Council passes new water well ordinance

In spite of the controversy concerning some of the language the City Council voted six to one Tuesday night to adopt the new water well ordinance.

The new ordinance makes it unlawful for anyone to drill a water well within the city limits without a permit and established higher application and permit fees.

The ordinance calls for a $25 application and processing fee, $250 for a permit to drill a new well and $100 for a permit required to amend or deepen a well, or repair or correct a defective well, excluding pump repair or replacement.

There is an additional $50 fee for a permit required to plug a well.

The new ordinance also requires that any person digging a well or installing equipment to the well be licensed and bonded.

City Attorney Tom Rees said the fees were designed to help the city keep a record of where the wells are and their status.

Rees also emphasized that the supervision of the wells was important and would help the city

PPI building project expected to begin

The City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to allow the City Attorney to draw up contracts for the purchase of seven lots located on 9th Street between Houston and Shepard Streets to be used by People for Progress, Inc.

P.P.I., a non-profit organization based in Sweetwater, recently made a proposal to the Council to purchase the land from the city and build five low rent family homes on the property.

The houses would rent for no more than $250 a month and the property would be placed on the tax rolls.

The city plans on purchasing the lots for $500 each.

Mayor Jim Baum said he felt the construction of these houses would be a positive move for Colorado City.

Councilman Patrick Parker agreed with Baum and stated that he felt the project is a worthwhile investment.

Man is injured in attempted suicide

A Loraine man attempted to take his life Tuesday afternoon at approximately 2:15 p.m. in the front yard of a Colorado City residence.

According to Colorado City Police Chief David Montgomery, Edward Rosas, 18, shot himself in the lower right abdomen with a .22 automatic pistol.

There were no witnesses to the shooting, he added.

Montgomery said the information provided shows that Rosa's suicide attempt was a result of his girlfriend's recent decision to breakup with him.

Prior to the attempt Rosas contacted his mother to let her know he had plans to take his own life.

"For whatever reasons, she believed that he was in Sweetwater," Montgomery said. "She drove to Sweetwater and contacted the police there to try and find him."

Rosas was in Colorado City trying to persuade his girlfriend to DEMOCRATIC INCUMBENT CHARLES STENHOLM made a campaign stop in Colorado City Tuesday afternoon at the CC Thompson Room. Stenholm is seen discussing some of his political standing with City Council member Walt Staats.

Stenholm visits Colorado City

Congressman Charles Stenholm was the guest of honor at a reception Tuesday afternoon in the C. C. Thompson Room of the City National Bank.

Stenholm spoke on various international, national and local items.

He discussed military intervention in Haiti as well as the recent deployment of U.S. troops to the Persian Gulf to monitor and if necessary stop any threat made by Sadam Hussein's forces.

"We have no earthly idea what Hussein is going to do," he said. "I seriously hope that he was not foolish enough to misread what the President has been saying or the intent of Congress [should he show signs of hostility]."

Stenholm then moved on to national issues, focusing on welfare reform and health care reform.

In order to reform the health care system Stenholm said he felt that welfare reform had to come first.

"We have to figure out how to put the pieces of the puzzle back together again," he said. "We have to remember that welfare and health care reform go hand in hand."

Stenholm added that changes in policies and attitudes needed to take place.

"We need to make changes in the way we feed people [on welfare] and do it more economically because it can be done," he said.

"We also need to change the myth that most people on welfare want to be there. The truth is most of these people would rather have productive jobs," Stenholm said.

Stenholm said there are plans to move from food stamps to "smart cards," which would have a limited

Elections draw near

The November 8 elections are fast approaching and politicians are doing some fast campaigning.

Currently, there are approximately 4,706 people registered to vote in Mitchell County. Voter registration deadline was October 9.

Voting by mail is now going on. If you plan on voting through the mail the ballot must be returned by November 1.

Early and absentee voting starts October 19 and ends November 4.

In order to vote in the November 8 election you must be a resident of the county where you intend on voting, be at least 18 years old and a U.S. citizen.

You must also be registered at least 30 days prior to voting.

As for the politicians running for state-wide positions, some of your choices are Democratic candidate Ann Richards, Republican George Bush and a little-known candidate, Libertarian Keary Ehlers, all making a bid for the governorship.

Running for Lt. Governor are Democrat Bob Bullock and Republican H.J. Lezar.

United States Senator candidates are Democrat Richard Fisher, Republican Kay Bailey Hutchinson and Libertarian Pierre Blondeau.

Candidates for Attorney General are Democrat Dan Morales, Republican Don Williams and Libertarian Vickie Flores.

The list of candidates running for public office is extensive.

A spokeswoman for the Secretary of State Elections Division said voting is a responsibility of the people and that they should take full advantage of their right to choose elected officials.

