Carter Welcomes Teng To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter welcomed Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping to the White House today with the promise of "a common journey" as they began talks on bolstering the new relationship between the United States and China.

"On behalf of the people of my country, I welcome you, Mr. Vice Premier," Carter said under windy, overcast skies during the ceremony on the White House South Lawn, which was twice disrupted by anti-Teng demonstrators.

"Today we take another step in the historic normalization of relations. We share in the hope which springs from reconciliation and the anticipation of a common journey," the president said.

Teng, reading his speech in Chinese, responded that "we share the sense of being on an historic mission. Sino-U.S. relations are at a new beginning and the world is at a new turning point."

Teng warned that "the factors making for war are visibly growing" in the world. He and Carter both expressed hope that normal relations between their two countries would help preserve world peace.

The ceremonies were disrupted twice, first by a woman protester who began screaming at Teng, "Teng Hsiao-ping, you are a murderer or a traitor!" She was dragged away by police.

Moments later, a man standing among the reporters, 15 feet in front of the president and Teng, shouted "Traitor!" "Down with Teng Hsiao-ping!" "Down with Teng Hsiao-ping!" and "You cannot make this a garden party!"

Three security agents arrested him and pulled him away from the press stand.

The two were identified as Keith Kozimoto, 28, and Sonia J. Ransom, 26. There was no immediate indication of their political affiliation.

Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, met Teng and his wife, Cho Lin, at the White House South Portico at 1 a.m. to a fanfare of Army trumpets.

Teng responded to the crowd's applause by applauding back. Then he followed Carter down a short receiving line that included Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Vice President Walter Mondale and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

The president and the vice premier and their wives mounted a platform and stood at attention as the U.S. Army band played the two countries' national anthems and cannons in the distance fired a 19-gun salute, the tribute accorded to a head of government.

The ceremony was witnessed by about 1,000 reporters and guests inside the White House grounds and untold millions on television around the world.

SIGNING IN FOR JAIL TOUR--Long lines formed Sunday afternoon at the radio dispatcher's desk in the Scurry County Sheriff's office as area residents signed the registry during tours of the new jail. Traffic was heavy throughout the open house hours at the jail and the new senior citizens center and county office building to the south. See other pictures on Page 9. (SDN Staff Photo)

Rockefeller Rites

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP)-The body of Nelson A. Rockefeller has been cremated and burial was planned today following a simple memorial service limited to family members and close friends.

The former vice president and four-time New York governor, who died of a heart attack Friday night, was cremated Sunday at the Ferncliff Crematory near the family's 250-acre Pocantico Hills estate.

A public service, at which national and international leaders are expected to pay tribute to the best known of the five Rockefeller brothers, will be held Friday at Riverside Church, a huge edifice built largely with Rockefeller money.

Feedlot Scene Better

WASHINGTON (AP)-The cattle feedlot business, encouraged by higher market prices the last year, has picked up appreciably but the number of enterprises engaged in cattle feeding has continued to decline.

However, an Agriculture Department analysis said today that recent figures show "some evidence, at least, that this trend, too, is ending."

The report noted that for many years the number of feedlots has slipped as larger operations replaced smaller units. But with the break in the cattle market a few years ago, even the inventory of large feedlots declined.

A quarterly report by USDA on Jan. 19 showed that the total number of cattle in feedlots in the 23 major beef states at the first of this year was down slightly from Jan. 1, 1978.

But with the exception of a year earlier, the feedlot inventory this Jan. 1 was the largest in five years.

Rallying For Taiwan

HOUSTON (AP)-About 1,000 persons attended a Sunday rally promoting trade with Taiwan and protesting the opening of diplomatic relations with China.

Officials of the sponsoring Conservative Caucus and the United Supporters for the Republic of China urged the group to join a protest Friday when China's Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping arrives in Houston for a two-day visit.

Sheriff Sentenced

TYLER (AP)-Former Cherokee County Sheriff Danny Stallings received 18 months probation today on federal misdemeanor charges alleging civil rights violations.

The suspended sentence was handed down by U.S. District Judge William Steger.

The 29-year-old law enforcement officer allegedly was involved with the abduction of a Tyler businessman. One of his deputies, Thomas Glass, has also been charged in the abduction and has also resigned. Glass has been sent to a federal institution for psychiatric observations.

Lawmaking Underway

AUSTIN (AP)-Lawmaking finally gets fully underway this week as Texas senators and House members jump into a full schedule of committee hearings.

The regular session began Jan. 9. However, there have been few legislative results so far because of opening ceremonies, the inauguration festivities and drafting of ground rules in each house.

Now, it is up to the appointed committees - 30 in the House and 19 in the Senate - to screen all the 650 proposed House measures and the 330 Senate proposals and listen to public testimony on each proposed new law or change in old laws.

A few committee meetings were held last week but the full schedule begins today.

Indians Hear Pope

MEXICO CITY (AP)-Pope John Paul II speaks to Mexico's Indians today after cautioning his priests in Latin America to keep the Roman Catholic Church out of politics and seek social justice by spiritual means.

Nixon Returns

WASHINGTON (AP)-No ruffles. No flourishes. Not even a diehard supporter greeted Richard M. Nixon as he returned to Washington for a visit evoking memories of his greatest triumph and greatest defeat.

The former president returns to the White House tonight for the first time since he resigned the presidency four years ago in the Watergate scandal.

At the invitation of President Carter, Nixon will attend the elaborate state dinner honoring Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, leader of the country Nixon courted, helping forge ties that Carter confirmed by extending diplomatic recognition.

Crowds Tour County's New Facilities Sunday

Hundreds of Scurry County residents turned out Sunday afternoon to tour the new county jail and adjacent facilities for the senior citizens center and county offices.

Located on property formerly occupied by the Travis Junior High School at 26th St. and Ave. M, the new jail and revamped senior citizens building were completed recently and offices have moved into their new quarters.

Prisoners in the county jail are scheduled to be moved this week.

Dedication ceremonies in the Senior Center launched the activities Sunday afternoon. Dr. Jim Tully of Western Texas College, presided over the program which was attended by a "packed house."

Meanwhile, throngs already were going through the new $913,000 county jail which was financed by federal revenue-sharing funds. The sheriff and state law enforcement officials, including highway patrolmen, Texas Ranger and game warden have offices in the jail building.

In the new senior center-office building are the Retired Senior Volunteer program offices, agriculture extension service offices, county welfare and state Department of Human Resources offices.

Bridges Iced Over In Area

A new winter storm quickly iced over bridges and threatened to inflict more weather misery on the Snyder area early today.

Freezing mist had been blamed for several traffic mishaps on area highways and at least two persons had been hospitalized with injuries. However, it was believed that no serious injuries had occurred.

Thomas Shafer, 21, was admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital at about 9 a.m. following a traffic mishap north of Dermott, it was reported. He was brought to the hospital by Galyean Ambulance. Virginia Burke, 23 of Lubbock was hospitalized after her car reportedly skidded off of Highway 350 south of Ira. She was brought to the hospital by private vehicle.

There were several other reports of vehicles skidding off the road as the bridges began to ice over.

The temperatures hovered around the 30-degree mark as the fine mist fell. It caused ice to form on windshields and on the bridges.

A travel advisory was out for most of the northern half of the state. It was snowing and the thermometer registered 30 degrees as far south as Waco before dawn.

Light rain mixed with sleet and some snow spanned an area bordered generally by Waco, Austin, San Antonio and Houston at 4 p.m.

Ask Us

Q--Now that the new jail is ready for occupancy, what will be done with the old county jail?

A--No decision has been made. Several weeks ago, representatives of the Scurry County Historical Commission discussed the old jail building with the commissioners court and they talked about the possibility of making a historical center out of it. However, at that time they indicated that they would have to come up with some finances before anything definite could be proposed.

PARTLY CLOUDY WEATHER

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Saturday, 42 degrees; low, 20 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Sunday, 20 degrees. High Sunday, 39 degrees; low, 29 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. today, 29 degrees; precipitation, trace; total precipitation for 1979 to date, .56.

West Texas: Decreasing cloudiness and cold tonight. Clear to partly cloudy Tuesday. Lows tonight lower teens Panhandle to the upper 20s south. Highs Tuesday 30s north and 40s south except near 60 lowlands of the Big Bend.

2 Sought In Theft Case

Felony theft warrants have been issued for the arrest of Robert Emmett Moore III, 19, and Ray Dean Shaver, 21, in connection with the alleged theft of some oilfield equipment from Mabee Petroleum Co. of Ira.

Taken from the oil company, deputy sheriffs said this morning, were Valves, pipe, pipe fittings, and casing bits. The merchandise, which was recovered, carried a price tag of $3,700.

Some of the merchandise was recovered at Snyder Iron and Metal, where it had been sold as scrap, and the remainder was found behind a residence in the 1600 block of 28th St. All the merchandise was recovered.

The equipment was reportedly stolen Jan. 24 and recovered Jan. 26, said deputies.

Air Route To Peking Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pan American World Airways is seeking permission for twice-weekly round-trip passenger service between New York and Peking, with stops in San Francisco, Honolulu and Guam.

In a request filed Friday with the Civil Aeronautics Board, Pan Am also asked for a cargo flight from Los Angeles to Shanghai, with stops in San Francisco and Tokyo.

