Airline pilot negotiations broken off

By NICK GERANIOS
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — United Airlines and its striking pilots broke off negotiations Saturday without reaching a settlement in a nine-day walkout that has dramatically curtailed flights by the nation's largest airline, a United spokesman said.

Tom Germuska, the spokesman, said the federally mediated talks broke down when the parties could not come to terms on a back-to-work agreement after 23 straight hours of negotiations.

No further negotiations were scheduled, Germuska said.

Helen Witt, chairman of the Federal Mediation Board, had announced Friday evening that United and the pilots had reached tentative agreement on the basic issue in the strike, the airline's proposal for a two-tier wage scale.

Then they resumed negotations on a back-to-work agreement governing the terms under which the pilots would go back to work.

Early Saturday morning, federal mediators offered a final proposal to settle the back-to-work impasse and said they would withdraw from the negotiations if it were not accepted.

Germuska said the previously announced tentative agreement on the two-tier wage scale proposal that had triggered the strike was no longer in effect.

"There is no agreement," he said.

Moisture in soil reported

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

A new information service is now offered Scurry and Borden County farmers — a soil-water content survey to be conducted monthly.

The plan is the brainchild of the recently formed Snyder Chamber of Commerce Agri-Business Committee, headed up by Byron Hedges.

Implementing the idea are staffers with the USDA Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with eight landowners representing a mix of the soil types represented in this area.

Individuals who are providing sites for the tests are Morris Light, Fred Campbell, Larry Schwartz, Bobby Stansell and David Kattes.

The basic concept is to determine how much water is available in the ground for plant use down to a level of 4 ft. — an area realistically considered the "root zone."

Eight sampling sites have been selected but only five of these have been tested to date since the other three are now in production with wheat.

The sites were chosen to represent a range of soil types common to the area. The only tests to date of the soil-water content were made in February and March. In April, the ground was too wet to read and May's readings were to be taken Wednesday, but had to be postponed due to rainfall here.

These measurements are taken at increments of 6 inches down to the 4 ft. deep. The measurement of water is calibrated in inches.

RACING PRACTICE — A vacant lot with a few mounds of dirt left by construction crews in west Snyder provides a place for 10-year-old Jimmy Gorman to practice his BMX riding techniques. Gorman and other neighborhood friends spent the first week of summer vacation riding on the lot. The youngsters say they are now interested in organizing a bike racing group here. College signup Tuesday

Registration for day and evening summer classes at Western Texas College is scheduled Tuesday with classes to begin Wednesday.

Tuesday's registration will be from 8 a.m. until noon. Evening students will then register between 6 and 8 p.m.

All registration activities will be conducted in the administration building.

Classes for day students will meet Monday through Thursday from May 29 through July 5. Evening classes meet one night per week Monday through Thursday until July 26.

All WTC offices will be closed Monday for Memorial Day.

Rural home burglarized

Sheriff's office personnel are now investigating a residential burglary reported north of Snyder in rural Scurry County Friday.

According to reports, Wallace Jones of Rt. 3, on the Ennis Creek Road, called authorities at 3:15 p.m. to report the incident.

Entry to the Wallace home was apparently gained by breaking out a glass in a door of the residence.

The burglary is thought to have occurred sometime between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Friday.

Reported missing were an AM-FM stereo radio cassette tape player, a jewelry box and its contents along with two .22 cal. rifles and a Winchester 12 guage shotgun.

Total value of the property taken from the residence was listed at $1,260.

Rites Friday for McLeod

Graveside services for Evelyne Janette Feather McLeod of Lubbock, former Snyder resident, were conducted at 4 p.m. Friday at Snyder Cemetery under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

She was born Sept. 30, 1949 in Lordsburg, N. M. She was a housewife and Presbyterian.

Survivors include one daughter, Julia Ann Brown; one son, William Scott Brown, both of Celina, Tx.; her father, Herb Feather; and one sister, Mrs. Buddy (Glenda) Powell.

Blood donor need said on increase

Blood drive workers here are urging local donors to turn out in larger numbers Tuesday — a special need brought about by several factors.

The local need includes a special draw required to replenish blood amounts used for a Snyder infant who required 25 units for recent treatment.

In addition, an increased need for blood is expected after the long Memorial Day weekend.

The most critical factor, however, relates to the fire April 20 which destroyed the facilities for United Blood Services of Lubbock, which both depleted supplies statewide and hampered that entity's ability to replenish this supply.

The blood drawn now has to be processed in Albuquerque, N.M.

"For this reason," said Bradley Fleet, donor resource specialist with UBS, "we're really dependent on our mobile drives."

Construction of a new facility for the blood donor organization is now underway at 48th St. and Akron Ave.

It is to be complete in January of 1986. Until then, offices for UBS are temporarily located at 5617 Villa Drive while blood is being drawn at [illegible] in Lubbock.

Fleet reminds that any healthy person over 18 can donate. Those over 17 can donate with written parental consent.

A donor should have a minimum weight of 110 pounds; no past history of hepatitis; and no history of major surgery or blood transfusions for the past six months or pregnancy within the past six weeks.

Tuesday's drive here will again be at the Senior Citizens Center and will be conducted from 1 until 8 p.m.

In addition, a tea will be held in conjunction with the drive to honor all individuals who have assisted the local efforts during the past years.

Every fifth donor will receive a six-pack of Pepsi or Dr. Pepper courtesy of the Sweetwater Bottling Company.

Ever donor will receive a coupon good for a Whataburger plus a box of soap courtesy of the Tub Club laundry.

Pins will also be presented for "gallon" donors.

Veteran's groups here schedule observances

Memorial Day services are planned here Monday by local members of the the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

At 8:30 a.m., flag raising ceremonies were be conducted at several locations, beginning at the VFW post, then continuing at the American Legion, Old Snyder Cemetery and finally at Hillside Memorial Gardens.

At 10 a.m., memorial services are scheduled also at the monument on the north side of the Scurry County Courthouse.

Guest speakers at this service will be Virgil Mott and Mort Ewing.

The public is invited to both the flag raising ceremonies and the memorial services.

VFW and American Legion members and the auxiliaries of both will continue the observance with a dinner at the VFW Post 8231 from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m.

The holiday will be marked also by the closing of public facilities in Snyder.

Monday will be a holiday for city, county, state and federal offices. City hall, the courthouse and the post office will be closed.

Local financial institutions will be closed Monday also.

In addition, the SDN will print its regular Monday edition, but the newspaper office will close at noon.

Many retail outlets will remain open, however, with special Memorial Day sales planned.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "More men than women fish--women have more important things to lie about."

The current year has been one of contrast with 1984. Last year at this time, folks were looking for any type of cloud that might bring the area a little moisture.

Last year the farmers couldn't plant because of a drought, and this year it may never get dry enough to plant. At this time last year, much of the state had begun to ration water, but this year, lakes and stock tanks have caught a generous amount of rainfall.

Camp Springs area farmer Bill Houston was talking in the coffee shop about the current planting situation. Non-farmers in the group were full of advice, and car dealer Harold Denson suggested that Bill might have to put an outboard motor on his planter.

Rains chase both farmers and oilfield workers indoors, and many find their way to coffee spots.

Wednesday afternoon a group gathered at the Spanish Inn, and naturally the rains came up as a topic of conversation.

Tommy Galyean said he was driving through a low-water crossing near Lake Thomas when he noticed a fish that had washed out of the lake, flopping in the road.

Conversation turned to fishing where Ira's Bob Beaird said he can remember some fish getting hemmed up in Deep Creek and he was able to pitch them out of the creek with a stick.

Wayland Holder was not to be outdone. Holder said he was operating a front-end loader one day, and he scooped up a full load.

"That's nothing," added David Gist who said he and a brother were fishing in the Pecos River when they snagged an unusual creature with funny tail and legs.

Gist said he didn't know what to do with it, so he went to the pickup for a shovel to hit it over the head. Meanwhile, the fish worked its way off the hook, walked away, climbed a tree and flew off.

Yep, everybody needs a dry spell.

Warsaw Pact

PARIS (AP) — The commander-in-chief of the Warsaw Pact forces said in an interview published today that the Soviet Anion will take measures to respond to any challenge posed by President Reagan's "Star Wars" plan for space-based missile defense against nuclear attack.

Bomb blast

KUWAIT (AP) — A remote-control bomb went off today as the emir of Kuwait's motorcade passed along a seaside highway. The Kuwaiti ruler was hospitalized with minor injuries, the royal palace and sources said.

The emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, was on his way to his office at the al-Sief palace this morning when the bomb was detonated.

Local

Fire reported

At 11 a.m. Saturday, Snyder fire units had been dispatched to a reported house fire in rural Scurry County.

The fire was reported at the Joe Beach residence beside FM 1606 about 2½ miles east of Dunn. Extensive damage to the west end of the residence was reported.

Two to jail

Two defendants were sentenced to terms in the Texas Department of Corrections after entering guilty pleas in 132nd District Court last week.

Javier Regino Gomez was given a four-year prison term after pleading guilty to a charge of felony theft in an amount greater than $750 and less than $20,000.

He had been indicted by the Scurry County grand jury in February following the Jan. 25, 1985 theft of a rental video cassette player [illegible] from Video City.

Given a two-year term on a charge of theft by deception was Raymond Guy Beasley Jr. He pleaded guilty to that charge in connection with the June, 1984 theft of a 1977 Chevrolet automobile from Steve Babcock of Snyder.

He was indicted in July, 1984 after failing to make payments on the vehicle and refusing its return.

House avoids special session

AUSTIN (AP) — An all-day House scramble to complete work on bills needed to avoid a special legislative session apparently has succeeded.

The House stayed in session until midnight Friday to beat a deadline that could have killed needed measures, including bills that would keep several major state agencies in business.

Legislative rules made Friday the final day for the House to consider any measures that have not yet been to the floor. The session ends Monday.

Late Friday night, the House amended a bill in order to get $110 million in revenue from insurance companies. That money is needed to balance the 1986-87 budget.

During the marathon Friday session the House killed one minor state agency, came close to killing a major agency and approved a measure needed to balance the budget. The toughest fight was a four-hour debate that ended with an 85-56 preliminary vote to revamp the state water regulation system.

A final vote on that measure, probably today, will send that bill back to the Senate with minor amendments. If the Legislature does not approve the bill, the Texas Water Commission and Texas Water Development Board would go out of business Sept. 1.

Failure to approve the bill probably would force a special session.

"I'd rather come back in a special session" than approve the proposed water regulation restructuring, said Rep. Jerry Clark, D-Buna.

Clark, Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, and Tom Craddick, R-Midland, fought to save the current water regulation set-up. The new system, as approved in the Senate, would include many changes, including putting the Texas Water Commission in charge of setting water rates.

The Public Utility Commission has set those rates since 1976.

Geistweidt came within three votes of approval for an amendment that would have maintained the current water regulation scheme.

House members also gave tentatively approval to a Senate bill that would keep the Texas Air Control Board in operation beyond Sept. 1.

The Prosecutor Council, an agency set up to aid and sometimes discipline prosecutors, did not fare as well. Rep. Jim Parker, D-Comanche, killed it by pointing out that one line in the bill was not properly underlined.

"This was an agency that really did nothing unique," said Parker.

Also Friday, the House voted to bar cities from enacting gun-control laws. The 106-38 vote sent the Senate-approved measure to a final House vote, probably Saturday.

"This bill is repulsive," said Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas.

Defense spending issues will await Senate after holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, after a week of votes on defense issues that included a decision to restrain deployment of the MX missile, is embarking on a nine-day Memorial Day recess with much work ahead when it returns in June.

There are at least 18 pending amendments to the $302 billion defense authorization bill for fiscal 1986.

The most controversial of them deal with a multi-billion dollar Reagan administration request for research into a "Star Wars" missile defense system and urge the president to either comply with or ignore the limits of the SALT II strategic arms agreement.

President Reagan had requested $3.7 billion for Star Wars research. That was cut to $3.4 billion when the Senate Armed Services Committee reduced the administration's requested 5.9 percent after-inflation increase in defense spending authority to 3 percent after inflation.

And it was further reduced to $2.95 billion by the committee's decision not to permit any growth in defense spending authority beyond the projected rate of inflation.

When the Senate resumes consideration of the bill on June 3 it will be asked to decide on amendments pegging spending for Star Wars research as low as $1.5 billion.

The debate over whether the limits on nuclear weapons set by the SALT II treaty should be extended or allowed to expire at the end of the year will be spurred by two competing amendments.

The issue will come to a head later this year with the planned launching of the Trident submarine USS Alaska. If an older Poseidon submarine is not scrapped at that time, the United States will exceed the SALT II limits.

A group of senators led by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., is sponsoring an amendment urging retention of those limits even if it means dismantling serviceable submarines.

A group of conservatives including Sen. Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho., will offer an amendment urging the SALT II limits be disregarded.

The Senate never ratified the SALT II pact, reached between the Soviets and the Carter administration in 1979, but both the United States and the Soviet Union have agreed so far to abide by its terms.

State judge transfers case to another court

HOUSTON (AP) — The lawyer for convicted murderer David Port failed in an effort to keep State District Judge I.D. McMaster from hearing a motion for a new trial for his client, but the judge later voluntarily transferred the case to another court.

Port's attorney, Jack Zimmermann, is attempting to file a motion for a new trial based on reports that McMaster is not a resident of Harris County, thus disqualifying him from being a judge in that county. Zimmermann also filed a motion requesting that McMaster excuse himself from hearing the case.

Visiting Judge Ernest Coker, appointed to hear Thursday's motion to remove McMaster, denied the motion after nearly two hours of discussion with attorneys.

Confusion about the case arose because the case was moved to Comal County for trial in February and has not been officially transferred back to Harris County, the Houston Post reported.

Zimmermann argued that jurisdiction remains in Harris County because McMaster was the one who moved the trial and Zimmermann alleges that McMaster was not a qualified judge at the time he issued that order.

Senate okays part of indigent care package

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators have approved two bills that would provide urgently needed medical care to pregnant women, children and the elderly who cannot pay their doctor and hospital bills.

The governor's signature would put them into effect.

Another measure in the package of four recommended by the Task Force on Indigent Health Care was approved by the Senate Friday but was sent back to the House for approval of an amendment.

Still another House-approved measure to finance the package apparently will not be laid out for Senate debate until Sunday.

"Passage of these pieces of legislation — if nothing else — make this an historic legislative session," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Approved on voice vote was a bill by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, that would allow the State Department of Health to contract with local communities or private firms to provide primary health care for the indigent. It was sent to the governor.

"There is no disagreement among the major providers on this," Brooks said. "This bill is in good shape."

A second measure, by Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, would improve and expand maternal and infant health care services. Traeger said for every $1 spent on prenatal care the state saves $3 in later health costs.

"We will save millions of dollars besides the human equation" of having healthy children, said Traeger.

His bill was sent to the governor on voice vote.

Approved 31-0 was a bill to outlaw "patient dumping," the transferring of patients from private to public hospitals for those without insurance or ability to pay. Brooks said the bill would go back to the House for approval of a Senate amendment that would allow civil suits to be filed against a hospital or doctor if a patient is harmed by an "inappropriate transfer."

Brooks said another bill in the package to provide financing for the program would be debated later.

Brooks estimated the package only has financing totaling maybe $35 million, including the portion of indigent medical services that must be borne by county governments. There have been estimates it would take $108 million to finance the entire package.

As the package passed the House, part of the financing would come from an 8-cent increase in the state cigarette tax, provided the federal tax is lowered as planned in October.

Brooks said he and Hobby also had talked with oil company executives about possibly raising the production tax to generate $40 million for indigent health care but a decision probably would not be ready before Sunday.

