General Conditions Of Texas Crops

Houston, Texas.—Reports from the agricultural districts of the State have a tone of optimism that has not been noticeable in the Texas farmer's statements for the past several years. All of them clearly show that crop prospects are better than for many years. Indications are that for perhaps the first time in the history of the State, every section has had plenty of rain and that the outlook for the season is the best in a decade. The consensus of opinion is that the fruit crop has not been damaged by cold weather and that a fine fruit season is assured. Reports from north and central Texas indicate that the wheat and oat acreage is 25 per cent greater than in ten years. Taking the state as a whole the cotton acreage will probably show a marked decrease of 25 per cent from last year. There is a marked tendency towards diversification, and indications are to the effect that there will be an increase of from 30 to 40 per cent in the production of feedstuffs over last year.

Spring Indications

The indications of spring are now fast developing. The air laden with sweet perfume of the spring wild flowers, spring onions, and other odoriferous fragrances; fish yards of great magnitude vie with each other to put truth to shame; seductive notes emanate from the interior conscience of the festive true agent and persuasive lightning rod man. The lilac bush will soon burst out in its showers of blue and white, simultaneous with the dude whose exterior measures the shallowness of the interior of his cranium; the ladies, heaven bless 'em, are arrayed in light and airy raiment, summer silks, charming headgear just too sweet for anything. The great American institution, the tramp, starts out of his winter quarters and he's off to beat the sap out of some more railroad ties, and the farmer out of a square meal, giving a wide berth to wood piles, bulldogs and officers of the law; the kids are scheming in thirty-nine different ways to get nickles to get base balls and bats; the young men gather themselves together in parties of three and four, dig bait, cut poles, and then "cut sticks" for the happy fishing grounds, with a couple of sandwiches in their pockets, and a case of beer under the seat; the spring poet, the same one we killed last year, comes to life again and springs more of the same kind upon the impecunious pencil pusher, putting the latter into a state of lassitude and a "tired" feeling generally; the old man puts new hinges on the gate, whitewashes the chicken coop, digs in the garden about five minutes, and then goes down to the drug store and swears for "backache;" his better half has a wild look in her eye as she begins to tear things down about the house and remarks that "we'll begin on the best room first;" Charlie arrayed in ice cream pants and a 75-cent straw hat calls on Mary Ann and wipes all the paint off the front step; wagons, loaded down with feather beds, stove pipe and etceteras, start on their erratic career from one side of town to the other, closely followed by the old man with the clock under one arm and the mirror under the other, and "God bless our home" strung around his neck. Indications on every hand tell us that spring is here.

We are very glad to note that many of our people are screening against the disease laden pest—the fly. Every house should be made secure from his invasion. He should be as dreaded as the deadly cobra. Bred in filth this winged pest flies direct to your dining table to clean his feet on your food and bathe in the milk. People will use no precautions against flies and filth and then wonder at fevers and diseases prevailing. Clean up, screen up, and we'll all be happier and more healthy.

THE OFFICE CAT SAYS:

Have you cleaned up your old dirty premises yet? How would you like for your epitaph to read "He died as he lived—in filth." The fellow who won't clean up ought to die. And he is liable to die any time. Ain't that so?

The Flower parade and Battle of Flowers, the chief event of the Fiesta San Jacinto, held in San Antonio the week of April 15 to 21 said to be the most beautiful ever held, will be shown to the whole country in moving pictures. The weather was ideal for the manipulation of the picture machine and the views are said to be unusually clear and distinct. The films will be shown over the circuits of the Beaumont and Pathe Film Companies.

Boosters at least accomplish two things: they increase the population and attract the attention of capital.

Attention Ladies!

The hot weather is now approaching and we wish to remind you of the large stock of Gasoline Sadrone we carry in stock. Just think what a comfort it would be for you to own one of these irons, take your clothes out on the gallery or under a nice shade tree, where the cool breeze will strike you, and do all your ironing; and think of the many steps it will save you running back and forth to the hot stove exchanging irons—to say nothing of the saving in wood, etc.

Let us show it to you. We will always be glad to show you anything we have in stock whether you buy or not, and we will treat you right.

Come and see us and make yourself at home at our store.

TEXAS STATE NEWS

Georgetown—Mrs. J. M. Dornill, president of the Georgetown Telephone Company, slipped and fell on the cement sidewalk a day or two ago and the injuries were so severe that she was removed to the King's Daughters Hospital at Temple for treatment.

Waxahachie—"If I owned a lot of this black land between Dallas and Waxahachie I would not care whether I was elected president or not," said Governor Harmon jokingly during his short stop here. While the train waited Governor Harmon alighted and shook hands with a small party of local supporters. He was met here by a delegation of Hillsboro citizens.

