Thirty-Eighth Refueling Of Ship Made Impossible As Fabrication Gives Way; Tail Group Flutters

(By Associated Press) LUBBOCK, July 12.—A new epic of the air was written here today when the wheels of second hand Buhl air sedan, the "Angeleno," powered by a second-hand Wright whirlwind motor, touched the ground.

Loren W. Mendel of Los Angeles and Roland B. (Pete) Reinhart at 3:30 p. m. made a perfect landing after 72 hours and a quarter days aloft. They established a flight endurance record of 246 hours, 43 minutes and 30 seconds, exceeding the previous world record by 72 hours, 42 minutes and 33 seconds.

Test Ends In Draw
The duel between man and machine in this magnificent test in the skies ended in a draw as such, both man and machine were unable to carry on. It was the fabrication of the ship that gave way. The right wing was brought to an end when the tail group started fluttering and it was impossible to carry on the thirty-eighth refueling.

Two Negro Prisoners, Charged With Accosting Lubbock White Girls, Are Spirited Away To Prevent Violence

Rumored threats of violence, typical of the time when night riders shipped ghost-like through gathering darkness to mete out examples of "justice," and see that the law took its course, prompted officers Thursday night to spirit two negro men, Johnny Carter and Richard Lassiter, from the Lubbock county jail to a safer refuge where they will be held until examining trial can be given them.

Officers last night refused to divulge the place of their transfer. The two men were arrested Wednesday night shortly after 10 o'clock at the intersection of Main street and Avenue Q, after four small boys, playing near the scene of the incident, summoned police to the aid of two white girls, students of Texas Technological college, who stated that the negroes four times had driven their automobile close to curb and tried to induce them to get in and ride. The two are being held for investigation and examining trial will probably be held for them today, according to a statement Friday by County Attorney Vaughn Wilson.

Texas Law Makers to Mark Time Until Agreement Is Reached On Remaining Measure

NO ACTION was taken by committees of the two houses in the state legislature Friday toward the bills providing for maintenance of state schools during the next two years, though a general discussion of them was up during most of the afternoon, advice received here stated. The conference committees today will attempt to smooth out the differences on the educational bills and figures for Texas Technological college's appropriation will likely be determined, according to an Associated Press dispatch to the Morning Avalanche late last night.

The senate educational bill provides $16,670,045 while that of the house is $16,111,185.

Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of Texas Tech, and H. T. Kimbro, director, are in Austin at this time in the interest of appropriations.

AUSTIN, July 12. (AP)—Every major appropriation measure having been passed by the two houses, Texas law makers tomorrow will face a day of marking time while conference committees attempt to smooth out differences on departmental and educational bills.

The house today concluded work on its miscellaneous claims and accounts bill and passed a measure allowing $872,000 for damages caused through action of state agents. The bill provides approximately $450,000 more than that approved by the senate but is $115,000 less than the original agreed claims bill which Governor Moody refused to sign.

There were the first of the appointments to arrive in Washington and the president had planned to take them to his fishing lodge to go over the farm situation with them. Bad weather and impassable roads intervened, however.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Charles S. Wilson, former New York state commissioner of agriculture, had been appointed to the board, leaving but one vacancy to be filled unlike the other members, Wilson will represent no particular branch of the agricultural industry. He is a farmer and has been in association with the board since its inception.

Asks Protection From Ex-Hubby

Declaring that her ex-husband was on the war path and that he was threatening violence, a Lubbock woman last night called the sheriff's department and asked that an officer be sent for protection.

The woman declared that once while they were married the man had threatened her life but she beat him to the gun. Their separation followed, and she says that since then he has hung around the house, which she has rented out.

Last night the woman declared that he appeared and threatened her with a pistol. They fled to his former wife's home and an officer was called. A search was instituted but the man could not be found.

Mrs. Kao asserted she "knew nothing about it" but brought the trunks to America under the impression she was bearing "gifts" to friends in this country from friends in China. She would not reveal the names of the purported friends or the identity of those to whom the gifts were to be sent.

RECESS IN ORDER

Adjournment Motion May Be Made By Solons Today

AUSTIN, July 12.—The Austin American tomorrow will say that an 11-day recess of the legislature will be proposed Saturday when a motion for adjournment is in order. The object would be to assure the legislature a review of any veto the governor might exercise on appropriation bills.

The American says the proposal has gained considerable support. In case of a recess, Governor Moody would be required to act on all bills passed within ten days. Resubmission on the eleventh day, the legislature would have opportunity to pass any item over the governor's veto if its proponents could muster the required majority.

FAMED ARTIST DIES

Robert Henri Succumbs In New York Friday

NEW YORK, July 12. (AP)—Robert Henri, 64, American artist, died today at his home here after a long illness. He was born in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Henri received her education in school in New York, Cincinnati and Denver and for a time lived in the west.

His painting "La Neige" was purchased by the French government in 1890 for the Luxembourg galleries.

According to Cavett, representatives of civic organizations have expressed themselves as being unanimously in favor of such a plan. Under such a proposal one financial drive would be put on for the support of all the public-supported organizations instead of having separate drives.

Dieudonne Coste, with his mechanic Jacques Bellonte, took off 45 minutes later at 5:32 a. m. (11:32 p. m. E. S. T. Friday) mysterious about his destination, announced after his departure as being New York. He previously had said it was Tokyo, with one stop enroute, but no one believed him, recognizing his statement as a necessary deception to evade French restrictions against trans-Atlantic flying.