The Task Force on Indigent Health Care was created in 1983 by Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, and Speaker Gib Lewis. The 71-member study group, after numerous hearings throughout the state, reported health services are minimal in many areas of the state and a shortage of physicians. According to the task force, improved availability of maternity services would reduce preventable maternal deaths of both mother and child and reduce the rate of handicapped infants, which later have to be cared for by the state.

Police searching for man's ex-lover

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — State police investigators will spend the holiday weekend desperately trying to find Alexandra Isles, Claus von Bulow's former lover whose desire to avoid testifying against the socialite again could strike a fatal blow to the state's case.

Prosecutors, who are nearly set to rest their case, were granted the three-day Memorial Day weekend to find the elusive Mrs. Isles and convince her to take the stand.

The ruling Friday by Superior Court Judge Corinne P. Grande came after she refused a defense request to declare a mistrial.

But the mistrial motion likely will be considered again Tuesday if the prosecution rests its case without having put the former soap opera actress on the stand.

Assistant Attorney General Henry Gemma said Rhode Island State Police Sgt. John F. Reise and Detective Sgt. Joseph Mirana are spearheading the search, but Gemma declined to say where they were.

Prince Alexander von Auersperg and Princess Annie-Laurie "Ala" Kneissl, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's children from her first marriage to an Austrian, were also trying to find their stepfather's ex-lover, Gemma added.

Mrs. Isles, 39, a divorced Manhattan socialite who appeared in the 1960s gothic soap opera "Dark Shadows," gave damaging testimony at von Bulow's first trial on charges he twice tried to murder his wife with insulin injections.

Mrs. Isles testified she gave the Danish-born von Bulow a six-month deadline to divorce his wife and marry her. The date fell shortly before Mrs. von Bulow's first coma.

The surprise 1982 testimony fit the state's theory that von Bulow, out of a desire to marry Mrs. Isles and inherit part of his wife's $75 million forture, tried twice to murder the Pittsburg utilities heiress.

House oks revamped water regulation plan

AUSTIN (AP) — After a bitter four-hour fight, the House voted late Friday to approve a revamped system of state water regulation.

The measure will go back to the Senate after the formality of a final House vote, probably Saturday. Minor amendments added in the House likely will be approved by senators.

But if the bill isn't passed before the session ends Monday, the Texas Water Commission and Texas Water Development Board would go out of business Sept. 1.

Failure to approve the bill probably would force a special session.

"I'd rather come back in a special session" than approve the proposed water regulation restructuring, said Rep. Jerry Clark, D-Buna.

Clark, Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, and Tom Craddick, R-Midland, fought to save the current water regulation set-up. The new system, as approved in the Senate, would include many changes, including putting the TWC in charge of setting water rates.

The Public Utility Commission has set those rates since 1976.

Geistweidt came within three votes of approval for an amendment that would have maintained the current water regulation scheme.

The 85-56 vote on the water measure did not quell the threat of a special session. The House raced to complete work late Friday on measures needed to keep several other state agencies in business — including the Texas Air Control Board.

The House also raced to get to a measure that provides $47 million in revenue from insurance companies. That money is needed to balance the 1986-87 budget.

Also Friday, the House voted to bar cities from enacting gun-control laws. The 106-38 vote sent the Senate-approved measure to a final House vote, probably Saturday.

"This bill is repulsive," said Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, a handgun control proponent.

"Nobody seems to want to deal with this problem except to make it worse," Ragsdale said. "We ought to be regulating this instead of trying to encourage this frontier mentality that pervades this great state."

The House planned to work late into the night Friday because of end-of-session rules that made it the final day for initial consideration of bills.

Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, House sponsor of the anti-gun control measure, said cities should be prohibited from regulating guns because such local rules could result in a confusing patchwork of differing restrictions.

"If we are going to pass some gun-control measure it should be at the state level," Leonard said.

Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, fought the bill as an infringement on local government's authority. He also said there is no threat of gun control laws breaking out in Texas cities.

"We are addressing a non-issue with a non-solution. This is not a pro-gun or anti-gun bill. This bill is about local control, home rule," said Thompson.

"I just don't think we're all-wise down here. Those local folks know what their problems are."

Prosecutors disagree on enforcement

AUSTIN (AP) — While the Harris County district attorney said he will not sit idle if department stores in the area open on Sunday, the Travis County attorney said he won't prosecute violations of the blue law.

J.C. Penney and Foley's announced this week they will open Sunday even though Gov. Mark White hasn't signed a bill passed by the Legislature this week to repeal the 24-year-old blue law.

"Merchants like Foley's and Penney's are setting a poor example about what they are in the community," Harris County District Attorney Johnny B. Holmes said.

"By opening their stores on Sundays, they're choosing what law they want to abide by," Holmes said. "What if the citizens took the same attitude about choosing the laws they wanted to obey? It would be chaos."

But Travis County attorney Ken Oden said he would only prosecute if the stores forced employees to work on Sunday when they weren't willing to do so.

"Our position right now is that there is an obvious intent to change the law, and we are in a transitional period," Oden said. "It would have to be egregrious conduct by a merchant before I would consider prosecution under the present law."

Legislation repealing the Blue Law — which prohibits the sale of 42 items on consecutive weekend days — is awaiting the signature of Gov. Mark White. White said he intends to sign the measure. When it is signed, repeal would be effective Sept. 1.

Foley's vice president Dan Hagan said Thursday that Foley's stores plan to open this Sunday.

"If you asked me if I felt badly about violating the law, I'd like to point out that a lot of the companies not open this weekend were open Sundays in December," Hagan said.

Macy's and Bealls stores won't be open on Sunday despite rumors among employees saying they would open, store officials said.

"As a corporation, we're definitely not interested in breaking the law. Period," said Bealls regional operating manager Jim McDonald. "Until the governor signs the law, the corportation doesn't consider it legal for us to be open on Sunday."

Officials at Macy's New York City headquarters surmised the same thing.

"The 'go' happened with no authorization from top management," said Ruth Schwartz, a Macy's vice president. "It was people at another level who assumed since the whole thing had passed, we'd be open. It was erroneous, as we all know."

Bow, arrow theft prompted shooting

CAMPBELL, Texas (AP) — A man who allegedly went on a shooting spree and then held two dozen police officers at bay for an hour before being captured says he was "high" and upset because someone stole a bow-and-arrow from his bunker house.

Stephen Lynn Allard, 28, who has had several run-ins with the law and has been in the state hospital for inhalant abuse, was charged Thursday with attempted murder and attempted capital murder in connection with the sniping spree late Wednesday.

According to police, Allard opened fire on a fisherman, wounding him slightly, and then on more than 20 police officers Wednesday.

Allard said that on Wednesday, after inhaling fumes and snacking on crackers, tomato juice and corn chips, he returned to find his bunker ransacked.

"I flipped. I just didn't understand it anymore. It's like the whole world caved in on me," he told the Dallas Times Herald.

Police say Allard has had a life frought with run-ins with the law, a spate of short-lived jobs and a long-running affection for sniffing glue and paint fumes — a craving he started at age 16, the newspaper said.

Only recently, he had declared himself "straightened out," officials said.

"I heard it several times from him," said Hunt County Sheriff's Capt. David Ewalt. "His intentions were good."

Where many people would have fretted or fumed over their problems, Allard took action, Ewalt said.

Senior Center will be closed on Monday

The Senior Citizens Center will be closed all day Monday in observerance of Memorial Day.

Tuesday activities in the center will include a program titled "Food For Thought" at 11:30 a.m. in the dining room. Swimnastics groups will be meeting at 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Western Texas College swimming pool during the summer months and new members are welcome to join them.

Senior citizens who would like to have their blood checked are invited to go to the center at 10 a.m. any Friday. There is no charge for the service.

We'll plan the menu, do all the cooking, and even pack the box lunches. While you wait. You'll feast on our famous pizza, golden fried chicken, potatoes and fresh salad.

So stop by Shakey's first, pick up a few of our Box Lunches and, the rest of the day will be a real picnic.

Time may end ear infections

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Our son began to have ear infections when he was 2 months old. Whenever he quit taking medicine, the infection came back. At 7 months, he had Teflon tubes put in his ears, but he keeps having infections. The specialist says he is probably allergic to the tubes. Is there any help for him?

DEAR READER — He will probably outgrow his proclivity for ear infections. Teflon tubes do not usually cause allergies, so I suspect that your doctor is as frustrated as you are. Many children seem to be particularly susceptible to repeated middle-ear infections, and about all we can do is try to preserve their hearing, by using tubes and antibiotics, until the little nippers reach the stage when the internal ear vents begin to function normally.

Your son's tubes may not be working properly. If I were you, I would have an in-depth discussion with both your pediatrician and your ear specialist. Too often, doctors fail to communicate with each other about particularly difficult cases, and I think that you have the right to ask for a conference. While you're at it, inquire whether another ear, nose and throat specialist might be consulted for an opinion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Why do people's ears plug up when they get a cold? What can be done about it and and how long should they remain plugged up? Can this cause a hearing loss?

DEAR READER — The ear is made up of three sections: the external canal (where the wax is), the middle ear (a chamber that houses the bones of hearing) and the inner ear (the innermost sanctum, deep in the skull, which contains the centers for balance).

Your question addresses the middle ear. This chamber is airtight — except for one tiny vent, the eustachian tube, which opens behind the nose.

During normal conditions, the pressure in the middle ear is equal to the outside atmospheric pressure. When people fly or drive up steep hills, air rushes out through the eustachian tube so as to be in equilibrium with the external air pressure. Your ears may "pop" as the decompression takes place.

Similarly, when you swim under water or scuba dive, air must be forced into the middle ear in order to equalize the increased external pressure of the water.

As long as air is freely allowed to pass in and out of the middle-ear chamber, people experience no sensation of blockage, fullness or pain.

When the eustachian-tube vent is malfunctioning, however, a pressure differential is formed; this can cause discomfort. When you have a cold, the membranes behind the nose become congested and swollen. This can temporarily close off the eustachian tube. Since the middle ear cannot now equalize pressure, you may experience a sense of blockage. This is why your ears plug up when you have a cold or a sevère allergy, and it is the very important reason that you should not fly or scuba dive at these times. Once you are over your cold, the tissue around the eustachian tubes shrinks and you can cease worrying about ear blockage. Sometimes antihistamines help by chemically shrinking the membranes around the ear vents.

When lifesaving isn't welcome

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Do all people whose hearts have stopped beating later welcome the news that their lives were saved by resuscitation? Apparently not, according to a study conducted in a Boston hospital.

One-third of patients reported that they regretted being kept alive by cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR). This information is notable, to say the least; it jolts the very foundation of the acute, heroic medical care that physicians are trained to administer.

After having undergone CPR and been literally brought back from death, these survivors insisted that if their opinions had been solicited before the event, they never would have given permission for extraordinary life-support measures to be used. As painful as this knowledge may be to us doctors, we are forced to conclude that a hefty proportion of the ill people we save would prefer to die.

Most physicians involved in the study assumed — apparently incorrectly — that the victims wanted to live. Although the doctors' efforts may have been well-intentioned, their instincts seem to have been at odds with the wishes of chronically ill persons who would have chosen a quick and relatively peaceful death. Evidently, the medical profession may not be doing everyone a favor by assuming that everyone wants to survive.

I am aware that a handful of doctors who regularly participate in CPR have jokingly vowed to have the words "Do Not Resuscitate" tattooed across their chests. The average citizen may not find this solution amusing or practical, but you must admit it is a clear and direct message. And that, according to the Boston researchers, is what is most needed.

A majority of physicians are reluctant to ask flatly, before the fact, if patients want to be resuscitated. Many doctors prefer to ignore the issue altogether by believing that only they know what is best for the terminally ill. Some physicians approach the subject in subtle ways, expecting the patient to elaborate and express a preference. Until we doctors can be educated to accept death as an option that is preferable to a life of dependence and disability, I am afraid that patients must take the initiative to inform us of their own very personal beliefs.

Understandably, patients may hesitate to broach the subject because their views of death may differ substantially from their physicians' opinions. Sick persons may abhor losing the good will of doctors upon whom they feel dependent, or they may be embarrassed. Also, patients ordinarily attempt to avoid offending their doctors. Whatever the reason, the end result is an abysmal lack of communication.

I think it makes good sense for an aging person, who puts his trust in a certain physician, to request a frank discussion with the physician about lifesaving heroics and CPR. Such a discussion would certainly clear the air and enable the patient-doctor relationship to proceed along lines that are mutually acceptable to both parties.

Although, as a class, doctors are expected to be knowledgeable, we are often frightfully ignorant of our patients' most fundamental wishes. Surely there comes a time in everybody's life when death can be accepted as appropriate and when this eventuality can be as pain-free and undisturbed as possible. We have the wherewithal to halt death ... or, in some cases, to ease the discomfort and fear of final illness. We and our patients can make the decision together. We all owe it to ourselves to do so. The power of medical techniques designed to resuscitate the dead or dying patient is truly a two-edged sword.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Train crash evacuates 1,500

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — About 1,500 residents, almost one-third of the town's population, were forced from their homes when a train carrying hazardous chemicals derailed here and burst into flames after being struck by a tank truck.

A tanker car on the train carrying liquid propylene gas exploded only seconds after the empty water-hauling truck ran into one of four engines pulling the 99-car Missouri Pacific train on Friday.

The blast shot a bright red ball of flames into the sky over Eastland and shook buildings and homes miles from the accident. One pilot flying at 3,000 feet near the area said his plane was rocked by the blast.

Eastland is on Interstate 20, about 100 miles west of Fort Worth.

"I ain't seen nothing like that since Vietnam," said Jimmy Tibbs, an employee of an oil company across from the intersection of Highway 69 and the Missouri Pacific train tracks where the accident occurred.

"We heard the (explosion). ... When we opened the door, boy all you could see was this big dadgummed ball of fire. It looked like it was coming straight for the building," Tibbs told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Two abandoned houses and a barn, all 150 yards from the train tracks, were destroyed by the flames.

The truck driver, Gaylon E. Nelms of Eastland, was listed in critical condition at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene Friday night. A total of 16 people were treated at Eastland Memorial Hospital for injuries. Five were admitted.

"It's a miracle that he is alive. It's a miracle that nobody was killed," Eastland firefighter Robert Webb, who along with firefighter Phillip Arther, pulled Nelms from the truck.

"When we got there, his back was on fire. He was hunched over in the seat. I tried to put out the fire on his back," Webb said.

Most of the injuries resulted from the heat of the explosion.

At least 25 cars of the train were derailed by a combination of the blast and the impact of the collision. Among those were cars carrying hydrochloric acid, hydrofluoric acid, sulphuric acid and propylene.

Officials of the town of almost 5,000, fearing further explosions and possible leakage of the dangerous materials, evacuated an area about two miles east of Highway 69 to Interstate 20 and a mile in all other directions.

"Our concern was with the safety of those people," Police Chief Lyndall Underwood said. "We didn't know what was leaking and what was burning."

Friday night, however, Western Emergency Services, a Keller firm specializing in dealing with hazardous materials, determined that the only burning car was the one carrying propylene. A small hole was detected in another of the cars containing propylene, but authorities did not believe it presented any threats.

A.W. Rees, general manager of the railroad company in Dallas, said a hydrofluoride leak was contained and workers were working to plug the pencil-thin crack in the car.

Although the chances of any further explosions or of a chemical leak from one of the other tank cars was considered remote, authorities kept the area evacuated Friday night.

White signs bills

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying the new law would "preserve state revenues," Gov. Mark White on Friday signed a bill taxing intrastate long distance calls and enhanced phone services.

"This bill will do much to bring state law into the 20th century by recognizing the great advances that have been made in the telecommunications industry," White said.

