Poles wonder 'what happened at Wawel'

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst Washington Bureau

WARSAW — Although martial law has been lifted and hundreds of political prisoners are due to be released, Poles still speculate about "what happened at the Wawel" when Pope John Paul II and Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski met for a surprise second secret session just before the pope departed his homeland.

Informed government officials, however, insist that Jaruzelski was able to persuade the pope that his regime is as moderate as the Soviet Union will permit without military intervention.

There is relatively little secrecy about the topics of their first meeting–a two-hour session at the Belvedere Palace June 17, immediately after the pope's arrival. But the country's 36 million people remain in the dark about the June 23 conference, which the government described as a "four eyes" meeting, meaning only the two men were present. That session may have been responsible for the government's subsequent decision to end the active phase of its crackdown on Solidarity and political opposition groups.

Poland's Sejm (parliament) set the stage Thursday for ending martial law by passing an amnesty decree and legislation giving police broad powers to curb dissent, although the centerpiece of the government's legal package extending many of the restrictions of martial law through 1985 was delayed by disagreements among the deputies.

As best as can be reconstructed, the two men met the second time for one hour and 37 minutes at the Wawel, the seat of Poland's kings, in a session requested by John Paul.

The meeting was summed up by a government aide, who requested anonymity, as "a heartwrenching appeal by Jaruzelski for papal understanding" that martial law and the military takeover in December 1981 were necessary "to keep Poland Poland."

Jaruzelski, additional sources reported, repeatedly insisted that the nation and the Roman Catholic Church ought to accept his brand of governnment since it is the only regime capable of acting independently. No one would speculate as to what such acceptance means to the fate of Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, whom the government has stripped of power.

The general is said to have warned the pope that, if he fails, the alternative would be other Polish rulers who would be backed by the Russians and favor a harsher crackdown.

Jaruzelski is seen as having formidable problems within the Communist party leadership on ideological, economic and social questions, as well as his general "live and let live" attitude toward discontent in Poland.

A showdown between the party moderates he heads and the hardliners, led by Foreign Minister Stefan Olszowski, is expected sometime this fall.

Jaruzelski allegedly acknowledged at his meeting with the pope that daily life in Poland is difficult, conceded there is resentment and bitterness among its people and admitted injustice and repression.

But he is reported to have stuck to his guns by insisting that although his brand of leadership is unpopular in Moscow, it is a leadership with which the Soviets are willing to live if Poland remains socialist and a loyal Soviet ally.

Thunderstorms cool heat wave

By KIM MILLS
Associated Press Writer

Ferocious thunderstorms broke into the nation's two-week heat wave, knocking out power to over 100,000 customers and dousing a Diana Ross concert in New York's Central Park, where 400,000 fled as rain turned the Great Lawn into a "great lake."

By Thursday the deadliest hot spell since 1980 had caused the deaths of 37 people and was also killing cattle and dogs. More than 300 people around the country had suffered from heat-related illnesses.

Hail-packed thunderstorms brought a mixed blessing to the East and Midwest, breaking the heat but leaving tens of thousands of electric power customers in darkness Thursday.

"New England may be one of the nice places to be this weekend," said Rick Cundy, a meteorologist with the National Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo. "They should be cooling off today as the front pushes through. But for the vast majority of the country, it's just going to be another hot, muggy day."

One of several thunderstorms that ripped through Maryland knocked down a century-old downtown Baltimore building that was being restored as part of a multi-million dollar hotel project.

"It looked like a brick snowstorm," said police officer Richard Morris. "It just fell."

In New York, the same thunderstorm that washed out Miss Ross's concert left some 20,000 homes and businesses dark on Long Island.

Miss Ross sang soul standards like "Baby Love" in Manhattan's Central Park for 45 minutes, and belted out "Stop! In the Name of Love" with her hands pointing toward the heavens before rain and lightning forced her to send her sopping fans home.

"The Great Lawn is a great lake," said Adrian Benepe, a spokesman for the Parks Department. Department officials said they hoped the concert could be held tonight anyway.

In Lisbon, Ohio, a power outage forced The Morning Journal to cancel today's edition because there was no electricity to run the presses, said the newspaper's managing editor, Jay Thwaite.

Up to 30,000 customers were without power in Akron on Thursday and 10,000 were blacked out in Toledo, utility spokesmen said.

At least 25,000 in Detroit were without power Thursday night, as were 11,500 more customers elsewhere in the state.

In Delaware, Milford radio station WAFL was knocked out of service after its building was apparently struck by lightning, according to Chuck Marcus, its news director.

"We were struck twice," said Marcus. "I'm looking at the clock right now and the clock stopped at 9:07."

The storms also closed major roads in six Maryland counties, police said.

In Illinois, the heat wave continued to shrivel the corn crop as temperatures remained above 90 degrees for 12 consecutive days and no rain fell for the 17th day in a row.

"We're at the critical stage," said Dan Zwicker of the Illinois Farm Bureau. "We're shaving yields off from the bumper crop level. If we don't get rain in the next five to 10 days, the corn crop is very much in jeopardy."

In Minnesota, 36,000 customers in Minneapolis and St. Paul were without power for the fourth day today after winds of more than 100 mph toppled lines. Crews were working 16-hour shifts to restore electricity to those who have been in the dark since Tuesday.

Work has been slow because trees have continued to fall onto power lines, said Wayne Kaplan, Northern States Power Co. spokesman.

"Also, with the heat and humidity, some equipment is burning out," he said. "Customers who have been without power for two days go back on, turn on everything for a couple of hours and the power goes off again."

Fifteen people have died in Missouri, where triple-digit temperatures led officials in St. Louis to declare a heat emergency. Ten have died in Georgia, according to state officials, including an elderly man who had turned on the space heaters and stove in his home.

More than 300 cattle perished in South Dakota and at least five dogs died in Virginia, according to a veterinarian at the Tidewater Veterinary Emergency Hospital.

Falling food prices slow inflation rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices, falling at their steepest clip in seven years, held June's consumer price increase to only 0.2 percent, the government said today. For the first half of 1983, prices overall rose at an annual rate of just 2.9 percent.

Today's announcement capping a week of good news for the economy, said food prices were off 0.3 percent, largely the product of cheaper beef, pork and fresh vegetables.

Moderating gasoline prices — up 0.7 percent — also helped restrain last month's price gains. Those prices had risen 8.3 percent in the preceding months, the Labor Department said.

The new Consumer Price Index gave economists fresh evidence for their prediction that, for all of 1983, inflation could match or better last year's 3.9 percent gain.

Indeed, today's report said that for the last 12 months, prices overall rose a modest 2.6 percent.

Energy prices overall last month rose only 0.3 percent after climbing 3.8 percent in May. Natural gas prices fell 0.4 percent in June after rising 2.5 percent earlier while heating oil prices were off 0.5 percent after a gain of 3.8 percent.

In the preceding 21 months, natural gas prices had risen at a 22.5 percent annual clip.

The food price drop was the sharpest since a 0.5 percent decline in March 1976. Grocery store food prices tumbled 0.6 percent last month. Beef and veal prices fell 1.8 percent and pork prices were off 1.7 percent to make those meats cheaper than they were a year ago.

Declines were also posted for fresh vegetables, off 3.9 percent, and fresh fruit, down 0.3 percent. Those prices had soared earlier in the year because of heavy rains and unusually cold conditions over much of the nation's prime agricultural land.

Prices for restaurant meals rose 0.3 percent and alcoholic beverage prices were up 0.4 percent. Food prices overall had risen 0.3 percent in May.

Medical care costs rose 0.5 percent, well in line with the increases of the last three months. Overall, however, medical costs have soared 8.9 percent in the last 12 months, the sharpest gain for any of the major components of the CPI. Hospital room charges rose 0.4 percent, while doctors' fees were up 0.7 percent.

Today's price report ended a week of good economic news:

—The Commerce Depratment said the economy was growing at a robust 8.7 percent annual rate in the April-June quarter, more than triple the pace of the first quarter.

—Factory use rose to 74.5 percent of capacity last month, the highest rate since February 1982, the Federal Reserve Board said.

—New applications for unemployment benefits tumbled to their lowest level in more than two years, the Labor Department said.

—The stock market rallied to its highest level since November after Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker announced the central bank's policy guidelines for the rest of this year and into 1984, actions that could forestall further credit tightening.

Passengers thwart attempted hijacking

By JENNY KELLNER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — After a quick exchange of hand signals when an unwary air pirate put his knife down, a bedsheet salesman and a middle-aged executive foiled a hijacking by grabbing the man's arms and holding him until he could be tied down.

The attempted hijacking of the Northwest Orient Airlines jet, which was on a Tampa-to-Miami flight Thursday, came a day after the Federal Aviation Administration announced new steps to combat a rash of hijackings to Cuba. There were two successful hijackings earlier this week, and eight since May 1.

The man suspected of trying to divert Flight 714 to Cuba was identified as Rodolfo Bueno Cruz, 42, the FBI said.

Cruz was arrested when the Boeing 727 landed in Miami and will be charged with air piracy, said FBI spokesman Chris Mazzella. A preliminary hearing was scheduled before a U.S. magistrate today.

Passenger Dewey Parker, a Miami steamship executive, said the incident began when Cruz, seated across the aisle, asked for help in calling a stewardess.

"When the stewardess arrived, he wrestled her into the seat" and pulled a five-inch knife, said Parker, 45. "At that point we just stayed calm. The stewardess told him, 'I'd like to get up and serve drinks,' but he said, 'No, you're my insurance policy.'"

Cruz then sent another stewardess to the cockpit to tell the captain to fly to Cuba, Parker said.

About 20 minutes later Parker noticed that Cruz had put the knife on the seat under his legs, so he "signaled silently" to Blake Bell, 29, a sales representative from Miami, who was sitting in the window seat next to the stewardess.

"It was a very tricky situation because...I was sitting there looking at Dewey and trying to communicate back to him very discreetly that I realized immediately that I knew what he wanted to do," Bell said during an interview on ABC's Nightline.

"I demonstrated how to grab him," Parker said. "I gave him (Bell) a one, two, three count. We tried it a few times but every time we tried it someone would walk through the aisle.

"Finally, on the count of three, he grabbed the hijacker's right arm, and I grabbed the hijacker's left arm, and then we got assistance," Parker said.

Duke Rigdon, an Eastern Airlines flight steward who was sitting in the row behind the three, reached over and grabbed Cruz by the hair. Rigdon and the others tied up Cruz with seat belts and a cord from an oxygen mask.

"We've never known each other before tonight, before this flight," Parker said. "I wouldn't advise this for everyone. I think it was a unique situation...and it was an opportunity and we had to grab it."

It was the first time an attempted hijacked had been foiled since October of last year, when a would-be hijacker was shoved out the door of a Trans World Airlines jumbo jet at the Los Angeles airport.

In March of 1982 two men jumped a hijacker who attempted to divert a Chicago-to-Miami flight, and in April of 1981 a Cuban refugee who tried to divert an Eastern Airlines flight died in a scuffle with passengers.

Airline officials said Cruz walked through a metal detector before boarding the plane and it was not known how he got the knife aboard.

Cruz arrived in the United States in April 1980. His former roommate said Cruz had been a political prisoner in Cuba from 1965 to 1974.

According to Hillsborough County Court records, Cruz was arrested in September 1980 on charges he raped a retarded 16-year-old girl.

Showers in bands from Montana, South Dakota and Idaho to Arizona and New Mexico, and from the Great Lakes into Oklahoma and the Carolinas, are forecast by the National Weather Service.

Temperatures in 100s forecast

Midland is expected to catch up with the rest of the nation as the mercury tops the three-digit mark this weekend.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, it will continue to by sunny and hot.

Tonight's temperature should increase some 3 or 4-degrees, bringing the nightfall reading to near 70. And Saturday's high is expected to hit the century mark. Southerly winds should blow 10-15 mph.

Thursday's high of 97 fell short of the record 103 reading set in 1981, while the overnight low of 67 was several degrees warmer than the record of 60 set in 1961.

Showers linger

By The Associated Press

Scattered thunderstorms lingered today over the southwestern quarter of the nation and from the south Atlantic states to the Ohio Valley following a night of violent winds and drenching rains.

More that a dozen tornadoes skipped across the northeastern quarter of the nation late Thursday, spawned by thunderstorms from Wisconsin to Virginia.

One person was killed and several others injured when a twister damaged a home at Hartly, Del., west of Dover.

Tornadoes ripped up trees near Albany, N.Y., and Mancheser, Md., and winds gusted to 80 mph near Harrisburg, Pa.

Nearly a half-million people who gathered in New York's Central Park for a free Diana Ross concert Thursday evening were drenched by torrential rains. The concert was rescheduled for tonight.

Thunderstorms were widely scattered from the desert Southwest to the central Rockies as the week-long heat wave continued across the South and Midwest.

Sizzling temperatures around 100 degrees were expected today from central Texas to Missouri, and above 100 in the desert Southwest.

The southern two-thirds of the nation was expected to swelter in the 90s, while the northern states faced a milder mercury in the 70s and 80s, the National Weather Service said.

Temperatures at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 49 degrees at Alpena, Mich., Kalispell, Mont. and Burns, Ore., to 92 at Yuma, Ariz.

Some other reports:

—East: Atlanta 81 hazy; Boston 67 fair; Buffalo 63 fair; Charleston, S.C., 82 hazy; Cincinnati 80 cloudy; Cleveland 73 cloudy; Detroit 69 partly cloudy; Miami 82 partly cloudy; New York 71 windy; Philadelphia 72 fair; Pittsburgh 67 partly cloudy, Washington 80 partly cloudy.

—Central: Bismarck 60 fair; Chicago 77 fair; Dallas-Fort Worth 80 fair; Denver 63 thunderstorm; Des Moines 83 fair; Indianapolis 78 fair; Kansas City 80 fair; Minneapolis-St. Paul 79 fair; Nashville 84 fair; New Orleans 77 hazy, St. Louis 86 fair.

—West: Albuquerque 76 cloudy; Anchorage 62 showers; Las Vegas 73 partly cloudy; Los Angeles 65 hazy; Phoenix 91 cloudy; Salt Lake City 77 cloudy; San Diego 70 fair; San Francisco 58 cloudy, Seattle 63 fair.

Canada: Montreal 59 fair; Toronto 57 fair.

Arkansas: Mostly fair with hot days and warm nights through Saturday. Isolated afternoon thundershowers south. Highs 95 to near 100. Lows in the 70s.

Oklahoma: Mostly fair with hot days and warm nights through Saturday. Highs 95 to 103. Lows in the 70s.

New Mexico: Fair to partly cloudy with showers ending tonight. Variable cloudiness Saturday with widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers mountains and west.

Poland continues to wonder

And, sources report, he repeated his commitment to put into place the agreements to improve the workers' lives which were won by the Solidarity trade union in August 1980.

The pope reportedly made it clear he is not satisfied with the direction of what the government calls its reform policies and suggested an alternative program emphasizing freedom, conscience and respect for human rights.

He is said to have again appealed for a blanket amnesty for political prisoners, the reinstatement of those fired from jobs for political reasons and a full lifting of martial law.

Probably the most significant political result of the two meetings for the pope will prove to be the further strenghening of role of the Roman Catholic Church here under communism.

For his part, the general, who is also the country's prime minister and Communist party leader, gained the pope's partial acceptance — although not his blessing.

Most importantly for Jaruzelski, said a prominent Roman Catholic bishop, the meeting showed the church's willingess to achieve national reconciliation by peaceful means.

"We will have a truce for as long as the government lives up to its agreements," explained the bishop.

Jaruzelski had noted pointedly that "when the state gets weaker or lapses into anarchy, the price is paid by the nation. We in Poland know all too well this historic truth." The pope emerged from the Wawel meeting with the general in a relaxed mood. After being driven a few blocks down the street to the Primate's Palace, his official residence in Krakow, he stayed up until nearly midnight. He joked with thousands gathered outside who had shouted at him "what happened at the Wawel."

Whatever transpired between them, the general feeling is that the pope, who repeatedly called for revival of Solidarity, the revocation of martial law and restoration of Poland's "proper place among the nations of Europe, between the East and the West," had listened to the general.

As a Pole himself, the pope did not have to be told that Poland has only a narrow field for maneuver where the Soviet Union is concerned.

Tough laws replace martial law as Poland's 'freedom' restored

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — After enduring 19 months of martial law, Poles awoke today with civilian government reinstated but with tough new laws in place to suppress dissent.

Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Communist Party chief, told a nationwide television audience Thursday that he was rescinding martial law today because of what he called a return to tranquility after months of unrest.

But Jaruzelski's speech came after the Communist-controlled Parliament granted the civilian government emergency power to suspend civil liberties and passed legislation to strengthen the police and tighten restrictions on workers, students and academics.

"Anarchy will not return to Poland," said Jaruzelski, dressed in full military uniform. "Any attempts at anti-state activity will be curbed no less unswervingly than during martial law."

Jaruzelski decreed martial law Dec. 13, 1981, to crush 16 months of strikes and political challenges by the independent Solidarity union. Solidarity was suspended under martial law and formally outlawed last October, although the union and its leader, Lech Walesa, remain popular.

Today's return to civilian government coincides with Poland's national day, and was accompanied by a limited amnesty freeing about 800 martial-law violators. But the amnesty does not extend to seven fugitive members of Solidarity or others considered a political threat to the Communists.

"Organizers of counter-revolution should harbor no illusions whatsover," Jaruzelski said. "The lifting of martial law is not tantamount to the cessation of struggling with evil and crime. Law enforcement organs should hit hard at this dangerous fringe."

Jaruzelski's warning came less than a month before the third anniversary of Solidarity, formed during Gdansk shipyard strikes in August 1980. Walesa and underground Solidarity leaders have hinted there will be anniversary protests.

Walesa said by telephone from his Gdansk home that the end of martial law presented a "new situation, so it will be necessary to talk it over, take a closer look at it and adjust and finally find methods of implementing the August accords." Those accords briefly allowed Solidarity to function independently of the government.

Lifting the military decree will have little noticeable effect on the daily lives of Poles. Indifference appeared to be the general reaction among Polish citizens at first.

"It doesn't mean anything," said one gray-haired woman in a Warsaw street. "The new restrictions will be even worse."

"So what?" said one chemical engineer.

The government's decision to lift martial law appeared aimed partly at convincing the United States and other Western nations to ease economic sanctions imposed in response to the military crackdown.

More than 150 hurt in Mexican riot

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Riot police on motorcycles and fire trucks charged thousands of screaming demonstrators, breaking bones with billy clubs and bowling bodies over with water hoses in Mexico's worst police-civilian clash in more than a decade.

Hundreds of club-swinging foot patrolmen also waded into the crowd in the demonstration Thursday night in downtown Mexico City, where thousands of people jammed a busy intersection and blocked traffic to protest government plans to close a teachers college. More than 150 were reported injured.

Demonstration leaders told a news conference 83 protesters were arrested. Police did not mention arrests.

Police and city officials placed the number of demonstrators at 3,000, but protest organizers said the crowd numbered at least 7,000 when police charged.

The march of students and teachers of the Normal School, the city's state-run teachers college, blocked traffic for almost four hours at the corners of Reforma and Insurgents avenues, a busy intersection.

A police traffic controller said more than 100,000 vehicles backed up on the two thoroughfares and sidestreets when police finally cordoned off the area and officers started passing out riot-squad billy clubs.

Five minutes later, a negotiator from the mayor's office turned away from spokesmen for the demonstrators saying no settlement was in sight.

Scores of police mounted motorcycles and fire trucks with sirens screaming. Accompanied by hundreds of foot patrolmen in riot gear they charged the crowd, swinging clubs. Water blasts from the fire trucks bowled people over.

"We saw them go straight through the crowd, just going straight into the crowd. I couldn't believe it," said Celine Wenzel of Westchester, N.Y. who was standing in a doorway.

Workers in nearby office high-rises hurled papers, garbage cans and chairs from windows, apparently trying to hit policemen below. No one was seen hit by the falling debris.

Red Cross Capt. Enrique Mejia Guadarrama said more than 150 students and teachers were injured, many suffering cracked ribs and broken limbs. Ambulances clogged the main entrance to the school city's northside, where many injured were taken. Medics gave first aid to many on bloodstained desks.

Sun Belt mobility driving region to 'divorce belt'

AUSTIN (AP) — The Sun Belt has become a "divorce belt," thanks in part to high mobility in the area, according to a University of Texas researcher.

Norval Glenn, a sociology professor, said Sun Belt residents do not develop the community roots that help support a marriage.

"People are not in stable social groups for long periods of time and consequently there are not the same controls over their behavior," Glenn said Thursday.

"When you move around a lot it is hard to become integrated along with your spouse into social groups characterized by solidarity, value consensus and effective social controls," said the professor, who recently completed a study on divorce.

The study found that in the West South Central region (Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas), 27.3 percent of the males and 28.9 percent of the females have been divorced. The divorce rate for the West South Central, Mountain and Pacific regions is "more than half again as great as that for the other regions combined," Glenn said.

The researcheralso found that blacks have a divorce rate that is more than 50 percent higher than the divorce rate for whites. He said divorce rates are high for those who marry before age 20, and there is evidence of a small increase in divorce rates for those who marry for the first time beyond age 28.

He said the highest divorce rates are "for persons with no religion." The rate is larger for Protestants than for Catholics, and the rate for Jews is lower than that for Catholics. The most conservative denominations (the Nazarene, Pentecostal and Baptist) have relatively high divorce rates "in spite of their strong disapproval of divorce," Glenn said.

That statistic could be due to the "tendency for persons to be attracted to those denominations after the divorce or separation," according to a UT news release about the study.

Glenn was divorced 12 years ago, but has remarried.

Family hopes boy in coma will be aided in New York

CEDAR POINT, Ill. (AP) — The parents of a child who has been in a coma for over a year are hoping he will respond to treatment at a special New York clinic — a trip made possible in part by the generosity of their neighbors.

Two-year-old Mark Roberson Jr., who has been comatose since he fell into a swimming pool at a relative's house in California in May 1982, has been accepted as a patient at the International Coma Recovery Institute at South Nassau Community Hospital near Oceanside, N.Y.

"We'll probably have him here for a week or 10 days as we develop a program to bring him out of the coma," nurse Robin Grass said Wednesday. "It'll be a series of sensory stimuli and physical therapy that his parents can administer."

