Gray County Commissioners Meet Today

The Gray County Commissioners Court met this morning in a regularly scheduled session for the purpose of paying bills, canvassing the County school trustee votes and accepting a bid on X-ray equipment for the Highland General Hospital Annex.

All business was taken care of, save for the accepting of a bid on the X-ray equipment since Dr. George Hrdlicka, the radiologist who was to have inspected the information and interview the bidders, was busy at the hospital and unable to make the meeting this morning.

The two representatives of the companies entering bids were then asked to return this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The two companies entering bids were the General Electric Company with a bid of $23,966.10, and the Gilbert X-Ray Company with a bid of $21,009.80.

Although the difference in bids is $2,956.30, county officials pointed out that the equipment would have to be looked over by Dr. Hrdlicka and his opinion heard before any decision could be made.

Campaign To Exterminate Rats Set

Due to the rapid increase in the number of rats in Gray County, a campaign will be conducted throughout the remainder of April to exterminate as many rats as possible.

The announcement of the campaign against rats was announced this morning by Ralph Thomas, county agent. He reported that a large amount of anticoagulant rat bait was available for the eradication of the rats.

The rat poison will be available from the secretary at the county agent's office in the Court House or at the Price Barber Shop in McLean until May 1.

The campaign is being conducted, Thomas stated, as a health measure due to the fact that rats carry several diseases. He also reported that even though the bait is mainly for control of rats in rural areas it is available to city residents that have rat control problems.

5-Year-Old 'Hibernates' In Deepfreeze

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (UP)—A 5-year-old boy, rescued minutes before death from inside a locked home deepfreezer where he was trapped for nearly an hour, survived the cold because he went into hibernation like an animal, it was reported Thursday.

Dr. Walter C. Ralston said he administered treatment for frostbite of the feet and hands Wednesday to little Theo DeHoog, who was rescued by his mother, Mrs. Danil DeHoog, from a chest-type freezer into which he had climbed and locked himself.

"This was the most interesting case I've ever handled," the Garden Grove physician said. "Hibernation saved the life of the boy."

Dr. Ralston said the freezing lowered Theo's metabolism so fast that he went to sleep before he could struggle much.

"This conserved the oxygen in the closed food closet," the doctor said. "The boy would have died — he missed death by minutes — if his mother hadn't found him."

Mrs. DeHoog said she went into the garage to get some frozen meat for an early dinner when she heard a low moan from within the freezer.

"I opened it and there he was sleeping," she said.

Ballot Positions Determined

Positions on the ballot of the May 14 runoff election in Ward 4 to determine who will be the commissioner of that ward were determined yesterday afternoon when the two candidates drew for their place.

As a result of the drawing it was determined that Glenn Radcliff would appear first on the ballot and that Robert D. "Bob" Olson would be second.

The runoff election became necessary when none of the four candidates for commissioner from

Fog Covers Panhandle

Residents of Pampa and the Top of Texas were greeted this morning by heavy fog.

The fog moved into the area during the night as part of a cold front following summer weather yesterday afternoon. Only a trace of moisture had been received late this morning from the fog and light drizzle.

Reports from the northern part of the area this morning indicated that the fog was clearing and that the entire area should clear by late this afternoon.

Rain began falling in Southeast and Central Texas Thursday and cold air that pushed into the northwest was expected to trigger more rain and scattered thunder showers across the state Thursday night and Friday.

A downpour hit the Beaumont-Port Arthur area early Thursday and had dumped 2.65 inches of rain by 6:30 a.m. Rain, but in lesser amounts, also fell at other points along the central coast and was pushing northward into Central Texas.

Fog and drizzle was reported through much of Central Texas after sun-up and rain was falling in southeast Texas. Low clouds and some fog was pulled into the Panhandle by the advancing cold air.

Forecasters said the cold air would continue pushing to the southeast and would reach the upper Texas coast by Friday. Rain was forecast for Thursday afternoon and evening over West and Central Texas.

In addition to Beaumont's 2.65 inches of rain, Houston reported .71 overnight, Galveston .64, Palsacios .26, Lufkin .25, Victoria .06 and College Station .04.

The bill provides that West Texas areas using mountain standard time—including El Paso—would continue that time as their official standard time.

Mann said he introduced the bill at the request of persons wanting to facilitate scheduling of radio and television programs and release of marketing news.

Opposition to the proposal came principally from operators of outdoor movie theaters and farmers. The bill cities "the need for daylight saving time for the more effective operation of business during certain months of the year."

Daylight saving time was approved in Wisconsin at an election April 2.

Washington to Louisville and back. "But they made a big mistake when they told members they could stay over to see the Derby and come back the next day," Van Zandt said. "People will get the idea the whole thing is a Derby junket."

To The Races?

Van Zandt said he fears also that some members not really interested in the Army demonstration will take advantage of the free round trip flight plus free room and probably free meals as well.

Rep. Frank T. Bow (R-Ohio) said the trip sounds all right to him unless the Army spends extra money on the members who elect to stay for the Derby. According to Army plans, this will entail an extra night's lodging and presumably extra meals.

Bow said it's not true though that the military always picks up the tab for the congressmen's meals on such trips. Sometimes members pay their own food bills, Bow said.

In any event neither Van Zandt nor Bow will be able to accept the Army's invitation. The Army said it had no idea yet how many others would be able to accept. A

Congressional Districts Reshuffle Due Approval

By O. B. LLOYD JR.

United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP)—Legislation reshuffling Texas congressional districts for the first time since 1933 was ready for final approval in the House Thursday.

The congressional redistricting bill, which would add a second congressman to Harris county, gained preliminary approval in the House Thursday.

BULLETIN
AUSTIN (UP)—The House Thursday rejected on a test vote a multi-million dollar natural gas tax bill endorsed by Gov. Price Daniel.

The lower chamber late Wednesday.

It would effect eight of Texas' present 21 congressional districts and add a 22nd in Harris county.

Favors New District
The state received a 22nd congressman after the 1950 census. Congressman-at-large Martin Dies of Lufkin, who has held the state-wide position three terms, said recently he favored abolishing the at-large post and creating a 22nd district.

The original proposal by Rep. Criss Cole of Houston was amended to reshuffle eight districts. The amendment was by Rep. Howard Green of Fort Worth.

However, another amendment, by Rep. Alonzo Jamison of Sanger, was added to Green's amendment, leaving Denton county in the 13th district.

The House rejected a proposal by Rep. Don Kennard of Fort Worth which would have given the extra congressman to a district made up of Dallas and Tarrant counties.

An amendment by Rep. D. B.

Byrd of Huntington taking Angelina county out of the second district and putting it in the third was approved.

Dope Peddlers
The Senate passed and sent to Gov. Price Daniel a House-approved measure providing the death penalty for second-offense narcotics peddlers.

The House Appropriations Committee gave Rep. Max Smith of San Antonio, its chairman, authority to ask Attorney General Wilf Wilson for a "clarification and explanation" of Wilson's legal opinion Tuesday ruling a $399-a-year teacher pay raise bill is not an appropriation and need not be certified by the state comptroller.

House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) said a deficiency appropriation bill, which will include the postal appropriation, will be taken up in the House Monday.

Although the postmaster general hasn't said so, members assume that Summerfield will delay the postal cutbacks if the committee gives him approximately what he wants.

Brundage told the subcommittee one of the reasons he kept refusing the post office's request for additional funds was that he thought there would be an increase in postal revenues of 20 million dollars.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield told Congress last month that he needed 47 million dollars in emergency funds to keep the post office operating through July. He threatens to curtail post office services drastically beginning Saturday unless the money is forthcoming.

Leaders To Meet

Division leaders of the forthcoming Pampa Chamber of Commerce membership drive will meet with their captains tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

At that time names will be drawn and cards given out of persons to be contacted in connection with the drive which is to be kick-off with a luncheon in the Palm Room of the City Hall Monday noon.

Calvin Whitley is head of the membership drive and the two division leaders are Paul Crouch and E. L. Henderson.

He had $1,600 in cash and identification cards belonging to Guy F. Atkinson, 36, chairman of the board of the Guy F. Atkinson Co., Los Angeles.

He paid the hospital and special nurse who served him 24 hours a day in cash until his money ran out. Then he paid all his bills by check. He also cashed a hot check at the Biltmore hotel and wrote a bogus check for $6,200 for a new Cadillac at the Derby-Everest agency here.

He then left town with a newly-hired chauffeur and was well on his way before the checks began bouncing.

Hooper said the checks were written on a San Francisco bank and that Atkinson banks at Los Angeles.

Hooper said he didn't know how the man obtained Atkinson's identification papers.

Hooper said the man carried auto license plates from Florida and California and probably other states.

Egypt And Saudi Protesting To US Of Ships' Passage

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

United Press Staff Correspondent

CAIRO (UP)—The independent Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said Thursday King Saud of Saudi Arabia has warned Israel that Saudi artillery will open fire on any Israeli ship trying to pass through the Gulf of Aqaba.

The newspaper also said both Egypt and Saudi Arabia had protested formally to the United States against the passage through the gulf to an Israeli port of the American tanker Kern Hill. Both nations said the gulf is Arabian territorial waters.

In Damascus, Syrian Premier Sabri El-Assali told reporters all the Arab states were considering a joint protest to the United States against what they regarded as "violations of Arab territorial waters" by an American tanker.

First Ship Arrival
The 10,000-ton Kern Hill was the first ship to take oil to Israel's new port of Eilat since the Israeli invasion of the Sinai Desert broke the Arab blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

The report in Al Ahram followed an official Egyptian statement that Israel has refused to withdraw troops from positions on Egyptian territory covering the approaches to Eilat.

The spokesman said Israeli troops still occupy Taba and Ras-Elnakh on the western bank of the Gulf of Aqaba and have refused to comply with requests by the U.N. Emergency Force that they leave.

Eilat, at the head of the gulf, is the port which Israel hopes to use to develop its Far Eastern and African trade. It is about 20 miles from Egypt and the same distance from Saudi Arabia across the tip of Jordan which extends to the gulf.

Awaiting Fortification
A statement from the Egyptian Government Information Department said Israel refused to leave Taba and Ras-Elnakh because Eilat was not yet sufficiently fortified. Israel gave up positions at Sharm El Sheikh farther down the gulf early last month.

The announcement quoted Walter Ryan, director general of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, as saying Israel also had no intention of allowing the UNEF to occupy the El Auja demilitarized zone.

El Auja, almost midway between the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba, was demilitarized by the 1949 armistice agreement. It was occupied by the Israelis during their Sinai campaign.

Thursday's Egyptian statement said the UNEF wanted to use El Auja as a base.

Tax Cut Seen

WASHINGTON (UP)—Key Republicans concluded Thursday that House Democrats are playing a waiting game before springing a tax drive later this year.

They said the Democrats already have decided to launch the drive, despite Democratic assertions they would wait for the present to see if two conditions are met—that federal revenues hold up sufficiently and that Congress cuts enough from President Eisenhower's record peacetime budget of nearly 72 billion dollars.

Speaker Sam Rayburn Wednesday outlined Democratic tax policy adopted after a strategy huddle attended by Rayburn, House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) and Democrats on the tax-writing House Ways & Means Committee.

Republicans said privately that if the tax drive is launched it will be hard to stop short of a presidential veto no matter how much the administration might fight it.

Rayburn said there is a "good chance" that conditions later will justify cutting personal income taxes and possibly some other taxes as of Jan. 1.

Other congressional news:
Postal: Budget Director Percival F. Brundage admits that his previous lack of knowledge regarding certain federal bookkeeping practices helped bring on the Post Office Department's current money crisis. Brundage said he kept turning down the department's request for more money from last July until last March 12. He said he thought an expected increase in postal revenues would be turned over to the department instead of going into the Treasury Department as do all other government revenues.

Republicans: Major parts of President Eisenhower's legislative program appeared to face mounting resistance in the future among top Republican congressmen. An assessment of GOP sentiment indicated that the dominant Republican view in Congress is that there is a public demand too strong to be ignored for budget reductions. This has beefed up opposition to parts of the President's legislative program—particularly those costing money.

Loan: The House approved a bill to allow Britain to postpone up to seven of the annual payments on its $4,372,000,000 debt to the United States. The measure was sent to the White House for the President's signature.

Newsmen: The Senate Foreign Relations Committee planned to resume hearings on the State Department's ban on allowing U.S. newsmen to visit Red China. Testimony was scheduled from the United Press, American Society of Newspaper Editors, American Newspaper Guild, the Communist Daily Worker and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Simpson: Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.) announced he will wage a vigorous fight to defeat Eisenhower's proposal that the United States join the Organization for Trade Cooperation. Simpson was the first top Republican to come out against the proposal since Eisenhower renewed his plea for it in a special message last week.

South Seems Determined To Cling To Segregation

This is the first of four stories sizing up the Negro segregation situation three years after the Supreme Court ruling.

