President Says He Will Hold His Office; Constitutional Reforms Stressed By FDR's Representative In Havana

HAVANA, Aug. 8.—Sumner Welles, United States ambassador, it was confirmed from a high source, told President Gerardo Machado today that he must ask congress for a leave of absence if Cuba's political problems are to be settled.

The government appeared ready to resist.

Machado announced a short time before: "I am and I continue being president of Cuba in the plentitude of all my constitutional prerogatives, of which I may not cede the smallest part without betraying the confidence deposited in me by the Cuban people."

Welles Is Adamant

The president's statement came a short time after he had held an interview with Welles. The American envoy declared as he left the presidential palace that "mediation is not ended." The ambassador had been engaged for some time in an attempt to mediate the Cuban political turmoil.

A formula presented by Welles to the president, it was revealed, embodied these points:

That Machado immediately name a secretary of state acceptable to all political factions. (The Cuban constitution provides for the succession of the secretary of state to the presidency in the event that office becomes vacant.)

Merger Of Parties Planned

That thereafter Machado must ask congress for an indefinite leave of absence. With that request granted, the new secretary of state would succeed to the presidency and would immediately appoint a national cabinet representative of all political factions in the island.

Constitutional reforms worked out by opposition delegates and the three political parties in collaboration with Welles, which provide for the restoration of the office of vice president abolished by the 1928 constitutional reform, then would be submitted to congress.

Election Is Essential

Once congress had voted the reform they would be submitted to a constitutional convention which, under the constitution, must follow the action of congress within six months. Delegates to the convention would be chosen at elections supervised by the acting president.

The latest count of the result of yesterday's street firing, made by visits to the morgue and hospitals, showed 21 dead and 146 wounded. This did not include persons treated in their own homes.

The dead includde one policeman and a Spaniard.

The government announced some concessions to the strikers today, including the release of all those arrested in consequence of the

FDR's Appeal Sends Miners Back To Work

Leaders Cheer Envoy Sent By President; Expect Work To Be Resumed Wednesday With Recalcitrants Satisfied

(Copyright, 1933, By Associated Press)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 8. — An appeal from President Roosevelt, carried to the heart of the turbulent area, today swung western Pennsylvania's soft coal workers into the back-to-the- mines movement.

Stirred to enthusiasm as Edward F. McGrady, labor advisor of the NRA, delivered the president's message, more than 100 leaders of union locals decided by a unanimous, rising vote to return to work.

Report Received Cheerfully

The leaders quickly transmitted their decision to the rank and file of the strikers and within a few hours local after local enthusiastically voted to resume work tomorrow under the Roosevelt truce.

Acceptance of the armistice brings to an end the walkout which began two weeks ago today in the Fayette county mines of the H. C. Frick Coke company with a demand for operator recognition of the United Mine Workers of America.

With these locals—all in district No. 4, scene of violence in which one striker was shot to death and more than a score wounded—stepping into line, union leaders said the resumption of operations will be general throughout the bituminous coal fields.

McGrady Makes Talk

Under the leadership of Martin Ryan, president of Local No. 3 in the district, these chiefs previously refused to accept the truce arranged by President Roosevelt, Governor Gifford Pinchot, United Mine Workers' national leaders and the operators and advised their men not to go back into the pits.

Facing these recalcitrant local leaders, McGrady, who had flown to Uniontown from Washington, said:

"I am here, acting for the president of the United States and asking you to go back to work."

President Is Applauded

Prolonged cheers greeted the president's name—cheers that grew in volume as McGrady asserted :

"We propose to see that the agreement which was entered into between your organiation, the operators and the president is carried out.

"I pledge you that any grievances that may arise will be handled promptly and that we will appoint

Control Plans Stumble Over Cotton Report

U. S. Estimate Is Higher Than Expected And Deters Effort To Whittle Down Surplus Of Fleecy Staple Now On Hand

Co-Operation Of Planters Is Saving Feature; No Change In Government Contract Is Expected To Be Made

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP) — A government estimate of 12,314,000 bale cotton crop for this year added difficulty today to plans of farm adminstration officials to whittle down the surplus.

The official estimate by the crop reporting board was well above most private reports, which had forecast a crop of less than 12,000,000 bales, but in view of the orderly market decline officials took comfort from the indicated result of the acreage reduction campaign.

"Could Have Been Worse"

This was disclosed in the crop reporting board's estimate that 4,247,000 bales which would have gone to the gins have been or will be plowed under because of the administration's acreage slash efforts.

Otherwise, the government production report would have been 16,561,000 bales, exceeded only by the 17,096,000 in 1931 and crops of one or two earlier years.

Unusually fine weather brought the condition of the crop on August 1 up to 74.2 per cent of normal, almost 10 per cent higher than on August 1 last year and far above the 10-year average of 67.9 per cent.

Lint Yield Is High

The indicated yield of 198.4 lint pounds per acre for 1933 is the highest since 1914, with the exception of the 211.5 in 1931, the year which witnesses a cotton price slump to about five cents a pound.

The reduction estimate which showed that approximately 10,304,000 acres had been taken out of production also showed that the

FAVORABLE REPORT FILED

GREENVILLE, Aug. 8. Repeal Of Robertson Law Urged; Other Problems Seen

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. —Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has been requested to submit repeal of the Robertson Insurance law to the special session of the legislature which will convene next month.

The law requires out-of-date insurance companies to invest 75 per cent of the premiums collected from Texas business in Texas real estate or securities. It has been a controversial subject for years.

Anderson Makes Request

The request was made by Representative P. L. Anderson of San Antonio, chairman of the House committee on insurance. Anderson introduced a similar bill in the regular session. It was reported from committee, but died on the calendar. He said the governor appeared interested in the proposal.

Anderson said the governor indicated the special session would be called for September 4.

Other Plans Forwarded

Modification of the anti-trust laws to obviate a conflict with the national recovery act and revenue raising measures will be submitted. Should the electorate approve proposed constitutional amendments to permit issuance of $20,000,000 in state bonds to relieve unemployment and the manufacture and sale of 3.2 beer, legislation on these subjects also will be submitted.

Representative T. H. McGregor of Austin, who represented the governor at the recent Washington conferences on the oil industry code has messaged K. M. Simpson, deputy national recovery administrator suggesting that President Roosevelt issue a statement advocating revision of the Texas anti-trust laws. Such a statement "will insure its passage by the Texas legislature," McGregor stated.

Electra Woman Leaves Letter To Husband Who Walked Out And Left Family; Razor Is Used As 'Best Way Out'

(By The Associated Press)

ELECTRA, Aug. 8. — Explaining her acts in a note addressed to her husband, Mrs. J. H. Gordon, 32, last night cut the throats of her two children, Wynell, 8, and Ellen Beth, 9, then killed herself with the same razor.

The bodies, lying on a pallet in the front room of the Gordon home, were found today by Mrs. L. C. Johns, a next door neighbor, who, with her husband, accompanied Mrs. Gordon and her children to a revival meeting and later a firemen's water fight last night.

"Nothing Left But Death"

A note Mrs. Gordon had addressed to her husband read: "I know of nothing for us but death. I love you dearly, Myrtle." She also said in the note that she had not told the children they had been deserted and that every morning and night they had prayed for God to send him back to them.

Her letter apparently was in reply to one from Gordon dated August 2 and mailed from Florence, Texas, in which he stated he would not return and told her to return to her father, W. J. Huckagee at Dublin, Texas.

Husband Former Officer

Gordon formerly was constable of the Electra precinct and jailer and policeman at Wichita Falls. Recently he had been employed as a special detective, but for the past month had been unemployed. He left Electra 10 days ago, going to Dublin, where his relatives resided . The Gordon family had lived in Electra about eight years.

One Boy Drowned, Six Others Missing After Wave Sweeps Across Sandbar; Good Work By Spectators Helps

Police Not Sure Of The Fate Of Those Unaccounted For; Eight Youngsters Saved By Hastily Mobilized Crew

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—A huge wave tore away part of a sandbar where about 100 orphans were holding a picnic today, dragged many of them into the sea off Edgemere, L. I., and drowned a 10-year-old boy. Six others were missing.

The children were from the Pride of Judea Orphans home of Brooklyn. Nine of them, pulled out of the surf by volunteers, police emergency crews and life guards, were treated for submersion.

The dead boy was Raymond Evans, 10. Those missing, Benjamin Hauptman, Meyer Posalki, Leonard Shavter, Robert Rothstein, William Feltman and Asher Basses, ranged in age from 10 to 15.

Complete List Not Checked

Officials at the orphanage said a checkup showed only the one boy had been drowned, but added they did not yet have a complete list of those who had gone on the picnic.

Police said they were not certain whether any of the children unaccounted for had drowned, or had managed to reach the beach safely and mingled with the crows in the excitement.

As the children were dragged from the surf they were treated on the beach. Only young Evans failed to respond to treatment, and police said they were certain the others treated would survive.

Others Are Saved

Including Evans, nine in all were pulled out by the hastily mobilized rescuers.

The scene of the freak wave was a circular-shaped bar of sand situated about 300 yards off Edgemere near Far Rockaway, north of Coney Island. The bar is easily reached at low tide, and most of the time the "island" is high and dry.