Mark's mother, Lisa, first learned of the clinic on ABC's "20-20" television show in March. She contacted the network and got the address for the clinic, and after a review of his case, Mark was accepted for treatment.

Ms. Grass concedes that the clinic's therapy approach is controversial, adding, "We don't make any promises." But she said that among the 200 patients treated at the clinic, 35 percent have returned to functional lives, 57 percent are improving and 92 percent have shown some response.

The Robersons' hopes were nearly wiped out by a year of mounting hospital bills, unemployment and frustration.

Mark's father asked to be discharged from the Navy to be near his family after his son's accident, and then he was laid off from his job as a cook. His wife works as a waitress, and the couple lives with her parents near Cedar Point about 90 miles southwest of Chicago.

"The hospital bill was $144,000 in California and there's no telling how much more will have to be spent," said Richard Corrigan, the boy's great-uncle.

But now that the Robersons have gotten the good news of the clinic's acceptance, their hopes are being bolstered further by the 350 residents of Cedar Point, who are holding a fund-raiser July 30.

"We're gonna block off the street in front of the fire station for a fun night," said Marge Corrigan, the wife of Mark's other great-uncle, Bob Corrigan.

Special envoy makes his third trip to Central America

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Special U.S. envoy Richard Stone headed today for an undisclosed destination in Central America on his third visit to the troubled region in less than two months.

U.S. naval forces prepared to deploy in the area, and leftist-ruled Nicaragua expressed hope that the move "will not lead to war."

Stone, who arrived here Thursday night, is expected to renew President Reagan's support for a Central American peace initiative proposed by the so-called Contadora group — Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama.

The group has scheduled a meeting in Panama City on July 28 with the foreign ministers of Central American nations in an effort to get Nicaragua to discuss its differences with its four neighbors.

A Contadora summit in Mexico last Sunday called for a verifiable freeze of armaments in the area, a ban on the supply of weapons to subversive groups and the withdrawal of all foreign military advisers, including 55 American noncombat trainers in El Salvador.

Stone's trip apparently is aimed at ensuring the U.S. viewpoint on the Central American situation will be made known before that meeting. But, on arrival at Mexico City's airport, he refused to discuss his mission.

The State Department has not ruled out a visit by Stone to Nicaragua.

In Managua, Nicaragua's interior minister, Tomas Borge, criticized U.S. naval action in the region, saying "the presence of an American fleet ... does not at all contribute to an easing of tension and it is to be hoped it will not lead to war."

In Washington, Reagan told reporters U.S. naval forces soon will flank Nicaragua on both its Atlantic and Pacific coasts for training exercises.

Shortly after his appointment, Stone undertook a 10-nation Latin American trip that ended in Mexico City on June 14. In early July, he made a second trip and was to have met secretly with Salvadoran leftist leaders in San Jose, Costa Rica, but the meeting never took place.

Along with the United States, Honduras, Costa Rica, Guatemala and El Salvador accuse Nicaragua's Sandinista government of threatening peace in the region by smuggling weapons to leftist guerrillas fighting for power in El Salvador and establishing close military ties with the Soviet Union and Cuba.

Nicaragua and Honduras also have been threatening war against each other because of attacks by Honduras-based rebels inside Nicaragua trying to overthrow the Sandinistas.

Borge described as a "desperate reaction" the statement by Reagan that it would be "extremely difficult" to achieve peace in Central America while Nicaraguan leftists remain in power.

"Nicaragua has made concrete proposals for peace in the region and it is now up to international organizations to fulfil their role," Borge told reporters.

On Wednesday, the Reagan administration termed a six-point Nicaraguan proposal for peace encouraging, and on Thursday Reagan called it a "first step," but added, "I don't think it's far enough ... what really is needed is what the contras (rebels) are asking for ... to bring democracy to Nicaragua."

Musicians' strike threatens New York's No.2 opera company

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera buffs are worried that a musicians' strike may bring down the curtain on the city's No.2 opera company, its diva-turned-director and what one critic calls their "long, valiant fight to survive."

The strike that closed the New York City Opera on July 7 "has gotten more publicity than the performances," admitted Martin Oppenheimer, opera vice chairman and chief labor negotiator. But he said neither a long strike nor cancellation of the company's summer season would kill "the people's opera."

The City Opera has spent its 39 years in the shadow of the bigger, richer Metropolitan Opera, with which it competes for donations, performers, audiences and attention.

Last summer the 69 orchestra musicians agreed to a wage moratorium, and now make an average of almost $200 a week less than their Metropolitan counterparts.

Beverly Sills, the opera's former star who became general director four years ago, has tried to improve its prospects. But musicians feel her tactics — such as moving from spring and fall seasons to a continuous summer-fall season to reduce rehearsal time — saves money by cutting their guaranteed work.

Strikers fear the economic gap between themselves and other musicians is widening; the company fears that higher labor costs will sink it deeper into debt.

And aficionados fear that the opera cannot survive the battle.

"The libretto looks familiar and the arias have a traditional ring, but the drama being played out by the company and its musicians is a potentially fatal one," New York Times music critic Donal Henahan wrote.

Unless it ends soon, he warned, "the final curtain could fall on a beleaguered troupe that has been scraping by for years."

Others note that the company loses $240,000 a week during its season and saves money by not performing. But Oppenheimer says that without performances the donations which supplement box office revenues will dry up.

Despite another fruitless negotiating session on Wednesday, Oppenheimer said questions about the survival of the opera's season, much less the company itself, were "premature."

"If you've got a cold, you don't worry about dying of pneumonia," he said. "We can survive even the cancellation of the season."

Opera officials say that although it may always be the city's "other" opera company, the City's prospects have been improving.

Attendance increased 15 percent last year, to 85 percent of capacity, after subscription ticket prices were reduced 20 percent. Increased sales more than compensated for the price cut and the company's deficit of $3 million has been reduced by a third.

City Opera ticket prices — which average $18 and go as low as $3.50 — are about half those of the Metropolitan Opera. As Miss Sills noted before the strike, "we are still within pocketbook reach of the average working person."

High-risk market in horses

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The bidding opened at $1 million. By the time it was over, the unnamed, unraced dark bay yearling was sold to an Arab sheik for a world-record $10.2 million.

"I'm a winner in a high-risk business," said the seller, coal operator Donald Johnson.

The risks are becoming increasingly attractive to investors.

"I think prices will continue to go up," said Tom Gentry who consigned 15 thoroughbreds and collected more than $7 million during the Keeneland July Selected Yearling Sale, the world's most prestigious thoroughbred auction, which ended Tuesday.

During the auction, 301 yearlings were sold for an average price of $501,495, 48.5 percent higher than the 1982 record of $337,734. The total take for the four sessions Monday and Tuesday was more than $150.9 million, up from $100.3 million last year.

RACING Update, an industry newsletter, has predicted that nationwide sales of yearlings, would show a 20 percent gain in 1983 because of the quality of sires and the growing success of Keeneland products in Europe's major races.

"The price paid for that one yearling was fantastic, unbelievable. It stuns you. I know because I've been there," Gentry said.

In 1979, Gentry sold a Hoist The Flag yearling for $1.6 million "which was a world record at the time."

Johnson was also stunned by the price brought by his horse, sired by Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner Northern Dancer.

"When I saw that final price go up on the scoreboard, I didn't believe it. But I'm going to take the money," he said.

The purchaser was Aston Upthorpe Stud, owned by Sheik Mohammed bin Rashid al-Maktoum of Dubai, United Arab Emirates. It had paid nearly $6 million more than the previous world record for a thoroughbred yearling at public auction.

IN ALL, Aston Upthorpe purchased 21 yearlings for $28.67 million during the two days of the sale.

Robert Sangster, a member of the British syndicate bidding against the sheik, said Wednesday that "We wanted the horse and wanted him badly. We decided to quit at $10 million."

Sangster said his group, the British Bloodstock Agency, "got some pretty good stock out of this sale. Once again, we're taking away the cream of your yearling crop, but the prices that were paid will be good for your industry."

Last year, Sangster outbid Mohammed and bought Empire Glory, a colt by Nijinksky II-Spearfish, for $4.25 million, the previous record.

"Money makes the difference in this industry," he said. "It's like your top basketball and football players. Money always gets the best ones."

FOREIGN interests picked off most of Northern Dancer's offsprings at this sale, and Sangster said he wasn't surprised.

"After World War II, most of the top broodmares and stallions came to America. Now, the trend is going the other way."

State water board bans discharges into lakes

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite complaints that the action could triple sewage rates in the area, the Texas Water Development Board has protected lakes Austin and Travis with the state's stiffest anti-pollution rules.

The 5-1 vote on Thursday set a two-year ban on wastewater discharge into the lake. The ban also covers 10 miles out on tributaries that pour into the two Colorado River lakes.

The ban will remain in force until the completion of a two-year study of the effects of increased sewage discharges into the lakes, which are popular recreation areas. Both lakes are attracting rapid growth.

Lake Austin supplies 85 percent of Austin's water supply.

The lakes are in the center of the city's struggle with growth. Austin state Rep. Terral Smith said the stringent rule will "save the future generations money."

But opponents said the ban would hit the current generation in its checkbook.

"I'm swimming upstream in a rather fast current," attorney Robert Lloyd said as he looked around the crowded room. Most of the people were there to support the rule, and applauded the vote.

Lloyd, representing a municipal utility district, said the rule would drive up the cost of wastewater plants.

"We shouldn't be put in the position of spending money to try to save the world," he testified.

Paul Phy, representing the Lakeway MUD, said the rule should not have been adopted before the two-year study is completed.

Hightower says proposed water plan hard to decipher

AUSTIN (AP) — State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says he has trouble "deciphering the plan" in the 700-page water plan proposed by the Texas Department of Water resources.

"I am encouraged that there is no discussion in this particular document about the Mississippi River, and we are not going to haul any glaciers down here and melt them on the High Plains. That's some improvement," Hightower told the Texas Water Development Board on Thursday.

But he said the proposal is not the "action plan" needed for the state.

"I am impressed with the amount of data your people can collect and compile. But I have trouble deciphering the plan in this 700-page document we are discussing today," Hightower told the board.

The Austin session was the seventh of eight regional hearings on the proposed 50-year plan.

"Where this document leaves action to the private sector and local government, we need state involvement and leadership. I can't support any state plan that doesn't include a heavy dose of conservation, and I mean financing as well as lip service," Hightower told the board.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told the board that the water plan is replete with projections and statistics, but Hobby said it is short on suggestions.

Bentsen bill would ground drug-smuggling pilots

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Pilots who smuggle drugs would lose their licenses to fly under a bill presented Thursday by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

A Senate subcommittee heard favorable testimony on the proposal from Bentsen and a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, who offered only technical amendments to the bill requiring the FAA to revoke the licenses of pilots convicted of drug trafficking.

Current law allows the FAA to levy a one-year license suspension and $1,000 fine on convicted smugglers.

"My legislation will not solve the drug problem in this country," Bentsen told the Senate Subcommittee on Aviation. "What it will do, however, is put aircraft owners and pilots on notice that a license to fly is not a license to smuggle drugs."

An estimated 1.3 million pounds of illegal drugs will enter the United Stateson private planes this year, Bentsen said, with 90 percent of that coming over the Rio Grande.

According to FAA records in El Paso, 491 of more than 10,000 plane crashes between 1980 and 1982 involved planes carrying drug cargoes.

Disgruntled employee jailed in death of plant supervisor

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — A former employee, described as disgruntled about being fired from his warehouse job three weeks ago, was jailed today on charges he killed a supervisor with four shots before holding another employee hostage for three hours.

Frank Thurston Fields III, 23, was charged with murder after surrendering to police about 11 a.m. Thursday. He was being held today in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Police said Fields went to the Owens-Corning Fiberglas plant Thursday morning, killed James Donald McCulloch, 40, a warehouse and shipping supervisor, then held the personnel manager hostage for three hours.

Justice of the Peace Billy Moon pronounced McCulloch dead on arrival at Tenery Community Hospital. The body was sent to Dallas for an autopsy.

Norman Bell, the plant's personnel director, was held at gunpoint in his office for more than three hours, said Assistant Police Chief Charles Sullins.

Fields "was disgruntled about losing his job and he just came out there today," Sullins said at a news conference later Thursday.

"We never had any indication that he had that kind of tendencies," plant manager Mark Westman said.

Westman described McCulloch as "a classic supervisor, a very well-respected type of guy. You don't hardly believe anything like that could even ever happen."

McCulloch, whose wife also works as a secretary at the plant, was shot in the shipping dock area, police said. He had worked for the plant since October 1964.

Gunfight between shop owner, robber ended by passing driver

HOUSTON (AP) — A shop owner ran out of bullets in a gunfight with a robber, but was saved when a passing driver stopped and killed the bandit with a shotgun blast, police said.

"I don't know if I would be alive if he hadn't come," Sherry Semons, 31, said Thursday after the exchange of gunfire. Mrs. Semons said she had fired all the rounds in her pistol.

Police refused to name the passer-by, who officers said was questioned and released. The dead man's name was being withheld pending notification of relatives, officials said.

Mrs. Semons said she grabbed her pistol and chased two gunmen who took her $3,000 wedding ring and $12 cash from her store, Tiffany's Children's Wear, about 11 a.m. She and one robber fired several shots at each other after she caught up with him in a field.

"But we kept missing each other," she said. "He was a bad shot. So was I. Finally, I ran out of bullets."

Baby arrives 3 ½ months early

EL PASO (AP) — A 4-by-4-inch gauze pad serves as a diaper for 21-ounce Travis Lynn Sensiba, born 3½ months premature.

"And they are almost too big for him," his mother, Valerie Sensiba, said Thursday.

Travis was born Tuesday at Sierra Medical Center. He remains in critical condition on a respirator in the intensive care unit at the hospital, Mrs. Sensiba said.

He is the first child for Mrs. Sensiba, 18, and her husband, Willard, 22, of Chaparral, N.M., just north of El Paso.

"(Travis) has personality. He smiles. He holds our fingers," Mrs. Sensiba said.

Woman gets 10 years probation

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors have recommended a former attorney who admitted shooting a one-time Houston Post reporter be sentenced to 10 years' probation.

State District Judge Jon Hughes set an Aug. 15 sentencing date for Catherine Mehaffey, 35, who pleaded guilty to aggravated assault Thursday.

The charge, filed in the Jan. 18, 1980, shooting of writer Gary Taylor, was reduced from attempted murder.

Taylor was shot in the back as he left Ms. Mehaffey's apartment. Ms. Mehaffey was found guilty of attempted murder in the shooting in June 1980, but her conviction was overturned on appeal.

Taylor testified that at the time of the shooting he was trying to end a love affair with the woman.

Farmworker committee named

AUSTIN (AP) — A Joint Committee on Farmworker Insurance has been named by Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis to make recommendations to the next Legislature.

The issue of workmens compensation for some farmworkers was submitted to the recent special legislative session but never came to a vote because of differences beteween House and Senate supporters.

Tony Korioth, an Austin attorney, former state representative and a member of the Texas Industrial Accident Board, was named chairman.

Lawmakers try to end filibuster over missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders and senators opposed to the MX missile are working to find a face-saving way to end a filibuster over the strategic nuclear weapon and pass a $200 billion defense bill next Tuesday.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Thursday night he was optimistic an accord could be reached before another effort was made to force a limitation on debate that has occupied the Senate nearly full time for 10 days.

But, he warned, "there are still a lot of stones to be turned, a lot of clearances to be made" before the agreement could be sealed.

A GOP leadership source, who spoke under ground rules requiring anonymity, said there was "a very sensitive point as to who blinks first."

About 15 liberal senators, led by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., have held up completion of the 1984 military authorization bill by demanding prolonged debate on the Reagan administration's plan to place 100 MXs in underground silos that now house Minuteman 3 missiles.

Baker tried Thursday morning to force an end to the debate by invoking cloture, a parliamentary rule under which each senator would have only one hour to speak. But the 55-41 vote fell five votes short of the 60 needed for approval.

Baker was said to believe he had a good chance of obtaining the 60 votes on a second attempt today, if the negotiators were unable to reach agreement beforehand.

The negotiations among Baker, Hart, Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd Jr., D-W.Va., and others focused on Hart's insistence that pro-MX senators answer arguments against the 10-warhead missiles.

MX supporters, confident that they will prevail comfortably when the issue finally comes to a Senate vote, have largely ignored the debate — angering the opponents.

Among the critics' oft-repeated contentions has been that placing the weapons in silos already believed to be targeted by the Soviet Union could require that the missiles be launched merely on warning of an impending attack.

Reagan campaigning for U.S. support of IMF

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, faced with strong opposition in the House, is starting a public lobbying campaign to salvage his proposal to increase U.S. support for the International Monetary Fund (IMF) by $8.4 billion.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Thursday that the president will devote most of his weekly radio address to the nation Saturday to the IMF. By next Tuesday, "we will try to have some kind of event that will bring the president's point of view to as many people as possible."

Administration officials have said the legislation is essential to ease the world debt crisis by providing additional loans to developing countries. The Senate already has passed a version of the measure.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., postponed action on the bill Thursday morning saying it would attract "less than 130" votes.

"I don't see the sense running the gauntlet when you know you can't win," O'Neill said.

That news brought O'Neill an impromptu visit Thursday afternoon from the treasury secretary. Later, Regan said O'Neill agreed to try to schedule debate on the bill Monday and a vote on Tuesday.

Following their private meeting, the House interrupted consideration of a defense authorization bill to adopt ground rules for debate of the IMF legislation.

Regan said he was confident that by the time a final vote is taken, the campaigning by the president and other administration officials will have produced an additional 100 votes for the measure.

Democratic leaders generally support the measure, but they have said at least half the 167 GOP members of the House must vote for the administration proposal or it would fail.

"This is a Reagan bill," O'Neill said.

Rep. Fernand J. St Germain, D-R.I., who will shepherd the bill through the House as chairman of the House Banking Committee, said, "I'm hoping that the president will be on the phone over the weekend" seeking votes.

Regan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz sent a letter to House members Wednesday saying, "The jobs of millions of Americans, the health of our banking system and the prospects for a sustained U.S. economic recovery all depend on the IMF's success in maintaining the stable financial framework essential for world trade to prosper."

A separate letter from Agriculture Secretary John R. Block reminded legislators that "debt problems face many countries including some which are major markets for U.S. agricultural commodities. The IMF is essential to manage this current difficult situation."

Administration officials have said that if the United States fails to contribute more aid, other nations will refuse to make their contributions, leaving the IMF without enough loan money.

Colleges receive $2 million from IBM

ARMONK, N.Y. (AP) — Five universities have been chosen to share $10 million in cash awards from IBM Corporation, the latest in a series of grants from the computer giant aimed at boosting manufacturing engineering education.

Schools receiving the latest grants, totaling about $2 million each, are Lehigh University, in Bethlehem, Pa.; Georgia Institute of Technology, in Atlanta; Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, in Troy, N.Y.; Stanford University, in Stanford, Calif., and the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Wis.

PUBLIC NOTICE

At the request of the Office of the General Counsel of the Public Utility Commission, the Commission has established Docket No. 5113 to inquire into pressing issues involving the entire telephone industry in Texas. Docket No. 5113 will deal with many issues resulting from the impending divestiture of American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Some of those issues include establishing the service areas of Southwestern Bell after divestiture and assessing the impact on other telephone companies in Texas of current settlement arrangements between Southwestern Bell and those companies. Additionally, Docket No. 5113 will deal with the issues arising from the Federal Communications Commission's Final Order in Docket 78-72 (the Access Charge Docket) as they impact all telephone companies. It is anticipated that Docket No. 5113 will be evidentiary in nature. RATES FOR SOUTHWESTERN BELL MAY BE DETERMINED BY THE COMMISSION IN OR AS A RESULT OF THIS PROCEEDING. Interested parties seeking further information or desiring to participate in Docket No. 5113 are advised to write to Rhonda Colbert Ryan, Secretary and Director of Hearings, Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757 or telephone the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 TTY for the deaf.

AVISO PÚBLICO

A solicitud de la Oficina de Consejo Legal (Office of the General Counsel) de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos (Public Utility Commission), la Comisión ha establecido la Acta No. 5113 con el fin de investigar asuntos de importancia que incumben a todas las compañías de servicio de teléfono en el Estado de Texas. La Acta No. 5113 tratará con muchos asuntos que resulten del desposeimiento que está pendiente entre American Telephone and Telegraph Company y Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. Algunos de éstos asuntos incluyen el de establecer las áreas de servicio de Southwestern Bell despues del desposeimiento y el de tasar los efectos de los arreglos judiciales que estan en vigor entre Southwestern Bell y otras compañías de servicio de teléfono en el Estado de Texas. Adicionalmente, la Acta No. 5113 tratará con los asuntos que surjan del Decreto Final (Final Order) de la Comisión Federal de Comunicaciónes (Federal Communications Commission) en la Acta No. 78-72 (ó sea la Acta de Cobros por Acceso — Access Charge Docket) en cuanto al efecto que tengan en las actividades de todas otras compañías de servicio de teléfono. Se anticipa que la Acta No. 5113 será probatoria. PUEDE QUE LAS TARIFAS QUE COBRE SOUTHWESTERN BELL SEAN DETERMINADAS POR LA COMISIÓN EN Ó COMO RESULTADO DE ÉSTE PROCESO. A las partes interesadas que búsquen más información, ó que deseén participar en la Acta No. 5113, se les aconseja comunicarse por escrito con la Sra. Rhonda Colbert Ryan, Secretary and Director of Hearings (Secretaria y Directora de Vistas), Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, ó llamar a la Consumer Affairs Division (División de Asuntos de Consumidores) de la Public Utility Commission al (512) 458-0223, ó 458-0227, ó (512) 458-0221 TTY para aquellos que padecen de la sordera.

Girl Scouts take parents to court

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Girl Scout council seeking to recover $1,100 in cookie money has gone to court to try to force parents to pay for the goodies because "we need to set an example," a spokeswoman said.

District Magistrate George Shaffer entered favorable judgments for the council in four cases after only one mother showed up for the hearings Thursday.

"I've never had a case ... where the Girl Scout took the money and didn't pay. It's always the parents," said Wende Reynolds, executive director of the Beaver-Castle Girl Scout Council.

Parents' excuses for the delayed payments ranged from lost checks to banking errors, Ms. Reynolds said.