The legislation signed by White does away with a 1907 law that requires communications companies to pay taxes on gross receipts. Those costs are passed on to consumers.

New long distance telephone companies have been exempt from paying the tax because they are not considered "telephone companies."

The exemption has resulted in several lawsuits including a suit filed by AT&T which has paid the tax under protest.

But under the new law, a sales tax will be imposed on users for intrastate telecommunications services. Basic telephone service will remain taxed under the gross receipts system.

The new taxing system will cause a rise in monthly phone service costs if they subscribe to a long-distance communication service or have special phone services such as call-forwarding.

Although White said the bill sets up an "equitable taxation system," he said "there is no new tax imposed in the sense that there is an increase in tax imposed on the people."

White also signed an anti-hunger bill which sets up programs and funding to help provide home-delivered meals for the elderly, poor and unemployed in Texas.

"Passage of this legislation is a recognition on the part of the Legislature of the presence and effect of hunger in Texas," White said. "It will surely serve as an awareness builder for others in our state and nation."

Senate gives okay to further anti-satellite weapons tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Friday to let the Pentagon go ahead with the final tests of an Air Force weapon designed to destroy Soviet satellites.

The Senate gave 74-9 approval to a proposal by Sen. John Warner, R-Va., to allow three final-stage tests next year, as long as President Reagan tells Congress that the tests won't destroy negotiations aimed at banning the weapons.

That vote came minutes after the Senate had rejected, 51-35, a testing ban proposed by Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass.

Kerry supported the ban as "a signal of our good faith and willingness to restrain the arms race and keep it out of space."

But Warner opposed the limit as "a unilateral concession which would erode the U.S. position" at the Geneva talks with the Soviet Union on trying to limit a wide range of weapons.

The three-test plan was attached to a bill authorizing a record Pentagon budget of $302 billion next year. The Republican-controlled Senate has already trimmed Reagan's defense buildup as part of the bill, including cutting in half his proposed MX nuclear missile program.

The Democratic-controlled House is considering a smaller Pentagon budget and differences between the two chambers will be ironed out later in a conference committee.

Earlier Friday, the Senate gave voice-vote approval to an amendment requiring a mandatory life sentence in prison for people convicted of espionage involving the Soviet Union or other communist nations in cases where no death sentence is imposed.

The latest debate centered around anti-satellite weapons, or ASATs, which are designed to destroy the orbiting eyes and ears that both superpowers depend on for spying, communications, and early warning of attack.

Although ASATs are different from Reagan's call for "Star Wars" research into a futuristic shield against nuclear attack, both systems share some similar technology.

The U.S. ASAT is a small warhead atop a rocket which is carried to the edge of space by a high-flying F-15 jet and then released to slam into its target. By contrast, the cumbersome Soviet ASAT is less technologically advanced and is a small bomb-like device launched from atop a large rocket.

The U.S. weapon has been tested in stages, but has not yet been fired against a target in space. That final round of testing is scheduled to start within the next few months.

Meanwhile, ASATs are among the space weapons which are part of the three-subject Geneva talks that also cover long-range and medium-range nuclear weapons. The Soviets seek a halt to ASAT tests, while the Reagan administration is open to such a proposal but has refused to halt ASAT testing as a precondition to the talks.

Computer classes are set at WTC

Computer workshops for teachers are scheduled to begin June 3 and June 17 at Western Texas College.

The first session is to run through June 13, with the second session ending on June 27. There will be two classes in each session, one taught by Britt Canada and one by John Forshee.

All classes will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday for the two-week period. Lab times will be arranged. Persons wishing to enroll are to register between 8-8:30 a.m. on the first day of class.

New York mayor discovers culprit

NEW YORK (AP) — When Mayor Edward I. Koch saw a man taking money from a parking meter, he asked his bodyguard, "Do you think he's working for us or do you think he's working for himself?"

The bodyguard, police Detective Edward Martinez, with Koch close behind, grabbed the man and held him for a uniformed officer.

"We're not making a federal case out of this," Koch said, adding that he was prepared to go to court to testify against Vincent Ferrer, 41.

"I see this guy who has a leather bag, like it could be for the collection of money, and he is working with what I think is a wire, but I'm not really sure, and he's opening one of my parking meters," Koch said Wednesday.

Reagan denounces reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday denounced a House-passed Democratic package of $56 billion in deficit reductions for next year as riddled with phony savings, a danger to national security and "unacceptable to me and to the American people."

Reagan kicked off a week of economic speeches with an address to the National Association of Manufacturers in which he also called on the busines leaders to back the tax overhaul proposal he will unveil in a nationally broadcast address Tuesday night.

The Democrat-dominated House on Thursday voted 258-170 in favor of a $967 billion budget blueprint that would trim government spending by $56 billion next year, as does an earlier version passed by the Republican-controlled Senate.

However, the House package freezes Pentagon spending and leaves Social Security untouched in contrast to the Senate plan Reagan backs which would freeze Social Security benefits and allow military spending to rise with inflation.

Negotiators from the House and Senate will meet after Congress returns on June 4 from its week-long Memorial Day recess to begin hammering out a compromise package.

Reagan, though, rejected the savings claimed by the House plan.

"In fact, billions of those savings would come from what could only be charitably described as phantom cuts," Reagan said.

Since February, the president has steadily lowered his requests for next year's Pentagon budget in negotiations with Senate Republican leaders over the deficit-reduction package passed by that chamber.

But the president insisted that military spending at the House level "would undermine our negotiating position (in arms talks with the Soviet Union) in Geneva and put the defense of our nation at risk."

But he said the House plan doesn't do the job. The president added: "It is, frankly, unacceptable — unacceptable to me and to the American people."

On Monday, Reagan will travel to Orlando, Fla., for an address which White House aides have said will be a prelude to his Tuesday tax speech. Then, next Thursday and Friday, Reagan is expected to discuss the tax plan in appearances in Williamsburg, Va., Oshkosh, Wis., and Malvern, Pa.

The aim of the plan Reagan will announce next week is to do away with a variety of tax breaks, especially for business, and use the additional money the government takes in to lower rates for indivudual taxpayers.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., a co-author of another plan for streamlining the tax code, said Friday he is pleased with the administration's move toward tax revision, but he said he is concerned that the president's version will eliminate deductions for state and local taxes.

Death row inmate claims he fell pry to movie mogul

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas Department of Corrections' death row inmate says he was the dupe of wealthy movie moguls who bank-rolled his trial attorney to his disadvantage, according to testimony aimed at getting the inmate a new trial.

Testimony on Thursday showed deals were made with Camera 1 of France — backed by members of the wealthy Schlumberger family — to pay attorney Bob Sanders of Covington, Ky., in exchange for the release of the rights to film Charles William Bass' story.

Bass' appeals lawyer, Will Gray, is trying to show the circumstances prevented his client from getting a fair trial in 1980. Bass was convicted of shooting Houston City Marshal Charles Baker, 51, to death after a robbery in 1979.

"That's what this whole case is about — conflict of interest — all these people trying to get loot from this French film," Gray told state District Judge Miron A. Love.

After Thursday's hearing, Love said the case is highly unusual for Texas. He compared the allegations with the California bank robbery trial of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, in which Ms. Hearst's attorney came under fire for planning a book about his client.

Award-winning French film director Francois Reichenbach, a foe of capital punishment who directed the Bass documentary in 1979, testified he came to Houston to do a documentary on crime and execution just at the time the Bass crime unfolded.

Christine Keeler bows out of photo session

LONDON (AP) — Christine Keeler, a key figure in the 1960s Profumo political scandal, changed her mind about taking part in a photo session to publicize a new book about sex scandals and ran off, swearing at photographers.

"Miss Keeler decided she did not want her picture all over the papers again. She did that 20 years ago," publicist Pam Solomon said after the incident at the Hilton Hotel Wednesday.

Miss Keeler, now 42, was involved with both War Minister John Profumo and Soviet naval attache Eugene Ivanov in the early 1960s. When the dual relationship was exposed, Ivanov went home and the political career of Profumo, who had at first denied knowing her, was ruined.

Execution stays granted inmates

HOUSTON (AP) — Two federal judges Friday issued stays to death row inmates G.W. Green and Johnny Frank Garrett, who both had been scheduled to die by lethal injection next week.

U.S. Federal Judge Norman Black granted Garrett a stay after his attorneys challenged the dismissal of three jurors who said in the selection process that they could never vote for a death sentence. Black set a June 14 hearing date.

Garrett, 21, is convicted of the 1981 raping and beating to death 76-year-old Sister Tadea Benz in Amarillo.

Garrett's attorneys also contested the lack of a blood test on semen taken from the slain woman to determine that it was Garrett's.

Earlier Friday, the state Court of Criminal Appeals rejected Garrett's case.

U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue, in a one-page decision, gave Green's attorneys 20 days to file documents supporting their objections to the death sentence. The state then will have 30 days to respond, Bue said.

Green, 48, was convicted of the 1976 slaying of John C. Denson during a robbery at Denson's home near Magnolia.

State Sen. Craig Washington, Green's attorney, contends the major witnesses in his client's case, Denson's widow and daughter, never saw Green during the robbery.

Changes don't help Cougars

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Houston Coach Rolan Walton changed his lineup, his relief pitcher and his designated hitter, but he couldn't change the result.

The Cougars lost to Texas for the sixth straight time this season. This time it was a 9-2 decision Friday night in the second round of the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament.

Bruce Ruffin, threw a four-hitter to lead the Longhorns. Texas has won 22 of its last 24 games, improving its record to 58-12.

Texas was paired against Oklahoma, 55-12, at 4:30 p.m. today in a winner's bracket contest following a noon clash between Houston (44-16) and Lamar (33-23) in the loser's bracket. The Texas-Oklahoma loser will meet the winner of the Lamar-Houston game in a 7:30 p.m. elimination game.

Oklahoma defeated Grambling 5-2 Friday while Lamar bested Louisiana State, 4-3.

The ace of the Texas pitching staff, Greg Swindell, was going against Oklahoma's best pitcher, Bobby Witt, in the game to decide who advances to Sunday's 1:30 p.m. final.

The Longhorns battered Cougar pitchers Ed Clark and Mike Holik for 10 hits. The longest was estimated at 430 feet - a 3-run home run by Dodd Johnson in the sixth.

"It was probably my longest home run ever," Johnson said. "I can't believe we've beaten them six times. We get good pitching performances against them, and Bruce held true."

Johnson's shot carried well beyond the left-field wall at the 340-foot mark and into a live oak tree far behind a second retaining wall. It was his ninth homer of the year.

Houston had trailed only 6-2 until that point. Cougar left fielder Joe Pat Simms sagged against the wall for several moments after the homer as he and a season-high crowd of 7,150 sensed the outcome.

"Basically, we just can't get them out," said Walton, noting Texas' 62-21 run advantage against his team. "We haven't been able to all year. And left-handers are a problem for us, particularly good ones."

Ruffin (12-2) was definitely that. The junior from El Paso allowed only one hit the final seven scoreless innings. He has beaten UH three times this season.

"I was trying to muscle up and throw too hard early," Ruffin said. "All three times I've beaten them, they've looked at sliders or chased them."

Oklahoma eliminated Grambling from the tournament behind strong pitching by Keith Hamilton and Darrell Rodgers. Hamilton, 6-0, got the win after giving up three hits in 5-2-3 innings. Rodgers held Grambling to one hit in 2-2-3 innings before being relieved by David Johnson.

Oklahoma jumped on Grambling starter and loser Martin Foley, 7-4, for two runs in the top of the first on a Rusty McGinnis single that scored Scott Ferguson and Kevin Pearson. The Sooners added one in the fifth and two in the sixth to take a commanding 5-0 lead.

Grambling didn't score until Eric Taylor came home in the sixth on one of Oklahoma's two errors. The final Grambling run came in the eighth, also unearned.

A throwing error by Louisiana State pitcher Clay Parker in the bottom of the ninth allowed Junior Lemons to score and gave Lamar its victory, eliminating LSU.

Lamar entered the bottom of the ninth trailing 3-2. David Cortez, 4-for-4 on the day, singled and scored on Lemons' double. John Frankie laid a bunt down the first-base line and Parker fielded the bunt but threw it by first baseman John Dixon, enabling Lemons to score.

"What can I say? You just can't predict this team," said Lamar coach Jim Gilligan. "Junior went to right field like we wanted, and Frankie did a great job, his hit made my year."

Van Gorder leads Cincinnati to win

by The Associated Press

On Friday, May 24, 1935, the Reds' Paul Derringer shut down the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 as major league baseball played its first night game in Cincinnati. Fifty years later, it was Dave Van Gorder's turn to light up the field.

Pinch-hitting in the eighth inning, Van Gorder electrified the home crowd with a two-run single to give Cincinnati a 5-4 lead. In the 12th inning, he powered the Reds to a 7-6 victory, singling speedy Eric Davis home from second base.

Van Gorder's hit off Ken Dayley in the eighth came amidst a four-run rally and shocked Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog.

"Dayley against Van Gorder was exactly what I wanted," Herzog said. "That's what I wanted to get to, and I got there. Dayley just made a bad pitch."

Van Gorder wasn't high on his own chances either. "I couldn't keep my left foot still, I was shaking so much," he said. "I was nervous."

One man had faith in Van Gorder. "I knew he was due," said Cincinnati player-manager Pete Rose. He picked Van Gorder, who was hitting just .208, for the clutch role.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt turned on the lights by special hook-up from the White House. The 50th anniversary game started with a taped message of congratulations from President Reagan.

In other National League games Friday, Houston defeated Chicago 6-2; Pittsburgh outscored Atlanta 4-2; San Diego blanked Philadelphia 1-0; Montreal shut out San Francisco 2-0, and Los Angeles edged New York 4-3.

Astros 6, Cubs 2

Bill Doran, a leadoff man, worked his job to perfection. On his three hits, a walk, and an error, he reached base on all five of his plate appearances and scored three times. "That's the best game I've had this season so far as getting on base is concerned," Doran said.

Nolan Ryan, 4-2, scattered [illegible] hits in the 200th complete game of his career and 235th victory. He struck out seven, raising his record total to 3,942.

Pirates 4, Braves 2

Jason Thompson belted a three-run homer in the first inning and singled home Pittsburgh's other run in the ninth.

Jim Winn, in his first major-league start, combined with John Candelaria on a three-hitter. Winn, 1-0, pitched seven innings before giving way to a pinch hitter.

Padres 1, Phillies 0

Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly in the top of the eighth scored Garry Templeton with the game's only run.

Dave Dravecky and Rich Gossage combined on the shutout.

Expos 2, Giants 0

Tim Raines and Hubie Brooks hit led off the third and fourth innings with home runs, backing Joe Hesketh and Jeff Reardon's combined two-hitter.

Dodgers 4, Mets 3

Greg Brock and Mike Scioscia hit solo home runs in the sixth inning to back Orel Hershiser, 4-0.

Hough too much for Boston

by The Associated Press

Charlie Hough was just too tough.

Especially in the ninth inning when the Boston Red Sox mounted their biggest threat. Hough, the veteran Texas knuckleballer, got Rich Gedman to hit into a game-ending double play with runners at first and third to complete a six-hit 1-0 shutout.

"Charlie was outstanding," said Manager Bobby Valentine. "Not only did he have the hitters off-stride, he was ahead of them all night. He changed speeds well. He just did a good job."

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit edged Seattle 4-3 in 11 innings; Baltimore nipped California 4-3; Toronto shaded Cleveland 7-6; New York pummeled Oakland 10-3; Kansas City trimmed Chicago 8-4 and Milwaukee downed Minnesota 5-2.

Hough walked two and struck out seven in becoming the first Texas hurler to pitch a shutout since last Aug. 28.

