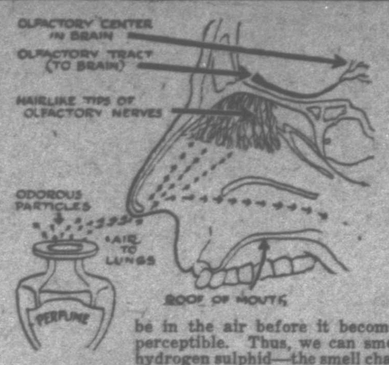
A Microscopic View of the Interior of the Nose, Showing the Muscles as Elevations and the Veins That Warm the Breath Before It Enters the Lungs. The Bursting-Bubble Effect in the Upper Right Hand Corner Is Evaporating Tear Water.

The Diagram at the Right Indicates How the Invisible Odorous Particles Enter the Nose and Register the Sense of Smell on the Olfactory Nerves Located in the Center of the Brain.



MANY mysteries envelope each of the five human senses, but the sense of smell, while the simplest, is at the same time the most mysterious, according to various scientific investigators.

Dr. Eric Ponder, who writes on the subject in Discovery (London), believes that the sense of smell, instead of being the last, might well be considered the first of the five, whether because of its importance, its primitiveness, or its mystery. It is more nearly connected with man's inner emotional life than are sight and hearing, and a study of it presents more interesting points than most people realize.

Prof. Yandell Henderson, of Yale University, who is one of the pioneers in the work of investigating the sense of smell, reports that it does not have its seat in the nose, but above and behind the nostrils in a little alcove in the skull. Here is a little area of tissue about the size of a dime, covered with small, tonsil-like projections, in which the nerves of smell terminate. This sensitive tissue is called the "olfactory epithelium."

An ordinary breath, it is explained, does not pass directly over this membrane. But when air is drawn through the nose in jerks and puffs, a little whirlwind is created that reaches the sensitive membrane, carrying to it the minute odorous particles that give the sensation of smell. The lining of the nose itself is served by an entirely different set of nerves, which, when irritated, merely produce sneezing.

In describing the sensations of smell, Dr. Ponder says that the organ which receives these sensations consists of myriads of tiny units—the olfactory cells—whose appearance is invariable throughout the entire animal kingdom. Each olfactic cell is a rod-shaped body ending in an enlargement on which is a cluster of fine hairs; at the other end of the cell is a nerve fiber which, joining with others, forms the olfactory nerve or nerve of smell proceeding to the brain. In man these little cells are restricted to a small area—about a square inch in size—in the deeply-seated parts of the nose. In some animals, such as the dog, the cells occupy a larger area, while in whales and seals the area is much smaller. In insects, the olfactory cells lie in little culs-de-sac in the antennae and mouth parts, while in the sea-anemone they are found on the surface of the skin. And wherever they are found there is to be seen lying among them certain pigment cells of great importance.

Compared with the ear or the eye, the structure of the olfactory organ is therefore one of great simplicity. "Yes," you will say, "but look how much simpler its function is. The nose has only to deal with smells, much simpler things than colors or sound." In which remark you are mistaken. The sense of smell possesses an unrivaled power of discrimination, for man can, by this simple organ, detect the most minute quantities of odorous substances in the air he breathes.

The special instrument used for finding the sensitivity of the olfactory cells to various odors is called an olfactometer, there being many different forms. One of the most commonly used consists of a porous tube which slides over a fixed metal tube; according to the position of the porous tube, which is impregnated with the odorous substance, a greater or a less quantity of that substance is carried to the nostrils. Dr. Ponder has found that if the tube is saturated with vanillin, the average person can recognize as little as one thousand-millionth of a gram. Other substances are recognized in even smaller quantity. But the sense of smell is not characterized by its power of perception alone; it has just as remarkable a power of discrimination. The variety of odors is unlimited—there are all the natural odors, the odors of the plant world and of animals, perfumes belonging to minerals and inorganic material, and the innumerable perfumes of substances synthesized by chemists. Each of these the sense of smell can recognize as different; its discrimination is practically unlimited.

"Although we can recognize and distinguish an enormous number of odors," says Dr. Ponder, "we can, however, name very few. While we refer to colors in a definite way, and while we can describe a sound as minutely as we like by giving its pitch and quality, we can not speak of 'the moldy smell' or 'the stuffy smell' with the same precision. The sense is devoid of description; it has no language, and from this point of view is indeed undeveloped.

"Anything we smell must be in a gaseous state, for it has to be carried to the nostrils in the air which we breathe. The odorous substance is thus brought into contact with the hairs of the olfactory cells, which are apparently stimulated, and a sensation of smell results. This is agreed, but how does the stimulation occur?. Is it chemical, the odorous substance affecting the hairs like a chemical reagent, or is it physical, depending on waves in the air or ether, as in hearing or sight? Here admitted fact ends, and speculation begins; some people claim that the effect is chemical, and others that it is physical.

"We seek in vain for any relation between chemical constitution and smell. Artificial and natural musk, for instance, have the same odor, but are utterly different chemically. Prussic acid and nitrobenzol smell the same, but are totally unlike in structure.

"Impressed by this failure, physiologists have been led to suggest that the action may be physical. The molecules are known to be in a state of very rapid vibration, and it is supposed that these rapid movements set up in the surrounding air little waves, which fall on the hairs of the olfactory cells. The movements of the hairs set up in the cell as impulse that is carried to the brain, and there interpreted as a smell. In this way the vibrating molecules act somewhat like a wireless transmitter, and the hairs of the cells like a detector. We can recognize as many different kinds of smell as there are lengths of waves which can be generated and received. According to this theory, prussic acid should smell the same as steam, for the waves generated are identical; but one is odorless while the other smells powerfully of almonds. Thus the physical explanation fails us too—neither accounts for the facts, and the sense of smell guards its secrets."

The fact is now fully established that a smell is a material thing, according to Prof. Henderson, some of whose more important conclusions are presented in Popular Science monthly by Harry A. Mount. Scientists at last have discovered the actual substances that cause the best known odors, and the amount of each that must be in the air before it becomes perceptible. Thus, we can smell hydrogen sulphid—the smell characteristic of bad eggs—when it mingles with the air in the tiny proportion of one part in 100,000,000; Roughly, this means that a thimbleful of hydrogen sulphid released in a six-room bungalow would render the entire place uninhabitable.

The secretion of a certain gland of the skunk is so powerful that a drop of it would be sufficient to malodorize the whole interior of the Woolworth Building.

Professor Henderson illustrates man's mental habit in the following manner:

Think for a moment of your reaction to sound. When you hear piano music you think not of the minute vibrations that are actuating the delicate organism of the ear, but of the vibrating strings of the instrument, or, more likely, of the nimble fingers of the musician. And so with odors. When you get a whiff of the emanations of fermenting garbage, you think not of the infinitesimally small amount of material that is stimulating the olfactory epithelium, but of the garbage pile itself. Our first impulse is to get rid of the garbage pile.

Would it not rather seem the sensible thing to get at those few ounces of odorous emanation at the source and kill them, than to try to treat tons of material that cannot very well be got rid of? And this is what Professor Henderson has done. He began a long series of experiments that finally demonstrated that chlorine gas, mixed with the odorous gases in the proper proportion, caused a chemical reaction that completely destroyed both odor and chlorine.

After some preliminary tests which served to show the relatively small amount of chlorine needed, a working unit was installed to kill odors from a dryer in a municipal garbage reduction plant. In a series of extremely tests, not only did the chlorine completely eliminate the garbage odors, but likewise such pungent smells as come from burning feathers, hair, wool, leather and decaying fish.

This Lamp Forms an Easter Cross

A LAMP in the form of a cross, declared by the inventor to be "an appropriate ornament for the homes of religious people," has been patented by Henry L. Wolfers, of Roxbury, Mass. It is of translucent but not transparent glass, made in one piece with beveled edges and ribbed fanlike projections at the corners where the upright part and the crosspiece intersect. These projections are preferably gilded.

Inside the base is a lamp socket, upon which is screwed a lamp sufficiently elongated to reach with its top end somewhat higher than the middle of the crosspiece. The socket is connected by a cord with any lighting fixture.

When the current is turned on the rays from the lamp, projected through the flat sides and beveled edges of the cross, and through the fanlike portions in other directions, produce a beautiful effect, which is enhanced by the gilding at the intersecting corners.

How EASTER LILIES Are "TIMED"

LILIES toil not, neither do they spin, according to King Solomon, but they can grow very tall, as you can see by the accompanying photograph of some giant Easter lilies which was taken at a flower show held in New York City.

Today in millions of homes throughout the land Easter lilies are diffusing their fragrance and cheer as a symbol of new life. Although the Easter lily is as much a part of the Spring as the chrysanthemum is of the Autumn, there are very few persons who know of the many difficulties growers encounter in raising this beautiful flower.

One of the most vexing problems in connection with marketing Easter lilies from Bermuda or Lily Land, as it is also called, is to get the blossoms to their destination at just the right time and in the "pink" of condition. The growth of the lilies is checked to strengthen the bulbs. Plants that bloom at this time are thrown away.

Florists import these bulbs by the millions and time the growth of the plants so that they will be in full bloom at Easter time. One great difficulty is due to the fact that Easter Sunday falls anywhere from about the close of March to near the end of April. There is also a danger that the lily season in Bermuda may be either too early or to late and thus prevent growers from exporting their best bulbs.

Green lily buds are also exported, being packed in boxes containing five-dozen bulbs on an average. An eighteen or twenty-inch stem is left on each bud. Each bud is wrapped in soft paper and then packed in moss.

Florists bring the buds to full bloom by placing the stems in clear water, the temperature of which is of such a degree as to control the rate of development. Buds placed in luke-warm water and in a warm room will develop at once. When placed in water of forty degrees and in a cool room they do not come to full bloom usually for about five days.

Experts in the United States Department of Agriculture have experimented with propagating Easter lilies from seed. It has been found that the lily is a hardy plant and under proper conditions can be made to grow in a northern climate.

Practice GUIDE for PITCHERS

A DEVICE to help the practice of baseball pitchers is the invention of John W. Rovane, of Keokuk, Iowa. It takes the form of two fixed upright standards, between which extend crossbars at heights corresponding to the knees and shoulders of the batsman. The standards being fixed by the length of the crossbars, seventeen inches apart, which is the width of the home plate, it is obvious that the aim of the pitcher is to cause his thrown ball to pass through the rectangle thus outlined. If it passes outside the rectangle, his throw is a "ball."

The standards are set in plates provided with holes to receive screws or bolts by which they may be fastened solidly to a floor or other substantial base. Each standard is provided with several holes for the crossbars, so that the latter may be set at various heights corresponding to the knee-heights and shoulder-heights of different batsmen. When adjusted in two opposite holes, each crossbar is made fast with screw nuts turned on its threaded ends.

It is desirable to avoid injury to the ball by its striking the standards or crossbars, and so it is part of the inventor's idea to cover these metal rods with rubber sleeve rollers. These are easily slid onto the rods incidentally to arranging the device with the desired adjustment of the crossbars, and supplementary short lengths of rubber rollers, placed on the standards, can be used to increase the height of the crossbars.

The pitcher should be placed 60½ feet from the spot where the pitcher stands to deliver the ball.

HELPS for the Woman GARDENER

NOWADAYS, what is called the "extension service" of the United States Department of Agriculture covers nearly everything that relates to the welfare and comfort of the farmers, and in particular of the farm women. It teaches the latter how to take spots out of clothes, how to make paper "bust forms" for fitting their dresses, how to mend broken china, and even how to prepare dainty dishes.

One of its ideas, illustrated by the accompanying drawings, is meant to be of use to women in their Spring gardening. The apron, of stout canvas, has strings for tying it around the waist, and a flap at the front has three convenient pockets for tools.

The kneeling pad, for use in setting out plants and in other gardening work, is comfortable and at the same time protects the dress from soiling. Of light weight, it is carried about by a couple of straps attached to its corners. The closed side has a lengthwise pocket to hold plants that are to be set out.

New Inventions

CHECKERS containing small horseshoe magnets are the latest novelty for devotees of that game. The checker board is steel, so the magnetized pieces can't slide while the game is being played. Kept in a steel box when not in use, the non-skid checkers are said to retain their magnetism indefinitely.

The Krupp works of Germany now are manufacturing single and double rows of enameled steel false teeth from the same kind of steel used in making big guns. At present eight dentists are employed in this new department, and it is reported that the steel teeth are becoming increasingly popular because of their durable construction.

How Dewbows Are Formed at Night

DEWBOWS formed at night when light from a street lamp falls on small fog particles which have settled to the ground and retained their spherical form, have been observed and reported in Science, by Maurice Ewing, of Rice Institute, Houston, Texas. In this case, when the source of light was a gas lamp, the bow was white, but when a more powerful electric lamp was used rainbow tints were observed. The bows changed shape when either the horizontal distance from the observer to the source of light or the elevation of the observer's eye above the ground was changed, because the light from the lamp was divergent. Bows seen at noon on an ice surface, and bows in the shape of a hyperbola produced by the sunlight on dew have also been reported. And now the moonlight dewbow is described.

Mr. Ewing says that several times during the past year, he has observed dewbows which differ from those described in the literature in that they were formed by moonlight shining on dew on a grassy surface. When the bows were seen the moon was always shining brightly from a position well above the horizon and the grass was wet with freshly formed dew. If the dew had been formed for more than a few hours no bows were seen, very probably because the increased size and weight of the drops caused an appreciable dparture from perfect sphericity. The idea that it was necessary for the drops to be small was borne out by an observation made at 2 A. M. At this time a light shower had covered the grass with fairly large drops, which were by no means perfectly round. When the clouds had cleared away and the moonlight was very bright no indication of a bow could be seen.

The dewbows appeared as faintly defined streaks of white light tracing ellipses in the grass. The size and shape of the ellipses depended upon the angle of incidence of the moonbeams and the height of the observer's eye above the ground. The bow moved with the observer and different observers saw different bows.

TRUE STORIES that read like FICTION

Novelists' "Thrillers" Are Found in Everyday Life, Says DOROTHY DIX, Concluding Her Memories of Twenty-five Years as Star Reporter With Tales of Famous People and Crime Cases She Met Along the Way

Dorothy Dix, foremost woman reporter, herewith concludes a series of articles retailing experiences during her more than a quarter-century career as a reporter of the daily news, particularly in the police courts of America and in attendance on famous murder trials. This final installment shows the remarkable variety of "assignments" in which she figured and the very many world celebrities with whom she came in contact.

IV

"BUT it wasn't all murder trials," chuckles Dorothy Dix, "much as I seem to have had to live among murderers and criminals during these last twenty-five years. There were other people in the news. And they provided me with amusement as well as tragedy.

"I think my first really big assignment was to go out and stay with Carrie Nation in Kansas for a while and send back stories about her daily performances. There was a character for you. She had leaped into international fame when she walked into a saloon with an ax and just naturally wrecked that saloon.

"I went to one meeting that Carrie Nation called out in some Kansas town. Fifty gaunt Kansas matrons came—and every last one of them had an ax hidden under her petticoat. But for some reason or other the fifty didn't go on the warpath with their little tomahawks that day, and I lost what ought to have been an awfully good story.

"Carrie Nation unquestionably had brooded until she thought the Voice of God was guiding her. I called her the Kansas Joan of Arc in my stories, for the first time I asked her when she was going to march on another saloon with her hatchet she said: 'I'm waiting for my voices to tell me, Miss Dix.' I asked her what voices. She told me that voices straight from God came and told her what saloons to attack.

"I THINK probably the most harrowing experience I ever went through was reporting the Conemaugh Mine disaster near Johnstown, Pa. It was on a Fourth of July. I had gone to Philadelphia to lunch with friends. I remember that I was all dressed up in a beautiful new light summer silk dress and I had a new hat all covered with flowers. I just liked myself. All dressed up in my best bib and tucker. And right there in Philadelphia I got a telegram to drop everything and take the next train for Johnstown and cover that mine disaster. I rushed out to the mine. For three days and three nights I spent most of my time by the mouth of the mine, sitting on a rough, dirty pile of slag, and watching those little mine' cars come out loaded with burned and crushed and twisted and tortured things that had been men—load after load of burned and mangled bodies. Me there in my light silk dress and flowered hat.

"All around me were massed women. Heavy, shapeless bodies, shawled and roughly clad, with thick ankles and thick wrists and scarred hands and disheveled hair. Every load that came up seemed just an indistinguishable mass of bodies to me. But those women knew.

"Then I went to the little church where the one great funeral service was to be held over them all at once. A cheap little raw-board church. Rows on rows of cheap coffins. Shrieking, wailing women.

"Fine for the nerves, that! I was a wreck. Then, as we came away from that funeral, one of the men who was there reporting the story for another New York paper said to me: 'Miss Dix, I need a drink. Don't you?' I said that I certainly did. 'Come on and let's get one,' he said. We started downtown. My mind was fixed on something very much like four fingers of the strongest old brandy I could find. Maybe I would take two drinks. I felt as though I needed half a dozen. Then—— 'Here's the place,' said the reporter. And he led me into a drug store and bought me an ice-cream soda!

"SO MANY memories keep popping up. There was the bigamist I had to see. He had married thirty-six wives. I went to see him expecting to find a tall, handsome, godlike Apollo sort of chap. I couldn't believe my eyes when the police brought me in to a little weedy, shabby rat of a man who looked as though he had been moth-eaten and left out in the rain overnight. I looked at him in astonishment.

"'You've married thirty-six women!' I said to him. 'Yes, Miss Dix,' he said. 'Do you mind telling me how the devil you did it?' I asked him. He smiled at me. 'It's the easiest thing in the world to do, Miss Dix,' he said. 'All you've got to do is talk to them about themselves!'

"When I've seen some marriages since then I have begun to believe that maybe he was right!

"Oh, there's another murder I covered that comes back to my mind. That was a remarkable one. And it certainly proves that fiction and life are so intertwined that you can't tell them apart sometimes. Remember that famous short story of Guy de Maupassant in which an obscure little Government clerk with hardly any money at all found his wife wearing beautiful jewels? In the De Maupassant story, you recall, she told her husband that they were imitation. Then she died. And the husband, in financial difficulties, takes them to a jeweler thinking he can get a few francs for all those imitation pearls and paste gems—and finds they are worth a fortune. Her lover had given them to her.

"Pure fiction, of course! But listen to what happened in real life in New York. There was a man whose wife came in wearing a beautiful string of pearls one evening. He didn't have much money. He looked at the pearls in astonishment. His wife saw his eyebrows rise.

"'My dear,' she said hastily, 'isn't it wonderful what imitations these people can make? Look what I got for $25.' He looked. He agreed with her that it was wonderful to be able to get pearls like that for $25. They were marvelous imitations, he said.

"And then a week later he came home one afternoon unexpectedly—and there was a man from Tiffany's restringing those pearls. The man from Tiffany's said: 'I certainly must congratulate you, sir, on being able to get a string as beautifully matched as this. They certainly were cheap at $40,000.'

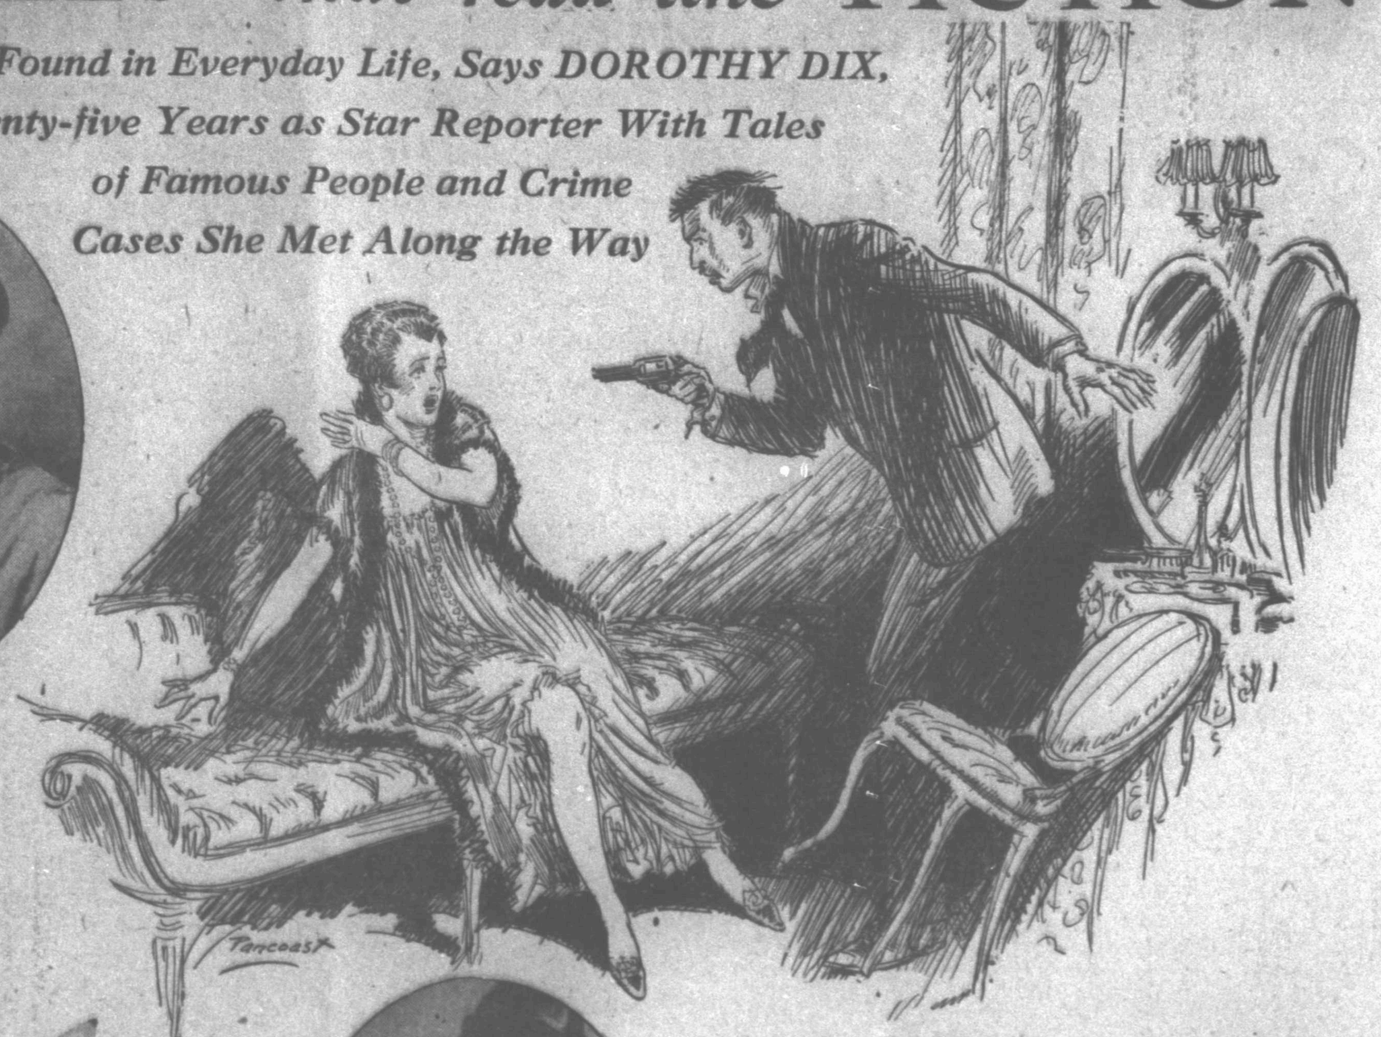
"The man waited until the jeweler chap had departed. Then he forced from his wife the name of the man who had given her the pearls—and he went out and shot the man and came home and shot the wife. I had to cover that double murder trial.

"THE part that gems have played in criminal history! I remember another case of a man who was the head of a safety-deposit vault force of employes in some huge bank in New York. Mrs. Edward Harriman, wife of the great railroad financier, used to put her jewels in safe deposit there every summer. One spring she deposited the jewels there, including a flexible diamond pendant with a huge ruby on it worth $60,000. This man escorted her to her box and was supposed to have locked it. Mrs. Harriman was in a hurry. She didn't notice that he didn't lock it.

"The man had been living out Larchmont way. He was a pillar of the church and a leader in the Boy Scout movement and in every way the model substantial citizen. But he had got terribly in debt and he took this way of getting out of it. His plan had been to report a mysterious robbery and let the police and insurance company do the worrying. But that ruby was so distinctive and so costly that he couldn't find a single soul to buy it. Most illicit buyers were afraid to touch it, knowing it would be traced. And when Mrs. Harriman discovered her loss at the end of that summer, the thief hadn't been able to dispose of the $60,000 worth of loot. A detective found it in three days. I asked him how he was able to find it so easily. He laughed and said: 'There were only three places in New York where such a jewel could possibly have been bought, and I found it in one of them where the man had left it and they had kept stalling him off.'

"It isn't generally known, but Harriman, the great railroad financier, had one fad that was almost a passion. He was one of the greatest amateur connoisseurs of jewels in America. Whenever he was tired and wanted to get his mind off railroad mergers or business details of the millions with which he juggled, he would go up to Tiffany's and spend hours just looking over different jewels and discussing them with Tiffany's experts. They told him up there once: Mr. Harriman, if you ever go broke in railroads, give us a chance to hire you as a jewel expert.' But he died rich and never had to apply to Tiffany's for the job.

"Interviews were always lots of fun. I remember once when the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia came to New York. I was assigned to interview him.



"The husband waited until the jeweler had departed. Then he forced from his wife the name of the man who had given her the pearls—and he went out and shot the man and came home and shot his wife. I had to cover that murder trial"

Anna Held, who always wanted to be a tragedienne

He was stopping at one of the great hotels. I wrote him a little note and asked him for an interview. I guess he must have thought Dorothy Dix was a lot younger and more beautiful than she was, for he wrote at once in return making an appointment. He was a gay dog with beautiful ladies.

"I went up there and sent up my card. I was carrying a little black soft leather bag such as womenfolks carry to hold a powder-puff and their other trinkets and their carfare. I noticed that when his secretary conducted me in to meet the Grand Duke Cyril two huge, husky bodyguards stood, one on each side of me, watching me intently every minute of the interview. They were close enough to touch me without moving a step. When the interview was over and I had been bowed out I asked a Department of Justice man there whom I knew if it was customary to guard Grand Dukes from all ladies by two big bodyguards who stood right alongside you. He looked at me and laughed. 'Were you carrying that black bag when you went in to see him?' he asked. I told him I was. 'They weren't taking any chances that you might have a bomb in it,' he told me. And he assured me he was speaking quite seriously. You might 'blow up' some one by what you wrote about him in a paper, but that was the first time I was suspected of carrying bombs to blow them up with.

Carrie Nation, the "Kansas Joan of Arc," was a picturesque character who sought to reform the country with a hatchet

"Then there was the time I interviewed Arnold Bennett, the famous English novelist. Irvin Cobb and Will Irwin both told me that they had tried to interview him and had given it up as a bad job.

"'He's a frozen-face,' they both told me.

"I laughed and went along up to see him at his hotel. He was pretty stiff and frozen in his manner at first. So I looked at him and said: 'Mr. Bennett, I've always been sorry for your blighted ambition.'

"'Why?' he asked, startled out of that English reserve of his. 'How is my life blighted?'

"'You've always wanted to run a hotel,' I told him.

"'As a matter of fact, my dear Miss Dix, I always have wanted to run a hotel,' said the great novelist. 'But how the devil did you find it out?'

"'You told me so yourself, in your books,' I told him. 'Every time one of your characters comes a cropper, in all your stories they start keeping a hotel.'

"Arnold Bennett threw back his head and roared with laughter. 'By George, you're right, Miss Dix,' he said. And then we settled down and had a lovely time and I got a splendid interview.

"Anna Held was another one who told me that she had a blighted ambition. All her life she wanted to be a great tragedienne like Sarah Bernhardt or Eleanora Duse, and all her life she was in light musical comedy.

"But I could go on reminiscing endlessly about the fates and the incidents that come back to me as I think over those twenty-five years of reporting.

"HOW do I feel about the fullest possible reporting of crimes and murder trials? I believe in it absolutely, although I want to be out of it from now on. When I finished my contract with one New York editor I went up to his office to say good-by to him. 'I'm through,' I told him. 'I don't want to see another murder trial as long as I live. If I ever get mixed up in another you'll be the victim and I'll be in the prisoner's box interviewing myself.'

"But I have to say this in all fairness. In all the years I reported crimes and murder trials I was never once told to color my stories in the slightest degree. The only orders I ever received were to get all the facts I could and get them into the office as soon as I could.

"People want to read about crime. What is most history but the record of individual and national violence? Why, when we had a live murder story or live murder trial running in New York it used to send the circulation up 100,000 a day. Newspaper records of great crimes surpass in thrills anything a writer of fiction can imagine—and they are real. They are the detective stories of real life. And people love detective stories. Why else is Sir Arthur Conan Doyle the highest-paid fiction writer in the world?

"Of course, a lot depends on the way those stories are handled by a newspaper. But that, too, is life. Go out and buy some meat and vegetables. Give them to one cook. She'll produce a sloppy stew that you'll run a mile to avoid. Give them to another cook. With the same materials she will produce a ragout that you'd travel across the world to eat.

"I always tried to produce the ragout.

"DO I think that any average person is likely to commit a great murder under certain circumstances? That 'the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin'? Not when it comes to murder. Distinctly not. Think for a moment. Where do the greatest actresses in the world come from? The common people. Very common. The kind who throw dishes and scream curses at one another and break furniture in their family rows and are accustomed to letting their emotions fly loose all over the place. Think of the earliest years of immortal actresses like Duse and Bernhardt, and see if I'm not right.

"And it's that way with great murderers. Human passions almost always atrophy under the restraints of good breeding over several generations, just as muscles atrophy if they are kept inactive too long; just as the fish in the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky are blind because they lost their eyes from generations of darkness.

"It takes generations to breed raw human passions up to the standard of good breeding. And when you have bred them up that way you have little or nothing of the raw material of the murderer left.

"That's why I never believed the Stevens family had anything to do with the murder of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. Shooting and throat-cutting had been bred out of them. That's why I believed that Mrs. Hall was telling the truth when she said she hadn't the faintest idea that her husband was unfaithful to her. Mrs. Hall was a lady with generations of good breeding back of her. She couldn't have suspected her husband of an intrigue.

"And her brothers were of the same type as she. If they had known of the rector's infidelity to their sister their reactions would have been not to get a gun or a knife but to hire a lawyer. 'Poor Fanny, we'll have to get her a divorce,' would have been what they would have said.

"No, that sort don't murder, or if they do, so rarely that it is the exception that proves the rule. Your great crimes in which great passions move cyclonically come from the common people, I have found.

"I've seen a lot of them. I've reported them after observing them microscopically for twenty-five years. But now I'm through. I've taken a vacation from murder-trial reporting—and it's going to last all my life."

BUT if Dorothy Dix is taking a vacation, it is a vacation full of work. On an average of 200 letters a day pour in to her pleasant New Orleans home from all over America, from England even.

Such questions as they ask!

"One man wrote in to me demanding that I tell him authoritatively what was the one unforgivable sin," chuckles Dorothy Dix. "I told him I knew what it was from my point of view. Jazz music."

"And another," resumes Dorothy Dix, "wrote to me and said: 'I want you to tell me the truth about life after death.' Fairly large order, that.

"Such perplexities and such trials as they have! And they write to me with a candor and frankness and openness that is simply startling at times. I suppose it would raise the hair on the heads of some fathers and mothers if they knew the problems that their sons and daughters lay before me for solution. And it is rather a pitiful commentary on parenthood that those boys and girls can't go to their fathers and mothers to solve those problems, but have to write to somebody they have never seen, but whose name they have seen in a newspaper."

It is a beautiful home in which Dorothy Dix does the work that has made her name a household word to millions of Americans. Spanish in type, with cool plaster walls, high-arched ceilings, marvelous grilles of heavy black iron, a sun parlor that for hours each day is bright with the golden Louisiana sun filtering through the green trees of Audubon Park. It is furnished with the fruits of a shopping expedition that went all the way around the world.

"Yes, they've called me a sob-sister so long that I'm rather proud of the title," she smiles. "The recipe for being a good sob-sister? You've got to be interested in people. You've got to know news when you see it in the raw. You've got to want so badly to write that it will break your heart if you can't write. And you've got to keep your feelings sandpapered just the way Alias Jimmy Valentine sandpapered the tips of his fingers so he could work out a safe combination by touch. You've got to be sensitive to the slightest shades of human feeling.

"Then get yourself a job on a newspaper and go to it. Always there has been a need of good sob-sisters on American newspapers. The demand is always greater than the supply. I'd like to see a whole flock of them making good. What they write is the best reading in the world, because it is raw life seen through sympathetic and understanding eyes and told out of a sympathetic and understanding heart."

CAPTURED by Mongolian bandits, trussed to poles, hideously tortured and threatened with death, after having been stripped of everything of value—this was the blood-curdling experience of members of that famous Morden-Clark expedition which climbed to "the roof of the world" in search of the rare mountain goat, Ovis Poli.

But for the intervention of a troop of Russian Soviet soldiers—soldiers who showed the kindliest of interests in the sadly beset Americans—all the men of the party undoubtedly would have been executed as the climax to the savage ceremony attending their capture and torture.

A few weeks later the same party again faced death when natives and the party's escort became embroiled over certain orders by the officers of the escort, and a mutiny occurred which only ended after much bloodshed when the soldiers' leveled gun barrels awed the insurgents.

The Morden-Clark expedition was organized in Chicago shortly after the return from the Himalayan Mountains of the Roosevelt brothers. The Roosevelts brought back several specimens of Ovis Poli, heretofore regarded as the rarest of all known animals and highly valuable because of their fine coats.

Funds for the expedition were furnished by William J. Morden, of Evanston, Ill., and he selected as his fellow explorer James L. Clark, an assistant director of the American Museum of Natural History, with headquarters in New York City, and a leading authority on animal life.

Leaving America a year ago the party proceeded to Bombay, and thence, under guard of soldiers furnished by the British Government, to Peyik Pass on the far northern border of India. There the British guard left them and a Russian troop took up the convoy as the party moved into the Russian Pamirs—the first white men to enter this wild district in many, many years.

The Peyik Pass marked the greatest altitude of their expedition, approximately 15,000 feet. A rapid descent across the great range brought the party abruptly into the Ovis Poli country, and their astonishment was great when they sighted, a few hundred yards away, a flock of thirteen beautiful specimens of the supposedly rare animal.

Because of the difficulty of stalking, which must be done on the backs of yaks, it was impossible to get close enough to bring down any of the huge goats. A few days later the party reached a basin known as Kisal Radat. Here they found skulls and bones of hundreds of the Ovis Poli scattered over the ground. The animals had been literally slaughtered by the natives for food, there being no protective laws in operation. Arrangements were made with the natives for the party to be provided with as many of the animals as they wished and the number was set at one hundred.

After two fine specimens had been brought down it was discovered that the animals in that locality would not do. Their hair, too brittle from the long Winter, broke when struck heavily, showing blood marks all too plainly. So it was determined to move on to a point where skins less injured by the climatic severity could be found.

The expedition proceeded to Shabachi and, enroute, obtained many fine specimens that fitted their needs. A complete family group was discovered and the pelts taken away, preserved and packed on the backs of yaks preparatory to continuing the march. The horns on these animals ranged from 50 to 57½ inches in length, an unusual size, even for the great Ovis Poli.

It was shortly after this successful catch that the party encountered the brigands. It was near a town called Ji-Ji-Ho, supposedly a peaceable little station with no hint of bandits in the vicinity. The savage horsemen descended upon the travelers with great suddeness and while a greater part of the Russian guardsmen were otherwise occupied. All the men were taken into custody and held until the remainder of the guard reappeared and were in turn captured.

Stakes were driven into the ground at intervals of a few feet and the men, after being stripped, were tied to these stakes, hands trussed behind the stakes. They were then forced to their knees, as is the Mongol fashion for executions or torture, and huge whips were brought out.

As each man's effects were searched a powerfully-muscled bandit struck the prisoner across the back, face, or wherever his blows might fall with the whip. After all had been fearfully lashed, other methods of torture were devised and continued for two days. The hapless men were not permitted to sleep, eat or have drink, and their captors danced about them and went through various ceremonies, supposedly for the purpose of cowing them into making certain confessions. Just what confessions were desired the captives never learned, but they were assured that the brigands believed them to have secrets of importance which they were shielding.

After twenty hours of this torture a conference of the bandit leaders was called. It continued for some time, during which the excited tones and gesticulations of the conferees convinced the trussed men that their fate was being debated. It was their unhappy lot to look upon their prospective executioners as they discussed the most horrible means of putting them to death.

In the end it appeared that beheading—the most common means of execution in China—had won and preparations began for the wholesale butchery. Great knives, or swords, were brought out and carefully inspected before the eyes of the trembling prisoners and lots drawn, apparently to determine who should have the honor of executing the leaders. All was in readiness for the massacre when a troop of Russian horsemen rode swiftly upon the scene.

The bandits, taken by surprise, fled in every direction, leaving such of the prisoners' possessions as had not been destroyed. The newcomers, Russian Soviet troopers, released the trussed soldiers and scientists and provided them with clothing to resume their journey. Several hours' rest and no little medical attention were required before the travelers, exhausted from their long ordeal, were able to move on.

At another village the natives were greatly excited at seeing the soldiers and when the captain of the guards asked the head man to supply fifteen sheep for meat to carry the party to the next stop the official refused. The captain ordered his arrest, but as soon as the soldiers laid hands upon him the natives attacked them madly and a vicious fight ensued.

The natives battled with every weapon at their command, but in spite of their greater numbers, the trained soldiers, with their superior weapons, soon subdued them, but not without much bloodshed. Morden and Clark helped dress the wounds of the casualties and this, appeasing the people, proved to be the salvation of the party. Meat was supplied at once and paid for and the trip again resumed.

Thus ended the more serious perils of the expedition—perils that had been as great in travel and in surmounting the forbidding mountains as in eluding or overcoming warlike bandits who infest the region. Of the expedition, Mr. Clark, highly elated with his success in finding the Ovis Poli plentiful, said:

"In April we passed around the ends of four glaciers. One of these we crossed was a mile and a quarter wide. It was most interesting going up and down, but we could see the ice only once in a while as, at the best, the glaciers are very dirty with sand and rocks brought down by them. Just above us, a hundred yards or so, great pinnacles of ice were standing straight in the air. This glacier is many miles long. In fact, no one knows where it starts. One man followed it for twelve days without approaching the beginning. Most of our nights were spent in little 6x7 tents. We had no beds and slept on the ground.

"In going over the Peyik Pass, 15,450 feet high, from the Russian Pamirs into Russia, the trip on yaks was not hard on the Chinese side, except the last 500 feet. The rise is steep, causing the animals to flounder pitifully, but at last they made it. At the top we all took a rest. It was not cold, even at that height—just about freezing. We here had wonderful panoramic views, which were duly recorded by the camera. As we descended on the Russian side the snow was much heavier and continued down into the valley for a considerable distance. At times our descent was very steep and we had to zigzag along the slippery slopes to make it. In the valley the snow was everywhere deep. We enjoyed good health through it all and had no trouble breathing, notwithstanding the great heights. Nor did we mind the cold, which seems to be a mild kind, and not bitter like that we have at home. Of course, the outdoor life fortifies one and we dress for it, too.

"Poli hunting is a matter of good stalking. This requires that one must be invisible to visible animals. On such occasions Mr. Morden and myself agreed upon the two largest and finest rams of a herd and fired simultaneously. We stalked on the backs of yaks, which are capable of negotiating any kind of going where other animals would fail. The larger the herd the more difficult it is to stalk. For instance, I was out alone one day and counted a herd of 33 rams and ewes. When there are so many the sentinels are sure to detect the approach of a man or any moving object. In an instant, almost, the herd scampers in scattered formation over the mountain peaks and you have to hunt for them next day in another valley. We got tired chasing them so much in the big, sweeping valleys in such stormy weather and proceeded thirty miles further on in two marches, stopping en route only for a bath at the hot springs near Kizil Rabat, where Russian troops were encamped.

"We saw foxes while hunting poli, but dared not fire at them. There were wolves and rabbits. The marmots were beginning to come out in midday; big fellows, the color of a dark red fox. All these, with other mammals, we got later when not stalking poli. The poli had fine, Winter coats with brownish backs and white legs and under parts. The foxes at this period were not of a good color, which was a dirty white. The Russians all along our route continued to be very kind to us, doing everything in their power to help us in every way. When we parted they invited us to come again."

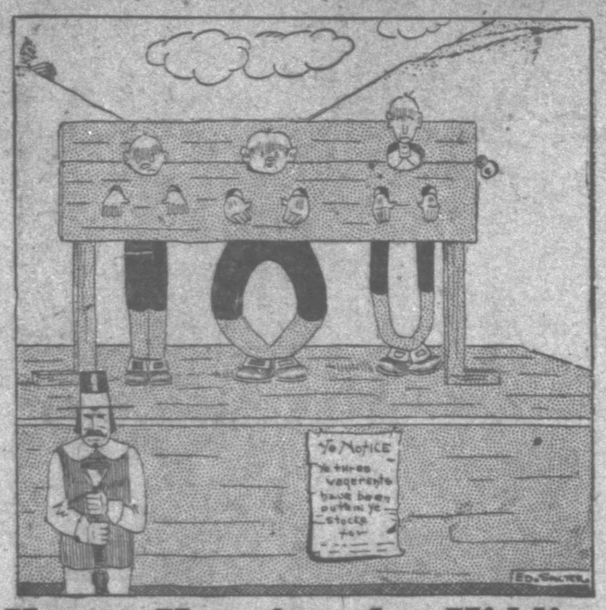
MAGIC — The Weekly Puzzle Page — RIDDLES

Why Are Three Men in Stocks?



IN olden days stocks frequently took the place of prisons and men were often publicly confined in them for breaking for laws.

Here the artist has pictured three culprits who are serving an "open air" sentence. Can you tell why they were sentenced to the stocks?

Here Are Two Very Easy Tricks

For the first trick you will need an empty matchbox. Tie it around the center with a piece of string and leave an end eighteen inches long. Now tie the other end of the string to a bracket or similar support so that the box is hanging down. As soon as you have done this ask any of your friends to cut directly through the centre of the string in such a way that the box will remain suspended.

This is the secret of the trick, which is simplicity itself: All you have to do is to tie a loop in the centre of the string and then cut through the loop.

* * *

This easy trick is performed with two kinds of nuts, pecans and almonds, for example. Take twelve pecans and an almond and place the thirteen nuts in a circle. The trick is to remove every second pecan and leave the almond until the last. This is not so easy as it seems and most likely your friends will fail to find the solution.

To do this trick begin by removing the fourth pecan from the almond. Then count around the circle and remove every second pecan and you will find that the almond is left to the last.

Name the Concealed Country

THE name of one of the greatest countries in the world, which is concealed in the following sentence, may be found by joining certain words or parts of words:

Just before the gong sounded for the end of the thirteenth round the prize-fighter received a terrific blow on the point of the chin and went down for the count.

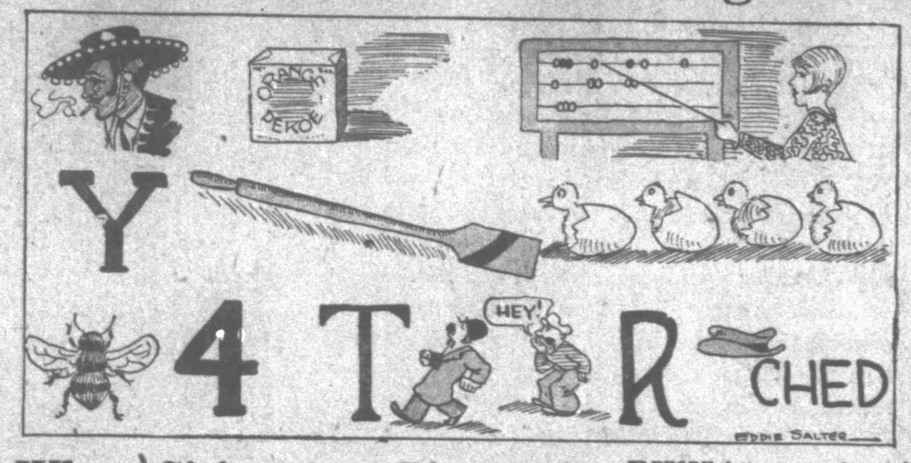
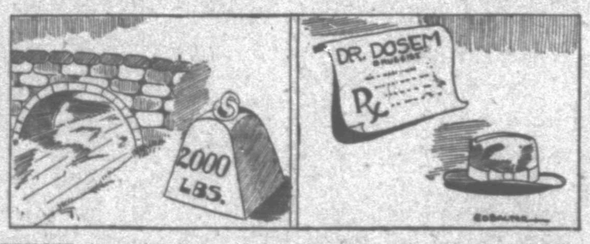
A Proverb in a Picturegram



What Cities Are Pictured?



WRITE down the names of the four objects pictured in the accompanying drawing, then join them together and you will spell the name of two small cities.

Boiling Easter Eggs

IF it takes three and a half minutes to boil one easter egg, how long will it take to boil three?

BEFORE letters were invented men communicated with each other by drawing pictures to express their thoughts. Here is a familiar Easter proverb which has been translated into pictures. Can you tell what it is?