"Some people take their right to vote for granted," she said. "Instead of taking it for granted they should exercise this right."

PRISONERS AT THE WALLACE UNIT WHO ARE enrolled in the Windham School system are seen here in the Automotive Specialty Vocational class where the students learn about the mechanics of a car and working together.

Windham school aids in "rate of recidivism"

(Editor's note: this is the first of a two part series on the Windham School System.)

The Wallace Unit is one of 58 prison units that provides public schooling for its inmates.

The Windham School System helps provide training that enables inmates to acquire jobs when they are released on parole, principal Deborah McLarty said.

Windham Superintendent Chris Tracy said, "The person who goes to work is less likely to come back to prison."

McLarty said the number one focus of Windham is to reduce the rate of return, or recidivism.

"The higher the education level, the lower the rate of recidivism," she said. "The statistics stand behind us."

In order to meet this goal Windham Schools provide people with the opportunity to earn their GEDs or to further their education by taking college courses.

The college courses taught at the Wallace Unit are provided by West Texas College, McLarty added.

McLarty explained that the classes are non-graded and instead students are placed into one of three phases.

"Phase one deals with those students who are illiterate to those in about a fourth grade level," McLarty said. "Phase two ranges from about fourth grade up to eighth grade and phase three is eighth grade through high school GED level."

Windham also provides Automotive Specialization and Introduction to Construction Careers as vocational courses for its students.

According to McLarty these types of courses help to give the students a starting point.

"They will not come out of class a top mechanic but they will come out with the knowledge they will need to start with," she said.

College courses provided by WTC include business law, American Government, U.S. History, developmental math and developmental English.

WTC also provides for a vocational course called Landscape Design Management.

Each class is a three-hour-a-day course; each vocational class is a six-hour-a-day course.

Windham employs 35 people. All the instructors are TEA certified and have had previous experience in public school systems, McLarty added.

McLarty said the Windham amount of money on them, work like a credit card and would help reduce the number of fraudulent purchases.

Stenholm added that in looking at health care reform he was not concerned with reconstructing and reorganizing the system.

"My interest is in one particular area and that is cost," he said. "The only reason we should even look at reform is the spiralling costs of health care."

Stenholm went on discuss issues that would effect the local area, focusing on the United States Department of Agriculture re-organization bill that is expected to be signed by President Clinton.

"Agriculture has changed dramatically over the years," Stenholm said. "There has not been any changes in the way the USDA operates. The changes in the agriculture called for changes in the USDA."

Stenholm said that although he was not pleased with what came out of the 103rd Congress he was looking forward to serving on the 104th Congress.

"I was frustrated with the amount of partisanship in the 103rd Congress," he said. "But, I'm excited about the potential of the 104th Congress. The people are going to see a revolution."

Stenholm is running for re-election to Congress. He serves on the Agriculture and Budget Committees.

"I believe in bipartisanship," Stenholm said. "I want to do what is best for our country and our district."

know whether or not things were being handled properly.

City Manager Steve Shutt emphasized the danger of unmonitored wells.

"If a well is drilled too close to a sewer line or a septic system and we somehow get a cross connection and the contaminants get back into the water system then we have got a serious problem," he said.

The ordinance also made the requirement that water samples would have to be furnished to the city during the construction of the well and any time after.

Shutt said that well samples were important because it helps the city check for unwanted chemicals such as chloroform.

Although it was included in the final vote, there was some discussion as to whether a Waiver by the City Council Clause should have been kept in the new ordinance.

The waiver stated that any and all provisions of the ordinance could be waived if the applicant showed the City Council that the planned manner of operation or the equipment to be used would adequately protect the public health, safety and welfare.

Mayor Jim Baum said he felt that if the waiver were included then the first seven pages of the ordinance could be considered obsolete.

In spite of the protest from the mayor and city manager the ordinance was passed by council members.

F.C.E. Week proclaimed

The Mitchell County Commissioner's Court proclaimed October 9-15 as Family and Community Education Week in recognition of over 60 members in the five clubs here in Mitchell County.

The mission of F.C.E. is to work with the Extension Service to strengthen and enrich families through educational programs, leadership development and community service.

F.C.E. work began in Mitchell County in 1922 when Mrs. A.L. Whipkey approached the county commissioners court and secured the first Home Demonstration Agent. Her job was to assist county women with expert advice and homemaking demonstratons.

Mrs. Georgia Lacewell was the first Mitchell County Home Demonstration Agent and drove a Model T Ford over the unpaved rural roads. She stressed the canning and utilization of home grown products.

The oldest club in the County, Fairview F.C.E. club, was originally known as the Thrift club and began in 1922 when Mrs. O.L. Simpson was elected as the first club president in the county.