Urschel Kidnap Probe Bobs Up; Marked Money Is Found

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 8. (AP)—The discovery of some of the money paid kidnapers of Charles F. An investigation was being pressed though secrecy shrouded investigatives of hoodlums and their haunts on the possibility that Twin City racketeers might have been the abductors of Urschel at his Oklahoma City home July 22. The oil man was released several days later on payment of undisclosed amount of ransom.

Arizona Dives Into Ranks Of Repeal States

Wets Take 3-1 Lead In Fight Over 18th Amendment; Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Friend Of Roosevelt, Is Winner

(By The Associated Press)

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 8.—"Bone dry" for 18 years, Arizona tonight became the 21st state to ratify the proposed repeal of the 18th amendment of the national constitution by a vote of more than three to one.

Ratification was assured when returns from 313 out of the state's 444 precincts in today's election gave 31,583 votes for repeal and 9,604 against.

President's Friend Nominated

Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Democratic National committeewoman for Arizona, and friend of President Roosevelt' family, defeated two men opponents from the state's lone congressional post, vacated by Lewis W. Douglas, now director of the federal budget. Her Democratic nomination is practically equivalent to election, as no Republicans were in the field.

Arizona "drys" practically conceded defeat before hand, although they have a case now before the state supreme court attacking the validity of the election.

The "drys" did not place any candidates on the official ballot for delegate to the forthcoming state repeal convention, but voted merely by mark against repeal.

NRA Outlined By Davis And Knapp

About 300 teachers, students, and other Lubbock citizens heard phases of the National Recovery administration program explained in a meeting on the lawn of Texas Technoigcal college administration building last night. Dean James M. Gordon of the school of liberal arts presided.

Details of the NRA work were explained by A. B. Davis, manager of Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Davis granted that some mistakes were being made but that these mistakes would be corrected and that the public should show patience and a willingness to cooperate.

President Bradford Knapp, the other speaker, showed that the growth of the nation necessitated the present move. Doctor Knapp paid tribute to President Roosevelt's "clear thinking."

The meeting was called at the instance of Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the NRA.

Administrator's Wife Chosen To Head Complaint Section And Will Enforce Rulings Laid Down By Husband

By JAMES P. SELVAGE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8. (AP)—Hundreds of thousands more wage earners—barbers and beauticians, retail coal handlers, lithographers and metal workers—today were drawn within the wage and hour regulations of the National Recovery administration.

Marking the beginning of the renewed offensive ordered by Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, to blanket the country with agreements reaching every employe, he approved modifications of President Roosevelt's reemployment agreements for five additional industries.

Threat Is Given

Concurrently it became known that the powerful weapon of publishing names is to be the first swung against violators of the codes and agreements.

The decision to make known in every community those who display the blue eagle of the NRA without fulfilling its terms was revealed with the appointment of Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson as chairmen of the complaint committee of the consumers advisory board headed by Mrs. Mary Rumsey.

In that position, Mrs. Johnson will be charged with enforcing the regulations which her husband has laid down as the stepping stones to economic stability through increased wages and shortened working hours .

Rely On Public Opinion

However, no disciplinary action is planned from Washington immediately, this being left for the time being to the force of public opinion in each section.

But "when the time is ripe" as Johnson phrases it, complaints will be received by Mrs. Johnson, the alleged violator will be given an opportunity for explanation, and if this is not satisfactory his name will be published in newspapers.

Johnson emhasized to newspapermen this would not be a boycott, but rather a plea to the nation to patronize those stores which are cooperating with the administration by raising purchasing power and spreading employment.

Government Ban Planned

Johnson added that the government probably would not buy products in the future from industries that won't live up to the code, asserting "it would be a curious thing if it did."

Along with the campaign to bring all industries under modified agreements with President Roosevelt pending the more difficult task of drafting and holding hearings on permanent codes, the National Labor board created last week to arbitrate future strikes held its first formal meeting and telegraphed Mayor Walmsley of New Orleans, that it was moving in at once on the Belt Bridge contro-

Pioneers To Turn Calendar Back In Annual Reunion At Hank Smith Park

(By Staff Correspondent)

CROSBYTON, Aug. 8.—Days of 40 and 50 years ago, when Crosby county and the South Plains were being settled by hardy pioneers, will be recalled Friday and Saturday when the eighth annual meeting of the West Texas Old Settlers association is to be held at Hank Smith Memorial Park, 10 miles north of here.

The annual event is held generally on the birthday anniversary of "Uncle Hank" Smith, who, in the late 70's, built the first permanent building on the South Plains. It is located in Blanco canyon and is built of native rock, taken from the sides of the canyon.

This year the reunion is to be held several days before the anniversary, which is August 15. R. B. Smith, son of the pioneer and himself born in the old rock house, will be host, as usual.

Col. R. P. Smythe, mayor of Plainview and the surveyor of the first lands in this section, is president of the association; J. B. Jenkins, Floydada business man and former rancher, is vice-president and W. T. Dunn, Crosbyton business man, is secretary-treasurer.

Old timers of the Plains, including those who have lived in this section for 25 years or more, are especially invited to attend the affair. It will be held in the park, donated by R. B. Smith to the state and a part of the state park system.

A feature this year will be an

REGARDING TEXANS

MRS. L. F. REEVES, who with her family is touring the eastern states, has written of their pleasure in meeting Texans from time to time in their travels. En route to the east the Reeves visited A Century of Progress Exposition. Soon after their arrival in Chicago a Denton girl came to their car and helped them to find an apartment. She gave them a letter to a man who works in the Empire State building. He in turn aided them in seeing New York City at a minimum cost. A guide from Texas showed them over Washington, D. C.

• • •

In common with other Texans who travel over America, the Reeves have discovered that they are often received with curiosity. Many times grown-ups stare at them and children howl "Hello Texas." They are asked absurd questions about conditions here.

• • •

Why easterners persist in thinking of westerners as living in the days of the bandit and the stage coach is beyond our comprehension. It seems to us that as many Texans travel each summer as those from other states. They stay in nice hotels and tourist camps and I am sure that they do not spend their evenings attempting to lasso the statue on the courthouse lawn or shoot the tires off of cars parked around the square.

• • •

Although we live in what was originally a great cow country, there are any number of persons living here who have never seen a roundup, who have never ridden horseback or seen a cowboy.

• • •

With it all, however, it seems that we are considered a strange species. A Lubbock woman, who was visiting in Chicago this summer at the time of the arrival of a Texas special train went to the station to welcome friends. As the first to make their exit swung off of the steps she heard one woman immediately back of her remark "Why they are quite civilized aren't they?"

• • •

RESPONSIBILITY

I KNOW a woman who at 50 years of age thinks life is over for her. And there is nothing the matter with her but a false sense of responsibility. She thinks that there is no future for her because her children do not want her any longer. Her children do want her, but they don't want the sense of responsibility that she has persisted in carrying for them all of their lives and which has interfered with their business and their pleasure.

• • •

The son's life-time ambition was to make a doctor. But this would have necessitated his being away from home—a thing which his mother could not bear. Today he is a grown man working at various jobs and supporting his family as best he can. His mother has tried to interfere in his home life but has met with little success. Too late the son is trying to save himself from mistakes.

• • •

The daughter did not marry until she was in her late twenties because it was hinted she was needed at home. The man she chose as her husband was not accepted by her mother and in a few years the daughter was back at home. Today she is cynical and disillusioned.

• • •

Most of us have sufficient occupations when we assume responsibility for our own acts, words and duties. We are too prone to suffer over imagined worries over which we have no control. We are not willing to leave to the other fellow the fulfilling of his own opportunities.

State Auditor Favors More Power For Texas Tax Board

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP) — Moore Lynn, state auditor, favors enlarged powers for the state tax board.

He said action of the legislature recently in increasing the personnel and enlarging the duties of the tax board was encouraging to those who are hoping for increased efficiency in the administartion of the tax laws.

He recommended even broader duties for the board, suggesting that it be required to make a continuons study of all taxation and revenue laws and cooperate and advise with each department charged with the assessment and collection of such taxes and revenues.

Lynn said that, in addition to determining the value of intangible assets, as the board does at present, it should be authorized to fix the assessed value for state tax purposes of property belonging to, or under the control of, all public utilities or of property which is used similarly.

Judge Wilson Orders Doors Of Dallas Saloon Padlocked

AMARILLO, Aug. 8. (AP)—The 3.2 per cent beer establishment formerly operated at 317 North Ervay street, Dallas, will remain permanently padlocked, Federal Judge James C. Wilson ruled today in a test case.

Judge Wilson held that a place selling only 3.2 per cent beer could not be padlocked under the national prohibition laws, since the recent Congress held that it was non-intoxicating, but he ordered Ernest Gamble's establishment closed "because its earmarks and character give it the aspect of a public nuisance."

"This place was in effect an open saloon," Wilson said. "I don't believe the public wants such a place now, or ever will, regardless of its attitude on prohiibtion."

Economic Situation Is Pored Over By Roosevelt And Aides

President Will Confer Today With Woodin After Careful Canvass With Experts Held At Hyde Park Home

(By The Associated Press)

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 8—Carefully watching the domestic and world campaign for higher prices and wages, President Roosevelt canvassed the whole economic situation today with his experts and arranged for a visit tomorrow with his secretary of the treasury, William H. Woodin.

Out of the significant round of meetings at the summer White House came not the slightest hint of any change in policy or any drastic new steps to force better times beyond their present pace.

The quiet working experts were just as silent as ever. They include besides James Warburg, special financial adviser to the London economic conference delegation, Professors James Rogers of Yale and George Warren of Cornell.