Reprimand removed from file

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — The Department of Energy's decision to remove a reprimand from the file of a scientist who documented a mercury-contaminated stream means the DOE "is moving on the issue in a rational way," the researcher says.

Dr. Steve Gough, formerly a biologist for Oak Ridge National Laboratory, believes his findings prompted the government's recent disclosure that 2.5 million pounds of mercury had been released from a Y-12 nuclear weapons parts plant since 1950.

After the reprimand was removed Tuesday, Gough said he thought some of his former superiors may have been embarrassed by what he found in the unauthorized samplings he and his brother took at a creek near the plant.

Explosion kills two city workers

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — An explosion at a municipal sewage treatment plant killed two workers and released toxic chlorine and possibly methane gas, leading to the temporary evacuation of homes in a half-mile radius.

The explosion Thursday, whose cause was not immediately known, occurred about 2:30 p.m. in a treatment building adjacent to two sewage holding tanks, authorities said.

The blast scattered debris and raw sewage as a violent thunderstorm passed through the vicinity.

Eight firefighters were later treated for toxic gas inhalation and heat exhaustion, officials said.

Protesters to appear in court

ROMULUS, N.Y. (AP) — Two of 64 women arrested after demonstrating at the Seneca Army Depot were ordered to appear before a federal magistrate Tuesday, while the others were warned against repeat offenses, according to a spokeswoman.

About 120 women gathered at the depot gate about 9:45 a.m. Thursday and more than 50 surged across a yellow line marking depot property. They began throwing balls of yarn over the gate and wrapping it around themselves, depot spokeswoman Kathleen Mehr said.

Professor testifies for South African

CHICAGO (AP) — A history professor has testified that Dennis Brutus, an exiled South African poet, "would be bodily harmed" if he were deported to Zimbabwe.

Brutus, 58, who has been on Northwestern University's English department faculty since 1971, is fighting deportation.

Dodge returns healthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. David Dodge is back in the United States amid a report that the acting head of American University in Beirut spent half of his year in captivity in Iran.

Dodge was released in good health a year after being kidnapped from the Beirut campus.

According to a student eyewitness, Dodge was snatched on July 19, 1982 by two armed men who shouted as they sped away that they belonged to Amal, a paramilitary arm of Lebanon's pro-Iran Moslem Shiite sect.

The New York Times quoted unidentified administration officials in today's editions as saying Dodge had been held in Iran for at least the last six months.

"Just once I'd like to pay for artificial colors and flavors with artificial money!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, July 23, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The colorful Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, author Raymond Chandler and everyone's favorite movie butler, Arthur Treacher, were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Brooklyn shortstop PeeWee Reese, restaurateur Vincent Sardi and pitcher-turned Chicago sportscaster Don Drysdale. Prove your leadership skills by standing up for what you know to be right even if your viewpoint is unpopular. Others respect your courage and conviction. Be more precise when giving instructions and directions. A subordinate is a hard worker but lacks imagination. Your finances show steady improvement. Consult with mate before deciding on a major purchase or investment.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Those who participate in sports this weekend could win big. Show your vulnerability and love will come more easily. You need to mend your fences with a family member.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You have plenty of clout in financial or family affairs. A happy ending is predicted for a parent-child dilemma. Volunteer work cuts into your free time but proves very gratifying.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accept a challenge. Romance puts you in the winner's circle. A last-minute decision affects your travel plans. Be ready to cooperate with mate. A special project has great financial potential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Consider other people's feelings when making social plans this weekend. You are right not to spend more than you have coming in. Refuse to be painted into a financial corner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Strive for compromise when mediating a family dispute. A bit of mystery spices up romance. You enjoy the unexpected. Scholarships are available for those who show real need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Minor frustrations disappear and you have a happy weekend. Refuse to pick up the check when someone invites you for lunch. You move closer to winning the romantic sweepstakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A financial situation demands a more realistic assessment at this time. Share household tasks with small fry. A weekend job is probably the best solution to a temporary cash shortage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You enjoy meeting new people. Accept invitations that are guaranteed to get you out of a rut. Do-it-yourself projects give your home a whole new look.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Use the weekend for personal projects. A letter or phone call brings joyful news. Accept loved one's faults with good grace. Refuse to take on other people's emotional burdens.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Work and pleasure mix beautifully today. Your concentration is excellent. Friends play an important role in your professional success. You will accomplish more if you do not resort to shortcuts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be feeling sorry for yourself today. Do not let false pride stand in the way of happiness. Arguments can be quickly settled if you are willing to make compromises.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Show your appreciation for those who mean the most to you. Group activities appeal to all who are young at heart. A missing item resurfaces, much to your relief.

Billy Joel's concert airs Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Joel doesn't disco on the revolving talk-show, video-dance TV circuit. You won't catch him trading barbs with Johnny, talking Hollywood with Merv or high-steppin' on "Solid Gold." But, in a very rare TV performance, you can see him in concert on HBO Sunday night.

Joel, rock 'n' roll's "Piano Man" who had 14 years of classical-music training, avoids the "Plastic Man" label by shunning TV. "He thinks it would be selling out his audience," says Pierre Cosette, producer of the "Grammy Awards" show, which has been unsuccessful in luring Joel to perform.

Joel also routinely rejects offers from the "Tonight" show. "I wouldn't have control of the production," he says. "I don't like the silver-foil curtains in the background or being followed by Julia Child. It doesn't represent what we do."

Until the HBO broadcast, Joel did perform on the younger, hipper "Saturday Night Live," which is known for the quality of its sound system and its hands-off policy toward the acts.

At first, Joel resisted HBO, too. He was afraid it would be an artsy documentary, and "the whole point of being a musician is to play, not make movies." He also was concerned that cameras would block his fans' views and "interfere with the communication between us and the audience."

But he changed his mind for several reasons, not the least of which was that HBO wouldn't have to stop the music for words from the sponsors. "A show has a flow to it, and I didn't want commercial interruptions," he says.

In addition, Joel wasn't going to tour the United States this year, and "a lot of people haven't seen us live. It's a good representation of what we do, as long as people turn up the sound loud."

Joel's fears — that TV's minuscule speakers wouldn't capture the full sound of his six-man band — were alleviated by an agreement with 82 stations across the country to simulcast the broadcast.

Getting radio's audio into perfect sync with HBO's video requires that "we get the radio feed before it goes up on satellite for the video distribution," says Fred Moore, chief engineer for WNEW-FM in New York. "Otherwise, there will be a slight time displacement."

4 ♡	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Declarer took tricks wherever he could. Unfortunately, when it came to adding up the total, he had only 11—one fewer than he had contracted for.

Once North established via the Stayman convention that his side had a 4-4 heart fit, he raised over game as a slam invitation. This specifically asked for trump quality, and South's trumps were certainly good enough to accept.

West led the top of his spade sequence, and declarer was delighted that he had been offered a free finesse. Declarer took his two spade tricks, discarding clubs, then crossed to the ace of diamonds and tried the trump finesse. West won and exited with a trump, and declarer eventually had to concede a club trick for down one.

Correct technique will allow declarer to make the slam after trying all his chances. He should ruff the spade lead in dummy and take the trump finesse. Best defense is to allow declarer to win the first trump. Declarer gets back to dummy by ruffing the ace of spades and takes another trump finesse. Now West wins and forces declarer with a spade. South ruffs and draws the last trump, then cashes the king-queen of diamonds as both defenders follow. Now he can overtake the jack of diamonds with the ace and try the club finesse. When that succeeds, declarer can get back to the board by overtaking the two of diamonds to repeat the club finesse and land the slam.

No to porno

It used to be that the yardstick for pornographic material was whether it exceeded "statewide community standards." That yardstick — like a number of yardsticks before it — has grown hazy as the attempt to define pornography and "art" raged on.

For example, the courts have said that each community cannot set its own particular standards, but that those standards must be for a larger community — like a state. Still, if the material in question is blatantly offensive with no social redeeming value, it's going to be labeled porno.

Perhaps no firm yardstick has yet been given to judge pornography, but the verdict handed down to an Odessa man Wednesday on a charge of commercial obscenity should help cut the mold.

The pornography question has remained muddled for years because the Supreme Court, in its wisdom, has been unable to legally define what is offensive. The problem in large part has been varying community standards. What would play in Peoria, as they say, wouldn't necessarily play in Ypsilanti. Or, as some might say, let them keep their pornography in Odessa. We won't have it in Midland.

But through its verdict Wednesday, the Odessa jury made it perfectly clear that pornography was not acceptable in the Ector County community and would not be tolerated there. We salute that verdict because it's a stance we hold.

All too often pornographers have attempted to hide behind the First Amendment's protection of speech and expression. That's a ludicrous argument. The framers of the Constitution surely knew that unscrupulous profiteers would attempt to hide behind necessary protections required in an open society. They also undoubtedly expected rationale men to exercise common sense to ensure that those who should be protected would be and those who hide will be revealed for what they are.

No, pornography is not acceptable in Midland. New York City, maybe. Chicago, probably. But not in Midland. And now, our sister city to the west has said she will not harbor pornographers either. We couldn't be happier.

Guess who's rich!

A lot of people are trying awfully hard to blame the current and coming deficits on Ronald Reagan's tax cut of 1981 — in particular, on his measure cutting the top tax rate from 70 percent to 50 percent. But the numbers suggest that the blame lies elsewhere.

In tax year 1980, the latest year for which complete figures are available, 88 million Americans filed tax returns. Almost 1.8 billion wound up being taxed at what is now the top marginal rate, 50 percent, or higher. These top taxpayers earned $33.8 billion in income subject to taxation above the 50 percent rate. Of that, the Treasury collected $21.1 billion, about 8 percent of all 1980 collections.

Hence, even if the Treasury had seized all income once being taxed at better than 50 percent, it would have netted only $12 billion, about 6 percent of the projected 1984 deficit. By the way, tax rates of 50 percent or better begin to apply as soon as the single earner hits $41,500 in income, and at $60,000 for couples filing jointly. The next time Tip O'Neill talks about soaking "the rich," remember he could mean you.

Another View:

Kissinger commission

Even had he not been asked, President Reagan might have taken the route of a high-level bipartisan commission to help his struggling policy in Central America. The device had gotten him out of tight fixes with both Social Security and the MX. Central America is not the large but fairly defined, plate-sized topic that the other two were thought to be. But policy there is a matter in both contention and disarray. Of current national security issues, this is the one in which the administration's position is most at political risk. Sens. Jackson and Mathias so recognized in their call for a bipartisan commission.

Monday President Reagan swung aboard with a vengeance, assuring blinding national and international attention by naming Henry Kissinger as chairman. You remember Henry Kissinger. He used to be a diplomat holding high posts in the Nixon and Ford administrations. He is something else now: a statesman, operator and media personality of global dimensions, a personality and force who arrives (almost anywhere) pushing before him an immense bow-wave of controversy and expectation.

The catcalls are already coming in on the left; there, critics of Mr. Reagan's current policy will have to weigh their instant suspicion of the geopolitical emphasis identified with Mr. Kissinger against their reluctant appreciation of his wheeler-dealer political skills. On the right, where Mr. Kissinger is remembered (and reviled) for his role at the 1980 Republican convention as well as for his policies, there may be even deeper misgivings about his first formal appointment under President Reagan. He is likely to be seen as a policy guerrilla.

To us, the appointment says something about Mr. Reagan's readiness to put the national interest ahead of ideological and bureaucratic backbiting. It says even more about his desperation in Central America, where he has been unable to bring the geopolitics and the local factors into line.

Some might be pleased if the Kissinger commission provided a cover of long-term economic and social dedication for pursuit of a short-term military victory. But it is as cynical to use the commission as a gimmick to pass this year's military aid bill as it is foolish to imagine that it can draw the American public into a Central American "Marshall Plan" for decades to come.

If the commission has a useful purpose, it is to quietly extricate the administration from its own bureaucratic and ideological conflicts and to furnish a more plausible and persuasive way to turn the region's conflicts to peaceful channels. One stands in awe at the interests and personalities in the Reagan administration that must be either balanced or subdued for such a course to emerge. But we think it can be done.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

France returning to NATO fold

WASHINGTON — As irritating as any Parisian waiters, French leaders tend to thumb their noses at the United States and NATO, from which France huffily withdrew in 1966. But behind the scenes, President Francois Mitterrand has been cooperating with NATO much more closely than any of his recent predecessors.

Jack Anderson

In fact, White House and Pentagon officials are clucking excitedly over what they already refer to as "France's return to NATO." That's certainly jumping the gun a bit, but there are strong indications that the French under Mitterrand are willing to shoulder a greater share of Western Europe's defense burden, and to discuss ways they can integrate with the NATO command.

There are even some who foresee the day not far away when many NATO documents will no longer have to be classified secret for fear the French would be offended to learn that their forces are taken for granted as part of NATO's strength.

Two years ago, I suggested — on the basis of secret assurances Mitterrand gave the United States before his election — that the new French president would be staunchly anti-communist. Despite the appointment of four Communists to minor Cabinet posts, Mitterrand has more than fulfilled those assurances.

Secret CIA analyses report that France is now our most crucial ally in the struggle against the Soviet-supported Western European peace movement over deployment of medium-range U.S. missiles later this year. It was Mitterrand, for example, who gently chided the West German parliament for letting the Kremlin bully them into softening their commitment on this point.

The clear need for French military muscle in any NATO-Warsaw Pact showdown is spelled out in a top-secret Pentagon report shown to my associate Dale Van Atta. It noted that Pentagon computers working on hypothetical conventional-war situations in Europe were programmed with a standard assumption that "NATO forces were augmented by all available French forces." A few years ago, the French might have called this wishful thinking.

The figures in the report showed that French forces add significantly to NATO's strength, including a one-third increase in its immediate manpower. The French would also supply 1,283 medium tanks, 3,737 other armored vehicles, 917 heavy artillery pieces, 504 land-based combat aircraft, 67 tactical naval planes, 46 combat ships, 21 attack submarines, 20 amphibious vessels and 103 anti-submarine aircraft — a formidable arsenal that doesn't even include the French nuclear weapons.

Signs of France's growing commitment to NATO include:

— Mitterrand's expulsion of 47 Soviets for espionage in April. He has also skipped the once-routine yearly Franco-Soviet summit meetings, and rarely refers to the "special relationship" between the two countries that his predecessors stressed.

— Passage of Mitterrand's five-year defense program, which explicitly acknowledged that Western Europe's security is closely tied to the United States.

— French support for U.S. missile deployment in Western Europe if the Geneva negotiations fail to gain removal of Soviet SS-20 missiles.

— A NATO meeting two months ago in Paris — the first there in 17 years. In one secret meeting, the French gave the distinct impression they want to increase their coordination with NATO.

Footnote: The CIA has been remarkably accurate in its assessments of Mitterrand over the years. For instance, one report predicted with dead accuracy that he would be "more willing than Gaullists to tolerate an Atlantic orientation in French policy."

ON THE ATTACK: Like blushing brides, congressional Democrats are going to use something old, something new and something borrowed in their attacks on President Reagan and the Republicans.

The old and borrowed is an organizaton of "truth squads" to counter Reagan's popularity. It's a technique the GOP initiated years ago. The Democrats' decision came after the unusually good play the media gave New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya when he lambasted Reagan both before and after a presidential visit to his state.

The Democratic "truth squads" will be formed on an ad hoc basis keyed to issues, and will follow Reagan around wherever he makes a speech.

The new-and-borrowed idea is the use of communications satelites beaming two-minute messages to TV stations, which can pull them in by pushing a button and use them as fillers on news shows. Senate Republicans are already using the gimmick. The Democrats also plan to match the GOP's 30-minute propaganda feature for stations that are really hard up for programming.

INSIDE REPORT:

Bianca shows panel's leaning

WASHINGTON — When Bianca Jagger, the pro-Sandinista activist and divorced wife of rock star Mick Jagger, slipped into the top-secret Capitol Hill office of the House Intelligence Committee early this month to brief two of its staffers, her presence confirmed the committee's politicalization.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

For four years under the chairmanship of Rep. Edward Boland, the Intelligence Committee had shown commendable ability to overcome partisan wrangling that destroyed its predecessor committee under then Rep. Otis Pike. But that admirable record has crumbled under political pressures of the Central American crisis and a runaway staff. As a result, what is supposed to be a bipartisan watchdog over the intelligence community has become a snapping terrier attacking President Reagan's Latin American policy in behalf of the Democratic Party's left wing.

But the invitation to Jagger, a native of Nicaragua and intimate friend of Sandinista strong man Tomas Borge, may have gone too far. It may prove a turning point, ending quiescence by Republican members to prevent the committee from becoming no more than a political cockpit.

What Jagger said in her hour-long briefing will never be known, even to committee members. No record was taken. But suspicious Republican members believe the staff was searching out new arguments with which to torpedo Reagan's Central America rescue plan.

That follows the recent course of the Intelligence Committee. Its Democratic majority has voted, on strict party lines, to kill future covert aid for anti-Sandinista insurgents. Such a partisan lineup on what was established as a non-partisan panel with a clinically-neutral, politically-disinfected staff causes concern in the White House.

National Security Council aides have informed their director, William P. Clark, that the committee's new partisanship threatens Reagan's Latin American policy. Under the guise of "bipartisan" oversight of intelligence, Clark has been warned, House support for rolling back the Marxist tide in Central America can be subverted.

The hands of the committee's Republican minority are tied by their lack of minority staff. In the name of non-partisanship, the Democrats refuse to give the Republicans any staffers. That was affirmed in an unusual Rules Committee resolution last February which elevated the Intelligence Committee to permanent status, including the automatic right to 30 staffers. An unusual exemption approved by the Rules Committee relieved the Intelligence Committee of the requirement that each standing committee allocate one-third of its staff to the minority party.

Degeneration of the prestigious Intelligence Committee into propagandistic activism became obvious last September when two liberal staffers authored a stinging rebuke to Reagan's Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). It was so nakedly anti-Reagan that retired admiral Bobby Inman, named by Chairman Boland as a part-time committee consultant when he resigned as the CIA's deputy director, quit on the spot.

The tipoff to politicalization was the accusatory tone of the Sept. 22 report, contending that El Salvador had become a "major focus for East-West relations under the newly-elected U.S. administration in 1981." That ignored that aid to Nicaragua was cut off and the communist rebellion in Salvador spread during the last two years of the Carter administration.

Inman says privately that he quit because the committee's staff, virtually behind Boland's back, was converting the committee into a vehicle of "partisan political purposes." Eddie Boland, a likable old pol from Massachusetts, is regarded by the committee's Republican members as well-meaning but under relentless political pressure from Democratic liberals. He will need their support to achieve his dream of becoming chairman of the House Appropriations Committee someday.

Boland admitted to us that holding the staff in line is not easy, given the pressures of the ideological split over U.S. policy in Nicaragua and Salvador. "We have problems on the staff and that is hard to avoid," he added. Those problems are rooted in the ideological mindset of Boland's staffers, heightened by the possibility that Reagan's success or failure in Central America effects the 1984 presidential election.

That prospect could end Republican silence about what is happening in the Intelligence Committee. No matter how averse its Republican members may be to a counterattack completely destroying the committee's effectiveness, they are appalled by the current climate that permits Bianca Jagger to help frame the debate on Central America in the House of Representatives.

Criticism struck out

To The Editor:

As Emergency Management Coordinator, I take exception to the coverage on the sports page with regard to the cancellation of the fireworks at Cubs Stadium July 4. I strongly recommend that the sports editor stick to what is supposedly his field of expertise and leave the protection of the citizens to those who have the knowledge and responsibility in that field.

This writer was at the National Weather Service office at the time that General Manager Bill Schammel called to ask Don Oettinger for advice. I had been receiving reports for at least 40 minutes from five trained weather spotters who were in position to observe the severity of the storm. These volunteer spotters had a total of more than 15 training sessions and many more years experience in observing West Texas weather.

All of these spotters reported severe cloud to ground lightning behind the dust licked up by the gust front. Golf-ball size hail had also been reported from this storm whose tops had been measured between 45 to 50 thousand feet by radar. Would the sports editor have been willing to go against their advice if he were responsible for the safety of more than 3,800 people?

The fact that the storm dissipated about 20 minutes later has no bearing on the decision that had to be made at that time. How many of the sports editor's predictions have failed to hold up for 20 minutes?

Crying wolf

To The Editor:

I hope all Midlanders are cognizant of what Midland police officers do for us beyond the line of duty.

While driving down N Street one morning, one officer noticed that my neighbor's screen was off and her window open. He stopped and went to her door to find that she had washed windows and not yet replaced the screen. This was a side window and behind a large evergreen tree. He was most observant. Whoever he was, we do thank him.

Several days later over breakfast while listening to our "scanner," I heard an officer called to a local merchant's place of business. His burgler alarm had sounded for the fourth day in a row. The officer must have asked the key carrier to be more careful in turning off the alarm and in his report to headquarters, said he was told, "You have nothing better to do."

For shame! Hasn't he ever heard of the little boy who cried "Wolf!"

To The Editor:

On behalf of Midland Summer Mummers, I'd like to thank the Midland Reporter-Telegram and Georgia Temple for the fine coverage given our 35th anniversary summer.

Georgia and photographers Cody Bell and Ron Jaap gave us excellent stories and photos before the show opened for the summer and following the opening. Georgia's review was written immediately after the first show and probably inspired many West Texans to make reservations to the show.

I'd also like to commend the paper on the recent use of color photography. Mummer's villain and the ladies of the "Intangible Shelter" looked wonderful in full color! Thank you for the extra effort required to get photos of "Ripsnorting on the Roaring Fork" ready to run in color right after the opening.

Thank you for your support.

'Bus' needed

To The Editor:

This is important that Midtran bus should keep going most of the times except every Saturday and Sunday.

I am willing to pay fares so I can go to the beauty shop, doctor and Midland Park Mall. The bus will be able to help senior citizens and, also, a few people like me who have no cars.

I certainly will appreciate your consideration.

Salvadoran coast guard attacks Nicaraguan boats

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Interior Ministry said three Salvadoran coast guard boats attacked two Nicaraguan fishing craft with machine gun fire for three hours inside Nicaraguan waters Thursday.

A ministry communique said no one was hurt in the attack, in the Gulf of Fonseca.

It said the Salvadoran boats sighted the Nicaraguan fishing vessels at daybreak and opened up with machineguns on them, then chased them across the sea.

The Salvadoran boats gave up the chase when a Nicaraguan coast guard cutter appeared on the scene, the communique said.

