Weir to hire more than 100 new people

By Trevor Hawes
thawes@mrt.com

Weir Oil and Gas committed last week to building a $30 million facility in Midland, but it was revealed Friday how many new jobs were expected to be created in the Tall City.

Division President Paul Coppinger said during a press conference at the Midland Development Corp. offices that Weir will hire more than 100 new employees on top of the 160 it has currently.

Weir struck a deal with the MDC recently that will see the oilfield services company build a 92,000 square-foot facility at the MDC's currently undeveloped David Mims Business Park on Interstate 20 near Schlumberger's Midland headquarters. In return, the MDC will offer Weir a $1.8 million forgivable loan to be paid in equal installments over five years so long as the company maintains a payroll of no less than $6 million and a property value of at least $20 million.

Coming Sunday

Midland's unemployment rate moves closer to being the lowest in the state.

Weir will buy 20 acres of the 73.62-acres available at a cost of $20,000 per acre. The property will be on the tax rolls at $65,000 per acre.

Coppinger said the company is glad that its long hunt for a place to consolidate its Permian Basin facilities is over. "We're excited to be going through our next phase of expansion in the Permian Basin."

Weir currently operates three facilities in the Permian: two in Odessa and one in Midland County. Per the deal, Weir must close all three and cannot built within a 60-mile radius for the next five years.

"Over the past 18 months, we have been going through an exhaustive process to evaluate many different properties and many different combinations in jurisdictions," Coppinger said. "Finally, we were able to reach an agreement where both parties thought it was in their best interest from a financial point of view and from an operational point of view and for our customers and our community."

The MDC wasn't first on Weir's list. The company sought to strike a deal with the city of Odessa to build its facility; however, a trio of city council members scuttled any deal at its May 9 meeting and also fired Odessa Development Corp. President Jimmy Breaux, who was helping broker an agreement. Also of note at that meeting is that it was the impetus for the Odessa American to bring a lawsuit against the city. The newspaper alleges city council members violated the Texas Open Meetings Act.

Weir ultimately ended pursuit of building in Odessa in June. When asked

Study: Midlanders without health insurance among worst in nation

■ Percentage of children without insurance fifth from bottom

From staff reports

Midland has among the highest percentage of children without health insurance in the United States, according to a study by personal finance website WalletHub.

The study looked at the number of uninsured people across 547 municipalities using Census Bureau data. When it comes to the category of children, 14.9 percent of children in Midland lacked health insurance in 2016, putting the Tall City's ranking at 542.

Odessa didn't fare much better. Uninsured children were at 12.5 percent, giving the city a ranking of 531.

Overall, Midland ranked 527. From 2010 to 2016, the uninsured rate fell by 2.01 percent.

The children group ranged in age from 0 to 17. Low-income households are those with an annual income of $50,000 or less. High-income households are those with an annual income of $100,000 or more.

Complete study results are available here: https://wallethub.com/edu/uninsured-rates-by-city/25030vv

Oil jumps 5 percent this week, ends near $50

By Trevor Hawes
thawes@mrt.com

The price of oil jumped 5 percent this week and even topped $50 in intraday trading over the past two days.

West Texas intermediate contracts for October delivery settled Friday at $49.89 a barrel in a rare instance of the price being unchanged on the day. For the week, the price was up $2.41 (5.08 percent).

It's been 34 trading days since oil finished in the $50s, but it knocked on the door twice this week, with intraday highs Thursday and Friday of $50.50 and $50.13, respectively. WTI has been in the $50s 65 times, the other 113 times were in the $40s.

The price rose every day except Friday this year. WTI has settled higher 97 times and lower 80 times. There have been 178 trading days so far this year.

This week's jump in prices put it closer to how WTI started the year. Jan. 3, the first trading day of 2017, closed at $52.33. As of Friday, WTI is $2.44 (4.66 percent) below that mark. It has had an average price of $49.27. The lowest settlement price is $42.53, while the highest is $54.45.

Commercial crude oil supplies rose by 5.9 million barrels, according to the Energy Information Administration's weekly report released Wednesday. The reporting week was for Sept. 8. Commercial inventories were at 468.2 million barrels.

Crude was withdrawn from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. A reduction of 1.6 million barrels put the SPR's tally at 677 million barrels.

Total motor gasoline supplies dropped by 8.4 million barrels down to 218.3 million barrels. Distillates also fell. A drawdown of 3.2 million barrels put distillates inventories at 144.6 million barrels.

Total domestic production rose by 572,000 barrels per day to 9.353 million barrels per day.

Commercial crude imports fell by 603,000 barrels per day to 6.48 million barrels per day. Exports rose by 621,000 barrels per day to 774,000 barrels per day.

Plains Marketing posted prices were higher this week. The Reporter-Telegram

Trinidad Rig 433 on Nov. 2, 2016, in Midland County.

Rig count drops in Permian Basin, Midland County, Texas

By Trevor Hawes
thawes@mrt.com

The Permian Basin rig count slid slightly this week, with its two top counties each seeing declines.

The nation's most active basin was down by two rigs to 380, according to data from Baker Hughes. Reeves County, in the heart of the Delaware subbasin, idled three rigs, putting its tally at 66. Midland subbasin hotbed Midland County closed the week with 42 rigs, down four.

The biggest gainer in the Permian was Loving County, which reached 30 rigs after four more went online. Other counties with double-digit counts were Eddy, New Mexico (32); Lea, New Mexico (32); Loving (30); Martin (26); Howard (20); Reagan (20); Upton (15); Glasscock (13); Ward (12); Pecos (11); and Culberson (10).

Crosby County saw renewed activity this week. Ector County saw its lone rig idled.

Railroad Commission District 8 saw its tally fall by seven rigs to 250. For other areas with activity in the Permian, District 7B stayed at one rig, District 7C edged two higher to 40, District 8A jumped by four to 24 and New Mexico fell by one to 65.

The Permian had 202 rigs a year ago.

Texas & New Mexico

Texas closed the week with 452 rigs, down three. The Eagle Ford's tally was two fewer at 71, while the Barnett held steady at seven.

The Haynesville and Granite Wash each were unchanged at 46 and 15, respectively. Fifteen of the Haynesville's rigs were in East Texas, and six of the Granite Wash's rigs were in the Panhandle.

Texas had one offshore rig.

New Mexico's statewide tally fell by one to 67. Its pair of non-Permian rigs were in San Juan County.

At this time last year, Texas had 244 rigs and New Mexico had 28.

United States

The U.S. lost seven oil rigs and one natural gas rig this week, pushing the national count down by eight to 936. There were 749 oil rigs, 186 natural gas rigs and one rig listed as miscellaneous.

All offshore rigs were in the Gulf of Mexico, which rose by one to 17. Inland waters rigs fell by one to four.

By drilling trajectory, there were 795 horizontal rigs, up two; 67 vertical rigs, down eight; and 74 directional rigs, down two.

The U.S. had 506 rigs a year ago.

Most active

Basins with the highest rig counts were the Permian, the Eagle Ford, the Cana Woodford (64), the Williston (52) and the Marcellus (47).

States with the most activity were Texas, Oklahoma (130), New Mexico, Louisiana (62) and North Dakota (52).

Canada & North America

Canada added 10 oil rigs to put the nation's count at 210. Canada had 100 natural gas rigs and 132 total rigs a year ago.

The number of rigs in the North America region rose by two to 1,148. There were 638 rigs in North America at this time last year.

Interim UTPB engineering dean appointed, building progresses

By Ruth Campbell
Odessa American

With approval of the creation of the College of Engineering at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin by the UT System Regents in August, the university has appointed an interim dean and will soon launch a national search for a permanent one.

Forrest Flocker is the interim dean of the College of Engineering. He had been the chair of the Department of Engineering and Technology reporting to College of Business & Engineering Dean Bill Price.

A new engineering building is being constructed adjacent to the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification where the engineering is currently housed. The CEED building, which includes some labs, classroom space and the Small Business Development Center, is essentially at capacity right now, Flocker said.

The new three-story building will enclose 95,000-square feet and is scheduled for completion in the spring of 2019. It will house the mechanical, petroleum and aerospace engineering programs, as well as research labs for faculty and graduate research. The new building will be ready for occupancy for the fall semester 2019.

The engineering building was included in HB 100, approved in 2015. The project is funded from $48 million in Tuition Revenue Bonds and $4 million in Permanent University Funds for a total project cost of $52 million.

Stantec Architecture of Dallas is the project architect and Adolfson & Peterson Construction, also of Dallas, is the contractor, David Wayland, senior project manager for the UT System said.

Engineering students will stay on the main campus. Flocker said there is a shuttle that runs back and forth between the Midland campus and the main campus in Odessa.

"We've talked about having dorms out here, but nothing has really been set in stone on that. I think the vision would be to have a nice little campus out here. We already call it the Midland campus because we're actually physically located within the Midland city limits. The music program's across the way, too, so it wouldn't just be engineering. The grand vision would be to perhaps have dormitories and cafeterias out there and so forth," Flocker said.

When the engineering program began, Flocker said it was an engineering transfer program that gave students their first two years of mechanical engineering. They would have to go elsewhere to complete it.

Starting his ninth year at UTPB, Flocker said a four-year program started.

"… That first year, we had juniors in the program that had completed engineering transfer. … Two years later, they became our first graduates from UTPB's mechanical engineering program," Flocker said.

As soon as there were graduates, the university was able to apply for accreditation for the program, which was retroactive to previous graduates.

"A couple years after that, we started petroleum engineering. We've had graduates of that program for the last couple of years and it's gotten accredited," Flocker said. "So we went from essentially no accredited programs … to two ABET accredited programs."

ABET stands for Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology.

Flocker said he thinks having a College of Engineering and a new building will help attract students and faculty. He said it tends to send a message that the engineering program is large enough to warrant a separate college with a lot of programs.

"Certainly we had kind of outgrown the current infrastructure for just two engineering programs. We intend to grow more programs. … We've applied to have electrical engineering and chemical engineering added. If those go through, that would bring us up to four programs, so you can see we're really doubling the number of programs very quickly," Flocker said.

Chemical and electrical engineering will have to be approved by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. The program proposals will go to the Sept. 27 Committee on Academic & Workforce Success meeting and the Oct. 27 board meeting, a spokeswoman for the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board said in an email.

"Within say the next five years, I would like to see master's degrees offered in all of the programs so that would be an additional four programs, as well," Flocker said.

Texas Tech University and Angelo State, which just added civil engineering, are the two closest engineering schools to Odessa.

Man turns himself in on Texas murder charge from '62 slaying

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — A man who turned himself in for a 1962 fatal shooting in Texas was tired of having an arrest warrant haunting him and was weary of living under an assumed name, his attorney says.

Pete Ortiz Jr., now 75, surrendered Wednesday to state District Judge Frank Castro. Ortiz was released on bond but must wear an ankle monitor.

Ortiz was indicted in March 1963 on a murder-with-malice charge in the Dec. 22, 1962, fatal shooting of Joe Ovalle, a self-employed sign painter who was killed in his driveway just before Christmas. Another man, Frank Juarez, also faced a murder-with-malice indictment in the killing and was convicted in April 1963. Juarez told authorities that he and Ortiz were hired for $1,000 by another man to kill Ovalle, who was allegedly an informant for federal narcotics agents.

KSAT television station reports Castro asked Ortiz: "Where have you been all these 55 years?"

"I work all the time," Ortiz replied. "I work in the fields picking cotton. I followed the migrants to Wisconsin."

Ortiz's attorney, John Kuntz, told KSAT that Ortiz was riding with Juarez but did not participate in the slaying. "Pete did nothing to aid, assist, abet or encourage this murder," Kuntz said.

Ovalle's daughter, 54-year-old Josie Martinez, called Ortiz's surrender "surreal." She told the San Antonio Express-News that she was born nine months after her father's death and she often thinks of what might have been.

"It has been hard never really knowing what happened, what kind of person he was, what kind of person he'd be now," Martinez said through tears.

District Attorney Nicholas "Nico" La Hood told KSAT that he's reviewing the case to determine whether there is enough evidence to convict.

"There's a challenge that comes with this," La Hood said. "Witnesses, statements, investigations that were done back then versus now, so we're in the process of evaluating all of that."

Improper teacher-student relationships cases soar

The number of cases of teachers accused of soliciting romantic relationships from students has increased for the ninth year in a row in Texas, with a state education official attributing the increase to more awareness of the issue.