Iran Rioters Setting Fires

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Anti-government rioters set fire to a nightclub, a brewery and restaurants in Tehran today as this troubled nation awaited word of the imminent return of Ayatullah Ruhollah Khomeini, hero of the anti-shah rebellion.

U.S. Military officials here reported that an American officer was shot and wounded by an unknown assailant Sunday night.

Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar early today scrapped his plan to fly to France to meet with Khomeini at the Moslem leader's exile headquarters outside Paris. Bakhtiar rejected the "unacceptable" condition that he resign before meeting with the exiled Khomeini.

But Bakhtiar said Iran's airports, closed last week to prevent Khomeini's return from exile, would reopen shortly, and Khomeini could return "if security measures are taken."

In Paris, Khomeimi announced he would return at his own risk as soon as the airports are open. His aides said they were ready to leave at a moment's notice.

"We hope to leave tonight depending on the latest order regarding the airports," said one.

Bakhtiar told a news conference "doors will stay open" for negotiations with the 78-year-old Khomeini, who wants to abolish the monarchy and Bakhtiar's shah-appointed government and establish a religiously oriented republic.

Once more into the smoking breach.

With the updated surgeon general's report on the hazards of the habit, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano reopens both the official and a personal battle with the mighty tobacco industry. The latter was ready and waiting, jumping the gun with a public relations salvo even before the report was released.

The Tobacco Institute, representing five of the six leading cigarette manufacturers, dismisses the 1,200-page wrapup of studies made and statistics compiled since the original 1964 report, which first put smoking on the health-hazard list, as "more rehash than research." Califano, an ex-smoker, is dismissed as a "reformed sinner" zealously seeking publicity.

Possibly in part thanks to the industry's determined counterpublicity effort, he is certainly getting it. The new report, finding stronger evidence of smoking's role in not only cancer and heart disease but a range of additional ailments such as allergies, pregnancy complications and drug reactions, makes good copy.

It also has some good news. Total and per capita cigarette consumption shows a decline. So does, proportionately, the smoking population. Currently, smokers represent an estimated 33 percent of the adult U.S. population, as against more than 40 percent 15 years ago. The drop has been most pronounced among men, down to 37.5 percent from a 1964 estimate of 51 percent.

The decline among adults has, however, been offset to a considerable extent by a sharp increase in teenage smokers, particularly among girls. The number of smokers under 20 years old is put at some six million and, according to Califano, 100,000 of these are under 13. By Califano estimate, 4,000 children start smoking every day.

Which focuses on a key point of the smoking controversy: the proselytizing efforts to the Tobacco industry. As Califano notes, 75 percent of smokers acquire the habit before age 21 and the number lighting up after 30 is insignificant. It's a habit that is acquired young. And it is this market that is the major target of an annual half-billion dollars in tobacco advertising. It is not the mature, confirmed smoker who is meant to be impressed by the images virile males and glamorous and-or successful females to supposed pleasures and prerogatives of adulthood.

One of Califano's proposals is to fight advertising fire with fire. Noting results to date from publicity on hazardous consequences of smoking, he proposes more of the same. Publicity clearly has some effect since an estimated 30 million smokers have been "ex" since the 1964 report made smoking a public issue. The prognosis for those who do make a serious effort to quit is encouraging. Nicotine being only minimally addictive physiologically, the one-time smoker stands a much better chance of staying off than does a drug user attempting to kick the habit, according to Julius Fast's "How to Stop Smoking and Lose Weight," one of numerous self-help books on the subject.

The report may have a considerable impact but is by no means the decisive shot in what promises to be a drawn-out duel. Neither party is about to give ground. It would have the makings of a David and Goliath situation except that as between Califano with the resources of the federal government and the multibillion-dollar tobacco industry with its political clout, there's the problem of deciding who should be David and who Goliath.

by erma bombeck

On top of my typewriter this morning, I found a note from by husband that read, "Walrunch Hnchinty. Sol. Quea????? Jne 17."

"What's this mean?" I asked.

"Can't you read my handwriting?" he snapped. "It says National Handwriting Week. Column idea?????I thought maybe there was something in the fact that one day is being set aside to improve the writing habits of Americans and you could do a column on it.

"I write humor."

"What's that supposed to mean?"

"It means if you had penned the Declaration of Independence, the United States today would stand for "ifn, liverte, and the prsut of hapines."

"That's a fine way for someone to talk who makes her sevens look like ones."

"Says who?"

"Says the wrong number I got the other night from a phone message you left me."

"You try writing a phone message on a piece of waxed paper with a steak knife."

"I still think you could make a funny column about how you flunked ovals in the first grade and went on to give birth to children whose 8's look like 3's and who forget to close their G's."

"Don't forget they were sired by a man who loops his O's and who once wrote a check to the paper boy for $8,000!"

"At least I didn't write a note to the school when one of the kids was sick and have the nurse call to see what it was we had under control...his 'diarrhea' or his 'drain.'"

"You know, it might be nice to have just one day when everyone took the time to write legibly...dotting their I's and crossing their T's. I bet millions of dollars are spent each year on people making mistakes and not saying what they really mean. I'm sorry I snapped at you. I'm going to file this idea until next June 14 and maybe get the country to observe a day when we could all read what one another is writing."

"What June 14?" asked my husband. "National Handwriting Day was Jan. 23. See? That's an A which you mistook for a U and the 4 is a 3 and is nowhere near what you thought it was and who would listen to a woman who can't even read English anyway?"

WASHINGTON (NEA)— With the advent of the 1980 Olympic Games the prestigious seal of approval carrying the legend, "Selected for Use by the U.S. Olympic Committee," will soon appear on dozens of items in supermarkets and department stores.

Notwithstanding that deceptive endorsement, this country's Oympic athletes do not necessarily use any of the food, toiletries, clothing, sports equipment or other merchandise that carries that sponsor's symbol.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has discovered that marketers of various products purchase the right to use the official seal by making a "substantial contribution" - typically ranging from $50,000 to $500,000 - to the U.S. Olympic Committee.

That revelation is contained in a massive FTC staff report on the little-known but highly influential organizations that develop quality, safety and performance standards for products or certify that the products meet those standards.

Although it engages in a questionable certification activity to raise millions of dollars, the U.S. Olympic Committee isn't truly a certification group because its principal interests lie elsewhere.

A typical certification organization - probably the best known to retail consumers - is Underwriters Laboratories, whose "UL" symbol of safety and quality appears on hundreds of electrical appliances ranging from kitchen blenders to oil furnaces.

In the 1960s, UL certified aluminum as a safe replacement for copper in home wiring. Although there now is considerable evidence that aluminum might pose a serious fire hazard, "at no time did the UL standards state or require disclosure of ... the hazards," says the recently released FTC report.

Approximately 20,000 standards, affecting the design and performance of everything from light bulbs to turbine generators, have been promulgated by more than 400 professional societies, trade associations and other standard-setting organizations.

Dominating the field are two organizations: The American National Standards Institute (ANSI), responsible for almost 6,500 standards, and the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM), which accounts for more than 6,200 standards.

Consumer representation in the standard-setting process usually is either nominal or nonexistent, with organizational leadership invariably drawn from the same major corporations that produce many of the products being evaluated.

The new FTC report says that 60 percent of ANSI's officers and directors are employed by producers (including such corporate giants as Exxon, General Motors, AT&T, IBM and Du Pont), while 40 percent of ASTM's directors are affiliated with marketers.

One striking example in the report involves the Illuminating Engineering Society (IES), which establishes standards for lighting levels in schools, stores, factories and other public facilities.

Approximately two-thirds of the IES board of directors is composed of representatives of lamp and fixture manufacturers or public utilities, according to the FTC staff.

Increased lighting levels obviously produce higher consumption of the products sold by those two industries - fixtures and electricity. To nobody's surprise, the FTC report cites evidence that IES lighting requirements often exceed levels necessary for adequate vision.

Finally, the dominance of old-line, established corporations tends to perpetuate existing technology, to the detriment of new, small, innovative manufacturers whose advanced products could threaten the market dominance of the bigger firms.

"In extreme cases, the standards forum has become little more than a playground for special interests," says the FTC staff in proposing needed new regulations that would open standard-setting proceedings to consumers, small businesses and others who long have been underrepresented.

Hearings on the proposal are to be held this spring in San Francisco and Washington. The FTC has recently become an activist agency, aggressively pursuing a variety of consumer interests - but none is more important than this issue.

disappearing swingers

NEW YORK (AP)— Where have they gone, those unmarried swingers who sought to maintain their freedom and mobility by renting apartments rather than buying houses?

Some of them seem to have disappeared, and apartment house operators are concerned. They thought the swinging lifestyle of this under-35 group assured landlords of tenants. Now they aren't sure.

"If you were under 35 and unmarried, you were twice as likely to be a renter as a family the same age, and four times as likely as an older family," said Philip Kozloff, president of Citicorp Real Estate.

That's the way it used to be. By a margin of nearly 6-1, the historic pattern of these young unmarried households was to rent rather than buy, he said.

As recently as 1973, the rental market could expect the formation of about 540,000 new swinger households - that is, households of one. But in the past four years, said Kozloff, the annual rate fell to 240,000.