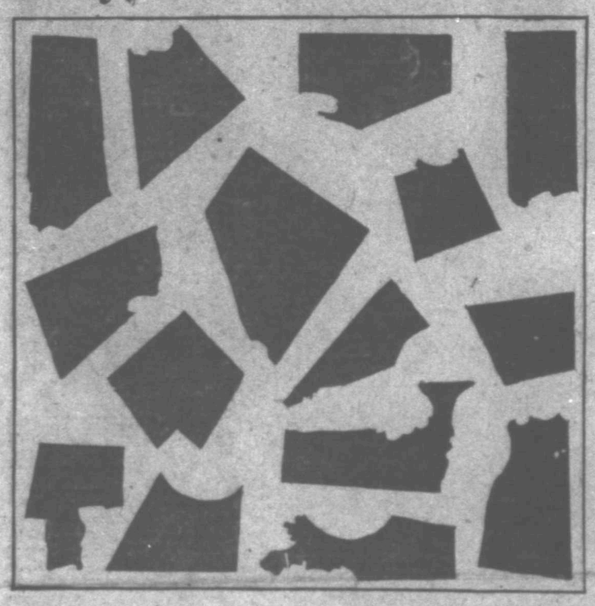
Supply the Missing Words

FILL in each of the two blanks in the following sentences with words that are spelled with the same letters:

1. The hungry man was glad to exchange his ——— for a pound of chicken ———.

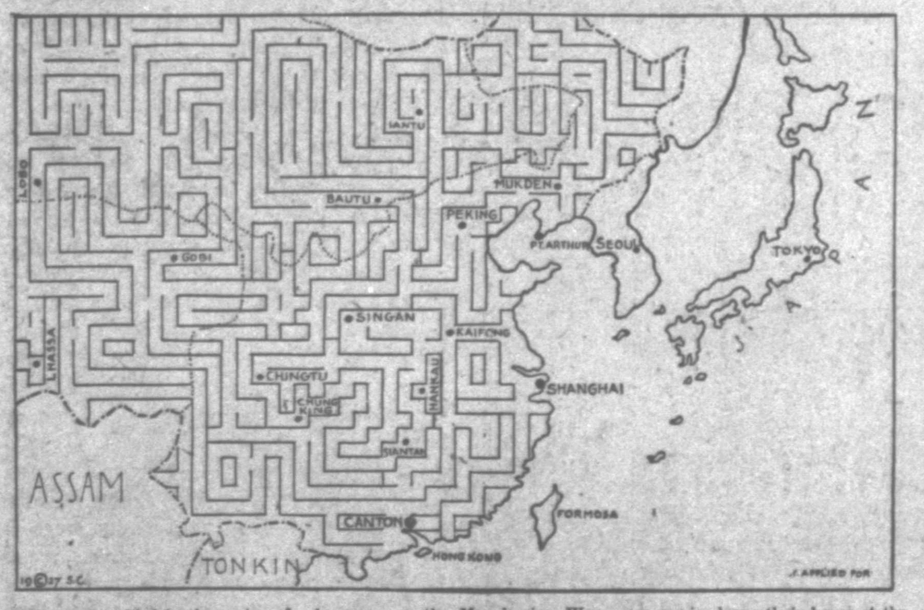
2. According to the mythology of the ancients the place where the ———, ruler of the underword, ———, was called Avernus.

Krazy, Kut for the Kiddies



EACH of the odd-shaped pieces are to be cut out and rearranged in such a way that they will form the figure of a child who is indulging in a popular pastime. The figure is not composed of the black pieces themselves, but when the pieces are correctly assembled it will appear as a white silhouette.

Where Will the Chinese Armies Clash?



THIS is the third in the series of popular map puzzles and takes you to China where war is now being waged.

A crisis is at hand, for Shanghai, menaced by the Cantonese army, is in danger of being captured by the enemy. The city may be saved, however, as the Manchurian War Lords, whose headquarters are at Mukden, are rushing a northern army toward Shanghai.

Thus both the northen and southern armies leave their bases at the same time, respectively Mukden and Canton, on their march to Shanghai. Trace on the accompanying map puzzle the respective routes of the two armies and name the place where they meet and fight a pitched battle.

Answer to Last Week's Cross-Word Puzzle

For the Sake of the Children-FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

What are the rights of children?

Ann thought her love would reform her husband. But when he came home drunk, to humiliate her and her children, what could she do? For the sake of the children?

She met Donald Mutrie on a Sunday and married him that day week.

Her friends and some of his, said Ann was too good for him. Meaning that up to the time of her marriage Donald had been what might be called a prodigious sower of wild oats.

Ann knew this, after a fashion, and her sweet eyes were alight with the determination to reform Donald. She married him for love. She could reform him with that love.

In whatever fashion Ann was to be the loser by this marriage, she bettered herself economically. Donald was a born money-maker. As his friends said of him, about everything he touched turned to gold. Donald even a little the worse for drink could turn a better bargain than most men in the power of their full faculties.

Ann up to the time of her marriage had been a sort of forewoman in a fairly large uptown department store of Urban City. One of those great shops of convenience that occasionally dot the residential districts of large towns. The kind of shops that cater to the housewife who does not have time for the long trip to the downtown districts.

After her marriage, Ann lived in a lovely stone-facaded, ten-room home in a residential district where heavy traffic was forbidden.

But almost from the first, the reformation did not pan out as Ann had dreamed it would. Donald was as set in his ways as he was wild in his ways. From the very first he began to come home roaring drunk two and three times a week. The lovely home that Ann had taken such pride in creating became a storm center of the most painful and difficult scenes from the very first. It was almost with horror that Ann regarded the coming of their first child. But for a while, about a year after its arrival, a change came about in Donald. He seemed humble, chastened, deeply contrite and in love with the mother of his lovely little daughter, and for a brief twelvemonth the pretty home became something of the thing Ann had dreamed it might be.

The coming of her second child was a period of happiness and thanksgiving for Ann. Life assumed a tranquility and a beauty. Donald, who could be very, very nice when he was nice, was not only the provider magnificent, but for three months after the coming of the little boy remained a devoted husband and father.

Then one night Donald came home drunk.

With her heart in her mouth Ann greeted this suddenly strange horror of a companion of hers and made up her mind to fight a valiant fight with him and nip in the bud the possibility of a return to his habits of debauchery. There were tears and reconciliation after that dreadful night. But something had snapped in Donald. Not only did the drinking continue, but Donald became untrue and faithless to Ann in the most flagrant and offensive sense of the word.

Poor Ann, sometimes she was obliged to hold her head up and pretend not to be seared with insult when these companions of Donald's passed her with him on the very streets of the city in which they lived.

The next five years of her life became a nightmare.

It was Ann's horror, it was Ann's humiliation to see her lovely children constantly subjected to the spectacle of a maudlin father and of home scenes of high, angry and bitter words that should never have reached their tender little ears.

In vain Ann sought to avoid these scenes, preferring often to suffer in silence than to subject her sensitive little girl and boy to the gross spectacle of a family row. Because that was all they could ever amount to, with Donald half crazed with drink and blear eyed from too much dissipation and too little sleep.

"Why doesn't she leave him?" said some of Ann's friends. On the other hand, those of her more conservative relations, owing to religious scruples and fear of public opinion, advised her to stick it out for the children's sake.

"For the children's sake" was a phrase that lay constantly on poor Ann's bitter lips. If not for her children, she would never have endured it. If not for the indignity of visiting upon these innocent little products of her unfortunate alliance the stigma of the public separation of their parents, Ann would have gone back to her old position long ago.

She did not crave divorce. She, too, had certain religious scruples, and besides it seemed to her that she could never again have sufficient faith in the married state to try it with another. No, Ann was not for divorce. All she secretly craved was respite from the indignities Donald continued to heap upon her and, above all, upon their children.

And yet in Ann's heart the fear for them of the stigma of separated parents was even greater.

For six years the condition waged. Little Adele, a blue-eyed doll of a child whom Donald adored when sober, had literally been reared in a home of snarling domestic tragedy. Bobbie, the boy, could tell by the sound of father's feet on the stairs when he was returning home drunk, and would run screaming and sobbing to his mother's side.

Gathering these babies to her, sometimes it seemed to Ann that her hands were dark with sin for having brought them into the world. What mattered it that their home was lavish? That their father, when sober, adored and pampered them?

The atmosphere of that home was drenched in horror. When their father came into it, he smirched his children by his very presence.

One evening, such a shocking scene took place in that home—when Donald returned to it in the company of one of the women of dreadful finery he was known to associate with—and entered the very room in which his children and wife were having their dinner—that without taking time to contemplate the results, Ann packed up her children, bag and baggage, and with them left the house.

She went back to a boarding house she had lived in during the years of her work in the uptown department store.

The old store was glad to take her back. At an increased salary, a sufficient increase to enable Ann to keep the nurse maid and leave her children in the care of this reputable woman while she went daily to her work.

It was not the ideal environment. But the two small boarding-house rooms responded to chintz and white paint, and when Ann returned to them evenings, she did so secure in the knowledge that her children's little ears would know only her loving greetings and that their little hearts could expand in an atmosphere of peace and love.

No, it is by no means the ideal solution. Ann's struggle is a bitter one. She will not accept help from Donald even for the children. But the two little rooms represent something that the big house never boasted. Tranquility. The secure knowledge that the delicate growing minds of her Bobbie and Adele will know only the sunlight of harmony and the kind of gentle environment that it is Ann's life hope to provide them with.

Now, as Ann looks back upon it all, upon the turbulence of the years, the agonized moments of indecision, the fear of making the break from the so-called security her husband's board-and-keep gave her in the community, she realizes that the cruel thing to her children would have been to remain with them there. Vassals to a father who could provide for them only with the material things of life. Prisoners in a home where their little spirits were hourly subjected to the withering environment of disharmony and ugliness.

Ann's children no longer hear words of bicker and anger. Ann's children no longer run terrified at the sound of a step upon the stair. Beauty thrives in those boarding-house rooms. The beauty of peace and contentment.

It is said of Donald Mutrie that he has since come to his senses and that a strangely sobered and regretful man is making every possible advance to his wife in the hope of regaining her confidence and resuming life with her on a sound and fresh basis.

Whatever Ann's ultimate decision, she starts for her work each morning with a high head and a high heart.

In her opinion she has kept her self-respect.

KIDNAPERS DEMAND $100,000 RANSOM

6000 Worshipers On Bluffs To Witness Sunrise Pageant Of Resurrection of Christ

By PEGGY PIEDMONT
(Staff Writer, Wichita Falls Record News)

Although Mother Nature failed to do her part towards furnishing a fitting setting for the annual Easter services and pageant presented on the bluffs near the Seymour road Sunday morning, and Easter dawned with dark muddy looking clouds hanging low instead of with the bright sunrise, the impressive event was witnessed by approximately six thousand people who began their pilgrimage to the designated place as early as 5 o'clock in the morning. Fourteen hundred cars were parked at the scene during the height of the ceremony, according to police count.

Daybreak found all outdoors a chill and biting place with skies dark and a light but penetrating wind. This however did not deter the crowds that came from warm beds to again take part in the sunrise Easter worship. They began to arrive long before the time set for the services and by 5:45 a solid line of cars stretched out along the road from the Chenault corner to the entrance of the bluff-fringed natural amphitheatre around which the ceremonies centered.

Impressive Seervice.

The service itself was not lengthy but it was impressive. After sounding the bugle call to worship by the boy couts who were on duty assisting the traffic officers in handling the crowd, the program was opened with a song sung by the double quartet composed of Joel MacGregor. F. M. Hansen, E. F. Bohmfalk, H. W. Gray, L. F. Aldrich, S. M. Goes Jr., J. G. Evans and T. G. Gardner. The Lord's prayer was repeated, followed by a prayer by the Rev. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of the Floral Heights Christian church. The Easter address was given by the Rev. Leslie Miller, pastor of the Grace Methodist church.

A chorus seated in the shape of crosses on two sides of the bluffs, sang Easter anthems, and following the dramatic interpretation of Christ's resurrection from the torab, staged by the Reader's club, the services were concluded with an Easter anthem "Christ is Risen" sung by the chorus followed by the benediction given by Dr. F. A. Bash, pastor of the First Christian church.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd, who was in charge of the services, made a few announcements.

Replica of Jesus' Tomb.

With a fitting setting including a replica of the tomb of Jesus on top of which were three crosses, and angels stationed on the bluffs holding bugles, the pantomime given by the dramatic club was effective in the extreme. Costumes stood out in sharp relief against the half-lit Easter sky, and as the story of the resurrection was told by the Rev. Dan Grieder, junior pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of how the love of the Man of Nazareth whose rising from the tomb has made Easter a day of commeration throughout the world, the lovely pantomime begun with the sound of thunder and the appearance of the angels at the opening of the tomb. This unusual occurrence frightened the Roman soldiers who were guarding the tomb since the crucifixion who took flight down through the hollows.

Women of History.

Then slowly wending their way down to the tomb came Salome and the two Marys, Mary the mother of John and Mary the mother of James. The angels again appeared at the door of the tomb and when they saw what had happened they became alarmed and sent after Mary the mother of Jesus, who in turn became alarmed and sent for Peter and John. When Peter entered the tomb and found the napkin that Jesus had worn on his head and other clothing, he at last was convinced of what had taken place and all knelt down for worship.

Meaning of Easter.

Rev. Leslie Miller's address was one in which he told of the meaning of Easter; of the promise it held for all mankind; of the beauty and glory of its story and of the love of Jesus for all men.

The pageant was directed by Mrs. E. P. Bohmfalk and Mrs. O. Abernathy and presented under the auspices of the Ministeral Alliance and Readers club co-operating with the Rev. Bash, pastor of the First Christian church and originator of the sunrise service idea.

Those taking part were: Mesdames Porter Oakes, Eugene Graham, Homer Karrenbrock, J. S. Shipley, and Misses Bernisce Martin, Mary Brown, a Modina Howell, Dorothy Nolen, and Messrs. Homer Karrenbrock, George Snow, John Keevil, R. W. H. McCulloch and John Dewitt Early.

M'ADOO DENIES HE PICKS REED

But He Does Not Deny Story That He's Out of Race

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The stir of the political season has been started by the Universal Service story that William Gibbs McAdoo had told close personal and political friends here that he is not a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination in 1928.

McAdoo was more stirred than any of the democratic leaders, who read the report with eager interest. He promptly issued the expected denial of the story, which his friends said was a premature disclosure of his plans and views on the present democratic situation.

In a telegram to Universal Service Washington bureau, McAdoo said:

"The story sent out by Universal Service and published April 16 purporting to give my views on party policies and presidential candidates is not only without foundation but is an absurd fabrication.

"I have not seen the writer nor have I given an interview to anyone. You may depend upon it that whenever I have anything to say on political matters I shall say it direct and authoratively. May I not expect a prompt correction."

McAdoo's statement that he had "not seen the writer" is correct. An unusual effort was made to obtain an interview from McAdoo on his political views at this time. The information was obtained from from sources that have heretofore been reliable.

It is understood that Mr. McAdoo's friends objected to the inference that Reed was McAdoo's first choice as a compromise candidate.

Such is not the case, it was said. On the contrary, while McAdoo was represented as referring to Senator Reed in the highest terms of praise, it is expected that h will exhaust every effort to nominate a dry, Wilson democrat before he would turn to Reed.

While McAdoo branded the entire story as "without foundation" and "an absurd febrication," it was pointed out that he did not specifically deny the statement that he is not a candidate for the nomination, for he is irreconcilably opposed to Gov. Al Smith and is searching for a candidate who can "soop" Smith.

CORN HITS LOW

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Spasmodic liquidation in grains has been the rule the past week, with efforts on the parts of the bears to start a renewal of long selling. For the most part, however, there has been no great pressure except in corn where prices hit several new low marks, working off sharply under the combined pressure of long unloading and bear selling.

ANOTHER NEXT YEAR

Lions Club and Record News Sponsor First All-City Hunt

With 18,000 eggs of all colors and some 200 prizes to lure them on, between 4000 and 5000 Wichita Falls children swarmed over Scotland park Sunday afternoon in the first all-city Easter egg hunt, and the greatest hunt in point of attendance in the city's history.

The hunt was sponsored by the Wichita Falls Lions club and The Record News, and attendance far exceeded that expected at the first event of its kind ever held here. With the exception of the starting time, the hunt went off as scheduled, and proved so popular that it will be repeated next year on a far more elaborate scale.

Hunt Starts Early.

Threatening clouds that gathered about 2:30 brought the decision to start the egg hunt at once, and at 2:40, Commissioner Roy Carter's handsome policemen fired three salvos in the air and the great event was on. Children and their parents began to gather at the park before 1 o'clock and at starting time more than 4000 eager youngsters were lined up in the various sections while more than 1000 adults, mostly parents, watched from the sidelines.

After it had actually started, the hunting lasted little more than 30 minutes, although a few stragglers kept up a diligent search, with desultory success, until 4 o'clock.

The hunt was started with more than 4000 children in line, but hundreds arrived after the opening and many too late to find eggs. A reserve supply, kept for such an emergency, vanished within a few minutes, but was freely distributed while it lasted.

Many Help Hide Eggs.

In the task of distributing and hiding the thousands of eggs out over the park, members of the Lions club and The Record News were aided by women from a number of the churches, and by 20 volunteer workers from the Salvation Army. Frank Creighton, scout commissioner, proved his ability as a leader of youth in the orderly handling of the crowd, and the assistance he and his boy scouts gave in making sure that the hunt went off smoothly. President R. H. Graham of the Lions club and Alec Ross, chairman of the Easter hunt committee, supervised the party at the park.

Children who found one or more of the 200 or 300 prize eggs distributed for the hunt through the cooperation of Wichita Falls merchants, are asked to carry the eggs to the stores today to receive their awards. Each prize egg has the name of the firm giving a prize either stamped or drawn on the egg, and each egg with the name of one of the co-operating firms will bring a prize to the holder.

Merchants Give Prizes.

Merchants who gave prizes for the hunt include Perkins-Timberlake, J. C. Penney company, Saul's, Woolworth's, Kress. The Hub, Landon Hill, Miller Drug company, Holt hotel pharmacy, Francis Hobson, P. B. M. company, McClurkan company, Renfro Drug company, Williams, People's store and Deaton-Billingsley Hardware company.

THE WEATHER

Local weather conditions for the past 24-hour period as reported by the Texas Electric Service company are as follows: Maximum temperature, 84 degrees; minimum temperature, 62; at 5 p. m. 76; precipitation, none; southeast wind; cloudy; average velocity, five miles per hour; maximum wind velocity, eight miles per hour; barometer reading 28.80.

Scorned Wife Goes On Warpath As Husband Sets Up $12,000 Love Nest

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 17. —Mrs. Madeline MacLean declares that she bore her troubles in a true Christian spirit, and then some.

She was married in 1902. Her husband, Arthur E. MacLean, beat her soon after the wedding.

Once each month he beat her, over a period of 13 years.

In 1916 he loosened several teeth and blacked both eyes for her and she left him. They reached a separation agreement whereby she received $50 a week and he later set up a "love nest" for someone else, unnamed, whose allowance was $12,000 a year.

All this is sworn to by Mrs. MacLean today. She wants a legal separation and income 50 per cent more than her husband's "friend."

He can afford it, she said, as he makes $100,000 a year.

Tot Rescued From Human Sacrifice In Voodoo Rite Accuses Benefactress

So Now Roberta Jane Pratt, 6, Will Lose Her Home With Wealthy Foster-Parents In Des Moines

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Roberta Jane Pratt, six years old, will not be taken back by her foster mother, Mrs. Everett S. Pratt, wealthy society woman of Des Moines, Iowa, who is to be tried Monday in special sessions for cruelty to the child. No matter what the outcome of the trial, Mrs. Pratt has declared herself as through with her war forever.

"I am through with Roberta now. I won't take her back," said Mrs. Pratt today. "What will become of her I don't know."

Three weeks ago the children's society took Roberta from the Pratt's suite in the Plaza hotel. The child accused her foster mother with burning her with an electric iron and other cruelties.

"I am confident of acquital," Mrs. Pratt said, "the child has been romancing."

Justice Lester D. Thomson of the Des Moines juvenile court is in New York to testify for Mrs. Pratt. Justice Thompson likewise believes that Little Roberta has unjustly accused the woman who adopted her, blaming her early environment for her romancing.

"A year ago," Justice Thompson explained, "Roberta appeared in the slums of Des Moines, in rags and half starved. She was the child of a Mary Kreiger who was one of a band of religious fanatics. They performed queer rites which the child watched.

"Social workers learned that Roberta's parents were preparing to torture her and then throw her in the Des Moines river, as a sacrifice, which was part of the voodoo band's religious rites.

"The child was taken away, and her mother, committed to an institution. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt interested themselves in the pretty little girl and adopted her through my court. I have every faith in them."

DIAMONDS FOUND

New Field Yields Stones of Magnificent Proportions.

By Universal Service.

CAPETOWN, April 17.—Discovery of diamonds, some of which are believed to be worth as much as $500,000, is reported from the district around Alexander Bay, just south of the mouth of the Orange river. The government already has closed the neighboring districts against prospecting. The largest stone found thus far in the new sections was one of 41 carats.

Canadian Missionary and Child Slain By Chinese.

SHANGHAI, April 17. (AP)—Rev. Morris Slighter of Toronto, Canada and his five-year-old daughter have been murdered by Chinese bandits near Yunnanfu, in one of the wildest parts of China. The tragedy occurred while a party of missionaries were trying to make their way to a railroad and saftey on the coast.

FLIERS GUARD RIVER LEVEES

Convicts Also Used in Work Of Fighting Flood

By Universal Service.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 17. — Airplanse were being uped today to spot weak places in levees along the flooded Mississippi and to locate refugees cut off from escape by flood water.

The planse were sent out from St. Louis by the Mississippi river commission and army engineers.

The river continued to rise above Memphis today. At Carlo, Ill., some two hundred miles to the north, the river had reached a higher stage than known in recent years. Levees at that place were reported holding.

Convicts Fight Flood.

Hundreds of convicts are being used in levee work and all unemployed are being put to work. Army engineers are directing operations aided by local officials.

Red Cross workers were preparing to care for thousands of refugees that are flocking in from the lowlands that are threatened by complete inundation. For five hundred miles along the river only a thin wall of earth holds back the flood. These levees are from 25 to 60 feet high, built of earth. They will stand the pressure if water does not start flowing over the top.

Once the water has started to flow over the top of a levee the entire embankment begins to crumble. Unless the break can be stopped by sand bags the whole country for miles back of the levee is quickly flooded. A number of these breaks have already occurred.

The crest of the flood is still above Memphis. It is expected the water will rise several inches between here and Vicksburg within the next few days.

1000 Tents Shipped.

A thousand tents and five hundred army stoves shipped from Red Cross headquarters in Chicago yesterday were expected to reach distribution points by tomorrow. Several hundred tents have already been distributed.

No accurate estimate could be made tonight of the number homeless but it was estimated at from 10,000 to 12,000, the number increasing as the flood spreads. Entire towns and villages are standing with several feet of water on the streets and with homes in the lower sections deserted.

CHURCH MUST NOT INTERFERE WITH STATE

HE'S AN AMERICAN

New York Governor Will Not Let Church Rule Him, He Declares

BOSTON, Mass., April 17. (AP) Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York in a letter to the Atlantic Monthly, today declared that he recognized no power in the Roman Catholic church to interefere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the laws of the land.

The governor, a Roman Catholic, and potential candidate for the presidency, wrote the letter to the magazine in reply to an open letter published in the monthly last month by Charles C. Marshall, New York lawyer and Episcopalian, who asked him a number of questions seeking to define his view on the relation of the Catholic church to the state. Mr. Marshall has been described as an authority on canon law.

The governor's intrepreation of Mr. Marshall's questions is described in his letter as follows:

An American Catholic

"Taking your letter as a whole and reducing it to common place English you imply that there is conflict between religious loyalty to the Catholic faith and patriotic loyalty to the United States."

The governor declared that "everything that has happend to me during my long career leads me to know that no such as that is true."

Governor Smith summed up his creed as "an American Catholic" as follows:

"I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church. I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the laws of the land.

"I believe in absolute freedom of consciousness for all men and in equality of all churches, of all sects and all beliefs before the law as a matter of right and not as a matter of favor.

"I believe in the absolute separation of church and state and in the strict enforcement of the provisions of the constitution that congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

"I believe that no tribunal of any church has any power to make any decree of any force in the law of the land, other than to establish the status of its own communicants within its own church.

Wants Public Schools

"I believe in the support of the public school as one of the cornerstones of American liberty. I believe in the right of every parent to choose whether his child shall be educated in the public school or in a religious school supported by those of his own faith.

"I believe in the principal of non-interference by this country in the internal affairs of other nations and that we should stand steadfastly against any such interference by whomsoever it may be urged. And I believe in the common brotherhood of man under the common fatherhood of God.

"In this spirit I join with fellow Americans of all creeds in a fervent prayer that never again in this land will any public servant be challenged because of his faith in which he has tried to walk humbly with his God."

Traffic Police To Tighten Lines On Enforcement Of Regulations

Rigid enforcement of all traffic ordinances, and severe punishment of all offenders in police court, effective with Wednesday, April 20, was announced by Traffic Captain J. H. Scott, of the Wichita Falls police department, Sunday night.

Observance of some of the ordinances, particularly the parking ordinance, has for the last two weeks not been enforced to the letter in some sections of the business district because of street paving work which was in progress, Capt. Scott said.

Beginning Wednesday, however, this is all off. Parking of cars in alleys will also result in fines hereafter, the police captain said.

"Take fair warning and heed the traffic ordinances to the letter," was Capt. Scott's announcement.

FRIENDS RAISE FUND

Gangsters Resent Any Aid From Police Forces Of Windy City

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Friends of Jade Adler and Frank Larro, wealthy owners of the Midnight frolics, who were reported kidnapped by a band of gunmen terrorists, were busy tonight collecting a sum of $100,000 to purchase the men's safe return. The two cabaret owners disappeared mysteriously Friday evening. They are both recognized leaders of a powerful Southside vice syndicate. Although no ransom price has been set by the kidnapers, as far as could be learned, friends of the missing men have been advised of their plight and indicated that a large sum would be demanded for their freedom.

Raise $100,000 Ransom.

Members of the Adler-Larro combine began immediately, it is understood, to raise a sum of $100,000, believing that amount would take care of the demands of the kidnapers.

From sources close to "gangland," it was learned that a notorious band of gunmen from St. Louis, known as "Egan's rats," is suspected by members of the local vice ring.

Friends of the kidnaped pair have taken matters in their own hands and appear to resent efforts of police to aid in the recovery of Adler and Larro.

Police Fear Fued.

Authorities expressed the fear that the kidnaping may result in a bitter fued between the Chicago and St. Louis gangs.

DETROIT COPS FIRST BATTLE

Cleveland Indians Unable To Stem Tigers

CLEVELAND, April 17.(AP)—Detroit played its first game of the 1927 season today and defeated Cleveland 5 to 1. Uhle, Cleveland's premier pitcher, was hit hard from the start, finally retiring at the end of the seventh when his lack of control, with hits by Warner and Gibson produced three runs. Gibson not only held Cleveland to eight hits and one run, but made four hits himself, three off Uhle and one off Buckeye. Cleveland's only run was the result of doubles by Jamieson and Spurgeon.

Runs: Manush 2, Fothergill, Heilmann, Taylor.

Athletics Wallop Senators Handily

WASHINGTON, April 17. (AP)—Philadelphia knocked out sixteen hits today to own a lop-sided game from the Washington Senators 13 to 3. Simmons got a home run in the third with one man on. Gray, pitching six-hit ball after the first inning allowed Washington nine hits. The Senators used four pitchers, Braxton, Jones, Marberry and Hadley, withdrawing Marberry after he had gone 1 1-3 innings without giving a hit. Score:

Yanks Continue On Rush For Big Lead

NEW YORK, April 17. (AP)—Lou Gehrig featured in today's Yankee victory over the Red Sox. His two homers and a single drove in six runs for the locals, two less than the American league record for a game. Johnny Tobin also hit a homer for the Red Sox. The Yankees made eighteen hits for 28 bases off Russell and MacFayden, two Red Sox youngsters. Score:

White Sox Trounce Browns in Ninth

ST. LOUIS, April 17. (AP)—The Chicago White sox evened the series with the St. Louis Browns here today by trouncing them, 15 to 6 with a spectacular rally in the ninth, when they brought in nine runs. Confident at the end of the eighth that they had the game stowed away, 5 to 3, the Browns were dismayed to see the Sox hitting and walking to a seven run lead. Score:

Swede Swenson Has Perfect Day With Bludgeon and Pelts Pill Hard to Bring in Counters For Spudders

FORT WORTH, April 17. (AP)—Wichita Falls took the opening game of the series with Fort Worth here today, 7 to 1, in a game that was called at the end of the sixth inning on account of rain. Fort Worth was the first to score, making one tally in the first inning, Wichita Falls scored three runs in each, the second and sixth innings and the seventh tally came in the fourth. It was timely wallops from the bats of the hard slugging Wichita Falls crew that put the runs over. Swenson connected with three hits in three times at bat. Estell worked smoothly for the winners.

The Spudders set in on Hubbell in the second inning and won the game. Their run off Howard scored on an error and by a man that was placed on the bases by Hubbell.

Estell let up one run in the first inning and after that was never in serious danger of being scored upon. Despite the sprinkle of rain that was falling which is supposed to jinx a spitter Estell had great control. He issued one pass and whiffed four.

Swenson Swats 'Em

Swede Swenson came up for a perfect day with the Spudders at the bat. On his first appearance he singled to left and drove in a pair of runs. He followed this with another single that placed a man in position to score. On his third trial he again scored after his single.

After retiring the Spudders in order in the first inning, the Cats proceeded to score their one and only run. Eddie Moore lofted to Jenkins. Richardson singled to left. Sears singled to left center and Richardson went to third. Koney forced Sears at second, Mann to Turgeon, and Richardson scored. Redfern hit in front of the plate and Lapan threw him out at first base.

Lyman "Lucy" Lamb opened the big bombardment in the second with a sizzling single to left. Jenkins walked. Turgeon laid down a neat bunt down the third base line and was thrown out, third to second, the latter covering first. Swenson ripped a single to left and Lamb and Jenkins romped home. Swenson went to second on the throw in. Lapan slashed a double to left and Swenson raced home. Estell and LaFayette were both easy outs.

Count Again in Fourth

The Spudders counted again in the fourth inning. Turgeon led off with a base on balls, and went to third when Swenson singled to left. Howard took the hill at this point. Swede went to second, but Turgeon was held on third when Lapan grounded out, third to first. Estell hit to Richardson, who fumbled the ball and Turgeon scored. LaFayette and Mann grounded out, but with no advances.

The Spudders three runs in the sixth inning put on the finishing touches to the game. After Turgeon had bounded out to Howard, Swenson poled his third single of the game and stole second. At this point the game was held up, but play later resumed. Lapan grounded out second to first and Swenson went to third. Estell slapped a single to center field scoring Swenson and taking second on the throw in. LaFayette hit to Redfern and was safe when he booted the ball. Mann walked, filling the bases. Fitzgerald singled to center scoring Estell and LaFayetee. Lamb bounded out to second for the third out.

HOUSTON, April 17. (TP)—Old Bob Couchman pitched brilliantly here Sunday and the San Antonio Bears whipped the Buffs, 7 to 3, before a large crowd. In the fifth, Couchman's double started a rally that netted five runs, and slated away the contest. Roy Boyd was knocked from the hill in that round.

Hack Miller led the Buff attack with three hits, while Philbin, Bear third catcher, the leading hitter of the visitors with two singles and a double. Score:

Kinsella Leads For Court Title

He's After National Pro Net Trophy He Lost

By Universal Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 17. Walter Kinsella of New York, is in a fair way to regain his national professional court tennis title, as a result of beating Jock Soutar, of this city here today three games to one in the first half of the series.

Kinsella, representing the interfraternity club of New York, who challenged Soutar to home and home matches a week ago, won by the score of 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-0, at the Racquet club.

The New Yorker who held the national championship from 1915 to 1925, only to be dethroned by Soutar, of the Philadelphia Racquet and Tennis club, was at top form, many of the spectators who have seen him perform for many years, claim he never showed any better than today. The challenger was deadly driving into the gallery and stroked like a real champion.

Soutar, on the other hand, did not seem to be up to his usual standard. After the New Yorker took the first game with apparent ease, the title holder tried desperately to even it up in the second, but could not place his shots to advantage.

Judging by the way the former champion reeled off points in the fourth and last game to win 6-0, Soutar's title is within easy reach of the New York star.

'Rip Rap' Attracts Derby Prophets

Dark Horse Comes to Front As Derby Favorite

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 16.(AP) Whenever the Kentucky derby is discussed, and such places are many now that the historic race is four weeks away, the name of Rip Rap, one of a trio of derby candidates in the stable of Trainer Max Hirsch, is being heard more and more frequently.

The followers who have been watching his preparation at Belmont Park say that if he continues to train in the form he has shown thus far he is sure to be one of the favorites when the field goes to the post at Churchill Downs Saturday, May 14.

With the $50,000 added event only a month off, there has been considerable opportunity to test the merits of the 160 remaining eligibles, but the race remains an open one. Two of the 162 nominees, Mormask and Mormine, Benjamin Block's sons of Morvich, 1922 derby winner, are dead.

Others have gone amiss and have been turned out, but the cream of the 3-year-olds have skimmed over the turf in a manner satisfactory to their trainers and still are in the running.

Lowly Sports Win First From Dallas

DALLAS, April 17. (AP)—Turbulent weather and a turbulent crowd attended the 2 to 1 victory of Shreveport over Dallas Steers here Sunday afternoon. Hap Morse was banished from the game by Umpires Eddie Sabrie in the second for protesting a decision and the arbiter then sent the protesting crowd "to the showers" by refusing to call the game during a heavy downpour. Much Easter ralinery was soaked before he gave in.

BOSTON BRAVES WIN ANOTHER

Veteran Bill Doak Unable To Halt Beaneaters

BROOKLYN, April 17. (AP)—The Brooklyn Robins "unofficially" opened their championship home season today and before 25,000 fans suffered their fifth straight defeat to the Boston Braves 7 to 2. Bill Doak, veteran spitball pitcher attempting a come-back after two years of retirement in Florida held Boston to seven hits in seven innings. He was removed for a pinch hitter. The Robbins knocked Benton out of the box in the 6th.

Root Aviates in 7th And Pirates Win Out

CHICAGO, April 17.(AP)—Charley Root blew up in the seventh after permitting only one hit and the Pirates knocked his offerings to all corners of the lot, defeating Chicago 8 to 3 before a capacity crowd estimated at more than 45,000. The crowds overflowed into the field, making ground rules necessary. Nine hits into the overflow went for two bases. Kremer pitched a steady game but looked like a beaten man after Hack Wilson had smashed a home run in the fourth with a man on base. Manager Bush rushed pinch hitters and pinch runners into the fray during the seventh rally and succeeded in turning the tide of battle. Score:

WESTERN TEXAS OIL FIELDS

MILTON EVERETT is the editor and publisher of the Southwestern Resources, a monthly mafiazine devoted to the development and production of petroleum, natural gas, coal and minerals and precious metals of the southwest. The current number of the magazine contains a review of western Texas oil fields, written by Editor Everett after an automobile trip through the western oil fields which include Reagan, Upton, Crane, Pecos and Brewster counties and parts of Crockett, Terrell and Jeff Davis counties.

His verdict is that in the vast western country "oil is where you find it." He says the consideration of geological conditions, except in a few spots, is of little or no value, and to him it seems certain that one man has just as much right to ge oil production as another. In fact, Editor Everett says the development was started by the rankest sort of wildcatting, "that, if it had been a failure, would it have subjected the promoters to inquiry from the authorities." In his review he makes mention of the fact that oil was first discovered about two years ago in Reagan county, and the first producer was located and brought in at the town of Texon on the Orient railway by the Texon Oil and Land company. "This was a wildcatter," according to Editor Everett. He says the location first selected proved later to be in dry territory, and this is the way the story goes: "A wreck on the Arient railroad at the spot where the final location was made induced a change of location and low and behold, they hit into the producing area and brought in a fine well."

Previous to this there had been many leases of state land and a great many oil wells drilled on it without success, except in a few instances on the Gulf coast where the state owns some submerged lands. All friends of the University of Texas were made happy when oil royalties began to pour into the permanent building fund. This excerpt taken from the view may interest the makers of the university of today. "Here in Reagan county, without any factors bearing on the case except that the leases were cheap and ther was a railroad at hand to save expenses in hauling timber and tools, one of the greatest oil fields ever discovered, was brought in."

Speaking of oil towns and other towns in this western Texas field, this comment is made, "the great oil fields in Reagan, Upton and Crane counties have brought to that section many thousands of people, some thousands of which are employed by the operating oil companies, the oil well supply houses and other related industries. Many others are engaged in supplying the wants of the residents, while others are prospectors, promoters, schemers, seekers after jobs and what not."

From the town of Big Lake, 75 miles west of San Angelo, which is now the county seat of Reagan county, with a new court house which will be occupied this month, there are five oil towns along the Orient railroad—Best, Santa Rita, Texon, Rankin, the county seat of Upton county, and McCamey, "the most typical western oil town that oil looms in Texas has ever produced."

Editor Everett says the town of Big Lake may grow to double its present size, Best and Santa Rita are not much to brag about. Texon he classifies as a nice and home-like place, where "you can see the effect of a good living place in the character of the employes. There are no roughnecks or toughs at Texon." McCamey is a year old and has a population of 8000. Texon, he pronounces a model city with all modern improvements and conveniences.

Alpine in Brewster county, he elects the prettiest town in Texas, as clean as a new pin and he predicts that in the near future oil and gas wells will be brought in in the vicinity of Alpine and he expresses the hope "that when that time comes as it surely will, we hope the citizens in their rush for new wealth will not mar the beauty of the place."

Discovery in oil in Reagan and adjoining counties placed millions of dollars in royalties in the permanent fund of the state university. Wildcatters made the discovery and a bankrupt railroad, the Orient, was rescued from the sheriff and auctioneer by these wildcatters of the petroleum industry who wooed lady luck and were rewarded "when one of the greatest oil fields ever discovered was brought in."

WHAT FOSDICK SAYS

REV. DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK of New York, said in his Palm Sunday sermon that the same conditions exist today the civilized world over as when Christ was crucified. His verdict is the same impatience with Christ's definition of righteousness which led to the crucifixion exist today—an impatience which would actuate conventional clergymen, selfish business interests, politicians and the masses to display all the motives which nailed Jesus to the cross.

Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick knows the value of publicity. He knows the value of the scare headline across the page. His sermon was given prominence in the columns of the metropolitan newspapers.

Now if the same conditions exist today as existed in Jerusalem under the domination of the Romans more than 1900 years ago, it must be conceded that the world has been a very slow traveler, and the mob spirit dominates the population of the world just as it did when Pontius Pilate strutted and ruled as the Roman governor of a conquered province.

Mussolini is a Roman dictator, but he isn't a strutter. As for Jerusalem, all factions and all creeds and nationalities appear to be dwelling together as brothers under a flag of peace.

RICH ROYALTIES FOR T. U.

THERE has now been deposited to the credit of the University of Texas permanent building fund a total of $5,557,760.53 practically all of which accrued from University oil well royalties since August 1923, when the Big Lake pool discovery well was brought in in Reagan county. During the last six month the records show the royalties have averaged $200,000 per month. Texas U. in time should be one of the greatest under American skies. Never sneer at the achievement of the illustrious dead; the fathers of Texas builded more wisely than they knew or even dreamed.

Don Was Wedged Tight Under the Wreck.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

DIANA BROOKS, beautiful daughter of ROGER BROOKS, owner and publisher of the Catawba City Times and a chain of nine other newspapers, had been kidnaped and then released. Her father is engaged in a persistent fight against the corrupt administration and through the medium of the Times, redoubles his scathing attacks on politicians and the Underworld.

Brooks himself is kidnaped but in five days released. On his return he finds that his newspaper stock is being manipulated and suspects JOHN W. WALDEN, who he undertakes to fight.

Brooks' closest friend is young DONALD KEENE, his literary editor, and guardian of TEDDY FARRELL, reporter and Sob Sister. Teddy is in love with Don. He, however, believes himself in love with LOLA MANTELL, Diana's cousin.

Teddy is beginning to suspect that Don and Diana love each other without either of them being aware of it.

Don visits the Brooks home to see Lola, Diana and Teddy. On the way out he makes a self-analysis and finds himself baffled by his love affairs. He is not sure now himself of who it is he really loves.

NOW READ ON:

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Yes," she continued in the same tone of bland assurance, "you're right, Don. And being right you'll remember the interview I had with that Mrs. Grayce, the visiting club woman. Do you? Well, then, you remember she is an old maid—"

"Maiden lady, Teddy," cut in Lola correctively.

"Well, 'maiden lady' it is then," acknowledged the little speaker, and then went on: "Miss Grayce deplored th' prevailing laxity of divorce laws, especially in th' matter of granting alimony to what she called profiteer wives. She told me in th' interview that she personally knows of cases where a man is paying alimony to two wives and neither of them have children to support. What's more both women are comfortably fixed in their own right while the man has to sacrifice his own comforts to pay their alimony."

"Disgraceful, positively," said Don, emphatically, noting the lovely delicate flushes that played across his little ward's face as she spoke.

"That's what I say," continued Teddy, apparently bent on finishing her discourse. 'Anyway, Miss Grayce is combining forces with some sympathetic judges to agitate against this unfair state of things. She wants laws passed to provide against divorced wives being granted alimony except when they have children or are old or cannot support themselves."

"And what is the ultimate decision arrived at by the Brooks-Farrell-Mantell Debating society regarding that auspicious problem?" asked Don wit han air of mock gravity.

"Oh, I'm afraid we all allowed the personal viewpoint prejudice our opinions," she said. "Teddy dismissed the whole problem by saying that she wouldn't marry except for love, no matter how poor the man might be and that if it did come to divorce, she would want no man's money if she could no longer have his love and companionship! While Lola—" she turned to her cousin.

"Well, they do say," responded Lola, 'that when poverty comes in at the door, love flies out the window! As for me, well, of course, I believe marriage should be binding, but everyone's case differs, you know," she finished with a shrug.

"And your opinion, Diana?" inquired Don curiously.

"I wish I knew. First of all I must have to be in love to be able to consider the question fairly. Then, of course, my ease and luxury has perhaps already blinded me to the finer, richer things of life. I don't know. I wish I could have Teddy's ideals, her sweet, wholesome outlook on things. Some times I feel that Io w uld be able to rise nobly to face real adversity. Especially lately, I've thought a good deal about it since dad's been having these troubles."

Dinny Morrison came swinging up the lawn at this juncture and the quartette by unspoken consent dropped the discussion, which to Teddy, after Don's appearance, had become embarrassing.

Teddy extended Dinny a lukewarm greeting. His smile was eager.

"Got the flivver parked down the road. Let's drive around for an hour or so. I've got to report back to the office later. Are you on?" he asked Teddy.

As usual the young reporter in the course of the drive voiced his love to Teddy.

"Really, Teddy," he said pathetically, "I'm crazy about you; do you think you can ever learn to care for me?"

Don remained with Diana and Lola for an hour or more. When he started to leave Lola accompanied him for a short distance down the walk.

"I think I can manage to get tomorrow off," said Don, meditatively. "Let's drive out to Mt. Avery—wonderful scenery. It'll be cool, too, up in the hills. What d' you say?"

"I'd love it," replied Lola, running a hand over her hair. The sun glinting over its dark surface, made its blue-black lights shimmer.

The next day dawned full of promise. The sun was still low on the eastern horizon when Don and Lola were speeding over the first 15 miles of their journey. Mt. Avery lay 30 miles away.

They were ascending a steep hill. Lola's avid glance drank in the scene, the invigorating air whipping her face and filling her with keen delight.

"Look down there, Don!" she shouted above the roar of the engine. "Isn't that gorgeous?" She was pointing to the panorama of trees and fields over which a light haze was rising.

Don followed her pointing finger with his eyes, forgetting for an instant his duty to the car. They were rounding a curve and his momentary inattention kept him from seeing in time the huge bowlder that must have been dislocated from the incline on the other side. The bowlder lay directly in the center of the road. Don turned the wheel frantically. But it was too late. A sudden jar, a crash and the car hurtled down the side of the bluff.

Several moments later Lola pulled herself from under the seat. The car had turned turtle. Dazed, she staggered to her feet and looked about for Don. He was lying flat on the ground beneath the car, its weight holding him down, helpless. She dropped to her knees close to his head. At first she thought him dead, he lay so still. His face was plastered with mud and grime.

"Don! Oh, Don!" Lola's voice rose in a half shriek. Then calling every ounce of strength to her arms she made an effort to pull him from his imprisonment. She tried in vain to lift the weight of steel, but her puny strength was pitifully inadequate. Don was wedged tight under the wreck, his body caught just above the knees.

He groaned once and Lola bent close in an attempt to look into his eyes. She saw that he was alive. His eyes opened and he smiled wanly at the frightened face of the girl over him.

"Damn—legs—hurt," he moned feebly.

"I know, I know! But I can't lift off that awful weight. I'll have to get help. I'll go right away!"

Before leaving him, however, Lola removed the light coat she was wearing, and, folding it, placed it under Don's head for a pillow. He smiled again, a very, very pitiful smile.

In the first shock of the accident Lola had overlooked the fact that she herself was injured. Now, as she set out on her mission she was conscious of a sharp pain in one of her wrists. A purplish swelling was beginning to make its appearance and the slightest movement of the bruised arm was agony to her.

Not without some doubt as to the wisdom of her act Lola made her way toward a clump of trees through which she sighted a beaten path. It was still early in the day. No sign of life was visible anywhere. The valley lay wrapped in the tranquil quite of the summer morning. Its calm was ironic, it seemed to the girl, considering the suffering of the man lying helplessly pinned under the wreck of the heavy car back there.

To Lola it seemed that hours must have passed while she wandered through the grove hunting a way out. The first sign of human habitation greeted her anxious sight in the form of a lazy smoke curling up from the chimney of a log cabin almost hidden by thick trees.

A woman, tall and gaunt, one of those ageless mothers of the soil, responded to the girl's knock. Briefly Lola outlined to her what had happened.

"Get Toby an' hitch him to the wagon," the woman called to some one in the rear of the cabin. A boy of about 10 appeared, stared at Lola for an instant and then darted toward a small out-building behind the cabin.

The woman herself took charge of the work of hitching up the sturdy little mule the boy had led out to a light wagon. A few minutes later they were on their way to Don's rescue. They found him painfully alive. Almost incessant groans and the drawn lines of his face told of his acute suffering.