The Austin American-Statesman reports that in the one-year period that ended Sept. 1, the Texas Education Agency opened 302 cases against public teachers accused of having improper relationships with students. That's a 36 percent increase from the year before.

Doug Phillips, TEA's director of educator investigations, attributes the growth to increased vigilance among teachers and administrators of recognizing and reporting improper behavior.

State lawmakers made curbing improper teacher-student relationships a priority during this year's regular legislative session.

Student accused of urinating in teacher's cup charged

A charge has been filed against a Central Texas student on allegations he urinated in a teacher's drinking cup in April.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reports that McLennan County juvenile prosecutors this week filed a harassment of a public servant charge against the Moody High School student.

A hearing has been set for Oct. 2 in state district court. His attorney, Chadrick Henderson, says his client says he's not guilty.

Both crude grades were down about a quarter, or a half percent, on Friday. WTI posted fetched $46.25 a barrel, and sour was priced at $43.35. The spread between the two has been $2.90 for the past 10 trading days.

For the week, both were up $2.25, with WTI posted rising 5.11 sour percent and sour climbing 5.47 percent.

The spread between WTI futures and WTI posted on Friday was $3.64.

Sour is up 15 cents (0.35 percent) this year and has an average price of $41.85. Its year high is $46.20, and its low is $35.60.

WTI posted has an average price of $45.27 and is down $2.50 (5.13 percent) this year. It has been priced as high as $50.75 and as low as $39.00.

In other futures trading Friday, November contracts rose 9 cents to $50.44 a barrel, December was up 15 cents to $50.44 and January jumped 20 cents to $50.81. The nearest contract at $55 or higher is December 2025 at $55.12.

Weir

whether Odessa City Council had made a mistake, Coppinger said he couldn't answer for them.

"They have to make the best decision for their constituents," he said. "I don't have any hard feelings or what to judge their decision because they are elected to make decisions in the best interest of their community, and I'm sure they believe they did that. That may be the best decision for them, and it just didn't turn out to line up with our goals and objectives, and this opportunity did."

Moving to Midland might be more advantageous in the long run. The facility will be built on I-20, which is a main artery in the oil patch. Also, one of Weir's largest customers is oilfield services giant Schlumberger. The two companies will soon be neighbors.

The MDC deal is with a pair of Weir subsidiaries: SPM, which specializes in pressure pumping and well-control products, and Seaboard, which sells pressure-control equipment and wellhead products. Weir Oil and Gas is a division of Weir Group, a company based in the United Kingdom.

Weir Group is a large multinational that earns billions of dollars annually. When asked why any incentive was necessary at all, Coppinger said it's "a fairly common thing, regardless of size of your company, to work with local government officials who cooperate on incentives to bring more jobs to an area."

"It wasn't so much about whether we need to money or not; it's a decision on the financial benefits of us making this investment and how can we benefit the community while getting some assistance to do so," he said.

Weir hopes to open the new facility sometime between August and October next year.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

Note: Bigar's Stars is based on the degree of your sun at birth. The sign name is simply a label astrologers put on a set of degrees for convenience. For best results, readers should refer to the dates following each sign.*

A baby born today has a Sun in Virgo and a Moon in Leo.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Sept. 16, 2017:
This year your personal life is more active. You come to terms with certain issues, and will deal with your anger through spiritual healing. You also become more verbal about these feelings at times. Many of you will move or make a change to your home in order to reflect your evolving life. If you are single, many people are drawn to you. Confirm before you get too involved that the person who makes your heart flutter is authentic. If you are attached, the two of you will only gain from taking special time together as a couple. Your bond becomes more solid as a result. LEO understands you very well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Your childlike side emerges. You also have a practical project to complete. How you arrange your plans and what comes first is your decision. You can't say "no" to either possibility. Consider finishing the project first with the goal of gaining more free time. Tonight: All smiles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Your home can be your sanctuary, but it also is a place from which you want to entertain and enjoy your friends. Be spontaneous and host a get-together this weekend. Be aware of how fussy you can be about details pertaining to your domestic life. Tonight: Let it all happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Your need to express yourself can't be held back. If someone asks for an opinion, you are more than ready to give it. If others express interest in what you are doing, you'll open up and share. Make some time for a fall project like raking the leaves. Tonight: Make it easy and fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You possess a very dramatic quality that requires self-expression. Some of you dress a bit eccentric at times. Others verbalize their feelings in a unique way. Your choices might reveal the inner drama and attractive personality within yourself. Tonight: Make it your treat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Your warm personality melts barriers. Others want to be more actively involved with you. Understand your limits. Think carefully before encouraging too many people to think that there is a deep connection between you; you have only so much time. Tonight: Go for what you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Your words have an impact, but the other party might not be sharing what he or she feels. Your curiosity will need to wait. Perhaps in the future you will want to approach a similar matter in a different way, as it could be more satisfactory for you. Tonight: Let off some steam at the gym.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You beam in much more of what you want. You'll find others, especially a friend, to be highly responsive to your suggestions. A loved one supports you, which only adds to your happiness. You know what you want. What is stopping you? Tonight: Dance the night away.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You might need to visit or touch base with an older relative. Try not to head into the office; you will be a lot better off and happier as a result. Note several people's attempts to come in closer to chat. You must have magic on your side. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might want to come to terms with a change. You will flow through this transformation if you go along with the moment. You could gain a perspective that is unique and helps you relax. You'll find someone's outreach to be endearing. Tonight: Make a new choice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Your ability to make choices and move in a new direction might be tested by a partner. Your willingness to go along with this person's ideas could be more important than you realize. Be aware of what you have to offer. You can make a big difference. Tonight: Be a duo.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Others come toward you, and they might try to provoke a stronger reaction from you than usual. People simply want to know that you care and are willing to be flexible. One person could use anger or sarcasm to evoke a reaction. Just walk away, if need be. Tonight: Not alone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ You might want to slow down, despite others' desire to energize you. You are likely to become irritated by some one's efforts to evoke a certain response from you. Try to help this person verbalize his or her needs rather than act them out. Tonight: Relax with a close friend.

11-year-old boy gets lawn-mowing gig at White House

By Catherine Lucey and Ken Thomas
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An 11-year-old boy in khaki shorts and a red polo shirt got the lawn-mowing gig of a lifetime Friday when President Donald Trump put him to work in the Rose Garden.

Frank Giaccio, who goes by the initials FX, was so focused on doing his job that he didn't even notice when Trump emerged from the White House to check out his work.

FX, who lives in the Washington suburb of Falls Church, Virginia, kept right on pushing the mower in a long, straight row as Trump walked alongside him.

When the boy finally paused, the president called him the "future of the country right here" and asked what he wants to be when he grows up. "A Navy seal!" Trump exclaimed. "Well, he'll make it."

Standing with FX and his father, Trump added: "We'll bring them into the Oval Office. Maybe he'll be president."

Just how did FX make it to the Rose Garden? The White House said FX had written to Trump to say he admires the president's business acumen and runs his own neighborhood lawn-care business.

"It's probably the biggest day of my life so far," FX said afterward.

He added that his day was "jam-packed" with media interviews, watering plants, mowing the lawn and visiting the Oval Office with his dad. "It was a lot bigger than I thought," he said.

FX said he normally charges $8 per lawn but decided to mow the White House lawn free of charge.

President Donald Trump walks with Frank Giaccio, 11, of Falls Church, Va., left, as he mows the lawn of the Rose Garden, Friday at the White House in Washington. The 11-year-old, who wrote the president requesting to mow the lawn at the White House, was so focused on the job at hand that he didn't notice the president until he was right next to him.

In-laws could pose a threat to couple's reconciliation

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 15 years and love my wife very much, but we drifted apart. Then I went and did something really stupid and had an affair. It lasted only a few weeks, and I regret it. My now-ex-wife and I are still working on our relationship. Yes, it was the wrong thing to do, but because of the affair, we have grown closer than we have ever been.

My problem is her parents. She's worried how they will react. They dislike me intensely now and would run me over with their car if they got the chance. They have also trash-talked me to our children. (My parents have never said anything bad about her and never would.)

It has been a year, and her parents don't know we are working on staying together. They keep trying to set her up on dates. I feel like I'm a secret. Help! — WORKING IT OUT IN IOWA

DEAR WANTS TO TRY: I'm sorry you didn't explain more about how you and your ex are trying to work things out. From where I sit, her parents are not the problem. The problem is her reluctance to talk to them like the adult she is and tell them your — and her — intention to reconcile. It's natural that they are angry with you for cheating on their daughter and are trying to introduce her to eligible men now she's divorced. The two of you should enlist the help of a licensed marriage and family counselor, not only to help you reconcile, but also to repair the breach with her family.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26 and have been struggling with jealousy and envy for the past few years. My friends and family members my age are moving forward with their lives. I'm having trouble landing a full-time job, so I still live at home with my parents. I feel like I'm still in high school, where I must answer questions about where I'm going and whom I'm going out with.

I love my parents and I'm thankful for them, but at times I feel that because I'm living under their roof, I am no longer growing as a person. I tell my friends and family my issues when they ask me what's wrong, and they always respond that I do have a purpose in life and that God has a path for me. Can you help me find new ways to cope? — HOW DO I COPE?

DEAR HOW: One way to cope would be to start asking friends and family members why they think you are having such a hard time finding full-time employment. They may be able to offer some helpful suggestions.

Another would be to contact employment agencies and ask what may be missing from your resume and whether they can help you. (It may be time to start looking into fields other than the ones in which you have been working.)

I agree that at 26, it may be time to establish some independence by either finding a roommate to share expenses or renting a room in a home other than your parents'.

Tim Stanton talks to a reporter Thursday about his personal losses by Hurricane Irma, in Big Pine Key, Fla. A tree had fallen on the trailer where he lives, and his workshop was destroyed along with an old convertible BMW he'd just bought with saved money.

Irma wipes out dreams across independent-minded Florida Keys

By Jason Dearen
Associated Press

BIG PINE KEY, Fla. — Tim Stanton emerged from his ruined workshop off Highway 1 on Big Pine Key and collapsed to the ground, his sunburned, tear-covered face contorted in anguish.

The skeleton-thin 58-year-old with long, stringy gray hair sat under an old gas station awning, overcome by his personal loss in this idyllic place that was one of the hardest hit by Hurricane Irma. A tree fell on the trailer where he lives, and his shop was destroyed, along with an old BMW convertible he had just bought with saved money.

Like many people who drop out of more traditional lives to come to the Keys and forge their own path, Stanton moved here eight years ago from Pennsylvania with plans to cobble together a living based on his own ideas and entrepreneurship. First he sold fresh-pressed lime and sugarcane drinks on the roadside, then gained a local name for crafting ukuleles out of old cigar boxes and worked in a fruit grove. He managed to stitch together an income in one of the nation's most expensive places and was just getting by when Irma roared into town.

"It's great here if you're rich, but for the rest of us it's a struggle," said a sobbing Stanton, who goes by the nickname "Ukulele Tim." Now "it's going to be a while before it's paradise again. I had just scraped up enough to buy a car. Destroyed."

Those who live here know the bargain: turquoise waters and powdery sand but also hurricanes. Still, locals consider themselves hardy souls who are willing to gamble on escaping a direct hit. The last hurricane to make landfall here was Charley in 2004. Irma destroyed at least 25 percent of homes on the Keys, according to FEMA, and badly damaged systems for delivering water and electricity.

The storm's savagery assaults the senses. The sour, fishy stench of seaweed thrown ashore by Irma fills the air. The main road is dotted with dead iguanas smashed by work trucks and first responders. Sirens wail constantly from emergency crews racing from one end of the Keys to the next. All around is debris and ruin.

For Stanton and other residents, the reality of the task before them is starting to take root. And it's too much to bear.

"I feel so beat now. It's just insult to injury," he said.

Harvey's insured losses estimated to cost nearly $19 billion

AUSTIN — The nation's largest state insurance trade association estimates insured losses from Harvey at nearly $19 billion — and that doesn't count damage not covered by insurance.

The Insurance Council of Texas says windstorm and other claims from Harvey will be worth nearly $3 billion. Approximately 250,000 damaged cars and commercial vehicles will trigger around another $4.75 billion in insurance claims.

The council cites the Federal Emergency Management Agency in estimating that Harvey's flooding will result in $11 billion in payments to homeowners with flood insurance. Those flood losses would be the second highest on record, trailing only Hurricane Katrina's $16 billion.

