Face of Jesus

WASHINGTON — The photograph had just disappeared from the television screen when the first of a flood of calls came in to Cable Network News. Viewers were sure they had seen the face of Jesus in the photo taken by the Hubble Space Telescope. The picture of stars being born in a 6 trillion-mile-long gas cloud was released Thursday by NASA. With the picture turned on its side, what appears to be a shadowy face can be seen in the upper portion. "I was aware of calls when I got here at 8 a.m.," said Steve Gallien, a supervising producer at CNN in Atlanta. "Since then, there have been dozens, if not hundreds."

Jobless rate hits 7-month low in slow growth phase

■ Unemployment rate edges down to 5.5 percent; economy created more than 100,000 new jobs.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate hit a seven-month low last month propelled by new jobs in construction, health care and real estate. Despite the improvement, analysts said the economy is growing only slowly.

"This is an economy that is in a subdued, sedate growth phase," said Robert G. Dederick, economic consultant at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "But it is a growth phase."

The jobless rate edged down to 5.5 percent, matching the figure of last March, the Labor Department said Friday.

Many economists believe that since an economic "soft landing" — moderate growth without inflation — is the target of Federal Reserve policy, the central bank probably will leave interest rates unchanged for now.

"This is consistent with a soft-landing scenario ... but soft landing also means a soft economy," said Sung Won Sohn, an economist with the Northwest Corp. in Minneapolis. "So far this year, job creation is only half the rate achieved in 1994, so economic growth has slowed considerably."

"It's steady as she goes," Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich said of the jobless rate. "It's the 14th consecutive month below 6 percent, with no wage-push inflation in sight."

The economy created more than 100,000 new jobs — a figure that would have been even bigger except for a strike that idled 26,000 aircraft production workers.

Wall Street reaction was mixed. By early afternoon, blue-chip stocks were extending Thursday's record to new highs, but bonds lost ground over investor concerns the low jobless rate might jeopardize further rate cuts.

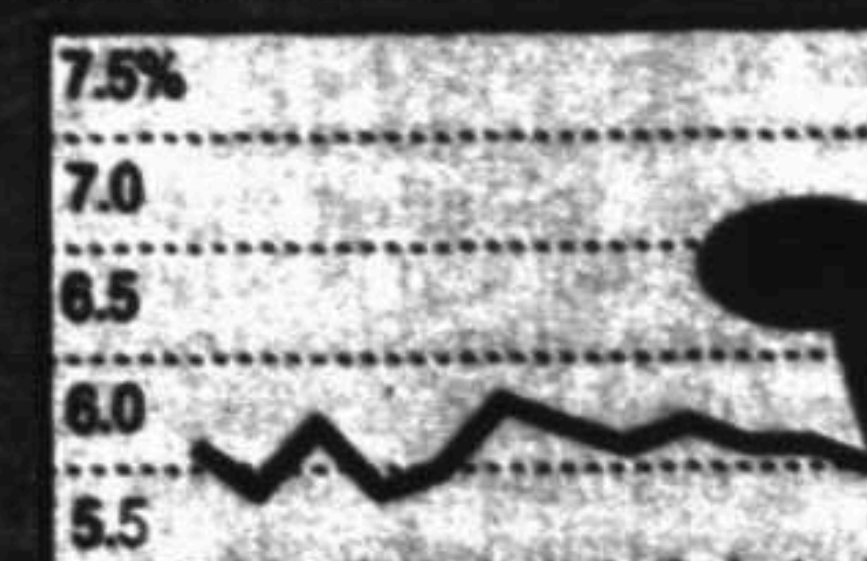

In its report Friday, the Labor Department said the jobless rate dipped to 5.5 percent for the first time since last March. It had stood at 5.6 percent in August and September and hasn't been as low as 5.4 percent since February.

At the same time, the report said jobs grew by 116,000 and would have grown by more except for the strike that idled

Big Spring hopes to restore Settles to early grandeur

By Jeff Lightfoot

Reporter-Telegram Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Looming from the vista of scenic Big Spring stands the Settles Hotel, a Texas Historical Landmark that has been neglected and abandoned for more than a decade, but is waiting to be restored to the grandeur it once knew.

The Settles, located at Third Street and Runnels, is a monument to Big Spring's prosperous past and could be the symbol of a prosperous future. Opened on Oct. 1, 1930, the 14-story building had 150 guest rooms, a marble-floored lobby, two ballrooms, meeting rooms, retail space, apartments, a restaurant, a drugstore, a private club and a penthouse. No two of the guest rooms were exactly alike; each had its own character.

The Settles closed its doors after nearly 50 years in operation. The building's furnishings and fixtures were auctioned off.

"You can tell even walking through it in its current state what kind of grandeur it must have had in its time," said Emma Bogard, assistant city manager.

The Hotel Settles is "one of our local landmarks and we want to save it — want to do something with it," Ms. Bogard said. "We're open to just about anything."

The road to renovation is proving to be full of potholes. "We're still having problems," she said. "We have a consultant who is working on the project with us and she has been attempting to get some federal and state grants. That has not been working out quite as well as we had hoped."

The hotel qualifies for $32,000 in state funds for each room. Sally Loveland, a consultant with Nation-

Texas leads nation in Democrats who are jumping ship, GOP official says

AUSTIN (AP) — The Republican Party's national chairman welcomed several more local officeholders into the GOP ranks Friday, saying Texas leads the nation in Democrats who are jumping ship.

The state Democratic chairman said the new Republicans had climbed aboard the Titanic because cuts in Medicare and education programs scare voters, while Congress's budget could force local tax increases.

The exchange was sparked by a Republican ceremony to honor 13 former Democratic officeholders who have joined the GOP.

GOP National Chairman Haley Barbour told the gathering that conservative Democrats, who once played a leading role in Texas politics, are finding themselves shut out these days.

"Our party is the conservative party of the United States. The Democrat Party is the liberal party," Barbour said. "Democrats are voting with their feet. They're either retiring or they're changing parties. They know this is the party of the open door, and they're welcome."

Barbour said that nationally, 43 of the 118 elected Democratic officials who have changed parties since last year's election were Texans.

He said more members of Congress had changed parties in the past year than at any time since the demise of the Whigs in the 1850s. But gains in local offices play a key role, he said.

"What you're doing here in Texas ... speaks to the strength of our party at the grassroots," Barbour said. "The road to the White House begins at the courthouse."

The new Republicans included county sheriffs, commissioners, judges and a state representative, Billy Clemons of Pollock.

Gov. George W. Bush said the changes in local politics are encouraging. He recalled campaigning with his father during the elder Bush's unsuccessful 1964 bid for the U.S. Senate.

Many pin hopes on peace talks, plan to bring families back home

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Just about everyone Dzemal Smajic knows is bringing family members back to Sarajevo.

"Asim's wife's back already, Osman is bringing his back too. Everybody thinks this is the end of the war and I do too," said the 34-year-old government soldier.

Like many Sarajevans, he is pinning his hopes on peace talks in Dayton, Ohio. Despite having watched so many peace plans fail since the war began in 1992, Smajic's confidence is great enough to bring his own wife and young son home.

"For the first time America is standing behind these talks. This is too serious a power to allow itself the luxury of failing in its own project," Smajic said.

Signs of normalcy are giving Sarajevans more reason for optimism than

Friends testify: Ortiz is religious, happy man who 'still loves God'

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

AMARILLO — A Houston psychologist called the comforting gestures of convicted murderer Henry Lopez Ortiz toward the mother of his victim an "equivalent to the Judas kiss."

Later in the day friends of Ortiz testified on what a good Christian Ortiz is.

Following the Feb. 10 sexual assault, kidnapping and murder of 10-year-old Julianne Powell, her killer approached the child's mother who was searching for her.

"He told me he somehow felt responsible for this ... then he hugged me and asked if there was anything he could do," the girl's mother testified at the beginning of the trial.

Ortiz, 42, was convicted Wednesday of capital murder for the child's suffocation.

The three-woman, nine-man Potter County jury only deliberated about an hour before returning its verdict.

The trial was moved here because of extensive publicity. The state is seeking the death penalty in the case. Ortiz faces either death by lethal injection or life in prison, with a minimum of 40 years served before being eligible for parole.

Man admits to rapes, slaying in one of Canada's most sensational cases

TORONTO (AP) — One of Canada's most sensational murder cases reached an emotional end Friday after Paul Bernardo, already convicted of the sex killings of two teen-agers, admitted he raped 14 other women and helped kill his 15-year-old sister-in-law.

As the rape victims and families of the slain girls looked on, Justice Patrick LeSage declared Bernardo a "dangerous offender" who is unlikely to be rehabilitated.

"You have no right ever to be released," LeSage said in a bluntly worded ruling.

As Bernardo was led from the courtroom, one of the rape victims shouted: "Remember, Paul, we did this to you this time. We won the war."

"Rot in hell," yelled another. Bernardo, a 33-year-old former bookkeeper, was convicted Sept. 1 of murdering Leslie Mahaffy, 14, and Kristen French, 15, after abducting the girls and sexually abusing them as he and his ex-wife videotaped the acts.

Canadians were riveted by the trial, in which jurors watched the videotapes of the girls being raped and degraded. Courtroom spectators could hear, but not see, the tapes.

Bernardo's ex-wife, Karla Homolka, pleaded guilty to manslaughter and is serving a 12-year prison term. She struck a sentencing deal before police learned of the gruesome videotapes. A petition drive urging a harsher sentence on her is under way.

Canada does not permit the death penalty. Bernardo was sentenced to the mandatory life prison term with no chance of parole for 25 years. Friday's ruling makes his sentence indefinite, although there will be reviews every two years after he serves the first 25.

The ruling came after a court session in which Bernardo admitted he helped to kill Tammy Homolka, and raped 14 women from May 1987 to April 1991 near Toronto and St. Catharines, Ontario.

Karla Homolka helped Bernardo drug Tammy so he could have sex with her while she was unconscious; Tammy choked on her own vomit and died.

The confession came as a surprise. Bernardo said he wanted to admit guilt to the outstanding charges to lessen his victims' pain; he cannot be convicted in that death because the charges had been stayed.

"By me accepting the consequences and saying, 'I'm sorry,' hopefully they can put this tragedy behind them," he said from the prisoner's box.

After the hearing, Bernardo was sent to Kingston Penitentiary's segregation unit. Even if his murder convictions are overturned on appeal, the dangerous offender designation means he'll stay in prison for most — if not all — of his life.

LeSage said Bernardo would be treated in prison for psychological disorders. A psychiatrist testified he is a psychopath who suffers from sexual sadism and voyeurism.

"Psychopaths are much more likely to repeat sexual and violent offenses than non-psychopaths," said psychiatrist Stephen Hucker, adding, "His conditions are irremediable."

The families of the slain girls also testified Friday, pleading with the court never to let Bernardo be freed. Courtroom spectators wept.

Rumors of unrest in Mexican military cause battered peso to plummet

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's already battered peso plunged Friday amid rumors of a military coup and of increased army activity in the rebellion-racked state of Chiapas.

The currency closed Friday afternoon at 7.365 pesos to the dollar (13.57 cents), just shy of the record low close of 7.45 on March 9. It fell as low as 7.67 to the dollar during Friday's trading, underlining the market's sensitivity.

A spokesman for President Ernesto Zedillo dismissed the coup rumors as "complete nonsense," especially as they came on the heels of several important announcements aimed at helping Mexico out of its 10-month-old crisis.

On Sunday, Zedillo announced the Alliance for Recovery, a package of incentives to spur employment, raise wages and encourage industrial growth that was agreed by representatives of business, labor and government.

The plan would raise prices for gasoline and electricity. It also would cut government spending by 4.75 percent while expanding social services and training programs — a promise that will be hard to keep.

Mexico has lost more than a million jobs since December, and the peso has fallen by more than 50 percent against the dollar since then. Prices have climbed by 40 percent this year alone, and the economy has shrunk by 5.7 percent.

A $52 billion bailout package in March by international financial institutions, including a $20 billion loan from the United States, has saved the Mexican economy from collapse. But the peso has remained under intense pressure.

Mexico City traders said they thought Friday's rumors began among their New York counterparts. The White House was asked about the rumors by reporters at a regular briefing in Washington.

"Our understanding via our embassy in Mexico City is that there is nothing to substantiate those rumors," said White House press secretary Mike McCurry in Washington.

Nonetheless, the plunging peso signaled Zedillo's inability so far to restore investor confidence to markets still jittery over the December devaluation.

Nora Lustig, a Mexico expert and political scientist at the Brookings Institution in Washington D.C., noted that trading was light Friday and the low volume made the peso vulnerable to any negative news.

She added she was concerned about the source of the rumors that swept trading floors Friday morning and wondered whether they were planted to destabilize trading.

Ministry of Finance takes hit with Daiwa punishment

■ Tough measures also reprimand Japanese institution that was always considered infallible at home, formidable force abroad.

Associated Press

TOKYO — Daiwa Bank is not the only one with mud on its face following the bank's stunning expulsion from the United States for allegedly covering up a $1.1 billion trading loss.

The tough measures may also be the strongest rebuke yet delivered to Japan's Ministry of Finance.

"I think this is the Fed's way of saying the Japanese system has a problem that goes beyond this one particular incident," said Richard Koo of the Nomura Research Institute. Indirectly, he said, the U.S. Federal Reserve is speaking out "against the way the ministry handled the situation."

The powerful Ministry of Finance was long considered infallible at home and a formidable force abroad. But even as they scrambled to play down the impact, ministry officials acknowledged the need to beef up their regulatory vigilance.

Finance Minister Masayoshi Takemura said his ministry was "committed to further promote exchange of information with supervisory authorities of other countries and to strengthen our supervision and inspection over Japanese banks' overseas branches and offices."

Analysts said world financial regulators considered the ministry's six-week delay in telling U.S. authorities about Daiwa's bond trading debacle to be a serious breach of trust.

The U.S. action against Daiwa, the world's 10th-largest commercial bank, represents the harshest punishment ever meted out by U.S. regulators against a Japanese bank.

The trouble comes as the Finance Ministry is trying to ease concerns at home and abroad about its ability to help Japanese banks dispose of hundreds of billions of dollars of bad loans left over from the high-flying 1980s.

"In the past, foreign banks, regulators and investors assumed that even though the accounting system was opaque, they had faith that at the end of the day the Ministry of Finance and Bank of Japan knew exactly what was going on behind the closed doors of Japanese banks," said analyst Brian Waterhouse of James Capel Securities.

"That faith has now been shaken, perhaps irreparably," he said. On the streets of Tokyo, some people seemed to think the ministry was unfairly slandered.

"Daiwa was some kind of scapegoat," said taxi driver Yasumi Tamura. "It would be unthinkable in Japan to kick out an American bank."

But for many Japanese, faith in the ministry appears to be on the wane as well. This summer, panicked depositors rushed to yank their money out of troubled credit unions even though the ministry had promised to protect all deposits.

In Washington, Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, chairman of the House Banking Committee, urged people to view Daiwa's troubles as a legal issue rather than a diplomatic one.

"Great care has to be taken not to precipitate a tit-for-tat or finger-pointing U.S.-Japan dialogue," he said.

Some market watchers believe the crisis will force Daiwa to merge with another bank, possibly Sumitomo, which has already agreed to ease Daiwa's departure from the United States by buying some of its U.S. assets. Daiwa officials would not confirm that such talks are under way.

U.S. prosecutors have accused senior Daiwa executives of directing a cover-up. A former high-ranking Daiwa official has said top officials ordered the cover-up and acted with the consent of the finance ministry, an allegation the ministry denies.

Daiwa said Friday it accepts the shutdown decision but denies a cover-up. It said it would fight the criminal indictment.

Typhoon strikes main Philippine island, kills 35

MANILA, the Philippines (NYT) — With a fury not seen in a decade, a typhoon raged through the main Philippine island of Luzon on Friday, killing 35 people and destroying millions of dollars worth of crops and property.

With winds of up to 130 miles an hour, the storm, designated Angela, cut a swath of destruction through much of Luzon, downing power lines, burying fields and homes and sending tons of ash down the slopes of the Mount Pinatubo volcano.

As many as 40,000 people were forced to flee their homes, crowding schoolhouses, churches and government buildings. The hardest hit were the provinces of southern Luzon and the teeming capital of Manila, which stood in the eye of the typhoon and was battered by violent winds that uprooted trees, tore down walls and ripped the roofs off houses.

The government's Office of Civil Defense estimated the damage to crops at $8 million, and said that at least $22 million worth of bridges, buildings and roads had been destroyed.

Rivers and lakes overflowed in several provinces, flooding low-lying towns in up to 20 feet of water. Scores of fish pens were destroyed, as were thousands of acres of rice fields ready for harvest.

Much of Luzon, including Manila, remained in darkness Friday night as the typhoon headed into the South China Sea. Nearly a hundred power transmission lines were cut and officials said that it would take up to a week to restore power completely.

Public transport ground to a halt as fallen trees and debris made highways impassable. Domestic and international flights were canceled and ships remained in harbors as the typhoon churned the waters of Manila Bay and the South China Sea.

President Fidel Ramos, apparently sensitive to criticism that he is often abroad when disaster strikes, personally directed relief operations and inspected damage in Manila.

Although the damage was widespread, casualties were comparatively low, thanks to early warnings and the rapid response of local officials, who evacuated thousands of people to safer sites.

There were few casualties in central Luzon, which was battered in the last two months by storms that caused mud, rock and ash to flow down the slopes of Mount Pinatubo.

Since the volcano erupted in 1991, the central Luzon Province of Pampanga, some 35 miles north of Manila, has been devastated by annual avalanches of mud and volcanic debris triggered by rain and wind. Several towns have been buried by 20 feet of mud and ash.

