Thunderstorms roll over county

More rain in forecast today, tonight

From local, wire reports

Scurry County got some much-needed rain Sunday evening and early today — much of it with a bang as thunderstorms rolled across the area.

A flash flood watch is in effect tonight. The forecast calls for a 50 percent chance of rainfall, with heavy thunderstorms possible.

The City of Snyder received 1.8 inches of rainfall over the weekend, according to officials at the water treatment plant. Rainfall in other areas of the county ranged from 1.2 inches to 2 inches.

Total rainfall for the year in Snyder has been 16.27 inches.

Despite storms which blanketed the county, the rains only sputtered at Lake J.B. Thomas, dropping seven-tenths at the dam and four-tenths at the upper end. Officials with the Colorado River Municipal Water District said heavy rain was reported in the Gail area this morning, giving the lake an opportunity to catch more moisture.

Showers and thunderstorms are possible across most of the state through tonight.

A cold front is expected to cross the Panhandle early Tuesday and is expected to reach the South Plains later in the day.

In North Texas, there is a slight chance of thunderstorms through tonight and a chance of continued activity on Tuesday with most of the activity expected in northwestern areas.

There is also a chance of scattered showers and thunderstorms in South Texas.

Lows tonight will be in the 60s and 70s in West Texas and in the 70s across the rest of the state.

Highs on Tuesday will be in the 70s and 80s in West Texas, the 90s across North Texas and in the 80s and 90s in South Texas.

County to seek new voting machines

Scurry County commissioners voted this morning to advertise for bids on new vote tabulating machines with the bids to be opened Oct. 2.

County Clerk Frances Billingsley said the machines are needed before the November general election because of the condition of the county's present equipment.

"We have eight units and six of them are not working," said Billingsley.

She said that the present machines are no longer being manufactured and they cannot be worked on unless the company "just happens to have the parts," said Billingsley.

She added that if they are worked on, the company will not guarantee the repairs because of the age of the machinery.

In other action this morning, the court agreed to accept bids on asphalt and seal-coating rock with bids to be opened on Oct. 2 also.

The court also voted unanimously to allow the Senior Little League Association to construct a enclosure between the two concession stands at Moffett Field.

Speaking on behalf of the league, Melissa Alexander told the court that this will enable the concession stand to add an additional serving window. The cost will be paid by the league.

Inmate labor from the Price Daniel Unit will also be used, said Alexander.

The court tabled action on two agenda items — construction of fencing and gates in the Little League complex and revisions to the county's policy manual concerning paid comp time.

A budget amendment was approved by the court in the consolidated road and bridge fund.

The court agreed to amend the budget by $3,000 to pay for part-time labor for seal-coating work.

Also approved were several line-item transfers, including $1,000 from utilities to communications for the health department.

Also in the consolidated road and bridge fund, the court agreed to transfer $6,145, including $1,825 in equipment, $$2,500 in capital outlay (machinery) and $1,820 in lease rental to $2,825 for repairs, $500 for communications, $1,000 for operating supplies and $1,820 for road machinery.

Transfers approved in Precinct 4 included $2,500 from capital outlay (machinery) and $1,206 from machine hire to $2,500 in operating supplies and $1,206 for repairs.

A Precinct 3 transfer approved moved $2,800 from repairs to $2,000 for tires and $800 for utilities.

The court also approved the minutes of the September meeting of the county's welfare board and the August reports from the county extension agents.

Judge Ricky Fritz presided while commissioners in attendance were C.D. Gray Jr., Roy Idom, Ralph Trevey and Jerry Gannaway.

Forms go out today...

Safe-Child Program signup begins

Snyder elementary school children will be bringing home forms today to sign up for the district's new Safe-Child Program.

The program is funded through a grant from the Children's Trust Fund (CTF) of Texas and will serve pre-kindergarteners through sixth graders whose parents work between 2:30 and 5:30 p.m. during regular school days.

The program utilizes teacher training and parental education in addition to on-going classroom instruction and role play in order to teach children to think for themselves, speak up for themselves, and to know when and how to ask for help.

Author of the program, Dr. Sherryll Kraizer, is to be in Snyder this week to give instructions on the program.

Parents who want their children to participate must return the completed forms to the appropriate campus no later than Friday.

Mary Ann Juarez, Snyder ISD community liason director, said class sizes will be limited. If enrollment exceeds expectations, Title I requirements will be used to determine eligibility.

The program will have a staff of 10, plus a coordinator.

Parents should be aware that the program will have strict guidelines, said Juarez. Students will be dropped from the program for repeated unexcused absences. Also, it will be the parents' responsibility to pick their children up from school at 5:30 p.m.

The grant, $22,064, was approved by CTF after a selection process in response to a Family PRIDE request for proposal. Scurry County is one of 15 Children's Trust Fund Family PRIDE sites in Texas. PRIDE communities receive CTF funding and support as they come together to identify the needs of children and solutions to respond to their concerns.

Scurry County Children's Trust Fund Family PRIDE Council assisted with review and selection of local proposals. To ensure community participation, applicants were required to provide a cash or in-kind match of at least 10 percent of the grant amount and also submit letters of support from the community. CTGF of Texas was established in 1986 by the Texas Legislature. PRIDE stands for Principles, Responsibility, Integrity, Discipline and Education.

No layoffs in TDPRS local office

Local employees won't be affected by Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services layoffs announced today, the regional director said.

However, 37 employees serving this region will lose their jobs next month due to a cut in federal funding, said Mark J. Marsh, regional director for Families' and Children's Services in Abilene.

TDPRS includes Children's Protective Services (CPS), Adult Protective Services and child care licensing. Positions affected by the layoffs include administrators, clerical and supervisory employees in the agency.

Of the 37 regional employees losing their jobs, none are CPS caseworkers.

