.

Huff not only returned, but it seemed that she hadn't lost any of her ability to hit.

"During workouts, I put her to the test early and she went all out with her arm," Corder said. "And after that she came up to me and said, 'I'm so glad you did that. It felt so good to be tested.'"

Time change

COLLEGE STATION, — The Texas A&M-Louisville game on Nov. 13 has been moved from a 2 p.m. kickoff to a 6:30 p.m. start so ESPN can put the intersectional meeting on national television.

The Aggies are 10th ranked in The Associated Press poll and Louisville is No. 13.

Norton hurt

IRVING — Middle linebacker Ken Norton suffered a torn right bicep muscle in Sunday's 23-10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles but Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said the defensive signal caller would likely postpone surgery until the end of the season.

Should Norton not be able to play against the New York Giants on Sunday, the Cowboys will move four-year veteran Bobby Abrams into the middle. The Cowboys picked up the former Michigan star as a free agent.

Jamerson cut

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets have waived guard Dave Jamerson, leaving the Rockets' roster with 14 players.

Jamerson, who averaged 2.6 points and 9.4 minutes in five preseason games, was waived from the team Monday night, Rockets President Tod Leiweke said.

Emmitt walks on water

■ Emmitt Smith's 237 yards rushing leaves the football gods agasp.

"I'm going to put them in my card shop in Pensacola where I've got some footballs and jerseys," Smith said. "I'll put 'em in a case. I'll have engraved on the outside, 237 yards, sixth best day in the NFL, Dallas Cowboys record, all that good ole jumbo stuff."

Smith was sore but still bubbling over his sensational Sunday where he rushed 30 times for a club record 237 yards in the Cowboys 23-10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Smith, who missed two games in a bitter contract dispute with owner Jerry Jones, was thought to have no chance for a third consecutive rushing title.

However, he moved to within 241 yards of Detroit's Barry Sanders. Whereas the Cowboys have used their two idle weeks, the Lions still have one ahead.

"I'm back in this thing guys,"

So far, they haven't.

Waxahachie rolled over Red Oak 60-8 last week, improving to 9-0 and remaining on top of The Associated Press' high school football poll.

"We knew we had a good team, but we didn't know how good," Phillips said Monday.

The Indians wrapped up the 13-4A title with the Red Oak victory on the strength of quarterback Cory Pointer, who played defensive end on last year's team.

Pointer replaced Lamont Moore, who now backs up J.J. Joe at Baylor. Last year, Moore hit 65 of 119 passes for 1,456 yards and 17 touchdowns. He also ran for 1,136 yards and 28 TDs.

"The big question mark going into the season was could Cory Pointer step in and do what Lamont Moore did a year ago?" Phillips said.

Pointer has responded well in the Indians' option attack. He has completed 21 of 86 passes for 429 yards. He's thrown five TDs and seven interceptions. On the ground, Pointer has car-

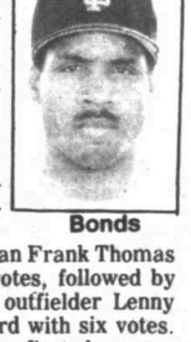
NEW YORK — Barry Bonds, who led the San Francisco Giants to their most wins since 1962, on Monday became the first player to be voted The Associated Press Baseball Player of the Year in consecutive seasons.



Bonds

Bonds received 73 votes in nationwide balloting by sportswriters and broadcasters. Chicago White Sox first baseman Frank Thomas was second with 17 votes, followed by Philadelphia Phillies outfielder Lenny Dykstra, who was third with six votes.

Toronto Blue Jays first baseman John Olerud received three votes. Seattle Mariners outfielder Ken Griffey Jr. and Atlanta outfielder Ron Gant got one vote each.

The Associated Press began honoring one player in the majors in 1988. Previously, it had an award for the top player in each league.

Reds' owner makes return to big show

By Joe Kay

CINCINNATI — Marge Schott, the Cincinnati Reds' crude and crusty owner, showed her employees another side Monday on her first day back on the job. She cried.

Schott was treated like a returning hero, not a chastised owner, when she drove up to her office at Riverfront Stadium for the first time in eight months. She hadn't been allowed inside during her suspension for using slurs.

Employees hung banners and balloons in the hallways, played "Hail to the Chief" when Schott's car pulled up, and cheered as she walked her St. Bernard, Schottzie 02, into the team offices.

Bills continue paybacks, beat 'Skins 24-10

By John F. Bonfatti

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Sweeping the teams that swept them in the last three Super Bowls was sweet.

"But we would still like to have those three rings," Buffalo Bills linebacker Cornelius Bennett said.

The Buffalo Bills (6-1) beat the Washington Redskins 24-10 Monday night to give them victories this season over all the teams that beat them in the last three title games.

The latest victory exacted a measure of revenge for the Redskins' 37-24 victory in the Super Bowl two seasons ago, but coach Marv Levy said his team is more concerned with items closer at hand.

"Our division is our concern," he said. "Everybody may have been talking about (Super Bowl revenge), but I wasn't and I didn't think many players in our locker room were making a big deal about Washington beating us two years ago."

Andre Reed had 159 receiving yards and a touchdown and Thurman Thomas ran for 129 yards and a score. The Bills piled up 402 yards against the Redskins (1-6), who entered the game with the NFL's next-to-worst defense.

Jim Kelly completed 18 of 24 passes for 238 yards and two touchdowns and Buffalo intercepted Mark Rypien four times in handing Washington its sixth straight loss.

NFL's power may be making shift to AFC

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

It may be hard to believe, but after nine years of Super Bowl dominance by the NFC, the pendulum may be heading back to the AFC side.

Forget the won-lost figures — the AFC led the interconference rivalry 10-9 going into Monday night's Washington-Buffalo game.

What makes it different this time is that Miami and Buffalo, two of what appear to be the three best teams in the league are from the AFC. And they're playing NFC football — using defense as the primary weapon.

One reason is Scott Mitchell, who threw for 344 yards in the 30-10 win Sunday that gave Don Shula his record-tying 324th win as a coach.

But the other is a defense that finally doesn't miss John Offerdahl when he leaves with his annual injury — Bryan Cox, Louis Oliver and Marco Coleman, all 27 or younger, are impact players Miami hasn't had in the decade since the "Killer Bs."

"Our defense played as well as it possibly could have," Shula said after the Dolphins beat the Chiefs.

The Bills?

Yes, they've lost three straight Super Bowls. But unlike previous seasons, when they had to be carried by the offense, it's the defense that's producing as the offense fizzles. In their last four games, the offense has scored three touchdowns and the defense two. The Bills won three of the four games.

Like the Dolphins, they're developing some solid young defensive players, notably safety Henry Jones and linebacker Marvcus Patton to add to Bruce Smith, Cornelius Bennett, Darryl Talley and Jeff Wright.

The NFC, meanwhile, sounds like the name of a '50s rock group — Dallas and the Pretenders.

The 49ers are solid enough on offense, not so solid on defense. Throughout the Joe Montana era, the defense was a constant — overlooked, but good.

The Giants self-destructed against the Jets on Sunday and are 5-0 against the NFC and 0-2 against the AFC. Dan Reeves will probably get them to the playoffs, but the fun stops there.

The Saints are demonstrating their usual weakness — offense. Wade Wilson has now thrown five interceptions in two games.