Fort Worth—Regardless of the verdict in the jury case on the charge against Rev. J. Frank Norris will go to trial, according to the statement of County Attorney Baskin Thursday. This announcement, the reports that the investigation by Captain Bill McDonald, has resulted in two affidavits by men that they were paid to set fire to the church, and the issuance of the new grand jury list giving the names of those who will likely be called upon to pass upon any new discoveries regarding the series of events, were Thursday's developments.

Smithville—The two negroes, Morris Sellers and Wes Duval, charged with the killing of two negroes the night of the great race of the annual, had their examination trial before Justice Moore, waiving examination and were allowed bail in the sum of $500.

San Angelo—Thursday was official cleanup day in San Angelo and the city was made as near a "spotless town" as possible. The cleanup movement was well organized and Thursday morning the San Angelo housewives and school children began the work of cleaning. Merchants put their clerks to work.

Houston—W. G. Leopold, former vice president and president-elect of the local Machinists' union, has furnished bond in the sum of $2000 and has been released from jail to await trial in the federal court on charges of attempted bribery. Leopold is alleged to have offered money to influence testimony in contempt proceedings against Harman line strikers.

Burnet—A petition to the County Judge to order an election to dissolve the town corporation is being circulated on the streets of Burnet. This petition is being signed by numbers of the citizens, and it is stated by those who are pushing the movement that three-fourths of the qualified voters will sign it.

Eagle Pass—Shift No. 2 at the International coal mines caught fire and was burned down, along with eight Southern Pacific box cars standing near. The mine loss will amount to $15,000, no insurance. The shaft was idle at the time and the cause of the fire is unknown.

San Angelo—Reports that Rome Shields, perhaps the most famous sheriff in the southwest, was killed here are untrue. Reports to this effect were printed in some morning papers. Both Mr. Shields and the man who was alleged to have shot him are on the streets here today about their usual occupations, and laughed at the idea of such a shooting. Both said they knew nothing of the origin of the report.

Austin—Tarrant county's road and bridge bond issue of $1,000,000 was approved and registered. The issue was jointly by Fort Worth and the county, $500,000 being for four bridges in that city and the balance for county roads that are now being planned. The bonds are 10-40's at 5 per cent.

Corpus Christi—All plans have been completed for the building of a fine summer amusement park in Corpus and work on the building of the various mechanical devices will commence within the next several days. The park will be completed and ready for business during the latter part of May.

San Antonio—Yesterday early the other morning blew open a safe in a saloon at 1508 South Flores street conducted by John P. Homes and obtained $50 in currency and a number of abstracts, deeds and contracts. Entrance was gained by breaking the lock to the front door. A purse, taken from the safe, was later found near the International & Great Northern depot. The robbery was reported to the police and detectives working on the case have a clue which they hope will soon lead to an arrest.

TEXAS CATTLE TO GO NORTH WANTS TRAINED FORCE TO OPERATE CANAL

Plan Being Worked Out by A. M. McFaddin of State Live Stock Commission—Means Much to Cattle Men.

A plan whereby the cattle raisers of Texas may ship their cattle to points north of the quarantine line established by the Federal government to keep out the Texas fever tick is being worked out by A. M. McFaddin of Victoria, president of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association and also a member of the Texas live stock sanitary commission. In fact, the first shipment of such cattle has already been made to a point in the State of Oklahoma, north of the quarantine line, 5753 head of cattle having been sold by and shipped within the past few days from Liverpool, Brazoria county, to Foraker, Okla.

The plan is simply to give the cattle a double dipping in vats containing a solution to eradicate the ticks from the cattle. The cattle are given one dipping and then allowed to run a few days in the pastures. They are then subjected to another dipping, after which they are loaded on to those which were entered into the infected, cleaned and shipped to the cattle. Mr. McFaddin states that immediately after his appointment by Governor Clegg upon the live stock sanitary commission of Texas he set about preparations to effect just such conditions as have resulted. He constructed his dipping vats, held consultations with members of the live stock sanitary commission of Oklahoma, talked with the state veterinarian of Texas, and entered into correspondence with cattle buyers in various sections of the country with the view of finding a buyer who would take the cattle after they were double dipped and prepared for shipment. He says that if other states north of the quarantine line and other buyers enter into arrangements similar to those which were entered into between himself and Mr. Stonebreaker, with the sanction of the live stock authorities, it will mean that the cattle of Texas will be worth more than a dollar a head more than they are now worth when they can not be shipped because of the quarantine restrictions.

DISCOVER ENTIRE FAMILY OF "HOPES"

Walls Brothers All Over Six Feet and Husky—One Goes Into Training for Battles.

There has been much talk off and on about "white hopes," but the supply seems not to have become exhausted. The latest addition to this pugilistic category is a whole family of them located in Ohio. A few nights ago a new hope walked into the office of a Cincinnati newspaper, and all those who gazed upon him had to gasp for breath. His name is Joe Walls, of New Weston, Darke county, Ohio. Walls is 28 years of age, stands 6 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. Walls is an old-time friend of John Simeco, the well-known trainer of athletes and official referee of the Olympic club.