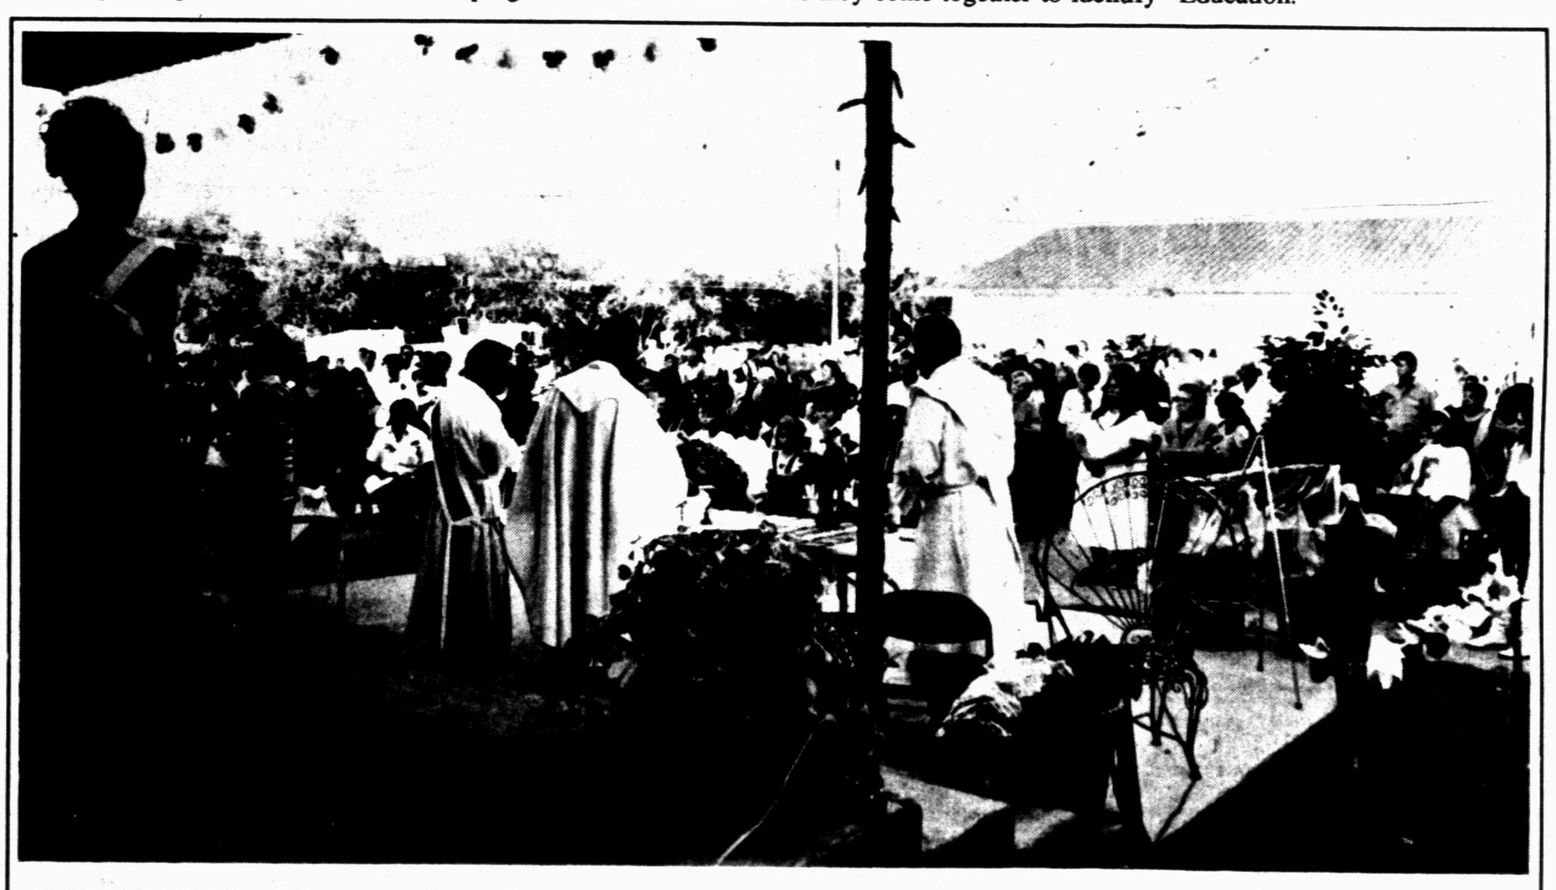

The Snyder office has five employees, including three CPS specialists, a clerk and a community service aide. None will lose their jobs, said Marsh.

TDPRS is eliminating the positions because its federal funding has been cut by $20 million annually for the current two-year budget cycle.

The region encompasses 60 counties and ranges from Abilene to Midland/Odessa, San Angelo and Brownwood. Scurry County is included in the area. There are currently about 336 TDPRS employees in the region.

Statewide, about 450 TDPRS employees' jobs will be affected.

Marsh said that whenever possible, workers who are being laid off will be considered for other positions.

OUTDOOR MASS - A large crowd attended the outdoor mass at the Diez y Seis de Septiembre Fiesta held Saturday afternoon. The fiesta started Friday night and continued through Sunday with attendance high for all events. The annual event was sponsored by Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. (SDN Staff Photo)

Proverbs 10:12

Mexican president's brother has low profile

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The youngest brother of Mexico's president lives happily out of the spotlight in San Antonio.

Few people outside the tightly woven community of Mexican nationals living in the Alamo City seem aware that Rodolfo Zedillo Ponce de Leon lives in the city, and he likes it that way.

Rudy, as he is known to close friends, experienced the bad taste of negative publicity even before his brother, Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de Leon, took office last year.

With little fanfare, and unlike the brothers of other presidents from both sides of the border, he quickly and quietly fashioned a new lifestyle that has left the president alone in the spotlight.

He simply moved his family to San Antonio in January, joining a growing circle of Mexican nationals who have chosen the city for its shared culture and language, proximity to Mexico and "ambiente familiar."

"We don't feel like strangers or foreigners in San Antonio," he told the San Antonio Express-News for Sunday's editions. "And because it is smaller than Mexico City, it allows families to become closer. Because of the vast distances in Mexico City, we are losing that (closeness)."

Zedillo lives with his wife and two children at the Dominion, the city's most exclusive gated community. His home is said to be valued at $500,000 and located somewhere along the country club's front nine.

But the youngest of the six Zedillo siblings defies the stereotype of wealthy, aloof Mexican expatriate.

The upscale, secure residence appears to be the one major indulgence in his life.

"Much has been made of us living there, but the reason we chose it is because of the security it offers," he said. "We feel especially vulnerable, and I think anyone in our situation would do the same."

His children, ages 7 and 4, are thriving in area public schools. Zedillo and his wife, Norma, a former actress in Mexico, both have taken English-language courses at the University of Texas at San Antonio and San Antonio College and enjoy jogging and biking together.

Since moving, Zedillo travels to Mexico City every two or three weeks to spend several days at his architect's office. The requisite color photograph of President Zedillo adorns one wall along with other family photographs.

Other illustrations — of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and various examples of 19th-century architecture — reflect his passion for theater and the history of his profession.

San Antonio's location makes it easy for Zedillo to divide his time between the two countries and keep a firm working grip on Intecon, the Mexico-based construction firm he founded in 1985.

"Someday I would like to have a branch of my office in San Antonio," said Zedillo, who is intrigued the North American Free Trade Agreement could allow architects from one country to work in another.

He rejected speculation that he might have been sent to the United States to avoid a fate similar to that of Raul Salinas, older brother of former President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

Raul Salinas, who allegedly used his brother's position to enrich the family fortune, was jailed in February on charges that he masterminded the murder last year of his former brother-in-law, a high-ranking official of the ruling party.

"My brother didn't send me anywhere," Zedillo said. "He was surprised when I informed him of my decision to take a year off to study English, but he didn't say anything."

Such speculation is born out of a legal dispute that arose between his company and as many as 200 complaints from people in Tuxtla Gutierrez — capital of Chiapas, the country's poorest state.

The complainants bought low-cost houses that Zedillo contracted to build in 1991. While homebuyers level charges of shoddy construction, Zedillo was sued in 1993 by seven construction companies claiming they were owed $360,000 for work on other residential development projects.

"The problems began when people in the first phase saw the other houses looked better and my last name was Zedillo," he said.

"Whether we are public figures because of who Ernesto is, I don't know," he said of himself and other family members. "I can tell you that none of us seeks publicity. On a personal level, I prefer being 25th on a list."

Missing boy's body found in high weeds

CONROE (AP) — A former police officer accused of kidnapping his friends' 12-year-old son drew a map in his jail cell that led officials to the boy's dead body — about 250 miles away and in another state, police say.

The remains of Samuel McKay Everett were found Sunday in the high weeds off a highway near Baton Rouge, La. Police would not disclose how he had been killed.

Hilton Lewis Crawford, a close family friend whom the boy called "Uncle Hilty," was charged Friday with aggravated kidnapping. He has not admitted to the boy's killing or kidnapping.

Carl and Paulette Everett say the ordeal began Tuesday night when they returned home from an Amway meeting to find their only child missing. Within hours, they had received a ransom call from a woman demanding $500,000 in $100 bills, police said. They refused to pay.

The initial evidence suggests Crawford masterminded a kidnapping scheme to pay off debts totaling $300,000, police said. He and his wife had filed for bankruptcy protection in May.

Authorities did not say what led them Friday to arrest Crawford, who was a police officer in Beaumont for three years in the early 1960s.

The 56-year-old security guard told them about the body Saturday, saying he wanted "to get this off my chest," but he said he did not kill the boy, Sheriff Guy Williams said.

Williams said he didn't believe the family's failure to pay the ransom led to the boy's death.

On Saturday, another suspect in McKay's disappearance — Irene Flores — was arrested and charged with aggravated kidnapping. She was the voice that demanded the ransom money from the Everetts, police say.

Crawford and Flores remained in jail without bond Sunday. Prosecutors were considering whether to file murder charges.

Days before the disappearance, Crawford had dropped by the Everett home and gave a football to the boy, whom everyone called McKay.

"Carl and Paulette Everett are deeply grieved," family lawyer Mike Mayes read from a statement Sunday. "Their hopes and dreams that they built in their family and in their son are no more."

Amoeba kills 6-year-old girl

DALLAS (AP) — A 6-year-old Euless girl is the latest victim of a rare type of amoeba that lives in stagnant water and, after entering the body, attacks the brain, killing its victim within days.

The death of Karli Parks is the sixth case of primary amebic meningoencephalitis reported in Texas this year, said Dale Dingley, chief parasitologist for the state health department.

"Before this year, there were never more than two annually," he said. "I don't know what that reflects."

Only 18 cases have been reported in the last 22 years, state officials said. The disease is so rare that it poses little danger to lakegoers, they said.

Karli, who vacationed Labor Day weekend with family and friends at Possum Kingdom Lake near Mineral Wells, died Tuesday at Children's Medical Center in Dallas.

E.G. White-Swift, spokesman for the Brazos River Authority, which operates Possum Kingdom, said Karli's death is the first reported incident at the lake.

The river authority frequently collects water samples for analysis, White-Swift said. But it is difficult to test for the amoeba because it is microscopic, he said.

The organization is aware of the organism's potential to show up in the lake, he said.

Dingley said the number of cases of PAM is small compared with the thousands of people who swim in state lakes.

"It's still a tragedy for the family involved, but from the standpoint of, 'Is it an epidemic?' No, it's not an epidemic," he said.

The main cause of PAM is a microscopic organism that can be found everywhere, Dingley said, adding that it becomes a problem when fresh water is warmer, stagnant or slow-moving. It feeds on bacteria, and when the temperature rises, the bacteria multiplies, he said.

The girl's uncle, Steve Clabaugh, said his family had never heard of the amoeba, making his niece's death even more tragic.