By 1923 there were 13 Home Demonstration Clubs in Mitchell County and each sponsored a girls' 4-H club.

During 1923, the first county fair was held and a club for black homemakers was organized.

Of the 13 clubs organized in 1923, Buford F.C.E. and Looney F.C.E. clubs are active today. The youngest F.C.E. clubs in the county are North Loraine, founded in 1946 and St. Ann's, founded in 1994.

In 1924 the first Mitchell County Home Demonstration Council was formed and this year it celebrates its 70th year of work in the county.

In 1979 the state organization's name was changed to Texas Extension Homemakers Association and local clubs were called Extension Homemakers clubs.

In 1993, in response to a name change by the National Association, convention delegates voted to change the state organization's name to Texas Association for Family and Community Education.

Mrs. Linnie Williams of Looney F.C.E. club has been an active member for 67 years and the county has 10 active club members with 50-plus years of service.

From the Model T Ford driven by the first Mitchell County Home Demonstration agent to the present use of electronic mail and fax machines, the goal of F.C.E. and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service remains the same—to strengthen families, develop leaders, serve the community and provide the most up-to-date information to the residents of Mitchell County.

THE $51 PER BALE ADVANTAGE FOR COTTON PRODUCERS

More than $51 per bale paid in cash for the 1993 crop.

Your local and regional cotton cooperatives offer a vertically integrated system that takes your cotton from the field to the textile mill. It's a system that adds valuable income to your farming operation. Ginning, warehousing, marketing, textile manufacturing, and cottonseed processing all work to increase the value of your cotton crop every step of the way. For the 1993 cotton crop, combined cash payments from the local and regional cotton cooperatives averaged $51.62 per bale, over and above the value of your lint cotton. Thus, the more cotton you send through the cooperative system, the more you can add to your net profits. Consider the cooperative advantage for your cotton crop. From your local cooperative gin to the warehouses, the oil mill, the marketing association and the denim mill – it's just good business. See your local or regional cotton cooperative today.

LORAINE NEWS ABOUT TOWN

BY BESSIE ANN VAUGHN

In a hurry and tired, I decided to sate my crave for taco salad at the drive-through window at Dairy Queen last week.

After turning in my order, I drove my car out of traffic's way and parked it alongside a huge new-looking truck with a very large driver behind the wheel.

I tried not to stare at the driver but he was making kissing motions with his lips while rubbing and stroking his partner, who was out of site.

This romantic interlude proceeded for some time and I will admit I was anxious to see what the object of his love looked like.

Suddenly, he jumped down from the truck with the object of his love and affection in his right hand.... He was tenderly holding the cutest dog I had ever seen.

It was a toy poodle in an apricot color with an angel's face (a dog angel). I would swear the dog was smiling!

Not minding my own business, I told the driver that his dog was beautiful and he said, "I know, thanks!"

As I slowly began driving away, it was a tender site to see this big man walking a tiny bit of orange-colored fluff at the end of a leash.

They were oblivious to everyone and together were savoring a precious moment in time.

Bertha Fay Snyder spent three days in Abilene recently visiting with her good friend, Betty Reeves. They did a lot of shopping, talking and dining out.

Tommy and Neva Gwinn from Meeker, Okla. came to visit Bobby and Darlene Hamrick last week.

Doris Henderson and Leverne Chalker of Colorado City joined Janell Moore and a group from First Baptist Church of Andrews to go to Glorieta, N.M. for church confrences for senior citizens.

Biddie Richey Jones is at home now and recuperating from surgery. It is reported she is doing well.

Iva Armstrong's sister, Doris Peck from Grandbury, came to pick up their sister, Helen Nevis.

Helen will soon be going back to California. She had been in Texas visiting both sisters, Iva and Doris.

Jimmie Jacks reports that her mother, Effie Wheeler, continues to make progress at this time. We are all hoping she will be well enough to go home soon.

Syble Walker is at home and doing fairly well. She's not up to going yet but we expect to see her smiling face soon.

Friends and relatives enjoyed a ten-year anniversary party at the post office honoring Danny Butler on Friday, October 7.

A beautiful party table held punch and cookies and balloons were everywhere. It was a fun and festive occasion.

Congratulations to Danny for his tenth year tenure for the Loraine Post Office.

With sadness, friends report that last Sunday was the last sermon Bro. James McCloud would preach at the Baptist Church.

He and his family have been such an asset to this community that friends of all denominations hate to see them go.

Bro. James and his wife, Cindy, each have a wonderful singing talent and of course everyone loves Tiffany.

They will relocate at Rising Star.