And so, unlike some analysts who simply assume the rental market is still growing, Kozloff maintains "it is clear that there has been a sharp decline in rental demand since 1973."

The change, says the Citicorp official, is partly due to economics, or so it seems. That is, the swinger's noncommital lifestyle seems to have succumbed to some pressing financial realities.

Unable to afford high rents, and see soaring real estate prices make some of their friends relatively well-off, some swingers apparently have been trading mobility and freedom for an inflation hedge.

The Equal Credit Opportunity Act of 1975 also had a lot to do with it, making purchase easier for single individuals who had sometimes been considered poor mortgage risks.

Another factor, say company analysts, is the revival of condominium markets, with the strong conversion trend of the past two years providing owner units that meet the needs of single persons.

Even after offering these explanations, Citicorp still isn't certain is has found all the reasons. It believes also that there has been a moderate decline in the growth of age groups predisposed to buying.

But even more changes might have impinged on the swinger-age category. "Even all the factors we have listed, added together, do not seem adequate to explain so large a shift," the analyses states.

There does seem to be no mistaking the observation that as rents rose swingers became concerned about the economic logic of their lifestyles. Ownership, even though it cramped one's style, became an alternative.

Surveys and observations by real estate dealers in many parts of the country confirm the change. Single men, single women, and groups too, are said to be buying homes in urban centers and smaller towns too.

A whole host of Snyder clothing merchants were in Dallas the early part of last week at the annual Spring and Fall Clothing market. Look for special spring sales soon as the new merchandise starts arriving.

Attending market last week were Ed Thrift of Men's II and Bea Owens on the square. Also traveling to Dallas was Mae Gray, owner of Gray's Style Shop on the square.

Gloria Ziske of It's a Boutique was in Dallas at market and returned with some spring clothing.

The American Motor Inn Restaurant on the East Highway spent the early part of last week redecorating the dining room. New lighting and refinishing the kitchen equipment took the most work while the restaurant was closed down for two days. The motel rooms in the inn are also being repainted and redecorated, according to owner Bill Ziske.

Perry's manager Dwayne Seay was in Childress last week preparing for the opening of another Perry's store.

Robbie Lovelady, assistant manager of Piggly Wiggly and David Fisher spent four days in Las Vegas last week. Lovelady won the trip at the annual employee Christmas party in December.

Francis Tatom and husband J.W. of Tatom and Son Rainbow Market returned Saturday from Denver, Colorado where they had been visiting a sick relative.

Mrs. Howell of Howell Electric returned to work Thursday after a short vacation.

A grand opening of the two new locations of Skinny's Convenience Stores has been planned for this weekend after many cancellations of previous dates.

Piggly Wiggly in Highland Shopping Center will also have their Grand Opening this week. Watch for sales in the SDN.

Jo Birdwell of NJ's on the square also spent some time in Dallas at the clothing market.

Also attending was Ed Owens of Owens Department Store on College Ave.

Lions Club members from 52 clubs in the area met here Sunday at the Coliseum for the annual district 2-T2 midwinter conference.

The SDN has kicked off two Valentine's Day promotions this week. Sweetheart Love Messages will be printed in the classified pages of the SDN on Valentine's Day. Cost is 15 words for $2. Cut out an entry blank or call the news office today. Also you can put your child's or grandchild's picture in a Valentine's Heart to be run in the Wednesday, Feb. 14 issue for $7.50.

Rex Fields of Central Tire and Automotive was elected President of the Scurry County Industrial Foundation last Thursday.

Last week was Jaycee Week as observed by the Snyder Jaycee's.

Snyder Area Chamber of Commerce committee chairman received copies of guidelines and lists of some potential projects for programs of work at an orientation meeting last Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Pam West of the Curiosity Shop was gone to market over the weekend. She's bound to come back with several unusual and unique items.

Shaw's Used Cars, located at 1911 College, is now open and ready to do business with you, according to owner Dick Shaw. Shaw also buys used cars.

Randel Holder is the new manager at Hastings Books and Records in Varsity Square.

The East Highway Dairy Queen will be closed Tuesday and Wednesday for remodeling. The College Ave. Dairy Queen will remain open as usual.

letters to editor

To The Daily News:

During the recent ice storm, we had to make two emergency trips to Lubbock. We knew the roads would be bad, but decided to try. When we got on Highway 208 leaving Colorado City and traveling toward Snyder, the highway was clear of ice and snow and we were so relieved, that is, until we reached the Scurry County line. Then we had two ruts to drive in and if we met anyone we shared one rut with them. The road was covered with ice and no attempt had been made to gravel the bridges and hills. It was hazardous and terrifying. We couldn't even turn around and go back.

If Mitchell and Fisher County crews could work, where was the crew from Scurry County? I just hope and pray they or their children never have to travel an icy highway to see a doctor or to get medication.

Thanks to the Mitchell and Fisher County crews for a job well done.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Alan: "How about some hands that show the bidding by the best of the early contract players?"

Oswald: "We didn't have much science in those early days. One of our problems was how to bid suit slams and we played that the jump from one to four was definite slam try. Opener could then guess about bidding six. The late Hal Sims was the greatest exponent of the 1-4-6 school. As for grand slams, Hal had a simple rule. He did not bid them."

Alan: "Modern experts could find their way to six spades in any number of bidding sequences, but that Model T bidding you have shown here was short, simple and effective."

Oswald: "Very few experts of that early day knew the correct way to play the heart suit. In fact, lots of today's players would go down at the slam. Not Hal. He drew trumps, cashed his ace of hearts, stripped the hand of clubs and diamonds, led a heart toward his hand and rose with the queen. West took his king but had to give Hal a ruff and discard."

Alan: "Hal's play was the best. He was sure to make the slam if East held the heart king or if West held it singleton or guarded just once."

Ask the Experts

A Virginia reader asks if the grand slam bonuses have always been 1,000 not vulnerable and 1,500 vulnerable.

No. From 1932 to 1935 they were raised to 1,500 and 2,250. This proved most unpopular.

A Wife's Calls Can Put Hubby's Career on Hold

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years you have advised wives not to phone their husbands at work unless it's absolutely necessary. I disagree.

Nothing brightens a father's day like hearing, "Hi, Dada," from his 2-year-old son whom he hasn't seen for two days because he's had to work overtime.

As for management complaining because it wastes company time, management would be wise to encourage 10-minute "sunshine" calls. It does wonders for their employees' morale.

However, there should be a few rules: Emphasize that your call is not an emergency so your husband isn't interrupted in the middle of something important; if he doesn't work near a phone, put a quarter in his lunchbox so he can call you.

Also, never tell him what the kids did wrong or anything that might upset him. Keep it light and cheery. He'll love it. My husband does.

BETTE M.

DEAR BETTE: Your husband may love your "sunshine calls," but I'll bet his boss doesn't. In business, time is money. Say your husband makes $6 an hour and you babble away with him for 10 minutes a day, that's $1 out of the boss's pocket. If he has 1,000 employees, each making $6 an hour, and each taking 10 minutes a day to discuss domestic trivia, it costs the boss $1,000 a day!

If you MUST chat daily, let hubby call you on his lunch hour. A guy who's on the phone is not on the job—unless he's a bookie.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 11-year-old girl whose parents are divorced. I live with my mother. Mom has her boyfriend living with her and everybody knows they aren't married.

My problem is this. I have a best friend I'll call Debbie. Debbie's parents will let her come to my house and stay all day, but they won't let her sleep overnight. What's the difference?

PUZZLED IN LAS CRUCES

DEAR PUZZLED: Debbie's parents probably fear that if they allow her to spend the night in a home where an unmarried couple are sleeping together, Debbie might think they approve of it—which they do not.

DEAR ABBY: I have a gripe I would like to air. Just before Christmas, I receive a Christmas card with my newspaper: "Merry Christmas from Johnny Jones, your newspaper carrier!"

I also get a Christmas card, "From Elmer Smith, your postman." And another one, "From George Brown, your garbage collector."

Abby, I never see any of these people during the year, but there were times when I would have liked to see them to ask why my newspaper was late again, or why I find so many letters in my box that aren't addressed to me. Or why my garbage cans are never put back where they belong!

I don't mind tipping for extra service, but it bugs me to get a "bill" for mediocre service that I've already paid too much for.

STEAMED IN PALO ALTO

DEAR STEAMED—Those aren't greetings, they're warnings.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Parents Learning To Accept It...

Man Married To Stepgrandmother

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After a year of marriage, 21-year-old Mark Goodman says his parents are "learning to accept the situation" and getting used to his new bride - his 78-year-old stepgrandmother, Ray.

A year ago today, Goodman married Ray Goodman - a former chorus girl and his father's widowed stepmother.

"It's been one exciting year," Goodman said Sunday. "No regrets, that's for sure."

Many people - especially Goodman's parents - looked on the romance with disfavor a year ago when the couple, then living in England, announced wedding plans. British law forbade a marriage between a man and his grandfather's widow, so the couple came to Southern California and married secretly.

His parents, who live in this area, did not attend the wedding but Goodman says they are getting used to the idea now and visit frequently.

"I think they are learning to accept the situation," he said. "Time did a lot of things and we get along fine now. Mother and father are friendly."

Goodman likes to play down the importance of age in their relationship.