"It was just a typical day at the lake," Clabaugh said. "We do it about every weekend. Possum Kingdom was the last place we would expect that to happen."

He said they went camping Sept. 2, 3 and 4 near where the Brazos River feeds into Possum Kingdom. Karli felt fine when they left the lake, he said. But later in the week, she began to complain that she wasn't feeling well.

Killer of Filipina maid pays blood money to her family

KUWAIT (AP) — An Iraqi woman accused of beating her Filipina maid to death in Kuwait has paid the victim's family nearly $75,000 in the hope of receiving leniency in court, a lawyer close to the case said today.

The maid, Margie Almogela, 24, died in June shortly after she was hospitalized with severe bruises and fractures. Her employer, Janet Shamoun, is in custody and due to appear before a criminal court Tuesday.

The woman's Kuwaiti husband paid the money, a defense lawyer said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

In another case involving a domestic helper, a Kuwaiti woman has been sentenced to 10 years in jail for beating her Sri Lankan maid with an iron bar and a shoe with a pointed heel, leaving her to bleed to death, the Kuwait Times daily said today.

"She had injured nearly every part of the maid's body and stopped battering her only after she had died," said the newspaper, quoting court documents.

The report did not say when the unidentified woman was sentenced.

The Sri Lankan Embassy has identified the victim as P. Pushpalapha, 23. The married mother of two had been working in Kuwait for about five months at the time of her death in April 1994.

Hundreds of domestic helpers have sought refuge at their embassies in Kuwait. Most complain of overwork, nonpayment of salaries, beatings and sexual abuse.

Amboise appears

DALLAS (AP) — Jacques d'Amboise has danced on stage and screen and literally around the world, but he finds his work in the inner-city the most rewarding.

Since its founding by D'Amboise in 1976, the National Dance Institute in New York City has brought the arts to almost half a million children, mostly ones from poor, urban families.

The 61-year-old New Yorker brought his talents to Dallas over the weekend in advance of an Oct. 7 performance celebrating the 20th anniversary of Anita N. Martinez Ballet Folklorico Incorporated.

Dear Abby

Priceless Wedding Moments Are Caught by Camera's Flash

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: What are your feelings regarding the use of flash photography by professional photographers during a church ceremony?

Last week, I encountered a woman minister who flatly refused to permit flash photos in her church. She insisted that it would disrupt the service.

Abby, I fully understand that a wedding should not become a circus because of guests getting up and taking pictures; however, I see no harm in one professional photographer capturing those priceless moments on film. Flash photographs are necessary to accomplish this.

The timing is thrown off for everyone, especially the caterers, if they have to wait for the wedding pictures to be taken after the ceremony. It becomes a nightmare to keep the food hot without it drying out. We are looking at 20 to 30 minutes even when things go smoothly.

The guests grow impatient and anxious to get to the reception to eat and socialize. Young children are difficult to work with when trying to re-create the wedding.

The most important factor is the loss of genuine emotions, which can't be re-created — especially in an empty church.

I don't think it's asking too much to allow flash photos of the most memorable day of the couple's lives.

My advice to couples planning a formal church wedding: Ask if flash photos will be permitted during the ceremony. If they are not, either find another church, or elope.

The clergyperson should have enough generosity of spirit to want to make your wedding day one to cherish forever. What better way than photos in your wedding album to show your children and grandchildren?

"FLASH" IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR FLASH: The atmosphere in a house of worship should be authentic and natural. If photographs can be taken so that the subjects and wedding guests are not aware of it, fine. Otherwise, I agree with the minister.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The "Cool Lady in Fort Worth," who criticized your answer about mowing lawns in the morning after 10 a.m. vs. before 9:30 a.m. because of the heat, had a point. However, she should take some heat for her solution. She said your reply "didn't have much thought to it." I don't believe she thought her answer completely through, either.

I, too, would prefer to cut my lawn before 9:30 in the morning. But I do the mowing in the late afternoon or early evening. My reason: When grass is cut, it goes into shock. If it's cut in the evening, it doesn't have to go through the heat of the day in a wounded condition. It can recover in the cool of the night.

Besides having a lush and healthy lawn, I have a healthy relationship with my neighbors, because they are not disturbed.

COOL-THINKING NEIGHBOR IN ESCONDIDO, CALIF.

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Thank you for another good suggestion. The heat I took for my answer rivals that endured by a lawn cut at high noon.

Wilson campaign struggling

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Pete Wilson's bid for the Republican presidential nomination is sputtering even in his own state, and GOP activists say it's largely because he broke promise not to seek the White House.

Trailing in national polls, his campaign organization in turmoil and his fund raising uncertain, the two-term governor is finding no relief at home.

Three out of four Californians believe he hasn't given good reasons for running for president. Nearly two-thirds dislike his [illegible]or. And Californians prefer Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole or President Clinton over Wilson, according to recent polls.

A survey of a dozen GOP county committees found party leaders complaining that Wilson's decision to break his pledge — less than a year after promising to fill out his new four-year term — had crippled his political standing.

Perhaps Wilson was inspired by the experience of another governor who broke a promise to serve out his term.

But before Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton launched his 1992 presidential bid, he traveled across his state to persuade residents that they should let him out of the pledge. And when he left, he turned the state over to a lieutenant [illegible] from his own party.

In Wilson's case, "[illegible] line is they feel he made a commitment to the people of the state when he said he wouldn't run for president," said John Cornelius, chairman of the Shasta County Republican Central Committee.

Compounding the problem, control of the state would shift to Democratic Lt. Gov. Gray Davis if Wilson won the presidency.

"They generally agree with (Wilson) on immigration and affirmative action, but the people on my committee remember Gray Davis when he was Jerry Brown's chief of staff, and they don't want him," Cornelius said.

That view is seconded by Chris Bowman, a vice chairman of the California Republican League in San Francisco:

"He made a promise not to leave the state, and he broke the promise. There is a lot of unhappiness about that, and nobody wants Davis," Bowman said.

Wilson's pledge, made during a statewide debate last October while he was campaigning for reelection against Kathleen Brown, delayed the start of his presidential bid and put him months behind his rivals.

Dole still ahead, but slipping

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Bob Dole faltered in a straw poll last month, but a scientific poll shows he still has a 2-to-1 margin over rival Phil Gramm among Iowa Republicans.

The copyright poll by the Des Moines Register shows Dole with a 40 percent to 18 percent lead over Gramm, with the next largest group, 15 percent, saying they have yet to make up their minds on who should be the Republican presidential nominee.

Dole's advantage in the September survey is a sharp drop from the huge lead he enjoyed last May, when Republicans gave him a 57 percent to 11 percent margin over Gramm. Gramm gained momentum when he and Dole finished in a dead heat in a straw poll among Republicans who were bused to Ames last month for a G-O-P fund raising event.

As in the May scientific survey, the latest one shows none of the other candidates reaching double-digit percentage support among Republicans who say they're likely to attend February's precinct caucuses.

While Dole's advantage slipped, the poll also shows that Republicans hold an overwhelmingly positive view of the Kansas senator.

Eighty percent of 400 randomly selected Republican caucus-goers view Dole as somewhat or very favorable, with only 16 percent giving him a very or somewhat unfavorable rating. Four percent were not sure.

Gramm has a 24 percent unfavorable rating and 14 percent aren't sure.

Pat Buchanan gets high unfavorable numbers, with 25 percent saying they view him very unfavorably and another 20 percent saying they have a somewhat unfavorable opinion. Another 12 percent are not sure.

The poll also shows that the numbers could change sharply again. Overall, 78 percent of likely caucus-goers who express a preference for a specific candidate say they could be persuaded to change their minds. Among Dole's supporters, 77 percent say they're still persuadable, while 73 percent of Gramm's backers say they could change their minds.

Buchanan had 7 percent support, compared to 6 percent in May, putting him in a tie with Lamar Alexander among the second tier of candidates. Alexander gained from a 2 percent showing in May, but the movement is statistically meaningless since the poll's margin of error is plus or minus 4.9 percentage points.

The other candidates include Pete Wilson, 4 percent support; Alan Keyes, 3 percent; Richard Lugar and Morry Taylor, each 2 percent; and Arlen Specter and Robert Dornan, each 1 percent.

The poll was conducted in telephone interviews from Sept. 9-13.

Buchanan election themes echo rivals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Buchanan thought he heard an echo when GOP presidential rival Bob Dole endorsed English as the nation's official language and attacked proposed standards for teaching history.

"Right out of our speeches," said Buchanan.

It was deja vu when Dole criticized "liberal academic elites" for taking umbrage at President Truman's use of the atom bomb.

Likewise when California Gov. Pete Wilson came down on affirmative action and immigration, and when Sen. Dick Lugar of Indiana promoted a national sales tax.

"Been there, done that" could be Buchanan's campaign theme. While the conservative commentator is considered a long shot to capture the Republican presidential nomination, ideas he has long espoused are making their way into the campaign speeches of his GOP rivals.