Local Community Chest Considered

A community chest was the chief topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Lubbock Board of City Development held Friday morning at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce at the city hall. Action on the proposal was deferred until the next meeting of the body.

Plans for a community chest were laid following interviews conducted by Richard Cavett among leaders of the minority of city organizations. According to Cavett, representatives of civic organizations have expressed themselves as being unanimously in favor of such a plan. Under such a proposal one financial drive would be put on for the support of all the public-supported organizations instead of having separate drives.

Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., and perhaps other organizations, would unite in the community chest drive. This plan has been adopted in a large majority of American cities and all communities using the plan are successful.

Youth Skips School To Prevent His Mother And Father From Divorcing

CHICAGO, July 12 (AP)—Little Bennie Weizer's parents, Isaac and Lena Weizer, came from Russia 26 years ago and have clung tenaciously to many old world standards.

A process server came to Bennie's house a month ago with a paper for Bennie's father, a paper notifying him that Mrs. Weizer had started suit for divorce.

The child noted the case was to be called yesterday so yesterday Bennie skipped school, slipping down to Judge Gemmill's court room and into a rear seat.

Pretty soon he saw his mother take the witness stand. He heard his mother say her husband had beaten her and threatened her with a pistol.

Judge Gemmill was on the point of signing the decree when he noted a little hand waving frantically from the rear of the courtroom.

"That's my mother," said Bennie. "She is not telling the truth. My father is a kind man. He does not know what she is doing. I do not want her to get a divorce." Judge Gemmill told Bennie to run and get his father. On the way from the building his mother seized him to punish him for interfering. He returned soon with his father, and told of being beaten by his mother. The court refused the plea for divorce and said he would send Mrs. Weizer to jail for six months if she beats Bennie again.

Harm To Farmer Told Committee

National Grange Official Says Agriculturists Would Be Hurt By Proposed Duties On Hides

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—A senate tariff sub-committee was told today by Fred Breckman of the National Grange that the farmer would be harmed rather than helped by proposed duties on hides, leather, shoes and sugar.

Because of the number of witnesses remaining to be heard the finance committee today had again divided into four sub-committees.

Breckman declared there could be "no doubt" the house rates on hides and shoes would "work to the distinct disadvantage of the farmer" and that the farmer would receive "no benefit" from the proposed tariff on sugar.

Duties Disproportionate. The duties on shoes and harness, he said, were "so disproportionate" to that on hides that the benefit from an increased price for hides would be more than offset by the duties on shoes.

Appearing in opposition to a duty on long staple cotton which the bill leaves on the free list, H. F. Lippitt, former senator of Rhode Island, declared American producers would not benefit by a duty even though much Egyptian cotton is imported. While the three domestic types of long staple cotton were comparable in length to the foreign, in other respects, he said, they were different and not interchangeable with the Egyptian.

Poincare Explains Debt Ratification

PARIS, July 12 (AP)—Premier Raymond Poincare took up today where he left off yesterday, explaining to the French Chamber of Deputies why they must ratify the debt accords with America and Great Britain, expressing their reservations in a separate text.

"We must take things as they are," he said. "It is not enough to appeal to the noble sentiments of nations. Nations are egoistic collectivities. Men are men," he added. "Even our financial restoration would be an argument against us."

The premier recalled that when Secretary Mellon visited France regarding the debts. It was then the French government got the understanding with other nations for a committee of experts to draft a plan which created a liaison, in fact if not in law, between the payments of the debtors and the creditors.

It was thus M. Poincare linked the debt to Britain and America with the reparations payments. France, he said, had finally obtained a long-sought point in this fashion.

TO ADJOURN DEBATE

The Woman's Bay

A new slant on the "modern woman" question, especially from the viewpoint of every woman insisting on a job, whether she needs the money or not, is revealed by a current magazine writer. She reminds us that such a thing as personal culture has quite gone by the boards. That the woman who once upon a time might have used her time to know all there was to know about botany or lace or cathedral or birds or botany or early Anglo-Saxon verse is now concerned only with getting and keeping a job which combines the qualities of being remunerative and interesting and her expression of the spirit and capability within her.

She reminds us that all the women who stay at home instead of giving thanks that they have time for the life cultural and making the most of their opportunity to read and study and work even without pay, at the thing which interests them, spend all their time and energy bemoaning their lot.

Occasionally she reminds us some successful woman a bit more sensible than the rest, she herself down to ask just what she gets out of this wage-earning treadmill.

First of all there is her old original argument for going to work at all—namely the interest of it. Household work is boring, the necessary of giving the world any sense of duty, etc. She may remind herself that she assumed more work because she wanted more money, and now she is months or years of it she takes stock and asks "what price work outside the home?"

She may look with envy upon her home-staying neighbor who has no income of her own and who at times, feel that she isn't doing all that she could do, but who has time for such things as a treat-out of that new recipe for nut macaroons or to make a cake, or who can go to the sorority luncheon in a pretty flowered afternoon frock and not have to dash from the office in a blue tweed, who can breeze off in a sport afternoon to the beach with a cold supper in the picnic basket, who can use that new embroidery stitch on a new luncheon set, who can settle down to an afternoon session with a new book or dash out to the college club group for a lecture.