"We love each other. We're happy. That's what counts, isn't it?"

Goodman works for a securities firm selling stocks and bonds. He says he and Ray - he calls her G.R. for Gramma Ray - do some of the things young couples do, like disco dancing, and in some ways their life is more like that of older couples.

"I'd say we're somewhere in between," he said. "A combination of young couple and old couple."

G.R. gets a kick out of going to the disco - "she's unbelievable" - but Goodman admits they do "raise a few eyebrows."

The couple lives in a large apartment complex in the northwestern suburbs of Los Angeles about 10 miles from Goodman's parents.

In the evenings, they frequently watch television and play cards or visit with a few friends. They are jealous of their privacy and he said he plans to change their phone number "to make it inaccessible" even though their current number is unlisted.

"It's been a heck of a year, and this next year's going to be even better," Goodman said.

Mrs. Goodman was born in south London. She was the second wife of Mark's grandfather.

When asked about a future love life, the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted Goodman last year as saying, "This is love, but it's a very, very special type of love...I think sex is a weakness."

Mrs. Goodman said to a question about sex, "I don't think that's so very necessary."

She and Goodman lived together in London before they were married.

'Junk Food' Sales In School Hearings Begin

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The Department of Agriculture is trying again to restrict the sale of certain foods in the nation's schools, and this time the government is asking the public for help before, not after, drafting a proposed regulation.

The first of three scheduled hearings on the subject of so-called "junk food" will take place Tuesday in Nashville, Tenn. Further hearings are set for Feb. 6 in Detroit and Feb. 13 in Seattle.

Last April, the USDA proposed banning the sale of candy, soda, frozen deserts and chewing gum in schools until after the final meal of the day. The proposal drew more than 2,100 comments.

Most of the comments were favorable, but, said Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, they raised "significant issues which deserve additional public scrutiny." The department withdrew its proposal and announced it was starting all over again.

The hearings involve food sold in the 90 percent of America's schools which participate in the National School Lunch Program. In order to receive federal funds, the schools must offer so-called Type A meals, including minimum quantities of specific food components.

Schools may sell other items officially known as "competitive foods." The revenue from the sale of these foods often is used for sports equipment, scholarships or extra-curricular activities.

A number of those commenting on the original USDA plan expressed concern about the loss of money that would result from banning sales of some items. Candy manufacturers questioned the nutritional criteria used by the department in drafting its regulation.

In its initial proposal, the department zeroed in on four categories of food which, said the USDA, are relatively high in sugar content, traditionally considered snack foods and are generally identified as not making a positive composition to children's diets. In trying to draft a new rule, officials are considering other types of standards to determine which foods should be restricted.

Among the alternatives:

A food composition standard based on the levels of ingredients such as sugar, salt, fat, etc. The USDA would set maximum acceptable component levels.

A nutrient standard based on vitamin, mineral and protein content.

A meal standard under which a school would be allowed to sell, on a competitive basis, any food served as part of a regular lunch.

All the hearings will start at 9 a.m. The Nashville meeting will be held at the University of Tennessee Center, Room 358, 10th and Charlotte Ave. The Detroit hearing will be in the Robin C. Buerkel Auditorium of the Henry Ford Hospital, 2799 West Grand Blvd. The Seattle hearing will be in the board meeting room of the Seattle Public School District, 815 4th Ave. North. If you have a comment, but cannot attend one of the hearings, write to Margaret O'K. Glavin, director, school programs division, Food and Nutrition Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250 before Feb. 16.

Nitrate In Hay Killing Cattle

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Unusually high concentrations of nitrate in hay has killed hundreds of cattle in Texas, according to a doctor with the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory.

"We have had reports of 17 cases of cattle being poisoned from eating hay high in nitrate content," said Dr. John Reasor, a toxicologist at the facility, located on the Texas A&M University campus.

"If that many are reported, then likely there are hundreds more in the state not seen by veterinarians or sent to the lab," he said.

The lab's director, Dr. William L. Sippel, said natural nitrate concentrations have increased in hay because of unfavorable weather, including an unusually dry summer.

"Growth of the hay was slow, causing an accumulation of nitrogen," Sippel said. "Then, cold, wet weather resulted in cattle eating more hay to increase body warmth and to maintain physical condition. These cattle were not able to detoxify the larger than normal quantities of nitrogen consumed."

Reasor said the nitrate reduces the ability of the animal's blood to carry oxygen, and they suffocate. He said nitrate poisoning cases have been reported from Oklahoma to Torreon, Mexico, as well as in Texas.

Reasor said one rancher near Decatur, Texas, lost 80 cows overnight.

"Abortion of calves has also occurred in large numbers of cattle which ate hay containing high nitrate content, but not enough accumulation of the chemical to cause death," he said.

Reasor advised ranchers to have their hay analyzed, especially hay that was baled on highly fertilized pastures or hay that wilted from a lack of moisture during the growing season.

Deportation Threatens Seminole Mennonites

SEMINOLE (AP) — Visions of a farm-based religious community vanished in the West Texas dust for a group of 650 Mennonite immigrants now faced also with imminent deportation.

They came from Canada and Mexico with the dream of establishing themselves on the 6,400-acre tract they bought near this West Texas town.

But the land failed to yield the abundance they anticipated, so most abandoned the land in search of work in town or on area farms.

Special congressional action prevented deportation shortly after the reclusive Christian sect arrived in 1977 without proper visas. But that action was temporary and time is running out.

The disillusioned farmers have only until Feb. 1 to win approval for permanent residence. And their prospects for meeting the deadline look dismal, said Williams Chambers, regional director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization service.

The Mennonites applied for permanent residence on the basis of expected jobs with Seminole Mennonite Enterprises, Inc., which was to be busily building windmill-powered electric generators by now, providing work for half the Mennonite families.

But government investigators visited SME, Inc., recently and found a cavernous building with almost no activity inside.

"The company simply is not in a position to hire them as it was expected to do," Chambers said.

"Naturally, it's a disappointment. They were looking for this to transpire, and so were we."

If the Mennonites are unable to qualify for permanent residence, "then they'll eventually have to leave the country," Chambers said.

"This doesn't mean we're going to swoop in on Feb. 1 and move all of them out. It will be taken gradually on an individual basis."

All but 25 of the 118 family heads and single adults have managed to find jobs which they hope will qualify them for permanent resident status.

They are in various stages of preparing involved paperwork required to certify their jobs as ones no Americans want, or that no Americans are available to fill.

"We certainly hope that most all will be able to stay," said the Mennonites attorney, John Shepherd. "There's no way I can guarantee that, of course."

SME, Inc., is still a possibility.

Mark Harris, inventor of the windmill-generator and SME, Inc., operations manager, says the company will be doing contract metal fabrication work by summer. The windmill project is "on hold," he added.

He said he won't be hiring any Mennonites strictly out of charity.

"I don't make any money on goodwill missions," Harris said.

"The only reason I'm in Seminole is to make money."

Couple Wed In Balloon

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Art Castagnola and Sandy Himes got their marriage off to a flying start.

As friends, relatives and a few strangers remained safely on firm ground, the couple were married Saturday in the gondola of a hot air balloon that was moored at the end of a 100-foot tether.

When the vows were finished, Castagnola kissed the bride, the line was cut and the balloon floated across the Western Idaho Fairgrounds for a landing near the Boise River.

"We wanted to do something we could remember — something a little different that we could think back on over the years," said Castagnolo, 42, of Meridian, Idaho.

With them for the flight — the first balloon trip for either the bride or bridegroom — were Judge A. Richard Grant, who officiated, and pilots Scott Spencer and Curt Pengelly, who acted as witnesses.

The rest of the wedding party stayed on the ground. But it was probably just as well. The temperature was 17 degrees and it probably felt a lot colder up in the air.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Surrogate mother

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was watching the Mike Douglas show and heard a discussion on surrogate mothers. Mike Douglas interviewed a couple and the wife was sterile. A girlfriend of the wife then became the surrogate mother. As I understood it, the sperm cells from the husband were used to cause the other woman to get pregnant. She bore the child, and then the child belonged to the married couple.

My question is, whose child is this, really? I mean, won't the child be half like the mother who birthed it rather than half like the mother who raised it?

DEAR READER — Yes, you're right. Genetics isn't very much concerned with social arrangements. A child born because of the union of an egg (ovum) and sperm cell has the genetic characteristics of the woman who produced the ovum and the father who produced the sperm cell. It doesn't matter whether this union is induced in a test tube by artificial insemination or by the natural sex act. The end result, genetically, is the same.

After that, it doesn't matter if the child is adopted by entirely different parents or who raises the child; it will have no real influence on the genetic origins of the child. In the situation you describe, even though the woman who bore the child was not the wife, she is genetically the mother, whether or not the man's wife is the legal mother.

The same thing would apply to any surrogate mother. All children that she births, as a result of her ova, are all half hers, genetically.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 22-year-old son has recently been diagnosed as having mononucleosis. Can you tell me something about it? What is it and what causes it? How does it affect the body? Is there a cure? What is the treatment?

We have always considered this young man to be in good physical condition. His favorite forms of exercise are hiking, water and snow skiing, and karate. He neither smokes nor drinks, but he has had his share of common colds. Any help you can give will be very much appreciated.