"In one sense, you're a little exasperated because it's copyright violation," Buchanan said in an interview. "But it is heartening because what it means is we're winning the battle for the heart and soul of the Republican Party."

Buchanan contends his agenda is helping shape the 1996 campaign, just as he pushed President Bush to the right in 1992, when his run for the GOP nomination helped legitimize attacks on the president from within the party.

Now in his second run for the nomination, Buchanan has remained a solid contender among the pack of candidates vying to catch up with front-runner Dole. He has stayed competitive with Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, his rival for the conservative mantle, even though Gramm's treasury is six times his own.

Nonetheless, Buchanan skeptics abound in Republican circles.

Many say he is too extreme, taking issues well beyond what other candidates advocate. For example, Buchanan has proposed erecting a fence along the U.S.-Mexico border and halting all immigration for five years.

"He manages to rile even his allies," said conservative leader Paul Weyrich.

Buchanan's staunch anti-abortion stance makes him a crowd-pleaser at evangelical gatherings like the recent Christian Coalition convention.

National Guard division notes command change

AUSTIN (AP) — There was a changing of the Guard Sunday morning as the "Lone Star" got a new commander.

The 13,000 troops of the U.S. National Guard's 49th Armored Division went under the direction of Brig. Gen. Federico Lopez III in a ceremony at Camp Mabry.

Lopez, 55, took command of the Guard's only unit large enough to be called a division at full-strength.

"California used to have one, but they couldn't keep their strength up. They couldn't keep enough people in," said Maj. John Stanford, public affairs officer for the division dubbed the "Lone Star."

Lopez, a Harlingen businessman, has 35 years of service in the Texas Army National Guard. He was installed in an elaborate hour-long ceremony.

The proceedings emphasized the importance of Guard and Reserve units in the scheme of national defense. The troops that train one weekend a month and at least two weeks a year make up 44 percent of America's fighting force.

Instead, Justin played the eight, giving count.

Reading this as showing an even number, Jason played another heart, defeating the contract.

At all the other tables, West switched to the heart jack (or 10, if playing zero-or-two-higher leads). However, after winning with the ace and seeing South drop the queen, the Easts didn't know whether to return a heart or cash the spade ace. They all tried to cash the spade ace, letting the contract make.

Juniors in paradise

The World Junior Bridge Champ-ionship took place last July on the idyllic island of Bali. It was excellently organized by the Indonesian Bridge Federation. The title was won easily by Great Britain, who beat New Zealand in the final. Third was Denmark, who defeated Canada in the match for the bronze medals. The two U.S. teams finished seventh and eighth out of 12.

This was one of the best-defended deals of the tournament. At all tables, South opened and closed the bidding with five diamonds. And every West started with the spade king: three, eight, 10. How should West continue?

West must assume his partner has the heart ace, but does declarer have two spades and one heart, or vice versa?

Sitting West for Great Britain was Jason Hackett, partnering his twin brother, Justin. At trick two, Jason switched to the heart king — with no apparent pause for thought, according to the kibitzers.

Justin, East, knew that when the heart king held the trick, Jason would know where the ace was. So, there was no need to encourage or discourage.

7th grade wins Goliad tourney

The seventh grade A team from Snyder Junior High won the Goliad Middle School tournament Saturday.

They defeated Sweetwater in the finals, 15-13, 15-8. Scoring for Snyder were Cameron Mackey 12, Kameron Kallemeyn six, Callie Bane four, Valery Haines three, Brooke Williams and Missy French two and Whitney Webb one.

In the opening round, Snyder defeated Andrews, 15-10, 8-15, 15-7. In the match, Mackey had 14, Haines eight, Webb seven, Kallemeyn four, French and Williams two, and Bane one.

Snyder won in the second round over Brownfield, 15-5, 15-7. In the match, Haines had 11, Williams and Bane six, Kallemeyn three, Mackey two, and Webb and French one.

The eighth grade A team won consolation in the tournament. In the consolation game, Snyder won 15-3, 15-10 over Greenwood. The ladies defeated Monahans in the second round, but lost to Andrews in the first round.

Tigers banish Indians

The Snyder Tiger volleyball team improved its record to 12-4 over the weekend by outlasting Seminole, 15-12, 15-11.

"We had a great defensive game," commented Head Coach Patty Grimmett. "We did well picking up their hits and converting to offense. Even the officials commented on our transition."

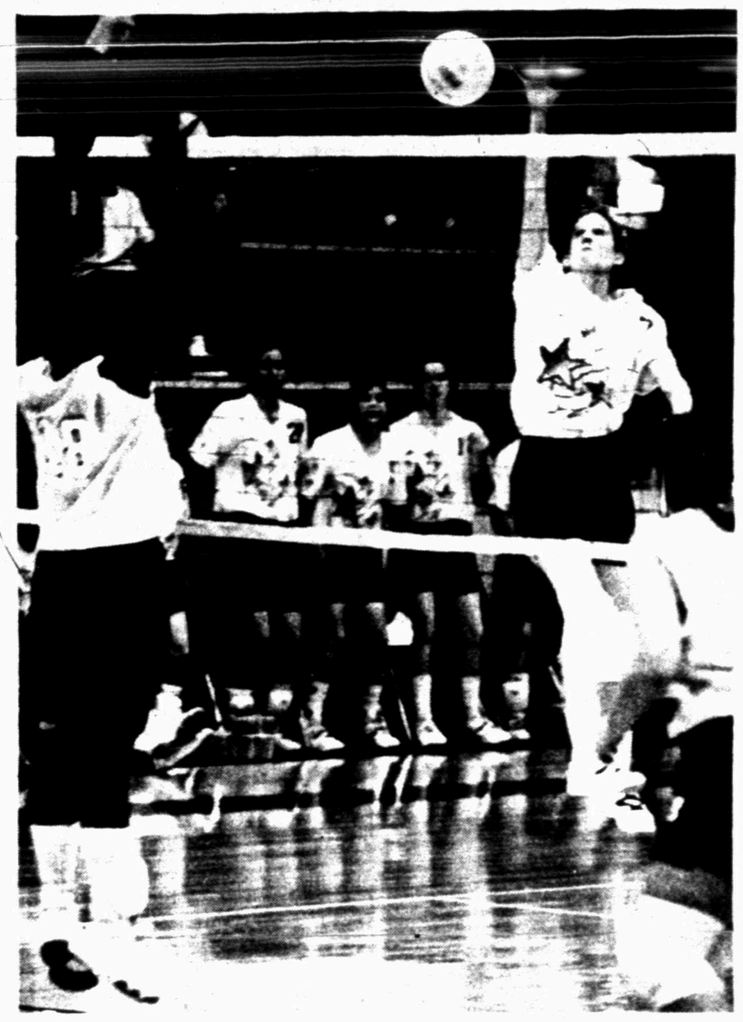

Sterling Cave scored 12 points to lead all Tiger scorers. Kelly Clay added six while Edwina Brooks and Lindsey Griffin had three, Tiffany Garza and Shawn Purcell with two and the Wemken twins, Raechele and Joanie added one each.

Brooks and Clay each served aces while Garza had five kills, Griffin with four, and Clay three.

The freshman were not as lucky, as the Indians ousted them 15-10, 14-16, 14-16.

Erica Arellano and Shannon Hall were high point with 10 each. Starla Davis added nine, Fatima Burks, Brittany Drummond and Maurica Sergent all had three, Sharika Wofford two, and Felsha Biggers, Darcee Purcell and Keila Helms contributed one each.

The ladies next action will be Tuesday in Bronte. The freshman will start at 5:30 with the JV and varsity to follow.

TIGER KILL—The Lady Tigers defeated Seminole Saturday in straight games to improve their record to 12-4. Snyder will play Bronte on the road Tuesday before starting district play Saturday in Levelland. During Tuesday's game, Lindsey Griffin goes up for the kill against Big Spring. Vikings take Cowboys to OT

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Listen up, all you Super Bowl wannabes. The Dallas Cowboys believe there is only one team that can beat them, and that's the Dallas Cowboys.

They nearly did it Sunday night, stumbling through four sloppy quarters before Emmitt Smith's 31-yard touchdown run in overtime gave them a 23-17 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

If they don't blow it themselves, the Cowboys (3-0) feel no one can keep them from becoming the first team to win three Super Bowls in four years.

"That's the way we feel, there's no question," Troy Aikman said. "We're too talented a football team not to go out and perform better than we did. There's no question that this football team goes into every ballgame feeling like we're going to win, and we should win each game."

Not if they keep playing the way they did against the Vikings (1-2), who played their best game of the season.

Rookie Corey Fuller forced Smith to fumble for the first time in almost two years. That led to Minnesota's first touchdown, a 3-yard pass from Warren Moon to Jake Reed for a 10-6 lead early in the second quarter.