"A knuckleball is a knuckleball," said Boston third baseman Wade Boggs. "Some nights you hit it and some nights you don't. We didn't get any runs so I guess he was tough."

The Rangers scored off Dennis Boyd, 4-4, who finished with a five-hitter, when Gary Ward led off the bottom of the fifth with a triple and Cliff Johnson followed with a fly ball to left. Ward slid home just ahead of the throw from Jim Rice.

Bill Buckner opened the Boston ninth with a single and went to third on Mike Easler's one-out single, bringing Valentine to the mound.

"He asked me how I felt," Hough said. "I said I felt like a double play."

"I asked him if he had it in him," Valentine reported. "He said he did."

Gedman hit a bouncer to first baseman Pete O'Brien, who threw to shortstop Curtis Wilkerson for the force at second. Hough took Wilkerson's relay at first to complete the double play.

Tigers 4, Mariners 3

Darrell Evans slammed a leadoff home run in the top of the 11th inning while Detroit bullpen ace Willie Hernandez, 3-1, was the winner with 2 1-3 innings of hitless relief.

Seattle's Mike Moore went 10 innings, scattering 10 hits and striking out nine, but gave way to Mike Stanton at the start of the 11th.

Orioles 4, Angels 3

Lenn Sakata's eighth-inning double snapped a tie and gave Storm Davis, who scattered seven hits, his first triumph since April 23. After Larry Sheets led off the inning with a single off reliever Stu Cliburn, pinch-runner Mike Young took second on a wild pitch and was sacrificed to third by Fritz Connally before Sakata doubled.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 6

Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run homer and Ernie Whitt belted a three-run shot in a five-run third inning and Toronto held on for its fifth consecutive victory.

Jeff Barkley made his first appearance since being recalled from the minors last Sunday and Whitt greeted him with his homerun.

Yankees 10, A's 3

Dave Winfield's three-run homer capped a six-run New York outburst in the fourth inning and the Yankees coasted behind the six-hit pitching of Joe Cowley, 3-2, and two relievers.

Chris Codiroli suffered his first loss since opening day, 8-0.

Dave Kingman [illegible] homer for Oakland.

Royals 8, White Sox 4

George Brett drove in four runs and Dan Quisenberry earned his seventh save with three innings of one-hit relief as Kansas City climbed past Chicago and Minnesota into second place in the AL West.

Brett hit a two-run single in the third inning off loser Britt Burns and added RBI singles in th fifth and seventh. In the eighth, the White Sox intentionally walked Brett and Steve Balboni delivered an RBI single. It was Kansas City's third straight victory and Chicagb's fourth loss in a row.

Brewers 5, Twins 2

Ted Simmons drove in two runs, Paul Molitor homered and Ray Burris and two relievers combined on a six-hitter.

Burris, who hadn't won since April 11, gave up one run on three hits before leaving with two out and the bases loaded in the seventh.

Andretti Indy favorite if there is one, that is

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - There's no such thing as a favorite in the Indianapolis 500, where someone else's mistake can send the most experienced driver into the wall, where the fastest car in the lineup can be sidelined by a mechanical failure of a $2 part, where the only lap that counts is the last one.

Just ask Mario Andretti.

A series of frustrating mishaps in recent years has reinforced Andretti's belief that it takes more than a good car and a lot of driving skill to win the world's most important race.

"It's just fate that deals you a hand. You've got to deal with it," said Andretti, a victim of crashes triggered by other drivers in each of the past three years and the loser in a five-month appeal of the race finish the year before that.

"It'll be a bit of a white-knuckler for us at the beginning," the 1969 winner said of Sunday's start, which he will begin from the inside of the second row, directly behind record-setting pole winner Pancho Carter.

"I wish there was nobody here, so I could win," mused Andretti, dismissing Las Vegas oddsmakers who have established him as the betting favorite in the race. "At the start, the adrenalin flows. You hope everybody keeps his head. Mistakes get made because of that. Not everybody has full control of their emotions."

The 33-car field averaged 208.138 mph, making it the fastest lineup in the history of automobile racing. The potential for carnage on the race track is possibly greater than ever, but Andretti refuses to change to a more cautious driving style.

"You go for what you have to go for," he said. "I'm not looking for a convenient spot" away from traffic on the track.

Andretti recalled 1982, when he was eliminated in one of two crashes along the main straightaway even before the green flag had dropped to start the race. In 1983, he lasted 79 laps before driver Johnny Parsons triggered an accident that sent Andretti's car into the first-turn wall.

Last year, Andretti made it through 153 of the 200 laps before his car struck Josele Garza's racer at the pit entrance and broke a nose cone and right front wing.

But the greatest disappointment for Andretti probably was the 1981 race, when he finished second to Bobby Unser. The morning after the race, the U.S. Auto Club penalized Unser one lap for illegally passing a line of cars during a caution period, giving Andretti the victory. Unser appealed the decision to a special USAC panel, which reinstated Unser's victory five months later.

"If I win, sure, I'll forget everything," said Andretti, who has had only one other top-10 finish at Indy since 1972.

Carter set a four-lap qualification record at 212.583 mph in a Buick-powered March.

Lakers given early edge in NBA series

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston Celtics are the defending champions. They had the best record in the regular season. But the red-hot Los Angeles Lakers very well may be favorite in the title series.

That suits the Celtics just fine as they look ahead to their quest for their 16th National Basketball Association title and second in a row.

"We're probably underdogs, but that's just as well," Boston forward Kevin McHale said Friday. "We like when people say we can't win and we can't do this and can't do that. That gets us excited. So I hope everybody keeps saying that right through the series."

The Lakers are on a roll heading into the best-of-seven final that begins here Monday afternoon. They were 11-2 in the Western Conference playoffs with a scoring average of 131.2 points per game. They have won 42 of their last 48 games.

Their 62-20 regular-season mark was second best in the NBA. Boston was first at 63-19 and earned the homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs. The Celtics are 11-4 in post-season action.

"I'd rather be the underdog," said Boston's Larry Bird. "They (the Lakers) really didn't breeze through anything during the regular season because they came in second. We had the better record.

"There's no team (in the West) that can match up with L.A. L.A. plays good defense and offense and a lot of teams out there just play good offense. So I don't think it's very surprising to us that they went through (the playoffs) so easy."

Los Angeles' strength is its running game, which Phoenix, Portland and Denver couldn't control in the first three playoff rounds. None of those teams plays as physical a game as the Celtics.

"It's the stars vs. the longshoremen," said McHale. "We have probably one guy who can dunk on our whole team. They've got a whole team that goes in there and flies through the air. We just go out there and kind of grind it out."

The Celtics' style prevailed last year when they took the championship series 4-3 as they outrebounded Los Angeles 52-33 in their 111-102 seventh-game victory in Boston.

Since then, the Lakers have improved. Forward James Worthy has gotten better and is Los Angeles' leading playoff scorer. Sharpshooting guard Byron Scott is averaging 19.5 points per playoff game. His post-season average last year was 8.6.

"This could be the greatest team in Laker history," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley.

Western Texas team slated in CNFR later new month

The Western Texas College men's rodeo team will be among the top college contestants in the nation when they converge on Bozeman, Mont., for the College National Finals Rodeo from June 17-22.

This is the sixth year in a row that the WTC men's team has qualified for the CNFR. Their best finish was in 1981 when they were runnerup for the national championship. The WTC women's team qualified for the finals last season but finished fourth in the region, not good enough for the finale.

To qualify, a team or individual must finish in the first or second place in one of the regions of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association. WTC competes in the Southwest Region and the WTC men finished second, trailing winner Sul Ross State University 1,828 points to 1,447. Eastern New Mexico was third and Tarleton State University was fourth.

Women's teams from Sul Ross and TSU advanced to the finals.

"Competition in the Southwest Region was very tough this year," WTC Rodeo Coach Bob Doty said. "The teams were more even this year."

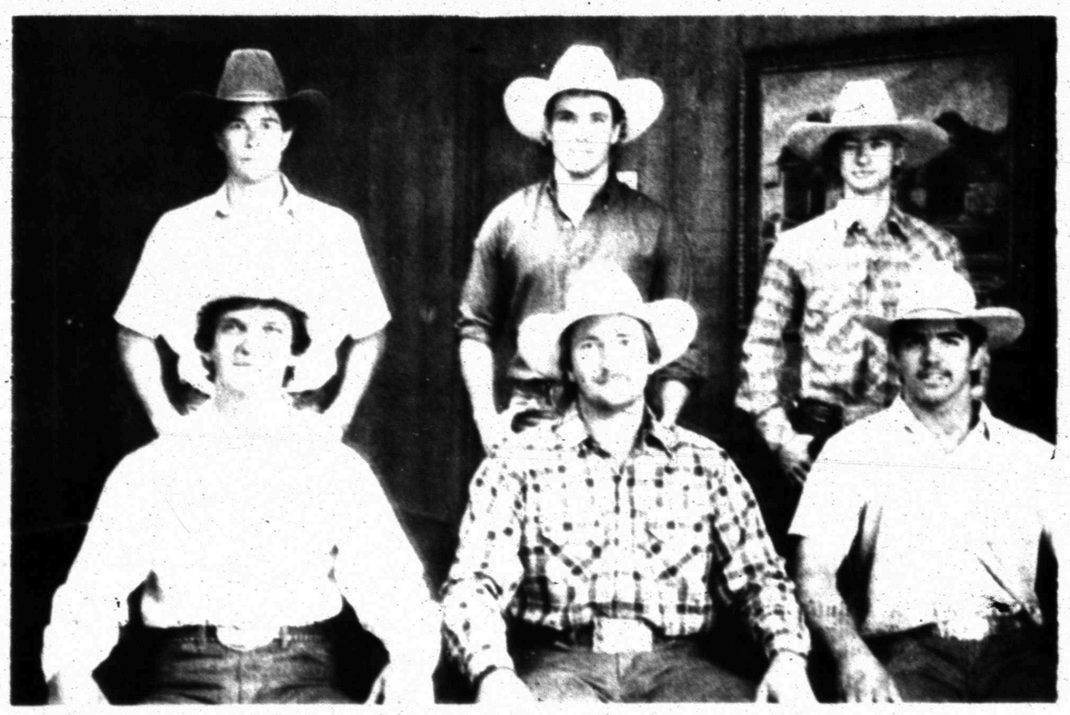

WTC competed in 13 NIRA rodeos during the season, which started in September and concluded the first week in May.

Making up the six-man WTC team will be Van Hale from Snyder, Gary Rowe from Colorado City, Tony Hecksher from Marburg, Queensland, Australia, Glenn Jordan from Clinton, N.C., Donnie Yorks from Mt. Morris, N.Y. and Bliss Mayhan from Kim, Colo.

Hale finished third in bull riding and fourth in saddle bronc in the Southwest Region. Rowe competes in calf roping and steer wrestling.

Hecksher was fifth in the region in bareback riding. Jordan was fifth in the region in steer wrestling. Yorks, fourth in steer wrestling, will also compete in calf roping.

Mayhan and Chris Guay from Tarleton State University tied for the bareback riding championship. Mayhan won that event at the Eastern New Mexico and at Howard College, and finished the season with 411 points. Mayhan will also compete in bull riding at Bozeman.

Cubs unanimously approve authorizing baseball strike

CHICAGO (AP) - If the Chicago Cubs are any indication of how major baseball players will vote in authorizing a strike, it will be unanimous.

After holding a meeting with Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major Leagues Players Association, the Cubs voted 25-0 authorizing a strike.

Keith Moreland, the Cubs' player representative, Friday announced the team's decision.

"It was 25-to-0," said Moreland. "We discussed everything. The owners have offered nothing legitimate."

The Cubs were the first team to meet with Fehr who will discuss the situation with all 26 clubs during the next two weeks.

The action followed Thursday's meeting of the executive board of the player representatives where it was decided that a strike authorization vote would be taken of the union's 700 members. Moreland said all the players had a chance to talk and asked questions about the eight-point concept offered by the owners.

The eight-point concept proposed by the owners includes improvements in retirement benefits for current players and older retired players, a 50 percent increase in minimum salary, the abolishing of the free agent re-entry draft, elimination of professional player compensation, protection of players with respect to deferred compensation obligations and the adoption of a baseball payroll plan.

"We went through the proposals from beginning to end," said Fehr. "There were a lot of questions, the ones you would expect. We explained the proposals and if we have to go on strike, when."

There has been talk of calling a strike at the All-Star game, or during the playoffs or World Series.

Palestinians make last stand in refugee area

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslems closed in on Palestinians making a last stand in the shattered Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps Friday, and assaulted another sprawling complex that is the last guerrilla stronghold in Beirut.

"It's a big battle. It looks like they're trying to storm in. Our fighters are holding," a Palestinian spokesman told The Associated Press by telephone from the Bourj el-Barajneh camp in south Beirut.

He said the Amal militia assaulted the camp at dusk behind tank fire from a Shiite army brigade, after six days of firing into it from the perimeter. There are an estimated 3,000 Palestinian fighters in Bourj el-Barajneh.

At the Sabra camp in west Beirut, 1½ miles to the north, a handful of Palestinians blazed away at hundreds of militiamen and Shiite army regulars advancing through the rubble behind heavy tank and machine-gun fire.

"We're fighting foot by foot. They're putting up a hell of a fight," an Amal militia officer said in a smoke-filled alleyway 20 yards from the Palestinians' last bastion behind a block of riddled houses.

"A lot of the Palestinians sneaked out last night. They left these guys here to fight us. I think they're dead men," he said.

A Palestinian spokesman said by telephone: "This looks the final assault in Sabra. Amal is closing in behind a murderous barrage of 6th Brigade tank fire. We've lost large chunks of the camp."

Police reported at least 12 people killed and 110 wounded Friday. At least 100 bodies from earlier battles were removed from the camps by civil defense teams and taken to hospital morgues already filled with corpses.

That raised the known casualty toll to at least 338 killed and 1,473 wounded since the Shiites assaulted the camps Sunday to keep the Palestinians from regaining the Lebanon power base they lost in the 1982 Israeli invasion.

Latest fashions are now on display

PEKING (AP) — To the sounds of Chinese pop music, 30 models at Peking Workers' Gymnasium showed off the latest high fashions by French designer Pierre Cardin — highlighted by bare midriffs, V-cut backs and gowns with matching coolie hats.

The collection is not intended for sale to the Chinese. Cardin said his aim is to influence the Chinese clothing industry, from which he buys silk and cashmere.

The designer, who said he wants to open stores in Shanghai and Peking, already runs a bakery here selling French bread and croissants.

'Peanut' dies; five fight lung ailment

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — The five surviving Frustaci septuplets appear to be winning their fight for life after the death of their tiny brother Peanut, say doctors who hope to see improvement in their condition within three days.

"I don't anticipate any dying immediately," Dr. Carrie Worcester said Friday of Samuel and Patricia Frustaci's remaining three boys and two girls. "I hope none of these babies die. ... I don't think it's going to be a baby a day."

The unnamed survivors, designated babies A through E, remained in critical but stable condition at Children's Hospital of Orange County. Peanut, so called because he weighed only a pound, died Friday of heart and lung failure.

Ms. Worcester, director of newborn intensive care, said Baby B, a boy, and D, a girl, were the sickest, Baby A, a girl, and E, a boy, were the healthiest, and "C (a boy) somewhere in between."

"I'm hoping over the next 72 hours we'll see some major improvement," she said.

On Friday, four of the surviving infants weighed 1 pound, 12 ounces, and baby A weighed 1 pound, 10½ ounces.

The tiny infants remained on oxygen and respirators because of severe hyaline membrane disease, a disease that occurs frequently in premature babies because their lungs lack a substance that prevents air sacs in the lungs from collapsing after each breath.