The rest?

Compare the other playoff contenders and who jumps out? Pittsburgh — only 4-3 but with perhaps the most aggressive and effective defense around.

Another NFC team in the AFC.

BYE, BYE: Most coaches welcome the bye week, if for no other reason than to heal injuries.

The networks, which instituted it in the first place, will probably reduce it to one per team next year, or maybe none at all because they've had too many weeks with too few attractive games to televise.

Coaches should welcome that.

With the Giants (5-0 without a bye, 0-2 off bye weeks) losing to the Jets Sunday and the Chiefs losing to the Dolphins, the record of teams coming off bye weeks dropped to 5-10 in games against teams that played the previous week. That doesn't count Monday night's game — Washington, coming off a bye, at Buffalo.

Another 11 games have been played between two teams that were both off.

COMING FROM AHEAD: In their last three games, the Jets blew leads of 21-0 to Philadelphia; 17-0 to the Raiders and 7-0 to the Bills. So they took the other tack Sunday, falling behind 3-0 to the Giants.

Then they came back and won 10-6.

The plot is about a 52-year-old man who dresses in Johnny Cash black, is stuck on Elvis Presley and James Dean, lives his fantasy by driving racing cars in the off-season and is the arch-enemy of numerous other NFL coaches.

In real life, Jerry Glanville coaches the Atlanta Falcons and can't win when he's supposed to. One of the most consistent facts in the NFL is that the Falcons are almost sure to lose the week after they win a big game.

This week, coming off two wins in a row for the first time in two seasons, Glanville was sitting at home waiting for Tampa Bay, one of the league's three worst teams. But the Glanville Syndrome means peaks and valleys. Sunday was the valley.

Mitchell keeps Dolphins on hot streak

By Steven Wine
AP Sports Writer

DAVIE, Fla. — Now that the Miami Dolphins have discovered they can win without Dan Marino, perhaps they'll try to do it next season.

Long regarded the foundation of the franchise, disabled Dan looks a bit more expendable with each touchdown pass thrown by his replacement, Scott Mitchell.

Speculation that the Dolphins might trade Marino after this season surfaced Monday on the local sports pages and call-in shows. The catalyst was Mitchell's three-touchdown, 344-yard passing performance Sunday in a 30-10 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Mitchell has been almost flawless in the 2½ games since Marino suffered a season-ending Achilles' tendon injury, and the Dolphins continue to gain momentum. Now 6-1, they'll take a five-game winning streak into Sunday's game against the New York Jets, where coach Don Shula hopes to break George Halas' NFL record of 324 victories.

The 25-year-old Mitchell becomes an unrestricted free agent after this season, his fourth as a pro, and his market value has soared in the past three games. With a strong, accurate arm and a mobile, 6-foot-6 frame, he compares favorably with many starting quarterbacks around the NFL.

"He's better than a big bunch of them, I think," Dolphins tackle Ron Heller said.

Assuming Mitchell continues to play well, he'll likely demand at least $3 million next season, which makes it doubtful the Dolphins will able to afford both him and Marino under the new NFL salary cap.

The question was once unthinkable: Should the Dolphins try to trade Marino? He'll be 33 next season, coming off an injury and making $4.4 million.

Even Marino joined the trade-bait debate Monday.

"It does make some sense. But that doesn't mean that it's going to happen," he said. "Scott is going to play well, and I'm sure people are going to make something of that."

Mitchell has staked a claim to the Miami quarterback job on the field, but not in the locker room. Following Sunday's victory he said: "Next year, Dan will come back and be the starting quarterback, but that's then and this is now. I can't worry about that."

But trade speculation will end only if Mitchell falters. In his two starts the Dolphins have scored 71 points, their best production in back-to-back games since October 1987. Playing against the NFL's fourth-ranked defense Sunday, the Dolphins gained 483 yards, their highest output in four seasons.

Injury may leave Taylor out of lineup

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Lawrence Taylor's days as a New York Giants starter might be numbered unless he either recovers from a pulled hamstring that has bothered him for more than a month or finds a really good acupuncturist.

For the record, Taylor said Monday that the acupuncturist is going to examine his left hamstring which has limited him to just two tackles in the last three games and has coach Dan Reeves thinking of lineup changes.

"Lawrence did not play well," Reeves said Monday in reviewing the Jets 10-6 win over the Giants Sunday. "You can always look at it and say what you should have done. We just have to make sure now when he is in the ballgame he can go full speed. Right now, he's not able to go full speed and he really wasn't much of a factor in the ballgame. He doesn't have the ability to turn it on now."

That's been obvious for weeks, although it was thought the 34-year-old Taylor would be able to get over the injury during the bye week before the Jets game.

His hamstring showed improvement in practice Thursday and Friday, but Taylor struggled Sunday. The worst moment came when Jets quarterback Boomer Esiason sprinted away from him on a third-quarter scramble.

In his prime, no quarterback outran Taylor. His role Sunday was reduced to just passing situations from the middle of the third quarter on.

"I don't think I re-injured it," said Taylor, a mainstay in the Giants lineup for the past 13 seasons. "But it's just a little sore. I think when you are going in and out of the game, the lactic acid builds up in the leg. It gets cold out there and everything started to freeze up."

"You have to have a plan and you have to stick with it," Wannstedt said after the team's 17-3 loss at Green Bay on Sunday. "We're looking for good things to happen but you can't stick your head in the sand. You have to look for ways to improve."

The Bears have not scored a touchdown in 10 quarters and Jim Harbaugh has been sacked 16 times in the last two games including seven by the Packers who had a total of only 13 in their first six games.

The solution to that problem, Wannstedt said is to get rid of the ball quicker and stay out of long-yardage situations.

"We're looking at it right now. We have to improve the protection, the receivers have to work on getting open quicker and we have to get rid of the ball quicker," he said.

Wannstedt said the Bears have wasted what few scoring opportunities they had.

"We're not good enough to pass up our opportunities," he said. "When you don't capitalize on them, you don't have a chance to win."

There was Chicago safety Mark Carrier's interception on the second play of the game and return to the Green Bay 16 that resulted in no points because of a botched field goal attempt.

On this Sunday, the Bears face a Los Angeles Raiders defense that is second in the NFL with 27 sacks. Raider Anthony Smith is the league's individual sack leader, with 11.

Hostetler and Brown hooked up five times for 156 yards and two touchdowns Sunday against the San Diego Chargers. The first, on the Raiders' first scrimmage play, was good for 71 yards and a touchdown.

But with the game tied 17-all late in the third quarter and the ball at San Diego's 3-yard line, Frank was ready. Brown ran a quick slant into the end zone and Hostetler threw, but Frank was in the line of fire.

Then, the race was on, but it was no race as Frank ran 102 yards the other way to give the Chargers a 24-17 lead in a game they went on to 30-23.

"When I threw the ball, I thought it was a touchdown," Hostetler said. "It was a very nice ball. I never even saw the defender.

Hostetler wound up completing 20 of 32 passes for a Raiders record 424 yards, but in a losing cause. The former record was 419 yards by Cotton Davidson in 1964 against Denver.

"It's a shame to put that many stats on the board and lose," Hostetler said. "We need to get the running game in gear to take the pressure off the passing game. Otherwise, they just tee off on you."