SEED CRUSHERS TO MEET

Eighteenth Convention to Be Held in Houston July 22 to 24.

Dallas, Tex., April 29.—The following was made out Thursday by Major Robert Gibson, secretary of the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers' Association: To the members of the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers' Association: I am directed by President W. A. Sherman to notify our members that the executive committee has selected as the place for the eighteenth annual meeting place of our association on July 22, 23 and 24 next, the rules committee to meet three days in advance, say July 19 and 20.

As soon as arrangements are made for committees, hotels, railroad rates, etc., we will notify you. We want every member to be present and enjoy the hospitality of our good Houston friends. Be sure to make your arrangements to be with us. We shall expect you. Yours very truly, ROBERT GIBSON, Secretary.

CHANGES HIS BIRTHPLACE

Chinese Prefers Deportation to Term in Prison.

Thinking that it was a greater crime for a Chinese to be born in the United States than in his own country, Jung Ming, ordered deported by the United States commissioner's court last January, but set free by an order of the circuit court of appeals, chose the birthplace with the lesser penalty, according to the higher court's opinion, which was written by Judge Rufus E. Foster. In the order of the court was stated that Ming, really born in San Francisco, had been under the impression that the penalty for being born in the United States was a long term in prison, while the penalty for being born in China was merely deportation. Hence he had declared that he was born in the latter country.

CANCER MORTALITY

Annual Loss to Nation $208,000,000, Says University Professor.

Boulder, Colo., April 15.—One death in seventeen is due to cancer, according to Dr. Clay E. Gillin of the University of Colorado, in a talk to the university scientific society. Dr. Gillin further asserted that 40,000 persons die annually from cancer in the United States. He explained that this meant a loss of $208,000,000 every year, and that $200,000 spent in educating the people concerning cancer would save $17,000,000 the first year.

Cancer, says X-ray and operation are the three ways of treating the disease, he says. If taken in time and treated, the doctor said, the chances of death are three in 100, but if neglected soon offers only one chance in three.

Grand Jury Report

Hon. Clarence Martin, District Judge.

Now comes the Grand Jury for the March Term 1912 of the District Court of Kimble County and reports as follows:

We have investigated all violations of the law that have come to our knowledge and have found three indictments, two of the grade of felony and one misdemeanor.

We regret to say that the crime of goat and sheep theft seems to be on the increase in Kimble County and many complaints have reached us of such depredations.

To eradicate this evil and blot on the fair name of Kimble County, we call on all good citizens to assist the officers in procuring testimony and aiding in the prosecution of these offenses.

Numerous complaints have been made in regard to the prevalence of scab among flocks of sheep of this county and on investigation we have come to the conclusion that the inspection of sheep for this disease has not been as thorough as it should have been and we recommend that the County Inspector in person inspect all flocks of sheep once every three months and any citizen whose sheep are found to be affected with scab who fails or refuses to cure said disease be proceeded against at once by the filing of complaint by the Inspector with the County Attorney.

The report of the finance committee has been examined by us and we recommend that all who feel interested in same call at the County Clerk's office and read said report.

Numerous complaints have been made to us of the sanitary conditions in Junction, and on investigation we find that many closets need attention, especially the ones at Courthouse and jail. As the hot dry summer months will soon be here we urge upon the citizens generally the importance of having their closets cleaned at regular intervals and the free use of lime as a disinfectant. A concerted action of the citizens along this line will do much to prevent flies and keep down disease, especially fevers. We respectfully request The Kimble County Citizen to publish this report.

Charles Armstrong Shoots Self

Charles Armstrong shot himself between the eyes with a target Thursday. As we go to press the man is still alive but in a serious condition. The sad affair occurred on his place on the river southwest of Junction. No one was near at the time of the shooting and the man evidently lay where he had fallen for several hours before being found by his wife. When found the man was unconscious, and in a very critical condition. Dr. Fred Burt was summoned and dressed the wound. The injured man is said to be getting along as well as can be expected, and it is hoped he may recover. The shooting is thought to have been an accident.

A part of your cleaning and pressing will be appreciated by Ed Sanders.

If you have anything to sell or trade see M. S. Nichols. He will treat you right.

If you have any conscientious scruples about killing the pesky fly, turn him over to us.

WILD ROSE

Resolutions of Sympathy
To the Officers and Members of the Junction Lodge No. 788, I. O. O. F., Junction, Texas.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of sympathy respecting the death of Bro. D. A. Cowart, beg leave to report as follows:

The grim messenger has invaded our circle, and we are caused to mourn the sudden and untimely death of our beloved brother, which occurred on the morning of the 6th of April, A. D. 1912, near his residence 14 miles west of Junction, caused by an accidental discharge of his gun.