Loraine F.C.E. Club Meeting

The Loraine F.C.E. Club met Wednesday the 5th at the Loraine Senior Center with Bertha Fay Snyder as hostess.

Club secretary Bessie Ann Vaughn presided over the meeting in the absence of a president or vice president. The meeting was opened and in unison members recited the club prayer and creed.

Roll call was answered with "What fall event I like best."

Reading of minutes were approved and the treasurer's report was given.

Margaret Brame gave a council's report and talked about the upcoming tasting spree and booths at the fair. Plans for the club's Christmas dinner were tabled until the next meeting.

The day's program was about crafts and each member was to bring one and tell how it was made. Eva Wells showed us how to make concho necklaces. Margaret Brame brought a great hanging lamp kit. Joy Dickenson brought several things made with a foiling and ink stain technique, plus some decoupage and there were fabric and transfer paintings, needlepoint and basket decorations.

Bessie Ann won the door prize.

Attending were Eva Wells, Billie Schroeder, Billie Ruth Abernathy, Margaret Brame and Bessie Ann Vaughn.

Also, two guests were present—Joy Dickenson and Mary Munoz.

Dave Darchester with TU Electric in Sweetwater and Judy Stewart came to the Center Friday to talk and show a film about average billing for seniors, hoping to make it easier for them to be able to pay their bills.

The Loraine F.C.E. club ladies funded a sign for the mini-park. We voted on several name selections with the majority ruling and the park was named "Friendship Park."

Several people had a hand in getting the sign made and erecting it on its present site.

"Thank you"s go to Eddie Galvan, O.C. Gabler, Donnie Phillips, Dale Haltom, Ricky Bailey and Mike Hempnill.

Also, some painting has begun on a downtown building with the volunteer help of the Loraine Ag Boys—we want to extend our thanks to them and to their teacher.

Spotlight

This week's spotlight shines on Chrystene Hall.

She was born one mile southeast of Loraine. When she was three, the Ridin family moved to the J.M. Thompson farm five miles south of Loraine.

Since Bauman school was only two and a half blocks away, this very young Ridin girl thought she should go to school and pleaded and begged to do so until Mr. Crutcher and Miss Opal Jackson, along with her family, gave their consent when she was five yars old.

Wilma (Lee) Hudgins was her tutor and requirements for promotion to the second grade included memorizing the multiplication tables, reading, spelling and writing, which she accomplished with relative ease.

Around Chrystene's seventh school year, her mother decided it would be best for the girls to attend a larger school and Mr. Riden built a house approximately two miles from the Loraine school, where they walked with 15 or so other children.

Chrystene remembers Bob Looney rode his horse to school for awhile.

She also remembers a strict disciplinarian, Mrs. Samuel Harris, in grade school who gave her a ruler to the palm of her hand.... It was because the boy behind her put saliva on her neck and she slapped him for it. (Chrystene's retaliation seems right to me.)

In high school there was history, English, math, Spanish, Latin, speech, choir and band, plus P.E.

Chrystene played softball, tennis, basketball and volleyball, plus practiced band and piano.

When she graduated, she was too young to enter college, so she went back to school anothr year.

Following that year, she was employed at the variety store for $25 a month, then briefly worked at Thornhills.

She later was hired at the First State Bank by K.L. Taylor and her salary was $75 a month, during the war.

Chrystene thought the president and directors only dealt with finances but found out differently when she was called on the carpet because her ration stamp accounts were overdrawn.

She left the bank and went all over town searching for gasoline, sugar and shoe stamps, got them all organized and he never found them overdrawn again. She learned her lesson well and worked well.

Before Chrystene's mother passed away, she and Mr. Ridin discussed her entering college so she commuted at night after working at the store during the day. In 1962 she received her bachelor of science degree.

Chrystene got her masters degree in August 1969 but the Colorado board and the administration offered advanced courses for teachers, so she entered school again and took all the courses that she could.

She was prepared to teach on a elementary level, high school level and for counseling, also. In 1962 her elective courses had provided a minor in sociology. Both degrees came from Hardin Simmons University.

In all the many months of commuting, she wore out a brand new car and started in on another and she can only recall having one flat tire in all that time.

Except for 12 hours, her college work was all on campus—six hours by correspondance, three hours in Snyder and three in Colorado City, both in HSU extension classes.

Chrystene was determined and did it the hard way, and with her grade point average, graduated magna cum laude. Her 21 years of teaching at Colorado High School included English and half a year as counselor.

A highlight of her career was accompanying 232 students and adults to Ireland, Scotland, Wales and London.

The final trip with ex-students was to Belgium, Holland, Brandenburg Wall and East Germany.

Other than her family of parents and sisters, and especially her husband and son, church activities and teaching were the most exciting and enjoyable blessings that she has experienced....