Harvey battered Texas' Gulf Coast and flooded a vast area stretching from Houston to the Louisiana border. The storm caused 70-plus deaths and damaged or destroyed more than 250,000 homes.

Source: The Associated Press

Across the road from Stanton's shop, homes and trailers are toppled. Electricity is out, and a boil-water notice is in effect. A mobile cellphone tower was erected Thursday, bringing the first communications for some who had been cut off from their families since the storm.

Patrick Garvey drove into the neighborhood, his car full of meals-ready-to-eat and cases of water from a distribution hub run by the Florida National Guard nearby. He sent his wife and twin daughters to Brazil to be with family and stayed on Big Pine during the storm.

Like Stanton, Garvey gave up his previous life to come to Big Pine Key and forge his own path, inspired by famous Keys iconoclasts like Ernest Hemingway and treasure hunter Mel Fisher, who reflected the islands' live-by-your-own-rules mentality. He bought the Keys' only tropical fruit grove and spent six years lovingly restoring and replanting it.

The 41-year-old former Department of Children and Families employee drained his retirement savings and put everything into the grove. He had help from Stanton, who worked there part-time, and others in the small community. He had started getting customers for his unusual, locally grown tropical fruits like the Abiu, lychee, durian and others cultivated nowhere else in the U.S.

"There's a pioneering spirit in the Keys. It's going against the grain," Garvey said.

On Thursday, his footsteps made a crunching sound from the dry, dead vegetation of his once-thriving enterprise called The Grimal Grove. The trees, some planted decades ago by an experimental grower named Adolf Grimal, had been bowled over by the storm or were killed by the saltwater storm surge.

"I don't have anything now," Garvey said looking around. He had been sleeping outside since the storm and was wrestling mentally with whether he could start again. He had been scraping by before the storm, but was able to live cheaply in the neighborhood of trailers and mobile homes that was now laid to waste.

"Affordable housing here is trailers. And if you lose your trailer, you can't put another one on the lot, according to the local building code. They were grandfathered in," Garvey said. "It's tough for the working class. There's a high cost of living, but low wages."

Garvey hopped in his car and drove across the street to offer food and water to Stanton and some others who stuck the storm out.

Many neighbors fled Big Pine and the Keys to go north, and residents still were not being let back in until the water system and electricity could be at least partially restored. At a checkpoint near Lower Matecumbe Key, an officer said Thursday that every fourth or fifth car was someone trying to get back in, and they were all being turned away.

With the hot sun burning and the air thick with humidity, the two men looked at each other with sadness as they discussed everything they lost. They hope FEMA and others will come through for them and allow their businesses and homes to be rebuilt.

Garvey said he would try to restore the grove, hoping the community that rallied behind him to help get it started will do so again.

For Stanton, rebuilding seemed a dream as faded as his once-idyllic Keys.

"I'm not a lucky guy, and chances are I'm not going to qualify for all that FEMA aid and stuff. And at least before when things went (bad), I could go to the little grove across the street. It was a little slice of heaven," he said through tears.

S&P 500 tops 2,500 mark as tech and bank stocks climb

By Marley Jay
Associated Press

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks edged higher Friday as technology companies and banks rose. The Standard & Poor's 500 index closed above 2,500 for the first time as stocks had one of their best weeks this year.

Stocks wobbled in early trading after the Commerce Department said retail sales slipped in August and the Federal Reserve said industrial production dropped last month, mostly because of Hurricane Harvey. But big names like Apple and Boeing took the market higher. Stocks made big gains Monday and as Hurricane Irma weakened, and they didn't do too much after that, but still wound up with their biggest weekly gain since the beginning of January.

Rick Rieder, the chief investment officer for BlackRock's global fixed income business, said retail sales and inflation have been weak because technological changes keep reducing the prices of clothes, food, travel, and phone plans. That lowers measurements of sales revenue, like the one the government released Friday, but Rieder said they keep people buying — even though the same technological changes can also lower people's wages.

"We get everything cheaper than we used to because of the internet and delivery mechanisms," he said. "The price is coming down so quickly that it's helping demand."

The Standard & Poor's 500 index gained 4.61 points, or 0.2 percent, to a record 2,500.23. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 64.86 points, or 0.3 percent, to 22,268.34, its fourth record close in a row. The Nasdaq composite added 19.38 points, or 0.3 percent, to 6,448.47. The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks picked up 6.69 points, or 0.5 percent, to 1,431.71.

Industrial production in the U.S. fell 0.9 percent in August, the biggest drop in eight years, as Harvey knocked numerous oil refining, plastics and chemicals factories out of business for a time. Many of those factories are based in the Gulf Coast region that Harvey hit. The Federal Reserve said the weather and flooding was responsible for almost all of the loss.

Apple picked up $1.60, or 1 percent, to $159.88 after three days of declines. Chipmaker Nvidia jumped $10.71, or 6.3 percent, to $180.11 and hard drive maker Western Digital gained $2.73, or 3.2 percent, to $88.52.

However shares of software maker Oracle absorbed their biggest loss in four years. The company's first-quarter profit and sales were better than investors expected, but analysts were concerned about forecasts for its cloud computing business. Oracle lost $4.05, or 7.7 percent, to $48.74.

Boeing rose $3.77, or 1.5 percent, to $249 as the aerospace company continued to set record highs. Its stock is up 60 percent in 2017.

Stocks in the U.K. slumped to a four-month low and the pound rose to its highest level since mid-2016, after Bank of England officials confirmed they are close to raising interest rates for the first time in a decade. The first step could happen as soon as November. Many companies on the British FTSE 100 are multinationals whose overseas earnings are diminished in value when the pound appreciates against other currencies.

The pound surged to $1.3571 from $1.3398, its highest since mid-2016. The FTSE 100 fell 1.1 percent after a 1.1-percent loss Thursday.

U.K. stocks did not appear to be affected by a bomb attack on a London subway train. Police said an improvised explosive device hurt more than 20 people, but none of the injuries appeared to be life-threatening.

Credit monitoring companies continued to fall as Senate Democrats introduced a bill that would prevent the companies from charging fees to consumers who want their credit frozen. In many states, the companies collect fees in return for freezing accounts.

Some consumers have chosen to freeze their credit after Equifax said the personal information of 143 million Americans was exposed after a breach of its systems. Those consumers are trying to prevent identity thieves from using their information to open fraudulent accounts.

Equifax fell $3.68, or 3.8 percent, to a two-year low of $92.98. The stock began plunging last Friday after the company disclosed the breach, and this week it took its biggest weekly loss since tend of 1998. Rival TransUnion lost $1.47, or 3.4 percent, to $41.61 and Experian fell 0.9 percent in London.

Bond prices dipped. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note rose to 2.20 percent from 2.19 percent. Interest rates also rose, which helped banks, as they stand to make more money from lending.

U.S. crude oil finished unchanged at $49.89 a barrel in New York. It's at its highest price since the end of July. Brent crude, the standard for international oil prices, gained 15 cents to $55.62 a barrel in London.

Wholesale gasoline rose 3 cents to $1.66 a gallon. Heating oil added 2 cents to $1.80 a gallon. Natural gas fell 5 cents to $3.02 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Gold fell $4.10 to $1,325.20 an ounce. Silver sank 9 cents to $17.70 an ounce. Copper lost 1 cent to $2.95 a pound.

Trump demands ESPN apologize for anchor's tweets

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump is calling on ESPN to apologize days after one of the sports network's anchors called him a "white supremacist" and "bigot."

ESPN said Thursday it had accepted the apology of its "SportsCenter" host Jemele Hill for her tweets about Trump Monday. Hill said Thursday she was sorry for causing her employer trouble.

ESPN has repeatedly said Hill's comments don't reflect the view of the network. But that apparently hasn't satisfied Trump. He demanded on Twitter early Friday that ESPN "Apologize for untruth!"

The president also took a shot at falling ESPN subscriber numbers, writing: "ESPN is paying a really big price for its politics (and bad programming). People are dumping it in RECORD numbers."

The network didn't immediately issue a response to the president's comments Friday.

UK threat level raised to 'critical' after subway bombing

By Jill Lawless and Gregory Katz
Associated Press

LONDON — A homemade bomb planted in a rush-hour subway car exploded in London on Friday, injuring 29 people and prompting authorities to raise Britain's terrorism threat level to "critical," meaning another attack may be imminent.

The early morning blast sparked a huge manhunt for the perpetrators of what police said was the fourth terrorist attack in the British capital this year.

Prime Minister Theresa May, acting on the recommendation of the Joint Terrorism Analysis Center, raised the country's threat level from "severe" to "critical" — its highest possible level. May said military troops would augment the police presence in a "proportionate and sensible step."

Earlier, May said the device had been "intended to cause significant harm."

Still, to the relief of authorities and Londoners, experts said the bomb — hidden in a plastic bucket inside a supermarket freezer bag — only partially exploded, sparing the city much worse carnage.

"I would say this was a failed high-explosive device," Chris Hunter, a former British army bomb expert, said of the blast, which caused no serious injuries.

The Islamic State group claimed responsibility for the attack, which it said was carried out by an affiliated unit.

The bomb went off around 8:20 a.m. as the train, carrying commuters from the suburbs — including many school children — was at Parsons Green station in the southwest of the city.

Witness Chris Wildish told Sky News that he saw "out of the corner of my eye, a massive flash of flames that went up the side of the train," followed by "an acrid chemical smell."

Commuter Lauren Hubbard said she was on the train when she heard a loud bang.

"I looked around and this wall of fire was just coming toward us," Hubbard said. She said her instinct was "just run," and she fled the above-ground station with her boyfriend.

Chaos ensued as hundreds of people, some of them suffering burns, poured from the train, which can hold up to 800 people.

"I ended up squashed on the staircase. People were falling over, people fainting, crying. There were little kids clinging onto the back of me," said another commuter, Ryan Barnett.

Passenger Luke Walmsley said it was "like every man for himself to get down the stairs."

"People were just pushing," he added. "There were nannies or mums asking where their children were."

Police and health officials said 29 people were treated in London hospitals, most of them for flash burns. None of the injuries were serious or life-threatening, the emergency services said.

Trains were suspended along a stretch of the Underground's District Line, and several homes were evacuated as police set up a 50-meter (150-foot) cordon around the scene while they secured the device and launched a search for those who planted it.

The Metropolitan Police said hundreds of detectives, along with agents of the domestic spy agency MI5, were looking at surveillance camera footage, carrying out forensic work and speaking to witnesses.

Speaking to reporters late Friday, Assistant Commissioner Mark Rowley said police were making "good progress" and that the public should be reassured that more police and troops will be on the streets.

"We are only aware of one device," he said. "We have remnants of that device. We are chasing down suspects." He refused to provide further details, except to say the bomb involved the "detonation of an improvised explosive device."

Among the questions authorities were seeking to answer: What was the device made from, and was it meant to go off when it did, in a leafy, affluent part of the city far from London's top tourist sites?

British media reported that the bomb included a timer. Lewis Herrington, a terrorism expert at Loughborough University, said that would set it apart from suicide attacks like those on the London subway in 2005 or at Manchester Arena in May, in which the attackers "all wanted to die."

Photos taken inside the train showed a white plastic bucket inside a foil-lined shopping bag, with flames and what appeared to be wires emerging from the top.

Terrorism analyst Magnus Ranstorp of the Swedish Defense University said that from the photos it appeared the bomb did not fully detonate, as much of the device and its casing remained intact.

"They were really lucky with this one, it could have really become much worse," he said.

Hunter, the explosives expert, said it appeared that "there was a bang, a bit of a flash, and that would suggest that, potentially, some of the explosive detonated, the detonator detonated, but much of the explosive was effectively inert."

Police and ambulances were on the scene within minutes of the blast, a testament to their experience at responding to violent attacks in London. The city has been a target for decades: from Irish Republican Army bombers, right-wing extremists and, more recently, attackers inspired by al-Qaida or the Islamic State group.

Britain has seen four other terrorist attacks this year, which killed a total of 36 people. The other attacks in London — near Parliament, on London Bridge and near a mosque in Finsbury Park in north London — used vehicles and knives. Similar methods have been used in attacks across Europe, including in Nice, Stockholm, Berlin and Barcelona.

The last time the country's threat level was raised to critical, was after the May 22 suicide bombing at Manchester Arena that killed 22 people.