As we pay tribute to his memory, we also bear grateful, loving remembrance of the genial friend and faithful brother of the order of I. O. O. F. With him the silver cord is loosened, the golden bowl is broken, life's fatal fever is over and he is at rest. Standing near the line where the shadows of time are kneaded by the sunlight of eternity, he, during the time allotted him here, performed his duty to his country, his fraternity, his family and his Maker honorably, faithfully and well. Honesty of purpose, integrity of action, nobleness of deeds, are the brightest jewels which adorn the life of man. Weighed in these balances, we may well say of him he was not found wanting.

He was an untiring, diligent, faithful Old Fellow, unswerving in his convictions of right. He was a public spirited and honorable citizen, a true, loyal friend, considerate, devoted, loving husband and father, and square to every wind that blew. We thank our brotherhood we say, "Well done, Brother."

We extend to the bereaved family, our sincere and heartfelt sympathy, and pledge them our fidelity and continued friendship.

Respectfully that a copy of this be published in The Kimble County Citizen be spread upon the minutes of the Lodge, and that a copy be delivered to the bereaved family.

Committee: S. L. Batchelor, Frank Bissett, John S. Durst.

Married

Mr. Joe Coleman and Miss Viegie Browning were married at the gate of the Baptist parsonage Wednesday just as the sun went down. Rev. B. W. N. Simms officiating. The couple remained seated in the buggy during the ceremony and then were driving away undiscovered, just as some young friends chasing after them drove up, all full of merriment and laughter.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Browning, of this city, and is an accomplished and charming young lady. The groom is a prosperous young ranchman of the South Llano. They have many friends which wish for them much happiness.

The Mother's Civic League met at the Baptist Church as arranged and had a pleasant meeting. The immediate object being ways and means by which we may help our mothers into a more co-operative spirit with the school of the community. Mothers, are you interested in your children to the extent that you wish the best influences to cradle them while they are growing up? If so come and help by your presence, by your experiences and by your influence this organization that has brought so much good to other communities.

It is not a religious concern but a concern that works for the interest of children in the school, in the home and the social life.

We are a progressive people; we believe in good schools, we believe in good social influences, we believe in good companionship for our children, but we make a mistake when we think that somebody besides ourselves is working to procure these things for our children.

It rests on us, on the women of the community, on the men of the community, on the things our children run against every day of their lives whether we are to do our best for them or not. One parent can not materially change anything in community life, but a dozen mothers may bring many changes in school life, in association and in the things that are all about the children.

Come to our next meeting, on Friday, May 10.

BELATED

By Charles Gordon Rogers.

Calhoun took the telegram freely. At no time did he like business; and at such a time as this, a time of pleasure, or at least the pursuit of it, the intrusion of commerce was an insult.

But this message caused him, if but for a moment, a new sensation. He had supposed it to be of the cut-and-dried sort; Cone & Co. offered so and so, and the market stood thus and thus; should they accept? As if Harding did not know more than any one else—at least any one at 107 Broadway—about "such things," so ran his thoughts as he crumpled the envelope and unfolded the yellow sheet. He stared and frowned as he read and reread the line. He had not thought it could be from her. But then, had he thought of her at all, even hence, since leaving home?

Come home, I need you.

What on earth could his wife need him for? If there was any business that required the trained intelligence of a man, Harding could and would attend to it. He had told Harding to telephone, and also to see his wife now and then, and do whatever might be required in connection with the larger necessities of the household.

He wrote an answer, brief as his patience. "See Harding. He will do anything," he did not sign even an initial; and when the message was handed to the night operator, he lighted a cigar and impatiently waited for his train.

It was breakfast time, and a fine morning when he reached his destination and hotel, five hundred miles south and on the sea. He had slept well, in spite of the warm night; for the breeze air had been sedative, and his berth a good one. So, good-humored once more, and hungry and vigorous, he scanned the register early for her name where he wrote his own.

Yes, she was here; at breakfast, the head waiter informed him; and so he passed through the large room until he reached the farther end, by a window, he came to her—golden haired, blue-eyed, pink and white and sensuous, serene and smiling, with the eyes of a score of men upon her.

"So you have come—at last!" she said, as she gave him her soft fingers.

"It has seemed 'at last'!" he answered. "It was the longest waiting night I ever put in; and, added to that, only a chance of finding you here."

"And hasn't the upshot of the 'chance' justified the journey?"

"You are radiant!"

"And you look as fresh as—as that garden after a long 'waking' night?"

"You flatter! You sleep like your very conscience!"

"Even that dreams of you?"

"Do you know, I thought—not feared—that you would, after all, go home."

"Why? Have you never realized what a siren you are—and here, by your native blue element?"

"But the sirens were not at all nice! You forget your mythology. Perhaps you left it—at home."

"Perhaps, by distance. But distance lends enchantment, and I am here to prove it, by remaining."

"That, if she should write?"