Sandinistas question 'cowboy' role

CHICAGO (AP) — Nicaraguan leaders say President Reagan is "playing the cowboy" in Central America and will have to send "an invading force" if he really wants to prevent leftist insurgents from taking over El Salvador, according to a magazine interview.

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega also denied Reagan administration charges that his nation is sending arms to the rebels in El Salvador — but said that does not mean rebels couldn't use his country's territory to move weapons.

Other Sandinista leaders are quoted in Playboy magazine as describing Reagan as "mad" and a "sort of Frankenstein's monster."

Ortega said one of his country's chief problems is "Reagan's war against us," a war he feels may escalate. Referring to a thinly disguised U.S. covert-aid operation he said, "We're already facing this invasion at our borders and we're defeating it ..."

"It all sounds like some wild-West movie (Reagan's) acting out," said Culture Minister Ernesto Cardenal. "He's playing the cowboy who kills all the 'bad guys' in Nicaragua."

The interviews with Ortega, Cardenal, junta member Sergio Ramirez Mercado and Interior Minister Tomas Borge Martinez were conducted in April and May in Managua, capital of the Central American nation. They appear in Playboy's September issue.

"I don't see how the U.S. can prevent (the leftist insurgents') taking power," Ortega said of the situation in El Salvador, where the U.S.-supported government has been fighting an insurrection for several years. "Unless the U.S. introduces an invading force."

"Now, certainly, we openly sympathize with the Salvadorans," he added. "But to send them weapons would be to play into the hands of those who want to name Nicaragua as the great arms supplier to El Salvador.

"That does not mean that our territory cannot be used at some time to move weapons to El Salvador," Ortega continued. "Revolutionaries use all manner of territory to move arms."

He claimed that the Sandinistas smuggled arms through the United States before they took power from dictator Anastasio Somoza four years ago, and added that Nicaragua would seize — albeit reluctantly — any arms discovered moving through their nation.

The Nicaraguans also said their attempts to open negotiations with the Reagan administration have been rejected by U.S. officials. Ortega said Reagan "lies" when he says he's tried to negotiate with us.

Ramirez said that the Reagan administration despises the Sandinistas "as a people," and added that visiting U.S. congressmen treat Nicaragua "as though they were in Arkansas or Nevada ... there is no such thing as our independent sovereignty."

On Tuesday, Ortega offered an olive branch, suggesting a new plan for talks to ease international tension in Central America.

Although U.S. officials described the plan as a "positive step," at a session with reporters on Thursday Reagan said it would be "extremely difficult" to achieve a regional settlement as long as the Sandinistas controlled Nicaragua.

"I think it (a settlement) would be extremely difficult because ... they're being directed by outside forces," the president said.

Gonzalez opposes carrier placement

By GARDNER SELBY

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan and Margaret Thatcher have something in common, San Antonio Rep. Henry Gonzalez said Thursday. They both favor war.

Commenting on President Reagan's plans to send troops and possibly two battle carrier groups off the coasts of Central America, Gonzalez maintained his traditional stance in opposition to U.S. intervention south of the Rio Grande.

The administration plans military maneuvers beginning in August off the Pacific and Atlantic coasts of Nicaragua, to last four or five months, in an effort to intimidate alleged Russian and Cuban shippers of arms through Nicaragua and Honduras to the rebels of El Salvador.

Reagan told reporters Thursday that the exercises are nearly routine.

"We've conducted them in some other parts of the world, and there haven't been too many questions about that or suggesting that we're trying to start a war in those other areas," Reagan said.

Next week, the House will vote on whether to support the administration's proposal to continue around $80 million in covert aid to "Contra" rebels in Nicaragua, allegedly aimed at stopping Communist arms shipments to rebels in El Salvador.

"He's (Reagan) not signalling, he's moving (with the maneuvers). He's got a set course which has been under way for some time," Gonzalez said. "This is an excursion like (England Prime Minister) Maggie Thatcher's to the Falklands, where the response will be a cry of unity in the face of Communist incursions into the Western hemisphere," the Democrat said.

"I don't see how in the world, given the pattern of action, it'll be possible to (avoid) the sending of American boys," he said.

Ronald Reagan gestures during a news briefing on the presence of U.S. naval forces near Nicaragua's Atlantic and Pacific shores.

From Our Washington Bureau

In separate interviews, other House members from Texas this week reflected concern with the administration's announcement of a bipartisan commission to review U.S. policy options for Central America and expressed guarded interest in a proposal by the Sandinista government of Nicaragua for region-wide peace talks.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, a Democratic member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he understands that the coastal maneuvers will demonstrate the "very substantial naval capabilities" of the United States, but said the question remains "whether this is an unnecessarily provocative action in an area that does not need additional provocation."

Saying he will push for caution as a committee member and adviser to the bipartisan commission, Bentsen said, "The president has apparently decided that the maneuvers are worth any risk that they might entail."

Hunt Rep. Tom Loeffler, a Republican, said he sees little wrong with sending American ships to circle in international waters.

Loeffler said he opposes sending U.S. troops to fight in the war-torn countries of Nicaragua or El Salvador.

Through an aide, Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Marlin and a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said he favors the "practice blockade" in order to impress Central America with American might.

Kidnapped girl's uncle has offer for kidnappers

ROME (AP) — Emanuela Orlandi's uncle arranged to make a televised appeal today for the teen-ager's freedom and reportedly has a new offer for kidnappers whose demand for the release of papal attacker Mehmet Ali Agca was rebuffed.

The Italian news agency AGI says Mario Meneguzzi has a "new proposal" for the abductors, who made no new statements Thursday after a deadline passed with Agca still in prison. They had threatened to kill the 15-year-old girl if the Turkish terrorist was not set free by midnight Wednesday.

Pope John Paul II, in his fifth public appeal for her release, pleaded Thursday for kidnappers to spare her and to give up their "unfeasible" demand for Agca's freedom.

Police hunted for Emanuela in the meantime, checking cars driving on streets near the Vatican while frogmen searched the Tiber River in the southern outskirts of the capital.

Beirut airport shelled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Militiamen shelled Beirut international airport from nearby mountains today, killing a Lebanese worker and wounding at least five people including a Marine in the first attack on the facility since it was reopened 10 months ago.

Government soldiers sealed off the airport after the barrage from the Druse-Christian militia battleground in the mountains east of Beirut. Police said the shells wrecked 16 cars and ignited several fires.

Ambulances and fire brigades rushed to the airport, which Public Works Minister Pierre Khoury ordered closed. Incoming planes were diverted to other Middle East cities.

Lebanon seeks solutions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lebanon wants the United States to help find long-term solutions to its problems, sparing it from such "half-solutions" as Israel's plans for a partial troop withdrawal, says Foreign Minister Elie Salem.

Salem and President Amin Gemayel, who are visiting Washington, denounced on Thursday Israel's plans for a partial pullout. Gemayel said it gives the impression that the United States has failed in its effort to get all foreign troops to leave Lebanon.

Gemayel was to meet at the White House with President Reagan later today to explore new ideas for trying to get Syria to agree to withdraw its troops. Israel says it won't withdraw completely until Syria agrees to leave, and Syria so far refuses.

Gemayel met for more than three hours Thursday with Secretary of State George P. Shultz. Salem told reporters they discussed Lebanon's proposals on the withdrawal issue.

Samantha heads home

MONTREAL (AP) — Schoolgirl Samantha Smith says the Soviet Union was a nice place to visit but she's glad to be making the final leg of her journey home today after a two-week tour as the guest of Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov.

Continuing the VIP treatment which Samantha and her parents, Arthur and Jane, received during their trip, a Soviet consulate limousine escorted the family from Montreal's Mirabel airport to an undisclosed hotel where they spent Thursday night.

They were to leave Montreal for home, Manchester, Maine, late this morning after a final public appearance by 11-year-old Samantha, this time on an television show.

Armenians claim bombs

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Two bomb blasts in the Iranian capital of Tehran damaged the commercial bureau of the French Embassy and the Air France office, a French diplomat said today. Armenian terrorists claimed responsibility for the attacks.

British journal reports successful embryo transplant pregnancies

LONDON (AP) — A team of American doctors reported in a British medical journal published today that they have achieved the world's first two pregnancies resulting from the transfer of an embryo from one woman to another.

Embryo transfer has been used in cattle breeding for many years. But the report in The Lancet is the first account of the technique being successfully employed in test-tube baby research involving humans.

The team of obstetricians and gynecologists from the Harbor-UCLA Medical Center at Torrance, Calif., led by Dr. John E. Buster, said in a letter in the journal that one of the women involved is expected to have her baby in four months and the other is more than five weeks pregnant.

Under what have now become conventional test-tube baby techniques — known as "in vitro" fertilization — an egg is taken from the woman's body and fertilized with the intended father's sperm in a glass dish. It is then implanted in her womb, where, as in a normal pregnancy, it grows into a baby.

Brazilian walkout 'failure'

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The government says a 24-hour walkout against major factories was a failure but a key union leader insists it was a success that will lead to more general strikes protesting government austerity measures.

An estimated 1 million workers participated in strike Thursday, mainly in the industrial Sao Paulo area, where authorities estimated 300 people were arrested.

Labor leaders had urged the strike as a protest of a government decree cutting pay raises for millions of workers — one of the measures taken to deal with Brazil's economic crisis, including a $90 billion foreign debt.

Sao Paulo Metalworkers Union president Joaquim dos Santos Andrade said it was "a big success," that 95 percent of his members stayed out and there were "more general strikes to come.

Strikers did paralyze some major industrial plants, including foreign-owned automobile factories in Sao Paulo. But in most of Brazil, millions of workers, whose union leaders said they rejected a "political strike," were on the job.

The strike had little support during work hours in Rio de Janeiro. But after hours, several thousand people marched through downtown streets carrying signs criticizing the government.

Since Brazilian law considers banking essential to national security, striking bank workers could lose their jobs. With unemployment estimated at 15 percent, a record high, many workers feared that if they didn't report they would be fired.

Seven union leaders of Sao Paulo bank workers, who had appealed for wide participation in the strike, were arrested Wednesday and remained in federal custody on Thursday. They could be charged with violating national security.

Aureliano Chaves, acting president while President Gen. Joao Figueiredo recuperates from heart surgery in the United States, called for "understanding" during Brazil's economic crisis.

Contract problems keep several out of camp

Cowboys' Walls fails to report to Thousand Oaks

By The Associated Press

Contract problems are keeping several National Football League veterans, including such big names as Cincinnati's Pete Johnson and Anthony Munoz, Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia and Everson Walls of Dallas, out of training camps.

Veterans have been arriving for preseason drills all week, joining rookies and other hopefuls who came to camp early in an effort to catch a coach's eye.

Johnson, Cincinnati's 250-pound fullback, and star offensive tackle Munoz, both of whom want the Bengals to renegotiate their contracts, ignored the team's training camp check-in deadline at Wilmington, Ohio, Thursday.

"I don't want to be made the bad guy," Munoz had said Wednesday in announcing he would be a holdout. "I just want to do what's fair."

Johnson's agent said the former Ohio State star would not report without a new contract, but Mike Brown, the team's assistant general manager, ruled out that possibility for the two missing players.

Neither Carmichael nor another 10-year veteran for the Eagles, center Guy Morriss, reported to Philadelphia's training site at West Chester, Pa. Carmichael, the Eagles' leading receiver, reportedly wants a raise from $250,000 to $375,000 per year, while Morriss wants a $75,000 raise to $200,000.

The Eagles' offers were not disclosed, but team player representative Lynn Stiles said they would make the two players among the highest-paid at their positions in the NFL.

WALLS, WHO led the NFL in interceptions the last two years, has told the Cowboys he is retiring rather than accept a five-year contract for $1.25 million. Another Dallas defensive back, Dextor Clinkscale, also did not report to the Thousand Oaks, Calif., training site because of his dispute with the Cowboys over whether he has a valid contract.

Elsewhere, three Atlanta starters — offensive linemen Mike Kenn and R.C. Thielemann and linebacker Joel Williams — were missing when veterans reported to the Falcons' training camp.

All three "reportedly want to renegotiate their current contracts," a team statement said. "Thielemann and Williams are in their option years, while Kenn has two years plus an option year remaining on his contract."

Detroit Lions Coach Monte Clark threatened to suspend tight end David Hill after he refused to report to training camp in Rochester, Mich. Hill reportedly wants to be traded to a California team.

Another unhappy Lion, star running back Billy Sims, arrived in camp although his contract dispute remained unresolved. "I'm in my option year," Sims said. "I'm ready to go. Let's get the season on the road."

Sims said he probably would continue to negotiate during training camp.

SAN FRANCISCO tight end Charle Young, reduced to a backup role after three years as a starter for the 49ers, failed to show up for camp in Rocklin, Calif. Young has indicated he would not accept a backup role behind Russ Francis and would rather play for another team.

Four veteran free agents of the Kansas City Chiefs have failed to agree to terms. They are safety Gary Barbaro, wide receiver Henry Marshall, tight end Al Dixon and defensive end David Lindstrom.

Barbaro, who missed the start of training camp last year in a contract dispute and later claimed the Chiefs are interested only in fielding "an economic football team," said the four-year, $2.1-million contract given to first-round draft choice Todd Blackledge, changed his perspective.

"It's great for him. I'm glad he got it," Barbaro said. "Obviously, the money is there for him. But it should also be there for the veterans."

Safety John Harris, linebacker Michael Jackson and wide receiver Roger Carr were missing from the Seattle Seahawks' camp.

Jackson, Seattle's leading tackler the last three seasons, wants to renegotiate his contract although he has three years left on a five-year pact. Carr wants part of his contract guaranteed, while Harris is an unsigned free agent.

Meanwhile, wide receiver Willie Gault of Tennessee, Chicago's No. 1 draft choice, told the Bears Thursday that he is committed to trying to make next summer's Olympic team as a sprinter even if it means delaying his football career.

"If I don't get a chance to do both, I'll run track," said Gault, who is awaiting a decision on whether he can retain his amateur track status while playing professional football.

Gault said he wants to play for the Bears and hopes they will retain their rights to him if he decides to put his football on hold.

The impact of Gault's decision was softened when the Bears signed their other first-round pick, offensive lineman Jimbo Covert of Pitt, on Thursday. Also agreeing to terms for Chicago were veterans Gary Fencik and Jerry Muckensturm.

At the Denver Broncos camp in Greeley, Colo., veteran linebacker Randy Gradishar announced he would retire at the end of the 1983 season. And wide receiver Rick Upchurch had a urinalysis test and was told by the team's management that he could remain with the club if he refrained from using marijuana.

Cubs return home for five against Mets

Life hasn't been easy for the Midland Cubs lately, at home or on the road.

After a blistering 9-4 start in the second half of the Texas League season, the Cubs have dropped 12 of their last 15 ball games for a 12-16 record and have fallen from first to last place in the TL West second half standings.

The losing trend dates back to the second game of Midland's last home stand against El Paso, a six-game series that went sour. After winning the first game, the Cubs dropped the next five straight to lose the series, 1-5.

The Cubs returned to the road for their swing through the East Division and fared no better. Against Jackson they dropped the first three games to run their losing streak to eight before winning the fourth game of the series. Midland lost the fifth game to lose the series, 4-1. Arkansas was a bit more hospitable, winning only three of five games.

Tonight, Midland continues its East Division play, hosting Jackson for the first of a five-game set followed by Arkansas on July 27 for five games. Game times are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. each night.

IN THIS homestand against Jackson, the Cubs have three special events for the fans. On Saturday, KNFM-KMND are sponsoring Pack The Park Night with free tickets given away to the game.

Monday is batting glove night. The first 800 kids in the ball park will receive batting gloves. On Tuesday, Max Patkin, the Clown Prince of Baseball, will be at Cubs Stadium.

At one time this season, every Cub in the lineup boasted a .300 or better average. In the past few weeks that claim has faded somewhat. Now only four Cubs, led by Tom Lombarski at .313 and Bill Hatcher at .310, are above .300. Lombarski also leads the team in RBI's with 94 and has 11 home runs to his credit.

Mike Anicich, a .247 hitter, leads the team in home runs with 16 followed by Randy LaVigne with 12. Speedy Rick Baker, .296 average, has 42 stolen bases on the year while Hatcher has 33.

On the mound, Jim Wright has the best record with a 5-1 mark while Darryl Banks (9-7) and Ray Soff (3-2) are the only other pitchers with a winning record. Stan Kyles (6-9), has the teams lowest earned run average at 3.93. Reliever Bill Johnson leads the team in saves with five and has a 3-3 mark.

Bucs beat Dodgers in ninth

By The Associated Press

Jim Morrison's two-out, two-run single off Los Angeles reliever Steve Howe in the bottom of the ninth inning vaulted the Pittsburgh Pirates to their 11th victory in 12 games, a 5-4 victory over the Dodgers.

Lee Mazzilli was safe on shortstop Bill Russell's error, then Howe got Lee Lacy on a popup and struck out pinch-hitter Gene Tenace. But Bill Madlock singled and Jason Thompson walked before Morrison lined his third hit of the game to left field. The victory kept the Pirates first in the National League East, one-half game ahead of Philadelphia.

In Atlanta, Bob Dernier had five singles and drove in three runs and Pete Rose knocked in three runs as the Phillies unleashed an 18-hit attack and whipped the Braves 10-6.

Mike Schmidt hit his 19th homer for the Phils. Rose's three singles put his career total at 3,953 hits. Despite the loss, the Braves remained 3½ games ahead of the Dodgers in the NL West.

In other NL games, Duane Walker hit a bases-loaded double and Nick Esasky added a two-run homer, pacing Cincinnati to a 6-1 victory over the New York Mets. There were 19 walks in the game, seven shy of the NL record for nine innings. Mets starter Mike Torrez issued 10 of them in 3⅓ innings.

IN MONTREAL, Al Oliver's two-run single ignited a six-run fifth inning and the Expos rode Bill Gullickson's seven-hitter to a 9-4 victory over Houston. Loser Nolan Ryan went five innings, striking out two batters to raise his career total to 3,585 two fewer than all-time leader Steve Carlton.

In Chicago, Jody Davis and Tom Veryzer hit home runs to lead the Cubs to a 3-2 victory over San Francisco, and in St. Louis, Terry Kennedy drove in three runs as San Diego beat the Cardinals 4-2.

In the American League, Minnesota at Cleveland and Kansas City at New York were rained out.

Elsewhere, Larry Parrish went 4-for-4 and drove in Texas' winning run and Frank Tanana pitched a five-hitter in his first complete game of the season as the Rangers beat Toronto 3-2.

In the first game of a twi-night doubleheader, Alan Trammell hit a two-run homer as the Detroit Tigers beat California 5-1.

In the second game, Reggie Jackson scored one run and singled home the decisive one in the fifth inning as the Angels earned a split with a 3-2 victory.

Milwaukee's Paul Molitor hit a tie-breaking double with one out in the eighth inning to cap a three-run burst as the Brewers defeated the Chicago White Sox 7-6 for their 10th victory in 11 games. The White Sox, falling into a virtual first-place tie with Texas in the AL West, had scored three runs in the top of the eighth to take a 6-4 lead.

RICKY PETERS drove in three runs, including the game-winner with an eighth-inning sacrifice fly, to give Oakland a 9-7 victory over Baltimore. The loss prevented the Orioles from taking sole possession of first place in the AL East and left them tied with Toronto.

Boston's Marty Barrett scored from second base when Seattle left fielder Steve Henderson failed to hang onto Tony Armas' two-out, 10th-inning liner as the Red Sox pulled out a 14-13 victory. The Mariners, who trailed 13-4 after 5½ innings, rallied for three runs in the sixth and five in the seventh, then tied it 13-13 in the bottom of the ninth when Rick Sweet walked and came around on singles by Damingo Ramos and Tony Bernazard.

Simpson ignores heat to tie course record, leads by two

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Scott Simpson was unperturbed by the sweltering heat that had other contenders seeing spots and spouting Latin.

He matched the course record with a 7-under-par 64 Thursday and took a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $350,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"It was uncomfortable," Simpson said of the 102 degree temperature and high humidity, "but you get used to the weather after a few years out here.

"I just drank a lot of water on every hole — it evaporates immediately — and kept wiping my hands with a towel."

Sammy Rachels and Terry Diehl, tied with Tom Weiskopf and defending champion Cal Peete for second at 66, did not agree completely.

Diehl, who has cashed checks in only three of 20 tournament starts this season, went to Latin to describe his discomfort.

"Vine perspirere," he said, and translated: "I came to sweat."

Rachels, who holed out a 110-yard wedge shot for an eagle and added seven birdies, said "it was bigtime hot.

"Playing 9 and 10 I was getting dizzy and seeing spots in front of my eyes."

Peete, however, said the heat helped loosen a muscle pull in his back which forced him to withdraw from last week's British Open. He, like Simpson, did not make a bogey in his round over the 6,746-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course on the banks of the James River.

Hal Sutton, the year's leading money-winner, topped the group at 67, three shots off the pace. Also at that figure were Tim Norris, Ed Dougherty, Bill Sander, Chip Beck and Pat McGowan, who had second alone until he double bogeyed the final hole.

PGA titleholder Ray Floyd topped a big group at 68 and Morris Hatalsky, who has won and lost playoffs in his last two starts, was at 69.

Simpson, a playoff loser at the Kemper Open earlier this summer, said "the best round I've played in a long time" was completely unexpected.

"I took the last two weeks off," he said. "I took my family to Hawaii for a vacation and left the clubs at home. I didn't touch a club until last Saturday and I wasn't really expecting very much when I came here.

"It was just one of those days."

His effort, which tied the course record set by host pro Curtis Strange two weeks ago, was highlighted by a 70-yard sand wedge shot which found the cup for an eagle-3 on the second hole.

He played the front in 31, took the lead alone with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 14th and stretched it out with a 12-footer on the 17th.

NCAA wins back TV control rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The NCAA on Thursday won back the right to control television of college football this fall.

A ruling by Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White postponed the effect of a federal appeals court ruling which held that the NCAA could not negotiate contracts with ABC, CBS and the Turner Broadcasting System because that would violate antitrust law.

Lower courts had held that individual colleges and universities must be free to make their own TV deals despite the National Collegiate Athletic Association's $281 million worth of contracts that extend over four seasons.