DEAR READER — Infectious mononucleosis is caused by a virus and commonly affects young, healthy people. You shouldn't take it as an indication that your son isn't basically in good health. The symptoms include a severe sore throat, fever and enlarged lymph nodes. The spleen, which in some ways is a very large lymph gland just underneath the left margin of the ribs, may enlarge and become tender.

Your son should avoid athletics and physical activity until he has recovered completely, particularly contact sports. Why? Because the spleen is more likely to rupture with a mild injury. Once he is over the acute illness, he doesn't need to worry about that either.

The illness with fever usually lasts one to three weeks. Many patients do complain of fatigue for variable lengths of time after the acute illness is over. You can expect your healthy, athletic young man to make a total recovery in a relatively short period of time.

Readers who want The Health Letter number 3-2, Colds and Flu Group, Prevention and Treatment, can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

2-Headed Goat Defying Odds And Surviving

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Whether two heads are better than one is problematic, but in the case of Hedy Lamarr they may be good enough.

Hedy, a two-headed goat who was rejected by her mother, apparently will defy the odds and survive, says her caretaker, Patricia Costa.

"She's doing fantastic," Ms. Costa, a local goat breeder, said Saturday. "She has passed the critical stage and it looks like she's going to live."

The goat's skulls merge. She has two mouths, four eyes and two noses, but just two ear. In other respects, she appears to be normal. Scientists had expected her to die within minutes of her birth Wednesday.

"She still can't stand up, but she's putting weight on her front legs and holding her heads up for longer periods," Ms. Costa said Saturday, adding that Hedy is being bottle fed one mouth at a time.

Skyjacker Wanted To Present New Religion

By Marc Rosenwasser
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Irene McKinney talked about a plan to spike the world aware of her "new concept" in religion in the weeks preceding her alleged hijacking of a 747 jetliner, friends and acquaintances in California say.

A four-page tract she reportedly wrote in 1970 predicted "earth-consuming fires due to the extensive networks of oil, gas and electric lines" being disrupted by earthquakes after the explosion of the sun, said Frank Godfrey, a Cypress, Calif., real estate agent who rented Mrs. McKinney a two-bedroom townhouse.

"She had this idea of a heaven on earth and the sun exploding and she had all this technological stuff which she seemed to understand just perfectly," Godfrey said Sunday.

Mrs. McKinney, a 49-year-old California divorcee, was to be arraigned today in federal court in Brooklyn.

She was accused of commandeering a United Airlines flight en route from Los Angeles to New York on Saturday and threatening to blow it up unless television star Lindsay Wagner or actor Charlton Heston or Jack Lemmon read her message over network television. No message was ever found at the Los Angeles airport, where she claimed to have left one.

But during a 6½-hour siege at John F. Kennedy International Airport that ended with her capture early Sunday, Mrs. McKinney gave FBI agents a 25-page statement with religious overtones. They described it as "quite incoherent."

A co-worker at Thermco Products Corp., in Orange, Calif., said that since the Peoples Temple mass suicide in Guyuana, Mrs. McKinney had cried often at work and expressed fears that she would be killed.

"She was nervous when she talked to you," a co-worker, who asked not to be identified said. "She never finished her sentences."

Mrs. McKinney earlier had told FBI agents that she was an unemployed writer.

FBI agent Quentin Ertel described her as a "fallen away Catholic, ambivalent about developments in the church" and distraught about her family situation. After her divorce, she lost custody of her children, he said.

The 11-hour ordeal for 119 passengers and 12 crew members aboard United Airlines Flight 8 began over Airzona when Mrs. McKinney allegedly passed a note to pilot Thomas Cook advising him that she had enough nytroglycerine to "blow this plane up."

When she was overpowered by an FBI agent, authorities found only personal items including perfume in the flight bag she said contained the deadly substance.

Few Patients Depart Babies' Nursing Home

By MARC HUMBERT
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—St. Margaret's House and Hospital for Babies is a bright, airy place. But most of its patients will never go home, never go to school, never play ball.

More than half of the infants who arrive at St. Margaret's, one of only a few such nursing homes in the United States, are terminally ill. Most live less than a month.

"Most of our discharges last year were because of death," said Diane Haines, director of nursing.

"About two-thirds of the babies have severe birth defects and genetic-related disorders," explained administrator Clinton Lewis. "Most of the others are here because of accidents, either at birth or when they are young."

Some children are hydrocephalic, their heads swollen into grotesque shapes. Despite the deformities, there is always affection. The babies need it. The staff provides it.

"There always seems to be someone who takes to a particular child," Lewis said. "It doesn't matter what the child looks like; there always seems to be somebody with a special feeling."

The staff of 65 is aided by 30 students from the training school for child care technicians that St. Margaret's runs, and at times all the workers feel the emotional drain of their work.

"We had one child here for more than three years," Lewis said. "The parents never came. But when the child died the father came and spent all day here. He was very upset.

"I remember him saying, 'We didn't come to visit, but she was with us every day.' I can't say they weren't involved."

The administrator said officials of the Episcopal Church-related facility want to convert a room into a chapel or a meditation area.

"Not just for the parents, but also for the staff," he said.

The 58-crib facility began as a foundling home in 1883 and has cared for children ever since. Its present facility was built in 1973. The annual budget is about $800,000.

"More and more of our cases are terminally ill babies," said Lewis. "The average length of stay has fallen to less than a month."

Lewis said there are two principal reasons why there are more terminally ill babies: infants who previously would have died very quickly survive medical crises longer today due to improved hospital care, and doctors are prolonging lives with extraordinary measures because they fear malpractice suits.

Another reason that they are brought to St. Margaret's is that hospitals, geared to making people well, are expensive. Care at St. Margaret's costs $45 a day - and it's geared to the dying baby's needs.

"We make the babies as comfortable as possible and sustain them nutritionally, but we will not intervene to prevent death when it's inevitable. At least, that's the policy," said Mrs. Haines.

"But when you are on duty and a baby has stopped breathing, what do you do?" she said. "Sometimes you have to intervene. I would never reprimand a nurse for doing that. They won't be working here forever and they have to live with their consciences the rest of their lives."

Man Sought In Ft. Worth Fire

FORT WORTH (AP)—Arson investigators, puzzled by a mysterious fire that swept through a Fort Worth apartment Saturday killing a 22-year-old woman and her 2-year-old daughter, are looking for a man that argued with the woman earlier.

"We have a good idea who he is, but we haven't been able to locate him," said Lt. Harvey Gates, who added he thought the man may be able to answer some troubling questions.

The Tarrant County medical examiners office in a preliminary report said Donna Aston and her daughter Mandi, whose bodies were found in the smouldering debris of their apartment Saturday morning, died of asphyxiation.

Neighbors told Fort Worth police they overheard a violent argument between the man and the woman about three hours before the fire.

"The argument became so violent that the neighbor could hear someone throwing objects against the wall," Gates said.

The cause of the fire has not been determined but arson investigators are troubled by the circumstances.

Basin's Rig Count Down

Drilling activity in Permian Basin oil fields declined again last week, according to Reed Drilling Equipment's weekly survey.

The count last week showed 251 rigs running, compared to 255 the week before. A year ago at this time, there were 306 drilling rigs running in the Basin.

Eddy County, N.M. was the leader last week with 30. Pecos County led in West Texas with 21.

Scurry County had three rigs running, compared to two the week before. Figures for other area counties with last week and the week before, in order: Borden 3 and 3; Dawson 2 and 3; Garza 5 and 5; Howard 5 and 7; Kent 2 and 2; Nolan 2 and 0.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

January 30, 1979

Unusual chances to further your ambitions may come out of the blue this coming year. Investigate them and, if all checks out, take advantage of these unique opportunities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Knowing who to deal with is half your battle today. If you think you're being handed a line, don't hesitate to change directions. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979 by sending for your copy of the all-new Astro-Graph Letter for 1979. Mail $1 for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Think twice. Reconsider what your major goals are today. What appears to be top priority at first may not be all that important.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Any confusion resulting from the early day's problems can be quickly overcome by relying on what your instincts are trying to tell you to do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although you may at first feel the world is against you today, you'll soon change your mind when a friend does something nice for you quite unexpectedly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't expect any pats on the back for giving a lick and a promise to things you do today. In fact, halfway measures could get you into big trouble.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A co-worker's feelings could be hurt through a misunderstanding of facts you present today. Make sure you communicate accurately.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Again today you had better have your wits about you in commercial dealings. One whose standards aren't too high could try to snow you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Out of the goodness of your heart you may agree to something today that you shouldn't have. Some fast thinking could get you out of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Things may go wrong at work today, but when a little windfall comes your way you'll forget all about the earlier troubles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's quite possible you may feel used by one you consider to be an old and trusted friend. Get all the facts before passing judgment. You'll find you were wrong.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't ignore what your nobler instincts are telling you to do today. Keep your standards high and no one can harm you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pessimistic friends could put a damper on your day, if you let them. It would be best to seek out your more positive pals. Shun negative thoughts.

Scout Leaders Attend Banquet

The Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, held its 55th Annual Recognition Banquet Jan. 26 in the Learning Resources Building on the University of Texas Permian Basin Campus in Odessa. About 250 scouters representing many different districts attended.