Lola experienced a thrill of admiration when the woman with one powerful lift tilted the car back sufficiently to loosen the weight from Don's legs. Lola pulled him out and then the woman and she managed to get him up the sloping bank to the road, where the mule cart had been left.

ELECTRA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, April 17.—The Lampas club of the First Christian church met with Mrs. Bennett Nance at her home, 104 West Summitt, Thursday afternoon. In the business session it was decided to have a contest for new members similar to the one which closed March 1, in which Mrs. Dannie Dale's side won and Mrs. Fred Cummings, side has to entertain them. The new captains are Mrs. Clara Kreaps and Mrs. J. A. O'Fry. Mrs. C. E. Conyers read the devotional. The social hour was spent in piecing on a quilt. Mrs. David Brasfield was a new member and Mrs. Jere B. Barnes and Mrs. C. J. Streety were guests. Mrs. J. M. Knight closed the meeting with a prayer. Dainty refreshments were served the guests. Members present were: Mesdames J. M. Ashley, J. C. Bracken, D. Dowell, E. F. Diday, Homer Griffith, Earl Hamby, J. M. Knight, Clara Kreaps, Frank LaBus, Frank Overton, C. E. Pye, R. M. Riggs, Claud Suggs, L. Smith Jr., S. D. Shaw and Tom Vandeventer.

The club will meet next Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. F. Rateliffe, 406 West Michigan Avenue with Mrs. D. L. Dowell, hostess.

Primo Bridge Club.

Mrs. J. H. Harris entertained the Primo Bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home on North Wichita street. In the games, Mrs. M. D. Goldsmith won the club prize, which was a water set and Mrs. R. D. Miller received a guest towel as the prize. A two-course luncheon was served at 1 o'clock following. Mesdames E. E. Mrkt, A. S. Hasf, M. D. Goldsmith, Gorge LeBus, B. V. Magee, W. C. Pfost, C. F. Engelking, Ed Campbell, J. R. Williams and A. T. McDannald and Mrs. H. D. Milliers and Mrs. Mitt Williams, guests.

Easter Egg Hunt.

The primary department of the First Methodist church enjoyed an Easter egg hunt, Friday afternoon, when approximately 125 children with their teachers went to the City Lake, near the old swimming pool. There were about 300 eggs hidden and much interest was shown in the hunting. Those chaperoning the party included, A. E. Harris, superintendent of the primary department and Mesdames F. M. Baker, R. M. Riggs, Bessie Billiney, Bennett, Igou and Raney.

D. O. G. Club.

The D. O. G. club of the Waggoner ward school met in regular session Friday afternoon and a very interesting program was rendered with the topics, "Canada," by Lois Williams; "By the Bar," a reading by Clorene Thrasher; a joke by Myra Lee; riddles by James Rodawalt. The following new officers were selected: President, Wanda Clonninger, and Clorene Thrashr, as secretary.

Geography Club Meets.

The Georgraphy club of the high fifth grade of the Waggoner ward school met in a very interesting meeting Friday with Lillie Miles Faulkner, the president, in charge of the meeting. The following program was given; Prayer by teacher, Miss Vera Graham; "The Birth of Christ" by Ruby Mae Ray; Easter story, by Kimbrough Wilson; "Why Easter Means Happiness," by Manard Stroud; Jesus is Crucified, by Lee James Ratcliff; "Why We Have Easter," by Herbert Fye; Easter poems, by Juanita Robson, and the club closed with an Easter melody.

Rotary Club.

The Rotary club met in regular session Friday noon at the Marriott hotel with Frank Hoomns in charge of the programs. Miss Lorine Wofford rendered several vocal selections and Misses Eleanor Merle and Peggy Dotson, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Sam Dotson, gave several piano numbers. Walter Skinner, gave a classificatio ntalk, and Attorney Dotson also took charge on the program. The program was very interesting.

ELECTRA PERSONALS

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, April 17.—Mrs. W. A. Shumate is home from the Wichita Clinic hospital where she remained for several days, following an operation.

A. C. Henson Jr., small son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Henson, is reported improved after drinking a quantity of kerosene oil. He was rushed to the Parmley-Ogden Clinic hospital, Friday.

Miss Leta Mae Bynum of this city is reported improved in the Parmley-Ogden hospital.

Miss Will Gardner was called to Wichita Falls last Sunday to attend the bedside of her sister, Mrs. W. W. Tally, of Blair, Oklahoma, who was seriously injured at 1502 7th street, Wichita Falls, in an automible accident, last Saturday night, when she suffered several broken ribs and internal injuries. Mrs. Blair is a patient in the Wichita General hospital, and latest reports from the bedside are that she will recover.

Mrs. Mrs. Florene Green is ill at her home. She is a teacher of the First Ward school.

ANTI-TYPHOID CAMPAIGN.

AUSTIN, April 17. (AP)—Corporate interests throughout Texas which have large mailing lists are being asked by Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer, to enclose leaflets concerning the anti-typhoid campaing being conducted by the state board of health, in their correspondence during April.

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK. (EFS)—Otto H. Kahn has just ordered, at a cost of $90,000, a speed yacht, in which to commute from his home at Cold Harbor Spring to his New York office. The yacht is being built by a firm in Bremen, Germany, and is equipped with three motors similar to those used in the great dirigibles like the Norge and the Los Angeles. Although 73 feet long and equipped with six staterooms, the yacht is to travel as fast as a racing boat. Mr. Kahn speaks of the yacht as a "commuting cruiser."

Col. H. H. Rogers and J. P. Morgan are among those who own these "commuting cruisers," in which they travel back and forth daily from Long Island estates to Wall street offices.

HOW TO AVOID PNEUMONIA

During the winter season pneumonia takes its annual toll in thousands of lives. This is mostly because those who are subject to attacks of this dangerous malady are those who least suspect themselves to be in such danger.

Ninety per cent of all people dying of pneumonia are over-weight and, at the same time, enervated. Most deaths occur with the over-fed, who are over-weight, and who have been neglecting to take the proper amount of physical exercise, but, at the same time have enervated themselves by mental over work.

Fat babies are the most subject to this trouble and often are found to have so little resistance that death occurs within a few hours after pneumonia is discovered.

There is very little danger of those who are under-weight contracting a serious case of pneumonia, and if this disease does develop, it responds quite easily to treatment if the body does not also have to burn up excessive fatty weight.

If you wish to avoid pneumonia keep your weight to the normal, take systematic exercise and avoid the enervation produced by overwork, late hours and indiscriminate eating.

New Cure for Pneumonia

If you do not follow the advice I have given you, and you develop an attack of pneumonia, be sure to call in a physician who uses the new treatment with diatherny.

This is an electrical treatment which can be given in the home by using a portable high-frequency apparatus. Pads are placed on the front and back of the affected area and an electric current turned on up to a certain strength. The tissues inside of the lungs are heated several degrees higher than the normal. No sensation is felt on the skin, and the heat is directed to exactly the right spot inside of the lungs. This internal heating treatment is effective in throwing out the pus and its accompanying micro-organisms, known as the pneumococcus. The metabolism in the tissues is increased, and the results from this treatment have been very successful during the last few years, according to the records of physicians who have taken up this method of treatment.

During the first few days of an attack of pneumonia, no food of any kind should be taken, but, if a slight fever still exists after five days of this fasting regime, it is a good plan to start giving the patient limited quantities of cooked non-starchy vegetables. No highly starchy foods or protein foods should be used until the fever has entirely disappeared.

The bowels must be kept clean with two or three enemas daily, and warm sponge baths should be used every two hours during the day and night.

The patient should be kept between woolen blankets and plenty of fresh air allowed to circulate around the bed. Keep the windows open, but warm the air by electric heaters. Never use a gas fire to produce heat in the sick-room.

QUESTION: A. K. J. writes: "I am a reader of your health articles daily. Would you please give me a diet for ulcerated stomach, and is there a chance to cure it? I have been sick for fifteen years, am thirty-six years old."

ANSWER: The best diet for the treatment of stomach or duodenal ulcer is a strict milk diet. Take a glass of milk every half hour or hour during the day, using no other food of any kind. This should be continued for several weeks, if necessary, to reduce all the irritation, which exists around the side of the ulcer adhesion. Before you stop the milk diet be sure to select your foods carefully so as to avoid over-acidity of the stomach, which is the real cause of the ulcers.

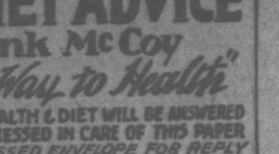
QUESTION: Ted A. writes: "Will you kindly tell me a cure for fistula? It discharges a pus and keeps filling up again. I had hemorrhoids first, and still have them very slightly, and feel very run down."

ANSWER: Take a fruit fast for a few days, using three of four enemas daily. Two or three of these enemas may be taken while sitting on the toilet, allowing the water to run in and out of the rectum. This will wash off the section where the fistula occurs, and keep it clean. After every enema, if it is possible, use the ice treatment, breaking off a small piece of ice and pressing it against the rectum, holding it in place with a heavy towel. Shape the ice into a kind of cone shape, so that you can insert it slightly inside of the rectum, allowing it to melt. A small piece of ice will melt in thirty or forty seconds. This contracts the blood vessels in the rectum, and is the best local treatment I know of for reducing hemorrhoids.

QUESTION: M. A. C. writes: "Would you please tell me how I can put on weight? I am a girl twenty-three years old and only weigh 97 pounds. The most I have weighed is 106. Am five feet seven and a half inches tall. Also please tell me why one dreams every night as I do, regardless of whether I eat or not before retiring, and why I am tired every morning, even when I retire early."

ANSWER: There is no doubt but what your weight is too little for your height, but don't stuff yourself. Look for functional causes, such as liver and gall bladder trouble. Any girl who is as thin as you are must have a tendency to extreme nervousness, and this is no doubt what keeps you awake at night. You need psychological, as well as physiological treatment. Read every book you can get hold of on the subject of psychology, auto-suggestion, psycho-analysis. Have yourself analyzed, and change your habits of thinking from bad to good.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT



The fool hath said in his heart, there Is no God. Corrupt are they, and have done abominal inIquity; there is none that doeth good.

God looked down from heaven, upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, that did seek God.

Every one of them is gone back; they are altogether become filthy; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

Have the workers of iniquity no knowledge who eat up my people as they eat bread; they have not called upon God.—Psalm 53:1-5.

BURGLARS FLEE

Electra Police On Trial of Would-Be Robber Gang

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, April 17.—The local police force is on the trail for the men who attempted to rob the Clarence Saunders Grocery store on North Waggoner street, during Friday night, which was discovered when the store was opened for business Saturday morning. A small glass panel had been carefully removed from the front door, allowing the night latch to be turned with the hands. Nothing was taken, and it is believed that the burglars were frightended away.

During the night, a resident of West Summitt was also neritered and the sum of $17 in cash was taken.

Burden of Caring For Aged Lightened By Thought of Good Service Done

Woman Who Has an Elderly Relative Dependent Upon Her Care as Well as Children of Her Own Is Overworked—But Some Day She Herself May Be Old and Helpless and Unable to Take Care of Herself.

I have a letter in my mail that glimpses a sad tragedy of everyday life.

It shows a woman, young, poor, hard-worked and very tired. Little children cling to her skirts and under her feet as she goes about her household duties. A new-born baby wails for her. She has no servants, no cook, no housemaid, no nurse.

Her brain is jaded with the struggle of trying to keep her family comfortably clothed and fed on a small income. Her body, tasked beyond its strength, aches with weariness. Her nerves are strained to the breaking point by the conditions of her life; the child-bearing she has had no opportunity to recover from; the ceaseless calls for "mother." "mother" from childish lips; the monotony of days that have in them nothing but cooking and nursing and cooking and sewing.

In addition to her husband and children there is another person in the household who is dependent upon this woman. It is an old woman, blind, penniless and helpless. She is cranky and fussy and difficult to please, as the aged often are. No tie to love or blood sweetens the service of the young woman to the elder, because the old woman is the husband's relative, not hers.

The young woman asks me in this letter how she may rid herself of this old woman, whose presence in her home is so unwelcome to her. She says that she would like to put the old woman in some sort of a charitable institution, and then she adds, with unconscious pathos, that she does not think she can do this, because all the old women's homes are so full.

It would be easy enough to scold the young woman and remind her of the duty of youth to succor age, but in reality her side of the story is scarcely less pitious than that of the old woman.

She is offered up daily and hourly as a sacrifice to duty in a way that the rich, who have plenty of servants, big houses and a fortunate disregard of the size of butchers' and grocers' bills, cannot even understand.

Say what you will of sacred obligations to the old, it is hard for weary hands to have one more to work for, for tired feet to have one more to wait upon. It is hard when there is scarcely enough bread to go around to have one more mouth to feed. It is hard to give up one's pleasure for another's necessities. It is hard when one has already all that one can bear to have another burden laid upon one.

It is not easy always to live with the old, who make the drain upon one's care and strength that a child does without a child's winsomeness and interest.

They have queer whims that task one's patience; little ways that must be deferred to; unreason that must be borne with, and a strange, grasping selfishness and jealousy that make them hard to live with at times.

So one may be permitted to sympathize with the young woman who has in her house the husband's relative whose very presence irritates her to the point of madness, and that seems an undeserved affliction.

None the less, however, it does not alter her duty to be kind to the old woman, and try to make her last days as happy and as comfortable as possible.

Hard as is her position, she should realize that of the old woman, who knows herself unwelcome, is harder still. The young woman may work-worn and weary but she is not as tired as the old woman, who sits with useless hands, her work over, feeling herself a cumberer of the ground.

The young woman may rebel at the duties of her home, but, oh! the desolation of the old woman that is homeless.

The young woman has her husband and her children. Perhaps the old woman is one of those who have never known the kiss of a husband upon her lips and the clinging of little arms about her neck, or perhaps she is one of those unfortunates who have outlived everything save sorrow, and all that she has left of husband and children are graves on a grassy hillside.

It is pity for this desolation that should make the young tender to the old, and especially toward old women, the most helpless, the most hopless, the most forlorn of all God's creatures, if they are poor and childless.

There are many such women. They are in your family, in mine and in our neighbors. They are not always agreeable to live with. Very often they are senile and unreasonable. Often, too, they are unwelcome and tax our patience to the limit. But let the young woman, who is sorely tried by the old woman's peculiarities, think for a moment of what the old woman has gone through.

Let her think of the Gethsemane that the woman has trodden who has borne children, only to see them die; who has spent her life working at household tasks that made every one about her happy and more comfortable, but that never gave her any opportunity to lay up a competency against old age, and who now in that old age is helpless and dependent, eating bread that is grudgingly given, occupying a chair that she knows all will be glad to see empty, knowing herself always in the way.

Is it not pitiful? Is it not sad? Is it not worth while to be patient, to be gentle, to be tender to the poor old woman to whom life has given such scant rewards for all sacrifices, all the labor that she has given to others?

Some day you and I, my sister, shall be old. God forbid that we should be among these helpless ones. But who knows?

Our fortune may slip away. Our husbands may die, our children may pass away or desert us, and we, too, may be thust into some other family and perhaps—for the way of Providence are strangers—another woman shall treat us as we have treated the dependent old woman upon our hearthstone.

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi Learns About Passport Pictures — By JAY V. JAY

"If you are going abroad, Mitzi, we'll have to see about the passport," says Dad. "Oh, do," replies Mitzi with her mind still upon her new helmet felt of two colors. "Well, you'll have to have a passport picture first," says Dad. What will she wear for it?

She'd like to wear this hat with the brim because it is new. The crown features a boucle effect—very smart. Dad sarcastically remarks from the next room that she should remember the picture is to be of her—not the hat. But why not, wonders Mitzi when it's so becoming?

"To the right a little more," says the photographer. Mitzi wants to argue this instruction for it won't show the high line of her hat at all, at all. The ruthless photographer does not consider the ornament at the side back, or her white flower, or the scarf neckline.

"Me, not really me?" exclaims Mitzi at the incredible results she holds in her hand. The photographer is assuring her that they are better than most. Mitzi wonders if she will be able to pass any port even in a storm. Will they let her enter France—looking like that?

Tomorrow—Coats.

Woman's Day Of Work and Play

Ladies of leisure are becoming as extinct as dodos. The latest record of their acivities comes from Anne Parish, leading young woman novelist and winner of the Harper prize two years ago with her bachelor book, "The Perennial Bachelor." She says that the girls in South America are "struggling for independence and expression."

The girls are surrounded with chaperones, Miss Anna Parrish grieves. The only independence their struggles have achieved so far is in the line of bobbed hair. Another feature of South America which she noticed on her stay there was that married people never appear together except at the opera. Then both husband and wife wear black.

Miss Parrish, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Cortiss, has just returned from a cruise around South America. It took two months and included stops at all the really important ports, so Miss Parrish got a real insight into the customs of the continent.

Taxi Drivers

Women excel men in taxicab drivers. The accident record of women taxi drivers employed by a cab company in Philadelphia is lower than that of the men drivers of the organizations.

The women claim they enjoy their jobs and have shown themselves to be careful drivers. It was about six months ago that the company began the experiment of employing women chauffeurs.

Lady Astor

Lady Astor, whose husband owns a racing stable recently played a prominent part in the defeat of an effort to take the tax off British race track gambling. When permission was asked to introduce the bill Lady Astor jumped to her feet and said—

"The betting tax has driven betting into the back streets. I hope the house will vote against leagalized betting houses such as this bill would mean. Whatever the so-called sportsmen may say in its defense, they are up against the moral consciousness of the great mass of the people."

It is Lady Astor's belief that racetracks breed an utterly worthless tribe of gamblers and thieves.

Jewish Orphans

Preparations are being made for an exhibit of handicraft work produced by the World war in eastern and central Europe. The articles exemplify the trainin gin technical arts and various skilled crafts and occupations provided through trade schools, educational workshops, and apprentice homes established by the Balkan states.

Mrs. Jonah J. Goldstein, who was in charge of organizing recreational centers under the Hoover food conservation problem during the war, heads the committee arranging the European War Orphans' exhibit.

Stage Manager

The most recent amazing example of the invasion by women of executive positions is in the realm of the theater.

Marion Puller who is Mrs. Fiske's stage manager in the revival of "Ghosts," enjoys the distinction of being the only woman in this country who occupies this very important position.

Miss Puller is a Wellesley graduate, class 1924, she studied law before she decided that her true vocation was that of stage director. The proof of her ability to serve in this capacity is given in Mrs. Fiske's expression of satisfaction with her work.

Bank Examiner

It is probable that Miss Irene Berger of Mt. Vernon, O., is the only woman bank examiner in the United States. The department of banks confesses no knowledge of any woman having been appointed to such a position elsewhere in the country. Miss Berger has been statistician of the department of banks for several years.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The undersigned, the trustees in the deed of trust executed by the Miller Petroleum company, a Delaware Corporation, dated as of July 1, 1925, duly recorded in Book 54, Page 169, Records of Deeds of Trust of Wichita County, Texas, at the request of the holders of all the outstanding bonds secured by said deed of trust, hereby give public notice that, default having been made in the payment of certain of the bonds and interest coupons secured by said deed of trust and described therein and in the performance of various of the conditions, covenants and agreements in said deed of trust contained, and all of the outstanding bonds secured by said deed of trust having been declared mature, due and payable, as provided in said deed of trust, and all requisite demands and notices having been made and given, they will offer for sale and sell at public vendue at the south front door of the County Court House in Wichita Falls, Wichita county, Texas, on Tuesday, May 3, A. D., 1927, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 3 o'clock p. m., to the highest bidder for cash, the following described property, to-wit:

The real estate and the refinery located thereon, together with all equipment, tanks, one cross-cracking unit and all machinery, in, about or connected with the said refinery, all located at Wichita Falls, Wichita county, Texas, said real estate being described as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, located in Wichita county, State of Texas, and more particularly described as follows:

Thirty (30) acres of land, being twenty-three (23) acres out of the southeast corner of the Donato Leona survey, and seven (7) acres out of the southwest corner of the S. L. B. Jasper survey, Wichita county, Texas, said tract being more particularly described by metes and bounds as follows:

Beginning at the southwest corner of said Jasper survey in the north line of the J. A. Scott survey Number Seventeen (17); thence east four hundred eighty-five (485) feet, to the west right-of-way line of the W. F. and N. W. Railway company; thence north ten degrees five minutes west with said right-of-way line, nine hundred (900) feet; thence west thirteen hundred and eighty-seven (1,387) feet; thence south eight hundred and sixty-four (864) feet, to the south line of the D. Leona survey; thence east with said south line, eleven hundred and fifty-two (1,152) feet, to the southeast corner of the D. Leona survey, and the southwest corner of the S. L. B. Jasper survey, the place of beginning.

Together with all buildings and improvements of every kind and character now upon the above described land and premises, including among other things boilers, engines, machinery, railway tracks, refining plants, stills, condensor boxes, pumps, tanks, tools, pipe, pipe lines and all other fixed equipment, and also all of the rights, members and appurtenances thereto belonging; and they are hereby giving thirty days public notice of the time, terms and place of said sale and the property to be sold.

Dated March 30, 1927.

Ousted Chihuahua Ruler Retreats To Hill Fastness

By Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—The unusual situation in the state of Chuhuahua, where Gov. Almeida has fled with a small force to the mountains is perplexing the government. The federal government is trying to ascertain whether the legislature's action in removing Gov. Almeida from office was due to the governor'c rebellious attitude as charged, or because of internal political quarrels.

CANYON, April 17.—Mrs. Sarah Jane McGeehee who has lived in the Panhandle more than 40 years and who was nearly 80 years of age, died here recently. Nine children, all of them citizens of the territory near Canyon, were at the bedside of their mother during her last hours.

Mrs. McGeehee had lived in Texas since the early 80's when her family removed from Stewart county, Georgia, to Dallas county, Texas.

CHRIST'S STORY KAY'S SUBJECT

Resurrection Vital Doctrine Of Christianity

There is one great doctrine in religion and that is the resurrection of Jesus Christ, John C. Kay said in his sermon to 440 members of the Kay Bible class, which met in the Strand theater.

"Now, there is just one great doctrine in religion," said Mr. Kay. "There is just one great question in religion. There is just one great creed in religion. St. Poul described it when he said: 'If Christ be not risen from the dead then we are, of all men, most miserable.' The resurrection is the one doctrine of the church."

Mr. Kay's sermon in full follows:

Greatest Miracle

"There is, I think, no greater miracle than the miracle of the springtime on earth. What a wonderful thing it is when the grass, crops, and plants burst forth from Mother Earth in the springtime. It is God's work. What man shall count the cost of all the fabrics torn and tossed to make one summer for His trees.

"In the springtime, in Jerusalem, at the day dawn, when the first gray silver appeared on the sky line looking to the eastward, two sad, quiet women went over to a tomb where their Master had been buried. No excitement over there, now. The strong, steady footbeat of the Roman soldier was not heard in the streets. The cry of the Pharisee seeking a victim who could suffer, as many Pharisees have sought a victim who could suffer, was silent. The scribes had ceased to talk about the law and there was only a tomb and, in that gray light, these women found that tomb empty.

Knowledge Is Limited

"Now, all human knowledge is limited. No demand is made of the psychologist, the philosopher, the physician, the chemist, the astronomer, no demand is made of him that he shall state the ultimate truth, the eternal verity, the final word. But, when it comes to religion, the world stands up the religious man and says to him, 'What is the ultimate truth? We want to know from you not only all that you know, but all that there is to know about your great science of religion,' and, he is the only man of whom such demand is made.

"Now, if you were to hire a workman, and you were to furnish the tools, you wouldn't furnish any more tools than he could use. You wouldn't furnish tools with which he was unfamiliar. It is so in religion, and it is so in every branch of knowledge. Even Job, in the old, old days, one of the first voices of which we have record, made demands upon religion that have never been made upon any other science, because he cried out: 'Oh, that I might find God.' Oh, that I might come to his seat.

Apostles Ask Truth.

"And, you will remember that the apostles, on a certain occasion, when the Saviour was talking to them about some of the most momentous things in religion, demanded the ultimate truth. They said: 'Show us the Father and it sufficeth us.' In other words, bring us right into the presence of God. That is the ultimate truth. Let us be introduced to our Great Maker. Let us see Him face to face and then it will suffice us. And, what did He say? Ah, workmen, unacquainted with your tools! Ah, seeker after knowledge limited by limitations of the human mind! He said: 'There are other things that I would tell you but you can't bear it. It is too much for you. Some time, some where, you may know it all but not now.'

"Now, isn't it a peculiar thing that the mathematician, when he comes to a great question of series, and the multitudes of problems where he gets lost in the books and rows of his equations, isn't it remarkable that he should yet claim that his science is an exact science, when everywhere it is surrounded by problems that he can't solve? Isn't it strange that the mathematician should say to the religious man: 'Open up the whole book and let us know all there is to know in heaven or on earth about your religion!' Isn't it strange that the astronomer, who, when he turns his telescope to a universe that is beyond our universe, who sees lights and influences taking place in regular order beyond his imagination, should yet say to the preacher: 'Prove it, define all of your religion. Explain it all to me.' 'Show us the Father, and it sufficeth us.'

Question of Resurrection.

"So that it comes to this great question of the resurrection.

"Now, the churches sometimes have squabbles about baptism. Not so much as they used to have, thank God. And, about whether they will call the preacher or have him sent. Not so much as formerly. And, about how they will take the communion, and in what form. Not so much as formerly. And, a hundred other things.

"Now, there is just one great doctrine in religion. There is just one great question in religion. There is just one great creed in religion. St. Paul described it when he said: 'If Christ be not risen from the dead then we are, of all men, most miserable.' The resurrection is the one doctrine of the church.

"Now, there is a principle in philosophy, and in a good many of the sciences, that when we come upon a truth, that truth is more universally believed—that is to say, a truth, the more universal it is, the more it is the truth. Applying that yardstick to the doctrine under discussion, we find that no matter what the church preaches, this, that and the other in its creed, that each and all, everywhere, teach and believe in the resurrection. So that is the question of all questions to ask a man.

Fact Simply Stated.

"Now, this matter happened in a manner that is so well known that none of the apostles, that is, none of the gospel writers, do anything more than tell about it. Did you ever thing about what is involved in that? If I have got a statement that is a little weak, if I am trying to sell you a fabric that is a little thin, I have got all kinds of arguments to bear it up, and brace it up, and back it up with this, and that and the other of arguments, to show that I am telling the truth about it. But, they didn't do that. They just said, 'on a certain morning, they were taken to the tomb and it was empty.' That is the way you tell anything, when you expect to be believed, without question. You say: 'Mr. Jones was over at my house last Thursday.' That's all you say. But, if he wasn't there, then you say: 'Mr. Jones was over at my house last Thursday and he got there about 3 o'clock, and two of my neighbors were sitting on the porch, and had a long talk with him, and he staid until after supper.'

"So, the apostles simply say that when they went to the tomb, it was empty. That is the way to tell a truth. Let me beg of you, my friend, when you go to tell the truth, don't embellish it. They told it simply, fairly, honestly.

"Now, what is involved in the resurrection? I don't know. There is no branch of knowledge which we can work at, and work about and work it, without coming to a door that is shut to the human mind. I don't know what is involved in the resurrection, but when I see God's wood here, and His flowers blooming, and His trees, and plants, and birds in it; when I see His people, among whom I have been fortunate enough to live; when I see His churches; when I see his sacrifice of His ministry; then, all I can do is to lift my hands and pray and to look up in wonder and in admiration toward a God who is mightier than I."

Majestic: "The Lovers," with Ramon Navarro and Alice Terry; comedy and Pathe News, Topics of the Day.
Olympic: "The Mysterious Rider," a Zane Grey story with Jack Holt starring; comedy news and special vaudeville attraction.
Gem: Gene Stratton Porter's "Laddie," and western picture.

An absorbing story done in the best Zane Grey manner and moving against the colorful background of the desert briefly characterizes Paramount's picturization of "The Mysterious Rider," which opened last night at the Olympic theater.

Jack Holt assumes the responsibilities of the role of hero and accuits himself in the way that has made him famous as one of the best of the western stars. He is cast as Bent Wade whose word is of some weight in the desert community in which he lives. But he finds himself ostracized when the homesteaders suspect him of appropriating for his own uses, $25,000 they had raised to buy an old Spanish land grant held by Cliff Harkness (Charles Sellon) and which deprives them of their title to their meager holdings. Wade is able to show them only a blank piece of paper which he alleges to have received from Harkness as a receipt for the money. But Harkness has double crossed. An offer of $150,000 for the land grant from Mark King (David Torrence), a capitalist representing a rich power company, proves too strong a temptation for him. King procures the grant and holds it as a whip over the heads of the homesteaders to make them vacate; the $25,000 out of which Wade has been bamboozled is safe in the pocket of Harkness, and Wade finds himself forced into outlawry to save himself from lynching at the hands of his former friends.

He is captured, and about to be lynched when his pal Lem Spooner (Tom Kennedy) forces the ranchers at the point of two guns to bring him back to town to stand a fair trial. How he escapes and goes about the country as the 'mysterious rider' warning the ranchers to hold their round 'till they can get a hearing in the courts, and how he finally saves the situation makes a story packed with the thrills that the Jack Holt fans have learned to expect.

An interesting love story is to be found here too. It starts when Holt saves the life of King's daughter (Betty Jewel) from death in a pit of quicksand notwithstanding his own danger from the band of lynchers who are pursuing him.

The story is lightened with some very fine touches of comedy. John Waters, who has directed Jack Holt in several of his previous Zane Grey pictures, principally "Born to the West," "Forlorn River," and "Man of the Forest," wielded the megaphone.

Bansanta Singh, Hindu Wrestler, Knows His Onions and Potatoes

Aeons ago, some punster vile pulled off a wisecrack about the vest reddening when it saw the salad dressing.

And, as though this were not enough to incite slaughter in the heart of any mortal, along comes Basanta Singh, Hindu wrestler, mystic and what not, who appears here Tuesday in a match, with the heart-rending statement that the ordinary, market variety of "vegetable" has feelings.

Yes, indeed, feelings akin to those of the human family. Pride, inferiority complexes, dementia praccox, the heebie-Jeebies, the gimmies and other ailments not in the dictionary.

Knows His Onions

Singh knows his onions, he does, not only his onions, but his asparagus tips, spuds and other delicacies whose idiosyncrasies are only too well known to Wichita Falls gardeners who believe in seed catalogues.

A reporter, young enough to enjoy the assignment, visited some Wichita Falls markets in quest of proof of Basanta's assention.

And, strange to relate, he found that the Hindu had spoken words of great truth. For when the reporter approached the humble onion, once the sole means of inducing high-priced movie stars to emote as they should emote, he found the onion complaining of the cold. Turning blue, in fact.

"And how!" angely remarked the reporter.

"Ah, kind sir," gah-gahed the onion. "I am strong. Should I but open my heart, you would weep."

To avoid any lacrimosal display (a good word, lacrimosal: means the weeps) the reporter sauntered, not dashed, over to a flock of lettuce.

Here's a Headlock

"We have hearts, even though you seldom get one in a restaurant," warbled the bunny fodder. "Not all mayonnaise, this life!"

The "eyes" have it, quoted the scribe, as he stepped on a potato and trampled about a million feelings, if Basanta's analysis of the "vegetable" comptex is correct. Of the reporter's feelings, when he tried to keep his balance, thereby executing several new Charleston steps, some on all fours, the least said the better.

Ah, those eyes! Those a-peeling potato eyes! from Idaho, they were —these gallant spuds. But recognition gleamed not in those eyes and the reporter wandered over to the cabbage—one-time affinity of what-is-it corn beef and particular chrony of Dinty Moore.

No Defense Offered

"They're going to marry me off to a rich person named kraut," bleated the cabbage-accent on the last syllable." No wonder I am turning sauer." (No excuse for this one).

Then up spoke the beet, with bleeding heart, and sent the reporter on his way.

"Ray-y-y-y!" he vouchsafed, with an owlish look. "Goin' to be shpickled rash M'life. Who caresh 'mout anyshing!"

Perhaps a wee bit envious, the reporter turned to the garlic.

"Singular or plural?" he asked.

"Powerful!" snorted the garlic, and the reporter fled.

That being that—ask me another!

DEMOLAYS END 3-DAY MEET

Easter Services Conclude Convention Sunday

Special Easter services held Sunday morning brough to an end the three-day convention of the Order of DeMolay of the eighth disthict which started Friday in Wichita Falls.

Approximately 300 delegates to the convention attended the services, which started at 9 p. m. and ended at noon.

Before leaving Wichita Falls the concensus of opinion of the delegates was "that a good time was had by all.

The most satisfied group of delegates was that from San Angelo, which won the DeMolay cup for having the largest attendance at the convention.

The main day of the convention was Saturday when the business of the convention was transacted and the degrees of the order conferred. Saturday's activities for the delegates was brought to a close by a banquet at the junior college, followed by a dance at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club.

The principal addresses at the banquet were made by Louis Lower, of Kansas City, the first DeMolay member to take the degree, and by William A. Browning, of Dallas, representing Sam Cochran, of Dallas, who is deputy supervisor of the order in Texas.

Texan Pleads For Slayers

Charles Cline Takes Part In Demonstration

NEW YORK, April 17. (AP) — Three hours and a half of speaking from four platforms before crowds which swelled at one time to 7500 persons ended late today in a burst of red flags, the sporting of several hundred red hats and the "passing" by acclamation of a resolution favoring a general local strike in further protest against the scheduled execution in Massachusetts of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomo Vanzetti.

The meeting, aranged by the Sacco-Vanzetti committee of New York, ended with no "outbreaks, or violence" to necessitate stringent action from 200 policemen, mounted, or on foot, and occupying armored motorcycles, who had been ordered to patrol Union square.

After Union square meeting, however, police reserves were called out to rescue a patrolman from a mob of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers who organized an impromptu parade on Second avenue. The patrolman, who endeavored to disperse the crowd, was knocked down and trampled. Reserves swinging night sticks from department automobiles, rescued him and dispersed the mob.

There was a slight disturbance when a placard bearing an inscription demanding the removal of Judge Thayer was confiscated by a uniformed policeman.

Navy To Build New Cruisers

Contract Awarded Saturday On Pair of Projects

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 17. — Contracts for construction of the cruiser Salt Lake City and for engines and machinery for the cruiser Pensacola were awarded to the American Brown Bovari Electric corporation of Camden, N. J., by the navy department today.

Contracts for this work were awarded originally to the William Cramp and Sons Ship and Engine Building company of Philadelphia, but were cancelled and declared forfeited when the company was unable to complete the work.

The keel of the Salt Lake City has not been laid and materials will be moved from Philadelphia to the plant of the Brown Bovari corporation at Camden. The New Jersey company bid $10,536,350 for the work. The difference between the original contract price and the $433,691 already paid the Cramp organization.

State Experiment Station At Iowa Park Suffers

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, April 17.—Fire completely destroyed the barn at the state experiment farm two and one-half miles southwest of here Saturday night.

The building was valued at $3,000 and the contents at $2,000, none of which was saved, according to reports here. Origin of the blaze which started about 9:30 o'clock is unknown. The Iowa Park fire department prevented the blaze from spreading to other buildings.

One person was slightly injured as a result of the fire. Pete Jones, son of Hardy Jones was cut about his face when the car in which he was riding with his father turned over while coming to Iowa Park to give the report of the fire. Pete Jones was treated by a local physician who stated that his condition was not serious.

MOODY PLANS SESSION SOON

Governor May Call Solons Together May 2

AUSTIN, April 17. (AP)—With the date of the special legislative session dependent upon its progress, the house appropriations committee conducting hearings on the state biennial budget next week will wade into a mass of figures representing recommended needs of the state's main educational institutions and eleemosynary institutions.

Gov. Dan Moody has indicated that he may call the special session May 2, if the committee and the senate committee get their affairs in good shape early enough.

Some time ago the governor said he would call the session for either May 2 or May 9. Some think two special sessions of 30 days each will be required to complete work prospects.

The school heads also urged that board of control recommendations for their several building programs already cut, be not trimmed further.

The senate finance committee, which completed its work at Marlin yesterday, will start Sunday on a three-day trip of inspection of West Texas institutions.

16 Men, Two Women, 550 Bottles Beer Taken Into Custody After Raids Here

Sixteen men and two women are in the county jail and 550 bottles of beer in the custody of the constable's office as a result of four raids made Sunday by a squad of deputies. Charges against the men will probably be filed Monday. Deputy constables in the raiding party were: W. B. Wilson, E. F. Ellis and S. E. Sauls.

As the result of a raid made on a Third street residence, situated near the Wichita river, Morgan and his men took into custody one woman and three men when 60 full bottles of beer and 200 empty beer bottles were found on the premises.

Tipped off to the fact that a large dice game was in progress in a house on the Henrietta road, near Wichita Falls, the constable and deputies conducted a raid and not only discovered six negroes "shooting craps," but also 60 bottles of beer. The negroes were taken into custody.

Five men were arrested as a result of a raid on a residence situated in the 1400 block on Tenth street. The officers discovered 250 bottles of beer on the premises.

One woman and three men were taken into custody during the raid made on a house on the Holliday road, near Wichita Falls, when the officers discovered 225 bottles on the premises.

All of the raids were made on places alleged to have been selling beer.

BILL TO SELL T. U. OIL LAND BEING DRAWN

$60,000,000 Value Set Upon University's Property By Legislator

LAND IN 17 COUNTIES

Rep. Boggs of San Angelo Wants Sale Funds To Operate School

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 23.—His proposed constitutional amendment proposing imposition of a tax on 2,250,000 acres of University of Texas lands in West Texas defeated in the regular session of the 40th legislature, Rep. J. Hershel Boggs of San Angelo, now plans to compel the sale of these lands.

A bill is now being prepared by Boggs to be introduced at the special session in May, which will require the University of Texas to place these lands on the market and dispose of them to the highest bidder.

Sale Was Intended

When the present state constitution was adopted in 1876, Boggs said, the university was donated these 2,500,000 acres of land situated in 17 West Texas counties on condition that these lands should be sold.

"This was 51 years ago," said Boggs, "and for some reason the university authorities have failed to carry out the provisions of the constitution. I believe that the university has forfeited its right to these lands because of its failure to carry out the provisions of the constitution.

"I do not desire to insist that those lands be forfeited, unless the people demand it, but I do intend to insist that these lands shall be sold as demanded by the constitution of Texas, and now is the time to sell, before the oil and other minerals is taken from under the soil."

Land Worth $60,000,000

It is estimated that if these lands are sold at the present time, they will yield between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 and this money placed in the permanent university fund, with the interest therefrom, would easily provide sufficient funds for support and maintenance of the university. It would not be necessary for the state to appropriate nearly $5,000,000 biennially out of the general reveune of the state for the school, it was pointed out.

COLLINS KILLED

Car's Collision With Telephone Pole Proves Fatal

DALLAS, April 23. (AP)—C. E. Collins, 45, was killed when his automobile hit a telephone pole on the Kaufman road late Friday night. His son-in-law, Jonnie Allen, 22, was hurt slightly. The impact broke the pole at the ground and Collins was found dead, thrown from the car, but still grasping the steering wheel tightly, which had been broken from the automobile.

Wagner is being held pending examining trial.

Discord Rifts Harmony Of Singers in Aimee's Angelus Temple

LOS ANGELES, April 23—As the result of a dispute between Aimee Semple McPherson, widely known evangelist, and Gladwyn Nichols, musical director of Angeles temple, the band and choir, totaling 125, persons, was "on strike" today.

The choir members, 85 in all, walked out last night with the band of 40 pieces. Mrs. McPherson says that Nichols was disloyal to her and had "secret ambitions." She added that a new musical organization is being rapidly formed. Nichols claims that his resignation was not forced and said that "Mrs. McPherson had been misinformed."

County Commissioners To Probe "Liquor Orgies"

Investigation of Grand Jury Charges Planned At Meeting of Officials Monday

Investigation of alleged "liquor orgies" conducted by certain law enforcement officers in Wichita county will be started Monday by the county commissioners court, E. W. Nicholson, county judge, said Saturday.

The investigation is the outgrowth of the county grand jury report returned Friday in which it was set out that the grand jurors had been informed that the officials had been imbibing of a quantity of liquor.

Power to Remove Men

The commissioners court has the power to remove the officials from office if the charges prove to have foundation, and, according to Judge Nicholson, the commissioners will immediately remove the accused officers if it is ascertained that they have conducted liquor orgies.

As state law provides that officials can be charged with a misdemeanor for drinking intoxicating beverages. The penalty carries a fine and jail sentence.

Studies Report

A recommendation by the grand jury that the court house be cleaned will be taken up by the commissioners court, which will also investigate the statement made by the grand jurors that certain officials in the court house are not cooperating in the administration of the county government.

CHAMPION GOOSE

Mary Ann, 22 Years Old, Still Lays Eggs In Youthful Style

By Universal Service.

SANTA ROSA, Calif., April 23—Mary Ann McCarthy, 22-year-old goose owned by D. V. McCarthy, rancher, established a world record today when she laid her 23rd egg since March 15. According to her owner she is the most prolific as well as the luckiest bird in seven states. Just 22 years ago, McCarthy said, he was living in Emerville where the bird was being fattened for Thanksgiving dinner. He bought it and has since regarded it as a member of the family. Mary Ann has been hit twice by automobiles on the highway here but has survived these and other vicissitudes.

STATE FACES CASH DEFICIT

Ad Valorem Tax May Be Raised to Limit

AUSTIN, April 23. (AP)—Prospects for a state deficit of $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 and possibilities that the advalorem tax rate may be forced up the 35 cent maximum, are imposing themselves upon the cognizance of public appropriation committeemen here mapping out the money policy of the fortieth legislature's special session called for May 9.

Committeemen are daily informing interests seeking appropriations that the state seemed due to "go into the red" at least $2,500,000 before the end of the fiscal year, August 31.

The present disparity between total appropriations recommended and total expectant revenue for the next two years may lead to a final deficit of $5,000,000 unless the legislature provides new revenue measures at the special session. That contingency is based on the existing 23 cent advalorem tax rate.

An unwelcome way out for the committeemen would be to let the tax rate go up to the maximum of 35 cents again. Chairman Claude Teel of the house committee today reiterated his declaration, however, that a rate increase will be fought to the last ditch through reduction of appropriations and efforts to raise new revenues.

The board of control has recommended appropriations around $39,000,000 for the biennium based on revenue estimates now shrunken because of an unforseen tax collection situation in which 20 to 30 per cent of the state's general revenue the state can hope to collect under the 23 cent rate for the next year is about $33,000,000.

The house committee is frowning on all requisites for salary raises and building program in state educational institutions, seeing in them the less urgent needs.

Last week, in cognizance of the revenue situation, the committee informed interest after appropriation that the tobacco tax will be resubmitted to the special session.

Wichita County Asked For $1,500 To Aid Flood Stricken Sections

A campaign to raise $1,500 in Wichita county for the relief of victims of the Mississippi river flood was started Saturday by the Wichita county chapter of the American Red Cross.

A campaign committee, consisting of Mayor R. E. Shepherd, Luther Hoffman and Tarlton Morrow, was appointed by W. O. Beeman, chairman of the Wichita county chapter.

The campaign was started by Mr. Beeman immediately after he received a telegram from William M. Baxter Jr., St. Louis, vice chairman of the American Red Cross, in which it was set out that approximately 75,000 persons were homeless and that $5,000,000 would be needed by the Red Cross to relieve the suffering.

"Whereas, thousands of people are suffering as a result of the Mississippi river flood and are in dire need of assistance;

"I believe that it is the duty of every citizen of Wichita Falls to contribute as much money to the American Red Cross as they can afford to give.

"I also request all churches, lodges, clubs, service clubs and civic organizations in Wichita Falls to give assistance in this work of humanity."

Contributions will be received by N. M. Clifford, treasurer of the Wichita chapter of the American Red Cross, at the Security National Bank.

SUES HIS FIANCEE

Jilted Suitor Asks Court To Make Ex-Sweetie Return His Ring

By Universal Service.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 23.—R. M. Bryant, assistant engineer of the Southern Pacific railroad, today filed a suit against Mrs. C. M. Schwalbe, also known as Christine M. Swallow, to recover $2500 personal property and valuable jewelry. He alleged in the suit that they had been engaged for some time and that on her promises to marry him he gave her the personal property and jewelry. According to his statements in the suit he learned April 1 that she did not intend to carry out her promises to marry him and broke the engagement. The jewelry included a diamond lavalliere, a diamond bracelet and a diamond engagement ring.

$1,053,550 FOR HOSPITAL HERE

Insane Asylum Appropriation Set By Board

AUSTIN, April 23.(AP)—Indications that the biennial budget of state eleemosynary institutions will suffer comparatively little of the prospective slashing in anticipation of limited state revenue were seen today as the house appropriations committee scrutinized recommendations totalling more than $4,300,000 for six of the 17 institutions.

On the other hand, the committee, which is mapping out the appropriation policy of the impending special session of the legislature looked favorably on the house eleemosynary subcommittee's recommendation of an additional $22,000 to improve inadequate dining room and kitchen facilities at the San Antonio hospital for insane.

Feeding conditions verging on the primitive at the San Antonio institution were reported by the house committee. Because of inadequate funds the hospital at San Antonio dumps the entire meals of inmates into one plate for each from large containers, the subcommittee found on its inspection tour of the state.

Crowded conditions were found in most all the eleemosynary institutions visited by the subcommittee, C. T. Shoats, chairman, said, explaining that many have urgent needs that would be hurt by any reduction in recommended appropriations.

The board of control already has cut the appropriations sought from more than $11,000,000 to about $9,800,000.

Institutions whose claims were heard today and the amount recommended by the board of control for each the next biennium, follow: Wichita Falls State hospital $1,053,550, Juvenile Training school, Gatesville, $523,100; Terrell State hospital, $1,048,260; San Antonio State hospital, $1,154,200; Waco Home for Dependent and Neglected Children, $322,380; Gainesville Girls Training school, $210,040.

Buyers of Tickets Are Liable To Prosecution As Violators

DALLAS, April 23. (AP)—A federal grand jury investigation of reports of transportation and sale of baseball lottery tickets in Dallas will be started May 2, federal officials said today. Department of justice men have been working on reports for several weeks it was said, and one arrest has been made. It is reported that large numbers of baseball lottery tickets have been shipped to Dallas from St. Louis, Kansas City and New Orleans.