Confer For Three Hours

Their three hour visit with Mr. Roosevelt in the president's home on the banks of the Hudson river was described officially as a canvass of the whole economic situation both at home and abroad.

Just as authoritatively it was stated there had been no discussion of stabilization of the dollar of fluctuation. Consequently it was made plain that nothing specific had been taken up or decided.

Mr. Roosevelt, who had been given full command over inflation and control of prices and industry, appeared to be surveying the situation. But his closest advisors tonight were confident that he was contemplating no change in policy; rather keeping the closest contact.

He's Ready To Act

Of course, the president is ready to act to keep his drive for price raising and better wages in progress if it is necessary. He is making sure that his domestic campaign is not upset by the international situation. Mr. Warburg was on the "inside" of this during his work at the London parley.

It is understood Warren is leaving immediately for Europe. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is again enroute here. But if one thing is certain out of all the complications which surround monetary and, particularly international monetary questions, it is that the United States is still intent upon holding aloof from stabilization of the dollar in foreign exchange.

True Level Sought

Mr. Roosevelt appears intent on finding the true level of the American dollar with other currencies. There is no sign he thinks that level has been found so far.

The visit tomorrow of Mr. Woodin naturally revives the reports of his intended resignation. He has been very ill. He very likely wants to resign. The president does not want him to quit. They will talk this over tomorrow.

Not Guilty Plea Lodged By Chicagoan Held In Killings

CHICAGO, Aug. 8 (AP) — Louis (Doc) Stacci, a roadhouse operator also known as Stacy, was named by the federal government today as the man who plotted the scheme to free Frank Nash, escaped convict, at the Union station in Kansas City on June 17.

Stacci pleaded not guilty late today before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker to a charge of conspiracy in the warrant. He was held in $50,000 bonds and placed in the county jail under heavy guard pending a hearing August 22 on a warrant for his removal to Kansas City.

Kizer Concludes Work At Coach School; Pair Tie For Pro Medal Honor

Andy Kerr And Warner System Feature Class

Kizer Ends Instructions On Notre Dame Style At Last Night's Class; Visitors Toss Melons For Loss

Floodlights at Matador Field illuminated the proceedings at the third annual Texas Tech coaching school last night as Noble Kizer, head coach of football at Purdue university, brought to a close his short series of lectures and demonstrations dealing with the Notre Dame "system" which he learned under Knute Rockne and with which his Boilermakers battled through an undefeated 1932 season.

Kizer's demonstrations, in which uniformed gridsters of Pete Cawthon's Texas Tech squad took part, followed a feast in which more than one hundred Texas grown watermelons were thrown for losses by the high-spirited coaches attending the school. The feast took place at the north end of the football field. It was a quiet but serious crowd that listened attentively to the simple explanations of the system with which the teacher is most familiar.

Coaches Praise Kizer

Visiting mentors were unanimous and sincere with their publicly and privately expressed opinions that Kizer's work here was most helpful, not only to coaches who follow the Notre Dame style, but to mentors who cling to other systems and formations. Points he dropped, particularly in line play, were said to be interesting to all coaches.

Kizer, who opens a coaching school at Butler university next Monday, and Jesse Harper, director of athletics at Notre Dame university, plan to leave Lubbock today.

Kerr Performs Again

Andy Kerr, that small but energetic coach of Colgate University, whose team was undefeated and unscored-on last season, mixed mirth and wit with two more lectures and demonstrations yesterday. At the morning session he talked on and diagrammed plays run from the famous Warner or "double wingback" formations, and followed up with actual demonstrations on the field at the afternoon session. Assisting him were a group of Coach Weldon Chapman's Lubbock High school gridsters, well versed in the technique of the Warner system. The high school lads were pitted against an equal number of college athletes in the demonstration.

The fiery Kerr, who takes nothing for granted but who explains in detail every play brought to the attention of the "student" coaches, continued to prove highly popular with his classes yesterday.

Craig Ruby, one of the nation's best known experts on basketball and how to teach it, demonstrated on the gymnasium floor, with the aid of uniformed athletes, various stances and plays he teaches his University of Illinois cagers. A majority of the coaches present at the school attended Ruby's session. The Illini mentor, himself in basketball regalia, was as fast and accurate as any college or high school player on the floor, taking part in the actual plays which demonstrate his style.

Gallagher And Woodbury

E. C. Gallagher, director of athletics and wrestling coach at Oklahoma A. & M. college, and C. M. Woodbury, coach of boxing at New Mexico Military institute, pleased a large delegation with their instructions and demonstrations pertaining to their favorite subjects.

The school continues today with Coach Gallagher lecturing on physical education at 7 o'clock this morning. He will be followed at 8 o'clock by Coach Ruby, who shall offer another lecture and demonstration on basketball. Andy Kerr takes the floor at 10 o'clock for additional instructions in football. Gallagher is to lecture on wrestling at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and will be followed by Woodbury with another boxing lesson. Kerr will demonstrate football at the gridiron from 4 to 6 o'clock this evening.

Pictures Tonight

Moving pictures of the Colgate-Brown game, and of nearly all major games in which Purdue's Boilermakers participated last year will be shown tonight at the Engineering building auditorium. All coaches are invited and requested to attend. Kerr will be present to explain various plays shown in the pictures.

A barbecue for visiting coaches and their wives is slated for 6:30 o'clock this afternoon at the football field.

"See Texas First," Advises Kizer

Purdue Mentor Has Praise For Coaches And Football Of This Section; Forecasts Hot Race In Big Ten This Year

By COLLIER PARRIS
Avalanche Sports Editor

Mr. Roscoe Phootball Phann of Texas and the Southwest has no call to squawk about the disadvantages of living there, so far as the opportunity to see high grade football is concerned. Nor is there ground to complain of the absence of the nation's better known mentors in this section.

For the Southwest, and Texas in particular, is "well off" when it comes to the real game and the real coaches. Take it from Noble Kizer, husky coach of Purdue's Boilermakers who were undefeated in last season's quest of a Big Ten football championship.

NOBLE KIZER

In Texas, you read of the exploits of great teams in the east, the mid-west and the west. In those sections, if you lived there, you'd read of the great high school teams of the Texas Interscholastic league, and of the Southwest conference's college and university teams, and of other athletic organizations.

It seemed to surprise Coach Kizer that so many mentors of this section and state should come to a coaching school to hear men of their profession from distant states . . . and he had plenty of posies to pass out to Harry Kipke, Bernie Bierman, Andy Kerr, et al. . . .

". . . but you have great coaches here," and he named them . . . "Clyde Littlefield of Texas . . . Francis Schmidt of T. C. U. . . . Matty Bell of A . & M. . . . Jack Meagher of Rice . . . and your own Pete Cawthon," and he named others. . . . "Why, we read of them, and hear of their teams the same as we hear of our teams."

In Great Demand

Kizer, who received all-American honors while playing in Knute Rockne's line at Notre Dame, hopes for another good team at Purdue this year. Young as years go—a graduate of the Irish school of 1925—but experienced in the ways of the popular Notre Dame system, Kizer is in great demand as a coaching school instructor. In addition to the Tech school, in which he concluded his work last night, Kizer goes to Indianapolis this weekend to take charge of a coaching school at Butler university on Monday. After that, he is the headliner at a coaching school at Morningside college, at Sioux City.

To the interviewer's notion, one of Kizer's most noble traits is a missing quantity —the lack of the so-called "Notre Dame ego," to which critics delight in referring when calling attention regarding certain other graduates of the late Knute Rockne's school. Kizer appears to be a man who stands alone, regardless of previous connections or successes. He demonstrates this attitude in his lectures at the school and at private interviews. Except by question, there never was reference to his alma mater, probably the most popular football center in the universe.

They Tied Northwestern

Kizer, one of the seven mules" who made way for the "four horsemen" of Notre Dame fame, coached his Boilermakers to an undefeated season last year over teams of Kansas A. & M., Minnesota, Wisconsin, N. Y. U., Chicago, Iowa and Indiana. His team was tied once, 7 to 7, by Northwestern. He loses five of his regular linemen and a couple of backs this season, but he believes his team coming up will compare favorably with the 1932 setup.

The Purdue mentor sees another close race in the Big Ten, agreeing with Kipke and Bierman in that last season's weak sisters will be stronger and that the best teams of last year will be as strong as they were a year ago. He picks Michigan to be an outstanding contender for the championship, and ranks Ohio State and Northwestern, not forgetting Bierman at Minnesota, as top-notchers in the race.

A Native Of Texas

Kizer is not a newcomer to this immediate section. His early youth was lived in the Texas Panhandle, near Dalhart, and he knows much of the country. A recent visit in the Panhandle territory renewed acquaintances with former neighbors and friends.

Pleasant, well met, and friendly to everybody, Kizer has proven popular during his visit in Lubbock. He likes the country, is pleased with the athletic atmosphere, and sees great possibilities for the young coach who learns his "stuff" under Texas skies. He predicts greater and finer things in the sports world, and says that young America will through its exploitations of athletics come through in remarkable style, teaching, above all, the value of sportsmanship.

Senators Beat Yanks To Gain 2-Game Lead

Part Of Lost Territory Is Regained As Earl Whitehill Tosses Sens To 5-1 Victory; A's Nose Out Red Sox

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Combining timely hitting with Earl Whitehill's five hit pitching, the Washington Senators today recouped half the ground they lost in a doubleheader yesterday, defeating the New York Yankees 5-1 in the third of the four-game series to increase their advantage to two full games.