Those representing the Lone Buffalo District from Snyder were Hubert Cargile, Lyle Deffebach, Larry Miller, Charles Henderson, Joel Hamlett, Doc Griffin and Sandra Campbell. Representing Colorado City was Walter Herin; from Lorraine was Mary Cravin.

Following the dinner was the installation of officers and recognition awards presentations. Griffin was formally commissioned as District Commissioner and charged with responsibility to Scouts in the Scurry, Mitchell and Borden Counties. Henderson and Hamlett were recognized for service on councils. Henderson also received a recognition award for his service during 1978 as district chairman.

The President's Awards were given for the jobs best done in various areas of district operation. The award for Cub Day Camp attendance went to the Lone Buffalo District. Receiving the awards were Griffin, Thelma Deere and Judy Tucker.

Receiving a special recognition award were Cargile and Deffebach for their service on the Silver Beaver Advisory Committee.

The next Buffalo Trail Council Recognition Banquet will be in Jan. 1980.

Tractorcade Continues Washington Journey

WYTHEVILLE, Va. (AP)-More than 900 persons and almost 400 tractors and campers were set to move out today as one of the nine caravans headed toward Washington to put in their bid with Congress for larger benefits for the farmers.

Members of this tractorcade, which started Jan. 15 in Amarillo, Texas, are scheduled to stop tonight in Roanoke, then move on to Augusta County before making the final push to the nation's capital.

It's the second trip in two years sponsored by the American Agricultural Movement, which hopes to have a caravan up to 16 miles long when all are joined together.

This particular group picked up participants from adjoining states as it made its way through Arkansas and Tennessee before arriving here Saturday for a weekend that included snow.

"We probably started with a selfish motive, to save our farms. But now we've developed into a group of people dedicated to saving our nation's economy as well as its farms," said AAM President Gerald McCathern.

The group is upset over farm prices and the low parity prices they are receiving for their goods. Parity is the relationship of the cost of farm products to other products on the market.

"In 1948, corn brought $2.29 a bushel. Today it is bringing only $2.25. Also in 1948, wheat was bringing 21 cents more a bushel and milo was up $1.13 cents from what I can get for it today," McCathern said.

"At the same time, my fuel prices have risen from 12 cents a gallon to almost 60 cents. Not only has the cost of gasoline and other fuels risen, but farm machinery, fertilizers, seed and personal items have sky-rocketed," he added.

McCathern said as many as four times more protestors are flying to Washington to meet the group when their machines arrive sometime Friday.

The group hopes to persuade government officials to implement the full provisions of the 1977 farm bill passed by Congress, especially raising the loan rate for agricultural commodities to levels equal to 90 percent parity, said Russell Rowland of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Inflation on agricultural land allowing members to borrow more on that "is the only thing that kept us going" without a return to the 90 percent parity that characterized U.S. agricultural policy from 1942 to 1952, Rowland said.

Last year's tractorcade included threats to withhold agricultural production unless the government decided to give the farmers some help, but the AAM is not recommending that action this year.

Instead, it is suggesting that surplus land and crops be used to help produce agricultural fuels such as alcohol, which can be used as an additive to make gasohol. Many of the covered tractors here had signs saying they could run on gasohol.

A rally had been scheduled for Saturday night at George Wythe High School, but the farmers found a high school basketball game, a sock hop and a spaghetti supper in progress. Many of them joined the supper.

Sheep Inventory At Record Low

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Jan. 1 inventory of sheep and lambs in the United States totaled about 12.2 million head, down 1 percent from a year ago and was the smallest U.S. flock since the government began national records in 1867.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that the value of sheep and lambs, however, jumped 38 percent last year to $876 million. That was a record value of $71.70 a head, compared to $51.50 a year ago.

Felines Try L-View Tonight

Coach Ken Housden's varsity Felines play host to District 3-3A leader San Angelo Lake View at Snyder High School gym tonight.

The game will be preceded by a 6 p.m. junior varsity match.

Lake View, the defending champion, is 1-0 in league play, having defeated Sweetwater early last week. The Mustangs are 1-1 after a win over Snyder on Thursday.

Lake View offers height and size, while Snyder will have to combat with quickness.

In playing Sweetwater last week, the Tigers fared well after taking off a leaky press in the second quarter. It was a nip and tuck affair, but with the Mustangs constantly going to the foul line, Snyder was unable to break ahead to stay. Sweetwater scored only four field goals from the second quarter on, but went heavy from the charity stripe, hitting 12 of its final 16 points on free shots.

The Tigers, who could not hit well from the foul line in the final period, also paid for the charity by fouling out three girls.

Snyder could jump back in the race with a victory tonight.

U.S. Boxers Edge Russia

LAS VEGAS-Heavyweight Tony Tubbs, a 21-year-old from Cincinnati, outpointed Russia's Evgeny Gorstkov in the final bout to boost the United States to a 6-5 team victory over the Soviet Union.

It was America's first triumph in these international bouts since their inauguration in 1969.

Stevens Wins Tennis Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Fla.-South African Greer Stevens, playing in only her second tournament since a knee operation in May, defeated Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 to win a $150,000 tennis meet.

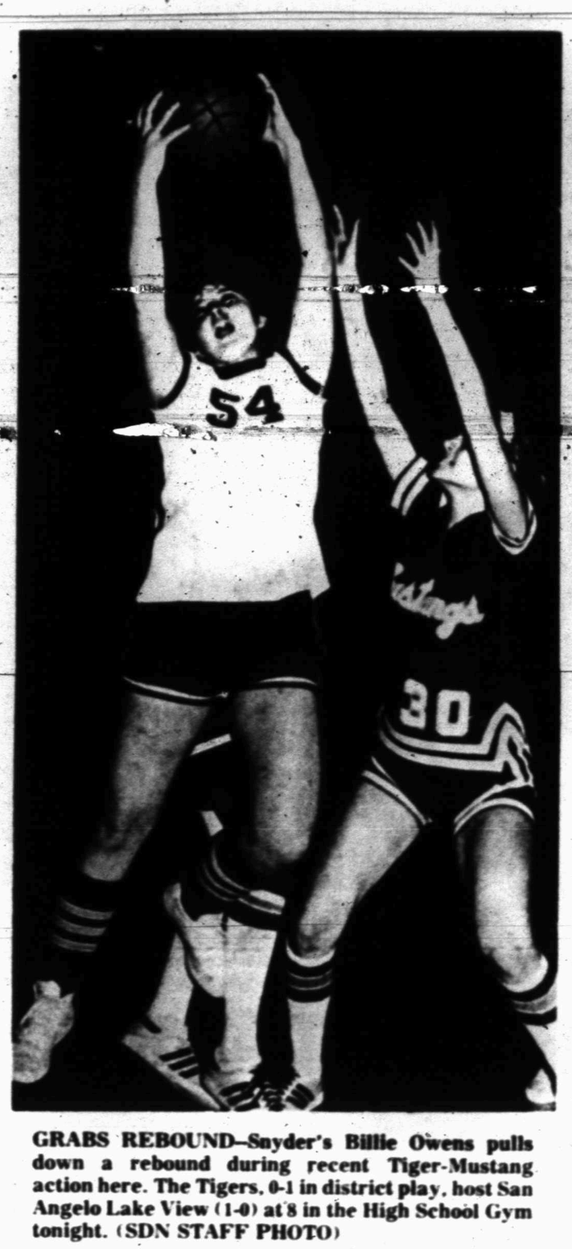

Stevens won $30,000 and Fromholtz took home $15,000.

Winbledon May Not Accept 5

LONDON - Five tennis stars, including Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Jimmy Connors, may be barred from Wimbledon, the French Open, the U.S. Open and other major championships this year because of a dispute over contracts, David Gray, secretary of the International Tennis Federation said.

Pro Bowl Pits Top Offensive, Defensive Keys

LOS ANGELES (AP) - With people like Earl Campbell, Terry Bradshaw, Lynn Swann, Walter Payton, Roger Staubach and Harold Carmichael in the game, tonight's Pro Bowl would figure to be a wild and crazy offensive show.

But that "figuring" doesn't take into account the defensive stars in the annual clash between the National Football League All-stars.

When the AFC's Campbell carries the ball, or Bradshaw looks for favorite receiver Swann, they'll have to contend with NFC defenders like Bill Bergey, Jack Youngblood, Al Baker and Cliff Harris.

And when Payton, Staubach and Carmichael are trying to move the NFC offensive, they'll be looking at an AFC defense that includes Lyle Alzado, Joe Greene, Randy Gradishar and Louis Wright.

Since the teams have just one week of practice together, the NFL has given some edge to the offenses by writing in special Pro Bowl rules that restrict the defenses.

The rules dictate that the defense must always be in a 4-3-4 set, play a man-for-man with no safety, and cannot blitz unless the situation is third down and less than three yards to go.

That, of course, means the respective offenses won't have to worry about making a lot of adjustments, and that the quarterbacks can essentially forget about being blitzed.

"That doesn't exactly mean the quarterback's in a rocking chair," said Staubach, "but it does give you one less thing to worry about."

Although a week is not enough time to install many fancy plays, both AFC Coach Chuck Fairbanks and the NFC's Bud Grant said they expect the game to be wide open.

