PAT ON THE BACK — Ted Rosack (facing camera), special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office, greets agent Everett Robinson Sunday night during an episode at Denver's Stapleton International Airport in which a gunman was killed after holding two hostages for seven hours. Neither Robinson nor Rosack was aboard the aircraft in which Roger Lyle Lentz, 31, Marquette, Neb., was slain.

Ambush aboard jet

Agents kill hijacker

DENVER (AP) — A gunman who held two hostages on a private airplane for seven hours was shot and killed by FBI agents early today as he boarded a jet he thought was to fly him to Mexico, an FBI spokesman said.

Ted Rosack, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office, said Roger Lyle Lentz, 31, was killed shortly after midnight, ending an episode that began in Grand Island, Neb., and included two separate flights over Colorado aboard the commandeered private plane.

Neither hostage — pilot Robert Blair and mechanic Harlan Hiller, both of Grand Island — was hurt during the seven hours they spent in the Piper Navaho with the gunman or in the gunfire aboard the commercial jet, Rosack said.

"The subject came up the ramp with his hostages, ducked into the galley, and when agents aboard the plane properly identified him, was shot," Rosack said. "One of the agents said he believed the subject fired one shot, but we're still investigating that."

The shooting was aboard a Convair 990, a four-engine jet owned by Ports of Call Travel Club, a local airline. It was the second jet prepared for Lentz, who earlier rejected a DC8 trainer owned by United Airlines for the flight he demanded to Mexico.

Rosack said Lentz, who faced charges at home including vehicular homicide and larceny, was involved in a gunfight earlier Sunday with authorities in Grand Island.

He went to the Grand Island airport, carried a .22-caliber revolver and a .410 shotgun aboard the Navaho and ordered Blair to take off, Rosack said.

He said Hiller was in the airplane because he had just finished servicing it for flight.

After arriving at Denver's Stapleton International Airport, the plane sat on a runway while FBI agents tried to talk Lentz into surrendering, Rosack said. He demanded a Boeing 747, then a Boeing 737, then any type of commercial aircraft to fly him to Mexico, Rosack said.

The FBI agent said the plane took on fuel after 3½ hours on the ground, then inexplicably took off, circled the airport for about a half-hour and landed. It was refueled and took off again.

During the second flight, Blair got clearance to land at Casper, Wyo., about 250 miles north of Denver, but just north of Greeley, Colo., 50 miles north of Denver, the plane turned back and returned to Stapleton.

Rosack said it was uncertain why Lentz took over the plane in Nebraska, but the FBI agent said he assumed the gunman wanted to leave the country to escape prosecution on the Nebraska charges.

Reporters were not allowed to talk with the pilot and mechanic. They were interviewed into the morning by FBI agents.

Rosack said both hostages were "in close proximity" to Lentz when he was shot. The agent said he couldn't say whether Lentz was challenged by the agents aboard the plane before the shooting began.

The gunman fired five confirmed shots during the episode, Rosack said.

Quake shakes parts of Texas

LEONARD, Okla. (AP) — An earthquake measuring 3.9 on the Richter scale was felt in parts of western Oklahoma and Texas late Sunday night, but there were no reports of damage or injury.

The University of Oklahoma's Earth Sciences Center in Leonard said the quake, described as the strongest in Oklahoma since May 1969, was centered in the tiny, unincorporated community of Durham in Rogers Mills County.

A spokesman for the center said the earthquake struck at 10:43 p.m. and lasted about 10 seconds.

Jim Lawson, geophysicist at the center, said the quake "possibly was strong enough to have cracked foundations in the Durham area."

He said it came on the heels of a quake measuring 3.6 on the Richter which hit the same area on Friday but did no damage.

Lawson said he would not anticipate any damage from the second quake "except possibly some cracked foundations and maybe some dishes being knocked on the floor."

Besides Durham, there were reports the quake in the vicinity of the nearyby communities of Shattuck and Arnett and near Higgins, Tex., which is just across the line in the Texas Panhandle.

Fighting curtailed, cease-fire attempted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fighting dropped off sharply in the Lebanese civil war today as Syrian officers called in Lebanese leaders to try to arrange enforcement of another ceasefire.

"Let's hope for the best," said Premier Rashid Karami. "The security situation all over Lebanon is, relatively speaking, much, much better."

Police reported 18 persons killed and 41 wounded today in scattered shelling in Beirut, nearby mountain towns and Zagharta, President Suleiman Franjieh's hometown in northern Lebanon. More than 100 persons were reported killed Sunday.

Leaders of the warring leftist Moslems and right-wing Christians Saturday night accepted a Syrian proposal for mixed patrols of Palestinian guerrillas and militiamen to restore order under the supervision of a truce committee made up of representatives of the two Lebanese sides and of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

Sources in Damascus, the Syrian capital, said Syrian President Hafez Assad also plans to put Syrian soldiers on patrol with the Palestinians and Lebanese if necessary to enforce the truce. Assad has an estimated 6,000 Syrian troops in frontier areas in eastern and northern Lebanon, and he controls 7,000 men of the Saiqa Palestinian guerrilla organization.

Col. Aly Madani, head of the Syrian military police, and Col. Mohamed Khouly, the Syrian air force intelligence chief, came from Damascus and met with Karami, Palestinian security chief Abu Hassan and other Lebanese chieftains at Karami's home.

Supreme Court nixes Udall ballot appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today declined to decide by May 1 whether Rep. Morris K. Udall is entitled to a place on the ballot in the May 4 Indiana presidential primary.

The court rejected without dissent and without comment a request by the Arizona Democrat for expedited consideration of his appeal from an April 1 decision by a three-judge federal court in Indianapolis.

The lower court upheld Indiana's requirement that a statewide candidate submit 500 supporting signatures from each of the state's 11 congressional districts. Udall fell 15 signatures short in the 6th District.

R. Davy Eaglesfield III of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union, representing Udall and 6th District voter Nancy Salmon, said it would be no hardship for parties to file their briefs on a speeded-up schedule.

He noted that in 1968, the court held a hearing within 30 days after receiving an appeal challenging an Ohio requirement for new political parties seeking a ballot position. In that case, the court struck down a law requiring the parties to file signatures equal to 15 per cent of the vote in the last election for governor.

Under the court's normal schedule, the Udall appeal would not be considered for several weeks and by then the Indiana primary would be over.

Udall, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, first asked Justice John Paul Stevens for an injunction to permit his name to go on the ballot while his appeal was pending.

Israelis kill Arab rioter

JERICHO, Occupied Jordan (AP) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed an Arab rioter and wounded two others in the occupied West Jordan town of Nablus today as thousands of Israeli nationalists ended a two-day march 30 miles away.

A military communique said a patrol was "attacked this morning by a large group of rioters in an alley of the casbah in Nablus. The patrol fired a number of warning shots and as a result three persons were hit."

One of the wounded, a 55-year-old man, died while being rushed to a hospital, the communique said.

The latest Arab death was the sixth casualty in a wave of anti-Israeli riots that have swept the West Bank since February.

The military command announced the incident shortly after thousands of Israelis ended a two-day march demanding that Israel annex the Jordanian territory captured in the 1967 Mideast war and allow Jewish settlement near this biblical city.

Another Arab was wounded by Israeli soldiers in a separate incident near the West Bank town of Jenin, but there were no reports of clashes between Palestinian Arabs and the Jewish marchers.

Family will miss Big Spring

Col. Owens' transfer, Webb's fate unrelated

By JOHN EDWARDS

Col. Robert A. Owens, wing commander at Webb Air Force Base, said his transfer to a staff position in California and consideration given to closing Webb are unrelated.

"My transfer doesn't have anything to do with it," Col. Owens said.

He has been wing commander since July 19, 1974, and two years is a usual tour of duty, Col. Owens said. The commander predicted a number of changes in the Air Command about this time of the year.

Col. Owens was aksed if it could be predicted that Webb would close. "I don't think anybody can say now," Col. Owens said. By fall, the community probably will know, the Air Force officer said.

The public will be allowed to provide input before a decision is made for the good of the nation, he said.

With an excess of training capability, the Secretary of the Air Force wants to close Webb because it has only two runways and some "real property is substandard," Col. Owens said.

"There are other factors that I think will have to be considered," the wing commander said.

"I think we can do the job and do the job as well as any other base," Col. Owens said.

He was questioned about the importance of frequent good flying weather. Col. Owens said the factor determines how efficiently facilities, equipment and personnel can be used to train pilots.

The Owens family will miss Big Spring he said. "From the first day, we arrived we were accepted."

"I think it's always tougher for the children to move," the father of five said. For the three at home, they try to "put it in a positive vein," Col. Owens said.

He reflected on his transfer to deputy director of Aerospace Safety for the Air Force working near San Bernardino, Calif.

"A wing commander's job is a real plum," Col. Owens said. The commander felt he was considered for the staff position, because he had command experience. And he predicted Air Force brass would be "very careful in selecting" someone for the position here."

GNP nears prerecession levels after March jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The volume of the nation's total economic output jumped at an annual rate of 7.5 per cent during the three months ending in March and moved to within a whisker of its prerecession peak, the government said today.

The increase in the volume of the nation's Gross National Product, reported by the Commerce Department, compared to a 5 per cent annual growth rate during the previous quarter.

The jump pushed the dollar value of the GNP to an annual rate of $1.616 trillion — 19.4 per cent ahead of peak output during the final quarter of 1973. But inflation cut the quarter's volume of goods and services to two-tenths of a per cent below the 1973 peak.

The Gross National Product represents the total output of goods and services in the nation's economy and is the broadest gauge of the nation's economic performance.

The quarter's increase is within the range expected by Commerce Secretary Elliot L. Richardson and others, but at the high end of the range. The figures for the quarter are preliminary and subject to revision.

Richardson had said he expected the rate of growth for the first three months of the year to be higher than for the previous three months.

But Richardson noted in an article in "Commerce America," his department's monthly magazine, that the GNP, after adjustment for inflation, would have to grow by 8.5 per cent to retain the prerecession peak.

"It is unlikely that output increased that rapidly in the first quarter, and therefore it will be the second quarter before the previous peak is retained and surpassed," Richardson predicted.

Richardson said the latest GNP figures should show a net increase in business inventories this time and "as final sales continue to rise, inventory accumulation should gain momentum during the remainder of the year."

The latest 7.5 per cent unemployment rate, for example, is already below the 7.7 per cent initially expected to be the average unemployment rate for the year.

Action/reaction: Why they have 'holes'

How did the doughnut get its hole?

Many stories have evolved through the years on how this came about.

One version has it that an Indian shot an arrow through a fried cake being prepared by a Pilgrim woman, and thus, the hole-in-the-center caught on.

Still another story puts it this way: a sea captain invented the hole so he could stack his doughnuts on the spokes of the ship's wheel.

The real story, says Niglio, is that the doughnut hole was invented by a 15-year-old boy in 1847.

The boy, Hanson Gregory, who — while watching his mother make fried cakes — complained that the center of the cakes were always soggy. He began poking the centers out of the cakes before his mother fried them, and thus was born the "doughnut."

There's a plaque by the house in Rockport, Maine, where Hanson lived. It's inscribed: "In commemoration — this is the birthplace of Capt. Hanson Gregory who first invented the hole in the doughnut in 1847."

Speeding costs $56

It was "not a frivolous appeal," County Attorney W. H. (Bill) Eyssen Jr. told County Judge Bill Tune after a jury trial this morning.

And Eyssen voiced no opposition to fining J. T. Boney, 405 Sunset Blvd., $1 plus $55 in court costs for speeding.

Jack Thompson, defense attorney, suggested the fine amount to Judge Tune after a jury found Boney guilty of speeding 57 miles per hour in a 30 miles per hour zone.

Police Patrolman James Nettles testified about the traffic violation which happened on the afternoon of Feb. 7. Boney told the jury he was responding to a call for him to report for work at Cosden Oil & Chemical Co.

Jurors were Mrs. J. R. Swann, Mrs. M. L. Dodds, L. Trammel, Mrs. B. L. Eggleston, E. Taylor and Marion Newton Jr.

Webb AFB employee haunted by lost friends, putrid food, malaria

Time mellowing Bataan death march horrors

By JAMES WERRELL

Carl A. Carlsson now speaks of his experiences in the Philippines, on the Bataan death march, and in Japanese prison camps with a calm detachment that belies the horrors he went through.

It was not always so. For several years after his return from the war Carlsson's dreams were haunted by memories of lost friends, putrid food, beri-beri and malaria.

"In the early years I would sometimes go to sleep and I was there again. It was hard to take, but time has mellowed it," said Carlsson. "Doctors say that the more you talk about it the less it haunts you. Some guys never got over it, they went up the wall," he added.

During his "1,031 days as guest of the Emperor," as Carlsson puts it, he developed ulcers, malaria and "wet and dry beri-beri".

"I still have dysentery, and will probably have it the rest of my life," said Carlsson.

Due to disease and malnutrition, Carlsson suffered a heart attack while back in the U.S.

He has spent 27 years in the military from 1938 to 1965, nine of those years at Webb AFB. He is currently managing the clothing store there, but will soon transfer to another civil service job with the base's food service when his store is incorporated into the military exchange.

"These aren't really hard times for me. I have already retired once, and I'll soon be starting my third career," said Carlsson, jokingly.