With Whitehill holding the Yanks at bay in every inning, except the fourth, the Senators started their attack off Johnny Allen in the same frame, picking up two runs, one of them unearned. They added two more in the fifth when Buddy Myer followed Whitehill's single with a home run and got their final tally in the eight as the result of Heinie Manush's circuit blow, hit with the bases empty.

Jimmie Foxx's 32nd homer and four-base blows by Mickey Cochrane and Doc Cramer accounted for five runs. Cochran's double in the first and Bob Johnson's two bagger in the third sent in the remaining scores. Grove, appearing for the first time since breaking the Yankees' scoring streak, won his 17th game.

Ray Benge Wins Mound Duel As Giants Lose

(By The Associated Press)

BROOKLYN, Aug. 8.—In a brilliant pitchers' battle between Ray Benge and Hal Schumacher, an eleventh-inning error by Johnny Vergez today gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 1-0 decision over the league leading New York Giants. The defeat reduced the Giants' margin over the idle Pirates to three games.

Benge held the Giants to three hits while his teammates got to Schumacher for nine but the young right hander was effective with men on the bases except in the eleventh. Two of the hits off Benge were made by Schumacher.

Hamman Leads Texas Aces In National Play

Waco Amateur Shoots 139 And Tops List Of 18; Moreland Is "In" With 147; Three Others Qualify At Dallas

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Aug. 8.—Diminutive Leland Hamman of Waco paced a field of eighteen players today in the Southwestern sectional qualifying round of the National Amateur Golf tournament with a fine subpar card of 35-35—70, 36-36—69—139. His 36-hole tour of the Brook Hollow golf club course was one under par.

The Southwestern division was allotted five places by the United States Golf association and others who qualified were Jack Munger of Dallas, eastern interscholastic champion, 69-71—140; Reynolds Smith, Dallas city champion, 76-70—147; Gus Moreland of Dallas, Texas and Trans-Mississippi champion, 77-70—147, and W. R. Long, jr., Austin city champion, 73-75—147.

Enjoy Fair Day

Hamman, Munger, Smith, Moreland and Long shot their successful qualifying scores under a clear sky, torrid sun and on a course that was at the peak of condition.

Hamman, who registered from the Paris country club, his former home, but now lives at Waco, played consistently throughout the terrific grind.

Hamman was the smallest player in the entry field. He is only 5 feet 6 1-2 inches in height, weighs 135 pounds, and is 22 years old. He defeated Gus Moreland two weeks ago in the Western amateur.

Moreland In Danger

It was colorful Gus Moreland whom the afternoon gallery trailed. His bad 42-35—77 in the morning round stirred up whispers that the king of Texas sharp-shooters would not qualify. But Moreland is best under pressure. He started the afternoon round with a birdie three at the first hole. He finished the front nine in 33, two under par. He slipped to a 37 on the inward trek but his par 35-37—70 gave him 147 and qualified.

W. R. Long, jr., of Austin was one of the leaders in the morning round with 37-35—72. He found all kinds of putting trouble on the front nine of the afternoon round and required a 40. Settling down on the final nine holes, he shot par 35 to card a 75 and a grand total of 147.

Three Countries Represented At Eastern Court Tournament

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 8. (AP) — Three members of the visiting English Wightman Cup tennis team which lost to the United States at Forest Hills last week, three American defenders and one entry from Canada reached the quarter final round of the women's singles in the eastern grass court tennis tournament today, while Sidney B. Wood, J. Gilbert Hall and John Van Ryn completed the third round bracket in the men's division.

Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Calif., Elizabeth Deike of Los Angeles, both seeded stars, and Freda James of Great Barrington, Mass., were left to represent the home forces. The English trio was composed of Joan Ridley, 1932 finalist in the tourney, Dorothy Round and Mary Heeley, who replaced Betty Nuthall after the latter withdrew and swamped Norma Taubele of New York, 6-1, 6-2.

The one Canadian player was Alice Francis, who defeated Mrs Morgan Palmer of Port Chester, N. Y., 6-4, 6-1.

BASEBALL'S BIG 8

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Terry, New York Giants' manager, was the chief loser among baseball's Big Six yesterday, dropping five points as he went hitless before Ray Benge's effective pitching. His average of .351 sent him down to third place in the National League's half of the sextet as Chuck Klein and Virgil Davis remained idle. In the American League trio, Al Simmons did not play but Jimmy Foxx lost one point while Heinie Manush gained one, boosting his batting average to .340.

The standings:

PLAYING INTO A WIND CALLS FOR HIGH TEE

Although wind is not so much a factor here as in Scotland or England, there are occasions when golfers must know how to play in it. Unfortunately many players' golf is spoiled on a day when the wind is abnormal.

"When playing in the wind," says Tommy Armour, "I find that the best way to get a low shot is to tee the ball up fairly high and then hit it quite cleanly."

The chief thing to remember in playing into the teeth of the wind is that the weight of the body should be kept well forward and the ball must be over toward the right foot.

Eight Players Shoot Sub-Par Golf At Start

Mortie Dutra And Jimmy Hines Tie For Medal With 138's; Gene Sarazen Is Third With 72-Hole Score Of 140

By PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 8.—Leading a par-shelling brigade that shattered all field qualifying records to bits, Mortie Dutra, older brother of the defending titleholder, and Jimmy Hines, from the Timber Points club, New York, came in with sensational finishes today to tie for the national professional golf championship medal with 36-hole totals of 138 shots.

Eight players, among the Gene Sarazen, shot sub-par scores ranging from Dutra's 66 to a half dozen 68's and when the shelling ended, a new record low score of 140 was required to place among the 31 who will open the struggle for the championship tomorrow against Olin Dutra over the 36-hole match play route. No playoff for extra positions in the qualifying bracket was necessary.

Four Starts Fail

Out of the field of 93 starters, only four important figures in the world of professional golf failed to qualify despite the brilliant scoring. Eddie Schultz, who burned up the championship course in sectional tryouts at Troy, N. Y.; Jimmy Foulis of Chicago, St. Paul open champion; Billy Burke, 1931 National Open title holder, and Ralph Guldahl, runnerup in the 1933 national open at North Shore, composed the quartet which missed. Six other Ryder Cup players made the grade, Burke being the only one to fail.

One shot behind Hines and Dutra when the medal play shooting ended was Johnny Revolta, 22-year-old Menominee, Michigan star, who shot 68 in the morning to land in a quaruple tie with Sarazen, Jack Curley of Quincy, Mass., and Victor Ghezzie, Rumson, N. Y., but like the other three couldn't keep up the pace. He finished with a 71 for a 36-hole total of 139.

Three Others Tied

Next in line were Sarazen, with rounds of 68-72 and the veteran Willie Klein of New York, at 140. Other low scorers were Al Houghton, Washington, D. C., 72-69—141; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., 71-70—141; Ghezzie with 68-73—141; Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y., 1931 champion, 74-68—142, and Frank Walsh, 1932 finalist, who wound up with rounds of 73-69—142.

Leo Diegel of Grosse Point, Mich., two times national pro champion, was well up among the leaders with 72-71—143 as were Curley, Horton Smith, Johnny Farrell, Harry Cooper, Ed Dudley, and Bobby Cruickshank, who also had 143's.

Dutra and Hines will meet in an 18-hole playoff for the medal, probably nert Sunday, unless either one enters the finals.

CONSTIPATION CONQUERED BY NEW COW DISCOVERY

Since cows are seldom constipated, scientists recently studied the cow to find out how to overcome chronic bowel delay. The result is a new natural product, taken from the livers of cattle, that corrects the stubbornest constipation easily—without further need of injurious drugs.

As you know, most constipation comes from sluggish liver. The liver manufactures a liquid called the bile, which is Nature's own purgative. When not enough bile flows into your bowels, you are constipated. Yet ordinary physics and laxatives never touch the liver.

Now scientists have taken the bile from cattle and put it up in little tablets called Kompo and Bile Salts Tablets. If you want to stop constipation and quit taking habit-forming physics and laxatives, get Kompo Tablets from your druggist today. Results guaranteed or money back.

SPECIAL FREE OFFER: Clip out this offer and mail it to us with your name and address and a small trial package of Kompo Tablets will be sent you absolutely FREE. Kompo Company. Dept. R28, Atlanta, Ga.

It Would Help Us All

TEXAS port cities may well prick up their ears at conversation going the rounds in New York and Washington to the effect that United States may soon strengthen its trade position in South America.

Recent developments in Argentina, it is believed, will give this country a better entre than it has had—something which should increase business in Galveston, Houston, Beaumont and Texas City.

Argentina occupies a predominant position in South America. Any important American trade gains there would be likely to have an effect on other countries of that continent. Argentina is among the South American nations that have been invited by Washington to join negotiations for commercial alliances.

Great Britain long has held a leading place in Argentine trade. A proposed new British-Argentine trade agreement now is under consideration. It is reported, however, that many Argentine industries are displeased with the proposed pact. The resignation of Finance Minister Hueyo was said to have been due to serious differences over the proposed treaty.

Because Britain takes a large portion of Argentine beef, which the United States can not do without injuring its own cattle industry, America can not be expected to usurp Great Britain's place in Argentine trade. There is room, however, for a much greater business between the United States and Argentina than at present.