When announcing the grand jury investigation officials said that persons purchasing the tickets as well as those selling them are liable to prosecution.

FOUND DEAD

Death Strikes Electra Woman Saturday; Son Sought

ELECTRA, April 23.—Mrs. T. L. Hughes, 43, was found dead in bed this morning at 8:40 o'clock at the family home here. She had been slightly ill. Death was due to a heart attack, attending physicians said.

Mrs. Hughes was the wife of T. L. Hughes, driller for the Phillips Oil company here. She was born in White county, Ark., in 1883 and came to Texas in 1895. The family came to Electra about five years ago.

Mrs. Hughes is survived by her husband and four children, two daughters, Misses Florence and Clara Hughes, local high school students; two sons, Howard Hughes of Guthrie, Okla., and Ernest Hugres. Efforts were being made tonight to locate Ernest Hughes, who left several days ago for the Amarillo oil fields. Services have tentatively been set for Monday afternoon, with the Rev H. E. Anderson of the Methodist church officiating.

"I'm Happy" Says Mother of Five Tots Held As Slayer of Pretty Texas Girl

Woman Says She Shot Girl When Maid Refused To Return Husband's Love Letters

CENTER, Texas, April 23. (AP)—Mrs. Ludie May, 45, mother of five children, was in jail here Saturday, denied bond on the charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting at Joaquin, Texas, last night of Miss Zola Mae Gibson, 22, whom Mrs. May charged with breaking up her home. Miss Gibson died at a hospital here early Saturday.

HUSBAND COMMITTED TO INSANE ASYLEM.

JOAQUIN, April 23. (AP)—Mrs. Ludie May had only one comment to make after she had shot and fatally wounded Zola Gibson at the home of A. O. Whidden, Miss Gibson's brother-in-law at Crystal lake one mile from here Friday night.

"I am happier than I have been for months," she said and a little later surrendered to Justice of the Peace James Childress who released her on bond. She was re-arrested when word came that Miss Gibson had died and was taken to Center.

The story of the shooting as gleaned from eye witnesses indicated that Mrs. May armed with a .38 caliber pistol and accompanied by her two sons, 15 and 16 years old left her home here Friday night intent upon obtaining letters which she told a neighbor her husband had written to Miss Gibson.

She found Miss Gibson, her brother, 15, and sister, 10, alone in the Whidden home. She ordered her sons to lock the doors and demanded that Miss Gibson hand over the letters.

"I don't know what you mean —letters from whom?" the girl said according to witnesses.

"Letters my husband wrote to you," Mrs. May rejoined. The girl declared she had no letters and pleaded with Mrs. May "not to be angry with me," according to Miss Gibson's brother. A shot followed and Miss Gibson fell with a bullet through her abdomen.

Mrs. May's husband, Eugene May, was committed to an asylum for the insane at Rusk two months ago. He formerly was a justice of the peace here.

10,000 Lives Endangered As Mississippi Levees Crumble Under Pressure

Herbert Hoover, of A. E. F. Relief Work Fame, Named Generalissimo of Flood Rescue Work By President Coolidge

By Universal Service.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 23.—The battle being waged against floods in the lower Mississippi valley tonight became a race against death. The lives of between 5000 and 10,000 people are endangered by the onrushing water of the Mississippi and other thousands are facing death from hunger apd exposure.

Memphis is expected to become the center of all relief work, from Cairo to New Orleans.

It was announced tonight that Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, would arrive here Monday to take charge of relief work. Mr. Hoover was generalissimo of relief for the allies in the World war and later food administrator. He is expected to build up a relief organization under the Red Cross for the Mississippi valley that will be comparable with that which functioned in war-torn Europe.

Hundreds Are Rescued

Greenville, Miss., was the center of the disaster zone today. Steamboats dropped along the crumbling levees picking up hundreds of refugees. They were taken to Memphis, Vicksburg and Helena.

Hundreds of refugees are still marooned in buildings that stand above the water in Greenville. There were approximately 10,000 refugees concentrated at that place in addition to the town's 12,000 population. They are without fresh water, heat and light. Steamboats are moving the population to Vicksburg as rapidly as possible.

The steamer Cincinnati on which Mayor William Hale Thompson and a party of river improvement advocates are making a trip to New Orleans picked up several hundred refugees from Greenville and brought them to Vicksburg. Vicksburg is surrounded by water but the city is built on a high bluff and will not be flooded.

Two hundred refugees were removed from the Pythian building in Greenville just before it collapsed today.

Crest Nears at Memphis

Memphis was ready tonight to meet the crest of the flood which is due here during the night or tomorrow. The river rose slowly today. It is expected to come to a stand here tomorrow or Monday and then recede very slowly.

Levees below Greenville were reported holding tonight. Breaks in the levees just above Greenville and at New Madrid, Mo., several days ago tended to reduce the amount of water flowing down the main channel of the Mississippi. Millions of cubic feet of water have spread out over the lowlands of the St. Francis valley and the Yazoo delta. This will eventually find its way back into the Mississippi but the movement is slowed up and New Orleans and cities to the south will benefit.

The known dead reached 61 today with reports of three drowning near Cairo. The flood situation at Cairo was slightly improved. The water came to a stand twenty-four hours ago at that point and levees are holding.

Scores Feared Lost.

It is feared scores of lives have been lost of which no record has been made.

Railroads serving important Mississippi river cities have been forced to place an embargo on freight. Only most urgent supplies are being sent through over water covered tracks. Steamboats will carry supplies to refugee camps where rail communication has been lost. Forrest City, Ark., in the heart of the St. Francis valley flood, reported today that refugees were still coming in there.

Typhoid vaccine was being administered in all camps and physicians were guarding against an outbreak of pneumonia. The sun shone today over most of the valley. This was favorable, although the temperature was low.

Millions of dollars will be required for relief. There are now between 80,000 and 100,000 people homeless or clinging to homes surrounded by water. It will be three weeks or more before the water recedes to where homes can be reoccupied. Thousands have been made destitute and will require assistance from relief agencies for at least six months.

Cotton Crop Ruined.

Many thousands of acres of farm land will not be planted. The season will be too late for cotton, the "money crop" before the water recedes.

From Cairo to Vicksburg the scene is one of desolation. Only at Memphis, Vicksburg and Natchez are streets above flood water. Steamboats are plying over treetops and houses are floating down river. For a distance of three hundred miles up and down the river from Memphis is nothing but a sea of water. Levee embankments that in normal times stand thirty or forty feet above the surrounding lowlands are either entirely washed away or only a few inches of their crown above the water.

Outlook Very Dark.

Below Vicksburg the levees are still functioning. The crest of the flood has not reached that district. It will not be at Vicksburg before next week.

The great test for the levees from Vicksburg to New Orleans will then begin. The outlook is very dark. Warnings are being given to all peoples in the lowlands to move. They are being told the water will exceed all previous high records and that places that afford havens of refuge in

MENAGERIE RAIDED

Thieves Take Away $400 Plus Owner's Goat In Robbery

By Universal Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 23.—Cracksmen braved a whole menagerie at Madrone, 10 miles south of here last night when they blew open the safe of the H. Buchta General store. In a cage just outside the door were an elk, a deer, several racoons, a couple of eagles and some coyotes. The safe blowers took $400 in cash and about $700 in merchandise. They left all the inhabitants of the menagerie with the possible exception of Buchta's goat which was missing with the $400 early today.

TAX BUREAU IN WICHITA FALLS

State Comptroller Announces Plan to Collect Taxes

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, April 23.—Declaring there was in excess of $20,000,000 in taxes of various kinds now due the state, Sam Houston Terrell, state comptroller, today urged the house and senate appropriation committees for an appropriation of $85,000 a year for the next biennium, to launch a state-wide drive for collection of these Taxes.

Should the legislature authorize this appropriation, Comptroller Terrell said he proposes to apportion the state into six tax collection districts, with a supervisor in charge with two or three assistants in each district. These officials will co-operate with county officials in collecting taxes that are now delinquent.

Headquarters will be maintained at Houston, San Antonio, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso and either Amarillo or Wichita Falls.

"In view of the fact that millions of dollars of taxes on real estate, and on personal property becomes delinquent each year," said Terrell, "and no attention is especially given to bringing about the collection of the same, convinces me that it is high time that the state of Texas put some form of machinery in motion that will ultimately result in curing this serious defect in our system of taxation."

Postal Delivery Service Extended To Eight New Wichita Blocks

Free postal delivery on eight additional blocks in Wichita Falls will start Monday, O. P. Maricle, postmaster, announced Saturday.

The block are: 2100 on Avenue J; 2200 on Seventh; 600 on Sunset drive; 2200 on Bullington; 2300, 2300 and 2400 on Talunar lane and 500 on Filmore.

A request that free postal delivery be extended to these blocks was recently forwarded to the postmaster general in Washington, by Mr. Maricle.

No additions to the present postal carrier force will be needed for the delivery of mail on the eight blocks, Mr. Maricle said.

"Our present staff," he said, "is sufficient to give the proper service on the new blocks."

There are 29 postal carriers in Wichita Falls, three of them devoting their entire time to delivering parcel post mail.

It is anticipated that postal delivery on several more blocks in Wichita Falls will be inaugurated within the near future, Mr. Maricle asserted.

"The increasing growth of Wichita Falls necessitates the increase in free postal delivery service," Mr. Maricle said. "The service is always supplied when in the opinion of the postoffice officials it is needed."

LAWYER WINS WORD BATTLE

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Clarence Darrow was cheered and Wayne B. Wheeler jeered tonight when they debated prohibition in Carnegie hall. The jeers didn't start until Wheeler started on his refutation. He hardly finished a sentence, before hissing catcalls and boos were hurled at him, chiefly from the two galleries, but many times from the orchestra.

Darrow was the popular man of the evening. Of that there was no doubt. The audience—which filled the large hall comfortably—was attentative, seemed to grasp the logic of the debate, and was wildly enthusiastic — for Darrow and for the wets.

Mayor Walker was the honorary chairman of the evening. He came late and left early. He was cheered almost as much as Darrow and he made a welcoming speech which was quite as wet as Darrow's side of the debate.

Wheeler Applauded.

Wheeler smiled at Darrow, applauded him and even laughed at some of his sallies, which at times were bitterly satarical. But Wheeler never won a moment with the audience as a whole. The anti-saloon league section applauded with precision.

Darrow opened the debate. A good natured, healthy man who spoke with hands in his pockets and hunched shoulders, he was the physical opposite of his opponent.

"Prohibition," said Darrow "is the law of bigots. We are free men. Who shall tell us what we shall eat or drink?"

"Prohibition goes back to the same crowd that burned witches. They are the group of people who want to settle everything. They want to run everybody else.

Machine Run World.

"They would have it a machine run world, and if they had their way it would be a drab, cruel tyranical world. They are the kind who would stick pins into babies as they wouldn't laugh on Sundays."

"They are the class of people that think to smile is a sin and that all joy is wicked.

"You know that Sunday laws, laws against people enjoying themselves, are broken everywhere. They are unjust laws and unpopular because the are unjust. They wouldn't let you have a drink providing you couldn't get a drink." (Laughter).

"Prohibition hasn't been successful. I have not noticed any draught, and never expect to."

"Prohibition was put over by bull-dozing and scheming. It is not popular with the majority. It is a fact that six-million out of one hundred and ten million burdened the nation with prohibition. Every part of the constitution was broken so that the eighteenth amendment could be enforced.

"The prohibitionists stand like a stone wall for poison liquor. You —all of us—have to be poisoned, if they say so; punished without a trial by jury.

Land of Spies.

"The United States has become a land of spies and informers. Even the prohibition agents only stay honest for a month. Prohibition has never been enforced and it never will be. (Cheers.)

"Who is there in the United States who doesn't drink or want to? (Laughs.)

"I notice there is too much manhood for juries to send men to jail for doing what all of them do.

"Even judges refuse to put men in prison for doing what they habitually do. (Great applause.)

The first part of Wheeler's debate was read by F. Scott McBride, whom Darrow referred to later as a pinch-hitter. It was a citation of facts and statistics, which caused the audience to boo and titter. It was cold argument, precise, but lacking in the warmth and human appeals particularly in a wet city, which warmed the crowd to Darrow.

Appeal for Law.

Wheeler appealed to the principle that as prohibition was a law, every citizen had to conscientiously uphold it. That public welfare came before individual selfishness.

Boos from the audience greeted this.

He cited the betterment of industrial conditions, gave the history of the saloons; said that the drys had earnestly endeavored to regulate John Barleycorn before they killed him; that his death was necessary to health and welfare of the nation. (Laughter and hisses.)

He made his great point by saying—when the hisses drowned his voice—that New York was wet and that Darrow was successful because he said only what they wanted to hear, but that the nation was dry, and that the great Middlewest would prove it. Loud hisses and boos again came from gallery and orchestra.

Darrow Fires Back.

Wheeler ended the first period of his debate by challenging Darrow to suggest something in prohibition's place, to which the noted lawyer later replied "almost anything."

He turned to Wheeler and thundered:

"Do you dare tell me that other laws are not violated that are unpopular. Can you dare say that the negro gets his constitutional rights, down South or even in the northern states?"

Mother of Five Kills Texas Girl

satisfactory clues in the killing of Mrs. Ed. S. Goerner, 47, although her husband, 52, is formerly charged with murder and awaiting preliminary hearing Monday.

Mrs. Goerner, killed by a charge of buckshot, late Friday, was found dead on the floor of her home at Cottletown by her 17-year-old son, Colt Goerner. The house had been ransacked and $20 in two purses was missing.

The boy told officers that he summoned his father from a corn field about three-quarters of a mile away. In consideration of that and the fact that Goerner repeatedly protests innocence and claims to have heard no shot, officers are pushing a continued investigation.

Undertakers said Mrs. Goerner had been dead probably six hours. Officers said they found one of the purses from which the money was taken, in the attic.

FARMER HIDES IN WELL AFTER SLAYING MAN

TEMPLE, April 23.(AP)—Frank Beran, 45, farmer of two miles west of Grove, Coryell county, was in jail at Gatesville today following the death of his brother-in-law, Herman Hennusch and serious injury of his wife late Friday.

Mrs. Beran was brought to a hospital here Saturday and her death was expected. Beran was to have been taken to Austin Friday to enter a hospital for the insane but is said to have requested to remain home one day longer than first planned.

15 BUSINESS MEN SIGN SAN ANGELO MAN'S BOND

SAN ANGELO, April 23.(AP)—J. W. Lammey, San Angelo, charged with murder in connection with the killing of Claude Manies Friday was bound over to the grand jury under $15,000 bond here Saturday. Fifteen business men signed as sureties.

DEATH CLAIMS SISTER.

James Sullivan, fireman at station No. 4, received a message Saturday night carrying the news that his sister, Mrs. Lynn Hanka, had died at her home in Louisville, Ky., at 4:10 p. m. Mr. Sullivan was to leave for Louisville at 3:35 o'clock Sunday morning.

Shoes Squeal, Jail Looms

DETROIT.—Abe Hallmeyer telephoned excitedly to the police the other evening that his shoe store had been held up and robbed. A few minutes later Detective Sergeant Walker Storch stopped an automobile carrying Chester Thuta and Alfred Grabale in the vicinity of the Hallmeyer store. Thuta and Grabale were both wearing bright shining new shoes, stamped with the Hallmeyer trademark. They had several boxes of shoes in the back of the car. "The shoes are the best witnesses against you," said Storch. Hallmeyer said, "You bet you my life, the bums!"

PAPAL NUNCIO ROUSES MEXICO

Mexican Official Puts Blame On Catholic Agent

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Arturo M. Elias, consul-general of Mexico in the United States issued a propaganda message today virtually attacking the papal delegate in this country, Pietro Fumasoni-Boindi.

Elias' statement was inspired by a comment attributed to Boindi, in which he said that the Catholic church in Mexico hastened to disavow any responsibility for the recent massacre there of women and children. The victims were locked in railroad coaches which were soaked with oil. Those who tried to escape were shot to death by their murderers who cried "long live Christ the king."

World Is Shocked.

"This terrible crime has shocked the entire world," says Elias in his official statement. "It is therefore not strange that the representative of the Pope who instructed the clergy of Mexico not to comply with the provisions of the law which the clergy of other sects hastened to obey, should disavow any responsibility on the part of the church hierarchy for this horrible butchery.

"Not content, however, with this disavowal the papal delegate abuses President Calles through the press of a friendly nation. He tells the United States that President Calles has placed the responsibility on the Mexican Catholic church for this crime because of his bitter hatred of the church.

Priests Quit Churches.

"It is a matter of record that all Catholic priests were ordered to walk out of their churches. Their people were left without spiritual ministrations. President Calles kept the churches open eight months in charge of civilian authorities.

"The abuse which the papal delegate now seeks to pour on President Calles is an attempt to turn the peoples' eyes from the horrible slaughter in the name of religion and it will not succeed. The responsibility for the crime will be placed where it belongs and the sinister forces behind it will be held up to the execration of mankind."

MEXICAN PRELATES DENY CALLES EXPLANATION

SAN ANTONIO, April 23. (AP)—Six Mexican prelates, expelled from the country at Laredo today, declared on their arrival here tonight that their expulsion had come only after they had informed the Mexican secretary of the interior that they intended to stand up for their rights, peacefully if possible, but with arms if necessary.

The party, headed by the venerable Archbishop Mora Del Rio, 89 years old, and Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores reached San Antonio by automobile late tonight and were immediately taken to the home of Archbishop Arthur J. Drossaerls of San Antonio.

DEPORTATION OF PRELATES CALLED SAFETY MOVE

By Universal Service.

Archbishop Vera of Puebla, Bishop Manrique of Huejutla, Bishop Echeveria of Saltillo, and Bishop Uranga of Cuernavaca, were placed aboard a train last night, bound for Laredo.

Government officials explained the wholesale expulsions with the charge all prélates with being implicated in the rebel movement. It is stated that the prelates were given the option of remaining in the country and standing trial, or being expelled. They chose the latter alternative when made acquainted with the conclusive nature of the proofs in the possession of the government.

Conciliation Abandoned

The stern policy of the government is accepted here as an indication that there is no further hope of conciliation with the clergy, which is staking everything on its efforts to overthrow the government.

The officials claim, therefore, that they have decided to strike at the root of the trouble by expelling all the church dignataries alleged to be fomenting unrest.

The newspapers here are referring to the deportation of the prelates in the briefest manner, a couple of paragraphs being sufficient to cover the bare statement.

Several labor organizations, at a meeting last night, adopted a resolution requesting the government to place three or four priests on each train, advising the rebel elements that such a measure had been taken.

Labor Expresses Horror

The labor leaders expressed horror at the Guadalajara-Mexico City express train massacre, and adopted the resolution, believing that if the rebels were advised that the priests were occupying posts of danger on each train, they would refrain from incidents of a similar character.

One ton of arsenic for the spraying of trees between the sidewalks and curbs in Wichita Falls was ordered Saturday by A. W. King, park and sanitary commissioner.

The arsenic, which will arrive in Wichita Falls Tuesday, will be sprayed on the trees for the purpose of killing insetcts. The spraying will be under the supervision of C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

RUTH SNYDER TO PLAN PLEA

Court Grants Permit For Defense Meeting

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder will come out of the jail in Long Island City tomorrow afternoon and pass over the "bridge of sighs" connecting the jail with the court room.

Guarded on either side, she will pass along the corridors and into the chambers behind the justice seat from which her life will be judged and there face her attorneys. The two guards will remain with her during the conference that is to follow. Otherwise she will be completely shielded from the eyes of the curious.

A special court order this afternoon was required to obtain for the woman accused of the murder of her husband this respite from the rigors of jail life in which to talk at leisure with attorneys Edgar F. Hazelton and Dana Wallace. They planned to see her immediately, it was announced, but subsequently postponed the meeting until tomorrow.

As they conferred over their plans, the case against Mrs. Snyder, and aginst Judson Gray her lover, for the killing of Albert Snyder, her husband, was drawn together for presentation in court next week.

First to go forward to the witness chair will be Warren Snyder, brother of the dead man, and enough like him in appearance to be a twin.

75 BANDS IN C-C CONTEST

$5000 Prizes Offered For Winners Here

Seventy-five bands are expected to participate in the band contest to be held in connection with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, according to L. V. Lawler, chairman of the band contest committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Cash prizes totalling $5000 will be awarded the winners in the contest, which will be divided into six divisions. The high school division has the largest number of entrants to date, Mr. Lawler said.

FLOOD RELIEF FUNDS NEEDED

other floods will be inundated. If the warning is heeded, loss of life will not be great.

CALL FOR FLOOD AID IN GREATEST DISASTER
By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Secretary of Commerce Hoover, chairman of the special committee of the Red Cross on the Mississippi flood disaster, today was ordered by President Coolidge to proceed at once to Memphis.

Hoover will meet there with Red Cross officials to organize and enlarge a relief for the flood sufferers. Hoover will be accompanied by Major General Edgar Jadwin chief of the army engineers, and James L. Fiefer, acting chairman of the Red Cross.

Henry M. Baker, national director of the Red Cross, today was appointed "dictator" in full charge of providing relief for victims of the greatest flood in American history.

Baker is now at Memphis where he will establish his headquarters. This is the first time in Red Cross annals that such broad powers have been conferred on a director of disaster relief.

Dictator On Relief

Baker received his title of "dictator" from President Coolidge's special committee of the Red Cross for Mississippi valley relief, of which Secretary of Commerce Hoover is chairman.

Liaison officers to co-operate with Baker will be appointed by the army, navy, commerce department, coast guard, public health service and veterans' bureau.

It is estimated that 40,000 boats are available in the disaster area and Baker will have full authority to charter, or commandeer them if necessary, for use in bringing succor to the flood refugees. The light house boats of the bureau of navigation and the vessels of the coast guard have already been placed at Baker's disposal.

In exercising his "dictorial powers," Baker will be backed up with the full authority of the federal government. President Coolidge, by the appointment of his committee, has practically transformed the Red Cross from a semi-official to an official relief agency of the United States.

Highest Flood On Record

Today's drastic action was taken by the committee after the war department advised that the flood waters of the Mississippi will reach a crest one foot higher than at any time in history. Army engineers in the danger zone reported that the levees on the lower Mississippi may hold, but if a big storm comes, they will give way and many more square miles will be inundated.

The army will be called on to supply all the tents, cots, blankets and other temporary housing shelter available. The navy will be asked to supply seaplanes wherever needed. The veterans' bureau will be asked to loan some of the vast stores of housing medical supplies which it has concentrated at Chicago, Long Island, and Perryville, Mo. In addition the bureau has a complete hospital equipment stored at Louisiana, which may be used for the flood sufferers.

Railroads Offer Aid

Director Baker will also appoint three assistant directors, one each for water transportation, rail transportation, and for refugees. Six railroads today volunteered to provide free transportation for rescue workers and supplies going into the emergency districts.

Hoping for a generous response from all parts of the nation, the national Red Cross today contributed $100,000 to the $5,000,000 relief fund to be raised for the flood victims. Quotas were assigned to all Red Cross chapters, specifying the amounts that they are expected to raise.

All organizations national in scope, such as the federal council of churches, the Knights of Columbus and the General Federation of Women's clubs, will be requested to send out a general appeal to their members.

Vaccine to Refugee Camps

The war department today shipped from here to St. Louis 10,000 cubic centimeters of paratyphoid vaccine to help check the spread of disease and ordered the medical depot to purchase as much more typhoid and smallpox vaccine as needed.

The Red Cross ordered all local chapters within 200 miles of either side of the river to take care of refugees and decentralize them in small camps or private homes, as far as possible.

500 MEN BATTLE FLOOD AT TEXARKANA.
By Universal Service.

TEXARKANA, April 23. — A force of 500 men was waging a losing battle with the raging, turgid waters of the Red rive, in Lafayette county, Arkansas, late today.

The main levee, four miles west of Lewisville, was threatening to give way and 200 more men were rushed there by truck and train early tonight.

Should this levee give way approximately 35,000 more acres will be inundated, N. D. Harrell, levee district commissioner declared.

The swirling waters broke through a third break in the Hempstead levee near Fulton late Friday night and caused hurried evacuation of the lowlands. Several hundred head of livestock perished in the flood.

Several hundred men have been rushed to the Miller county levee three miles northwest of Fulton in an effort to keep the levee intact. Index reported the river receding today.

MANY ANIMALS DIE IN MISSISSIPPI FLOOD.
By Universal Service.

Hundreds of thousands of domestic animals have gone to their doom, horses, mules, cows, pigs, chickens, dogs and cats.

Wild life is being exterminated. Rabbits that have sought safety on levee embankments are as tame as domestic animals, apparently sensing the danger and turning to man for succor.

AUSTIN, April 23. (AP)—Rene B. Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman, predicted here today that Governor Al Smith of New York will get the 40 votes of the Texas delegation at the national Democratic convention and that Smith will oppose President Calvin Coolidge at the general election.

Creager presided at a meeting of some 50 central Texas republicans in conference over plans to increase the G. O. P. headquarters fund by $25,000 or $30,000. Several states may instruct their delegations for their respective "favorite sons," but the candidacies will narrow down to "Cal and Al," Creager predicted.

"I look for Texas to send its delegation instructed for Dan. Moody or uninstructed," Creager said, "but the 40 votes from this state will go finally for Smith."

The republican leader thinks Smith's stand on the relation of religion to politics has helped his presidential cause in Texas.

Grantor Includes Clause Leaving Path Across Tract For Cow

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 23.—By the tale of a dead pet cow, 21 of the 22 stories of the "100 West Monroe Street" building, completed today, rest over nothing at all.

The cow belonged to Dr. Bassett. Both are now dead. But when Dr. Bassett sold the land for the first building on it 70 years ago he put in the deed that 10 feet of the lot should be left for a cow path, so Bossy would not have to go around the corner to get in her stable.

Well, it seems, the provision in that deed is still good. So when the building was built, the 10 feet of ground had to be left open. But the owners used their air rights, and by means of a cantilever construction built the additional 21 stories, 10 feet wider than the first one.

THROAT SLASHED

Aged Inmate of Poorhouse Wounded, Comrade Held

FORT WORTH, April 23. (AP)—Joe Foster, aged resident at the Tarrant county poor farm, near here, was in a hospital today suffering from a slashed throat and Joe L. Weaver, another elderly inmate of the farm was charged with assault to murder as a result of a dispute early today over a blanket. Physicians said Foster's condition is critical.

Mother and Widow of Man Fight In Court For Possession of Body

FORT WORTH, April 23. (AP)—With a dead man's body as the prize of victory, two women will engage in a legal battle in district court here next Wednesday.

The women are: Mrs. Elon Moore, mother, and Mrs. Quincy Burnett, widow, of the late Quincy E. Burnett, police officer, who met his death in an airplane crash near here last February.

The immediate contest will be on a motion to dissolve a temporary injunction recently granted Mrs. Moore which restrained Mrs. Burnett, her lawyers and all the undertakers in Fort Worth from removing Burnett's body from a lot in a local graveyard owned by Mrs. Moore.

In petitions and answers, Mrs. Burnett states that she wishes to lie by the side of her dead husband one day, in the lot where he is buried or elsewhere, while the mother has declared she will never give Mrs. Bennett an interest in the lot, allow her to be buried there, or permit removal of the body.

If the injunction granted Mrs. Moore is dissolved, Mrs. Burnett will file a petition for an injunction restraining Mrs. Moore from interfering with the removal of Burnett's body to a lot in another cemetery which Mrs. Burnett has purchased.

Mr. Wade, who recently visited a number of towns and cities in West Texas in the interest of the convention, will make his headquarters in Wichita Falls until after the convention.

"The citizens of West Texas are enthusiastic about the coming convention," Mr. Wade said. "The fact that so many men, prominent in national and state affairs, will attend the convention has attracted the attention of the West Texas people and they are anxious to hear the messages of these well known men."

BANDIT BEAUTIES

Two Pretty Misses Held By Chicago Police For Robberies

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Two pretty girls were being held today on charges of banditry.

Miss Pearl Dorsey, 20, was arrested a short time after she had held up and robbed Abraham Murnick, a cab driver of $15.

A short time later Miss Kathleen Daly, 22, was arrested in an apartment with four men, two of them with criminal records. They are suspected of having perpetrated more than 50 robberies in the past few weeks.

ACTOR FACES TRIAL MONDAY

Wife of Slain Man Under Care of Nurse

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 23—Paul Kelly, film actor who is charged with the murder of Ray Raymond, husband of Dorothy Mackaye, well known actress, will be arraigned here Monday before Judge Charles Burnell. At that time, representatives of the district attorney's office are expected to ask for an early trial.

Raymond died in a local hospital last Tuesday morning after a fist fight the preceding Saturday with Kelly. The battle took place in Raymond's home. He had objected to Kelly's attentions to Miss Mackaye. In a frank statement to police, Kelly said he was in love with the actress. She, too, told officers that the cause of the fight was her refusal to discontinue her friendship with Kelly.

Miss Mackaye was still under the care of a nurse today and no visitors were allowed. She collapsed Wednesday after testifying before the grand jury that indicted Kelly for murder.

Friends of Kelly have said that he will base his defense on the allegation that Raymond and Miss Mackaye were not legally married, though the actress has repeatedly insisted they were.

C. A. GRIBBLE DIES

Death Claims Wichita Falls Man Five Months After Wife

Funeral services for C. A. Gribble, 50, who died at a local hospital at 10:30 o'clock Saturday will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Floral Heights Methodist church with Dr. S. A. Barnes officiating. Burial will be in Rosemont cemetery.

Mr. Gribble is survived by two daughters and one son, Eula Lee, Eleanor and Tom Gribble of 1406 Britton street; four sisters, Mrs. C. E. Huston, Mrs. A. E. Huston and Mrs. Ernest Jackson of Shebbyville, Tenn., and Mrs. Will Pippin of Haskell, Texas, and two brothers, F. R. Gribble of Mexia and H. S. Gribble of Fort Worth. Mr. Gribble's wife died here five month ago.

MRS. LAURA CASSEL

Funeral services for Mrs. Laura Cassell, 71, who died at 1:30 a. m. Saturday at the home of her son, J. N. Cassell, 1620 14th street, will be held Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the home of her son.

The Rev. Lewys Kopp will conduct the services. Pallbearers were announced as follows: R. I. Mills, J. W. Parker, J. W. Addis, Ira Monarch, B. M. Williams and P. R. Hanks. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

BRIDGE COLLAPSE

Span of New Structure Falls In Ohio Stream

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 23. (AP)—A span of the new bridge across the Big Sandy river between Kenevo, W. Va., and Catlettsburg, Ky., near here, collapsed today. Men at work on the span, warned of the danger, escaped unhurt.

MAID WINS PONY

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Mrs. Margaret Mann Blakemore, daughter of a well-known family here, won her bet of a pony with Tex Austin, rancher, when she stepped off a Santa Fe train in cowboy clothes.

The wager was made when the bride prepared for a visit to her relatives here.

"Tex Austin bet me a pony that I wouldn't dare to make the trip from New Mexico to Chicago in these clothes. It was great fun but a bit embarrassing when I had to get off to eat," she said.

ELECTRA FOLK BUSY READERS

Library Circulates Total Of 28,642 Books

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, April 23.—The Electra public library during the year ending April 1, 1927, circulated 28,642 books, which when analyzed shows an average daily circulation of 94 volumes for the 302 days that the library was open. The library at present has 3453 books, and according to these figures, every book in the library would have to be issued more than eight times during the year, and considering the large number of reference works, encyclopedias and other books which cannot be withdrawn from the library, it means that the books in circulation have very heavy usage. Many of the books are juvenile books, and are read by small children, who will not take as good care as older people do to preserve them. During the year, 7593 juvenile fiction books were issued as against 15,944 adult fiction books, and 2771 juvenile non-fiction books were issued, while 2284 adult non-fiction books were issued during the same period of time. Not all repairs and rebinding are due to carelessness of the reader, because books will naturally wear out. In order to keep the books in reasonable condition, it was necessary to rebind and repair 2091 volumes during the year at an expense of $42.25, or in other words, at an average expense of 2 cents per volume. The rebinding is more expensive, but 354 volumes were rebound, all of which work was done in Electra by making arrangements to have a local lady do the work at a fixed price per volume. The library has on its shelf a standard collection of magazines, and arrangements are now being made to have all of these bound for the convenience of the readers. Shortly readers can find copies of these magazines, not only for the current issue, but old copies as well. Those magazines read mostly will be bound in buckram, while others will have cheaper bindings. Most of them, however, will be bound in Electra.

Interesting Figures

Some interesting figures are shown by the annual report for the library. It has cost, including the cost of rebinding and repairs, salaries, reference work and all other overhead expense, less than 10 cents per volume to circulate the books. The trustees receive no salary, and the librarian is the only one who receives a salary. Plans are now on foot to enlarge the work of the library, as the present quarters are entirely inadequate. This is shown by the fact that the attendance during the year amounted to 10,490 people in the reading room alone, not counting those who came to merely get a book and not make use of the reading room. An assistant librarian is needed in order to assist the reading public to find what they want to read.

During the past 12 months juvenile books containing fairy tales had the largest circulation, and for that reason the trustees will stress mostly the procuring of juvenile books during the next few months. Children's travel books were also greatly in demand, but among the adult books circulated, books on history and travel held the lead. The circulation of children's books was approximately twice as much as the adult books during the summer months, indicating that many of our children are kept busy during the summer reading good books. During the winter months the adult books had a larger circulation than the children's books.

Increase Rent Books

Another aim of the trustees is to increase the rent collection books. These books are the most recent published and a small rental is charged for the circulation of these books until the book has been paid for, when it is retired to the general shelf and may be withdrawn from the library without charge. In this manner, the library keeps abreast with all of the latest publications.

Special invitation is extended to the public for the ensuing year to make use of their library. The Electra public library is a free library and the public is cordially invited to make use of the facilities at hand.

Turkey-Wellington Highway To Be Pushed to Fore

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, April 23.—Just at this time the city of Memphis is very much interested in the proposed Turkey-Wellington highway. A committee from Memphis, composed of Mayor F. N. Foxhall, Judge A. C. Hoffman, Secretary G. A. Sager and Editor J. Claud Wells met at Wellington a few days ago with a committee of men from the Wellington chamber of commerce in regard to the Turkey-Wellington Highway association formed some months ago at Turkey.

S. R. Pinkston of Wellington was chosen as president of the association to take the place of E. S. Shoaf who recently resigned to go to Louisiana. Pinkston as president, Willis Walker of Turkey as vice president and George A. Sager of Memphis as secretary are the officers of this highway association, who will endeavor to complete the organization with directors and members as soon as possible.

During this meeting of committeemen Judge C. C. Small of Wellington consented to make a trip to Austin with a committee to appear before the Highway Commission in regard to the designation of the Turkey-Wellington highway, which is one of the most important connecting links in Texas, and should receive the attention of the commission.

HASKELL SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, April 23.—Quite the outstanding social event of the week was the "42" party at the Magazine Club library last Friday afternoon from 3:30 until 6 o'clock, given jointly by Mesdames R. J. Reynolds and H. S. Wilson. The color theme of pink, green and lemon ran though all of the decorations and the menu in a pleasing manner. Mrs. Wilson gave greetings at the entrance and Mrs. Reynolds gave out the pretty score cards carrying baskets of flowers, and invited the guests to the punch bowl where Miss Elmer Kinnard presided and they were served lemon punch, pink marshmallows, which were also served at intervals during the afternoon. Fourtees games of "42" were played and then the tables were spread with pink and green tablespreads and the guests were served brick cream and cake in the predominating colors. A distinctive note in the decorations was the numerous baskets of gorgeous pink roses. Guests present were: Mesdames Jim Gilstrap, John Ellis, N. I. McCollum, Guy Mays, C. D. TOP O' MORN STUFF
By Blondy Cross.

THEY'RE BOOKED TO BAIT THE BOVINES AGAIN SUNDAY AFTERNOON, STARTING AT 3 BELLS.

* * *

And in the course of events each thrower having throwed in order, it is the eminent G. Washington Payne's time to toil.

* * *

G. Washington throws right-handed about like F. Fussell throws left-handed, so, knowing what F. Fussell does to the Steers, you have but one guess how good our chances are to cop.

DON'T RUSH

Wha-a-at, you want to see Jim Roberts throw some? Well, Jim's ready, but how are you going to crash into such a combination as we've had ever since the starting gong. True, we lost one the other day. Does look kind of bad, at that, doesn't it? Only grabbed eight out of nine so far. Oh, well, maybe we'll get better as the season wears along.

* * *

But, brother, let one of the quartet who've been carrying us over the ripple get something wrong with his mechanism and you'll see Jim in there in double quick time. Jim's right and rearing. Even willing to do relief work and that's a new one for your James.

How came them to wham the Steers so industriously yesterday? Now, that's not so hard to figure out. It was a kind of a celebration. You see, the day before was straw hat day. They didn't celebrate that day, but along came Manager Carl and says, "Boys, all of you go on over to McClurkan's or Montgomery's and get yourself a straw derby or something on me and the club. And you poor, hard-up sports writers do a ditto. So the gang all branched out yesterday a. m. in new straw sunbonnets. Tickled? Sure, who isn't when he gets something for nothing? And they carried their good humor right on out to the ball field during the afternoon and playfully poked the stuffings out of Lieut. Paddy Bauman's bunch.

Don't know whether Al got his yet of not, but I've already had my genni-i-ne Swiss Yeddo, sky-blue band and double-deck brim, out and got it frost bitten.

SCARED OF LAUNDRY

"Now, lissen, you make them guys let him alone until he gets his suit all dirty, gets it so dirty it'll stand up by itself and then you'll see that guy cram the agate! He can't hit until it's dirty. Now, I know! And then he'll start slamming 'em for a million!" That, boy friend, was A. A. Werlla, one of our closest students of the game explaining why Tom Jenkins isn't topping the loop again with the willow, and laying down the formula to bring "Ole Dynamite" back to normalcy.

* * *

Fred Brainard was out with the boys yesterday. Former Spud skip says he's feeling fine. Avers, "There isn't any doubt the team that wins the pennant will have to beat Dallas first."

After that affair yesterday, this remark, in a way, sounds funny.

* * *

Something like those words of Roy Brundage, Bill Newell's partner in crime on the concessionaire end at the park, as Roy stands wagging cushions and roaring, "FRESH, soft seats for a dime! C'mon, c'mon!"

* * *

I see they've got the Battle of the Brutes all arranged. After the early hints about alleged jealously over who's the ugliest and the like along with the other run of ballyhoo, I should have known they'd be matching Bull Montana up with Charley Grip.

* * *

Kiefer Silences Dallas Bats While Mates Pound At Will

By BLONDY CROSS

You've got to hand it to 'em! There just naturally doesn't seem to be anybody who can stop Carl Williams' Spudders. The Sports tried it and they couldn't. Somebody said Jake Atz has a pennant contender down at Fort Worth, but yours and my nine walloped the Cats in a pair right in their own lair, so to speak.

Came Sniper Conley's champion Dallas Steers Saturday sans Snipe who's sick in bed. And after reading the news, Snipe probably is sicker.

For Wichita Falls continued its victory splurge at the Gardner pavilion, repulsing advance of the 1926 Texas league kings by the impressive score of 13 to 2 behind hard-working Joe Kiefer who turned back the Steers, scoreless over a seven-inning span and then slowed down enough in the eighth and ninth behind an enormous lead for Dallas' self-styled pet Hferd to trickle over with a brace of runs.

Joe Was Right

Kiefer scattered nine bingles through the nine stanzas and was inconvenienced only in the eighth when Gross, Williams and Miller biffed in succession, and then caught a little trouble in the ninth when a couple of walks with Gross' second single cost a run.

Spudder bludgeons that took a recess the day before when the Williams outfit dropped its first game of the season to Shreveport, broke out again Saturday in a sturdy bombardment that upset Russell Pence, the sheik of Dallas, side burns and all; injured the feelings of Alex McColl, cotton-topped right-hander; nearly splintered one of Joe Lucey's ankles and played the devil with the portside delivery of Glen Darrough. Thirteen safe and otherwise blows sprang from Spudder bats. These combined with nimible base-running, occasional slowness on the enemy defense and seven bases on balls gave our nine its eighth victory of nine starts, not figuring in that time game the other day that was nipped in the seventh couplet by Jupe.

Just who did all this slugging, huh? Well, if you were out there you saw George LaFayette pop three on the nose and run all over everywhere. Fitzgerald busted one out of the orchard in the first frame with nobody on, then came back and dry-cracked a couple of singles. Hilarity Howard seems bound to make Eagle Lake and all the macaroni boys proud of him this season. Swenson got hold of a good one in the second for a base. Then he hoisted one just "in there" for two bases during the fifth. It was a run-getter. Beat One out in the seventh, another tally-maker. Turgeon popped the boards for a pair in the fifth and straightened another out in the seventh. That's the total outside a couple of slaps by Jenkins and Lamb. Lamb's was an extra-hot single that took a dirty bounce past Rino Williams in left and converted itself into a double.

Can't Beat 'em

Getting the jump on Dallas in the first when Fitz homered over the starboard barrier, Wichita Falls never was headed, nor did she ever look like she might get that way. A fairly handsome mob saw last year's champions made look like a rah-rah boys' club playing a bunch of major leaguers, while last year's seventh-placers looked like kings. Outclassed Paddy Bauman, Jim Riley, Turkey Gross, Hack Miller et al from bell to bell. Won on points all the way.

A combination of rifts by Swenson and LaFayette figured in with a couple of walks and a bunt by Kiefer, put Pence out of commission in the second round. McColl essayed the relief role and was punched for a one-baser by Fitz, tabbing 'em up for a quartet of runs in that stanza.

Fitz knocked the lid off again in the fifth, thereby letting in three more scores. He singled on a line to center after there was one out. Lamblie hoisted to Williams and Jenkins walked. Then Turgeon and Swenson swung for two-cushioners. That counted for the three.

Tom Gets Rough

McColl got the gate for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Joe Lucey started serving 'em up to Tom Jenkins when it come the Spudders' time to punch. Tom said howdy-do with a blast at the box that caught Joe somewhere around the foundation and nearly ripped a foot loose from its moorings. Lucey gave way to Darrough who came right on in and took his'n. Before Turgeon, Swenson and LaFayette got through hitting we had tabulated another trio. One of the runs was an out-and-out dirty trick. Pete and Wally pulled a double steal on the boys with two down and got away with it much to the disgust of a catcher named Charles Berry and the amusement of at least four or five rail birds. Naw, there were more than that out there yesterday. One of the biggest Saturday crowds ever registered at the plant.

Darrough walked Fitz to start the eighth and Lamb poled his bad hop double, which, of course, scored Fitz. Howard, you know, has NOT got big feet. He can pick 'em up and lay 'em down. Jenkins walked and Turgeon popped out. Then Swenson pulled a pass, filling her up. Lapan forced Wally at second and Lamble scored. That's the crop. They mix again this afternoon at 3.

Longhorns Sweep Series With Aggies

AUSTIN, April 23. (AP)—Texas University's Longhorns today secured a commanding lead for the southwestern conference baseball flag when they defeated the A. and M. team, 5 to 3 here, sweeping a two-game series.

Nine errors by the Aggies cost them the contest. Baker, who hurled yesterday's victory for the Longhorns, did duty for the full nine innings again today.

Wyman, Aggie pitcher, allowed Texas six hits and Baker gave up seven to the Farmers.

Texas now has a two-game lead for conference honors.

JESSUP AND BRIGGS WIN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 23.(AP)—Mrs. Marian Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs of New York, Saturday won the women's doubles title in the seventh annual Mason and Dixon tennis championships here, defeating Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver and Mrs. Deforest Candee of New York in the final, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. Mrs. Jessup also won the singles title yesterday.

RITOLA BREAKS ANOTHER

NEW YORK, April 23.(AP)—A new world mark in the 5000-yard run is Willie Ritola's contribution to the list of lowered records for the indoor season of 1926-27. Running in a special handicap race for his second appearance of the season in major competition the flying Finnish-American runner covered the distance in 13 minutes, 29 4-5 seconds Friday night at the 369th infantry game.

TWILIGHT LOOP PRIES LID OFF IN NEW PLANT NEXT SABBATH

Wichita Falls Twilight leaguers pep up this week in preparation for the 1927 titular drive scheduled to start next Sunday on the new amateur diamond out by the Panhandle refinery. Bill Hoehn's Panhandle Longhorns tangle with Charley Spragins' Texas Electric Service company gang in the opener next Sunday, Conocos follow Wednesday with the American refiners and then double back with the Longhorns again Friday. Lots of heavy work for these two teams next week, what?.

The Twilight loop is expected to go on the soundest basis this summer it ever has been in. Under the leadership of President L. O. Landon with the co-operation of team managers and other interested men, the league is constructing a new park on the Burk highway near the Panhandle refinery. The fence already is up, and the painters are to begin work Monday, Landon said yesterday. Grandstand and shower bath house are to be completed in time for the opening game, Landon declared, with a squad of workmen getting down to business this week.

The diamond and outfield already are in tiptop shape. In fact, they compare favorably with Texas league playing plants and some of the amateurs declare the diamond right now is in better condition than the Spudder infield.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

"When Irish eyes are smiling," it can only be taken as a token of one thing. Especially when those eyes happen to belong to a pair of gentlemen known as Tommy Mills and "Big Ed" Walsh. For it just happens that these two men have been entrusted with the delicate job of whipping out a baseball team for the University of Notre Dame this spring. But smiling they are, and smiling it seems they may continue, if things keep breaking in the same manner as they have started. Blessed with some great material Tommy Mills seems on the way toward making his initial year as Irish coach an eventful one.

This will be the second season at Notre Dame for "Big Ed" Walsh, former White Sox star, and he seems more than pleased with the prospects that he has at hand. Walsh was a member of the famous Walsh-Sullivan combine that thrilled big league fans of a few years ago, when a pitcher hurled much more frequently than he does today, and Walsh makes an ideal coach for the pitching staff.