Roy Barker and John Randle each had a sack of Aikman, the only quarterback who wasn't sacked in the first two weeks, and Dallas also did its best to help Minnesota.

Chris Boniol missed an extra point and a 20-yard field goal. Aikman fumbled a snap at his own 48 with 7:05 left in regulation and Dallas ahead 17-10.

That possession went nowhere when Charles Haley got his second sack of the game and Leon Lett followed with a sack to force Minnesota to punt. But an illegal motion penalty against tackle Larry Allen hurt the Cowboys, and a 33-yard punt by John Jett gave the Vikings another chance from their 45.

This time the defense couldn't save Dallas.

Moon, who completed 22 of 38 for 185 yards, led Minnesota to the tying touchdown, an 8-yard pass to Cris Carter with 30 seconds to play, sending the sellout Metrodome crowd into a frenzy.

"I don't know what was happening on their side of the ball, I only know what we were doing on our side of the ball," Minnesota safety Robert Griffith said. "We executed our game plan perfectly, but it just wasn't good enough."

Dallas won the coin toss in overtime and moved to the Minnesota 31 in four plays. Then the Vikings made one of their few defensive mistakes, getting caught in a bad alignment. Smith burst through a gaping hole over left tackle and outraced safety Charles Mincy to the corner of the end zone.

It was a demoralizing blow to the Vikings, who were 8½-point underdogs and now must win at Pittsburgh to avoid their first 1-3 start in four years.

"We're all disappointed because we figured to beat them," linebacker Jack Del Rio said. "Nobody else did. I'm sure you guys didn't, but we felt in this room that we were going to beat them. We played them head-up. We let them have it, really."

In between their gaffes the Cowboys still looked awesome at times.

Smith finished with 150 yards and two touchdowns after gaining just 27 yards in the first half. Aikman completed 24 of 38 for 246 yards, and Michael Irvin caught eight passes for 107 yards.

They were sharp when they needed to be, driving 80 yards for the go-ahead score in the fourth quarter, a 2-yard run by Smith, and then ending the game on their first chance in overtime.

"It's kind of disappointing to go out there and play like that," Smith said. "But at the same time, to play like that and show the character not to quit says a lot about our team."

A&M faces Colorado Saturday

Southwest Conference getting taste of Big 8

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Tech was the first Southwest Conference team to get a taste of one of its future Big 12 mates, and it welcomed traditional Big Eight punching bag Missouri with open arms.

The Tigers left Lubbock with their tails between their legs Saturday after a 41-14 shellacking.

"This is no time for us to become divided as a football team," Missouri coach Larry Smith said. "We can't feel sorry for ourselves."

Last year, the Red Raiders weren't so lucky with another future league rival — Nebraska beat them 42-16.

The Raiders' first-ever game against a current Big Eight team was in 1933, when Tech dropped Kansas 6-0 in the last game of the season. Overall, Tech enjoys a 22-13-3 record against what will become their new conference foes. They hadn't played Missouri until this season.

The Aggies, who stayed at No. 3, face off against fellow national power No. 7 Colorado on Saturday in the first-ever meeting between the schools. Over history, Texas A&M has played each of the other seven teams, posting a 25-20 mark against them.

The Longhorns, who moved up two spots to No. 13, will continue their yearly border battle with Oklahoma, as they've done 89 times before. They're 52-33-4 against the Sooners and 80-48-4 against all of the Big Eight teams.

The only schools from the looming Big 12 Conference that Baylor will play this season are the same ones they've been butting heads with since the Bears began playing SWC football in 1915.

Baylor is 18-17 against the Big Eight. The Bears defeated Oklahoma State 14-10 last year.

In the new Big 12 scheme, the Texas schools will align with Oklahoma and Oklahoma State — original SWC members when the league was formed in 1915 at the Oriental Hotel in Dallas — in the southern tier of the new league.

The six schools will play one another each year and play four of the other six each season. The champions of each division will meet at a site to be determined this season for the conference championship.

YOUTH CHEERLEADERS—Two cheerleading squads from Stars-R-Us Tumbling & Trampoline recently took part in the Battle of the Cheerleaders in Big Spring. The Cheerstars ranging in age from four to seven performed during intermission. The Stars, ages eight to 11, were required to do two cheers and a dance. They competed against junior high squads and placed third in dance. Members of the Cheerstars (top photo) are front row left to right, Britney Webb, Tana Sullenger, Jessica Deleon, Destinee Naegele, Megan Kariainen and Katie Wall. Snyder's Heith Hodges will portray Romeo in ETSU play

COMMERCE — Snyder junior Heith Hodges and Tyler sophomore Beth Warren will play the title roles in the upcoming East Texas State University production of "Romeo and Juliet."

A transfer student from Western Texas College, Hodges as Romeo will be acting in his first University Playhouse production while Warren as Juliet appeared in Horton Foote's "John Turner Davis" last spring.

"Romeo and Juliet" will open at 8 p.m. on Oct. 5 on the main stage of the Performing Arts Center. Other performances are at 8 p.m. Oct. 6-7, 2 p.m. Oct. 8 and 8 p.m. Oct. 9-14.

The production, to be directed by communication and theatre department head John Hanners, will be a modern-day version of the Shakespearean classic.

"The audence can expect fast-paced action. A view of the story that places the emphasis on the social pressures that affect the young lovers and contemporary music, clothing and action — we include skateboards and automobiles — help an audience understand the story," Dr. Hanners said.

The dialog will be in the classic Shakespearean English, he said. "No lines have been changed and Romeo and Juliet's tragedy is as poignant and heartbreaking today as it was when it was first produced exactly 400 years ago this fall," Dr. Hanners noted.

Cast members in the Ruling Family are ETSU alumnus Dennis Martin of Emory as Escalus; Emory junior R. Kevin Morris as Mercutio and Amarillo sophomore Michael Knight Jr. as Paris.

Playing roles of the Montagues are Lone Star graduate student Dennis Johnson as Montague; Commerce graduate student Ebru Gokdag as Lady Montague; Winnsboro freshman Chris Klongpayabal as Benvolio; and Alvin senior John Raymond Barker as Adam.

Cast as the Capulets are Daingerfeld senior Dusty Tittle as Capulet; Rockwall junior Leigh Redden as Lady Capulet; Winnsboro senior Kathy Watson Jumper, Adam Coffey as Tybalt; Richardson junior Jeffrey Matthew Belcher as Gregory; Greenville freshman Michael Taylor as Peter; and Yantis junior Stephen Vess as Sampson.

Playing Friar Laurence is Pottsboro senior Peter LaRoche and Friar John and the Montague servant are played by Winnsboro sophomore Shawn M. Stephens.

U.S. to take on S. Korean autos

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. automakers, fresh from a bruising battle to boost sales opportunities in Japan, now have their sights set on another foreign competitor — South Korea.

The fight to lower South Korea's automotive barriers promises a replay of many of the contentious issues raised in the fracas with Japan with likely the same results, according to trade experts.

As with Japan, U.S. negotiators may end up with a hazy deal subject to dispute by both sides and universal condemnation by other countries of America's bullying tactics, these experts suggested.

Hospitals will face hefty bills from Uncle Sam for test costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is dunning hundreds of hospitals in seven states for more than $9 million in outpatient tests performed on Medicare patients who were later admitted.

Nearly 4,000 other hospitals nationwide will get similar notices over the next 18 months demanding they pay back $100 million for X-rays and tests performed within 72 hours of a hospital admission.

Senior citizens are also due money back if the hospitals charged them deductibles or a 20 percent share of the outpatient tests.

Medicare pays flat rates for hospital stays pegged to the patient's diagnosis. The rates include any hospital outpatient tests or services performed in the three days before admission.

The crackdown is part of a joint project by the Department of Justice and the Office of Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services. Computers were used to match Medicare outpatient payments with hospital bills going back to 1983.

The problem has persisted despite repeated audits.

Hospitals in western Pennsylvania were the first to feel the heat from the joint agency effort to stop the overpayments.

This summer, government lawyers reached a model settlement with the Hospital Council of Western Pennsylvania and lawyers for other hospitals in the state.

In July, 145 Pennsylvania hospitals were sent letters asking them to sign an agreement and repay $3.4 million, including interest and penalties.

Now the government has calculated how much is owed by 731 other hospitals in Florida, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, Indiana, Virginia and West Virginia.

Those hospitals will get letters by Sept. 30 asking them to repay $9.4 million, sign the agreement and establish controls to prevent the billing mistakes from happening again.

Similar notices are expected to go out to nearly 3,800 other hospitals nationwide by early 1997, with the government expecting to recover $100 million.

"There was nothing sinister about this," said Seymour Schafer, the attorney for the Hospital Council of Western Pennsylvania. "When you take the volume of claims that are made, there are going to be mistakes."

People "generally don't walk in to the hospital with a sign on them that says, 'I'm coming back in two days,'" he said.