It is the hope of Washington officials that this may be realized, and the situation at present seems to have some very encouraging aspects.

BONDS FOR ALL

There is no reason to suppose that the federal treasury is issing baby bonds because it feared an issue in larger denominations would not find a market. Several large issues have been floated during the depression and money famine and all have been oversubscribed at low interest rates.

While the government is floating this loan primarily for refunding purposes and to finance the national recovery program, it is taking advantage of it to enlist in recovery movement millions who otherwise would have no bit to do. The government wants every American in this fight and one way of doing it is to first get him financially interested.

It was tried during the World war and was successful beyond the wildest dreams of those who conceived the idea. Liberty bonds helped many help win the war.

If this depression is to be licked, we must all help. President Roosevelt, General Johnson and the rest of the staff have said that they cannot hope to do it alone, but that with the cooperation of employers, workers and dollar-holders victory is at hand.

Every purchaser of a baby bond will know that he or she is giving somebody a job, helping some employer open his factory or assisting some farmer to get back on his feet. It will be a bond bristling with dividends and with a host of persons clipping the coupons.

NEW PACT SIGNED

Now, let's see if Europe will breathe any easier. The four-power pact designed to guarantee peace among European powers for 10 years has been signed. Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany are the signatories.

There is no doubt that if these powers live up to the obligations imposed upon them by the treaty, the cause of European peace will be greatly advanced. There is no reason to question the sincerity of any one of them in signing the new pact. Neither Britain, France nor Italy has shown any disposition to violate its pledged word. While Hitlerized Germany has not been as firm as it might have been toward some of its obligations, its good faith should not be doubted in advance.

These four powers, however, have many conflicting interests, and nationalism runs strong in all of them. The fact that international treaties in recent years have been treated lightly, and in some cases flagrantly violated, by some of the signatories has served to weaken public confidence in treaties, to a certain extent.

The world, nevertheless, will look hopefully to the four-power pact. In purpose it represents an important advance for peace in Europe. Whether it will achieve its purpose, well may be left to the future.

A local poetess, who lives her poems, took a widely advertised sea-sick remedy last evening before starting one on ships.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

That your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the Lord sware unto your fathers to give them, as the days of heaven upon the earth.

For if ye shall diligently keep all these commandments which I command you, to do them, to love the Lord your God, to walk in all His ways, and to cleave unto him.—Deuteronomy 11:21-22.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

A LOT of the boys in fairly responsible government positions have another cause for worry now.

Without making the matter public through his press department Postmaster General Farley has just sent a flock of letters to their home Democratic state and county chairmen.

"So-and-so is holding such-and-such a job," these notes say in effect. "Do you want him charged off against you? If so he will be counted as part of your patronage."

This is all very distressing to no end of Federal check-chasers. They've been in office for some time and they realize the committeemen back home aren't going to have much interest in them even if they're Democrats. None at all if they're labeled definite Republicans of course.

There are very few state or county chairmen who think they are getting as big a slice of pie as they should. What they do get they think should come under the head of new business.

• • •

The general patronage tangle is getting more and more unraveled of late.

One of the most significant things was to hear Farley singing the praises of Secretary of Interior Ickes the other day. Ickes is in charge of public works and therefore plenty of jobs. Until recently he was out of step with the New Dealers on what men should be placed and why.

Farley's paeans would indicate all this is over now.

• • •

HORSE PLAY: Would you like to know what may have made that horse you had two dollars on the other day run so fast?

Here's the prescription that the government found some of the race track lads using to push the gee-gees past the judge's stand on top: Strychnine, 1-4 grain; cocaine, 8 grains; heroin, 1-4 grain; nitroglycerin, 12 grams and kola nut 2 ounces.

Insert this with a hypo where a horse would wear a necktie and hold everything.

• • •

Before Chief of the Narcotics Bureau Harry J. Anslinger gets through with the race track racketeers you may hear some prominent under-world names bandied about.

The case he and his men have made is little short of amazing. As printed from Chicago when it broke they have conclusive evidence that over 200 horses have been doped at leading tracks in the last 20 months. If you follow the ponies or even if you only read about races when they're important enough to be on the first page you'd be surprised to know some of the top-class horses have been subjected to the needle.

The job is done about thirty minutes before post time. That figures to get the equine victim on the verge of a lather just as he faces the barrier. And track veterinarian can make a simple saliva test and determine whether a horse has been doped. This is not meant to imply that any of them are in on the racket.

Some of them seem to have been lax.

T. V. A.: One of the chief hurdles in the path of Tennessee Valley Authority officials is overcoming the popular confusion that development of the big southern basin is part of the emergency recovery program.

They tell you such is not true. It is a long-range project and has to be handled that way. This is one of the reasons its directors were appointed for nine-year terms.

• • •

Muscle Shoals and its power development is only a part of the job. Far more important to the collegians who are running T. V. A. is the economic and social side of the experiment.

If the Rooseveltian Utopia becomes an actuality as visualized the Valley Authorities are going to have to rehabilitate hundreds of families from stem to stern.

• • •

For instance, in the Cove Creek area, farm families have been averaging less than $100 a year in earnings.

They are the most clannish people in the world. Experience thus far has shown the developers that these folks first must be educated to the fact Uncle Sam is not being exploited. Convince them of this and it will be possible to get them to work.

All this is going to be no mean feat of applied psychology for the Federal social workers.

• • •

An exceptionally clever and capable woman teacher was imported from New York to take over one of the mountain schools. One day the young lady made a horrible mistake. She appeared in public in knickers.

All the good people wanted to take their children out of school. It took a lot of subtle arguing to dissuade them.

• • •

NOTES: One of the most interesting sights in the Tennessee Valley is a mounted preacher carrying the gospel where it will do the most good. . . . They are very serious about spreading the word to all who may need it. . . . One of the sky riders did a lot of work for Martha Berry whose name is attached to the famous mountain school. . . . He got $200 despite his protests because Miss Berry thought he had earned a new horse and buggy. . . . Months later she found the unordained gentleman of the cloth had given the whole $200 "to the heathens."

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

NEW YORK is staging a beautiful undercover civil war on the subject of inflation. Both sides are well staffed and well-heeled. The objective is to get the upper hand in Washington councils.

At the moment the antis seem to have it. They managed to place some of their best sharpshooters on the firing line. Their influence as members of advisory boards and what not has been far from negligible. They report back to their officers that inflation is nix until NRA and public works get a thorough workout.

But the inflation army is not a bit discouraged. They claim that prices—and especially farm prices—cannot be sustained without devaluation or some similar measure. They are putting on all the pressure they can to get action now but will really be satisfied if they get it in a couple of months.

Anti-inflationists are not very hopeful of ultimate victory. They figure their only hope is to stall along on the chance that recovery will progress so rapidly that defeat need not be faced. But they don't really believe that recovery can come fast enough for that.

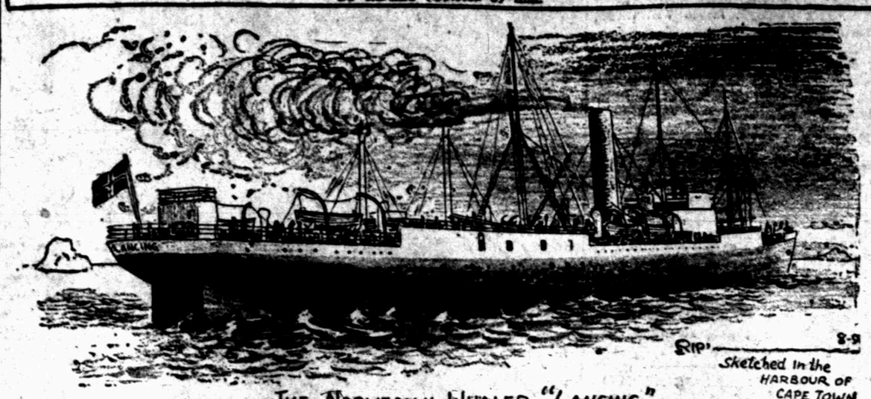

The Committee for the Nation crowd (Vanderlip, Cord, Rand, Rosenwald, Irving Fisher) is serving as general staff for the inflation forces. Their present setback is the first serious one they have met. They are confident it is only temporary. Most bankers and financial men are still on the anti-inflation side.

New Yorkers involved in the fracas are doing their darnedest to sell their respective ideas to everyone in official Washington. But one of them recently remarked: "You know there's a man down there in the White House who has a habit of making up his own mind. So maybe we're only fighting a sham battle after all."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ELINOR STAFFORD, 20, falls in love with 35-year-old BARRETT COLVIN, who has returned to New York after years abroad. Barrett has made a name for himself as an archeologist. He is about to ask Elinor to marry him when her jealous, scheming mother, LIDA STAFFORD, interferes and succeeds in breaking up the romance.

When Elinor's aunt, wealthy MISS ELLA SEXTON, dies she leaves her entire fortune to Barrett. Then drunken VANCE CARTER shoots BENTWELL STAFFORD, Elinor's father. Barrett, who does not want the Sexton fortune, tells Elinor that if she will marry him and live in his home as a guest for a year he will give the entire sum to her to divide among the relatives. Elinor agrees, knowing the money may save her father's life.

The marriage takes place next day. Barrett finds himself falling in love with Elinor over again. Then one day he sees her with BOB TELFARE and believes she has been meeting Telfare secretly. His suspicions are renewed and he treats her coldly. This makes Elinor miserable.