Doctors performed ultrasound brain scans for the second time Friday and all were normal, showing no signs of bleeding into the brain, a condition often found in premature infants, Ms. Worcester said.

Bill would bar cities from controlling guns

AUSTIN (AP) — Rejecting warnings from a lawmaker who said it smacked of "frontier mentality," the House voted Friday to bar cities from enacting gun-control laws.

The 106-38 vote sent the Senate-approved measure to a final House vote, probably Saturday.

"This bill is repulsive," said Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, a handgun control proponent.

"Nobody seems to want to deal with this problem except to make it worse," Ragsdale said. "We ought to be regulating this instead of trying to encourage this frontier mentality that pervades this great state."

The House planned to work late into the night Friday because of end-of-session rules that made it the final day for initial consideration of bills. The session is scheduled to end Monday.

Still pending are measures that would keep in operation the state agencies that regulate air quality and water.

Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, House sponsor of the anti-gun control measure, said cities should be prohibited from regulating guns because such local rules could result in a confusing patchwork of differing restrictions.

Rep. Gary Thompson, D-Abilene, fought the bill as an infringement on local government's authority. He also said there is no threat of gun control laws breaking out in Texas cities.

"If we are going to pass some gun-control measure it should be at the state level," Leonard said.

"We are addressing a non-issue with a non-solution. This is not a pro-gun or anti-gun bill. This bill is about local control, home rule," said Thompson.

"I just don't think we're all-wise down here. Those local folks know what their problems are," he added.

Alleged father, son spies are cooperating

WASHINGTON (AP) — A father and son charged with espionage are both telling federal agents how they delivered Navy secrets to the Soviet Union, government sources say.

Retired Navy communications specialist John Anthony Walker Jr., 47, now confined in the Baltimore city jail, has been telling FBI agents and Justice Department prosecutors how he spied for the Soviets since 1966, said a government source who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

It could not be learned whether Walker was telling all he knew, but it appeared he was seeking to avoid prosecution. And there was no indication whether the government would agree to make any concessions in return.

A Pentagon source said Walker's 22-year-old son, Michael, a seaman on the nuclear aircraft carrier Nimitz, has been cooperating with agents of the Naval Investigative Service.

"He has been talking to our people," said the source, who also spoke on the condition of anonymity. "He, for sure, did some talking Thursday. Now, of course, we don't know if he's telling us everything."

On Friday, the younger Walker was flown from the Nimitz, docked in Israel, to Rota, Spain. He was to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base near here today.

Asked if the elder Walker was cooperating, one of his public defender attorneys, Fred Bennett, said only, "If Walker is indicted, the plea will be not guilty at his arraignment."

Justice Department spokesman John Russell said, "We know of no information of any such cooperation."

The disclosure of the elder Walker's cooperation came shortly before Bennett went into federal court in Baltimore to ask a judge to order officials not to discuss the case. U.S. District Judge Norman P. Ramsey deferred decision until Tuesday.

The elder Walker was arrested Monday and charged with espionage after he allegedly left 129 classified Navy documents at a rural site outside Washington in the vicinity of where FBI agents observed a Soviet diplomat.

Grand jury to investigate Sen. Parker

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — State Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, already the object of two grand jury investigations, will again be the object of grand jury scrutiny.

Denying he is pursuing a personal vendetta against Parker, Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath said Friday he decided to proceed with another probe because of complaints from the public and from law enforcement agencies when the second set of felony indictments against Parker were thrown out last week.

McGrath said Attorney General Jim Mattox has offered to send one of his top investigators to help him out this time around.

"There's been accusations made that I have a personal vendetta against Parker and I just wanted another agency here to make sure everything goes smoothly," McGrath said. "I don't hold any vendetta against him."

State District Judge Perry Pickett of Midland on May 16 dismissed charges against Parker and two other men after finding "there were unauthorized persons in the grand jury room."

Parker, along with Daniel Jacob Lee and David Earl Johnson were indicted March 22 on charges of engaging in organized criminal activity and conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

Parker was also charged with the wholesale promotion of obscene material.

Last November, Pickett also ruled the grand jury that indicted the senator two months earlier in 1984 was biased.

Parker, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said he was not surprised by the new investigation.

Salvation Army said 'distressed' by probe

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A nationwide investigation of the Salvation Army's second-hand clothing operations has led to charges of payoffs and has left officials of the charitable group "distressed beyond belief," their lawyer said Friday.

"We are prepared to have justice done," said William Moss, attorney for the 105-year-old New Jersey-based organization.

As a result of a two-year federal investigation, the Dumont Export Corp., a Philadelphia used-clothing exporter, and two company officers were charged with giving Salvation Army officers payments for 13 years in return for a steady supply of clothes.

The charges, contained in a federal information filed Tuesday, also accuse the company and officers of cheating 11 countries out of $443,149 in fees and, with defrauding shipping companies by understating shipment weights.

The investigation involves the entire Salvation Army operation and has not been narrowed down to a specific number of officials, said David Warren, special agent in charge of the U.S. Customs Service office in Philadelphia.

Moss said the Salvation Army has been aware of the investigation for two years and has been cooperating.

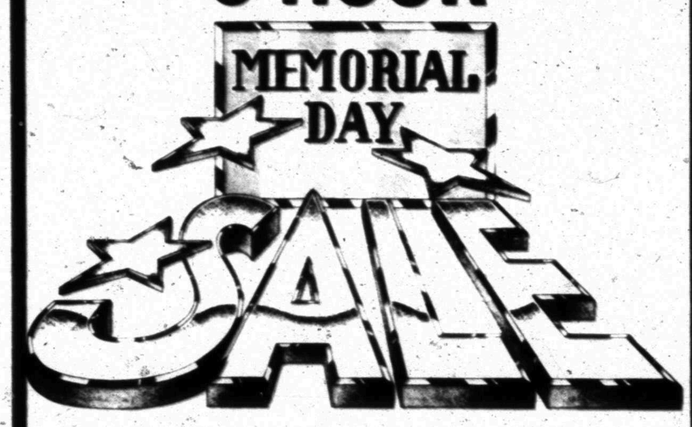

"We have known that that (used clothing centers) was a medium through which payments were made. But Salvation Army audits of salvage centers have revealed no irregularities in books of account.

"What is important, Dumont represented a very small fraction of purchases of rags," he said, adding that the company did business with 10 to 12 of the Salvation Army's 113 centers and at no time accounted for more than 5 percent of the rag sales.

Exporters Harry Usatch, 70, of Hollywood, Fla., and his son, Jerald Usatch, 45, of Philadelphia, both officers of the Philadelphia-based Dumont, were charged with paying kickbacks to several Salvation Army officers to win favored treatment in buying used clothing and rags, according to the criminal information.

Thank You

TO ALL R friends who showed us love and kindness in every way possible. To Dr. Dillaha and the Nurses who took care of our loved one. We send you our heartfelt thanks.

The Family of Hiram Jack Gossick II and his Mac King

TO ALL who were so kind and thoughtful to me in the hour of my sorrow at the passing of my dear Lottie Teague, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks. A special thanks go to the hospital staff, Dr. Burleson and Snyder Nursing Center. Also, my sincere gratitude for the cards, flowers, food and loving kindness shown by my many friends. May God bless all of you.

Laura Jones

Perhaps you sang a lovely song,
Or Prayed quietly in a chair;
Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers,
If so, we saw them there.
Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words,
As many Friends did say;
Perhaps you prepared some tasty food,
Or furnished a car for the way.
Perhaps you rendered a service unseen,
Near at hand or from afar;
Whatever you did to console our heart,
We "Thank You" so much for the part.

The Loved Ones of Eugene Miles

Congratulations David on your Graduation.

Love
Your Aunt Dolores

Texas Senate approves new bill to keep pupils together

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two more terrorist members of the radical May 19 Communist Movement — one a former Austin, Texas researcher for the Texas Legislature and the other a fugitive physician linked to the bloody 1981 Brink's robbery in New York — have been captured in Pennsylvania, FBI officials said Friday.

Dr. Alan Berkman, 39, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Betty Anne Duke, 44, of Austin were arrested Thursday night on a highway in Warminister, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Both were in a compact car and "were armed with loaded automatic weapons on their laps, and she had her hand on the gun," said John Hogan, special agent in charge of the FBI Philadelphia office.

They were ordered held without bail Friday, and a hearing was scheduled for Tuesday.

Berkman was disguised in a woman's wig when arrested, authorities said. Officials said he had been linked to radicals involved in the attempted robbery of a Brink's armored truck four years ago.

Authorities said Miss Duke and Berkman are being held in a Philadelphia jail on federal charges of weapon violations and possession of false identification.

Miss Duke is a self-styled revolutionary who once urged Austinites from the pages of The Daily Texan not to cooperate with police.

In a related development, the FBI seized a cache of explosives and weapons Friday evening from a Doylestown Township garage rented by Miss Duke.

Hogan said authorities followed Miss Duke to a Philadelphia auto rental agency where she picked up a compact car. Ten agents captured the two suspects while they apparently were headed for New York, he said.

Hogan said the two were members of the May 19th Communist Movement, which he called "an off-shoot of the once notorious Weather Underground, also linked to the Black Liberation Front and all part of the Marxist-Leninist revolutionary apparatus."

Hogan said agents found in the car a 12-gauge shotgun, three automatic pistols, dumdum ammunition, and papers for 10 sets of false identification.

"We are still looking for other individuals who have been interacting with these people," Hogan said. "And there are about 400 pounds of dynamite stolen in Texas two years ago which is still unaccounted for. Some of it was recovered last November in Cherry Hill, N.J., but we don't know what happened to the rest of it."

Authorities believe the dynamite was stolen in Austin in 1983.

Miss Duke and Berkman were paraded and the weapons displayed before reporters at a press conference Friday morning in Philadelphia. Neither of the suspects spoke.

In the garage search Friday evening, the FBI seized weapons, bomb components, high explosives and machines for making false identifications, FBI spokesman James McIntosh said.

He said an investigation following the two arrests led the FBI to the garage. McIntosh said the owners of the rented garage on Route 611 in Doylestown Township were not connected to the group.

Berkman and Miss Duke were charged with violation of federal weapons laws and with carrying false identifications. Miss Duke also was accused of harboring a fugitive.

Berkman has been sought since early 1983 on a fugitive warrant charging him with being an accessory after the fact in the bungled Oct. 20, 1981, robbery of a Brink's truck in Nanuet, N.Y., where one guard was killed. Two police officers also were shot to death at a roadblock in Nyack, N.Y.

Authorities say Berkman traveled to the group's Mt. Vernon, N.Y., hideout and treated one of the radicals, Marilyn Jean Buck, who had shot herself accidentally during the confrontation with police.

Ms. Buck, along with a companion, was arrested in New York May 11.

The Tuesday hearing will focus on bail, the local charges and an extradition motion for Berkman, said Assistant U. S. Attorney Karl Lunkenheimer.

Lunkenheimer said Miss Buck "was a shooter in the Nyack robbery" and was also wanted in a 1977 prison escape in West Virginia.

Five people already have been convicted on New York state charges in the Brink's case.

2 terrorist members have been linked to Brink's job

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has done an about-face and approved a bill that would tend to keep students together as they move up through the public education system.

On Thursday, despite a plea by Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, that splitting up peer groups leads to crime, drug and alcohol abuse and even suicide, the Senate refused to debate the bill.

On Friday, however, senators passed the measure 19-8, and returned it to the House with an amendment.

Howard's bill states that each district shall try to assign all students in an elementary school to a single junior high and all students in a junior high to a single high school.

"If fewer than 30 percent of the students advancing are assigned to any single school, a student who is not assigned to the school which has the largest percentage may transfer," the bill says.

An amendment was added authorizing districts to deny transfers to preserve mandatory and voluntary desegregation programs.

The Senate also approved what Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, called a "rent-a-cop" bill, which would allow the Department of Public Safety to appoint up to 250 railroad peace officers.

Bill sponsor John Montford, D-Lubbock, said it was not the intent of his bill "to open the door" to the extent that other industries could also get their own peace officers certified by the state.

He said the railroad industry had "peculiar problems" because it is "highly mobile by nature."

The bill was returned to the House with an amendment, 26-4.

Another House bill amended and approved by the Senate 31-0 would allow all counties to be reimbursed for certain expenses arising out of the prosecution of inmates who commit crimes while in prison.

Yet another House bill returned by the Senate with amendments would raise from $75 to $150 the fee the Board of Law Examiners may charge for administering the bar exam.

Each bar examiner would receive $20,000, up $5,000 from current compensation. An amendment to hold it at $15,000 was defeated 19-11.

A measure that would abolish tax credits in two years for out-of-state producers of gasohol, a mixture of gasoline and alcohol, also was returned to the House with an amendment.

Moisture level checked in soil

The soil currently holding the most moisture is the soil typed as Roscoe clay in the southeastern quadrant of Scurry County. It has a soil profile down to 4 ft. of 16.6 inches.

On the other end of the spectrum is soil classified as Estacado clay loam in the northeastern part of Borden County, which is holding a profile of 11.7 inches.

Other examples are:

—Rowena clay loam in the southeastern tip of Scurry County with 14.3 inches.

—Olton clay loam just east of Snyder with 15.5 inches.

—Miles fine sandy loam just west of the city with 13.6 inches.

The testing for soil-moisture content is being conducted by Tomas A. Feuerbacher, a soil scientist with the SCS based in Big Spring. He is working in conjunction with the Snyder SCS office.

Also assisting with the project is Dr. Dan Kreig, a professor with the Department of Plant and Soil Science at Texas Tech University.

To illustrate soil water levels, Kreig noted the general rule of thumb is a cotton plant will use up to 8 inches of water to bring itself to the bloom stage.

"Every inch of water your soil has above this will produce from 50 to 60 pounds of lint. Over a season, you can figure 30 pounds of lint per inch of water," he said.

During the plant's growing season, it is estimated if the plant had available to it some 18 inches of water in the ground, it could produce cotton amounts equaling one bale per acre.

The testing procedure is completed by driving a 2-inch in diameter aluminum pipe into the ground.

SCS personnel then use a device called a neutron probe to determine the amount of moisture being retained in the soil.

Yard damaged during mishap

A single minor one-vehicle traffic accident was reported in Snyder Friday.

According to reports, Carlos Julian Garcia of 2107 ½ 27th St. apparently lost control of a 1979 Ford he was driving along Towle Park Rd. at 12:15 a.m.

The vehicle left the roadway and veered into the front yard of the Vonnie Everton residence at 2408 Towle Park Rd., damaging both the yard and the undercarriage of the vehicle.

No injuries resulted from the mishap.

2 arrests Friday

Police logged two misdemeanor arrests Friday evening.

One man was jailed for driving while intoxicated and a second for public intoxication.

Scurry County Folks...

By Linda Baylor

The Scurry County Library will again conduct the annual summer reading program which is sponsored by the Texas State Library. This year's theme is "Awesome Adventures" and will involve children who have completed their kindergarten year through sixth grade.

The program begins May 28 and will conclude Aug. 22 and will involve all eight elementary schools in Scurry County, according to Janis Mitchell, head librarian.

"We're going to have a contest between the schools this year," she explained. "Each child must read 15 books in order to get a certificate, but for every 15 books that child reads, another marker will be placed on his-her school poster." These posters will be hung mobile fashion throughout the library.

The first 150 participants to read 15 books will receive an "Awesome Adventures" T-shirt transfer. The students from the winning school will receive a special prize which will be awarded at 10:30 a.m. Aug. 22.