'If It's Borden's It's Got To Be Good'

ATLANTA (UP) — The white South today seems determined to cling to the segregation of Negro and white for many bitter years to come.

It will give up, if it must, on the fringes. But it will use every tactic to forestall racial mixing in public schools, churches and other "close contact" fields.

May 17 marks the third anniversary of the Supreme Court's historic school desegregation ruling. Yet only 20 per cent of the public schools in 17 states segregated at that time have lowered race bars.

And in eight "deep South" states the percentage is zero! The South is in a state of siege against the federal enforcement of civil rights court orders. Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) calls it "massive resistance."

Talking privately with the South's leaders, you get the impression that integration is coming — but not during their lifetime. They are playing a deadly serious game of trying to outwit the courts. So far they have been largely successful.

Anyone who thinks, for example, that Georgia would hesitate to close its public schools rather than integrate them just isn't up on Georgia's temper on this subject.

Negroes are finding there is a world of difference in winning a court victory and actually crossing the color line.

After a year-long boycott of buses in Montgomery, Ala., and eight months of the same in Tallahassee, Fla., Negroes achieved a complete legal triumph for integrated facilities. But in daily practice the buses in both cities are as segregated in their seating arrangements as they ever were.

Actual Integration Sparse
In one case after another, Negroes have won just about every civil rights battle they fought. But actual integration has been very sparse, indeed.

It is limited mainly to the integration of 700 school districts in the border states, including one as far south as Clinton, Tenn.

Southern legislatures, in an effort to stem the tide of integration at every weak spot in the dike, have shored up the law books with 120 new statutes since 1954. Schools in nine states now have authority either to assign pupils to a specific school, cut off public funds to integrated public schools or to operate private schools with state money.

There has been quite a change in attitude among the white leadership in the past year. With recovery from the first chill of the Supreme Court ruling, there is a growing feeling among state officials that regions can retain most of their old customs for many years by entwining them in a legal snarl.

Most Traffic Accidents Are Result Of Human Failure

"Most traffic accidents are the result of human failure," J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, made that assertion today as this month's Know and Obey Traffic Laws program was inaugurated by the Texas Safety Association.

"Accident records bear this out," Musick said. "In four out of five fatal traffic accidents, a driver violated some traffic law, sign, signal or warning. Since this is the case, the best approach to reducing traffic accidents is to eliminate our failures."

Musick listed the six most frequent driver violations in fatal ac-

1. Know and obey all traffic laws.
2. Drive at a speed that is safe for conditions.
3. Never drive after drinking. Don't drink if you intend to drive.
4. When entering an intersection be prepared to yield the right of way to avoid an accident.
5. Never pass on a hill or curve or at an intersection and do not cut in sharply after passing.
6. Don't hog the road — stay in your lane.
7. Don't follow too closely. Allow plenty of room to stop.
8. Signal your intentions to turn or stop.
9. Read and heed the "Signs of Life."
10. Check your car for safety. Keep it in first class condition.

Observer Saves Pilot And Plane

SPANGDAHLEM, Germany (UP)—Air Force Weather Observer John R. Teare saved a pilot and his plane by keeping the jet flying after the pilot blacked out, U.S. 12th Air Force officials said Wednesday.

Teare, a 30-year-old staff sergeant of Harper, Kan., has been recommended for an Air Medal. The Air Force said Teare was aerial weather observer for 1st Lt. William R. Burkholder, 28, of St. Petersburg, Fla., on a flight from Spangdahlem to Neuberg in February.

Teare took over and flew the plane for 15 minutes through stormy, zero visibility weather. At 18,000 feet in their slow descent Burkholder recovered and was able to land the plane.

Circus Starts A New Year Minus Big Top, Trimmings

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—How does the circus—the big one, that folded its tent in the middle of last season—come back this year and schedule a full coast-to-coast season without a train, without a cookhouse, without (of all things) a big top?

It takes some doing, and some change of routine, but the straw bosses seem to think that from the way things have been working since the opening here last week, the new way of life is going to be all right.

"It's amazing how many places have auditoriums big enough to hold a show like this," said a circus spokesman, gazing at the spidery web of ringside rigging in Madison Square Garden. "But there's one trouble with appearing in buildings—few of them have room for a menagerie in addition to the show. We'll have the menagerie here and in Boston, and then continue without it."

Some outdoors. R.I., and Hershey, Pa., in buildings. Then we go under the blue sky, in a ball park or stadium, in Norfolk. We go back to buildings in Charlotte, Raleigh, Winston-Salem, then into several open-air dates.

Marines Cut Volunteer Quota

Sgt. Billy Williams, Marine Corps recruiter for the Panhandle area, has announced that due to quota limitations there will be no more than eight Panhandle area men accepted for service in the United States Marine Corps during the month of April.

This limitation, Williams said, is due to the large number of men admitted into this branch during the past month in other areas throughout the country.

The current number of active personnel being maintained in the USMC is approximately 202,000. This is the maximum permitted under the Corps' peace-time strength. The "quota limitations," therefore, are governed by the number of enlistees as balanced against separations.

He's known how to handle a chimp-sized unicycle for quite a while, but to the amazement of Viggo Benny, his owner, "Bubu" leaped on Viggo's man-sized bicycle backstage at a Hamburg, Germany, theater and handled it perfectly.

appearances when the dry season is on in those sections," one of the bosses said.

No Sawdust Floors
There's no dirt or sawdust for flooring this year. Many of the auditoriums objected to such things being dumped on their floors. The circus has developed a special formula. You watch them put down the ring floors and you see first a layer of black felt paper (which keeps the whole thing from skidding), then a building-board layer, then a heavy rubber matting. The matting alone is used on the runway that circles the ring area.

"The performers' salaries have been adjusted so that they pay their own hotel bills, and eat anywhere they want," a spokesman said. "This includes the roustabouts. The performers will travel any way they want; trains, buses, their own cars. The tiger trainer has bought a bus and converted it inside into living quarters for his family."

"The circus is moving the wardrobe, the rigging, and props with its own fleet of trucks."

SEALED IN—British troops are reported to have George Grivas, head of the Cypriot underground, in a trap. At Nicosia, Cyprus, it is understood that 3,000 British troops have sealed off a 50-square-mile area in the Todoros Mountains and are moving in on his hideout.

Doglift
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP)—A small dog tried in vain to do some shoplifting at a grocery store here. First it grabbed a tube of toothpaste in its mouth and scampered out. A couple days later it made off with a sack of peanuts. But a stock boy chased the dog both times and forced it to drop the loot.

Lefors Club In Effort To Beautify Cemetery

(Special to The News)
LEFORS—A plea has been made by Mrs. Ted Gustin, as chairman of the Lefors Art and Civic Club's committee for the beautification of the cemetery, for more cooperation on the part of individuals in this community in the donating of labor in the near future for projects intended to beautify the cemetery.

The projects include the building of a driveway, construction and erecting of a trellis, setting out of native trees and a general clean-up of the cemetery grounds.

The city council has okayed the piping of water to the cemetery and has donated the use of city equipment to be used when needed in the projects. Charles Blankenburg, city employee, has donated his time in using the equipment for ditching work and general clean-up.

Ray Chastain has donated dozer work and the following women have donated time for hoeing, raking, etc.: Mmes. H. W. Callan, Jerry Jacobs, Earl Atkinson, R. H. Barron, L. R. Spence, James Jinks, Ted Gustin and Ray Boyd.

Many others have also helped. Shrubs purchased from Bruce Nursery, which donated a shrub for each one purchased, were set out by the following workers in a work day held last Saturday: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Boyd, Mrs. Gustin; Fred Blackwell, P. F. Blankenburg, Earl Atkinson, Howard Archer, A. D. Alvington and a representative of the nursery. A total of $180.50 has been donated by various business firms and individuals, and upon completion of the project, a ceremony is being planned to recognize all persons who have had a part in the work, either by donating labor or money.

A goal has been set for the completion, Memorial Day, May 30. Club representatives have urged all persons in the community who could do so to help in the work.

Volunteer caretakers are going to be needed to look after the cemetery through the summer and future years. The Boy and Girl Scouts will be invited to help with this end of the project as well as other interested persons and organizations.

Helpful For Once
MANCHESTER, Conn. (UP)—Accused of driving 15 miles an hour too fast in a 35-mile-an-hour zone, Walter Kulak told the judge: "My wife is a back-seat driver, and she said I wasn't driving any 50 miles an hour." The judge, a family man himself, nodded sympathetically and dropped the speeding charge.

State Custody Of Child Is Sought

HENNESSEY, Okla. (UP)—County Attorney Karl Cunningham said Wednesday he would attempt to obtain state custody of a six-year-old girl who was forced to remain outside her home, with her hands tied behind her back, all night.

Cunningham said the child was found on the porch of the home of Mrs. Alice Gale, about 75, her grandmother, at 4 a.m. Tuesday by a Hennessey policeman. Mrs.

Gale is keeping three brothers and sisters of the child, and all four are included in the custody application, Cunningham said. Cunningham said the mother of the youngsters had left them with Mrs. Gale.

Possibility Of A Tax Cut Looms Larger In Congress

By RAYMOND LAHR

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey is reported to have heard some Dutch uncle talk from one of the administration's erstwhile Democratic friends in Congress.

He was told in effect the administration has painted itself into a political corner by its handling of the federal budget this year. He was also told there is a very good possibility the result could be passage of a Democratic-sponsored bill this year to cut personal income taxes, effective next Jan. 1, despite administration opposition.

The reasoning behind this line of thought runs this way: President Eisenhower startled Congress and the country by his record peacetime budget of almost 72 billion dollars for the coming fiscal year that starts July 1.

Public Demands Cuts
Then the President himself invited Congress to make cuts before stepping out in recent weeks as a more vigorous champion of his budget. Meanwhile, Humphrey and other administration spokesmen also encouraged Congress to shave the budget requests.

Public demands began to pour into the House and Senate mail boxes for a reduced budget and lower taxes. The House began hacking away at appropriations bills.

Although the Senate has yet to be heard from, rumbles are coming from House Democrats about the possibility of passing a tax reduction bill before Congress quits this summer. This probably would come in the form of a measure to raise the individual income tax exemption for each taxpayer and dependent from the present $600 to $700, beginning next Jan. 1.

Tax Reduction Pending?
A tax cut of that amount would cost the treasury about $2,500,000,000 in a full year, although the cost would be less than half that figure in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

There have been hints from Democratic leaders that they would like to see the appropriations bill trimmed by a total of more than three billion dollars, with half of the saving going to debt reduction and the rest to tax relief.

In these circumstances, it is presumed a tax reduction bill would be hard to stop.
The Democrats visualize a Republican-sponsored drive for tax reduction next year and are in no mood to let the GOP get the jump on this issue.

Earthquake In Alaska

By UNITED PRESS

A strong earthquake apparently struck in the Gulf of Alaska Wednesday.

Seismographs in New York and Massachusetts and on the Pacific Coast recorded a disturbance at an intensity of 7.25 on the Richter scale.

A University of California seismologist said the quake appeared to have centered in the Gulf of Alaska. This is east of the Aleutian Islands area that was rocked by a powerful earthquake which caused a Pacific tidal wave March 9. That quake was much more severe than Wednesday's.

In Honolulu, the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey said its instruments pinpointed the quake off the Chirikoff Islands southwest of Kodiak Island in the Gulf of Alaska. The survey's reporting stations in Alaska and Japan said there was no danger of a tidal wave.

A Look Ahead At Future Headlines

By CHARLES M. MCCANN

United Press Staff Correspondent
United Press correspondents around the world look ahead at the news that will make the headlines.

Missile Move

Intelligence sources in both Berlin and Vienna say that Russia is preparing (1) to send atomic weapons to its army in East Germany and (2) to construct a string of guided missile bases along the Austrian-Hungarian border. Berlin hears that steel and concrete underground shelters for storing atomic weapons and missiles already are under construction in the Magdeburg and Schwerin areas of East Germany.

Missile Jitters

It may seem strange that Russia is planning to set up missile bases in foreign countries just when it is warning Norway, Denmark and The Netherlands that they face disaster if they permit the establishment of such bases on their own soil. But consistency is not a jewel in Moscow. Also, London reports that the Soviet government really has the jitters over the threat that North Atlantic Treaty Organization missile bases would present to it in the event of war.

Don't be surprised if Dave Beck, under fire for alleged misuse of Teamster funds, is ousted as president of the country's biggest union next fall. James R. Hoffa, long the "Crown Prince," seems out as a successor. He is under indictment on bribery charges. Washington believes that William A. Lee, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor and one of the 11 Teamsters vice presidents, may become head man. Secretary-Treasurer John English is Beck's chief antagonist right now. But he is 68, and is likely to be passed over as too old to take over.