But the hard times were in the cards for Carlsson when he enlisted in the Army in

CARL A. CARLSSON

1938. He signed up for his second hitch when the World War started.

"I didn't have sense enough to come back to the States," said Carlsson.

Carlsson had an abiding interest in ordinance, small arms and demolitions. While on the Philippine island of Corregidor he used to hang out with ordinance outfits, and, in a sense, this is what led him into the hands of the Japanese.

"Because of my knowledge of explosives, I was assigned to help blow up our own ammo bodegas (warehouses) before the Japanese could get to them," said Carlsson. "This was on Marvalius, across from Corregidor. There were 13 of us, and we had just finished setting the charge to blow the bodega."

"Just as we were about to get out, we noticed that previous explosions had drawn the Japanese to the area. We were trapped between the exploding ammo and the Japanese. Only two of us walked out of that alive," said Carlsson.

Moments later, however, Carlsson and the only other survivor of the skirmish were captured by another Japanese patrol. For both this meant the beginning of the hellish Bataan death march, a trip Carlsson's companion would not survive.

"My friend fell and rolled down a hill. He was shot. The Japanese gave him a decent burial, though," said Carlsson.

The march lasted a month for Carlsson until he reached Camp O'Donnell, a United States base which had been converted into a POW camp by the enemy. While on the march Carlsson was forced to work in details, clearing paths and cleaning storage areas.

"We lost most of our people at Camp O'Donnell. Almost everyeone there had malaria and dysentery," said Carlsson.

He stayed and worked details at O'Donnell for two months, and was then moved to another converted American base, Clark Field. He spent one and a half years there.

"They fed us fish heads and rice, and that was about all. It was sort of a rice soup. You could smell the food truck coming a mile and a half away. But we heard that the Japanese soldiers were eating much the same food, maybe more vegetables, but about the same. I guess they were more accustomed to it than we were," said Carlsson.

"The work details would sometimes give us a chance to buy food to supplement our diets, and there was some smuggling. There was not much medicine, and we soon ran out of quinine," he said.

At the end of 18 months in the Clark Field camp Carlsson became too sick to work and was transferred to Bilibid Prison in Manilla. He remained there for six months before being moved to a prison camp in Cabanatuan. It was from there that he made his escape.

"At 7:45 p.m. on January 30, 1945, all hell broke loose there. A guy came running up to me and said, 'come on you S.O.B., we're going home!' We were the first to be released by Philippine guerrillas, American Alamo Scouts and 5th Army Rangers," he said.

It was not until he was outside the camp that Carlsson learned the strange prelude to his escape. All the Japanese guarding the camp had been killed or captured, and the POWs were on a 25-mile march back to friendly lines.

"I saw a guy I had met inside the camp, and I asked him where he had gotten the new uniform. It turned out that he and another Ranger had been in and out of the camp for 90 days before the escape checking it out. There were 100 people in all involved in the operation," said Carlsson.

"Between oxcarts and walking we finally made those last 25 miles back to our lines," he said. Carlsson had been listed as missing in action since his capture.

Carlsson served for four years in Morocco before coming to Webb. He said it was an experience he and his family enjoyed very much.

The Army also offered him the option of serving in Japan after the war.

"I don't think I could have handled that," said Carlsson.

Howard County grad to get $1,200 scholarship at HC

A Howard County Four-Year Merit Scholarship for a 1976 graduate of the Howard County high schools has been established by Security State Bank and KMID-TV at Howard College and The University of Texas of the Permin Basin, it was announced today by J. D. Nelson, president of Security State Bank.

Application may be made through high school counselors, and the award will be made on the basis of the student's high school grades, class rank and college entrance exam scores. The award will pay tuition and fees up to $300 per year for four years. Application must be made by May 1.

Nelson stated that the objects of the scholarship program are to recognize outstanding scholastic achievement in high school and to permit an able student to remain in the Permian Basin during four years of his or her college education. An alternate will be chosen to receive the balance of the scholarship in case the grantee fails to complete the four-year term.

The Howard County Four-Year Merit Scholarship is a part of a cooperative effort in eight Permian Basin counties. Other counties where scholarships are being offered are Andrews, Crane Ector, Gaines, Midland, Ward and Winkler.

It is the hope of the sponsors that other business and financial institutions will join with them in making additional merit scholarships available.

A proposal has been made to form a Permian Merit Scholarship Committee for the purpose of continuing and expanding the merit scholarship plan. Interested persons should communicate with the acting chairman of the group, J. Conrad Dunagan of Permian Coca-Cola Bottling Company at Monahans, or with one of the members of the ad hoc committee as follows: Raymond Bristow, president of First National Bank in Andrews; E. F. McGlothlin, president of Well Service Company of Crane; Ernest Schur, chairman of the board of First National Bank in Odessa; John Dunagan, president of Permian Coca-Cola Bottling Company at Monahans; Dwayne Herman, president of Seminole State Bank; Tony Martin, president of Midland National Bank.

Charles Wade, president of First State Bank in Monahans; John Gammill, president of Kermit State Bank; J. D. Nelson, president of Security State Bank in Big Spring; R. F. Herndon, Jr., Executive Vice President and General Manager of KMID-TV; Donald Hughes, vice president and managing officer of Texas Savings & Loan Association, Monahans.

Also Dr. V. R. Cardozier, president of UT-Permian; Dr. Phil Speegle, president of Odessa College; Dr. Al Langford, president of Midland College; Dr. Charles Hayes, president of Howard College; and Conrad Dunagan who is a director of several of the sponsoring corporations.

Dunagan said that it was the hope of the present members of the Committee to increase the number of sponsors, as there are likely to be more worthy applicants than there are scholarships available. Dunagan said, "It needs to be emphasized that these awards will be made strictly on merit and not upon need.

"Some of the outstanding high school scholars of the Permian Basin do not choose to remain in the area during their first four years of college because the older institutions in distant cities have scholarships available based upon achievement — for example, the National Merit Scholarships.

"This is not to deprecate the usefulness of scholarships for those students in need, but students of the Permian Basin area in the greatest need have similar recourse to federal and other assistance in the Basin as those who attend older colleges and universities.

"The most able students, on the other hand, have often found it necessary to go to distant colleges to take advantage of merit scholarships because our local and area colleges and university have not had enough merit-type assistance to accommodate all of the superior students who would like to live in the Basin.

"For students whose parents have combined incomes of less than $8,000 per year, it is generally possible for a needy student to get sufficient federal, state and job assistance to cover 100 per cent of basic college fees and living expenses; but the well-qualified student whose parents are in the middle-income bracket often finds it hard to make end meets.

"We think that there is a compelling need for more merit scholarships in the Permian Basin."

$300,000 bridge plan to be discussed Tuesday

A public hearing concerning the $300,000 bridge proposed for the road to Moss Creek Lake will be held in the County Commissioners Courtroom at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Members of County Commissioners Court, Roger Welch, district engineer for the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, and Joe Smoot, department resident engineer, will be among those present.

Anyone with views about the type of bridge, route of the road or other factors may present them, A. J. Dean, department engineer and technician, said. The bridge would replace a smaller bridge over Beal's Creek.

Could cut defense costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government commission says the United States could cut $3 billion to $4 billion annually from its defense budget by overhauling procedures for military pay, promotion, retirement and other personnel costs. The Defense Manpower Commission proposed scrapping the current retirement system, which allows all members of the armed services to retire at half-pay after 20 years. The seven-member citizens' commission, which was appointed by Congress, also said the United States will have to keep its forces at the current level of 2.1 million regulars and 890,000 reservists for the next decade.

Pope issues warning

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI warned against "blind craving" for material prosperity in an Easter sermon to a crowd of 250,000 in St. Peter's Square. The Pope said "the blind craving exclusively for temporal prosperity could bring man greater unhappiness generated by the very expansion of his capacity to desire more and of his possibility to enjoy." In Warsaw, Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski in his Easter sermon accused Poland's Communist government of "brutality and ruthlessness" for tearing down a church built without government permission.

Will suspect 'come clean?'

Big Spring Police apprehended one local man and scared off an accomplice at a robbery in progress at the Basin Car Wash, 1300 E. 3rd, 11:57 p.m. Saturday. Officer Ron Newby was able to arrest one of the two burglars while the other fled on foot from the scene.

Officers had been informed of the burglary by a business owner near the car wash. Upon arrival they noticed the two suspects attempting to pry open the coin box of one of the business' towel dispensers. Police later found that a coin operated vacuum cleaner and another towel dispenser had been smashed.

Police are now searching for the other suspect in the burglary.

Child injured at local park

Police received a report from Malone-Hogan Hospital, 2:06 p.m. Sunday, regarding the victim of a car-pedestrian accident. Jason Arista, aged three, was struck by a vehicle driven by Ruben Gamboa, 506 N. Nolan.

According to police reports, Arista had run in front of the car from the car's right side near the Settlers Pavilion in Comanche Trail Park. The child was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital. No charges were filed.

Precinct meets to be held May 1

Notices of precinct conventions for the Republican and Democratic parties here were posted today, County Clerk Margaret Ray said. All precinct elections will be held at 7:15 p.m. May 1.

Farm units combine to provide new service

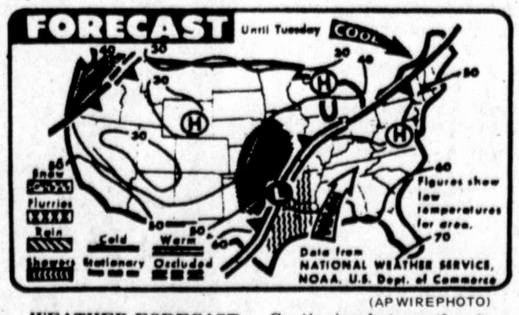

Though each office will retain separate identities, the Howard Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration and Soil Conservation Service have banded together to provide area farmers and ranchers with an Agricultural Service Center. The phone there is 267-2557.

As part of the function of the new service, Tim D. Hall of ASCS wishes to pass the following information on to those interested:

You may continue to transfer allotments by sale, lease or owner designation until May 1. This may be done within or outside of the county.

Signup for reapportioned acres will continue until May 1. However, acres for payment, may not count if a disaster was present at the time the application was filed. It will probably be three to six weeks before the acres are released to this office for distribution.

If justifiable circumstances prevented you from planting cotton by June 1 of this year, and you feel it will be too late after that date for a normal crop, an application for prevented planting payment must be filed not later than 5 days after June 1, 1976. The final planting date for grain sorghum is July 1.

WEATHER FORECAST — Continuing hot weather is forecast today for the East and Southeast. The rest of the nation is expected to be cooler. Showers and rain are forecast from the western Gulf to the Midwest and eastern Plains. Rain is expected in the Pacific Northwest.

Supreme Court hears fair trial-free press challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We do not have spacious profits with which to defend ourselves and our principles, all the way to the Supreme Court, each and every time we feel them to be under attack.... But I am confident that the court will listen to us because we represent the most defenseless among the petitioners."

With these words, H. Brandt Ayers, editor and publisher of the Anniston, Ala., Star, pleaded the cause of the nation's small daily newspapers in a free press-fair trial case which the high court hears arguments on today.

Ayers' letter is quoted in a brief submitted to the court on behalf of news organizations ranging from the Anniston Star, which has a circulation of 28,000, to the major television networks.

The case, which arose out of a Nebraska mass murder, involves conflicting views about the effect of news coverage on the impartiality of potential jurors in criminal cases and the rights of defendants.

Absentee voting in city council race ends today

Absentee voting in the Friday city council runoff ends at 5 p.m. today in the finance office at City Hall.

Information a city spokesman gave earlier that the in-office deadline was Tuesday was incorrect, the spokesman said today.

Mailed ballots must be returned by 10 a.m. Wednesday.

This morning, a total of 65 ballots had been cast absentee, and seven mailed ballots had not been returned.

In the May 1 Democratic Primary, 30 absentee ballots have been cast. The county clerk's office has mailed 55 ballots, none of which has been returned yet.

In the Republican Primary, the total cast this morning was 29. There are 34 ballots in the mail or the hands of voters.

Deaths

Annie Moore

COLORADO CITY — Annie A. Moore, 83, of Colorado City died at 6:45 p.m. Saturday in Root Memorial Hospital after an illness of a few weeks. Services will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday in First United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Bob Ford, pastor, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt, pastor of First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Colorado City Cemetery, directed by Kiker-Seale Funeral Home.

Nora Smith

LAMESA — Services for Mrs. Nora Lee Smith, 90, of Lamesa, will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the First Presbyterian Church here with the Rev. Clem Sorley, Presbyterian minister of Gatesville, officiating.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park under direction of Branon Funeral Home.

Mrs. Smith died at 11 a.m. Sunday in Medical Arts Hospital here following an extended illness.

She was the widow of the late Dr. A. H. Smith, who preceded her in death July 23, 1968.

A native of Hopkins County, she had resided in Lamesa 52 years. The former Nora Alexander, she married Dr. Smith Jan. 3, 1914, in Hopkins County.

In the early 1900s, she had served as Postmistress at Ridgway, Tex. She was a lifelong Presbyterian.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Richard Holton of Spearman; two sons, James A. Smith of El Paso and J. Frank Smith of Lamesa; a sister, Mrs. John Huffman of Grapevine; six grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Mrs. Glenn

Mrs. Noble (Stella) Glenn, 60, died at 6:40 p.m. Sunday in a Big Spring hospital after a long illness.