"A remote contingency. She telegraphed."

"Oh?"

"To say: 'All's well. Enjoy yourself.'"

"So she presupposed a flirtation?"

"She knows I don't revel in my own society."

"By the experience of her own? Well, so do I, for that matter." And so on, until at last they rose, laughing, and passed in excellent humor, each with the other, to the broad veranda overlooking the blue sea.

On the point of going out, three mornings later, he had a telegram—telegram number 200—put in his hand. He showed his amazement; he opened it. Then, suddenly, his expression changed, and the boy saw the tall and handsome gentleman from the north grove pale beneath his tan.

The tall gentleman crumpled the bit of paper. Since Janet has taken upon herself to telegraph in such an imperative way, it must have been because Laura was unable to write, that she was—that she had

BASEBALL NOTES

We have made arrangements to have this column devoted each week entirely to Base Ball and other Sports in San Antonio and Southwest Texas. We have secured the services of Mr. Wm. J. Doolittle, manager of Washer's

HOUSEHOLDS STILL IN THE LEAD

Commercial League Standing.

One tight game and a genuine baseball holocaust were the results of the play in the Commercial League Sunday afternoon at Krueger Park. In the national game the Johnston & Burnett team got into the win column by beating the Washer Orioles, 2 to 1. In the other game Household won the Championship, 2 to 0. Each game went seven innings.

A good crowd saw the double-header in which there was variety enough to please everyone. A deal was completed Sunday when the Johnston & Burnett team traded Rankin and Masch to the Washer Orioles for F. Chambers, V. Garcia and Canales.

The Johnston & Burnett team scored two runs in the second inning, and this was just enough to win the first game. The pitching of Gundlach, who allowed but three hits in the seven innings, and the fielding of the whole of the winning team were the features. Vectors and Stiehl hit the ball hard for the losers, between them getting all their team's hits.

Score by Innings.

Johnston & Burnett 2 to 0—1 2 2 Washer Orioles 0 to 0—1 2 2

The pitching of Chambers and the batting and fielding of the entire Household team featured the second game. The fifth inning furnished the tie feature, because the Household did not score a later-inning run. The Chapman played far below form and it kept going up to the end of the game. Underwood again was the heavy hitter for the Household, although he had a lot of company this time.

Score by Innings.

Household 14 to 0—1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 Chapman 0 to 0—1 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2

THERE'S A REASON.

Ideal Grocer. When customers branch the subject of the high cost of living and the grocer's responsibility, the official desire to institute a world-wide inquiry, the grocer should come back with a few reasons, as in the past that government has played in making things costly. For example, Groves has officially forced a number of cartons, a Brazilian State helped to make coffee much less a number of nations have joined in an agreement to prevent sugar falling to a natural level. American farmers have for years been urged to hold their wheat and cotton, with the tacit approval of official circles—and about every nation except one has tried its damnest for years, by means of tariffs, to increase the domestic cost of necessities. For thousands of nations, after this, to turn around and expect a dealer to handle any living in high cost of living is a good example of hypocrisy of which human nature could be guilty. Even out in long island the farmers have been warning to hold potatoes for export prices, with newspaper approval and the selfsame papers are wondering why the public does not of the grocer, the "extortion" of the poor retailer.

Trading work has begun on the Houston-San Antonio Interurban at Hillcountry.

"Nails."

Nails are a mighty good thing, particularly when I don't believe they were intended only for stretching, though I used him large for that. I think for several years. One application of Hunt's Cure, however, relieved my back, and less than one box cured me entirely." J. M. WARD, Index, Texas.

NEW FACTORY FOR SAN ANTONIO

D. A. CRISPI MFG. CO. OPENS NEW, MODERN AND SANITARY ICE CREAM AND CONFECTIONERY PLANT.

Experienced Manufacturer Considers San Antonio Ideal Location and Installs New Machinery to Make Frozen Dainties.

With the advent of the hot summer season the people of the sunny South, particularly those residing within the limits of the cities immediately, begin planning for their cars and comfort during the torrid months. Each new season finds the busy housekeeper planning to lessen her labor in the hot kitchen. At first the question arises, "What shall we have for lunch and dinner today?" Of course, it must be something light, pleasing to the palate and highly nutritious. At once she decides that ice cream must be on the menu for these meals, as the children and especially the husband never tire of it and constantly crave something cool. Naturally it requires a great deal of work to make it, so it must be purchased from some reliable dealer who makes a pure cream.

The D. A. Crispi Manufacturing Company have just opened a new, modern and sanitary ice cream and confectionery plant at 124 Cameron street, San Antonio, Texas, where they will make for both the retail and wholesale trade the finest and purest ice, creams and delicacies to be found in the city. Mr. Crispi, the president of the new concern, has had twenty-five years' experience in the making of frozen dainties and comes to San Antonio highly recommended by the leading business men of Hutchinson, Kan., where he has been located for a great many years.