London looks for a bargain basement rush by British Commonwealth nations when the navy starts disposing of its surplus warships under Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's drastic economy program. Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and Pakistan all are reported to be interested. There may even be some bidding for Britain's battleships, which are to be scrapped or "otherwise disposed of."

LEFORS — A program consisting of authentic Indian dances was presented by the four dens of cub scouts of this area Thursday night in the old gym in the high school building. At this time two awards were given. The two were the Lion award, given to Dickie Archer; and the Wolf Award given to Ronny Willis.

SNOW ON SPRING ST.—Betty Turnquist finds that weather conditions on Spring Street in Minneapolis, Minn., typify the late spring storms that have spread record snows for this time of year across great areas of the western and Rocky Mountain states. A plague to city-dwellers, the snows promise respite from years-long drought conditions in some areas.

Bunny Cake For A Patio Parly

By Jane Ashley

Outdoor dining starts in earnest with the first warm days of spring. Why not make a party of the first supper served outdoors, whether it be a family gathering in the back yard or a dress up garden party. A bunny cake with gleaming jelly bean eyes, a fondant candy carrot for nibbling and highly decorative Easter Eggs will form an unusual centerpiece. And it is all edible, can be served as dessert along with ice cream or fruit and coffee.

BUNNY CAKE

Prepare a package of cake mix or your favorite layer cake recipe. Grease and flour a bunny mold well using an unsalted fat. Fill lower half (with overlapping rim) almost full. Any remaining batter may be baked as cupcakes. Place on a cookie sheet and lock top half of mold into place. Cake should rise enough to fill top half of mold. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) for 50 to 60 minutes. Let cool 45 minutes or more in mold before removing cake. Remove very carefully and insert a long wooden skewer (a lolly pop stick) from center of head deep into body.

Prepare snowy white No-Cook Marshmallow Frosting, reserving a small amount to tint pink. Carefully frost bunny cake rounding out details. Sprinkle with shredded coconut before frosting sets. Outline ears and whiskers with pink frosting. Make nose and eyes with jelly beans. Tie a ribbon around the bunny's neck, if desired. Make a carrot with a fondant candy.

NO-COOK MARSHMALLOW FROSTING

1/2 Teaspoon Salt
2 Egg Whites
1/2 Cup Sugar
1/2 Cup Kara Syrup, Red Label
1 1/2 Teaspoons Vanilla Extract
Add salt to egg whites and beat with electric or rotary beater until mixture forms soft peaks. Gradually add sugar, about 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until smooth and glossy. Continue beating and add light corn syrup, a little at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition, until frosting peaks. Fold in vanilla extract. Makes enough to cover bunny or will frost tops and sides of two 9-inch loaves.

Platterful Of Good Eating Is Made By Thick And Juicy Pork Chops, Potatoes

Thick and juicy pork chops, potato slices and parsleyed carrots make a platterful of good eating. The pork chops, cut extra thick and fitted with pockets, filled with a savory bread dressing, are browned thoroughly in hot fat then cooked slowly with the vegetables until well done. The combination may be cooked on top of the range or in a moderate oven.

STUFFED PORK CHOPS

WITH VEGETABLES
4 pork chops, cut 1 1/4 inches thick
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Salt
1 1/2 cups bread crumbs
1 1/2 cups water

4 tablespoons fat
6 medium potatoes
4 medium carrots

Have meat man slit chops from fat side to bone to form a pocket. Sauté onion, green pepper, and celery in butter until lightly browned. Add 1 teaspoon salt and crumbs with skewers or cocktail picks. Fill pockets of chops and fasten and moisten mixture with water. Brown chops in hot fat in a heavy skillet or other large utensil. Add thickly sliced pared potatoes and cleaned whole carrots, to chops. Sprinkle 1 1/2 teaspoons salt over meat and vegetables. Cover, and bake in a 325 degree F. oven 1 hour, or until meat and vegetables are tender. Remove skewers from meat before serving. 4 servings.

Here's Man's Idea Of Male Sandwich

Chief Marchitelli of the world famous Mayflower Hotel in the Nation's Capital, has the job of catering to the most international tastes in the country. When it comes to the subject of sandwiches, however, he has some very sound and down to earth ideas.

A sandwich should be a meal in itself, he says, and the ingredients should be hearty, the seasoning unusual. Here's his version of how to satisfy a hungry man's stomach.

CLUB STYLE

Toast three slices of bread. Alternate — one white, two wheat, or two rye. Butter. Place lettuce on bottom layer; a layer of roast beef, spread with a combination of mustard sauce, Lea Perrins and mayonnaise. On top layer place a slice of Virginia ham, covered with finely sliced sweet and sour pickles, and watercress. Cut in three ways, and anchor with tooth picks.

Snappy Flavor In Indian Meat Loaf

Now, let's look at the Indian Meat Loaf. The corn and snappy seasonings add flavor quite different from ordinary meat loaves and you'll love its golden color.

INDIAN MEAT LOAF

4 cups corn flakes
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup cream style corn
1 cup cooked tomatoes
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon chopped onions
1 pound ground beef
1/2 cup chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon sage
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 pound ground pork
Crush corn flakes slightly; combine with remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Spread in greased 9 x 9-inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 1 hour. Cut into squares to serve. Yield: 9 servings

TV Watching Time Is Enjoyable With One-Plate Supper

Cool spring weekends are TV watching time, and no one wants to miss a favorite program popping in and out of the kitchen preparing meals. Smart homemakers make up several dishes beforehand, and a hearty macaroni salad is a "must" for one-plate suppers. It's a fine accompaniment for Sunday's leftover roast meat or cold chicken and can be served with canned fish of any kind. Here's a flavorful recipe you'll want to try soon.

Refreshing Macaroni Salad

(Makes 4 to 6 servings)
1/2 cup vinegar
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 medium-sized cucumber, diced
1 medium-sized onion, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
2 cups elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
1 1/2 cups creamed cottage cheese
Combine vinegar, sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, cucumber and onion; chill 1 to 1 1/2 hours. Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water and drain again.

Drain cucumber mixture and combine with macaroni and cottage cheese; mix lightly but thoroughly; chill. Serve with crisp salad greens, if desired.

EASTER'S HEADLINE

For that Easter dinner or evening buffet, serve a baked smoked ham. Bake the ham in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) until done. About 45 minutes before the ham is finished, remove it from the oven and spread the fat surface with a honey and brown sugar glaze. Return to oven to glaze. Decorate with cherries and garnish the platter with pineapple slices.

Spring Dessert Is Calorie-Shy

If you'd like a new dessert that's sweet but kind to the waistline, try this refreshing springtime special. Tangy lemon pudding teams with the fresh flavor of rhubarb in a delightful dessert that's as welcome as these first warm days of spring.

Calorie-watchers reap an extra dividend. For this recipe has been streamlined to a low, low count of just 58 calories per serving. The secret is simple. All of the sugar normally required for the sweetening of these tart fruits has been replaced by Sucaryl, the new non-calorie sweetener. Had this same dessert been sweetened with sugar, each serving would contain 3 1/2 times as many calories!

Tremendous calorie-savings, such as this, can easily be achieved in all of your cooking. For this sweetener contains no calories whatsoever, yet gives a natural sugar-like sweetness to all baked and cooked foods. Try this low-calorie recipe on your family and friends. Until you tell them, no one will guess your secret.

Lemon Pudding With Rhubarb Sauce

1 envelope gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
3 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon Sucaryl solution
or 24 Sucaryl tablets
1 teaspoon lemon rind
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup nonfat dry milk solids
1/2 cup ice water
3 cups diced rhubarb
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon Sucaryl solution
or 24 Sucaryl tablets
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Sprinkle gelatin over cold water and let stand 5 minutes to soften. Beat egg yolks; add the 1 tablespoon Sucaryl, lemon rind and juice; cook in top of double boiler until mixture thickens. Add the softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Remove from heat and cool until mixture thickens slightly. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; fold into gelatin mixture. Combine dry milk solids with ice water and beat on high speed of mixer until of consistency of whipped cream; fold into gelatin mixture. Pour into 8 lightly oiled individual molds (or a 1-quart mold). Chill several hours until set.

To make rhubarb sauce, combine rhubarb, water and remaining 1 tablespoon Sucaryl; cook over low heat until rhubarb is soft; mash with a fork. Add some of the cornstarch to make a paste; return to rhubarb in saucepan; cook until mixture thickens. Cool and serve with the lemon pudding.

Makes 8 servings. Each serving contains 58 CALORIES; 4.9 grams protein; 2.1 grams fat; 5.2 grams carbohydrate. If made with sugar, each serving would contain 203 CALORIES.

Easy Does It With Turkey And Peas

BAKED TURKEY SALAD

1 can (8 oz.) Peas
1 cup cooked or canned turkey
1-3 cup diced celery
1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1-3 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup grated sharp cheese

Cut turkey into cubes. Combine with all ingredients except cheese; toss lightly. Spoon into three lightly greased baking dishes or custard cups. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake for 30 minutes at 350 degrees F.

"FLYING SAUCER" BUSINESS CENTER—The weird-looking structure above is a model of the "Helicoid," a "spiral in space" destined to cap a mountain overlooking Caracas, Venezuela. When completed in 1960, at an estimated cost of 25 million dollars, it will be one of the largest self-contained business centers in the world. It will have 320 small stores, various industrial show rooms, a hotel, swimming pool, garages and business offices. There are many other novel features, including a closed television circuit to show prospective buyers merchandise in the Helicoid's sales rooms.

Allied Trade Restrictions On Communist China May Relax

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. MCCANN

United Press Staff Correspondent
It is practically certain that Allied restrictions against trade with Communist China will be relaxed materially before long.

Great Britain, West Germany, France, Japan and other countries are determined to ease up the embargo against trade which has been imposed since the Chinese Reds entered the Korean War in 1950.

The United States is against any relaxation. The Eisenhower administration expresses determination to maintain the United States blanket embargo on Red China trade.

But other Allied countries are unwilling to maintain the present restrictions on their trade. They need the money and they want to get into what is potentially one of the richest of world markets.

What will happen in United States policy if the trade of other Allied countries with Red China becomes important remains to be seen.

But there is likely to be increasing pressure on the government from the big manufacturers to ease American restrictions.

Britain and Germany, for instance, want to build up a big export trade in motor cars and tractors with Communist China.

Some American manufacturers like Ford and Chrysler are on record as favoring increased trade. Henry Ford II, speaking at the annual convention of the National Automobile Dealers Association in San Francisco on Jan. 28, said that trade with Communist China might be in the best interests of the United States. He called for "realistic decisions" on trade and aid policies regarding Red-ruled countries.

Britain, West Germany, France and Japan, among other countries, already have relaxed their trade restrictions to a considerable extent. Britain notified the United States in May, 1956, that it intended to increase its trade with the Chinese Reds. This easing included the shipment of some items which had been classified as strategic.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan discussed the trade situation with President Eisenhower at their conference in Bermuda last month. No agreement was reached.

Now it has been decided that the 15 countries which belong to the China Trade Co-ordinating

Committee will discuss relaxation at a meeting to be held in Paris soon. Members of this committee, called "Chincom," include the United States, Canada, Japan and 12 European members of the North Atlantic Treaty organization.

Britain took the initiative in arranging this meeting. Britain believes it can export 112 million dollars' worth of goods to Red China a year. It especially wants to develop export of automobiles.

The automobiles supposedly would be strictly for civilian use. There the question arises of how anybody could keep Chinese Communist army men from riding in such vehicles if they liked.

G.I. MENJOU—Adolphe Menjou, movie star famed for years as the screen's No. 1 fashion plate, was left with little more than the shirt on his back when a sneak thief stole his wardrobe in Munich, Germany. Menjou is there making "Paths of Glory." Above, he gets buttoned up in a G.I.-donated fatigue jacket by Brig. Gen. David W. Gray, commander of the 11th Airborne Division in Germany.

Advice On How To Run A Motorcade

By DOC QUIGG

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—There's been some gentle chiding of the driver for the President of the United States for conning the presidential limousine—with the President himself aboard—from Washington to Gettysburg at a speed deemed unseemly by the law.

The President has said he now has ordered his Secret Service speed limits anywhere, any time, and that should settle that. Like his car under control.

The complaints about the president being whisked too fast across the hazards created by a real helter-skelter of the highways. I refer to the official motorcades, carrying important personages, that bat blithely around the countryside under police motorcycle escort at speeds that tend to turn reporters gray before their time.

The people who set the pace of these hotrod hegiras—which sometimes string out a mile or so long—don't seem to realize what screaming stops, starts, and skids are occurring at the accompanying middle and whipping end of the line. Not to mention the portions of the line that are struggling to keep up and meanwhile running through red lights without the protection of the sirens and blinkers at the front of the cavalcade.