Each school has been assigned a theme for this program which includes East Elementary, "Camera Safair"; North Elementary, "Arctic Adventure"; Northeast Elementary, "Astronaut Voyge"; Stanfield, "Alien Invasion"; West Elementary, "Ballon Race"; Central Elementary, "Dinosaur Trek"; Ira, "Deep Sea Exploration"; and Hermleigh, "Mummy Search".

Each time a child reads a 15 book set, his-her name will be placed on the mobile for the child's school.

"We want to encourage the children of Scurry County to participate in our 1985 Texas Reading Club and to do their part to help their school win," said Mrs. Mitchell. Sign up for this program begins May 28.

For the same age group the Scurry County library is sponsoring an Art Contest which will start May 28 and end July 18.

As part of the "Awesome Adventures" program, participants are invited to draw a picture of their favorite book adventure and bring it to the library where it will be displayed prior to the judging scheduled for July 18.

Marcie Mattson, director of Diamond M Museum, will judge the contest and the decision of the judge is final.

The pictures can be no larger than 14 inches by 20 inches and the child's name, address and telephone number should be on the drawing.

A prize will be awarded on each grade level and the presentations will be made at 10:30 a.m. July 25.

The library will continue the 9:30 a.m. Thursday show time for the day care centers, but they will add a 10:30 a.m. feature time for school age children. The film session will run approximately 30 to 40 minutes.

The first film strip in this new series is "Rodeo" and will be followed by "Vandalism: It's a Doy's Life." These will be shown May 30. Other films include "Soup and Me", "Angus Lost", "Milo's Journey", "Saga of Windwagon Smith", "Island of the Skog", "Floating Free", "Morris' Disappearing Bag", "Greenhouse", "Amazing Cosmic Awareness of Duffy Moon", and "Mandy's Grandmother".

In August some of the featured titles include "Cop and the Anthem", "Fur Coat Club", "Dinosaur", "Battle of the Century: Pie Fight", and "Birds of a Feather".

The Scurry County Library also sponsors a story time on Friday from 10-10:30 a.m. for three, four and five year olds. "The children must be able to sit still for this length of time in order to participate," stated Mrs. Mitchell.

The themes for the summer story program include Trickery, Friends, Ghosts, Giants, Sports, Magic, Adventures, Home, Animals, Circuses, Magical Spells, Reptiles, and Birds.

ORANGE CHIFFON CAKE

2 ¼ cups sifted cake flour
1 ½ cups sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3-4 cup orange juice
½ cup vegetable oil
6 large eggs, separated
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add orange juice, oil and egg yolks. Beat until smooth; stir in orange rind. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until whites are stiff. Gradually fold in egg yolk mixture. Pour into ungreased 10 inch angelfood cake pan. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven until cake springs bac when lightly touched — 65 to 70 minutes. Immediately invert on rack until cold. Loosen edges and ease out.

Nearly 500,000 men, women, and children donate considerable time and effort annually conducting the VFW "Buddy" Poppy sale.

Melynda Crow, Chris Sturdevant united in double ring ceremony

Melynda Anne Crow and Chris Dale Sturdevant were united in marriage at 7 p.m. April 20 at Colonial Hill Baptist Church. Miller Robinson, pastor of the church, officiated the double ring ceremony. He was assisted by Kenny Crow, brother of the bride.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Crow of Rt. 1 Snyder and Mrs. Tyne Sturdevant of Amarillo and the late J.W. (Jack) Sturdevant. The bride's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edd Franklin of Rt. 1 Snyder.

The alter featured a 15 branch candlelabra behind a brass arch with 14 branch brass spiral candlelabra flanking either side. The unity candle, decorated by Debbie Henderson, was displayed on a table covered with a white cloth sitting beneath the arch. The unity candle featured rose and grey silk flowers accented with baby's breath. Taper candles on each side added interest to the setting.

Betty Watts played selections on the piano as guests were seated. The mothers were ushered in as Kathy Watts and Darrell Collins sang "Sunrise, Sunset". The bridesmaid, maid of honor, flower girl and ring bearer entered as they sang "To Me".

Jane Womack played the "Wedding March" by Wagner as the bride was escorted to the alter by her father. She was given in marriage by her parents.

Ms. Watts and Collins sang "Nobody Loves Me Like You" before the couple repeated their vows. Collins sang "The Lord's Prayer" after the couple lighted the unity candle. The recessional, played by Ms. Womack, was the "Wedding March" by Medelssohn. Kenny Crow voiced a prayer before the ceremony and again before the recessional.

The bride's gown, designed by Lizette Creations, was fashioned of white organza which featured a Queene Anne neckline designed of Chantilly lace and easing into a sweetheart neckline encrusted with pearls, sequins and lace motiffs. The sleeves were full French pouf with Chantilly lace caplets on the edge and lengthened to a point at the wrist.

The waistline was gathered to a point and was highlighted with white satin ribbons which formed a bow accented with streamers. The skirt was decorated with rows of organza ruffles on lacy circles and scollops for accents. Her train was a full chapel sweep highlighted with organza and lace ruffles cascading to the center of the train.

She wore a bridal chendot hat with lace motiffs, scattered pearls and sequins flowing into the net. The turn of the century styling matched the dress.

The shoulder length veil was fashioned of bridal illusion. To complete her ensemble, she wore a pearl necklace and matching earrings. The earrings were a gift from Mrs. Connie Meek, sister of the groom.

In keeping with tradition, she wore an antique lavalier which was borrowed from Mrs. John Covey Jr. About 70 years ago the lavalier had been given to Mrs. Covey Sr. by her husband. The bride's gown served as something new and she wore a blue garter. Pennies minted in the year of her and the groom's birth were placed in her shoes for luck.

She carried a white lace covered Bible which had been given to her as a baby by the Rev. D.W. Copeland, pastor of the Knapp Baptist Church. The Bible was topped with a bouquet of three cymbedieum orchids, white feathered carnations, lillies of the valley and accents of baby's breath.

Carefully placed inside the Bible was a white hankerchief which had a large blue satin "N" stitched in one corner and matching blue trim. The hankerchief had been given to the bride by Mrs. Nell Covey.

The groom wore a formal black tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt. A black bow tie and matching cumberbun completed the ensemble. His boutonniere was fashioned of feathered carnations and baby's breath.

James Clark, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man. David Moore of Amarillo was the groomsman. They wore matching grey tuexdos, white shirts and rose bow ties and cumberbuns. Their boutonniers were designed of white and rose feathered carnations accented with baby's breath.

Jimmy Crow and Kenny Crow, brothers of the bride, served as ushers. They wore grey tuexdos, white shirts and rose bow ties and matching cumberbuns.

Debbie Henderson, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. Kim Rice was the bride's maid. They wore matching floor length gowns fashioned of rose polyester and featuring spaghetti straps which were topped with rose and grey jackets.

They carried white fans accented with rose and grey silk flowers and dried baby's breath. Rose and grey ribbon streamers gently secured the floral arrangements to the fans and were tied in love knots. The fans were designed by Miss Henderson.

Morgan Clements, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She carried a small white basket trimmed with rose flowers and ribbon bows.

Amanda Clark, niece of the groom, was ringbearer. She carried a white heart shaped lace pillow which featured two rings tied securly with white ribbon streamers in love knots. Both girls wore dresses similiar to the maid of honor.

The mother of the bride chose a formal length gown of rose knit. The groom's mother selected a formal length gown of orchid and purple. Both mothers wore corsages fashioned of cymbedium orchids.

Angela Franklin, cousin of the bride, registered guests.

The bride's parents hosted the reception in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length white lace over pink cloth. Her bouquet was centered on the table. The three tiered white wedding cake, baked and decorated by Doris Henderson, aunt of the bride, was topped with a "Precious Moments" bisque boy and girl figurine. Rose colored roses and ribbon bow streamers draped from the top of the cake flowed down the sides. Punch was served from a crystal punch bowl. Jan Moore, Tracy Gilstrap and Pam Riggins served at the bride's table.

The groom's table was covered with a tan over tan lace cloth and the unity candle was used as a centerpiece. The German chocolate cake featured a large "S" made of white icing. A silver coffee service completed the setting. Penny Clark and Connie Meek, sisters of the groom, assisted the guests.

Members of the house party were Mrs. Buck Layne, Mrs. Carl Williams and Mrs. A.J. Henderson.

The groom's mother, Tyne Sturdevant, and his sisters and their families, Mr. and Mrs. James Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meek, hosted the rehersal dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs Clark.

A party honoring the couple was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Meek at the country club.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended WTC. She is employed at Sunna Corporation in Amarillo. The groom graduated from Amarillo High School and WTC and attended West Texas State College at Canyon. He is employed at Maison Blanche.

Out of town guests were from Amarillo, Abilene, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Lubbock and Arlington.

The couple is at home in Amarillo.

"Calorie Control" topic of program

Katheryn Roberts, county extension agent, conducted a brown bag program Thursday, May 16 from 12:15-12:45 in the Texas Reddy Room. The brown bag programs are designed for the working woman's convenience so she may eat lunch while attending the program, according to Mrs. Roberts.

The topic for Thursday's program was "Control Calories," and Mrs. Roberts discussed several points including learning to enjoy eating properly.

"If everyone would eat from the basic four, we wouldn't need the diets," explained Mrs. Roberts. Vitamins A and C, found in fruits and vegetables, provide roughage and are low in calories. She stressed the fact that people should think lite when eating, and provided various examples of the number of calories in lite foods as opposed to regular foods.

Some of the points Mrs. Roberts made included eating more slowly, looking at the food, eating only one kind of food per bite, and avoiding carbonated drinks with meals as these tend to bloat the stomach giving a full feeling. "That feeling will wear off," explained Mrs. Roberts, "and the hunger feelings following it will produce snacking.

"We need to change our eating habits. You can learn to like what you need," she added. The steps involved in changing eating habits include stopping to think about what you want and need, reading labels, cooking correctly (broil foods instead of frying; using cornstarch instead of flour in gravy). "We need to love ourselves enough to want to change for the better," concluded Mrs. Roberts.

Good Housekeeping's Corn Bread

½ pound chorizos (Spanish sausage)
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 ½ cups yellow cornmeal
1-3 cup sugar
2 tablespoons banking powder
1 ½ teaspoons salt
2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ cup salad oil
½ cup sour cream
6 ounces Cheddar cheese, shredded (1 ½ cups)
4-ounce can chopped green chilies, drained

Remove casing and chop chorizos. In 10-inch skillet over medium-low heat, cook chorizos until lightly browned, stirring occasionally. With slotted spoon, remove chorizos to paper towels to drain.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 9X3 inch springform pan.

Into large bowl, measure flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder and salt.

In medium bowl, with wire whisk or fork, beat egg, milk, salad oil and sour cream until smooth.

With fork, stir egg mixture into flour mixture just until blended. Stir in chorizos, cheese and green chilies. Spoon batter into prepared pan.

Bake 45 minutes or until golden and toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm.

Osteoporosis has been called "the silent epidemic" for good reason.

Osteoporosis--a weakening of the bone structure--is a condition that develops over time. A woman may not know she is developing this condition until she develops a "dowager's hump" or experiences broken bones from even minor falls in her later years.

The best prevention for osteoporosis is an adequate supply of calcium daily over the lifespan. Research studies show that most adult women are consuming less than the recommended two servings a day of dairy products.

Nutirtionists are also concerned about the future of the growing number of teenage girls who drink carbonated beverages rather than milk with meals and snacks.

No matter what your age, it's not too late to change your eating habits so you can get the calcium necessary for strong bones throughout life. She suggests adding more dairy products to your diet:

——Drink milk at meals and for snacks.

——Eat cheese as a snack or add it to other foods like sandwiches.

——Eat yogurt.

——When you make creamed soups, use milk instead of water.

——Serve calcium-rich desserts, such as ice cream, custard or pudding.

——Add powdered milk to soups, casseroles, sauces and beverages like cocoa.

While increasing calcium intake is the key step in preventing osteoporosis, there are also some other things you can do. Regular exercise, getting enough vitamin D, eating a nutritionally adequate diet and stopping smoking will also help keep your bones strong.

Men and summer

Men like to think their skins are tough, able to stand outdoor abuse. Not so, says Lia Schorr, who specializes in male clients at her New York skin care salon.

A man should follow the same rules as a woman for getting a gradual tan without burning. He should use moisturizers containing sunblocking PABA, or zinc oxide.

Men should avoid drinking alcohol while in the sun (it swells tissues) and drink water rather than sugary juices.

Parents urged to show consistency

Parents who are concerned about becoming more emotionally supportive of their children can use the following guidelines:

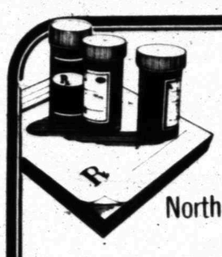

Seek help from professionals when your child seems overly troubled.

Convey respect for your child; show that he or she is a person worthy of respect.

Boost your child's self-image. Verbalize what you like about him or her.

Try to be consistent. Mood swings are confusing when you seem to like the child and then to dislike him or her.

Have realistic expectations. Don't expect a child to become something you could not be.

PREVENTING HEART DISEASE

To avoid hardening of the arteries and heart disease later in life, infants should be breast-fed during the first year of life - if not feasible, then infant formula (not solids). Thereafter, a diet including each major food group - a diet low in saturated fats and cholesterol - so advises the American Academy of Pediatricians, Comm. on Nutrition. Also maintain the child's normal weight and encourage regular exercise.

By Marvin Ensor Extension Agent

Attractive trees and shrubs are important components in all well-landscaped properties. Planned maintenance and care are essential for keeping them healthy and vigorous. An adequate fertilization program is an important requirement of any good woody plant maintenance program.

Where a good lawn maintenance program is followed, supplemental fertilizer is seldom needed for trees and other woody plants within the lawn area. Occasionally, additional fertilizer is needed in areas where a tree's root growth is restricted by streets, curbs or other structural features. Shrubs and vines frequently serve as screens or borders for lawn areas within the landscape. Since areas around shrubs are usually not as accessible as lawn areas, they frequently are forgotten or neglected in the normal lawn fertilization program.

Fertilizer cannot solve problems from imporper planting techniques, poor soil drainag, soil compaction and incorrect watering practices. Difficulties caused by species unsuitable for a given environment are not solved with fertilizers. Select trees and shrubs to suit the local climate and soil.

Signs indicating low fertility include lack of terminal growth, pale green or yellow leaves, mottled leaves, dead branches, stunted leaves and early loss of leaves.

General tree vigor is determined by comparing the length of twig growth during the past three to four years.

I recommend basing fertilizer amounts on a soil test. Instructions for taking a soil sample and getting it tested can be obtained from the County Extension Office. Without such tests, general lawn fertilizer recommendations of 4 to 6 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet per year are satisfactory for tree and shrub care. In turf areas, do not apply this amount at one time but rather make several applications to prevent fertilizer burn to the turf.

Do not apply fertilizers from July 30 until late fall or first freeze. Late summer fertilizing can stimulate an excessive amount of new growth, making plants more susceptible to winter injury.

Most fertilizers are purchased according to their analysis which is the percentage of the three major plant nutrients — nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. The analysis is shown on the bag or container and consists of three numbers, for example, 12-4-8. The first number indicates the percentage of nitrogen (N), the second gives the percentage of phosphorus as phosphoric acid (P205) and the third is the percentage of potassium as potash (K20). A 50-pound bag of a 12-4-8 fertilizer contains 6 pounds of N, 2 pounds of P205, and 4 pounds of K20.