Capes Herald Return Of "Curves" In New Styles

As femininely charming and varied as the women who wear them are the little capes that adorn summer evening gowns. (Left to right) A powder blue chiffon frock with full skirt and dipping hemline has a cape collar that swings to the length of a bolero and introduces darker blue pockets over the shoulders. A Henri Bendel gown of yellow printed chiffon has a long detachable cape. Removable is the little evening cape on a wild-rose caffen gown with shirring for its distinctive decoration.

By HENRI BENDEL For NEA Service NEW YORK July 10—Capes are a style that recur every few years bringing with them femininity and fluttering charm. When spring comes began to flaunt dual and triple cape collars this year and women chose them deliberately instead of more severe ones, couturiers breathed a sigh of relief. It was in a way proof positive that the backbone of the straight up-and-down sports mode vogue was over and a return to molded lines was imminent.

Summer has given conclusive proof that their predictions were correct. The cape theme runs awry with itself Morning, afternoon and evening costumes press it into service. Whether it is a boulevard costume of beach togs that Miami wants if she prefers capes she can have them.

Many Styles of Capes By capes I mean the cape theme that today is as diversified as plants for instance. There are capes, collars, split cape, collars, bolero capes, fichus, berthes and regular capes in addition. Perhaps the most feminine use of the cape is the one chiffons make to fashion evening ensembles. Instead of the little jacket or the longer coat, they create delectable, sheer varieties that add no weight or warmth and in addition to these various create a subtle impression of delicacy that all women are learning to like.

Some of these are detachable and the little cape may be thrown over one's chair at a restaurant dinner or roof garden party to give a splash of formal background for the fragile caffen frock itself.

Others are attached and the dipping, rousing lower edge of the collar simulates the cut of the full skirt and repeats its rhythmic motion with Miami dances.

Lantern sleeves, a powder blue chiffon gown, with a bolero with a detachable cape collar that does not only in the back but in the front. It has a triangular pocket over the arms of a deeper blue chiffon. This cape collar is in no sense a bolero, as it is because it comes on and off by slipping over the head.

Chanel has a novel concept of the cape in a detachable wild-rose pink chiffon gown. The cape is very full, with rows and rows of fine shirring heading it. This cape only falls across the back but the tea make a decorative bow in front. One may wear this cape over one shoulder to be very jaunty. Without the cape the gown shows additional shirring on the skirt and shoulders of the garment.

In one of my cape gowns, I use a very pretty chiffon with many colored roses against a yellow background. The skirt of the gown is very full, a circular one with a long drap on one side. The silhouette is decidedly princess above hipline.

The cape is very long and circular like the skirt. It is an all around cape, with little less length in front, following the newer modes that are increasingly long all around. It opens in front, fastening with two little crystal buttons.

Hubbers Ready To Battle Redskins

Revanped lineup will face Quanaa aggregation here in Sunday game. McColl To Pitch

The Lubbock aggregation that takes the field against the Quanaa Christians Sunday at Merrill Park will be entirely different from the lineup that has played under the Hubbers banner in previous games.

Field Captain E. Wilson announced his starting lineup last night with changes in both infield and outfield. The shift in positions indicates considerably more punch than the Hubbers have been able to muster this season.

Topping the list of sluggers will be the outfield composed of Brothers in left, Marshall in center and Hays in right. These three outfielders are capable of romping the outfield gardens in first class style as well as producing the most powerful talles.

Roy Taylor will be shifted to hold down the initial sack, a position he held throughout the last baseball season. D. Walker, capable veteran of the Texas league, will hold the old bat in right. These three outfielders are capable of romping the outfield gardens in first class style as well as producing the most powerful talles.

Alex McColl has thoroughly recovered from his arm injury and will be on the firing line for the Volney Hill behind the plate.

The Indians are due to arrive in Lubbock by noon tomorrow, according to a message received here from Jim Bradford, manager of the team.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT: A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

HERE'S AN EARLY GUESS: The well known black hat of former Governor Pat M. Neff seems destined to undergo another loss in the Texas political ring if rumors circulating about in Central Texas are to be given any credence.

Senator Thomas B. Love, Dallas, and Lieutenant-Governor Barry Miller, also from the East Texas metropolis, were up to the time of the Neff rumor, the only candidates credited with much strength.

Efforts will be made to align the battalions of Hoover supporters in the presidential campaign under the banner of Senator Love.

There are a while more people in Texas who voted for Herbert Hoover who do not care to support Thomas B. Love for the governorship and, in lesser degree, there are "regulars" who stayed with Alfred Smith who prefer someone else besides Barry Miller in the capital at Austin.

Neff to Love while many Smith adherents, who would rather not vote at all than vote for Love, might see something admirable in the candidacy of Neff.

All in all, the Neff rumor is the most important thing which has happened to Texas politics for quite a spell and the result of the rumor will be interesting to watch.

Despite the fact that he is in no measure clasped to the bosom of organized labor, which may be expected to fight his candidacy to the bitter end if he does become a candidate—ex-Governor Neff will be a factor if he runs and The Morning Avalanche publicly opines that his chances to reach the second primary look at this time to be good.

There's our guess.

Of all the superstitions with which ignorant man likes to plague himself, probably none is more popular than the belief in devices and methods for foretelling the future.

Unless it be get-rich-quick schemes, nothing better demonstrates human gullibility and credulity.