Careening is the word which best describes the general progress of these many autoed parades. I have a personal interest in them. I sometimes have to ride in them in the course of duty.

There was one chilling evening during a political campaign when several buses lumbered down through the congested middle of New York city like stampeding elephants, swinging from side to side of the streets around startled motorists as if they were engines on their way to a fire.

An Eye-Witness Remembers The Infamous Bataan Death March

EDITOR'S NOTE: April 9 was the 15th anniversary of the fall of Bataan. On that date in 1942, Cmdr. Walter G. Winslow, USN, was already a prisoner of the Japanese. He had been a member of the crew of the cruiser Houston which was sunk during the battle of the Java Sea on the night of Feb. 28, 1942.

He wasn't freed until after the war. But during his confinement he defied specific orders of Japanese against taking notes or keeping a diary, and from the notes he took he was able to write the following account of the infamous Bataan death march which followed. Such an account from first-hand sources, put together while the events were fresh in everyone's mind, has never before been published.

Out of 9,000 prisoners taken at Bataan, close to 1,000 died during the march.

By COMDR. WALTER G. WINSLOW, USN

Written for NEA Service The telephone in the Command Post of the 91st Field Artillery gave a sharp, dusty jingle. It was exactly 0540 on the morning of 9 April 1942. The major of the 91st took the call and the blanching of his sun-baked, weary face revealed that something of monstrous proportions had happened.

He hung up and his eyes, weary from months of fighting a war that from the beginning was destined for disaster, peered solemnly at the man facing him.

"Sergeant," he said in a toneless voice, "the damn thing has ended. All of Bataan has surrendered."

Tears of frustration welled in his eyes. He knew the U.S. and Philippine troops had not been beaten by the Japs. They had lost because of the lack of air support, dwindling supplies, starvation, sickness and complete physical breakdown that comes to officers and men after months of war's constant nerve wracking pressure without rest.

This was the end of the war for them, but the beginning of a venture into a despicable unknown. Some men had sworn that they would never be taken prisoner by the Japs, that they would die by their own hand first. But these rash words were spoken before the fact.

Next day we sent out a patrol which got word to the Japs that we had surrendered and their tanks took over our Command Post.

Compared to these Jap Soldiers the U.S. and Filipino troops were pitiful. Barely 20 per cent were capable of combat. The ravishing effects of malaria, dysentery and malnutrition were obvious and the great majority should have been hospitalized.

On the morning of April 11 a group of 50 officers was loaded into trucks and was driven to the main road leading out of Bataan. At the intersection a sweating Jap soldier was attempting to direct traffic.

A U.S. colonel tried to explain they had been ordered to ride the truck to a certain area, but the Jap whipped out his pistol, cocked it and practically jammed it into the colonel's mouth. At that point the officers abandoned the truck and were started marching down the dusty road, seared by a blazing tropic sun.

At the end of the day this group of prisoners had walked 10 miles without food, water or rest. That night they were marched into a mosquito-infested rice paddy and ordered to sit. Sleep was impossible.

Starting with the next day's march dates and times became confused to the prisoners. That morning a shouting mob of dirty Jap soldiers kicked the prisoners to their feet and slapped them into line. They searched the prisoners and grabbed anything that took their fancy.

Along the road during the subsequent days work parties would be cut from among the marchers and be given chores to perform which required an almost superhuman effort on the part of the sick, tired men.

The town of Lubao was the first destination of the march that had become a hideous human experience within a few days. Mile after mile they shuffled, senses numbed by hunger, thirst and bleak misery. Like the walking dead they continued, with the guards becoming more brutal, continually slugging those who weakened and faltered.

Those who were too sick or so exhausted that they could no longer continue, the Japs shot alongside the road where they fell, or bayoneted them to death as a warning to all present that to falter was to die.

About 10 at night the main body of prisoners finally reached Lubao. They were jammed into a warehouse, so crowded that the men were forced to sit with their knees tightly drawn up under their chins. There were no toilet facilities. No one was allowed to leave. No medical care was obtainable.

On April 20 the group was started walking towards San Fernando which was to be the end of the march. This caused the most casualties. Hundreds of prisoners who fell by the way were just left to die.

The San Fernando compound was much the same as the one at Lubao.

The marching was ended, but not the tortures. On April 23 groups began to be loaded into small box cars to be hauled to a former U.S. Army camp called Camp O'Donnell for eventual shipping to Japan. Prisoners were jammed so tightly into the cars that those who died during the trip could not even fall down.

Is your family caught with its bank account down? Most families object to leftovers, I know. But using those last bits of roast meat, cooked vegetables and cake can make a big difference in the food budget.

Instead of having "leftover" night blues, try some of these tricks—

... toast leftover cake squares or cookies in a moderate oven (350°F.) 5-10 minutes. Crumble and sprinkle on ice cream as a dessert topping.

... Combine 2 cups seasoned leftover mashed potatoes with 1 egg and 1/4 cup chopped onion. Dip in flour and pan fry lightly in hot fat.

... Use leftover cooked vegetables in salads, or combine 2 cups of cooked vegetables with 1 cup of Carnation Cream Sauce* in casserole. Top with buttered crumbs and bake 15-20 minutes in moderate oven (350°F.).

*Carnation Cream Sauce. Combine 1 tablespoon butter with 1 tablespoon flour and 1/2 teaspoon salt in saucepan over low heat. Blend thoroughly. Gradually add 1 cup undiluted Carnation. Stir until thickened and smooth (3-4 minutes).

Past Was Brutal

Most of us have little conception of the vast changes or good wrought by free enterprise. Before the advent of what has been called the industrial revolution, life for the average man was a vast prison. He was governed and controlled in his comings and goings to such an extent that personal development were alike an impossibility.

For example, there were enforced edicts respecting the kind and the color of clothing to be worn by every class. Your occupation and your station in life determined what you would wear. Peasants were forbidden any ornaments, decorations, jewelry or even wigs. The penalty for disobedience was severe and could even include death by torture.

But nobility was not free to wear what it chose. Every garment worn by each noble was carefully prescribed so that the apparel proclaimed the man and nothing was left to chance. And a noble who deviated from the royal decree was simply banished. Even the clergy dressed as they were told. And the medieval clothing ordained by royalty for clergymen has come down into present day usage practically unchanged.

The color of purple was reserved exclusively for royalty. None could resort to the purple unless royal blood flowed in his veins.

But restrictions didn't end here. Cloth, for instance, was restricted as to amount, quality, price, imports and exports. Prices and styles were set by the very wealthy. Peasants were not permitted to shop in stores. All shops were located in one location so that the government could supervise their every action. And exorbitant taxes were levied at the turn of every wheel.

Restrictions on professions were universal. A child was born into an occupation. He was expected and compelled to follow the trade of his father, with the one exception that he could follow the church if he showed the necessary aptitudes. No one could change jobs. No one could rise above the station in life into which he had been born.

Marriages were controlled absolutely. Persons married within their station and neither above nor below without fear of dreadful reprisals.

Food was restricted and what a man was allowed to eat proclaimed his station in life. Nobles dined off golden plates, but peasants could have only wooden dishes and a single spoon, the latter supposedly lasting them for life.

Travel was restricted and curtailed. Most of it was done on foot, the wealthy being permitted horses and the very wealthy along with the nobility were able to use carriages. Very few people traveled at all. It was not unusual for a person to live his entire life within sight of the place of his birth.

No member of the peasant class could own any property. As a matter of fact the peasant was chained to the property and if it changed hands, the peasant found he had been sold along with it. Even the so-called "freedman" could not sell his land without permission of his lord. And such permission usually entailed a tax equal to at least one thirteenth of the purchase price.

It was not the will of the kings that this situation should be changed. The alteration in the lives of all of us occurred because of free enterprise. It was productive energy which broke the bonds of nearly universal slavery. And kings, such as John, were compelled to grant to their subjects certain freedoms which they had never had before.

However, there was no real freedom in existence anywhere until the American continent was discovered and persons fled to its shores for safety and for opportunity. Here, long before the revolutionary war was fought, people did as they pleased. Class distinctions were eliminated. And a person of ability could do what he would since laws compelling him to remain in his own class were unenforceable.

Today we are in danger of forgetting all these things. But it is important that we remember them so that we recognize the great debt we owe to free enterprise and to the concept of individual liberty. Only when men are free can they seek and find rewards commensurate with their talents and skills.

THE NATION'S PRESS

MR. DULLES CORRECTS MR. EISENHOWER
(Chicago Daily Tribune)

It has been one of President Eisenhower's persistent contentions that the government should be permitted to enter into long range commitments for foreign aid. It is argued that if we were firmly pledged to specified amounts of aid, or to programs of long term development outlined by recipient countries, there would be greater stability in international relations and visible benefits in the form of a durable peace.

Rebuttal has now come from an unexpected source—namely, Secretary of State Dulles. Before he left Australia, where he attended the Southeast Asia Treaty organization conference, Mr. Dulles was drawn into a discussion of his withdrawal of his offer of American money to Egypt to assist construction of the proposed Aswan dam on the Nile.

Asked if he had ever regretted the decision, Mr. Dulles said that "events have confirmed that it would not have been a wise operation for us to have tried to conduct together."

"That," the secretary continued, "was a gigantic proposition which involved expenditures of probably a billion and a half dollars, by far the largest operation of the kind ever known in the history of the world. It would have taken about 15 years of close association. It would have involved an austeric program on the part of Egypt which I think the people would have come to resent and would have blamed the foreigners who were partners in the enterprise."

All of these considerations were certainly apparent from the start, yet Mr. Dulles and the administration for a time were willing to assist Col. Nasser in building his dam. Mr. Dulles had the idea that he would prove a key figure in the Arab world and that friendship with him was desirable. They went so far as to dangle firm offers of cash before him.

Indeed, this was a long term project of the sort which Mr. Eisenhower has frequently considered most desirable. Reconsideration came only after Col. Nasser made his deal with the Communists for arms and the suspicion developed that he might be slightly less than trustworthy as a durable friend.

At that point it became unthinkable to Secretary Dulles that the United States should tie itself to a foreign regime for anything like 15 years, in the belief that the association would prove solid and lasting. So he snatched back the proffered handout, and Col. Nasser has been piqued with us ever since, as his actions suggest.

No more persuasive history could be produced to show that relationships between nations and especially between personalities at the head of such nations are subject to frequent changes. Col. Nasser was not, in December, what the state department thought him to be in June. The romance withered with a touch of frost. And if that could happen in the relationship of the United States with one nation and its leader, it can be repeated in American relationships with all nations and their leaders. Very little, in fact, is left of Mr. Eisenhower's view of the desirability of establishing enduring mutualities thru the bond of American dollars.

Special Reports
Social Gospel-1957

Since I have repeatedly contended that all political and economic questions in the final analysis reduce themselves to a question of religion or ethics and justice, "Faith and Freedom's" article on "Social Gospel-1957" was of great interest to me. I want in introducing this article, to pass it on to the reader. "Faith and Freedom" writes: "We've been asked: Why does Spiritual Mobilization oppose the Social Gospel? Church leaders by the score continue to focus the energies of Christendom on the Social Gospel. Why does Spiritual Mobilization buck the trend?"

Then the magazine asks a list of questions and answers them. From here on I am quoting:

"What biblical authority do you use to reach your position?"

"Much, if not most of the New Testament seems to elaborate Matthew 11:28-30: 'Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.'"

"What do you see as the fundamental difference between the Social Gospel and this passage from Matthew?"

"Jesus tells those who come to him for help: take my yoke upon thee. He says to the poor and afflicted: 'I won't try to lighten your load; instead I'll teach you how to carry more.'"

"On the other hand, our fellow Christians in the Social Gospel movement have promised: 'We will lighten your load so that you may walk in equality with your fellow men.'"

"Isn't this oversimplifying their position?"

"If it is, the misinterpretation lives with those who put the principles of the Social Gospel in action. For the central focus of the energies of the Social Gospel, and its offspring Social Action, has been to aid those in need, not with spiritual help, but with economic and political assistance. The Social Gospel has been aimed at serving the body, not the spirit."

"Is Spiritual Mobilization against more food, better housing, higher wages and fewer ills?"

"No, but we do say that as goals, these are inadequate sights to set for the Christian concern. It leaves the difficult questions unanswered. Under the common interpretation of the Social Gospel, all I need do when I come across a person in need is to treat his surface symptoms. I do not have to struggle to motivate him to fill the spiritual emptiness of his life. No, my answer cannot be a basket of groceries, a new suit or a new law."

"By this method, I escape from the field of spiritual responsibility; escape from the deeper, more difficult response which would have helped me to grow; escape from the hard task of bringing a man closer to God."

"Isn't it better to act in charity to serve body needs than not to act at all?"

"The danger is: Christians feel satisfied with their action; they settle for less. By stressing security and leisure rather than risk and work, they lay the groundwork for even more pain and suffering."