Tree growth is limited by a nitrogn deficiency more often than by a lack of the other two major elements. For this reason, it is recommended that a fertilizer with a 2-1-1 or 3-1-1 ratio be used for trees. Fertilizers with a 2-1-1 or similar ratio, which usually are available, include 10-8-6 and 12-6-6. If the desired ratio is unavailable, a 3-1-1 ratio fertilizer can be approximated by mixing 12 ounces of ammonium nitrate (33-0-0) to each pound of a 12-12-12 fertilizer. The same type fertilizer can be used on shrubs and vines; however, fertilizer recommended for lawn use is adequate for these plants.

To figure the amount of nitrogen-containing fertilizer needed for woody plants, stake off a square or rectangular area that includes the entire branch spread of the trees and shrubs in the area. If roots are restricted by pavement, curb or building, subtract the restricted area from the total area computed.

The micronutrient most commonly deficient in Texas soils is iron. This deficiency usually is noted in alkaline soil regions. The iron becomes insoluble and the plant cannot extract sufficient amounts from the soil for good growth. Iron deficiency symptoms include pale green to yellow leaves with darker green venation. It is very common on plant species not adapted to alkaline soils including some of the red oaks, maples and hollies. Iron deficiency can be corrected partially with foliar applications of chelated iron provided label recommendations are followed.

MEAT PIE

½ pound ground beef round
½ pound bulk pork sausage
½ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
3 medium (1 pound) potatoes, peeled and sliced
1 medium (4 to 5 ounces) onion, peeled and sliced
Salt and pepper to taste
Pastry for a 9-inch 2-crust pie

In a 10-inch skillet, over moderate heat, with a fork crumble beef and sausage until the meat changes color and is cooked through. Stir in allspice, cinnamon and nutmeg. Reserve in a 2-quart saucepan, cover potato and onion with water, and boil covered until tender — about 10 minutes. Drain, saving liquid, and mash; add enough of the saved liquid, a tablespoon at a time, to make mashed potato consistency; add to meat and mix well with salt and pepper. Line a 9-inch pie plate with half the rolled-out pastry; add meat mixture; cover with remaining rolled-out pastry, cutting several vents in it; seal edges with fork tines. Bake on the rack below center of a preheated 425-degree oven until pastry is golden brown — 30 minutes. Serve hot. Makes enough for four with second helpings.

PERFECT SYMBOL OF LOVE

The circle is unending. The diamond is the hardest substance on earth. Together they symbolize a strong, unending love. The favorite betrothal ring is a single diamond perched upon a delicate crown of gold or platinum. On the day the vows are spoken it is wedded to a simple circlet or a lace of diamonds woven in gold.

Our romantic diamond engagement and wedding rings say "I will love you forever" — and they say it beautifully.

Cabbage Patch clinic taking care of dolls

FAIRMONT, Minn. (AP) — What began with one dirty "kid" has blossomed into a business that's keeping three Fairmont women busy scrubbing fabric bodies, mending cuts and styling hair.

Last fall, Sheila Gorham was puzzled about how to get her child's Cabbage Patch doll clean. After being dragged all over town, to school, play and bed, the doll was losing its sparkle, and the manufacturer warns against putting it in the washing machine or having it dry cleaned.

She shared her dilemma with her sisters, Ginny Burmeister and Lisa Thate, and together the three developed a cleaning method and launched the Cabbage Patch Clinic.

For $9.95 each, the three will wash Cabbage Patch and other similar dolls, mend and replace any worn stitching and trim, and, if desired, style their hair.

Each doll is washed and groomed individually and is treated with "tender loving care," Ms. Burmeister said. They're washed in a baby tub, dried with baby towels and brushed with baby brushes.

"You really have to take great care when you clean them because you know how much they mean to someone else," she said.

The three have been involved in other crafts for about a year and also make and sell dolls that resemble the Cabbage Patch dolls.

Now that the three sisters have resolved their dirty doll problem, they're faced with the trials and tribulations of getting children to leave their babies at the "clinic." The cleaning process takes five to seven days — mainly because they must be completely dry before they're touched — and the women said many children are reluctant to leave their dolls that long.

"We've seen a lot of tears when they children leave them, but they're all smiles when they come back to pick them up and they're all clean," Ms. Burmeister said. "Sometimes they have to come back here (the work area) and see what we do and see that there are other babies here so theirs won't be alone. It makes them feel better."

She said that in about three-quarters of the cases the children come with their parents to the "clinic," but there are times when a desperate parent has to kidnap a rumpled doll to bring it in.

Despite the reluctance and tears, Ms. Burmeister said they haven't had a child back down and take a baby home uncleaned.

Pushy Relatives Force Family To Cave In on No-Guests Rule

DEAR ABBY: A recent letter about freeloading relatives revived a few memories. The wife and I got fed up with moving our kids out of their bedrooms to accommodate relatives, so we sent them all a form letter saying that if they intended to visit our city, to give us a little notice and we'd be glad to make reservations for them at a nearby motel.

All family members responded kindly, except my wife's sister. For three months there was total silence, then one day, Sis and "Joe" drove into our driveway and informed us that they were spending 10 days with us!

We asked if they had received our letter, and were told they had. Sis said, "We were so angry at first we couldn't see straight, but Joe got this vacation time he had to use up before the end of the year, and since we had no money for a regular vacation, we talked it over and decided to forgive your nasty letter and come for our vacation anyway."

I told them that our letter stood, and they'd have to go to a motel. Then my wife caved in and begged me to let them stay, so to make a long story short, they stayed and ate our food and drank our wine for 10 days!

What do you do with brass-headed boobs like that, and soft-as-mush wives like mine? Sign me ...

MAD IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MAD: Whom are you calling "brass-headed boobs"? Surely not the couple who ignored your letter and moved in on you for 10 days! And don't call your wife "soft-as-mush" when you proved to be a tower of Jello. You caved in, your wife didn't. If you want sympathy, you'll find it in the dictionary not too far from "sucker."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and in the seventh grade. I'm having trouble in school because I don't want to do my homework.

I know I have to do it, but I just don't want to. Is there a Procrastinators Anonymous?

SQUEAKING BY
IN NEW YORK

DEAR SQUEAKING: Not to my knowledge. I'm sure there are a lot of procrastinators who keep talking about organizing a Procrastinators Anonymous, but they keep putting it off.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am that most obnoxious of all creatures—a mother-in-law. I just read the letter from "Anonymous Wife," who said she was the one who handed her husband the pen to sign the Mother's Day cards, Father's Day cards, etc.

Well, I'm the one who hands your father-in-law the pen to sign those generous checks for all those special occasions such as birthdays, anniversaries and Christmas. I'm also the one who provided the funds and encouragement so your husband could have all those fancy letters behind his name, like M.S., Ph.D. and M.D.

If you object to anything, why don't you do what I did when I still had my mother-in-law? I figured that God gave me two ears—one for things to go into, and the other for things to go out of. I also had enough sense to realize that if it had not been for that good woman, I would not have had the kind, considerate man who was my husband.

Nobody's perfect, but one thing I know—there is nobody as imperfect as your mother-in-law. Just wait until you are one!

SOMEBODY'S

Hawaiian children get crash course on trash

By JUNE WATANABE
Star-Bulletin

HONOLULU (AP) — The garbageman comes and he takes it away. It's as easy as that to get rid of your rubbish, right?

Wrong, unthinking, careless consumer!

While garbage disposal has not exactly been elevated to an art, there is — or should be — method to how you throw out the household trash.

In fact, the next time you throw away that can, or leftover chlorine bleach or broken glass, think about your garbage collectors. Their lives may depend on it.

That's the message George Kahapea, Robert Texeira, Mark Pinkerton and Rosemary Kubo took to 120 fourth-grade students at Kalihi Waena Elementary School recently.

Actually, although the message was serious, the presentation was far from somber. Kahapea, especially, had a way of keeping the children's attention with humor and enough "ooghey" examples of what happens when the garbage is just carelessly tossed away.

And, the well-behaved group responded in turn with laughter, astonishment and sympathy.

They were given a simple explanation of the "ukupau system," whereby trash collectors are allowed to go home as soon as they finish their work and still get paid for eight hours.

"We have to breathe all these dangerous chemicals (tossed carelessly away in garbage cans) when we work," Pinkerton said, "so that's why we try to get out early."

Kahapea and his three assistants — aided by a garbage truck, a trash can and assorted rubbish — are part of the city refuse division's information program.

They not only collect garbage, but after they finish their routes, they give talks to school kids, senior citizens and community groups about their jobs and about how garbage should be disposed of properly and safely.

The teams of instructors are known as "Opala Gold" — "opala" translating to rubbish and "gold" referring to the color of the rubbish trucks.

The information program, set up in 1982, was the idea of city refuse chief Frank Doyle, according to program coordinator Alan Hiramatsu. About eight refuse employees take turns making presentations, which average about two a month.

The "instructors" all wear smart, light-blue polo shirts with dark blue and yellow bands around the sleeves and over the shoulders. They also have hats that say "Ka'a Opala" — rubbish car.

Kahapea's been with the program from the beginning, and he's got his talk down pat.

Picking up a battered metal trash can, he told the students, "Now, look at this. This used to be nice. But now," he paused, "it's customized."

Sure, the can got smashed because it got banged once too often against a truck. Sometimes, Kahapea conceded, the garbage collectors get mad and throw cans around. But most times, he said, it's because people stuff all kinds of junk inside their garbage cans and the trash won't come out without some coaxing.

Don't stuff newspapers, magazines, lumber and plant cuttings in the trash cans, he said. Instead, he showed how each should be bundled, tied and laid either atop or alongside the garbage can.

And don't ever throw out tin cans with their lids exposed, Kahapea admonished. Lids on empty cans should be tucked inside the cans. Other no-nos: don't toss broken jalousies or any glass into a trash can. Fluorescent light tubes are especially dangerous. Not only does the glass break when the tubes hit the garbage truck, but the gas inside them escapes.

All glass objects should be wrapped in newspaper, labeled and separated from the rest of the trash, he said.

Texeira, who's been assisting Kahapea for the past year, strums the guitar at a Waikiki restaurant when he's not picking up trash.

His job is "a lot of fun, but dangerous at times," Texeira said. That's why each team carries a fire extinguisher.

People for remote areas hard to find

PAGE, Ariz. (AP) — A Phoenix-based company which operates five marinas on Lake Powell says recruiting — and keeping — employees for the remote locations can be a problem despite the area's desert beauty.

"I know it's trite, but it really does take a special kind of person to live and work up here and like it," said John Reilly, general manager of the Bullfrog Resort and Marina on the lake's northwestern shore, in Utah.

Generally, he said, workers must have an affinity for the outdoors. "There's not much to do after work except outdoor nature-type things," he said. "They've really got to enjoy living up here."

Because of the remoteness and the small number of employees, potential workers should be able to get along with people even if they don't work directly with customers, he said.

Reilly says the remoteness is the apparent cause of a pattern that has emerged among permanent employees of Webb Recreational Properties, a subsidiary of Phoenix-based Del E. Webb Corp.

About nine months after starting work, the employee seems to approach "burnout," probably because of the remoteness and the close living proximity with fellow employees and customers. If the employee survives the "burnout," he or she usually seems content for another year or two, he said.

Although many leave for more populous areas, "quite a few — we've been surprised at how many — return sooner or later to work at Lake Powell again," Reilly said.

"They find the beauty and lifestyle are in their blood, and they're hooked," he said.

Long-time employees tend to develop a strong dislike for urban areas and — because the nearest supermarket and department stores are 180 miles away — grow accustomed to shopping from catalogs, he said.

One former employee now working at Webb's headquarters in Phoenix said his wife still turned to catalogs for Christmas shopping even though they now live in a large metropolitan area.

Almost all employees live in trailers. Single seasonal workers share a unit with other singles, while permanent employees landscape and customize their trailers.

Permanent employees include mechanics and office managers. Jobs held by seasonal employees include houseboat instructors, teaching novice boaters how to handle rental boats.

"These youngsters are really like driving instructors who take someone who's never been in a car and in one hour teach them how to drive," Reilly said. "The instructors have to keep their wits about them, remain unflappable and keep their tempers."

To answer your question, yes we are enjoying our new building, but...

As all SDN readers likely know, the staff and management moved head over heels into our new digs last Saturday, May 18.

We're now operating out of shiny new facilities both fore and aft — enjoying wide open spaces, enough overhead lighting to make you squint indoors and that strange hush you notice when you first move from bare floors to carpeting underfoot.

All in all, it's a classy layout. And in comparison to our old building, it look's as if a silk purse has indeed been cloned from the proverbial sow's ear.

But before we get to the "but..." part, let me "'splain sum'in" about a newspaper.

When an operation like ours is really cooking — and this occurs daily more or less around press time — there is a bunch of motion hereabouts.

If you want to envision it as a precison machine, go right ahead. It may look like a grainy home movie shown a half-speed too fast, but if you understand it you can appreciate it.

A newspaper — like probably thousands of other professions — is one million tasks all rolled into one great big scary accomplishment. And the skill it takes to put out one we take for granted with the repetiton.

The "it" we deal with is information. We hear it first from a telephone line; then attach it with fluttering fingers to an electrified piece of plastic memory; blast light through it to make little buggy letters of justified type; stick it onto a dummy page; shoot it with a giant camera; change it from a page-sized negative image to a metal positive one; wrap it around a printing press; shoot it wet with black ink; then hammer it onto a ribbon of coarse and grainy news print.

And these steps have been taken so often that they are like a muscle reflex. Poke us below the kneecap and we will definitely kick.

To keep things rolling on track day-after-day — a track that ends with a solid brick wall called deadline — you have to develop a routine.

Reporters have valleys wormed out in their chair seats because they type a story a certain way.

And composing room ladies keep scissors laid in one spot and trash cans located at just the right angle to catch the thousands of tiny clippings.

This creates a building full of individual work habits that go from the lady at the front desk to the pressman in the back.

So you move into a shiny new building and what happens? You guessed it?

We moved in, and for the first few days the good old SDN staff looked like a bumfuzzled house guest who hasn't been able to find the bathroom all week.

We're sure going to enjoy our new building. Just as soon as it gets a little older.

Some of my old neighbors, and a couple of the young ones, have instructed me to plug the Fluvanna homecoming. I would gladly oblige if I could remember the date of the darned thing. I know that it is real soon if that helps any.

We Fluvannaians, Fluvannaites or whatever we are called (we are often referred to as flashes, probably because of our lifestyles) throw one of these affairs every five years, so don't panic, should you miss this one.