We are fortunate to have this lady in our community where she is still active in national and local politics, church, civic and county activities.

She has been awarded many honors. The high school students voted Mrs. Hall the outstanding teacher four years in succession, the senior sponsor for 18 years and she was voted one of the Outstanding Secondary Educators of America in 1974.

The FFA Chapter presented her an honorary Chapter Farmer degree in 1979.

If all this weren't enough to say about Mrs. Chrystene Hall, she would love more schooling!

If it were convenient, this lady would go back to school this minute for more education. She has lofty standards and sets a straight course.

Sims recieves Crime Fighter of Year award

Senator Bill Sims received the Crime Fighter of the Year Award Friday from the 2,000-member Texas State Troopers Association (TSTA).

A longtime supporter of law-and-order legislation in the Texas Senate, Sims received the award in recognition of his consistent support for law enforcement officers and victims of crime.

"Senator Sims knows that we must have adequate prison space to deal with the thugs, and he's cast the tough votes to build new prisons," said Claude Hart, executive director of TSTA.

Hart said Sims was instrumental in ending liberal parole policies that were releasing 150 inmates a day—often violent offenders—on to the streets. Under Sims' legislation, parole has been cut back by two thirds.

"I get my advice on law enforcement issues from troopers, police officers, prosecutors and judges, because those are the folks who know best," Sims said.

"Nothing is more important than maintaining public safety. We can't create jobs or educate our children unless we protect our citizens and their property," he added.

Sims is running for reelection to District 24, a 21-county area that covers much of Central and West Texas.

SCHOOL NEWS

THE WOLF PACK MARCHING BAND competed in the Big Country Marching Festival on Saturday. They did an exceptionl job of performing and brought home a trophy for a first division rating. The regional marching contest is scheduled for October 22nd at Abilene Wylie High School and is open to the public. The band will perform at 2 p.m. If they receive a first division rating at the regional contest, they will proceed to the area marching contest in Dallas on October 29. Shown here are Drum Major Kristi Miller and Band President Alyssa Finley.

New computer program helps high school students with reading

Imagine going to a grain mill and asking for an order of grits, but instead you receive chicken feed. You would wonder what happened, why or how your order got mixed up.

This is similar to what happens when some people read. They see letters on the page but when processing the word in the brain, the letters become jumbled up.

A new computer program at CHS from the Creative Education Institute helps students with reading difficulties to deal with such problems.

The program uses Sensory Integration Training, which trains the visual, hearing, verbal and touch senses to work together to help the students process the information they read.

UIL council meet scheduled

The issue of adding a Conference 6A will once again be an item on the agenda at the UIL's Legislative Council meeting scheduled for October 16-18 at the Omni Hotel in Austin.

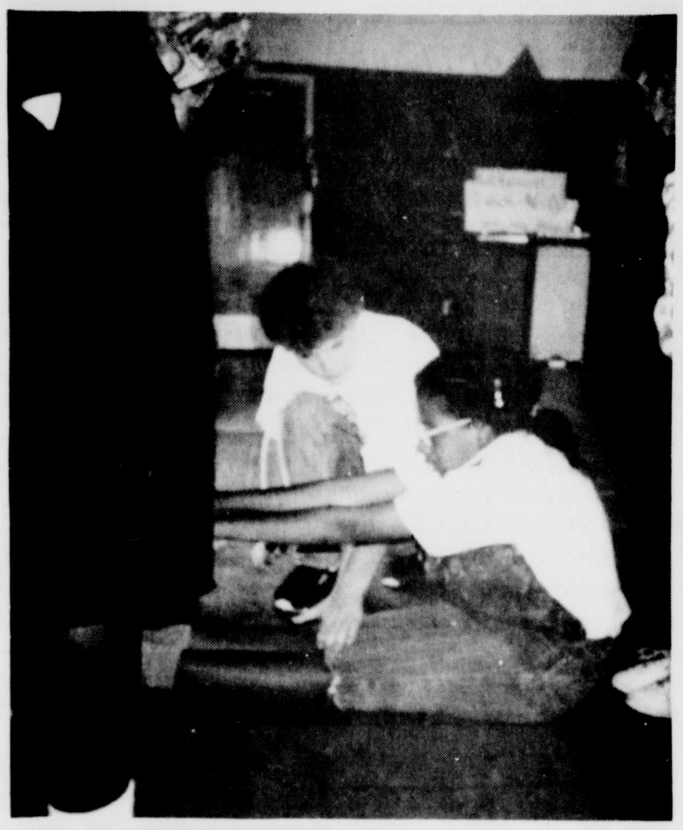

An advisory committee authorized by the state legislature asked the UIL athletic staff to study the possibility of adding a Conference 6A.