Her father's health is slow to improve and the doctor advises a warmer climate. Elinor goes with her father to Aiken.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXII

Elinor wrote Barrett stilted little notes about the weather, her father's condition, and the routine of the household. He read them thin. He could not help it. He carried them in an inner coat pocket and scorned himself for keeping them. He tried to burn them one night in the library fireplace. Instead he burned the hand that salvaged them.

Toward then end of April Barrett saw Lida Stafford for the first time since her daughter had gone south. Lida appeared on a Sunday morning wearing a dress so simple a man would call it plain, though to a woman it bore the unmistakable stamp of Paris.

"My dear Barrett!" she murmured, gliding into the library.

Stiffly he took her outstretched hands. He heard her ask, "Lonely?" and responded heavily, "Very!"

"You must dine with me some night, Barrett: I would so like to know you better!"

He murmured vaguely about having to get a great deal of work out of the way. He detested the woman!

Lida settled by the hearth. She stretched a slender foot toward the fender. Her ankles were still quite as good as Elinor's, she saw happily.

"I came in because I have found myself to be in the most amazing position," she began.

"Yes?" he prompted without enthusiasm.

"Overdrawn again! Can you fancy it, Barrett? I simply know nothing of figures! And I can't seem to learn!"

He said nothing.

"I know if Elinor were in town that she'd help me out—for a little time—and this morning I thought, 'But what is more natural than to turn to my Elinor's husband? The man whom she so adores!'"

• • •

He opened his cagaret case, offered her one and lit one for himself after lighting hers.

"Mrs. Stafford," he said slowly after a moment's silence, "the last time Elinor lent you money—which you have not returned to her—I told her I did not like it. She promised me she would not do it again. You see, therefore, that, while I am sorry to refuse you, I cannot help you out—"

Lida grew white, her eyes hard. She laughed harshly.

Without heeding the interruption, Barrett went on. "Elinor settled on you and your husband a large fortune, more than I wanted her to settle upon you—"

"I quite believe that!" Lida broke in scathingly.

"If you can't manage on that you couldn't manage on any amount," Barrett said, still coolly.

"What a delightful 'lecture!'"

"You'll have to pull up or be very miserable," he stated. "Easy spending is a habit, you know—"

She rose. With a slow, almost insolent gesture she pulled her fur close around her soft, white throat.

"I shall not forget," she said, "that I came to you for help and that you refused me!"

"I'm sorry you feel as you do, Mrs. Stafford. Can't you see that when I asked Elinor to refuse you aid I pledged myself to do the same thing?"

"Elinor would not have to know."

"I do not lie, Mrs. Stafford—"

Her face hardened. She caught the implication he had not meant to make with his statement.

She left the house shaking with rage. There was Miss Ella Sexton's house across the street. Miss Ella had been influenced by Barrett's scheming and persuaded not to leave her money as it should have gone. If the money had been left as it should have been there would be no need of approaching Elinor or her husband for loans. The shoe would be on the other foot! As things were there were few chances to even up with Barrett Colvin. Unless he had on the side some little affair! Lida could hurt him that way, extract from him what she wished with the pledge of silence. Who was it who had said that he was always running up to Connecticut? Why did he go there? Had she hit upon it—the fact that would level his pride and open his purse?

It cost a great deal, Lida knew, to have anyone "shadowed" but the original cost might prove to be one of her best investments.

She moistened her tinted lips. If she could find her proud and lofty son-in-law in a compromising situation how she would put on the screws! And someone had said he drove to Connecticut often.

Monday found Lida abroad early. She usually woke about 10 o'clock to bathe and return to

Boy Scout Executive Likes Suggestion For "Toyry" Here

Editor, The Avalanche: I was very much interested in the editorial in Sunday's Avalanche in regard to the establishment of a "Toyry" for poor children.

Whether many criminal careers are started through the desire of children for toys beyond their reach or not, boys and girls of poor families will undoubtedly have a happier childhood if they can have toys to play with like the children in more fortunate circumstances. And a happy childhood helps to insure a happy, law abiding citizenship.

It seems to me that a project of this kind would be a very fine one for the citizens of Lubbock to sponsor and one that the city could well be proud of in the future. It sounds like a practical suggestion and one that can be carried out.

In the fall of 1931 and again in 1932, the Boy Scouts conducted discarded toy campaigns. These toys were turned over to the Fire Dept. for renovation. The Lions Club furnished the money for poor children. Between 800 and 1,000 toys were repaired and distributed in this way each year.

Would it not be rendering a larger service to humanity if toys procured in this way could be placed in some central place where a greater number of children could have access to them? Perhaps arrangements could be made whereby the County, City Welfare Ass'n could administer the distribution.

The Boy Scouts will be glad to collect old toys, the firemen, I feel sure, enjoy repairing them and the Lions club, no doubt, will be happy to have them placed where the greatest amount of good can be derived therefrom. Of course some arrangement would have to be made for furnishing the firemen with paints, brushes, and repair par

You can count on the hearty operation of the Boy Scouts if plan of this nature is worked

Cordially yours,
D. T. Jennings,
Scout Executive.

WALL STREET REPORT

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—Throwing off some of its recent somnolence, the stock market roused itself today to get up and take a look at the sun.

The experience proved to be tonical, for prices advanced 1 to around 3 points. Volume rose, too, as compared with the desultory behavior of yesterday's colorless session, although there was no particularly cogent reason advanced by Wall street to account for the somewhat livelier tone tapped off by the ticker. Trading was largely professional.

Advance Is Noted

At the sound of the closing gong, transfers stood at 1,340,124 shares. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics composite covering 90 selected stocks showed an advance of 2.7.

Purchasers looked with particular favor today on shares of gold, motor and alcohol companies, although prime names in the industrial list had their innings to.

In the commodity markets, grains generally lost fractionally. Cotton, which had displayed a firm tone up to publication of the crop report, closed $1.35 to $1.50 a bale lower. The Dollar held to a narrow range in foreign exchange markets. Bonds were steady throughout the day.

Trading Steady To Firm

Virtually all the other commodities showed a steady to firm tone with the exception of sugar, which sagged a bit in late trading due to the uncertainties of the Cuban situation.

In the docket of news developments, the item which particularly interested Wall Street was the conference of the administration's monetary experts with President Roosevelt.

In some quarters this suggested that some announcement on inflation might be in the offing, or at least an intimation of the government's future fiscal policies. Thus far, the financial community recalled, the president has made no attempt to use any of the unprecedented powers over money granted him under the inflation bill.

General Motors' report, showing July sales, was read with satisfaction by the street's business experts, who were also impressed with the insistent efforts of the recovery administration to pacify the turbulent spirits in the Pennsylvania coal district.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. (AP)—The feature in cotton today was the government crop report pointing to a yield of 12,314,000 bales, or more than a million bales above the average of recent private reports.

The unexpectedly heavy figures brought out a good deal of liquidation, but the market in the opinion of local brokers showed remarkable stability, and after selling off to 9.68 for December or 23 points net lower, recovered a good part of the loss.

That delivery classed at 9.92 or 24 points up from the lowest with the general market very steady at net declines of 27 to 30 points.

Markets Are Nervous

The market was nervous and irregular before the report was issued.

Prices were ruling within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing quotations when trading was suspended to receive the government report. The large crop figures came in for a good deal of bearish comment, but it seemed, that scattering long accounts had been pretty well liquidated as the market's immediate response was a decline of only 30 to 35 points.

Additional selling orders came in with the decline extending to net losses of 48 to 83 points during the afternoon, but there was a good trade demand on a scale down and closing quotations showed rallies of 19 to 24 points from the lowest.

Figures Not Interesting

The figures of the Census bureau showing ginnings of 171,254 bales prior to August attracted very little attention. The crop indication of 12,314,000 bales compared with last year's crop of 13,002,000 and preliminary estimates placing last season's consumption at from 14,132,000 to 14,400,000 bales.

Exports today 15,865, making 143,844 so far this season. U. S. port stocks 2,974,999.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8. (AP)—The government crop forecast of 12,314,000 bales, a million and a quarter bales above current trade estimates, dominated the cotton market today but futures rallied strongly after a dip of 60 points from morning highs to show net losses of only 27 to 32 points at the close, a comparatively small reaction in view of the bureau figure.

The opening was steady as Liverpool came in slightly better than due and prebureau liquidation appeared to have been completed. Manchester said cloth and yarns were quiet. When the market reassembled to receive the government report October was trading at 9.92 and December at 10.15 or 3 to 4 points net lower.

Drop Is Prompt

When trading was resumed after the bureau's figures were received prices promptly dropped to 9.60 for October and 9.77 for December or 32 to 38 points below the pre-bureau levels and 36 to 41 points below the previous close.

The market had a good rally in the late afternoon owing to covering by satisfied shorts and in sympathy with a sharp upturn in stocks. October rallied to 9.68 and December to 9.88 up 22 to 25 points from the lows. October closed at 9.64, and December at 9.86 or 32 points net lower for both months.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 4 penny points up.

Port receipts 18,596, for week 38,679, for season 81,177, last season 70,533. Exports 15,505, for week 50,122, for season 163,620, last season 114,062. Port stock 2,979,664, last year 3,351,906. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 63,935, last year 70,677. Spot sales at southern markets 7,144, last year 15,334.

Flies which feed on sugar alone never lay eggs.