There have been arbitrary devices which clever manipulators used to deceive those who longed to know what would happen next year.

Moderns laugh at the ancients who were taken in by such transparent frauds as the oracles, prophets and astrologers, but most moderns at some time in their lives have their period of faith in the almanac, fortune-telling cards, horoscope and ouija board.

One of the more or less modern manifestations of this form of superstitious belief is the ouija board. That it is of relatively recent invention and still commands its believers. The use of its inventor, William Fuld, conceived for it were foretelling the future, answering questions about the present and past, and reading the thoughts of others, but during and since the war it became a "spirit medium."

Persons of a scientific turn of thought are astounded at the credence which many have put in the little game. It was copied from the pianicetto of an earlier time, which wrote out its answer with a pencil inserted in the third leg, and probably had as large a following of the superstitious.

Under a less occult name the ouija board it is conceivable that it might never have attained the dignity of an oracle, but this seemingly mysterious word is only a combination of the French and German equivalents for yes, oui, and ja.

FREEDOM TO HOPE: Soviet Russia has just been giving itself over to what appears to be a hearty observance of a religious anniversary that was reverently regarded throughout the whole country prior to the revolution.

The Soviet government, continuing its new trend toward moderation, recently mitigated the policy through which it sought to eliminate churches altogether. In Mexico, at the same time, multitudes attended the reopening of churches closed through the fierce opposition of President Calles and a radical congress and a liberal political group that is, in fact, determinedly radical and realistic.

These swift changes of national policy and behavior will surprise no one at all familiar with the troubled course of human history. Revolutionary parties concerned with the improvement of the economic state of the masses usually turn first upon the institutions of religion. This is what happened in France under the revolution. The "liberal" of the current type suppose that he can reason religious faith out of people. In this he is woefully wrong. Reason is no substitute for faith. Faith is instinctive. Life inevitably brings periods long or short in which all the science in the world and all the reason ever embodied in books are of little use and less comfort. Then a man must live in spiritual solitude and look outside the world or deep into his own heart for courage and consolation. The dynamo that modern realists urge as a substitute for the old sense of Divinity have great but limited uses. They do not serve the human spirit well. Nor can they contribute as faith can, to a man's inner strength and his sense of beauty.

Lova University has been expelled from the Western Conference for "recruiting and subsidizing athletics." The other colleges, presumably, get their athletic satellites by appeal to academic Mead.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

MEASURING NAVIES BY YARDSTICK, AS PRESIDENT HOOVER ADVOCATES, SEEN AS WRONG ATTACK ON ISSUE BY CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Almost from the day he was inaugurated, President Hoover has been emphasizing the importance of an international agreement on a yardstick to measure the world's navies, one with another.

Presumably his object is a bargain to measure them down all round—America's and Great Britain's to equality; the smaller powers in proportion.

But why worry over the yardstick—until the bargain is in sight?

Nearly all the practical navy reductionists I meet in Washington seem to think the problem is being tackled wrong end first—unless the president has some scheme up his sleeve.

If he has, and would divulge it, he might make a good many converts.

On the one hand, if the whole thing depends on a yardstick, plenty of competent authorities predict that no such article ever will be found—and naval reduction is stalled right there.

A yardstick?—to measure—for instance—Great Britain's naval strength against America's?

President Hoover certainly is right in saying that the comparison of men-o-war means nothing.

If Uncle Sam could match fighting vessel for fighting vessel with John Bull, with the biggest battleship down to the tiniest launch with a popgun mounted in her bow—would they be on an equality?

Not by about 20 strong naval bases and a huge fleet of potentially belligerent merchantmen at least.

Hardly a habitable point of land pokes itself above the waves anywhere on the face of the globe, that John Bull has neglected to preempt as a substitution for his craft of war.

Except practically in American waters, as at Panama and Guantanamo, Uncle Sam has Pearl Harbor alone—not counting Wake, Guama and Samoa, which are so weak as to be liabilities, not assets.

Wherever John Bull needs an armorclad—no matter how big, fresh as paint from a port of his own—bunkers full-ready for instant action.

Wherever Uncle Sam needs one, east of Sandy Hook or west of Hawaii—she arrives from a long voyage—fuel low—figuratively out of breath.

In the world conflict, John Bull was able to supplement his official navy with a fleet of approximately 70 armed liners—big, swift vessels—as good commerce destroyers as any admiralty could ask.

He had 21 of them assigned to his Tenth cruiser squadron alone—to hold the line against the North sea—actually preferred them to some of his older men-o-war.

Naval experts estimate that he could muster 100 now.

They agree that Uncle Sam would be hard put to it to equip a fourth as many.

To put them on an equality as to naval strength how many battleships would John Bull have to "spot" Uncle Sam, as an offset against John's overseas bases?

How many cruisers would John have to spot Sam to offset the former's merchant fleet?

Even if they agreed on these figures—would Uncle Samuel care to build the necessary battleships and cruisers to tip the score?

It takes an optimist to dream of a yardstick which will solve that problem.

The most enthusiastic optimist can hardly imagine John Bull as solving it by dividing his naval stations and merchant fleet with Uncle Sam.

Workable Anglo-American naval reduction basis would be arrived at if the British would abandon their age-old claim to the right of preventing America—and other countries—from trading with any nation with which Britain happens to be at war.