The results of a September survey of member schools will be presented to the Legislative Council this month.

Member schools were asked to respond to such proposals as:

- making all baseball playoffs a two-of-three series;
- adding a third team from each district in the playoffs in Conference 4A, 3A, 2A and 1A in all team sports;
- moving softball to the fall and adding a third classification;
- adding girls' pole vault to track and field.
- dividing six-man football into two playoff divisions.
- discussing a new method to deal with last-minute ineligible player rulings that could delay the state playoffs. Instead of banning the entire team, sideline the ineligible player.

Upcoming UIL athletic events include the State Team Tennis Championships in Austin on November 4-5; State Cross Country Championships in Georgetown on November 12 and State Volleyball Championships in Austin on November 18-19.

LORI DOCKREY ASSISTS CINDY HALE in the sit and reach test, one of the five parts of the physical fitness test.

High school students assist with P.E. class

Two groups of Colorado High School students recently assisted in Hutchinson Elementary's physical education classes.

On September 21 and 22, Mrs. Fambro's students taught the elementary students how to take their pulse and then chart it on a bar graph.

The high school students also shared some "heart healthy" facts.

On September 26 and 27 Mrs. Merrell's classes helped to administer the five parts of the physical fitness test.

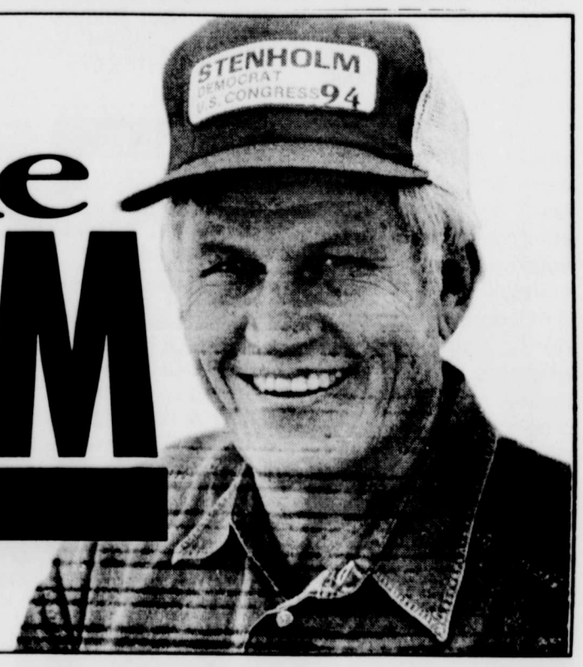

The high school students weighed and measured the elementary students and watched them perform the climbing rope, sit and reach, jump and reach and curl up tests.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

BY JIM BAUM

Dudley Hiram "Pop" Snyder was a bigger-than-life West Texas oilman. Travelers along Interstate 20 have seen the "Snyder Field" sign near the Mitchell and Howard County lines and the oil wells in that extensive field, coupled with Snyder's considerable cattle wealth, made him truly a very rich man.

"He was a character, but he was a sweet thing," Fannie Bess Earnest Sivalls remembers. "He was just as sweet as could be."

Kitten Richardson can attest to that. She says Pop was always buying silk hose for ladies. There wasn't any particular reason, that was just Pop Snyder. "He was quite a character," Mrs. Richardson says.

It wasn't only silk hose Pop bought. The story is told about the time he bought a Big Spring woman a fur coat. A letter of appreciation was written to Snyder, but his wife intercepted the correspondence and read it before Pop did.

When Snyder returned home that day, Mrs. Snyder met him at the door. "Sit down," she commanded. Obediently he took a seat. "I'm going to read you a letter," she said smiling. Then for five or six long, drawn out pages, she proceeded to pass along the message from Pop's friend. Snyder listened to every word as his wife continued to drone on.

"That was the longest blankety-blank letter I ever heard," Pop later told City Manager Smokey Merritt. "I know she couldn't have enjoyed that coat that much."

There are endless other Pop Snyder stories. One thing is for sure; he enjoyed a good prank, as this story bears out.

Once upon a time, so the story goes, Pop had a big blow-out at the old Snyder house, a two-story brick home at 9th and Hickory. The party was being held upstairs and the beverages were flowing into the early morning hours.

When it finally became time to go home, one celebrant couldn't. The fun-loving Pop took one look at his passed-out friend and called Kiker Funeral Home. In short order, a casket was delivered to Snyder's, along with a bevy of floral arrangements. The intoxicated friend was eased into the coffin and the lights were turned out. It's left to one's imagination what the poor man thought when he eventually woke up.