White's stay, issued after an NCAA emergency request, will be in effect until the full Supreme Court can consider a formal NCAA appeal. The court is in summer recess and there can be no consideration until October at the earliest.

"The total interests of college football and all but a few selfish institutions are best served by Justice White's decision, which hopefully will permit the orderly presentation of college football on television this season," said Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke through a spokesman.

"We're absolutely delighted," said NCAA President John Toner.

"The stay works to the benefit of virtually all football-playing members of the NCAA who clearly want the continuation of national controls," Toner, athletic director at the University of Connecticut, said in a statement released by NCAA headquarters in Mission, Kan.

In New York, CBS spokesman Jay Rosenstein said: "We're looking forward to the season now that the uncertainties have been resolved."

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last month that the NCAA had violated the Sherman Act, a major antitrust law, by controlling the televising of college football.

The appeals court upheld a similar ruling by a federal trial judge in Oklahoma City in a lawsuit filed against the NCAA by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association.

The contracts are worth some $74 million for the 1983 season alone.

U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga struck down the television contracts last September but the 10th Circuit court postponed the effect of his ruling while it reviewed the NCAA's appeal.

After agreeing with Burciaga's ruling, the appeals court lifted its stay. NCAA lawyers then turned to White for help.

"There is little to be served...in making frenzied rearrangments for the 1983 season, only to place the original plan back into effect after this court's (anticipated) order," White was told. "If we are wrong, and this court denies review or (agrees with the appeals court) there is little to be lost in waiting until 1984 to implement the new scheme of things."

But lawyers for the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Assocation said their clients would lose plenty of money if not allowed to make their own television deals for the coming season.

"Oklahoma officials believe that (the university) can realize $1.5 million to $2.5 million more in the absence of the (NCAA) television contracts," they said.

"Our reaction is one of disappointment," said Mike Treps, Oklahoma sports information director. "We had hoped to be free to market our product. "Our hands are tied until the courts reach a final decision."

The appeals court ruling did not spell out what, if any, NCAA system of arranging television contracts for its member schools would be acceptable under federal law.

Justice Department lawyers told White that the federal appeals court was right in ruling that the NCAA's exclusive control over televising college football is illegal.

They suggested that White not postpone the effect of the 10th Circuit court's ruling because "it is not probable" that the full Supreme Court, when considering the NCAA's formal appeal next fall, will vote to review that ruling. The votes of four justices are needed to grant such review.

White disagreed.

"I can say with confidence that I would vote to grant (review)," he said in a five-page order. "Somewhat less confidently, I expect that at least three other justices would likewise vote to grant."

He also said there "is a sufficient prospect that the NCAA will ultimately prevail, and that the equities (of granting or denying a stay) favor the NCAA."

White, who handles emergency matters from the 10th Circuit for the high court, is no stranger to football struggles.

BOWLING BEAT

Gecks rolls hot 256 for 728

By RANDY ISENBERG

Billy Gecks put everything together with a 256 game and 728 series while bowling in the Alley Cats Mixed League recently.

Gecks' torrid pace outdistanced Ruben Urias, a bowler who has bowled consistently well all summer, and who rolled a 256 game and 666 series in the Early Mixers League, and fast improving Walt Wiley, who rolled a 252 game and 660 series in the Bluesday Mixed League.

Two ladies turned in scores of better than 600. Pearla Arnold lead all distaff bowlers with a 211 game and 616 series while bowling in the Morning Glorys League and Connye McBryde rolled a 217 game and 601 series in the Tuesday Aces Mixed League.

The Northside Lions Club and Fairmont Park Lanes will join together to conduct the first annual Mens Open Invitational tournament over the first three weekends of December. Entries for this tournament will be available at the bowling centers in about two weeks and all expense fees will be donated to the Northside Lions Club for use in fund raising projects.

The following bowlers have qualified for the Dellwood Lanes Most Over Average tournament being conducted through August 27, with grand finals to be held September 3:

Class A: Men - James Bradford, Steve Evans, L.J. Kelly, Kyle Stripling, Randy Higgins, Dave Hardin. Women - Gloria Wilson, Becky Sprague.

Class B: Men - John Reagan, Randy Truesdell, Mark Swanson, Floyd Pearson, Ken Callahan, Larry Mills, Jeff Jones, Wes White, Freeman Moats, Bruce Underwood, Bob Baker. Women - Sherry Schoolcraft, Connye McBryde, Beverly Kelly, Nicki Nichols, Peggy Gifford, Doris Hardin.

Class C: Men - Doug Warren, David Faulkner, Johnny Bunsen, Joe Kunkel, Lester Roper, Jay Martens. Women - Pat Houk, Sammie Burnett, Lois Purcella, Darla Fisher, Etta Dirickson, Chris Smith, Jane Scheele.

First Place in each division receives a Seiko watch, second place earns a crystal decanter set, and third place receives a wall clock.

Oilers' Walls insists he isn't too short

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Oilers rookie hopeful Herkie Walls stands 5-8 and claims never to have been caught from behind on a football field.

That should say something about the talents the not-too-tall Walls will need to display if he earns a spot on the Oilers' roster.

"Speed," says Walls, the fastest player in camp, "that's how I make up the difference for my size."

Oilers assistant coaches polished off the faces of their stop watches and did a double take after clocking Walls at 4.3 for the 40-yard dash at the team's minicamp. He did a 4.45 on wet grass after the team arrived at training camp on the Angelo State campus.

Although Walls was told at every level of competition that he was too small to compete, he will only admit to his height being a handicap one time.

Walls went to the University of Texas as a freshman quarterback but quickly realized he would have to find another position. He couldn't see over his offensive linemen. "I could almost look under them," Walls said.

Walls wisely shifted to wide receiver for the Longhorns and before he was chosen in the seventh round by the Oilers, the powerfully built Dallas native became UT's all-time leader with an average of 25.8 yards for 38 receptions and 12 touchdowns.

Walls recalled that former North Carolina linebacker Lawrence Taylor tackled him on a reverse during his sophomore season, but can't recall ever being nabbed in the open field.

"Not even if they had the angle on me," Walls said.

Walls patiently answers the questions once again about his lack of height but his eyes widen slightly at the suggestion he might be considered a long shot to make the team.

"I think I have a pretty good chance to make it," he said. "I can jump pretty good so I don't think my height will be that much of a disadvantage."

Based on Walls' early camp performances, Oilers receivers Coach Andy Bourgeois tends to agree.

"I think Joe Washington proved to a lot of people that you don't have to be tall to be an effective receiver," Bourgeois said. "In the practices we've had so far, he's caught as many balls as any of our receivers. He's had an excellent camp so far."

Despite all his speed, Walls could get caught in a numbers game with the Oilers receiving corps where he will be competing against six veterans for one of probably four positions at final cutdown time.

But Walls is accustomed to long odds and short jokes.

Cowboys cut eight, down to 60

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys released eight more free agents Thursday, reducing the rookie roster to 60.

Cut were linebacker Larry Alleyne of Northern Illinois, quarterback Steve Duddy of Cal-Northridge, fullback Billy Hite of Virginia Tech, linebacker Yogi Jones of Pittsburgh, linebacker Art Lowery of Pittsburgh, punter David Meyer of San Diego State, safety Cecil Newton of Savannah State and runningback Don Robert of San Diego State.

Meanwhile, Dallas Coach Tom Landry indicated rookie free agent John Warren of Tennessee may make the Cowboys roster as a punter, releasing Danny White to devote fulltime duty to quarterback.

"If Warren can keep this up under the pressure of NFL football, he'll make the team," Landry said Thursday, referring to punts of 54 and 53 yards by Warren in a rookie scrimmage Wednesday against Los Angeles Rams rookies.

Warren, 6-0, 205, was used last year at Tennessee only in situations from the 50-yard line in, with the assignment of aiming for the corner.

Brokers become jacks-of-all-trades

By ARELO SEDERBERG
Hearst Feature Service

"You have accepted the new job in Albuquerque and need to make all the arrangements connected with your move. Whom do you call? Your stockbroker, of course.

"As your contact to the financial services market, your broker will arrange for the sale of your house, the purchase and financing of your new home, mortgage insurance, adjustments in your car insurance, airline tickets for your family, the rental car at the airport, the movement of your household goods, a loan to see you through the move or the investment of excess cash — if you have any."

Those words were penned by Wayne F. Nelson in a new book, "How to Profit from the Money Revolution." Nelson, a Merrill Lynch vice president in Washington, obviously believes that the brokerage business is changing, rapidly and drastically, and that will benefit you, the investor.

The one-stop financial revolution indeed is moving apace, with everyone in everyone else's business. Sears has its financial network in gear. Prudential owns Bache. Laws prohibiting banks from expanding across state lines are breaking down. Savings and loan associations and banks are offering stock at discounted commissions.

It's even getting to this point: Your financial statements are coming to you on television. Why not? You can get a device to have the statements printed out on paper, unscrambling their electronic form.

"I think that full service brokerage firms will be offering stock at greatly reduced commissions, as loss leaders, just to get you in the door for other services," Nelson said. "They'll offer unit investment trusts, no-load mutual funds, life insurance, limited partnerships, commercial and consumer loans."

The business will go to brokers, Nelson believes, because "people aren't getting anything from bank managers, don't even know them, and they don't trust life insurance." And as far as the Certified Financial Planner is concerned: "You can buy a certificate from Denver and hang out a shingle." So, Nelson repeats, the business will go to brokerage firms.

If so, you can expected a round of consolidations among firms that will outpace the consolidations of the past. And acquisitions by other companies, some non-financial services, will rage on. Even the biggest of the brokerage firms will not escape, Nelson says, because the need for capital will be so great.

He also looks for continued mergers among banks and savings and loan associations; in fact, Nelson sees S&Ls totally disappearing into giant financial service conglomerates.

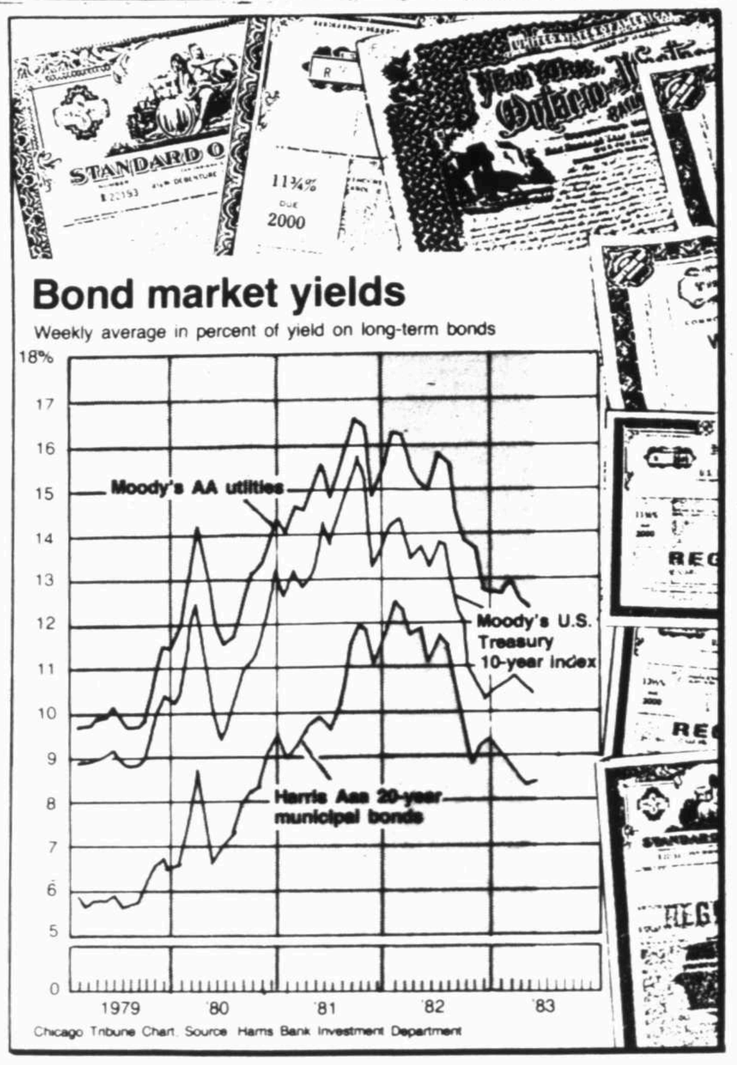
How will it affect you? Well, convenience will be one advantage; you won't have to trot to the broker, the bank, the insurance agent. You'll go to Money Conglomerate, Inc., or call your representative there. Bingo, it's done. And you well may benefit in lower commission rates, especially on stocks. Competition among the giants will bring that about.

Nelson cites three reasons for the revolution. One is deregulation of the financial services industry, which spurred the thrifts to become bankers, the brokerage firms to become full-service houses. Then there is the advent of technology. Nelson: "Hutton now is experimenting with calling up brokerage accounts on your home screen; pretty soon we'll all have hand-held calculators to move our money." Then, third, is the fact that people are accepting the revolution. They like it.

Nelson has some pretty revolutionary ideas himself. One is that no-load mutual funds will die. Already, brokers are being offered fees from company-owned funds when they "rest" their customers' stock money in them, and soon that will have to spread to other funds, he reasons. No-loads now sell directly to investors, charging no commission (only a management fee).

Nelson is gung-ho for the stock market; he thinks the bull may rage for another decade. There still are billions in pension fund money on the sidelines, he points out, and lots of foreign money coming in — much of it awakened by the money revolution.

But his "Doctor Index" forecasts that real estate will continue to be slow. "My doctor is in real estate; he thinks he understands it. I take the opposite view of what doctors think, because they're too busy to understand anything except medicine. Real estate will be slow for a decade. It's too dependent upon inflation."



Adair fighting Gulf blowout

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Experts were studying possible ways of containing a gas well blowout in the Gulf of Mexico that forced the evacuation of 38 crewmen and devastated a rig near Port Aransas.

No one was injured when the well blew out about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, but the rig, owned by Penrod Drilling Co. of Dallas, was heavily damaged and tipped on its side, said Jim Flatt, manager of Exxon's South Texas production division.

Experts from Red Adair's Houston-based company that specializes in containing well fires and blowouts were summoned to study ways of capping the leaking gas.

The crewmen, who were employees of Exxon, Penrod and other contractors, evacuated the rig "by lifeboat according to established evacuation procedures," Flatt said.

Boy Scouts discover reason for new trade barriers

By The Los Angeles Times
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The Boy Scouts were attracted by the Cyrillic script on the oddly-shaped packet they spotted floating in the Pacific Ocean off the West Coast of the United States.

But closer examination by American intelligence agencies found more of interest than the strange writing on the waterproof packet. Inside was a Soviet acoustical detection device utilizing exact copies of some of the latest U.S.-made microchips — vital components in Moscow's efforts to listen to the sounds of new American submarines.

"We took out the Soviet copy of the Intel Corp. microchip and put in the real thing. It worked perfectly," said Assistant Defense Secretary Richard N. Perle, who cited the detection device as an example of how the Soviets beg, borrow, buy or steal new technology from the West.

Perle is the point man for Reagan administration efforts to toughen controls on exports of Western technology to East bloc nations. U.S. business interests and America's European allies assert the White House has gone too far in limiting sales to the Soviets. Later this month or early in August, the House and Senate are expected to take up the extension of the Export Administration Act, which expires Sept. 30.

A HARD-LINER on the Soviet Union, Perle is lobbying hard for changes in a version of the bill passed by the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Calling that version "lopsided and insensitive to the security issue," Perle has encouraged a special panel of the House Armed Services Committee to hold its own hearings on the issue.

"There are obviously valid security interests. But the problem for public policy is to strike a balance. That's where I think they (House Foreign Affairs Committee members) have failed," said Perle.

His view, on borderline cases, leans strongly toward controls. "It is better to wrongly control than to wrongly license," said Perle. "The consequence of failing to license is loss of a sale. In economic terms, of minor consequences. But licensing something that shouldn't have been licensed will have profound consequences for the country's security."

While the Senate bill comes closer to the administration draft, Perle still considers it too weak in protecting American security interests.

"I hope the administration will make it clear it will veto a bad bill" that fails to meet America's security needs, Perle said in an interview in his Pentagon office, which is decorated with carpets and Persian miniatures collected during his world travels while a national security specialist on the staff of Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

IF CONGRESS FAILS to pass new legislation, it could simply extend the present law, which Perle feels leaves the president with more authority than some of the measures before Congress. Senate sources, however, suggested that is a dangerous gambit for the administration to play.

The law was utilized by Presidents Carter and Reagan in the Soviet grain embargo and the controversial attempt to keep American companies and their subsidiaries from supplying gear for the Soviet natural gas pipeline.

But its use angered both American businesses, who complained that embargoes cost them sales without advancing United States interests, and Western European allies, who objected to the extraterritorial reach of the administration proposal.

This debate was mirrored in sharp divisions within the administration, with Perle and Assistant Commerce Secretary Lawrence J. Brady taking a hard-line approach and Commerce Undersecretary Lionel H. Olmer urging greater flexibility.

Both Perle and Olmer have testified in favor of the administration's approach, but clear differences show up in conversations with the two. Olmer defends the Commerce Department's control of licensing efforts and its enforcement of export curbs while Perle calls for a greater Department of Defense role in licensing and a separate, police-oriented enforcement detail.

SELLING WESTERN technology to the Soviets "is more profitable and less dangerous than smuggling heroin," he said. "If you get on a plane with a suitcase full of electronics, the likelihood of getting caught is small."

Perle said the Soviets devote a great deal of attention to American technology, down to knowing what scientists in American centers of advanced technology do the most innovative work.

Now, he said, Moscow is focusing on microelectronics where a fast-changing technology affects hundreds of weapons systems. That is the basis of the "smart weapons," which can sense their position and the position of the targets on a battlefield. "That ability," Perle said, "spells the difference between success and failure on the battlefield."

ENSTAR files stock offering

HOUSTON (SWN) — ENSTAR Corporation said Thursday it has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for a proposed public offering of 1,500,000 shares of common stock.

Proceeds from the sale will be used primarily to reduce outstanding bank debt. The offering will be co-managed by E. F. Hutton & Company Inc. and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.

Donoghue's Money Fund Average (Averages for all 252 taxable funds)		35	8.36	8.22

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 252 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT of Holliston, MA 01746 increased $21 million to $162.6 billion for the week ending July 20, 1983.

The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 8.36% from 8.24%. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 8.22% from 8.14%.

The funds' average maturity figure stayed at 35 days for the third week.

William E. Donoghue says, "It's a week of 'sevens' for money fund yields. The 7-day average yield on all taxable money funds reached a seven-month high of 8.35% this week following seven weeks of consecutive increases. The 7-day money fund average stands at only seven basis points below the average money market deposit account rate of 8.43% reported by The Bank Rate Monitor this week."

Union talks expected

DETROIT (AP) — A top union official predicted the United Auto Workers' Chrysler leaders would ask to reopen contract talks with Chrysler Corp. in view of the once-troubled automaker's best-ever quarterly profit.

UAW Vice President Marc Stepp said Thursday he expected the 170 representatives of Chrysler locals to vote today in favor of seeking pay raises for their fellows, saying the workers are entitled to part of the record $310.3 million second-quarter profit announced earlier in the day.

The previous Chrysler record was $172.1 million set in the first three months of this year.

Workers agreed to concessions, including elimination of cost-of-living allowances and annual pay increases, in 1980 and 1981 to save the company from bankruptcy when it lost $3.27 billion between 1979 through 1981, Stepp noted.

"I would not want to judge the anger index of the Chrysler workers" if the two sides must wait until January for a new pact, he said at a news conference.

Chrysler's current contract, which reinstated a cost-of-living allowance and gave Chrysler's more than 43,000 U.S. workers an immediate pay raise, does not expire until Jan. 14.

The company's revived finances, however, have prompted autoworkers to call for more money. They earn more than $9.80 an hour in wages now, but it is some $2 an hour behind wages at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

Airlines may resume fare wars next fall

By GREGORY SPECTOR
Hearst Feature Service

Despite a disastrous second quarter, most major airlines have no plans to do away with super-saver fares. And there may even be a renewal of the '82 fare war next fall if the recovery doesn't bring increased passenger traffic after Labor Day.

"All it would take is for one airline to offer deep discounts, and a fare war would break out again," said Ted Lopatklewicz at the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Robert Joedicke, of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb Inc. in New York sees the discounting coming after Labor Day, when discretionary air traffac slows.

"The third quarter is bound to be strong as always — it's a peak period for revenues," said Joedicke. "You don't give things away during your peak period, just as Macy's doesn't have a white sale two weeks before Christmas, so we're seeing firmer fares right now.

"But if traffic doesn't show strength after Labor Day, there may be a temptation to bring back unrestricted discount fares. I don't think they will be as extreme as in the latter half of '82, but you probably will see some discounting."

THE DAMAGE DONE to airlines by discounting in the first six months of 1983 has become apparent as carriers post second quarter earnings. Trans World Airlines, for instance, reported a first-half loss of $108.9 million only a day after Eastern Airlines announced a record loss of $94.4 million for the first six months. And Republic Airlines is expected to report a similar bloodbath, anticipating a $100 million loss for the first half.

To stem such losses, airlines at the end of last month announced the elimination of the "M" fare — a 20 percent unrestricted discount price. The result for TWA was a severe drop in load factor, from about 70 percent to 55 percent.

Though most airlines have reported steady growth in traffic starting in April, such figures are no longer a valid measure of airline prosperity. Most passengers in April were flying on discount fares. But fares began to firm up in May and the airlines began showing a greater "yield," the amount of revenue per paying passenger per mile — usually about 10 cents or less.

While traffic increased 10 percent because of discounts in the first quarter, yield fell 10 percent, so the result was a $650 million industry-wide loss, compared to a $125 million profit a year ago, said Bill Jackman at the Air Transport Association.

"Yield fell only 1 percent in May, so the trend is improving," said Jackman. "By the end of June, we may be in the black for the first time in a long time."

TRAVEL AGENT TICKET sales were up 16 percent in June from the same period a year earlier. "But it's highly competitive these days, and a number of carriers have rescinded their proposed fare increases," said Jackman. Eastern and Republic had scheduled a 5 percent fare hike July 15, but they backed down when no other carriers followed their lead.

Jackman believes that without a real bounce back of the economy, consumers can look for renewed activity in the form of price wars to fill seats in the fall.