"How is this?"

"The task of filling spiritual needs with material goods has proved to be impossible. First, the Social Gospelers appealed for the voluntary economic assistance of their fellow Christians. And though the response was generous, the more aid that came, the more the need arose."

"And, just as they had failed originally to search for an answer at deeper levels, at this point of their frustration, they turned to another 'easy' answer, saying: If we cannot raise enough funds voluntarily to cure these social ills, we must pass laws and force Americans to help us. It'll be good for them."

"So, out of a misguided Christian concern, we saw first a wrong focus of their own wrong objective. Next, we saw them use the unChristian means of coercion to try to reach this wrong end."

"What has been the result?"

"More Christian energy taken away from spiritual channels and employed on the surface, material level. New, more serious symptoms arose. Where once the symptoms had been shabby clothes, empty stomachs; now we had nervous breakdowns, mental disorders."

"What has happened to the Church?"

"This is the most tragic consequence. The church has degenerated into a social service organization. We saw the rise of the technically - expert Christian and the loss of the full - life Christian. We built a church bureaucracy and only nominal Christians."

"Why does the Social Gospel weaken the Church?"

"Social service without religious roots is artificial, without the deep drive and tenderness of the fully committed Christian. The Christian in action must have his roots anchored in religious soil, for from religious roots come the social fruits."

"Men who were once meek and loving now strive to control other men, as if to say: God move over, we'll take charge now. Authority replaces love. The state replaces the church."

"What would you say are the real solutions for the hungry of our time?"

"Take my yoke upon you."

Mixed Reception

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

Any drug or medicine which is strong enough to have an effect on the body can produce harm if it is taken in too large quantities. Q—Will digitalis leave any ill effect if taken regularly over a long period? Will an overdose of digitalis within 48 hours leave any permanent or temporary damage? —L.

A—Digitalis is probably the most important drug used in various forms of heart disease. If the dosage is proper for the patient involved and the purposes intended, it can be, and frequently is, taken regularly over a long period without producing any ill effects. It is possible to give an overdose of digitalis within 48 hours, or any other period of time. This may produce excessive slowing of the heart or other heart changes which can cause serious effects. Assuming that a person who has taken an overdose of digitalis recovers from the temporary effects and that the overdose is not continued, there should not be any permanent damage to the heart.

Q—Would you please say something about the treatment for cancer of the abdomen, which I have heard about recently. This is the use of iodine pills which cause vomiting.—Mrs. W.

A—A cancer, no matter where located, should never be treated by pills containing iodine or of any other kind. This is an extremely dangerous practice, since it may prevent the patient with early cancer from getting successful treatment by surgery, x-rays or radium, which are the only methods of treating cancer at the present time.

Q—There have been a number of cases of pneumonitis in our neighborhood this past winter. Would you please explain this and whether it is a form of pneumonia? —E.R.

A—The term pneumonitis is rather a vague one which is sometimes applied to an inflammation of the lungs distinct from lobar pneumonia and other lung disorders. Probably most cases of pneumonitis are now labeled virus pneumonia. This, as the name implies, is an involvement of the lung resulting from the invasion of a virus or viruses. The vast majority afflicted in this manner recover completely, but the weakening effects frequently hang on for weeks or months after the acute illness has passed.

Q—Please explain what causes lack of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. What could it lead to if not corrected? Recently my son in service was found to be lacking in this type of acid.—Mrs. E.C.C.

A—Absence of hydrochloric acid in the stomach secretion is a symptom and not a disease. If found, it should not simply be corrected by giving diluted hydrochloric acid by mouth, but the cause should be investigated. The two most important reasons for lack of hydrochloric acid in the stomach are cancer and pernicious anemia.

Q—Please tell me if there is any connection between multiple sclerosis and muscular dystrophy. Can members of one family have both? —Mrs. M.

A—Build your spiritual muscles, for as you carry the yoke of Jesus, the burden is light. Discipline and devotion build spiritual muscle. Before you can help other men, you must strengthen yourself through deeper religious devotion. Spend more time with God.

Humphrey Contributed To Befuddlement Of Congress

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Secretary George M. Humphrey has now joined President Eisenhower and Secretary Sinclair Weeks in contributing to Congressional befuddlement over the Administration's budgetary attitude and strategy. The incident has provoked the first faint stirrings of criticism of the able and personable Cleveland industrialist.

It was Humphrey who first aroused suspicion that the $71.8 billion bill was too big to suit him. He indicated that he thought Congress should try to reduce it below the Administration figure. He seemed to share these views, although both men backtracked when the legislators took them seriously. They now maintain that it is a "tight budget" designed to finance programs demanded by "the people and Congress."

Secretary Weeks confirmed the Capitol Hill belief that the White House and Treasury were "passing the buck." On television, he boasted that he could eliminate certain services "wished" on him by the legislators. In a private committee session, however, he insisted that he needed every penny he had requested.

The equivocal position taken by Eisenhower and Weeks was understandable to the practical politicians in Congress. They realize that no President can hope to understand every detail of a vast, sprawling budget. They recognize that the Secretary of Commerce is no financial wizard. They are not in Humphrey's class in this field.

Therefore, a request he made caused dismay and bewilderment. When a House Appropriations Subcommittee chopped $22,000,000 from Coast Guard funds, Humphrey raised no objection. Indeed, he was complimented for his cooperative and forbearing spirit by Democratic and Republican members.

The Cabinet member, however, took an altogether different stand when he appeared before a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Senator A. Willis Robertson of Virginia. Although agreeable to the Coast Guard cut, he utilized it to make an extremely unusual request.

He asked the right to have a 5 per cent leeway in allocating his Treasury budget among various functions and agencies under his control. He did not want to be bound by Congressional pinpointing of his appropriations. Within the 5 per cent limitation, he wanted to be able to spend his money as he saw fit, not in accord with Congressional mandate. —He apparently did not realize what heresy he had committed. For many years, the careless and indiscriminate use of appropriations by the Executive Departments has been a major grievance on Capitol Hill. The legislators complain that it violates the Constitution, transforms them into mere money messengers, destroys budgetary validity and responsibility. It deprives them of any control over the expenditure of funds which they appropriate.

Finally, in their opinion, it leads to chaotic housekeeping, just as if a housewife used food money to buy trinkets and gossamer. Committee members expressed grave doubt that Humphrey would tolerate such slipshod methods in his M. A. Hanna concern.

Moreover, Congressmen from coastal states — Senator Robertson, for instance — are Coast Guard enthusiasts. Besides its shipwreck and anti-smuggling duties, this service acts as a rescue squad, a fire department, a lifesaving unit, a protective organization and general neighborhood helper — all up and down the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Coasts.

So, when Humphrey indicated that he would economize chiefly on this suit, he antagonized the Coast Guard bloc as well as the advocates of budgetary responsibility and Congressional control of Executive expenditures. It is the surest sign yet of the growing spirit of skepticism and criticism on Capitol Hill, among Republicans as well as Democrats.

Why The Fuss?

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Mrs. Jewell Carr, secretary of the American Ocelot Assn., complained that the city's animal commissioners are unfairly legislating against persons who like to keep wild animals as pets. "It all started because somebody in North Hollywood kept a baboon in his apartment," she said.

Guy Mollet Facing New Difficulties

By CHARLES M. MCCANN United Press Staff Correspondent

Premier Guy Mollet of France is facing new difficulties over the situation in Algeria.

The latest complication in a problem which has plagued France for more than two years is a charge that French troops are being "brutal" to the rebels.

Surprisingly, the charge has been made not only by newspapers, intellectuals and members of officers.

The clamor has hurt Mollet, who has held office longer than any preceding premier since the end of World War II.

Committee To Investigate. There has been talk in Paris that, added to all his other troubles, the new Algerian issue might bring about his fall.

In an attempt to satisfy critics of the army, and at the same time to defend the army as a whole, Mollet and his cabinet have decided to set up a special committee to investigate brutality allegations and also to expose any false accusations against the French forces.

Mollet wants to hold free elections in Algeria, to give its people a considerable measure of home rule, but he insists that first the rebels must declare a cease-fire.

Robert Lacoste, Mollet's minister - resident in Algeria, is urging him to do nothing right now. Lacoste insists the rebels are on the run at last. He wants Mollet to give France's army of nearly 500,000 men in Algeria a chance to deliver a knockout blow.

French Forces Criticized. The charge that the army is oppressing Algerians came as a surprise. The rebels have been making cruel and ruthless attacks on soldiers and civilians alike, Algerians as well as French, since Nov. 1, 1954.

The rebels have tortured, mutilated and murdered men, women and children in their attempt to end French rule.

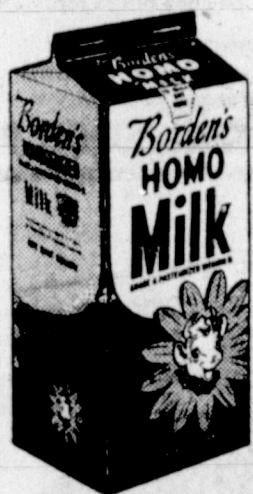

Opponents of government policy now say that French forces are matching rebel tactics to some extent.

Woman Dies In Ricksha Wreck

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP) — One woman was killed and another injured seriously Wednesday when two speeding bicycle rickshas crashed head-on in downtown Taipei.

Police said a ricksha carrying the two women raced down a sloping street and smashed into an empty ricksha. One of the passengers died on her way to a hospital. The two drivers were only bruised.

IT'S A "MIRACLE." ALL RIGHT—Hey, Mom! Drop that mop. Let the soup boil over if it wants to. Just set yourself down and look at this. THIS is a kitchen—a kitchen of the future. (The man doesn't say in WHOSE future.) Anyway, it's called the "Miracle Kitchen by Whirlpool" and is on exhibition at the Housewares Show in Chicago. In it, the housewife merely sits and reads. The dishes are washed and dried at the touch of a button, cabinets are raised and lowered by the languid wave of a hand and the floor is cleaned automatically. The model in the picture merely sits in the "planning center" and supervises her push-button

Farmers Have An Unusual Complaint—Too Much Rain

AUSTIN (UP)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that farmers in half of Texas have an unusual complaint—too much rain.

The USDA, in its weekly crop and weather bulletin, said farmers in the eastern half of Texas can't get into their fields because it is too wet.

But farmers and ranchers in sections of the South Plains, the western plateau, the trans-Pecos and South Texas still need rain.

Other points in the USDA's report:

Wheat in North Texas is growing fast. Surface moisture is adequate and a week of warm, dry weather would be welcomed. Irrigated and early dryland wheat in the northern plains looks promising.

Corn planting is considerably behind schedule in the eastern half of Texas. Farms in that section also want to get on with their cotton and sorghum planting. Some seed has rotted and considerable replanting will be necessary.

Some early corn in the coastal bend is eight inches high. In the Lower Rio Grande Valley, some corn is tasseling. But cotton is reported growing slowly in the Lower Valley.

Onions were moving from all vegetable-growing areas of South Texas except Eagle Pass. The last lettuce crop was being harvested and carrots were moving to market in good volume.

But snap beans, cantaloupes, sweet corn, cucumbers, tomatoes and watermelons in South Texas need warmer weather. Watermel-

Find Bullet In Man's Heart

HOUSTON (UP)—A 39-year-old Negro shot in the arm during a family squabble confounded doctors at Jefferson Davis hospital Wednesday.

Doctors X-rayed Henry Thomas, the shooting victim, to see if the bullet damaged the bone in his arm and found another bullet in his heart.

"Oh, that?" said Thomas. "I got that a year ago when my stepson shot me. It don't bother me none."

Willie Mosely, 34, a roomer in Thomas' home, shot him in the arm Tuesday night when Thomas turned on him after reportedly beating his wife.

Social Security News Block

Farmers who are giving up the operation of their farms and intend to apply for old-age insurance benefits should bring the necessary proofs to support their claims with them when they visit the Social Security Administration District Office. This advice was offered today by John P. Sanderson, manager of the Amarillo Social Security Office.

"If you have proof of age and earnings with you when you come to the office it will speed up the processing of your claim and make a return visit unnecessary," Sanderson pointed out. A farmer when he retires and applies for old-age benefits will need extra copies of his 1955 and 1956 Federal income tax returns, proof of age, his social security tax receipts for 1955 and 1956, and his social security account number card.

For a self-employed farmer making a claim for old-age insurance benefits proof of earnings is a "must." He should bring along a cancelled check, money order stub, or some other evidence to show that his income tax returns for 1955 and 1956 were filed with the District Director of Internal Revenue.

If his wife has passed her 62nd birthday and is making a claim for old-age benefits at the same time, it is important that she, too, bring along proof of age. Usually, people have papers around the house that will serve as adequate proof of age. Such documents, in order of acceptability, are: baptismal certificate; census registration; hospital record; foreign church or government record; signed statement by attending physician or midwife; family Bible, naturalization, immigration, military, or vaccination record; insurance policies, or a marriage record. "The older the document, the better the proof," Sanderson declares.