Relief officials said Friday that Typhoon Angela caused mud flows 10 to 12 feet high through most of the day. But people in threatened areas in Pampanga had moved to safety by then.

WEATHER WATCH

Today to be cloudy, mid-40s

Staff Report

Today's low temperature won't be as low as Friday's, which was the season's first killing frost. Friday's low dipped to 32.

The average first-freeze date is Nov. 9, according to a forecaster at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

The earliest first freeze on record came on Oct. 19, 1889; the latest first freeze of the season was recorded on Dec. 6, 1954.

That year, 1954, also saw the longest-growing season on record.

Today's forecast calls for light rain or drizzle, with a high in the mid-40s and southeasterly winds at 5 to 15 mph.

Tonight's forecast is for cloudy skies and a low near 40.

Sunday is to be cloudy with the high in the mid-60s.

After an overnight low of 32, Friday's high reached 47, compared to the record high for that date of 86 set in 1988. The record low was 22 set in 1991.

STATE

Texas shivered in the sunshine Friday as blustery north winds continued to shove bitterly cold Arctic air deeper into the state.

The temperature reached 63 degrees in Houston at 4 p.m. but peaked out at 36 degrees at Guadalupe Pass in Far West Texas.

Winds were north from 10 to 20 mph across North, Central and South Texas. However, winds across West Texas and the Panhandle had shifted to southerly.

Mostly high clouds covered much of the state from West Texas into Central and South Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms dampened far South Texas near Brownsville. Otherwise, the state was dry.

The North Texas forecast is for cloudy skies today with a chance of rain in west and central portions, possibly mixed with sleet in the northwest. Increasing cloudiness in the east. Highs will be in the low 40s to low 50s. Tonight and Sunday will be cloudy and warmer with a chance of rain. Lows in the upper 30s to middle 40s and highs in the middle 50s to lower 60s.

South Texas is to have continued cloudy skies with a 40 percent chance of light rain. High in the mid to upper 50s. East and northeast wind at 5 to 10 mph. Lows in the mid 40s to mid 50s.

Forecasters said West Texas will be partly to mostly cloudy through tonight for most areas with a chance of rain for most areas east of the mountains today and tonight. Highs today generally in the 40s and lower 50s except for 60s in the Far West. Lows tonight in the 30s and 40s.

NATION

Temperatures from Oregon to Nevada plunged to record lows Friday, while the season's first frost hit Texas.

The mercury fell to minus 7 at Valentine, Nev., breaking the day's record of zero, set in 1991. Rapid City, S.D., hit minus 3 to break the record of zero set that same year. Elko, Nev., fell to zero, topping the mark of 13 set in 1990.

Freeze warnings were posted across the lower Mississippi Valley, the Tennessee Valley and the central Gulf Coast as Arctic air reached toward the Northeast and the mid Atlantic coast.

Heavy snow warnings were posted in the Lake Superior snowbelt, which covers northeastern Minnesota, northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan, and along southern shores of the lower Great Lakes from Ohio to New York. Up to 12 inches of snow could fall by midday today.

Scattered snow was likely from the mountains of New England south to the central Appalachians.

Pensacola and Milton, Fla., were drenched with more than 3 inches of rain, and showers and thunderstorms were forecast to continue across the extreme Southeast.

It stayed cold and dry across most of the West and the Plains, with some showers scattered through the Southwest and southern Rockies and snow sprinkling the northern Rockies.

The early afternoon high in the Lower 48 was 89, in Miami. The low was minus 22, at Shirley Basin, Wyo.

While the Republicans crowded, Texas Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle said they may be celebrating too soon.

Slagle said Americans are becoming worried about what the Republican-controlled Congress is doing to programs that help average people.

"A party with working family values does not take health care from our parents and educational opportunity from our children while raising taxes on the working poor and local taxpayers to pay for tax cuts for billionaires," Slagle said.

"On the Republican Titanic, the very richest passengers get the lifeboats while women, children and the elderly are left to go down with the ship," he said.

al Development Council, projects that the Settles renovation would require $80,000 for each room.

If federal or state funds were received for the Settles, the building's use would be limited because the funds being applied for are for low-income housing for the elderly.

"The next step that we're looking at is perhaps doing a market study just to get a feel of how much interest and need there really would be for that type of housing," Ms. Bogard said.

The city is open to anything that would get the building renovated, she said. If private investors could raise enough money for the project without using government grants, the city would consider other uses for the building.

David West, a Midland-based construction contractor, was quite taken with the Settles Hotel the first time he saw it. He expressed his interest to the city, has toured the building several times and will soon acquire the 45 pages of the building's blueprints.

West, who is the owner of West Roofing and Construction, said, "I like renovating places, and what that hotel really needs is just somebody to believe in the project."

Ms. Loveland has had engineers look at the building and they declared it "sound, safe, and structurally fine," West said.

"That to me makes it just a simple remodel," West said. "Get a roof over it, get some new windows in it, start knocking out your walls and rebuilding them where you want them, get a plan going, and just do it."

He would like to see the building restored to its original 1930 condition. In order for this to be economically feasible, the lower two floors could reflect their original purposes, i.e. ballrooms, meeting rooms, and some retail businesses, and the upper floors would then be used for offices, hotel rooms, retirement facilities, or a combination, he said.

perhaps people of other regions where the scars of war are still fresh.

A cease-fire has stopped most shelling and sniping since August and it's grown quiet enough for some to consider a land route home. Serbs are no longer blocking aid convoys and the city is well stocked.

So it was good news when the U.N. relief agency announced Friday that it was scaling down its airlift into Sarajevo — not because of sniper fire, but because ground transport is cheaper, and possible.

When the war started in 1992, Dzemal sent his wife Eldina and their 1 1/2-year-old son Dino to Germany. They were among the 1.25 million Bosnians of all ethnic groups who sought safety abroad. Another 1.2 million people were displaced from their homes, living as refugees in their own country.

Smajic decided to stay to safeguard the family home. "We didn't want to be strangers somewhere for the rest of our lives, to be refugees forever," he said.

During the three years his wife and son were in Germany, Smajic said he took consolation from the thought that his son was being spared the trauma of shelling, hunger and cold.

"The thought that he is warm kept me warm," Smajic said. "Everything I do, I do for you, my son," I whispered often to the photos that he received from Germany.

According to the Bosnian ministry for refugees, more than 50,000 people returned to their homes in Bosnia from abroad during the last year and a half.

His own optimism notwithstanding, Smajic said his wife is still afraid of coming back. She fears more war, the rough life in Sarajevo she has seen on television. But, he added, her greatest fear is possible rejection by neighbors and friends.

"Everybody is afraid of that," Smajic said. "She fears people are going to reject her because she left when it was bad and is returning now when it is over."

Smajic said he convinced his wife that Sarajevo was better now than ever since the beginning of the war. "I told her that our home is warm, electricity is regular and she will have water every day," he said.

In addition, Bosnian civilian convoys are allowed through Serb lines around Sarajevo.

"Dayton cannot bring less than what we have now," Smajic argued. "America is not the only guarantee. Now, our Army is strong enough."

Smajic wants to have more children once his wife is back.

"Children were born during the war. Life has never stopped here," he said. "Now it is the right time for them to come back."

ECONOMY: Jobless rate hits 7-month low

(From 1A)

26,000 aircraft production workers.

On the other hand, the department revised its initial 121,000 estimate of September payroll growth to just 50,000. That meant job creation averaged just 95,000 during the two months, compared with 263,000 in August.

After slowing to an anemic 1.7 percent annual growth rate in the second quarter, the nation's economy shot up to a 4.2 percent rate during the next three months, partly the result of a Fed interest rate cut in July.

However, recent reports suggest the economy is slowing again to a more sustainable pace of 2.5 percent to 3 percent. Even if it were to slow further, many analysts maintain the Fed would wait until after President Clinton and Congress complete work on a budget-reduction plan before deciding whether further rate cuts were needed to stimulate growth.

The strike at the Boeing Co. contributed to a 21,000 decline in manufacturing payrolls in October. But analysts noted the drop was the sixth in seven months and maintained that industrial production would remain soft until businesses trim excess inventories.

Service industries, on the other hand, continue to create jobs, although at a slower pace than earlier. Payrolls increased 57,000 in October and 67,000 in September, well below last year's monthly average gain of 117,000.

Although the health industry came up with 27,000 new jobs, business services dropped 10,000 slots after large back-to-back increases.

Finance and real estate employment grew by 18,000, partly reflecting declining mortgage rates, which boosted residential construction. That, in turn, helped produce 28,000 additional construction jobs.

The report also showed that average hourly earnings rose 6 cents in October to $11.59 an hour. Despite the strong advance, department officials said hourly earnings in October were just 3 percent higher than a year earlier.

The average workweek rose by 0.2 hour to 34.7 hours.

Pentagon announces plans to triple airlifter fleet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced Friday it intends to triple its fleet of C-17s, purchasing 80 more of the multi-million-dollar cargo planes from McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The plan — worth an estimated $18 billion — dramatically expands the once-beleaguered defense program by continuing production of the wide-body airlifter into the next century, securing some 8,000 jobs in Southern California and thousands more at subcontractors across the country.

"This is a good news story," said Deputy Defense Secretary John White, who announced the decision. "The C-17 program was in deep trouble a few years ago."

The decision signifies that military capability ranked higher than cost in the Pentagon's analysis. Studies conducted inside the Pentagon and out concluded that the government could save money by buying a combination of C-17s and other, less expensive airlifters.

But military field commanders, who would depend on airlift for weapons, supplies and troops in a wartime emergency, pressed the Pentagon leadership to buy what is, in their view, the most capable plane: the C-17.

"This will become the core airlifter for the United States of America," said Gen. Ronald Fogleman, the Air Force chief of staff. "This nation has a unique capability to project power. It's something no other nation can do."

Fogleman said the Air Force is already considering using C-17s if the United States sends forces to Bosnia.

In addition to military concerns, the Clinton administration decision on the C-17 protects jobs in a key electoral state.

In Southern California alone, some 8,500 McDonnell Douglas jobs are on the line. When subcontractors such as engine-builder Pratt & Whitney are included, the C-17 accounts for 27,000 jobs in 43 states. Because the competing aircraft are not yet in production, no comparable job figures are available.

While California came out a winner, the two other states where competing airlifters might have been built — Washington and Georgia — got consolation prizes. The Air Force plans to locate 48 of the C-17s at McChord Air Force Base near Tacoma, Wash. Most of the rest will be at Charleston Air Force Base, S.C. And the Air Force also is considering modifying some existing C-5 transports to conduct airdrop missions, work that could be done in Georgia.

Friday's announcement is not the final word on the C-17. Congress will have a say in whether, and in what quantity, the military will buy C-17s. Congress has shown increasing enthusiasm for the airlifter in recent months.

"This is the right decision for the country and it obviously has very important benefits for Southern California," said Rep. Jane Harman, D-Calif., whose district abuts the C-17 assembly site.

At least 3,000 McDonnell Douglas employees overflowed Building 59 at the plant next to Long Beach, Calif., Airport. They cheered and threw caps in the air as the announcement was made on a big screen television monitor via satellite.

"You know people are happy," said Jeff McQueen, a master major assembler who helps put the wings, tail and landing gear on the fuselage.

According to a Pentagon statement, contracts for 80 additional planes are worth approximately $18 billion. The first order for additional C-17s will be for eight aircraft, a request to be included in next year's proposed defense budget for fiscal 1997. The 80 planes will be purchased over the next seven years with as many as 15 purchased in any one year.

Jack Modzelewski, an industry analyst with Paine Webber in New York, called the decision, "a great win" for McDonnell Douglas. For the Pentagon, buying planes in quantity will save taxpayers' money, he said.

"They need this kind of volume to get costs down," Modzelewski said.

Competing for the airlift contracts were three behemoths of the aerospace world: McDonnell Douglas and Lockheed Martin Corp., the nation's two largest defense contractors, and Boeing Co., ranked 14th on last year's list of top military contractors.

Boeing's alternative, a modified 747 dubbed the C-33 and built in Seattle, has longer range but cannot carry outsized cargo. And the Lockheed C-5, built in Georgia, while able to carry the largest loads, requires a longer runway, making it less useful in supplying forces fighting in remote combat zones.

The intense competition leading up to Friday's decision was part of a Pentagon strategy designed to press McDonnell Douglas to lower the price of the C-17 and to fix deficiencies that had beset the program.

The first 40 C-17s, already purchased or on order, will cost $21.3 billion, or $533 million per plane. This year's defense bill contains $2.4 billion to complete the last eight of those 40 planes. Under the latest Pentagon estimate, the additional 80 planes would cost $225 million each.

Southern California had reason for optimism. Successful testing last summer of the once troubled C-17 showed the aircraft performing up to standards and, in some cases, exceeding standards. In addition, the C-17 gained strong backing on Capitol Hill and among senior military officers.

For the past two years, the C-17 has been on what amounted to probation stemming from cost overruns, performance shortcomings and faulty manufacturing that beset early development of the plane.

Even before the Pentagon decision, the uniformed military was lining up behind the C-17. Airlift experts agree that the C-17 provides the most flexible and capable airlifter, with its ability to land on short, remote runways while carrying heavy, "outsized" cargo such as M-1 tanks and Patriot Missile batteries.

Officers in custody death face homicide charges

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A coroner's jury ruled Friday that five white officers who arrested a cousin of Steelers defensive end Ray Seals should be charged with homicide because the man suffocated in police custody.

Jonny Gammage, who was black, died Oct. 12 after the officers pulled him over in the Pittsburgh suburb of Brentwood while Gammage was driving Seals' 1988 Jaguar.

Officers said they had to sit on Gammage and beat him with flashlights to stop him from flailing after they pulled him over for driving erratically.

But Gammage's supporters have said Gammage, who was 5-foot-7 and weighed 187 pounds, would never have attacked the officers.

More national news/3B

The Rev. Jesse Jackson has called the death a "lynching" and the FBI is investigating.

District Attorney Robert Colville and Acting Coroner F. James Gregis can either accept or reject the jury's recommendation. Colville said he will make his decision by the end of next week at the earliest.

In his instructions, Deputy Coroner Arthur Gilkes told the six jurors they could recommend homicide charges against one or more officers, charges of involuntary manslaughter or no charges at all. He said that if they believed officers did not have good reason to think Gammage had committed a felony or that their lives were in danger, they must recommend charges of criminal homicide.

Gammage, 31, ran Seals' community relations programs and sports clothing business, best known for Steelers T-shirts that say "60 Minute Men." They raised money to buy Thanksgiving dinners and Christmas toys for poor families last year.

Members of Gammage's family burst into tears when they heard the jury's recommendation, reached in 1 1/2 hours after a three-day hearing.

"It was a fair verdict. It's just the first step to get to the bottom of it," Seals said.

Texas politicians surf the Internet

By Michelle Mittelstadt

WASHINGTON — A handful of Texans in Congress are boldly exploring a new frontier: the Internet.

Call it what you will — the information superhighway, cyberspace, the infobahn — the Texans say it's yet another way to stay in touch with their constituents.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich may be the high priest of the Third Wave, futurist Alvin Toffler's term for the age of computers and information, but to date, fewer than 80 of the House's 435 members have dipped their toes in the cybersurf.

Five of Texas' 30 House members are among the Internet pioneers, having set up "home pages" on the Net's World Wide Web.

Click on their home pages and you'll be able to peruse everything from dry speeches, biographies and press releases

Web's challenges change little as millions use it

■ Tim Berners-Lee, inventor of the Internet's most popular browser, the World Wide Web, is working diligently to see that technology now considered a novelty for millions will soon be taken for granted by computer users the world over.

By Evan Ramstad
AP Business Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Like many people who achieve something spectacular, a myth has grown about Tim Berners-Lee, creator of the World Wide Web.

He's not a physicist. He's just a software engineer who wanted to make his work easier.

But he's often portrayed as a physicist because he developed the Web while working at the European Particle Physics Laboratory, known as CERN, and the physics community was the first to embrace it.

But now, more than a decade after he came up with the idea, the Web is used by millions of people with computers connected to the Internet, the global computer network. Entertainment and information — not science — is the aim of many users who "browse" a colorful collection of Web "sites" every day.

Companies of all sizes display products and public information on their sites. And thousands of individuals have their own Web sites, where they show favorite photos, poetry, opinions on entertainment, news or sports, or demonstrate some type of expertise.

Berners-Lee believes the technology that is now a novelty to many people will be taken for granted in a few years. And he is working toward that end.

British-born and educated, the soft-spoken programmer left CERN a year ago to join the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which helped form a consortium of more than 90 companies and institutions to fund the development of technical standards for the Web.