Prices ranged as follows, basis car loads on track at Fort Worth freight paid to destination:

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate or Texas common points: Wheat No. 1 hard 1.06@1.07. Barley No. 2 nominally 63@65; No. 3 nominally 62@64. Sorghums No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 1.50@1.55; No. 3 milo 1.45@1.50.

Delivered Texas common points: Oats No. 2 red 45@46; No. 3 red 44@45.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Aug. 8. (AP)—Fluctuating nervously, wheat prices here made a last minute quick recovery today from skidding that accompanied New York cotton market weakness and Winnipeg wheat quotations unsettlement.

The sudden rally of wheat values at the last indicated to pit observers that the market was in an oversold condition. Offers of wheat at times showed decided strength parallel with reports that President Roosevelt and various economic advisers were to discuss the commodity dollar, and that a major development in administration currency plans appeared probable.

Close Is Irregular

Wheat closed irregular, 1-4 off to 3-8 up compared with yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 7-8 down, oats at 1-4 decline to 2-8 advance, and provisions showing 7 to 20 cents setback.

Prevailing sentiment among wheat traders most of the time today was notably less pessimistic than yesterday, and the volume of dealings somewhat larger. A statement from one of the largest grain companies in Chicago emphasized that vast economic changes were taking place, and that the government was definitely committed to bringing about increased employment, higher wages and higher commodity prices, especially on agricultural products. The statement added that with domestic production of all grains running more than 1,000,000,000 bushels below last year, the price structure was greatly strengthened.

Cotton Break Hurts

Temporarily, however, a sharp break in the cotton market did much to upset the wheat trade, and tumbled wheat prices down more than 2 cents a bushel from the day's top. Meanwhile, relative weakness of Winnipeg and Liverpool wheat markets where business was resumed after holidays, had an additional disturbing influence. On the other hand, the United States government crop report expected on Thursday was expected to confirm severe reductions in all grain yields as forecast by leading private authorities.

Corn was dragged down by late reports of more liberal offerings to arrive from rural sources. Oats receipts showed signs of diminishing.

Provisions reflected chiefly the weakness of cotton.

Cotton Crop

southern farmers who agreed to plow up their cotton were low in their estimates of its potential production this year.

Officials said, however, there would be no additional payment because the acres reduced might have yielded over 4,000,000 bales instead of the 3,500,000 which the farm administration had figured on. The contracts are already in effect and it was pointed out that the farmers production estimate was made by taking an average over a period of years.

Cash Payments Large

Payments to the farmers who signed the reduction contracts range from $6 to $12 an acre where the growers were allowed option on government-owned cotton at 6 cents a pound. The straight cash rental payment will be from $7 to $20 an acre. Exclusive of the option contract, farm officials estimate cash payments to the growers will be more than $100,000,000.

The forecast on acreage eliminated from production showed that the warmest response was from the states which grow most of the staple. Texas agreed to plow up about 4,305,000 bales; Oklahoma 1,160,000; Mississippi and Arkansas 925,000 each.

Carryover Is Huge

Piled high by the 1931 bumper crop and under consumption from the depression, the world carry-over of cotton was estimated on July 31 at 15,500,000 bales, a reduction of about 2,000,000 bales under the same period last year.

The Carry-over of American cotton in the United States was estimated at around 9,400,000 bales on July 1 but consumption was heavy during the past month.

Poet Laureate Will Be Named

Senator Arthur Duggan Heads Joint Legislative Body To Name State Rhymester When Solons Gather At Captial

Selection of a poet laureate for Texas is to be made by a joint committee of the Texas legislature, probably during the coming called session, according to Senator Arthur P. Duggan, Littlefield, chairman. The committee was named by the 43rd state legislature during its recent session.

Members are: Arthur P. Duggan, Littlefield, chairman and Margie E. Neal, Carthage, senators, and J. O. Duvall, Fort Worth; George W. Winningham, Mexia, and Walter E. Jones, Jourdanton, representatives.

Meeting At Austin

"A meeting of this committee will be called at Austin during the special session of the legislature, expected to be called in September," said the chairman. "Those desiring to enter the contest may submit their writings to any member of the committee and the same will be considered at that time."

Judd Mortimer Lewis, Houston poet and columnist, was the first person to hold the post, a purely honorary one.

Scientists Say Tumbling Mountain Offers Snapshot Of The Centuries; Mighty Peak Being Reduced To Nothing

Millions of tons of rock and earth have slipped down the steep slope of Carbon mountain, near Durango, Colo., in recent months. Some of the disturbances, as the one photgraphed here, have been marked by gaseous clouds believed to have been caused by subterranean explosions. Dotted line No. 2 traces the fault, or dislocation of rock masses, where the disturbance began originally; No. 1, a new fault. As the drawing shows, the town is protected by an intervening mountain.

DURANGO, Colo., Aug. 8. (AP) — Mother Nature's handiwork, ordinarily veiled by the slow march of centuries, is crystallized into swift, visible drama in the phenomenal disintegration of mighty Carbon mountain, uncanny, restless peak of the San Juans.

While men look on in wonder, swift geological action in the space of a few hours is digging canyons, creating enormous fissures in solid granite, filling up a valley.

A mighty peak is being reduced to a shapeless mass of torn debris, huge pine trees are being torn from their moorings and the entire contour of the once solid mountain is being swiftly changed.

Picture Of The Ages

Geologists have likened the faulting action to a vignette of the centuries of slow geological action that produced the rugged Rocky mountains.

The high point of the display was a deep underground explosion that shook the mountain from base to capstone and caused clouds of black smoke to pour forth from a fissure near the crest.

The explosion probably was caused by the igniting of a pocket of gas in a vein of soft coal under the surface. Before that volcanic display occurred there had been a constant odor of coal gas, together with bluish vapors, about the peak. This was caused, geologists said, by the burning of a lignite—soft coal—bed deep within.

Reasons For Action

Geologists are of two minds as to the cause of the faulting action. Some hold the surface disturbance is caused by the slow burning of the coal bed beneath. This might slowly have weakened the structure and caused the surface to slip.

Others believe erosion of soft material along the sides of the mountain has weakened the support of millions of tons of rock on and near the summit.

Whatever the cause, the show put on by Old Carbon is without peer, experts say, on the North American continent.

A rough estimate is that 35,000,000 tons of mountain material has been dislodged and deposited elsewhere. An engineer estimated that a steam shovel would have to work 108 years to move the material shuttled by nature on the peak within 24 hours.

No Danger To Town

Carbon mountain lies three miles south of Durango. At first the population was alarmed lest the moving mass engulf the city. Engineers and geologists assured them the action was entirely local and there was no danger.

A larger mountain, standing stiff and steady between Carbon mountain and the little town, is a bulwark of safety.

There will be dancing, including the old time square dances, and other amusements. Fred Bell, Floydada, was given the concession contract.

NRA Opposing Shorter Hours

Agreements To Shorten Store Hours Are Declared Not In Keeping With The Spirit Of President's Program

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The official NRA attitude is that shorter business hours conflict with the president.t's blanket code.

A. D. Whiteside, deputy administrator, has wired the Indiana Retail Grocers association urging it to "give serious consideration to the fact that in several local communities retailers are making joint agreements to shorten store hours."

Violates Agreement

"This is not in keeping," he stated, "with either the spirit or the fact as expressed in the president's reemployment agreement or in the president's statements regarding reemployment of which the essence is to effect an increase both in reemployment and in wages to those employed.

"The proposal to shorten store hours is in violation of section 8 of the president's reemployment agreement. Reconsideration of the provision of the retail codes and possible withdrawal of insignia will be necessary immediately if community or concerted action to shorten store operating hours is taken."

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 57

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The lovely Jane had never forgotten her strange experience in the African jungle. Nor her handsome forest-god. But many troubles beset her. Their depleted fortunes, her father's health, the ardent wooing of young Clayton, now an avowed suitor, all worried her. Still loving Tarzan, Jane never expected to see him again.

For her father's sake she had accepted Clayton's invitation to visit his hunting-camp. She admired this rich, titled Englishman—but love was another matter. She must decide. . . . Today she had wandered far into the woods, absorbed in her thoughts. Suddenly to the east she was aware of approaching smoke.

For a week a forest fire had raged near them, but no danger threatened. Now she perceived the rushing flames were swiftly forcing their way between herself and the cottage. She gave herself up for lost. . . . Suddenly she heard a shout . . . her name called in a strong, clear voice . . . a strange one.

She answered . . . saw a figure swing through the smoke. Suddenly she felt a great arm about her . . . felt herself lifted and borne aloft. Jane thought she was living over in a dream the experiences of the far African jungle. Would it were he of that other day again saving her! But that was impossible.

Yet who else in all the world was there with the strength and agility to do what this man was now doing? She stole a sudden glance at the face close to hers and then she gave a little frightened gasp. It was he—her man—TARZAN OF THE APES.

Absentee Vote Blanks Arrive

Lubbock People Who Will Not Be Here August 26 May Get Ballots From County Clerk; Four Applications In

Lubbock county residents who are planning to be out of their voting precincts August 26 may cast absentee ballots at the county clerk's office.

Four applications for absentee votes had been filed with the county clerk yesterday. They were mailed here by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Griggs who are visiting in Bluff Dale, Mrs. Bruce Bryan who is visiting in Grand Prairie, and William M. Wilson, a negro school teacher, who is in Waco.