There hasn't been much of a running game for the Raiders all season. Sunday was a pretty typical day as Los Angeles gained 65 yards on 22 rushes.

"It's a one-man pattern," Hostetler said of the game's critical play. "We had (James) Jett coming back in there to hold the safety in there. It's one of those where the cornerback can hide, and if he falls off of Jett, it can be trouble."

It was, and there was more to come.

When the Raiders got the ball back, Gary Plummer intercepted Hostetler's next pass to set up John Carney's 36-yard field goal. That made it 27-17 early in the fourth quarter.

"It if was six inches higher, it would have been a big play for us," Hostetler said.

"To me, it comes down to two real bad-luck plays," Brown said. "Unfortunately, they cost us the game."

And they cost the Raiders (4-3) a chance to move into a first-place tie with Kansas City in the AFC West.

EMMITT: Smith has 237 yards rushing

From 1C

Smith said. "Barry has to sit out a game. I got to still have some more big days, but it's not over."

Smith said the NFL rushing title isn't as important as winning.

"Winning is still the main thing but it means something to me when you join the company of somebody like Jim Brown," Smith said. "I'm shooting for Super Bowls and the Hall of Fame some day and this doesn't hurt."

"I'm still not 100 percent, but I'm getting there," Smith said. "There are still things I need to work on. I'm making some mistakes. But my hamstring isn't very sore any more."

The Eagles will attest to that.

"Emmitt just broke their back," said offensive guard Nate Newton. "You can't stop him when he's having a day like he did Sunday."

Smith said he didn't realize he was having a club record day until someone came up and told him after his touchdown.

"I said, 'Well, blow me down,'" Smith said. "I didn't feel like I had carried 30 times. But I do today. I don't want 30 carries every week, that's for sure."

"I'm never going to say it won't happen," Smith said. "I still have a chance and it (the rushing title) will be in the back of my mind. But I'm just going to concentrate on winning games."

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Engineers, university officials and the governor pored over plans Monday to prevent a repeat of a student stampede that left dozens injured after Wisconsin's victory over Michigan.

Looming in their minds was the potential for an even more frenzied celebration: A home win over Ohio State on Saturday would give Wisconsin the inside track to the Rose Bowl.

Thousands of fans surged down from the student sections at Camp Randall Stadium after Wisconsin beat Michigan 13-10 on Saturday, pressing those below into a pile several people deep.

At least 69 were injured, seven critically. Ten remained hospitalized Monday, one of them in serious condition and the rest listed as good to fair. Most victims suffered broken bones and some lost consciousness from a lack of oxygen.

University of Wisconsin Athletic Director Pat Richter proposed controlling access to the student section to make sure only ticket-holders get in. The 12,000-seat section has general admission seating.

■ More Sports/8C

That was among the proposals university officials planned to discuss Tuesday, said UW Chancellor David Ward.

"We're thinking aloud at this point, and we think that is a solution," Ward said.

Ward and state building inspector Dan Murray said the lax seating policy allows people to migrate into the student section to join friends, filling the area beyond capacity.

Gov. Tommy G. Thompson examined the twisted railing and toppled fence in the northeast corner of the stadium, where the injuries occurred. He said he found nothing that would lead him to fault security personnel.

"It doesn't appear like there was anything that could have been done," Thompson said.

UW Police Chief Sue Riseling said an investigation continued into the actions of university police officers and security guards. A report was expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

"We expect to treat hundreds, perhaps as many as 5,000 to 10,000 students for this," Rouse said.

UW football coach Barry Alvarez said some football players had met with counselors. Several students said they were pulled from the pile by players.

"I didn't know how bad it was until I pulled the first one out," said Panos, adding that one of those he helped had turned blue.

REBELS: Huff returns from injury

(From 1C)

Huff leads the team in kills, including a season-high 16 against Odessa High in district play. She also recorded 16 kills several other times in loop play. Huff is averaging 4.3 kills per game, which works out to around 8-12 kills per match, depending on the length.

"She's hot right now and we need to get the ball to her a lot," Corder said. "She's gone to another level."

Corder said it was important to Lee's playoff chances that Huff returned to the lineup as quickly as she did.

"Even last year, she was a key hitter on the team," Corder said. "For her to be able to start the season when she did, was great. I had no idea she would be able to start two-a-days with us."

With Huff back in the lineup, Corder now had three returners who played in Lee's playoff game last season. The other two are senior middle hitter Tera Mander, second on the kill list, and senior outside hitter Emily Hayes.

Knowing that three of her players already have one playoff season under their belts, Corder thinks that could be a difference in the match with the Lady Dons, who made the playoffs for the first time in school history.

"What's nice with those three is that they remember last year," Corder said. "Tera came up to me today and said that (Amarillo) Tascosa 'beat us before the game ever started because they were so fired up. This year, we're going to make our presence known.'"

Taking another hint from the World Champion Dallas Cowboys, the Lady Rebels are ready to raise their level of play another notch, Corder said. Apparently, she has been reading up on inspirational speeches from Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

During the season, Corder said, Johnson would get his team focused by telling them he wanted them to focus on walking along a long two-by-four. But before the Super Bowl, Johnson raised the stakes. He told his team that they were still going to walk on that two-by-four, but they had to imagine it placed between two tall buildings.

"I'm going to use that tomorrow," Corder said. "You've still got to have the same focus, but you've got to do it way up here."

POLLS: Carter remains No. 1

ried 125 times for 744 yards, scoring 76 points on rushing touchdowns and extra points.

The graduations of the other three captains from 1992 also left holes on the roster that needed to be filled.

Running back Sammy Overton is playing for Trinity Valley Junior College, and noseguard Joe Garber and linebacker Eric Ferrah have departed for Stephen F. Austin.

Darryl Dollar has taken over for Overton, picking up 928 yards on 108 carries. He's scored five touchdowns and has an 8.6-yard average.

On defense, the entire squad has made up for the departed captains, Phillips said.

"We're a team. We have some good individual statistics, but we play team football," he said.

Opposing teams have had trouble against the Indians, who have the No. 1-ranked defense in 4A. Opposing teams are averaging only 118 yards per game, and Waxahachie has outgained other teams 3,788-1,062.

The Indians also have been challenged by the fact that everyone's gunning for them.

"Everybody gets fired up to play us," Phillips said. "Everybody we play is ready to kill, kill, kill."

The only movement in the 4A poll was at the fifth and sixth spots. Plainview moved up to No. 5, and Stephenville dropped into sixth.

Dallas Carter is still No. 1 in 5A on the strength of a 53-0 pounding of North Dallas. Houston Cyprus Creek swapped places with Lewisville. Cyprus Creek is now No. 8, and Lewisville drops to No. 10, despite big victories for both teams.

There was no movement in 3A, as Southlake Carroll held the top spot after winning its 70th straight game. They walloped Decatur 51-0.

In 2A, Italy moved up a notch to No. 7. Thorndale, last week's seventh-ranked team, dropped to 10th after suffering its first loss of the year. They lost to Salado 18-13.

Goldthwaite and Springlake Earth also scooted up a spot, to eighth and ninth, respectively.

In all, the Bills stopped four consecutive drives by intercepting Mark Rypien. Darryl Talley and James Williams got the other picks.

"Buffalo had good coverage all night," Washington coach Richie Petitbon said. "I can't say what happened in each case until I see the film, but turnovers defintely hurt us."