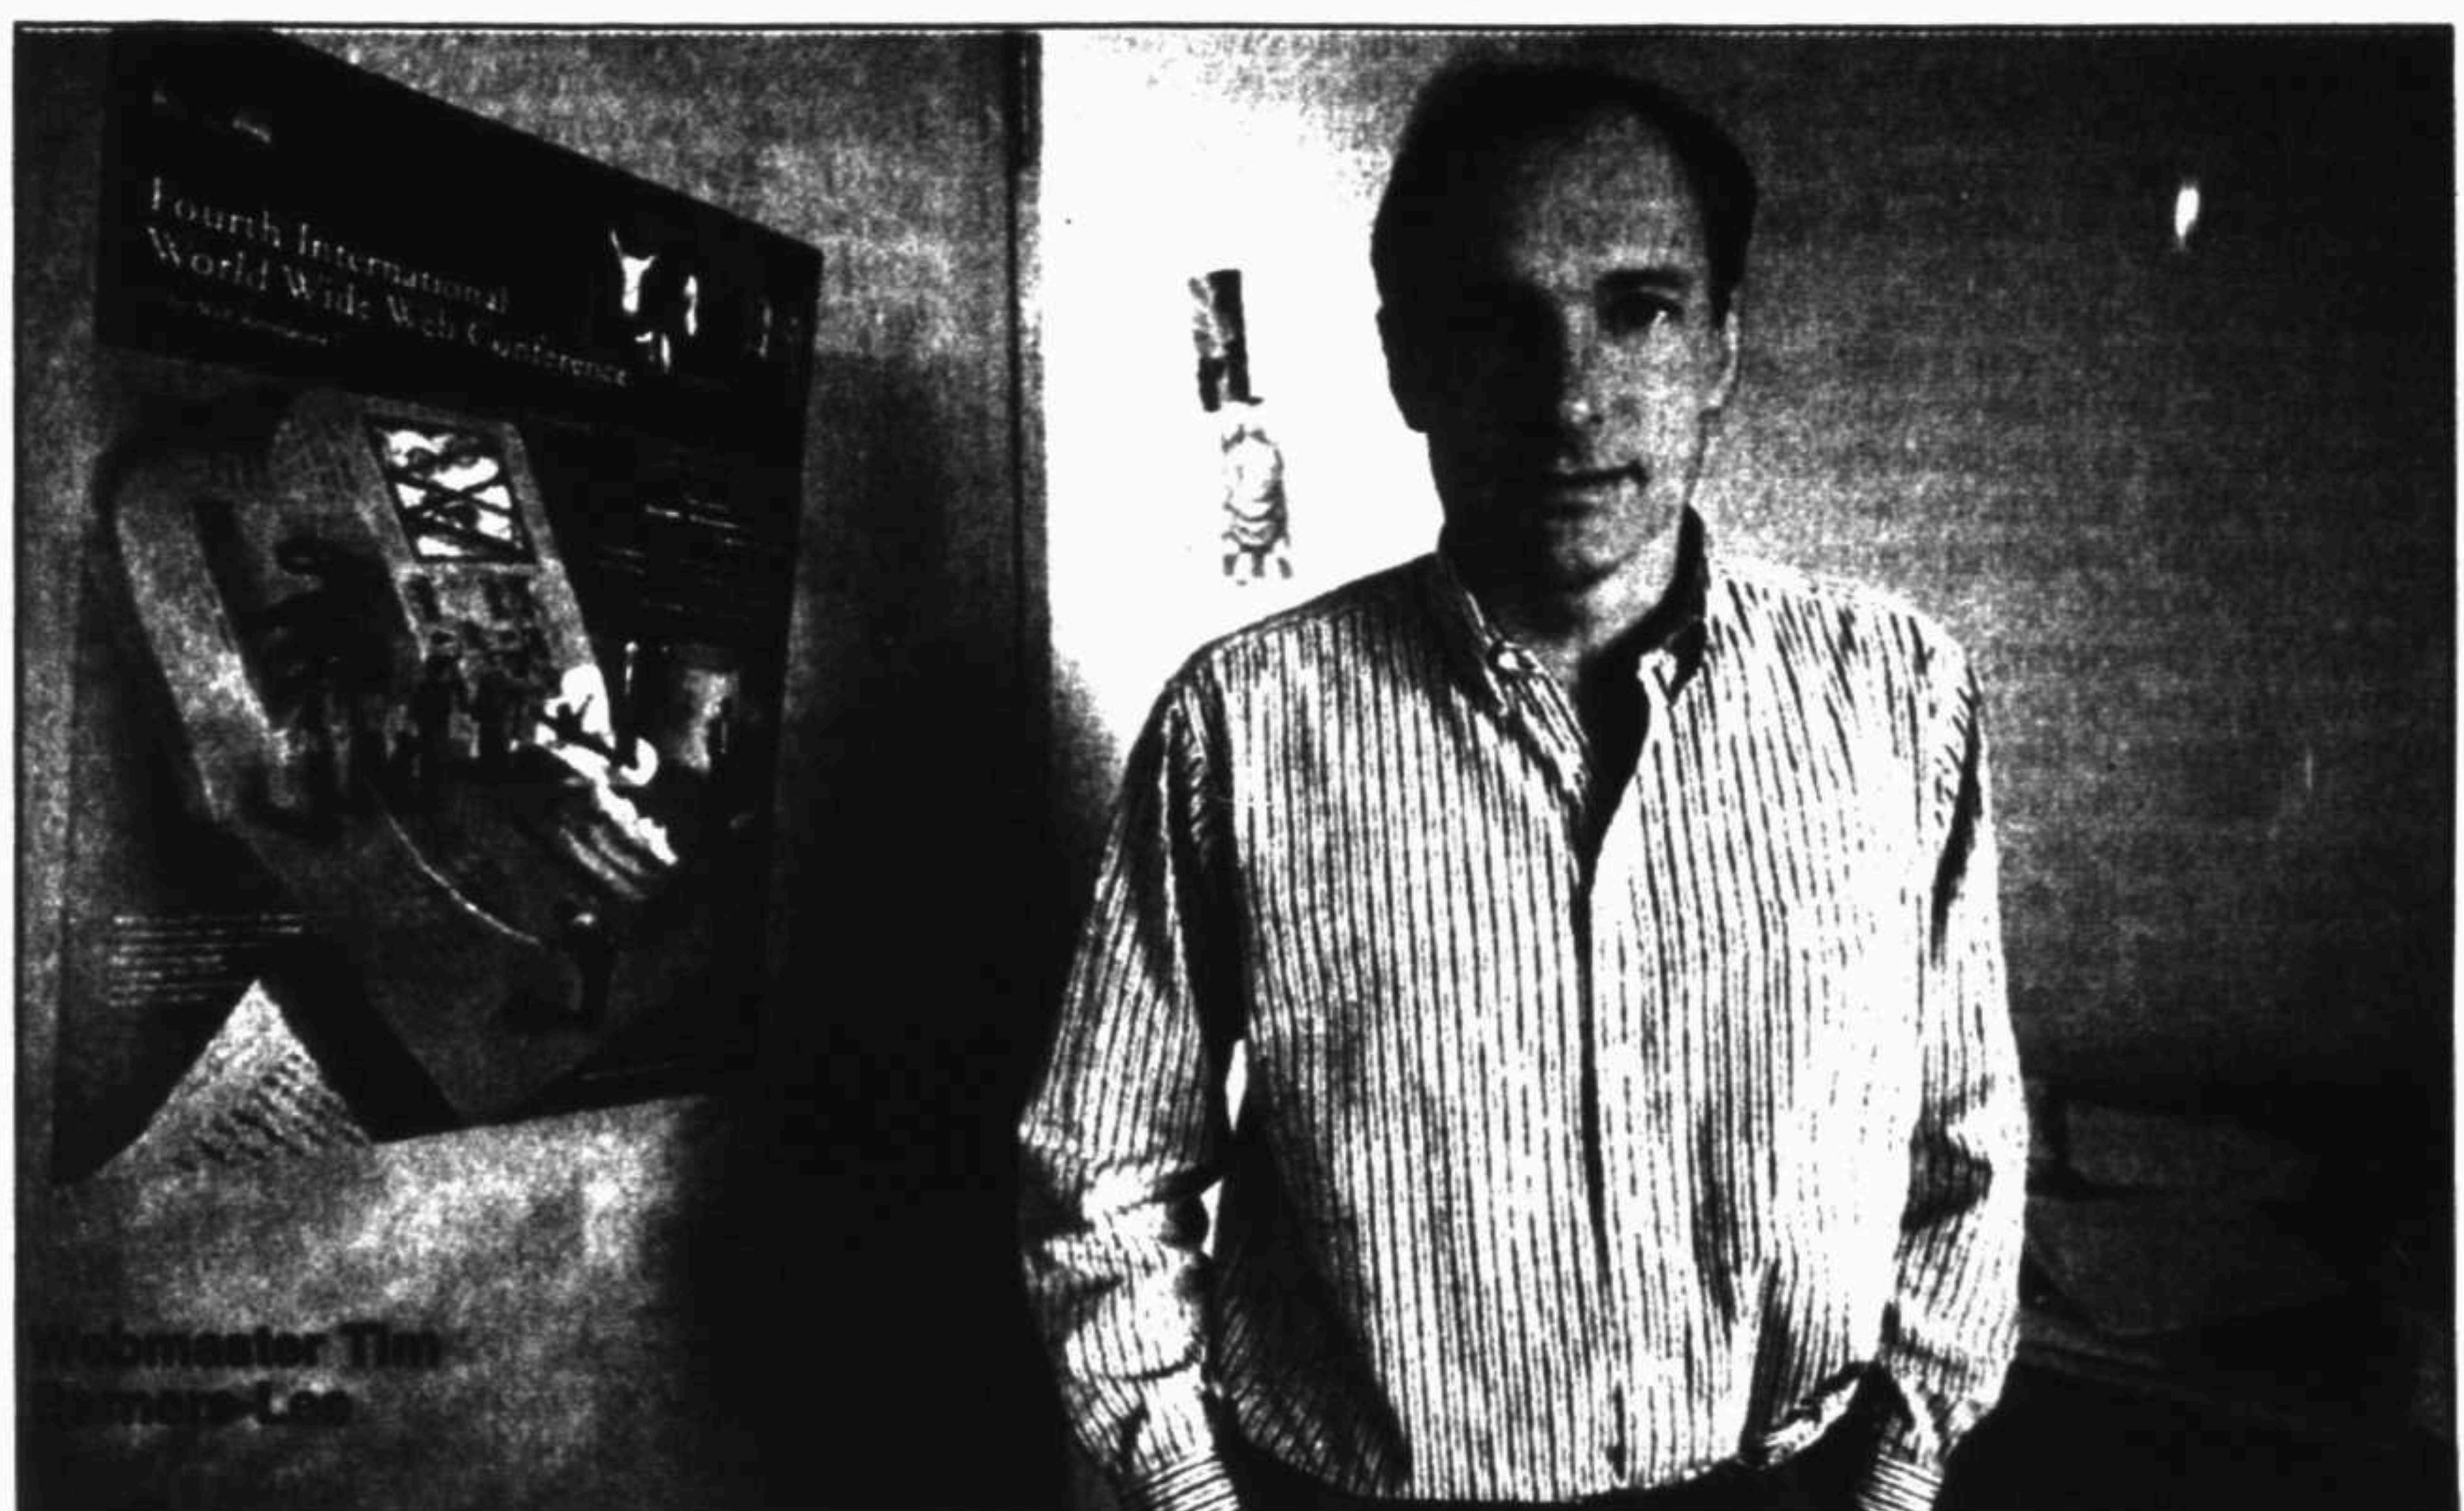

The consortium's members are also dealing with many of the issues that reflect the public's anxiety about on-line communication — like security, intellectual property protection, free speech, anonymity and authenticity. They're working on the Web of the future.

The group is expected to come up with innovations to help rate Web content the way that movies are, and to allow users to do more things on a Web page besides reading it and jumping to another.

Many members of the World Wide Web Consortium, especially companies like software and computer makers, see the coming changes as a way to make money quickly.

"We have short-term pressures from companies that need to get products out to market very rapidly, in a ridiculously short time scale when

Excerpts From a Conversation With Tim Berners-Lee:

Comments made by Tim Berners-Lee, developer of the World Wide Web, during a recent interview at his office at the MIT Laboratory for Computer Science:

On the original program that formed the basis for the technical standards that now define the World Wide Web:

"When I arrived (at CERN in 1980), I found this amazing place with all sorts of very, very bright people who were collaborating in all sorts of informal ways. Before that, I'd been playing with programs to represent data as random associations, as random links. In 1980, simply to keep track of what was going on, the people I'd been introduced to, the software they'd written, the hardware they'd designed, all these interconnections, I wrote a program for myself that allowed random associations.

"When I came back to CERN in '84, I kept using it and found it was very useful for me. I could use it because with the hypertext structure, you don't constrain the information so you don't have to organize your project in a particular way in order to document it.

"So if you have a project that doesn't have a particular organization, because it's made up of people coming from all over who use lots of different computers, then hypertext allows you to document it.

"The Web really came about from a realization that I needed a tool and I needed everyone else to be using it to be able to do my work efficiently."

On the pervasiveness of computing technology:

"There was a phase when computer programmers were more or less told by society, 'Look you're hackers. You understand bits, therefore you don't understand people.' But now we're in a situation where the lawyers are saying that they need technical people to make the law. Maybe this was always the case. It's just that now there's much more of a mingling.

"I find a lot of people who are getting into Web programming are coming from the liberal arts. And programmers who might originally have been studying computers and working for computer organizations are getting into much more interesting positions. Maybe the world is becoming more realistic about that."

On the key challenge for setting technical parameters for the Web:

"The infrastructure we're working on now, at the moment, looks like an exciting new application (for a computer). In a few years time, it will be something that every application assumes. You will assume that the Web will be a global database and every application will work within the Web.

"What people are really looking to do is to make sure that, rather than being as exciting as possible, it is as evolvable as possible and stable as possible so they can trample it underfoot."

"Look at the Internet, it came out as 'Gee I can send a message from this computer to that computer.' Now, the Internet is just something that is there. You plug in and your computer becomes part of it. The Web, same thing, we want it to be something which is there. And every time we take a layer and trample it underfoot, then we can build up the next new exciting thing."

TECHTALK

Listen up and open your ears to technology

By Stephan Lazaroff

This may be the question your computer is asking when you're suddenly caught off guard by the PC speaker's loud, monotone beeping during bootup or while in Windows working on that overdue report. Although great for keeping one awake, that squawking speaker won't win any prizes for sound recreation! "Gamers" learned long ago that a good sound card and a pair of speakers were necessary to enhance game play on their computers. Business application users are only now awakening to the same discovery. With more and more programs utilizing voice recognition commands even the most stalwart anti-game computer user can justify a new sound wave card matched to a set of Yamaha, stereo-quality speakers. (Is that music coming from Terry's speakers?)

Creative Labs, makers of countless and varied upgrade kits for PC's the world over, has long since set the standard for sound card specifications and nearly every program on the market, be it entertainment, education or productivity oriented, is set up to use CL's Sound Blaster family of cards. Today's new MPC 3 standard demands a wave table card in place of the older, (though still excellent), 16 bit sound card which has been a staple of PC makers for years. While this new standard is already in place, there are still a number of programs unable to take advantage of it, and some which simply refuse to cooperate with it. Fortunately for those single minded productivity application users, business programs once lacking the need for any of the sophisticated features of a "wave card" are now incorporating their use.

One useful purpose these cards serve is when used in conjunction with voice mail programs. Due to a wave table sound card's ability to (nearly) perfectly match the human voice, one can now leave voice mail that doesn't sound like Robbie the Robot in drag! With a little effort you can add a layer of music in the background to set the mood of the message, (the theme from Romeo & Juliet works well for date offers). Further — and this is a great tip — layer your voice over the sounds of office equipment at work. There's now compact disks full of such sounds and for those with one or two person offices, these can make your operation seem larger when the caller hears voices, phones ringing and copiers cranking away. The latest marketing books now include at least a few pages on wave card telephony use, tips and tricks.

This column is not to sponsor any more manufacturer's product or products, but I feel there is some justification in mentioning that the Creative Lab's line of cards is by far the most widely accepted and easiest to install from among the growing list of card makers. Creative Lab's Awe32 is a wonderful wave table card with 128 instruments sampled and stored in memory. By matching incoming sound to the proper instrument the card produces exactly the correct sound for play back. Not just imitated sound ... the card uses the proper instrument for re-creation of sound. End users, (you and I), hear stereo quality music from our speakers rather than a hammer on a steel trash can!

Finally, there's music ... real music from your computer compact disk drive, and there's no way that PC speaker can play it. The better the sound card and speakers, the better the music to your ears.

Family Messaging

Using the latest computer chip technology, the Family Message Center, from Voice It Worldwide, Inc., acts as a central messaging source for the entire family.

The Message Center translates the human voice into digital signals that can be replayed much like a CD player. Family members can quickly skip forward or back through messages without the hassle of rewinding tape. The unit is compact in size, 6" wide by 1 1/2" thick, and easy enough for a child to use.

Four recording channels can be individualized for family members, or used for ongoing items, such as a grocery, or to-do list.

The Family Messaging Center can be found in electronic specialty stores, office supply superstores, department stores with a suggested retail price of $119.

For a listing of retail outlets that carry the messaging center, call 1 800-876-4599, ext. 45, or visit Voice It's home page at <http://www.voiceit.com>.

Texas Tourism

The Texas Department of Commerce and the Texas Department of Transportation have combined to produce a home page for tourism in the state on the World Wide Web, producing a large, comprehensive on-line data base of Texas travel information.

"The Internet is a great tool for increasing world-wide interest in travel to Texas," said Darren Rudloff, director of Commerce's tourism division. "We're excited about having this new avenue for getting the message out about Texas."

The graphic information service includes listings for cities, attractions and events, as well as five-to-six day driving tours. The guide can be searched by key word, area and date and will automatically send e-mails when information is updated. An interactive map allows viewers to pick from the seven Texas regions and then access information through an indexed version of the Texas State Travel Guide and other sources.

Texas Tourism Guide is available at <http://TravelTex.com>.

Internet Seminars

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer two seminars Thursday, Nov. 9.

"Introduction to the Internet" (8:30-11 a.m.) will explore what the "Net" has to offer for work, home and school and will also look into parts of the Internet, including e-mail, newsgroups, Telnet, FTP and the World Wide Web.

"Introduction to the Internet for Geoscientists" (1-4:30 p.m.) will discuss topics such as downloading data from the USGS and programs from COGS; getting digital maps from the Texas National Resource Information System, and checking out TIPRO, AAPG and the SEG.

Cost is $50 per class. For more information or to reserve your spot, call 683-2832.

Classes are co-sponsored by the Midland Reporter-Telegram's BasinLink. Fees go to support PBGC, an independent, non-profit educational institution.