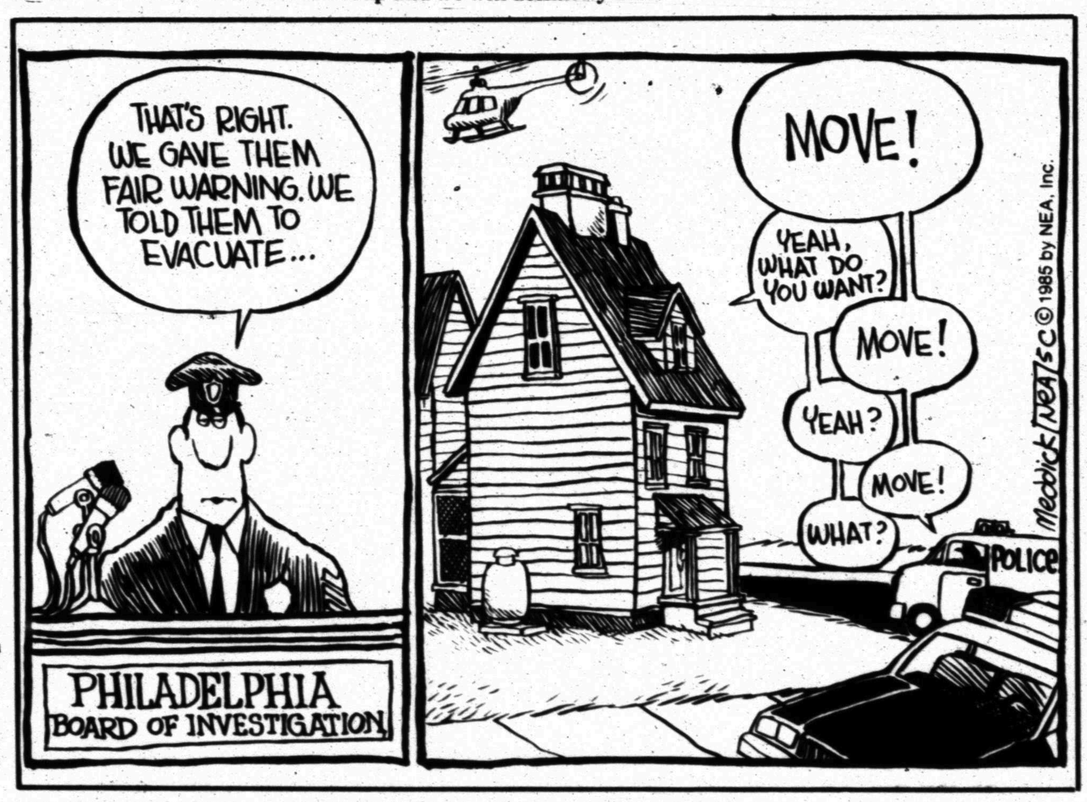

I overheard a story that happened at the last homecoming that is worth repeating. It was either Virge Wills or Burl Belew telling it to somebody, Sam Bruner I think. Anyway, a couple of Fluvanna people, Orville Mathis and Roy Lee Beaver, or was 'it J.D. Patterson and Roy Reeder? It doesn't matter. What happened was these two people, wait a minute, I just remembered, it was Henry Clay Landrum and Don Jones. Yeah that's who it was, I think. Don and Henry were greeting visitors and past residents when a man approached them and said: "You sorry rascals haven't changed a bit." From that he progressed into a good old fashioned cussin'. When he was finished and gone, Don said to Henry, "Who was that fellow?" To which Henry drawled, "I don't know, but he sure knew who we were."

Because of the fame and media attention, most of you city folk probably have the notion that Fluvanna is a big town like Post or Houston or somewhere. Actually Fluvanna is rather small when judged by numbers. There are only 80 or so postal boxes on the mail route including the ones at the facility downtown. Counting mailboxes is one way of tying down an ever changing population, (just last month we had an entire family move in) but I'm not sure this procedure accurately portrays how small Fluvanna really is.

For example, since my dad retired there is no service station now. And the merchantile is for sale again. The place is so small that we have a constable but no jail. If you get in trouble in Fluvanna you have to stand in the corner.

Somebody just informed me that the date of the homecoming is June 7 and 8. It is amazing what you can find out at a newspaper office if you ask. The formal ceremony will be conducted in the coliseum. The one in Snyder, Fluvanna doesn't have a coliseum yet. We are going to build one right after we get a jail. First, we have to get the crime rate up. Our coliseum will be bigger than yours. Not big enough to accomodate a Stansell family reunion, but large enough for Superbowls, political conventions and stuff like that.

Come to the homecoming if you possibly can. If you can't come send money.

SUNDAY
May 19

A new medical doctor specializing in radiology has joined the fulltime staff of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Dr. Buerk Williams, a physician with more than 28 years experience, it was reported Sunday.

Williams has served the past 13½ years as the staff radiologist at the Malone-Hogan Clinic in Big Spring.

An 18-month-old workman compensation action involving Western Texas College was settled with the filing of a compromise settlement in 132nd District Court, it was reported Sunday.

The agreement stipulates the college will pay a one-time payment of $16,000 to former employee Mary Karen Burkett, who was injured after she fell through an open manhole cover on campus.

MONDAY
May 20

Effective Monday, the Snyder Daily News has relocated to its new office and printing facility at 3600 College Ave.

A complete interior renovation of the former Owen's Department Store building has been completed by T.E. Shelburne & Son.

Some 71 teachers Monday received notification through the mail of their selection for "level 2" of the Snyder ISD career ladder program.

The selection entails a bonus check of $1,500 to each of the classroom teachers.

Monday morning, Snyder High School Band Director Sam Robertson announced his intention to resign from that position.

Robertson will remain in Snyder to open a local insurance office.

TUESDAY
May 21

It was reported Tuesday that county farmers were forced to keep their tractors out of the fields Monday as the local delayed planting date for cotton passed.

The recommendation this year from the Scurry County Producer's Association was that local farmers not plant seed until at least May 20 as a means of combating boll weevil populations later in the summer.

WEDNESDAY
May 22

Murder charges against 36-year-old Arthur Lee MacLeod jailed in connection with the murder and mutilation of his wife, the former Evelyene Feather of Snyder — will likely be formally presented in Lubbock rather than Scurry County, it was reported Wednesday.

MacLeod was arrested around 10:45 a.m. Tuesday in Lubbock by authorities there as he returned to the couple's residence at 2011 29th St.

His wife's body — fully clothed with the head and both hands removed — was found in far northern Scurry County shortly after 10 a.m. Tuesday.

A six-man, six-woman jury Wednesday assessed a 10-year prison term for 29-year-old Juan Martinez Marquez, charged with aggravated assault stemming from a shooting incident here Feb. 10.

The jury's only task was to decide Marquez' punishment after he offered a guilty plea to them as the trial got underway Tuesday afternoon.

The plea and the request that the jury set punishment was Marquez' only means of having probation granted.

THURSDAY
May 23

Thursday morning, crews were installing water lines to a new outdoor cooling tower on the Western Texas College campus and the speculation was the complete job would be finished by the weekend.

Rex Hopkins, WTC's director of plant maintenance, said the installation would likely be completed prior to campus personnel returning Tuesday after the long Memorial Day weekend.

FRIDAY
May 24

The time of death for murder victim Evelyne Feather MacLeod, 35, has been tentatively set at least 24-hours prior to the discovery of her body — the head and hands removed — beside the Caprock Road in far northern Scurry County.

Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway said Friday morning he learned this information after contacting staffers with the Southwest Institute for Forensic Sciences in Dallas.

In addition, "manual strangulation" has now been determined as the official cause of death.

Henry Treat, who Thursday night questioned actions regarding the transfer of his wife and son from Cogdell Memorial on Sept. 27, 1982, said Friday morning he is not satisfied with answers given by hospital and county officials to his charges.

But, Treat said, for the moment he feels he has used up his options trying to have the hospital address his contention that his family was illegally transferred [illegible] the facility.

Twenty-nine year-old Juan Martinez Marquez — sentenced to 10 years in prison for aggravated assault Wednesday — was released from the Scurry County Jail Friday after posting an appeal bond.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Suzanne Fisher and Thomas Selmon were named the top SHS female and male athletes of the year at the annual All Sports Banquet held last night — May 19. Both were three event competitors: Fisher in volleyball, basketball and track; Selmon in football, basketball and track.

SHS varsity cheerleaders for 1980-81 elected this week were Jane Ann Billingsley, Katrina Humble, Kim Neves, Jessica Richardson and Carrie Ainsworth.

10 YEARS AGO

Top honor grads of the Snyder High School Class of 1975 announced this morning — May 20 — were Pamela Ann Underwood, valedictorian, and Billy Murry, salutatorian.

Governor Dolph Briscoe today — May 22 — announced the appointment of Snyder attorney Joe Carroll to a position on the Texas Water Rights Commission pending Senate approval. Carroll, in practice here since joining James Rosser in 1961, has previously represented various water districts across the state and served on the attorney general's staff in the oil, gas and water division.

15 YEARS AGO

Snyder High School honor grads announced today — May 20 — for the Class of 1970 were valedictorian John Hood and salutatorian Sarah Clark.

Officers of the local chapter of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME elected this week included Burman D. Elkins, Kent Smith, Jerry D. Webb, Larry Bills, Jimmy Thompson, Harold D. Wilson and Wiley Wilkins.

20 YEARS AGO

Snyder City Manager George Patterson was named Outstanding Young Man of the Year at the Annual Snyder Junior Chamber of Commerce Banquet Friday night. He was cited for his civic work as well as his work in the capacity of city manager.

[illegible] Fort Worth western wear manufacturing firm today — May 19 — announced intentions to locate a plant in Snyder. Officers of Niver Western Wear Inc. of Fort Worth announced that a manager for the local plant had been named and they expect to commence operations here by June 15 in the old Mixon building.

Local high school students picked to attend the Texas Electric Service Co. Nuclear Science Symposium in Austin this summer were Rubin Del Toro of Hermleigh along with Jerry Vestal and Larry Sullenger, both of Snyder High School.

25 YEARS AGO

The Snyder Tiger baseball team defeated Mineral Wells 8-5 Wednesday — May 19 — to claim a bi-district championship and advance to regional play. Pitcher Ronnie Jones was credited with the come from behind win as he came to the mound in the 7th inning with the score tied and Mineral Wells runners on base to squash the rally and put the game into an extra inning.

Hermleigh school trustees today — May 22 — announced the appointment of former SHS DE instructor Curtis Wise to the position of superintendent. Wise will replace O.B. Paty, who resigned his position this month after 10 years at the helm of the Hermleigh district.

Letters to the Editor

(Editor's Note: The local resident referred to below, coach for the Snyder Tigers soccer team, ages 6-7, was Anita Clinkinbeard.)

To the editor:

On the weekend of May 11-12 the San Angelo Soccer Association held a "Summer Fun" soccer tournament. A Snyder (Tigers) team in the Under-8 division finished third, and your community should be justly proud. But what occured in their final game should make us all proud to be associated with this sport and the Snyder people should be doubly proud.

As the referee of their final game, I made a mistake and allowed only 20 minute halves instead of the proper 25 minutes. The Tigers' opponent brought this to my attention at the end of the game with the Tigers leading 1-0. In other words, your team could have properly protested the game or even requested that the game be terminated with your team leading--in both cases I believe that you would have been declared the winner.

When I discussed the situation with both coaches not only were they both cordial and accomodating but your (lady) coach said, "We want to do what's right!" We then played the missing ten minutes and the San Angelo team tied the game 1-1. The game proceeded into overtime where the Snyder Tigers won 2-1.

As a soccer official and a fan of the game, the win seemed so secondary to the sportsmanship demonstrated by the Snyder players, fans and especially the coach. Fairness, good sportsmanship, and doing "the right thing" is what it really is all about.

Sincerely
Bruce Ball

"MR. WILSON IS REALLY A NICE GUY, BUT HE DOESN'T WANT ANYONE TO KNOW IT."

'Family Circus' kids youthful for 25 years

NEW YORK (AP) — Bil Keane's five real children are grown, but time has stood still for the four cartoon kids he modeled on them 25 years ago in "The Family Circus."

Though Keane's four sons and one daughter now range in age from 35 to 26, the characters they inspired have had perennial youth: Billy remains 7, Dolly 5, Jeffy 3, and PJ, who made his appearance in 1962, is still a toddler.

"I let him (PJ) grow to 18 months, he started to walk, grew hair, but then I put the freeze on. I thought, if I keep them growing at this rate I'll be out of business," Keane explained in an interview.

But after a quarter of a century, he's still very much in business, with the popular feature running in more than 1,100 newspapers. And, marking its staying power, "The Family Circus Album: a 25th Anniversary Celebration," has just been published.

The volume combines some of the favorite panels during the years with pictures from the Keanes' own family album of the youngsters in situations on which the cartoons were based. It includes commentary by the artist, as well as a sampling of letters from readers.

"Whenever I have one (cartoon) that evokes nostalgia, the amount of mail is astounding," said Keane, at 62 an older, thinner, version of "daddy" in the feature. "I don't try to preach, but I'm not afraid to show the children at prayer. They have respect for God, grandparents, relatives, pets. Their home is the happiest place in the world. If that comes through, then I'm doing what I try to do."

On the other hand, he also gets letters when he shows the children in potentially dangerous situations, such as in a car without their seatbelts buckled. A worried fan wrote, after he showed them standing near the edge of the Grand Canyon, "Keep those children back!"

"It's flattering to me that they think of them as real," Keane said. "I take great pains to make it seem real. They also seem real to me. I dream at times that the Family Circus characters are intermingled with our own family."

Billy evolved from "myself and our older boys," Neal, Glenn and Chris, Keane points out. Dolly is his daughter, Gayle; Jeffy is the Keanes' youngest, Jeff; and PJ is "a composite of all the kids as infants."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone you know from experience is a taker may look upon your resources today as if they were his own. Limit your generosity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Much can be accomplished today, provided you don't do things the hard way. Before you get on a roll, first map out the easiest route.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone may offer you some advice today that will be a bitter pill to swallow. However, once you mull it over, you'll see it's for your own good.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are transacting business today with people you don't know too well, proceed with caution. Don't be afraid to ask questions or have facts verified.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Consider every alternative before making an important decision today. What initially appears to be the most expedient might not be wisest in the long run.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're going to be disappointed today if you expect others to do things for you that they know you can easily take care of yourself. Be self-sufficient, not dependent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be the one who helps bring and maintain harmony in a collective venture today. Don't be a contributor who adds to the tensions and strife.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instead of being demanding, use your wit and charm to get others to cooperate with you today. Pleasant words and courtesy will gain you the support you need.

Your Birthday

May 27, 1985

Several longtime hopes could finally be realized in the year ahead. Continue to be patient and persistent because this is what will turn the trick. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take sensible measures today to protect your self-interest. If you don't look out for your own welfare, others are not apt to either. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) At a social gathering today, you might find yourself in the middle of warring cliques. It'll prove wise not to side with one faction against the other.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Career frustrations are possible today. Blowing up may make you feel better, but it will also leave a bad impression.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not affix your signature to any important documents today before you have read them thoroughly. Be especially cognizant of sticky details.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial returns you've been depending on may not be forthcoming today. Be prudent in money matters so that you don't put yourself in a bind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your needs and concerns might have to take a back seat to those of others today. Everyone may have a better reason than yours for demanding your time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be extra safety-conscious today if you have to work with unfamiliar tools or materials. Also be sure co-workers don't do anything reckless.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your managerial skills aren't up to par today, so be careful that you don't issue directives to others that could cause problems for them as well as for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An important goal could be undone today if you bring people into the picture who don't belong.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't go around with a chip on your shoulder today because if you do, you will quickly find one or more people who will be eager to knock it off.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things could be a trifle tight for you financially today. This could be because frivolous purchases you made in the past are now cutting into your resources.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you think you have the upper hand today when negotiating an important matter, you could leave yourself vulnerable and be outmaneuvered by a sharpie.

Home furnishings program offered

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — High Point College is attracting students from around the world who want to learn furniture marketing management in the world capital of the furniture business.

"High Point has many advantages — in fact, it probably wouldn't work anywhere else," said Dr. Richard Bennington, chairman of the four-year undergraduate program at the 1,300-student liberal arts college.

Since the program — the only one of its kind in the nation — began in 1979, about 10 students a year have graduated with bachelor of science degrees in home furnishings marketing. About a quarter of them are sons and daughters of people who own furniture factories or stores — most around High Point and Hickory, but some as far away as San Francisco and Ontario.

"A significant number are sending their children here so they can take over the family business," said Bennington.

Along with standard liberal arts classes, they take courses in furniture manufacturing, furniture textiles, furniture store operations, marketing strategies, furniture history and furniture design, "so they'll know the difference between a Chippendale and a Hepplewhite," he said.

Almost all the graduates have found the jobs they want, and "we have had more jobs than we were able to place people in," he said.

Students take field trips to the many showrooms around High Point.

Lou Washowich is the mayor of McKeesport, Pa., and will be until November 1987.