British authorities say they have foiled 19 plots since the middle of 2013, six of them since the van and knife attack on Westminster Bridge and Parliament in March, which killed five people. Police and MI5 say that at any given time they are running about 500 counterterrorism investigations involving 3,000 individuals.

London Mayor Sadiq Khan said there had been a "shift" in the terrorism threat, with attackers using a wide range of methods to try to inflict carnage. Khan, who belongs to the opposition Labour Party, said London police needed more resources to fight the threat. Police budgets have been cut since 2010 by Britain's Conservative government.

Trump's tough talk on London bomb irks British leader

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump's suggestion that London police could have done more to prevent Friday's homemade bomb explosion drew a quick rejoinder from British Prime Minister Theresa May, who said it's never helpful "to speculate on what is an ongoing investigation."

Trump turned the London subway bomb explosion into an opportunity to highlight his tough talk on terror and promote his travel ban.

The president's series of early-morning tweets about the still-unfolding investigation stood in contrast to his delay last month in firmly condemning Neo-Nazis and white supremacists after racial violence broke out in Charlottesville, Virginia, and left one person dead. At the time, he said: "When I make a statement, I like to be correct. I want the facts. ... I don't want to rush into a statement."

The London bomb exploded on a packed train during morning rush hour Friday, leaving at least 29 people injured but no one with life-threatening injuries. Police said the explosion was a terrorist attack, the fifth in Britain this year.

On Twitter, Trump called the explosion another attack "by a loser terrorist." He also offered implied criticism of law enforcement, saying "these are sick and demented people who were in the sights of Scotland Yard. Must be proactive!"

Asked about Trump's comments, May said, "I never think it's helpful for anybody to speculate on what is an ongoing investigation."

Trump told reporters Friday morning that he had been briefed on the explosion, but did not provide further details.

Viva Las Vegas as celebs pack Sin City for Mexican holiday

By Regina Garcia Cano
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Las Vegas never needs an excuse to party, and as an entertainment oasis a short trip from Mexico, the city will roll out the red, white and green carpet starting Friday to celebrate Mexican Independence Day.

A premier boxing match, a bell-ringing ceremony and more than a dozen performances by Latin megastars, including Ricky Martin and Alejandro Fernandez, were expected to attract tens of thousands of visitors, making the weekend once again one of Sin City's busiest.

The holiday, often mistaken in the U.S. for Cinco de Mayo, over time has become a star-studded celebration of Hispanic culture.

"It has developed over two decades or more to become a staple. Las Vegas has the 'ambiente' — the fun, the excitement — all year long, and then you bring in Alejandro Fernandez, Pepe Aguilar and the ones who have the residencies like Ricky Martin and Jennifer Lopez," said Rafael Villanueva, senior director of international business sales for the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority.

The celebration is so much wider, it includes those superstars who aren't Mexican, including Martin and Lopez, who both have Puerto Rican roots.

"If you talk to many people in Mexico, they'll say if we are not going to the Ciudad de Mexico, we are coming to Las Vegas because of all the fun and all the entertainment," he said.

The holiday on Saturday marks Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla's call to arms that sparked the Mexican uprising against Spanish rulers in 1810. The rebel priest was killed the next year, but his words, known as the "Cry of Dolores" or "Grito de Dolores," eventually led to independence from Spain in 1821.

What started as private entertainment shows for high rollers from Latin America has evolved into one of the city's busiest weekends, with companies booking performers a year in advance and airlines adding direct flights from Mexico.

The concert lineup aims to appeal to a range of musical tastes and generations and includes Marc Anthony, Ricardo Arjona, Emmanuel, Enrique Iglesias, Carlos Santana, Mana, Marco Antonio Solis, Jesse and Joy, Gloria Trevi and Alejandra Guzman.

"Probably over the past 15-20 years, we have really embraced the holiday, bringing top-level, A-level acts and fights," said Sid Greenfeig, vice president of entertainment and booking for MGM Resorts International, which is hosting seven shows and a megaboxing match across its properties. "We look definitely at diversity within the artists, and having arenas and large venues, we also look at acts that can fill these rooms."

San Diego resident Esthela Pedrin is seeing Fernandez's yearly Mexican Independence Day concert Friday for the 10th time. With so many options to choose from, she said she's having a difficult time picking a Saturday concert to attend.

"I love celebrating it in Las Vegas, especially because so many people from all over our country of Mexico gather there," said Pedrin, a dual citizen of Mexico and the U.S. "(Fernandez) brings out the flag. We all sing."

Rihanna, Dave Chappelle team up to raise money for charity

By Mesfin Fekadu

Singer Rihanna attends the 3rd Annual Diamond Ball at Cipriani Wall Street on Thursday in New York.

NEW YORK — At a Rihanna charity event, she will encourage you to drink heavily — so that you donate generously.

The pop star played the role of slick bartender at her third Diamond Ball on Thursday night in New York City, encouraging the audience to drink up and donate money to her foundation at the same time.

"The more you drink, the more inspired you'll be to donate money ... and help kids around the world," said Rihanna, the founder of the Clara Lionel Foundation, which promotes education and arts globally.

The benefit raised more than $5 million. Dave Chappelle worked as Rihanna's right-hand man. He first told jokes and later joined the auctioneer onstage, even purchasing a Retna art piece for $180,000.

"I have the perfect wall for this," he said.

When selling two tickets to the Obama Foundation Fall Summit in Chicago, Chappelle said he would throw in his pocket square. It jumped from $200,000 to $201,000. It eventually sold for $275,000.

Jay-Z, Beyonce, Leonardo DiCaprio, Jamie Foxx and Trevor Noah were some of the A-listers who attended the black-tie event, which included a video message from former President Barack Obama. He thanked Rihanna "for the great work" she's doing with her foundation. "You've become a powerful force," Obama said, in helping people find "hope" and "dignity."

Rihanna launched the Clara Lionel Foundation in 2012 and named it after her grandparents Clara and Lionel Braithwaite. Many of her family members attended the event and posed for photos on the red carpet with the Grammy-winning singer.

The foundation said at the event they were among the first responders to assist those affected by Hurricane Harvey, and that they're currently strategizing how best to support victims of Hurricane Irma.

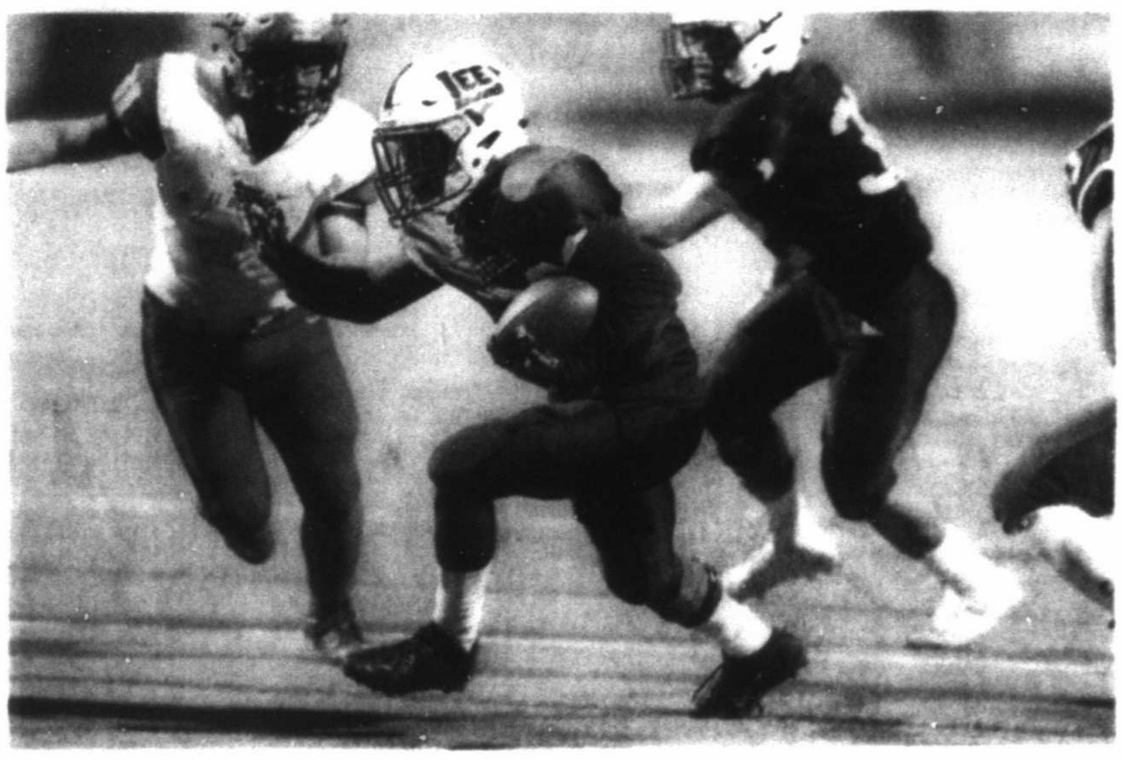
Lee's running game leads Rebels past El Dorado

By Will Korn
wkorn@mrt.com



Lee's Avery Akbar (26) runs the ball during the Rebels' victory Friday night.

From his special place in heaven, Jacob Power looked down upon the Lee football team and smiled Friday night.

The Rebels, playing with the memory of Power in their hearts and minds, handled dynamic quarterback Cedarious Barfield and visiting El Paso El Dorado in a 48-34 victory at Grande Communications Stadium.

Avery Akbar and the Rebels' running game put on a clinic, running rampant on the Aztecs' defense from start to finish. Akbar finished with 167 yards and two touchdowns on 14 carries, while backfield mate Josh Traylor added 165 yards and a pair of scores on a season-high 24 touches.

Quarterback Colby Standard supplied 59 yards and a touchdown on the ground, as part of a Lee attack that cranked out 381 rushing yards. Standard also threw for 238 yards, a touchdown and an interception.

The victory pushed the Rebels to 3-0 for just the second time since 1999, but Lee head coach Clint Hartman has visions for this program that extend far beyond that mark.

The win is always nice, but he said he wasn't pleased with his team's collective effort in the latter part of the second half in particular.

Trailing 48-14 with just under three minutes left in the third quarter, Barfield and the Aztecs (1-2) refused to roll over and they made things a bit more interesting in the final 12 minutes of play.

"We just didn't finish," Hartman said. "We had 48 points in the third quarter, don't get any in the fourth quarter and I probably put the (second string) in too soon. But they are prepared to play and we expect them to play well. When you put the (second string) in you expect them to play like the (first string).

"You've got a bad taste in your mouth when you don't play as well as you can. I told our kids I'm always going to be honest with them. We're 3-0 but that's not what we're looking toward. The biggest room in the world is the room for improvement and the thing we need now is to just keep getting better."

Lee junior receiver Sheldon Bass, who finished the night with a team-high six catches, 63 yards and two scores, agreed with his coach.

"In the second half, I think we stooped down to their level," Bass said. "Like what coach Hartman said, it's not good enough."

Lee grabbed a 7-0 lead on just five plays, capped by a 12-yard scoring run by Traylor.

But the Aztecs answered under two minutes later on an electric 42-yard run by

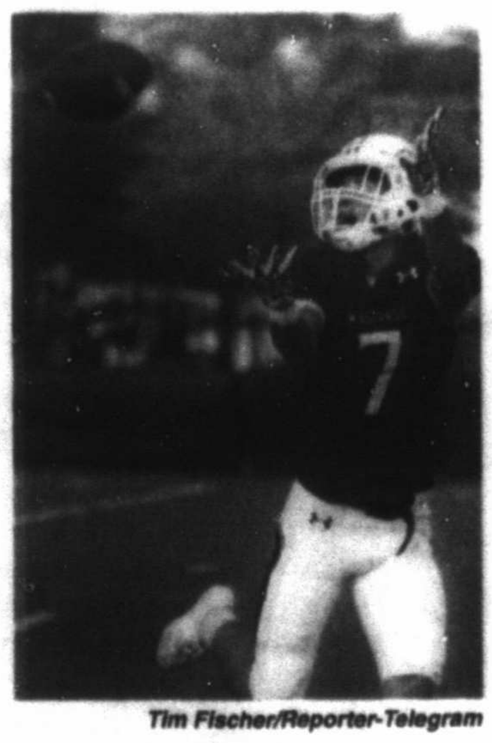
MCS finishes off another 6A foe, beats EP Americas

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com



Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

MCS' Coy Stewart looks to make a reception for a touchdown but can not bring in the ball as EP Americas' Paul Morales defends Friday at Gordon Awtry Field.