Funeral services are pending in Amarillo at Schooler-Gordon Funeral Home.

Big Spring arrangements were by Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

She is survived by her husband, Noble Glenn, of Big Spring.

Emrey Dennis

Emrey Dennis, 82, of Big Spring died at 9:45 a.m. Sunday in a local hospital following a short illness. Services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Cason, Monk and Co. Funeral Chapel in Nacogdoches.

The Rev. T. D. Lumsford, pastor of Lilly Grove Baptist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rock Springs Cemetery, Nacogdoches County. Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

Born Jan. 25, 1894, in Nacogdoches, he had been a resident of Big Spring 10 years and had lived in West Texas 25 years. He was a Navy veteran of World War I.

Survivors include two sisters, Zula Parmley of Nacogdoches and Zadie Page of Livingston; a half-sister, Mrs. Ollie Griffith of Baytown; a half-brother, R. D. Dennis of Pampa and several nieces and nephews.

Hardy Murdock

Hardy Murdock, 76, died this morning at his residence at 800 E. 17th.

Services are pending for 2 p.m. Tuesday at Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Murdock was born May 24, 1899 in Calahan County, Tex. He was a retired water-well driller and had lived in Big Spring about 30 years.

He was a Methodist and a member of the VFW.

He is survived by two brothers, Lewis C. Murdock of Big Spring, and Carl Murdock of Alba, Tex.

FACES IN THE CROWD — Tricia Nixon Cox, the daughter of former President Richard M. Nixon, and her husband, Edward, take part in the annual promenade on New York's Fifth Avenue, Easter Sunday. For the record, it was the hottest day ever recorded for April in the city, with the temperature zooming to 96 degrees early in the afternoon.

Uses gentle nature

'Friendly rapist' haunts Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A man, who has roamed the singles apartment complexes in northeastern Dallas and attacked about 30 women during the past two years, has been dubbed by police as the "friendly rapist."

The label has evolved from the rapist's reportedly gentle nature with his victims while following an almost identical routine that police say is carefully planned in advance.

No one has been able to get a good description of the man, who also is known as the "friendly burglar."

This is how police say he works:

He always chooses apartments, most of them in the same area, and his victims have consistently been attractive working women, usually in their early 20s.

He always strikes between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., but no particular day of the week, or interval between attacks has been discerned.

He forces entry through a window or patio, but never through the front door.

His victim is always asleep, and the first time she knows he is in the room is when he puts his hand over her mouth and says, "Don't scream. I'm not going to hurt you, but I do have a knife."

He reminds the victim several times that he has never hurt anyone, but will if she makes any noise. "Don't worry, I'm just a burglar," he says.

He then ties his victim's hands to the bed post, always with a telephone cord from the victim's apartment, and places something, like a pillow case or sheet, over the victim's head.

He then undresses the victim, but leaves and begins searching the apartment. He does this so quietly that he has never awakened a victim's roommate.

He tells the victm he will take a number of valuables, but has only stolen cash sitting open around the apartment.

After casing the apartment, he returns to the victim's room, rapes her and leaves the same way he got in.

Police say the rapist always speaks gently and has never lost his temper or beaten a victim. All the victims, however, said they felt what they believed was a knife pressed to their side when the rapist first confronted them.

His habit of entering in the dark when the victim is asleep, and covering her face soon after arriving has prevented good identification, police say.

Police say their efforts to catch the man are continuing, but have labeled the search "disheartening."

Detectives have come up with a partial description that indicates the man is white, in his late 20s, about 5 feet 9 inches and weighing between 160 and 175 pounds.

"There probably is not going to be a magic clue pop up," said Lt. J. M. Wilson of the police department. "It probably will have to be just a plain, everyday thing to happen before we can catch him," like a witness seeing the rapist entering an apartment, or a victim awakening in time to call for help.

Chamber program fights crime

An awareness is growing in this country that our law enforcement officers cannot stop crime — at least, not by themselves.

THE PERIOD of "not getting involved" is passing. Signs are becoming visible that public outrage over crime may at last be reaching the point where citizens will act to stop it.

I doubt that even New York City residents could be able to walk past a girl under assault today as they did a decade and a half ago.

Citizen participation is a must if our policemen are going to check this nation's criminal element. It is starting to happen. One indication is the CB radio operators' cooperation with police in many cities.

'OPERATION CRIME FIGHT'
Big help for police

Last Week, Ralph Brooks talked to me about another method of citizen participation in fighting crime.

Brooks, vice president for public affairs for the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, said that the chamber is reactivating a program called "Operation Crime Check."

This chamber program is one that encourages persons to phone in a recorded crime fighter message and leave a recorded tip for police. The caller can identify himself or not.

A $200 reward is offered for information which leads to the arrest and conviction of a criminal.

THE CHAMBER IS making "Operation Crime Check" signs available for merchants who wish to participate.

Most kinds of crime are still on the increase in Big Spring.

Only on television do policemen continuously find that one little hair-thin clue which leads to the solution of some big crime. Most day-in, day-out police work must rely on tips from people to isolate and arrest criminals.

So if you think you might have information about a crime of any kind, night or day, phone 263-6769 and tell the recorder about it.

The burglary you prevent might be your own.

Violence, censorship

Around the rim

James Werrell

Much has been said of violence in movies and television. Usually there is a wholesale condemnation of the depiction of any violence. At other times the condemnation serves as a veiled justification for more sex on the screens ("I'd much rather have my kids see naked women than someone getting his head blown off!) One may assume that violent, naked women make for the most objectionable movies (or TV shows).

BUT PUTTING aside the subject of sex (a difficult thing to do nowadays, or ever for that matter), I would like to raise a qualified cry in favor of the depiction of violence on the screen, large and small.

Violence is a part of life at all levels. It has always been so, and may always be so. Inasmuch as art follows life, violence is a necessary ingredient in art.

What we must do is narrow the framework in which violence is legitimate on the screen, and condemn that which is truly objectionable; bad art. Is violence portrayed as an end in itself? Must one commit violence in order to prove true courage? Is violence condoned as the first step in solving a problem? If so, the portrayal is morally defunct.

TAKE TV cop shows for example. An especially bad and violent one is "Starsky and Hutch." The two stars are cute. They drive fast cars, get the girls, and they kill people. It is not the violence in itself that is deplorable, it is the atmosphere in which it is committed, the ease with which the two guys dispatch the villains without the blink of an eye.

On only one cop show, an episode of "Kojak," have I seen a policeman portrayed as becoming physically ill after shooting a man. This is violence at its best; a part of life, but a dirty business nonetheless.

The ballet-like ambush at the end of the movie "Bonnie and Clyde" was a beautiful moment on film. It suggested a larger view of the roots of violence, the fact that violence breeds upon itself. This is something that later cheap imitations of the movie never bothered with. They only offered the audience blood and guts for a few minutes of cheap thrills. It is the casual murder of a faceless victim, who had no opportunity in the film to give a clue to his humanity, that is disgusting.

ONE OF THE most violent, but least graphic, scenes I have ever seen in a movie was the one in which a labor organizer played by John Carradine in the film "The Grapes of Wrath" was killed. He was beaten to death under a bridge by men using clubs and their bare hands. It was dark, and the characters were silhouetted against the sky.

But the violence was there. One was aware of what drove the men to murder, and that a piece of them died along with their victim. One was also aware that something larger, a cause, had died with the man.

IT IS VERY difficult to determine which or how much violence on the screen is legitimate. There is often just a fine line separating the depiction of violence that promotes sanity and reason in life, and that which promotes only more violence. Yet it is a necessary question. To remove violence from art would deprive the artist of one more link with life, the worst kind of censorship.

News council

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The other day I came upon a young professor at a major university whose doctorate is in political science, a scholar of learning and conscience who actually said: "I wonder why Henry Kissinger doesn't sue Woodward & Bernstein for libel?" Several students in the room appeared to agree that Mr. Kissinger's failure to take legal action, while in no way probatory as to his guilt, substantially vitiated his claims to having been misrepresented in the new Nixon book in which he is alleged to have said all kinds of spiteful things about his former boss. It was the opinion of the professor that the Supreme Court had recently retreated sufficiently from its stand discouraging public officials from libel suits to render suspect Mr. Kissinger's inaction.

TO PUT THE matter briefly, the professor is dead wrong. It is interesting that the rationale of Sullivan vs. New York Times, in 1964, attempted to be entirely practical. That is, the Court took the position it took — requiring proof of "actual malice" before a public official could collect — on the grounds that it sought to encourage "robust" and "wide-open" discussion.

As a practical matter, Henry Kissinger could not bring a successful lawsuit against Woodward & Bernstein if they had accused him of seducing Tricia. For one thing, under federal rules of procedure there is virtually no limitation on the avenues of inquiry open to a defendant's lawyer in the pretrial deposition. "Tell me, Dr. Kissinger, didn't you seek to ingratiate yourself with Tricia while you were maneuvering for the position of Secretary of State in her father's government?" — that kind of thing, and a lot worse, is permitted: and it takes someone far-gone in academic isolation to believe that an acting Secretary of State can sue anybody for anything.

Which brings me to the National News Council. Here is one of the truly imaginative responses by the private sector to the thirst for at least platonic justice in an age of libel suits as an increasingly anachronized instrument. Henry Kissinger, assuming he could sue Woodward & Bernstein, wouldn't care about damages — he would be jubilant. The National News Council's Grievance Committee was organized with a single end in mind: to listen to complaints against the national media, to listen to defenses by those against whom the complaints are lodged, and to render an opinion.

OF WHAT FORCE is that opinion? Of no judicial force whatsoever. It is this aspect of the matter which, in my judgment, renders the National News Council so very exciting. It is dedicated to the proposition that a concern for the truth is not necessarily a justiciable question which you can arrive at only after spending tens of thousands of dollars at court.

The quest for the truth, the founders believe, is worth while pursuing for so long as people care. So, with grants from the 20th Century Fund and others, they set up shop: originally under the chairmanship of retired Chief Justice Traynor, the liberal Californian; subsequently under retired Chief Justice Fuld of New York.

What is spooky is the silent treatment the NNC has received. The New York Times decided as a matter of policy not to cooperate with it — on the grounds, presumably, that although it was without authority to punish, the mere issuance of an opinion suggested a spiritual violation of the prohibitions of the First Amendment.

Druggists, refill complaints

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: As I was reading your column the other day, rejoicing again at the discovery of yet another set of symptoms I have thus far been spared, a thought occurred: you are in a marvelous position to provide an additional service to the public, and to physicians and pharmacists as well.

Would you kindly devote a column sometime soon to the medical reasons why refilling of prescriptions is limited by the law or by the prescriber?

As a retail pharmacist I find that I am constantly trying to convince my customers that the limitation on refills is for their own benefit. Sometimes I find that my concern for their health is not appreciated. They sometimes seem to regard the pharmacist as an unwitting collaborator in a physician-inspired scheme to "get the patient in for another visit" to enhance the doctor's financial security.

A few lines from you dealing with such questions as why a prescription for an antibiotic that may have helped someone last September might not help her (or her sister-in-law) the following February, even though the symptoms are the same, could do much to educate the public in this respect.

Antibiotics are not the only problem, of course. Sometimes even more difficult for people to understand is why the physician has limited the number of refills on a diuretic, on a muscle relaxer, or on a hypotensive, etc. — F. H.

Of course, your points are well-taken in connection with all prescribed drugs, including the ones you mention. The "Physician's Desk Reference," a book with which you must be familiar, is filled with detailed information on possible side-effects of thousands of drugs available to physicians today. It is just common prudence for the prescribing physician to want to periodically monitor patients who are taking any of them.

I have emphasized this indirectly in the past. Thanks for making the point more dramatically, from the pharmacist's standpoint.

In an increasingly pill-popping society, caution is needed to avoid unnecessary medication, habituation, or the toxic effects from overdose, either short or long-term.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What symptoms does a woman get, if any, when she gets to menopause after a hysterectomy? I had the uterus, one ovary, and one tube removed at 40. That was 10 years ago, and now I am wondering what more to expect. I'm not exactly sitting home waiting for it. I am and always have been very active in sports. — Mrs. D. E.

You most likely will have no symptoms. Your single-ovary removal 10 years ago amounted to a kind of partial "surgical menopause." In other words your ovary hormone production was cut roughly in half at that point.

Now your remaining ovary is declining in production, and if you were to have symptoms (such as flashes, etc.) they would have appeared by now.

Your active life has been helpful and will continue to be in the years ahead. Congratulations. You are one of many women who will apparently sail right through menopause without running into shoals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In urinating I get excruciating pain at the very end of my penis. The pain then leaves and does not appear for several days. Your suggestions would be appreciated. — R. A. K.

Since the pain does not occur with each urination (you have several days free of symptoms) it is possible you may be passing small blood clots or even small stones. Infection and ulceration of the urethra could be factors. In fact, the problem can lie as far distant as the bladder.

Any such pain during urination demands a rather complete investigation, preferably by a urologist.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 26-year-old male and have never had sexual intercourse due to impotence which occurs at the critical moment. Are there any drugs that would allow me to have and hold an erection? — T. L. P.