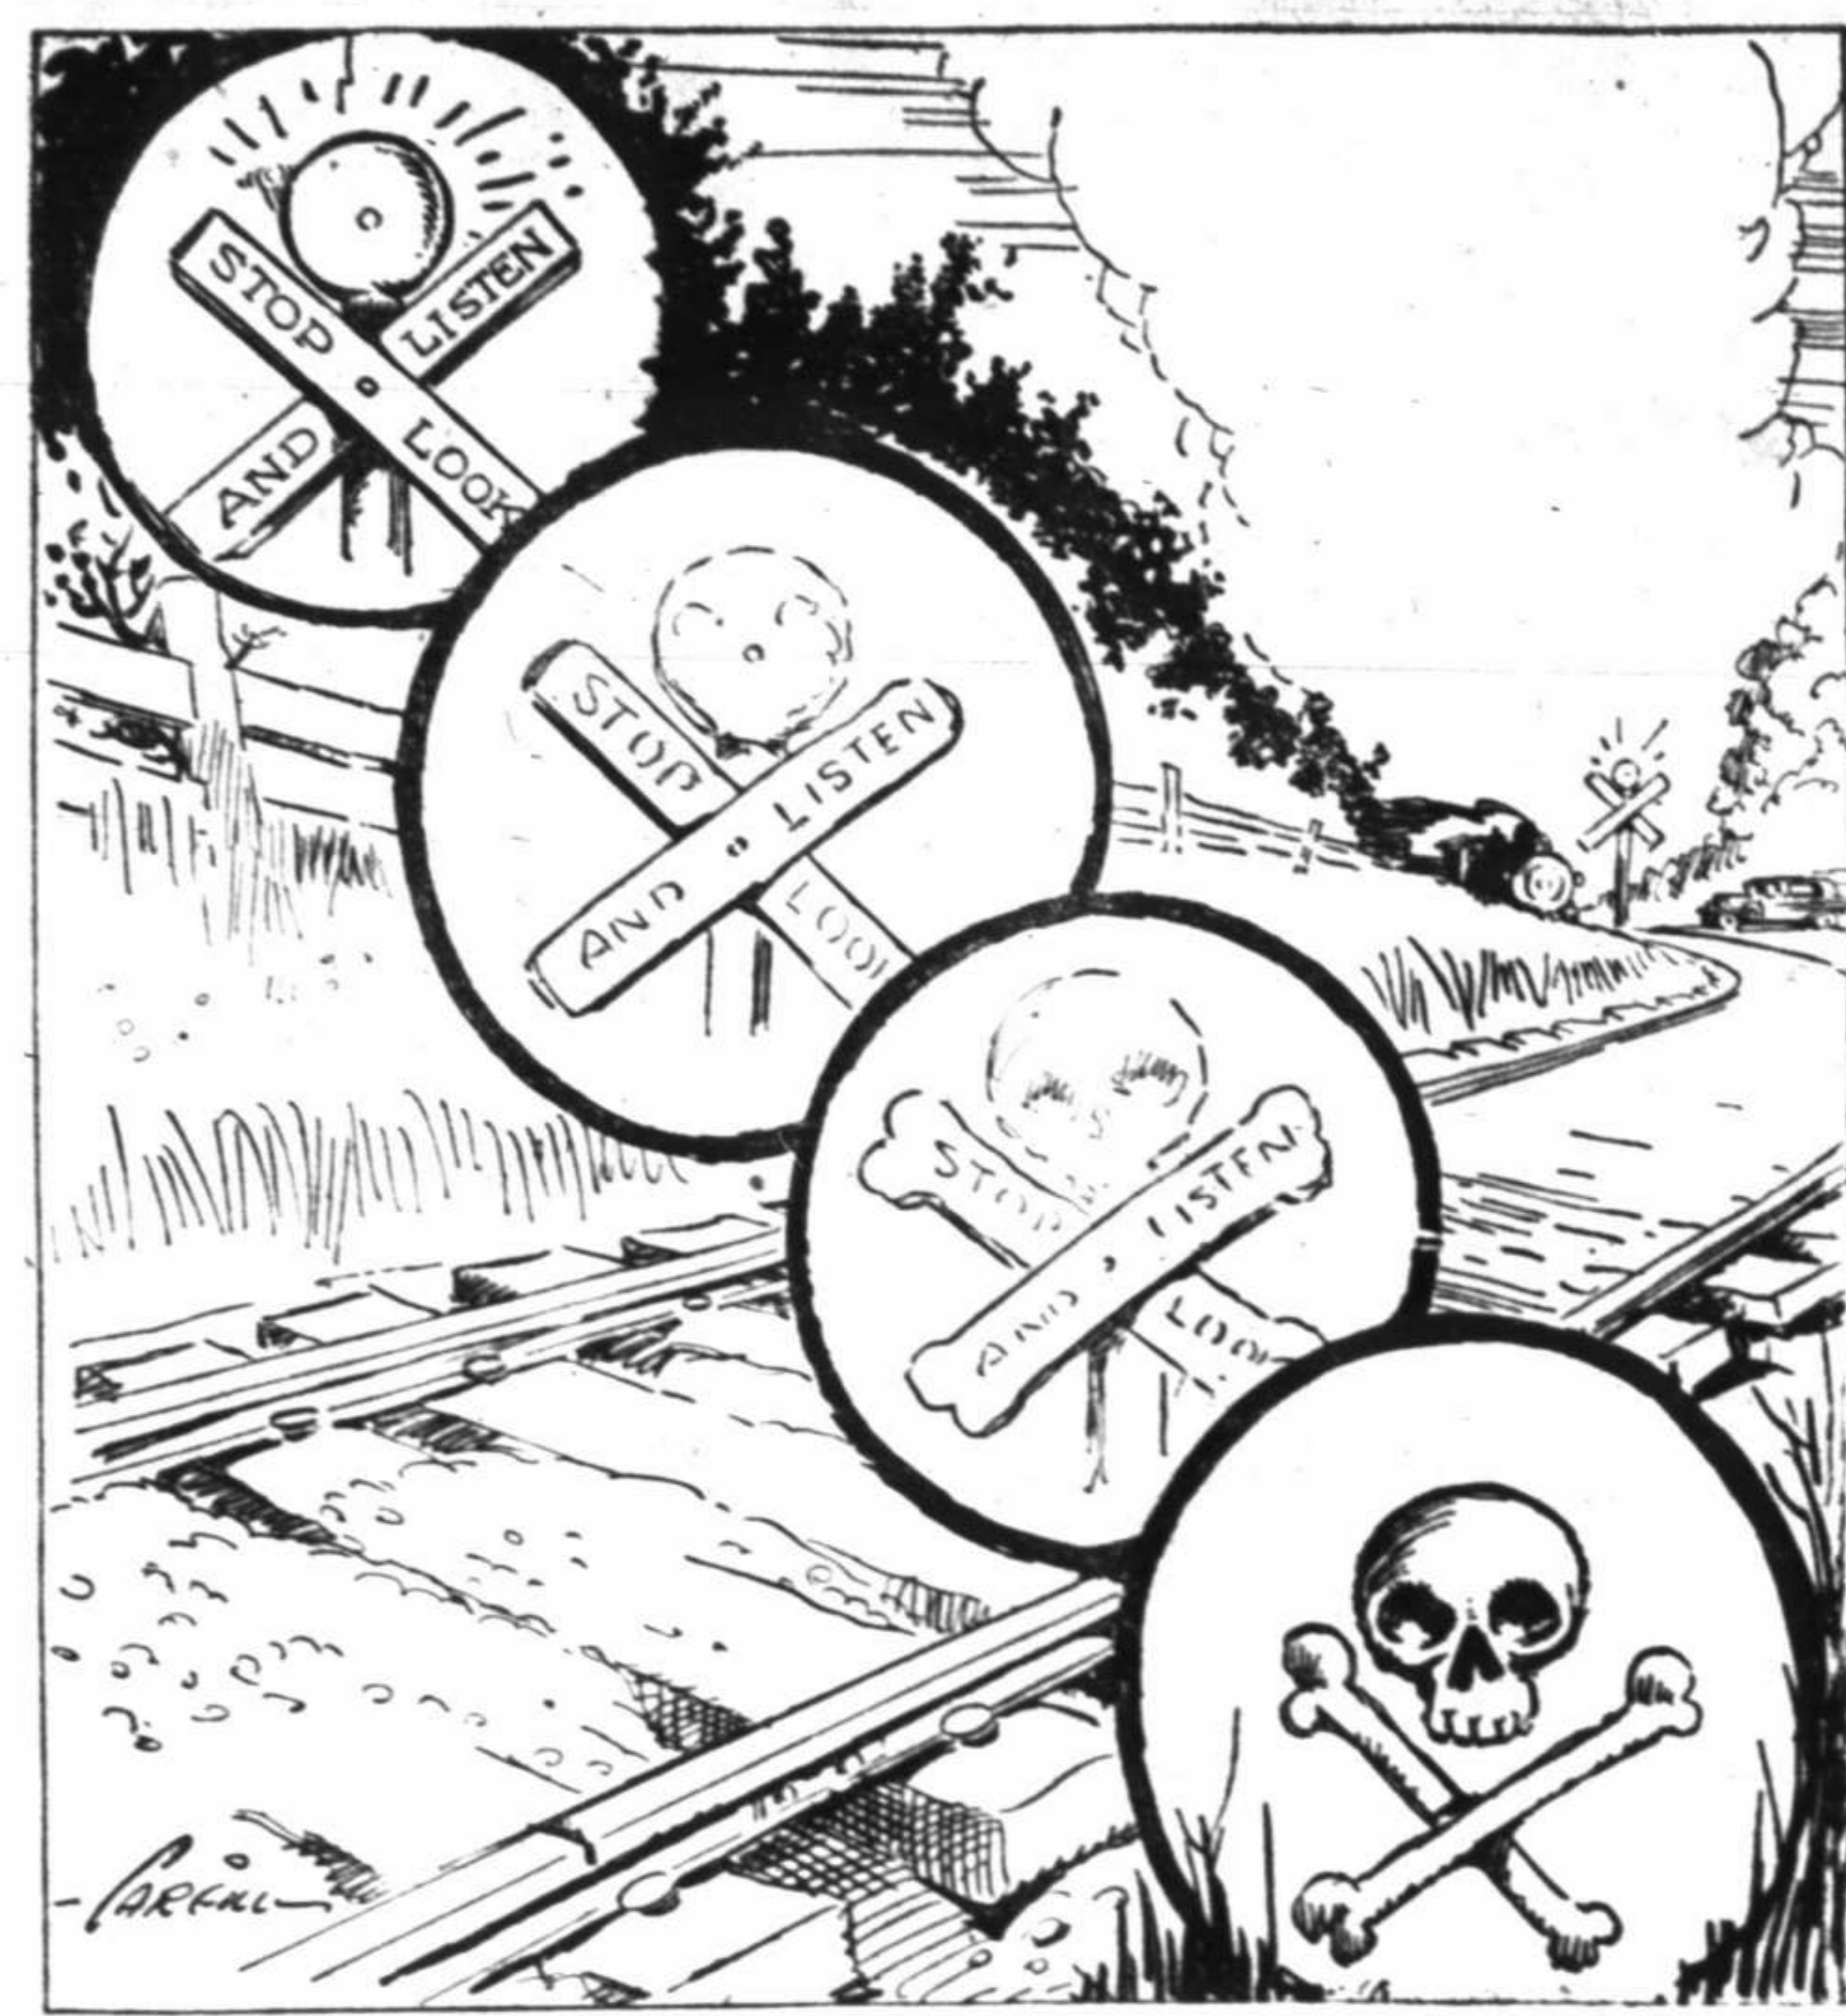

Freedom of the seas! When John Bull recognizes that principle and not beforehand naval reduction will begin to look possible, and maybe a yardstick will be needed according to the most pacifistic folk I ever have been able to find in Washington official circles—until President Hoover recently began talking of the yardstick as if it were the whole thing.

Of course Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson imitates him—but heaven knows if he understands what it means.

Our diplomats abroad talk the same way. Even when other powers representatives—British Premier Ramsay MacDonald, himself—mention "freedom of the seas," Ambassadors Charles G. Dawes and Hugh S. Gibson hush them up as fast as they can.

There may be some good reason for it all, but it certainly is not "open diplomacy."

Today's Poem

TO... IN CHURCH If I was drawn here from a distant place, Texas not to pray nor hear our friend's address, But gazing once more on your winsome face To worship there Ideal Loveliness, On that pure shrine that has too long ignored The gifts that once I brought so frequently I lay this votive offering to record How sweet your quiet beauty seemed to me, Enchanting girl, my faith is not a thing By futile prayers and vapid psalm-singing To vent in crowded nave and public pew My creed is simple: that the world exists in fact, and beauty the best thing to worship there. And I confess it by adoring you. —Alan Seeger (188-1916)

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

International Sunday School Lesson for July 14, 1929. Ezekiel Teaches Personal Responsibility. Scripture Lesson:—Ezekiel 3:7-16.

7. So thou, son of man, I have set thee a watchman upon the house of Israel; therefore hear the word of the Lord, and give them warning from me.