Buffalo already has a 13-10 victory over Dallas, which beat the Bills 52-17 in last season's Super Bowl, and a 17-14 victory over the New York Giants, who started the Bills' title game losing streak three seasons ago with a 20-19 win.

Thomas then carried the ball eight times in a 12-play drive that ended with his 1-yard touchdown run.

The Redskins drove into Buffalo territory on their next possession and kept the drive alive by converting a third-and-20 to the Bills' 28. But on the next play, Odomes picked off Rypien again, this time in the end zone.

Reggie Brooks was the star for Washington, carrying 24 times for 117 yards and a 7-yard touchdown. Washington's other score came on a 19-yard field goal by Chip Lohmiller.

SuperSonics deal pair for Pacers' Schrempf

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics acquired forward Detlef Schrempf from the Indiana Pacers on Monday in exchange for forward Derrick McKey and swingman Gerald Paddio.

"We've just added an All-Star to our team," Sonics president Bob Whitsitt said. "Any time you can do that, I think you can't help but become a better team."

The 6-foot-10 Schrempf, 30, was an All-Star in 1993 after being voted the Sixth Man of the Year in 1991 and 1992. He averaged a career-high 19.1 points last season.

McKey, a six-year veteran, averaged 13.4 points and 4.2 rebounds as a starter for Seattle last season. Paddio averaged 3.9 points in 41 games.

The trade marks a return to Seattle for the 6-foot-10 Schrempf, who played collegiately at the University of Washington. Schrempf was chosen by the Dallas Mavericks as the eighth overall pick in the 1985 draft.

He has career averages of 13.3 points, 6.5 rebounds and 3.1 assists.

Schrempf is expected to assume the starting role being vacated by McKey, the ninth overall pick in the 1987 draft out of the University of Alabama.

The 6-7 Paddio was a third round draft pick of the Boston Celtics in 1988 from UNLV.

Authorities arrest three U. of Washington athletes

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Three University of Washington athletes were charged with burglary and sex abuse Monday after a University of Oregon student told police the men walked into her dorm room, locked the door and exposed themselves.

Charles Douglas Barnes, 20, Jason Paul Shelley, 19, and Prentiss Perkins, 21, all of Seattle, were arraigned in Lane County Circuit Court.

The men, arrested Sunday after a chase, remained in the Lane County Jail Monday night.

"The university will not tolerate willful acts of misconduct on the part of any participants in its athletics program," Hedges said.

Drexler, Blazers postpone contract talks

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Clyde Drexler and the Portland Trail Blazers have agreed to put contract discussions on hold until the end of the season, the team said Monday.

The team issued a statement saying the Blazers and Drexler "have had several conversations regarding his concerns pertaining to his contract status."

"Both the team and Drexler have agreed to defer further conversations until after the upcoming season to concentrate on basketball."

Drexler, unhappy with his salary after seeing recent huge contracts awarded to newcomers and veterans in the NBA this year, skipped a practice without notice Oct. 22 and said afterward that he was considering holding out or asking to be traded.

But when the Blazers returned from a three-game exhibition road trip last week, both he and the team's management toned down the rhetoric and said they were holding talks aimed at resolving the dispute.

Drexler, 31, has three years left on a contract that pays him $1.5 million in each of the next two seasons, followed by a balloon payment of $8.5 million in 1995-96.

Prices rebound

NEW YORK — Oil prices surged Monday, countering Friday's sell-off in a move attributed partly to lower OPEC production estimates and buying that frequently follows a price plunge.

December delivery of West Texas Intermediate settled at $17.43 per barrel, up 51 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Crude had fallen 45 cents on Friday, mostly because of Petroleum Intelligence Weekly's report that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had exceeded its October quota by 400,000 barrels per day.

But a Dow Jones survey of oil industry participants released Monday, said cartel daily overproduction was about 280,000 barrels and much of it came from Iraq, which is not allowed to export.

Crude had gotten the day off to a stronger start in what many called a correction from the steep drop on Friday. The market had been falling for weeks with little significant news, but plenty of worry about OPEC, to encourage sellers. The market also had help from maintenance work that temporarily curtailed a North Sea pipeline to 60 percent of capacity.

Natural gas prices were higher, with contracts for delivery in December up 6.6 cents at $2.434 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar finished mixed against other currencies in quiet trading Monday, a holiday in many European countries. Gold and silver prices plunged as investors feared a new film developed by Xerox Corp. could hurt demand for silver.

Record stocks

NEW YORK — Blue-chip stocks reached another all-time high on Monday and the broader market also rose following indications the economy may be picking up steam.

Shares of companies whose fortunes are closely tied to the economic cycles performed the best, among them autos, papers, chemicals and heavy machinery.

Construction spending increases

Outlay marks longest string of advances in more than six years

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Construction spending rose in September for the fifth straight month, marking the longest string of advances in more than six years.

"It's good news," said economist David F. Seiders of the National Association of Home Builders. "It's all coming together."

The Commerce Department reported Monday that residential, nonresidential and government outlays totaled $471.3 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, up 0.8 percent from $467.4 billion in August.

The report also showed major revisions in the July and August figures. July now is shown with a 1 percent increase, rather than just 0.1 percent, while August was revised from a 1.1 percent decline to a 0.5 percent advance.

The September increase and the August revision contributed to the longest series of gains since construction spending rose during the five months from January through May 1987.

Residential spending rose 0.9 percent, also the fifth consecutive advance including a 1.1 percent gain in August.

"As expected, there was a solid increase in single-family building," Seiders noted. "I think that we'll continue to see increases in that sector through the rest of the year."

Outlays for single-family homes jumped 1.7 percent, nearly matching a 1.9 percent increase in August.

Many economists expect a 4 percent increase in new home sales when the department reports Tuesday on September activity. The increase should stimulate further construction, they say.

Spending on multifamily buildings, however, fell 2.7 percent after a 3.4 percent drop a month earlier.

"That market's really been in the tank," Seiders said. But he noted that builders boosted construction of apartment buildings in September "and I expect to see some small positives in this area in a few months."

The multifamily sector and some areas of nonresidential construction continue to be hampered by high vacancy rates resulting from overbuilding in the 1980s.

Nonresidential spending fell 1 percent following a 2.3 percent advance in August. Outlays for office buildings plunged 5.2 percent.

But spending on industrial buildings jumped 3.5 percent and Seiders said this sector "clearly has bottomed out."

Government outlays rose 1.7 percent in September after a 0.9 percent decline a month earlier. Spending on streets and highways shot up 6.8 but military projects were down 8.3 percent.

Manufacturing shows 1st rise in five months

- Goup reports surge of new orders in October after scant increase in September.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The nation's manufacturing sector grew last month for the first time since May, according to a survey of corporate purchasing managers released today.

The National Association of Purchasing Management reported that activity in 15 of 20 industries surveyed reported an increase.

The group's index rose to 53.8 percent, up sharply from 49.7 percent in September. It was the first increase after four months of decline, and the highest monthly rate since 55.8 percent in February.

A figure above 50 percent generally indicates that the manufacturing sector is expanding, while a figure above 44.5 percent over a period of time generally indicates the entire economy is expanding. The association said its index has averaged 51.9 percent in the first 10 months of the year.