But the inspector general's office says many of these tests were part of hospital's pre-admission routine.

The inspector general has urged that tests performed within a week of admission be covered under Medicare's payment for the hospital stay. But the Health Care Financing Administration, which runs Medicare, has said that is pushing it too far.

The club the government is using to get the hospitals to pay up is the threat of far stiffer penalties — starting at $5,000 for each false bill — under the Federal False Claims Act.

Under that statute, the 731 hospitals could face fines of up to $662 million, Inspector General June Gibbs Brown said in a memo.

The project team "anticipates that the vast majority of hospitals will opt" to settle, Brown said.

For many hospitals, it will be cheaper to settle than to fight the government's demands in court, said Schafer.

The inspector general has issued four reports on the problem since 1988 and is currently conducting a fifth audit. Its last report said 4,660 of the nation's 5,200 hospitals had improperly billed Medicare for outpatient services.

'To Wong Foo' No. 1 again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything! Julie Newmar" had the biggest box-office take for a second consecutive week.

The film, starring Patrick Swayze, Wesley Snipes and John Leguizamo as transvestites, earned an estimated $6.4 million, bringing its two-week total to $17.8 million, Universal Pictures and industry sources said Sunday.

In second place was Spike Lee's "Clockers," another Universal film, which earned about $4.3 million in its first weekend.

Other debut films included "Hackers" (4th place with $3.3 million) and "Angus" (8th place with $1.9 million). The re-released Mel Gibson film "Braveheart" earned $2.2 million for sixth place.

Final box-office figures will be released today.

The Top 10 films and estimated weekend receipts:

1. "To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything! Julie Newmar," $6.4 million.
2. "Clockers," $4.3 million.
3. "Dangerous Minds," $3.4 million.
4. "Hackers," $3.3 million.
5. "The Usual Suspects," $3.1 million.
6. "Braveheart," $2.2 million.
7. "Mortal Kombat," $2.1 million.
8. "Angus," $1.9 million.
9. "A Walk in the Clouds," $1.7 million.
10. "Babe," $1.6 million.

Go easy on vitamin E therapy

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Having practiced internal medicine for 30 years, I was suddenly retired and very fatigued. My memory was punk. I stopped the vitamin E capsule I was taking and the fatigue went away. Is there any logic to this?

DEAR READER: Yes, there is. Although fatigue is by no means a common consequence of vitamin E, it certainly occurs in some people, as you've discovered.

In many instances, the tiredness appears to be dose-related; so, if you want to continue the vitamin, I suggest you not take more than 200 international units a day, still well above the Recommended Daily Allowance of 10 i.u.

Incidentally, vitamin E — which is plentiful in many foods — does not affect memory; however, it may help relieve the pain of breast cysts and muscle cramps in the legs.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Fads I: Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your rating with me just dropped to a 4 from a possible 10. Your answer to bed sores treatment in a recent newspaper article surely dates you or else you are not marching with the times. You never mentioned nutrition. If the albumin level is low, bed sores probably won't heal in spite of what nurses do. Sometimes we just need good nursing care and adequate nutrition, not expensive pharmaceuticals.

DEAR READER: Patients develop bed sores for a complex variety of reasons. Immobilization is certainly a factor. Anybody who assumes an unchanging posture in bed, day after day, will experience unnatural pressure on areas of the body — especially the skin over bony prominences — that will lead to ulceration.

Also, age clearly plays a role. Because of deficient circulation, the elderly are especially prone to this unpleasant complication of inactivity.

Finally, as you correctly specify, good nutrition is vital in preventing bed sores. Regardless of age, malnutrition (which is more common in elderly, debilitated patients) clearly adds to the problem. Therefore, nutritional supplements are definitely indicated in any person with a low blood albumin (a marker for malnutrition) who cannot — or will not — consume a healthful diet.

In my defense, I must say that I was responding to a reader's question regarding various topical therapies for bed sores, which are best treated with commercially available materials, rather than peroxide, sugar and heat.

I hope that this response puts me back into at least the 7 or 8 range on your rating scale.

Only way to check hurricane is to fly into eye of the storm

IN THE EYE OF HURRICANE LUIS (AP) — There is only one way to know for sure what a hurricane is doing: Fly through its hundreds of miles of turbulent winds, penetrate the howling eyewall of thunderstorms that toss an airplane around like a toy, swoop down into the calm of the eye, take some measurements, climb back up and then bounce through more thunderstorms so thick with rain the tips of the wings can't be seen.

It's all in a day's work for the Air Force Reserve's hurricane hunters.

That day begins early, hours before dawn, when a six-man crew climbs aboard a Hercules C-130 at a South Florida military base.

Their mission: track Hurricane Luis, prowling the Atlantic 600 miles off the Eastern Seaboard. Total flying time: 11 hours 5 minutes, much of it boring, but some of it with all the excitement of being in a free-fall elevator.

They fly at 10,000 feet in the upper reaches of the hurricane. The ride is more scary the lower you fly, said Master Sgt. Billy Gates, of Ocean Springs, Miss.

"We were at 5,000 feet in Hurricane Allison over the Gulf of Mexico this year. It was night. We hit a downdraft and ... it took us down 3,000 feet in about 45 seconds. It's a bad thing at night. You can't see the water to reference yourself, and you wonder if you're going all the way down," Gates recalled.

"The pilot had a handful of throttle. The other pilot had hold of the yoke (controlling the plane's bank and pitch). They brought it out about 2,000 feet above the water."

The National Hurricane Center in Miami decides when a storm is serious enough and close enough to land to be monitored by the hurricane hunters during the June-to-November hurricane season. Scientists at the center estimate that the hunters increase the center's accuracy in issuing hurricane warnings by 25 percent to 30 percent.

Since hurricane forecasters are in the midst of the busiest tropical weather season in decades, they've been keeping the hurricane hunters airborne.

The hunters, all Air Force reservists, are based at Kessler Air Force Base at Biloxi, Miss., and comprise the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron. They cover tropical storms and hurricanes in the Atlantic, the Caribbean, the Gulf of Mexico and the Central Pacific. The unit also flies winter storm missions off both coasts of the United States.

The information that the hunters report determines whether people should start putting up hurricane shutters. Or head inland to drop the kids off with their grandparents. Or pray.

Six reporters and two scientists along for the ride toward Hurricane Luis received headsets so they could listen to the crew.

"Lights. Check. Fuel. Check. Clear No. 3 engine (the engine roars to life). Turning. Standby. Roger. Clear No. 4 engine. Turning."

Soon the four engines create so much noise it is impossible to hear anyone say anything. That's the way it will stay during the entire 11-hour flight on the military plane.

Tech Sgt. Scott Denham, of Austin, Tex., distributes earplugs. He cautions the visitors to stay strapped in when the plane prepares to penetrate the eyewall of the hurricane.

At 4:51 a.m., the Hercules is airborne and heading due east. At 6:55 a.m., the sky looks dark and gloomy. The plane begins to be jostled around.

The whitecaps look enormous, even from 10,000 feet. A ship that had blundered into the hurricane had reported in the previous 24 hours that waves were 47 feet high — about the height of a five-story building.

The counterclockwise winds from Luis are coming from the north and pushing the eastward-bound plane off course to the south.

7:05 a.m.: "We're going into the eyewall in about 45 miles," navigator Maj. Charlie Whitt of Baton Rouge, La., says. The chitchat ends. Ahead can be seen the hole. The vortex. The eye. And around it, the brooding eyewall, a wall of tightly compacted, severe thunderstorms.

The plane hits the wall. The wind wants to rip off the wings. The knowledge that only one hurricane hunter plane has ever been lost isn't that comforting.

7:16 a.m.: "100 knots (115 mph)," Whitt says.

The plane bucks violently. The pilot, Lt. Col. Terry Self, of Greensboro, N.C., tries to keep it on course to cut through the center of the eye as close as possible so a parachuted pack of instruments, called the dropsonde, can be released for measuring temperature, pressure and humidity.

Self, an Air Force reservist who is a pilot with Continental Airlines, has the Hercules programmed to stay at 10,000 feet. A plane's instruments measure altitude by barometric pressure. Since the pressure in a hurricane's eye drops sharply, the plane dives automatically to about 7,500 feet, where the barometric pressure is the same it was at 10,000 feet.

Maj. Rich Woodford, of St. Louis, the meteorologist, tells the pilot where he wants the plane to go, so the tube of instruments can be dropped into the eye by parachute. Winds are buffeting the plane.

Storm data from the instruments is automatically sent from the plane to a satellite for relay to the hurricane center. The information goes into the center's computers to help forecasters predict the hurricane's direction, top winds and speed.