Some of the best, most sophisticated software given away

By Michael Putzel
N.Y. Times News Service

Lots of people write software — some of it very complex, time-consuming code — and then try to give it away in hopes others will like it.

A number of such programs are genuinely free and circulate widely, zipping from computer to computer across the Internet. The no-strings-attached stuff is called "freeware," and the best-known example of it is NCSA Mosaic, the program developed at the University of Illinois to open the Internet's World Wide Web to anyone who could point with a mouse and click.

Other software authors distribute their products freely in hopes of making money, and some of them even make a living at it. They sell "shareware" and ask people to try it before they buy. Users are asked to send a fee to the developer if they are happy with the software. Many do.

Some shareware, such as the popular Paint Shop Pro for viewing digital images on a personal computer, displays a message every time it is loaded, reminding the user that after 30 days "you must purchase the licensed version" by sending $69 to the developer in Minnetonka, Minn., or to any of several licensing agents around the world.

Users are frequently offered product upgrades or more robust versions if they register and pay the licensing fee.

Lots of shareware can be downloaded easily from the commercial on-line services such as America Online, CompuServe or Prodigy. Private electronic bulletin boards known as BBS' also post share-ware of every description, from tiny routines to simplify particular tasks to radical and demanding games that gobble every byte of a computer's memory.

Most shareware developers don't make a lot of money at it, although there are a few legendary exceptions. One of the earliest shareware products, a communications program called ProComm, was so much better than comparable store-bought software that a retail version was brought to market and became the industry leader. More recently, the combat game Doom took the computer gaming world by storm, and private packagers sold it in software stores just to get a cut of retail sales.

As prices of commercial software from major publishers have declined in recent years, the incentive to search BBS postings for suitable shareware products has slackened, especially with rising public concern about inadvertently importing a computer virus attached to software downloaded from a network. And if you run into trouble with your software when you're crashing to finish a project in the middle of the night, there isn't likely to be a technical support line open to help you.

But Richard Harper, president of the Association of Shareware Professionals, says he and his colleagues still offer something you can't get by buying disks in a shrink-wrapped box.

"No matter how low the price of the store-bought software," he says, "you still don't get an opportunity to try it out with your data and projects on your machine before you pay for it."

Face it, OS/2 little more than betamax of the '90s

By Dr. Emilio Bombay
N.Y. Times News Service

DEAR DR. BOMBAY: When a big company like IBM has a better product than Windows 95, why don't they promote it?

—Freedom of choice
DEAR FREEDOM: OS/2 did most of that Windows 95 stuff first and, some say, better. But part of what makes America great is that the mediocre inevitably rises to the top. Look at any level of government if you don't believe that.

It also helps if you have Bill "Darth" Gates spending millions promoting a product, cutting deals with hardware manufacturers and software publishers to ensure that every man, woman and child on the planet won't want to live without it.

Face it: OS/2 is the Betamax of the '90s.
DEAR DR. BOMBAY: It seems you have not done your homework: 28.8 modems are 28,800 bits per second, not baud.

—Bit wit
DEAR BIT: True, the two terms coincide only up to a certain technical point that makes most people's heads hurt to try to comprehend. But a lot of us still use them interchangeably. We still call our refrigerators "ice boxes," too.

Like most computerese, "bits per second" and "baud" have no real meaning to ordinary folks, who just can't relate to all those chunks of stuff zooming through a modem. So, as long as we don't understand what we're talking about, let's at least make the words fun. How about changing the unit of modem speed to "farkle"? Then everybody will be happy.

DEAR DR. BOMBAY: Why are modem manuals so difficult to understand?

—Hub?
DEAR HUB: Because they spend too much time worrying about bits and bauds. The simple answer is that many of those manuals are written by the plain-English-impaired. Unless you really need to know what makes your new 28.8-farkle modem do its tricks, you can ignore almost everything but the installation instructions.

You'll also learn about some of the members' after-hours interests. For example, the home page for Rep. Ken Bentsen, D-Houston, allows visitors to link to his favorite Internet sites: The Grateful Dead, CNN and the Houston Rockets.

House Majority Leader Dick Arney's home page starts off on a serious note. "The information revolution is giving Americans more access to knowledge and their leaders than ever before," says a letter from the Irving Republican.

But that stiff greeting is quickly offset by a glimpse into some of Arney's passions — everything from fishing and red pickup trucks to some of his fondest Web links under "Arney's Fun Links."

Click on the "Fun Links" (located next to a caption "All work and no play make Dick a dull boy") and you'll be able to jump to home pages touting the Dallas Cowboys, singers Jerry Jeff Walker and Jimmy Buffett and the Country Music Fan Page.

Lest anyone think Arney is all frivolity, his home page also links to the far more sober-minded "Flat Tax Home Page" — a major political issue for the one-time professor of economics.

plan to restore freedom and fairness to federal taxation" and "depressing facts about the current tax structure."

Arney's home page is rivaled only by Barton's in computer sophistication and number of photographs showcasing them.

Tap onto Arney's Web site and see a photo of the House Republicans' No. 2 in what appears to be a near-embrace with a wide-mouth bass — though with the grainy resolution of computerized photos, it's hard to tell. Then, there are six Arney "action shots" — Arney with Gingrich, Arney on the House floor, Arney surrounded by reporters, etc.

Barton, who earlier this year served on a task force to make the House more computer-accessible, also places great stock in photos. There's an official Barton portrait, Barton and family, Barton in the Oval Office with President Bush, Barton on the Capitol steps with constituents, Barton and Gingrich.

By contrast, San Antonio Republican Lamar Smith could almost be termed camera-shy. His home page boasts only one official portrait, though it offers six color snapshots of his district, including photos of a field of bluebonnets, San Antonio's Riverwalk and the Alamo.

The final Texas House member on the Internet, Houston Democrat Gene Green, favors simplicity: several identical graphics of the Lone Star flag.

Barton, for one, believes the Internet is the wave of the future in dealing with constituents.

"I think over time it will become the dominant communications medium," he said in a recent interview. "It's simply a question of getting more and more people wired in and comfortable."

Seventeen percent of adults in the United States and Canada — approximately 37 million people — have access to the Internet at home or work, according to a new study.

Five percent of Barton's mail is coming via the Internet, a fairly sizeable amount considering that his home page went up at the start of October.

For now, Barton's staff is replying to computer e-mail by "snail mail" — the U.S. Postal Service.

"This allows people to get information from all over the country much more easily," said Barton, noting that his role as chairman of a key oversight subcommittee with jurisdiction over the Food and Drug Administration and other agencies may be of interest to people well outside his district.

The state's two senators are lagging behind their more adventurous House counterparts, though GOP Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison does have an e-mail address for constituents who wish to contact her office by computer.

Hutchison press secretary Missi Tessier estimated that the senator's office receives 800 to 1,000 messages on the Internet each week — some 250 to 300 of which originate in Texas. Replies are done by letter, not e-mail.

"It's a growing component of our overall constituent communication service," Ms. Tessier said.

Mrs. Hutchison ventured onto the Internet herself earlier this year, taking part in a week-long chat with women across the country on the Prodigy on-line service. "We got everything from 'You're doing a great job' to 'How do you feel about domestic violence?' to 'How do you feel about the situation in Bosnia?'," Ms. Tessier said.

Although Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, has yet to make his Senate office computer-accessible, his presidential campaign has a glitzy home page, full of patriotic flag graphics and red-white-and-blue imagery.

Congress is far from the only government branch making inroads on the Internet. These days, federal agencies of all stripes are getting their own home pages, attracted by the low cost and relative ease of posting information there for the public.

WEB: One goal is to establish rating symbol compared historically," Berners-Lee said.

(From 1B)

"And at the same time, we have to be aware that we're doing something that has got a lot of long-term implications. So when we hold a workshop (for discussing and teaching design technicalities), we've got a tremendous number of ideas that we're trying to balance."

One sign of the Web's growing importance is that more than 3,000 people are expected at the fourth conference for standards development here next month. That's compared to 300 at the first such gathering, held early last year.

The Web represents a major step toward getting information anytime and anywhere, the oft-discussed promise of computers and communications. But for all of its sophisticated technology, the Web is still in its youth, "the medieval part of this dream," said Michael Dertouzos, director of the MIT Laboratory for Computer Science, where Berners-Lee now works.

He explained: "Between the steam engine and the jet engine, there were 230 years. Let's be patient. Between the start of computing and today, there's been 35 years, depending on your definitions. We've got 170 to go. We're just about to discover internal combustion."

What remains constant is the main idea behind the Web — that computer-accessed information can easily be associated or linked to other information regardless of where that other information is.

"In many ways, the scale of the Web hasn't changed," Berners-Lee said. "The fact that there are millions of people instead of thousands of people doesn't change it very much more than the fact that there were thousands instead of three."

The story of the Web began in the early 1980s, when Berners-Lee created a simple program to help him keep track of other people and projects at CERN. It relied on "hypertext," highlighted words that doubled as a command to a path to related information.

The big step came years later, when Berners-Lee had encouraged many colleagues to use his program. The hypertext was combined with a communications network, which meant the extra information didn't have to be on the same computer as the original.

Over the past two years, it has seemed that the power of the Web appears to have been grabbed by corporate marketers and creative college students. But more companies are realizing the data-linking concept can help them change their internal computer systems. They are finding it frees them from forcing workers to act in a way that is dictated by a computer's limitations.

"The reason the Web works is it doesn't have indications about how we structure ourselves," Berners-Lee said.

"Every time you first make a (computer) system and build an organization around it, you're constraining the organization. The organization may not be able to move. If you use hypertext, the organization can change."

He said he is eager for the Web to evolve in a way that allows people to have much more direct interaction with it. Web pages can be designed with an ordinary word processor that has an extra feature (often available for free) for writing the hypertext, or HTML, commands.

But the next step are pages that can be annotated by people who are reading them and shared within a group, similar to the way that Lotus Notes and other groupware programs work.

"We're looking for a time when we have common data that groups of people can play with together and come to a group understanding or group knowledge," Berners-Lee said. "That was part of the original vision that we've been a little distracted from."

Other goals include placing an ingredient into Web content that permits a rating symbol. The Web Consortium won't do the rating. They are just trying to make it possible for a Web site developer or a third-party rating agency to declare whether material is proper for all or should be designated for a limited audience.

Company worked manic depressive to death, family says in complaint

By Jon Marcus

BOSTON — Like many workers in the defense industry, Santo Alba saw his duties increase as his employer, Raytheon Co., made major layoffs to lower costs.

The 55-year-old foreman of the sheet metal shop was working 70 to 80 hours a week, by his family's estimate, on May 15 — the day his supervisor told him his workload would increase again.

That afternoon, Alba apparently stuck his head into a giant circular saw used to cut sheet metal and was decapitated. Co-workers at the missile plant in Bedford made the gory discovery. His death was ruled a suicide.

Alba's family says he was worked to death.

Alba's relatives allege that Raytheon knew he was driven by mental illness to put in long hours and yet did nothing to stop him. Alba had been diagnosed with manic depression in 1994.

On Oct. 2, the family filed a complaint with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination in the first step toward a lawsuit that their lawyer said will demand millions of dollars.

"If you have an employee who is suffering from a mental illness and you do not take that into account in the job functions, then you are not properly accommodating them under the Americans with Disabilities Act," said Jeffrey Newman, attorney for Alba's wife, Dolores, and their two sons.

It is the latest in a growing number of legal actions involving depression and other mental illnesses brought under the 5-year-old federal act, which requires employers to make reasonable accommodations for qualified workers with disabilities, including psychological illnesses.

"Employers are allowed to require an employee to perform the essential functions of the job," said Wendy Parmet, a Northeastern University law professor who specializes in discrimination cases. "What the ADA says most clearly to employers is that you have to make a careful, thoughtful individual determination when there is an emotional disability."

In September, Martin Putnam, a lawyer for Pacific Gas & Electric in San Francisco, won a $1.1 million award against the utility, which had asked him to resign when he became depressed.

Putnam, 46, who made $90,000 a year, claimed the utility should have reduced his hours because of his periodic despair. It was one of the largest awards ever in a discrimination case involving emotional problems.

Newman said such cases will become more common because of the "sweatshop mentality and the overwork" he said have resulted from downsizing.

"Companies want to increase their bottom line and they tend to overwork their employees in violation of the law," he said.

Alba's duties were reduced after he was hospitalized in 1994 and his illness diagnosed. But as Raytheon began a period of cost-cutting and layoffs, his workload steadily increased until his death, his family says.

Documents show that supervisors considered Alba an obsessive who voluntarily worked long hours and weekends.

President dedicates memorial to victims of Pan Am Flight 103

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a rain-swept, grassy hillside, President Clinton dedicated a memorial Friday to the 270 victims of the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103. He pledged the United States would "never, never relax our efforts" until the bombers are caught.

Clinton spoke at Arlington National Cemetery at the unveiling of a monument made from 270 pink sandstones, one for each of the victims killed when the jumbo jetliner plunged to the ground at Lockerbie, Scotland, on Dec. 21, 1988.

The rocks, cut from a quarry near Lockerbie, form a tapered, circular tower 11 feet high. It is a traditional Scottish monument, known as a memorial cairn.

A bagpiper played "Amazing Grace" as children of the victims joined Clinton in placing a bouquet of long-stemmed red roses at the foot of the memorial.

Nearly seven years ago, the bombing claimed the lives of all 259 people on board the flight and 11 people on the ground. Citizens of 21 nations were killed. The United States has blamed the bombing on Libyan agents of Col. Moammar Gadhafi.

George Williams, whose 24-year-old son was killed in the crash and who heads an organization representing the relatives of the victims, called on Clinton and Congress to impose a naval blockade on Libyan oil until the suspects are surrendered. The United States has pressed the United Nations to tighten sanctions against Libya.

At the State Department, spokesman Nicholas Burns said resolution of the Lockerbie case remains a top administration priority.

Jury decides punishment in 911 abduction case

FORT WORTH (AP) — Prosecutors showed pictures of a shallow grave where Lisa Rene was buried, trying to convince a jury Friday that her slaying was premeditated.

Government attorney Paul Macaluso asked the jurors: "Why do you dig a grave? That really answers the question for you."

Attorneys wrapped up closing arguments Friday afternoon and the case went to the jury shortly before 5 p.m. in the punishment phase of Orlando Hall's trial.

U.S. District Judge Terry R. Means suggested they begin deliberating immediately, but warned them not to wear themselves out.

Hall was convicted Tuesday of helping beat Miss Rene to death with a shovel after she was raped by him and four others in Texas and Arkansas over a two-day period.

Hall, 24, of El Dorado, Ark., faces execution or life imprisonment for the abduction and slaying of the 16-year-old Rene.

The teen-ager, who had moved to Arlington from St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands, three months before the attack, was taken and killed as retribution for a drug ripoff by her brothers. As she was being abducted, Miss Rene phoned 911 and made a chilling plea for help.

"It was not an accidental killing," Macaluso said. "They took her out there and began beating her over the head with a shovel anywhere from five to 25 times. Then buried her alive. They killed her."

Richard Roper, another government attorney, detailed to the jury how Hall was the leader of the five men. Roper pointed out that the money they were trying to recover was owed only to Hall.

"I submit to you folks that he was in charge," Roper said. "If Orlando Hall didn't want Lisa Rene to die, she wouldn't be dead today."

Miss Rene's mother and sisters cried during Macaluso's graphic description of her abduction, rape and killing.

"You can live your whole life and have a myriad of experiences, and never know that evil exists. Then you meet someone like Orlando Hall. He's proof positive of it," the prosecutor said.

Defense attorney Michael Ware told the jury that Hall could never be a danger to society if they spared his life and sentenced him to life without parole.

"It's time for honesty and soul-searching," he said. "We're not talking about protecting society because Orlando Hall is going to spend the rest of his life in the penitentiary. He will not leave except in a box regardless of the outcome of the case."

Defense attorneys and prosecutors rested their cases in the sentencing on Thursday after Hall's older sister, Cassandra Ross, testified that her brother was remorseful. Closing arguments began Friday afternoon.

Hall was found guilty Tuesday on four counts: kidnapping resulting in death, conspiracy to commit kidnapping, crossing state lines in an attempt to distribute marijuana, and using a firearm during a kidnapping.

Another co-defendant in the case, Bruce Webster, 22, of Pine Bluff is scheduled to stand trial March 4 on the same charges. He also faces a death sentence.

Three other men have pleaded guilty to kidnapping charges. The trio testified against Hall in exchange for the government's promise not to seek the death penalty against them. They also are to testify against Webster.

Sentencing of Steven Beckley, 23, of Irving; Marvin Holloway, 24, of Pine Bluff; and Hall's younger brother, Demetrius, has been delayed until after the two trials.

Defense attorney Jeff Kearney attacked the credibility of those three as prosecution witnesses, calling them "confessed liars."

"They want you to rubber-stamp their partnership with those people so they can get what they want," Kearney said. "The three went from liars to truth-sayers, the rapists became witnesses, the violent became meek... these guys went from being accused to being accusers."

Miss Rene's case drew widespread attention because of replays of her 911 call made Sept. 24, 1994. Miss Rene screamed in terror and begged an operator for help as men claiming to be FBI agents broke into her Arlington apartment and dragged her away.

Utility costs to rise if industry approves ozone-reduction plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A plan developed by 12 northeastern states to reduce ozone would drive up the cost of coal-generated electricity and provide minimal gains in smog reduction, according to an industry group.

The Virginia-based Center for Energy and Economic Development held a meeting in Texas Friday to discuss the plan, which is now being considered by Texas, 36 other states and the Environmental Protection Agency.

The proposal, which faces stiff opposition from the coal industry, could affect Texas and the cost of electricity in the state, which hosts numerous producers of a compound associated with ozone.