The group reported that new orders surged in October after a scant increase in September. That category posted its highest rate of growth since January. Production rose at its highest level since March, the survey showed.

The purchasing managers' survey is one of the first indicators of economic activity for any given month. It also is seen as a good gauge of future economic activity because the managers who belong to the group are responsible for buying the raw materials for the nation's factories.

Governor: Strike's cost would be high

DALLAS (AP) — If American Airlines' flight attendants carry out a threatened strike, it could mean the loss of "an enormous amount of money" to the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Gov. Ann Richards said.

Contract talks between the union and Fort Worth-based American broke off Saturday, and the Association of Professional Flight Attendants says it will strike before Thanksgiving.

Kmart negotiates deal to sell Pace stores to Wal-Mart

(NYT) — Kmart Corp. is negotiating to sell slightly more than half of its 112 PACE Membership Warehouses stores to Wal-Mart Stores Inc., which operates the Sam's Wholesale Club warehouse stores, according to people familiar with both companies.

Kmart, the country's second-largest retailer behind Wal-Mart, is also working to sell its Pay Less Drug Stores to Leonard Green & Partners, a merchant banking firm based in Los Angeles. The Green group owns Thrifty Drug Stores.

Officials at Kmart, Wal-Mart and Leonard Green declined to comment Monday, but people familiar with both deals said they were close to being completed.

Analysts said the sales would be the first concrete steps of a long-anticipated restructuring at Kmart. The company's announcement in August that Pay Less was for sale was the first signal that Kmart intended to shave off some of its specialty store businesses and focus on its discount stores, which are the heart of the company.

Kmart said in October that it might sell minority stakes in at least four of its specialty businesses: the Sports Authority, Borders book stores, Officemax office supply stores and Builders Square home improvement stores.

Kmart was asking $1 billion for Pay Less, which some analysts considered high. But The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that the Green group had tentatively agreed to pay $1 billion for Kmart's 565 drugstores.

The company is unlikely to obtain such favorable terms for its PACE stores from Wal-Mart, which is known for driving a tough bargain in its acquisitions.

The saturation of the warehouse club market coupled with Kmart's need to eliminate unprofitable assets will make it difficult for Kmart to demand a good price for the PACE stores, analysts said.

Those factors will also give Wal-Mart the opportunity to cherry-pick among the PACE stores to find those that best suit its own expansion plans.

"I would not be surprised if Wal-Mart would buy some of the Pace stores," said Walter F. Loeb, president of Loeb Associates Inc., a retail consulting firm. "I doubt, however, that Wal-Mart will buy the whole company."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Treasury Direct saves commission charges

By Bill Doyle

Q: Since I am a conservative investor, I have restricted all my purchases to U.S. Treasury securities. Because of the low interest now available on long-term Treasuries, I have bought only Treasury bills lately.

Doyle

I feel interest rates in general will rise sooner or later, and I agree with you that it is impossible to predict when. But when that does happen, I will be able to use the money from maturing short-term Treasury bills to buy longer-term Treasury notes and bonds paying higher interest.

So far, so good. My only problem is the expense of doing things this way. My bank charges $75 every time I purchase or roll over any Treasury security. My broker charges even more.

So, I was intrigued by the column in which you mentioned the "Treasury Direct" system of buying Treasury securities through Federal Reserve Banks, with no commissions or other charges.

I showed that column to my broker, who replied, "Doyle's crazy. Did you ever know the government to do things cheaper?"

How do you answer that?

A: Not being a fan of big government, my reply has to be, "In most cases, no. But this is an exception."

You can't fault the broker for trying to keep your business — and those frequent $75 charges. But the simple truth is that the Treasury Direct system provides a method for investors to buy and hold U.S. Treasury bonds, notes and bills without paying any commissions or other charges.

As the term indicates, Treasury Direct allows you to purchase new issues of Treasury securities directly from the federal government. That's done by opening your personal Treasury Direct account at the Federal Reserve Bank or branch serving your area of the country.

Your local bank can provide the Fed bank or branch address you need. Write or phone there. Ask for Treasury Direct information. You'll get literature explaining details.

Q: What is the difference between Treasury bills, notes and bonds?

A: Treasury bills are discount securities. You buy a T-bill at a price below face value and receive face value when the security matures. T-bills are issued with maturities of 13, 26 and 52 weeks.

Treasury notes and bonds are current-income securities, meaning they pay interest semiannually. Each is issued at or near its face value and is redeemed at face value on its maturity date. Various issues of Treasury notes have maturities of from two to 10 years. Treasury bonds come with maturities ranging from 10 to 30 years.

Q: Newspaper tables of prices for U.S. Treasury securities are for transactions of $1 million or more. Doesn't that mean the average investor, who purchases in much smaller amounts, would have to pay more?

A: Yes, if you buy an "outstanding" Treasury security — one previously issued and trading in the marketplace. Those are the Treasury bonds, notes and bills for which prices are quoted in newspaper tables.

No, if you make your purchase through Treasury Direct. That way, you buy newly issued Treasury securities. You cannot buy previously issued Treasuries via Treasury Direct.

Q: What is the smallest amount of Treasury securities I can buy?

A: It's $10,000 for Treasury bills and $1,000 for Treasury bonds. Treasury notes with maturities of fewer than four years are usually offered in $5,000 minimums; four or more years, $1,000 minimums.

Germans appeal to U.S. luge team

■ German villagers urge American Luge team not to pull out of 1994 World Cup meet.

BONN, Germany (AP) — An east German village where neo-Nazis beat up an American luger appealed Monday to the U.S. team not to pull out of a January World Cup meet and took steps to keep away far-right fanatics.

"There could be nothing worse for us than a boycott," said Hartmut Goebel, mayor of Oberhof, the winter sports capital of former East Germany.

Oberhof has not been spared the economic troubles afflicting all of eastern Germany, and Goebel worries that tourists could be frightened off if the Americans boycott his village.

The Friday night beating of Duncan Kennedy outside an Oberhof bar by about 15 youths has shocked American athletes and embarrassed German law authorities.

Neo-Nazis also taunted Kennedy's black teammate, Robert Pipkins, making monkey noises and then shouting "Nigger out" as they chased the athletes out of the bar.

Oberhof's village council on Monday ordered the bar, called the Kurparkklause, to close because it had become a haunt for neo-Nazis. It was not clear whether the bar has been permanently shut down.

Officials of the U.S. Luge Association said Sunday they may pull out of a Jan. 14-16 World Cup meet slated in Oberhof if its athletes don't feel safe there.

Goebel said he would write a letter asking the U.S. team not to give up on his town of 2,500, nestled in the southwest corner of former East Germany, about 150 miles from Berlin.

"I can guarantee that this kind of thing will not happen again. This was done by a bunch of idiots who didn't even know they were Americans," Goebel said.

The Americans said in interviews Sunday that the 15 toughs came into the bar after getting wind that Americans were inside.

Five suspects were detained after Kennedy identified three of them. Four were freed. Hein-Juergen Nebel, chief prosecutor in the case, said there was insufficient evidence to hold them but they still might be charged.

"We're still collecting evidence on this," Nebel said, adding that he may ask Kennedy and others on the U.S. team for more information.

■ Paris Open

PARIS (AP) — Henri Leconte, in yet another comeback attempt, rallied to beat fellow Frenchman Thierry Champion, 6-7 (7-9), 7-5, 6-1 Monday in the first round of the Paris Open.