"The greatest artillery corps in collegiate baseball today," is the way Walsh puts it confidently, "and it will be good up until 1930 at least." This is especially true because of the first trio of hurling stars who have the edge at the present time. First, there's "Young Ed" Walsh, who's a chip off the old block, if there ever was one, as far as serving them over the slab goes. Then there's Elmer Besten, a veteran who made a few scouts' hearts jump last season, and finally there's Steve Ronay, just as good as the other two. That's the first three. Then comes Oscar Rust, who has a world of speed but could improve his control and Bernie Abbott, a dependable man. Among the newcomers Joe Jachym, sophomore basketball star, is in the ascendancy and may break into the front ranks before the parade gets along very far.

With every position commanded by a veteran from last season's crop with the exception of third base, the outlook for the production of a truly good team seems especially good. Captain Dick Smith, red-headed catcher, is one of the best in his line that has been seen here in recent years, and in addition is leading the club in the matter of hammering the ball. So far this part of the business of winning games has been the slowest to materialize on Carter field this year. However, the men who seem to have the upper hand at present are the same who slammed away the willow in good style last season, and will probably get back into the harness soon.

The most interesting feud for the baseline experts to watch has been the bids entered by Jim Quinn and Fritz Wilson for the first base honors. Both are letter-men from '26 and are about equally matched in ability.

At second sack Mills will have Joe Sullivan, son of Joe Sullivan of White Sox fame, while either Scrall of McCleary will start at short. At third John Niemiec and Turk Kelly are leading the field at the present time. The gardens will be looked after by Caretakers Harry O'Boyle, all-American fullback; "Bull" Pollsky and Bill Yore.

Another all-American in the person of "Bud" Boeringer, almost unanimously selected as the honor center of the 1926 season, will be one of the fill-in men. "Bud" is a candidate for a berth in the outfield, and smashes the ball in a vicious manner, but lacks the speed and smoothness in a baseball suit that the others we have named have.

Records Go In Kansas Relays

MEMORIAL STADIUM, LAWRENCE, Kans., April 23. (AP)— Defying a chilling wind that cramped muscles and kept crowds shivvering, university, college and high school athletes displayed a remarkable exhibition of record-breaking performances at the fifth annual University of Kansas relays here today.

A world's record was equalled and four meet records were broken.

A quartet of Notre Dame sprinters, in the quarter mile relay, Riley, Elder, Reilly and Dellamaria, equalled the world's record of 41.6 seconds set up by the New York Athletic club in 1925.

Three meet records for two mile relays, university, college and high school, were established.

Iowa State, pressed closely by Kansas Aggies, made the new record in the university two-mile relay when they finished in 7 minutes 53.9 seconds.

The previous record was 7 minutes 7 56.2 seconds, made by Iowa State in 1925.

Haskell Institute Indian runners bettered the meet record of 8 minutes, 4.2 seconds, set up by Occidental college of California in 1925 in the college two-mile relay, when they won in 8 minutes 3.3 seconds.

The Galesburg, Ill., high school half miler clipped eight seconds from the meet record of the high school two mile relay, winning the event in 8 minutes and 22 seconds. The previous of 8 minutes 30 seconds was made by Florence, Kansas hig hschool.

Rhynefort, Grinnell, hurled the discus 141 feet, 4 5-4 inches, to set up a new meet mark in that event, bettering by two feet 3 1-4 inches the record made by Platt of Denver university in 1924.

STANFORD WINS.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, California, April 23. (AP) — Stanford university track and field team defeated the University of Southern California, national champions 75 to 56, in their dual meet today.

COUPLE TAUGHT 40 YEARS

Rounding out a career of 40 years as teachers together, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackinson have just retired from the staff of the Ardmore, Ireland, public schools, and will reside in Belfast. Jackinson was principal and his wife junior assistant mistress, and they taught in Ardmore for 33 years.

GERMANS BUYING PICTURES

Germans are said to be buying more pictures in London galleries than Americans, and therefore are taking the art-acquisition lead of the world. Their favorites are the early Dutch Masters, for which they are paying very big prices, but they also are purchasing other popular paintings.

PANTHERS COP SPORT OPENER

Shreveport Outhits Cats, But Loses, 6 to 3

FORT WORTH, April 23. (AP)—Although outhit 10 to 12, the Fort Worth Panthers took the first game of the new series from the Shreveport Sports, 6 to 3. Bischoff led the Panther attack with a double and a single. Sweeney, first baseman obtained from Minneapolis recently, appeared at first for Fort Worth, and got a single in four trips to the plate. Burns pitched good ball throughout the game, holding the Sports to one run until the eighth inframe after two runs had been scored. Chink Taylor, veteran outfielder, hit a double in this inning that figured in the scoring. Distel played a good game for Shreveport at shortstop. The score:

Buffs Easily Cop From San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, April 23.(AP)—Hammering Bob Couchman for seven hits for a total of 12 bases to get four runs, the Houston Buffs easily defeated the San Antonio Bears in the opening game here Saturday, 7 to 2, with Ken Penner holding the Bruins scoreless until the ninth inning when Big Moose made a record drive for a home run over the fence near the score board, and Nufer followed with a double to score on Flaskamper's single to center.

Lefty Bill Ward relieved Couchman in the third inning with none down, and until the seventh inning they were unable to score, after which they put three runs across.

Time: 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night.

Wichita Falls wrestling fandom sees its last indoor program of the season Tuesday night at the Palace and she should be a riotous affair, if somebody will tie Chief Detective Bill Allen outside and intervene with other officers of the law who would put the quietus on the boys just because they may want to get a bit rough. Your boy friend Mantell is renowned for his roughness. Jensen and Grip have tangled here a couple of times and they didn't fail to give the customers their money's worth.

So, if the law officers will let the boys attend to their knitting there ought to be a pair of pretty tough battles staged as farewell to the indoor stuff. The grapplers move out in the open next week, pulling a show in Ross' new arena on Indiana between Tenth and Eleventh, left side going out.

Singh's cleverness and Asiatic mat skill is expected to be tested to the limit by the cunning Dutchman's rough-and-tumble tactics. They say the Calcutta nobleman doesn't like the rough stuff and at the least display of uncouthness by an adversary rips into him with a wad of his own medicine a la East India style, a rude method of attack picked up while playing with the Sepoys and individuals attached to other British military forces in India during his youth. If Dutch gets gay, Basanta will show the boys a new kind of antidote for the "submarine sock" and the like, says Matchmaker Ross.

All you have to do to get a fight out of either is to mention the other's name when you're talking to Jensen or Grip. These boys still pack the grudge started in Amarillo several months ago and given vent to here twice already.

ROBBY SHAKES UP

BROOKLYN, April 23.(AP)—In a shakeup aimed at checking the Robins' losing streak, Capt. Max Carey and Johnny Butler, regulars, were benched Saturday when Brooklyn met Boston. Gus Felix went to center field in place of Carey, while Chuck Corgan took Butler's place at short.

INDIAN RUNS 26 MILES

PADDOCK LOSES

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 23. (AP)—John Francis Scott, 20-year-old senior in the University of Arizona, this afternoon defeated Charley Paddock in a special 220-yard dash at the Greenway field day meet here, time 22 1-5 seconds. Scott led the world's champion by more than a yard.

COYOTES IN SECOND PLACE

Electra Boy Wins High Point Honors

Jim Reese's Electra Tigers amassed a total of 60 points to win first place in the track and field events of the Texas Interscholastic league meet of district four at the Wichita Falls Junior college Saturday afternoon.

Wichita Falls ran second in the total scoring with 23 points. Deer Creek was third with 9. Bowie and Iowa Park each scored eight points in the meet.

Langford of Deer Creek was one of the outstanding men in the meet. Langford won third place for his school with nine points. He scored a first in the shot put, second in the high jump and fourth in the 120 yard high hurdles.

Hood Leads 'Em

Pat "Banannas" Hood won five of the six Burkburnett points with a first place in the mile run. Hood ran his usual race in the mile and won first place with such a lead that he never used his sprint in the last. Hood's time was 5 minutes 1.3 seconds.

Maurice Allred of Wichita Falls made a pretty run in the half-mile to win. Allred's sprint on the last 15 yards won the race for him. He made it in 2 minutes and 12 seconds.

Wee Dickie Houser, the Electra flash, won both the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dash with apparent ease for two of the Electra first places. In both the prelims and the finals Houser ran the century in ten flat. He ran the 220 in 23 flat.

Dan Sadler of Bowie won a first and third place to score seven of Bowie's eight points. Knight of Nocona won a first and second place to score eight of Nocona's 16 points.

To Louis Kent and Henry Culpepper goes much of the credit of the great showing made by Electra in the meet. Culpepper scored a first and third place.

Tough for Clara

The Clara Greyhounds take off the honors of being the hard luck team in the meet. J. O. Sehon had won second place in the 120-yard high hurdles and it looked like his third straight trip to the state meet when a checkup showed that he had knocked over too many hurdles.

Curly Walkup followed this up in the low hurdles when he hit the last hurdle and fell with second place cinched and had to be content with a fourth place in the event.

Louis Kent of Electra was the high point man of the meet by a fair margin, Kent entering in both the track and field events carried off more than his share of the glory. Kent captured two first places, and two seconds for a total of 16 points.

Dallas Polo Four Loses To Sooners

CROWELL, April 23.—The University of Oklahoma polo team defeated the Dallas polo team here today in the Minnick polo tournament after a hotly contested battle, 7 to 5.

Sunday is expected to be a great day at the tournament with a steeplechase and horse race as well as an exhibition polo game among the best eight players picked from the tournament contestants. Pathe News camera men will be on hand to "shoot" pictures of the events.

BEARS BIFF FROGS

FORT WORTH, April 23. (AP)—Hammering the ball on the head in the third inning for four hits which, with a passed ball and an error netted four runs, the Baylor Bears assumed a lead that was never threatened, defeated the T. C. U. Horned Frogs here today, 7 to 3, to even the season's and series' count between the two teams. The Bruins got another run in the fourth and two in the ninth, while the best the Frogs could do was to score a tally in the third on two hits and two walks.

In the Public Eye: Key (?) to Cincy's Success, Another Who Profits by Greeley's Advice, Daddy on Lookout, Coming Major Leaguer

DELAYED START—Cinci Reds hope to climb now that Hughey Critz, star second baseman, is in the fold. He failed to come to terms until the Reds had dropped four games. Failure to sign holdout Eppa Rixey last spring is blamed by some critics for the loss of the pennant last season.

THIS IS—Sam Jones, who accepted Horace Greeley's advice and Miller Huggins' orders and went west—to the St. Louis Browns. And turned in a neat four-hit victory over the White Sox the other day.

WATCHFUL EYE — On coming Kentucky Derby has Man O' War, wonder horse of the turf. This year will mark the first appearance of his get in the classic. Scapa Flow, War Eagle, Son of Battle, Mixup and one or two others are entered.

GOING UP—For a high one and to the big leagues eventually, is Jonah Goldman, star shortstop of the University of Syracuse baseball team.

Koenig's Wild Toss Lets In Winning Run

PHILADELPHIA, April 23. (AP)—The Athletics topped the Yankees today, 4 to 3, a wild throw to first by Mark Koenig in the ninth inning allowing the Mackmen to put the winning run over the plate. Rube Walberg, who went the distance for the victors, was punched for successive homers by Babe Ruth and Gehrig in the first inning.

White Sox Chase Uhle From Mound

CHICAGO, April 23. (AP)—Chicago evened the series with Cleveland today by hammering George Uhle off the mound and winning the final game, 9 to 2. Manager Schalk switched his batting order by sending Hunnefield to short and Bud Clancy to first, the change giving the locals considerable more batting power as Hunnefield made two hits and Clancy three.

KREMER AT PEAK

NEW YORK, April 23.(AP)—Ray Kremer has reached the pitching peak at a time when most hurlers are on the down grade. Just turned 31 he led the National league's twirlers last year and has gotten off to a flying start this season with three sensational victories in a row for the swashbuckling Pirate crew.

Amateurish Ride By Fator Loses Crusader's Race

By Universal Service.

HAVRE DE GRACE, April 23. Crusader, the mighty, was beaten this afternoon in the Philadelphia handicap. The gallant son of Man O'War finished fifth. The twenty thousands who came here especially for the debut of Crusader as a four-year-old expected him to finish first. They backed him with abandon and sent him to the post a 7 to 10 shot.

Crusader can charge his defeat to the amateurish rider put up by Laverne Fator, who is considered the star daddy of the jockey division. Everything was lovely until Fator tried to drive Crusader along the rail as he prepared to leave the back strentch. He passed one horse he passed another. Then he tried to pass Inside Canter, the flying leader. From the stand it was apparent there was no room.

There was not. A shout went up as Crusader tried the impossible. Then a loud groan. The flashy chestnut colt was knocked back along the fence and in an instant the galloping bunch surrounded him. It was a move that cost the star every chance he had of winning and his chances were more than brilliant. That one left Canter clone as the leader. He never gave up the pace. As he sped down to the wire the challengers made their final efforts to capture the honors. No chance Canter shot past the judges, half a length ahead of his stable companion, Singlefoot and Montgarrat was a head behind the latter.

Tigers Use 21 Men In Futile Fight

DETROIT, April 23. (AP)—Nearly two times the minimum number of players required for a baseball game today went through a ragged American League mixture which ended in a 15 to 10 victory for St. Louis over Detroit here today. The home team used 21 players of which three were pitchers. St. Louis sent four men to the mound. Only four of St. Louis' runs were well-earned, Detroit's six errors being costly. Numbed by a cold day the pitchers were wild and all the play seemed frost nipped. The score:

Rhem also drove in two runs with a double. Percy Jones, Cubs pitcher, yielded eight hits before he was taken out in the 5th.

REDS HALT PIRATE RUSH

Donohue Checks Pittsburgh In Snow Flurry

PITTSBURGH, April 23. (AP)—Cincinnati won its second game of the season today, defeating Pittsburgh, 6 to 4.

The Reds hammered Carmen Hill effectively, while Pete Donohue held Pittsburgh in check.

The count was tied at four-all at the end of the sixth inning. Hill blew up in the eighth and when Morrison relieved him the sacks were crowded. He balked to force over the winning run.

NEW PEAK SET FOR NORTH TEXAS IN DAILY PIPE LINE RUNS

QUIET WEEK IN OIL FIELDS

Big Wells Previous Week Account For Gain

While daily pipeline runs were mounting to a new high record during the past week all of the increase came from wells completed during the previous week and the period was as dull as any since the slump as far as new completions were concerned. A new peak of 107,265 barrels was set in pipeline runs.

The weekly dozen, more or less, new locations were made but operators are sticking to their guns and taking the bitter medicine intended for producers in the flush fields.

The most important completion during the week was the Continental and Perkins and Cullum No. 1 L. F. Wilson in section 114, A. T. N. C. L. survey, Archer county. This well is estimated at 35 barrels in sand from 1223 feet to 1230 feet.

Having been drilled with the orginal intention of testing deeper structure a twin well is being started just 50 feet away to go to a lower level.

L. T. Burns placed his No. 8-E Turbeville on the pump at 200 barrels in the regular pay found in block 124, Robert Carson survey. Burns and associates are starting up on a wildcat in the north part of t block which will be watched closely.

An area which promises to become one of the busiest in the district is the territory surrounding the A. T. Wolfe No. 1 Daume in block 57, Kemp Wichita Valley lands South Wichita county, which was completed the previous week as a 100-barreler. Four new wells were started there this week.

The crude market continues to keep operators guessing. One operator may have hit the truth Saturday when he said that within 90 days there would be at least a better "feeling" and whether prices rise or not the industry should be in shape to take on a little new life.

SOUTH BEND FIELD

Activity Holds Up in Prolific Old Field

Two new wells are being started in the vicinity of C. C. Stovall's champion well in the South Bend area of Young county.

Ruthada Oil company is rigging up rotary for its No. 4 Stovall in the northwest corner of block 31, James Tobin survey. Ruthada's No. 5 Stovall in block 29, Tobin survey, is to be a cable tool test.

E. C. Stovall is preparing to drill more of the lime in his No. 1 Fee which is at an approximate depth of 3890 feet. This well discovered the deep pay last Christmas day and had been flowing 800 barrels daily until the No. 5 came in at 550 barrels. It then quit flowing and is to be deepened to increase the output.

Prairie Pipeline company is reported to be making plans to enlarge its four-inch through the field to a six-inch line to care for the increased production. The Humble also has a four-inch line in the area.

GOOD RECOVERY

Panhandle Field Bears Out Early Claims.

AMARILLO, April 22.—Statistics bear out earlier claims that the Panhandle oil field is one of the nation's best, and the splendid manner in which it holds up around 120,000 barrels a day, good weather and bad weather, indicates that its ultimate recovery will be large.

Including the fiscal week ended April 11, the Panhandle field is estimated as having produced 41,4 591,672 barrels.

From Jan. 1 until April 11, the field approximated 11,716,900 barrels, and if the present daily output of 120,000 barrels a day is maintained the rest of the year the end of 1926 will see its yearly total around 50,000,000 barrels.

In 1926, its banner year as far as sensational developments are concerned, it produced 26,600,951 barrels.

HONOR ROLL

Reagan Junior High School Roll Announced.

Members of the Reagan Junior high school whose names appear on the honor roll for the period ending April 15 are announced by the principal, W. T. White as follows:

IN GARZA COUNTY.

Emerald Oil company in No. 1 Hurd in section 137, block 5 of H. and G. N. survey, in Garza county, of the northern area of West Texas, had a showing of oil at 1,902 feet in a gray lime. It shut down at 2,212 feet.

A REAL OIL MINE.

W. H. Case is sinking a shaft on the Clark tract, two miles southeast of Brownwood, in Brown county, for an oil mine, says the Brownwood Bulletin. At last reports Case was 27 feet and blasting hard rock.

GROVES WELL CORING

ARCHER COUNTY DUSTER

A Real American Comtesse

The charming baby is the Comtesse Alexandra Dagmar Frances Marie Margrethe of Rosenborg—such a long name for such a small morsel of humanity. She is the daughter of the Prince and Princess Erik of Denmark, and she was born on her father's estate at Arcadia, Cal. The Princess Erik is the former Miss Lois Booth of Ottawa, Ont., daughter of Canada's multi-millionaire lumber king.

New Production Heights Reached With Gushers In Cooke and Young

Daily oil production in the North Texas fields reached a new high mark for all time during the past week when the 10 counties comprising the district registered a combined output of 107,265 barrels.

This is a gain of 4365 barrels over the previous week when daily pipeline runs totalled 102,900 barrels. Cooke county for the first time in its history passed the 2000 barrel mark, not only doing that but bettering the 2700 barrel level by 60 barrels. Young county, due to running of oil from the 5500-barrel gusher of C. C. Stovall in the South Bend field, gained 3995 barrels and was the biggest contributing factor to the district's increase.

Whereas there are now 10 counties with scores of producing areas furnishing production for the total, a previous high mark of 102,635 barrels hung up in December 1919 was garnered from Wichita county while Burkburnett was at its height, with the exception of about 450 barrels produced in isolated areas outside of Wichita.

Daily runs by fields follow:

FIELD—	Last Week	Prev. Week	Difference
Electra	15,945	16,070	loss	125

31 NEW WELLS IN PANHANDLE

New Producers Boast Output 2735 Barrels

AMARILLO, April 23.—Another outstanding increase in daily production occurred the past fiscal week in the Panhandle field, making the second in succession. The net increase for the field is computed at 2,735 barrels against a net gain of 841 barrels for the week before.

The field approximated 124,696 barrels per day, or 873,066 barrels for the seven days. The previous week it did 121,963 barrels a day, or 855,641 barrels for that period.

Thirty-one wells were completed in the field, having a total initial output of 7,466 barrels a day. Twenty of the new producers were in Hutchinson county, and brought that area out of the declining column.

Carson county, thanks to the play in the Roxana-Bryan and Noel-Parks-McConnell pools, went over 10,000 barrels a day for the first time this year. Wheeler county, which has been gaining steadily, fell off the past week.

County	Number Wells	Daily Output	New Wells
Carson	180	10,478	8
Gray	121	8272	1
Hutchinson	891	103,530	20
Moore	1

Where Oil Goes.

An analysis of shipments during March showed that it went to refineries in Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Illinois and to all of the Atlantic coastal states where major refineries are located.

Principal destinations of the tank car shipments were Houston, Texas City, Port Arthur, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and Mexia, all in Texas; Wichita and Neodesha, in Kansas, Ponca City in Oklahoma; Roxana, in Illinois.

Battle of San Jacinto Retold At Luncheon of University Club

"The Battle of San Jacinto" was the subject for an interesting lecture by Miss Johnnie Morgan at the University club luncheon at a local hotel.

"In 1836, a convention was held and Sam Houston was elected chief to lead an army against the Mexicans. Houston refused the position because of the responsibility, but finally Steven F. Austin persuaded him to take charge of the troops. Houston was very democratic and a good leader, however, he was not autocratic. He went to Gonzales March 12 and found out that the battle of the Alamo had been fought and many Americans perished.

"Santa Anna was in command of the Mexican troops, and had divided his army into three divisions. He had failed in several attempts to destroy the Texas forts, and became so infuriated because he had failed in his plans that he advanced to Harrisburg and burned the town to the ground.

"At this act, Houston called a war council and it was decided to start action at once, so Houston and his army pitched camp just a few miles from Santa Anna and his troops, after staying there two or three days, Houston surprised the Mexicans by advancing upon them while they were drinking and celebrating the Alamo victory. The battle lasted just 18 minutes, and during this time 1500 Mexicans and two Texans were killed. Santa Anna was taken prisoner. Later a peace treaty was signed and he was set free."

Sam Houston lived on one ear of corn before the battle, Miss Morgan continued, and while the troops were going to their homes, they asked for a kernel of the corn so they might plant it and call it "Sam Houston corn," however, Houston requested them to name it the "San Jacinto corn."

Miss Fred Sharp played two selections on the violin, accompanied at the piano by Miss Elizabeth Cole. John P. Marrs announced the Floyd Ard benefit concert to be held at the Junior college May 19.

Locations Made In Foard County

Roxana and Fain-McGaha To Drill Wildcat

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, April 23.—Roxana and Fain-McGaha have made location to drill another test for Foard county, their No. 1 T. P. Matthews having been located in section 3, G. C. & S. F. survey. Leasing has been active in this vicinity and royalties on several tracts has been sold for $200 an acre base, according to reports.

The Humble company's No. 1-R. Waggoner, an offset to the Blackman land, in section 19, B. S. & F. survey, passed up the Fluhmann sand and is at 1499 feet, preparing to try for the sand below 1500 feet.

Prospects are considered bright for the Fluhmann field with the Gulf's No. 3 T. J. Milner in section 36, block 9; Gulf's Nos. 9 and 4 Blackman and Fain-McGaha's Nos. 8 and 9 Fulhmann nearing the sand.

RUNNELS COUNTY.

Runnels county in central West Texas is to have another drilling well next week when Noble Oil and Gas company will spud in their No. 1 Simms, 12 miles south of Ballinger and in section 12 of the J. J. McHenry survey.

W. TEXAS GETS SIX BIG WELLS

Dusters Completed in Crane And Concho Counties

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, April 23.—Addition of three producers in Crane county, two in Upton county and one in Winkler and preparations to open four producers on the Yates dome in eastern Pecos county with the completion of the Illinois Pipeline company's six-inch, 28-mile line to McCamey were principal oil developments this week in the Edwards plateau and Trans-Pecos sections of West Texas. One abandonment each in Crane and Concho counties was partly offset by three new locations in Pecos county.

Initial production rating 300 barrels daily was made by Humble's Nos. 5 and 7 university in the Church-Fields area in Northern Crane county from 3001 and 2592 feet, respectively. At the same time Humble's No. 8 university was drilling at 2854 feet and No. 6 university was making hole at 2814 feet. Humble production on university lands Monday was 6861 barrels. The other Crane county producer was Simms-Atlantic's No. 1D university, which gauged 778.56 barrels in 24 hours and was drilling at 2880 feet. Simms-Atlantic's No. 5A was drilling at 2990 feet in brown lime. No. 6A was drilling at 2701 feet in anhydrite. No. 7A was drilling in anhydrite at 2734 feet. No. 8A was rigging up.

Daily Production

Daily production of Simms-Atlantic wells in the Church-Fields area early in the week were as follows: No. 1A university, 400 barrels; No. 2A university, 1309 barrels under air compression; No. 3A university, 1259.34 barrels; No. 4A university, 1262 barrels. Simms No. 1 Shirley was pumping 100 barrels daily. No. 2 Shirley was making 30.48 barrels daily and No. 3 was gauging 20 barrels daily. Production on the Simms-Atlantic's A lease in the Church-Fields area was averaging 4,212.56 barrels daily and the total was 205,-672.28 barrels. On the D lease total production daily was 778.56, with the total 2187.96 barrels. On the D lease total production daily was 778.56, with the total 2187.56 barrels with 1513.84 in storage.

Roxana brought in two producers in Upton county. Its No. 19 Bowen, drilling in hard lime at 2153 feet, swabbed 102 barrels in six hours and still had 506 feet of oil in the hole. No. 21 Bowen, drilling at 2162 feet in light brown lime, swabbed 88 barrels in 12 hours. Roxana No. 15 Bowen, with a total depth of 2104 feet, was driving in lead wool. No. 16 Bowen was drilling in lime at 1740 feet. No. 22 Bowen was making hole at 2025 feet in hard lime. No. 24 Bowen was drilling at 610 in lime and No. 26 Bowen at 400 feet in red beds. Roxana production in the Crane-Upton area was averaging 4598 barrels daily, of which 3886 barrels was from the Bowen lease, 641 from the Hughes least and 71 barrels from the Estep lease.

Crane County Duster

Prairie's No. 1C Lane in Upton struck another showing of oil from 1962 to 1965 feet and was standing 105 feet in oil. Marland's No. 3 Burleson Upton county's deepest test, was fishing for tools at 4320 feet. One of the week's abandonments was that of Duffy and others' No. 1 Griffin in Crance county at 2301 feet. Another was Mullins Davis and others No. 1 Martin in Concho county at 2274 feet. Independent's No. 1 Hendricks in Winkler county ran six-inch casing to 2515 feet, after spraying 12 barrels of oil daily at 2425 feet. It is 1600 feet west of the Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company's No. 1 Hendricks, Winkler county discovery producer. A week earlier it struck 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Test Pipeline

The Illinois' pipeline from the Yates field to McCamey was being tested preparatory to running the first oil. When this is done the four producers of the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental will be opened. Their highest gauge has been 9099 barrels in 24 hours and lately the wells have been pinched in to an hour a day. The Illinois is under contract to furnish 5000 barrels daily to the Humble's refinery at McCamey, which has a daily capacity of 10,000 barrels.

The three locations in Pecos county were by the Clean Petroleum company, as follows: No. 1 Harrell in the southeast quarter of section 98, block T. C. A. 2; No. 1 Sherbino, in the northwest quarter of section 31; block C-4, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, and the third one in the southwest quarter of section 82, block B2, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey. The tests are about five miles apart and begin about 15 miles south and west of the Yates producing area.

Big Royalty Deal

A $95,000 royalty deal was recorded during the week in Winkler county when H. E. Lemar of San Angelo bought from J. A. Haley, ranchman, part of the royalty under 18 sections, beginning three miles northwest of the discovery well and in the trend being played toward Artesia, N. M.

OPERATIONS SLUMP

All Texas Fields Contribute To Drilling Decrease.

Oil operations in the Oklahoma, Kansas and North Texas areas of the Mid-Continent field dropped to the new low figure of 3,685 during the week just ended, the Oil Weekly will say. This figure is 120 less than the previous week and is due to a proportionate decrease in all areas.

In Texas, all districts contributed to the decrease there. The largest falling off was reported by the Panhandle district, which went from 533, the figure for the previous week, to 506, the figure for the past seven-day period.

NETHERTON RANCH

A mile and a half northwest of the Burns-Turbeville pool in North Archer county, the Texas Company and Consolidated Oil company have made location to drill a joint wildcat test on the Netherton ranch. The location is in the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of block 104, A. T. N. C. L. survey.

LESS OIL TO STORAGE.

A study of crude runs in the Panhandle field the past fiscal week revealed the fact that less production is now going to storage than for many weeks.

The daily runs to storage approximated 68,000 barrels, where it has been as high as 90,000 barrels a day.

North Texas Gasoline Stocks On April 15 Totalled 19,000,000 Gallons

The 41 refineries in North Texas for the past fiscal month, having a rated capacity of 144,300 barrels a day, with 15,750 barrels of cracking capacity, actually ran 67,298 barrels of crude oil and 4630 barrels of other oils.

The 7,322,076 gallons of gasoline that they made during the week of April 8, figured 86.4 per cent by straight run; 11.1 per cent by cracking and 2.5 per cent from natural gasoline.

These refineries had gasoline stocks of 18,672,753 gallons, a small decline over the week of April 1, but for the week ended April 15 these stocks jumped to 19,319,349 gallons. This was due to the soft condition of the spot gasoline market. Shipments totalled 6,676,280 gallons, a slight loss.

The 124 active Mid-Continent refineries for the month from March 25 to April 15 manufactured 136,-602,608 gallons of gasoline; 24,-648,497 gallons of kerosene; 5,410,-722 gallons of stove distillate; 32,-976,981 gallons of gas oil, and 113,722,194 gallons of fuel oil. Only in gasoline and distillate was a decline noted.

Gasoline Is Softer

A survey of North Texas refinery markets shows gasoline still soft, with a tendency to rock along. The same condition prevails in Oklahoma, Kansas and Chicago group territories. The reduction of two cents a gallon in tankwagon and service station price in Ohio did not help matters.

NEW WELLS IN JACK

Two new wells are to be put down in Jack county at once. Prairie Oil and Gas company will test out the territory south of the Buttram pool in No. 1 Kuykendall, located in the northwest corner of the William Scott survey, abstract 599.

The Holman Heirs have spudded in their No. 1 fee, 250 feet from the south and east lines of the P. H. Rice survey, abstract 1442.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

Harry Hines' No. 1 Gandy, near Mount Vernon in Franklin county, has been abandoned as a dry hole at a depth of 3209 feet.

MUST IMPORT OIL

The Atlantic seaboard states, with their countless oil refineries, have to ship oil in from all over the United States to supply their wants, says a report following an analysis by the bureau of mines. During 1925 it was necessary to bring in 94.7 per cent of the crude oil used in the refineries, 35 per cent of the gasoline consumed and 44 per cent of the gas oil. From the Mid-Continent field, 16,245,675 or 15.31 per cent was brought in by pipe lines, the report states.

NORTH YOUNG COUNTY

Texas Company's No. 1 W. G. Leberman in section 154, T. E. & L. survey, North Young county, has been abandoned as a dry hole at 1102 feet.

McLaughlin Test May Result In New 'Bend' Pool

Wilbarger county's next oil field is what many oil men believe will be the result of the wildcat being started in the northeastern part of Wilbarger county by McLaughlin Brothers on the Guyer farm.

The derrick has been built and machinery is being assembled in block 121, Waggoner colony land for the test which is approximately eight miles northwest of Electra and an equal distance northeast of Harrold.

Two tests have been drilled in the past in the bend of Red river in which the McLaughlin wildcat is to be put down and each of them has encountered good showings of oil. One of them, northwest of the McLaughlin lease, found more than ten feet of oil sand and had to be abandoned on account of casing trouble.

Remembering that the Northwest field was condemned territory before being proven, operators who are following this area see promise in the fact that the new test is being put down in a bend of Red river very similar to that in which the Northwest field is located. A favorable report has been made by geologists who worked the territory.

OIL ACTIVITY IN HASKELL

Seven Tests Being Put Down Near County Seat

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, April 23.—Oil development in Haskell county is taking on an active turn and it is hoped that production will be uncovered this year. Wells now drilling or to be spudded in within a few days are:

Moody Oil company 15 miles southeast of Haskell on the Reynolds Land and Cattle company tract is drilling at 1900 feet.

Stewart will spud in four miles north of Haskell on the Tompkins land within the week.

Overlees and Clapton will spud in next week, six miles west of Haskell on the Spurlock farm. They will also spud in at the same time 14 miles southwest of Haskell on the Putnam farm.

Fitzsimmons et al are placing material on the ground for two wells on the Scott ranch two miles southeast of Haskell. It is understood they will spud in May 1.

Harry Hartz Proved It!

5,000 miles in less than 5,000 minutes

IN a sensational test made at Culver City, California, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, The Commander, a strictly stock enclosed car, ran 5,000 miles in 4,909 minutes, total elapsed time—better than mile-a-minute speed for 81 consecutive hours and 49 minutes—the fastest speed for the farthest distance ever attained by any stock car!

Repairs Negligible

This is equivalent in stress and strain to 25,000 miles of ordinary driving. Yet in establishing this and nine intervening world records, the only replacements and repairs necessary on The Commander were three grease cups (damaged by hasty greasing), one spark plug, and one tire change.

Champion Driver Praises Champion Car

Harry Hartz had bought a Commander Victoria for his personal car prior to his participation in the establishment of ten new world records. So there is real knowledge back of his statement that The Studebaker Commander will "maintain any given speed up to sixty-five miles per hour, longer, more smoothly and at less expense per hour traveled for gasoline, oil and repairs than any other stock automobile now being built in the United States."

Drive Commander Yourself

To know the real thrill of Studebaker Big Six performance, its flashing speed, giant power, and finger-tip ease of handling, you must drive a Commander yourself. Only with your own hands on the wheel, your own foot on the throttle, can you fully appreciate why the Studebaker Big Six now far out-sells the combined totals of all other cars in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower—why we say and how we prove that The Commander will out-perform and out-live any other car, six or eight, selling for less than $2500.

An exact duplicate of the champion Commander is waiting for you at our show room. See it—drive it—today.

Commander Models and their One-Profit Prices

Prices f. o. b. factory; including front and rear bumpers; snubbers and $100 worth of extra equipment. Other Studebaker and Erskine models range in price from $945 to $2245.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

The state of Texas, County of Wichita:

Whereas, the Crystal Petroleum and Refining company, did on the 21st day of September, A. D. 1925, execute a deed of trust to W. R. Hill, trustee, for the benefit of the Farmers State bank of Burkburnett, Texas, to secure a note in the principal sum of Seven Thousand ($7000.00) Dollars, dated August 10th, 1925, due ninety days after date, providing for interest and attorneys fees, said deed of trust covering three tracts of land located west of the M. K. and T. Railway company right of way adjoining the Chas. F. Noble Oil and Gas company plant in Burkburnett, Texas, together with all improvements thereon, consisting of the refining plant, loading rack and other equipment, said plant being known as the Crystal Petroleum and Refining company plant, and said three tracts of land being particularly described in the deed of trust which is of record in Volume 55, page 217, of the deed of trust records of Wichita County, Texas, to which reference is here made for a full and complete description; and

Whereas said indebtedness, principal, interest and attorney's fees, secured by said deed of trust is now past due and unpaid and the Farmers State bank of Burkburnett has requested the trustee to sell the property as prescribed by the terms of said deed of trust;

Now, I, the said W. R. Hill, trustee as aforesaid, do hereby give notice that I will sell the property described in said deed of trust and above described, at public outcry at the court house door of Wichita County, Texas, in the City of Wichita Falls, on the first Tuesday of May, A. D. 1927, same being the third day of May, 1927; said sale to be made for cash to the highest bidder; and I will make due conveyance in keeping with the terms of said deed of trust.

This sale is also made subject to the chattel moragage lien covering certain of the personal property, which chattel lien was given to secure Twelve Hundred and Fifty ($1250.00) Dollars, besides interest and attorneys fees, dated February 26th, 1926.

Witness my hand this the 9th day of April, A. D. 1927.

W. R. HILL,

BY FRED R. RIPLEY

Greater profits for the United States rubber industries as a whole are expected this year. If this hope is realized, and undoubtedly it will, it will be due chiefly to a stabilized raw-materials market and not to any increase in sales volume.

In the year just closed the large companies showed sales volumes substantially above those for 1925. But not one of the five leading companies was able to show a net profit of 5 per cent on their sales.

It is impossible to attribute the increased dollar volume to gains in unit sales entirely for mechanical and footwear prices were at high levels during the greater part of the year and many of these items were not readjusted to present raw material costs until the start of the current year.

Tire prices were reduced three times during 1925 while shipments of this product for the first 10 months of 1926 were 1,379,858 tires less than for the same period in 1925.

In spite of these conditions profits were small, owing to investor losses on crude rubber. Deflation in this line is about completed with the result that most companies were able to start 1926 with rubber bought at current prices.

Through formation of the rubber pool there is ample assurance that there will be no drastic increase in these costs. The cotton market also is on a much more stable basis and several of the larger companies have protected themselves on the cost of this commodity also, which is the second largest raw-material factor in the industry.

Much is expected as a result of the formation of a pool or cooperative buying organization among the American companies. Among the members are the United States, Goodyear, Fisk, Firestone, Goodrich, Kelly-Springfield and Ajax companies from the rubber industry and the General Motors, Willys-Overland, Dodge, Packard, Studebaker, Chrysler and Mack companies from the motor group.

This pool was formed to finance the purchase of large quantities of crude rubber to be held in reserve against a runaway price situation brought about through manipulation abroad. It is possible for the pool to maintain a supply of from 30,000 to 50,000 tons of rubber in stock.

The rubber market price is stiffening and 50-cent rubber is a possibility this year, but American manufacturers are confident that with reserve supply of crude material to draw from they are safe from the market soaring suddenly and disastrously.

Profits in 1926 suffered from this runaway price condition. Manufacture had to be carried on with raw materials at high levels while prices had to be cut in an effort to stimulate business.

This year, however, the industry is receiving more encouragement. The rubber market is stiffening and this, undoubtedly, will go far toward offsetting the rumors current that another cut in tire prices is imminent.

At the present time rubber plantations are exporting under a 70 per cent allowance but there is a possibility that this will be reduced to a 60 per cent basis at the end of this month.

Tire companies are now in the midst of their busy season and are beginning to absorb their unused coupon quotas. This tends to improve the statistical position of the rubber market. At the beginning of March, 1926, London stocks of crude rubber stood at 58,659 tons. This compares with a low figure of 3869 tons at the end of November, 1925.

With these conditions existing it is small wonder that American rubber companies entered 1927 with greater confidence that they would be able to enjoy more comfortable profits this year than last.

THE MARKET TRENDOMETER

The money market is proving a valued ally of bullish interests in the current market. Bears are finding it difficult to make any great inroads against such a liberal supply of funds. The following issues show, to a certain extent, the solidity of the present bull market:

American Tobacco.
Bethlehem Steel.
Canadian Pacific.
Cudahy Packing.
Eastman Kodak.
Fisk Rubber.
Gulf States Steel.
International Nickel.
Montana Power.

Dale and Moore On Trial Monday

Two Ousted Texas Solons Face Bribe Charge

AUSTIN, April 23. (AP)—Former Representatives F. A. Dale of Bonham and H. H. Moore of Cooper, expelled from the house of the 40th legislature and indicted by the Travis county grand jury of bribery charges, are scheduled to go on trial here Monday in criminal district court.

Twenty-four witnesses have been called, most of them for the state. R. L. Bobbitt of Laredo, speaker of the 40th house; Ranger Captains Frank Hamer and Tom Hickman and C. D. Waide, Houston newspaper; are among those subpoenaed by the prosecution.

Defense has called Representative W. R. Poage of Waco, Lane Corley of Paris and Representative E. R. Hinks of Giddins. Corley and Hinks, who acted as judge in in the house expulsion hearing against Dale and Moore, also were listed as among the state's witnesses.

Prosecuting testimony in the house hearing was that Dale, with Moore's concurrence, accepted a "planted" bribe of $1000 from W. W. Chamberlin, Houston optometrist, to aid in defeat of a bill introduced by Moore seeking to tax stationary optometrists. Chamberlin was exonerated of blame by the house.

RAIL STOCKS LEAD ADVANCE

Oil Operators Industry Heads Buying "Katy"

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Stocks which have been persistently pointed out to investors and speculators in this column of late were the only strong issues on the two-hour session in Wall street today. Delaware & Hudson rose seven points to a new high and a big demand prevailed for Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading and Frisco and San Francisco. Stocks of this calibre are the ones to buy at present along with other seasoned investment issues. While heavy profit-taking developed in General Motors offerings were taken on good style. Marland Oil, Phillips and Standard of California reached new lows for the year. Selling of Marland Oil followed publication of a telegram to this writer by E. W. Marland, president of the company in which he pointed out the unfavorable conditions existing in the industry today. Marland Oil will probably put or pass its dividend. Foreign exchange was quiet. So, too, were commodities.

Steady buying is taking place in Lima locomotive. This stock may be the new leader of the equipments. The company is one of the strongest financially of any of the equipment companies in the United States. The stock is closely held and has a book value double that of its selling price. Lima has an efficient management and is part of the group controlling in Ohio. This stock should give a good account of itself because of its hidden assets and stupendous earnings.

Buying of Delaware & Hudson was of the investment calibre and followed the rosy prospects for the stock pointed out here today. A banker says that a price of $300 for the stock will be cheap. When account is taken of all of the company's valuable assets and valuable railroad property and comparing it with the stock of Delaware, Lackawana & Western which is now selling at the equivalent of about $1000 a share, the $300 looks small for the Delaware & Hudson. The same interests that have put Lackawana in its position it is now in are big buyers of D. & H.

New York Central steamed past 151. The deal is said to be progressing regarding the Cleveland terminal situation and the deal to take over the "Big Four" minority stock and that of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, may put the price of New York Central up to a new level far above recent optimistic predictions. The secret of the success of the New York Central is the large amount of stock owned by the dominant interests who see to it that there is no waste or extravagance on the part of the management.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas—the "Katy"—led the southwest stocks. The accumulation going on in the stocks will be a surprise to certain banking interests when they realize how much stock has been bought by rich oil operators and big industrial captains of the country.

Steel closed higher. This stock has remained strong as the rosy predictions of Judge Gary regarding dividends on the new stock and the big buying for the account of Pittsburgh interest. The latter predict that by October steel will be selling in the $200-a-share class on account of the diversified business and the increased demand likely to appear in the late spring and summer. The corporation's business this year will be big because of the stupendous amount of public work by the government and private work coming in from all over. The Pacific coast is now experiencing a boom from north of Vancouver down to San Diego.

Selling developed in Briggs because of the damage to the company's plant. Murry body continued to reflect buying which has been in progress from 10 up. Cast iron pipe responded to rumors of much higher prices for the issue. Nickel and Case continued higher.

THIS LAW GOVERNS PRICE

THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND RULES PRICE WITH AN IRON HAND. REAL ESTATE PRICES RESPOND DIRECTLY TO IT

Some years ago new houses were built faster than the existing ones became obsolete. Supply exeeds demand and the prices were low. Now the conditions are reversed. An ever-increasing population has created a tremendous demand. That will take years.

There are not enough homes in Wichita Falls. Years of inactivity must be overcome before supply can begin to meet demand. Real estate prices have thus been stabilized by law of supply and demand—a law which admits no exceptions. Hence, now is a good time to buy a home. Your investment is protected against depreciation.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, April 23. (AP)—Chief speculative interest in today's brief session of the stock market switched from the industrials to the rails, several of which attained record high prices. The general list showed the same irregularity which has characterized sessions of the past few weeks, with aggressive bullish demonstrations in a few specialties being counteracted by the renewed weakness of the oils and motors.

Week-end business and trade reviews disclosed considerable irregularity with reports of a further decline in steel production as one of the chief items. The credit situation continues easy although some tightening may be expected next week in preparation for month-end settlements.

Heavy accumulation of the rails presumably was in anticipation of the appearance of several excellent March earnings statements next week. Anthracite coalers led the advance, Delaware and Hudson soaring 6¾ points to 207¼, the highest price since 1907, and then easing to 206 on realizing. Reading, Lehigh Valley and Baltimore and Ohio also reached new high ground, as did Atchison, Frisco common, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, "Katy" common and Texas and Pacific. Atchison and Frisco lost all their gains and closed fractionally lower.

Persistent liquidation of the oils, inspired by the widespread unsettlement in the industry as the result of over-production, sent Mariand, Phillips, Skelly and Standard Oil of California to new low levels for the year. E. W. Marland's statement that prices of crude already are below the cost of production, and that it would not help the industry to cut prices further probably inspired some of the selling.

Renewed selling of the motors may have been inspired by the publication of the annual report of the Yellow Truck and Coach company, which showed a net profit of $750,178 as compared with $2,330,748 in 1925. After payment of preferred dividends there was left a deficit of $1,003,322. General Motors showed a net loss of 2¾ at 193¼ and Mack Trucks and Nash each yielded about a point.

A further advance in Italian lire to around 5.28 cents, the highest since May, 1922, was the only change of consequence in the foreign exchange market.

General sterling ruled around $4.85¾ and French francs remained firm about 3.91 cents.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, April 23. (AP)—A renewal of buying in the cotton market today followed and prices for the more active new crop months made new high records on the Mississippi valley situation, combined with reports of frosts in the eastern belt and prospects for showers or rains in some western belt sections. July sold up to 18.25 and December to 15.75, or 29 to 36 points net higher. July closed at 15.26, the general market closing steady at net advances of 23 to 24 points.

The market showed considerable strength in earlier trading. The opening was firm, at an advance of five to 10 points on overnight reports emphasizing the seriousness of the Mississippi valley flood situation and the relatively firm showing of Liverpool cables. A good deal of realizing was absorbed by a broadening commission house demand, while some trade buying also was reported on the advance, which carried active months about 23 to 30 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

May and July did not quite recover to the high levels of last Thursday, but May sold up to 15.62, while October and December new highs for the movement, October selling at 13.56. These prices attracted more realizing, but buying was stimulated by the low temperatures in the eastern belt and the official forecast for showers or rains in parts of Arkansas, Oklahoma and North Texas. Offerings were absorbed on comparatively moderate setbacks, and while the volume of business turned off somewhat, the market was fairly active in late trading. Last prices were only five to six points off from the best.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23. (AP)—Supported by both higher Liverpool cables and more serious flood news, the cotton market advanced sharply in the abbreviated Saturday session, but profit taking in the final half hour cut down the initial gains to a net advance of 19 to 21 points.