Utility rates will rise if the plan goes into effect, said Eugene Trisko, a West Virginia attorney who represents coal mines and miners across the country.

The plan, developed by 12 northeastern states and the District of Columbia, would force Texas and other states to reduce nitrogen oxides production. Those chemicals are a byproduct of coal use and refining and can mix with other pollution to produce ozone.

Ozone is a major part of urban smog.

The 37 states being urged into the plan are meeting with the EPA and are expected to come up with an agreement by next October.

The plan would require utility companies and coal refiners to reduce by 75 percent the amount of nitrogen oxides released from their plants. That could cost up to $5.5 billion a year in the 37 targeted states, Trisko said.

"We oppose the reduction on the grounds of cost and on the grounds of minimal benefits and actual disadvantages," Trisko said.

"We are not Pittsburgh in the 1950s anymore," Randy Eminger, a vice president for the center, said of the coal industry. "Coal is a cleaner resource than ever today."

The benefits of the plan are unclear, said Scott Smith, an environmental specialist with City Public Service of San Antonio, which serves nearly 1 million residential customers.

Smith said electricity producers using coal would have to outfit plants with expensive control devices or would have to turn to higher priced gas.

"We feel this may be a misdirected effort, especially in Texas," he said.

Patrick Crimmins, a spokesman for the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, said Texas has been part of those talks. But he said the commission has not taken a position on the idea.

Jury sentences veteran to death for killing soldier

LUBBOCK (AP) — A federal jury chose death Friday afternoon for a former Army Ranger convicted of raping and killing a female soldier he abducted from a military installation.

Jurors who last week convicted Louis Jones, 45, deliberated for a little more than a day before deciding on the punishment for the kidnapping that resulted in the death of Army Pvt. Tracie Joy McBride.

Jones is one of the first people in the nation to be sentenced under a provision of the federal crime bill that allows the death penalty to be imposed in the event of kidnappings that result in someone's death.

"That's what he sentenced Tracie to and he deserves no less," Ms. McBride's mother, Irene McBride, said after the sentence was handed down and approved by a judge.

Added Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger McRoberts: "I felt it was appropriate and that the jury did the right thing."

Prosecutors spent their closing arguments describing Jones, a 22-year Army veteran, as a deliberate and cunning killer who blames others for his acts. They said the careful planning Jones put into the crime amounted to an ambush and was "a credit to his training" in the military.

But defense attorneys asked the jury to sentence him to prison. They portrayed Jones, who never contested his guilt, as a victim of childhood abuses and emotional disorders.

"We're very disappointed, naturally," federal defender Carlton McLarty said after the sentencing. "It was a very wrenching case. I think it's a tragedy for both families."

Ms. McBride, 19, was abducted in February from a laundry facility at Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo. The Centerville, Minn., native had been in Texas just nine days when she disappeared.

Jones, under questioning 12 days later about an assault on another woman, led authorities to her body in a rural area north of San Angelo. She had been beaten with a tire iron.

The trial was moved to Lubbock because more than 7,500 San Angelo-area residents had signed a petition supporting his execution.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY: IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Marriage or a new romantic commitment will influence many of the choices you make. Your popularity with your business associates soars once 1996 gets underway. New financial backing will become available next spring. Think twice before changing jobs. You might climb the ladder of success faster if you stay put a while longer. If planning a honeymoon, consult your mate before deciding to take that trip you have always wanted.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Loretta Swit, golfer Kathy McMullen, humorist Will Rogers, fashion designer Pauline Trigere.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your friendship with an older person helps you secure the information need to answer a financial question. Show your gratitude in tangible ways. A flirtation is not harmless if it hurts a loved one's feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A personal relationship is undergoing an important change. Budgeting reduces financial pressures. Buy needed items on sale, using store coupons to minimize your grocery bill.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Unforeseen developments could lead to an abrupt switch. Political activity should not interfere with your main goals. Choose your words carefully if asked for romantic advice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Shortcuts are not always advisable. A thorough approach helps prevent costly mistakes. Seek experts' advice before making investments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A change of attitude could rescue a deteriorating relationship. Let your romantic partner know your true feelings. Playing games would be a big mistake. Speak from the heart.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may have to make one more concession in order to enjoy romantic good fortune. Taking part in a charity drive or political campaign will help you meet interesting new people. Show some spunk.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Revise your plans only if absolutely necessary, not just to keep others guessing. Lend a willing ear to practical suggestions from your mate or partner. Ration your energy, saving the lion's share for important tasks.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Set an ambitious goal for yourself, then get the training you need to make your dream a reality. Keep things moving instead of accepting a current situation. Gently nurture a delicate parent-child relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be more open-minded when other people make suggestions. A willingness to listen will keep your business and personal relations cordial. Think twice before you shoot down a loved one's idea. Attend a movie or concert.

Sharon Stone switches from her usual man-eating role due to 'loss of assets'

LONDON — Sharon Stone's switch from her usual man-eating roles to a part as a self-destructive moll in Martin Scorsese's "Casino" was prompted by a certain loss of assets.

"My rear end is starting to slide down the back of my legs," she told Britain's Ikon magazine in its December issue.

The 37-year-old star of the sizzling sex thrillers "Basic Instinct" and "Sliver" auditioned instead for the violent gangster movie, which stars Robert De Niro as a Vegas operative married to Stone. It comes out Nov. 22.

Her role was exhausting — "It starts like 'Goodfellas' and deteriorates to 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?'" — but she's looking forward to working with other highly esteemed directors in serious roles.

"I'd rather have more sex at home and keep my clothes on at work," she said. "I'm maturing."

NEW YORK — From Sid Vicious to Dracula to a Puritan. How does Gary Oldman pick his roles, anyway?

"People don't see me as a comedian or a romantic lead," the actor said in Entertainment Weekly's Nov. 10 issue. "I don't have the dark good looks of Hugh Grant or Daniel Day-Lewis."

What he does have is a reputation for playing maniacs. And flashing a sweet, unearthly smile.

That's what won him the role of the oversexed, guilt-ridden Rev. Arthur Dimmesdale in "The Scarlet Letter."

Producer-director Roland Jaffe's wife, Susie, showed her husband that smile — captured in a single scene of "State of Grace," in which Oldman played an edgy, murderous member of New York City's Irish mob.

Why did Oldman take the churchman's role opposite Demi Moore? "It meant I didn't have to go in and play another psychopathic killer," he said.

NEW YORK — Sigourney Weaver had to lie in bed and let a horde of carpenter ants crawl across for a scene in her new serial-killer thriller, "Copycat."

"They were all over," And we couldn't kill any of them," she said in Entertainment Weekly's Nov. 10 issue.

The ants' handler "believes in humanity to ants. He wanted us to give them back to him — especially the ones he had defanged."

Weaver found a way to survive the ordeal: "I cheated. I put two sheets on the bed, one between me and the ants. I didn't want to go home crying."

AUGUSTA, Ga. — James Brown, accused of beating his wife, says she's the bad guy.

"She's mentally abusive to me," said the Godfather of Soul. "Any time she needs those drugs, she will do anything to get them. Once when I was combing my hair, she slapped me across the face with a razor."

Earlier this week, Brown was arrested at his Beech Island, S.C., home after his wife, 45-year-old Adrienne Brown, called 911 and said he hit her.

He was freed on bail.

"The 911 system gives her control over me," he said.

NEW YORK — David Hartman wasn't the only one asking questions when ABC's "Good Morning America" made its debut 20 years ago Friday.

"The news people were saying, 'What's a guy like this doing asking questions of political leaders?'" — which was not an inappropriate question," the actor and original "Good Morning America" host recalled with a dry grin as he celebrated the anniversary. "I hope we can learn on the job."

Current hosts Joan Lunden and Charles Gibson and weatherman Spencer Christian presided over the nostalgic broadcast. In the studio audience were "GMA" alumni such as Frank and Kathie Lee Gifford — who met on the show — and Geraldo Rivera.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Courtney Love wanted to play games as her assault trial began.

Wearing a black ruffled suit and gold jewelry, the hardbitten rock star whispered from the defense table Thursday: "Hey, prosecutors. Pssst. Are you the prosecutors? Can I be O.J. and you be Christopher Darden?"

The lawyers turned their heads and didn't answer.

Love is charged with slugging several youths standing in front of the stage before a concert in March. She could get two years in prison.

Love, lead singer of the band Hole and widow of rocker Kurt Cobain, pleaded guilty in September to assaulting a singer in another band but was spared a jail sentence.

Commission's audit fuels probe of state agencies

AUSTIN (AP) — An audit saying the Texas Rehabilitation Commission spent $119 million on client services without requiring service providers to sign formal contracts is helping fuel a probe into state government agencies.

There weren't assurances that the money paid to service providers matched costs, that they were held accountable for their performance or that quality services were provided, State Auditor Lawrence Alwin said.

Alwin said that based on a "very limited" review of service providers used by the commission, "we are aware of situations where payments to providers exceed the cost to provide services."

He also said competitive bidding wasn't used in most cases.

"This is another example of what happens when state agencies may not have the appropriate procedures for issuing and monitoring contracts," Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said in a Friday letter to state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, chairman of the Senate General Investigating Committee.

"It is a shame that the Legislature must get involved in overseeing these agencies and the boards and commissions that are appointed to do the job," Bullock added.

'This is another example of what happens when state agencies may not have the appropriate procedures for issuing and monitoring contracts.'

— Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, in a Friday letter

While saying he wasn't aware of any allegations of fraud concerning the commission, Bullock suggested that Senate investigators include the agency in a probe of state contract procedures that he has ordered.

Commission spokesman Randy Jennings said agency officials are "certainly going to have to look a little bit deeper into this."

He said that the issue "has never come up before" in previous audits.

"We're concerned about the allegations, but this agency has a long track record of good fiscal management. It's obvious we need to look at strengthening our contract monitoring activity. We're certainly going to do that," Jennings said.

Bullock directed Senate investigators to look at state agencies' contract and internal audit procedures after a review of the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse by the Senate-House Joint General Investigating Committee.

The committee's report found that officials with at least 20 alcohol and drug abuse programs funded by TCADA may have mis-spent millions of dollars and recommended that criminal charges be pursued.

There are no such allegations regarding the Rehabilitation Commission.

The state auditor's report said it may not be feasible for the Rehabilitation Commission to contract for all client services, but that contracts should be used when certain criteria exist, such as high-dollar payments.

"Without a good contracting system, the agency cannot determine whether program costs are reasonable and necessary, cannot hold providers accountable through enforceable contracts, and cannot ensure quality services are consistently provided," the report said.

Bullock's call for a broad investigation into state agency contracting procedures was applauded by Gov. George W. Bush, who said his staff also is working on the issue.

"We need to make sure .. the TCADA syndrome doesn't happen again," Bush said. "(Lt.) Gov. Bullock is right on target to make sure that Texas taxpayers' money is spent well."

Family cat picks winning numbers

AUSTIN (AP) — Skipper the cat could be lounging in the lap of luxury after the lucky feline picked the winning numbers in a recent $3.7 million Texas Lotto drawing.

Linda McManamon, Skipper's Galveston owner, collected the first installment of her prize Friday. She said Skipper's playtime with a rattle netted the winning numbers for the Oct. 21 drawing.

"Skipper was playing with a rattle that has numbers in it and stopped playing when it came up with the numbers that turned out to be the winners," Ms. McManamon said when she picked up a $199,366.52 check at the Texas Lottery Commission.

Ms. McManamon will collect $186,000 every Oct. 15 for the next 19 years for a total prize of $3,729,366.52.

Why Dirty Air Ducts Can Make You Sick This Winter

Tuesday
9:17 am at my desk looking at a filthy picture
Dear Friend,

Dust, pollen, smoke, chemical sprays, fungus, and germs build up in your furnace ductwork. This creates a "chemical and biological soup" that can cause sinus problems, intensify allergies and aggravate those with breathing difficulties.

Force-Fed Germs
Each time your furnace comes on it "force-feeds" this unhealthy mixture of contaminated air into every room in your home. In fact, the Environmental Protection Agency found this air to be up to 70 times more polluted than outdoor air. And since your home is closed up more in the winter, the problem can be even worse. Especially for the very young and the elderly.

Breathe Fresh Clean Air and Notice the Difference
The best way to clean furnace ductwork is with a machine powerful enough to create a strong vacuum throughout the entire duct system.
That's why I invested $30,000 in a mobile system that moves 16,000 cubic feet of air per minute (that equals all the air in a 2,000 square foot home every minute).

Here's How It Works
A large hose from our Power Base is connected to your air duct system. The air outlet is sealed and a vacuum is created. Next, the "Air Pig" is inserted into each duct run. Then compressed air at 200 PSI is injected into each outlet, forcing the dirt and debris into the vacuum where it is removed.

How Much Does It Cost?
Glad you asked! The basic charge is only $199 to set up the Power Base and only $16 per heat register. You can find out the exact requirements for your home with our FREE no-obligation estimate. Just call and have Byron or Roger, our clean air specialist, come to your home and survey your system.

Call During The Next 48 Hours For FREE $50 Bonus

Call now and schedule your FREE survey and I will give you a $50 Cashiers Certificate as a FREE BONUS. This Bonus is yours to keep, even if you decide not to have us clean your air duct system. There is absolutely No Obligation. It's just my way to introduce this $30,000 duct cleaning system to homeowners before winter sets in.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

(From 11B)

Art classes set

First Baptist Church of Midland once again is presenting art classes taught by Virginia Whitten of Big Spring.

Classes are for all levels from advanced to beginner. Various mediums will be offered each year and the class meets from 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesdays. For more information or to sign up, call the church, 683-0647.

White to speak

Tom White, U.S. director of Voice of the Martyrs, Inc., Bartlesville, Okla., is speaking at several churches this weekend.

He has been working with the Rev. Richard Wurmbrand and VOM for nearly 20 years. He was imprisoned in Cuba in 1979 for distributing Christian literature when his plane crashed on a Cuban highway due to extreme weather conditions.

White now travels and speaks at other offices as the world sharing the voice of the persecuted church. He also talks about how people can take part in mission work.

He will speak to youth at Christian Life Center at 7 p.m. today, at Church of the Dayspring, 100 W. Oak, at 10:30 a.m. Sunday and at Living Way Church, 415 Alta, at 6 p.m. Sunday.

For more information call 520-2237.

Credit program set

This year, the West Texas Bible Institute and Seminary is introducing a for credit program that is new to its curriculum.

A "Saturday Seminar" is planned twice during the year — one in the fall and the other in the spring. The first one is set for today.

Visiting lecturer will be Charles Swilling, pastor of Grace Missionary Baptist Church, Houston. Swilling also is the director of Sounding Out The Word Ministries, editor of Sounding Out the Word Magazine and the author of a number of sermon and lesson outline books.

Lectures are to be conducted from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today. For individuals who desire credit for this course, additional reading and research following the seminar will be required.

Swilling's subject will be "Dealing with Problems of the Christian Life." With the exception of the cost of a course book, which is $3, there is no additional cost to full-time students already registered at WTBI.

For all others, the enrollment fee is $12. For more information call 694-7515.

Series topic set

"Baby Boomers and God: Issues and Attitudes of a Generation" is the topic of a series of programs at First United Methodist's Community of Joy, which meets at 10:30 a.m. Sundays at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Dress is casual. The services include live music as well as short and lively dramas. For more information call, 682-3701.

Young update

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — The San Francisco 49ers again put off a decision on whether Steve Young would play Sunday against the Carolina Panthers. Young is trying to return from a shoulder injury two weeks ahead of team physician Dr. Michael Dillingham's original forecast of a four-week recovery.

Coach George Seifert said Friday that Young's availability would be a game-time decision. If Young is unable to play, Elvie Garbac will make his third consecutive start.

Young has been sidelined since sustaining a sprain and bruise in his left shoulder during an Oct. 15 loss to Indianapolis.

REBELS END 4-5A WITH TIE

■ Abilene Cooper gains state playoff berth by tying Midland Lee 21-21 with 33 seconds left.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

When District 4-5A plants a kiss, it's a real Homecoming doosey.

Abilene Cooper came from behind to score with 33 seconds left in the game at Memorial Stadium Friday night to tie No. 7 state ranked Midland Lee, 21-21.

And when you get over the shock, note that the kiss was like Cooper's very first — and very special. The tie clinches a state playoff berth for the Cougars for the fourth year in a row since Odeesa Permian defeated the San Angelo Bobcats 32-0 Friday in San Angelo, eliminating the Bobcats.

Cooper now stands at 4-3-1 for the season, but is 3-1-1 in 4-5A play while San Angelo fell to 2-3 with only one game left to play.

The saving factor for Lee is that the Rebels had already taken care of playoff business with a win over Permian last week. Lee also won the 4-5A championship outright with the tie at 5-0-1 in district and 8-0-1 overall. However, the tie was much like a loss for the Lee team that was seeking to end regular season play unbeaten and untied for the first time since 1987.

The kiss came when Cooper quarterback dialed Brandon Berg with a 16-yard touchdown pass in the fading seconds of the game. The touchdown came after Anderson had been thrown for an 11-yard loss by Fred Pertile, making it look like Lee had bitten the bullet.

"We had confidence that we could score, even after that sack because we had been throwing the ball well all night," Berg said. "I got isolated on No. 14 (Antwan Alexander) in man-to-man coverage and Michael threw a great pass to me."

Cooper then went for the tie instead of

Bulldogs ruin Eagle homecoming, 28-21

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

ABILENE — If Midland High football fans feel like they are experiencing a little deja vu, don't blame them.

The Midland High Bulldogs for the second straight year have ended a four-game District 4-5A losing streak against the Abilene High Eagles. Friday night, the Bulldogs ruined the Eagles' homecoming with a 28-21 win at Shotwell Stadium.