"You'll see airlines offering discounted fares forever," said the CAB's Lopatklewicz. "Though carriers have raised their discount fares somewhat, they are not going to get rid of super-savers. But everything depends on financial results and the general state of the economy."

Super-savers are the industry's restricted advance-purchase round-trip fares, offering consumers just what their name promises. A standard one-way coach fare ticket between Los Angeles and New York is about $423, while a round-trip super-saver ticket on the same route costs about $398.

Buyout offer to be considered

FORT WORTH (SWN) — Texas American Bancshares Inc. announced today that its board of directors will consider at a meeting to be held early next week an unsolicited acquisition proposal from Texas Commerce Bancshares.

Texas Commerce's proposal states that it provides a value of $50 per Texas American share. Specifically, according to the proposal, each Texas American shareholder would receive tax-free one share of Texas Commerce common stock in exchange for each Texas American share.

Greater energy efficiency, profitability forecast

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — For years to come, energy need not constrain economic growth in the United States, according to the projection of a Congressional science advisory panel.

The Office of Technology Assessment (OTA) concludes that over the next two decades, investments in new manufacturing processes, a shift to less energy-intensive products, and technical innovation will lead to substantially increased energy efficiency and increased industrial profitability and competitiveness.

As a result, the rate of industrial production may grow three times faster than the rate of energy use currently needed for that production, the nonpartisan advisory panel stated in its report on "Industrial Energy Use."

The study held that because investments needed to improve energy efficiency are long term, a reduction in energy use growth rates resulting from investments begun now will continue through the 1980s and 1990s.

Furthermore, this improvement will continue beyond 2000 as the proportion of new, energy-efficient capital stock increases, largely a result of equipment retrofits and new process technologies and investments that began during the 1970s.

In 1981, the industrial sector used 23 quads (a quad equals one quadrillion British thermal units) of direct fuel, electricity and fossil fuel, of which petroleum and natural gas constituted 73 percent.

Four industries — paper, petroleum refining, chemicals and steel — accounted for almost half of all industrial energy used.

Over the past decade, soaring energy prices have led to significant changes in the mix of energy used in industry. In the decades ahead, industry will continue its shift away from premium fuel use and will depend in greater measure on industrial coal which is cheaper than oil and gas.

Morever, the demand for purchased electricity will probably grow faster than the total industrial energy demand if the price difference between natural gas and electricity continues to decrease.

For each of the four industries analyzed, OTA projected future energy demand.

In the paper industry, OTA found that although energy use has risen slightly since 1972, the industry is now more energy self-sufficient and in 1981, the pulp and paper industries generated half of its energy from wood residues.

From now through the year 2000, projections for the petroleum refining industry show a decline in product output, but continued improvement in energy efficiency. OTA points out that efficiency gains will be mostly offset by a shift to high-sulfur, heavier crude oil feedstock, and a need for additional processing of raw materials to meet market demand for high octane, unleaded gasoline.

Projections for the chemicals industry indicate an increase in energy efficiency through a combination of technological improvements to existing process equipment, technical innovation in developing new processes, and a shift from commodity chemicals, such as chlorine, to less-energy intensive specialty chemicals, such as pharmaceuticals.

According to OTA, as the steel industry rebuilds to meet foreign competition, production will grow slowly, but will show a large reduction in energy intensity due to new processes: the replacement of ingot casting by continuous casting, and the substitution of electric arc furances for the blast furnace-basic oxygen furance combination of traditional steelmaking.

OTA's findings suggested that the most effective government policies to promote the efficient use of energy are not those specifically targeted to energy use, but those that improve the economic outlook and investment climate by lowering interest rates and expanding demand for goods and services.

SURVEY REPORTS THEFT

A study by the National Institute of Justice has found that one-third of employees in retail, manufacturing and service organizations reported stealing company property, costing American business between $5 billion and $10 billion in losses per year. Further results revealed that almost two-thirds reported sick leave abuse, drug or alcohol abuse and other misconduct causing "counterproductive workmanship."

The study, "Theft by Employees in the Work Organization," disclosed that company policies can be the most effective tool to reverse employee theft. The study found that companies could reduce theft and related behavior by establishing, publicizing and strictly enforcing a company-wide policy against employee pilferage; use of an inventory control system, and evaluation of job histories during pre-employment screening.

The 47 business corporations studied included 16 retail department store chains, 21 general hospitals, and 10 electronics manufacturing firms. A total of 9,175 randomly selected employees ananymously provided data, while 247 executives provided information in separate interviews about a variety of management perspectives and practices regarding employee theft.

CAPITAL INVESTMENT

The Reagan administration will convene the White House Conference on Productivity on Sept. 22 and 23 to develop recommendations for stimulating productivity growth in the U.S. In preparation for the event, the panel is holding preparatory conferences, one ending today in San Diego and another, Aug. 2 - 4 at Carnegie-Mellon University. The preparatory conferences will focus on private sector initiatives — productivity and profitability, evaluating productivity's contribution to company objectives, and ways to measure and manage productivity.

CAPITAL INVESTMENT

Louisiana becomes the first state in the nation today to grant corporate and individual income tax credits to investors in its business and industry, setting a new precedent in the use of state tax policy for the creation of jobs and promotion of economic growth.

The innovative approach to capital formation grants state income tax credits of up to 35 percent to individuals and corporations that invest in "capital companies" established in accordance with the law. It is anticipated that this program will produce at least $20 million of available venture capital in the first year, with the five year goal set at $100 million.

TRADE LAWS

A new coalition of more than 4 million workers and industries with $265 billion in sales has been organized to propose 60 specific reforms in U.S. international trade laws. The industries account for 40 percent of America's total manufacturing sales.

The Trade Reform Action Coalition (TRAC) claims that as the result of a record $43 billion trade deficit in 1982, America's basic industries are declining and that the unemployment has risen substantially as industrial production has fallen, all victims of "inadequate trade law enforcement and trade laws."

PRIVATE PENSIONS GROW

Private pension plan assets grew at an annual rate of 13 percent between 1975 and 1978, reaching a total of about $433 billion, according to a Labor Department study. There were 496,000 plans covering 52.4 million people regulated by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) in 1978. A typical plan was a small, single-employer defined contribution trust covering lss than 100 persons. Copies of the 36-page study, "Estimates of Participant and Financial Characteristics of Private Pension Plans" are available at $3.75 from U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Tesoro suspends refinery project

SAN ANTONIO (SWN) — Tesoro Petroleum Corporation has announced that it has suspended indefinately the proposed $80 to $90 million expansion and modification of its Kenai, Alaska refinery.

Instead, and subject to approval by its Board of Directors, the Company will consider the implementation of limited modific-ations which would permit the refinery to process 100 percent higher-sulphur Alaskan North Slope crude oil, with no capacity expansion. These modifications would include increased sulphur-recovery capacity and associated facilities for maintaining air-and water-quality standards.

The original expansion/modification plans were curtailed last month after the Alaska Legislature failed to act upon a supplemental contract for 26,000 barrels per day of Alaska North Slope Royalty crude oil negotiated by Tesoro and the State of Alaska.

Tesoro still believes, as previously announced, that the full expansion/modification project is viable if the requested supplemental crude oil supplies could be obtained under terms and conditions such as those already areed to with the admin-istration of the Governor of Alaska.

Midlanders ignore city's warnings to conserve water

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

John Lowe panicked last week when the water quit flowing from Paul Davis Well Field. After all, half the city's water comes from that supply.

Fortunately, a transformer running the pumps was down for little more than an hour, said the city utilities director, and water was flowing through the lines once again. But, Midlanders didn't listen to his warning and didn't try to conserve.

Hot and dry. That forecast spells trouble for Lowe and the city's water supply. The conditions join to form a lack of H2O and have been prevalent this summer — the kind of summer Lowe hates.

It's been a record-breaking summer in terms of water used, with 1 billion gallons expected to be running out of citizens' taps this month.

Those record amounts and the citizens' apparent uncaring attitude toward conservation concern Lowe.

For those reasons, Lowe will be suggesting to the Midland City Council at its retreat in September to start thinking of expanding the well field and to devise a public campaign for conserving water.

Midland might be in an economic slump, but lack of money apparently hasn't slackened the thirst for water.

On July 2, citizens used 38.2 million gallons of water. The previous record had been set in July 1980 when 34.1 million gallons were used.

"THAT'S A LOT of increase on a peak day consumption," said Lowe of the 4 million gallon difference. But the same ratio is reflected in the average for those two months. Three years ago in July, 31 million gallons a day (mgd) was pumped out. This year, it's averaging 35 mgd for the first 20 days, he said.

During the heat wave in July 1980, 961 gallons of water were used. The following two summers were cooler and wetter with 827 million gallons and 792 being used, respectively. "But we should pump a little over 1 billion gallons this month," Lowe said, with emphasis on the "billion."

In his long-range planning, Lowe hadn't expected Midland to hit that number until summer 1986.

Midland's continued increase in growth is one reason for the record-setting usage. A second is "the peculiar rain pattern. All the rain clouds have scooted south, east or north of us," he said.

The last helpful moisture fell in January, according to Lowe, and that came in the form of snow.

"The knees on my pants are worn out, praying for rain, and I'm not doing any good," he said in appealing for help. "I'd appreciate it a lot if we'd get some rain to help us."

WHEN THE PAUL Davis Field failed for that short time last week, it meant a potential loss of 19 million gallons of water that day. The rest of Midland's needs come from the Colorado River Municipal Water District and a backup system at McMillen Well Field.

CRMWD can send a maximum of 13.5 million gallons each day to Midland. During the potential crisis, district officials agreed to ship more. But, said Lowe, the city had to repay the amount it used by cutting back later.

Midland is approaching its daily limits on CRMWD water, according to a news release from the district. For the first 20 days of this month, the city averaged 13.44 mgd.

An expansion to Paul Davis Well Field is almost completed, said Lowe. In fact, it should have been in place by April but construction problems pushed back the date. This expansion will allow the field to pump a maximum of 27 mgd into the city. Added to CRMWD and McMillen water, this will give Midlanders the capability to turn on to 45 mgd.

With Midland's increasing use, Lowe is perturbed the Paul Davis expansion won't serve the needs as far into the future as expected. The bond issue financing these expansions was passed in late 1979 and the field should have supplied needs adequately into the 1990s.

HE ORIGINALLY had not planned to consider another expansion before 1986. But with the higher usage figures, that time has been shortened three years. "Planning takes five years, and this wouldn't come on line until 1990-91," he said.

Looking at usage figures from last week, Lowe concluded residents didn't take his warning to conserve seriously.

On Wednesday, the day before the transformer broke down for an hour, consumption was 36.8 million gallons. On Thursday, it dropped to 32.4 million gallons. And on Friday, when residents had a full day to cut back, the number was 30.1 million gallons. If the transformer hadn't been repaired, the city could have pumped out only 22 million gallons.

"We're getting to the point that water running down the street won't be acceptable. Sometime in the near future we need to establish some campaign to stop water running down the streets. It's happening all over town.

"We need to put our minds to it, see if appeals to the public to use water in a more conservative manner would work," he said.

Lowe related some residents have tried to advise neighbors to reduce their lawn watering, but were told it was none of their business.

HE WON'T GUESS how much water is being lost that way, other than to speculate it would be 2 to 3 percent. "But on that large a number (1 billion gallons for the month) it's still a large amount. Conservation would prolong the life of the well field."

Projecting Midlanders' needs in the distant future is becoming more difficult, said Lowe, and the rapid highs and lows in the economy don't help.

"We can do a pretty good job on a five-year plan. Ten years is hard to do. Past that it's SWAG, or a Scientific Wild-Ass Guess," he said.

And mixed in with all that long-range planning is the weather, something not even the meterologists can predict for Lowe.

Thirst quencher

Midlanders' thirst this summer has been quenched by water flowing through these lines at the Paul Davis Well Field, about 25 miles north of the city. With the hot, dry conditions, record amounts have been pumped into the city, and 1 billion gallons is expected to be used this month.

Cold blast may be blowing bucks out of your pocket

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

That cold blast streaming from the air conditioner may be blowing bucks right out of your pocket.

But cold cash can be melted from the electric bill this time of year through proper usage of the air conditioner, according to Sara St. Clair, spokesperson for Texas Electric Service Company.

While temperatures continue to hover in the mid-90s — scurrying every now and then to the century mark — Midland residents reach for the thermostat to turn on the air, increasing the demand for electricity.

Although the city has not reached its electrical peak, Midlanders used 4,097,000 kilowatts (kw) on July 11. A kilowatt is 1,000 watts.

"We had an all time usage high — 4,317,000 kw — throughout our system on a Friday, Aug. 27, 1982," Ms. St. Clair said, explaining that the "system" covers an 18,500 square mile region in north, central and west Texas.

"As it gets hotter, people use the air conditioner more," she said, adding that a higher electric bill is the end result.

"There can be exceptions, but in general (the air conditioner) uses more than lights, refrigerator and basic small appliances put together," Ms. St. Clair said.

To curb the bills while getting out from under the heat, "we recommend that people use the air conditioner as wisely as possible," she added. "Turn it off when you're not home. Turn the thermostat to the highest temperature you can and use fans."

"There can be exceptions, but in general (the air conditioner) uses more than lights, refrigerator and basic small appliances put together...We recommend that people use the air conditioner as wisely as possible. Turn it off when you're not home."

— Sara St. Clair, Texas Electric Company

But there may be some misconception about the use of the floor, or box fans. "If the fan is on, people think their bill won't be as high," Ms. St. Clair said. "When you run the fan along with the air conditioner, the bill will not decrease. Anytime you can turn off the air conditioner, you're going to be better off."

Although there is a wide range in costs of running an air conditioner, depending on its size and efficiency, Ms. St. Clair noted the price can be as low as 14 to 70 cents and higher per hour.

"For each degree below 80, you will pay 5 percent more on the air conditioner part of your bill," she added. "But using two box fans in two bedrooms as opposed to running the air conditioner all night, would save a tremendous amount."

For example, a floor fan can cost 1¼ cents per hour compared to an "average" air conditioner, requiring 30 to 50 cents per hour to operate. And ceiling fans are cheaper, costing less than one-cent per hour.

"If your air conditioner costs 50 cents per hour to operate and you run it for four hours per day, it would cost $2," Ms. St. Clair said. "Now, say you run it for 30 days, four hours a day — that's $60 dollars for your air conditioner, alone."

Besides "turning off" the air, electric customers can use common sense and close all doors and windows when the air conditioner is on. Also, when shopping for a replacement air conditioner, Ms. St. Clair recommended that buyers "shop for the highest seasonal energy efficiency ratio, nine or above" or, in other words, the air conditioner that cools the home effectively for the least money.

"If you have one rated six and one rated nine, you'll be just as cool," she said. "But the six will cost more money — you'll pay more on your electric bill. It is important to note that the one rated nine or higher will cost more initially, but in the long run it will mean cheaper electric bills."

GISD switches principals — again

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Although it is said to be a woman's prerogative to change her mind, that right applies to school boards as well. The Greenwood Board of Trustees decided Thursday night to reassign Bob Pheil as elementary principal and Max Dickerson as secondary principal, after exchanging their positions last month. Both principals said they did not know the reasons behind the swap.

"You're just as surprised as I am," President Patsy Herrington commented on the action. "First we thought maybe we needed a change, and sometimes if you switch principals it opens up better communications for the system. Apparently after the switch there was some controversy over it, and we discussed it and decided to switch them back. We felt it was for the best interest of the school."

The board also voted 4-1 to expand the gifted and talented education program to include kindergarten through third grade. The pilot program would train volunteer teachers to incorporate creative enrichment activities into the regular classroom.

"This is an experimental program," commented B.K. Dean, the district's gifted education teacher. "This has not been done to my knowledge."

The proposal would give all children through third grade the opportunity to be involved in gifted and talented activities, instead of trying to identify exceptional students through testing. The program would allow interested students who have met regular classroom objectives to participate in additional, more challenging activities. Those students who are "fast finishers" would have an incentive to excel, according to Ms. Dean.

Volunteer teachers would undergo 24 hours of training. Gifted students in a classroom with a teacher who was not trained could participate with another class. Students will spend three hours a week in the pilot program, which will begin this fall.

"This is not to put any undue pressure on teachers," Ms. Dean emphasized. "I don't think the teachers should be pressured into anything they cannot handle. But I have no qualms with teachers offering the right kids some extra activities."

Some advantages Ms. Dean cited include:

—The program would be inexpensive because it uses existing staff. The major cost would be additional materials.

Landman files countersuit against firm

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Aminoil USA Inc.'s former Southwest district landman, Bill Johnson, has filed a countersuit for $2 million in actual damages against the oil company.

Last month, Aminoil sued Johnson for $1.5 million in exemplary damages in claiming Johnson had violated company trust and its "Standards of Business Conduct." Aminoil alleged that Johnson consorted with Midas Energy Inc. to whom Aminoil had farmed out petroleum lease acreage, relayed pertinent information on the leases to Midas, and reaped $437,000 for his one-fourth interest in Midas's $1.75 million farmout sale to an unnamed third party.

The suit and countersuit are filed in Midland's 142nd State District Court.

Aminoil says when Johnson was hired as district landman on July 10, 1978, he was aware of company policies, including a rule that "Employees should avoid any outside financial interests which might influence their corporate decisions or actions."

Johnson claims he violated no company trusts or obligations.

Rather, Johnson maintains Aminoil "had initiated and granted the farmout to Midas or to others," that he proposed the acreage be farmed out in smaller tracts for a higher percentage of production for Aminoil or to be drilled by Aminoil. Johnson says he "opposed the farmout, believing that the leases were capable of producing oil and gas." Aminoil's Houston office decided to farmout the acreage to Midas and EIS.

Johnson says he in "no way gave preference to Midas or assisted Midas in any way" in Midas's obtaining the farmout.

However, Johnson did say in his petition that he was "instructed by his superiors to contact Midas to determine whether Midas was interested in a farmout" and that he and other Aminoil employees assisted Midas in preparing a brochure on the acreage to prospective purchasers.

In proposing to sell the farmout acreage to others, Midas asked Johnson and other Aminoil employees "to expedite the accumulation of certain data concerning the leases," Johnson says. The data was "no longer confidential," says Johnson. Aminoil was "in fact obligated by the farmout agreement to share" that data with Midas and EIS. Johnson says he "made no secret of the compilation, which did not involve confidential information or a breach of duty."

Representing Johnson in the dispute is Midland lawyer Reagan Legg. Aminoil is represented by David Spoede of Roswell, N.M.

In his countersuit, Johnson further maintains that Aminoil's initial allegations against him were "malicious, unfounded and designed to injure or destroy" his reputation and business.

DEATHS

Houston Seabolt

ODESSA — Services for Houston Seabolt, 30, of Odessa, were to be at 10 a.m. today at Westwood Baptist Church with the Rev. Jerry Coffman officiating. Burial was to follow in Sunset Memorial Gardens under the direction of Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

He died Wednesday in Odessa.

Seabolt was born March 5, 1953, in Odessa. He married Karen Morgan Nov. 17, 1977, in Odessa. Seabolt was a salesman for Basin Packer Co., served as reserve deputy sheriff and had served on the Odessa City Council from April 1981 to 1983. He was a corporal for the Odessa Police Department from Feb. 11, 1974 to Feb. 24, 1981. He was an Army veteran who served in Vietnam.

Survivors include his wife, Karen; a son, Scott Seabolt of Odessa; a daughter, Tamara Seabolt of Odessa; his father, Joseph Harold Seabolt of Kermit; his mother, Glorabell Lewis of Concho, Ariz.; two grandmothers, Faybell Buford of San Angelo and Erma Seabolt of Odessa; and two brothers, Joe and Gaza Seabolt, both of Odessa.

The family requests that memorials be directed to Houston Seabolt Fund at Western National Bank. Attention: Mary Ann Bishop. Money collected will be spent for the new city police-courts building.

Survivors other than his parents include a twin brother, Logan Locker Rodgers; and his grandparents, James N. and Mary Anne Castleberry of San Antonio, and Virgil and Alyne Rodgers of San Angelo.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorials be directed to the Neo-natal Center at Lubbock General Hospital, 602 Indiana Ave., Lubbock, Texas 79417.

Hare was a truck driver, a Baptist and a life-long resident of Big Spring.

Man moves Texas' waterways

By SARAH MCCLENDON

From Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The man who has consistently been Mr. Texas in Washington is not a congressman, has never run for President and is not a federal office holder. Yet for 42 years in Washington he has literally moved Texas' waterways and industry.

Dale Miller of Corpus Christi is a second generation Washington representative who has looked out for Texans, both officials and private citizens. He is son of the late Roy Miller, who started this leadership and who is still remembered around Washington for his kindliness and courtesy.

(Roy Miller never asked a Texas congressman for a vote in his life — he just "visited" at their offices daily. The son, Dale, followed his path. The two got things done for Texas through their friendships.)

The Millers, father and son, were the main force behind the building of the Gulf Intra-Coastal canal, which crosses Louisiana and Texas.

Dale Miller's accomplishments were pointed out here Wednesday at the annual congressional reception honoring 35 University of Texas summer interns. It is Miller's 12th year of arranging jobs and education in government for these summer interns as chairman of the Advisory committee of the Texas University Internship program. The students learned it was his birthday and arranged for Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, to pay tribute to Miller. They presented him with a flag that had been flown over the U.S. Capitol in his honor. His family provided the flagpole at the family home in Washington so now Miller's flag may fly there for all to see.

But getting jobs for Texas students at the U.S. Capitol and in law offices in downtown Washington and in industry is only a small part of Miller's accomplishments.

You may have crossed the Dale Miller bridge at Aransas Pass, which is now 25 years old. Miller's friends stop and polish the plaque when they cross. That was a by-product of his having been executive vice president and then president of the Gulf Intra-Coastal Canal association for 37 years. That meant he testified before House and Senate Appropriations committees seeking funds for the building, development, maintenance and operation of the canal that has made possible Texas' port and industrial development and its access to the world's commerce.

Miller did not serve just South Texas but did the same for North and Central Texas. He represented the Dallas Chamber of Commerce here for 42 years. For 30 years he represented the port of Corpus Christi. For 37 years he represented Texas Gulf, Inc., a world-wide mineral exploration and development company.

He was chairman of the LBJ Inaugural Committee in 1965. His wife, Scooter, was his partner in this mammoth undertaking.