Your problem is psychological, not physical, so you should seek psychiatric help or sex counseling.

To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Arms for Tito

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Although final agreement has not been reached, the Ford administration is now moving fast toward a new arms deal with Communist Yugoslavia laden with far more political than military significance.

The deal: selling Belgrade the advanced U. S. anti-tank weapon, called the TOW wire-guided missile. Initial delivery would probably be limited to training units because the weapon is in extremely short supply.

BUT EVEN starting at a low level, the central point would be quickly perceived by Moscow and its Warsaw Pact allies in Eastern Europe: that the U. S. claims a direct and active mission in maintaining Yugoslavia's independence from Soviet interference after the death of President Tito.

Tito, now 84, has governed Yugoslavia since World War II. Following his break with Moscow in 1948, he left the Soviet bloc for non-aligned, Third World status.

The prospect of Soviet machinations after Tito is certain, in an effort to break that independence and destroy the fragile unity which has held the country together despite conflicting cultures and different languages.

Thus, what the Ford administration is signalling Moscow by means of the current arms talks with Yugoslavia is to keep hands off, or risk counteraction by the West. This comports with the warning of State Department counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt in his otherwise highly controversial session last December with U. S. diplomats in London: "We . . . have an interest which borders on the vital for us in continuing the independence of Yugoslavia from Soviet domination."

THE CLUE to President Ford's unannounced intention to resume serious arms sales to Yugoslavia is found in an almost hidden passage contained in the administration's justification of its far-flung arms deals (the "Security Assistance Program") submitted to Congress last month.

Referring to Yugoslavia's "strategically important position in the heart of the Balkans," the statement praises its "independent politics" and non-alignment and asserts an American policy "to be as responsive as possible" to Belgrade's arms requests.

The new Security Assistance Program for the year starting on Oct. 1 includes $1.5 million for cash sales to Yugoslavia — an amount far greater than any military sales to Belgrade since the early 1960s. Indeed, with one exception, the total amount of arms sales — spare parts and ammunition — over the past 11 years combined barely equals the amount that President Ford has agreed to sell next year.

'Ethnic purity'

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Former Gov. Jimmy Carter introduced a phrase into the campaign which may haunt him right up until nomination day in New York City. To most people "ethnic purity" meant keeping their neighborhoods the way they are.

While ethnic purity may be something new in politics, any kid raised in a large city knows about it from the age of six and many grown-ups still carry the nightmares of it to this day.

A CITY like New York, for example, had its Irish, Italian, Spanish, black and Jewish neighborhoods and these territories, for most kids, were as well guarded as any Iron Curtain country.

To pass through another's ethnic neighborhood was a dangerous, foolhardy thing that could lead to anything from a bloody nose to physical torture.

This is how it went for many kids in my day and for all I know is still going on in various ethnic communities of our nation.

"Hey, creep, what are you doing in our neighborhood?"

"I was just passing through on my way to the movie theater on 14th St."

"That's a likely story. You was coming into our neighborhood to spy on us, weren't you?"

"No, I swear I wasn't. I didn't look to the right or to the left. I have no idea what the neighborhood looks like. Honest."

"How come you don't go to the movie theater in your own neighborhood?"

"I seen the picture there — three times." John Garfield is playing in a new movie at the Loew's. I'll be out of here in three hours."

"How would you like it if one of us went to a movie in your neighborhoods?"

"It wouldn't matter to me at all. Honest. Just last week I saw one of your people in a movie in our neighborhood and it didn't bother me. I hardly noticed him."

"Well, if it didn't bother you, how come you noticed him in the first place?"

"He smelled from garlic and I was sitting in front of him."

"You don't like people who smell from garlic?"

"I DIDN'T say that. I just said I smelled the garlic and I knew he was from this neighborhood."

"And I suppose you told all the people in your neighborhood there was a guy in your theater smelling from garlic."

"I didn't have to. They could all smell the garlic too."

"So what did you do?"

"We didn't do anything — except move away from him."

"You didn't tell him he shouldn't be in your neighborhood?"

"I didn't. Maybe somebody else did. I can't remember. Look, we have nothing against you people. It's the Irish kids we don't want in our neighborhood. They know better than to come in our neighborhood, but your people are welcome any time."

"That's a bunch of baloney, you creep. We're going to have to teach you a lesson."

"Listen, I just remembered. I don't really want to see the John Garfield movie. Blindfold me and I'll be out of here before you know it."

"WE'RE NOT going to let you go back to your own neighborhood without something to remember us by. If we let one guy walk through everybody will think they can come into our territory to go to a movie."

"That is a problem and I respect you for it. I shall inform the kids in my neighborhood that if they want to go to a movie in your neighborhood they will have to ask permission first."

"Not so fast. Put up your fists."

"Really, I don't want to fight. You've made a very strong case for not wanting strangers in your neighborhood and I'm very glad you explained it to me."

POW!!!!!! "Let that be a lesson to you, knothead. The next time it will be more than your nose."

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

March-April, 1776:

Several developments, diplomatic and military: (1) In early March, Congress names Silas Deane as its agent to France, with orders to buy war materiel. (2) On March 25, a diplomatic mission, appointed by Congress in mid-February, sets out from Philadelphia for Canada. Its members — Benjamin Franklin and three Marylanders (Samuel Chase, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, and his cousin John Carroll) — fail in their mission to persuade French Canadians to the American cause. (3) Having left Cambridge April 4, George Washington and the main Continental army arrive April 13 in New York, correctly expecting it to be the next major British objective. (4) On April 17, Captain John Barry in the 16-gun brig Lexington captures the 8-gun British tender Edward.

Family survives tornado, dies in fire

MARQUEZ, Tex. (AP) — A year ago, Harvey Foley and his family somehow survived a tornado that demolished their home near this tiny Central Texas community. Sunday, they were not as fortunate with a fire.

Foley, 70, a retired railroad section worker, his wife and daughter and three other men died when flames razed Foley's four-room, frame house shortly after midnight.

Justice of the Peace H. G. Lanier said the blaze engulfed the tin-roofed dwelling before it was discovered. Efforts to reach the occupants were futile.

The cause of the fire is a mystery, Lanier said, and an investigation continued today.

In addition to Foley, the victims were identified as his wife, Johnnie, 56; their daughter Connie Foley, 23; and three guests—Robert S. Winston, 33; his brother, George Winstead, 43, and their cousin, Raymond Winstead, 25.

Lanier said late Sunday night that authorities had not ruled out the possibility of arson in the fire.

He said the house burned "real fast" and it was not known if the victims were asleep at the time.

The Foley family had rented the home about a year ago from the Winsteads, Lanier said. They moved into the house after a tornado demolished their former home just oustside Marquez.

Marie Osmond hurt in crash

NEPHI, Utah (AP) — Pop singer Marie Osmond, 16, cut her face and her mother injured her ribs when Marie drove a car into a trailer her father was towing.

Marie was treated and released from Utah Valley Hopsital after the collision Saturday night on a highway 40 miles south of the Osmond family home in Provo. Her mother, Olive, was listed in satisfactory condition there on Sunday.

The highway patrol said Marie was driving a 1973 Mercedes when it struck the rear of a rental trailer towed by a van driven by her father, George Osmond. Others in the 11-member family of entertainers were in cars following behind the two vehicles involved in the accident.

Members view exhibit at Heritage Museum

Members of the Woman's Forum met Friday at the Heritage Museum to view an exhibit concerning early day churches in this area.

Members then went to the home of Mrs. C. R. Wiley for a program and refreshments.

The group voted on club projects for 1976-77. Projects concern the State Hospital, paying a membership at the Lakeview YMCA, a family counseling service, and the Westside center.

The group also voted in a new member, Mrs. Ralph Henderson.

The next meeting will be a luncheon in the home of Mrs. Bert Shive. Date of the luncheon is May 21. Installation of officers will be conducted during the meeting.

Ruth Dynamo breaks streak of downfalls

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruth Laredo, a tiny Detroit dynamo, has burst out of her wife-and-mother cocoon and soared across the musical skies as probably the world's pre-eminent woman pianist.

Just a few years ago her name followed the words "accompanied by" on posters advertising concerts by her then-husband, violinist Jaime Laredo.

She looked like a loser.

"I lost every competition there is," she said in an interview. "I went to Moscow and lost, Brussels — you name it. I sure didn't come up the competition route."

How she did come up was via 14 years of duo playing with her Bolivian-born husband and a marriage that collapsed in March 1974 and changed not only her personal life, but her life as a musician.

A few months later she made her debut with the New York Philharmonic playing Ravel's fiendishly difficult "Piano Conceto in G" to what could only be called ecstatic reviews.

It was after this concert that the New York Times wrote she might become "the present generation's first truly major American woman pianist" — a prophecy many critics think her concerts and recordings since then have brought true.

Each concert has brought forth praise, words like "virtuosic" from the Los Angeles Times, "coruscating," from Stereo Review, "a whipcracking performance," from the New York Times, "smashing, sensational," from the New York Post.

Ruth, who may now be hailed as probably the world's pre-eminent female pianist, is a gutsy half-pint from Detroit's inner city. Her mother is a piano teacher and her father, Ben Meckler, recently resigned as a high school principal.

Encouraged by her family — "I thought I had talent and so did they" — she went to Curtis Institute in Philadelphia and studied with the prestigious Rudolf Serkin.

"You play like a tiger," he said, a verdict one New York Times critic agreed with, although another saw her as sort of a hummingbird, because she's so tiny — barely over 5 feet.

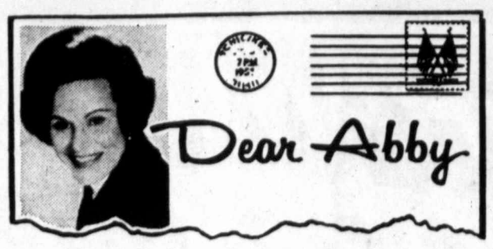

At a not-quite-capacity concert at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall on Good Friday night, she really looked like a hummingbird — darting swiftly onto the stage, whirling a trail of bright orange chiffon, and then perching on a specially raised stool at the piano.

"But what hummingbird ever packed the power Miss Laredo brought to bear?" the Times asked after an earlier recital. "Miss Laredo deserved every cheer she received."

Friday night was all cheers too as the 39-year-old stormed though Beethoven's "Sonata in E Flat Major" while her No. 1 fan, 7-year-old daughter Jennifer, nibbled cookies and waited in the wings.

"Are you exhausted?" she was asked as she came off stage and kissed Jennifer.

"Yes!" she exclaimed, rolling her dark brown eyes. "I would have needed a blood transfusion to play one more note."

Teen fears growing up to problems

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 13, and I have been reading your column since I was about 11. From the looks of the way married people hate each other, it makes me afraid to get married.

I don't think it would be very much fun to be a grownup because they have so many problems like getting jobs, paying taxes and the whole political mess. I don't know what I am going to do when I get out of school, but I think I'd rather just spend my whole life in school than be an adult in a world like this one. People keep talking about peace and love, and all they do is go around hurting and killing each other.

What do you think I should do?

AFRAID TO GROW UP

DEAR AFRAID: Grow up anyway. We need adults who are dissatisfied with a world filled with people who say they want peace but go around hurting and killing each other. And don't decide against marriage either. My column is a trouble dump. There are plenty of good marriages, but nobody ever writes to Dear Abby to tell me how happy he is.

DEAR ABBY: Is yawning a sign of physical fatigue? Or is it a sign of boredom?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: It can be either or both. It's usually an involuntary opening of the mouth when you wish others would shut theirs.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the distressed parent who was shocked at her daughter's "dishonesty and bad taste" in choosing to wear a white wedding gown when everybody knew she was no virgin provoked me into writing this.

My daughter is divorced, over 30, and no virgin either, but she is planning to be married soon, and she has chosen to wear a white gown. In fact, I am knitting it for her now, and I couldn't be happier.

I don't feel that my daughter is declaring herself a virgin by wearing white. She is declaring herself a bride. For that I am thankful.

She could have chosen to live with her partner instead of marrying him.

ALL FOR WHITE IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Out of the blue, for no reason whatsoever, my husband decided to destroy all of our credit cards! He could just as easily have put them away to be used only in case of emergency, such as unexpected expenses.

I work just as my husband does, and I pay my share of the bills, so I think I should have had a say in this matter. But he just made up his mind and destroyed all our credit cards.

What should I do?

UPSET IN TEXAS

DEAR UPSET: Since you are employed, you can have credit cards issued in your name! The Equal Opportunity Act (passed in October 1975) gives you that right.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

New baby may bring doubts to new parents

COLLEGE STATION — All the long months of waiting have passed and finally the great event occurs — a new baby in the family.

But parents may suddenly find themselves wondering "why did we have this baby in the first place."

Mrs. Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, says this feeling isn't unusual. There are many motives for pregnancy and parenthood which may be rooted in desires not directly related to the baby itself. Some may even be selfish and immature, she added.

"But if a couple learns to view thier child as an independent being, rather than an extension of their own egos, and can feel a loving concern for the child, the baby's birth can be a joyous event after all," she said.

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She pointed out that some women may want a baby to fill an emptiness in their lives or to make them feel more feminine. For other women, pregnancy provides an opportunity for others to take care of them and provide the extra attention they seek.