Opening active at an advance of 13 to 17 points, prices continued to climb until they were 28 to 30 points over Friday's last figures, when longs, taking profit over the week-end caused a reaction of nine points.

Liverpool registered six to 11 points better than due on a belated realization of the Mississippi valley flood situation. After the initial gain after the opening here, a dip carried July to 15.07 and October to 15.33. The rally, which followed took all position to the highs of the season. The slight reaction in the late trading was due to realizing and the undertone remained firm at the close.

Canadian Oasis For Volsteadians

By Universal Service.

TORONTO, April 23.—After 19 dry years, liquor will commence its legal flow in Ontario on May 16. D. R. Hanna, head of the control board, officially announced today. It will be a much restricted flow for the first few weeks as only stores in the larger centers will be ready in time. It will be impossible, Mr. Hanna said, to have full facilities ready until some time in June.

Unexpected barriers to free sale to American tourists were predicted by Mr. Hanna. Restrictions will be placed in the way of the thirsty from the land of the Volstead who come across for the sole purpose of refreshment.

Only legitimate tourists will be served. Mr. Hanna said, and it will be necessary for the tourist seeking a transient permit to give his home address, his address in Canada and the reasons and duration of his visit.

MARKET GOSSIP

J. R. Baldwin and Co., brokers, basement Bob Waggoner building, today received the following from New York, New Orleans and Chicago connections:

WEEKLY GRAIN LETTER.

CHICAGO, April 23.—A threat of damage to winter wheat by freezing temperatures in the southwest, together with a marked improvement in export demand made for a higher market most of the week. The new crop futures showed more strength relatively than the May, the former reaching the highest price level for over a month. There was considerable flood damage reported in the Mississippi valley and some complaints of excessive moisture were received from other sections. On Wednesday night temperatures dropped to below the freezing point as far south as northern Oklahoma and caused a great deal of apprehension, est posted people expressed the opinion that damage was probable because the wheat is not yet jointed and on the other hand some benefit might have accrued through the checking of rank growth in the eastern part of Kansas wher the size of the plant was excessive for its age. Optimists in other sections saw the killing of insects by the frost as a favorable development. There will be more or less uncertainty as to the result of the frost until the weather again becomes warm. Good rains were received in the western part of Kansas where they were badly needed. Spring wheat seeding is being delayed on both sides of the international line. There is yet ample time remaining to plant the crop, but clear, warm weather to take the place of the present wet, cold weather is much to eb desired in the spring wheat territory. Export demand broadened considerably. While most of the grain sold abroad consisted of Manitobas, there were some fair amounts of United States varieties, mostly red winters included. European stocks are small, and constant buying will be necessary for several months until their crops are harvested. Many good judges of conditions feel that the May only will show relative to the new crop futures, and a gradual readjustment is expected. Farmers in the west still hold fairly good amounts of wheat which they are showing a disposition to sell on the present bulge. A return to seasonable weather and assurance that no damage to the new crop resulted from the freeze probably will encourage farmers to dispose of their wheat more freely. Would be cautious about following bulges, but continue to advise the purchase of new crop futures on all good setbacks.

Corn improved in price partially in sympathy with wheat. There was no particular change in the shipping demand which is slow. There some fairly large local speculative buying based on the belief that deliveries on May contracts would be small because the hedges had been changed over to July at a good carrying charge. The bad weather has checked receipts and very little corn is being offered, although the indications that they will increase, should prices work any higher. Field work is being delayed particularly all over the belt by wet weather and some discussion is going on as to the possibility of a delay in corn planting. Stocks are still heavy everywhere and are decreasing only moderately. We believe sellers on hard spots will have the advantage for some time to come.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—The situation in cotton steadily has grown bullish during the last week, new crop prospects becoming worse on the one hand while, on the other, the movement of old crop cotton into consumption has been steadily large. The big feature has been the flood conditions in the central belt and at the end of the week it is estimated that from 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 acres of cotton lands are under water, representing a territory which last season produced 1,500,000 bales of cotton. These conditions are very unfortunate for, not only are farmers in the flooded areas losing livestock and houses but they are being put into such a state of demoralization that it is difficult to conceive of their entering heartily into the spirit of growing cotton when the waters recede.

The weather over the belt of late has been unsatisfactory on the whole. Too much rain has fallen in the northwestern and north central portions of the belt and has prevented plowing and planting where there has been no actual floods. In the eastern belt too little rain has fallen but at the same time, it is in the eastern belt that the best crop prospects are being found. Compared with the start of the crop of last year, the crop this year is getting a most unsatisfactory start and, moreover, it is getting into shape where should May turn off a wet month, the outlook would turn really disastrous. In many seasons May is called to critical month and it looks as if it will have to be called the critical month of this season.

Trade conditions are satisfactory enough on this side of the water, although mills in the Lancashire district of England are not doing well and the continent of Europe reports rather slow business. World mill takings continue very large this week, amounting to 311,000 bales against 278,000 this week last year and 240,000 this week two years ago. Takings thus far season total 14,017,000 bales against 12,425,000 to the same date a year ago and 11,738,000 to the same date two years ago. We thmink these takings are a pretty fair measure of consumption of about 16,500,000 bales.

Cotton looks higher to us because each of the new season's days bring highly unsatisfactory new crop conditions while the off-take of the old crop continues on a record-breaking scale. We think the market should be bought on all dips, no matter what their cause.

BLUE CURTAIN PLAY MAY 3

Junior College Club To Close Season

"Expressing Willie," a recent release from the New York stage, written by the well-known contemporary dramatist, Rachel Crothers, will be offered at the Junior College auditorium Tuesday night, May 3, by the Blue Curtain Players of the Junior College as the final full length play of the Junior College dramatic season.

Climax of Season.

Rehearsals have been progressing nicely for a week, according to Miss Juanita Kinsey, director of dramatics for the club.

Miss Kinsey declared Saturday that she felt no hesitation in calling the play the climaxing performance of the two-year's of the life of the Blue Curtain club. The play is a more difficult one to act and to stage than any before presented here, according to the director, and has more actual audience appeal to it than most ordinary stage comedies. It has both serious philosophy and fun-giving comedy in it.

The story centers around Willie Smith, a boy with much money and consequently much attention from aspiring feminity turned to conspiring feminity. Edward Smith, well known from several former high school and college successes, will play the part of "Willie."

Experienced Cast.

Every part in the play is being carried by some student fully tried in similar roles. Dorothy Reed plays the role of Mother Smith, much concerned over her son. Miss Reed's thorough training fits her admirably for the place. Mary Peters, in the part of Minnie, early Turberville sweetheart of Willie, before he made all his money in the tooth paste industry, again has the opportunity to display her ability to portray naivete and rusticity. Dolores Peavy, as the vivacious vamp, and Emmett Bauknight, as the dignified and correct Simpson the butler, offer a delightful contrast in the setting of the story. Isadore Cohen plays the flamboyant Talliaferro, young artist.

Mildred Mays, president of the Blue Curtain, plays the part of Dolly Cadwallader, middle-aged matron ambitious to hit the select in society. Weldon Carter plays the meek husband of Dolly, who is being pushed into undesired social situations by his ambitious spouse.

Furniture Swindler Eludes Capture, But "We'll Get Him," Says Morgan

After cold trailing for almost an entire week in an effort to capture a man alleged to have swindled three local firms out of $800 worth of furniture, Constable Frank Morgan was back in the city Saturday and admitted that the mystery of the man's whereabouts was as deep as when he started.

The constable, however, declared that he had not quit the alleged swindler's trail and would stay with it until he had his man or had assured himself that the case is hopeless.

Takes Furniture.

The man, believed to have come here from Bonger because of evidence obtained on the license number of a Chevrolet truck he was driving, purchased approximately $800 worth of furniture from three stores, buying on the installment plan in each instance and paying $105 in first payments, Mr. Morgan stated.

A house on Buchanan street was rented by the man under a different name from that under which he bought the furniture and the three furniture purchases were stored in the house. The next day the furniture was loaded in the truck and the man pulled out.

Constable Morgan went to the Nocona oil fields on a tip received here and after working in that territory two days, driving through mud when he could and being pulled when he could not drive, he went to Fort Worth confident that he had at last found his man.

Starts Over.

A truck similar to the one described to Mr. Morgan here was found at a Fort Worth residence partly loaded with furniture but the furniture did not tally with that the man had bought here.

In the meantime, Mr. Morgan stated, his deputies had followed out other clues near here having found each of them without foundation and officers in the Panhandle had advised that the man had not come that way.

Mr. Morgan declared that it was one of the most remarkable cases he had ever worked on, adding that he was preparing to start the chase anew.

UNIFORM OIL TAX SOUGHT

Judges of Six Counties Discuss Plan

Discussion of plans for a uniform system of making tax assessments on oil was held Saturday in the court house at a meeting of county judges and county commissioners from six counties in Northwest Texas.

The counties represented were: Wichita, Jack, Archer, Wilbarger, Clay and Baylor.

E. M. Hooper, auditor of Archer county and former county judge of that county, presided at the meeting.

Although no decision as to a uniform plan was made during the meeting nevertheless after several officials had made short talks it was the consensus of opinion that a plan would be devised at the next meeting which will be held in the near future.

Heretofore each county has used its own system in arriving at the value of oil in storage tanks on Jan. 1. It has been the opinion of officials of counties in which oil is one of the principal sources of income that it would be more satisfactory if all the counties used a uniform system in arriving at the oil values.

NEGRESS INJURED

Motorcycle Strikes Woman At Street Intersection

Beatrice McDonald, 18, negress, was painfully injured late Saturday afternoon when she was struck and knocked down by a motorcycle at Ninth and Indiana streets.

Floyd Anderson who was riding the motorcycle reported to police after the accident but was declared blameless by Traffic Officer G. W. Wright, who witnessed the accident.

The woman was carried to the General hospital in ambulance but physicians stated that she was apparently unhurt although hysterical from the shock. She is painfully bruised on her right hip and elbow.

According to Officer Wright the traffic signal changed just as the woman stepped from the northeast corner of the intersection and in dodging an automobile she stepped into the path of the motorcycle, Anderson was behind an automobile and did not see the woman in time to stop, the officer stated.

Boy Scout News

TROOP 100.

S. S. S. Glassford, Troop One Hundred, met Thursday night at 7:30 at the Episcopal Parish House. The meeting opened with roll call, each scout giving the salute to Joe Barnhart, third junior officer.

Howard Nichols made an announcement regarding the boat for the Sea Scouts, which has been ordered.

Fred Adams was elected coxswain of the boat and appointed the following officers: Stewart, Mike Donegan; Yeoman, Howard Nichols; pharmacist, Joe Barnhart; waterman, Clay Neal; signalman, Rollin Dixon; carpenter, J. D. Ferguson; machinist, Pierpont Brand; sailmaker, Bill Edwards.

A talk was made by Howard Nichols on the duties of the newly-elected officers.

Joe Barnhart gave a report of a recent interview with Leonard Grayson, chairman of the Sea Scout committee on the executive board, regarding the Sea Scout boat. The boat, which has been ordered, will come knocked down and the Sea Scouts will receive a great deal of experience by putting the boat together. The boat will be temporarily placed on Lake Wichita but if a waterfront can be secured at Diversion Lake the boat will be moved there later. The crew will consist of nine men.

The meeting was closed with the repeating of the troop motto: "Greater Love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for a friend."

TROOP THIRTEEN.

Troop Thirteen, "Pathfinders," held their regular meeting Wednesday night in spite of the downpour of rain. Six scouts were present and plans were made for passing of tests Saturday and a hike Sunday.

Troop Thirteen have announced that they will be at the jamboree, April 29 with "flying colors."

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Scoutmaster Bill McClure, who is in charge of the knife and axe contest at the Jamboree, has announced that only a few questions will be asked and that most of the contest will consist of demonstrations of the use of knife and axe. Mr. McClure announced that the slightest error on the part of a contestant would rule him out, as it is to be a very strict contest.

TROOP EIGHT.

Troop Eight, Gibson McLarry, scoutmaster, held their regular meeting at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church Friday night, with the scoutmaster in charge. The meeting was opened with the pledge of allegiance and the scout oath and laws.

Roll call followed, each scout, upon hearing his name called, rising and giving an account of his good turns during the past week. Roll call revealed that there were sixteen scouts and two visitors present.

Plans were made for repairs on the troop hall and for the purchase of boxing gloves and other articles to be used in play period.

Tenderfoot and second class tests were passed and it was found that several scouts of the troop are prepared to go before board of review Monday night.

A short time was spent cleaning up the troop hall, trapping the American flag and the troop flag in the correct position.

The game of bag race was played, with the side of which Centrelle Mitchell was captain, winning. Also, polaco was played several times, with Graham Fears first, Centrelle Mitchell second, and Durcard Whatley, third.

The meeting closed with the pledge of allegiance, the scout oath and laws.

BOARD OF REVIEW.

Headquarters expects the largest board of review ever held in this city Monday and Tuesday, April 25 and 26. Board will be held at scout headquarters Monday at 5:30 for second and first class and Tuesday, at the same time and place, for merit badges. Competition for the advancements pennant, to be awarded at the jamboree, is keen.

TROOP THREE.

Troop Three, Lee Loeffler, scoutmaster, held their regular meeting at the First Methodist church Friday night. The meeting opened with assembly, blown by the troop bugler, J. G. Dixon.

After a collection of dues, James Neal Walker read the scoutmasters' bulletin and the scoutmaster commented on the important announcements. All scouts were urged to get their uniforms by next Friday night so as to make a good showing at the Jamboree. Count was taken, and the troop will be out to be in the parade for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention.

The troop felt honored to have as their guest, Mrs. R. C. Williamson, mother of Springer Williams, senior patrol leader and Eagle Scout.

Events for the Jamboree were practiced. A contest was held in the scout laws, with James Walker of the Lion patrol winning. The next event practiced was compass. Each patrol sent out a man and Harold Kilmore, scout of the Lion patrol, won. History of the flag was third and Homer Lee of the Black Bear patrol was the winner. The flint and steel contest was between Rollin Dixon and Oscar Thornton with Rollin Dixon the victor. It was announced that Harold Kimmell and J. G. Dixon will enter the bugling contest and compete for the silver-plated Rexcraft bugle.

Taps was blown by the troop bugler, J. G. Dixon, and the meeting closed with the scoutmasters' benediction.

JAMBOREE.

The greatest Jamboree yet will be held Friday, April 29, at the Floral Presbyterian church. There are now twenty-three troops in the city and each of them is figuring on entering every contest it can win, if possible, but if it is not possible to win, to at least be a good loser.

At a meeting of the Scoutmasters' Association recently it was decided that a scoutmaster would be put in charge of each contest, this scoutmaster to work out the manner of putting on the contest according to his ideas. John Tevis, scoutmaster of Troop Four, will have charge of the scout laws; Leo Cook, scoutmaster of the Sea scout troop will have charge of the compass; A. King Davis, scoutmaster of Troop Fifteen, Kenneth Erwin, scoutmaster of Troop Sixteen, and Floyd Billingsley, scoutmaster of Troop Eleven, will be in charge of the flint and steel contest; D. M. Burgan, scoutmaster of Troop Nine, will be in charge of the history of the flag, and Bill McClure, scoutmaster of Troop Two, will have charge of the knife and axe contest.

In addition to these events pennants will be awarded to the troop having made the most advancements since January 1, the troop having the best attendance at the Jamboree, the troop having the most boys in uniform, and the troop having the largest number of visitors present. Advancement, attendance and uniforms will be given by actual count of the visitors present for each troop. The pennants for all events are made and ready to award and headquarters has announced that any troop in the city may well be proud of such pennants as they may win.

Two other contests that are creating much interest among individuals are the bugling contest and the harmonica contest. A troop may enter as many scouts as desired in the bugle contest, the only requirements being that the scout must be in good standing, must not be over eighteen years of age, and must play a Rexcraft or a King bugle in the contest. Judges in this contest will be army men and the prize will be a beautiful silver-plated Rexcraft bugle, to be awarded by the Rexcraft Bugle company. The manner of conducting the harmonica contest will be kept a secret until the night of the jamboree as will the prize for same.

Points for the Jamboree will be as before, five, three and one, and the troop scoring the most points will have the honor of taking the big plaque to hang in the troop room until it is taken away from them. Troop Two, winners of the plaque at the last jamboree, will bring the plaque to this jamboree and have the pleasure of having it hang near them during the entire program.

Another interesting feature of the program will be the initiation ceremony to be put on by Troop Thirteen.

This will be a big occasion for scouting in Wichita Falls and the public is not only invited to attend but urged to be there and see what scouting is doing for Wichita Falls' boyhood.

TROOP TWENTY-FOUR.

Troop Twenty-four, Frank O'Neil, scoutmaster, met at the East Side Presbyterian church Friday night at 8:00 o'clock. The meeting opened with the scout oath recited in unison, which was followed by roll call. Eleven boys were present, and one excusable absence was reported.

Patrol Leaders Gray and Dorsey reported the activities at the patrol meetings held last week. It offers what neither of the patrols holds a very high opinion of the other and it will, perhaps, be necessary to arrange some contest to discover which of the two has the correct impression.

All boys present completed their tenderfoot tests.

Games requiring knowledge of the Scout laws and knots were played.

Instruction was given in parts of the second class tests and plans were made to pass parts three, six, and then 19 next Friday night.

Plans for an overnight hike to be held May 29 were discussed.

Announcement was made that patrol meetings will be held April 28, at 7:30 p. m. Also, a field morning will be held at 8:30 a. m., April 30.

CAMP.

News has been received that a Scout camp will be erected at Diversion dam and that the building and swimming pool will be under construction within the next three weeks. As soon as the building is under way a truck load of Scouts will be taken out each week-end to assist in beautifying the camp grounds. The only charges will be 25 cents for each meal. Part of the time will be spent working but there will also be plenty of time for play. The first trip will be made May 13 and applications may now be made to local headquarters.

TROUP FOUR.

Troop Four, John Tevis, scoutmaster, Radio station, "Pirates," broadcasted from its regular meeting Friday evening at the First Christian church.

The Pirates claim the honor of having the best meeting of the week. Peppiness, fun, carefree all combined made this meeting the most successful of any held in April. The meeting opened with the usual ceremonies.

The regular business of the meeting was then taken up. Scoutmaster Tevis made a few announcements from the Scoutmasters' bulletin issued by His Excellency Chief Creighton. Special attention was directed to the announcement regarding the summer camp, which will be held within the next few months by Chief Creighton at Diversion dam. Those wishing to go with the chief on May 13 to start preparing this camp were requested to sign up at Scout headquarters. Announcements were also made of the Chamber of Commerce parade, Board of review, and Boyle contest, and the Jamboree.

Much enthusiasm was shown when Wayne Hankins of the Panther patrol suggested that the Pirates form an Archery club and endeavor to dethrone Troop Twelve, who holds the Scout Archery championship of the city. Plans were made to start work on the formation of this club at once.

A visiting Scout from Taylor Cash's troop at Electra was introduced to the troop. Henry Yeargin and Harrold Carr, two candidates for membership in the troop, were present.

The following Scouts were elected to represent the troop in the Jamboree to be held next Friday evening: flint and steel, Thermon Conrey; history of the flag, John Miller; the laws, Bryant Creighton; compass, Herman Porter; field; knife and axe, Edwin White. Scoutmaster Tevis laid stress upon the importance of making an honest effort but stated that whether his Scouts won or lost he would be proud of them. "For when the Great Scorer comes to write against your name, he writes not whether you won or lost, but how you played the game."

In patrol inspection by the scoutmaster of Flying Eagle patrol was declared the winner, with the Beavor patrol running a close second. Deb Bright and Bryce Benton won the honor of being the neatest scouts.

Much enthusiasm and "pep" were shown in the Patrol yells and calls. Donald Carlington led the troop in some troop yells. Several new yells were introduced by the yell leader.

Following the custom of the Pirates, a meeting will be held at the home of the scoutmaster Sunday afternoon for an instruction period and passing tests. In this way Troop Four has two meetings each week instead of one. Also, the Sunday afternoon meeting gives the troop opportunities for hikes, baseball games, etc.

Another overnight hike was planned for Friday, May 6. The Pirates intend making this one of the best outdoor programs that has been held this year. The overnight held a week ago was a great success and the Pirates intend having an overnight about every two weeks.

Several new Scout games were introduced by the scoutmaster and were entered into by all with much zest. One was the Rattlesnake game. Two or three Scout ropes, 15 feet each, are passed through an eye hook screwed in the floor. If this is not obtainable a Scout can hold the rope in place at the middle. Bruce Benton and John Miller were the first contestants in this game and both were blindfolded, one being given a can with pebbles in it and the other a soft swatter made of newspapers. Each boy took hold of one end of the rope then—Oh boy! the fun began. One of the contestants started rattling, then tip-toed quietly about the circle, holding the rope taut. The other contestant followed in the direction of the sound and swept wildly through the air, hitting space most of the time. When all was quiet, the boy with the can "rattled" again and the other again endeavored to hit him. Two other contestants in this game were Harold White and Don Bright.

The "donkey race" proved very exciting to all present. Players travelled on all fours to the goal, there imitated a donkey kick, brayed, and ran back man style.

"Spies" also proved very popular. One patrol stood in line blindfolded, feet widely spread, toes touching the other fellow's. The opposing patrol endeavored to go under or pass under, without touching or being heard. The defending patrol kept hands to sides except when they heard or felt a spy, then touched him with the hand. The spies touched were out. The ones getting throught scored a patrol point. Flying patrol lost in this event.

Following the games, circle dismissal was carried out. This was a very pretty ceremony. The troop formed a circle around the Scout hall. The colors were brought to the center of the circle for the pledge of allegiance. The Scouts then joined hands in the Scout handclasp and repeated the oath and laws. As each law was repeated each Scout gripped the hand of his comrade. While the Scouts were in this position taps was sung, after which all repeated the Scoutmasters' Benediction.

TROOP NINE.

Troop Nine, the Rising Sun troop, had a most successful Parent's night Friday at the Floral Height Baptist church. The program opened with the bugle call, To the Colors, followed by the Flag ceremony.

A Tenderfoot Investiture service was held, when T. J. Streajey, Ralph Hines, Will D. Greer, and Robert Addison were invested with their Tenderfoot rank.

An appetizing banquet, of chili and beans, coffee, and dried peaches, was served to those present and everyone proclaimed the scoutmaster the world's best cook.

The inter-patrol contest, which has been going on for some time, was closed and the Panther patrol, Russell Franks, leader, had to wash dishes because they lost in the contest.

Parents present were: Mr. and Mrs. Bill Malone, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Franks, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Featherston, Mr. and Mrs Musick, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wynn, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ellis Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Addison, Mrs. Streajey, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. D. M. Burgan, Mr. Hines, and Mr. McClelland.

The meeting closed with the pledge of allegiance, followed by the Scoutmasters benediction.

TROOP SIXTEEN.

Troop Sixteen, Kenneth Erwin, scoutmaster, had an enjoyable time Friday night, when they met at the First Baptist church at 6 and hiked out on the Holliday Creek.

After eating a delicious supper, part of the boys passed tests while the others played an exciting game of capture the flag. Many tests in fire building, cooking and tracking were passed and two contestants for the Jamboree were chosen: Fred Barron, the flag, and Ed Fry, the laws.

TROOP FIVE.

Troop Five, James Boyle, scoutmaster, had a wonderful time Friday night, when they went to the Rod and Gun club on an overnight hike. There were nineteen boys beside the scoutmaster.

TROOP TEN.

Troop Ten, Bill Ward, scoutmaster, left Friday afternoon for Craterville Park, where they will stay until Sunday afternoon. We are sure these scouts will have a memorable time this week-end.

TROOP ELEVEN.

Troop Eleven, the "Live Wire" troop, met at 6:30 Friday evening at the Rod and Gun club, played a few games and made preparations for the night.

Supper was served at 7 o'clock and consisted of meat cooked over a camp fire, French fried potatoes and bread. After each boy had eaten more than was good for him the mats were laid and boxing, wrestling and tumbling were enjoyed.

Taps was blown at 9. Most of the boys kept outside but a few chose the club house to sleep in.

At 6:30 Saturday morning breakfast was served, consisting of bacon and eggs, coffee and post toasties.

After playing a few games the boys returned home.

TROOP TWELVE.

Troop Twelve held their regular meeting last Friday night at the Grace Methodist church. The program contained a new attraction for the members. Thirty slips of paper were handed the scouts, each slip having an order for the scout to execute. As the whistle blew all scouts read their slips and executed the order. All of this was done in pantomime, no word being spoken. This type of game gives the scouts a chance to gain practice in a wide field of scouting.

Last Saturday night and Sunday morning was spent by members of Troop Twelve in camp about three miles up the Wichita River. Through the kindness of Scout Executive Mr. Creighton, the troop used the pup tents owned by the council for shelter. It is hoped that the troop will be able to buy sixteen of these tents for their own use as the council tents will not be available hereafter.

The troop plans to have its regular archery practice Sunday afternoon at the Scotland Park. More of the members have secured long bows and it is hoped that the whole troop will be able to be in the Archery club soon.

April Showers—
Olney Convention—
Decatur's Boom—
In "Who's Who"— Charming Visitors—
Junior May Fete—

WELL, Kitty my dear, we are having fine weather again with just an occasional April shower mixed along with the sunshine to keep the shrubbery growing and the roses blooming for the numerous parties which will dot the social calendar during the little season, and for the graduates who will soon make their appearance, and the spring and summer brides.

While we were not such a busy lot before Easter, socially speaking, from present indications we are going to be a busy lot after Easter, and when you hear what's been going on in this city, and what is scheduled to take place, why I guess you'll say spring has come sure 'nuf with its lawn fetes, garden parties and conventions.

AND speaking of conventions reminds me that beginning Tuesday there will be a real exodus of club women from Wichita Falls to Olney where they will attend the meeting of the first district Federation of Women's clubs. For not only will the programs be of excellent interest, but a delightful home-like atmosphere will pervade and a small smattering of politics will lend interest to the session. One name in particular, that of Mrs. M. W. Burch, has already been announced for president of the first district for the coming club term by the Owl club of Decatur, whose members will be on the scene of action to boost their candidate. In presenting Mrs. Burch the club announces that it was organized in 1895, federated the next year and reorganized as one of the pioneer and foremost literary clubs of the state has broken a precedent by putting for a candidate for office in the Texas Federation of Women's clubs and in the more than 30 years of membership no Owl club member has had office in the state federation.

Mrs. Burch whose name the club is presenting at the Olney convention is described as being especially fitted for the office, having had experience as chairman of the first district, an appointive office for six years, and for two years was chairman of the Child Welfare; was chairman of Rural Life for two years, and is at present chairman of the American home department. The committee in charge of the boon for Mrs. Burch said in a statement issued in behalf of her candidacy:

"She has given liberally of her time and means to this work. Because of her forcefulness and tact, her knowledge of parliamentary law, her justice, dispatch of business, ready speech and executive ability, Mrs. Burch is well qualified to fill the office of first district president."

I KNOW that like me you will be interested to know that we have two such distinguished people living in our midst as Dr. and Mrs. Charles Williams Wallace, listed in "Whose Who in America"; "Who'd Who" (London) and "Who's Who in Literature" in the International Encyclopedia and other "Who's Who," as the greatest living authorities on Shakespeare. Mrs. Wallace, you will remember has for many years been director of the Wednesday Study club in an intensive study of Shakespeare.

This scholarly couple have been signally honored with an urgent invitation to be among the distinguished guests present at the International Shakespeare association which is holding a banquet in the Hotel Astor ballroom on the evening of April 23 celebrating Shakespeare's birthday and on the same evening launching a movement to erect in New York City, on Broadway, a theater and American shrine to the great bard. Unfortunately, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace are unable to attend and sent greetings to the meeting as follows:

"Dr. and Mrs. Charles William Wallace, while regretting they cannot be present in person, desire to express their thanks for your invitation to be among the distinguished guests at the notable banquet in the Hotel Astor ballroom April 23 in honor of William Shakespeare's birthday, and felicitate all Shakespearan lovers there present and in all lands on this auspicious event and in all efforts designed to bring nearer to the hearts and homes of men everywhere and always the human messages of the poet, dramatist, and man among men who, as his contemporary Ben Johnson phrased it in final form, "was not of an age, but for all time."

In a personal letter written by the chairman of the banquet committee to Dr. and Mrs. Wallace inviting them to be guests of honor at the banquet, a note at the bottom reads: "Have just read your article on "Shakespeare as a Man Among Men". Would love to have you speak at this banquet." In the information sheet sent with the invitation the purpose of the International Shakespeare association was explained that it has been organized for the purpose of establishing this theater on Broadway for the presentation of the plays of the noted author, six months of every year.

CHARMING visitors continue to furnish inspiration for lovely parties down our way, and the past week has been no exception to the rule. One of the most elaborate affairs of the week centered around the presence of Mrs. J. M. Blankenship of Los Angeles who is the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. C. Ward. This affair took the form of a tea given by Mrs. Essie Deberry at her home on Tenth street Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Blankenship formerly lived here and more than a hundred friends and relatives called to meet her again on this occasion. Another charming visitor who is well known here and who is always inspiration for delightful affairs was Mrs. R. P. Webb of Marlow, Okla., mother of Mrs. D. J. White.

Lovely Luncheon Is Social Event Tuesday At Kemp

An entertaining event of Tuesday looked forward to with enthusiasm by forum members and their friends is the Flat-Iron luncheon to be given at the Kemp hotel. The affair will be sponsored by the music department of the forum assisted by the dramatic department and the program which will be in the form of a minstrel directed by Mrs. E. L. Fulton, will be presented by the Readers club. Mrs. E. W. Wade and Miss Dorothy Nolen will be the end men and Mrs. J. E. Shipley and Mrs. J. T. Harrell will play tamborines. Mrs. Fulton will be the interlocutor.

The program will be given as follows:

Jig and song, "There Ain't No Baby in My Baby's Eyes"—Miss Dorothy Nolen.
Jokes by the company.
Song, "Put Your Arms Where They Belong for They Belong to Me"—Mrs. Will McKemie.
Song, "In a Little Spanish Town" Helen Willgus and Mildred Schaefer, with guitar and ukelele accompaniments.
"Blue Skies," chorus.
Special musical numbers—Mrs. W. L. Fisher and Mrs. J. T. Harrell.
One-act play, "Cakes," written by Mrs. E. W. Wade, with Miss Berniece Martin, Mrs. W. F. Pagan and Miss Pearl Smith in the cast.

Miss Lorene Tucker will be the pianist and musical numbers will be furnished by the Wichitans.

The personnel of the chorus includes Mesdames E. F. Bohnfalk, Overton Abernathy, C. H. Reid, Porter Oakes, Will McKemie, J. T. Harrell, J. E. Shipley, E. W. Wade and Misses Dorothy Nolen, Helen Willgus, Mildred Schaefer, Marguerite Fisher and Ella Merle Mathis.

Mrs. Kay Hostess To Susannah Wesley Class

Members of the Tuttle Sunday school class enjoyed a delightful Easter party at the home of Mrs. N. J. Bashara Tuesday with Mrs. R. T. Crawford joint hostess. A lovely luncheon was served at the noon hour when little Miss Sadie Bashara, the class mascot, led the march into the dining room. The table was attractively decorated for the occasion in Easter lilies and other motifs suggestive of the season, and during the afternoon the Lenten bags were opened. In the clever guessing contest on "The Amount of Money in the Bags," prizes were awarded to Mrs. Fred Gates, Mrs. Mollie McElroy and Mrs. T. J. Godfrey.

Appropriate rhymes were given in response to roll call, and a vocal solo entitled "When She Started to Singing She Couldn't Stop" with a banjo accompaniment, was given by Mrs. H. A. Allen. Mrs. Nat L. Inge presented an original one act play, entitled "A Scene from a Rummage Sale."

Covers were laid for Mesdames Louis Gould, H. A. Allen, J. M. Sammons, J. W. Wilson, E. E. Gwynne, Mollie McElroy, F. S. White, R. J. Goodale, T. J. Godfrey, Nat L. Inge, Fred Gates, F. E. Thornburgh, Fred Kellogg and Miss Cram.

Unity Junior Club Concludes Program With Lovely Party

Among many delightful affairs of the week, none proved more enjoyable than the last meeting of the club year of the Unity Juniors held at the home of Mrs. Jim Barnard Wednesday in the form of a luncheon, after which Mesdames Jouette Bonner, J. L. Jackson Jr., Charles Clough and Stayton Bonner were in chrarge of an original program.

Mrs. Jouette Bonner and Mrs. Charles Clough presented a clever contest in which the names of each member of the club was used, and this was followed by the reading of an original playet by Mrs. J. L. Jackson Jr. After Mrs. Jackson's number, Mrs. Stayton Bonner appeared in the room carrying a lovely basket in the pastel shades from which extended the ends of various shades of ribbons. Each member of the club was invited to pull one, and on the end she found a lovely hand-made gift, the work by Mrs. Bonner.

A three-course menu was served on individual tables centered with bouquets of spring flowers and covers were laid for Mesdames J. S. Abbott, Jouette Bonner, Stayton Bonner, Charles Clough, Wilbur Cahoon, Fred Elbert, Charles I. Francis, George Gutzman, Alfred Miller, Jack Speegle, Skeen Staley, Leslie Stringer and Misses Florence Sammons and Annette Walsh.

The club will hold the annual picnic Tuesday, the place to be announced later.

Readers Club Has Lesson On Poetry

Miss Marguerite Fisher was hostess to the Readers club at her home Thursday when a lesson on "Modern Poetry" was studied. During the brief business session the club voted to affiliate with the Forum and to assist in furnishing a room in the new club house. Plans were also completed for the minstrel to be presented at the Flat-Iron luncheon to be given at the Kemp hotel Tuesday.

The program included readings given as follows: "When I Ain't Got You" and "Mia Carlotta," Mrs. Joe Shipley; "The Girl I Used to Be," "Silver Poplars," and "Sunday Afternoon" (Grace Noll Crowell), Miss Marguerite Fisher; "Old Fashioned Lullaby" (Edgar A. Guest), and "Roots" (Joyce Kilmer), Mrs. Homer Karrenbrock. A clipping from Nina Wilcox on modern poetry, was read by Mrs. Charles Reed.

Those present were: Mesdames Overton Abernathy, E. F. Bohmfalk, J. T. Harrell, Porter Oakes, Claude Ruffner, E. W. Wade, Karrenbrock, Shipley and Reed, and Misses Dorothy Nolen and Ella Merle Mathis.

Mrs. Abernathy Hostess to Club

Mrs. L. V. Abernathy was hostess to the Thursday Bridge club at her home in weekly session when four tables were arranged for the games. Spring flowers and roses were used profusely in the decorations. Mrs. O. D. McCoy won the high score favor, Mrs. Hubert Barr, second high and Mrs. C. C. Randle received the high guest prize.

A salad and ice course was served to Mesdames Hubert Barr, Sam Kimberlin, Harry Brady, Franklin Henderson, O. D. McCoy, George Keith, Grady Payne, J. T. Young, C. C. Randle, James P. Bowen, Porter Oakes, J. T. Gant, and Misses Berniece Martin, Virginia Miller, Erma Schnelle and Elizabeth Smith.

Travel Club Studies Contemporary Magazines

Members of the Travel club met at the home of Mrs. E. T. Duff Friday afternoon and under the leadership of Mrs. C. H. Clark studied an interesting lesson on "Contemporary Magazines." Mrs. Arch Dawson discussed "Academic Publications," and Mrs. Clark discussed "Poetry Magazines." "General Literary Magazines" were discussed by Mrs. W. P. Killingsworth.

Those present were Mesdames T. M. Conrey, C. N. Alexander, C. H. Clark, W. W. Cook, G. L. Shapard, Arch Dawson, W. W. Fraser, W. P. Killingsworth, Q. B. Lee, John C. McDonald, Guy Rogers, Lyle Sproles and John W. Thomas.

New Century Club Guests At Lovely Texas Day Affair

"Texas Day" was observed by members of the New Century club Friday when Mrs. C. J. Barnard was hostess at an elaborate luncheon at her home. The entire reception suite was beautifully decorated for the occasion in myriads of cut flowers, and in the dining room, the table was especially lovely. Covered with a cloth of lace and Italian cut work, the centerpiece was formed of roses, honeysuckle and bluebonnets made in the shape of a star, in the center of which was a miniature Texas flag. Blue lighted tapers in silver candelabra shed a soft light over the picture and red, white and blue candles were arranged in silver compotes. The patriotic idea was further carried out in the novelty place cards. A four-course menu was served.

Mrs. J. C. A. Guest led an impromptu program in which a contest was featured on Texas cities. Brief talks were given by Mesdames C. B. Felder, T. T. T. Reese and C. R. Hartsook.

Carrigan P.-T. A. Hears Talks at Meeting

An address by J. E. Parks, principal of the Alamo school on "The Seriousness of Absence and Tardiness" featured the program at the meeting of the Carrigan P.-T. A. meeting held at the school Thursday afternoon. Judge A. H. Carrigan gave a brief talk on "The Educational Problem in Which Mothers are Playing Such a Great Part in Overcoming Illiteracy", and W. D. Curtis, manager of the Producers Creamery talked on the value of milk in the child's diet.

Group Two Meets With Mrs. Stephens

Group 2 of the First Baptist Alathean Sunday school class met at the home of Mrs. O. G. Stephens Friday afternoon. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion in cut flowers, and Mrs. I. A. Farris taught the third lesson in the study of "The Old Testament." In the business session presided over by Mrs. Frank H. Elam, Mrs. Jack Speegle was elected assistant leader, and Mrs. L. T. Francis was reelected press reporter.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Charles Grantham, W. K. Guinn, Frank H. Elam, W. D. D. Mendenhall, I. A. Francis, George Patterson, H. H. Fisher, George Smoot, Ray Wilhite, Jack Speegle, E. J. McWilliams, Frank Parrish, L. T. Francis, and Miss Cecelia Cooper of Seymour.

Mrs. Burnet Hostess To Wednesday Bridge

Mrs. C. S. Burnet was hostess to the Wednesday Bridge club in the weekly session held at her home on Austin street. Easter lilies and spring flowers were used in the decorations. In the games Mrs. J. A. Culberson won the high score favor and Mrs. A. M. Hutchens second high. Mrs. W. G. Bentley won high among the guests while Mrs. M. Muehlberger was consoled for low.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames George Loughridge Sr., of San Antonio, W. G. Bentley, Lela Herndon, H. W. Jagers, W. G. Morrison, L. V. Lakler, M. Muehlberger, G. O. Loughridge, A. M. Hutchins, W. E. Beckhart, W. C. Vann and J. A. Culberson.

Miss Childress Is Honoree at Party

Miss SeLeta Childress was honoree at a lovely surprise dinner party given by Mrs. W. E. Haley at her home on Hollywood avenue, when spring flowers carrying out a color scheme of pink and white were used in the decorations. Places were marked with baskets filled with Easter eggs and during the last course a pretty white birthday cake was brought in bearing 21 lighted candles.

Covers were laid for the honoree and Misses Vera Childress, Lois Childress, Messrs. Bab Haley, Paul Thomas, John Ross Haley and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Haley, Mr. and Mrs. Dee Woodson and little Miss Peggy Marie Woodson.

Miss Cullin Presents Speaker at School

Pupils of the Travis school were given a treat Friday morning when Miss Florence Cullin, the principal, presented Miss Ethel Hudson of Dallas, an instructor in the Baptist County B. Y. P. U. Training school in an address.

Miss Eva Jeanette Stulce gave a piano number, and Miss Edna Rundell gave two readings.

Barwise Teachers Will Present Program Friday

Members of the Barwise P.-T. A. will sponsor a program at the school Friday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The affair will be presented by the teachers of the school and will include readings, musical numbers, drills and plays. The program is expected to be one of the best given at the school this season, and the money derived from the performance will be donated to the P.-T. A. fund.

Cafeteria For School Immediate Goal Of Travis P.-T. A. Workers

BY MRS. A. A. BOSMAN
President of the Travis School P.-T. A.

As all records for the Travis School P.-T. A. have been misplaced, I am unable to give the exact date of its organization or its early activities. The first records found are for the year of 1921 when Mrs. S. P. Steele was the president.

In the year of 1922-23 Mrs. A. P. Perry was elected president, and Miss Mabel Wilson, secretary. During these two years the club raised $600 with which sum a piano and playground equipment and library books were purchased.

Books For Rooms.

In 1924 Mrs. W. C. Rowe was elected president, and Mrs. Webb, vice-president. Mrs. Ponder, a Red Cross nurse, gave helpful talks and outlined a plan for the club of a health class which proved interesting to the mothers during this period.

Mrs. McAda was elected president in 1925-26; Mrs. A. P. Perry, vice-president and Mrs. Florence Cullen, secretary. The club also raised $25 for victrola records and gave a book each month to the room having the largest number of mothers present at the meetings. Mrs. Bell gave the association a quilt already made which they sold and the club also gave the school a time clock. During this year, a committee was appointed to make plans for a cafeteria.

Lecture To Club.

Miss Kate Burgess, principal of the school at this time, made a trip to Washington and upon her return gave an interesting report to the club.

Following this Mrs. McAda feeling that she could no longer serve as president, tendered her resignation which was accepted, and Mrs. W. C. Rowe was appointed to take her place. Mrs. Rowe later resigned and Mrs. A. A. Bosman was elected president. Mrs. J. A. Graham is vice-president and Miss Jessie Sutphen, secretary.

The club has recently completed a quilt to be sold when the money will be used in the school work. This is the only school in the city which does not have a cafeteria, and the acquiring of one is the present work of the organization.

of the Children of the Confederacy at the home of Mrs. P. P. Langford, when the group were hostesses at a silver tea from 3 to 5. A receiving line was formed of the older children of the chapter who proved themselves quite as well versed in the intricacies of playing hostess and standing in a receiving line as their mothers. Several hundred called during the afternoon and the affair was declared unusually charming.

Another event being looked forward to by the juniors, is an elaborate May fete which will be sponsored by the Junior Forum including about 40 members Friday, May 6. This will be staged on the lovely terraced lawn at "Green Acres," the Fred Week's home, and more than 1500 invitations will be issued for it. The invitations will read something like this: "You are invited to attend the crowning of Her Majesty, queen of the Court of Roses etc." The little queen will be chosen by a secret committee, and already speculation as to whom this great honor will fall, is heard everywhere.

But even while I write you, just heaps of things are going on, and here am I slinging ink, and you are slinging back all sorts of questions at—

Mrs. Isbell Hostess To Standard Club

One of the most delightful affairs of the week-end was on Friday when Mrs. J. M. Isbell entertained members of the Standard club at a lovely luncheon given at her home in Indian Heights. Roses, honeysuckle and other fragrant spring flowers were used in the decorations throughout the reception suite and on the table, and a five-course menu was served.

In the afternoon the regular study program was held on "Italian Fiction." Mrs. J. E. Wolf was leader for the afternoon and "The House by the Mediar Tree" by Verga, furnished the special topic. Mrs. T. P. Keim gave the topography of Italy, and Mrs. C. L. Baum gave the history of the opera. Famous scenes in Italy were described by Mrs. T. L. McGee, and Mrs. A. D. Patillo discussed Italian art.

AS TOLD BY,

Jacqueline

THE beautiful pastel organdy frocks shown at P. B. M. company for tiny tots sound like fairy tales—instead, they are just the thing for well-dressed babies at the age for Grimm's.

Several of the most charming are made with square yokes tied with satin bows on either shoulder, baring little white arms in a cool, quaintly becoming manner. There is a hand-embroidered posy on the yoke—a corresponding flower on the skirt, and the organdies are blue, pink, pale green and white (some of the dresses two-tone.)

HIS Royal Highness and the Queen of the Household now come in for their share of attention. Summer needs for the little one may be provided advantageously, both in selection and in price, at the Frances Shoppe, Tenth at Broad.

THE approach of Mother's Day reminds us of the many sacrifices Mother has made for us. She probably neglects herself and do we think of the things which will preserve and make her life pleasant? Her greatest pleasure may be found in reading now and equally likely her glasses need changing. Save those precious eyes by taking her to George W. L. Spencer, O. D., 705 Ohio avenue. Telephone 5645.

MOTHER'S PORTRAIT

THE most prized of all remembrances!

YOUR MOTHER will have her portrait made for Mother's Day, May the eighth, if you ask her for it. To have it artistically done, call Nossett Studio, 6976, for appointment.

IN "Altars of Desire," now showing at the Olympic, Mae Murray, portrays a modern American girl, Jazz-wild, beautiful and wealthy, and Conway Tearle, an outdoor man. (Metro - Goldwyn seems the only company that sees fit to take him out of evening clothes.)

This is Mae Murray's best since "The Merry Widow!"

Fashion Says

THAT gingham leather bags, in bright and tiny checks, are among the smartest for spring.

The Orchid Shop is showing these and many other modish envelopes and pouches. Among the latest arrivals are genuine reptile, black moire with a bit of needle-point, sealskin, alligator, patent and gingham leather. The prices range from $2.95 to $10 (bon marche!), the colors from red, green and blue to tan, grey and black. The ensemble is so important this season that it is wisest to choose either gloves, hat, shoes, or all three, to match the bag, and a smart bag is so important that one should see the Orchid Shop's new stock while it is complete.

Here, too, Milady will find every type of dainty kerchief from georgette and embroidered linen to frilly be-laced ones, prices 75c to $3.45.

CRYSTAL that catches and reflects the shimmering candle glow will be welcomed by mother on May the eighth. Everything desirable in this line will be found in Bailey-Moline's China Shop.

Dear Cynthia

Does looking in a mirror make you happy? I just got a pleasing thrill! The reflection showed me dressed in the new frock I purchased to-day at

NURSE WARNS OF MEASLES

MISS ROSA LEE HARKIN
Red Cross Nurse.

"Just a kid's disease, get 'em and get 'em early."

In spite of the fact that measles is condemned by medical evidence as a disease that may have permanently damaging effects many persons still maintain this indifferent attitude.

Dr. Richard Beard, an eminent medical authority, states that the death rate from measles, in children who have passed the third year, is about one-half of one per cent. At any age, he declares, measlues is a serious disease and in infancy it is a dangerous disease.