"It takes a load off of us," Midland High head Ronnie Reeger said. "We're getting down to the point where we needed one. We had a good scheme and executed really well."

That execution started with the Bulldogs' best effort of the season offensively. MHS, 4-5 for the season and 1-4 in district, ran the ball left, right and straight up the middle at the Abilene High defense. The end result was Midland High's top rushing output of the season and its first 100-yard rusher of the season. Sam Powell keyed the attack with 143 yards on 17 carries for the Bulldogs, who had 350 yards in total offense, all on the ground.

"We just wanted it and didn't go down," said Powell, who scored the Bulldogs' first touchdown of the game on a 43-yard run in the first quarter. "It was a perfect game. We had the feeling we could move the ball. It has been that way since the Jesuit game."

Chiefs clinch title in controversy

Andrews quarterback Marcus Bueno keeps the ball after taking the snap for a short gain during the Mustangs' 27-21 loss to San Angelo Lake View Friday night in Andrews.

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

ANDREWS — Andrews' 27-21 loss to Lake View Friday ended with penalties, fights and controversy. It ended with Lake View's Chiefs clinching a District 4-4A co-championship and winning their ninth league game in a row. It ended with the Chiefs doing their victory chant and the Mustangs fuming mad.

And it ended 47 seconds early. Referees stepped in to end the game at the Mustang Bowl with 47 ticks left on the clock. Andrews had cut a 27-7 Lake View lead to 27-21 with two late touchdowns. But as the Chiefs (7-1-1 overall, 4-0 in district) tried to run out the clock, Andrews committed two offside penalties by jumping over the line trying to cause a fumble. Scuffles broke out and coaches came out on the field to try to control their players. Officials decided it wasn't worth risking a major brawl and called the game.

"I think it was the right call because they were losing control and Andrews was losing their composure," Lake View coach Kyle Gandy said.

But Mustang players were furious that a six-point game was stopped with time on the clock, even though one more kneel

Colorado City shocks Greenwood

GREENWOOD — Who could've ever imagined that the Colorado City Wolves would beat both Sonora and the Greenwood Rangers in district play in the same season.

No one did, except Wolves coach Bill Grissom. Grissom established a winning program at Class 2A Stanton before taking a gamble and leaving at the end of last season to take the Colorado City job. His gamble paid off as the Wolves, who were perennial doormats of District 8-3A, have come within a doorstep of the playoffs with their stunning 28-24 win over Greenwood in a key loop game.

"The kids and this program have been down so long, but by beating Sonora then Greenwood tonight we took a huge step towards respectability," Grissom said.

Colorado City may have disguised itself in sheeps' clothing with its 5-3, 2-1 record before its game with the Rangers, who were previously unbeaten in district action.

Instead of waiting for the slaughter, the Wolves (6-3, 3-1) attacked and drew first blood on a nifty 74-yard scoring drive. Quarterback Frank Espinoza teamed with Lance Dockery on a 14-yard passing slant into the end zone and a 7-0 lead. But most of the Colorado City 296 yards of offense would ride on the legs of tailback Arian Emmerson, who churned out 158 yards on the ground.

CHAPARRAL BASKETBALL

Lady Chaps go to 2-0

By Sean Wallace
Sports Writer

There are still a few kinks to work out, but so far the results have been positive.

The Midland College Lady Chaparrals built an early lead off their run-and-gun transition game and cruised to a 96-78 win Thursday night over Blinn College at Chaparral Center.

"I think that we played really well the first half," Lady Chaps coach Ron Jones said. "We had a big lead at halftime and it's natural to relax, and I don't know how you'd keep from doing that. It's hard in coaching to keep your team playing hard with that big a lead."

The Lady Chaps (2-0) won its second game in as many nights by taking advantage of a slower Blinn (0-2) team which had 13 players on its roster which had no collegiate experience.

"We missed a lot of shots early and that took a toll on us mentally," Blinn coach Joe Curl said. "I really think we LEVELLAND — The Midland College Chaparrals stumbled on their way out of the gate on Friday, and lost more than their first game.

The Chaps were beaten by McLennan Community College 88-85 in overtime in the opening round of the WJCAC Pre-season Shootout and lost the services of Cedric Goodwyn with a sprained ankle.

Goodwyn scored 14 points but missed the final 15 minutes of the game and is doubtful in today's game against host South Plains. Devon Phillips led four players in double figures for the Chaps with 22 points, followed by D'Juan Baker with 19. Goodwyn and Todd Jones with 10.

McLennan, the defending Northern Texas Junior College Athletic Conference champions, were led by Alex Davis who scored a game-high 23 points. Midland College fell behind early as McLennan took a 41-31 lead at the break. The Chaps

Winters tops Stanton

By Woodrow Call
MRT Correspondent

STANTON — A 44-26 Winters victory over Stanton Friday clinched a playoff spot for the Blizzards, and momentum was the key to the victory, taking a permanent stay on Winters' side of the ball.

Stanton's Leo McCallister showed up in the end zone on a 80-yard, opening-kickoff return to score the first points of the game.

Winters' Mark Deike turned around to put on the board on his 80-yard kickoff return. In the middle of the first the score was tied and Mr. Momentum was on Winters' side.

Stanton's defense had a hard time stopping quarterback John Paul Belew who threw for 23 yards on 17 completions and rushed for 48 yards and two touchdowns.

Belew began his passing yardage in the first quarter on a 25-yard pass to Micheal Mostad and continued with another pass to Mostad in the fourth.

Stanton head coach Mark Cotton said, "Our first problem was Winters, they have a tremendous football team. Our second problem was that we had to many mistakes on defense and offense."

At the end of the first quarter Stanton cut a 14-6 lead in half on a 25-yard pass to Leo McCallister from Taylor Looney. Stanton didn't reach the end zone again until the third quarter.

Winters' defense, led by all-state linebacker Kevin Conner, held Stanton's offense to 20 yards, four pass completions, and four first downs in the first half. Ricky Luiz and John Bidix intercepted passes from Looney in the first half which set up Belew's touchdown runs of 15 and one yards, taking Winters to a 28-14 lead.

"The defense was able to shut down Todd Davis and apply the pressure to their quarterback (Taylor Looney) all night, which is what you have to do against Stanton," Winters head coach Robin

Byrd said. "Coach Cotton has done an excellent job his first year as head coach and they played a good ball game."

Mr. Momentum had a change of address early in the second half. Nick Hull intercepted a Belew pass to set up Stanton's third touchdown. On a 40-yard pass from Looney to Hull Stanton cut the lead by six and the defense showed up to play.

Stanton's defense delivered five sacks on Belew and recovered a fumble and forced Winters to punt twice.

"The scoreboard might not show it but our defense played great during the second half. We forced turnovers and applied the pressure," Cotton said.

Byrd said, "We might have won, but we didn't play like we have been. Our minds weren't there. We made mistakes that we haven't made before and you can't do that a week before the season is over."

With one game left and a 7-2 overall record and a 3-1 district record Stanton still has a shot at the additional playoff spot.

"We are going to have to talk about improvement and pride in our team. We have come to far to let one defeat get us down. The kids will not let it happen," Cotton said.

Stanton will finish their season next Friday against Coahoma. The game is set for 7:30 p.m.

RANGERS: Greenwood loses first district game

(From 1C)

Emmerson's largest gain of the night came on a 41-yard touchdown run early in the third quarter. With the Rangers (6-2, 3-1) trailing by seven entering the second period they took advantage of a Colorado City fumble at their own 30. Six plays later Casey Otho waltzed five yards untouched into the end zone for the tying score, 7-7.

The Rangers would cash in on another Wolf miscue two possessions later when on fourth down, the ball sailed over the head of punter Dockery and into the end zone for a safety and a 9-7 Ranger lead.

Great field position on the ensuing punt gave the Rangers the ball at Colorado City 49. Six plays into the drive, Otho took a reverse from Josh Jones and zipped in the for the easy score on a 16-7 half-time lead.

But that should have been bad news for the Wolves, because this season the Rangers have dominated the second half of most of their games. Instead it was Colorado City who came to play.

"They're a good football team and they were ready to play us," said Ranger coach Bob Purser.

He added, "I had said from the beginning of the season that I believed that no team in this district would go 5-0 this year."

Colorado City began its second half rally on Emmerson's 41-yard TD run, they eventually took the lead when Dockery hit Jaime Gutierrez in stride on a 46-yard TD toss for a 21-16 lead. The play seemed busted when Espinoza stumbled only to regain his balance, pitch the ball to Dockery, who then linked up with his receiver.

But the Rangers were not dead yet. Otho guided them on a 69-yard, 15-play drive that he culminated on a three-yard pass to Bucky Smith and regained the lead 24-21 with 8:12 left to play.

But the Wolves were not going down without a fight. Colorado City used just over six minutes of the fourth quarter to get the winning score on a 67-yard march to pay dirt.

With second and goal at the 10, Espinoza found a hole and made a mad dash into the end zone for the TD and a 28-24 lead.

However, Greenwood, coughed up the ball the their 35. But by using their three timeouts, they got the ball back with under a minute to play. Unfortunately, their would be no miracles in Ranger land. A hail Mary pass by Jones in the final seconds grazed the fingertips of Otho who was in the end zone.

Greenwood can still clinch a playoff spot with a win over Kermit on Friday.

Rangerettes want to dump Gump complex

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

Greenwood is no longer the Forrest Gump of the state high school volleyball playoffs. This year, just showing up won't be enough.

The Rangerettes (14-10) face powerful Alpine (23-5) in a Class 3A bi-district playoff rematch today at 3 p.m. in Fort Stockton. This marks the second straight post-season appearance for Greenwood, in its fifth year of the sport. The team lost to the Lady Bucks in the same playoff round last season. But coach Patti Purser likes the Rangerettes chances this year.

In other area volleyball playoffs today, Andrews (18-8) plays Dumas (15-9) in a Class 4A area game at 3 p.m. in Plainview and Midland Christian faces Arlington Panteo at 9 a.m. in Fort Worth in a TAPPS Class A region playoff.

In Class 5A action, District 4-5A champion Abilene Cooper travels to Monahans to take on El Paso Coronado in an area-round contest at 2 p.m. Cooper had a bye in the first round.

"We got beat by Alpine in two games in last year's playoffs," Purser said. "We were just so happy to be there. We didn't have much time to prepare because we had to play Colorado City in a district playoff on Tuesday and Alpine on Thursday. This year we have more time between games."

The Rangerettes, who finished runner-up to Kermit in district 8-3A with a 4-2 record, played their last district game Saturday and a practice game against Bronte Tuesday. Greenwood lost to Alpine in two games earlier this season at the Pecos Tournament.

Purser has heard impressive, if not credible, stories about the District 7-3A champion Lady Bucks. "A coach told me that they don't wear knee pads," Purser said. "So I guess they pick up everything on defense."

The Rangerettes have six seniors and three returning starters this year. Purser, the coach since the program's inception, always expected the team to do well.

"Greenwood's girls have such a good tradition in girls basketball that when we started the program I knew we would win," Purser said. "Every year since we started we've done nothing but improve."

Greenwood senior setter-hitter Shannon Guillory is only 5-foot-2 but has a 27-inch vertical jump and Purser said she may play in college. Lupita Guerbara leads the team in assists and sophomore hitter Karen Gasch leads the team in kills.

Andrews won District 4-4A for the first time in coach Penny Bane's ten years this season. It faces Dumas for the third consecutive year in the area round.

"We've been close (to winning district) numerous times but this is the first one so that makes it awfully special," Bane said.

The Lady Mustangs beat Monahans in a playoff to decide the 4-4A title and then defeated El Paso Canutillo 17-15, 15-4 in bi-district Tuesday. Bane emphasizes defense but says she has a good offensive team this year.

"We've always prided ourselves on defense but I have kids that can really hit the ball hard this year and we have a good serving team," Bane said.

(From 1C)

down by the Chiefs would have run the clock out.

Andrews coach Mike Lebby defended his team's game-ending tactic.

"We were out of timeouts. We were trying to make something happen, trying to get a lose ball," Lebby said. "That's all that was. We told our kids to go over the top. That wasn't trying to be a cheap shot."

"As far as losing our composure, no. They're mouthing and we were mouthing. I understand that (stopping the game)."

The Mustangs looked out of it when Lake View's Beau Kiser kicked two third-quarter field goals to put the Chiefs up 27-7. But Andrews got its first first down since a first-quarter touchdown and went on the travel 91 yards in 13 plays for a 27-14 score in the fourth period.

The touchdown came on a trick play when Mustang quarterback Marcus Bueno faked as if he were headed to the sidelines to confer with coaches. The ball was snapped directly to running back Shaud Williams who threw nine yards to Bueno in the end zone.

Another bit of trickery got Andrews within six points. With 54 seconds left and the Mustangs facing fourth and ten from the Lake View 37, a flea-flicker pass from Bueno to Williams got a touchdown.

The game may have ended in confusion, but there were no doubts about Lake View quarterback Sterlin Gilbert's ability. His skilled throwing put the Chiefs ahead 21-7 at halftime. The junior threw two TDs in the first half and finished with 238 yards passing.

"Sterlin did a super job," Gandy said. "He sees the field so well and gets it to the open receiver. And when it gets clogged up he has the ability to step aside and complete the pass."

The Mustangs (4-5, 3-1) had the league's best defense statistically coming into the game. But the Chiefs spoiled Andrews league-leading numbers with 4-4A's leading passer, rusher (Jay Jordan) and receiver (Morris Smith). Jordan rushed for 79 yards on 12 carries and scored a touchdown.

"We felt like we had to hold them to 14 points to have a chance," Lebby said. "We had to stop number 17 (Jordan) and put pressure on Gilbert and we weren't very successful at (rushing the quarterback)."

The Mustangs opened the game moving the ball well on the ground. But a 62-yard run by Bueno on their first possession went for naught on a missed field goal. On its next drive Andrews went up 7-0 with Justin Strickland catching a 17-yarder from Bueno.

Andrews can still make the playoffs with a win over Big Spring, surprise losers to Monahans, at Big Spring this Friday.

Cone, Boggs, Molitor join free agent market

NEW YORK (AP) — David Cone, Wade Boggs and Paul Molitor are the latest players to join baseball's free-agent market.

Also among the 33 players filing Friday were Baltimore pitcher Kevin Brown, Boston outfielder Willie McGee, Texas outfielder Otis Nixon, Chicago Cubs first baseman Mark Grace, Cubs reliever Randy Myers and Los Angeles pitcher Tom Candiotti.

A total of 106 players have filed. Eligible players can file through Nov. 12, and they can start talking contract terms with all clubs the following day. Until then, they can negotiate only with their former club.

About 40 more players are eligible to file before the deadline.

The New York Yankees and Darryl Strawberry, meanwhile, completed their agreement to push back the decision date on his $1.8 million option to Dec. 2. If the Yankees don't exercise the option, they must pay him a $175,000 buy-out.

Instead of filing, reliever Bruce Ruffin re-signed with the Colorado Rockies, agreeing to a $2 million, two-year contract.

A day earlier, the Rockies agreed to an $11.1 million, three-year deal with Dante Bichette, a contract that could be worth up to $14 million if the outfielder is healthy.

Bichette gets a $500,000 signing bonus, $3.1 million next season, $4.5 million in 1997 and $3 million in 1998. The salary in the final year increases to $4 million if a left knee injury doesn't prevent him from having 550 plate appearances in 1998 and 1,100 total in 1997 and 1998.

He also can earn $300,000 in performance bonuses in 1996 and $500,000 in 1997. His bonus clauses would allow him to raise his 1998 pay to $5.1 million.

Mourning Heats up for Riley

MIAMI (AP) — Pat Riley had Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in Los Angeles and Patrick Ewing in New York. Now he's got his big man in Miami — Alonzo Mourning.

The Miami Heat and its new coach obtained the two-time All-Star center on Friday in a six-player deal forced when Mourning, a free agent at the end of the season, rejected a contract offer from the Hornets. Miami gave up prolific scorer Glen Rice, second-year point guard Khalid Reeves and center Matt Geiger. The Hornets also get the Heat's first-round draft pick in 1996. Despite having to give up Rice, the Heat's leading scorer the past four seasons, Riley was certain he improved his team.

"He is considered to be a franchise player without a doubt," Riley said. "Well beyond an impact player."

"I think this team needs a building block, a cornerstone. I had the opportunity to coach Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Patrick Ewing and I think the only place we can build a team is from within."

Besides 6-foot-10, 210-pound Mourning, the Heat will get two reserves, guard Pete Myers and center LeRon Ellis. Myers averaged 5.1 points for Chicago last season while Ellis averaged 6.6 points a game playing in the Spanish League.

The trade ended days of speculation and rumors after Mourning rejected a seven-year, $70 million contract from the Hornets. On Thursday, Mourning reportedly turned down an 11th-hour offer from Charlotte that was close to the $13 million annual salary he had been demanding.

Mourning, 25, has averaged at least 20 points per game in his three previous seasons. Last season, he led the Hornets with 21.3 points, 9.9 rebounds and 2.9 blocks per game.

Mourning, who will get $4.35 million this season in the last year of his contract, said he won't talk about a new contract until the season ends. However, he indicated he would be able to reach a deal with the Heat, who had already been clearing room under the salary cap in anticipation of signing a big-name free agent when the season ends. The trade marks the Heat's second major roster reshuffling in as many seasons. In the first week last season, Miami traded center Rony Seikaly to Golden State for Billy Owens, and Grant Long and Steve Smith were later dealt to Atlanta for Kevin Willis.

The team ended up going 32-50, and players blamed the lack of chemistry caused by the trades. The poor performance cost coach Kevin Loughery his job.

Rice, who averaged 22.3 points last season, joins a team with a long list of shooting guards and small forwards: Rafael Addison, Scott Burrell, Dell Curry, Darrin Hancock and Kendall Gill.