8. When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; and thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way; that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood will I require at thy hand.

9. Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it, and he turn not from his way; he shall die in his iniquity, but thou shalt deliver thy soul.

10. And thou, son of man, say unto the house of Israel: Thus ye speak, saying, Our transgressions and our sins are upon us, and we pine away in them; how then can we live?

11. Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?

12. And thou, son of man, say unto the children of thy people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression; and as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall thereby in the day that he turneth from his wickedness; neither shall he that is righteous be able to live thereby in the day that he sinneth.

13. When I say to the righteous, that he shall surely live; if he trust to his righteousness, and commit iniquity, none of his righteous deeds shall be remembered; but in his iniquity that he hath committed, therein shall he die.

14. Again, when I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; if he turn from his sin, and do that which is lawful and right;

15. If the wicked restore the pledge, give again that which he has taken by robbery, walk in the statutes of life, committing no iniquity; he shall surely live, he shall not die.

16. None of his sins that he hath committed shall be remembered against him; he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.

17. Jerusalem was captured B. C. 586. Place:—Ezekiel prophesied in Babylonia, at Telabih, probably a town on an irrigation canal in Babylonia.

Golden Text.—Each one of us shall give account of himself to God.—Rom. 14:12.

Introduction. We need the events of our last lesson to give us a background for the message of the lesson today. We must see and appreciate the conditions of the times and the persons in the midst of the prophetic Ezekiel in order to understand God's message of individual responsibility.

Let us remember that Jeremiah gave us the germ of this great doctrine. We learned from his book that he caught the message of God's revelation and he chose Ezekiel to take up the threads where they had been thrown and move out into a clear-cut doctrine of personal responsibility.

The three truths of personal responsibility are: (a) that sin must be punished; (b) that everyone will be punished for his own sin; (c) that God is ready to welcome and pardon the penitent.

Parental Responsibility. Ezek. 18:2.—"The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." "What is this but a statement in popular language of the principle which we call heredity? It is a truth which we can all verify from our own experience that, in general, children inherit the characters of their parents, just as they inherit their faces and their constitutions. Each one of us is what he is in a great measure because his parents, and their parents before them, were what they were. We may inherit evil; but, thank God, we may also inherit good. If we look back upon the history of our own country, we see this principle writ large across its pages. Here I can awful responsibility which few can escape. You may either be a rebel against God, and transmit to others a nature lowered by base desires and selfish indulgence, or you may be a work together with God by so using the talents which he has committed to you that your children may be the happy inheritors of earnestness and purity and faith."