Mr. Crispi said that nothing but the purest ingredients would be used in the manufacture of this company's product, a prompt delivery system by this concern would insure an absence of making at all times. The latest machinery has been installed in this new ice cream plant and no expense has been spared to make this factory thoroughly modern in its completeness. As the new factory is located in the heart of the business district a prompt delivery system is possible for either local or distant town trade and "prompt service," says Mr. Crispi, will be maintained regardless of cost.

NOW IS THE TIME TO VISIT =BIG WELLS AND BIG 4 COLONY=

Witness the greatest harvest of Bermuda Onions, Alfalfa and other high-priced farm products ever marketed at any town of the age of Big Wells in the history of the Great Southwest.

The Big Onion Crop is now beginning to move. The fragrant Alfalfa is now falling beneath the reaper's steel, and scores of Mexicans are busily engaged clearing the brush for new fields, while dozens of well drillers with their massive machinery are working night and day tapping the great subterranean lake which is furnishing Big Wells with a bounteous supply of the best water on earth. Come and see this property blessed with such natural resources, and which is so rapidly acquiring every modern convenience that you can and money can supply. Visit our town of Big Wells and witness its marvelous growth. You can also understand how it is that our farmers are realizing from $300 to $600 per acre annually.

DID THE PEOPLE VOTE FOR CALVARY?

Extracts from a Sermon Delivered by Rev. Quincy Ewing in Christ (Episcopal) Church, Napoleonville, La., Palm Sunday, March 31, 1912.

Can anybody, having read the New Testament, or a single one of the Gospels, entertain for a moment the thought that the men who brought Jesus to "Pilate" would have been willing to refer the question of his life or death to the mass of the people—the mass of the adult male population of Jerusalem?

How absurd such a thought would be is manifest on this evidence alone, that during the last week of his ministry he taught every day in the porch of the temple, in the very face of the highest civil and ecclesiastical authorities, and no one of them dared to molest him; not one of them dared to hinder his arrest anywhere in or out of the city in daylight. And, surrounded as he was by only twelve unarmed disciples, what danger would there have been in arresting him, had the people wanted him arrested and put to death?

The marvel is not that the people of Judea did not prevail and prevent the crucifixion of Jesus. The marvel is that they prevailed enough to prevent it so long; that they prevailed enough to force their chief priests to bribe and mislead Jesus, in order to lay hands on a defenseless Prophet and get him before the bar of their packed court.

It is well to have the record in mind when one hears the statement as that ascribed to the Kansas Congressman. It is well to remember at all times that Jesus was crucified, not because the Jewish people wanted him crucified, not because they rejected him, not because they accepted him; not because they were his enemies, but because they were his friends.

If we must charge the Jewish people with responsibility for the crucifixion of Jesus, let us do so fairly. Let us, with the record before us, confess that it was their approval, not their condemnation, their hosannas, not their maledictions, that sent him to the Cross. It is many thousand times more likely that the Jew we meet on the street today is a descendant of one of those who waved his palm branch and cried, "Hosanna to him who cometh in the name of the Lord," than that he is a descendant of one of those who made the midnight excursion to the Garden of Gethsemane, and then sat as a judge at the Sanhedrin between midnight and sunrise.

So, it would seem, the priest or the politician is treading on dangerous ground, who preaches against Calvary when he preaches against the people the question whether they are fit to govern themselves, or fit only to give their consent to being governed. The company of the chief priests, scribes, and elders is not good company for any man to place himself in today, who believes that the people need to be saved from themselves by official saviors; that majorities would go at once headlong to self-destruction, unless restrained by a select minority.

The ancient elders, and scribes, and chief of priests—who were also chief politicians—were firmly convinced that the people of their day needed to be saved from themselves—from the wild foolishness of following after Jesus of Nazareth with his terrifying Gospel that threatened to "put down the might from their seat and exalt the low and meek." That is why they persuaded their retainers to ask Pilate for the freeing of Barabbas and the crucifixion of Jesus. The people could be safely trusted to deal with the robber. They could not be safely trusted to deal with the Prophet.

The modern elders, and scribes, and chief politicians, and their ancient prototypes that the people need to be saved from themselves—from the wild foolishness of supposing that they should have and enjoy what they believe to be good for themselves, rather than what a clique or a class believe to be good for them. But the record over there is abundant promise that the old conflict between the priest and the politician on the one hand, and the people on the other,

BEE KEEPERS' DEPARTMENT

We have made arrangements to have this column devoted each week entirely to beekeeping. We have secured the services of Mr. E. G. LeSturgeon, secretary of the Bexar County Beekeepers' Association, and one of the best known beekeepers in the State of Texas, to conduct this department for our readers. Any questions concerning apiculture or any request for advice about beekeeping should be addressed to E. G. LeSturgeon, Box 1048, San Antonio, Texas, and will be fully and carefully answered in this column. We trust that every one of our readers will take advantage of this opportunity, because beekeeping is rapidly becoming one of the most extensive industries in our part of Texas.