Midland Christian coach Greg McClendon has seen his team not only gain experience but confidence during the Mustangs' impressive start to the season.

After defeating Class 3A power Brock the week before, the Mustangs knocked off their second UIL Class 6A opponent of the season Friday with a 54-14 blowout victory on homecoming night over El Paso Americas at Gordon Awtry Field.

The Mustangs (3-0) had 488 yards of total offense and saw another impressive performance from junior quarterback Peyton Powell, who passed for 205 yards, rushed for another 197 and accounted for six touchdowns on the night.

Friday's game was supposed to be a test for these Mustangs, who lost to Americas, 41-28, last year after the Trail Blazers had a strong second-half comeback in El Paso.

But the Mustangs put this one away by scoring the final 12 points of the first half for a 30-14 lead and scoring another 14 points to start the third quarter.

"I think (Americas) has got a good football team, I really do. My team, the only thing I can say is that they keep surprising me," McClendon said. "They

No. 4 DeSoto runs past MHS; Bulldogs fall to 0-3

DESOTO — A young and developing Midland High football team had a chance to see where it stood against one of the state's best Friday night at Eagle Stadium.

Facing No. 4-ranked DeSoto, the Bulldogs had their moments on offense and defense, but couldn't get the finishing plays at key times to result in touchdowns and stops.

The Eagles rode their rushing attack to roll to a 41-14 victory over MHS, a far different result from DeSoto's thrilling 49-43 win in 2016.

DeSoto's 1-2 punch of quarterback Courtney Douglas and running back Dylan Lawrence was too much for the Bulldogs, leading a ground game that amassed 383 yards on 48 carries.

Douglas ran 16 times for 138 yards and three touchdowns, while Lawrence pitched in with 10 carries for 168 yards and one TD.

DeSoto (3-0) went into halftime with a 21-0 lead and held a 28-0 advantage through three quarters.

MHS fell to 0-3 and it has one final tune-up game, a home contest against Keller on Sept. 22, before opening District 2-6A play against rival Lee.

"They're big, but I think our defense did a really good job of playing physical and doing our assignments really well," MHS

LUBBOCK CORONADO 21 ODESSA HIGH 20

ODESSA — Kaleb Manuel's second touchdown of the night helped Lubbock Coronado edge Odessa High, 21-20, Friday night at Ratliff Stadium.

Manuel scored from 20 yards out with just more than 11 minutes to play in the game. It was the lone score of the second half. Manuel, who racked up 115 yards on the night, also scored from 7 yards out in the second quarter.

OHS had taken a 20-7 lead with 7:32 to play in the second quarter. At the time, it didn't appear that a failed extra-point attempt would hurt as much as it did forthe Bronchos, which lost its first game in three tries this season. OHS actually outgained Coronado 327 yards to 271. The Bronchos, though, punted six times and lost a pair of fumbles.

Lubbock Coronado improved to 3-0 for the year.

RANKIN 68 SANDERSON 21

SANDERSON — The Rankin football team coasted to a 68-21 non-district victory over Sanderson on Friday night.

Statistics and scoring information were unavailable at press time.

The Red Devils improved to 2-2 with the win and next host Grady at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

WATER VALLEY 60 GRADY 14

LENORAH — Water Valley had little trouble rolling past Grady in a 60-14 win Friday at Tunnell Stadium.

Statistics and scoring information were unavailable at press time.

The Wildcats fell to 0-3 with the loss and next travel to Rankin at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

CRANE 27 OZONA 26

OZONA — Crane stopped a 2-point conversion with 49 seconds to play in the game to give Golden Cranes a close, non-district victory over Ozona on Friday night.

Ozona had just scored on a 65-yard fumble recovery for a touchdown. However, the Golden Cranes stopped the Lions' run on the conversion attempt to win the game. Crane survived losing three fumbles.

Kobe Henderson scored three touchdowns for Crane, whch racked up 337 yards on the ground.

The game was a statistical oddity as the two teams passed a total of five times, completing only two. They also combined for two punts. Ozona rushed for 256 yards, led by Kyle Rodriguez's 134 yards on the ground.

NFL seeks quick action to get Elliott suspension reinstated

By Schuyler Dixon
Associated Press

The NFL filed an emergency motion in federal appeals court Friday, hoping to get a swift ruling on its request to overrule a judge who blocked a six-game suspension for star Dallas Cowboys running back Ezekiel Elliott in a domestic violence case in Ohio.

The league filed its request with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, even though a federal judge in Texas hasn't ruled on a request to put the injunction on hold while an appeal is pursued. The emergency motion asks the court to rule on the request to suspend U.S. District Judge Amos Mazzant's injunction as early as Tuesday, the start of the practice week before the Cowboys' third game of the season against Arizona.

If the ruling isn't made by Tuesday, the NFL is asking for a decision by Sept. 26, the start of practice before Dallas' Week 4 home game against the Los Angeles Rams.

Elliott had already been cleared to play in a 19-3 win over the New York Giants in the season opener before Mazzant granted his request for an injunction. Last year's NFL rushing leader will play Sunday at Denver under Mazzant's ruling.

The 22-year-old Elliott was suspended by Commissioner Roger Goodell in August after the league concluded following a yearlong investigation that he had several physical confrontations last summer in Ohio with his girlfriend at the time. The NFL players' union sued on Elliott's behalf.

In its emergency motion, the NFL reiterated previous arguments that Elliott's attorneys sued prematurely because arbitrator Harold Henderson had yet to rule on the running back's appeal of the suspension. The appeal was denied the same day as arguments over the request for an injunction from Mazzant in Sherman, Texas, about 65 miles north of Dallas.

The NFL ultimately wants to get the case moved from Texas to the Southern District of New York. That was the venue for the league's successful appeal after a federal judge had overturned New England quarterback Tom Brady's four-game suspension in the "Deflategate" case.

The NFL contends Mazzant's ruling was an unnecessary interference in the league's labor deal with the players.

"Put differently, the six-game suspension approved by the arbitrator will ultimately stand, and no one's interests are served by delaying that discipline based on a misguided order by a district court that lacked jurisdiction," the NFL wrote in its motion.

Mazzant's ruling took aim at Henderson and the NFL , saying decisions not to allow Goodell and Tiffany Thompson, the ex-girlfriend, to testify at the appeal were among several factors unfair to Elliott. The NFL has maintained that it followed all procedures for discipline in the collective bargaining agreement.

Three years ago, the NFL stiffened its domestic violence policy with the six-game standard and more investigative power. The changes came after the league was sharply criticized for its handling of a domestic incident involving former Baltimore running back Ray Rice.

defensive end Stetson Abney said. "(We've made) a little improvements week by week and I think we're putting it together. I think we will be good by district."

The Bulldogs' offense had a one-dimensional rushing attack for most of the game, as they were limited to 11 passing yards in the first half.

After losing a fumble on their first second-half possession, the MHS defense was pinned on its own 20-yard line, but forced a turnover on downs on DeSoto's offense, highlighted by a sack from linebacker Angel Nabarrette.

With the momentum, MHS drove all the way down the field behind six first downs and steady running from Tim Gates and quarterback Suddin Sapien.

However, on a third-and-goal from the DeSoto 1-yard line, Midland High fumbled the snap on the center-to-quarterback exchange and the Eagles recovered.

The Bulldogs missed the chance to move within three scores in the third quarter. DeSoto responded by driving 89 yards, and putting the game away with a 3-yard TD run by Daryon Triche, which extended the Eagles' lead to 35-0 with 7:58 remaining.

"We're not going to make light of the fact that we didn't finish and I think that was kind of our story tonight," MHS head coach Tim Anuszkiewicz said. "We had a couple of drives that went into scoring territory and we didn't finish those drives and we didn't finish some tackles that cost us some big plays.

"Again, that's kind of been our story up to this point. Our kids are playing hard. I'm proud of the way they're playing. We just got to clean up the mental mistakes that we're making ourselves."

With the outcome in hand, the Bulldogs got their passing game going in the fourth quarter, as Sapien connected with Darius Manning on a 26-yard touchdown pass on a slant pattern. Later in the quarter, sophomore Riggs McDonald heaved a bomb to Sam Hullender for a 32-yard score.

"Our energy level was better, so they are listening to what we're telling them as coaches and trying to get better," Anuszkiewicz said. "We just have to get to the point where we have an opportunity to win games."

Gates rushed 20 times for 87 yards.

Barfield.

In the second quarter, Traylor and Barfield again exchanged scores, as Traylor trotted in from two yards out, while Barfield connected with Josh Ramirez for a 59-yard strike to tie the game at 14-14.

Lee rattled off 20 unanswered points — thanks in part to a 9-yard score by Akbar — to take a 34-14 lead into halftime.

In the second half, a 27-yard pass from Standard to Brown and 1-yard run by Akbar helped the Rebels fend off the Aztecs' late charge.

Barfield, a San Diego State commit, completed 11 of his 25 passes for 260 yards, two touchdowns and an interception.

On the ground, he accounted for 177 yards and three scores on 14 carries.

The Lee defense forced five fumbles in the win, while Logan Acosta accounted for Barfield's interception.

do what we ask them to do at a very high level and they're playing really hard. Maybe the thing I'm proudest of is we got a lead, and it's easy to get complacent, but they came out and put the game away at a very high level. I was really, really proud of them tonight. There were a whole lot of positives to walk away from."

Powell said finishing off the Trail Blazers was something that was emphasized at halftime.

"At halftime, Coach (McClendon) said this is exactly where we've been all year and this is a game that he wanted us to finish. That's what we did," he said. "The defense did their job and the offense did what we could. But it was the defense that set us up to have the success we did."

If there were any negatives for the Mustangs, there was as 62-yard TD run by Americas running back Tremaine Henderson in the first quarter to tie the game at 7.

And then there was a 23-yard TD reception by Julian Galindo in which he broke tackles on the way to the end zone to pull within 28-14 midway through the second quarter.

McClendon said the team will work on cleaning some things up, but other than that, the Mustangs seem like they're improving each week in all phases of the game.

MCS also showed some nice balance on Friday as the Mustangs rushed for 283 yards and passed for another 205.

"The wideouts caught the ball and the running backs did what they needed to do tonight," Powell said.

Americas was also held to 310 yards and turned the ball over twice. Henderson led Americas with 113 yards rushing.

The Mustangs also got a 70-yard kickoff return from Josh Brown and 60-yard TD run by Bryson Harper in the win over yet another team that beat the Mustangs last year.

"(El Paso Eastwood, Brock and Americas) were the same teams we went 0-3 against last year," Powell said. "This year you're seeing a big improvement."

RockHounds shut out Tulsa, stave off elimination

From staff reports

TULSA — Four RockHounds' pitchers combined for a five-hit shutout and Midland lives to play another day in the Texas League playoffs.

The RockHounds defeated Tulsa in game 3 of the league's championship series at ONEOK Field. Game four takes place at 7:05 p.m. today with the Drillers leading the series, 2-1.

Heath Fillmyer, Sam Bragg, Tyler Sturdevant and Kyle Finnegan combined to strike out six. They also kept Tulsa from hitting with men on base as the Drillers left eight on the base paths.

The RockHounds also only mustered five hits, but they took advantage of their extra-base hits. In the fourth, second baseman Max Schrock doubled, moved to third on a ground out and scored on a ground out by Viosergy Rosa.

In the sixth, shortstop Jorge Mateo tripled and scored on a ground out by Schrock.

Tulsa's Brandon McCarthy allowed both runs, working six inning and picking up the loss.

Houston Astros' Evan Gattis (11) hits an RBI-triple to score Carlos Correa as New York Yankees catcher Brian McCann, left, reaches for the pitch during the seventh inning of a baseball game Sunday in Houston.

Correa, Gattis lift Astros over Mariners

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Carlos Correa and Evan Gattis had two hits apiece and each drove in a run as the Houston Astros jumped on James Paxton and cruised to a 5-2 win over the Seattle Mariners on Friday night to move closer to clinching the American League West.

Houston's magic number dropped to two, meaning the Astros could earn a playoff spot and secure their first division title since 2001 with a win on Saturday if the Angels lose Friday or Saturday.