Your Birthday

Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1995

Do not hesitate to relinquishing projects or endeavors in the year ahead if they have proven unproductive. Once you let go of them, new and better things will come along.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even though you'll pride yourself on your independence today, you might fare much better by becoming more closely involved with others. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, New York, NY 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you get off to a faulty start today, don't let it overwhelm you. Once you get on a roll, you'll find that you're remarkably productive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid being more attentive to a new pal today than to a friend of long standing. Your old friend will notice and resent it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be capable of rather remarkable achievements today, especially in situations where you are materially motivated. Think in terms of dollars and cents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not take credit for the ideas of others today. Instead, build upon their bright thoughts with bright thoughts of your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Treat the property and possessions of others today as if they belonged to you. Return what you borrowed in mint condition.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not hesitate to make compromises or concessions today to placate a long-time friend. If you start to yield, your pal may yield as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although you'll be innovative and imaginative today, you're also apt to be quite impatient. You could put projects into motion prematurely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your luck will have its limitations today, so don't press it. Hopes can be realized through logic, not through high risks.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to keep relatives, including in-laws, out of your business affairs today, even though they might be eager to help. They will only gum up the works.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A kind friend might cover for you today by repeating to another not what you said, but what you should have said and in the way you should have said it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you use your head today, gains and losses can be balanced. Instead of worrying about what you lost on apples, see if you can recover it up on oranges.

New Miss America dreamed she would garner the crown

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Don't pinch Shawntel Smith. Just let her touch that crown again and she'll know the dream she had last week came true: She really is the new Miss America.

Smith won the coveted crown Saturday on her 24th birthday. When she woke up Sunday, she was wondering if it was just another dream.

"I had to go over and look at my crown to make sure," said Smith, whose full name is LaCricia Shawntel Smith.

The 5-foot-3½, blue-eyed Smith is from Muldrow, a town of about 3,200 in eastern Oklahoma. She works as a marketing director for Northeastern State University and plans to earn a master's degree in business administration from Oklahoma City University.

Or at least she did before the pageant.

Now, Smith, the first redhead to wear the crown in 51 years, will travel up to 20,000 miles a month making speeches and other appearances as Miss America.

Smith will earn more than $250,000 in appearance fees and receive a $40,000 scholarship to go with $12,000 she already has won in the Miss Oklahoma pageant.

Her platform, "School to Work Education," involves teaching school children about careers early on in hopes of preparing them for the job market.

She might consider stressing the importance of persistence: After all, she knows a thing or two about it, having lost in three Miss Oklahoma pageants before she finally won.

"The main thing that kept me going was the scholarship money. My father could have paid for my college but I'm glad he didn't have to," said Smith, who put herself through Northeastern State with money won in pageants.

On Saturday, she wowed pageant judges with her rendition of "Woman In the Moon," a song from the Barbra Streisand remake of the movie "A Star Is Born."

She apparently made a good impression in the on-stage interview, too, talking about her platform.

"If Shawntel gets to speak to people, that inner beauty comes out," said her father, Gailen Smith, 45, a furniture store owner in Roland, Okla. "We just had a feeling that if she got a chance to talk on stage, she'd win."

Smith is the fourth Miss Oklahoma to wear the Miss America crown. The others were Norma Smallwood in 1926, Jane Jayroe in 1967 and Susan Powell in 1981.

Miss Oregon Emily John Orton was first-runner up, followed by Miss Arkansas Paula Gaye Montgomery, Miss California Tiffany Stoker, and Miss Illinois Tracy Hayes.

Swimsuits were the other big winner Saturday: Viewers voted overwhelmingly to keep swimsuit competition in the pageant. In the live call-in vote, 79 percent of the nearly 1 million callers who got through favored swimsuits, officials said.

After she won, Smith blew kisses to the crowd, mouthed thanks to the judges and blinked back tears after her name was announced and outgoing Miss America Heather Whitestone, the first deaf winner, placed the crown on her head.

Smith said her victory would mean much to Oklahomans still recovering from the April 19 bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City, about 163 miles west of her hometown.

"I'd like to take the opportunity to tell everyone in the United States, thank you so much for coming together in a time of need in my state. We received so much support and so many prayers from other people around the nation," Smith said.

Greenbacks receive new look to foil counterfeiting efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — American currency is about to get a face lift, a high-tech overhaul to thwart counterfeiters that will have holders of greenbacks seeing double.

Two portraits of an American historical figure will be on each bill, but you'll have to hold the bill up to the light to see one of them.

It will be the first distinct new look for U.S. paper money in 66 years.

The changeover will begin early next year with the $100 bill, a favorite of forgers. Existing bills will remain in circulation.

"We have an interest in protecting the integrity of our currency," said Treasury Under Secretary John Hawke Jr. "As technology develops the potential for more sophisticated counterfeiting, it gives us increasing cause for concern."

The most visible change will be to shift portraits off center.

An enlarged portrait of Benjamin Franklin will be moved to the left on the $100 bill, making room for a new watermark engraving. The watermark portrait, visible when the bill is held up to the light, is one of several new security features.

Officials said the watermark is extremely difficult to duplicate.

Eventually, there will be similar redesigns for the portraits on nearly all smaller denominations — Ulysses S. Grant on the $50 bill, Andrew Jackson on the $20, Alexander Hamilton on the $10, Abraham Lincoln on the $5, and, of course, George Washington on the $1.

The exception could be the $2 bill, which bears the likeness of Thomas Jefferson. No decision has been made on whether to alter the largely commemorative bill.

Treasurer Mary Ellen Withrow has said borders on the new bills will be simplified, with geometric designs replaced by an assortment of lines and dots that are intended to foil counterfeiters.

Also, color-shifting ink will be used so that the greenback will take on a different hue when viewed from an angle. And government printers may use computer-designed patterns that are made to turn wavy when copied improperly.

The redesign presents an opportunity for modernizing the currency. The $10 bill, for example, has on its reverse side a 1920s-era car in front of the Treasury building. But no one has said whether it will be replaced by a newer model.

About $390 billion in U.S. paper currency is in circulation, some two-thirds in foreign countries.

The Secret Service has said there may be three times as much counterfeiting conducted abroad as in the United States. There have been reports, questioned by the Clinton administration, that Iran is distributing counterfeit bills through Lebanon.

Robert Leuver, a former director of the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, doubts anti-counterfeiting measures will work as long as old-style bills remain in circulation.

"If they exist as legal tender, people can counterfeit them," he said. "You copy whatever is easy to counterfeit."

U.S. officials decided not to recall old bills because it could disrupt foreign economies. Foreigners tend to be reluctant to turn in old bills, fearing tax consequences and currency devaluation.

A leading example is Russia, believed to have the largest supply of dollars anywhere outside the United States. Despite assurances from U.S. officials, Russians fear redesigned bills will mean a recall of greenbacks.

Last month, the newspaper Izvestia warned that criminal gangs might try to dump their counterfeits of existing bank notes in anticipation of the new ones. Dollars are the main financial refuge for inflation-weary Russians.

The last major change in U.S. currency was in 1929 when bills were reduced in size and given a uniform look. Congress added the words "In God We Trust" in 1957.

Some small changes were introduced in 1990, including a microscopic line of type and a polyester thread visible only when a bill is held up to the light.

Elizabeth Taylor released from hospital

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor went home Sunday afternoon following a three-day hospital stay for an irregular heartbeat.

"She's just fine and, yes, she's in a good mood. Anybody leaving a hospital is in a good mood," her physician, Dr. Charles Friedman, said.

Miss Taylor, 63, was treated with medication after she arrived Thursday at St. John's Hospital. Friedman expected no complications.

The violet-eyed actress walks with a cane as she recovers from a second hip replacement surgery in June. She suffered serious respiratory problems in 1990 that kept her hospitalized for three months.

She announced last month that she and husband No. 7, construction worker Larry Fortensky, 43, had agreed to a trial separation four years after they married at Michael Jackson's Neverland Ranch. Fortensky was seen Saturday at the hospital.

Her previous husbands were Hilton heir Conrad "Nicky" Hilton, actor Michael Wilding, Broadway producer Mike Todd, singer Eddie Fisher, actor Richard Burton and Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

Dahmer's body cremated and parents split his ashes

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Almost a year after being killed in prison, the body of serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer was cremated, while his brain was held back as his parents feud over whether to donate it for research.

His father, Lionel Dahmer, of Akron, Ohio, claimed his half of the ashes Sunday, while arrangements were being made for his mother, Joyce Flint, of Fresno, Calif., to receive the rest.

Flint wants her son's brain examined to determine whether biological factors influenced his actions. Her ex-husband objected, saying he wishes to put his son's actions behind him.

Nothing could be done with Dahmer's body until Christopher J. Scarver was sentenced in May for beating Dahmer to death in a Wisconsin prison on Nov. 28, 1994. The brain has been preserved in formaldehyde since the autopsy.

Bryant's offers expert care for carpets

Bryant's Carpet Cleaning has served Snyder for over 15 years. They have used or seen every type of carpet cleaning. Even though they could use a cheaper method, they prefer steam extraction. This method extracts the dirt and stains, whereas other methods leave the dirt in the carpet. For a clean and safe carpet, steam extraction is by far the best method.