Defense Officials Deny Barriers To Information

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Department officials denied Wednesday that they have erected new barriers to the flow of information from the Pentagon.

Chairman John E. Moss (D-Calif.) told his House Subcommittee on Government Information that "additional shackles have been forged on the public's right to know" by new Pentagon directives.

But Robert Dechert, Defense Department general counsel, asserted that Moss was using "harsh words" which were not justified. Dechert argued that the new directives, announced March 28, actually would aid the flow of information.

"You have swallowed completely what seems to me a wholly wrong approach to this subject," he told Moss.

The directives stemmed from a study of Defense Department information policies made by a group known as the Coolidge Committee. Wilson ordered the study company reporters who interview Pentagon information poli-

Wilson rejected two Coolidge committee proposals which were attacked by the Moss subcommittee and by newsmen. One of these would have allowed reporters to be taken before grand juries to disclose the source of military news "leaks." The other would have had information officers accompany reporters who interview Pentagon officers.

Celebrating Fortieth Anniversary Today "Life Just Begins" For Altrusans, Inc.

Forty years of service to the community are being celebrated throughout April by the world's oldest service organization for executive and professional women.

en: Altrusa International. Taking its name from the word "altruism," the first Altrusa Club was founded 40 years ago on April 11, 1917 in Nashville, Tennessee.

33 years now Altrusa Clubs have sponsored career conferences in high schools and universities and at the same time directed total membership effort toward aiding older women workers, too.

BROWNIE TROOP 50—During their recent meetings, Brownie Troop 50 has been making Kleenex carnation corsages of pastel colors for the patients in Highland General Hospital. On behalf of the troop, Misses Deliah Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bradley, 1718 Christine, and Pat Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Miller, east of Pampa, are presenting the corsages to Miss Edna Mae Spinks, head dietician of the hospital for distribution to the patients. Mrs. James Minnick is leader of the troop, assisted by Mmes. John Ramsey and Charles Thomas. (News Photo)

From the first, Altrusa has pioneered in human betterment projects that today are part of community life in the eight countries in which some 413 Altrusa Clubs and 14,000 members are located: Bermuda, Canada, Guatemala, Hawaii, Great Britain, Mexico, Puerto Rico and the United States. Civic services initiated by Altrusa fill every imaginable need and range from traffic safety campaigns to sponsoring foster homes for children and hobby centers for older women.

Altrusa was the first woman's service organization to adopt vocational guidance as a national project, and that was back in 1924. For

The Founders Fund is maintained by voluntary contributions of Altrusa Clubs and members. April is official fund drive month.

A second major project sponsored by all Altrusa Clubs is the Grants-in-Aid program which allocates gift grants of $250 to $750 to graduate women from Latin America and Asia.

Since 1945, when the Grants-in-Aid program began, a total of $100,000 has been given to 161 Asian and Latin American women, enabling them to finish training in chosen vocations.

In addition to lifting the economic pressure through grants, Altrusans have extended hospitality and friendship to grantees in an effort to learn more about each others' ways of life.

In an anniversary message to Altrusa, Miss Marjorie Lamb, Toronto, Canada, Altrusa International president, says: "Entering her 41st year Altrusa International dedicates herself anew to the promotion of mutual understanding among the peoples of all nations, mindful that the products of this understanding are the elimination of suffering, want, and injustice. Fully conscious also that these are possible only if and when spiritual values are dominant."

Varietas Club Has Taxes Discussion

The Varietas Study Club met in the home of Mrs. J. C. Vollmert, 1902 Charles for its regular meeting. A short business session was held.

The guest speakers for the program were J. G. Doggett, who discussed "Income Taxes," and Price Doster, whose topic was "Gift Taxes Versus Estates." Following the talks, a question and answer period was held.

Refreshments were served from a beautifully decorated Japanese tea table.

Members and guests present were Mmes. James Hopkins, Mary Weaver, R. W. Lane, J. R. Spearman, Lee Harrah, J. E. Hutchinson, S. C. Evans, Price Doster, Cecil Dalton, J. G. Doggett, Luther Pierson, H. H. Butler, Sherman White, H. G. Bratcher, W. A. Waggoner, H. T. Hampton, and Dow King.

A woman can't explain to a man how she knows:

Within a few dollars how much a woman paid for a dress without ever having seen the price tag.

That a woman's hair is not its natural color.

That a woman is lying about her age—even though a man would readily accept as fact the age she is going by.

That a married couple who are being extremely pleasant to each other in public nevertheless were having a fight before they left home.

That the living room a woman is taking credit for having put together was actually done by a high-priced decorator.

That a woman she has just met isn't to be trusted.

That a dress another woman is wearing was made by her own hands.

Just what ingredients went into the dressing on a restaurant salad.

What every woman in a crowded room is wearing, without seeming to pay any particular attention.

What is being said in a conversation going on near her, even though she hardly knows the couple.

That two women who are being utterly charming to each other are actually at odds.

That the husband who has been pretending to listen to her hasn't heard a word she has been saying.

Women just seem to have a sixth sense that works in such subtle ways they can't explain it. They just know, that's all.

To get the most from your daily hair brushing session, be sure to brush it two ways. The first is with your head down, brushing from the scalp to the very ends for 100 strokes. The second is brushing your hair into place to polish it.

Here's a cure for those nasty white rings that appear when a careless guest puts a wet glass down on a tabletop. Dip a cloth in heavy soap suds and rub the ring until it disappears.

Convention Topic Manners At Auxiliary Meet

The regular meeting of the Pampa Medical Auxiliary was held Monday morning in the home of Mrs. N. J. Ellis, 1617 Coffee with Mrs. Harold Fabian, co-hostess. The president, Mrs. Foster Elder, presided.

Mrs. Carl Lang reported on the Future Nurses Club Convention, which was held recently in the Hilton Hotel in San Antonio. Eleven girls from the local club attended the convention accompanied by Mmes. Lang, club sponsor; M. McDaniel and Miss Evelyn Milam.

Further plans were discussed for choosing the recipient of the nursing scholarship to be given a senior girl at the scholarship assembly next month.

The president announced that the auxiliary would meet with the doctors for the Top of Texas medical meeting.

Members attending were Mmes. Walter Berntot, R. M. Brown, J. R. Donaldson, Joe Gates, F. W. Kelley, J. M. Key, Walter Purviance, F. J. Vendrell and E. S. Williams.

WMU Circles Meet For Noon Program

The WMU Circles of the Hobart Street Baptist Church met in the church for a covered-dish luncheon recently.

An executive board meeting was held preceding the luncheon.

The June Petty Circle was in charge of table decorations for the luncheon using the theme of Easter. The program was presented by the Doris Smith Circle. The WMU hymn and watchword were repeated in unison. Mrs. Chester O'Brien gave the devotional.

Members taking part on the program were Mmes. C. C. Tackett, Ed Foran, J. J. Alexander, I. H. Woodward, Robert Hedrick, J. N. Tackett, and E. T. Clark.

Mrs. Mage Keyser conducted a brief business meeting.

Twenty-seven members were present.

The Eunice Leach Circle of the Hobart Street Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Billie Haigler. Mrs. Paul Gobin was in charge of the business session. The devotion was given by Mrs. O. C. Gist. The Royal Service program was presented by Mrs. Harold Stephens. Refreshments were served to five members. Mrs. Gobin dismissed the group with prayer.

The YWA's of the First Baptist Church met in the home of Miss Sally Pullen, 1011 E. Francis. Opening prayer was led by Miss Delma Franklin.

Miss Beth Spencer, president, conducted the business session.

The program was under the direction of Miss Franklin.

Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served.

Present were Misses Zelma Franklin, LaVada Naylor, Peggy Hutto, Jayne Giddeon, Marica Clyburne, Beth Spencer, Virginia Jones, Dianne Zachery, Carol Rose Miller, Charolette Riley, Delma Franklin, Sally Pullen, and sponsor, Mrs. E. E. Baccus and Miss Mary Lu Douglas.

Airplanes Literally Re-Built Every So Often For The Sake Of Safety

(Air Safety—Third in a Series)
By ROBERT J. SERLING

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The oldest commercial airliner in service today is mechanically as new as an automobile with only 6,000 miles on its speedometer.

That fact exemplifies the care that goes into the construction and maintenance of America's 1,600-plane commercial air fleet. New planes are tested for thousands of hours before they are officially certified as safe for carrying passengers. Airliners already in service are subjected to regular and frequent inspection. After every 8,000 hours of flight time, they literally are rebuilt.

All these safety measures, however, have never completely eliminated the "bugs" that seem to plague all types of aircraft. Almost every transport plane used by U.S. airlines since 1946 has suffered some kind of major mechanical malfunction that was undetected in all the pre-certification testing. And some of these difficulties have caused fatal crashes.

Power System Bad
For example:

DC-4s—The nation's first four-engine airliner was flown for hundreds of thousands of hours as a wartime transport. Yet all this operational experience failed to uncover a small but vital weakness—a piece of bonding tape on the tail which, when worked loose, ballooned into the wind and created what amounted to a giant air brake. This defect sent one

Eastern airlines DC-4 to its death, killing 50 persons. The Eastern crash, on May 30, 1948, was an unsolved mystery until another DC-4, almost three years later, went into a sudden dive and recovered only a few hundred feet from the ground. Examination of this aircraft revealed the culprit—the ripped bonding tape.

Constellation—This sleek, triple-tailed beauty was grounded temporarily a few years ago when a fire in flight and subsequent crash revealed inherent weaknesses in the plane's electrical system.

DC-6—In 1947, a United Airlines DC-6 caught fire over Utah and crashed. Cause of the blaze was unknown until an American DC-6 also caught fire but managed to land safely. Investigators found a flaw in the plane's system for transferring fuel from one wing tank to another. Under certain conditions, overflowing gas would leak into the ducts of the cabin heater and ignite. Every DC-6 was grounded for modification of the fuel tank system.

Must Pass Rigid Tests
We could test every new type of plane for 100,000 hours or more to see what bugs develop.

A Civil Aeronautics Administration official said:

"But such lengthy testing would be the economic ruin of every airplane manufacturer who has millions tied up in tooling.

Every certified plane must pass difficult tests and meet or surpass rigid performance specifications—such as ability to climb safely even when an engine fails on takeoff. The public never hears about the hundreds of so-called bugs that are eliminated by these tests."

(Friday — Jetplanes will be safer.)

WASHINGTON: Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) describing forthcoming Senate Rackets Committee hearings on collusion between "dishonest management" and union leaders in the New York City construction industry:

"They will be dirty enough to satisfy me and nearly everybody else."

Double Trouble

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UP)—Jon and Jek, who joked with justice Friday, avoided the jug by paying $250 when the judge didn't find them funny and fined them. Jon and Jek Leggett, 20-year-old identical twins from Tucson, Ariz., appeared on a speeding summons after switching licenses as a "joke." After determining which was which the court fined Jon $150 for speeding and both brothers $50 each for illegal use of their licenses.

No Court Case

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—The state crime laboratory turned its murder victim over to the anthropologists Tuesday on advice of University of Wisconsin Professor William Laughlin. The professor told them they'd never get to court with the case. The victim, unearthed at a construction site, was identified by Laughlin as an American Indian who apparently was killed with a tomahawk about 1200 A.D.

20th Birthday For Foster Parent Plan

NEW YORK (UP)—A legless boy in Greece now walks because of the generosity of a California couple.

A little girl in Italy has food, clothing and medicine because of the nickels, dimes and quarters donated by inmates of a Michigan reformatory.

A small boy in a Korean orphanage not only is fed and clothed, but has become a local celebrity because of Bing Crosby.

These are some of the children in war-hit countries helped through a non-profit, non-propaganda, relief agency which this month observes its 20th anniversary.

Ed Gardner Will Drop Into TV Saturday

By WILLIAM EWALD

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Ed Gardner, who used to manage a tavern owned by an absentee proprietor named Duffy, will drop into TV this Saturday when NBC salutes that madman known as baseball.

Gardner, for the benefit of the recently weaned, is the fellow who used to play Archie on "Duffy's Tavern," one of radio's more-mellow efforts. Now 55, a little balding and nursing an ulcer, Gardner works for an ad agency in New York.

He is fairly rich, faintly irreverent and still speaks in the lush New York accent that made his Archie character one of the most captivating capers in the old medium.

Floor Walker

"What do I do at the ad agency? Well, I'm a bit of a free soul there," said Gardner today. "You might call me a kind of floorwalker. I walk from one floor to the other to ask guys what's going on in the joint."

Actually, I only work six months a year for the agency. The other six months I'm a bum. It's the way I want it. I've got a non-nerve straining job and I play around the edges of TV now and that's about all I need."