"Young couples may be pressured into parenthood to fulfill the expectations of the community or to provide grandchildren for their parents. Families and friends assume the couple wants children so it is not long after the wedding before they hear, 'When do you plan to start your family?'"

The specialist also noted that there may be a certain degree of prestige with parenthood. The baby helps the parents to justify their own lives and prove their virility. Also the family name continues.

"For other couples, the baby may fill an empty marriage or provide a playmate for an only child — or themselves.

"All these immature, selfish reasons for having a baby may result in frustration and dissatisfaction when the couple realizes they alone are responsible for the baby — who is totally dependent on them," she said.

Pregnancy and parenthood are times of crisis — times when old patterns of coping with stress and change are no longer sufficient. Pregnancy and parenthood necessitate role changes as the couple assumes new responsibilities for the emotional and physical well-being of their child, the specialist said.

'Poverty of the trapped'

Some children suffer from "poverty of the trapped." Through generations of poor education, discrimination and malnutrition, they no longer have the will or stamina to get themselves out, Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, notes.

Rebekah members plan initiation ceremony

Members of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge met recently.

Billie Martin presided as noble grand.

A resolution of sympathy was read for James Shubert, brother of Rebekah member Pauline Petty.

The group had an Easter program presented by Mrs. Lavern Maddox, Mrs. Elizabeth Beck, and Mrs. Lida Boland. Mrs. Boland read a poem about the Easter Bunny, and Mrs. Maddox read a legend concerning dogwood. Mrs. Beck played the guitar and sang for the group.

The lodge will have an initiation ceremony Tuesday evening. All officers are to dress formally. Time of the meeting is 7 p.m.

Believed bath was dangerous

Just a little over 100 years ago, it was believed by the American people that taking a bath too often was uncalled for and even dangerous to ones health if taken during the winter months. In Pennsylvania, there was even an attempt to make it illegal to bathe from November to March.

When the bathtub "hit it big" in England, the American public denounced it as an "epicurean innovation from England designed to corrupt the simplicity of the Republic."

One can imagine the public furor that arose in 1851 when it was announced that a bathroom was to be installed in the White House, says Mrs. Janice Carberry, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Something for all

The new season's shoes will offer something for everyone. They range from dressy pumps to sporty boots. Heel heights also will vary from high and slender to low and chunky, Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, reports.

Chili cookoff is slated May 9

SAN ANGELO — The umpteenth chili cook-off in Texas has been set for Sunday, May 9, in San Angelo, according to Sam Pendergrast, sometime chili judge, full-time chilidiot, and editor and publisher of the West Texas magazine called "OESTE" that was founded en route to the Terlingua IX contest in November of 1975.

"It's just too long between chilifests," Pendergrast explained in letters inviting known chiliheads to participate in the First Annual "HEMI-DEMI-SEMI-CENTENNIAL" Invitational Chili Cook-off set up to mark the grand opening of Phillip Connell and Sons Portable Building lot on a field opposite San Angelo's Dun-Bar East Motel and near St. John's Hospital in the 1700 block of Pulliam in San Angelo.

The name — which refers to a very short period of time — was picked to give aid and comfort to West Texans and furriners who don't want to make a federal case out of bicentennializing, but the emphasis will be on fun and fellowship, Pendergrast said. (Nearly free chili and beer will be served, courtesy of Connell and Sons, with the dime-a-cup prices to go to the American Cancer Society drive.)

Fire sites and mesquite wood will be provided, but all other accoutrements and ingredients are up to the contestants. Prizes will be in the form of plaques and kind words, with small cash awards for children's and family contests.

Judging will be at 3 p.m., with the grounds open to the general public from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

A dozen of the most notorious chilidiot aggregations in Texas have been invited, but others may enter while space lasts by contacting Pendergrast at P.O. Box 2186, San Angelo (Phone 915-653-4116).

A similar cook-off last October attracted more than 1500 participants and visitors despite only three weeks of organizing and promotion. (The "First Annual Sons of the Penatekas" Cook-off sponsored by the San Angelo POW-MIA organization, whose winning team, the San Angelo Jaycees, won the "Humpty-Dumpty Memorial Award" for falling in a hole during the Terlingua IX affair.)

There will be no admission and no entry fees, Pendergrast promised.

NCO Wives recognized by VA Hospital

At the business meeting Tuesday, the Non-Commissioned Officers Wives Club received a certificate for "Recognition of Volunteer Service to Veterans Award."

Making the presentation was Dene Sheppard, director of volunteer services at the Veterans Administration Hospital. Jean Murphey, VA Hospital chairman, accepted the certificate on behalf of the club.

Different members of the group serve at the hospital throughout the year.

Introduced as a new member was Mrs. Joyce Back.

The club plans a social at 7:30 p.m., April 27 in the NCO Open Mess. All NCO wives are welcome. For more information call Janie Harmon at 263-3073.

A tempting offer on a gas grill.

Right now, we're making you a tempting offer on gas grills with twin burners! Independently controlled twin burners never use more gas than you need. For big meals, use both burners. For smaller meals, save gas and money by using one burner and half the grill. A gas grill adds a new dimension to family meals and entertaining. It eliminates the fuss and bother of cooking outside while it keeps the flavor and the fun. And, because you take cooking heat out of the house and the burden off your air conditioning, you save energy, too.

Buy one of these grills before August 1, 1976, and save.

Ranger snaps slump

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Leave it to Texas Ranger pitching ace Gaylord Perry to notice when a hitter is doing something wrong.

Only in the case of young Mike Hargrove, who has yet to hit under .300 going into his third American League baseball season, he is fortunate that the foxy, 37-year-old Perry is on the same team.

Hargrove was a struggling .217 hitter going into Sunday's first game of a doubleheader against Milwaukee and the former American League Rookie of the Year decided to heed some of Perry's advice.

"You're getting your weight too far foward and not pivoting," said Perry. "You're trying to hit the ball too much with your arms."

Hargrove took extra batting practice, then teed off on Milwaukee ace Jim Slaton, who had hurled back-to-back shutouts. Hargrove touched Slaton for a three-run homer in the third inning, lashed a single in the fifth, ripped an RBI single in the seventh and rattled the boards with a double in the eighth.

Texas won 7-4 on Hargrove's four-for-five effort and the likeable left-hander's batting average jumped to .321.

Milwaukee captured the nightcap 4-1 on Don Money's two RBI singles and Bill Travers' five-hit pitching backed by relief help from Eduardo Rodriguez.

Hargrove started the season 0-11 at the bat, and said, "I thought I might go the whole season without a hit and strike out 160 times. I'm not surprised Gaylord found out what was wrong ... that's his job to see those things in hitters."

Hargrove, who now has nine hits in his last 18 at-bats, said, "The slump wasn't bothering me as much as the one I had last year. The team wasn't winning then and it was my sophomore season. You put things in different perspective when the team is winning. It's been a long time since I got four hits and five RBIs in a game."

Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas said of Hargrove, "He's a good hitter. Good hitters have a way of snapping out of slumps."

The loss dropped Slaton to a 2-1 record and gave Bill Singer his first victory as a Texas Ranger.

Singer, obtained in a trade with California and coming back from off-season elbow surgery, earned his first victory in a Ranger uniform.

"My arm felt good in the eighth inning and that was encouraging," said Singer. "I'm surprised that (Manager Frank) Lucchesi took me out."

Grammas said of Singer, "I remember him when he could take that bat away from you. He doesn't have as much velocity now, but he still throws a good curve."

Both the Rangers and Brewers are idle today. Milwaukee is in second place in the AL East with a 4-2 record while the Rangers, who own a 6-3 record, are in first place a half game ahead of Chicago in the AL West.

You hold him — till I get the ball

Rick Monday of Chicago Cubs has Philadelphia Phillies' second baseman Dave Cash (30) to contend with as he returns to first base following pop-up by Jose Cardenal in first inning of Saturday's game at Chicago. Cash has his problems, too, as Phillies' catcher Bob Boone (8) hits him with glove after receiving throw from first baseman Dick Allan, who caught Cardenal's pop-up. Phillies won, 18-16, in 10 innings.

Punch & Judy-hitters rip Hunter back-to-back

By The Associated Press

Catfish Hunter was rolling along, staring his second victory of the season in the face, when two light-hitting Twins derailed the New York Yankees' ace right-hander.

"I give up lot of guys' first home runs," Hunter sighed. "I'm used to it. It used to get me mad, but you can't do anything about it except try and get the next guy out."

The Yankees were leading 4-2 in the top of the ninth and Hunter had limited the Minnesota Twins to just five hits. But that was before Lyman Bostock and Butch Wynegar came to the plate.

Larry Hisle started the Twins' rally with a one-out single. Hunter then got a two-strike count on Bostock, who had not hit a home run in his 102 previous major league games.

"Munson (catcher Thurman) wanted the next pitch in the dirt," Hunter said, "but I reared back and tried to put a little extra on a breaking ball and threw it right down the middle."

"I didn't think it was going out," said in right center tied the game. "A guy who doesn't hit any home runs doesn't know when the ball is gone."

Indians 6, Royals 0

Pat Dobson limited Kansas City to five hits through eight innings and Cleveland scored on errors and stolen bases to crush the Royals. John Lowenstein walked in the sixth, moved to third on a pair of ground-outs, then stole home. In the first inning, Rick Manning tallied when loser Steve Busby threw away a pickoff throw. In the ninth, Manning stole second and came home when the throw bounced into center.

Tigers 6, Angels 2

Rusty Staub doubled and singled twice, batting in two runs to lead Detroit's 14-hit attack against California. Angels starter Andy Hassler, who hasn't won since April 29 of last year, lost his second of the season and his 13th in a row.

Bill Freehan doubled, singled and hit a sacrifice fly, Mickey Stanley doubled and singled, and Willie Horton and Milt May contributed two singles apiece for the Tigers.

A's 2, Orioles 1

Larry Haney, batting for the first time this year, singled home Sal Bando with Oakland's winning run in the 12th inning over Baltimore. Bando, who reached third when rookie left fielder Andres Mora dropped his long fly ball, got a second life at the plate when his foul ball dropped untouched near the Oakland dugout, setting off an argument.

Orioles third baseman Brooks Robinson, who called for the ball, claimed Haney, waiting in the on-deck circle, blocked his path.

"I definitely had to push him out of the way," Robinson said, "but the umpires told me he wasn't in the way. As long as I've been playing, I've never had that happen before."

White Sox 10, Red Sox 4

Jack Brohamer's three-run homer and Brian Downing's three hits, including a roundtripper, led Chicago past Boston.

Tournament of Champions

Texan January wins . . .

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) His aging bones were growing wearier from the stresses of a sport dominated by younger men. Don January sat for awhile and thought he'd pass up the Tournament of Champions.

"I'd played a lot this year, eight weeks out of nine," said the 46-year-old self-styled elder statesman of the pro golf tour. "I was kinda tired and I wasn't too hot about playing."

But the challenge — and the money, definitely the money — of the prestigious $225,000 event made the old pro reconsider.

"Last week at the Masters I decided it was silly. Here I am playing golf for a living and they're putting up a $225,000 pot for only 22 fellows to shoot at, and I can get $4,347 even if I'm last."

From the first swing of his driver on the La Costa Country Club course, last place was never a threat to the slow-moving, easy-going Texas native. He built a five-stroke lead through three rounds, easily survived a front-nine threat from young Ben Crenshaw, and completed one of sport's most unusual comebacks Sunday with a front-running five-stroke victory for the $45,000 first prize.

January grinned.

"I'm right glad I decided to play," he said with that characteristic drawl after becoming the oldest tour winner since 1968, when 48-year-old Julius Boros won the Westchester Classic.

Sunday he reaped the profits, carding a final-round 69 for a 277 total, 11 under par and five strokes better than Hubert Green over the windswept, 6,855-yard, par-72 layout.

The prize boosted his winnings to $95,706 — by far the best of his two-decade career. He did it with rounds of 71, 68, 69 and 69 in picking up his 12th career title and second in this event which he also won in 1968.

Only Crenshaw and Bruce Crampton threatened the old man in a final round which became simply a battle for second place after January birdied the 15th hole with a putt of some 25 feet to take a threestroke lead with three holes to play.

Green, a three-time winner this season, took second place and $27,000 with a 69 for a 282 total after Crampton — who had come within two strokes of January on the front nine despite a painful stress-fractured rib — made a costly double bogey six on the final hole.

Crampton needed only a par on 18 to hold second alone, but missed the fairway, was short of the green, chipped poorly and then three-putted to finish at 283 for a third-place tie with defending champion Al Geiberger.

British Open champ Tom Watson and Art Wall were the only others to finish the tourney with sub-par totals.

Watson's final 69 was good for a two-under-par 286, Wall hit 70 for 287 while runaway Masters winner Ray Floyd skied to 72-290.

. . . while Koch qualifies for 77

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — "I've achieved one of my long-range goals," exclaimed tour rookie Gary Koch after outplaying five-year veteran John Mahaffey to claim $15,000 first-place money in the $80,000 Tallahassee Open.

"It's difficult to imagine that I could have said at the first of the year that I'd win a golf tournament this season, but I've done it," the former University of Florida star added after winning by a single stroke Sunday.

Koch had three birdies and a bogey on the 7,124-yard Killearn Golf and Country Club layout for a two-under-par 70 in the final round, while Mahaffey could do no better than even par.