The $2.1 million tournament has a top field. Nineteen of the world's top 20 players are entered in the 48-man draw.

Wimbledon and U.S. Open winner Pete Sampras and Australian Open champion Jim Courier are the top seeds. Boris Becker is third-seeded and Michael Stich fourth.

In first-round matches, three Swedes won. Jonas Svensson defeated Marc Goellner of Germany 7-6 (7-1) 6-4; Magnus Larsson beat Carlos Costa of Spain 7-6 (7-5), 4-6, 6-2, and Magnus Gustafsson topped Wayne Ferreira of South Africa 7-6 (7-1), 6-1.

Also, Amos Mansdorf of I. a-el, the 1988 winner, beat Marcos Ondruska of South Africa 4-6, 6-4, 6-1

Two Russians won. Andrei Olhovskiy downed Frenchman Rodolphe Gilbert 7-6 (9-7), 6-7 (3-7), 6-0 and Andrei Cherkasov defeated Henrik Holm of Sweden 6-3, 6-3.

Leconte led France to the Davis Cup over the United States in the 1991 final but has displayed little of that form since. He has been plagued by back injuries and had another disc problem in France's loss to India in the quarterfinals in July.

He has gotten past the second round of only two tournaments this year — a grass court event at Halle, Netherlands, that he won and to the quarterfinals at Wimbledon.

Leconte, ranked No. 84, had to accept a wild card to enter the main draw for this tournament. Champion, ranked No. 237, had to make it through the qualifications.

Against Champion, Leconte reverted to his up-and-down play. He lost his service in the eighth game on three double faults and an unforced volley error. Then Leconte evened it in the next game with brilliant shot making.

In the tiebreaker, he had a set point at 7-6 but lost it with a forehand into the net. Champion took the next two points to take the first set.

In the second set, Champion took a 3-0 lead, taking advantage of 10 Leconte unforced errors in the three games. Leconte then battled back to even the score. At 5-4 , Champion was two points from victory. However, Leconte fired two aces to win the game and take the next two to even the match.

Running writer Sheehan dies at 74 of cancer

OCEAN GROVE, N.J. (AP) — Dr. George Sheehan, the running guru and erudite writer who was called "Mark Twain in sneakers," died Monday after a six-year bout with prostate cancer. He was 74.

Sheehan, the oldest of 14 children of a Brooklyn physician, was a middle-distance runner at Manhattan College, completing a mile in 4:19 in 1939, when the American record was only 13 seconds faster. But he gave up running when he became a cardiologist.

In 1963, Sheehan, the father of 12, resumed his running career at age 45, with the goal of breaking five minutes for the mile.

"I wasn't living the life I was meant to live," he said about the reason for his comeback.

He entered his first Boston Marathon in 1964, and 15 years later, he ran his fastest Boston Marathon at age 61 with a time of 3:01.

In 1969, he became the first man over 50 to break the five-hour barrier, running 4:47.

He was so thrilled by the experience that he wrote seven books covering all facets of running.

"Only in another season in heaven will I relive that finish," Sheehan wrote in his 1978 book, "Running and Being." "An impossible quarter-mile sprint and then holding on to the man I had just beaten so I wouldn't fall down.

"Having his heart pounding against my ear and my own beating in unison. Knowing only that and a world suddenly filled with friends saying nice things to an aging man who felt ageless in autumn."

Sheehan began his journalistic career in 1968 at the Mexico City Olympics, covering the Games for his hometown newspaper, the Asbury Park (N.J.) Press. He joined Runner's World magazine in May 1970, writing a column called "Off the Beaten Track."

"Everyone at Runner's World were truly saddened to learn today of Dr. George Sheehan's death," Amby Burfoot, executive editor of the magazine, said. "We and our readers will always remember him as one of the truly inspirational voices in running.

"His writing and his personal struggle to be the best that he could be motivated thousands to likewise reach for their dreams. We will miss him, but we will always remember the lessons and the example he left behind."

Gator coach tapes poor officiating

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida coach Steve Spurrier is tired of talking about what he sees as poor officiating, so he's making a videotape to state his case.

The Gators (6-1, 5-1) have been penalized 72 times for 584 yards in seven games, 112 yards more than any other team in the Southeastern Conference. Spurrier is concerned about the number of penalties against his team and wants the league office to see why.

"If I say too much about the officiating, it'd make me sound like a crybaby," Spurrier said on Sunday, "and I certainly don't want to be a crybaby about the officials. But all you've got to do is look at the statistics of how many we get compared to the other teams.

"Something's wrong there. Either we're the worst coaches in the country as far as teaching our players to play within the rules, or something's amiss. At some point we've got to get an even break on it, and I don't know when that's going to happen."

Among the calls Spurrier will focus on were two that occurred during the closing minutes of Florida's last two games.

An unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on safety Lawrence Wright helped set up a fourth-quarter field goal that Auburn kicked to beat Florida on Oct. 16. Spurrier also questioned a pass-interference call in the end zone against cornerback Anthone Lott on the next-to-last play of last Saturday's 33-26 victory over Georgia.

"We're probably going to put together a little video of some of these calls we're getting the last few weeks ... Instead of me complaining, maybe it's better to let somebody see what's going on," Spurrier said.

Texas teams claim SLC titles

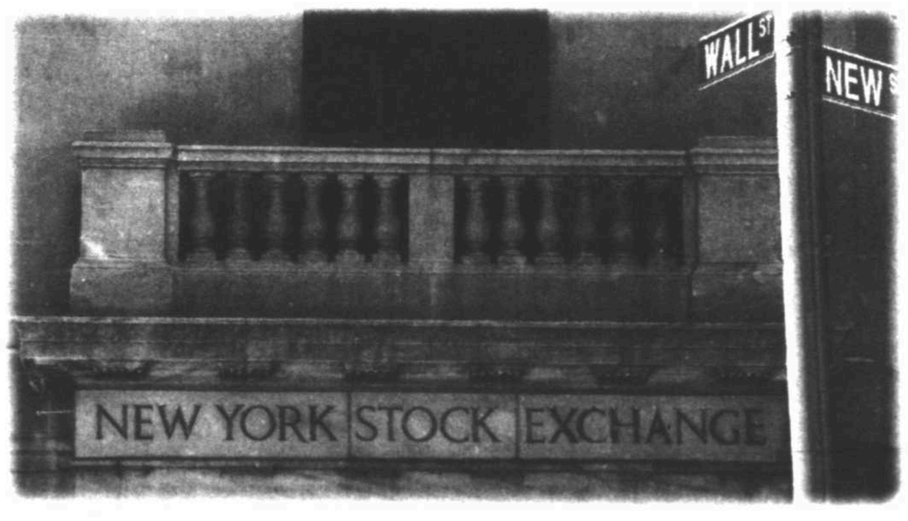
CALHOUN, La. (AP) — Texas-Arlington runners claimed both the men's and women's individual titles, but two other Texas teams took home the team championships in the Southland Conference cross country races here Monday.

Southwest Texas won its first men's title, and Texas-San Antonio won its third straight women's championship at the conference meet run over the Pine Hills Golf Course.