The high death rate quoted does not mean, however, that measles in itself often kills. Dr. Beard specifies that the danger lies principally in the impairing of the membranes of air passages which invites the entry of pneumonia germs. Pneumonia, always a destructive disease, is particularly fatal in early life. Another dangerous complication which frequently results from measles is inflamation of the middle ear.

Dr. Beard cites also the danger of tuberculosis infection. Tardy convalescence, especially if pneumonia has occurred, increases the danger of tuberculosis which often takes in infancy the very fatal form of tuberculosis meningitis," Dr. Beard states.

Two striking instances of what measles can do are embodied in actual stories told by a public health nurse. An eight-year-old boy who was slow in school was advised to see an occulist because of an inperfection in his right eye. "Squint-eyed," the children called him. "Were you born this way?" asked the doctor. "No," replied the child, "It came when I had measles."

A 16-year-old girl suffered intensely because of the ugliness of her teeth and finally consulted a dentist. Two of the front teeth on the upper jaw and four of the molars, were normal teeth while the rest were the little peg-shaped affairs of her babyhood. She had never lost her first teeth and the X-ray picture of her jaws showed that the second set was entirely missing.

"You must have been very, very sick sometime between your fourth and sixth birthday," said the dentist to the girl.

"She was," the mother answered "she had the measles at five and almost died."

"It is not necessary for everyone to have measles," says Dr. Beard, "and that despite the fact that it is an extremely contagious disease. The infant, in particular, should be most carefully protected from exposure to it.

"The period of contagion unfortunately begins early, and before the eruption is well developed. Children who begin to sneeze and cough and to show reddened and sensitive eyes should be isolated at once and closely watched. They should be put to bed promptly and receive very early medical attention. Safety lies in the avoidance of pneumonia.

"While the young child is very susceptible to measles, the disease is most prevalent between the ages ages of six and nine, because it is during the early school life that the greatest exposure to infection occurs. After exposure it takes from 12 to 14 days to develop the disease."

Dr. Beard has this to say of preventative measures: "Parents, teachers and school nurses must be sufficiently impressed with the seriousness and even the danger of measles. Children, and especially very young children, must be protected from the disease. Anyone who permits the exposure of a child to measles may have a death to answer for. Close supervision by school authorities; prompt exclusion of the sneezing, coughing, nose, running, red-eyed child from school; early reference of every suspicious case to the physician, may save unnecessary suffering, shorten illness, avert fatal results and curtail an epidemic."

"There is no such thing as safety in measles left to itself. There is no such thing as 'just a few measles.'"

Kidnap Victims Hold Tongues

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 23.—The kidnapers who made off with Jakie Adler and Frank Lawro, are known to the authorities, it was reported today. But knowing the kidnapers and being able to prove a case against them are two different things.

The kidnaped men have steadfastly refused to recount their experiences during the four days of their absence, but it is believed that at least $100,000 was paid for their ransom.

RASCOE ON BOOKS

Can a Man Love Two Women at the Same Time? Is Question Propounded in Modern Romance

By BURTON RASCOE

The book of the week is "The Old Countess," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick, published by Houghton, Mifflin company.

The Story

Richard Graham, an Englishman, and his wife, Jill, went to the little town of Buissac in France for a holiday. Richard was a painter and while sketching a landscape around the Dordogne river one day, a decrepit old woman came and stood by him and watched him work. She engaged him in conversation and ended by inviting him and his wife to tea.

The old woman was a countess who had fallen on evil days and who was taken care of by an orphan by the name of Marthe Ludérac. Mathe was the daughter of a noblewoman and of an atheistical scientist. Her father had fallen in love with the wife of another man and when her mother had discovered this, she had killed her father and had tried to kill herself. Marthe had nursed her mother back to sanity after her mother's acquittal of the murder, but the terrible ordeal had left her with a feeling that she should give aid and comfort to all suffering creatures. It was for this reason that she had become the protector of the old countess.

The countess was a lascivious old lady, fevered by memories of an amorous past. She fell in love with Richard at first sight and contrived to see as much of him as possible. Although Richard and his wife at first tried to avoid the old countess and Marthe, Jill was attracted by Marthe and became her close friend. Marthe was a lovely and sorrow stricken girl with an almost unearthly beauty.

Richard felt himself falling in love with Marthe and struggled desperately to keep from it. He was in love with Jill who had been his wife, his sweetheart, his playmate and companion. He was completely happy with her and when he first felt himself in love with Marthe, he weighed the problem in his mind and could not decide which of the two women he loved the most.

As his passion for Marthe increased he could no longer keep the secret and made it known to her. Remembering the anguish which a simllar situation had caused her mother, Marthe would hear nothing of Richard's protestations of love, although she herself was in love with him.

The old countess, who had brought about the triangle, and who had, in fact, slyly promoted it, became jealous of Marthe. She concocted a despisable lie about Marthe to Richard which poisoned Richard's mind and tormented him.

Most of the story is concerned with this conflict which involves the love of the three women for Richard and Richard's love for his wife and Marthe. The author somewhat precipitously solves the problem by having Mathe caught in a flood and drowned, as a result of a piece of treachery on the part of the old countess.

After Marthe's death, she becomes the heroine of a local legend, which, as it grew, made life almost unbearable to Richard, Jill and the old countess.

In this novel Miss Sedgwick has posed the question whether a man can be equally in love with two women at the same time. She does not solve it because it is never quite clear with which one Richard is really in love. Marthe offered him something that Jill was unable to give. In the words of the author Marthe was "the habitant of another and a deeper world, she who knew the secrets of the grave and the secrets—must it not be so?—of Elysium; of the eternal beauty that drew life on toward a perpetual contemplation."

The writing of this novel is beautiful and restrained. The story begins charmingly and the strange character of the old countess is gradually unfolded before the reader with a great deal of psychological verity.

The old countess herself is a disagreeable person who becomes almost an apotheosis of evil. There is a morbid element in her love for Richard which is likely to give offense to many readers and it cannot be said that at the end of the novel the problen. Miss Sedgwick has set herself is completely solved.

But except for these limitations, the novel is one of the best of the season's offerings in fiction. It will not have the great appeal as a story that "The Little French Girl" had, but so exquisite is Miss Sedgwick's prose and so bold is her theme that her vast audience will not be disappointed in her latest novel.

Trees Greatest Friends of Man, Says Wichitan In Urging Protection

"The disastrous experiences of China and other lands which have been virtually denuded of forests, should warn America to protect and perpetuate its timber resources."

This statement was made today by Raymond W. Gutzler of the Northside Lumber and Building company, local Vicegerent Snark of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, in appealing for an enthusiastic local observance of Forest week, April 24 to 30. Hoo-Hoo is the international fraternal order of lumbermen, which is sponsoring the Friends of the Forest educational movement.

Cause of Floods

"We read every year of disastrous floods in China that take thousands of lives," Mr. Gutzler said. "Why do they occur? Because the trees have gone and there is nothing on the hillsides along the waterways to hold back the rains. That is a normal function of trees—to form a spongy turf which holds the moisture back and regulates its flow into the streams.

"News dispatches tell us of Chinese rivers that become muddy torrents. This mud is the fertile topsoil which is essential to the growing of farm crops—and without the protection of trees it is washed into the streams.

Lands Become Deserts

"When this constant washing goes on for years, once fertile lands become deserts—barren wastes from which even the wild things shy. It is authoritatively said that the Sahara once was a forest of magnificent trees, and in some sections of this country we have seen sand dunes and stretches of waste land replace timbered areas.

"Forestry isn't just a problem of growing trees so that we will always have an adequate supply of lumber and wood, although it is vitally essential that we have abundant wood for the thousands of ways in which we use it every day. It is just as much a problem of keeping our streams pure, our farm lands fertile, our outdoors beautiful, and of preventing the extinction of wild life.

"The motor trip into the country wouldn't be much to look forward to if there were no trees. There would be no pleasure in fishing in a polluted stream. You would hardly enjoy spreading a picnic lunch out in the blistering sun. And the absence of the songbird's melody would soon be apparent to you.

Forests Dwindling

"America is not in immediate danger of becoming a treeless country, yet our forests are dwindling rapidly and the generations which are to follow us will be confronted with the conditions I have pictured—unless we of the present generation take an interest in protecting the forests.

"That is the reason the government has set aside this week as Forest week—so that the people may become acquainted with the truth about the forests. That is the reason Hoo-Hoo, throughout the United States and Canada, urges every good citizen to be a Friend of the Forests.

"The principal obstacle to placing our forests on a perpetual basis is forest fire. Every year there is a tremendous loss from forest fires, both in mature and potential timber. Eighty-five per cent of the forest fires are man-made—the result either of human carelessness or human cussedness.

"Therefore, the principal work of the Friends of the Forests is to enlist public co-operation in forest fire prevention. A true friend of the forests will always remember to thoroughly extinguish his campfire; he will never discard a lighted match nor a bruning cigaret or cigar butt; he will be alert when in the woods to stamp out any fire which others have left burning."

There are 65 Hoo-Hoo clubs, more than 700 officers and 12,000 members of the order in the United States and Canada. The Friends of the Forests is an educational offspring of Hoo-Hoo, devoted to arousing the interest of Boy and Girl Scouts, civic clubs, schools, churches and other public-spirited organizations in forest protection and perpetuation. To be a Friend of the Forests, one need but interest himself in the subject. There are no dues or other requirements and no fixed membership.

A company, capitalized at $5,000,000 to produce British films is being developed in Great Britain.

More than $15,000,000 will be spent this year for public improvements in the Philippines.

BERNARD SHAW ROUSED TO IRE

He's "Sore" Because America Respects Shakespeare

The foundation which is conducting a $1,000,000 campaign for the restoration of the Shakespeare memorial theater at Stratford-Upon-Avon, which was destroyed by fire last year, made public the message as follows:

"I feel unspeakably humiliated at the spectacle of England trying to raise money for Shakespeare in America, instead of building a worthy memorial to him at her own expense. But, as our poor folks here have no spare money and our rich would sell their national heritage in Shakespeare for five cents—if they could get it—I am forced to join my friend Archie Flowers (mayor of Stratford-Upon-Avon) in his appeal to English speaking America—what there is left of it—to save us from having to go to Germany."

MEMPHIS SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, April 23.—Mrs. Bowerman and Mrs. Compton were jointed hostesses to the U. D. C. members Tuesday, April 19, at the home of Mrs. Bowerman.

During a brief business meeting plans were perfected for the presentation of Gene Stratton Porter's "Magic Garden," to be put on the screen at the Gem theater May 5 and 6, under the auspices of the U. D. C. organization. Fifteen members answered roll call, response being quotations from Sidney Lanier.

A reading, Lanier's "Song of the Chattahoochee" was given by Mrs. Joe DeBerry.

Mrs. C. W. Broome read a biography of Lanier's life, which was very interesting. Mrs. Baskerville rendered several piano numbers, which were enjoyed by all. Mrs. Jackson was welcomed as a new member. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The members of the 1913 Study club gathered at the home of Mrs. W. W. Clower on April 19, when Mesdames John A. Wood and Clower acted as hostesses with a delightful 1 o'clock luncheon. The home was very beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and other cut flowers. The tables were exquisite with all the rainbow colors carried out in the Tarleton table covers and the tiny Maypoles for center pieces around which all kinds of May flowers entwined.

During the first course a very beautiful violin solo was played by Frank Fore, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank Fore.

Five very delicious courses were served—the ice course carried out the color scheme of the May flowers. A unique contest of a "story told in Flowers" was won by Mrs. Benge, and she was crowned May queen.

After the regular business meeting each member responded to roll call with musical news. Mrs Frank Fore was elected to represent the club in Quanah. Mrs. Dunbar gave a most interesting paper on "More and Better Music in Our Homes." Mrs. R. C. Walker discussed the "Place of Jazz in Modern Music." Mrs. McNeely was the leader for the study on music. She conducted the round table discussion and prepared a musical contest which was very instructive and entertaining.

Besides the members the guests included Mesdames Quigley, Dial, Webster, Pierce, Neely, Andry of Belvidere, Ill., and Benge of Wellington. Mesdames Clower and Wood proved themselves to be wonderful hostesses.

The Baptist W. M. S. met in regular business session Monday afternoon in the auditorium of the Baptist church with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Sigler, conducted the scripture lesson, and after song and prayer the president opened the meeting for consideration of business.

Excellent reports were made from every department of the W. M. S. The chairman of the pipe organ committee reported each circle doing good work in raising its quota of $100, one circle having gone over the top. A splendid report was made by chairman of Social Service committee, showing the W. M. S. is not neglecting the sick and needy, also showing an increase in all lines in this work. The chairman of education reported the committee making plans to entertain the seniors before the close of school.

The daughters of Mrs. M. V. Whitely surprised their mother by celebrating her eighteenth birthday with a party at her home Saturday afternoon, April 16. Her friends were asked to call and when they began to come in the dear old lady couldn't imagine why so many were calling. Many lovely gifts of cut flowers, pot plants, birthday capes, handkerchiefs and other things were presented by the loving friends. Rev. Jameson read a very appropriate scripture. Rev. Miller led in prayer and a good time was had by all.

Lovely refreshments were served to the following guests: Mesdames Lewis, C. W. Broom, Ed. Lane, Hightower, Hammonds, Moore, Goodpasture, W. M. Fore, Leverton, Jet Fore, Thompson, Miss Winfred Wilson, Rev. Miller, Rev. Jameson, Messrs. Jet Fore, Hightower, Henry Wilson, Henry Moore. The children of Mrs. Whitely present were: Mr. and Mrs. Baker of Turkey; Mr. and Mrs. Barker of Plainview; Duke Wallace of Crowell; W. H. Wallace of Thelia; Mr. and Mrs. Stovall of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stovall of Memphis, and Miss Nellie Wallace of Memphis. All went away rejoicing over the good time.

Miss Evelyn Collier, british tennis star who twice appeared in the finals at Wimbleton, has become a clerk in a London department store.

New lines to be constructed by the Canadian National railways in the next three years call for a total expenditure of $18,550,000.

LAWYER SUES FOR HIS SHIRT

And Texas Jury Votes Him $2 Damages

FORT WORTH, April 23. (AP)—A lawyer's shirt was the causus belli between Frank Graves, attorney and a Fort Worth laundry that required a damage suit to settle here today.

Graves sued the laundry alleging that his new $4 shirt had been either lost or damaged. Mrs. Graves, wife of the plaintiff, said the company had offered to settle for $1.50 but her husband had refused the settlement.

Judgment for $2 was granted Graves after torrid argument.

NOTED CHURCH LEADERS HERE

Noted Speakers to Attend Banquet Monday

Christian church men from Wichita Falls and the surrounding towns will hold a missionary banquet Monday night at the First Christian church when three widely known church leaders will be heard in special addresses. The banquet here is one of 80 similar meetings, being held in 80 American cities, with an attendance in the meetings to date totalling about 15,000 men, according to announcement.

Speakers coming to Wichita Falls are W. R. Holder, missionary from Central Africa; Walter G. Menzies, who has served as missionary in India for 21 years, and Rev. C. O. Howley of St. Louis, Mo., secretary of the United Christian Missionary society.

These men's missionary banquets are held for educational purposes and no money is raised at the meetings. Delegates are expected from Electra, Burkburnett, Henrietta, Iowa Park, Archer City and Vernon Christian churches. The Highland Heights and First Christian churches in this city are sponsoring the banquet Monday night.

GRANT CHURCH

Meetings Called Monday to Plan New Building.

An enthusiastic meeting preliminary to the organization of the new Grant street Methodist church was held Thursday night at the church property, corner of Grant street and Avenue N, when Dr. S. A. Barnes, pastor of Floral Heights Methodist church presided at the meeting. Song service was conducted by Lester F. Aldrich, assistant pastor of Floral Heights Methodist church.

The census committee of the neighborhood reported that there was a wide-spread desire for the organization of a Methodist church in the community, which was evidenced by the attendance of more than 50 persons at the meeting last night.

Dr. Barnes reported that he and Dr. Walter J. Johnson had been working for the past four days securing funds for the purchase price of the church property and had in hand over $4400 of the $5500 that was needed.

Mrs. S. A. Barnes reported that the Wesley girls class of which she is the teacher has volunteered to furnish the lumber to build the tabernacle on the church property to be used for a revival meeting to be conducted early in May, and J. T. Shaver and E. L. Ewing of Floral Heights Methodist church volunteered to secure all the labor necessary to build the tabernacle. Mrs. E. W. Reed and Mrs. R. P. Tooley were appointed as a committee to raise funds for the purchase of a piano.

Mrs. S. E. Travathan, district secretary of the Woman's missionary societies, spoke to the women relative to the organizing of a missionary society and a meeting of the women was called for next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The men also called a meeting for Monday at 7:30 p. m. to discuss plans for the building of the tabernacle and other preliminary business of the church.

Fable of the Cousin From Down East Who Had His Pick of Village Lilacs

By GEORGE ADE.

There was once a woman with a Mayflower Ancestry who had a wonderful Cousin named Adelbert. This woman used to keep Adelbert's photo propped up on the Baby Grand and she touted him strong to all the Girls. The Cousin never had been out of this Town, but his Paper was up and the Female Relative had done a lot of Advance Wrok.

Adelbert was almost as Sweet and Manly as a Magazine Hero. He had Property in his own Name, and was Bright.

About the time that Cherries were ripe the Word came up with many a Rumble and Roar that Within 20 Minutes After the Train Whistled Everybody in Town Knew How Many Pieces of Luggage He Had On. Had and What Kind of a Suit He Cousin Adelbert was riding hither on the Limited. Then there was a Hurrying to and fro. Pale Faces grew paler yet and every Belle was trying to select the Creation that would make a Ten-Strike with brilliant Adelbert, late from the Varsity.

In order to know why the Town should be having this Convulsion one ought to hear something about the Town.

It was a White Settlement with a fair sprinkling of Indians. The Principal Occupation in those Parts was going down on Railroad Street to see the Trains pass through. Any one who knew the Conductor was looked up to. Most of the Young Men thereabouts travelled in their Shirt Sleeves and wore blue Elastics around their Arms and smoked Pesthouse Cigarettes. They did the Haw-Haw Laugh and thought well of their own Cute Sayings. These Town Cut-Ups had only one Accomplishment and that was to huddle up and do the Blend on one of these Mushy Ballads. When they struck a Barber-Shop Minor they would Dwell on it until the unhappy Listener felt his Toes curling. Some of the Girls who were fairly up to Snuff often sighed that the Town had no more Society than a Snake had Hips. It is a matter of Record that the Girls in such a Sub-Center of Civilization are about seven times as Flip as what they have to choose from. If they pair off with a lot of animated Rutabagas it is because they have to utilize the Counterfeits or else Migrate.

Therefore it will be understood that the coming of Adelbert, who was the kind Dorothy Dix tells about, was an Event of the First Magnitude. The Girls began to brush up on their Reading so as to be primed for Tall Conversation. They decided to choke off on Slang, as it was known that all along the Atlantic Seaboard, where Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler prevails and the Polysyllable is a Household Pet, any one who spices his Conversation with Words not yet approved by th Dictionary gets the Look of Pain or the Refrigerated Stare.

When Adelbert arrived his Cousin had Flowers in the Room. Within Twenty Minutes after the Train whistled, everybody in Town knew how many Pieces of Luggage he brought and what kind of a Suit he had on. He was given a ride in the Town Fliv. All the Girls put away their Gum and ordered new White Gloves, for next day the Cream of Local Society was to Rally at a Lawn Party in Honor of Adelbert, the Toniest of his Sex.

In going over the Invitation List there had been some Discussion as to whether or not they ought to include Noisy Nettie. She was a willowy Seraphine, who took a great Photograph, but that seemed to let her out. She had no Dignity or Repose, and the way she threw herself at Men and dragged them away from the well-behaved Tessies had given her a Terrible Rep. All the Others in Town wondered what the Men saw in her.

It was argued that Noisy Nettie, if permitted to break in at the Lawn Party, might be silly enough to get Fresh with the Distinguished Visitor and shoot a lot of Trivialities at him and give him a False Impression of their Social Life. She could win out the low-grade Article by sitting close and chirping to him and giving him that Old One about his Hair matching his Eyes, but if she ever tried that on a Bachelor of Arts whose Thoughts were keyed up to the Higher Life, it might jam the whole Works. He might feel Annoyed and begin to Pack up.

However, in a Town of that size it is impossible to Discriminate. Adelbert's Cousin was under Obligations to Nettie, and so Nettie received her Card, but it was agreed that the Girls who knew how to Behave just after Bathing should form a Cordon around the Honored Guest and prevent the feather-headed Flirt from getting her Hooks into him.

The Lawn Party brought out all the best Bibs and Tuckers. Every Girl was dressed within an inch of her Life and came through the Front Gate taking Short Steps. In a little while they had the Young Gentleman surrounded and were telling him how they doted on Amy Lowell and could sit up all night over toward the Crouquet Grounds and Adelbert managed to tear away and have a Word with Nettie.

"Gentle Stranger, let us shake this Bunch and go ride in the Swing," he said.

"Surest Thing you know," replied Nettie, and as she looked up at him she smiled faintly and once more gave him the fluttering Eyelid.

"Something tells me that we are not going to talk about Books," said Adelbert. "I did not come out West to find out about the Standard Authors. I heard all the News about them before I left Home. I am out here to Cut Loose and have a Frolic."

"Come and Romp with me," said Nettie. "I like your Style, but I'm a weeny bit Afraid of you because you're such a Handsome Wretch and I've heard about you College Boys."

Saying which she put her Chin on his shoulder and Goo-Gooed him and he lost the Power of Speech. Strange to say, he did not go into the House and begin to Pack Up. Along about that time he was thinking of having his Ticket extended.

When the Proper Girls saw that Nettie, the Scandal-Maker, had succeeded in isolating the Main Attraction there was a good deal of Whispering behind the Fans, but Net and Del did not seem to mind, because they were in the Swing having a few Whispers of their own.

The Lawn Party was the heavylest June Frost ever known in the south end of the State. He who had been bayled out for two years as the most refined, cultivated and scholarly Youth east or west of the Alleghenies turned out to be the same as all the Others. He passed up the Pollyanna and went straight for the Vamp.

After that first day it was a Moral Certainty that Nettie had him right. The other Girls did not get a look-in. Every two hours he put on a different Rig and went up to Nettie's House to permit her to hold him by the Arm and tell him how well his Clothes became him. The other Girls peered out from behind the Curtains and spoke of him as a Softy and they began to tell around that he didn't have so much Property after all, and besides it was Mortgaged up to the Hilt.

Adelbert's Cousin tried to pry him away from Nettie by telling him that she was superficial and had a Weak Mouth, but the Advice of a Relative never carries any weight in the Case of a real Brain-Storm.

When Adelbert returned home he had fourteen Panel Photographs of Noisy Nettie, his Heart's Delight, and she was going around Town with one Hand up in the Air so that every one could see her Solitaire.

RULE SOCIETY

RULE, April 23.—Mr. and Mrs. James E. Lindsey were host and hostess to the members of their bridge club and a few invited guests at their beautiful new English home on Thursday evening of last week. The reception suite and dining room were beautifully decorated with baskets and bowls of spring blossoms and Easter decorations. Following the bridge games, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Joe A. Jones and Mrs. J. D. Westbrook served a dainty ice and salad course to the following members and guests: Messrs. and Mesdames John A. Lee, A. M. Morgan, J. D. Montgomery, E. B. Harris, A. A. Bradford, M. L. Stephens, J. D. Westbrook, Joe A. Jones, Misses Sarah and Nora Hudspeth and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mulls of Spur.

Junior-Senior Banquet

White and soft golden hues, colors of the senior class of the Rule high school, predominated in the decorations for the long banquet table at the high school building on Friday evening of last week when the junior class entertained for the seniors. White and gold tapers were interspersed along the table center with bowls and baskets of gorgeous sunburst roses.

Favors were unique baskets of white and gold filled with small Easter eggs. After some splendid toasts given to the seniors, faculty and high school a reading was given by little Miss Geraldine Hunt. Music was furnished by the Rule orchestra. Covers were laid for 60. The menu served by the ladies of the Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church consisted of baked chicken with dressing, creamed peas, congealed salad, saltines, celery, pickles, pie a la mode and iced tea.

W. M. S. of Methodist Church

The Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church met Monday at the church in a lesson from their new study course "Where We Get Our Bible," with Mrs. D. M. Speer directing the lesson. The devotional was given by the president, Mrs. Frank Hines followed with prayer by Mrs. S. B. Warren. The following ladies were present: Mesdames E. B. Harris, Frank Hines, D. M. Speer, Server, Shelton, W. H. McCandless, Oswald Cole, T. J. Cannon, S. B. Warren.

Manes Permanently Waved

Underwood and Underwood

The trophy which is the symbol of the baseball championship of congress now is in Democratic hands. Rep. M. C. Kelly (1) of Pennsylvania, is seen turning it over to Rep. Thomas McMillan, South Carolina. Kelly was captain of the team defeated by McMillan's sluggers.

Ku Klux Klan Slips In South As Political Power, Says Demo Chief

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The ku klux klan is becoming "increasingly unimportant" and Governor Al Smith is "well-thought of" in some sections of the south, James S. Thomson, New Orleans publisher, said after a visit to President Coolidge today.

Thomson, son-in-law of Champ Clark, was one of nine delegates to the last democratic convention, which, he said, would have voted for Smith if there had been a final chance of his nomination.

"I think the south has not made up its mind," he said, "but favorite son candidates and uninstructed delegations will be features of the next democratic convention. Because of the partially deadlocked convention at San Francisco and the completely deadlocked convention at New York, delegates are not going to permit themselves to be tied up by instructions as in the past.

No Beauty Without Pearly Teeth

By Edna Wallace Hopper

One chief item of my beauty is my teeth. They glisten, and they look healthy, as they are. Even at my age.

I gained that tooth beauty and for many years I kept it, by numerous applications. I used tooth pastes, then mouth washes, then milk of magnesia, then deodorants for the breath. Those various applications cost me 30 minutes daily.

Now many great experts have collaborated on a tooth paste which does all at once. It combines in its 15 ingredients every modern requirement. It does all at once. It combines the utmost in antacids, cleanses, polishes and deodorant. It is five tooth pastes in one.

All my advisers urge it. Now I do in three minutes what used to take 30 minutes. I do all that modern science can embody in a dental application.

After 40 years of searching, this is the greatest help to white and healthy teeth I ever have discovered. Let Quindent reveal it to you. Get a tube at your store.

Look Twice as Lovely

I'll Show You How

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Most girls, inside 30 minutes, can add amazingly to beauty. Try it once. It will delight you and surprise your friends.

The chief way is by using my White Youth Clay. It's a remarkable creation, white, refined and dainty. The final result of 20 years of scientific research.

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It draws out the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. One result is a rosy afterglow. It combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores, removes old oil and dead skin.

I can instantly pick out in any crowd the girls and women who have used my Clay. Their faces fairly glow with beauty. It's a pity for a girl to go without it.

Your toilet counter will supply you with Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay.

So Soft— So White

Nearly every woman who sees them envies me my hands. They ask me how I keep them so soft, so white, so young.

They know that I travel all the time. My stage work encounters all sorts of grime and dirt. In most cities the water is hard. Yet the most sheltered women rarely have such hands. They never chap.

The reason lies in my Youth Hand Lotion, perfected for me by great experts. I apply it whenever I wash my hands. It is not greasy or sticky. It disappears at once. And it overcomes all that water does, all that soap does, all that grime does to the hands. Also all that weather does, all that the years do. My own hands form evidence supreme.

I urge you to try it. I think I have tried nearly everything of this kind, but nothing compares with this. A guarantee comes with it. Your dealer will return your money if it does not please. So get it and see what it means to you.

Is there a girl who reads this who doesn't want added beauty? Or an older woman who doesn't crave new youth and beauty?

If not, let me urge you to try the best help I have found in 40 years of searching. They made me a famous beauty, they have kept my youthful looks. I owe all I am to the great French scientists who perfected these matchless helps.

My Youth Cream is no ordinary cream. It combines some of the best helps found in my searching. Two of them are products of lemon and strawberry. But other great helps are embodied.

Youth Cream comes to you in two types, exactly as I use them. Cold cream and vanishing. One is for night, one for day protection. Never is my face skin left an hour without them. And my complexion, envied by millions, shows you the results.

Try both types and watch the delightful results. Then any toilet counter will supply it—Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream. You need never go without. Let it bring you the utmost a face cream can accomplish. You will be suprised.

Never a Marcel Wave

My hair is ever curly, with never a Marcel wave. And it always has a glow. The reason lies in a hair dress made exclusively for me. It was perfected for me by great experts when I had my long hair bobbed. Now all toilet counters supply it under the name of Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c.

I cannot conceive of a girl or woman going without it when she knows. No one who sees my hair will do so. Nothing else I have ever found makes the hair so lustrous, so wavy, so fluffy so abundant. My guarantee is enclosed with every bottle, so it costs you nothing if it doesn't please. Go try it at my expense.

Now I have placed all my supreme Beauty Helps at every woman's call. Toilet counters and stores supply them as Edna Wallace Hopper's Cosmetics.

FATTEST MELON IN HISTORY

IS THERE money in steel? Yes. It is announced that with the distribution of a $200,000,000 melon to stockholders, the first in the history of the corporation, the United States Steel corporation becomes the second billion dollar corporation in America in point of capitalization.

It is also announced that the American Telephone and Telegraph company comes first, United States Steel second, Standard Oil of New Jersey third. Next in order but not in the billion dollar class comes the Pennsylvania railroad, the New York Central railroad, the Southern Pacific railroad and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad.

There is another billion dollar corporation. It is known as the Henry Ford organization. Not an outsider owns stock in the Ford concern. It has a value greater than a billion dollars and cash on hand of more than $400,000,000.

GEDDES IN BAD AT HOME

SIR AUCKLAND GEDDES, former British ambassador to the United States, is in bad at home. He is holding the center of the stage. London newspapers are making life miserable for him. Sir Auckland made a speech at a conservative meeting. He declared that China was acquiring her westernized mentality through the United States and from young Chinese who had returned to China from there and repeated the gibberish they had heard about British tyranny and imperialism.

This former ambassador said "he had been assured there were two streams of anti-British propaganda flowing into China, one inspired from Moscow and the other running from many American mission and hospital centers. He reminded his fellow conservatives that the United States does not possess concessions in China; that the Americans live in British concessions and they get all the advantages and none of the odium.

Why should Sir Auckland be censured by his government? Why should he be censured by the London newspapers? Didn't he tell the truth? If so, why rail at him?

ADVERTISING THE SUNFLOWER

KANSAS business men are in behind a million dollar advertising program calling attention to the resources as well as the possibilities of the Sunflower state. California, years ago, adopted the advertising plan. California spent millions in the newspapers and magazines of the country. Advertising pays. If you don't believe it, get the figures of the California of 20 years ago and of the California of today.

Florida spent millions in advertising. It was the same old story. It drew thousands of home seekers and capitalists to the Everglades state, and Florida has a place on the map nearly as large as that occupied by California.

Texas is the empire state of the union. Texas should have a population of 20,000,000 and be the leader in a manufacturing sense. If Texans were asked to spend a million dollars a year in the advertising of their state abroad, there are many wealthy Texans who would be given a great shock. Some day they will come out of their trance. If Kansas can afford to spend a million dollars for advertising purposes, Texas could afford to spend twenty million.

M'LEMORE LIFTS HIS VOICE

JEFF M'LEMORE, editor of the Hebronville News, has entered a solemn protest against Texas joining the good-will caravan to Monterey some time the coming month.

Jeff, who is a former congressman and a vociferous democrat, insists that President Calles is behind the movement and is backing it to the limit for political effect.

Monterey is wet. There are many Texans who are law abiding while here at home and never touch liquor. Under the skies of Mexico they are law abiding. They touch liquor and they touch it often.

It is possible that President Calles is going to offer free liquor all the way from New Laredo to Monterey to the tourists from Texas.

This former congressman who is an old time editor, looks upon Calles as a Mexican Trotzky and his policies as the communistic ideal of Lenin, the dead idol of the bolshevists and the gospel of all who follow the flag of Soviet Russia. McLemore is an old fashioned democrat. He was born and reared in Tennessee and for a matter of 45 years he has been preaching his brand of democracy to Texans.

WHAT LAWMAKERS SAY

TEXAS lawmakers, senators and representatives, predict there will be three called sessions of the 40th legislature during 1927. First will convene May 9 for 30 days. Then the second will follow in regular order and the third session will be called in October or November to vitalize the amendments to the constitution expected to be adopted at the election Aug. 1.

Four of the seven constitutional amendments submitted by the regular session will be voted on by the people Aug. 1. It is understood that Governor Moody will make a speaking campaign urging the qualified to vote for the amendments.

Three subjects for legislation are mentioned in his call for the session of May 9. These cover appropriations, introduction of the civil service system and development of the state highway system. This is to be a busy summer for the governor, the lawmakers, the politicians and the newspaper writers of Texas.

ON THE TRAIL OF ROMANCE WITH KIT CARSON!

Carson as a hunter of big game at Fort Bent.—Establishes his supremacy as a Slayer of Buffaloes. His narrow escapes from death. Thrown from his horse in the path of a wounded buffalo. Wins the confidence of various Indian tribes. The Bents and their historic fort, which is blown up when its sale falls through. Civilization crowds westward and Carson is called upon to help fight Indians and outlaws along the Santa Fe Trail.

By ARTHUR CHAPMAN,

CHAPTER III.

BUFFALOES — thousands of them forming a black and restless flood rushing across the prairie. The earth trembling beneath the impact of countless hoofs. A dust-cloud, hanging like a pall of smoke over the oncoming bison. Occasionally a red flash and the roar of the heavy rifle of a daring hunter who has pressed well into the herd. On the edge of the stampede, coyotes and wolves, hoping to cut down a stray calf. Ahead of the front line of buffaloes, smaller animals running as if from an avalanche. And on every side the unbroken prairie, with no sign of a human habitation and even the high peaks of the Rockies to the west dwarfed to the semblance of small clouds on the horizon.

Such was the theater of action into which Christopher Carson found himself cast, when the low price of beaver skins had ended the trapping adventures in which he has been engaged since his first arrival in the Far West in 1826, sixteen years before.

Carson, forced to find some new way of making a living, had been made welcome at Fort Bent, on the Arkansas River, in what is now Southeastern Colorado. There had been a short parley with William Bent, one of the four brothers who founded this historic old trading post.

"Kit," said the veteran trader, whose Cheyenne Indian bride stood beside him, "the beaver's gone, shore enough—knocked out by them cussed, new-fangled high silk hats—but there's money to be made in buffalo hides. We're sellin' more and more of them. And besides, I want you here as hunter for the fort, to keep us in meat. Is it a go?"

There was no hesitation about acceptance, on Carson's part. He was back on the Santa Fe trail, the great highway over which he had first journeyed to the West from his Missouri home. He was familiar with the country around Fort Bent. He had trapped the branch streams of the Arkansas and had hunted all sorts of game in the vicinity of the post. So he hired out as a hunter to keep the larder of the fort supplied with fresh meat and to supply buffalo skins for the big hide press standing in a corner of the walled enclosure.

Carson, whose skill as a shot had brought him fame along a frontier where good marksmen were the rule, rather than the exception, plunged into the work with enthusiasm, and for eight years his rifle was depended upon for the chief part of the maintenance of the largest trading post in the West.

An Aerial Killing.

Buffalo hunting claimed much of Carson's attention. Great herds, containing countless thousands of bison, moved across the plains in the slow and systematic search for new feeding grounds. When one of these great herds was on the move, not a blade of grass was left in its trail. When the buffalo hunters forced a herd into a stampede, the animals were so closely wedged that the clash of horns even drowned out the thunder of hoofs. At the rear of the stampede, the animals became more scattered and it was here that the buffalo hunter carried on his dangerous task, in a dust-cloud so thick that sometimes it was difficult to distinguish objects at thirty feet.

Kit Carson generally did his buffalo hunting alone, but sometimes he was accompanied by men from the fort—perhaps the Bents themselves or some of the adventurous spirits who foregathered at this famous outpost.

On one occasion, when he was buffalo hunting with Lucien B. Maxwell, a celebrated pioneer who had settled on an enormous Spanish land grant in Northern New Mexico, and who frequently visited Fort Bent, Carson had a narrow escape from death. He and Maxwell had penetrated well within the herd and had killed several buffaloes, when Carson's horse stepped in a badger hole and fell. Carson was flung headlong from the saddle, and arose half stunned and with a severely injured shoulder. He made a futile endeavor to get his horse, but the animal quickly struggled to its feet and made after the buffalo herd.

"Never mind me—get that horse!" shouted Carson to Maxwell, who had seen the accident and who rode up to give help.

Maxwell hesitated an instant, as he knew that Carson was in a position of danger. At any time one of the buffalo bulls in the stragglers that were passing might conclude to charge upon the unhorsed hunter. But Carson repeated his request and Maxwell spurred after the riderless horse. He knew that the horse was lost if the animal got beyond the edge of the herd. Many buffalo hunters lost their horses in that way, a stampede seeming to exercise a peculiar fascination.

After a hard chase, Maxwell caught the horse, just as a veritable wall of buffaloes seemed to be closing in upon it. On his return, he found Carson safe and apparently unconcerned.

"I'm glad you caught the critter," was the only comment Carson vouchsafed. "I don't care so much for the horse, but he's got a good Mexican saddle and bridle on him."

A similar accident occurred on another of Carson's buffalo hunts, his horse falling and throwing him at least fifteen feet over his head. Carson had just wounded a buffalo bull, which turned and pursued him. Carson raced madly on foot for the Arkansas River, which was close by. He plunged off the steep bank into the deep water, and fortunately the buffalo concluded not to follow, though the enraged animal stood guard on the bank until one of Carson's companions came up and fired the death shot.

Carson's exploits as a buffalo hunter caused him to be regarded as "Big Medicine" among the Indians. There is no doubt that he was the West's greatest hunter of buffaloes, up to the time of the introduction of the breech-loading rifle. On one occasion he won a bet that he could kill five buffaloes with four bullets. He killed four with as many shots and then cut the bullet out of the fourth animal and used the slug for killing the fifth.

On a hunt he amazed some Indians and white companions by

A Warrior Who Believed in Peace.

Carson had a celebrated buffalo-hunting horse, named "Apache," which was a great aid to him on these hunts. "Apache" went about his work methodically and could always be depended upon in an emergency. He was an unusually sure-footed animal and seemed to have an uncanny ability to avoid badger holes and prairie dog holes, those banes of existence to the buffalo hunter and later on to the cowboy. Most horses had to be tied to the horns of the dead animal while the hunter was skinning a slain buffalo, but "Apache" would stand quietly, with reins trailing, while the remnants of the herd swept past. He needed no urging to bring his rider close beside a running buffalo and would dash on to the next as soon as the fatal shot was fired. On more than one occasion Carson owed his life to the strength and intelligence of this remarkable horse.

Besides the buffalo there were many other animals in the vicinity of Fort Bent to test Carson's skill as a hunter. Deer and antelope were plentiful, as were wild turkeys, quail and grouse. Coyotes and several varieties of wolves skulked about the uplands. In the rocky draws were to be found the mountain lion, the wildcat and the fox. Bears were numerous—the dreaded grizzly and the less dangerous brown and black species. Beaver, otter and mink were to be trapped in the tributaries of the Arkansas.

The hunting riches of this region had appealed to the Indians, before the coming of the white man. The Cheyennes, Comanches and Kiowas had roamed here for years. The Arapahoes also shared the great hunting ground, and the warlike Sioux and the Crows occasionally followed the buffalo herds down from the far northern reaches. The mountain Utes, who were quarrelsome and hard to get along with, sent their combined hunting and war parties out from the Rockies. Apaches and even the distant Navajoes were frequent visitors in the vicinity of Fort Bent.

Under such circumstances, Carson found it impossible to avoid the Indians on his hunting ventures from the fort. He was known to all the tribes and made it a practice to sit at their lodge fires whenever it was possible. He was even welcome among the Utes, whose treachery was a source of all. His talk was successful, and, after the peace pipe had been passed around, the Sioux departed and the threatened Indian war was averted.

The Colonel Blows a Sale to Pieces.

Big Timbers, which was not far from Fort Bent on the Arkansas River, was a favorite meeting ground of the plains tribes. At one time forty thousand Indians were assembled there for fifteen days. There was trading at the fort and then the Indians gambled away the proceeds among themselves.

Colonel William Bent stood high in the esteem of the Indians. He had married the daughter of a Cheyenne chieftain. His friendship with the Cheyennes, on this account, brought him the entire trade of that tribe. Also it strengthened his position with the tribes which were friendly to the Cheyennes.

With his three brothers and the celebrated trader, Colonel St. Vrain, William Bent has established a small trading post in the upper Arkansas foothills in 1828, for the purpose of getting Ute trade. The post was too far in the foothills, so it was moved down the Arkansas one hundred miles. A pretentious fort was built, on the American side of the Arkansas, ten miles above the Purgatoire River, later corrupted into "Picketwire." The fort was begun in 1828 and was made of adobe blocks, the work being done by Mexicans. The walls were seven feet thick at the base and fifteen feet high. There were circular bastions at two corners, and cannon were mounted in these. The doors were of massive planks. Quarters for the employes were built along the walls, inside the main enclosure. Forty or fifty trappers and employes were maintained regularly at the fort, and there was room for 100 horses and mules, vast accumulations of furs and supplies, and great freight wagons which could be driven into the main compound in case of threatened attack by Indians. Outside there was a big corral for horses, oxen, milch cows and sheep. The fort itself was 150 feet long and 125 feet wide.

The Bents kept "open house" at the fort. While they smoked Indian pipes on the wide verandah, Indian women and halfbreed children sunned themselves on the flat roofs and climbed up and down the ladders leading to the compound. There was even a billiard table to contribute to the entertainment of guests.

Colonel Bent had four sons and a daughter, and all forsook the ways of civilization and cast their lot with the Cheyennes. Charles Bent, one of the Colonel's sons, who had been sent back to the "states" and given the benefit of a good education, turned renegade and became one of the most desperate outlaws of the southwest. For years the government had a price on his head, but he was never captured and his fate is more or less shrouded in mystery.

Fort Bent stood until 1852, when it was destroyed by Colonel Bent in a fit of anger. The government had been negotiating to buy the fort as a military post, Colonel Bent demanded $16,000. The government authorities made $12,000 their outside limit. Rather than carry on further negotiations, Colonel Bent moved all his possessions from the fort. He planted several barrels of gunpowder about the place and these were fired, the resulting explosion making a melancholy ruin of the historic trading post. A new fort was built at Big Timbers. This later was sold to the government and eventually was named Fort Lyon.

In the picturesque atmosphere of old Fort Bent, Kit Carson spent eight years as a hunter. The life was to his liking, as it was crowded with adventure. He had married an Indian woman—probably the one over whom he had fought his duel with Shunan at the trappers' rendezvous. His wife soon died, and Carson tenderly cared for their only child, a daughter. He sent the child back to Missouri, where she could be given advantages which were impossible on the frontier. Much of the money he received as a hunter went toward the education of his child.

In the meantime civilization was pressing westward, and the great Santa Fe Trail was the scene of increasing activity. Settlers began taking up lands, and the Indians, crowded out of their hunting grounds, were becoming restless and quarrelsome. Outlaws were adding to the dangers of the trail. Carson's familiarity with the great highway of commerce to Santa Fe brought him into increasing prominence as a guide. His life as a buffalo hunter was more and more frequently broken into by even more thrilling hunts for bands of marauding Indians and white desperatoes who were jeopardizing life and property along the Santa Fe Trail.

Next week—Thrilling incidents on the Santa Fe Trail including hot fights with Indians.

Preventing Influenza

Influenza is an acute disorder which is most prevalent during the winter months. The atmospheric changes from year to year determine the severity of this disease. One year all the attacks of influenza will be very mild; while another winter they will be more severe.

Grip, la grippe and influenza are different names for the same ailment. At the start of an attack there will be a slight fever and an aching in the lower back. Finally different joints in the body will ache and a hacking cough develop. The urine is at the beginning very highly colored, which indicates the presence of a great deal of poison, which is being partially eliminated through the kidneys. Consequently, the bladder becomes irritated and acute cystitis frequently develops. The bronchial tubes are inflamed by the feverish breath and a cough, slight at first, soon develops into a hacking cough, but without much mucus for the first few days.

Influenza closely resembles acute rheumatic fever and one is often mistaken for the other. The distinguishing difference is in the absence of the cough in rheumatic fever.

There is no question but what influenza is brought on by two harmful conditions,—first, auto-intoxication, and secondly, enervation. It is impossible for any disease to develop in the body unless the system is self-poisoned by its own toxins. This is the common fundamental cause of all disease, so the one who has an "attack" of influenza is one whose system is burdened with effete toxic wastes, which the eliminative organs have not been able to throw out. In addition to this, anything which produces enervation will weaken the body's resistance to disease. Late hours—mental overwork—and the nursing of destructive habits of thought may be cited as the principal causes of enervation.

If influenza is prevalent in your community, it is the better part of wisdom for you to start at once to get your body in such a fine state of health that you cannot develop this ailment which has taken its toll of so of so many lives in the past few years. Start by giving yourself a good bodily house cleaning. Stop all regular food for four or five days, and take a fruit fast, using one kind of fruit three times daily in place of meals. You can get good results by using your choice of these fruits, oranges, grape fruit, grapes, pears, apples, pineapple or tomatoes. Take only one kind of fruit on any one day. For instance, if you use oranges for breakfast, you should also take oranges at noon and at night, on that day. The next day change to one of the other fruits if you must keep the bowels open by using one or two enemas daily. Begin to develop strength and endurance by exercising more with calisthenics and long walks. If you have been working long hours, cut the hours down to not more than eight hours, five days of the week; also take one afternoon off each week besides an entire day on Sunday. Get out in the open air for an hour or two each day, and while taking long walks, practice deep breathing exercises. If you will follow this advice you will be able to avoid an attack of influenza.