"The pro tour's different from college," said Koch, who won eight collegiate tournaments. "You're in a big league field of 144 and there are 125 guys capable of winning each tournament. In college golf, maybe there are 25 guys.

Koch, who has earned $21,752 by winning money in eight of the nine events he's entered, sank a six-foot par putt on the 18th hole, knowing he would be forced into a playoff if he missed.

"I knew he'd be tough to beat," said Koch, a 23-year-old from Temple Terrace, Fla.

Mahaffey, 27, of Houston, was eighth on last year's money list with $141,471 and is trying hard to lose a runner-up image. He has won only one Professional Golf Association title, the 1973 Sahara Invitational.

Mahaffey, who earned $9,120, was a stroke behind Bob Eastwood entering the day. Eastwood, who led the first three rounds and was two shots ahead of Koch starting play at 11 under par, came home with a five-over 77 to tie Wally Armstrong, Joe Porter and Ron Cerrudo for fifth place at 282.

Sharing third place for $4,720 each were Vic Regalado and Tom Storey at 280. Regalado closed with a 68 and Storey a 69.

Arnold Palmer closed with his best round, a 69, to finish at four-under 288, but despite the strong finish said he still plans to take time off from the tour grind in an effort to help his faltering game.

"I plan to play Houston still, but I will not play this week," said Palmer, 46-year-old former king of the tour. "After that, I don't know what I'll do. I may play, and I may not."

Howard fete tonight 7:00

Howard College's Student Government Association is sponsoring an All-Sports Banquet tonight, 7:00, in the college cafeteria.

Bobby Menchaca, director of Student Activities, will serve as master of ceremonies. The coaches of each sport will present his or her respective team members and make any special awards.

Mrs. Evelyn Anderson, cheerleader sponsor, will present the Hawks cheerleaders. Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard, will give the welcome and Ms. Carol Hart, president-elect of the SGA will word the invocation.

SPORTS BRIEF

TRACK AND FIELD

ATHENS, Greece — Natalia Maracescu of Romania shattered the world record in the women's 2,000 meters with a time of 5 minutes 43.94 seconds, eclipsing the previous mark of 5 minutes 48.08 seconds held by Grete Andersen of Norway.

Razorbacks hoggish, win TRIPLE HEADER

Surprising Houston invades the hostile Texas A&M diamond beside Kyle Field Friday and Saturday with a possible NCAA baseball playoff berth at stake.

Houston lost two out of three games to defending Southwest Conference and national champion Texas over the weekend and the balanced Longhorns appear on their way to another league title.

The Texas Aggies had an idle week while the Cougars were meeting the Longhorns and the SWC race looks like this:

—Texas (15-3).
—Houston (15-5).
—Texas A&M (10-5).
—Arkansas (11-7).

Texas entertains Arkansas which pulled off an unheard of TRIPLE HEADER sweep of the Rice Owls Saturday. The two teams played three games because the Friday game was postponed and Rice couldn't get a Sunday game out.

Because Houston is five games ahead in the win column, the Aggies will have to win at least two out of three games or see their playoff hopes dwindle. Texas A&M was runnerup to Texas last year and played in the Midwest Regional.

Arkansas is still alive for at least a second place spot.

Looking ahead to the final week of the season, Texas A&M is at Arkansas Friday April 30 and May 1. Texas is at Texas Tech on those same dates.

Buckeyes repeat champions of Kepler Intercollegiate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State has repeated as champion in the Kepler Intercollegiate Golf Tournament, placing two men in the top three and leaving runner-up Marshall 34 strokes behind.

The Ohio State "A" team finished at 1,137 after the three-day event over the school's Scarlet course.

Kent State wound up one stroke behind Marshall at 1,175. Fourth was Cincinnati at 1,179, and the Ohio State "B" team came in two strokes behind the Bearcats.

Ex-Dodgers get revenge

By The Associated Press

Andy Messersmith came back to pitch against the Los Angeles Dodgers ... but it was Jimmy Wynn who came back to haunt them.

Messersmith, the celebrated free agent who jumped the Los Angeles ship and signed a million-dollar contract with the Atlanta Braves, made his 1976 pitching debut against his former teammates Sunday.

The right-hander, who wasted all of spring training trying to hook on with a team, was only used for four innings against the Dodgers and wasn't especially impressive.

But while Messersmith was having control trouble, Wynn — another former Dodger — walloped a three-run homer to help the Braves beat Los Angeles 7-6.

"I'm glad it's over, I'll tell you that," said Messersmith, who gave up three walks and three hits in his brief appearance. "I was nervous at first and I felt fluid only in the last inning. I felt pressure from not having pitched for so long."

Messersmith had hoped to pitch longer than just four innings and let Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol know about it. "I'm a bull," Messersmith told the manager when informed that he was leaving the game early.

"I'm the last guy in the world that wanted to take him out of a ballgame," said Bristol. "But we plan to have him a lot longer than just Easter Sunday."

Pirates 7, Mets 5

Willie Stargell, starting pitcher Jerry Reuss and Rennie Stennett contributed run-scoring doubles in a six-run Pittsburgh fourth and the Pirates went on to beat the Mets. Reuss need relief help from Ramon Hernandez in the ninth after New York's Dave Kingman smashed a three-run homer in the eighth. It was his second of the game and seventh of the season, high in the major leagues.

Giants 5, Reds 1

John Montefusco drove in a run and doubled while stifling Cincinnati's big bats, powering San Francisco over the Reds. Montefusco, 2-1, and Gary Lavelle combined to limit the Reds to five hits in their lowest offensive outing of the year.

Cardinals 2, Expos 1

John Denny threw a no-hitter for six innings but needed Mike Wallace's last-out relief help in St. Louis' victory over Montreal. The 23-year old Denny set down the first 18 batters he faced nd protected a no-hit bid until Larry Bittner beat out a slow roller down the first base line in in the seventh inning.

Mike Jorgensen followed with a one-out double. But Montreal failed to score aginst the 6-foot-3 right-hander, who gave up six hits, until Jorgensen hit his second homer of the season with one out in the ninth inning.

Astros, hottest team going, suffer a chill

HOUSTON (AP) — San Diego players admit the Houston Astros are the hottest team going although the Padres did manage to cool them off at least temporarily.

San Diego collected 15 hits off five Houston pitchers for an 11-5 victory in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday after the Astros took the first game 4-2 on Cesar Cedeno's first of two three-run homers of the day.

The San Diego victory in the second game snapped a six-game winning Houston winning streak. Randy Jones won his third game without a loss in the nightcap although he wasn't around at the end.

"The Astros are hot and they have a lot of confidence," said Jones. "They were ready for me."

San Diego Manager John McNamara agreed with Jones but he was also happy with the way his team performed.

"We beat a hot ball club," said McNamara. "They have been getting the base hits. But our team showed it doesn't give up either."

The Padres took a 2-0 lead in the first game on RBI singles by Ted Kubiak and Bob Davis in the fourth inning. However, Houston rallied in the eighth inning to score four runs on Cedeno's home run and Cliff Johnson's double with two out.

Houston reliever Tom Griffin picked up the victory in the first game with Ken Forsch getting his fifth save in the last six games. Brent Strom, 1-1, suffered the loss.

Willie McCovery knocked in four runs for the Padres in the second game.

McCovey put San Diego ahead 1-0 in the first inning but Cedeno's second three-run home run, following singles by Larry Milbourne and Enos Cabell, put Houston ahead 3-1.

San Diego picked up five runs in the first four innings off Houston starter and loser Joaquin Andujar. John Grubb singled in a run in the second and singles by Kubiak, Enzo Hernandez, McCovey and a double by Willie Davis staked San Diego to a 5-3 lead.

The Padres added three runs off reliever Gil Rondon in the fifth on Hector Torres' home run and singles by Kubiak and Hernandez. A double by McCovey in the eighth and a two-run ninth inning double produced three more runs.

Houston got its other two runs in the seventh on an RBI single by Bob Watson and Cliff Johnson's fielder's choice.

Jones said he was happy overall with his performance.

"They got 10 hits off me but at least four were infield hits," he said.

Griffin also was happy with his performance which produced a victory for him in relief in the first game.

"I felt good," he said. "It always does something for your confidence when you win."

NBA Playoffs

Home cooking poison

By The Associated Press

Remember the home-court advantage, that much-ballyhooed edge for which various National Basketball Association teams scratched and clawed at each other through the final weeks of the regular season?

Well, the Philadelphia 76ers and Milwaukee Bucks will have all summer to try and find out where it went.

Both teams were eliminated from the NBA playoffs Sunday in the type of games in which the home-court advantage is supposed to be most prominent — close, hard-fought, pressure-packed contests, where everything is on the line. Both were playing before enthusiastic crowds at their home arenas — and both were beaten.

The Buffalo Braves, trailing by as many as 11 points in the third period, nipped Philadelphia 124-123 in overtime; the Detroit Pistons, whose 36-46 regular season record equals the worst of any team ever to reach the NBA playoffs, edged Milwaukee 107-104.

Both were the deciding games of best-of-three preliminary round series, and the survivors are now matched againt the top clubs in the two conferences. Detroit opens its best-of-seven series against the defending NBA champion Golden State Warriors in Oakland Tuesday and Buffalo begins play against the Boston Celtics in Boston Wednesday.

In the only other NBA playoff game Sunday, the Phoenix Suns beat the Seattle SuperSonics 103-91 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarterfinal series.

The fourth quarter-final matchup, between the Cleveland Cavaliers and Washington Bullets, resumes Wednesday night in Landover, Md., with Cleveland holding a 2-1 advantage in the best-of-seven set.

John Shumate, who is getting used to bouncing out of hospital beds, made one of his fastest recoveries over the weekend — and it proved fatal to the 76ers.

Shumate, who sat out last season with a blood disease, was felled by a wayward elbow Saturday night. He suffered a concussion, needed four stitches and spent the night in Buffalo's Millard Fillmore Hospital.

But when tap time rolled around Sunday, the rugged rookie forward was back in uniform for Buffalo.

Church leagues open tonight & Tues. night

Big Spring's Church Softball Leagues begin their seasons this week, the fastpitch league with two games tonight and the slowpitch league Tuesday night with a four-game card.

The fastpitch league has two games scheduled for each Monday and Thursday nights, while the slowpitch league has four games a night on Tuesdays and Fridays.

This is the biggest field the league has ever had and they invite everyone to come out and enjoy themselves watching exciting games of softball.

The fastpitch games on Monday and Thursday nights will be at City Park and the slowpitch games Tuesday and Friday nights will be at 700 Field near Stink Creek.

MONDAY NIGHT'S SCHEDULE:
7:15 — Berea Baptist versus Nazarene
9:15 — 1st Assembly versus Crestview Baptist
TUESDAY NIGHT'S SCHEDULE:

GOING OVER TOURNEY PROCEDURE — Dan Wilkins (seated) and Jack Thomas, officials of the Big Spring Country Club's Fourth Annual Championship Invitational, talk over plans for the tourney which begins Saturday, April 24 and concludes Sunday, April 25. It is a scratch and handicap flight tournament with $250 going to the winner of each flight. Once the $25 entry fee is paid participants have free access to the course for practice.

HR derby in El Paso

By The Associated Press

It should have been billed as a home run hitting contest.

Seven of the long balls flew over the fence in El Paso as El Paso and Amarillo split a Texas League baseball doubleheader Sunday.

Amarillo won the first game 5-2, breaking a 2-2 deadlock on Rocky Craig's three-run homer in the sixth inning.

El Paso charged back with six home runs to take the nightcap 14-5. El Paso's Willie Mays Aikens and Steve Stroughter each hit two homers and Fred Frazier smashed a round-tripper, two doubles and knocked in five runs.

Shreveport pitchers silenced Arkansas' bats for a 4-0 victory in Shreveport, La. The shutout extended Arkansas' streak of scoreless innings to 20. Shreveport also shut out the Travelers Saturday.

Pitcher Rod Perry of the Louisiana club pitched a one-hitter for seven innings before being relieved by Rod Davis and Rich Standart. Shreveport collected 10 hits, including Paul Djakonow's solo homer.

In Sunday's only other game, Jackson downed Lafayette 7-3 with help from Ken Perry.

Midland at San Antonio was postponed by rain.

Slow pitch opens tonight

CLASSIFIED ADS
THE PLACE TO LOOK

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 20, 1976

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to one older than you for straightening out some ticklish problem. Be careful in traffic and with your purse.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have difficulty putting ideas across because someone may work against you, so await a better day. Avoid risks, especially in dark.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use finest judgment about money matters and tactfully overcome any opposition. Show patience, since "haste could make waste." Avoid danger.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If partners seem overly sensitive, listen and cooperate more, then you get along better. Steer clear of one who opposes you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A partner could be helpful with some secret problem. Don't be a quitter or you lose out where it counts the most.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Calm a good friend who has problems with which you are also connected. Some recreation may have to be put off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If a bigwig reneges on promises, take it in your stride. Find better ways of advancing yourself. Show devotion to family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get important statements, reports out on time. Handle all financial affairs intelligently. Make payments on time to avoid trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Quietly analyze ways to handle pressing responsibility. Any physical ailment needs immediate attention. Be less bombastic with family to gain devotion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take care of that personal anxiety and don't raise the ire of one who is sensitive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Solve problem objectively and without anxiety. New projects need more enthusiasm behind them if they are to succeed.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't get discouraged if some personal aim meets with delay, for it soon passes and you can win desire. Enjoy amusements.