Reeves was expected to be Miami's point guard of the future, and had a good second-half last season. He averaged 9.2 points and 4.3 assists per game.

Charlotte Hornets' Alonzo Mourning, right, hugs teammate Larry Johnson during NBA action last season. Mourning was traded to the Miami Heat in a six-player deal.

Furyk builds lead at Kapalua, Adams falls

The Associated Press

KAPALUA, Hawaii — Jim Furyk birdied five of his last seven holes on the way to an 8-under-par 65, building a three-stroke lead over Davis Love III and Russ Cochran in Friday's second round of the Kapalua International.

Golf

Former Midland Lee golfer John Adams shot a 71 for a score of 7-under par, seven shots behind the leader.

Furyk was at 14-under-par 130 after a 65, which stood as a record for the 7,263-yard, par-73 Plantation Course on Maui until Love posted a 64.

Love was at 133 along with Cochran, who shot 66 over the 6,531-yard Bay Course.

At 134 were Peter Jacobsen, Kirk Triplett, Ben Crenshaw, Marco Dawson and Mike Heinen. Jacobsen shot 66 at Plantation and Triplett a 66 at the Bay Course. Crenshaw and Heinen had 67s at Plantation and Dawson a 67 on the Bay Course.

Mike Sullivan shot a course-record 62 at the Bay Course and moved into contention at 135. He was joined at 9-under by Mike Standly, Roger Maltbie, Jim McGovern, Hale Irwin, Darren Clarke and Barry Lane.

First-round leader Gary McCord had a 72 to fall into a group at 138. Two-time defending champion Fred Couples was at 140.

Furyk, a second-year player with one PGA Tour victory, started play on the back nine and opened with five pars. He birdied three of the next four holes to turn at 3-under, then continued the rally on the back side. Through 36 holes, he has 15 birdies against a lone bogey.

"It didn't seem like I was

shooting low," Furyk said. "I was trying to keep up with the hills, but I was happy to keep it going. It was good to have a good end to a good day."

Playing under ideal conditions — barely a trace of wind and overcast skies — the field of 54 feasted for a second day on the two courses used for the tournament.

The tournament format had the 54 players and their amateur partners alternating courses the first two days, with the last two rounds on the Plantation Course.

Sarazen World Open
BRASELTON, Ga. (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller, Miguel Angel Jimenez and Chris Williams sloshed their way to 5-under-par 67s Friday and shared the lead in the rain-delayed opening round of the Sarazen World Open Championship.

Forty-two players failed to finish the first round Friday, which was delayed for one hour and 40 minutes, and will be completed at 7:45 a.m. Saturday.

The 91-player field will be cut to the low 50 scores plus ties after the second round of the $1.9 million tournament, which had already been reduced to 54 holes. On Thursday, half the field never made it to the first tee and no one got beyond the 12th hole when play was halted by thunderstorms.

One shot off the lead were former Masters champion Craig Stadler and Daniel Chopra, a 21-year-old native of Sweden who qualified for this event after his victory at the 1995 Republic of China Open. Tied at 69 were Brandt Jobe, Anders Forsbrand of Sweden and Eduardo Romero of Argentina.

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Sam Cassell scored 14 points, including three 3-pointers, in the fourth quarter to halt a Golden State rally and give Houston a season-opening victory.

Twelve of Cassell's 23 points came during a 19-1 Rockets run midway through the final period as the Rockets pulled away for their 11th straight victory over the Warriors.

Mavericks 103, Spurs 97
SAN ANTONIO — Jamal Mashburn scored 27 points and hit a game-clinching 3-pointer with 45 seconds left, giving Dallas the victory over San Antonio.

The Mavericks grabbed 49 rebounds to 40 for the Spurs, who traded Dennis Rodman — the league's leading rebounder four straight seasons — to Chicago during the offseason. The Spurs rallied from a 10-point deficit midway

Jazz 112, Sonics 94

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone scored 26 points, including 12 straight in the third quarter following a technical foul, as Utah defeated Seattle. Detlef Schrempf led the Sonics with 24 points. Gary Payton added 16 for Seattle, which fell behind after a 20-0 Jazz run midway through the second.

Raptors 94, Nets 79

TORONTO — The Toronto Raptors made their NBA debut a victorious one as Alvin Robertson scored 30 points against New Jersey. A crowd of 33,306, the largest to see a basketball game in Toronto, was scattered throughout the cavernous SkyDome to see the expansion team cruise to victory.

Magic 99, Cavaliers 88

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Orlando Magic opened the NBA season without reigning scoring champion Shaquille O'Neal on Friday night, and got an all-star performance from Anfernee Hardaway in a 99-88 victory over Cleveland.

Bulls 105, Hornets 91

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan scored 42 points, making up for Scottie Pippen's early injury, and Dennis Rodman grabbed 11 rebounds in his Chicago debut as the Bulls opened the season with a victory over Charlotte.

Knicks 106, Pistons 100

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Charlie Ward almost equaled his career total with 15 points and Hubert Davis had 21 as New York opened the season by defeating Detroit. Ward, the Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback, was all but ignored by former Knicks coach Pat Riley, scoring just 16 points his entire rookie season.

76ers 105, Bullets 103

PHILADELPHIA — Rookie Jerry Stackhouse had a memorable NBA debut, scoring 27 points in Philadelphia's victory over Washington. The 76ers scored the decisive basket off a bad pass by the Bullets' Juwan Howard, who led Washington with 25 points and 10 rebounds.

Bucks 101, Celtics 100

Judge rules in favor of New Mexico's Thomas

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)

A judge ruled Friday in favor of New Mexico recruit Kenny Thomas, granting a preliminary injunction blocking the NCAA's denial of eligibility for the freshman.

The 6-foot-9, 255-pound power forward, whose eyes brimmed with tears when the decision was announced, immediately headed off to practice.

"I'm happy that this is over with and I get to play. I just want to go to practice this afternoon," Thomas said.

The decision, greeted with applause and cheers, came after 2 1/2 days of testimony by officials of UNM and the NCAA and by Thomas.

State District Judge Daniel Schneider found that Thomas, considered one of the nation's top 15 freshman basketball prospects, would suffer irreparable harm by not playing this season.

The NCAA had said Thomas couldn't play because a science course he took as a ninth-grader at Austin High School in El Paso, Texas, in 1991 did not qualify as one of the 13 core curriculum courses required by the NCAA for eligibility. Thomas lost two NCAA appeals before going to court.

If the lawsuit should make it to trial and Thomas should happen to lose, UNM would not be liable to NCAA sanctions, Schneider ruled. He ordered the NCAA to take no action against UNM.

He said his ruling was partly based on his belief that Thomas would win his lawsuit against the NCAA if it went to trial.

Schneider also said he was impressed with Thomas' persistence in pursuit of his academics.

"He could have given up and gone to a junior college or he could have given up after failing the ACT test the first couple of times," Schneider said. "I'm convinced he is smart enough to play with any dumb jock out there in the world."

Lobos coach Dave Bliss testified Thursday that Thomas would be a campus leper and pariah if denied the right to practice and play with his teammates.

Schneider said he was persuaded by that argument.

Bliss said he hadn't been sure Thomas would win Friday.

MC: Lady Chaps take Blinn, win second consecutive game have a chance to become a Top 20 or 30 team this season, but we were killed by their transition game."

(From 1C)

The Lady Chaps used a 27-10 run at the end of the first half to build a comfortable lead which never fell below 18 for the rest of the game.

"That's what our game is all about," said Shannon Jordan a 5-foot-7 sophomore from Meadow, who was perfect from the field (4-for-4 on field goals, 3-of-3 from the line) and finished with 15 points. "Once we get the inside game going, it helps the outside game. We started to get the ball inside and then we just got rolling."

Roslynn Dunn led the Lady Chaps with 16 points. The Lady Buccaneers were led by Tanya Sanderson, who scored a game-high 17 points.

Blinn never challenged in the second half, only drawing as close as 18 at the final buzzer on free throws from Michelle McNeely.

"They (the Lady Chaps) were ready to play. They came out sharp and were getting to it the first half," Jones said.

Jordan could not miss in the first half, hitting all four of her shots — all three pointers — and was 3-of-3 from the line for her 15 as the Lady Chaps raced to a 56-28 lead by halftime.

"We really hit the boards well in the first half and Erica (Knight) did a great job down there," Jordan said. "We always talk about getting two good (scoring) runs during the game and that's what we did."

The Lady Chaps were playing the second game of three straight games to open its season and after a season-opening win over Angelina College on Thursday night, Blinn gave MC some difficulty early. Midland College got through it and outscored Blinn by 17 during the final seven minutes of the half to blow the game wide open.

"The hard part about played three games in a row is the second game," Jordan said. "We were pumped up about the first game, but then you have to turn right around and get up and do it all over again. We came out and finally got going and started playing well at the end of the half."

Blinn got to within 29-21 with seven minutes left in the half when Jordan knocked down consecutive three-pointers to pump the lead up to 14 at 35-31.

"I was open a lot in the first half and we were just taking what the defense was giving us," Jordan said. "I wasn't really open in the second half. They were in my pants with me the whole second half."

The Lady Chaps turned up the defense and forced Blinn into three straight turnovers which Midland College converted into transition-basket points. The Lady Chaps scored 38 points in the first half off their transition game.

"We're not going to be a real good comeback team and they really hurt us with that transition game they had going in the first half," Curl said. "Their strength is their running game and our defense had a let down when they made the run."

Knight scored two layups and Ndiassie Ndiaye hit a couple of free throws to cap a run of 10 straight points and a 39-21 Lady Chaps' lead. Blinn attempted to attack the Lady Chaps inside game, trying to force the ball into their big players but MC's collapsing defense and the Lady Bucs not being able to hit the short jumpers only dug them a bigger hole.

The Lady Bucs went nearly three minutes without scoring during the Lady Chaps' run and finally broke the string with a 10-foot jumper by Lesli Vollrath with 4:23 to go.

Jordan canned her fourth three-pointer of the first half with 4:09 left to make it 42-23. Roslynn Dunn followed with a three of her own to bump the lead to 22 points at 45-23. The Lady Chaps led by as many as 27 in the first half when Julie Chancellor hit back-to-back threes for a 54-27 Midland College lead.

NFL suspends Lett, Holmes for four games

DALLAS (AP) — Leon Lett and Clayton Holmes of the Dallas Cowboys were suspended for four games by the NFL on Friday for violating the league's substance-abuse policy.

The suspensions were effective immediately and would sideline Lett, a starter at defensive tackle, and Holmes, a reserve cornerback, until Nov. 24, the day after Dallas plays Kansas City. They would be eligible to return for a Dec. 3 home game against Washington.

During their absence, the Cowboys play Philadelphia, San Francisco, Oakland and Kansas City.

"We are confident that Leon Lett and Clayton Holmes will be able to overcome this setback in a positive way, and we extend our complete support to both of them," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said in a prepared statement.

Reports surfaced before last Sunday's game against Atlanta that at least one Dallas player was in trouble with the NFL's substance abuse policy. Lett and Holmes became the reported targets by Monday and each missed some practices. Holmes worked out with the team Friday.

In a prepared statement released Friday, Lett said: "I assume full responsibility for any actions on my part that led to the suspension. ... I regret that this situation has occurred, and I apologize to my family, my teammates, Jerry Jones, the entire Cowboys organization and all of my loyal fans who have supported me. I hope to put this behind me as soon as possible. I look forward to returning to the club in 21 days and contributing to our drive for the Super Bowl."

Holmes was not immediately available for comment.

On Friday, Chad Hennings worked in Lett's spot. Seldom-used Hurvin McCormack and Darren Benson also were being readied. Robert Bailey took Holmes' place in the nickel pass defense package.

Holmes became a starting cornerback when Kevin Smith was injured in the season opener, but lost that job last week to Deion Sanders.

Lett, a Pro Bowler last season, had one sack and 24 tackles.

Agents Michael Claiborne and Jim Steiner negotiated a $4 million bonus for Lett this summer in a multi-year contract that averages $2.56 million per year.

Lett and Holmes apparently have reached the second phase of the NFL's three-phase "Policy and Program for Drugs of Abuse and Alcohol," which is enforced by random drug tests throughout the year.

The first phase involves evaluation and treatment by a psychiatrist. Failure to comply results in a fine.

In phase two, a player must submit to urine tests up to 10 times a month for two years. A positive test results in a fine, or a four-game suspension if the player was fined in phase one. A second positive test results in a four-game suspension, or a six-week suspension if the player was fined in phase one, and advancement to phase three.

In phase three, a player is subject to urine testing up to 10 times a month for three years. Any positive tests results in banishment from the NFL for a minimum of one year.

Before Lett and Holmes, the NFL had suspended six players under that system: Philadelphia's Bernard Williams (twice), Arizona's Chuck Levy and Jamir Miller, San Francisco's Tim Harris, Cleveland's Larry Webster and Pittsburgh's Joel Steed.

Northwestern could come up Roses

The Associated Press

College football's best-known doormat will be thinking ahead to the Rose Bowl if it beats No. 12 Penn State today.

College Roundup

Northwestern, yes Northwestern, is 5-0 in the Big Ten and ranked sixth. Pasadena looms ahead.

"A few years ago, people were talking about Northwestern getting out of the Big Ten because they couldn't compete and are a private school," Penn State coach Joe Paterno said. "Years prior to that, they talked that way about Stanford, and prior to that, Virginia. A few years ago, who would have thought that Duke would have gone to a bowl game?"

"I think all of those schools that do those kinds of things just reaffirm what a lot of us feel, that you can have good football programs without doing some of the things that a lot of people don't want to do."

Northwestern (7-1 overall) has only Iowa and Purdue left after the Nittany Lions. The Wildcats already have beaten Notre Dame and Michigan on the road.

"They have 15 Parade All-Americans of their first 22 guys," Northwestern coach Gary Barnett said of Penn State. "Then I looked through our media guide and I didn't find any, which puts us at a talent disadvantage right off the bat."

The rest of the schedule involving Top 10 teams includes Iowa at No. 1 Nebraska, Northern Illinois at No. 3 Florida, No. 4 Ohio State at Minnesota, Southern Mississippi at No. 5 Tennessee, No. 7 Michigan at Michigan State, Navy at No. 8 Notre Dame, No. 25 Oklahoma at No. 9 Kansas State and No. 10 Colorado at Oklahoma State.

Other games with ranked teams are: Missouri at No. 11 Kansas, Quarterback James Brown hopes the Texas offense can move the ball against a tough Texas Tech defense.

No. 23 Texas Tech at No. 13 Texas, Stanford at No. 14 Southern California, No. 19 Oregon at No. 15 Washington, Louisiana State at No. 16 Alabama, No. 20 Syracuse at Virginia Tech, Northeast Louisiana at No. 21 Auburn and No. 22 UCLA at Arizona State.

On Thursday night, No. 24 Virginia upset second-ranked Florida State 33-28.

At Lincoln, the focus will be on Lawrence Phillips, soon to be sentenced for misdemeanor assault against his ex-girlfriend and trespassing. Despite the charges, he's been allowed to return to the Cornhuskers.

"It's hard to say what can come from playing these last three or four games," running backs coach Frank Solich said.

Phillips hasn't played at all since Sept. 9 and hasn't played at home since Nov. 5, 1994. His absence hasn't stopped Nebraska from winning its first eight games.

"We've done it without Lawrence Phillips," Solich said. "I don't think there is any one player we can't do without."

Florida (7-0) favored by 49 points in its homecoming game against Northern Illinois.

Blowout city? Gators quarterback Danny Wuerffel is to get the final three quarters off. Eric Kresser will replace him.

"As a competitor, you want to play," the junior said. "You want to play all the time. But I think it's a good situation to be in. ... When we get down the stretch, it's really going to be important to have a bunch of guys ready to play, including Eric. This is going to be good for him and the team."

Northern Illinois (3-5) has lost its four non-conference games by an average score of 45-13.

"The main thing for my kids is to make themselves proud, go play hard, and that's all I can ask of them," coach Charlie Sadler said. "Certainly, we are totally outmanned."

Baylor expects Miami to be focused despite NCAA probe

MIAMI (AP) — Speaking from experience, Baylor coach Chuck Reedy figures the Miami Hurricanes are unlikely to be distracted by NCAA allegations Saturday when they play the Bears.

"I would suspect that won't have a whole lot to do with how they approach the game," Reedy said. "I've seen it work both ways. We went through it at Clemson, and it became kind of a rallying point for the players."

Reedy was an assistant coach at Clemson from 1978 to 1989. The Tigers were on probation from 1982 to 1984, and an NCAA investigation led to the departure of Reedy, head coach Danny Ford and others before the Tigers went back on probation in 1990.

Now it's the Hurricanes under scrutiny. Ten NCAA allegations against them were publicly disclosed this week.

"It's been a black cloud ever since they started investigating the University of Miami," middle linebacker Ray Lewis said. "But whatever sanctions come down will come down. It's out of our hands, so it's not what we're focusing on."

By beating Baylor (5-2), the Hurricanes (4-3) would help their chances of earning a postseason berth — and any bowl game could be their last one for a while. Sanctions are expected to be announced in late December.

As the NCAA closes in, the Hurricanes have rebounded from a 1-3 start to win three in a row, beating Rutgers, Pittsburgh and Temple.

"We've found out how good our team really is," freshman running back Dyrall McMillan said.

But Baylor may represent Miami's toughest opponent since a 41-17 loss at Florida State. The Bears, bidding for a bowl berth themselves, rank fourth nationally in total defense and No. 1 against the pass.

The last time Baylor played Miami, Chuck Foreman was the Hurricanes' star running back. That was in 1972. Since then, the Hurricanes have won four national championships.