QUESTION: R. E. S. writes: "Through the columns of the paper will you kindly tell me whether or not the practice of an enema daily is detrimental? What would you suggest for a stubborn case of constipation?"

ANSWER: I have never heard of a case of any one being injured by taking daily enemas. Have you tried waiting for two or three days to see if your bowels would move? You must always do this when you are trying to get over the practice of taking enemas.

QUESTION: Mal-de-Mer writes: "I am thinking of taking a trip to Europe next May or June. (I am a bad sailor, always sea-sick on sea or lake). Would you advise a fruit fast just before going? I am middle aged, in excellent health."

ANSWER: If your seasickness is caused from biliousness, the fruit fast will be helpful, if taken just before starting on your voyage. If you become seasick because of defective vision, you must secure the proper glasses. If you always get sick and remain so all during your trips, it is doubtless because of the lack of balancing fluid in your ears. In that case the only thing you can do is to lie on your back and keep in a horizontal position until you reach land.

QUESTION: C. B. writes: "I have been troubled with soft swellings on my elbows. These have gradually become hardened. What can be done for them?"

ANSWER: I cannot diagnose your case by mail, but if your trouble is caused by rheumatism, it can usually be cured through dieting. Have your physician name your trouble, and write to me again, giving his diagnosis.

QUESTION: Mrs. J. V. C. writes: "Have been troubled with enlarged thyroid gland for some time. An operation for removal has been advised. Will you kindly advise me through your health column whether my trouble can be cured without the knife? Also, what causes the disease?"

ANSWER: Never consider an operation for an enlarged thyroid. It can always be reduced by fasting and dieting. The enlargement is caused by congestion in the ovaries, or waste products in the thyroid gland, which disappears during the fast and will not again form unless you are careless with your diet.

An Oriental Wizard

Among the most fascinating sights for occidental travelers in the east are the street fakirs, among whom the snake charmer is a high ranker. This picture, taken in Delhi, India, shows a snake charmer controlling through the music of his flute, the sinister impulses of a hooded cobra, most deadly of venomous serpents.

BRILLIANT POLA NEGRI TO BECOME BRIDE OF POLISH PRINCE

NOTED STAR OF FILMS TO WED

She's Now On Way to France For Wedding

(Helen Pollock, who obtained the first interview with Pola Negri after Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of Universal Service had announced the screen star's engagement, is a daughter of Channing Pollock, internationally known playwright. Miss Pollock is herself a gifted writer and a New York newspaper woman. She is aboard the Aquitania with her parents, who are enroute to Europe for a vacation.)

(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service.)

ABROAD THE SS. AQUITANIA, April 22.—Pola Negri has two broken fingers but no sign of a broken heart. The fingers were broken today when the top of a wardrobe trunk closed on them. Wardrobe trunks are no respectors of persons.

Pola received me in bed and in a peach colored silk negligee. Prince Serge Mdivani, her affianced husband, sat on the opposite bed in the charming suite consisting of parlor, chamber and veranda. All three rooms are crowded with flowers.

Prince Is Charming.

The prince is so charming that a succeptible reporter could easily understand why, since sailing, the two have advanced the day set for their marriage from May 14 to May 5. The reporter feels that one good moonlight night might take another week off the intervening time.

"I have been the loneliest woman in the world," said Pola. "I have had everything money could buy—everything but real friendship and the right companionship. I do not believe happy marriage is possible between two artists. One temperament is enough in any family.

"I could never marry any man because of his face, or his hair. Happiness must rest on surer foundations. There was a time I felt differently about all this.

"I have always been very unfortunate in my romances."

She Fears Jinx.

Pola turned to the prince and said she hoped nothing was going to happen to him. Even in these days of perfect ships an ocean does not seem a safe place for a lady with this kind of luck to take a prospective husband. At present the sea is perfectly calm and the prince does not look like a Jonah.

Pola has known her prince since he was 14. His mother was a Polish countess and the two families have always been friends. Both families are delighted at the marriage.

The wedding will take place at the Chateau Ruell Seracourt, near Versailles, where they will spend a part of their honeymoon. They will go afterwards to Deauville and the Riviera, returning to America at the end of May. The ceremony will have to be a civil one as Pola is a Catholic and the prince a member of the Church of England, neither being willing to change religion.

Prince Will Work.

The prince's father owns a Georgian mining exploration company and on his return to America the prince will open a branch of the business in Los Angeles.

Pola expects while in Europe to do her exploring into the life of Raachel, the heroine of her next picture, and they wil also buy authentic costumes for the part. She thinks this will be the pinnacle of her picture work because of the subject and because she is in love.

We discussed the Snyder murder and I discovered that Pola believes there is a law in American against executing women.

"If not," she said, "why are none ever executed?"

Not being able to explain, I left her. There was beginning to be some motion and not being in love, or an artist, I found my thoughts turning to my tummy.

They Held Hands.

As I left the prince was holding the broken fingers. They have the ship to themselves. No one has seen them and a stewardess who begged me to get an autographed picture had to be told that Pola has no pictures with her and does not seem interested in autographs.

Wilbarger Road Bonds Approved

Texas Attorney General Puts Okeh On Issue

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, April 23.—Notice that Attorney General Claude Pollard has approved the Wilbarger county road bonds for the sum of $850,000 and that the money from the bond issue will arrive here within a few days has been received by County Judge J. V. Townsend. The bonds are a part of the $1,000,000 issue voted by this county early this year.

The bonds have been printed, signed by county and state officials and are now registered with the state comptroller. From Austin, they will be forwarded to the Tell-White company of Oklahoma City, which has purchased the issue and will forward the money here.

The remaining $150,000 of the $1,000,000 issue will go to fund the outstanding indebtedness against the Harrold road district No. 3. When the funds from the remaining bonds arrive here, Wilbarger county will be able to match dollar for dollar with state and federal appropriations on road projects.

"McFaddin's Flats," Famous Stage Comedy, On Screen at Majestic

"McFadden's Flats," which opened as the feature attraction at the Majestic theater yesterday, is one long, hilarious laugh. The famous old stage comedy has been given a brand new dress, new laughs and a new lease on life that should give screen audiences a new conception of what can be done in the way of film fun.

Edward Small, of the producing firm of Asher, Small & Rogers, who made this latest First National hit, has turned out something unique in the form of a feature comedy. If his desire was to keep audiences roaring from the opening scene to the final fadeout he has succeeded.

Charlie Murray, as the hod-carrying Irishman, is irresistible, and teamed up with Chester Conklin as a Scotch barber, Charlie proves one of the greatest comics of the screen.

Of course, pretty faces—and figures as well—have not been overlooked in the making of this picture. Edna Murphy, in the leading feminine role, is one of the most convincing reasons why gentlemen prefer blondes. Then, when Dorothy Dwan comes along—photographing as a decided brunette—one becomes convinced that he might prefer her without losing the slightest evidence of his gentility.

"McFadden's Flats" tells the story of the struggles of an Irishman who, coming to America, has ambitions to get out of the ranks of hodcarriers and become a builder—a builder of a flat building that might bear his name, in fact. He meets a tight-fisted Scotchman—portrayed by Chester Conklin—who becomes his fast friend in spite of their wide differences in taste.

Pretty Romance

That the son and daughter of the two wrangling friends should fall in love with one another, permitting the unfolding of an entrancing story of young love, was a complication that neither had expected.

It is from this material that one of the most successful of stage comedies was made. And it is in the dressing up of this story in its present form that picture audiences are being given one of the genuine treats of the year.

Mission Offers Thrilling Film

A great deal to ask, you say? And yet that is exactly what the popular cowboy star, Buddy Roosevelt, does in his latest Pathepicture, "The Fightin' Comeback," showing at the Mission theater Sunday and Monday. In this instance the girl happens to be lovely Clara Horton, so it is not to be wondered at that Buddy would gladly follow her to any place, even into jail. The only wonder is that there could be a sheriff so cold hearted as to lock the dainty Clara behind prison bars.

It all comes near the climax of what is said to be one of Buddy's most entertaining pictures on the Pathe program, and it happens in such a natural and plausible manner that it is the most logical of denouements imaginable. The production is said to be built for suspense, and is also claimed for it that its characters look like real people instead of just actors.

"The Fightin' Comeback" was adapted for the screen by Frank L. Ingham from Walter J. Coburn's short story, "The Sun Dance Kid," which appeared a short time ago in Action Stories Magazine. It was directed by Tenny Wright, and its cast includes, in addition to the star and Miss Horton, such sterling actors as Sidney Goldin, Richard Neill, Robert Homans, Charles Thurston and Richard Alexander. Ray Ries was responsible for the photography, and it is said that he secured some striking night effects.

MAE MURRAY AT OLYMPIC

"Altars of Desire" Opens Run Today

Not since "The Merry Widow" has Mae Murray had a picture that compared in artistry to "Altars of Desire," in which Conway Tearle plays the featured male role. This new production, which was directed by Christy Cabanne, has its first showing Sunday at the Olympic.

"Altars of Desire" is a delightful combination of comedy and drama that is never played with a heavy hand. Her Clare Southerland is a new type for Miss Murray, in that it depends largely for its appeal on subtlety and whimsical situations. The first half of the picture the star plays with a pretty insouciance, and in the latter scenes proves herself an excellent dramatic actress.

Conway Tearle plays the part of John Elrod, a young Southerner who becomes enamored of Clara against his better judgment. Tearle gives an excellent picture of a man torn between his heart and his mind. It is a pleasure to see this actor in an outdoor part after so many dress suit roles.

The story, adapted by Agnes Christine Johnston and Alice D. G. Miller from the original by Maria Thompson Daviess, lends itself unusually to picture treatment. It is the story of a southern girl, who on her initial trip to Paris, meets and becomes fascinated by a Frenchman, Count Andre. He pursues her back to America, and makes every effort to make her run away with him, finally persuading her to do this during a momentary misunderstanding with John, a neighbor, whom it has long been planned she should marry. Andre, however, shows a bit of honor at the last minute, and confesses that he has a wife in Paris, whom he is suing for divorce though he tries to force Clare to stay with him, and promise to marry her as soon as possible. In the ensuing struggle, Clare strikes Andre with a weapon which he has playfully given her to protect herself, and he falls, apparently dead. The following sequence is an extremely dramatic one, in which she goes to John for protection, and the denouncement comes as a striking climax to the story.

Maude George has a delightful role as "Mrs. Pryor," the chaperone of Clara, and rival for the hand of Count Andre. Andre Beranger, remembered as the "actor" in "Are Parents People," plays Andre with a charming indifference, and Robert Edeson is seen in the role of Judge Sutherland, father of the heroine.

Albert Lewin wrote the screen play, which was directed by Christy Babanne, director of "The Midshipman," "The Masked Bride" and other successes. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

HORSELESS COWBOY

It is the usual thing to associate a sailor with a ship, a chauffeur with an automobile, a chef with a kitchen, a grand dame with a lorgnette, and whoever heard of a cowboy without a horse?

Charles Murray has been visited by just such a fate. He is playing a comedy role in "The Boob," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by William A. Wellman, which is appearing at the Gem theater today.

Charlie was outfitted with everything that a cowboy might use but a horse, that is a real flesh and blood horse. For the incessantly inebriated character Tex, which he portrays, a saw-horse was supplied, and Murray claims that this is the first time that a cowboy ever appeared on the screen or anywhere else without a real horse.

George K. Arthur and Gertrude Olmsted are co-featured with Murray and Joan Crawford in this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy. Antonio O'Algy and Hank Mann are also in the cast.

LOVE COMEDY AT MAJESTIC

Man Hasn't a Chance When Girl Decides

Proving humorously but convincingly that when a girl decides to marry a man he might as well come to a similar decision, "Afraid to Love," the new Paramount production starring Florence Vidor with Clive Brook as leading man, opens Wednesday at the Majestic theater for three days.

Miss Vidor's famed beauty is placed carefully in the background through exigencies of the plot and unwrapped from its covering of made-up ugliness to blossom forth as an unsuspected rose in the hitherto unlovely desert of a singular honeymoon to Paris.

As Sir Reginald Belsize, Clive Brook convincingly portrays the cultured English gentleman whose plans for marital bliss are upset by an old uncle who wills him an enormous fortune on condition that he marry any woman at except the one he wants. The girl uncle disapproves of is Helen de Semiane (Jocelyn Lee) who is carrying on an intrigue before Sir Reginald's eyes with a gigolo.

As Katherine Silverton, whom Sir Reginald marries to fulfil the terms of the will and collect the fortune, Miss Vidor appears first as a dowdy old maid with thick glasses and a bad disposition. She is approved as a wife for Clive by Jocelyn who has agreed to the marriage only as a measure of collecting the legacy, and who insists on an immediate divorce as soon as the money is handed over to Clive. But alas for all well-laid plans! Florence's unsuspected beauty complicates matters and Clive's clever solution to his difficulty proves only to have jumbled matters the more.

Comic situations pile upon one another breathlessly. The plot unravels in a series of surprises. Miss Vidor displays an intelligent brand of acting that shows her well on the way to the brilliant cinema future prophesied for her by the critics with her first Paramount starring vehicle, "You Never Know Women."

'FIFTH AVENUE' AT STRAND

Glamour of Broadway In Film Here

All the glamour and the romance of New York's Fifth avenue—the most famous throughfare in the world, and the center of American extravagance and splendor—go to make up the background of the newest, Robert G. Vignola Special, "Fifth Avenue" which come to the Strand theater Sunday and Monday only.

Not only are there many exterior scenes actually made on that famous thoroughfare, but a large part of the action of the story takes place in the sumptuous dwellings which cluster about this fabled location. These settings are the ultimate in architectural beauty and magnificent furnishings.

The story of "Fifth Avenue" is highly interesting. Barbara Pelham, a southern girl, goes to New York to design fashionable gowns and falls into the clutches of a scheming woman who seeks to utilise her beauty and charm for her own profit. Barbara escapes from her den and in dramatic circumstances, in Greenwich Village meets the man she is to wed. Through his aid she wins fame as a designer. The story has a unique twist which will delight every spectator. The display of rich gowns is amazing.

"Fifth Avenue" boasts a remarkable cast, which features Marguerite De La Motte, aud Allan Forrest. The supporting cast includes Louis Dresser, William V. Mong, Crauford Kent, Lucile Lee stewart, and Anna May Wong.

Bandit Opens New Serial At Garden

A bandit opens the story of love, adventure and mystery told in "Melting Millions" the 10-chapter Pathe serial starring Allene Ray and Walter Miller that commences with chapter one at the Garden theater today, showing each Friday and Saturday.

The bandit is known as Jim Cummings. Hunted in vain for 23 years by the police, Cummings decides at last to give himself up. But before surrendering to the governor, there are important things to be done. First, he must tell Judy that she is not his daughter; and he must see that her real identity is established and that she is acknowledged as the heir to Craghaven and its rich estate.

But news travels in the realm of the underworld, and a clever gang of crooks, under the leadership of Conway Steele, intend to get their hands on the fortune first. Accordingly, when Judy comes to San Francisco to see her father for the first time in 10 years, she is dragged into a plot concocted by unscrupulous and crafty crooks.

Judy is the character portrayed by Allene Ray. Walter is a young army lieutenant on furlough who becomes involved through an unusual circumstance. The bandit is played by Bob Burns, and the crook leader is E. H. Calvert, assisted by William Bailey, Frank Lackteen and others.

Americans Will Honor Avon Bard

Great Shakespearean Theater To Be Erected

NEW YORK, April 23.—Tonight, William Shakespeare, the bard of Avon came into his own—on Broadway.

The first move in a nation-wide campaign to "bring Shakespeare back to Broadway," was made at the banquet held under the auspices of the International Shakespeare association, commemorating the 363rd anniversary of the Bard's birth, at the Hotel Astor.

It is planned to erect on the Great White way a theater, which will be dedicated to the memory of Shakespeare, and in which the plays, known in every land, will be presented from time to time. The Shakespeare theater will be one of the finest examples of playhouse architecture in the world, and will contain reading and reference rooms, a green room, gymnasium and swimming pool.

Children to Help.

School children in every state in the union will share in the theater fund, it was announced, and will contribute their pennies, nickels and dimes to the campaign.

The banquet tonight was truly Shakespearian. The delectable dishes served to the guests were made from recipes contained in the cook book of Good Queen Bess. Shakespearian period music was played, and the whole atmosphere was one which might well have been taken from any one of Shakespeare's familiar backgrounds.

The menu was a work of art, and each dish mentioned was accompanied by its relative quotation from Shakespeare's works. For example, boiled trips carried with it the excerpt from the Taming of the Shrew—"How say you to a nice fat tripe finely broiled?"

Distinguished Assembly.

The music program was typically Shakespearian, including Mendelsohn's "Mightsummer Night's Dream" overture, three songs of Shakespeare, and the principal number, "Rosemary," which was written especially by Byrd Mock for the occasion.

The campaign, "To bring Shakespeare back to Broadway," —a sentiment, according to Dr. Bentinger, echoed by millions of Americans, is now officially under way.

500,000 VIEW OAKLAND CAR

Noted Machine Draws Wide Interest In Tour

Within less than two months and a half almost a million people in more than 200 cities and towns have seen the famous 100,000-mile Oakland six sedan, now on its 20,000 mile trip around the country in the course of its second severe test.

Starting from Detroit February 1, after it had already undergone a severe motor test on a treadmill by running 100,000 miles in 163 days, the car went south and east, touching 19 states by the time it had reached Texas the first week in April. In that time it has traveled about 6000 miles. It is now on its western loop of a geographical figure eight around the country.

In Boston alone, newspaper men estimated that 200,000 residents of the Hub city packed its narrow streets at the noon hour on Saturday and saw the car escorted by a 70-piece band, mounted police and a fleet of its sister cars.

In New York, another 100,000 watched the car on its way to be received at the city hall, and at Philadelphia, 100,000 lined famous old Market street and watched the car roll by.

Thousands in towns and hamlets have inspected the car. Whether they were city folks or comfortable residents of rural sections, they displayed a keen interest.

Charles E. Planck, manager of the tour, and Karl R. Schnorr, driver of the car, have reported that all of America they have seen on the trip is auto-wise. In New York the snappy young gentleman in spats and a hard hat was interested as much in the car and its accomplishments as he was in the outcome of the play censorship on Broadway, and in the smaller towns along streets "over-arched with familiar trees and paved with contentment," where the populace took its unhurried examination of the car, there was likewise the same interest.

For more than 6000 miles, the car has left the pavement but a few times, indicating the progress being made in this country to facilitate motoring. Through one county in Indiana, between Shelbyville and New Albany, a stretch of muddy road slowed down its progress. This was a detour caused by the presence of 12 army trucks which had cut up the regular road and become mired. Throughout Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri, the travelers rolled along comfortably. The car had one puncture so far on this trip.

Dodge Brothers Make Improvements To Reduce Wear In Gears of Car

A confidential letter sent recently by the factory to all Dodge Brothers dealers is typical of the unassuming way this conservative manufacturer announces an important improvement. Below the heading "Steel in Transmission Gears Changed" four lines tell in simple words that a change has been made in the material of the gears in the commercial car and truck transmission to improve the wearing qualities.

"An improvement of far-reaching significance to the owner," says Bob Cornelison manager of McFall Brothers, local dealer, in commenting on the notice, "is disposed of in a few words—just part of the usual routine of incorporating any improvement as soon as most thorough testing has demonstrated beyond doubt that its adoption will be a true betterment.

"What the change actually involves is the use of the finest and most expensive chrome vanadium steel. The new steel is made at the mill to Dodge Brothers exacting specifications as regards chemical analysis. In the terms of the metallurgist the carbon content has been raised from limits of .32-.35 per cent to the higher figure of .48-.53 per cent.

"In the language of the truck operator the gears forged from the new chrome vanadium steel and heat treated in Dodge Brothers new electric furnaces possess greater strength and toughness and increased ability to resist wear.

"Dodge Brothers have a reputation at the steel mill for unusual strictness regarding the chemical composition of the bars which are to be forged into the vital parts of their car. Their specifications call for much closer limits in the amount of the various ingredients which determine the physical properties of the steel than are recommended to the industry by the standards division of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

"Inspectors, who are constantly on duty at the mill, and chemists and metallurgists follow closely each step from the time the molten metal is poured into the ingot mold, through the rolling, forging, heat treating and hardening operations until the finished gear or other vital part is assembled into the complete unit.

"Further evidence of the care which is taken to insure smooth operation and long life of these gears," Mr. Cornelison continued, "is found in the process which has been developed to polish or burnish the mating surfaces of the gear teeth. Each gear after the final heat treatment is subjected to a rolling process between three larger master gears the teeth of which are even harder than those of the transmission gear. These teeth are about as near perfect in contour as it is humanly possible to cut and finish. After this rolling process the polished teeth of the finished gear will transmit the power more smoothly and with marked reduction in wear.

"This is but one of a constant succession of improvements and refinements designed to make a worthy product better—to add miles and miles of economical, dependable service to cars which now hold a reputation the world over for exceptional stamina and long life."

TO GUARD TRAIN

Mexico's Presidential Train To Have Heavy Escort.

NEUVO LAREDO, Mexico, April 23.—Mexico's new presidential train of five specially built Pullmans will be met here upon its arrival from Chicago next Tuesday by two picked regiments of infantry and escorted to Mexico City, it was learned today.

As an added precaution against possible rebel raids, the presidential train will be proceeded by an armored pilot train and followed by two flat cars on which will be mounted five machine guns.

New dining cars to be used in Australia will be 72 feet long, and will seat 48 persons in the saloon.

GOOD TIMES OVER NATION

Chevrolet Head Tells Of Wide Prosperity

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Marked evidence of further prosperity that seems to be in store for the country generally throughout the current year was pointed out by R. H. Grant, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, who has just concluded a series of 21 nation-wide sales meetings that brought him into close touch with business condition from coast to coast. During the course of the meetings, which consumed three months, Mr. Grant addressed more than 15,000 people and enjoyed an excellent opportunity to survey trade conditions at first hand.

Conditions Sound

"Business conditions over the United States, as we saw them in the first three months of the year, more than justified the optimistic forecasts made last December," Mr. Grant declared. "Trade activity and soundness in the early months have demonstrated the accuracy of the opinion that the year should be an excellent one for American business.

"Every factor that should contribute to good business is at hand. Everywhere we found optimism and confidence amid unusual activity for the time of the year. Everywhere was reflected the financial stability of the country.

"The aggregate and individual wealth is the greatest ever; savings deposits and business done through checking accounts are constantly reaching new levels and a more even distribution of wealth is contributing to further economic soundness.

"Excellent reasons for the belief that prosperity will attend trade throughout the year are found in every section of the country. Crop diversification has helped the south. Plenty of rain and snow in the Pacific Coast region, the last part of the country to be visited, assures good irrigation for crops in that territory. Increased employment in the industrial sections of the middle west is giving those regions greatly increased buying power. Strides in the direction of further diversification in the northwest should make the grain country a bigger factor in the buying market. The corn belt too is preparing for its biggest season. Gains being made in our own business in New York and New England are surprising."

Commenting on the activity in the automobile business, Mr. Grant declared that the year holds unusual promise for the motor trade.

Greatest Year

"Chevrolet should enjoy the greatest year in its history," he said, "The popularity of the car is being reflected in the sensational public reception being accorded it in all sections of the country, with registrations showing a tremendous increase over the record of the corresponding period of a year ago.

"In response to the greatest demand in the history of the Chevrolet Motor company, our factories in March produced 107,900 units, shattering all previous monthly production records and surpassing the best previous month by more than 22,000 units."

Car Goes 780 Miles In High Gear

Traveling 780 miles in 19 hours, 52 minutes at an average speed of 40 miles an hour, the entire journey being made in high gear, is another accomplishment marked to the credit of the "70" Willys-Knight Six. This stamina test was recently staged in a run in New Zealand from Christchurch to Invercargill and return.

Severe Test

The route was over a hilly and mountainous territory known in that section of the world as a severe test for any motor car. The run was made under the official observation of the Canterbury Automobile association and at its conclusion officials of the association issued a certificate attesting the accomplishments which included the following:

"Engine ran continuously for 21 hours, 28 minutes; total mileage 780 miles; average speed throughout, deducting time spent in controls, 39.9 miles per hour; total amount of petrol used, 41 gallons; average petrol mileage, including idling, 19.3 miles per gallon. The certificate was signed by B. Falck, president of the association and John R. Hawkes, secretary.

Heavy Rain

The start of the trip was made in a heavy downpour of rain. Through the cities and villages and on the highways every speed and traffic regulation was complied with by the driver. The Willys-Knight twice sped up the steep grades of the famous Kilmogg hills and Mt. Cargill, mastering these difficult climbs in high gear, considered a notable accomplishment.

Despite the gruelling test less than one gallon of oil was used and only one pint of water was added to the radiator supply, a tribute to the Willys-Knight cooling system.

The severe test was made in a stock car fully equipped and required no adjustments during the trip nor at its conclusion.

HIGHER TIRE PRICES SEEN

Advance In Crude Rubber Predicted

Advices from reliable sources in the Akron district, just received by Dixie Tire Service company, General tire distributor for Wichita Falls, are to the effect that conditions in the tire industry today are sharply in contrast with those of a year ago, when a sluggish, backward spring, a falling crude rubber market, prevailing high tire prices, and a strenuous and effective government campaign of propaganda to encourage tire conservation, combined to militate against the industry and to defeat even normal sales.

Quite the opposite of the buying apathy upon the part of both dealer and consumer of a year ago, is the public attitude now. Recognizing that tire prices are the lowest in history and that tire values are higher than ever before (retail prices were reduced five times for a total reduction of approximately 35 per cent last year), and realizing that the current trend of the crude market is increasing justification for a price advance on tires in the near future, dealers and motorists have been buying aggressively. In fact, conditions seem to be closely patterning those which in 1925 permitted tire manufacturers to enjoy unprecedented expansion and sound prosperity.

There is a strong probability of a tire price advance within the not remote future, and such an advance is looked for in tire industry circles. The crude rubber market has shown increasing strength during the past month, and according to definite forecasts of British producers will go higher during the next quarter year. These facts give rise to a legitimate opportunity to advance tire prices, and it is known that many companies already have tentative new price lists ready to be released.

Great Britain, home of "beefeaters," now consumes 1000 more tons of beef a week than it did a year ago.

Advanced Design In Whippet 6 Chassis

Many advanced engineers features have been embraced by Willys-Overland engineers in the construction of the Whippet six chassis. The design of this chassis incorporates the highest standards and ideas accepted by both American and European automotive experts.

The Whippet six frame is of pressed steel and is re-enforced by four sturdy cross members exclusive of the two strong cross-bars used in the motor suspension. The wheel base is 109 1-2 inches with a road clearance of 8 1-2 inches. This type of chassis construction carries out the low center of gravity design, one of the features in all Willys-Overland products.

This type of construction, Willys-Overland engineers assert, has been adopted to increase the road stability of the car and give an added ease of riding comfort not possible where the body and the weight of the car is carried higher from the ground. The Whippet chassis carries the weight of the car close to the ground thus eliminating vibration and top-sway.

The Whippet Six is powered by a six-cylinder motor which has a bore of three inches and a stroke of four inches, developing a maximum energy of 40 horsepower. The piston displacement is 169.9 cubic inches. Full pressure lubrication system is used, the oil being forced through the crankshaft to the bearings to lubricate the cylinder walls and valve mechanism.

The springs are semi-eliptic type. The front springs are 34 1-2 inches long, 1 3-4 inches wide; rear springs are 51 1-2 inches long and 1 3-4 inches wide.

Four-wheel brakes of the latest approved type are used in the Whippet Six, this being one of the features that has made an unusual appeal to the motor buyers who prefer to drive a car whose braking equipment will function speedily in any emergency. Good braking equipment, it is pointed out often spells the difference between safety and disaster.

Leading automotive experts of America declare that the time is not far distant when four-wheel brakes will be looked upon as a necessary standard equipment for all cars regardless of size or price class.

PLEDGE PAYS

That the merchandising of used cars is no longer a "hoss tradin' game" has been most conclusively shown by the results obtained by Studebaker dealers all over the country through the sale of used cars under the Studebaker used car pledge, according to announcement received by Fritz Motor company, local Studebaker distributor.

Against the predictions of the entire automobile fraternity, Studebaker dealers, two years ago, began selling used cars under the terms of this pledge. For the year 1926 records show that 100,000 cars were sold under this pledge plan. Moreover they were so honestly sold that less than 200 complaints were registered at the factory.

1. Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

2. All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as certified cars have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

3. Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used. (It is assumed that the car has not been damaged in the meantime.)

4-DOOR SEDAN $1195

A recent Oakland advertisement contained a statement which has attracted extraordinary attention. It said in part, "... Oakland is going to unheard-of lengths to make certain that the Greater Oakland Six continues to be the finest built car of its price in the world." And in support of that statement there were listed some of the extraordinary precision operations employed in the manufacture of the Greater Oakland Six.

If you are going to buy a car at anywhere near Oakland's price, you cannot disregard the fundamental meaning of such rigidly controlled quality.

You can observe at a glance the rich external beauty of the Greater Oakland Six. But to learn the basic reason for Oakland's ever-growing good will, you must actually drive the car and talk to Oakland owners—must experience the car's thrilling acceleration, handling ease and road mastery—must learn from those who know that exacting care in manufacture pays perpetual dividends in owner satisfaction! CURB ON CAR THEFTS URGED

Hupp Perfects Lock Used As Push Button

By R. S. COLE
General Sales Manager, Hupp Motor Car Corporation

The automobile thief continues to ply his trade until the thieving of cars has become, next to bootlegging the largest and most lucrative profession of the underworld. Various means have been resorted to by municipal, state and federal authorities to curb the trading in stolen automobiles. Certificates of title are required in some states. Heavy prison sentences are provided by the federal government as a punishment for transporting stolen cars between states and municipal authorities are bending every effort to improve the situation.

25,000 Cars Stolen

Many statistics have been quoted on this subject but it is estimated that during the past year approximately 250,000 cars have been stolen with an estimated value of about $215,000,000. Many are recovered, but rarely are they in good condition, many being wrecked, and usually they are completely stripped of equipment when recovered.

This loss is said to average at least $200 per car and it is on account of this tremendous loss that the insurance companies are seriously considering the elimination of coverage on tires and accessories.

The forgetful driver who leaves his car without locking it is the cause of most of the car thefts. Locked cars are rarely stolen. Statistics show that only 15 per cent of parked cars are locked, hence the thief can simply take his choice. People who would never under any circumstances leave their front door unlocked give no thought whatever to leaving their automobile, worth from one to $5,000, stand on the street absolutely unprotected.

The reason for this is that the methods provided for the locking of cars have not kept pace with other motor car improvements. To lock a car has been inconvenient in many cases and has required extra effort so that the average driver has simply not taken the trouble to lock his car; in many cases taking the attitude that the car is insured, so why should he worry.

With this situation in mind, the Hupmobile engineers have during the past year made an exhaustive investigation of theft preventions and as a result, Hupp eight-cylinder cars are now equipped with a locking device known as Electrolock, which it is believed is an effective answer to the problem.

Convenience is one of its appealing features, the key being used only to unlock the car, the locking being accomplished simply by a push on the lock button, located on the grouped instrument panel which stop the motor and automatically locks the car.

This device involves no extra effort on the part of the driver to lock the car. The action of shutting off the ignition automatically locks the car. The lock is placed in the distributor circuit and protected in such a way as to render impossible wiring around the switch and by further protective methods, the car is amply theft resisting at all times.

Auto Salesman Uses Telephone To London to Close Deal for Car

What is believed to be the first retail automobile sale ever made by international telephone was closed recently by the Garber Buick company when A. F. Penoyer, salesman, sold a car to a prospect in London by telephone from Saginaw, Michigan.

The purchaser of the car is R. C. Morley of Morley Brothers Wholesale Hardware company, who was in England on a business trip at the time. Penoyer, an enterprising salesman, learned that the head of the Morley concern was to talk from London to the directors of his company at a certain hour, and he made arrangements to be on hand.

After Morley had given his decision on some important matters while comfortably seated in his room in a London hotel, the receiver in Saginaw was turned over to Penoyer. The two men had discussed details of the transaction before Morley left for Europe, but the deal had not been closed.

"Hello, Mr. Morley," said Penoyer. "It seems good to hear your voice, even though you are a long ways from home. I understand you are going to sail tomorrow. Before you left we tried to get your approval on one our new Buick Country Club coupes. I would like to have one of these cars trimmed and equipped for you when you arrive home."

After a short discussion of terms, Morley gave the order for the car. He then talked for a moment with Guy Garber, Buick distributor in Saginaw.

While several automobile deals have been completed via the overseas telephone, this is believed to be the first instance of a retail salesman selling a car for personal use to a customer from his own city, using the international phone to complete the deal.

Additional Room In Packard Seats

The two inches by which the rear seats of Packard cars exceed the maximum standard widths of motor car cushions was gained only after more than six years of intensive effort by many scores of men and at the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars, say Packard engineers.

Greater width means greater comfort when three persons occupy the rear seat and for that reason was considered something for the accomplishment of which no effort was too great. Packard rear seats now are 49 inches wide and have 55 inches at the heighth shoulders.

An heritage of the old carriage days places rigid limitations on seating arrangements of motor cars of today and makes the work of body engineers difficult in their constant endeavors for greater space. Horse drawn vehicles had a standard wheel tread so the wheels would follow the ruts in the road. Although roads with ruts are rapidly disappearing in America they still limit the tread of automobile wheels and the distance between the rear wheels is the barrier against which the motor car designers have been struggling for years to gain greater rear seat comfort.

Packard engineers succeeded in flaring out the wheel recesses in the body just enough to add, with one or two other features in design, the space necessary for the additional two inches of seating width. The flares had to be held to a point where the body would not rub against the tires or be struck by tire changes and the space gained for that reason was slight. Small as it was, however, it meant volumes when carefully husbanded and expanded above into the compartment for the rear seat cushion.

MARMON SETS SALES MARK

Public Favor Turning To Quality Cars

With production of both the large Marmon Series 75 and the Marmon Eight soaring to new high levels, the Marmon Motor Car company is anticipating the heaviest spring business in its history, according to advices received from Indianapolis.

Immediate orders call for the shipment of about 750 large Marmons and over 2500 Marmon Eights within the next four or five weeks, announces H. H. Brooks, general sales director. In most sections of the country, says Mr. Brooks, Marmon sales are running three-fold greater than ever before, thus emphasizing the very noticeable trend on the part of the motoring public toward cars of unquestioned quality.

At the present time the company is manufacturing its complete line of quality automobiles in 27 different body styles. In addition, an unlimited selection of custom-built body types is being offered, mounted on both the large and small Marmon chassis.

The excellent taste reflected in Marmon's full line of cars is creating much favorable comment this season. Moreover, the striking color effects achieved by the company represent an advanced note in the appearance of motor cars in the fine car field. The luxury and smart appearance of these cars are winning additional prestige for the pioneer company whose name they bear.

Sales and service connections of the Marmon company are still being greatly augmented, according to Sales Director Brooks, who has just announced a new list of distributors and dealers. Altogether about 400 new sales and service connections have been established since the first of the year.

Motor Head Urges Elimination Of Auto Horns As Safety Device

BY E. T. STRONG
President and General Manager, Buick Motor Company

Do horns on automobiles prevent accidents? I believe that in some instances they undoubtedly do. But I am also convinced that the automobile horn has inoculated the average driver with a false sense of security which often breeds carelessness and results in disaster, because of his too great dependence on it.

Any doubt as to the truth of this statement would be removed if automobile owners would try to drive their cars without the aid of the electric siren which is now standard equipment on every car built. It is my opinion that they would find themselves driving with more care than they had exercised since their first experience as automobile drivers. It has become instinctive for the driver to bring his hand down on the horn button at the top of the steering wheel post and bluster ahead, with little heed for the effect which the sounding of the horn has had on the other fellow. And the other fellow is calloused to the blare of the horn in his ears. The noise has ceased to have any meaning for him. Drive two blocks through traffic without the use of the horn and you will find that you are using more care than you have ever used before to avoid accidents. You will drive as you should always drive, with due regard for others who are sharing the public streets and highways with you. And you will discover that, even without using the horn, you will be driving with greater regard, for the safety of yourself, pedestrians and other cars. This is true because you will not be placing exaggerated confidence in a noisy bit of mechanism which cannot and never could of itself prevent accidents, even though many drivers show by their actions on the road that they credit it with such superhuman powers.

Possibly if horns were removed entirely from the automobiles we would see a very satisfactory decrease in automobile accidents. Without horns, it would not take long for everyone to realize that safety depends entirely on keeping the eyes and ears open, which is after all the only sure and complete remedy for accident. A long step in the direction of greater safety will have been taken when drivers realize that they cannot "drive with the horn."

TRUCK RECORDS

Graham Brothers Sales Contine to Gain.

Retail deliveries of Graham Brothers trucks and commercial cars to customers by Dodge Brothers dealers now are averaging more than 330 a day.

This volume of sales practically equals the high average of 1926 when all previous records of the company were broken with a total of 67,293 commercial cars and truck deliveries. Coming well in advance of the peak buying season, the present large sales indicate another record breaking year for Graham Brothers.

Since the beginning of the year, the growing popularity of Graham Brothers trucks has been shown by constantly increased deliveries to retail purchasers. For the week ended April 2, a total of 1277 commercial cars and trucks were sold by dealers in the United States alone compared with 1174 for the preceding week and 1103, 997, 910 and 830 respectively for the weeks preceding.

The engine improves with use

The sweeping trend toward Willys-Knight—and tremendously increasing sales—are explained by distinguished performance. No other car is so richly equipped with advantages:

7-Bearing Crankshaft—Eliminates vibration.
Skinner Rectifier—Prevents oil dilution.
4-Wheel Brakes—Positive, mechanical, quick-acting.
Bellflex Shackles—Patented spring shackles that make the chassis lastingly quiet. No greasing or adjustment.
8 Timken Bearings in Front Axle—Most fine cars have but four. Easiest steering you have ever known.
Narrow Body Pillars at Windshield—Insuring greater vision; an added safety factor.

Walter P. Chrysler and his engineers, in designing and developing the six cylinder Chrysler "60", strove for a quality of road-ease and road-readiness and supreme comfort which would at once set it apart as a car among cars, unprecedented at its price and its class.

The extent to which the Chrysler "60" is dominating its own field, is thus a dream gloriously realized and an ambition splendidly fulfilled.

Mechanically, the "60" has many of the very same features to be found in the higher-priced Chrysler "70" and Chrysler Imperial "80" which include seven-bearing crankshaft, invar-strut pistons, impulse neutralizer, manifold heat control, air cleaner, oil filter, full pressure lubrication, hydraulic four-wheel brakes and shock absorbers.

You'll recognize it, especially after driving it, as a value utterly unapproached by any other six of medium price.

New Machines For Tire Repair

Tire repair service for local motorists is to be greatly improved according to the announcement of Gene Segall, owner of the Segall Tire company, that the complete battery of Heintz electrical vulcanizing machines is now installed and ready for operation. These machines, which are electrically controlled and operated are the latest inventions of factory experts and are the same machines as used by the largest tire manufacturers in the U. S. today.

The repair department of the Segall establishment has been placed in charge of Otis H. Cook, for many months past an expert at the company's local station. Mr. Cook has just finished the entire course of instruction concerning the Heintz machines and has visited the great tire factory where they are used. The process is an innovation of the Goodyear Tire company of Akron, Ohio.

The models are operated electrically and the local company has one to fit any size tire sold on the market from a three-inch to ten-inch tire. "It is a great invention," says Segall, "and through its efficiency of operation, its better work and the saving of time I expect it to be a feature department in my business. I have, along with the Goodyear Tire company, tried to bring every modern tire service to Wichita Falls. This is, in my estimation, the best machinery made for the purpose and by its use I render better service than ever before.

"If better machines come out, I'll get that too," said Mr. Segall.

Special to The Record News.

RULE, April 23.—About 100 children and their mothers and teachers of the beginners and primary departments of the Methodist Sunday schools enjoyed an Easter egg hunt Saturday afternoon at the Hill's pasture south of town. The search for the brightly colored eggs hidden about the pasture resulted in each child having a basket of eggs.

On Sunday afternoon, Miss Ila Merle Warren entertained the Junior league of the Methodist church with an egg hunt, about 40 children taking part in searching for the eggs.

Mrs. L. B. Smallwood and Mrs. Earl Brashar and Mrs. J. B. Sellers attended the Woman's Missionary convention in Abilene the first of the week. Rev. Smallwood motored on to visit his parents a few miles below Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Halle of Spur were the week-end guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. A. M. Morgan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. White spent Sunday in Stamford the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Booth.

Mrs. Homer Cate of Huntington, W. Va., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. A. White, has returned home.

Mrs. W. H. McCandless attended the Woman's Missionary convention the first of the week in Abilene and visited friends.

Plans are being made for a revival meeting at the Presbyterian church early in June. Rev. Gary Smith of Sweetwatr has been secured to hold the revival. Mr. Smith is a man of strong personality and a real gospel preacher. The exact date of the meeting will be announced later.

Dr. Attlcus Webb, well known in the anti-saloon circles, will deliver a lecture at the Rule Methodist church Friday evening, April 29.

Messrs. Winningham and Allred of Haskell are opening up a second hand furniture store in Rule in the vacant building west of the Simpson Produce company. They will carry a large stock of second hand furniture, and will run a repair and varnish shop in connection with the store.

Mr. Lester Westmoreland of Anson is the new instructor for the Rule band. Westmoreland is a real musician, and is well pleased with the talent that composes the Rule band. The band is doing well and improving rapidly under the instruction of the director. They will give a band concert next sunday afternoon.

Supt. O. C. Southall and his entire faculty have been re-elected to their positions in the Sagerton school for another year. This is Supt. Southall's fourth election to the superintendency of the Sagerton schools. The school has been classified this year and brought up to the standard of state requirements. Much new and additional equipment has been added. The term has been nine months this year and the board has decided to continue the nine months term next year.

State Building Inspector S. R. McCoy of Austin, at the request of the Sagerton school board and Supt. Southall, made a thorough inspection of the Sagerton school building last week and pronounced it safe.

Mrs. Aude Verner visited friends in Haskell Tuesday.

Dr. Gossett, who underwent an operation in the Stamford sanitarium about a month ago, and who has been in parts of South Texas recuperating, returned home the latter part of last week, and is able to resume his practice.

Studebaker Dealer Announces Two New Commander Coupes

The Commander coupes, for four passengers and the other for two, latest additions to the Studebaker line of Custom cars, were announced today by the Studebaker corporation of America through Fritz Motor Co., local Studebaker dealer. The new coupes are mounted on the same powerful chassis that recently established five world's records when it traveled 5000 miles in less than 5000 minutes. This run was made on the Culver City, Cal., speedway under the observation of the American Automobile association officials who checked the Commander thoroughly and furnished affidavits to the effect that it was a strictly sock model.

Equaled in rated power by only seven American cars, costing two to five times more, Studebaker claims that any of its Commander models will out-perform and outlive any car—six or eight, selling for less than $2500.

Combined with its extraordinary power, the Commander coupe offers those features of custom beauty, comfort and refinement that characterize Studebaker's custom cars. And through Studebaker's one-profit manufacturing facilities, the Commander coupe is produced at a cost well within reach of a majority of motorists. Fully equipped, with front and rear bumpers and snubbers, the Commander coupe for four lists at $1645; the Commander coupe, for two, $1545.

Powered by Studebaker's Big Six motor, the Commander will flash from 5 to 40 miles an hour in 18 2-5 seconds, and hold a steady top speed of 70 actual miles per hour. Combined with the speed and flexibility is an unusual economy as proved by 67 official tests held recently all over the United States which set a national average of 17 1-4 miles per gallonf

The low hung grace of the body lines which sweep back from the silver figure of Atlanta on the radiator, and the comfort, roominess and beauty of interior finish are outstanding characteristics of these new Commander coupes. Both are thoroughly smart cars, inside and out.

The seating arrangement of both cars is unusually comfortable. In the coupe for four, the driver's compartment, upholstered in fine mohair, there is room for three. Under the rear deck is a rumble seat for two additional passengers.

The rumble seat is upholstered in genuine leather. It is set low and provides a long stretch of leg room. On the right side of the body is a hand side-opening compartment for golf bags or packages. The coupe for two is upholstered in genuine leather and will seat the occasional third passenger without crowding. Under the rear deck is a spacious compartment for luggage.

SPEED COP USES AUTO

He Makes Perfect Record In Two Years

Traveling between San Francisco and San Diego in the interest of a local stage company is a Chrysler "70" phaeton that has upward of 60,000 miles on its speedometer, more than twice as much mileage as would be piled up encircling the globe.

Its owner is Ray Olds, who travels for the stage company now, but most of the mileage was registered chasing speeders in Ventura county, down Los Angeles way for Olds was formerly a state speed officer.

About a year ago Chrysler representatives sent out letters to a large number of California police who had bought Chrysler cars for use in their traffic duties and asked how their cars were performing. Olds did not reply at the time, but the other day he dropped in to see a Chrysler distributor to give his answer to the query.

"You tell 'em for me," he said, "that there never was another automobile like it. You can say I chased speeders for the better part of two years in that car and never lost one of them.

"A lot of this speed work was at night, and that meant I sat by the roadside with lights out and a cold motor until some crazy galoot came tearing down the highway. Then I'd have to jump that Chrysler into action all at once, race it at top speed for maybe 12 miles to overhaul somebody who was traveling at perhaps 60 miles an hour when he passed me.

"A PARTNER WITH THE PUBLIC"

A Type of Performance Not to be Matched by any other six near its price

DIFFERENT—utterly different in the quality that stands out as distinctly in its exterior beauty as in its interior elegance, the Hupmobile Six contrasts even more strikingly with the ordinary six in performance.

The vigor of its response, the easy way it reels off top speeds with perfect smoothness, the marked restfulness of its riding and driving—these impress you at once as unusual.

And the quality is decidedly unusual—for Hupmobile actually puts 10% extra into materials and workmanship, thus making this the closest-priced Six in America.

If quality means more to you than showy appearance—then inevitably you will single out Hupmobile as the Six of soundest value and surest satisfaction in its field.