"With the restrictions on the defense and all the high-powered backs and receivers, it may well be a high-scoring game," said Grant.

The first Pro Bowl game, which matched the NFL East and West All-Stars, was held in 1951 at the site of this renewal, the Coliseum. In the eight meetings of the AFC and NFC, each team has four victories.

Tonight's game has a slight flavor of a Pittsburgh-Dallas rematch.

Steelers on the AFC squad include Bradshaw, Swann, Greene, Franco Harris, Mike Webster, Mel Blount, Jack Ham, L.C. Greenwood, Jack Lambert and Donnie Shell.

Dallas is represented by Staubach, Harris, Tony Hill, Tony Dorsett, Billy Joe DuPree, Thomas Henderson and Charlie Waters. The Cowboys' Harvey Martin and Randy White were also selected for the game, but are injured and won't participate.

Kickoff time for the nationally televised contest is 8 p.m.

Netters Fall Again; Entertain Tournament

FORT STOCKTON—Fort Stockton defeated Snyder varsity tennis team for the second time this season here Saturday. Snyder girls won three matches and lost six, while the boys were 1-8.

The Tigers will host a team tournament Feb. 2-3. Included among the teams participating will be Snyder, Seminole, Pampa, Brownfield, Sweetwater and Brownwood.

Girls Singles: Connie Weber lost in 3 sets to Kelly O'Banion, 4-6, 7-5, 5-7; Donna McGee won a hard-fought match over Irma Gomez, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5; Belinda Scott was defeated by Tara Walters, 6-2, 6-1; Kelly Scott lost to Michelle Corders, 6-0, 7-5; Diane Sentell defeated Yolanda Gonzales in 3 sets, 6-7, 6-3, 6-1, and Cathy Cypert defeated Kathy Farned, 6-4, 7-5.

Despite losing the match, Connie Weber is to be commended because O'Banion went to state last year as a doubles player, noted Snyder Coach Bill Boles.

Girls Doubles: McGee and Weber lost to O'Banion-Walters, 6-4, 3-6, 6-7 with a 5-4 tie-breaker; Scott and Scott lost to Gomez-Gonzales, 6-0, 7-5; and Sentell and Valerie Wilson lost in 3 sets to Corder-Farned, 4-6, 6-3, 2-6.

O'Banion and Walters have been picked by area tennis coaches to be the team to beat in regional play.

Boys Singles: Neal Paige lost to Michael Castello, 6-3, 6-1; Jay Wesson was defeated by Leslie Hall, 7-6, 6-2; Jeff Wesson lost to Mike Keterman, 6-1, 6-0; Jimmy Fowler lost to Orlando Urias, 6-4, 7-6; Jon Smith was defeated by Alberto Rodarte, 6-1, 6-1; and Lyn Edmiason picked up the only Snyder win, defeating Armando Subia, 6-2, 6-3.

Boys Doubles: Wesson and Wesson lost to one of the top teams in the region, Hall-Castello, 6-3, 6-3; Paige and Smith were defeated by Kellerman-Rodarte, 6-3, 6-3; and Fowler and Edmiason lost to Urias-Subia, 6-3, 6-3.

NMMI Welcomes Westerners Tonight

ROSWELL, N.M.—Western Texas College men's basketball team is scheduled to play a conference game with New Mexico Military Institute here tonight at 8.

WTC, ranked eighth in the nation, holds the conference lead with a 7-1 record, while NMMI is 5-3.

The Westerners go into the game averaging 88.6 points per conference game and allowing 74.0. NMMI baskets 78.4 points on the average, and gives up 76.0.

The Military is noted for being particularly tough at home, always drawing a large group of partisan fans.

WTC will return to Snyder for a two-game series on Feb. 1 and 5 with Howard County and Odessa, before taking to the road again.

Zoeller Takes Williams Open

SAN DIEGO (AP)-Fuzzy Zoeller had arranged his playing schedule carefully this year, keeping clear the two middle weeks of April.

"My wife's expecting our first child in the middle of April," Zoeller said. "That's the most exciting, best thing that's ever happened to me.

His first career victory on the PGA Tour came in wind, rain, a few flurries of snow, cold and hail Sunday at the Andy Williams-San Diego Open. And it suddenly made him eligible for two of golf's premier events, the Masters and Tournament of Champions. He has never before played in either.

He finished with a round of par-72 - one of only five scores at par or better in brutal weather - and claimed $45,000 from the total purse of $250,000 with his 282 total, six under par.

"This is going to help me," he said. "It's going to be great for my confidence. There are two questions everyone has to answer when they come out on the tour: 'Can I make it Then, if I make it, can I win?' You have to prove it. Now I've proved it. That will help. That will make the second one come easier."

Lamesa Looks For Win Here

It all comes down to 32 minutes of basketball here Tuesday as Snyder High School's boys varsity basketball team hosts the round-one champion Lamesa Tornados at 8 p.m. in Scurry County Coliseum.

It also marks the beginning of District 3-3A's round-two competition.

Lamesa, tough and physical, will be attempting to slap away a pre-season prediction that called for the Tigers to dominate the conference this year. The Tors defeated Snyder earlier in the season in a wild contest which saw leading scorer Reuben Steinbronn bucket a winning free throw after the final buzzer.

Snyder had called time-out - it had no more - and Steinbronn scored the technical shot to break a 50-50 tie.

Lamesa went on to batter out a 4-0 first-round record, defeating Sweetwater 42-41, Lake View 45-38 and Brownfield 61-45.

Likewise, Snyder won the remainder of its games by beating Brownfield 85-62, Sweetwater 71-63, and Lake View 89-60.

As first-round victor, Lamesa is assured of a berth in the district playoffs, provided any are necessary. Should the Tors tie or win the second round, they would qualify as outright district champions.

Snyder could take the district championship by defeating all of its second-round opponents - including Lamesa - and then oust the Tors in the playoffs.

A 6:15 junior varsity game will precede the crucial varsity battle.

UT Seated Comfortably In SWC Race; Aggies Pose Upcoming Problems

By The Associated Press

No one seems surprised that the eyes of Texas are casting a covetous glance at yet another Southwest Conference basketball championship.

But the preseason favorite and 17th-ranked Longhorns still have a couple of tall hurdles left in their path for the conference crown.

Texas emerged victorious in showdown clashes with Texas A&M and Baylor last week and blasted Southern Methodist 98-62 Saturday night. And that win left Mustang Coach Sonny Allen shaking his head.

"It was not as close as the score indicated," lamented Allen.

The Longhorns seem unbeatable at home in the Super Drum, where they have now won 25 in a row, and they are playing at the form that took Coach Abe Lemons' crew to the National Invitation Tournament title in New York City last March.

However, the Longhorns have a hazardous Feb. 12 date at Texas A&M still on their schedule.

Right now is appears the Aggies are the only ones with a chance to overhaul the Longhorns in the second half of the SWC season.

Texas is 7-1 and the Aggies are 6-2.

Arkansas and much-improved Baylor have outside chances at 5-3 while Texas Tech appears out of the running for a regular season championship at 4-4.

Texas has two games at home this week, hosting Houston Monday night and entertaining always dangerous Arkansas Thursday night.

Texas defeated both Houston and Arkansas on the road, but the Razorbacks played well and can give the Longhorns trouble.

Texas A&M whipped Rice 81-62, Baylor defeated Texas Christian 77-69 and Arkansas outlasted Texas Tech 63-57 Saturady night, despite a frantic Red Raider second half rally.

Texas A&M's Rudy Woods blocked three shots against the Owls to bring his season total to 47. The Aggies could only block 40 shots for the season last year without their talented freshman center.

"I have been lifting weights and I'm much stronger in the arms. But I'm still bony and light and I need to put on some pounds," Wood said.

"Our team needed a game like this. And now we get Texas at home, and we've been looking forward to it."

Allen said playing Texas "is hardly something to look forward to. It's hardly something to anticipate with joy."

Host Clarendon, 7 p.m. Tuesday...

Dusters Grab 5th Place

STEPHENVILLE—Western Texas College's Dusters grabbed fifth place in Tarleton Tournament action over the weekend here.

The Dusters, now 15-9 for the season, defeated Weatherford, Hardin-Simmons and Tarleton, and lost to Baylor University.

WTC resumes Western Conference play in Snyder at 7 p.m. Tuesday, hosting Clarendon College. The Dusters are tied for the conference lead with a 3-1 record, while Clarendon is 3-2.

The Dusters, after dropping Hardin-Simmons University 79-58 here Friday morning, fell to Baylor in the evening, 84-71.

The girls were behind 31-6 at one time, before rallying in the second half.

"I guess the name Baylor scared us," commented Coach Joe Cushing. "After the girls settled down and found out they could play with them, they made a game out of it in the second half."

Baylor eventually won the tournament with ease, causing Cushing to add, "I don't know what Baylor was doing in the tournament. They should have been playing Texas Tech and teams like that. They were too strong and too tall to be playing in a small college tournament."

Saturday, WTC ripped Tarleton 85-66 and finished off Weatherford in the game for fifth place, 65-46.

Nodia Vaughn paced the Dusters for most of the tourney, scoring 16 points against Baylor, 23 against Tarleton and 16 against Weatherford. Joyce Plagens had 12, 10 and 12 points against the respective trio while Brigette Hamilton scored 5, 13 and 11, and Katie Fisher had 17, 11 and 5.