"The Soul That Sinneth, It Shall Die." Ezekiel 18:4.—"The soul that sins dies, not because God utters a sentence of death and inflicts a positive punishment, but by and from the very nature of sin, and in consequence of the ordinary and necessary processes of a well and wisely ordered world. The death of a man in a nation is not from a divine fiat, and due to the issue of an irresistible edict; it is the inevitable outcome of conscious and intelligent acts on the part of men and nations, and is directly and immediately due to their choice of deeds in a world formed for the perpetuity and eternal reproduction of goodness, and the sure, if slow, decay and disappearance of wrong."

Punishment for Sin Is Just and Right. "If there be no repentance men must be punished, for on any other theory there is an end of moral government. The worst thing that could happen to a world of men would be for God to say, 'I retract my law; I will neither reward you like, nor punish iniquity; do as you like.' Then the earth would be a hell indeed. The greatest enemy to civil government among men is a man who preaches universal salvation—salvation apart from a change of heart and life. Such teachers are a danger to national order, they remove the foundation of the commonwealth. They teach a reward for sin, and a practically easy, a slight difference to you for a little while, but it will soon be over, and villains and saints will share an equal heaven. Such talk is damnable! I can say no less. If there is to be a government, what a stern necessity that sin should not go unpunished; leniency to the dishonest is cruelty to those whom they injure. To save the murderer is to kill the innocent. It were an evil day for heaven and earth if it could once be proven that God would reward the sinner in the same way as the sanctified; then would the foundation be removed, and that would the righteous do? A God who was not just would be a poor ruler of the universe."—C. H. Spurgeon.

"Why Will Ye Die?" "Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" "A yearning tenderness here manifests itself, still seeking, notwithstanding all that has taken place, the return of those who survived to the way of peace. But with that tenderness, what a stern necessity that sin should not go unpunished; leniency to the dishonest is cruelty to those whom they injure. To save the murderer is to kill the innocent. It were an evil day for heaven and earth if it could once be proven that God would reward the sinner in the same way as the sanctified; then would the foundation be removed, and that would the righteous do? A God who was not just would be a poor ruler of the universe."—C. H. Spurgeon.

One Sure Test—not any more sure in the laboratory of the chemist as in the mind of the philosopher, the rodly from the ungodly, when both have fallen even into the very same sin. It is worth knowing, and never fails. It is the test by which you may know a sheep from a goat, when both have fallen into the same sin; and Jesus Christ shall blot out your sins, and remember your transgressions no more."—Lynn Beecher.

Personal Responsibility, v. 13. "In your heart you know that no circumstances compelled you to sin. This is the mark of a true psychology, the voice of philosophy as well as of Scripture, which tells you you are without excuse. Even when you try to excuse yourself you are ashamed. The more your spiritual sight is clear, the more you are made to make your own, and accuse and condemn yourself. And if this is not to verify the fact of responsibility, I know not what verification means."

"No one lives who is entirely without influence. Every one is helping or hindering others every day of his life. There is no flower that blooms even on the driest mountain-top or in the deepest dell, but that the air is sweeter because of it. There is no cesspool anywhere, however hidden, but that the air is fouler because of it. Nor has any one of us today had a thought or desire heavenward, but that the world is better for it. Nor has any one of us had a thought or desire of evil today, but that this world of ours has swung a little nearer the pit."

"Our Permanent Record." "No action, whether foul or fair, is ever done, but it leaves some record, written by fingers of ghostly hands, as a blessing or a curse."

Cardboard Firms Of Late Ferrari Told Roosevelt

Robert Moses, Moreland Commissioner, Probes Corporations Which Went To Wall In New York

NEW YORK, July 12 (AP)—Without any recommendation for criminal action, Robert Moses, Moreland commissioner, today told Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of the Card-board Corporations of the late Francesco M. Ferrari, who built almost overnight a bank and business institution that went to the wall involving one state official, a New York City judge and a host of the banker's professional associates, including members of his immediate family.

"Catspaws" Pictured. In his report of his investigation of the City Trust company, defunct Ferrari bank, Moses pictures as "catspaws" Frank H. Warden, resigned superintendent of the state banking department, Judge Francis X. Mancuso, of the court of general sessions, and other Ferrari associates. The commissioner said these men were under the influence of a man "shrewd, vain, pompous and boastful with a large element of abominability in everything that he did."

For whatever illegal part the state banking department may have played in Ferrari's spectacular career, Moses lays the blame solely on Warden, now out on bail awaiting action of a special grand jury.

Edward F. Glynn, attorney for the City Trust company and nephew of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Moses characterizes as "another Ferrari catspaw, used for his experience in the banking department and because his name was valuable."

Say Death Report Is Exaggeration

Scheme To Defraud Life Insurance Company Shown As Negroes Say They Are Alive, Not Dead

DALLAS, July 12 (AP)—Two negroes appeared before the Dallas county grand jury today and solemnly swore they are alive, not dead, as entered upon official records.

The strange procedure came about during investigation of an alleged scheme to defraud a life insurance company through faked death certificates.

The negroes said they were told by their employer, a negro undertaker, that in order to hold their jobs they must take out $1,000 life insurance payable to the firm. This proved ineffective, however, it seems for the negroes soon lost their jobs and some time later, the insurance company was presented with claims on the policies, the death certificates being signed by the undertaking firm and a negro doctor. All went well until an insurance agent one day met one of the "dead" negroes walking the streets. Investigation revealed a headstone in a negro cemetery bearing the name of one of the insured.