"Maybe they're not as dominant as they've been in the past, but they're certainly a very talented team," Reedy said. "With the national reputation they have, going down there and playing them certainly gives us and our conference a chance to gain respect throughout the country. It can do a lot for our program."

Miami has won 12 games in a row against Southwest Conference teams by an average score of 40-9. The last SWC team to beat the Hurricanes was Texas in 1981.

And during the past decade, this has been the Hurricanes' best time of the year. Since 1985, they're 36-1 in November.

Coach Butch Davis said his team can finish fast despite the NCAA investigation.

"The message we have sent to the players repeatedly throughout the year has been, 'It's out of your control,'" Davis said. "Worrying about it isn't going to change anything."

Loose as a goose

Nemechek earns Jiffy Lube start

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Joe Nemechek, a former series champion, won the pole position Friday for the Jiffy Lube Miami 300 Busch Grand National stock car race on the official opening day of the Homestead Motorsports Complex.

Nemechek, a regular in NASCAR's premier Winston Cup division, held onto the edge that he showed when he led both in testing on the new 1.51-mile oval and in practice earlier Friday.

His fast lap of 134.628 mph was quick enough to relegate defending Busch Series champion David Green to the outside of the all-Chevrolet front row at 134.395.

"That was an almost identical lap to what we ran here when we tested in October," said Nemechek, smiling despite suffering from a case of flu that has been bothering him for several days. "The set-up we have under the car right now is the same we had in testing and the same we used today in practice."

"The set-up we used to qualify is the same, too, and it was our race set-up except for some tape on the nose."

Nemechek, who won the Grand National title in 1992 and now has five career poles, is the 21st pole winner in the 26 races this season. That breaks the Busch Series record of 20 pole winners in a season, set in 1991. There were several crashes in practice Friday on the demanding new track, and Nemechek said, "Homestead is more of a driver's track because you have to know when you have to let up going into the corners and when to get back in (the throttle). There's so little tolerance, you make a mistake and you're in the wall. This track doesn't forgive."

"That's why the pole is so important to us," he added. "When they drop the green flag (on Sunday), I want to be out front. No one knows what this track is going to be. If you're somewhere in the pack, it could get pretty rough."

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Cleveland Browns will announce Monday that they are moving to Baltimore, according to a television report.

WBAL-TV, citing sources it didn't identify, reported Friday night that the state of Maryland will provide $2 million for improvements to Memorial Stadium, which will be home to the Browns for two seasons until a $200 million state-funded stadium is built next to Camden Yards in downtown Baltimore. The television station also reported that the deal includes an up-front payment of $60 million to the Browns' owners. The money would come from the sale of private seat licenses, which are purchased by football fans for the right to buy season tickets.

The negotiations come as voters in the Cleveland area prepare to head to the polls Tuesday to decide whether to authorize a tax on cigarettes and alcohol to pay for repairs to the Browns' stadium.

Bruce Hoffman, executive director of the Stadium Authority, and Gov. Parris Glendening's press secretary, Dianna Rosborough, refused to confirm or deny that a news conference has been scheduled Monday.

Meanwhile, Browns owner Art Modell remained tightlipped.

"Who is saying it? Let me see who is saying it. I'm not going to say anything," Modell said when asked about the news conference.

Modell has denied categorically that the team was for sale, but has refused — as he has for months — to promise that they were staying in Cleveland. Previous reports have suggested that Modell might sell his majority stake in the team to Alfred Lerner, a Maryland banker who currently owns about 5 of the Browns.

"The Browns are not for sale," Modell said Thursday. "I don't care what kind of value the sporting world or the financial world puts on it."

But he would not comment on the reports that the team was dealing with Baltimore, or any of the other cities rumored to be interested in the Browns. Modell has refused to comment on the issue since shortly after training camp opened, saying he doesn't want the team to be distracted from the day-to-day business season.

But his spokesman, David Hopcraft, told The Plain Dealer that a report a deal had been reached were "a bum story."

The (Baltimore) Sun reported Friday that the Browns and state officials are believed to have signed the outline of a deal that would have them move to Baltimore in time for the 1996 season.

Thursday, WBAL had reported the Browns had reached a "handshake agreement" with state officials to move to Baltimore, though the deal could be nixed by the NFL.

On Friday, WBAL said a deal would be announced at a joint Browns-Maryland Stadium Authority news conference. The NFL owners, who meet in Dallas on Tuesday, are not expected to oppose the deal, WBAL said.

Maryland Stadium Authority officials did not immediately return a telephone call seeking comment Friday afternoon.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello in New York said he could not comment on the WBAL report, except to say Baltimore's status would be discussed in depth at the Dallas meeting.

The agenda for the meeting includes a request that the owners guarantee Baltimore a team. The state of Maryland has since withdrawn the request, but the item remains on the agenda as a way to raise the subject of Baltimore's future with the NFL, Aiello said.

Aiello said the presence of the request on the agenda does not necessarily mean the owners would vote on it. As the owners meet Tuesday, voters in Cuyahoga County will decide whether to extend the countywide "sin tax" on alcohol and cigarettes for another 10 years to pay for renovation of the aging Cleveland Stadium.

Extension of the sin tax is the last piece in a patchwork of taxes and fees intended to raise $150 million to $170 million to overhaul the Depression-era facility.

Backers of the extension pitch it as crucial to ensuring that the Browns stay in Cleveland. Cuyahoga County Commissioner Lee Weingart said Friday the campaign was not behind the rumors, but felt anxiety about losing the Browns would help spur voters to action.

Performance meets speed, style

Grand Sport 1962 Corvette's legendary lightweight Sting Ray race cars — consisting of only three coupes and two roadsters — were built with tubular frames and covered by thin fiberglass skins, then rigged with small-block Chevy aluminum engines and steered to success on swift circuits by skillful driver with names like Penske, Foyt and Hall.

Grand Sport 1996. Special coupe and convertible Corvette editions — boldly painted in Admiral Blue Metallic with crisp white racing stripe zipping up the exaggerated hood — generate excessive horsepower from a high-output Chevy V8 and support special suspension components tuned for showroom stock, auto cross and gymkhana enthusiasts.

Climb into the glove-tight Grand Sport seat, strap on a racing helmet, then buckle tight as Corvette tackles the twisty loop at Wisconsin's Road America, my favorite track.

When that 5.7-liter V8 cranks over, note the snort from 330 horses. Slip the manual stick into first of six forward gears, ease off clutch and roll to the head of a quarter-mile straight. At the flag, stomp the throttle and release fat 17-inch rubber as shoulders pin to leather.

A tachometer flips across the analog gauge and all that low-end torque hurls Grand Sport down the flat, speed rising rapidly with wrist twitching the lever to second gear.

First turn comes in a hard right as velocity climbs beyond 90 mph, so ease off the pedal and test those big disc brakes. In reaction, SC's front end dips and we're in the curve now, cutting to the apex before upshift to third.

Speed builds through wiggles descending into a broad right sweeper. Tap toe to brakes and the rumble strip indicates we're clear, drifting to the outer edge.

Gun it up the blind hill, but brake before the top of Grand Sport won't make that tight left, much less the next right. Add throttle coming out of the second one for a downhill run to 90 mph until slowing for the sharp left, but drift out and build speed around that quarter-mile rightward sweep, pulling G-forces through your eyeballs with a lateral slide across the apex.

Another long and swift stretch follows with upshift to fourth, then down a notch to slip right and up to the blind left. Speed rips again toward that last right — hardest of all to judge but most necessary to brake — and it's flat out up a final hill to the finish flag.

Drive the 4-mile Road America loop conservatively with a sporty, yet less powerful, than this Vette and you won't come close to busting three minutes. Take it with aggression in Super Sport and you might cross the finish line a hair or two under two minutes.

Fun in wheels won't be better than this — and neither will Corvette.

Chemtronic packages all of the accoutrements to exacting performance and racing in a simple Grand Sport statement of muscle, power and panache — then attaches a tag on top that runs to $43,823 in coupe or for convertible, $51,233.

These are the versions that draw eyes and take your breath when running hard and fast.

Another special edition for Corvette with 1996 label swan song for the fourth generational design, wears Sebring Silver paint and rolls on 5-spoke aluminum wheels.

Call this Corvette the Collector Edition, marking the end of an era like elite models of 1982 and 1983 once did.

It arrives as coupe or convertible with special cockpit-style interior features such as perforated sport seats with CE emblem embroidered in red, black or light gray. Further, Collector Edition sports ZR-rated 17-inch tires, then offers a choice of standard LT1 5.7-liter engine pumped to 300 hp, or the LT4 330 hp variation of Grand Sport with that 6-speed manual aboard.

What about Corvette's raucous ZR-1 stuffed with the outrageous LT5 485 hp V8 high-output engine? Consider that one another Corvette collector's model because its run, beginning in 1990, ended with a final 448 issues of the 1995 model.

However, for the 1996 series Corvette also serves up a base coupe and convertible, each hauling the 300 hp LT1 engine linked to Chevy's electronically-controlled automatic 4-speed transmission. Figures drop to $37,790 for the coupe.

For digits like those you get fanciful mechanical systems and high-tech hardware which extend to the point where Corvette becomes one of the most nimble, and fast, zippers on four wheels.

The long list of standard figures for comfort and convenience apply to all Corvette editions, ranging from as conditioning and power windows to dual electric heated outside rearview mirrors, cruise control and twin air bags.

The new visual surprise

If you haven't as yet seen the all-new 1996 Mercury Sable, get ready to feast your eyes. This car is an exceptional beauty.

The Sable, along with its counterpart, the Ford Taurus, set the style trend in the automotive world in the mid-'80s. They also made "coefficient of drag" the buzz word for that era, which resulted in other manufacturers following in their footsteps or tire treads. Now Ford and Mercury have lowered the boom on a new era — style that has strong eye appeal.

Both the front and rear doors have a crease that provides extra strength to this four door sedan. The old Sable has very plain doors with no distinguishable marking, while the new Sable's doors are aesthetically appealing.

The windshield has a steep rack, and the hood line drops quickly toward the front grille. The trunk lid, though shorter than the hood, also has a steep slope. This is in direct contrast to manufacturers whose designers are going for large rear ends. I suspect this is another reason why the Sable attracts attention.

The grille has an oval shape, as do the head-lamps. The oval design theme is obvious throughout the car, adding to its unique appearance.

Sitting behind the wheel is where

I really appreciated what the designers accomplished. Instead of the usual boring consoles, the Sable has a large oval unit that jumps right out at you. This unit contains all the dials and buttons needed to operate the climate control systems and the sounds systems. The buttons are large enough to operate even when wearing gloves or mitts.

I've never seen radio controls anywhere near as large in other cars. Best of all, they are very easy to understand. The same applies to the instrument panel. The numbers are big. I didn't have to put my reading glasses on in order to check the odometer. Even the power window controls have large buttons.

The leather-wrapped steering wheel complements the leather on the extra large shifter knob. Leather seats and door panels touch off the elegant feel. But this car's beauty is more than skin deep.

Some designers are so bullish on appearance, they size of the trunk. I took this car on a golfing vacation and had no difficulty sliding three golf bags lengthwise into the trunk, and we still had room for our luggage. In most cars, golf bags only fit cross-wise.

One of the reasons this $22,705 automobile has a quiet, solid ride is the way it is constructed. Instead of numerous welded units, the Sable is constructed with a one-piece body side stamping. It also has crossbar beams which produce structural stiffness.

With a sturdy body, engineers are able to design a suspension system in which each component works to its full efficiency.

Exceptionally efficient is the 3-liter, 24-valve Duratec engine that produces 200 horsepower. This engine works in complete harmony with the automatic transmission. The only way I could tell it was shifting was by sound, not feel; it is very smooth. Best of all, there is no need for a tune-up until the odometer reaches 100,000 miles.

This report only touches the surface of the Sable. To really appreciate it, you have to go to a Mercury dealer and feast your eyes.

What really surprised me is the Dear Doctor: I am the original owner of a 1992 Honda Civic Hatchback which has 27,000 miles. I have maintained it meticulously. However, I have replaced the tires frequently because they become bald or scalloped. I have had the car's alignment checked and the mechanic said the front wheel bearings are worn and have some play in them. There is also an airplane-like roaring sound coming from the front wheels. I have complained to my Honda dealer, however the car is now out of warranty. Any suggestions?

Julie M.

Dear Julie: You should check with the brand tire company whose tires are on your car for any possible warranty that might be applicable. As far as the front wheel bearings being worn, have the local Honda dealer contact Honda Motor Car of America or you can call them in California. The phone number should be in the owner's manual. Honda has always been fair to their customers on out-of-warranty problems. With a proper alignment, balancing, and rotation at 9,000 mile intervals, there should be no scalloping or uneven wear.

Dear Doctor: As the owner of a 1991 Ford Escort LX, I have gone through two alternators in just under 30,000 miles. It appears every 15,000 or so I have to replace the alternator. Is this a common problem for this model? Ed G.

Dear Ed: It seems that there may be a poor ground connection, weak battery, or high resistance at the alternator main connector. Have your technician install a separate ground wire from the back of the alternator to the engine block, load-test the battery, and do an alternator performance test. Most alternators carry a one year warranty.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1983 Buick Skylark with a 3.8-liter V-6 engine and an automatic transmission. For the past couple of weeks, it has been stalling whenever I put it in gear and try to accelerate. The engine idles very smoothly. I have had a complete tune-up and replaced the fuel pump. Nothing seems to help. Do you have any idea what is causing this problem? Vernon D.

Dear Vernon: The first item to check is the accelerator pump in the carburetor. Next, check to make sure the EGR valve is not coming on too soon. It is a common problem for the EGR valve to open too soon which causes stalling. Stalling problems when trying to accelerate are usually caused from a lean condition (too much air and/or too little fuel).

Dear Doctor: I own a 1986 Chevrolet Celebrity. When I apply the brakes fairly hard to slow down quickly on wet pavement, the rear brakes grab first and sometimes lock up. I have had work done on the rear brakes but the problem still exists. Please tell me what to do to repair this problem. Paul L.

Dear Paul: This has been a common problem in midsize front-wheel drive GM cars from all through the '80s. Here are some fixes for the problem. For rear brake shoes that are too aggressive (too much metal content in the friction material), resurface the finish on the rear drum. Use nonmetallic shoes only. Parking brake and/or rear brakes may be over-tightened. Also check for a faulty proportioning valve or master cylinder, rear tire pressure and poor tire condition.

Dear Doctor: I own a 1993 Pontiac Grand Prix with a 3.1-liter V-6 engine and an automatic transmission. The car has air conditioning. When the engine warms up, the temperature gauge fluctuates between 190 degrees and 230 degrees over the course of one minute. This occurs in both summer and winter. The engine has never overheated. The car has two electric cooling fans. Both do not seem to come on at the same time. Is this a problem? Herbert K.

Dear Herbert: You will see a small fluctuation in engine coolant temperature. The electric cooling fans are controlled by engine temperature and use of the air conditioner. I suggest you replace the engine thermostat, fan coolant temperature switch and cooling system flush. You should also have the temperature gauge sending switch checked or replaced. Today's engines need to operate at high temperature.

Dear Doctor: I drive a '93

Dodge Dakota pickup with a V-6 engine. At 15,000 miles the exhaust noise became almost unbearable. No leaks were found. The muffler was replaced twice and the catalytic converter once with no change in the noise problem. Any suggestions? Delbert H.

Dear Delbert: My neighbor owns the same year pickup and I drive it from time to time. I have never noticed any kind of exhaust noise like you describe. Without hearing your truck, the only suggestion I can give you is to go to the Dodge dealer. Let them check the truck. The catalytic converter carries a 5 year 50,000 mile warranty. The factory muffler may sound quieter than an after-market brand.

There are no technical bulletins on this problem to date.

1958 BONNEVILLE

"A new kind of car is born! Meet the bold new Pontiac... A revolution on wheels." The adjectives flowed fast in Pontiac's 1958 advertising campaign. Sales literature and ads promised blazing power and a thrilling ride. Pontiac, and all GM-built cars, were totally restyled for 1958, though this new "bulbous-curvy" look would continue only for that season until replaced for 1959 by another new look: the "linear" look.

The 1958 Pontiacs had an optional "Ever-Level Air Ride," though air suspension was later to be called off as a deflated balloon, once several manufacturers had toyed with it in the late '50s.

The Bonneville (aka Bonneville Custom) was Pontiac's top-line model and bore the designation "Bonneville" on the hood and rear deck (instead of "Pontiac," used on lesser models.) The Bonneville was first available during 1957, as a convertible. The illustrated two-door hardtop was added for 1958.

Pontiac's model series for 1958, in ascending order: Chieftain, Super Chief, Star Chief Custom and Bonneville (or Bonneville Custom). All Pontiacs since 1955 had been powered by overhead-valve V-8 engines, and for 1958 there were seven horsepower variations!

Notice the drive-in movie theater in this scene. How long since you attended a drive-in? Or have you ever? The first drive-in theater was opened in New Jersey in 1933. The fad didn't catch on, though, until shortly after the end of World War II. In the late 1940s and through the 1950s, drive-in theaters opened in most suburban areas of the United States. Friends, families and couples could now go to the movies in the comfort and informality of their own car, and they could converse freely without disturbing others in the audience. The kids could go to sleep in the back seat if they got tired. And it wasn't necessary to dress up, as one might when attending an indoor theater. Some drive-ins lured customers with "carload rates" — all you could crowd in for a single admission fee.

During the 1950s and 1960s, drive-ins appeared to be replacing indoor theaters, but in the 1970s, with the escalating cost of available land, many drive-in operators found it more profitable to sell out to a developer. Tract homes and shopping centers replaced many a former drive-in. Others sat abandoned and weed-overrun, as their owners began to give up.

Be glad if there are still drive-ins near you. Public interest is needed to preserve a significant number of these nostalgic institutions.