The following interesting letter from J. J. Wilder will be of special interest to our readers at this time:

Cotton as a Honey Plant.
There is perhaps no honey plant that has come into more prominence in the bee keeping world of late years than the cotton plant. It has been compared to the clover of the North, but its great value as a honey plant has been known for only a few years.

One good feature about this great honey plant is that it gets better and better each season. I can remember when bees gathered only enough nectar from it to stimulate brood-rearing, and now we get from it three supers of surplus honey from this source alone. I don't know whether it is because we are better beekeepers now, or because we have a better stock of bees, or that the plant grows more prolific than it used to, and is more general. I am inclined to think it is mostly due to the latter.

It yields more where it grows best, and of a much longer duration. As a nectar yielder it is not excelled by any other honey plant in Dixie. I have often heard cotton planters remark that while laying it in the early mornings, their pants' legs would get thoroughly saturated with the nectar while following the plow, by the limbs and leaves coming in contact with them, and later in the day the best "sweat" evaporates, it there, and the pants would be sticky, and have a greasy appearance. It evaporates by 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning, during hot, dry weather, and the flow comes on again about 3 o'clock p. m. But it is on all day, if it is cloudy or the atmosphere be damp.

It sends its nectar out between the inner shuck of the blossom, and the cells on the main stems of the leaves on the underside—here it is very prominent, and in great abundance, and the bees have only to make one visit each to a leaf for their load. But the nectar in the shuck of the bloom does not evaporate so rapidly, and the bees gather from here nearly all day.

The heavy work of the bees in early morning, gathering nectar from this source, gives the beekeeper a revival in his pursuit that he does not get over from season to season.

Along large streams in the great cotton belt bees gather but little cotton honey, because the snowing and other similar vines, which grow in great abundance along such streams, begin yielding before the cotton does, and continue throughout the summer. The yield from such sources is very slow, and does not amount to much in surplus, but the bees get started on it, and they don't quit, and the flow from cotton comes on and passes off, and is hardly noticed by the bees.

I have some apiaries located in just such sections, with thousands of acres of cotton surrounding them, but it is ignored by the bees, and I don't know why they pass over the large cotton fields with nectar in such great abundance, and feed away their time along the rivers and creeks on the minor honey plants, unless it is because the nectar from cotton contains so much more water, and therefore is harder to evaporate. Cotton honey is nearly as clear as water in appearance, but when well ripened it is a fine table article of honey.

When we say this, we are in deed correct and can prove it. We don't patch up. WE CURE! Many of our Specialists treat their patients, and that's about all they do. We do more; we treat them and cure them permanently.

MIRACULOUS CURES

Even such an extravagant title as this might be given to many of the cases we have cured in the past, when we realize how utterly hopeless they seemed when they first came to them. Many of our young men, prematurely old, have been brought back to the full possession of perfect health. We accept no lucrative cases for treatment, and if we deem a case treatable we cure it free.

We cure Blood and Skin Diseases without Mercury, never to return.
We cure with the same guarantee of success all the chronic diseases of men, such as Kidney and Bladder and Urinary troubles, Hydrocele, Impotence, Chloria and Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, Eczema, Rheumatism, Catarrhal Affections, Piles and Hemorrhoids and all Nervous and Chronic Diseases of men and women. UNCLE SAM AIDS HUNT FOR MISSING SAN ANTONIO MAN

State Department Asked to Find
Fred Miller, Believed to Be Held in Mexico.

Washington, D. C., April 29.—The State Department was requested by Representative James L. Slagden today to inquire through diplomatic channels as to the whereabouts and safety of Fred Miller, son-in-law of W. W. Slagden of San Antonio, who disappeared about April 15, while serving the National Railway of Mexico as a conductor in the Cuernavaca country. The department promised Mr. Slagden it would investigate at once.

Mr. Slagden received a telegram from Mr. Slagden saying that Miller left the City of Mexico on his regular run to Cuernavaca April 13 to return April 14; that he has not been heard of since, and Mr. Slagden supposed that Miller is being held incommunicado.

FILMS TO CURE INSANE

Chicago, April 29.—Moving pictures as a means of curing insane patients will be tried by Superintendent Sidney D. Wilgus of the Elgin state hospital. The first picture will be shown soon, and two shows a week will be given thereafter.

"Moving pictures will help us materially in curing patients," stated Dr. Wilgus. "They will take the minds of the patients from their misfortunes, and like any other harmless diversion will stimulate their weakened brains."

"I will ensure all pictures shown at the hospital, and will not permit any pictures such as are frequently seen at recent shows to be shown at the hospital."

PREFERS DOG TO WIFE

Portland (Ore.) Man Quickly Solves
Dilemma in Court.