Twin infants drown

Flood adds to death toll

By The Associated Press

Flood waters which surged over a bridge and swept away two small boys contributed to a heavier than usual weekend toll of violent death in Texas during the weekend.

The most tragic single incident, however, was a fire that killed six persons in a small home.

Altogether there were reports to The Associated Press of at least 24 fatalities in the state, also including 10 in traffic accidents, five drownings and three shootings.

These were among the victims:

Ten-month-old twins Juan Vidal Saucida and Juan Francisco Saucida of Corpus Christi drowned Sunday night when they were swept away from their father in flood waters near U.S. 59 in Goliad County after the Saucida family abandoned their car.

Six persons died before dawn Sunday as fire destroyed a four-room house at Marquez in Leon County, about midway between Dallas and Houston. Justice of the Peace H.G. Lanier identified the victims as Harvey Foley, Foley's wife Johnnie, the couple's daughter Connie and three guests — brothers George and Robert Winstead and their cousin Raymond Winstead.

Joanne Nesby Adams, 31, and Woodrow Willam, 52, both of Houston, were killed Sunday in a two-car collision in northwest Harris County.

Kevin L. Bottore, 18, a New Mexico State University student from Temple, Tex., was killed early Saturday when the car he was driving plunged off an overpass on Interstate 10 about half a mile north of El Paso. A fellow student, Donald J. Larkin, 19, of Las Cruces, N.M., was injured.

Eddie B. Hutchins, 27, was killed Saturday as the heavy truck he was driving ran off a Houston freeway.

A head-on crash Saturday in Galveston killed Charles D. McMullen, 23, of Baytown and another person whose identity had not been determined.

Ronnie E. Evans, 19, of Farmersville died Saturday in a two-car accident eight miles north of Farmersville on Texas 78. Three other persons suffered injuries.

Donnie R. Bounds, 21, was killed in Lubbock early Saturday, police reported, when he was caught in a crossfire during a shootout between two other men.

Galveston police said that the body of a person who had drowned was recovered Saturday from a beach where approximately 35,000 persons had gathered for a concert. The body was turned over to a medical examiner and the name of the victim was not disclosed at once.

Steven Murphy, 22, of Saint Jo, Tex., drowned Sunday in the Red River after a fishing boat upset. A companion swam ashore. The accident happened about 25 miles northwest of Gainesville.

Ronald Johnson, 18, of Pecos drowned Sunday while water skiing in Red Bluff Lake north of Pecos.

Minot flood waters recede

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — Flooding danger is far from over, city officials warned Minot residents today, even though the level of the Souris River has begun dropping slowly.

The 12,000 persons evacuated from their homes last week are being told it may be two weeks before they can return.

The river, which crested Sunday at seven feet above flood stage, is expected to continue with peak flows of 10,000 cubic feet per second for several days and to remain above normal until mid-May. The river was dropping at an average of .01 inch every two hours, the National Weather Service said.

The crest was one foot lower than had been feared. Emergency dikes as high as 25 feet were credited with helping prevent the fifth flood in seven years in low-lying sections of the city.

As workers continued to sandbag dikes to prevent erosion and seepage, officials expressed concern that residents would believe the danger was past and the supply of volunteer dikewatchers, sandbaggers and security patrols would dwindle.

"People get complacent," said city engineer Burt Peckham. "That's what bothers us.

"We're a long way from the end of the critical part of this. If we get a foot or two of drop, then we can breathe."

City Manager John Arnold said, "The prognosis is still danger for at least another week. The longer the water is high, the more likely we are to have street and yard boils."

The boils indicate dangerous levels of underground water pressure which could burst above ground level and flood portions of the city.

"The situation is still critical but we've survived the worst," Arnold said.

Mayor Chester Reiten made the first official announcement of the crest at 7 a.m., and officials immediately began getting telephone calls from evacuated residents asking when they could return to their homes.

"It will be a while yet," one official said. "I think 10 days to two weeks. But we really won't know until we see how the river drops."

The feeling in the community of 32,000 was one of relief when residents heard the crest had passed.

"I was so happy I cried a little when I heard about it," said one man who had been living with friends since Wednesday's evacuation deadline.

WAVE wants discharge

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Kathleen A. Clark said no when the Navy offered to discharge her after she became pregnant 20 months ago. She's changed her mind, but now the Navy is saying no to her application for discharge.

Mrs. Clark said she realized she had been wrong to think she could raise her baby and at the same time continue working as a Wave at the Key West Naval Air Station.

Her commanding officer agreed to her new request for discharge, and her psychiatrist, social worker and pediatrician all added their opinions that leaving the Navy would be a good thing for her.

But the Navy's top brass has turned her down, despite her pleas that she has an infant in need of care, a husband away at school and a job she has grown to hate.

"I don't know what it takes," said the 22-year-old Wave. "I've seen a lot of people get out — pushed out. I could become a lesbian. I could smoke pot. Believe me, there are a lot of ways like that, but I just want a regular discharge."

Connally honored at fund-raising

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally, considered by many political observers to be the key man in the Republican presidential primary in Texas, will be honored at a fund-raising dinner here tonight.

The event could be a display of political strength for the former Democrat, whose influence with Texans is considered pivotal in the May 1 preferrential balloting between President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

A sellout crowd of 700 is predicted, and ticket sellers say more than 600 are buying the more expensive tickets to attend a one-hour reception and the dinner, rather than just the dinner.

Dinner tickets cost $50 a person, and reception-dinner tickets cost $100 a person or $150 a couple.

Austin Republicans are sponsoring the fund-raiser, but they have invited "all friends and admirers" of Connally to attend.

Chairman Millard Neptune of the Travis County Republican Party said this is the "first opportunity" for Central Texas Republicans to "express their appreciation for Connally's service to the party and the country."

Although Connally has declined to endorse either Ford or Reagan, speculation surfaced last week that Ford would appoint Connally as secretary of state if Ford is elected in November.

The Los Angeles Times said that Connally, in return, would campaign for Ford, assuming he is the GOP nominee.

Connally called the story a "speculative rumor that's the product of a distorted imagination. It's totally untrue."

Connally has met with Ford twice this month at the White House.

When Reagan was asked recently if he had sought Connally's support, he replied, "You bet I did."

While Connally has repeatedly said he would not seek public office, he has not ruled out accepting office if it were offered him. And, there has been steady speculation that Connally could be the GOP vice presidential nominee.

The apparent courtship of Connally is considered amazing in that it was only three years ago that he announced he was switching to the Republican party — a move many predicted would kill him politically.

Connally's efforts to establish his Republican credentials were interrupted when he was ordered to trial on charges that he accepted a $10,000 bribe in a milk fund case.

This, observers felt, was the end for Connally.

He was acquitted by a Washington jury, however, and since has traveled extensively, speaking primarily to Republican groups.

Train derailment caused when switch was thrown

LEAGUE CITY, Tex. (AP) — Police say the derailment of a train here was caused by someone breaking a lock and throwing a switch on the tracks.

The derailment and explosion that followed Sunday sent more than 500 League City residents fleeing from their homes.

No one was injured and the residents returned to their homes a few hours after the incident.

"It's a miracle no one was killed or hurt," said League City Chief of Police P. E. Harvell.

Harvell said the Missouri-Pacific train derailed and its chemical cargo exploded because "someone busted the lock off and threw the switch," sending the train down a side track at 35 miles an hour—a speed too fast for it to successfully make any switch.

The engine derailed in League City, Harvell said, but most of the cars were going across a trestle over Clear Creek and plunged burning into the water only about 200 yards north of a densely populated residential area.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation refused to speculate on whether switching the tracks was an act of sabotage or the work of a prankster.

"We have no idea when the switch was thrown," Harvell said. "We know the lock was on the switch Friday and now it is gone."

Railroad officials could not be reached for comment.

Evacuees returned to their homes when firemen extinguished the burning cars.

According to the Texas Department of Public Safety, the train had 97 cars with 45 loaded and 52 empty. Of the loaded cars, 19 carried flammable gas, nine had vinyl chloride, one carried acetylene, one carried caustic soda and another an unknown acid.

Trial begins for Hunts, four others

DALLAS (AP) — Six men — including two sons of the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt of Dallas — were scheduled to go on trial in U.S. District Court today on obstruction of justice charges, but one of the defendants asked for a postponement.

Houston lawyer Percy Foreman, one of the six accused, is hospitalized and asked that the trial be put off.

Nelson Bunker Hunt and W. Herbert Hunt and the others will be tried on charges that they attempted to illegally cover up the Hunts' hiring of wiretappers.

The Hunts were acquitted of federal criminal wiretap charges by a Lubbock jury last Sept. 26.

Testimony by the Hunts at that trial indicated they hired the wiretappers to find out who was embezzling money from their elderly father's firm. They said they did not know the taps were illegal.

U.S. District Court Judge Halbert O. Woodward of Lubbock, who will hear the Dallas trial, asked that more than 150 Dallas-area citizens be summoned as prospective jurors.

Defendants in addition to the Hunts and Foreman are Dallas attorneys Charles Tessmer and B.H. Timmins and Houston industrialist Ed Hudson.

The indictment alleges the Hunts paid fees to several lawyers and offered payments to others convicted of wiretaps to keep them quiet about the Hunts' involvement.

Angry Americans

It pays to complain

EDITOR'S NOTE — Got a gripe? Now more than ever, there is someone out there willing to listen. As more Americans speak up for their rights, more government departments and private businesses have learned that the complaining consumer has a loud voice.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Fed up with products that don't produce and services that don't serve, Americans have learned that it pays to complain.

No one keeps statistics on the number of complaints received by private industry and government agencies. It would be impossible because there are so many overlapping departments, bureaus and offices and the number is growing steadily.

Five years ago, for example, there were nine consumer agencies at the state level, according to the Office of Consumer Affairs of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Today there are 135.

Dorothy Burkhardt who heads the complaint division of the federal consumer affairs unit said her office alone received almost 27,000 complaints in the first 11 months of 1975, compared to 24,000 complaints in all of 1974. A 1975 study by the Office of Consumer Affairs showed that 15 federal agencies — a relatively small section of Washington's bureaucracy — spent $6.4 million annually answering complaints.

There are signs on all sides that consumers are more aware of their rights and less hesitant about demanding them. The same person who would have shrugged and said "chalk it up to experience," when confronted with a faulty product five years ago, is writing to the company president today.

"People are more ready to complain to all institutions," said E. Patrick McGuire, senior research analyst at the Conference Board, a New York-based nonprofit business group.

"They expect more of products and services ... They are more cynical of companies' attempts to redress their grievances."

Robert Sable, an attorney with the National Consumer Law Center in Boston, said: "There is substantially more consumer litigation," partly because consumers have more legal rights than they used to. "There is a whole host of new consumer laws," he said, citing legislation involving interest rates, warranties and credit. "Ten years ago, there wasn't a whole lot an aggrieved consumer could do except make a stink."

No one knows just when Americans started thinking of themselves as "consumers." The late President John F. Kennedy set up a Consumer Advisory Council in 1963 and listed four basic consumer rights: the right to be heard, the right to a choice, the right to be protected against unsafe products and the right to a response to a legitimate complaint.

Many people believe the real consumer drive started in 1966 with Ralph Nader and his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed." Nader's disclosure, at a Senate hearing, that General Motors Corp. had private detectives investigate him because of his crusade against the safety record of the Corvair, drew wide publicity and called attention to consumerism as a cause.

By 1971, "Nader's Raiders," as his followers were dubbed, had formed groups to study — and change — laws and regulations on everything from food additives to pollution controls. Today, Nader's organizations in Washington and Nader-spawned public interest research groups — PIRGS — across the country are involved in just about every facet of American life.

The individual citizen who wants to complain has more outlets for his anger. There are almost 50 complaint agencies for federal departments and more than 225 county and city consumer offices.

The government publishes a 39-page "Guide to Federal Consumer Services," with information on where to go with questions and complaints about everything from advertising to work regulations. The booklet is available free of charge from Consumer Information Center, Dept. 6, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

On the business front, some 500 companies have consumer affairs units. The Better Business Bureau as expanded its complaint-handling mechanism, introducing an arbitration program that has grown from three cities in 1971 to about 100 today. And volunteer groups and news media "action line" programs are ready to tackle local problems.

McGuire said the surge in complaints "began long before the recession" that prompted concern over money. "It began when people learned there's a response."

Previously, he said, the East and West coasts were "the most fertile field for complaints." In between was "a desert — or an oasis," depending on your viewpoint.

McGuire said that Middle America has joined the complaint parade. "It is no longer considered ill-mannered or unpleasant." People boast of their victories at cocktail parties.

Complaints still are most prevalent among the middle- and upper-middle income groups, McGuire said. These are the people who have the knowledge, the time and the determination to complain.

"It hasn't trickled down to the ghetto yet," he said. "When it does, you'll have an avalanche of complaints" because there are so many people involved.

The typical complainant on a nationwide basis, McGuire said, has two or more years of college, is over 30, "is more likely to be WASP than ethnic" and is in a managerial or semiprofessional job.