Gardner, whose last TV appearance was about a year ago on the Ed Sullivan show, will appear on NBC-TV's "Salute to Baseball" this weekend. He has, he admits, shied away from TV pretty much. His only sustained fling in the medium was a filmed version of "Duffy's Tavern" which is in syndication and still may be seen in outlying areas.

HEALTH FREEDOM TO PROTECT YOUR OWN BODY

England, the birth place of Jenner, was first to compel vaccinations and after learning that the "prevention" caused more deaths than the "disease", became to first to repeal compulsory vaccination including its armed services. Those who want it ask for it and those who achieve immunity need not fear for others.

England has more democratic measures than America, but need not if we would rise from our lethargy and make our desires known. Miller D.C. We should write letters more often and vote for people who believe in our democracy.

If the only yardstick for compulsory medicine is to be that it be "good-for-you", we will soon have compulsory laxatives, compulsory vitamins, and socialized compulsory medicine—so stand by, for it's surely coming. Its advocates think it's good for you. We might have compulsory adjustments when our Senators find out how good they are.

A "conscience objection" clause in school board ruling would remove compulsory medicine in our schools.

People in greatly increasing numbers are using drugless methods because their experiences have taught them that health comes not from a bottle, syringe, but comes from within. Their recovery of health came when we freed the nervous system so that all the body could respond and combat any bacterial invasions.

Children respond rapidly as this case demonstrates: A little eight-year-old boy, who for two years had walked in his sleep, had frequent virus colds and sharp headaches, was brought to the Miller Chiropractic Clinic. Our spinal analysis and spinal X-Rays quickly located the causative interferences. Corrective adjustments removed the interferences. This boy is in vigorous, robust health today. No. 3111

Weekly Newsletter From Congressman Waller Rogers

Presidential Speed
Many columnists and commentators have been having a Roman holiday with the news that the President's car went 70 miles per hour between Washington and Gettysburg. The news correspondents' presidential vehicle in view, was halted by Maryland State Police and told to drive within the speed limit. These instructions brought immediate reaction from several of the correspondents on the theory that the law is the law and the President has no more right to violate it than they do.

The truth is that neither had the right to violate the law. Two wrongs do not make a right. Under the law as written, anyone driving over the legal speed limit has violated the law. However, it would seem from all of the clamor that grew out of the presidential 70 mph that the President was driving the car, and was the only person who had ever driven over 70 mph.

It appeared for awhile that this tremendous event of events would sweep everything else off the front pages, including the Middle East crisis and the Texas senatorial election. It would have been much simpler to issue a traffic ticket to the President for a technical violation and thereby dispose of the entire matter. However, if everyone around Washington who drove a few miles over the speed limit received a ticket, the printing presses would be working 24 hours a day.

I am afraid the President is being needed — a practice I hope will not be continued. The best way for the President to stop it is to take these jibes in good grace and not become nettled by questions about helicopters, speed limits and plans to step aside for the Vice President. This will be difficult, because the office of the President of the United States is probably the toughest job in the world. It should not be made tougher.

Summerfield Ultimatum
His Honor, the Postmaster General of the United States of America, appointed by the President, has served notice on the duly elected Members of the Congress of the United States that he has spent all of the money given to him and needs a mere 47 million dollars with which to finish the fiscal year which ends on June 30. He has further indicated that he expects to get it, and that if he doesn't get it, there will be a measurable curtailment of postal activities forthwith and immediately.

I must confess that this development in the Post Office Department came as quite a surprise to me, because I had understood from the past advertisements of the Post Office Department that Mr. Summerfield had taken over a mismanaged and inefficient operation and had streamlined it into a modern-day dynamo of efficiency and sound business practices; that he had reduced the Post Office deficit by closing a great number of 4th class post offices and denying many of the rural people in this country the postal service to which they are entitled. He reorganized many activities of the Department so that information concerning certain postal operations cannot be obtained in Washington but must be obtained from Regional Offices. He repainted all of the trucks and mail boxes in a three-color scheme of red, white and blue. Now we are all most favorable to that color scheme and certainly would not criticize his selection of colors, but some people have been wondering about the additional cost of a three-color scheme over a one-color scheme. Some other questions are being asked about who sold the paint.

It might be pointed out that, although Mr. Summerfield was the HOLLYWOOD, (UP) — While Ginger Rogers is away, Jacques Bergerac is not at play, he says, because "night life can ruin an actor."

Handsome Jacques is remaining hard at work building his budding career as an actor since he and the blonde film star admitted all was not well in their love nest. Ginger began traveling after their confession of troubles, but in her absence the young French actor says he's been no social lion.

"I never have fallen into that Hollywood type of life. I don't like big parties. They are very bad for actors," he said earnestly.

This theory spells doom for half of the ambitious actors in town, as there's an average of two big soirees a day here, complete with guest of honors, hot and cold hors d'oeuvres and actors making "career contacts." But Bergerac thinks "to scatter and waste yourself at social activities is terrible."

"The most important thing for an actor is conservation," he said. "An actor must save himself for his work. An actor is only as good as his ability to concentrate and you waste valuable energy on parties."

Bergerac builds up his Tarzan-like figure and store of healthy energy that he says actors need by playing tennis once a day on the courts behind his and Ginger's home. He sleeps outdoors.

His marriage, Jacques says reluctantly, "is status quo — I hope things will work out, but that is my private life and of no interest to people."

"I am hopeful my career is now becoming established," he said. "In any marriage a man has to be stronger than the woman. There must be a good balance. The woman can only have respect for a man stronger than she is."

guiding genius who cut off the farmers' mail service, put the post office equipment in patriotic colors, decentralized the information center, and made several other changes that now require an additional $4 million dollars to pay for, it is only fair to point out that he did have some help. The Post Office Department, in recent years, has paid some fabulous fees to efficiency expert firms to speed up the streamlining of the Department. In fact, one of these fees alone would have kept several 4th class post offices in my district open for a number of years.

I had always thought that government departments were the leading experts in creating deficits; therefore, you can appreciate my surprise to find that one government department had to hire outside help in order to accomplish this. But, then, we must remember that this bunch not only created the deficit, but were able to curtail the service. In other words, we now get less for more — quite an accomplishment.

Foreign Aid
The grass roots clamor for sizeable budget cuts may pay off handsomely when the foreign aid appropriation bill comes before the House. Even the most ardent supporters of foreign aid, both economic and military, are admitting openly that this program can stand a sizeable cut. Question of whether or not we will get the size cuts we want may depend upon how these supporters line up as to economic aid and military aid. Some are advocating cuts in economic aid, but no cuts in military aid. Others are advocating sizeable cuts in the military, but not in the economic. If these two groups can get together and reach an agreement in relation to the economic and military features of the bill, we would be able to effect a measurable cut in this program. It has been my feeling that the American taxpayers are entitled to much better results than we are receiving from the expenditure of these foreign aid funds, and that if some measurable progress cannot be made, the program should be immediately discontinued.

Baseball Is Now Pitching AT Curves

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — Baseball

now is pitching AT curves. We women were admitted to ball parks long before suffrage, but the people who run the national pastime figure not enough of us are fans. So, the office of Commissioner Ford Frick has published a "Baseball Made Plain" booklet. One of the primer's purposes is to educate us girls and lure more of us into the ball parks. Just in time, too. The major league season opens April 16, giving exactly one week for all of us "underprivileged minority" (that's what the primer called women who can't tell Mickey Mantle from the umpire) to brush up... or, batter up. Learning baseball is just like learning to bake a cake, the primer said. Potential Fans The 26-page booklet leads the potential fan through a sprightly, elementary explanation of the game — from the fact that there are nine players on each team to reasons why a player can hit the ball and not make a hit. It does not detail how you can drag hubby away from the TV set to mow the lawn. It just assumes the smart woman decides, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

Actually many already have. The commissioner's office estimated that 17 to 18 per cent of the attendance each week during the season is made up of women, counting ladies' day. Women In Free Ladies' day, when the women are admitted for almost free, is a national institution instigated in 1883 at the New York Polo grounds. That year, the women were admitted free. The Encyclopedia of Baseball shows that in 1912, the St. Louis Browns instituted the first regularly scheduled ladies' days. Women were admitted, if escorted. This led, the record books say, to the habit of some women "standing outside the gate and attaching themselves to some likely-looking man..." Eventually, the American League adopted regular ladies' days. The National League soon followed.

Jerry Pope On All-Star Squad

AUSTIN (UP)—The Texas High School Coaches Association Thursday announced the makeup of the North squad for the all-star basketball game scheduled Aug. 8 in connection with the coaching school in Dallas.

The team, to be coached by Clifton McNeely of Pampa, will play a South team to be tutored by Cooton Robinson of Buna in the air-conditioned SMU coliseum.

The complete squad:

Forwards—Robert Bullock of Dallas Hillcrest, Berl Butler of Everman, Jerry Pope of Pampa and Billy Simmons of Pecos.

Centers—Mike Behrens of El Paso Austin, Gilbert Bell of Meadow and John Hoggard of Waxahachie.

Guards—Jim Bevers of Ropesville, Donnie Lasiter of Longview, Charles Neblett of Canyon and Donnie Wilson of Seminole.

Registration Set Tonight For Little League Groups

Registration for the Little League baseball program will be held tonight at 7 in the Sam Houston Elementary School gym.

All boys between the ages of eight and 12 and interested in the program are asked to be at the meeting along with their parents.

The Pony and Teen-Age Leagues will register Friday night at 7 at the same place. The Pony League is open to boys in the age group of 13 and 14 while the Teen-Age League is open to 15 and 16 year old boys.

Harvesters Edge Bulldogs In Ninth Inning, 11-10

Gain District 3-4A 3-Way Tie

The Conway brothers, Mike and Bill, teamed up to pitch and hit the Pampa Harvesters to a narrow 11-10 extra-innings victory over the Borger Bulldogs in the opening District 3-4A baseball game at Oiler Park yesterday afternoon.

Bill poked a single into left field to score catcher John Lee from second to give the Harvesters the needed run in the ninth inning of the scheduled seven-inning contest.

Brother Mike wielded a big stick but his relief pitching played the major factor in Pampa's conference victory. Mike came in as the third Pampa pitcher of the game, replacing Ray Stephenson in the sixth with one out. He went four more innings to finish the game and take the hurling victory, allowing only one more hit while striking out four and delivering two bases on balls.

The two teams traded leads for the first six innings and then the game rocked along on even terms until Conway's run-producing single in the bottom of the ninth.

The game was dotted with erratic fielding and pitching throughout most of the game. The Harvesters, who evened their season standings to 3-3, collected 12 hits off four Borger pitchers which almost equaled their total output of hits previously this year.

Borger got nine hits off three Pampa pitchers, collecting six of them for six runs in the Bulldogs' big sixth inning which sent 12 batters to the plate to give them a three-run lead.

Pampa's runs were scattered over five innings while Borger let loose its scoring in two innings, the second and the sixth. Borger took a 4-0 lead in the second and the Harvesters pulled to within one run in the bottom of that frame. Pampa went out front 7-4 in the fifth inning and then saw Borger rolled past for a 10-7 command.

David James started on the mound for the Harvesters and went 1-1 in three innings while facing nine batters. Although giving up only one hit, the speedy right-hander walked four and hit a batter to allow Borger its four runs. He was replaced by Ray Stephenson in the second inning.

Stephenson lasted for four innings and was getting hit regularly in the sixth when Conway came in for relief duty with one out in the sixth. Conway walked the first batter and then struck out two in a row.

Marvin Ogle started on the mound for Borger and was relieved by Ed Guthrie in the fourth. Everitt Airington was the third Bulldog pitcher, taking over after Pampa got its lead off Guthrie. He was pulled in the seventh inning with one out. The loss went to Don Green, the final Borger pitcher who allowed the winning run after the game had been tied at 10-10.

Borger used four walks, a sacrifice, a hit batter and a single by Benny Hill to score its four runs in the second inning. Pampa opened its half of the second with a base on balls to Benny Sparks. Gary Wilhelm singled to score Sparks from second and Stephenson followed with another single to score Wilhelm. Mike Conway blasted the first of two doubles to score Stephenson.

Pampa got two more runs in the fourth on an error, another double by Conway and Bill Brown's single. In the fifth frame, Pampa put together a single by Sparks and doubles by Larry Cruise and Stephenson to get two more runs.

The Harvesters tied the score at 10-10 in the seventh when Mike Conway walked, Brown singled, Lee reached first on an error at shortstop and Robert Langford singled. In the important ninth inning, Lee opened it with a walk and went to second on Langford's sacrifice. Conway blasted a line drive into left field to send Lee home.

The district champion Pampa Harvesters left here today to compete in the regional golf tournament in Lubbock Friday and Saturday.