The Astros led 3-0 after one inning as Paxton (12-4) struggled in his return from the disabled list after sitting out since Aug. 10 with a strained pectoral muscle.

He allowed four hits and three runs while walking two in 1 1/3 innings to snap a seven-game winning streak. It tied the shortest start of his career and was his first loss since June 27.

Charlie Morton (12-7) went six strong innings, allowing five hits and one run while fanning seven. Ken Giles pitched a scoreless ninth for his 31st save.

Jean Segura had two hits and drove in two for the Mariners, who remain in the hunt for the second AL wild card.

Paxton had trouble locating his pitches from the start, walking leadoff hitter George Springer and throwing two wild pitches in the first inning.

The first one allowed Springer to advance to second and he scored on a one-out single by Jose Altuve. Paxton's second wild pitch put Altuve at second and the Astros made it 2-0 when he scored on a double by Correa, which sailed just out of reach of a leaping Guillermo Heredia in center field.

Gattis snapped an 0-for-15 skid with an RBI single with two outs to make it 3-0 before Paxton walked Josh Reddick. He finally escaped the inning by retiring Tyler White.

Springer doubled with one out in the second to chase Paxton.

Gattis doubled with two outs in the third and scored on a single by Reddick to push the lead to 4-0.

Segura hit a leadoff double before Morton retired the next 10 batters. Robinson Cano singled with one out in the fourth and Nelson Cruz walked, but Morton sat down the next two Mariners to end the threat.

Ben Gamel and Heredia hit consecutive singles with one out in the fifth and Gamel scored when Segura reached on an error by Morton to cut the lead to 4-1.

Cameron Maybin extended the lead to 5-1 with an RBI single with two outs in the sixth.

Segura drove in a run with a single in the seventh inning to make it 5-2.

Trainer's room

Astros: OF Jake Marisnick had surgery on Friday to repair a broken right thumb he suffered while sliding headfirst into second base on Wednesday night.

He is expected to be out six to eight weeks. ... RHP Lance McCullers, who was scratched from his scheduled start on Wednesday after experiencing arm fatigue during pregame throwing, will throw a bullpen on Saturday. If that goes well he could start on Tuesday against the White Sox.

Up next

Mariners: Erasmo Ramirez (5-5, 4.25 ERA) is scheduled to start for Seattle on Saturday. He yielded five hits and two runs in 6 2/3 innings of a 5-3 loss to the Angels his last time out.

Astros: Dallas Keuchel (12-4, 3.03) will start on Saturday for Houston. The left-hander will look to get back on track after allowing six hits and four runs in 5 2/3 innings of a 10-2 loss to Oakland in his last start.

MLB ROUNDUP

American League

YANKEES 8, ORIOLES 2

NEW YORK — Didi Gregorius hit a tiebreaking two-run homer and drove in four runs, leading the New York Yankees over the reeling Baltimore Orioles 8-2 Friday night for their fifth win in six games.

Luis Severino (13-6) allowed three hits in eight innings with seven strikeouts and one walk. He made one big mistake, Welington Castillo's opposite-field, two-run homer to right that put the Orioles ahead 2-1 in the second. Severino is 8-2 with a 2.09 ERA in 12 starts since the All-Star break.

David Robertson finished with a hitless ninth.

BLUE JAYS 4, TWINS 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Josh Donaldson homered and drove in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning with an infield single that ricocheted off the mound, sending the Toronto Blue Jays to a 4-3 victory on Friday night over the Minnesota Twins to slow their push toward the postseason.

The Twins had a three-game lead over the Los Angeles Angels for the second AL wild card going into the night, with the Seattle Mariners 3 1/2 games back. The New York Yankees hold the first wild card with a four-game edge on the Twins.

Twins starter Bartolo Colon (4-5 in the AL, 6-13 overall) did his best to get the Blue Jays to hit catchable balls, but the 44-year-old faltered after four scoreless innings. Kevin Pillar homered in fifth. Then Donaldson went deep in the sixth.

J.A. Happ (9-10) struck out five and won his third straight start. Roberto Osuna pitched a perfect ninth inning for his 36th save in 46 opportunities.

TIGERS 3, WHITE SOX 2

DETROIT — Mikie Mahtook hit a game-ending RBI single with two outs in the ninth inning, lifting the Detroit Tigers over the Chicago White Sox 3-2 on Friday night to end a six-game skid.

Former Tigers reliever Al Alburquerque (0-2) walked Jeimer Candelario with one out in the ninth, and Aaron Bummer walked Tyler Collins with two outs. White Sox manager Rick Renteria brought in his third pitcher of the inning, Juan Minaya, who uncorked a wild pitch to move the runners to second and third.

Mahtook then hit a 3-2 pitch up the middle for his first career walk-off hit.

Shane Greene (4-3) blew a save for Detroit, but got the win after 1 1/3 innings of relief.

ROYALS 4, INDIANS 3

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians can return to clinching their division and playoff preparations.

Their historic winning streak is, well, history.

Cleveland had its AL record run stopped at 22 straight games on Friday night as the Indians were beaten 4-3 by the Kansas City Royals, who became the first team to conquer the defending league champions since Aug. 23.

Jason Vargas (16-10) pitched into the sixth and Brandon Moss homered off Trevor Bauer (16-9) as the Royals ended baseball's longest win streak in 101 years. The Indians set a new league mark and came within four of matching the overall record held by the 1916 New York Giants.

Following a magical, walk-off win in extra innings on Thursday night, the Indians couldn't muster another late rally and fell for the first time in more than three weeks.

When Francisco Lindor struck out with a runner on first to end it, the packed crowd gave the Indians a prolonged standing ovation. Manager Terry Francona and the Cleveland players came out of the dugout to salute their fans.

National League

CUBS 8, CARDINALS 2

CHICAGO — Kris Bryant had three hits, including his 27th homer, and the Chicago Cubs overcame the ejections of John Lackey and Willson Contreras on their way to an 8-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals on Friday.

Bryant went deep in the fourth and singled twice in Chicago's seven-run sixth, helping the NL Central leaders open a big weekend series on a winning note. The Cubs moved four games ahead of St. Louis.

Lackey and Contreras were thrown out with Chicago trailing 2-1 in the fifth. But after outscoring the New York Mets 39-14 in a three-game sweep, the Cubs got enough big hits to improve to 9-4 against the Cardinals this year.

DODGERS 7, NATIONALS 0

WASHINGTON — Alex Wood threw six shutout innings, Corey Seager hit a three-run homer during a five-run second and the Los Angeles Dodgers' rebound continued with a 7-0 win over the Washington Nationals on Friday.

Wood (15-3) allowed three hits with eight strikeouts and one walk for Los Angeles, which has won three in a row after losing 11 consecutive games and 16 of 17.

The teams entered the highly anticipated three-game series having clinched playoff berths and owning the top two records in the National League. The Dodgers lowered their magic number to clinch the NL West to six.

Justin Turner and Yasiel Puig homered in the Dodgers' first Washington appearance since winning Game 5 of the NL Division Series last October.

The NL East champion Nationals fell six games back of Los Angeles in the chase for home-field advantage in the playoffs.

BRAVES 3, METS 2

ATLANTA — Sean Newcomb recorded eight strikeouts, including five straight, and the Atlanta Braves beat Rafael Montero and the New York Mets 3-2 on Friday night.

The Mets, who couldn't hold a 2-1 lead, have lost five straight.

Newcomb (3-8) gave up two runs on six hits and one walk in 5 1/3 innings. The rookie left-hander's eight strikeouts fell one shy of his career high.

Newcomb's run of five strikeouts began after he allowed a run-scoring double to Dominic Smith in the fourth that gave New York the lead.

Montero (5-10) became the fourth straight Mets starter pitcher to fail to complete five innings. He was lifted with two outs in the fifth after throwing 108 pitches and allowing three runs on seven hits and two walks. He had walked 14 in his previous three starts.

BREWERS 10, MARLINS 2

MILWAUKEE — Neil Walker hit a grand slam during an eight-run eighth inning that broke a tie, and the Brewers beat the Marlins 10-2 on Friday night in the opening game of a series relocated from Miami to Milwaukee because of the aftermath of Hurricane Irma.

The Marlins were technically the home team and batted in the bottom of the innings. Milwaukee even used palm trees, fake flamingos and giant blue and pink sea shells to give Miller Park a South Florida feel.

The Brewers stopped being so welcoming in the eighth, though, chasing reliever Brian Ellington (0-1) for six runs.

Eight pitchers combined to hold the road-weary Marlins to six hits in what amounted to a bullpen day for playoff-hopeful Milwaukee. The Brewers stayed three games back in the NL Central of the division-leading Chicago Cubs.

To top off Miami's tough night, manager Don Mattingly was ejected before the bottom of the eighth started by home plate umpire Ryan Additon.

ROCKIES 6, PADRES 1

DENVER — Tyler Chatwood pitched into the sixth inning and drove in his first runs of the season, Nolan Arenado homered and the Colorado Rockies beat the San Diego Padres 6-1 on Friday night.

Colorado remained 2 1/2 games ahead of Milwaukee and moved 3 1/2 games ahead of St. Louis for the second NL wild card. The Cardinals lost to the Cubs on Friday, and the Brewers beat Miami.

The Rockies continued their playoff drive with a nod to history. They hosted 18 players and three coaches from the 2007 NL pennant-winning team, including franchise icon Todd Helton. The former players saw the Rockies pick up their ninth win in 12 games.

Colorado did its damage with two outs in the second off Clayton Richard (7-14). Chatwood knocked in the first two runs with a single to right, and DJ LeMahieu hit a two-run triple off the right-field scoreboard.

Chatwood (8-12) tossed 5 2/3 innings and left after Wil Myers' solo homer, his 28th. It was Chatwood's third start after six relief appearances.

REDS 4, PIRATES 2

CINCINNATI — Zack Cozart hit two of Cincinnati's four solo home runs and the Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 on Friday night.

Joey Votto and Scott Schebler both homered, sending the Pirates to their third straight loss and eighth in the last nine games.

Chad Kuhl gave up all four home runs, a single-game career high for the second-year right-hander. He previously hadn't allowed more than two in any game and yielded only four over a combined 12 starts in July and August.

The Reds reached Kuhl (7-11) for eight hits with three walks and six strikeouts in 4 2/3 innings.

Homer Bailey allowed one run in 5 2/3 innings for his first win in six starts since Aug. 11. Bailey (5-8) gave up five hits and two walks with seven strikeouts. He also hit a batter.

Interleague

ATHLETICS 4, PHILLIES 0

PHILADELPHIA — Daniel Mengden was dominant in a two-hitter, Matt Olson and Matt Joyce each hit two-run homers and the Oakland Athletics beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 on Friday night.

Mengden (1-1) struck out seven and walked none to record his first career shutout in his 18th start. J.P Crawford had both hits off Mengden.

The 24-year-old righty cooled down Rhys Hoskins and a hot-hitting lineup that scored 27 runs in a three-game sweep over Miami. Hoskins, who hit 18 homers in his first 34 games, was 0 for 3 with two strikeouts.

Phillies starter Mark Leiter Jr. (3-6) allowed four runs and seven hits, striking out nine in six innings.

NASCAR set to kick off playoff opener at Chicagoland

By Dan Gelston
Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill. — Jimmie Johnson has NASCAR history in sight. Martin Truex Jr. wants to become more than a mere footnote as the regular season champion. Kyle Busch, Kevin Harvick, Brad Keselowski, Matt Kenseth and Kurt Busch each hope to add a second championship trophy to the collection.

Some drivers would just be happy advancing to the second round.

The Chase is out.

The playoffs are in.

Whatever NASCAR decides to call the final 10 races of the season, the final format remains the same: The last four drivers standing after three rounds will race for the best finish at Homestead-Miami Speedway on Nov. 19 to be crowned the 2017 NASCAR Monster Energy Cup Series champion.

Up first, the opener Sunday at Chicagoland Speedway. Let's look at the contenders:

No. 1: Martin Truex Jr.

Why He'll Win: Truex won the regular season title with four wins, 10 top-five finishes and had 18 stage wins for 53 playoff points that he can keep through the first three playoff rounds. Truex has eight wins over the last two seasons and has dominated at times for Furniture Row Racing.

Why He Won't: He's had some bad luck and a case could be made he should have at least four more wins. Will a late caution come back to bite him when it matters most?