If the item involved cost less than $100 — food, clothing or small appliances — the complainant is likely to be a woman, McGuire said. If it cost more than $100, the complainant is probably a man.

Consumer agencies say they are solving more problems than ever before.

The Office of Consumer Protection of the Wisconsin Department of Justice received 5,780 complaints in 1971 and recovered about $214,000 for consumers in court judgments and informal settlements.

Last year, the office received 14,678 complaints and recovered almost $675,000, an increase of about 154 per cent in the number of complaints and 215 per cent in the amount of money recovered.

Bob Tuttle, statistician for the National Council of Better Business Bureaus, said local groups received over 6½ million calls of all types last year. Thirteen per cent were complaints. The rest of the callers wanted information only.

The bureaus get two kinds of complaints: formal protests that are followed up and informal gripes on which no action is taken. The number of overall complaints increased steadily in the late 1960s and early 1970's, from 324,000 in 1966 to almost 1.5 million in 1973.

The trend was reversed in 1974 and by 1975 the number of complaints — formal and informal — was down to 846,000.

Drug user with split personality charged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Randolph Leyendecker, 17, who is charged with capital murder in the knife slaying of a 12-year-old girl, is described by his stepfather as a drug user with a split personality.

And, comments by a former classmate of Leyendecker's portray the unemployed youth as a ninth-grade dropout who often carried a knife and once became so violent sniffing paint that he kicked another youth in the mouth.

"We used to play chicken all the time by throwing knives at each other's feet," the former classmate said.

Leyendecker's stepfather said the youth spent six months at a Vernon drug treatment center but efforts to rehabilitate him failed.

"He talked a lot of violence, like fighting," the stepfather said. "When he was not on drugs he was completely different. He had a split personality."

The stepfather and the classmate were quoted in the Austin American-Statesmen. Their names were not revealed.

The newspaper also said Sunday that an anonymous tip apparently led to Leyendecker's arrest.

The tipster called detectives and gave them the name of a youth reportedly missing a knife like the one found in the vacant lot about 20 yards from Eudelia Leybas' nude body, the newspaper said.

Police arrested Leyendecker at a bar Friday night for alledgedly being drunk in public. He was charged with capital murder Saturday at 4 a.m., just six hours before funeral services for the girl.

Dist. Atty. Bob Smith said he hoped to present the case to the grand jury Thursday.

The victim's father, Jesus, a city sanitation worker with two other children, said he hopes his daughter's killer gets the electric chair. "One way or the other," Leybas said, he would have found the killer.

It was Levendecker's 10-year-old sister who discovered Eudelia's body on a footpath that school children often used to cut through a brushy lot near the dead girl's house.

A pocket knife with a four-inch blade was found Thursday.

The girl disappeared last Tuesday night after begging her mother to be allowed to go by herself to a nearby store to buy two soft drinks. Her body was found Wednesday afternoon. She had been stabbed 33 times, including a fatal heart wound, police said.

Leyendecker lived with his grandmother, but his mother and stepfather live in the Leybas neighborhood.

The youth was placed in a cell where guards could keep constant watch on him.

The American-Statesman reported that Leyendecker signed a statement saying he did not remember assaulting the girl but only recalled walking away from the scene and throwing the knife away.

Weekend of violent weather

Flooding hits parts of Texas, two die

By The Associated Press

Fresh flooding hit parts of Texas today, capping a weekend in which cloudbursts were blamed for two deaths and tornadoes flirted close to several points in a marathon siege of violent weather.

Ten-month-old twin brothers Juan Vidal Saucida and Juan Francisco Saucida were missing and presumed drowned in a raging torrent which forced them from the family car with their parents in South Texas.

State police said the father, Richard Saucida of Corpus Christi, put the infants in an ice chest and started swimming with their mother after a fierce current caught the car on a U.S. 59 bridge over Colleto Creek. The father told officers the water tore the chest from his grasp, overturned it and swept the twins away. He and his wife were rescued clinging to a tree.

The tragic accident occurred between Goliad and Vitoria, from which the Saucidas were returning home to Corpus Christi after a weekend visit. A search for the twins continued today.

As much as 10 inches of rain fell on parts of the coastal plains during the weekend, and some of the roughest weather concentrated on a small area straddling the line which separates Goliad and Victoria counties.

Radar detected rain falling at a rate of two inches per hour before muddy water forced the closing of a 23-mile stretch of U.S. 59 between Victoria and Goliad. Two tornadoes spun across that area but apparently caused no damage.

High water halted or slowed traffic in many areas as motorists were trying to return to their homes from Easter outings. Hail accompanied boiling thunderstorms at many points.

Houston received eight inches of rain in five hours and five feet of water filled some underpasses. The deluge halted ground traffic for a time to the city's giant Intercontinental Airport for a time but there was not enough water on the runways to delay flights.

"It got us like a bunch of rats out here," said Lt. J.A. Fairfield of the Houston airport"s security police, who reported some motorists abandoned cars and waded to higher ground.

Some of the heavier downpours shifted during the night and this morning to North Central and Northeast Texas, where state police reported a tornado on the ground near Waxahachie shortly before 6:30 a.m. today. Special flood warnings were issued for at least eight counties in the north central part of the state.

Authorities said a foot of water rose in the main street at Mabank in Kaufman County. Some streets in Dallas ran curb deep. Rainfall amounts in the area ranged up to five inches.

Official observers said by this morning an old cold front blamed for the deluges as it cruised through the area during the weekend lay along a line from near Caddo Lake in Northeast Texas to the Central Texas Hill Country and into the Winter Garden area. It was expected to set off severe thunderstorms during the day.

Meanwhile a new front approached through Northwest New Mexico with promise of still more showers and thunderstorms after shoving into West Texas late in the day. Forecasters saw prospects of heavy storms also from the east part of the Panhandle-Plains sector across the state into the East Texas piney woods.

Runoff from the weekend rains already had sent most Central and East Texas rivers on the rise, and residents in low areas were cautioned to be on the alert.

Skies were clear this morning only from the Panhandle and South Plains into West Texas west of the Pecos River and in the southeast corner of the state.

Temperatures near dawn dropped to 31 degrees at Marfa in the West Texas mountains. The range elsewhere was from 41 at Amarillo in the Panhandle up to 73 at Corpus Christi and 74 at Brownsville on the coast. Sunday's top marks went as high as 81 at Brownsville.

Chicagoans welcome king

CHICAGO (AP) — About 400 persons lined the streets to watch King Carl XVI Gustav of Sweden arrive for Easter services at Ebenezer Lutheran Church in a northside Swedish community.

The monarch, in the midst of a 27-day visit to the United States, had arrived in Chicago on Saturday, but a sore throat forced him to cancel a news conference. A spokesman said Sunday that the king was feeling much better.

The king is scheduled to leave for Detroit on Tuesday.

Contenders discover

It will be difficult to win on first ballot

WASHINGTON (AP) — With nearly one-third of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention selected, front-runner Jimmy Carter would have to more than double his delegate capture rate to assure himself a first-ballot nomination for president.

For the other contenders, the numerical task is even tougher.

Bandwagons and political firestorms, of course, can wreck delegate trends and projections. But the pattern of the first one-third of the race illustrates how difficult it will be for any candidate to win on the first ballot.

The picture is different on the Republican side, where President Ford is leading in delegates selected and the candidate preferences are not as fragmented as on the Democratic side.

Although challenger Ronald Reagan says the GOP nominee will not be picked on the first ballot, he has not explained how, with only two candidates in the race, neither will get a majority on the first ballot.

Before this weekend's events, Democrats had selected 943 of the 3,008 delegates to their July convention. That's 31.4 per cent. It will take 1,505 votes to win the nomination.

Carter, with 264 delegates, led the pack — but still had won only 28.0 per cent of the delegates so far chosen. To capture the 1,505 needed to win the nomination, he would have to be the candidate of 60 per cent of the remaining delegates yet to be chosen.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson is winning delegates at an 18.8 per cent rate, Rep. Morris K. Udall at 13.7 per cent, and Gov. George C. Wallace at 11.0 per cent.

But one in every six delegates chosen so far is listed as uncommitted.

This group, plus the assortment of delegates committed to favorite sons and trailing candidates, will be targets of the leaders. But some of them also are regarded as an advance force ready to rally to the support of unannounced candidate Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Ford now is moving at a pace which, if sustained, would almost certainly guarantee victory.

The GOP has selected 531 of its 2,259 delegates, or 23.5 per cent. Ford has won 47.7 per cent of those, Reagan only 15.6 per cent. The other 36.7 per cent are committed.

If only one in every 15 of the uncommitteds leans toward Ford, then he has an effective majority of delegates picked to date.

Unless a third candidate gets into the race, there is nowhere for the uncommitteds to go except to Ford or Reagan — meaning one or the other would win on the first ballot unless some delegates didn't vote at all.

Spinal cord guide issued program

In a continuing program improving care for the spinal cord injured, the Veterans Administration recently published nursing standards and nursing education course outline for care of these paralyzed patients.

The program guide will be used at VA hospitals to further train professional nurses, licensed practical nurses, and nursing assistants who specialize in care of the paralyzed.

Civilian and military patients also benefit from the progress in health care made possible by VA's concentration of resources in the field of spinal cord injury. The knowledge is passed on to private health care personnel through VA seminars and publications.

This VA program is carried out with the active support of the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

The new booklet contains training material, goals, references for further study, and a checklist for evaluating care.

A limited number of copies is available to non-VA hospital and health care teaching personnel. Requests should be addressed to Publications (036B), Veterans Administration, Washington, D.C., 20420.

Woman won't tell why no marriage

ATHENS, Ala. (AP) — First Iladean Tribble said she would marry entertainer Elvis Presley on Saturday. Now she says she didn't, but won't tell why.

"This is the Sabbath day and I don't talk about things like this on the Lord's day," the 42-year-old widowed mother of four said Sunday when asked why the wedding hadn't taken place.

There was no comment from Presley, 41. However, a frequent Presley spokesman, Dr. George Nicholoupos, maintained that reports of the wedding were "not true."

The police department in this north Alabama town Saturday estimated about 150 persons milled around First Baptist Church, hoping to get a glimpse of Presley after Mrs. Tribble announced Friday she would marry him.

Oil find indicated in Glasscock County

A discovery was indicated in Glasscock County and potentials filed for three projects in the same vicinity.

J. C. Williamson and D. W. Underwood, Midland, No. 3 Clark, in 7-32-4s-T&P, one half mile east and south of production in the proposed Apple Creek (Fusselman oil) field, seven miles east of Garden City and 1⅛ miles northwest of the Wolfcamp opener and lone producer from that pay in the depleted Garden City, South (Wolfcamp and Spraberry) field. It has indicated production in an unidentified zone with the recovery of 651 feet of 38.2 gravity oil, along with 30 feet of drilling fluid, on a drillstem test.

Gas surfaced in 16 minutes, no gauges, on the one-hour test which was taken at 7,645-720 feet. Recovery was reported from the sample chamber at 1.6 cubic feet of gas and 2100 centimeters of oil. The flowing pressure was 128-203 pounds. Initial and final shut-in pressures were reported, no times, 3,593 and 1,989 pounds respectively.

This project is contracted to 9,800 feet to test the Fusselman. The firm's No. 1 Clark, the discovery, topped the Pennsylvanian sand at 8,300 feet on elevation of 2,615 feet.

The Garden City, South field produced from the Wolfcamp at 7,642 feet. The same operators filed potentials as oil wells for a previously reported gas discovery and two confirmations to the proposed Apple Creek field.

The discovery, the No. 1 Gladys Clark, was finaled for 288 barrels of 51 gravity oil, plus 57.6 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of3,997-1.

Production was through a 16-64-inch choke and through perforations at 9,678-698 feet. A calculated absolute open flow of 3.39 million cubic feet of gas, with gas-liquid ratio of 4,053-1 had been reported in February.

Location is 660 feet from the south and east lines of 12-33-4s-T&P.

The No. 1 Shell-Clark, a one-mile northeast extension was finaled for 304.97 barrels of 56 gravity oil, plus 32 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio at 21,114-1.

The No. 2 Clark, ¾ mile northeast extension, was finaled for 144.05 barrels of 61 gravity oil, plus 32.1 barrels of water with gas-oil ratio at 6,116-1.

The projects, the nearest of which is ½ mile west of Fusselman oil production in the Garden City field, probably will be assigned to that field.

14,234 motor vehicle titles issued at county courthouse

There were 14,234 motor vehicle titles issued at the Howard County Courthouse in the year which ended April 1.

Included in this number were titles for new and used cars and titles for motorist who completed car payments, Zirah L. Bednar, county tax assessor-collector, said.

She compared this to 14,075 titles issued in the previous 12 months.

In March 1976, the county tax office distributed titles for 1,982 vehicles as compared to 1,528 for March 1975, Mrs. Bednar said.

Turning to another indicator of business activity, Mrs. Bednar noted $1,025,232 in motor vehicles sales taxes collected in Howard County between April 1, 1975, and March 31, 1976. She contrasted this figure to $936,350 for the comparable previous period.

For March 1976 alone, the motor vehicle sales tax brought $129,156, the most ever received in any one month here, Mrs. Bednar said.

Howard County gets a 3½-per-cent commission, but the remainder goes to the state comptroller, Mrs. Bednar said.