Some methods leave the carpet wet, but they leave it only damp, so it will dry in only a few hours. This is because they have the latest truck mount unit with more power than smaller units. The unit stays in the van and only the cleaning head goes into the house, eliminating spills in the home.

Most carpets need to be cleaned within a year, depending on the traffic. Not only can they be dirty, but after walking on the carpet awhile the carpet protector is worn off. They can clean the carpet and replace the carpet protector, which is similar to Scotch Gard.

In some cases, they can clean the carpet as inexpensively as you can rent a machine. Many times when people try to do it themselves and the carpet won't come clean, they keep adding detergent to the machine. This results in the carpet becoming too wet. Also, the detergent leaves the residue in the carpet and the carpet seems to get dirty quicker. Bryant's doesn't leave a residue in the carpet because they prespray with cleaners and when they go over the carpet with the cleaning head they use only soft hot water.

Carpets should be cleaned regularly if anyone in your home has allergies and also if you are moving into a different home.

For those who want to save money and not go to the trouble of moving furniture, Bryant's can go around the furniture for as little as $10-$20 a room.

Carpets are a big investment and the wise person will maintain them. So, trust your carpet to the professionals. They have cleaned thousands of carpets and can furnish recommendations.

For clean and disease free carpets, call Jack at 573-2480 or Gary at 573-3930. Your satisfaction is guaranteed.

Funicello's life to become TV movie

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Annette Funicello's life — from Mickey Mouse ears to beach blanket stardom — will be captured in a television movie.

The singing star of The Mickey Mouse Show and a slew of 1950s surfer movies will be portrayed by Eva La Rue, best known as Dr. Maria Santos on the popular daytime soap opera "All My Children."

"I don't look anything like her," La Rue is quoted as saying in the Sept. 23 issue of TV Guide. "I'm way too tall and way too dark. But the big, poke-your-eye-out, 'Beach Blanket Bingo' hair will be a pretty good simulation."

Funicello, who is currently battling multiple sclerosis, will make an appearance with her family in the movie, titled "A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes."

It is scheduled to air Oct. 22 on CBS.

The largest area of Indian tribal-owned land is in New Mexico, with 3,329,270 acres distributed among 24 reservations.

Trouble-filled Endeavour mission ends

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After 11 days in orbit, space shuttle Endeavour and its crew returned to Earth today and ended a trouble-filled science mission.

Sunlight glinted off the shuttle as it glided through a partly cloudy sky and landed at Kennedy Space Center at 7:38 a.m., shortly after daybreak.

Long before their flight began, Endeavour's five astronauts nicknamed themselves the Dog Crew to relieve the tension and have some fun. It's a good thing: They blasted off late because of O-ring concerns and then had to contend with numerous equipment problems in orbit, most notably a pair of balky science satellites.

The good news was that repairs made to Endeavour's twin solid-fuel rocket boosters were successful and its O-ring seals were unscathed. The reusable boosters, which fall into the ocean a few minutes into a shuttle flight, are retrieved and inspected.

Thermal insulation surrounding O-rings in the booster nozzles was replaced before Endeavour's Sept. 7 launch to avoid the kind of O-ring heat damage that occurred during flights of two other shuttles this summer. Inspections over the past few days showed that the new method used to inject insulation into Endeavour's nozzle joints worked well, said shuttle manager Tommy Holloway.

Regarding Endeavour's boosters, "there were no gas paths to the O-ring, no evidence of gas reaching the O-ring, no soot on the O-ring, so we had a very good joint this time," Holloway said at a postflight news conference.

Similar repairs were made to the booster nozzles of Columbia, due to lift off next week on a 16-day science mission.

"We're not concerned at all with the nozzles" on Columbia, Holloway said.

The booster repairs and a power plant failure had delayed Endeavour's flight by five weeks.

Shuttle commander David Walker said despite all the problems, most of the objectives were met during the 4.5 million-mile journey, including the release and retrieval of the two satellites.

"Welcome back, and congratulations on a successful and spectacular flight," Mission Control told Walker after Endeavour rolled to a stop on the concrete runway. Some 400 spectators were on hand.

The $8 million solar-science Spartan satellite was spinning and turned the wrong way when the crew went to recover it on Sept. 10. The $25 million electronics-research Wake Shield overheated.

Relief pours into St. Thomas after hurricane devastation

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — Military transport planes carrying tons of supplies arrived in St. Thomas today as the federal relief effort for the islands devastated by Hurricane Marilyn kicked into full gear.

Eighteen planes carrying 358,000 tons of cargo arrived overnight at St. Thomas, which took the brunt of the storm.

The hurricane, the fourth to hit the Caribbean in as many weeks, struck the Virgin Islands and eastern Puerto Rico on Saturday, splintering homes, mangling parked aircraft and killing at least nine people.

A tropical storm watch was issued this morning for Bermuda, as Marilyn moved through the Atlantic.

At 11 a.m. EDT today, Marilyn was about 495 miles southwest of Bermuda, moving north at 12 mph with winds of 100 mph. It was expected to pass near Bermuda sometime Tuesday, well east of the U.S. mainland.

Today's airlift included 300,000 military rations, potable water and ice, said James Lee Witt, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The hurricane left St. Thomas without power, water or telephone service.

"This is a massive response and has taken a combination of everything we have as a federal team to make this happen," Witt told reporters at a briefing in St. Thomas, with the sound of C-130 cargo planes landing in the background. He said some planes were being flown in from as far away as Germany and California.

Officials earlier reported about 50 people injured or missing in St. Thomas. Witt said today that U.S. Virgin Islands Gov. Roy L. Schneider told him Sunday there were five confirmed fatalities "and he did not say they still had anybody missing."

Pope visits in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Pope John Paul II brought his message of hope to Kenya today, along with a caution against the evils of "ethnic, political and social divisions" bedeviling the nation.

The pope told a welcoming airport crowd that Africans should strive for development that provides not only prosperity, but respect for human rights.

"Social unity and solidarity are not easy at the best of times," the pontiff said. "They are made all the more difficult when ethnic, political and social divisions are allowed to smother the yearning for true peace which lies in peoples' hearts."

In his third visit to Kenya in 15 years, the pope arrived in a country where his church and the government have been increasingly at odds over human rights, corruption and political reform.

In a pastoral letter last year, Kenya's bishops said the country was sliding into totalitarianism, with a clique of politicians manipulating the system for personal gain.

In April, the bishops issued another pastoral letter urging President Daniel arap Moi to convene a constitutional conference, charging that the present constitution fosters injustice, lawlessness and corruption.

The government dismissed the latest pastoral letter as "blackmail and incitement" and one cabinet minister threatened the bishops with arrest if they continued with their criticisms.

Moi, Vice President George Saitoti and a number of high-ranking government officials were among the several thousand people on hand to greet the pope at Nairobi's international airport.

Kenya is the last stop on the pope's six-day, three-nation visit to Africa, which he has extolled as a continent of hope.

"Africa shall live! Yes, Africa shall live!" the pontiff proclaimed to applause at a meeting Sunday night in the Johannesburg cathedral that closed two years of consultations with African bishops on church policy toward the continent.

The pontiff has been building on the theme that Africa is an integral part of the worldwide church.

Lotto Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — The Lotto Texas jackpot will be worth about $26 million to a winning ticket on Wednesday, inasmuch as no one matched all six numbers from Saturday night's drawing, the Texas Lottery Commission says.

The numbers Saturday, which would have been worth a top prize of an estimated $17 million, were 3, 5, 30, 33, 37 and 47.

Five tickets were sold with five of the six numbers and were worth $2,104 each. There were 8,695 tickets with four of the numbers, worth $119 each. Then, 179,947 tickets had three of the numbers, good for $3.

Peace agreement may fall through in Bosnia

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Croat troops and their Muslim allies have carved up Bosnia in recent days along the lines of a U.S.-sponsored peace plan, but further expansion could unravel the whole deal, U.N. officials said today.

That sentiment was echoed by Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the region's power-broker and the chief peace negotiator for the Bosnian Serbs, who called today for an immediate cessation of hostilities in Bosnia.

The world should exert its influence on the Bosnian government and the Croats to stop their offensive, Milosevic said in a statement.

U.N. officials fear that a government push toward Banja Luka could collapse the American peace initiative.

If the huge Serb losses continue, Milosevic might break off negotiations and send the Serb-led Yugoslav army to reinforce their ethnic brethren in Bosnia.

Milosevic's appeal came after talks with U.S. envoy Richard C. Holbrooke, who is trying to broker a peace deal for Bosnia.

Lt. Col. Chris Vernon, a U.N. spokesman, said the territorial split between forces of the Muslim-Croat federation and the Serbs is now about 50-50 and tilting toward the Bosnian army's favor.