No. 2: Kyle Larson

Why He'll Win: Larson has two wins over the last four races and is the hottest driver in NASCAR. Larson proved he was worth the hype that followed him into the sport as one of the top young drivers of a generation and won four times. He's one of many drivers facing sponsor woes — Target is leaving at the end of the season — but a championship could make him attractive to a Fortune 500 company.

Why He Won't: Larson knows how easily a strong season can slip away early in the playoffs. He suffered tire and mechanical woes in the first two Chase races last season and was never a factor.

No. 3: Kyle Busch

Why He'll Win: Count out Busch? No thanks. Busch was in the final four last season and the 2015 series champion won twice and rolls into Chicagoland with six straight top-10 finishes.

Why He Won't: Joe Gibbs Racing was solid but hardly spectacular and Toyota' magic horsepower was found instead in Truex's car.

No. 4: Brad Keselowski

Why He'll Win: The 2012 series champion won twice, secured a new contract with team owner Roger Penske and is always a threat.

Why He Won't: The Fords haven't shown the reliable speed needed to win a championship and Keselowski stumbles into Chicagoland without a finish better than 11th in his last five races.

No. 5: Jimmie Johnson

Why He'll Win: Because he's Jimmie Johnson. Johnson won three times in a bit of a down year for Hendrick Motorsports. But no driver dominated the Chase era like Johnson. With an eighth championship, he would snap a tie with Richard Petty and Dale Earnhardt for most in NASCAR history.

Why He Won't: You can't win 'em all.

Triple G, Canelo ready for big middleweight bout

By Tim Dahlberg

Canelo Alvarez, left, and Gennady Golovkin pose during a weigh-in Friday in Las Vegas. The two are scheduled to fight in a middleweight title fight Saturday in Las Vegas.

LAS VEGAS — It's the kind of fight Gennady Golovkin has been chasing from the moment he walked off an airplane six years ago to make his new home in Los Angeles.

It's the fight boxing fans have been waiting for almost as long.

Golovkin and Canelo Alvarez meet Saturday night in a middleweight showdown that has been brewing for years. They do it in their prime, and they both bring the kind of power that could make for a night that will be talked about in boxing for years.

Three weeks after Floyd Mayweather Jr. and Conor McGregor met in an odd spectacle, boxing shows off its best side in a 12-round fight that will pay both men millions and make one of them the undisputed top 160-pounder in the world.

Indeed they do, which is one reason Golovkin has had trouble getting fighters in the ring. The fearsome slugger from Kazakhstan has stopped almost everyone put in the ring with him, winning all 37 of his fights, 33 by knockout.

But Alvarez packs power, too, and the red-headed Mexican is a savage counterpuncher with a style that should match up perfectly against the onrushing Golovkin.

The combination of styles has boxing fans salivating over what will happen in the same ring where Mayweather stopped McGregor three weeks ago. The fight quickly sold out and is expected to do well on HBO pay-per-view, though it will not reach the level of last month's hyped show.

Still, it promises to be a can't-miss fight that brings back memories of the great middleweights of the 1980's. Both fighters weighed in Friday at the middleweight limit of 160 pounds.

It won't be the first time the two have met, but it will be under far different circumstances. They sparred together at Golovkin's camp in Big Bear, California, in 2011 when both were preparing for fights. Though accounts vary, both had their moments with each other.

But this is a real fight, with Golovkin's titles at stake and a lot more. Both will make millions of dollars in a fight that holds risks — and plenty of rewards — for both of their careers.

"These are the fights that define your career," said Oscar De La Hoya, who promotes Alvarez. "Both guys are not going to back down."

Alvarez is already an established superstar, arguably the most popular athlete in Mexico. Golovkin, who won a silver medal in the 2004 Olympics, is hoping for the kind of performance that will finally win over fans not overly impressed by a 23-fight knockout streak of 18 middleweight title defenses.

Between them they have 86 wins, against only one loss. That was by Alvarez (49-1-1, 34 knockouts) in 2013 against Mayweather in a fight he acknowledged he was too young to take.

Oddsmakers in this gambling city have made Golovkin a slight 7-5 favorite, but the fighters themselves say anything could happen.

"It's not an easy fight for him or me," Golovkin said. "I think the first couple of rounds will be very close. I think the second half will be much crazier, like a street fight."

For Golovkin, the fight is the culmination of a long battle to establish himself as the top middleweight in the world. Triple G came to the U.S. in 2011 to pursue bigger fights, and has collected the major middleweight titles while trying to get Alvarez into the ring.

It finally happened after Golovkin (37-0, 33 knockouts) was forced to go 12 rounds this year against Danny Jacobs in a fight where he got hit a lot and barely escaped with a decision. Some in boxing thought it showed some vulnerability or suggested that at the age of 35 Triple G is getting a bit old.

Nonsense, he says.

"I am the champion and I bring all my belts," Golovkin said. "This is my game, my fight. I am the boss, not Canelo."

GREAT POTENTIAL, GREAT OPTIMISM

Texas Tech defensive back Desmon Smith (22), a graduate of Permian High School, covers Derrick Willies (11) during spring football scrimmage March 25 at Grande Communications Stadium.

Permian grad Smith sees promise in Tech's defense

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Sophomore cornerback Desmon Smith liked the potential of the Texas Tech defense, even before the season started for the Red Raiders.

Sure, the Red Raider defense hasn't been one to brag about in recent years, but with the added talent through the last recruiting class, defensive coordinator David Gibbs in his third season and players like Smith with some experience, the Odessa Permian grad had a reason to be optimistic.

"I'm confident we'll be better because of how close we're getting," said Smith during preseason media day in Lubbock. "We're with each other a lot on and off the field, doing barbecues on the weekends, we'll go to the coach's house. I've been able to learn from (teammates) on and off the field, and I need to use that to my advantage. We have a lot of guys who have been there, done that and you can always learn something else."

It's been so far so good for Texas Tech and its defense as it's coming off a 56-10 win two weeks ago over an Eastern Washington team that many expected would give the Red Raiders trouble.

After a bye week, the Red Raiders (1-0) return to the field to host Arizona State (1-1) at 7 p.m. today at Jones AT&T Stadium.

The 6-foot-2, 190-pound Smith is listed as the starter at right corner going into tonight's meetings with the Sun Devils.

Because of a lack of depth in the secondary last year, Smith was thrown in the fire as a true freshman. He had his good moments but then he had his frustrating moments, such as missing three weeks with a shoulder injury and another two weeks because of a concussion. He ended up playing seven games and finished with 16 tackles.

Defensive backs coach Karl Scott said Smith, like many young players, has been going through a learning process and is still growing.

"Desmon is a kid who, when he walks off the bus, he's going to be one if not one of the two best looking DBs that we have on this roster," Scott said. "Because of that, you may expect light years more out of him because of how he looks, but he's still a pup. He's still a guy who has to mature a little bit. I think he's taken steps toward that, coming off the season that he had in gaining that experience. I think he's taken some steps toward maturity and being a guy who can be counted on consistently. So, I look forward to what he's done, not only in the spring, but continuing to add and build on his reputation as a guy who can be feared in the conference."

Smith said the biggest thing he took away from last year was learning how to be consistent and moving on from one play to the next. He added that playing in college was everything he expected and more.

"The level of competition is second to none," he said. "I wouldn't play in any other conference. The competitive nature that we have amongst this team is something I've learned and taken away. I've never competed at this level before, it's amazing."

There's no doubt that with the added talent to the roster, particularly in the secondary, Smith has had to battle his way to the top of the depth chart. But for a competitor like him, he didn't shy away from that competition.

"I'm going to compete every day whether I am first, second, third or fourth string," he said. "That's what the other guys bring as well and that's what makes us who we are. We've got some guys who can play and we've got some depth in all areas. I'm excited about it."

That attitude is part of the reason Scott likes Smith's potential.

"Des is a focused individual," Scott said. "He's a guy that doesn't take too much stuff from too many people. He really, really wants to do well. When he doesn't, he does not like it. He's ready to fix what he needs to work on. He's not a guy who dwells on the good stuff he does. He is often working on the things he has to do to improve his game."

Smith also takes pride in being a West Texas guy playing for Texas Tech.

"I just want to thank God and everybody back home in West Texas. I love all of their support," he said. "I love West Texas. That's why I'm here. It just feels good to have everybody back home backing me. It motivates me a lot. It's one of my reasons why I play so hard."

Flashbacks: No. 20 TCU reminded of 2005; SMU thinking 1984

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — TCU coach Gary Patterson this week was reflecting back to 2005, something he does every season when his 20th-ranked Horned Frogs are getting ready to play SMU.

The coach has an annual reminder for his players, most of whom were in elementary school at the time, about how the Frogs won their opener at No. 7 Oklahoma a dozen seasons ago — and then lost at SMU the next week. That was TCU's only loss that year.

"That was the first thing that came out of his mouth," quarterback Kenny Hill said.

"I told them the 2005 Oklahoma story," Patterson said. "You've got to play every game. You can't treat any of them different."

On the other side of the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex, SMU coach Chad Morris was flashing back even farther, to the 1980s.

"Obviously have a great opportunity in front of us," said Morris, in his third season on the Hilltop. "To go over and get a win would be huge for our program."

Both teams are 2-0. The Mustangs are trying to start 3-0 for the first time since 1984, which was before the program was shut down in 1987 and 1988 by crippling sanctions and the NCAA's so-called death penalty. They had last started 2-0 in 2009.

Morris and some of his assistants even wore 1980s-era coaching gear this week, including the shorts well above the knee. Instead of the usual music at practice, players heard 1984 artists like Prince, Michael Jackson and Bruce Springsteen.

"If you need something to get you ready for this game, you got problems," SMU senior defensive end Justin Lawler said.

Patterson's message might have more relevance this year with TCU fresh off a 28-7 win at Arkansas, another former Southwest Conference rival. Patterson knows it's a "good win" that others may judge as a much bigger victory.

"The Arkansas game, put it out as the perception that was a big one ... That happens, and everybody goes into a fury," Patterson said. "And it usually carries over to (the players). I'm usually better off when people are telling my kids they're not very good."

Some other things to know for the 20th Frog and Pony show since the end of the SWC, with TCU winning 16 of 19 since then:

SMU has consecutive 50-point games to open a season for the first time in school history, joining Maryland and Kansas State as the only teams to do that this year. TCU has allowed only a single touchdown. The Frogs' season-opening 63-0 win over Jackson State was their eighth shutout at home in 12 seasons.

Court action

With four TD catches last week, Courtland Sutton set a new American Athletic Conference record while matching a 39-year-old SMU mark. The 6-foot-4

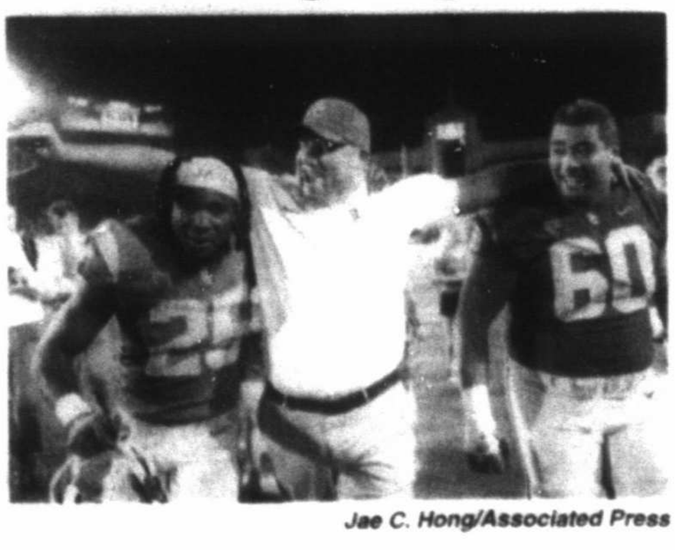
No. 4 USC hosts Texas in early-season meeting of powers

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press



Jae C. Hong/Associated Press

Southern California head coach Clay Helton, center, Ronald Jones II, left, and Viane Talamaivao celebrate the team's 42-24 win against Stanford as they walk off the field after an NCAA football game Sept. 9 in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES — Clay Helton knows a little something about big-time college football programs struggling to live up to sky-high expectations.

So when the architect of Southern California's return to excellence says he sees imminent signs of the same restoration in Tom Herman and Texas, the Longhorns' fans should take heart. And the No. 4 Trojans (2-0) should be wary of Texas' visit to the Coliseum on Saturday night for a marquee early-season showdown.