He has been, for 12 years, on the Executive Council of the University of Texas Ex-Students association. For years he served as president of the alumni associations of the two schools he attended, the University of Texas and the University of Missouri. Four years ago when the two teams played each other, both honored Miller at a ceremony during half time.

Miller and his wife have organized events in Washington for years. They have been the mainspring behind the Texas State Society with about 2000 members now, the Texas Breakfast Club, with 100 in monthly attendance, and the annual birthday celebrations of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson at the park memorializing him here.

Just about every Texan who ever visited Washington and thousands of notables from other states have been guests at the famous Miller parties. For 18 years they gave the annual birthday party for the late Speaker Sam Rayburn.

No one has ever tried to chronicle the times when Dale has been the adviser, super consultant, diplomat, peace maker in small and large conferences here that had their impact on government and history.

'Mercy killer' arrested on marijuana charge

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Ray Clore, given probation this week for shooting his comatose father in an attempted "mercy killing," was arrested after police received a complaint of a man driving his pickup on a sidewalk and harassing prostitutes, authorities said.

Officers said they found 3 grams — less than half an ounce — of marijuana in the Clore's truck when they arrested the 26-year-old man at 4 a.m. Thursday, police spokeswoman Phymeon Jackson said.

Clore was charged with possession of marijuana and jailed under $1,500 bond, Miss Jackson said.

Dick Bax, who assisted in Clore's prosecution for attempted murder, said the new charge will not affect his three-year probated sentence. Bax said that Clore has not started serving his probation, so it cannot be revoked.

"The marijuana case will be handled on its own with its own merits," Bax said.

State District Judge Ted Poe, who presided over Clore's 2½-week trial, revoked Clore's personal recognizance bond in the attempted murder conviction. New bond in that case was set at $7,500.

Conviction on a charge of possessing less than 2 ounces of marijuana ranges from one day of probation to a six-month jail term and a $1,000 fine.

Clore's attorney, Jack Zimmermann, reached in Washington where he was giving a speech, said he was "surprised, but I don't know if it happened."

Two out on parole

AUSTIN — Two persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area have been released on parole, according to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Oscar Lewis Shaw, convicted in Midland County on Feb. 13, 1981, of attempted murder, has been paroled to Midland County after serving and earning five years and one month of an 8-year sentence.

And Robert Bennie Smith, convicted in Ector County on Aug. 2, 1979, of robbery and armed robbery, has been paroled to Ector County after serving and earning six years and 11 months of a 10-year sentence.

Witnesses testify for Dallas sheriff

DALLAS (AP) — Eight defense witnesses, including the wife of a federal prosecutor, testified that Dallas County Sheriff Don Byrd was not drunk at a party he attended just hours before he wrecked his car.

Susan Rolfe, wife of U.S. Attorney James A. Rolfe, said she and her husband shared a table with Byrd during a dinner theater party April 16.

"He was not intoxicated," she said.

During a theater presentation in which the audience was invited to take sides and hiss or boo the villains, Byrd ascended the stage twice to interact with actors while the play was in progress, two members of the cast testified on Tuesday.

Mrs. Rolfe's testimony Thursday came as the defense began presenting its case on the third day of Byrd's non-jury, trial on a misdemeanor driving while intoxicated charge.

Besides Mrs. Rolfe, seven other of Byrd's friends, subordinates, and social and professional acquaintances testified Thursday that the sheriff did not appear intoxicated in the hours before the accident, which took place early April 17 in suburban University Park.

No witnesses have testified about Byrd's activities between the party and the accident, in which Byrd's 1983 Lincoln Continental struck a concrete base of a traffic signal.

Morgan Robinette, Byrd's assistant chief deputy, said he photographed Byrd's car after the accident, inspected the scene of the accident, and concluded that Byrd's car was traveing about 30 mph.

Odessan's death ruled accidental

ODESSA — Ector County Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris has ruled that ex-police officer and former City Councilman Houston Seabolt's death resulted from accidental carbon monoxide poisoning.

Seabolt, whose body was found Wednesday morning on the floor of a recreational vehicle parked inside the Basin Packer Co. on the Kermit Highway, was a detective with the Odessa Police Department prior to his serving one term on the Odessa City Council from 1981 to 1983.

Seabolt was a salesman for the firm where the RV — its engine running — was parked. Other employees discovered his body when they arrived for work about 7 a.m. Wednesday.

A 23-year-old Odessa woman found unconscious in the vehicle remains in critical condition at Medical Center Hospital.

Funeral services for Seabolt were held at 10 a.m. today in the Westwood Baptist Church. Burial was in Sunset Memorial Gardens.

Survivors include his wife and two children.

GISD board switches principals — again

—Students do not have to be tested and selected to participate, eliminating time and expense.

—The teaching strategies will enhance all teaching and learning.

—Students are not removed from regular classroom activities.

—It will help in identifying students to participate in the regular gifted and talented program.

James Brooks was the only board member to vote against the proposal.

Ms. Dean also reported on the overall performance of the gifted and talented program, in which 250 students participated in its second year. In evaluations by staff, students and parents overall response was positive, although there was some concern about lack of communication with regular classroom teachers and missed time in the classroom, she said. The majority of students indicated there was no problem with completing regular classroom work.

Ms. Dean said she was still investigating test methods used to select students to participate in the gifted and talented program. "I'm not comfortable with any of them at this time. The ones that are real good are complicated to score and expensive (to process)."

She also requested an aide to assist in working with gifted students, selecting participants for the program, and compiling data and research materials. The board took no action on the request.

White House denies invitation pay back for legal services

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The White House denied Thursday that Mr. and Mrs. Barrera Sr., of San Antonio, were guests of the President and Mrs. Reagan at the White House state dinner for the Emir of Bahrain Tuesday as a pay back for legal services to a White House official.

James Baker III, Houston, chief of staff at the White House, has a son, John, a rancher in the San Antonio area who is being defended in a court case by Barrera. That is well known. But, through a spokesman, James Baker said he did not know anything about the invitation to the Barreras until he read the name on the list and he had nothing to do with it. Baker was surprised to find their names there one hour before the dinner.

Barrera, although a Democrat, is a close friend of Republicans including the former Gov. William Clements of Texas, Baker's office said. What is more, the Barreras have been invited to official functions in Washington before on several occasions.

The Washington Post pointed out that Mr. Barrera is defending the son in a marijuana case.

Woman held in stabbing

ODESSA — Police are holding a 33-year-old woman in connection with the stabbing death of a 36-year-old man on a restaurant parking lot early this morning.

Killed was Pedro Saenz of the Imperial Motel at 221 W. 2nd St. Police said he was stabbed once in the abdomen during an argument with a woman on the parking lot of the Dos Amigos Cafe, 813 Magnolia, about 2:20 a.m. today.

His body was taken to the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home. Formal charges were to be filed sometime today.

$4-million gem show features precious stones

By DIANE BOOTH
Lifestyle Writer

A $4-million show of gemstones in every color of the rainbow, is featured in Midland through tomorrow.

Not only are rubies, diamonds, emeralds and sapphires on display at Kruger's Jewelers, Midkiff and Wadley, but the collection also includes aquamarines from Brazil, opals from Australia, jade from Southeast Asia and Persian turquoise.

All gemstones are arranged in four cases according to size and quality and priced per carat. The most expensive gemstone in the show is a Burmese ruby weighing a little more than two carats. The lustrous oval-cut red stone sells for $27,600.

The largest stone is a lemon citrine. The yellow stone tips the electronic scale at 550 carats. "We're looking for somebody who is a large belly dancer," said Richard Yankowski, of International Gemstones, the firm putting on the show. He suggested the massive gemstone could be used as a navel decoration. The circular gem could also be utilized as a paperweight, he said.

Small stones of amethyst, citrine and pyrope garnet are the least expensive displayed at the show.

The purpose of the show, according to Yankowski, is to "make people aware of different colored stones. We (have) a lot of different colors people haven't seen before."

The show includes green garnets from South Africa, he said. Most people believe garnets are traditionally a rust color but that isn't true, Yankowski said.

The show allows consumers to contrast and compare various stones, he said. "They can look and see the differences in color and quality."

"The market for so long has been diamonds, diamonds, diamonds," said Tom Domer, District Manager of Kruger's Jewelers.

It is very difficult to obtain high grade gemstones, said Yankowski, because most quality gemstones are found in areas that are "politically sensitive," such as Southeast Asia, South America and Africa.

"Fine quality stones have gone up, up, up in price, while some gemstones prices have softened," said Domer.

For example, Yankowski said, Burmese rubies are usually smuggled out of the Southeast Asian country. Good quality emeralds are more scarce because they are more difficult to find.

Few high quality gemstones are uncovered in the United States, he said. Tourmaline, an exception, is found near San Diego, California and in upstate New York.

Most gemstone fanciers purchase the stones for finished jewelry, Yankowski said. The jewelery store offers a selection of 500 ring settings plus earring and pendant styles. Custom pieces may also be designed to order.

Some people buy the gemstones as an investment and don't plan to feature them in a ring.

The best stone to purchase as an investment now, said Yankowski, is a sapphire.

"It has the best opportunity to increase in value because you can buy the best grade on the market for $4,000-$5,000 per carat but it costs $20,000-$30,000 per carat for the best grade diamond, emerald or ruby."

Prices vary based on quality, Yankowski said, but said everyone can afford gemstones. "There are gemstones priced as low as anyone can afford or you can spend as much as you desire. There is no limit in price."

A ring designed around a gemstone can be purchased for a few hundred dollars, he said, and a pair of earrings or pendant can be made for less than $100.

Each stone has qualities all its own including color and hardness. Some gemstones can be confused for others, Yankowski said. For example, the spinel, a reddish-orange gemstone, has been taken for a ruby.

The crown worn by England's Prince of Wales has a spinel in the center of the headpiece, but for years it was thought to be a ruby.

According to Domer, there is a legend to go with each gemstone. He said it was believed by some people that the Peridot glowed in the dark, so it was mined at night. There is also a legend that said the light green stones break evil spells.

Eastern Star installs officers

Lona Mae Bradley and H.S. "Bill" Elliot led the slate of officers recently installed for Norman Read Chapter P1010, Order of the Eastern Star. Judith Johnson, Samuel Bradley, Tensie Johnson, Pamela Culbert, Kay Tweed and Gloria Compton also hold top offices.

Mrs. Hazel Mashburn, installing officer, was assisted by her husband Jim Mashburn, Jean Sauze and others. Cheba Bianchi and A.D. Jackson provided music. The worthy matron's daughter and son-in-law presented the Holy Bible and Square and Compassses. Friends presented the various star point emblems. A cake was baked and decorated by Eria May Hansen. Ferne Sneath, Master of Ceremonies, introduced members who made special presentations.

Counselors form chapter

The Texas Association of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Counselors (TAADAC), has formed a local chapter serving the immediate needs of the Midland, Odessa, Monahans, Pecos, Kermit and Andrews areas.

Until now, local counselors met with the Big Springs chapter.

The purpose of the association is to organize a local chapter of the alcoholism and drug abuse counselors that will integrate with the state and national associations.

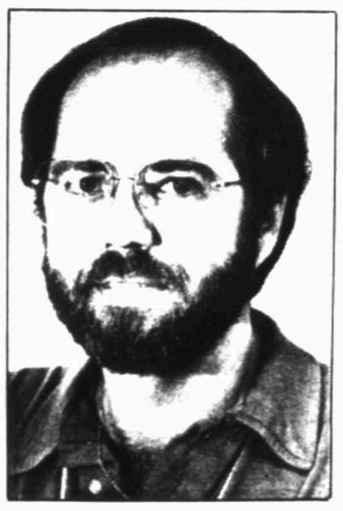
Establish and maintain standards of and for certification of qualified counselors. To insure the competence of those seeking to counsel alcoholics and drug abusers and/or their families.

The standards of certification are to be governed by the existing codes of Texas. The local chapter is to endorse and provide comprehensive training programs, endeavor to raise the standards of performance and increase the competency of those persons engaged in the field of alcholism and drug abuse counseling.

The chapter will work with national, state and local agencies, medical, psychiatric and public health associations, institutions of learning actively engaged as professional or voluntary counselors in hospitals, treatment facilities, both public and private, the various courts, municipal, governmental and federal agencies.

Membership includes persons actively engaged in the field and persons interested in the field.

The first meeting was held recently and officers were elected. Robert L. Savage, CADAC, Palmer



Bob Savage, TAADAC president

Drug Abuse Program, Midland, president; Thad Russell, CADAC, Alcholism Counselor; Big Spring State Hosp. and M. H. M. R. Andrews and Seminole counties, vice president; Bonnie Taylor, CADAC, Villa deTejas Treatment Center, secretary; Elva Hurst, CAC, treasurer.

Meetings will be held the second Monday of each month, at 8 p.m. in the board room of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce located on Third Street and Sam Houston Street in Odessa.

For more information call Bob Savage at (915) 685-3645 in Midland or Bonnie Taylor at (915) 332-3915 in Odessa or Thad Russell at (915) 527-2721 in Andrews.

All that may glitter not good investment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The glitter of gold has lured the greedy and hopeful for centuries, and still does, but both consumer and securities experts are urging caution when tempted by such an investment.

Problems have been reported in several cities with unregulated dealers using unscrupulous sales tactics, according to an announcement from the North American Securities Administrators Association and the national council of Better Business Bureaus.

Dealers in gold, silver and other precious metals are generally not regulated by state of federal agencies, meaning the public is on its own in dealing with these people, observed Richard Latham, Texas securities commissioner and president of the national securities group.

"Only after a fraud is discovered can state and federal agencies move. Consequently, it is important that the public be forewarned to protect itself against unscrupulous gold and silver bullion dealers," Latham said.

The investor alert issued by the two groups said that a current popular operation involves deferred delivery of gold and silver. In this sale a firm offers gold or silver at below spot market prices and without commission charges if the buyer pays "up front" but delivery is put off. Often there is a percentage payment for postponing delivery.

One firm even encouraged customers to let it store gold they had bought from other companies.

But if the price of gold or silver rises the dealer can face financial problems, and then may seek to postpone delivery even more. One company finally declared bankruptcy, leaving more than 25,000 customers claiming millions of dollars.

The securities and consumer groups warn against buying bullion advertised at below market prices quoted from major exchanges. Low price quotes are a danger sign, they say. Also, be wary of dealers which want to hold your purchase, some even offer "rebates" to do so.

In both cases the firms may be taking your money but not actually purchasing the metals, waiting in the hope the market will decline and it can get the item for less, the securities association warns.

If you want someone to hold your gold or silver for you, check into their reputation carefully.

The consumer group suggests declining to pay by certified check. Instead, ask the dealer to deliver the coins or bullion to your bank against your bank draft. The bank will not release the money until it has the gold or silver.

Barnett given Jaycee honor

Mrs. Barbara Barnett, a member of the Midland Jaycee Women (formerly the Midland Jaycettes), has been awarded an honorary life membership by the Texas Jaycee Women. This honorary membership is a special form of recognition given by the state organization to those members who have been nominated and fulfilled certain requirements.

Among those requirements are that she must have been a member for at least three years, served as a local standing committee chairman or local year-long project chairman, qualified in at least five of eight Jaycee Women programs, entered any competition at a convention at least once and served as an area, state or national chairman or appointed region officer.

Mrs. Barnett has been a member of the Midland Jaycee Women for over five years and has held the local offices of historian, president, chairman of the board, state director and state programming manager for Rocky Mountain Multiple Sclerosis. She won outstanding president and outstanding chapter for 1980-81 and outstanding Jaycette for 1981-82. She was also awarded for her work as Rocky Mountain Multiple Sclerosis program manager in 1981-82.

Mrs. Barnett has also served locally as chairperson for the annual arts and crafts fair and was this year's chairman of the Texas State Jaycee Women Book Judging.

Mrs. Barnett was born in El Paso and grew up in Midland. She graduated from Lee High School in 1973 and received a business associate degree from Odessa College.

Mrs. Barbara Barnett

She is married to Alan Barnett and employed by 3M Business Products — Copying Machines Corporation. She has worked there since she was 15 years old, starting in sales in 1975. Mrs. Barnett is sales supervisor for 3M audio-visual products such as overheads, transparencies and solar control film.

For the last two years, Mrs. Barnett has been in the company's "VIP Club" for obtaining 110 percent of her sales quota. She was the outstanding sales representative for 1981-82.

Couples can split amicably

Copley News Service

Divorce — American style — is insanity, attorney J. Michael Kelly contends, and he is fiercely determined to change the system.

Likening himself to Columbus setting out to prove the world isn't flat, Kelly insists that any divorce can be handled amicably, fairly and "with the same dignity with which the marriage was entered into."

Kelly even has a trademarked name for his approach — "Positive Divorce." And he makes those wishing to hire him first agree in writing with his philosophy or he invites them to take a hike.

"Simply stated, Positive Divorce is the you and me approach as opposed to the you or me approach," the Los Angeles attorney said in an interview.

The self-styled evangelist of Positive Divorce has traveled the country spreading his gospel of change to bar associations and lay groups. In his lectures, Kelly insists a system whose by-product is usually bitterness — and where only attorneys win, in the form of higher fees for drawn-out cases — must be changed.

"The general attitude about divorce seems to be: 'It was horrible; the lawyer did it to me; I hate my spouse; I will never get married again.' That's the fallout, the wreckage of the process the way it's done now," said Kelly.

Too often, divorce procedures begin with a marshal showing up at the office to serve papers and notify a father that he can't see his kids but twice a month and can't go near the house, Kelly said. "Now, how do you think things are going to go from there? The idea that you're going to be tough just generates a lot of legal fees."

Breast cancer gene found

NEW YORK (AP) — A researcher who has discovered a breast cancer gene in mice says the gene also is found in humans, a hint that it may play a role in human breast cancer.

Dr. Harold Varmus of the University of California in San Francisco, the gene's discoverer, said he "would be surprised in the long run" if the gene wasn't involved in breast cancer in humans.

Varmus described the work Tuesday at a meeting in East Lansing, Mich., of the American Society for Virology.

In a telephone interview, Varmus said the gene appears to be switched on by viruses. "In the cells in which that happens, you've achieved the first step in the induction of a tumor," he said.

Breast cancer, the leading cause of cancer deaths in women, is expected to strike 114,000 American women this year, the American Cancer Society says. One in 11 women will develop breast cancer sometime during their lives, the cancer society says.

The discovery of the breast cancer gene does not yet suggest any new treatment for breast cancer. But it is the kind of discovery that is crucial if researchers are ever to learn how to prevent and cure cancer.

In the last few years, several forms of human cancer have been linked to cancer genes. A bladder cancer gene has been found, as has another gene related to both lung and colon cancer. Activation of the genes is thought to be one step in the conversion of normal cells into cancer cells.

House combines style with practicality

Copley News Service

The Columbine is a popular style home that offers options and practicality.

Because of its simple style, it is a relatively easy and inexpensive home to have built. The clustering of all the plumbing (two bathrooms and the kitchen) helps lower installation costs.

The front door opens just off a front-facing living room, where a guest closet is handy.

A long bedroom is to the left, arranged in such a way that it can be divided into two bedrooms later without disrupting access, lighting or closet usage. Right across the hall is linen storage and a full bath which is also in a good location for use by guests.

The master suite has its own bath and closets in both the vanity/dressing area and in the bedroom itself.

The particularly well-planned U-shaped kitchen features a long window on one wall and genmerous cabinet and counter space. A pocket door closes off the kitchen clutter from those enjoying a company dinner in the adjacent dining room.

On another side of the kitchen, a snack bar makes a handy spot for quick meals or homework, and divides the kitchen from the large family room. Sliding glass doors to the back yard help make this area the real center of family life during much of the year.

The fireplace with a raised hearth at the far end of the family room helps make it an attractive and cozy place to be the remainder of the year. Wood for the fire can be fed from a box that opens directly to the garage, keeping mess to a minimum. The utilities are also housed in the garage.

DEAR ABBY

Marriage tips for all couples

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After you published 10 tips for brides on how to have a successful marriage, a man requested 10 tips on how to be a good husband, and you accommodated him.

A few years ago, I clipped the enclosed "Five Tips for a Happy Marriage" – author unknown. I hope you think they're worth sharing. -- JULIE IN LONG BEACH

DEAR JULIE: I do. And here they are:

1. Look not for perfection in your mate. You will not find it and it's just as well. Living with a saint could be very tiresome.
2. Let your love be stronger than your hate or anger.
3. Learn the wisdom of compromise, for it is better to bend a little than to break.
4. Believe the best rather than the worst. People have a way of living up or down to your opinion of them.
5. Remember that true friendship is the basis of any lasting relationship. The person you choose to marry is deserving of the courtesies and kindnesses you bestow on your friends.

P.S. I am almost reluctant to ask the author to come forward. Lately when I have published an unsigned piece and asked the author to come forward, an alarming number of people have claimed authorship. This is baffling and discouraging. Whatever happened to integrity?

DEAR ABBY: It's surprising how few people know that infants cry during airplane take-offs and landings because they are in severe pain due to the change in air pressure.

Adults know enough to swallow to clear the passage of the eustacian tube, but infants do not.

If mothers would encourage infants to nurse (or suck on something – even a finger), it would alleviate the pain. Some flight attendants suggest this to passengers when they board with infants. I wish all would. – CONCERNED M.D.

DEAR CONCERNED: Thanks for a helpful tip.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I want to know if our brother is "James David Collins, THE THIRD?" Our grandfather's name was James EDWARD Collins, and his grandfather was James ANDREW Collins. Our father is Dennis James Collins.

Is our brother correct in thinking that he is a "third"? Or is our mother correct in thinking he is not? Abby, please spell out in your column when a man is a second and third. We are all in disagreement here. – PERPLEXED APLENTY

DEAR PERPLEXED: If John Charles Jones is named after his father, who is John Charles Jones Jr., he would be John Charles Jones III. A child named after his cousin, uncle or grandfather would be "the second." Again, the identical name must be used.

Your mother is correct. Your brother is not 'the third." Neither is he the first to be confused by this rule.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Find market for greeting card idea

By DR. ADELE M. SCHEELE

Q. — I thought up an idea for a new type of greeting card but I don't know how to approach a card company without jeopardizing my idea. Is there a way to patent it?

A. — No, you can't patent your idea. To find out what to do, I called a few card companies. Here's what I found out:

Some companies have their own in-house writing and art staff and therefore do not want to buy anybody else's ideas, while other companies do buy card ideas.