Because, says the Portland, Oregon, her husband thought more of his white bull terrier than he did of her, Mrs. R. T. Green caused the animal to be taken away by R. W. Hubbell, and Green, ignorant of his wife's action, caused the arrest of Hubbell on a charge of stealing the animal.

Hubbell appeared for trial and the bull terrier was in evidence. Hubbell declared to Judge Tarwell that the animal had been given to him by Mrs. Green. Green declared that he had no knowledge of his wife's action, but admitted that he prized the canine highly.

That man, sobbed Mrs. Green, adding to her husband, "thinks more of that cur than he does of me, I got rid of the dog."

Green retorted that he owned the dog and that he was going to keep him.

"Take your choice!" screamed Mrs. Green.

"I'll take the dog," said Green.

Releasing the dog from the leg of the table where he was tied, Green left his weeping wife on the witness stand and stalked out of the court.

There is abundant promise that not the select circle of the ephods and the breast plates will prevail; but the great multitude of the palm branches and hosannas!

FARM NOTES

PLANTING THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

It is not always advantageous to plant the garden as early as possible. Under certain conditions Nature hastens the growth of late planted seeds so that the difference in time of their ripening will not accord with the difference in plantings. This is particularly the case when the season is late and rainy.

Plant for a succession of the different vegetables. A garden in which about the same time will not give as good results as when a period of time elapses between the second, third or fourth plantings of the same vegetables. Particularly is this true of peas, says Farm and Home. Where a number of different varieties were tried the best results were obtained from one or two varieties planted in succession.

In sweet corn, however, this was not so apparent. It was found best to rely on several varieties as well as successive plantings. If the season is backward or the plantings made unusually early, sweet corn seemed to be very slow in growth. On the other hand, the corn planted later would grow very fast under favorable conditions and almost catch up with the first plantings. To overcome this difficulty it was found advisable to rely on the plantings of different varieties.

POULTRY DEPARTMENT

INSURING AGAINST HEN LICE.

The time to fight lice is all the time. Absolute cleanliness must be maintained at all times. The droppings should be removed at least once a week.

Twice a year, in spring and autumn, a general clean-up should take place. The perches should be removed and hosed out the outside is thoroughly charred. The building should be thoroughly whitewashed. For this purpose a spray pump not only saves the water, but does a much better job, the spray putting the whitewash into cracks and crevices that would be difficult to reach with a brush.

A good spray pump will do as much in an hour as could ordinarily be done in a day with a brush. The perches should be thoroughly sprayed every week or so with kerosene to keep down the red mites. These mites attack the fowls only at night, and are found on the perches, or in cracks and crevices near the roosting place. Kerosene is an effective remedy, but it should be applied frequently.

The litter should be replaced with clean material at least once a month. The nests should be looked to frequently. Straw is a poor material for nests, as the hollow straws make a good place for the red mites to hide. Excelsior is preferred by many. However, the best material for nesting purposes is tobacco stems.

When the house has been thoroughly rid of the pests, the fowls should receive attention. There are many lice powders on the market, but the safest plan is to make your own. The carbolic acid and gasoline should be thoroughly mixed and poured over the lime, stirring the whole mass thoroughly. Keep away from fire. After standing for several days a fine powder is the result. Use in a sifter-top can. Experience has shown that this powder is very effective.

HOW TO PACK EGGS.

A clean stone jar holding six to ten gallons is the best vessel for packing eggs for family use, but a tight wooden firkin or other vessel will answer very well. The eggs must be clean and fresh. Dirty shells and cracked or spoiled eggs will injure and possibly spoil the entire lot.

Place the eggs in the jar as they are gathered and cover with a solution of water glass (silicate of soda) one part to ten or fifteen parts of water. Cover the jar to prevent evaporation. Water glass is an amber-colored liquid which can be procured of druggists or dealers in poultry supplies. It costs about 25 cents per quart, less by the gallon. Pure water should be used, rain water if you can get it. The jar should be placed in a cool cellar or room where it will not freeze in winter. According to Farm and Home, eggs preserved in this way will keep in good condition eight or nine months.

EGGS FOR HATCHING.

Care should be exercised in the selection of eggs for incubating. They should weigh about 24 ounces to the dozen. The shell should be smooth and free from lumps and ridges.

Generally speaking, the newer the egg the better it is for hatching. Eggs will often hatch when they are three weeks old, but the chicks are never as strong as those from fresh eggs. Eggs intended for hatching should be kept in a cool place at a temperature of about 50 degrees. They should be turned daily until ready for the incubator or broody hen. Over large eggs seldom hatch, says Farm and Home. The small egg is usually from a pullet that has not fully matured, and should be rejected. Thin shelled eggs are unsuitable for use, since they are liable to be broken. The pointed egg and the round egg should go in the egg basket. All eggs that vary greatly from normal shape should be rejected.