Texas (1-1) "is a team that I think is a ticking time bomb waiting to explode," Helton said. "With each game under Tom Herman, they're going to get better and better. So we can't have a letdown, or we're going to get beat."

Helton spent several seasons behind the scenes at USC as a stabilizing force in the chaotic coaching tenures of Lane Kiffin and Steve Sarkisian. When Helton unexpectedly got the chance to lead the Trojans two years ago, the longtime assistant swiftly brought maturity and continuity to the talent-laden program, and wins have followed.

The Trojans have won 11 straight games overall, including last season's Rose Bowl. They've also won 11 straight at the Coliseum, where a sellout crowd of 92,348 will greet the Longhorns for the schools' first meeting since Texas claimed the national title in the epic 2006 Rose Bowl.

USC is the solid favorite in this matchup after its 42-24 rout of Stanford last week. Sam Darnold's offense is running exceptionally well, racking up 91 points and 1,144 yards against strong opponents in its first two games.

"To me, he is one of the better quarterbacks in the nation," Texas linebacker Naashon Hughes said. "I'm pretty sure everyone else thinks that, too. He junior had eight catches for 163 yards in that 54-32 win over North Texas. In last year's game against the Frogs, Sutton had five catches for 113 yards.

"He's big, he's physical," Patterson said. "He's their marquee player and you can tell .... They try to get the ball in his hands as much as they can."

Defensive scores

Cornerback Jordan Wyatt, the lone returning starter from last season in SMU's secondary, has already returned an interception for a touchdown and recovered a fumble in the end zone for another score. His four career defensive touchdowns match him for the most by an active FBS player and the most in school history.

Different relation

Although some of TCU's players might not see the connection to the 2005 game, Patterson knows something they do understand.

"I think our kids relate more to, we were 6-7. They know the feeling of what it's like to be 6-7," Patterson said, referring to last season's record.

Extra points

The Mustangs lead the nation with 35 points off turnovers. They have forced five turnovers, and all led to touchdowns. ...TCU led only 6-3 at halftime in Dallas last season before going on to a 33-3 victory.

USC

is great in the pocket. I didn't think he could run that well at first, but after watching more film on him, he can move around pretty well. He makes his team better, which is what you ultimately want at quarterback."

Texas bounced back solidly last week from its embarrassing home loss to Maryland in its season opener, but USC presents a new level of challenge for Herman's first team. With uncertainty at quarterback and questions on defense, the Longhorns will need a quantum leap to pull off the upset in LA.

Here are more things to watch when Texas meets USC in the Coliseum for the first time in 50 years:

QB quandary

Texas quarterback Shane Buechele missed last week's game with a sore shoulder, but returned to practice this week. Freshman Sam Ehlinger got his first career start and victory against San Jose State, but USC presents a larger challenge for an inexperienced passer. Former starter Jerrod Heard is now a receiver, but also could be a factor as a ball-carrier.

Texas Tesla

USC tailback Ronald Jones II is from the Dallas area, and his junior season is off to a phenomenal start. The "Texas Tesla" already has 275 yards and five touchdowns on the ground in two games, showcasing his improved physicality along with his usual speed. He has teamed with freshman Stephen Carr to provide a relentless rushing attack in USC's first two games, and Texas' run defense will have to prove its competence.

Crossed roots

Don't be confused by the accents of these two coaches. Helton grew up in Texas, going to high school in the Houston suburbs before playing quarterback for Herman's old team, the University of Houston. Herman is a product of the Los Angeles suburbs, growing up in Simi Valley and playing receiver at Cal Lutheran in Thousand Oaks.

Ballhawk Hill

Texas defensive back Holton Hill already has three touchdowns this season on two interception returns and a blocked field goal return, becoming the brightest spot on an otherwise unremarkable defense. With his 6-foot-3, 200-pound frame, Hill is big enough to play with physical receivers and fast enough to stay with speedsters such as USC's Deontay Burnett. Darnold may want to look elsewhere.

For kicks

Both teams have concerns about their placekicking, which is something to keep in mind in a close game. Texas kicker Joshua Rowland is 0 for 3 on field goals, including one blocked kick returned for a touchdown. USC began the season with two kickers after the dismissal of Rose Bowl hero Matt Boermeester, but Michael Brown tore a knee ligament against Stanford, leaving the job in the hands of freshman Chase McGrath.

Aggies look to take step forward against Louisiana-Lafayette

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Texas A&M Aggies know they still have a lot of work to do after rebounding from their stunning loss to UCLA with a win over Nicholls State last week.

A week after squandering a 34-point, third-quarter lead to the Bruins in their opener, some criticized the Aggies (1-1) for beating Nicholls State — an FCS school which plays in the Southland Conference — by only 10 points. The Aggies brushed off the notion that it was a bad win since the score wasn't more lopsided.

"It wasn't pretty, but in my opinion a win is a win," linebacker Cullen Gillaspia said.

Coach Kevin Sumlin agreed and said he believes some of his young players who contributed for the first time last weekend will get a boost from being a part of their first win.

"People can say what they want but there's never been a great loss (and) winning's winning," he said. "Moving on from that there's some confidence out of that with some guys that are playing that they needed. Moving forward I think it's going to help us down the road."

Up next for the Aggies is a home game Saturday against Louisiana-Lafayette (1-1), their final tuneup before opening Southeastern Conference play on Sept. 23 against Arkansas.

"Are we the team we want to be right now? Not yet," Sumlin said. "Were there things that we improved on? Yes. Do we have to get better? Yes."

Some things to know about the Louisiana-Lafayette-Texas A&M game:

Sam Craft/Associated Press

Texas A&M quarterback Kellen Mond (11) warms up before the stert of an NCAA football game against Nicholls State Saturday in College Station.

Two quarterbacks

Texas A&M true freshman Kellen Mond got his first start at quarterback last week after Week 1 starter Nick Starkel broke his ankle in the opener. Jake Hubenak took over early in the third quarter and finished the game. Mond threw for 105 yards and a touchdown and Hubenak added 93 yards passing. Sumlin said only that both will play on Saturday.

"Our plan's not going to change. I think both guys ... need to be developed and continue to develop and the only way to do that is practice them both and play them both," he said.

Against the SEC

The Ragin' Cajuns are 1-63 all-time against teams that are currently in the SEC. Their lone win was against the Aggies when they were members of the Big 12 Conference. Jake Delhomme and Brandon Stokley starred in the 29-22 victory that came on Sept. 14, 1996, when the Aggies were ranked 25th. They haven't had much success against the Aggies in five other meetings and have been outscored 148-14 in their last three trips to College Station.

Bussey's breakout game

Texas A&M running back Kendall Bussey had a breakout game against Nicholls State. He finished with 97 yards rushing after running for just 172 yards all of last season. His 2-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter put Texas A&M on top and he had nine carries on the next drive to help eat up the clock and secure the win. Bussey is third on the depth chart behind Trayveon Williams and Keith Ford. He said he's been helped by working with them in practice.

"We push each other every day," he said.

Explosive offense

Louisiana-Lafayette piled up 596 yards in a 66-42 to loss to Tulsa last week. That was the program's third-most yards in seven seasons under coach Mark Hudspeth and their most since gaining 620 yards against Nicholls State in 2013.

Line struggles

Although Sumlin said the entire team needs to improve, he was especially hard on the offensive line after the group allowed four sacks last week. He shuffled the lineup from Week 1 to Week 2 and said he'll continue to look for different combinations until things improve.

"Things start up front," he said. "We weren't very good up front offensively and that affected our style of play."

Week 3 Preview: Jackson vs. Clemson; Scouts flock to Laramie

By Ralph D. Russo
Associated Press

Lamar Jackson basically had the Heisman Trophy wrapped up last season by Oct. 2, playing so well in Louisville's biggest games early in the season that a few stumbles late didn't cost him.

Repeating will be difficult. Only one college football player has won the Heisman twice. But if Jackson does make a serious run at joining Ohio State's Archie Griffin as a two-time Heisman winner, he will again have to make a lasting impression early.

The No. 14 Louisville hosts No. 3 Clemson on Saturday night, with a chance for both Jackson and the Cardinals to make an early season statement, just as they did last year.

Otherwise, the third weekend of the season is light on big matchups, but ripe for a few upsets with six ranked teams playing on the road against unranked teams.

Things to watch for during one of the weekends when things could get weird.

Best game

No. 3 Clemson at No. 14 Louisville.

The Tigers are coming off a dominant defensive performance against Auburn at home that included 11 sacks.

Seems like an obvious key to the game. Louisville's offensive line struggles to protect Jackson. Clemson's defensive line has a bunch of future early round NFL draft picks, such as Dexter Lawrence and Christian Wilkins.

Don't forget the other side of the ball, though. Last season Clemson had Deshaun Watson to counter Jackson's brilliance in a 42-36 Tigers' victory. If Jackson goes off again, can new Clemson quarterback Kelly Bryant keep up?

Heisman watch

Yes, Jackson, but anybody else?

How about Josh Rosen? The UCLA quarterback is off to a remarkable start that includes one of the great comebacks in college football history against Texas A&M in Week 1. The Bruins play a potentially tricky game against Memphis on Saturday that kicks off at 11 a.m. locally, but 9 a.m. PT. It's the type of game that screams trap. If Rosen can help UCLA avoid it, he'll enter Pac-12 play with some real Heisman buzz.

Numbers to know

2003 — The last time Tennessee beat Florida at the Swamp. Also the last time the Vols won in consecutive years against the Gators. No. 23 Tennessee tries to end both droughts Saturday in Gainesville against No. 24 Florida.

17 –- Yards passing for Army (2-0) this season in victories against Fordham and Buffalo. The Black Knights are second in the nation in rushing at 417 yards per game, but the competition gets much tougher Saturday when they visit No. 8 Ohio State.

UTPB AT WEST TEXAS A&M CAPSULE

UTPB AT WEST TEXAS A&M

When/where: 3 p.m., Happy State Bank Field at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium, Canyon
On the radio: KQRX (95.1 FM)
Online: Streaming on ESPN3
Records: UTPB 0-2 overall, 0-0 in Lone Star Conference; West Texas A&M 1-1, 0-0
Last game: Lamar 72, UTPB 6; West Texas A&M 24, Colorado State-Pueblo 21
Notes: This is the Lone Star Conference opener for both teams. ... UTPB is looking to erase the memories of last week's road debacle at FCS opponent Lamar as the Cardinals outgained the Falcons 642-141 and had a 37-9 advantage on first downs. UTPB actually had a 6-3 lead early in the game. ... This game will feature the two worst offenses in the conference as West Texas A&M is averaging 18.5 points per game, while UTPB has been anemic at 14.0 ppg. ... In a shakeup of the offense, sophomore QB Kameron Mathis has replaced Caden Coots as the starter. ... The Buffaloes are coming off a confidence-boosting win over No. 7 Colorado State-Pueblo despite being outgained 310-223 in the contest. Buffs kicker Alex Schrag kicked the game-winning 28-yard field goal with 28 second left and forced four turnovers in the game. ... West Texas A&M defeated UTPB, 48-14, last year. ... UTPB is on an 11-game losing streak.
Next: UTPB at Western New Mexico, 2:30 p.m. Sept 23, Tarleton State at West Texas A&M, 7 p.m. Sept. 23

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the DIAMONDBACK E&P LLC, [RRC Operator No. 217012] has made application for a spacing and density exception permit under the provisions of Railroad Commission Statewide Rule 37 and 38 (16 Tex. Admin. Code section 3.37 and 3.38). Applicant seeks exception to the lease line distance requirement because the Applicant is less than the required Rule 37 lease line distance to an unleased or non-pooled interest within the subject unit. Applicant also seeks except ion to the density requirement of the field rules for the NEW DRILL permit in Sec. 7, Bk. 39 T1S, T&P RR CO Survey, A-34, SPRABERRY (TREND AREA) Field, MIDLAND County, being 7.4 miles NW direction from MIDLAND, Texas.

PURSUANT TO THE TERMS of Railroad Commission rules and regulations, this application may be granted WITHOUT A HEARING if no protest to the application is received within the deadline. An affected person is entitled to protest this application. Affected persons include owners of record and the operator or lessees of record of adjacent tracts and tracts nearer to the proposed well than the minimum lease line spacing distance. If a hearing is called, the applicant has the burden to prove the need for an exception.