One company representative recommended mailing in your idea. If they like it enough to buy it, they would meet you and write a contract. If you would like protection, then send a registered letter, keeping a copy for yourself.

The payment ranges from $200 to $600 for each idea. In some cases, they do pay a royalty, usually from 5 to 15 percent.

Do some research yourself. Go to a card shop, find a company whose cards are most like what your idea would be. Call and ask their procedure. In addition, find a trade show for cards and gifts.

Birth defects double in 25 years

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of American babies born with some physical or mental defect has doubled in the past 25 years, The New York Times reported today.

This means about 140,000 babies born this year in the United States will suffer from physical abnormalities, mental retardation or learning problems, according to a University of California medical study obtained by the Times.

The study said the dramatic increase in birth defects may have resulted in part from increased cigarette smoking by women, increased exposure to workplace toxins and improved medical techniques that permit people with disabilities to survive and pass those traits along.

Some specialists contend that part of the increase is more apparent than real because easier access to medical care over the past 15 years has led to better diagnosis of congenital problems, particularly learning impairments.

Care for fabrics

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

You know those little care labels clerks are required to give you each time you buy a piece of fabric? How many of you ever really ask for one? I know I seldom do. It just doesn't seem worth it.

Besides, if I really care about the care of my fabric, I can always check the end of the bolt. Surely I can remember that much!

Well, the American Home Sewing Association has long been working on a revision of the ruling that says these labels must be provided.

On May 20, 1983, the Federal Trade Commission issued a new regulation that will reduce the care labeling burden on textile manufacturers to labeling only the end of each bolt or roll of certain fabrics. This will save any number of dollars and hours of work.

And we are not losing anything.

Another bit of news from the American Home Sewing Association — a bill is being introduced in the Senate to designate September as National Home Sewing Month. More on that later as things develop.

QUICK STITCH: There is a new ribbon available now that I just love. It is twill ribbon. It is softer than grosgrain, but not as shiny and smooth as satin. A great alternative. I have been using it to decorate guest towels. Looks great and is so easy to work with.

Behaviorist gives McEnroe the 'bear' facts

John McEnroe

LONDON (AP) — An expert on animal behavior has been keeping an eye on tennis star John McEnroe — who's known as something of a bear on the court — and has this advice: stop grunting.

Dennis Lendrem of Nottingham University said Thursday that he spent hours last month studying McEnroe at Wimbledon as he defeated Sandy Mayer, Ivan Lendl and Chris Lewis to take the title.

After watching the champion serve more than 300 times, Lendrem concluded, "It's his silent serves that are deadly." Twice as many aces came when McEnroe didn't grunt as when he did, Lendrem observed.

Asked why he thought McEnroe grunted, Lendrem told a British Broadcasting Corp. interviewer that there might be a psychological explanation, since it didn't appear to have anything to do with extra effort on a particular serve.

LONDON (AP) — Seven hundred Britons who donated a total of $1.2 million to a charity for handicapped children got a special thank-you treat — lunch with Prince Charles and Princess Diana.

The guests were invited to Thursday's lunch by the Royal Variety Club of Great Britain, which will use the money to buy 108 special buses for handicapped children. About 300 handicapped and underprivileged children were also invited.

While the adults lunched on salmon mousse, filet of beef and raspberries and cream, the youngsters dressed in circus costumes and dug into "bangers and mash" — sausages and mashed potatoes.

Charles and Diana presented the prize for best costume to 11-year-old Denise Steadman, who came as a clown.

Denise said the princess asked her how long it would take to clean off her clown makeup, but added, "I was so excited, I don't remember what I said to her."

King Hussein

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan and his American-born wife, Queen Noor, are back home after a two-week private visit to the Canary Islands and France, official sources said.

The trip, which ended Thursday, wasn't all leisure, though. Hussein met with Lebanese President Amin Gemayel in Cannes, in southern France, to discuss current Middle East problems.

HONOLULU (AP) — Hal Lewis, who was once described as the world's highest paid disc jockey and had a 36-year Hawaii broadcast career, died Thursday of cancer. He was 66.

Lewis worked as a disc jockey at several Honolulu radio stations, but his career hit a low point in the early 1960s when he was fired from a station then owned by industrialost Henry J. Kaiser. He returned to KGMB in 1965 and has been there ever since. Lewis' last radio broadcast was May 27.

George Jones

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Country singer George Jones has been ordered to stand trial on cocaine charges next month after defense attorneys failed again to substitute a benefit concert for prosecution.

Hinds County Circuit Judge L. Breland Hilburn had revoked all deals with Jones in April because the Sept. 16 concert date came after a court-imposed deadline. On Thursday Hilburn refused to reinstate the plea bargain, which would have also called for six months' probation, and ordered trial to begin Aug. 2.

Jones was charged with cocaine possession after being stopped for speeding on a Jackson highway on March 29, 1982. The concert was to have aided programs to fight drug abuse and child abuse.

Reynolds' death probably unavoidable, says specialist

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the details of Frank Reynolds' death have not been released by his doctors or family, a specialist on hepatitis says Reynolds probably died from a form of blood-borne hepatitis that could not have been prevented.

Ted Koppel, anchorman for ABC's "Nightline," said Reynolds apparently "got a bad blood transfusion and contracted viral hepatitis." Reynolds died of hepatitis Wednesday, but it was not revealed what type of hepatitis killed him.

Dr. Donald Francis, a hepatitis expert at the federal Centers for Disease Control, said that 95 percent of post-transfusion hepatitis is caused by a baffling form of the disease called "non-A, non-B" hepatitis.

"The odds are that's what he (Reynolds) had," said Francis, who was not privy to any details of Reynolds' condition.

The ailment's name suggests how little is known about it. It is not hepatitis A, the infectious form of the disease. It is not hepatitis B, also known as serum hepatitis. Beyond that, doctors can't say much about it. What it is remains a mystery. There is no way to test for it, treat it, or prevent it, Francis said.

"We tend to call it one disease, and that's probably a mistake," said Francis. "It's probably made up of at least two diseases." Each is probably caused by a different virus, Francis said, but the viruses occur in such small quantities that they cannot be isolated for study.

This form of hepatitis accounts for a fifth to a third of all hepatitis in the United States, says Francis.

'A person getting one unit of blood has about a one in 200 chance of getting clinically significant hepatitis," says Dr. Harold Oberman of the University of Michigan, a specialist on transfusion-transmitted diseases.

By "clinically significant" he said he meant the patient would become ill, with jaundice, loss of appetite and possibly more serious symptoms.

Oberman, vice-chairman of the committee on transfusion-transmitted illnesses of the American Association of Blood Banks, said that hepatitis B, once commonly transmitted in blood, has been controlled by blood banks since the mid-1970s.

At that time blood banks stopped relying on paid donors, who are statistically more likely to have hepatitis than volunteer donors. That is also the time when blood banks were legally required to test every unit of blood for hepatitis B.

Rained-out Diana Ross to try second free concert

NEW YORK (AP) — Diana Ross says she will try again to give a free concert in Central Park, after the first show and nearly half a million fans who came to hear the superstar were washed out by the weather.

When the clouds first burst Thursday night, the singer had vowed to go on with the show, vigorously singing, "Stop! In the Name of Love," and pointing her hands toward the heavens.

But 45 minutes into the benefit concert, lightning and torrential rain drenched the park's Great Lawn and forced her reluctantly to ask the massive crowd to leave.

Short of "another act of God," the Parks and Recreation Department felt sure the lawn would dry up and the sound system would be rewired in time for today's 6 p.m. concert, said Adrian Benepe, a spokesman for parks Commissioner Henry Stern.

Benepe attributed the crowd's safe departure to the 39-year-old singer and movie star, who, dripping wet in an orange sequined bodysuit, remained on stage nearly 30 minutes after the show was canceled, singing and urging everyone to leave calmly.

Investigation underway into plane crash that killed four

ROVINES MILLS, W.Va. (AP) — Federal investigators scouring a Harrison County hillside for clues to the crash of a private plane found that little remained of the charred aircraft in which four Texans died.

"The wreckage itself is pretty much devastated. There's not much left," said Phil Powell, investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board.

After the field investigation that began Thursday is complete, Powell and Federal Aviation Administration investigator W.M. Daugherty will return to Clarksburg's Benedum Airport with the Piper Navajo's two engines to examine them for mechanical faults.

Pilot Jim Graham radioed Benedum Airport's control tower minutes after takeoff Wednesday to report that he was having engine trouble.

Woman gets $17,932 electric bill

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ark. (AP) — The hot summer months often mean bigger electric bills, but even the hottest weather couldn't explain the $17,932.84 bill that showed up on one woman's mail.

Joyce Taylor moved into her Mountain Home residence June 25. She got a shutoff notice Tuesday from North Arkansas Electric Cooperative, saying she was delinquent in paying the massive bill.

Larry Goza, a public relations officer with the cooperative, said the big bill was generated when a seven-digit account number was accidently punched into the computer as the amount Mrs. Taylor owed.

Utility employees told Mrs. Taylor to disregard this month's bill.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Hemorrhoidal symptoms could be indication of more serious problems

Dear Dr. Solomon: My grandmother has hemorrhoids. How are they treated? — Mr. H.A., Miami

Dear Mr. A.: Often, hemorrhoid flare-ups last for only a few days and can be treated at home. A non-prescription cream or suppository with a topical anesthetic such as pramoxine hydrochloride helps relieve pain, burning, itching and swelling. If bleeding or continuous pain occurs, it is important to consult your doctor. These symptoms can be an indication of a more serious problem. Applying soft, warm compresses may help or sitz baths — soaking the area in warm (not hot) water for 15 to 30 minutes several times a day — may provide some relief. For many people, the discomfort of hemorrhoids will disappear quickly with these simple, effective treatments. Your doctor may recommend a bulk laxative or stool softener if hemorrhoids are being aggravated by constipation or hard, compact bowel movements. He may prescribe medication and advise a change in diet. More serious cases of hemorrhoids can be treated effectively without surgery in most cases. Non-operative treatments — usually performed in the doctor's office or on an outpatient basis at a hospital or clinic — provide relief in all but a small percentage of cases. Small, external hemorrhoids that are causing serious pain can be treated with minor out-patient surgery to remove the blood clot that has been formed. Small, internal hemorrhoids that ache or continue to bleed but are not prolapsed can often be cleared up by injecting a special solution into the tissue surrounding the hemorrhoid. Prolapsed internal hemorrhoids can sometimes be treated by your physician with "rubber band ligation." A small rubber band is placed around the base of the hemorrhoid, cutting off its blood supply. In about a week, the hemorrhoid shrivels up and disappears. The treatment requires no anesthesia and involves little discomfort for most people. Some hemorrhoids respond to cryosurgery. The doctor touches the hemorrhoid with a special probe that freezes the tissue. The most serious cases of hemorrhoids are treated by hemorrhoidectomy, the surgical removal of permanently protruding hemorrhoids. Hemorrhoidectomies are generally performed after other treatment methods have failed to relieve the problem. The patient can usually leave the hospital in less than a week and return to normal activities soon thereafter.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I broke out in hives after taking some aspirin. Could these two things have been connected in some way? — Mrs. J.R., Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Mrs. R.: People allergic to aspirin may develop hives. Other possible reactions include a runny nose, swelling around the throat, chest pain, and fainting.

Aspirin may also produce side effects in individuals not specifically allergic to it. The most common of these is nausea or vomiting and stomach irritation.

For Roscoe, Tuscaloosa, Ala.: The rates of survival for patients with ulcerative colitis are increasing. This is due in part to improved surgical techniques that have reduced mortality during surgery, and to advances in the medical management of the disease. Such management includes the introduction of new drugs and nutritional support. These advances, in turn, have reduced the need for emergency surgical intervention.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Are there different kinds of sprained ankles? I was playing handball and my partner suddenly complained that he had twisted his ankle and walked off the court. How could he walk with a sprained ankle? Is this possible in some cases? — Douglas, Washington, D.C.

Dear Douglas: A sprained ankle may be mildly, moderately, or severely affected. A mild sprain may not prevent a person from walking on a flat surface, although he might experience some pain. A person with a moderate or severe pain, however, would find it very painful to talk at all.

Similarly, a mild sprain will usually show minimal swelling while a severe sprain would be accompanied by extensive swelling.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I agree with you 100 percent that prevention is better than treatment, but can all cancers be prevented? — Buddy, Miami

Dear Buddy: Some, but not all, cancers can be prevented. Lung cancer, for example, is usually caused by cigarette smoking and skin cancer is usually caused by excessive exposure to sunlight. Similarly, people who work with asbestos are at risk of developing lung cancer, while those who work in the dye industry are prone to bladder cancer.

A person may develop cancer despite all reasonable precautions, but there is still a great deal the individual can do to protect himself.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am ready to believe that smoking is an addiction and I can sympathize with my husband when he says that he has tried to stop but he can't. I say this even though I am constantly bothered by dirty ash trays all over, burns on clothing and furniture and the sickening smell of tobacco all over the house. But what is it that they are addicted to? I can understand addiction with drug addicts but not with cigarette smokers. — Mrs. D.O., Washington, D.C.

Dear Mrs. O.: There is increasing evidence that it is the nicotine in cigarettes that causes the addiction. A Swedish scientist, Dr. Karl-Olov Fagerstrom, reports that about half or all smokers do so because of the effect of nicotine. In addition, Dr. Michael A.H. Russell, of Maudsley Hospital in London, says that inhaled nicotine concentrates in the brain and produces the addictive effect.

That is why many smokers who switch to low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes simply smoke more often or inhale more deeply. In effect, they are compensating for the reduced nicotine content of their new brand of cigarettes. The majority of these people who tried my smoking cessation program have been able to stop smoking and have stayed off cigarettes for up to and including three years.

Bill overpaid by $1 million

SEATTLE (AP) — Robert Acinapura said he hadn't really looked at the money order he submitted to pay a $12.46 bill. So he was rather shocked to find out he'd overpaid — by $1 million.

The Seattle businessman said the firm's accounting office called him at home Friday, the day after he paid off the bill.

"Mr. Acinapura, you overpaid your bill," the woman told him. "Why don't you just credit it, and I'll just use it up next month," he replied.

"She said 'We can't do that,' and I said 'Why not,' and she said, 'Because it's an overpayment of one million dollars.'"

Acinapura said he rushed to the office, retrieved the order for $1,000,012.46 and "contemplated what I was going to do."

"All of a sudden my mind was racing.... Pay off the house! Rio, here I come! I was on Cloud 9!"

But instead he called his lawyer, then returned to the bank, a branch of Seattle-First National Bank, to exchange the order for one with the proper amount.

"I just hope the poor teller didn't get in trouble," Acinapura said later. "It was just a mistake."

Iowans embarrassed by license plate slogan

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — To show off Iowa's intellectual mettle, the governor wants to emblazon the slogan "A State of Minds" on license plates, but many residents are saying the motto is embarrassing — and they don't want any part of it.

Some Iowans asked Wednesday if they could cover up the slogan, approved by the Iowa Transportation Commission, while a state legislator said he would try to override the decision.

"Can I send to Illinois for my license plates?" asked Ken Schriner, a member of the Linn County Board of Supervisors in Cedar Rapids.

State Sen. James Gallagher said he was not amused and was preparing legislation giving lawmakers the power to veto the Transportation Commission's decision.

"I think it's silly. It's not something we need, especially if it costs any money," he said.

The seven-member commission, following last-minute telephone calls from Gov. Terry Branstad and Iowa Development Commission Director Jack Bailey, voted unanimously Tuesday to put the slogan on 1985 license plates.

TreePeople spruce up city

Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — Picture Los Angeles clean and green.

The TreePeople do. They're trying to spruce up Los Angeles by planting a million trees in and about the city by the start of the 1984 Olympics.

"What it'll take to clean up this city – and other cities – is almost an Olympian effort," said Andy Lipkis, chief elf of the would-be "urban forest."

Lipkis founded TreePeople, a nonprofit group dedicated to preserving and improving the ecology and providing emergency services during floods and fires, in 1977, but he's been obsessed with saving Los Angeles County trees – which have been dying at a rate of 40,000 a year – since he was a teen-ager in summer camp.

Within three years the group, now with a staff of eight and a corps of 200 volunteers, planted 200,000 trees.

"We'd done all kinds of flood work and I looked around and realized we could do a lot more than we'd done," said Lipkis, 28.

In 1980, the Los Angeles city Department of Planning told TreePeople of a plan to plant a million trees to improve air quality.

A million trees, when 20 years old, will filter as much as 20 tons of particulate smog from the air every day, said Jon Perica of the city Planning Department.

Jackie Onassis intervenes in usher's burial

By the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The wives of presidents are members of America's most exclusive sorority, and this week two of them intervened to help out a man who once ran the household they both have shared.

Jacqueline Onassis, the widow of John F. Kennedy and now an editor at Doubleday in New York, called Nancy Reagan's staff director on Tuesday and asked if the White House would grant an exception so that J. Bernard West, a White House usher under six presidents, could be buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Unless the president decides otherwise, Arlington accepts only career military people or recipients of military awards.

The exception was quickly granted, and Wednesday morning Nancy Reagan called Onassis at her office in New York to tell her so. They talked for 10 minutes, according to Sheila Tate, Nancy Reagan's press secretary. "They both expressed an interest in meeting each other," Tate said. She added that the first lady told her afterward that "we called each other Jackie and Nancy, even though we've never met. We feel like we know each other."

Nancy Reagan also intervened for another Arlington burial Wednesday — that of ABC anchor Frank Reynolds, who died early Wednesday.

Mrs. Reagan called Reynolds' wife, Henrietta, to express her condolences, and Henrietta asked if the president could grant an exception so that her husband could be buried in Arlington — his last request. The president said he would, but as it turned out, Reynolds was eligible anyway because he had received a Purple Heart for his Army service during World War II. Nancy Reagan, Tate said, "is very upset about Frank's death. She was crying when she talked to me this morning."

The Reynoldses have been personal friends of the Reagans since 1976, and have been to private dinners at the White House.

Speaking of the first lady's conversation with Onassis, Tate said Reagan and Onassis have had four or five phone conversations and exchanged as many notes — including one Onassis sent when Ronald Reagan was shot.

While Nancy Reagan has never said so publicly, it is said that she wants to be seen as Onassis was as first lady: a stylish trend-setter, admired for the tone she brought to the White House. Although Mrs. Reagan has come in contact with other first ladies — Rosalynn Carter, Betty Ford and Lady Bird Johnson — at official functions, Tate said she "probably" has talked to Onassis more regularly than the others.

Tate also said Onassis told Nancy Reagan that she thought the Williamsburg economic summit in May had been done "beautifully."

West, who died Monday, began his White House career in 1941. He became chief usher in 1957, remaining in that job until the Nixon administration. In 1973 he wrote the best-seller "Upstairs at the White House." Onassis was asked by one of his friends to intercede for the burial. She first called the office of her brother-in-law, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and she was told, in the words of spokesman Melody Miller, that the best way to do it would be by going "first lady to first lady."

West will be buried Friday afternoon, and Reynolds on Saturday.

Study: No advantage to low-nicotine cigarette

BOSTON (AP) — Smokers probably don't cut their intake of tar and nicotine by switching to "light" cigarettes because there is no such thing as a "less hazardous, safer cigarette," says a report released today.

People absorb just as much nicotine from the low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes as from regular brands, says the study in today's New England Journal of Medicine. And the tar intake from these smokes is probably the same, as well.

The research, conducted at San Francisco General Hospital Medical Center, measured nicotine levels in smokers' blood. It found there was no difference when people used low-yield cigarettes — those advertised as being low in tar and nicotine.

"In short, it is obvious that, despite the seductive advertisements, there is no less hazardous, safer cigarette." Dr. Claude Lenfant of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute wrote in a journal editorial.

The Federal Trade Commission uses a machine that smokes cigarettes to measure the tar and nicotine levels in various brands. The results are listed on cigerette packs and in tobacco company advertising.

The machine smokes the cigarette at a steady pace of one puff per minute, but the researchers said people can change their smoking habits to draw in as much nicotine as they want.

"People are developing a false sense of security based on tobacco company advertising," said Dr. Neil L. Benowitz, who directed the study. "They think that if they can't give up smoking, then if they smoke low-yield cigarettes they're doing something good for themselves. The tobacco companies would like them to believe that, but that is fallacious."

Teacher who married pupil wants his old job back

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — As he celebrates the second anniversary of his common-law marriage today, Ed Christoph is collecting welfare as his wife prepares to enter 10th grade, the classmate of her own step-daughter.

The former English teacher's marriage to his 14-year-old pupil two years ago got him fired and drove him to bankruptcy, although an appeals court later upheld the legality of the vows.

"Our marriage was neither unlawful nor immoral. It was out of the ordinary, an oddity. I understand that," Christoph, now 38, said in an interview Wednesday at his home.

Christoph, who has two children by a previous marriage, exchanged vows two years ago with Melissa Miller. He's now collecting welfare and awaiting a foreclosure on his mortgage.

The couple had a church wedding in June.

"But I've been treated worse than they treat convicts," Christoph said. "When a guy gets out of jail, they help him find a job. They're trying to keep me from working. I really believe the Erie School Board owes me my job back."

The Christophs declared themselves married before his sister and brother-in-law at 3 a.m. on July 21, 1981. Melissa was arrested as a runaway the next day. An Erie County judge annulled the marriage two weeks later, forbidding Christoph to see his new wife.

Beards, moustaches worn for celebration

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — Clean-shaven men risk a $3 fine and a pie in the face if they are caught on the streets of this old lumber town on Friday nights.

But even the bearded need to be wary of a mock ban on shaving that went into effect as part of this community's 150th birthday fete.

Mayor William R. Eisemann is among those who sported new mustaches or beards Thursday.

Food from tobacco?

A food resembling soybean curd can be made from leaf tobacco. A government scientist developed the extraction process, called homogenized leaf curing, and is now applying molecular genetics in an effort to grow a new high-protein tobacco plant.

I'm a lonely 3 bedroom, 2 bath, 1 year old home with a nice kitchen with built in appliances, nice wallpaper and miniblinds. My living room is large with cathedral ceiling, ceiling fan, skylights, custom drapes and mini blinds and a nice fireplace. My master bedroom is big enough for king size furniture with hip ceiling and walk in closet. My yard is green and manicured. I even have a 2 car garage. Come live with me.