Unfortunately for Snyder, life was not all fun and games. Acquaintances recall the tragic death of Snyder's daughter, Mary. She had driven the family car down to the ranch to bring her father into town. En route back to Colorado City, she lost control of the vehicle and was killed.

Rosalie Leslie Loretto remembers the tragedy. "She turned the car over and it broke her neck. He was with her, but he was not hurt."

Fannie Bess Sivalls recalls the Snyder car was a Brougham. "It was top heavy," she adds, "and sedans were fairly new at the time. They made that quick turn across Morgan Creek and it turned over and killed her. She was about 20."

Details surrounding the death of Snyder's son, Dudley, are not as well-known, but he committed suicide much later. One version has it that his death occurred at sea on a ship.

Another tragic event involving the Snyder family occurred after they left Colorado City and moved to Ft. Worth. Mrs. Snyder (Susie), was alone one night in their palatial home.

"She heard someone breaking in," Mrs. Sivalls told us. "She went to the top of the stairs to check and recognized the burglar [who had worked for the Snyders]. He had a gun in his hand and when Susie called out his name and asked what he was doing, the man raced up the stairs and beat her with his weapon. Mrs. Snyder was left for dead."

Although she did eventually fully recover, Pop blamed himself for the incident because he wasn't home on the night of the attack.

Snyder is remembered in Colorado City as a man who not only had his faults, but a person who could be generous at times.

A case in point is remembered by Raymond Fuller. Back in the late 1930s, the local stock show had been held but no one offered to buy the cattle.

"We were trying to figure out how to send our cattle to Ft. Worth," Fuller recalled. "No one had a way to get 'em there, no one was bidding on 'em and we didn't have a place to sell 'em. So Pop came in and said he would buy the whole load and would pay, as I remember it, about a nickel above market."

Doyle Williams was the FHA teacher at the time and he was hesitant to accept Pop's offer for fear Snyder would feel he had been taken advantage of when he sobered up. Williams went to Snyder's son, Dudley, and explained his predicament. The younger Snyder said if Pop made the offer, let him have the cattle. Snyder's generosity was a life saver for the ag boys.

Pop's largess continued after he made the aforementioned move to Ft. Worth. Earnest Porter says he knows for a fact that Pop used to drive his big black car out to the TCU campus and would hire some young man to drive him to Dallas for the day.

"Pop's car was always big and black," Porter states. "He was usually good for $100 [for the driver] for the day."

On one particular day, Snyder hired a college student and told him to drive to the Blackstone Hotel. (About a week earlier Pop and the Blackstone manager had had a disagreement.)

When the car eased up in front of the hotel, Snyder reached over from the back seat and opened the glove compartment. He took out a 6 shooter, then got out of the car.

The wide-eyed driver watched as Snyder disappeared inside the Blackstone. In a matter of minutes, gunshots rang out as Pop shot out a few lights in the hotel lobby. Outside, the TCU chauffeur wasn't waiting around to collect his day's pay.

"The TCU boy took off, on foot," Porter concluded.

(Next week, Pop Snyder gets in the banking business...and back out.)

The ability to read is not an intelligence problem, but a processing problem. Students come to the computer lab at least four times a week for 40 minute sessions, with Friday as a reading comprehension day.

The program is being run on a "points" system, with rewards and prizes being donated by the following merchants:

Woods Boots, Sheets Eye Clinic, Ft. Wood Trading Post, Gene's TV, Saddle Shop, Candyland, Anthony's, Ramage Appliance, Clothes Rack, J.C. Penney catalog, Merle Norman, Reflections.

Dairy Queen, Sonic, Villa Restaurant, Style Shack, Medicine Place, Cardiac's, Faye's, Hair Affair, Rowe's, Plagens Printing, Showplace Video, Eddie's Pharmacy.

The CEI lab staff and especially the students, greatly appreciate this support by local businesses.

The general public and parents are invited to visit the lab for a firsthand look at this innovative program being offered by the high school.

Read what people are saying about Colorado City Apartments...

Colorado City Apts.:

I moved to Colorado City Apts. about three months ago, and I really enjoy it here.

The apartments are very clean and a very quiet place to be.

The people here are very friendly, plus our manager, Jo Yancy, is a real nice person.

Lupe Clifton

Colorado City Apts.:

I moved into the apartments here the last of August of this year.

This is my first experience in apartment living since 1956 and I have been pleasantly surprised. The apartment is reasonably priced, the management friendly. The yards are well-kept, the apartment well-maintained.

The other tenants are quiet, so we are looking forward to a pleasant stay here.

John Thornberry

I just moved to Colorado City two months ago—and I had never lived in an apartment before because I thought it would be too much of a hassle.

But I have found that living here in the Colorado City Apartments is nice, quiet and a place I can call home.