Six Proposals Up

Lubbock county voters August 26 will register their opinions on six propositions, half of which involve prohibition. These issues are repeal or retention of the 18th amendment, whether 3.2 beer may be sold in Texas, whether beer of the same alcoholic content may be sold in Lubbock county.

A $20,000,000 bond issue for relief of unemployment, exemption of $3,000 of the assessed taxable value of all residence homesteads from state taxes, and a proposed amendment to the states constitution providing authority for county home rule are other proposals to be considered.

To secure an absentee ballot, the voter must present his poll tax or a certificate that he has paid it or is entitled to an exemption.

New Mexico Is After Big Dam

Texas And Colorado Are Also Affected In Project Asked By Governor Seligman; Aid To Vast Region Stressed

(By The Associated Press)

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 8.—Construction of three and a half million dollar drain and reservoir is asked of the Public Works board in an application directed to Secretary Ickes by Gov. Arthur Seligman of New Mexico, the project to affect Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

The first public works proposal to be affected by a multi-state treaty, it is approved by Texas and New Mexico, and now Colorado's approval is sought to insure its inclusion in the national program.

Time Limit Agreed On

The project is provided in the tri-state compact on the Rio Grande and the states given, under a temporary agreement, until 1935 to institute its construction. If started in that time, provision is made to extend the agreement until completion.

An area in Colorado would be drained by the drain plan to cost about one and a half million dollars. The water in this region now goes to waste, according to New Mexico State Engineer George M. Neel. The reservoir would be constructed on the Rio Grande at the Colorado-New Mexico state line to impound the reclaimed waters from the sump drain and would control the flow to prevent floods in New Mexico. The reservoir would cost about two million dollars.

Waters now evaporating in the sump drain would replace the 60,000 acre feet a year the United States government granted the Republic of Mexico from the Rio Grande.

The work on both the train and reservoir would employ several hundred men steadily for about two years Neel estimated.

Machine Invented By State Employe To Be Used To Eradicate Boll W

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—A machine, invented by a state employe, will be given a trial by the Texas Department of Agriculture, to test its efficacy in exterminating the pink boll worm.

J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, has ordered manufactured two of the machines, a high pressure steam sterilizer, and they will be operated at state expense on baled cotton in West Texas, he said.

Has Been Tested

G. J. Scholl, draftsman in the state agricultural department, devised the machine, which already has been tested by state and federal agricultural workers with satisfactory results.

Bales of cotton will be subjected to high pressure steam which will kill boll worms within three inches of the surface, and compression will kill the pests from the steam penetration to the center of the bale, McDonald said.

Heretofore fumigation has been used to treat the cotton, the cost for that process having bee $2 to $2.50 per bale. McDona if the new device proves e the cost will be lowered to fro to ten cents per bale.

The machines will cost from to $1,100, McDonald estimated.

Lubbock Convict Gets Parole Along With Others As 'Ma' Opens Pen Gate

C. E. Alexander, sentenced to six years in the penitentiary for incest here, received a conditional pardon from Governor Miriam A. Ferguson yesterday at Austin, the Associated Press reported.

Alexander pleaded guilty in 99th district court and a jury set his punishment November 21, 1931. He was transferred to the penitentiary January 2, 1932.

Other Clemencies Granted

Governor Ferguson granted six other conditional pardons and seven general paroles Tuesday.

Mack Tolliver, sentenced to five years from Mass county on a murder charge, was granted a full pardon. He was convicted in October, 1930.

Conditional pardons granted included:

Annie McCoy, Waller county, murder, seven years, convicted in October, 1930.

John Thomas, Cherokee county, criminal assault, life imprisonment, convicted in June, 1920.

Collie Bruner, Wichita county, theft, ten years, convicted in June, 1929.

General paroles granted included: Jimmie Lou Boyd, Hallie Spears, Wichita county, robbery, five years, convicted in January, 1930.

Manuel Brendel, Cameron county, theft by bailee, two years, convicted in October, 1932.

The governor granted a 90-day furlough to R. G. Leclere, Jefferson county, misappropriation of funds.

Capitol Chatter From Austin

CHARLES E. SIMONS

AUSTIN, Aug. 8. (AP)—Capitol employes are circulating a petition among state departments asking the governor to submit readjustment of state salaries at the prospective session of the Texas legislature next month.

When the legislature met in regular session it embarked on a strict economy program, slashing appropriations vigorously. In all the appropriations were aproximately 27 per cent under those provided by the preceding legislature.

Many Grumbles Heard

Many state employes were heard to grumble at the cuts. Since commodity prices have started to rise the grumbling has climaxed in the circulation of the petition.

Although there was minor opposition to the salary cuts effected at the regular session of the legislature, members for the most part joined willingly in the program, avowing that throughout the depression state employes had been drawing good salaries and could get along on reduced incomes. Opponents of salary cuts countered with assertions that the state capital was the most expensive city in the state to live in and that the salaries were barely adequate.

May Not Be Submitted

Whether the governor will submit the proposal is conjectural. The state treasury faces a deficit of several millions of dollars in its three main funds, the general, available school and confederate pension funds.

The governor has shown a strong desire to put the state on a cash basis as soon as possible and if this intention is carried out it is not likely she will recommend restoration of the old pay levels.

The salary reductions will become effective Sept. 1 and be in effect for two years.

Tax Payments Lag

Should tax payments increase and the amount of the delinquencies be reduced, it was seen as possible that the governor would accede to the wishes of her petitioners. Gauged by developments of the recent past, much can happen between now and the time the legislature will be called.

One of those circulating the petition said that every technical employe in the department in which he was employed was looking for another job after Sept. 1.

Ex-Lubbock Architect, Now Success As Writer, Returns Here For Visit

Walter E. Taylor, who after nearly 40 years as a practicing architect retired and became a successful free-lance writer, has returned to the South Plains from Los Angeles, where he passed the last year. He spoke of Lubbock as his home, having property and casting his vote here, although he passes much of his time in travel.

While in California, Mr. Taylor became a member of the Author's club of Hollywood. An opportunity to become the club's fourth ranking critic was rejected, he said, as it would interfere with his return to Texas.

Completes Book

Author of "The King of the Dixie Wilds" and of innumerable short stories, Mr. Taylor said he had completed an historical book, "Six Cattle Kings of Texas," not yet submitted to a publisher, and was working upon another, "Coronado." Old cowmen, he added, would recognize the cattle barons, not identified by actual name, from dates, places, and instances used.

His short stories, Mr. Taylor said, all were based upon fact although sometimes slightly embellished to improve a climax.

Something of a hobby with the writer is the tedious demonstration of just how many legible words he can put in a small space: 4,047 on the back of a postcard, the ten commandments on the back of a postage stamp, and others. He is 77 years old.

Was Architect Here

Mr. Taylor came to Texas in 1865. He practiced architecture in Lubbock.

Tuesday morning he anticipated visiting a brother, B. W. Taylor, at Levelland.

Beginning writers found it easier to sell in normal times than at present, Mr. Taylor believes, but even easier in earlier days, as competition was less stringent. A difficulty, he added, is that a writer usually "falls in love with his brainchild," and is convinced it is superior.

While I. Francis of Mills, Cal., was away from home, thieves carried away his windmill and tower.

bed for her breakfast. After that she would dawdle over letters, the newspapers or perhaps a sensational novel. Then came the fine art of dressing which always took an hour and often more. As the clock struck one she usually sauntered forth to meet some one for luncheon or to hunt up diversion for the day.

This Monday morning found her up at eight and dressed by nine. In her car a half hour later she ordered Grier to an address on a side street.

The chauffeur, waiting before this address, smiled the cynical smile that came often to his honest Irish lips. His eyes were on the gilt lettering that appeared on a plate glass window. Women like Lida Stafford went to detective agencies for just one reason—to ferret out secrets to use for blackmail or a divorce.

* * *

Grier wondered about Mrs. Stafford's errand as he waited in the new car she had bought the day after her daughter's marriage. "She can't be havin' that husband of hers shadowed," he mused. "He can't get gay, tied like he is to his bed and a wheel chair!" Grier gave up the riddle.

Meanwhile inside Lida had explained her errand. The sleek individual who sat back of the desk had listened to her tale and written Barrett Colvin's name and New York address on a pad. Now he said, "We'll do all that is possible and we'll keep you informed, Mrs. Stafford. If the facts are what you think they are and Mr. Colvin makes a trip to Connecticut soon it won't take us very long to give you the lowdown!"

Lida smiled.

"We usually number these cases," the man went on. "For one thing it makes telephone calls easier. Your case will be—" he consulted records—"6072B."

Lida wrote, "6072B" in a small engagement book, murmuring as she did so, "Thank you!"

"Not at all, Mrs. Stafford—"

She rose and drew her coat around her. The man's eyes appraised her, running over her slowly from head to foot and back again. Lida was warmed, reassured. She had been so alone since Vance Carter's "absurd outbreak." Men had been shy of her. She had once or twice felt the threat of age and wondered what she would do with time—and herself—when she was old. She had no investment that would return peace as the fire burned low. She did not realize her lack of resource. She thought only, "Old age is hideous!"

She left the place smiling over the memory of this strange man's sensuously glittering eyes. Her daughter would have shuddered at their light and struggled to forget it.

The day was clear, unusually warm. "Perhaps," Lida mused, "Barrett will drive up there this afternoon!"