Southwest Texas beat defending champions Texas-Arlington, which finished fourth, in the team competition, with a score of 31 points. Texas-San Antonio finished in second place with 44 points, followed by North Texas at 95.

In the women's division, Texas-San Antonio won with 42 points, followed by Texas-Arlington at 51 and Northwestern State placed third with 81 points.

Rodger Krueger, a senior at Texas-Arlington, won the individual title by winning the 8,000-meter race with a time of 24:45.7. Southwest Texas' Seaton Meredith was second at 25:05.6, and Shannon Brusca of Texas-San Antonio was third at 25:12.5.



Corner The Market With Our New CD.

Now You Can Earn Market Returns With The NationsBank Stock Market CD.

You know that investing in the stock market for the long term is the smart thing to do. After all, the stock market has historically achieved superior returns. You'd like to take advantage of higher market returns, but you don't want to risk your principal.

The NationsBank Stock Market CD gives you a chance to realize market returns, without risking a penny of your principal. The CD's interest rate is tied to the Standard & Poor's 500 Composite Stock Price Index, while your principal is an FDIC-insured deposit with NationsBank.

Your Interest Rate Is Based On The S&P 500 Index.

The Stock Market CD offers you instant diversification because your interest rate is based on the S&P 500 Index, which represents 500 of the nation's leading companies. When you open your five-year CD, you'll have a beginning S&P 500 Index value. During the next 12 months, the Index's value at each month end is taken. The month-end values are then averaged for the year. You'll receive an interest payment each year the 12-month average is higher than your beginning Index value.

Your beginning Index value is reset each year. That means your annual interest rate reflects each year's market performance. So unlike stock investments, if the market declines one year, you'll have a new chance to earn a return in later years—without having to recoup a prior decline first.

There Is No Risk To Your Principal.

The Stock Market CD is similar to a traditional CD, offering you complete safety of principal. The CD is issued by NationsBank, one of the largest and most stable financial institutions in the nation. So you have the security of knowing that your principal will be returned to you in full at maturity.

You can invest in the Stock Market CD with a minimum deposit of $10,000, for a single term of five years. And like any other CD, your principal is insured by the FDIC. But unlike a typical fixed-rate CD, the Stock Market CD gives you the chance to earn a higher rate of return.

NationsBank Stock Market CD Example.*

The chart below illustrates that even with a market decline in 1990, when no interest would have been paid, a $10,000 investment made at the beginning of the five-year period from 1988 through 1992 would have earned an annual percentage yield of 7.19%.

	Year 1	Year 2	Year 3	Year 4	Year 5
	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992
Beginning Value	247.09	277.72	353.40	330.23	417.09

Interest Payment	$848.17	$1,749.78	$0.00	$1,553.59	$0.64

Initial Investment $10,000
Total Interest Payments $4,152.18
Annual Percentage Yield 7.19%

*This chart describes actual S&P 500 Index performance for the period from 1988 to 1992 as it would have applied to the Stock Market CD if the CD had been offered during that period.
Rounding has occurred. The Annual Percentage Yield (APY) shown represents the APY that would have been earned on the Stock Market CD for that period. If you purchase a Stock Market CD, you will earn a variable rate of interest. Your interest rate and APY may change at the end of each 12-month period during the term of your CD, as set forth in the documents governing your Stock Market CD.

It's Easy To Corner The Market.

Bill to limit invasion of privacy through plates moves ahead

By Jonathan Moore
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — It's possible that someone you don't know — and maybe would..'t want to know — could get your phone number and address, just by checking your license-plate number.

A bill introduced last week in Congress would block state motor vehicle departments from releasing personal information about a license holder to random callers.

"The random access to this type of personal information poses a threat to every licensed driver in the nation," said Rep. Jim Moran, D-Va., who introduced the bill with Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

In 32 states an individual can learn anyone's name and address simply by submitting a license plate number and a nominal fee to the DMV, Moran said.

Under the bill, no information would only be available to the public without the individual's permission. Persons applying for licenses would be able to check a box to prevent information from going to direct marketing firms, Moran said.

In Virginia over 127,815 requests were made in 1992 for information contained in motor vehicle files, Moran said. Motorists are not notified when personal information is being accessed.

Criminals and others can use the information to stalk, harass or initiate unsolicited contact with people, Moran said.

In 1989, actress Rebecca Schaeffer was fatally shot at her Los Angeles apartment by a man who used a private investigator to obtain her home address from the California DMV. Following that incident, California law was changed to limit the available information to only a person's name and town.

In Virginia, which Moran said has stricter standards than many states, a person can get any information about an individual that is on a driver's license — plus driving record information — but they must go to the DMV office in person.

Moran said the bill does not prohibit legitimate businesses and government agencies from using the information.

Moran said that anti-abortion activists have been known to copy down the license plate numbers of clinic patients and doctors and use the address information to harass them.

"This bill by itself will not stop stalking," Moran said. "But it will stop state governments from being an accomplice to the crime."

BY Patrick McGreevy
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — A short distance from the high-rises of downtown Los Angeles, an experimental village of geodesic domes is being developed as a means of providing transitional housing for some of the city's homeless.

Called the Genesis I Transitional Community, the cluster of 18 domes next to the Harbor Freeway will serve as living quarters for up to 24 homeless people trying to get back on their feet.

"We don't know whether this thing's going to work or not but, if it does we hope to start up other villages near Skid Row," said homeless advocate Ted Hayes, founder of Justiceville Homeless USA, the group that conceived of the project more than eight years ago.

Hayes got the project off the ground by convincing to Lodwrick Cook, the chairman and chief executive officer of the Atlantic Richfield Co., to put up $250,000 of the company's money to help build the village.

"Mr. Cook simply felt this was a very interesting and very creative way of dealing with the homeless situation," said Arco spokesman Al Greenstein.

Hayes also enlisted the help of David Adams, a major property owner in the area who has become concerned by the number of illegal encampments that have sprung up in alleys near downtown.

"What these people need to get back in the mainstream is some stability, a place to put their possessions," said Adams, who is executive director of Justiceville.

"Without a place like this they will continue to be nomads," Adams said.

Hayes said that the dome village will include shared kitchen, laundry and toilet facilities.

Gunman 'wounds' radio, Limbaugh keeps on talking

GARDINER, Wash. (AP) — Turn down the volume on that darned Rush Limbaugh, Harold Maddox told the construction crew as long ago as August.

But the men building a home down the hill kept listening anyway to the conservative radio talk show host. And the sound kept floating up to Maddox's irritated ears.

Finally, on Oct. 14, as the workers were listening to Limbaugh, Maddox had had enough.

But Rush didn't shut up.

"All of a sudden, they heard the shot and saw the radio jump and saw the bullet hole in it," said Pete Piccini, the Jefferson County sheriff's chief criminal deputy.

Deputies paid a visit to Maddox. Piccini said their exchange went like this:

"You hit the radio."

"Good."

"But you didn't kill it. It's still playing."

"That's too bad. I hate Rush Limbaugh."

If convicted, Maddox could be fined.

Researchers isolate 'noggin,' important brain protein

By Charles Petit
N.Y. Times News Service

BERKELEY, Calif. — A team of researchers in Berkeley and New York says it may have identified a crucial protein that triggers growth of the brain in embryos of most species of animals.

They have given the substance a whimsical but apt name: noggin.