Mary Martinez

P.S. And management is great.

My husband, our two children and I moved to Colorado City from Anson five months ago.

After looking around the area for housing, we decided that the Colorado City Apartments best suited our needs.

Upon moving in, we found our apartment clean, quiet and very affordable.

Our children enjoy playing on the playground very much.

Ramiro, Stephanie, Lana and Daniel Perez

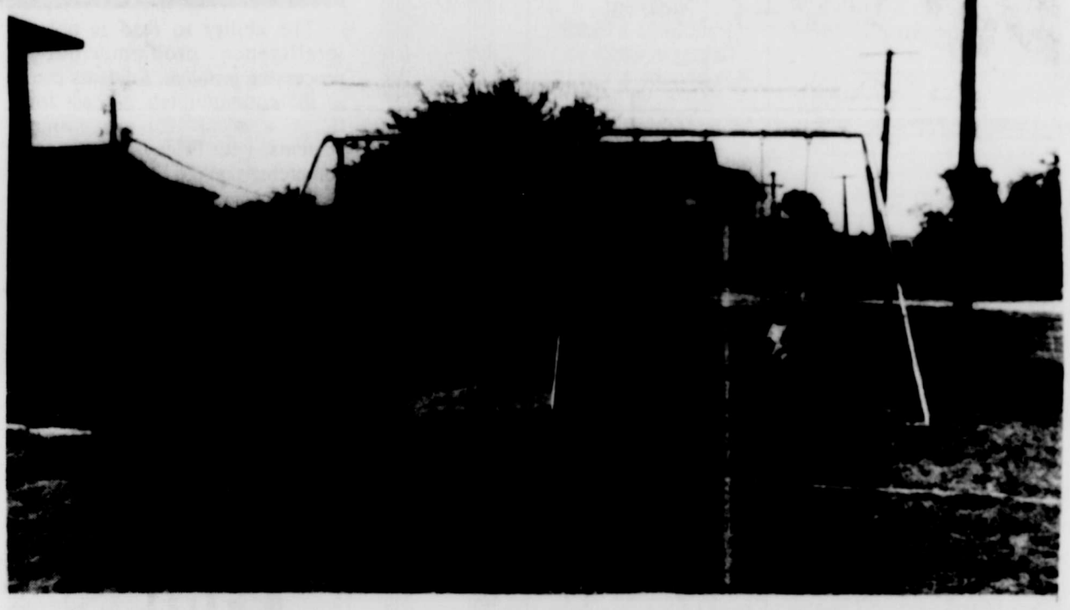

Since coming to the Colorado City Apartments as manager some two months ago, I've been surprised and pleased with the family-like atmosphere! The tenants are all friendly to one another and to me.

It's a quiet place to live and the tenants take pride in their homes, helping to keep the outside clean and neat.

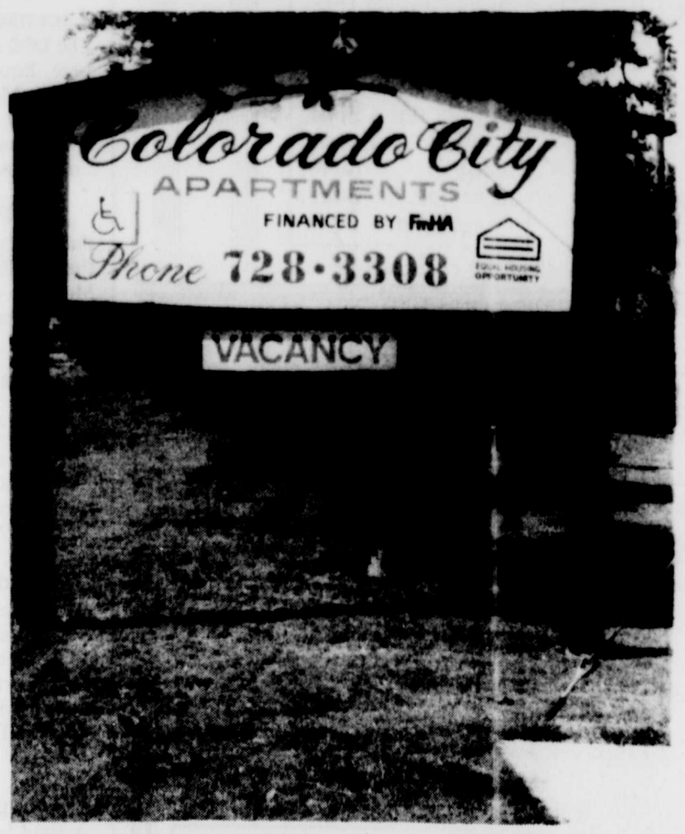

We think we're the best place around.