"I was real proud of the girls," added Cushing, who has seen his team win 8 out of 10 games since the Christmas break.

Following Tuesday's game with Clarendon, the Dusters will play a non-conference game with Wayland at Plainview, then resume a straight conference schedule which includes Odessa at home, Clarendon and Amarillo on the road, South Plains at home, Frank Phillips on the road, Howard County at home, and South Plains again, on the road Feb. 26.

8th Black Takes Tournament Title

ROSCOE—Snyder Black defeated Snyder Gold 42-26 here Saturday night to win the Roscoe Junior High Tournament championship.

Snyder Black will host Sweetwater Red tonight at 5:30 p.m., while the Gold team travels to Big Spring to play the Brahmas, also at 5:30.

Glenn Parham scored 11 points to pace the 8th grade Black team. Others scoring were Curtis Gafford, 9, Kirk Herrley 6, David Gee 5, Whit Parks 4, Casey Peterson and Joe Yuregas and Johnny Overton 2 each, and Britt Vincent, 1.

Brent Roemisch led the second-place Gold team with 7 points. Richard Derrick and Ross Bawcum had 6 each, while Trey McWilliams, Ron La-Pointe and Michael Luera had 2 each. Gerald Hicks scored 1.

The two teams will compete in a Sweetwater Tournament beginning Thursday. Snyder Black will play Sweetwater White at 7 p.m., while the Gold team plays Sweetwater Red at 4.

Buckey To Coach NCS

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)-David Buckey has resigned as quarterback coach at Miami University to return to the football staff at North Carolina State.

Buckey, who joined the staff here a year ago, graduated from North Carolina State in 1976 and was Wolfpack quarterback coach in 1976 and 1977.

Connors Wins Pro Indoor

PHILADELPHIA - Top seeded Jimmy Connors overpowered Arthur Ashe 6-3, 6-4, 6-1 to win the U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis championship.

The 26-year-old Connors earned his third title here in the last four years by beating the 10th-seeded Ashe. Connors was runnerup in the Philadelphia tourney in 1977.

The top-seeded team of Wojtek Fibak of Poland and Tom Okker of the Netherlands won the doubles title with a 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Peter Fleming and John McEnroe, who were seeded second.

In 1973, Fred Dryer of the Los Angeles Rams made two safeties in one game against the Green Bay Packers.

Man Injured In Stabbing Here

A weekend stabbing at the Koko Palace sent a Midland man to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

Reports indicate that James L. Floyd, 55, received five minor stab wounds during an altercation at the club shortly before 5 p.m. Sunday. Reports also indicate that no charges were filed in the incident at Floyd's request.

In a criminal mischief report during the weekend, Mrs. Loren Sullivan said a windshield to her pickup truck had been broken. Damage in the incident was set at $150.

Two minor traffic accidents occurred this morning on the Ave. E. overpass above Highway 84. Both occurred within five minutes of each other, and both involved women from Rotan. A police officer said the wrecks were unrelated.

The first occurred at 7:45 a.m. and involved a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Mary Carrillo. The second occurred at 7:50 a.m. and involved a 1977 Buick driven by Margarita Martinez.

Both wrecks resulted in minor damage to the left front sides of the vehicles, and both occurred within 42 feet of each other, police reported.

Three minor wrecks were investigated during the weekend.

The first occurred in the 3500 block of College and involved a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Roland Brad Chapman and a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Jimmy Lynn Wemken of Hermleigh. It took place at 4:12 p.m. Saturday.

Occuring at 8 p.m. Saturday was a two-car collision in the 3600 block of College Ave. That collision involved a 1963 Oldsmobile driven by Alvis Leon Grove II and a 1976 Gran Prix driven by Bart Anthony Burgess of Lubbock.

The only mishap to occur Sunday took place at the Sonic Drive-In on College Ave. There, according to reports, a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Dennis Carlton collided with a 1973 Pontiac driven by James Land.

Ex-Police Chief Gets 12 Years

HOUSTON (AP)—Former Houston Police Chief Carroll Lynn was assessed 12 years in prison today for his conviction on charges of obstruction of justice and perjury.

State District Judge Carl Bue also sentenced the 22-year police veteran to a 10-year term for an extortion conviction but it was suspended on agreement that Lynn pay a $10,000 fine at the rate of $2,000 a year.

Lynn's lawyers said they would appeal and Bue said their client could remain free under his current $50,000 bond. In asking for probation, lawyers argued that Lynn "would be subject to daily danger if imprisoned, or must be kept in virtual isolation."

Bue said the court was "aware of the obligations to impose just sentences on all persons, and neither prejudice nor sympathy can play any part."

Lynn is the highest-ranking Houston police officer ever charged with a felony.

Gold Fever Runs High In Colorado Rockies

By ROBERT T. KERR
Associated Press Writer

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo. (AP)—High in the Colorado Rockies, where mountains still bear the scars of mine tailings a century or more old, gold fever burns as brightly in the minds of some men as it did then.

Although mining bonanzas don't exist anymore - or remain to be discovered - miners continue to search the seams of hard rock for gold-bearing ore and ore remains in some of the old mines that died with the outbreak of World War II.

Price of the hard-to-fine, yellow metal has been a direct influence on a recurrence of this gold fever. While gold once sold in Colorado at $15 an ounce, the metal on today's market demands a price of about $225 an ounce.

Brad Place is a former Denver stock broker who decided a couple of years ago to bring new life to the Mary Nevins mine at Cripple Creek. Place said the price of gold during the 1950s, regulated by the federal government at $35 an ounce, made the mines there only marginal operations at best.

And Norm Blake, director of the Colorado Division of Mines, said the $35-an-ounce price of the regulated market had caused many of the career gold miners to move west with the uranium boom of the 50s.

But at $225 an ounce price, it is a different story. Several heads have been turned and activity is resuming in some of the state's historic gold camps.

Place, cautious in describing his operation at Cripple Creek, emphasized that only "rock is being brought up from the Mary Nevins." Rock becomes ore only after it profitably yields gold, he explained, and the break-even point usually occurs when a ton of the mined rock contains a quarter-ounce of the precious metal.

Both Place and Blake agreed that a major reason most of Colorado's small operations have not resumed production is the lack of mills to process the ore.

Mills once were a common sight along the eastern side of the Rockies, many medium-and large-sized mines having their own ore-processing plants.

"I doubt if there are 100 mills in the state today," Blake said. Most of these, he added, are small or are not being operated.

"If we had a good plant on the eastern slope, we would have 100 more mines opening," Blake said. "And I think that's an overly conservative estimate."

Milling is required because gold is most commonly blended with other metals. High-grade gold ore can look like nothing more than black rock to the novice. Free gold, or pure gold found in ore, is a scarce commodity.

The milling process crushes ore to a fine powder, making the gold and other metals available. After that, the powdered ore is mixed with chemicals. The gold and other metals are floated to the top of the broth where they are skimmed off and put aside for smelting.

There are no gold smelters in Colorado anymore and gold must be sent either to Idaho or Texas for processing into final form.

Blake said gold mining has not been a major revenue producer in Colorado in recent years. Figures for last year's production won't come into his office until March. However, Division of Mines figures for 1977 showed that gold accounted for $10,181,000 of Colorado's $411,547,000 in metallic mineral production.

Blake estimated that about half of Colorado's gold mining came to an abrupt halt last June 4 when Lake Emma broke through a fault into the Sunnyside Mine near Silverton, flooding it with 3 million to 10 million gallons of water, mud and sediment.

Guyana Messages Prescribed Death

WASHINGTON (AP)—The FBI has transcripts of radio messages from Jonestown apparently telling Peoples Temple followers in Georgetown, Guyana, to kill a group of 10 concerned relatives who had accompanied Rep. Leo Ryan there, The Washington Post reported today.

The messages were sent last Nov. 18, just hours before Ryan, D-Calif., and four others were killed at the Port Kaituma airstrip and the Rev. Jim Jones and more than 900 of his followers died in a mass suicide-murder at the Jonestown commune, Post correspondent Charles A. Krause said in a dispatch from Georgetown.

None of the 10 relatives, who stayed behind when Ryan went to the commune, was killed.

The Post quoted unnamed sources as saying the FBI has evidence the messages were sent by Jones or one of his top aides.

It said an American shortwave radio operator in Georgetown copied down the coded messages, although he didn't understand them, and the FBI later decoded them using a Peoples Temple codebook.

The Post said the messages were received at Peoples Temple headquarters in Georgetown, probably by Sharon Amos, one of the cult's leaders. She and her three children were later found dead at the headquarters, their throats slashed.

Jones' son, Stephen Jones, and Charles Beikman, a commune member, have been charged with murder in the Amos killings.

Ryan, a group of reporters and relatives of some of the cult members had gone to Guyana to check reports that some Jonestown residents were being mistreated and kept from leaving.

The Post said the unidentified radio operator had inadvertently learned the frequency and decided to listen in on the conversations because he knew Rep. Ryan was in Jonestown.

When the operator sensed apparent trouble, largely because of the urgency with which the messages were being sent, he wrote down some of the conversations, even though he could not decipher what they meant, the newspaper said.