Coach Weldon Trice's Pampa squad will play a practice round at the Lubbock Country Club course today and then play the first 18 holes of the 36-hole meet Friday morning. The second round will be played Saturday morning.

Contingents for Pampa will be Melvin Chisum, Burt Watkins, Bill McLeod, Les Howard and Don Foxe. Foxe will enter only the singles play.

The Harvesters won the District 3-4A title two weeks ago. Borger, which placed second in the district meet, will also enter its team. Pampa won the regional championship last year and then placed third in the state tournament.

Among the other teams entered in the Class AAAA-AAA division will be Odessa, Abilene, El Paso, Sweetwater, Lamesa, Hereford and Levelland. The Classes AAAA and AAA schools will compete in one division while the Class AA and A teams will compete in another.

Oilers Open Drills With Nine Reporting To Camp

Perfect spring weather greeted early-arriving Pampa Oilers as they opened daily practice sessions at Oiler Park yesterday morning.

Eight players reported to Manager Allen Cross on the opening day. Cross spent the two-hour sunshine session drilling the squad in pepper games, running and hitting. Much of the morning was used in limbering up.

The team plans to work out about two hours each morning. The first league game starts April 23 when the Oilers play at Midland. They open at home on April 27 against the same team.

Reporting yesterday were Bob Flores, a catcher and outfielder and the only returnee from the 1956 team; catcher Goose Goff, outfielder Alec Triggs, second baseman Henry Francis, third baseman Pat Platt, outfielder Jerrel Landrum, pitcher Roberto Martinez and pitcher Alfred Smith.

Goff, Flores and Cross are the only veterans of those who have already reported. Triggs, Francis and Smith are rookies and the others are limited service. Smith is a Pampa boy who was given a chance to work out with the team. Most of the others have already signed contracts.

Rookies Triggs and Francis looked exceptionally well in batting practice. Both were hitting the ball well. Flores, Triggs and Francis all hit balls out of the park.

Smith, Cross and Jack Venable, former Oiler and now with the Amarillo Gold Sox, pitched batting practice. Goff and Flores alternated behind the plate.

Cross, who expects to play first base until late May and then switch to the outfield, expects seven more players to arrive by Saturday morning's drills. Veteran shortstop Jackie Wilcox, Ken Post, Roy Sorenson and rookie pitcher Richard Pflug have notified Cross of their intentions to arrive Friday night.

The Oilers have also been promised an infielder and two pitchers from Shreveport of the Texas League. A veteran second baseman who formerly played in the West Texas-New Mexico in 1955 may also be signed.

The team was scheduled to go through another two-hour session again this morning and continue through this week. No exhibition games have as yet been scheduled.

Season ticket books are still on sale at the Oiler office in the Pampa Hotel as well as seven business locations. The season tickets sell for $40 and a book of 23 tickets, or one-third season, is $15.

The books may be purchased at Richard Drug, Hughes Building Barber Shop, Jay's Grocery, Post Office Barber Shop, Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Friendly Men's Wear and Bourland Supply.

NBC Television Football Schedule For Next Fall

NEW YORK (UP)—College football fans, who take their action in the comfort of their homes via television, can look forward to an attractive program next fall which includes such top-flight games as Oklahoma-Notre Dame and Army-Navy.

The National Broadcasting Co. announced the schedule of 1957 games which it will televise nationally on eight Saturdays along with a Thanksgiving Day setup which will include three games piped regionally. Four other Saturdays will be devoted to regionally-telecast games which will be announced at a later date.

The schedule begins on Sept. 21 with Texas A&M vs. Maryland at Dallas and closes on Dec. 7 with Miami vs. Pittsburgh at Miami, Fla. There are two open dates on the schedule, Oct. 19 and Nov. 2, but they have been reserved for Big Ten games which will be determined by the conference as the Big Ten race develops.

The schedule was worked out jointly by NBC and the NCAA television committee.

The schedule:

Sept. 21: Texas A&M vs. Maryland at Dallas, Tex.

Sept. 28: Stanford vs. Northwestern at Palo Alto, Calif.

Oct. 5: California vs. Michigan State at Berkeley, Calif.

Oct. 19: Big Ten game.

Nov. 2: Big Ten game.

Nov. 16: Oklahoma vs. Notre Dame at Norman, Okla.

Nov. 28: Brown vs. Colgate at Providence, R.I. (East); Denver vs. Wyoming at Denver, Colo. (West); Texas A&M vs. Texas at College Station, Tex. (South; Southwest and Midwest).

Nov. 30: Army vs. Navy at Philadelphia.

Dec. 7: Miami vs. Pittsburgh at Miami, Fla.

NEW YORK (UP)—Rudy Milkey, 6-foot-5 junior from Ridge-wood, N.Y., has been named captain of Columbia's basketball team, succeeding the graduating Chet Forte. Milkey averaged 14.7 points per game during the 1956-57 campaign and was Columbia's tallest player.

Boston Celtics Can Win NBA Title Tonight

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The St. Louis Hawks, a cliff-hanging basketball team during the regular season, meet the Boston Celtics Friday night in a playoff game that could wind up the post-season series for the National Basketball Association championship.

A Boston victory here would give the Celtics their first NBA title in 11 years since they lead, three games to two, in pro basketball's world series.

But the Hawks, who had to win a preliminary playoff to earn first place in the Western Division of the league, were far from downhearted.

"I feel very confident," coach Alex Hannum said. "Our team played fine ball but Boston just had hot stretches that killed us. I'm proud of this team."

The annual Pampa Women's Bowling Association City Tournament will be held this week end at the Pampa Bowl.

Two leagues, Top of Texas and Lone Star, will compete in the tournament which starts Friday night and concludes Sunday night. Team matches will be held the first two nights with singles and doubles Sunday.

The Lone Star League will bowl Friday night at 7 with the Top of Texas League to compete Saturday night. Singles and doubles action starts at 1:30, 3:30 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

The annual Pampa Women's Bowling Association City Tournament will be held this week end at the Pampa Bowl.

Two leagues, Top of Texas and Lone Star, will compete in the tournament which starts Friday night and concludes Sunday night. Team matches will be held the first two nights with singles and doubles Sunday.

The Lone Star League will bowl Friday night at 7 with the Top of Texas League to compete Saturday night. Singles and doubles action starts at 1:30, 3:30 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Women's Bowling Meet Set Friday

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The St. Louis Hawks, a cliff-hanging basketball team during the regular season, meet the Boston Celtics Friday night in a playoff game that could wind up the post-season series for the National Basketball Association championship.

A Boston victory here would give the Celtics their first NBA title in 11 years since they lead, three games to two, in pro basketball's world series.

But the Hawks, who had to win a preliminary playoff to earn first place in the Western Division of the league, were far from downhearted.

"I feel very confident," coach Alex Hannum said. "Our team played fine ball but Boston just had hot stretches that killed us. I'm proud of this team."

WANT AD

COMPASSION—Young Egyptian boy with bandaged head and hands is tended by Norwegian doctor, Capt. Olav Borgen, left, after he was wounded by a land mine explosion. It's an example of real international humanity. Scene is El Arish, where the United Nations Emergency Force has stationed a field hospital unit on a beach facing the Mediterranean Sea. The well-equipped unit has since Jan. 18 treated hundreds of injured and sick at this location.

Everybody Wants To Claim Hollywood's 'Homeless' Oscar

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Everybody from a dead man to a San Francisco movie fan has put in a claim for Hollywood's "Homeless" Oscar, but producer Frank King still claims it belongs to a mysterious man named Robert Rich.

Rich was voted an Oscar for writing the best original movie story of 1956, "The Brave One," made by the King Brothers. But when Rich wasn't in town to collect the award, movieland developed a first class who-wrote-it mystery—is Rich man or myth?

"I've received phone calls from more people," sighed King in his office before rushing off to New York. "One man in San Francisco claims he wrote it. So does a fellow in Salinas, (Cal.). A fellow in Boston swears his uncle wrote it before he died."

"We bought the story from Rich years ago in Germany. We've sent wires all over Europe to track him down but no answer yet. My brother, Maury, is going to Europe in two weeks to advertise in the papers there for him."

Even the late Robert Flaherty has been named as the man who should get the Oscar. Topflight director Fred Zinneman reveals the deceased director wrote an identical story of a little Mexican boy and a bull, "Benito and the Bull," in Santa Fe, N.M., in 1928.

"Flaherty told me the story when we were in Germany in 1931," Zinneman said. "It may be pure coincidence."

Flaherty, says Zinneman, later sold the story to Orson Welles. Welles says he filmed it as "My Friend Benito" in Mexico for RKO in 1945 but after a change in management "I was fired and the picture was shelved and written off as a tax loss."

"I have no hard feelings about it and I'm not suing," added Welles. "I'm glad that someone else had success with the story."

Other Hollywoodites are convinced the tale was penned by some screenwriter unable to work under his own name because of a Communist past.

Effort Made To Ease Gas Control

WASHINGTON (UP) — A new effort was launched in Congress Wednesday to ease federal controls over prices charged by natural gas producers.

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) of the House Commerce Committee introduced the legislation. He indicated he was confident it would win backing of President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower last year vetoed a more far-reaching measure following disclosure of criminal lobbying activities. That bill would have exempted independent producers of all federal controls at the well head. Eisenhower has said that some legislation is needed.

Speaker Sam Rayburn indicated no drive would be made to pass the new bill unless the President gets firmly behind it. He indicated belief it would be futile to try to pass the bill unless he says plainly he wants it.

Jury To Start Considerations In Bribe Case

AUSTIN (UP) — A grand jury Thursday begins its consideration of evidence collected by the House committee investigating bribery in the legislature.

District Attorney Les Procter has asked two naturopathic physicians to tell the grand jury about statements they made that they had to pay "blackmail" in legislative years "in order to keep our licenses."

Dr. Harris N. Santi, who practiced in La Porte 14 years, said he considered payments he made to the Texas Naturopathic Physicians Association in legislative years money for a "blackmail fund."

Dr. Esther M. Giroski, a naturopath for 23 years in Houston, said payments were made by naturopaths during all recent legislative sessions except the present, and the money went into what she alternately called a "legislative fund" and a "public relations fund."

Santi said other naturopaths told him "several legislators" received "payoffs." He said there were up to six lawmakers involved, and "I don't see how the grand jury can help but indict some legislators."

It has already indicted former Rep. James E. Cox of Conroe, who allegedly consented to take a $5,000 bribe to kill a bill outlawing naturopathy. He resigned from the House after his indictment.

Shirley Temple To Make Her Television Debut Next Fall

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — One-time baby star Shirley Temple, away from show business for seven years, makes her "comeback" and TV debut next fall but her main job, she says, still will be as "a happy wife and mother."

After turning down movie and TV offers since she "retired" in 1950, Shirley finally consented to be hostess and narrator for a series of color spectaculars based on famous fairy tales.

"This will be kind of a fun little addition to my life," explained grown-up Shirley, now Mrs. Charles Black, on the telephone from her home in Atherton, near San Francisco.

"I'm very happy here, — and how! I've been approached many times with TV and movie offers but they always required my being away from home longer than I liked. My family thought several weeks was too long for mama to be gone."

"I accepted this offer because it doesn't require me to be gone long. My part of each show will be filmed in Hollywood one day, and the specs will be done live in New York."

Shirley also may star in one of the NBC-TV spectaculars. The network will move the show to its Hollywood studios so family-minded Shirley won't have to fly to New York.

"I'll do that show on our vacation so my family can be with me," she said firmly. The pretty

Mrs. Black, who'll be 29 April 23, is "so happy with my life" in suburban Atherton. Her husband is with the Stanford Research Institute and she lives as a typical commuter's wife. She is bringing up her three children—Susan, 9; Charles Jr., 5; Lori, 3—without benefit of household help.

She also dabbles in an interior decorating business, and is active in seven children's charities. For one charity she's publicity chairman, and Shirley Temple, the one-time film star, now is on the other side of the fence as a press agent.

Your Political Contributions Not Deductible

Walter C. Bowen, administrative officer of the Pampa Internal Revenue office, today reminded taxpayers that contributions made to a political party or candidate do not qualify as deductible contributions, and are not deductible on Federal income tax returns under any circumstances.

Bowen also reminded taxpayers that, in general, every individual who made gifts during 1956 to any one donee or more than $3,000, including political contributions or gifts, must file a gift tax return on Form 709. Donees or trustees receiving reportable gifts must file information returns on Form 710. These returns for 1956 must be filed on or before April 15, 1957 with the District Director of Internal Revenue for the district in which the taxpayer resides or has his principal place of business. Gift tax forms 709 and 710, together with complete instructions and necessary assistance, may be obtained from any Internal Revenue Service office, Bowen said.

NATURAL BRIDGE, N.Y. (UP) — The goat herd of farmer James Snider was dwindling. Snider finally discovered the reason — a bear.