The study, published in the journal Science, illustrates the progress that researchers around the world are making in understanding how genetic information in a newly conceived embryo is transformed into organs and myriad types of tissue, all in the right places.

"In this decade, there has been a tremendous number of advances in identifying the molecular basis for these early decisions" that determine the fates of cells in newly conceived embryos, said Richard M. Harland, a biology professor at the University of California, Berkeley and leader of the eight-person team.

The process, formally called differentiation, has for decades been one of the central puzzles of biology.

Harland said the work grew out of an interest "in how frogs differentiate from a fairly uniform fertilized egg to a tadpole." He said the basic chemical signals that coordinate the process are probably shared by all vertebrate animals, including humans.

The team was trying to isolate any substances that stimulate development of the "neural fold," a crease in early embryos that is the first stage in the formation of the head and brain.

To do so, they isolated from frog embryos a huge collection of about 100,000 bits of genetic information called messenger RNA, which carries the orders to cells to start making new proteins. By a process of elimination, post-doctoral biologist William Smith cut the candidates down to a single bit of protein code.

The name noggin, suggested by graduate student Robert Brown, was inspired by the fact that high doses of the substance stimulate the disabled embryos to turn into giant tadpole heads.

"Up to then, we called it A3," said Harland. "That name didn't have much appeal, and most protein names end in 'in,' so 'noggin' it was."

Because many substances over the years have also demonstrated a capacity to stimulate development of the neural fold, further tests are needed to find out noggin's exact function. One experiment now in the works with Harvard University researcher Andrew McMahon will attempt to create mouse embryos that do not have the gene for noggin, to see if they fail to develop brains and related structures.

Italians dig dirt from 'Cowboy Capital'

By Jan Ferris
N.Y. Times News Service

OAKDALE, Calif. — It's just Sierra foothills dirt, but terra firma from this town is a hot commodity in Rome and Milan thanks to a Levi Strauss, Italy, promotion offering customers "a real piece" of the West.

Nearly three tons of soil already has crossed the Atlantic, and the gimmick's popularity has spurred the independent affiliate of Levi Strauss to expand its dirt giveaway into an entire advertising campaign devoted to Oakdale — the self-proclaimed "Cowboy Capital of the World."

Starting next week, Italy's 33 Original Levi's Stores will display mementos and photos of Oakdale, where a 50-pound sack of hog food costs about $7 at the Feed & Seed. Glossy brochures depicting local youth in various stages of fun will be distributed, and pen pal links will be forged.

Some $10,000 in postmarked mailers went out from Oakdale last week, bearing a snapshot of Mayor Elmo Garcia — "il sindaco" — and inviting Levi's landholders to become honorary citizens of the Central Valley town.

"They told me we'll be famous all over Italy," said Julia Dutton Haidlen, whose 14-year-old cheerleader daughter and her friends are featured in the campaign.

The saga began last year when Levi Strauss, Italy, scouted for an ideal Gold Rush town and settled on Oakdale, a town that, as Haidlen says, "holds itself to its heritage." The first Italian promotion offered free samples of "authentical soil from the state of California." More than 25,000 customers mailed in for the three-inch glass jugs.

The overwhelming response was part and parcel of Levi's popularity in Italy: The blue jeans maker outpaced all its competitors last year, ranking the fashion-conscious country third in Levi's consumption, behind the United States and Japan.

"It's all that is America," said Linda Butler, a spokeswoman for Levi Strauss & Co. in San Francisco. "It's youth."

This fall, the company came back for more, and Oakdale residents met in September to shovel 770 pounds of silty soil from the Stanislaus River banks.

Volcanoes may have doomed dinosaurs

By David Perlman
N.Y. Times News Service

In the latest postmortem about the demise of the dinosaurs, scientists are now proposing the "Pele hypothesis:" Erupting volcanoes, they say, starved the beasts of oxygen so that they began dying away long before any cataclysm from outer space could wipe them out.

Pele, as all Hawaiians know, is the Polynesian goddess of fire who lives deep inside the volcano Kilauea, and it is she whose anger causes volcanoes to erupt.

The dominant theory of dinosaur extinction today holds that some 65 million years ago, one or more huge asteroids or comets crashed into Earth from outer space and created such a stratospheric turmoil of long-lasting smoke and soot and sunless cold that the reign of the dinosaurs abruptly ended in starvation during a kind of "nuclear winter."

Scientists agree that dinosaurs became extinct about 65 million years ago. The impact theory has been buttressed by researchers who have age-dated dinosaur fossils around the world and found elements from outer space in rocky sediments all around the world. There is also the recent discovery of an immense impact crater beneath the ocean off the Yucatan Peninsula that seems to have coincided with the fossil record of mass extinctions.

Now, however, comes Gary Landis, a geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey in Denver who, with his colleagues, offered a different version of dinosaur death recently at a meeting of the Geological Society of America in Boston.

The Landis team has meticulously analyzed tiny bubbles of volcanic gases trapped in fossilized amber dating back millions of years before the impact catastrophe of 65 million years ago, and they have found a striking variation in the oxygen levels of Earth's atmosphere near the end of dinosaur era.

From those bubbles, the researchers found that oxygen levels in the ancient atmosphere dropped from 35 percent to 28 percent during a geologically brief period of two to three million years before the impact from space.

The offer which best serves the interest of VA will be processed for acceptance. VA also will pay reasonable loan discount points and buyers' closing costs on cash offers when requested on the Cash Sale Addendum to Offer to Purchase. Interest rate of available vendee financing is 6.75 percent, (APR 7 percent).

Offers to purchase VA - acquired properties requesting VA - vendee financing received from investors and speculators will be limited to not more than five properties over a period of 6 months. No additional sales will be approved until the purchaser has demonstrated his/her ability to maintain all previous loan accounts over a period of 6 months or more commencing with the due date of the first payment of the last loan account. The intent is not to limit the cumulative/aggregate number of properties which can be sold to speculators, but rather to ensure that the purchasers' financial position is such that he/she can satisfactorily support the additional obligations. However, additional VA-vendee financed sales to an investor-purchased who already own five properties purchased from VA within the preceding 6 months will be considered if the investor - purchaser is willing to make a 20 percent cash down payment on each such additional property.

FORFEITURE OF EARNEST MONEY DEPOSIT

Prior to signing the offer, the broker must deposit in the broker's trust account the $500 earnest money deposit. The $500 earnest money deposit, will be remitted to the closing agent upon acceptance of the offer. Once a purchase offer has been accepted for processing by VA and subsequently cancelled at the request of the purchasers, the earnest money WILL NOT be refunded and the purchaser will be required to forfeit the earnest money to VA as liquidation expenses. There will be no exception to this policy. Therefore, the VA suggests that all broker's interview their buyers to assure that they want the property to submission of an Offer to Purchase, Prospective purchasers will have the option to select the title company or attorney of their choice to close the sale of VA-acquired properties. The address, telephone number, FAX number, tax ID number and name of person to contact should be included with all offers to Purchase. The closing agent will be responsible for document preparation and sales closing. The purchaser or sales broker will be responsible for the payment of all costs charged by the closer. Offers are subject to the provisions of VA Form 26-6705. Offer to Purchase and Contract of Sale, on which all offers must be submitted. VA pays 6 percent sales commission. VA Form 26-6705 must be submitted in duplicate to:
