Stans Blasts US Cradle-To-Grave Welfare Statism

By EDWARD COWAN
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Maguire H. Stans, budget director in the Eisenhower administration, summoned businessmen today to battle against "the excesses of democracy," chiefly rising government spending.

Stans said "a massive assumption of responsibility by the government for cradle-to-grave welfare" was destroying states' sovereignty and replacing local self rule with "an all-powerful central bureaucracy."

In a speech prepared for delegates to the 50th annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Stans urged businessmen to campaign for economy in government.

He said they should oppose "public power or subsidies or tax handouts," even though they may personally benefit from them.

Stans was budget director during the last three years of the Eisenhower administration. He now is president of Western Bank Corporation, a Los Angeles-based bank holding company.

Another champion of economy in government, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., predicted the federal budget deficit in the fiscal year ending June 30 would run at least $1 billion above the administration estimate of $7 billion.

Byrd told the chamber that in fiscal 1963, which starts July 1, there will be a deficit of $4 billion to $5 billion. He noted the administration was sticking to its January forecast of a slight surplus.

Stans criticized "national wage policies" which, he said, "have recognized a political balance of power in favor of labor." His criticism echoed the sentiment of many of the 4,000 chamber delegates, who feel the Kennedy administration has yet to show that its anti-inflation policy applies as vigorously to unions as it did to the steel industry.

Storms Smash Midwest; 8 Die

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Killer tornadoes and hurricane-force winds slashed through sections of nine states Monday and early today, claiming at least eight lives and injuring 145 persons.

Illinois had five dead, Michigan listed one fatality and Indiana reported two.

Illinois had at least 50 persons injured, Indiana had at least 43 persons injured, 40 of them in South Bend, Michigan reported 25 injuries. Five were hurt in Ohio and one at Fenton, Mo. Kentucky had 18 injuries, Arkansas had three.

Tornadoes also raked Texas and damaging winds hit western Pennsylvania. Flash floods were reported in St. Louis, Mo., suburbs.

Collapse of a school roof at Springfield, Ill., killed a 12-year-old boy. A similar accident at Galesburg, Ill., injured a teacher and two students.

An elderly man suffered a fatal heart attack when an unconfirmed tornado skipped through West Frankfort, Ill. A young stone mason was struck and killed by a falling grain elevator at Frankfort, Ind.

Two persons were killed when an advertising sign came crashing through the roof of a Rantoul, Ill., supermarket Monday. A workman died when a wind toppled a chimney at a Pontiac, Ill., stone works. An elderly woman guest lost her life when a hotel roof caved in at Pontiac, Mich. A man who was dashing to shelter from the South Bend, Ind., storm darted in front of a car and was killed.

At least 35 persons were hurt at Rantoul, Ill., most of them—men and their families and civilian employees of Chanute Air Force Base.

Hospital power failures hampered treatment of the injured at South Bend, Ind. Three Rivers, Mich., and West Frankfort, Ill.,

In Three Rivers, Mich., more than 200 trees were uprooted and more than half the homes in the city damaged.

Authorities at Springfield, Ill., credited principal John Cautt with averting a major tragedy at the McClelland School, where Gary Keller, 12, was killed when the roof of the three-story brick building collapsed. Cautt held most of the 375 children in the basement cafeteria until just before the storm struck. "I thought a plane had hit the school," Cautt said.

Donna Allison, 9, who was in the basement of the school, said, "All of us girls started screaming and crying. We ran out and there was stuff all over so we ran back in. Then a teacher came." One small boy was hospitalized with shock and fright after jumping from a window of the damaged school.

Communists In May Day Parade Of Armed Might

United Press International
The Communist world today paraded its armed might in May Day celebrations from Moscow to Peking.

Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky reviewed lines of rockets and tanks and warned the West Russia could crush any aggressor.

In Tokyo, snake-dancing leftist students protesting U. S. nuclear tests clashed with police. Students parading in a 3,000-member demonstration attacked policemen with bamboo poles and police struck back. There were no injuries.

West Berliners used the labor holiday for a giant rally near the Communist wall, proclaiming that "freedom knows no wall."

Malinovsky charged that the United States is prepared to wage a "preventive nuclear war" if necessary, but he said Soviet power could defeat any aggressor.

In the Western Hemisphere, Premier Fidel Castro sent trucks and buses into the countryside to round up tens of thousands to watch Havana's parade and hear him speak. The Argentine government deployed 10,000 troops around key points in Buenos Aires to prevent possible anti-government outbreaks by Peronists.

The Soviet Union stressed peace and prosperity in its celebration, but it also rolled out Red army tanks and troops for the annual military parade past Premier Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders watching from atop Lenin's tomb in Red Square.

Zoning Request OK'd; Health Officer Named

Pampa's City Commission went through a pile of unfinished business today that included everything from zoning complaints, fallout shelters and health department matters to the charge that a Pampa barber had been unnecessarily "worked over" by a policeman.

The latter complaint was filed by the brother of a man charged with intoxication.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell said City Manager R. B. Cooke has been asked to investigate the charge and act on it accordingly.

Police Chief Jim Conner, contacted after the commission meeting, said he had a report on the incident from the officer involved and that the charge was unfounded. He said the man had been arrested in a liquor store on an intoxication charge and refused to go with the officer. He was taken to jail, held over night and fined $35 and costs in Corporation Court after pleading guilty, according to Chief Conner.

The city manager was ordered to make a thorough investigation of the case.

The commission today held a public hearing on a request for rezoning in the 1100 block of Charles St. to have their zoning area changed to a Class A residential district. City Atty. Bob Gordon was instructed to draw up a city ordinance to meet the request.

Action on a request of Civil Defense Director Bill Leonard to have the City Hall, Central Fire Station and Lovett Memorial Library designated as fallout shelter areas was deferred pending further consideration by city commissioners. Leonard was instructed to proceed with any necessary surveys to provide further information on what such a contract with the Civil Defense Department would entail.

Commissioners appointed E. O. Devoll to the post of city sanitation officer at a salary of $450 per month. The commissioners also discussed with County Judge Bill Craig the possibility of having Devoll to act as part time health officer for the county in addition to his city duties.

Many of the personnel problems at City Hall, it was indicated today, will be left until a new city manager has been employed and can come in and study the situation.

It was announced that some 25 applications for the city manager's post have been received and that these have been reduced to seven for further study by the mayor and commissioners.

City Manager Cooke was asked to request an up-to-date detailed report of Board of City Development expenditures of city money which is allotted to the BCD by the city.

The matter of appointing a corporation judge to succeed A. J. Carubbi, relieved of his duties recently by the commission, also was deferred until a new city manager is on the job.

Mayor Sidwell, attending the first meeting since a recent attack of pneumonia put him in the hospital, took time out briefly to thank the commissioners for their support in his recent recall election in which he was the winner.

He also thanked the voters who had supported him and said he felt if the recall election ever is held on the other three commissioners it will have the same result.

Incidentally, the commission approved payment of $281.50 to election judges and clerks who took part in the recall election.

The commission considered another letter from Koch, Fowler and Grafe, Inc., Dallas engineering firm, for final payment on the cancelled-out Master Plan contract. Not satisfied with the terms of the release the commission decided to hold up payment for further clarification.

The commission also received the final report of Merriman and Barber, engineers, on the sewer and drainage surveys for improvements scheduled on main highways through Pampa in conjunction with the State Highway Department's paving program.

The commission deadlocked in a 2-2 vote on a motion by Commissioners L. P. Fort and Leon Holmes to permit parking on the west side of N. Cuyler St. from W. Browning to Montagu. The motion was opposed by Mayor Sidwell and Commissioner Lloyd Simpson.

Two Hurt As Car Flips On Highway 66

An Arkansas couple, enroute to Tucson, Ariz., were critically injured yesterday afternoon when their car overturned five and three tenths miles west of McLean on U.S. Highway 66.

Highway patrol officers who investigated the accident at 5 p.m. said the injured people were identified as Alvin Howard Young, 54, and his wife, Goldie Mae, 42, residents of Arkansas.

Officers said the Young vehicle was traveling west on the four-lane highway when the accident occurred. A witness to the accident told officers the Young auto veered to the left of the highway and overturned three times in the median between the highways.

Both occupants were thrown from the vehicle as it overturned. There were no skid marks.

The injured were taken by ambulance to North Plains Hospital in Amarillo, where their condition is reported today as critical.

More Nuclear Punch One Purpose Of Tests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. scientists testing nuclear weapons in the Pacific are expected to devote much of the next two months to getting more punch per pound into missile warheads.

Some of the blasts may run as high as five megatons — a force equal to five million tons of TNT. Most of the tests are expected to continue in the vicinity of Christmas Island, scene of the first two explosions in the atmospheric series last week.

The development of more destruction per pound in warheads, and also bombs, was one of two major objectives President Kennedy set for the 11,800-man task force conducting the experiments.

The second prime objective—determining what nuclear blasts high in the atmosphere and in space would do to attacking missiles and communications circuits—will be delayed until June or July.

This leaves all of May and possibly much of June free for testing new warhead designs which scientists believe will achieve major breakthroughs in the problem of delivering as much destruction as possible in each missile.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Monday that the United States will fire three high altitude shots in June or July over Johnston Island, its other Pacific testing site.

Only one of these, the AEC said, is expected to exceed a megaton.

Both of the two tests already held at Christmas Island produced less than a megaton.

The AEC said that scientists around the world would be alerted prior to the Johnston Island tests so they can make measurements.

One of the shots, the AEC said, will be touched off more than 100 miles high.

In announcing March 2 that he had ordered the U.S. tests, Kennedy said Russia's test series last fall had included high altitude blasts. He said these were related to the search for an anti-missile missile.

South Viet Nam Forces Rescue Captured Soldiers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Two U.S. Army sergeants captured by Communist guerrillas three weeks ago were rescued early today by South Vietnamese soldiers, the South Viet Nam government announced.

Sgt. L.C. Francis Quinn of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Sgt. George B. Groom of St. Joseph, Mo., members of the elite U.S. Special Forces, were rescued near the coastal town of Danang, about 360 miles northeast of Saigon. They were reported in good condition.

The two men were captured when Communist Viet Cong guerrillas swept out of the jungles and attacked An Chau Village, where they and two other American soldiers were training civilian militia volunteers. The other two enlisted men were killed in the clash.

Reports received there last month said the Viet Cong had been parading the two American captives with their hands tied behind their backs, through villages to prove U.S. "intervention" in South Viet Nam.

Quinn is the son of Mrs. Henry Kresman, Niagara Falls, N.Y. Groom's wife, Mrs. Mary Groom, lives in St. Joseph.

Salinger Planning To Visit Russia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger has revived plans to visit Russia and will spend nearly a week in the Soviet Union later this month, it was announced today.

Salinger will fly from New York next Saturday night to Bonn, West Germany, for a three-day meeting on information matters. He will fill a speaking engagement in Amsterdam May 10 and arrive in Moscow May 11.

After Setting An Altitude Record Yesterday

X-15 Will Rocket Still Higher

By DOUGLAS DILLZ
EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI) — Space administration officials, elated over the X-15's world record, 48½-mile-high flight to the edge of space, disclosed plans today for the rocket ship to fly to an altitude of 57 miles "in about a month."

"I think we'll see 300,000 feet in about a month," said X-15 project manager James E. Love in the wake of Monday's 255,000-foot flight which marked the highest man ever has flown in a plane.

Federal Aviation Association (FAA) representatives were expected to submit the altitude for official world recognition.

"We've got an aggressive program for flying to extremely high altitudes, and we're not going to lose any time," said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) official.

A similar expectation was voiced by NASA test pilot Joe A. Walker, 41, who shot the bullet shaped ship in its steepest climb yet during Monday's epic flight—described as "a thing of beauty."

"I don't see any reason why we can't get up that high," drawled the seemingly unperturbed veteran pilot. "Our only problem is control and re-entry."

The highest the sleek, needle-nosed X-15 had flown previously was 217,000 feet—or 41 miles—by Air Force Maj. Bob White last year.

In a joking reference to the altitude potential of the X-15, the rocketeering farm boy from Washington, Pa., known for homespun wisecracks about his dangerous X-15 missions, told a press conference:

"I felt that if I continued to run that engine longer, I'd go into orbit."

"I got my first chance to look around at 240,000 feet," he added, saying he could scan the western fringe of the United States.

"I could see Monterey Bay (near San Francisco) to the north and the Gulf of California to the south—and away out to some darn place in the Pacific Ocean."

The wisecracking test pilot, who has said that driving on the Los Angeles freeways "bothers me more" than X-15 flights, apparently felt better at the peak of Monday's flight than he would have in congested freeway traffic.

"It was a real pleasant sensation up there," he said, adding he enjoyed weightlessness for 2 minutes and that the ship was easy to control.

Although the X-15 hit a record altitude, the main purpose of the flight was to test high altitude control, re-entry and recovery capabilities leading to future flights of manned space vehicles. NASA officials said the mission was "fully accomplished."

Walker was launched from a B-52 mother ship at 45,000 feet and then, at full throttle, rocketed into the steepest climb yet achieved by the X-15. After 51 seconds "burning time," Walker shot off the X-15's 37,000-pound thrust engine and was catapulted to the peak altitude by the ship's tremendous momentum.

Most Expect Conditions To Worsen

EDITOR'S NOTE: How do businessmen feel about the Kennedy administration now that the heat has gone out of the steel crisis? In a speech in Washington Monday President Kennedy renewed his plea for cooperation between business and government. United Press International interviewed businessmen across the country, and the following dispatch gives a cross-section of the opinion of the business community.

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most of the businessmen interviewed in a spot check across the country said today they considered the Kennedy administration to be unfriendly toward them. All who held that view predicted relations between government and business would get worse.

President Kennedy made a speech here Monday to the 50th annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce. It was his first appearance before a business organization since his knockdown fight with the major steel companies. The tone of the speech was conciliatory. He asked for a better understanding between government and business and, obviously referring to the steel crisis, said the government did not want to take on the "added burden" of having to set prices on individual products.

Nobody rose up in the audience to grasp the olive branch of peace from the President. The olive tree thrives best in a warm, friendly climate and there was a touch of frost in Constitution Hall, all of which could not be attributed to the air conditioning system. The applause at the end was polite rather than tumultuous and reporters who have attended these meetings for years B. cheered it with the thund' B. traits that always greet Dwight D. Eisenhower.

After Kennedy departed Richard Wagner of Chicago, president of the chamber, made a speech in which he said "a build-up of power in the executive branch of any government ultimately leads to the police state."

One thread that ran through the conversation of delegates after the meeting was recessed was that they were awaiting with interest the administration's attitude toward a big labor union that would insist on a wage increase.

United Press International reporters across the country put two questions to businessmen: 1. Do you consider the Kennedy administration friendly or unfriendly and why? 2. Do you believe the relationship between business and government will get better or worse and why?

No businessman or group of men can speak for everybody and in no sense should the answers that follow be considered a scientific opinion poll. Heads of many companies — including some of the country's biggest — for one reason or another asked to be excused from commenting. But the interviews did cover a wide geographical range and a variety of businesses.

About two-thirds of those who replied felt the administration was unfriendly to business.

Sample opinions: Marvin E. Park, acting executive vice president of the Dayton, Ohio, Chamber of Commerce:

"When the showdown comes, the administration feels labor ought to have what it seeks, but we seldom see the time when the needs of business are justified in the mind of the administration. There is no indication that the Kennedy administration will change its thinking and therefore the hope for better relations lies in a change of administration."

E. B. Germany, president, Long Str Steel Co., Dallas, Tex.: "The record reveals that the attorney general's office has pursued a vigorous campaign in several areas of business and industrial activity. On the other hand we find no such action against organized labor or other sectors of the American economy. We have no

United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI)—I hope that my friend Steve Stahl is mistaken in his belief that the National Education Association of the US has prepared a blacklist of fellow Americans who do not agree with NEA policies.

Steve could be right, however, because the remarkable paragraphs he discovered in a bulky NEA publication, "I discovered also. Steve is executive vice president of the Oklahoma Public Expenditures Council. OPEC is for some public expenditures and against others.

It is against spending federal funds for local schools. If NEA does have a blacklist, no doubt Steve is on it. And, no doubt, I'm on it, too. A letter from my friend cited the NEA publication entitled "Addressed and Proceedings of the 99th Annual Meeting, 1961."

Steve Stahl wrote to me as follows: "If you have ever raised your voice in opposition to federal aid to education; criticized our public school system in any way, or asked embarrassing questions with regard to school finance or administration — head for the hills!"

"If you think this is a false alarm, please read the report of the National Commission for the Defense of Democracy.

Well, I read it, and I think Steve may have something. NEA is a powerful, well-heeled organization represented vigorously in every state. It has political muscle. It can use it, too. Executive Secretary William G. Carr reported to the 99th annual meeting that:

"Increased funds and staff have facilitated the organization of efforts in congressional districts throughout the country to inform the public of the need for federal legislation.

"As a result, state and local associations have been sending more representatives to Washington at critical times in the legislative procedure.

"The association has moved very close to its great goal that the federal government assume a reasonable share in the financing of the schools."

What these last quoted paragraphs mean is that NEA is organized to clobber your congressman if he dares vote against the federal government buying control of education in the United States by investing money in local schools.

Cloture To Be Sought In Civil Rights Talkathon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield announced today that he will file a cloture petition Monday in an effort to curb a week-old Southern talkathon against the administration's literacy test bill.

Mansfield said that filing the petition Monday would mean a vote on Wednesday of next week. A cloture petition requires 15 signatures and must lay over for one full day between filing and the actual voting.

The Democratic leader made his announcement after failing to win unanimous consent for a limit on debate beginning May 9.

The request was blocked by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Southern group fighting the bill. The measure would outlaw unfair state literacy tests by making a sixth grade education proof of literacy or voting in federal elections.

Mansfield told the Senate he regretted the action but apparently it will be necessary to employ an unusual procedure if we are to finish with this matter one way or another and get on with the other business for this session."

The Democratic leader said that if the cloture petition gets a majority of votes but falls short of the necessary two-thirds, he would resort to another parliamentary device to force a show-down.

Mansfield said he would move to table—and thus kill—the administration measure. Mansfield then would oppose his own motion but would thus force a show-down. A tabling motion cannot be debated and brings an immediate vote.

"If the vote is preponderantly against tabling," Mansfield said, "The leadership will assume that the Senate still desires to vote on the merits of the issue" and debate will continue until a second cloture petition can be filed.

US, Russian Astronauts To Share Rides?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. believes U.S. and Russian spacemen may someday share the same space capsule.

But he does not expect such a cramped form of peaceful coexistence to come about "in the near future."

Fellow astronaut Virgil I. Grissom, who with Shepard and the rest of the Mercury team was part of the Mercury team was honored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Monday night, thought of an immediate stumbling block.

"None of the astronauts speaks Russian," he said.

At any rate, the stage was set today for the first meeting of U.S. and Russian spacemen with the opening of the international space science symposium of the Committee on Space Research (COSPAR) of the International Council of Scientific Unions.

On Thursday, Lt. Col. John Glenn, who flew three times around the earth Feb. 20, will discuss manned space flight with Soviet cosmonaut Gherman S. Titov, who orbited 17 times last August.

Titov, attending the symposium as one of the Soviet delegation, is expected to arrive in Washington Wednesday from New York.

Shepard said he was looking forward to meeting the Russian cosmonaut. "There is a lot to be gained from comparing notes with Titov," he said.

Leroy G. Cooper, another astronaut, said the Mercury team would "be happy" to visit Russia someday.

The U.S. astronauts were presented the chamber's "Great Living American" award during a dinner at the chamber convention.

to look at the stock market decline since the President brought on the fiasco in steel to realize that we face a worsening of relationship instead of an improvement."

William E. Rockwell, chairman of the board, Rockwell Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.: "It is impossible to see where the Kennedy administration has advocated any measures for the needs of domestic industry as a whole. His advisers do not seem to know that the competitive free enterprise system will prevent any inordinate increases in prices without inviting increased competition immediately. How can relations between government and business improve when the government competes with private business, increases the costs of private business by demanding billions of reports and filing suits...?"

David I. Welt, president, Greater Miami Manufacturers' Assn., Miami, Fla.: "I think the Kennedy administration is absolutely unfriendly to business. One example is the seven per cent capital gains tax credit for expansion. It's simply an attempt to buy off business. I think Big Steel made a mistake, but they didn't deserve to be called traitors. I just don't see any signs of things improving."

Sample opinions from the one-third who consider the administration friendly:

Thomas L. Phillips, executive vice president, Raytheon Co., Boston: "I certainly do not feel that the Kennedy administration is unfriendly, although Raytheon has taken issue with at least one of its proposals. I refer to the Provisional Revenue Act of 1962 which would make income by a foreign subsidiary immediately taxable at the source. To predict improvement in the relationship between business and government would presuppose that there is something lacking in the present relationship. Speaking for Raytheon, the current relationships are excellent."

John J. Neely, president, Southern Land (pulp wood producers), Atlanta, Ga.: "I think the Kennedy administration is friendly. I do feel that at times it will be necessary for the good of the country to put some restraint on labor as well as business. I believe the relationship between business and government already is in good condition. The administration must keep a balance between business and labor and it will probably be criticized severely by both parties many times in the future."

A small minority of the businessmen interviewed declined to take either side of the issue, but urged closer cooperation between the business community and Washington. Typical of that group was Mark W. Cresap Jr., president of Westinghouse Electric Corp., Pittsburgh:

"This is not a time for animosity between government and business. Government is not the enemy of business and business is not the enemy of government. There is only one enemy and we know who it is. As I look at some of the alleged grievances which are said to be hampering business-government relations today, I do not believe that hostility is justified on either side."

SURVIVOR—Malika Driss, 6, peers sadly through her crutch while awaiting therapy in El Mers, Morocco. She was one of some 10,000 Arab Moroccans who were victims of mass poisoning when unscrupulous merchants sold the Arabs cooking oil that had been adulterated with poisonous lubricating oil. Hundreds suffered paralysis.

PRISON BOXER DIES
GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—The Green Bay Reformatory Monday suspended boxing for the remainder of the year as a result of the death of inmate Douglas Klosterhuber, 22, following a Sunday sparring session. It was the second boxing death in two years at the institution.

JFK, AMA In 'Frosty' Get-Together

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy and leaders of the American Medical Association (AMA) approached each other somewhat gingerly today for a noon meeting at the White House.

The delicate nature of the meeting was due to head-on opposition by the AMA to the President's plan for financing medical care for the aged through payments to the Social Security system.

The two sides agreed only that the meeting had been arranged. There was a difference of opinion over who asked for it and over what subject was to be discussed.

Neither Kennedy nor the AMA seemed particularly anxious to meet. A spokesman for the President said the doctors asked to see Kennedy. Not so, said the AMA, the President asked to see the doctors.

"I don't choose to get into an argument," said Press Secretary Pierre Salinger. "All I can say is that they are seeing the President at their request. If they don't want to see the President, they should notify the President and the conference will not go forward."

The AMA said through a spokesman that the meeting was first suggested in early April by Boiesfeillet Jones, special assistant to Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff.

According to the AMA, Jones telephoned Dr. Hugh H. Hussey, Washington, D. C., chairman of the AMA Board of Trustees, suggesting an AMA delegation might like to meet with Kennedy.

After an exchange of letters between Jones, the White House and various AMA officials, the meeting was set for today with the President and Ribicoff.

thusiasm, "new successes" in agriculture, and "creative initiative among the soviet people" in his May Day speech Monday night.

But he also charged that the United States and its allies were "hatching plans for surprise nuclear and rocket attacks on the Soviet Union."

The three-hour military display, including more than 300 armored vehicles and rockets, showed only two items of equipment definitely identified as new by Western observers—a self-propelled gun for use by airborne troops and a small anti-tank rocket mounted on a jeep-like car.

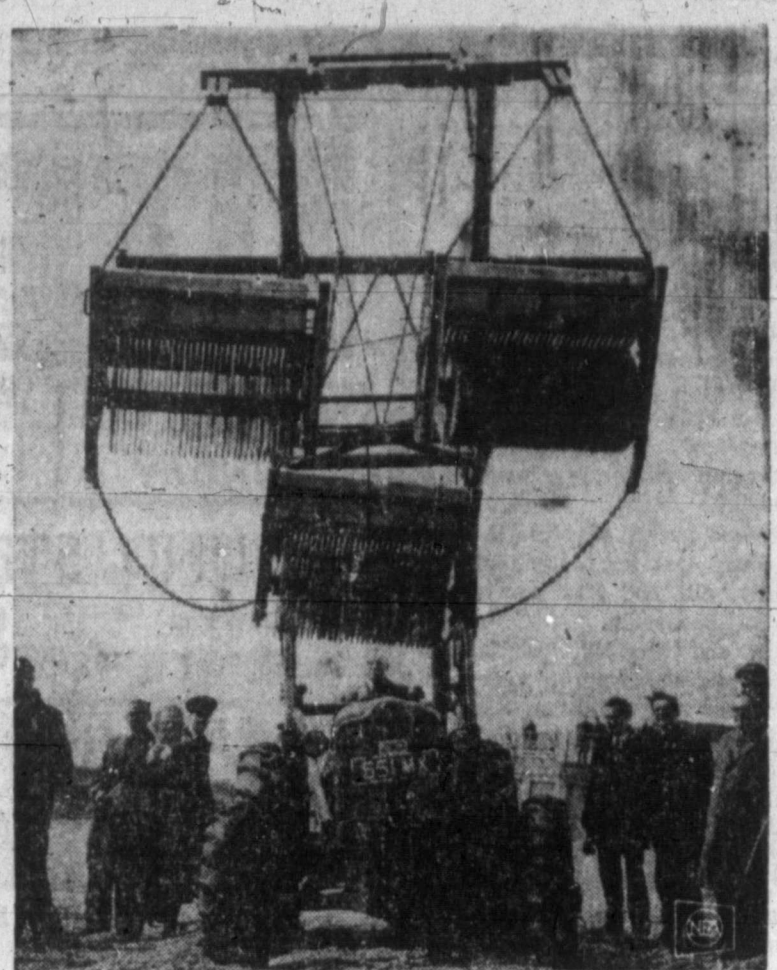

The missiles on display, including anti-aircraft rockets of the type the Russians say brought down America's ill-fated U2, appeared to be types shown in past parades.

Malinovsky spoke of "labor in Russia's armed forces," he said, "are always ready to deal a crushing rebuff to the aggressor."

Communist China's foreign minister, Chen Yi, proclaimed the unity of the Communist camp in a speech in Peiping, the New China News Agency said.

But the Chinese contradicted his words by putting up a giant symbol of Communist disunity—a portrait of Stalin—in Peiping's Tiananmen Square, where hundreds of thousands massed for the May Day rally.

It was a direct affront to Moscow, which has removed statues and pictures of Stalin from all public places after Khrushchev's denunciation of the late Russian leader.

Jones said damage to the light and transformer was $45.

4-H Teams Win 1st Place Awards
Gray County 4-H Teams took first place honors in the District 4-H Contest held in Canyon Saturday.

The teams competing were Farm & Ranch Management demonstration and a Rifle Team.

The Management Team, composed of Steven Maddox and John Paul Bowers, gave a ten minute demonstration entitled "Increasing the Income on Beef Cattle by Utilizing the Benefits of Capital Gains." The first place won them a pen and pencil set and the right to compete in the State Contest, to be held in College Station, June 6.

The Rifle Team, composed of Keith McCann, Robert Brogdon, Richard Welker and Monty Brogdon, also walked off with first place honors. The high three had a score of 1,054, almost 200 points above the second place team. Both teams will compete in the State Contest in June.

Pageant Slated In Amarillo By Khiva Temple

AMARILLO (Sp) — The Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo will be the scene of one of the world's most dramatic historical pageants on the evening of May 11th.

The pageant will be held as a finale to the Texas Shrine Association parade Friday night the 11th. The parade will form at 14th & Polk, north to 6th street, east on 6th to Pierce to 10th thence east on 10th to the Dick Bivins Stadium.

In this parade there will be 1500 Shriners from over the entire state of Texas representing the 10 Temples in the state. Also there will be 75 white convertibles with visiting dignitaries of Shrinedom and Masonry from seven states as well as Texas. There will also be four patrols of 75 horses bedecked in color and outstanding saddles of unique saddlery.

Khiva Temple of Amarillo, the host, will present "A Shriners' Heritage" in an hour-long narrated drama, portraying the history of Masonry since its earliest record. The production will trace the growth of Masonry on the continent of Europe, its entry to the Americas and its arrival and growth in Texas. A cast of over 100 Shriners, Scottish and York Rite Masons as well as Master Masons will enact the historic moments in the history of the world in which Masons have played important roles.

Potentate John R. Collard Jr. of Khiva Temple issued an invitation to the general public of the Panhandle area to view this pageant free of charge. Chairman of the pageant committee, Harold D. Johnson of Amarillo, stated he expects Bivins Stadium to be filled. He said it is the first time in the history of the Texas Shrine Association that the public has been permitted to participate in any part of a Shrine convention.

Director-General A. Curtis Neal of Khiva Temple and Amarillo informed this reporter that every hotel and motel in Amarillo has been reserved since last January. He stated that a figure of from 6,000 to 9,000 Shriners and their ladies could be expected for the 3-day convention. Neal is the overall chairman for all functions of the convention.

Firm's President Looks To Future Water Supplies

By JESSE BOGUE
UPI Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—While some manufacturers look to electronics or aircraft of space travel for their future growth, at least one today sees some of his company's development built around a more fundamental problem — How the American of the future is going to get his drinking water.

Joseph B. Lanterman, president of Amsted Industries Inc., came here for conferences shortly after issuance of a quarterly report and talked about the future, at home and abroad, of his midwest-based firm, formerly American Steel Foundries.

Within the past year, long a maker of cast iron pipe, the company has acquired the R. D. Wood Co., Florence, N. J., manufacturer of such pipe for water mains, and the What Cheer Clay Products Co., of What Cheer, Iowa, maker of clay pipe and fittings. It set up a new subsidiary, the Griffin Pipe Products Co., to include the Griffin pipe division and acquired concerns.

"The total of all this water transmission material," Lanterman said, "now represents about 15 per cent of our sales volume. We have pursued this aggressively."

"We look at the population growth curve, at the increase in per capita water consumption; at the needs for water of areas which do not have large natural resources ready at hand. This all has a compounding effect, and we want to be in a position to grow with the market. It includes pursuing use of other materials than cast iron; three of these where we feel the greatest potential lies are in cement asbestos, concrete and plastic. There is a possibility in the West of an almost incredible use of water trunk lines at some point in the future."

Civil Rights 'Talkers'
Get New Ammunition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The latest Justice Department move against a Mississippi voting official accused of refusing to register Negro voters provided new ammunition today for the Senate's continuing civil rights talkathon.

Some liberal supporters of the pending administration bill to outlaw state literacy tests said the department's action only pointed up the need for federal legislation to deal with such cases.

But some Southern opponents of the literacy measure were prepared to argue that the move strengthened their position, that ample laws already exist for dealing with voting discrimination.

The Justice Department Monday asked a U. S. appeals court in New Orleans to cite Theron C. Lynd, voting registrar in Forrest County (Hattiesburg), Miss., for contempt on grounds that he violated an April 16 court order forbidding him to discriminate against Negroes. Kennedy said Lynd had since refused to register at least 19 Negroes, including three college graduates.

Rival May Day Rallies Are Held
On Both Sides Of The Berlin Wall

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

United Press International

BERLIN (UPI) — Thousands of police today guarded the barricaded Berlin border made tense by rival May Day rallies, but there were no clashes.

Hundreds of thousands of East and West Berliners gathered only one mile apart separated by the Communist anti-refugee wall. Both Western and Communist police stood guard to prevent incidents.

West Berlin police said 750,000 attended the Western rally. The crowd roared with disapproval when Communist loudspeakers on the border tried to drown out Western speakers by blaring march music. The East Germans stationed seven loudspeaker trucks on the border in the jamming attempt.

East German armored cars toured the border and Soviet-built tanks and infantry returning from an East Berlin parade rolled along a street 50 yards behind the wall.

The Communists, in a new vilation of four-power agreements on the demilitarization of Berlin, paraded units of their 110,000-man army.

For the first time the East German army displayed Soviet rockets. The East Germans said they were the type that shot down U2 pilot Gary Powers. Twenty of the rockets towed by trucks rolled down Unter Den Linden.

Western officials said the new Communist violation of agreements banning the stationing of German army units in Berlin showed how necessary it is to keep Western allied troops in the city to defend it.

The Communists marked the annual May Day labor holiday with new demands the Western allies get out.

Albert Norden, member of the East German politburo, which is the top Communist party executive body, said in a rally speech, "the end of the occupation is long overdue."

In West Berlin, the entire 19,000-man police force was alerted, with 3,000 men stationed at the rally.

On the Eastern side of the border, Communist police armed with tommy guns were on patrol. The Communist patrols were tripled for the day.

A Report On The Current Status Of Major Education Proposals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A wide variety of legislative proposals for strengthening America's educational system are before Congress. The following dispatch reports on their present status and outlook.

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — In his budget message to Congress early this year, President Kennedy said that more and better schools are indispensable to the preservation of America's free society.

He later submitted half a dozen legislative proposals for strengthening the educational system at every level from kindergarten through college, and in several special fields such as medical education, teacher training, and adult illiteracy.

With the congressional session at the halfway mark, one education bill has been passed and sent to the White House. It authorizes $32 million in federal grants over the next five years to encourage development of educational television stations.

The other bills are still in various stages of consideration. Some seem to have a good to excellent chance of enactment. The outlook for others ranges from dark to dim.

Here is an item-by-item report on the current status of the major proposals:

COLLEGES

It now appears probable that Congress will enact legislation providing about $500 million a year for the next three years to help public and private colleges build new classrooms, dormitories and laboratories. The big question is whether the bill also will provide scholarships for needy and talented students.

Both the House and Senate have passed higher education aid bills. The Senate version, reflecting the administration's requests, includes 212,500 four-year scholarships. The House did not vote any scholarships.

A deal has now been made under which the bill will go to a conference committee soon. The House conferees will refuse to go along with the Senate scholarship provision, and will report back to the House for "instructions" on this issue. This will give the entire House a chance to vote on the question of scholarships. On the basis of its past record, the House is likely to vote no.

Another difference which will have to be ironed out in conference concerns the way in which the federal aid would be extended. The House has voted for $900 million in outright grants and $600 million in loans; the Senate for $1.5 billion in loans only.

MEDICAL EDUCATION

The House Commerce Committee has approved legislation under which the federal government would expend about $1. billion over the next 10 years to expand facilities for training doctors and dentists. It also provides for low-interest loans to students.

This bill is before the House Rules Committee, and the word is that it will be cleared for floor action after the college aid bill is completed, perhaps in May. The expectation on Capitol Hill is that it will be passed by the House and Senate before adjournment.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

President Kennedy keeps urging Congress to act on his proposal to pump $2.1 billion in federal aid into public school systems for classroom construction and teachers' salaries. But his chances of getting it passed this year are pretty close to zero. To lawmakers who face an election this fall, the bill bears the fatal odor of religious controversy, growing out of Roman Catholic demands that parochial schools share in the federal aid funds.

A House education subcommittee has been considering a substitute under which federal grants totalling about $500 million a year would be allocated among the states, leaving each state to decide for itself whether to pass any of the aid along to parochial schools. There is no likelihood of action this year on the substitute measure, introduced by Rep. Cleveland Bailey, D-W.Va.

TEACHER TRAINING

Pending in the House Education Committee, with uncertain prospects, is a five-year, $748 million bill to improve the quality of teaching in public elementary and high schools. Grants would be provided to permit 2,500 teachers annually to go back to college for a year's advanced study. Other funds would set up summer school institutes for teachers, and underwrite "special projects" for improving teaching standards. For reasons which have not been made clear, some southern congressmen suspect that this program might somehow be used as a lever to speed desegregation of schools.

ADULT EDUCATION

The House Education Committee has approved President Kennedy's proposal to give the states $50 million over five years to combat adult illiteracy. (There are about 8 million Americans over the age of 25 who have not gone beyond the fifth grade in school.) This bill is now in the House Rules Committee, awaiting a clearance for floor action which it may never get.

MIGRANT CHILDREN

The Senate has passed, and the administration has endorsed, a $22 million program to help states provide better schooling for the children of migrant farm workers who "follow the crops" from season to season, rarely remaining in one community long enough for their children to obtain a minimum education. This bill awaits action by the House Education Committee. Its prospects are uncertain.

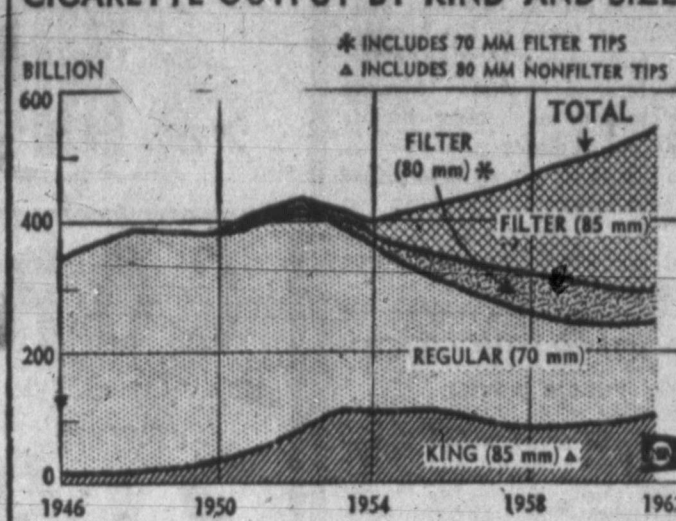

HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

A House education subcommittee is working on legislation to provide federal aid for the training of special teachers for blind, deaf, crippled, aphasic and other handicapped children who cannot attend regular schools. This measure is expected to have a wide bipartisan appeal, and sponsors are confident of its enactment.

RINGING PROBLEM—Miss Judy Lynn, 14, who broke both wrists while ice skating, is a belle with a problem. Will she be able to ring the bells when it comes the time for choir practice at the Austintown, Ohio, Community church?

CIGARETTE OUTPUT BY KIND AND SIZE

SMOKING MORE?—More than 528 billion cigarettes were produced in the United States in 1961—up 4 per cent from 1960 and up 26 per cent from 10 years ago. Continued popularity of filter tip cigarettes is reflected in the fact that they accounted for 52.5 per cent of the 1961 output. Five years ago, filter tips represented only 27.5 per cent. The annual output of all non-filter tips combined has been the same for three years. Data: Economic Research Service.

Supreme Court Rules Against Pipeline Merger

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has ruled that the Federal Power Commission cannot approve a merger of two pipelines when the government is challenging the same merger in court under antitrust laws.

The 5-2 ruling set aside the merger of the El Paso Natural Gas Co. and Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp., which took place with commission approval on Dec. 31, 1959.

The majority opinion was written by Justice William O. Douglas. Justice John M. Harlan wrote a dissent in which Justice Potter Stewart joined. Justices Felix Frankfurter and Byron R. White, took no part in the decision.

Harlan protested that the majority had evolved a new and surprising antitrust procedural rule, which could apply to all government agencies where antitrust laws are applicable.

He said the decision creates "a wholly artificial imbalance between antitrust law enforcement and administrative regulation."

Douglas, however, said that if an antitrust decision holds illegal a transaction approved earlier by the FPC an unscrambling would become necessary involving "a needless waste of time and money."

"Also these unscrambling cases often raise complicated and perplexing problems on tax matters," he added.

Douglas also said FPC approval "is bound to carry momentum into the antitrust suit."

"The very prospect of undoing what was done raises a powerful influence in the antitrust litigation," the opinion asserted. "The orderly procedure is for the commission to await decision in the antitrust suit before taking action."

The commission approved the acquisition of assets in the El Paso case while a federal district court in Salt Lake City delayed trial of a government civil suit under the Clayton antitrust law.

California brought the case to the high court.

The great bulk of El Paso's gas is sold for distribution in California. Its system extends from Texas and New Mexico gas fields through Arizona and New Mexico to the California border.

Before the merger Pacific Northwest operated from the Canadian border through Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Utah and Colorado.

New And Old Wonders Of Washington Related At Twentieth Century Forum

Twentieth Century Forum Club held its Tuesday afternoon meeting in the home of Mrs. William L. Ellis.

Before reading the Club Collect, Mrs. Ellis gave a short synopsis of the life of Mary Stewart, author of the collect.

Mrs. D. M. Lawrence gave a report of the recent Top of Texas District meeting held in Shamrock.

The program on the state of Washington was presented by Mrs. William T. Fraser and Mrs. Bob Curry.

Mrs. Curry told the wonders of the 1962 World's Fair, which is being held in Seattle. "The Space Needle, a building sixty stories high, has a gourmet restaurant. The 'eye of the needle' at the top of the building, which revolves around, gives the viewer a slowly changing panorama of Puget Sound, the World's Fair, lakes, forests and some 80 miles to the southeast, snow-capped Mt. Rainier."

She told of the Boeing Arium, a room in the US Science Pavilion, that "provides a vivid rocket ride of two billion light years into space."

"In the Century 21 Coliseum," Mrs. Curry said, "many wonders of the 21st century can be seen; such as food made from cotton and wood, telephones that talk back, disposable houses that rotate with walls formed by jets of air and cordless appliances that cook, clean and iron and telephones that close windows and water lawns."

Mrs. Fraser gave an informative discussion of one of the main products of Washington, the apple state. She traced the history of this fruit from the days of Adam and Eve through Greek and Roman mythology; Swiss folklore, which was of the legendary hero of Switzerland, William Tell.

"The earliest annals of Egypt, Babylon and China mention the apple. Monks of the early Roman Empire drained swamps and irrigated mountains to make their apple orchards abundant and fruitful," she stated.

In continuing remarks, "Mrs. Fraser said, 'In America the first apple trees were planted at Massachusetts Bay by the Pilgrim Fathers. As restless settlers pushed the western frontiers across the Appalachians, into Ohio, Illinois and beyond, they took apples with them. Often the family orchard was planted before the ground was broken for the crude log dwellings, which was to be called home.'"

Mrs. Fraser closed her talk with quotations from an entertaining version of "What Is An Apple."

Senior Center Corner

By MRS. O. A. WAGNER
Senior Citizens Center

We had the pleasure of being a guest of Civic Culture Club last Tuesday afternoon at their Guest Day Tea in Lovett Memorial Library. Mrs. Katie Vincent, who is one of our "regulars" at Senior Center, was honored as the only active charter member of the club. Katie, as we all call her, was among the first people I met after coming to Pampa about 28 years ago. She was worthy matron of the Pampa Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at the time. Her interests have not diminished over the years in her church, chapter and club work.

Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor and daughter, Maurita, 1333 Charles, had as dinner guests on Easter Sunday, Mrs. Carl Smith of Ingle-side, N. Chicago, her cousin and another cousin of Mrs. Taylor's, Mrs. Frank L. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tooley, all of Pampa, T. B. Solomon, also of Pampa and Glen P. Jackson of Miami. Mrs. Harper is the mother of Mrs. Tooley. Mrs. Taylor had not seen her cousin, Mrs. Smith, for over 40 years. Mrs. Smith drives across country frequently and came by on her way home from Denver, Colo., where she had been with a sister who is ill. What a happy reunion it must have been. Mrs. Taylor is kept very busy with her nursing and fixing up her new home, so she seldom gets down to Senior Center.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Norris had as guests recently their son's wife, Mrs. Howard Richardson and her sister, Mrs. Thelma Clark, from Dallas. The guests brought along 20 lbs of fresh fish and 25 lbs of shrimp and they had a "fish-eating good time," according to Mrs. Norris.

Mrs. Addie Love and Mrs. Liz-zie Collins were reported to be ill in Highland General Hospital and they wish to thank the Seniors for the flowers. We wish for them a speedy recovery.

C. E. Sidwell, who was 90 years old on April 27, had a family gathering in his home on Sunday to help him celebrate it in grand style. Mr. and Mrs. Sidwell are regular attendants at the Center and we add our congratulations and wish for him many, many more birthdays and Happy Ones.

HAWAIIAN HAM PATTIES
3 cups ground cooked ham (1 pound)
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1-3 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped onion
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 can (1 pound 14 ounces) sliced pineapple
Paprika, if desired
Reserve 1/4 cup sour cream for garnish. Combine ground ham, 3/4 cup sour cream, bread crumbs, celery, onion, egg and horseradish. Shape into 6 patties and place patties on top of 6 pineapple slices. Place in a baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Garnish with remaining 1/4 cup sour cream and sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Yield: 6 servings.

Dear Abby.... Solicitors Make More Enemies Than Friends

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My telephone just rang for the third time in two hours, and that was the straw that broke the camel's back. After dropping my work and nearly breaking my neck over the children's toys, I was asked to buy a certain product. What about starting a campaign to stop this sort of thing? When I want to buy something I'll go to the store, and I'm sure not going to buy the product that is advertised by someone who called me on the phone and disturbed my work.

DEAR IRENE: Telephone solicitation gives employment to those who cannot leave their homes. But although the callers are guiltless themselves, I think the sponsors of such intrusive advertising make more enemies than friends.

DEAR ABBY: Would it look funny for a bride to wear flat-heeled shoes at her wedding because, if she wore high heels, she would be taller than the groom?

DEAR TALL: Unless your future husband is loaded with confidence, better wear the flats and let him be taller. (Anyway, who looks at a bride's feet when her face is glowing with happiness?)

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of six children. They are all under 12, so I give quite a few birthday parties during the year. I also give little Easter parties.

Take It From Kathy

by kathy peterson

Dear Kathy: Can you like and dislike someone at the same time? I look forward to seeing a particular girl very much but some of the things she does make me want to shoot her. She is almost rude in complaining about the food and service no matter where we go. She can be a good sport and lots of fun but spoils everything by getting on her high horse for no reason I can understand. This seems to happen whenever we meet someone I would especially like her to like. She tries to be an authority about things she isn't familiar with and seems to take the opposite point of view about everything discussed. I go home promising myself I'll never see her again but I always call for another date. Am I a pretty mixed up guy or does this happen to other people too?—Hal J.

Dear Hal: It sounds as if this particular girl has a great deal of growing up to do. She is trying to disguise an inferiority complex with a superior attitude. It doesn't work because no one likes a show-off. A genius doesn't have to brag to the world. Others discover his talents all by themselves.

Complaints about food and service don't prove you are accustomed to better. Problems of this kind should be handled politely by the man, NOT BY THE GIRL. A person should not be treated like an inferior because he is serving you. You gain more by making requests tactfully.

Your problem isn't unusual. It's possible to feel affection for people without approving of all their actions. Eventually, this can be a problem. If the things you disapprove of violate your basic beliefs and standards, you'll stop liking the individual involved.

Valentine parties and Halloween parties. My problem is this: When we send the invitations we always state clearly, "The party is from 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. — Saturday afternoon." Now, every time I have a party about half the children just stay around until I take them home. Do you think this is right? Maybe I am being small about it, but I get annoyed when this happens. How can this be prevented without hurt feelings?

PARTY-GIVING MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: You could phone the "guilty" mothers (about 5:30 p.m.) and ask them if they intend to come for their children. Otherwise, prepare to deliver them to their respective homes and forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOO MUCH TOO SOON": It's never too late to reform. Start giving nothing — and right now.

Vacation Topics Form Program For Culture

Twentieth Century Culture Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Warren Masse with Mrs. R. E. Dobbin as co-hostess. Mrs. Philip A. Gates, president, presided at the business meeting during which final plans were made for the Installation Luncheon on May 8 in the Coronado Inn.

"Ideal Vacation Spots" was the program topic presented by Mrs. J. W. Edminster, Mrs. J. D. Merchant and Mrs. V. L. Hobbs. Mrs. Edminster discussed "Weekend Vacations" and stated that "this type of two, three or four-day vacations is becoming increasingly popular for several reasons."

"The short vacation usually accomplishes the primary purpose of a trip: rest, change of scene, recreation, pursuit of hobbies. The weekend learns to appreciate places of beauty and interest closer to home; also, the weekend vacationer can travel much farther on a weekend trip now than was possible even 10 years ago."

"Several worthwhile vacation sports within easy weekend reach of Pampa include the better known ones, such as, Taos, Red River, Palo Duro. Also, some that might not be so well known, Alabaster Caverns in the Oklahoma Panhandle, 45 miles southeast of Buffalo, Okla. is the world's largest gypsum cavern; Boiling Springs State Park near Woodward, Okla.; Quartz Mountain; Lodge at Lake Altus near Altus, Okla. offers fishing, swimming and other resort activities; Indian City, near Anadarko, Okla. is an open air museum.

Mrs. Merchant offered a picturesque guide to the Pacific Northwest, known for its incomparable scenic spots and spectacular National Parks. After a brief oral journey through northwestern states, Mrs. Merchant climaxed the trip with a panoramic view of the Seattle World's Fair; the first space age World's Fair and the First World's Fair exposition in the United States in 23 years. Mrs. Merchant described a tour to the Fair's art, science and fun exhibits.

Mrs. Hobbs narrated a film showing of scenes in Natchez, Miss. and of the annual pilgrimage of the Seattle World's Fair, the most outstanding of which were Stanton Hall, built in 1851 and perhaps the most palatial of all the homes; Melrose, one of the most typical of the southern plantations; Linden, built about 1790 and Rosalie, built in 1820 by Peter Little on the banks of the Mississippi River.

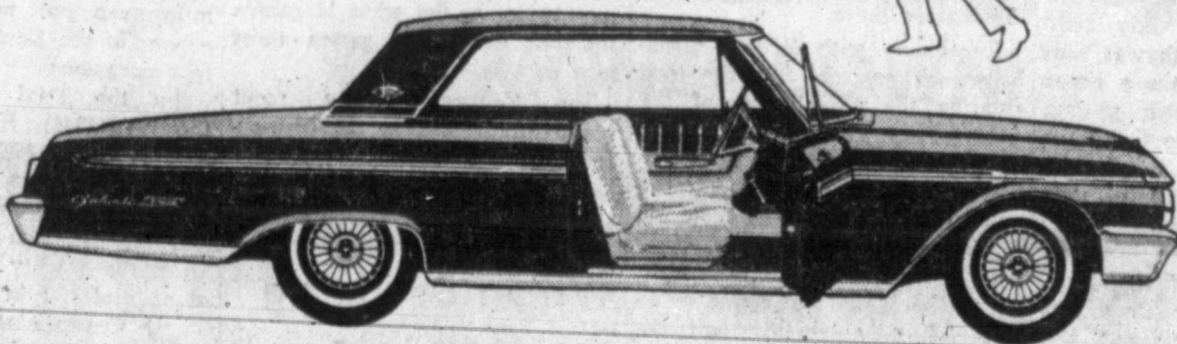

Members attending were Mmes. R. E. Dobbin, J. R. Donaldson, J. W. Edminster, Philip Gates, L. H. Hart, W. L. Hasse, V. L. Hobbs, Rufe Jordan, J. D. Merchant, Ronald Merrill, Doyle Osborne, E. E. Shelhamer, Michael Wilson and L. J. Zachry.

Two Long Shots Win Suffolk Daily Double

By United Press International
You've got to hand it to P. L. Andolino and W. F. Russell Jr., for persistence.

Andolino owns Silver Bath, and Russell owns Flying Diver — a pair of consistently bad thoroughbreds who combined Monday to produce a $988.20 Daily Double at Suffolk Downs.

The horses' names didn't sound like much, and their records were even worse, so you hardly could blame anyone among the crowd of 12,516 at the Boston track for passing them over lightly. However, this wasn't strictly a case of a couple of non-descript horses finally reaching the winner's circle.

Take Silver Bath. Now a four-year-old, he was raced 11 times in 1960 and never finished in the money. Last year he went to the post 26 times and finally clicked for his first win on July 20th.

Since then, Silver Bath was sent out by Andolino 11 more times before the dark brown gelding scored at $34.80 in the first race Monday.

That makes a total of two victories in 39 starts, and represents one of the rare instances when a well-bred horse turns out to be a dud. Silver Bath was bred by the Calumet Farm and is by Ponder out of Ralda by Sickle.

Flying Diver came to the races with equally impressive breeding, but his record has been just as bad. The dark bay gelding was bred five years ago by Devil Diver out of Melly by Menow. He's been postured a total of 45 times and Monday's win (at $49.60) was only his fifth — three in 1960 and once last year.

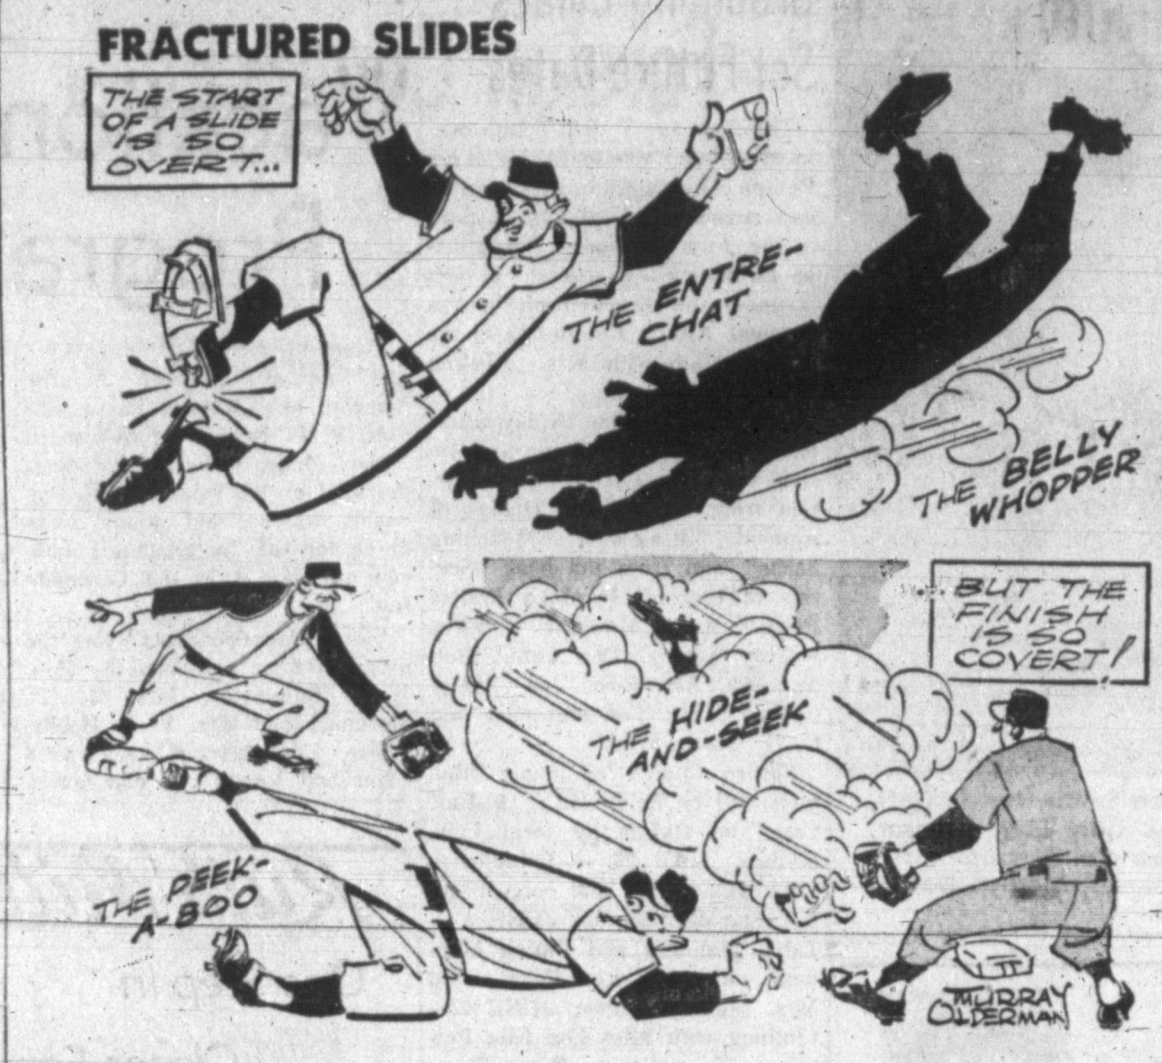

Floyd Thinks Chicago Good Place To Hold Title Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chicago apparently has moved into first place in the bidding for the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight title bout.

"Chicago figures to be the place it's a good fight town," Patterson admitted Monday.

However, Patterson's attorney, Julius November, also listed Los Angeles, Baltimore and Seattle as possible sites for the champion's next defense in September.

"I understand from promoters Tom Boon and Al Boon that Seattle still is a possibility, although I haven't talked with the Seattle people myself," November said.

Yanks Investigate Houston Pitching

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Colts came in like a gusher during their first month in the national league — both on the field and at the box office.

A month ago, before the season started, not even a fanatical optimist could predict the new team would be hanging around the first division on May 1 or draw 200,000 fans in its first 11 home games.

Things are so bright with the Colts that local fans can spare sympathy for the New York Mets, whose birth coincided with that of the Colts.

To put the icing on a happy April for Houston followers, the mighty New York Yankees sent a talent team down to check on what gives with the Colt pitching staff, currently leading both leagues in earned run averages.

Manager Harry Craft and General Manager Paul Richards are enjoying the fact but neither pretends to believe the Colts are going to have things their way all season.

Houston just closed out a three-game home series with Milwaukee that drew $9,711 paying customers. It was the best attendance for a series so far this year here and brought the total to 202,400 including one tie game that does not count in the standings and will have to be replayed.

Only Los Angeles leads Houston in attendance. The Colt front office expects to add 150,000 to the total next week when the Dodgers and Giants come to town for seven games.

Colt pitching probably would have to get 90 per cent of the credit for Houston successes on the field and at the box office. Except for one lapse when Milwaukee scored nine runs against them, Houston pitchers have given up five runs once and four runs twice. In the other 12 games the opposition has gotten three runs or less.

The Yankees' roving scout Mayo Smith took in the Milwaukee series and said, "we can't help but be interested in Houston's pitching because it has been

Wright Becoming Top Golf Star

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — They call Mickey Wright the Arnold Palmer of women's golf — a title she won in 1960 when she won the title from San Diego, Calif., confirmed with a flourish here Monday.

Mickey, a 27-year-old long-ball hitter who won 10 major tournaments last year, became the first woman in 20 years to put two Titleholders championships back-to-back when she fired a sizzling 3-under-par 69 Monday to beat Ruth Jessen and win the first playoff in the tournament's long history.

She won by three strokes to earn $14,000. Miss Jessen got $11,000.

Not since Dot Kirby won in 1941 and 1942 has any woman been able to win the Titleholders, the women's version of the Masters, two years running.

Miss Wright and Miss Jessen, a 25-year-old blonde from Seattle, finished the regulation 72 holes Sunday locked in a tie for first place at 295 — two strokes ahead of half-way leader Barbara Romack, another West Coast blonde, who finished third. Veteran Patty Berg, seven times Titleholders champ and the only three-in-a-row (1937-39) winner, finished fourth at 298.

AGS LAND COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A&M landed a prize junior college All-American basketball player Monday when Gerald Woodard of Kilgore Junior College signed a pre-enrollment application.

Aggie Coach Bob Rogers said Woodard will be eligible for the varsity next season.

Perry Pitches SF Giants Into Senior Loop Lead

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

Gaylord Perry sounds like something straight out of the legitimate theater and, better yet, he looks like he's headed for stardom with the San Francisco Giants.

The 23-year-old rookie pitcher isn't cut out for mere bit parts. The Giants paid him a whopping $85,000 bonus three years ago and they're eagerly looking forward to some smash performances.

Young Perry didn't let them down Monday when he fired a four-hitter against the Pittsburgh Pirates in a 4-1 victory that was the Giants' sixth straight and moved them into first place in the National League.

Perry, a six-foot-four fastballer from Williamston, N. C., and young brother of Cleveland's Jim Perry, did not allow a hit after the fourth inning and hurled his first complete major league game while gaining his second victory without a defeat. He also beat the Pirates last Wednesday but needed Don Larsen's help.

Loser Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell became the 20th straight starting pitcher who has failed to last against the Giants when he was kayoed after four innings.

Before departing, Mizell was tagged for Willie Mays' seventh homer of the season in the first inning and Orlando Cepeda's sixth with Mays aboard in the fourth.

The Pirates scored their only run off Perry in the second when Don Hoak singled, stole second and scored on Bill Mazeroski's single.

One source of consolation for the losers was Vern Law's first appearance in a regulation game since last June. Law, who has been hampered by shoulder trouble, pitched the eighth inning and retired the Giants in 1-2-3 order.

Only two other games were played in the major leagues Monday, with the Los Angeles Dodgers defeating the Chicago Cubs, 3-1, and the Philadelphia Phillies turning back the Milwaukee Braves, 6-4.

The Dodgers, who have yet to lose at night at Chavez Ravine, ran their home record under the lights to 6-0 as Stan Williams struck out eight batters and pitched a five-hitter in dealing the Cubs their sixth straight loss.

Williams worked his way out of several jams and got a break in the second inning when Andre Rodgers tripled but was tagged out for over-running the bag.

The Dodgers scored twice in the fifth with the aid of a wild pitch by loser Dick Ellsworth and Rodgers' error, then added an insurance run in the sixth on Andy Carey's second homer of the year into the left field stands.

Beaten 11 times in a row by Warren Spahn, the Phillies finally defeated him for the first time since May 23, 1959, with a five-run outburst in the third inning.

Ruben Amaro, who collected three of the Phillies' nine hits, opened the frame with a double and after Tony Taylor singled him home, a walk, a single by Tony Gonzalez and two more walks produced the Phils' second and third runs and finished Spahn.

Reliever Don Nottebart then hit Johnny Callison with a pitch, forcing in another run, and Clay

Jerry Glover takes to the hill today against the Palo Duro Dons at 4 p.m. at the Optimist park in the final home game of the season for the Harvesters.

The local crew, 8-8 in loop play have one more game left on the year after today's skirmish. Friday the Harvesters tangle with Borger in Borger to wind up the season in District 3-AAAA.

Glover, 3-3 on the year, won his last outing against the Dons, when Pampa massacred the last place Amarillo Club, 14-0 in Amarillo in the first round of play.

The Harvesters' hopes for a possible tie for the district title were dealt a big blow when they dropped a double header to Monterey and Lubbock last weekend.

Coach Deck Wolft will try to get as many seniors into the starting lineup as possible today and Friday, with the infield shaping up with Mike Clark at first, Larry Gregory at second, Butch Crossland at shortstop and either Ricky Stewart or Ab Cullender at third base.

Other players elected to the "dream team," announced by the league Monday, were goaltender Jacques Plante and defenseman Jean-Guy Talbot of the Montreal Canadiens, right wing Andy Bathgate and defenseman-coach Doug Harvey of the New York Rangers, and center Stan Mikita of the Chicago Black Hawks. The Toronto Maple Leafs, winners of the Stanley Cup, were not represented on the first team.

The Leafs, however, had three players named to the second team, Mahovich, center Dave Keon and defenseman Carl Brewer made the runnerup squad along with Gordie Howe of Detroit, and Chicago's Pierre Pilote and goalie Glenn Hall. The Boston Bruins, last place finishers, failed to have a player named to either team.

Each player named to the first team was awarded $1,000 by the league while second team members received $500.

Dalrymple's sacrifice fly brought in what proved to be the winning run.

The loss was Spahn's third of the season compared with two victories. Rookie Jack Hamilton, who gave up five of the Braves' six hits, was credited with his second victory although Jack Baldschun relieved him in the ninth and nailed down the last two outs of the game.

Hull Named To Hockey Star Squad

MONTREAL (UPI) — Chicago's Bobby Hull, who got off to a slow start this season but staged a blazing finish, had his performance recognized when selectors gave him a perfect 90 points for the second half and named him to the 1961-62 National Hockey League All-Star team.

Hull trailed Toronto's Frank Mahovich, 77-26, on the first-half ballot but a panel of hockey writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities completely reversed themselves on the final vote, giving Hull a unanimous 90 points to 28 for the big "M." The total, 116-104, earned Hull the left wing position on the All-Star squad.

Other players elected to the "dream team," announced by the league Monday, were goaltender Jacques Plante and defenseman Jean-Guy Talbot of the Montreal Canadiens, right wing Andy Bathgate and defenseman-coach Doug Harvey of the New York Rangers, and center Stan Mikita of the Chicago Black Hawks. Amerson May Need Plastic Surgery

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Plastic surgery may be necessary to restore the facial features of Glenn Amerson, Philadelphia Eagle defensive halfback, who suffered so many cuts on his face in an automobile accident it took 500 stitches to close them.

An automobile Amerson was in last Saturday rolled over with the rear of another car. Amerson's face bore the brunt of the impact when he pitched forward through the windshield of the car.

Amerson, a rookie with the National Football League Eagles last season after starring as a quarterback at Texas Tech, was attending classes at Tech to complete his degrees.

Doctors will not discuss Amerson's case. However, a friend told United Press International that physicians took 4 1/2 hours to patch up Amerson's face with 500 stitches. The doctors said Amerson is in fair condition.

Amerson's friend said plastic surgery probably will be necessary later to bring Amerson's features back to normal.

Amerson was riding with his roommate, Jim Henry, at the time of the accident. Neither Henry or the driver of the other car, David Webb, was hurt.

Atty. Gen. Wilson

EDITORS — The following is another in a series of biographical portraits of each of the six Democratic and two Republican candidates for governor of Texas.

WILSON BIOGRAPHY

AUSTIN (UPI)—A graduate geologist, he turned to a legal-political career when there were no oil industry jobs available during the depression.

As a young assistant attorney general in 1940, he first eyed the governor's chair.

Today, 20 years later, Atty. Gen. Will Wilson is in the scrap for governor, and says his fourth-place finish in last year's special U. S. Senate election didn't hurt him a bit.

"I don't agree with the so-called political experts," Wilson said. "Nobody can predict this race with any accuracy."

The 49-year-old Wilson describes himself as a moderate conservative with appeal to the middle-class of salaried and self-employed workers.

A Presbyterian, Wilson said his philosophy is such that "if I fight a good hard battle and fate is with me, I will win."

He is from a pioneer family in Dallas. Wilson attended high school and law school at Southern Methodist. Before entering SMU, he received a geology degree from Oklahoma University in 1934.

Wilson's legal career was interrupted by World War II service as an artilleryman in the South Pacific.

When he returned home he found Dallas a wide open town allowing gambling and prostitution. Wilson was elected district attorney and gained national attention as a crime buster during two terms. He was then elected as associate justice of the state Supreme Court, where he served six years.

eral in 1956, and re-elected in 1958 and 1960. One of his biggest battles as state's attorney was his victorious fight in the U. S. Supreme Court to let Texas keep its oil-rich tidelands.

He considered running for governor in 1960 against Gov. Price Daniel, then changed his mind. Last year he started an open feud with the governor over taxation and abandoned property legislation.

"The dominant issue in this campaign is whether Daniel should be allowed a fourth two-year term," Wilson said. "I advocate one four-year term for governor."

Wilson said Daniel was irresponsible in not being for a sales tax while spending the state into a deficit.

He favors lowering the 2 percent sales tax to 1 percent and taxing all items without exemptions. He contends there are "too many exemptions, inequities and loopholes" in the present tax.

Wilson said he was disappointed by his showing in the special election last year. He pitched his campaign on the urgency of the Cuban situation, and said he was six months too early.

He and Mrs. Wilson have a daughter, Lou, 18, and a son, Will Jr., 12. He said the family is used to political campaigning, although "it is a rugged sort of a life."

Two 'Professional' Welfare Seekers

Lose 5 Children

FORT WORTH (UPI)—A district judge took five children away from a couple Monday he said were "professional welfare seekers" and traveled too much to let their children go to school.

Dist. Judge Jack Langdon said Mr. and Mrs. Will Rhoten have children ranging in age from 15 to 8 months. He said they had received aid from 33 different welfare agencies in 10 states since 1945, and never stayed in one location more than 8 months in that time.

He ruled the parents were negligent, and took away the Rhotens' parental rights. The children were put under jurisdiction of the juvenile court which will put them in a foster home.

"None of these children have ever attended school," Langdon said.

An 8-year-old girl was the advance agent for the family, the judge said. He said she would go to a town, find out what sort of welfare was available, then notify her parents.

WANTED BY THE FBI

Eugene Francis Newman

Newman is the alleged machine gun-carrying leader of a gang that attempted the robbery of an armored car carrying $498,500 in American and Canadian currency in Buffalo, New York, on August 3, 1955. He and his associates, wearing silk stocking masks, engaged in a running gun battle with the truck's guards and Buffalo Police, and a machine gun bullet, allegedly fired by Newman, seriously wounded a guard. Two bandits were quickly apprehended but Newman remains at large.

A complaint, filed before a U.S. Commissioner at Buffalo, New York, on August 5, 1955, charges Newman with fleeing the State of New York to avoid prosecution for robbery.

He is a white American, reportedly born on October 3, 1928, at Brooklyn, New York, who is 5'8" tall, weighs 170 to 180 pounds, has blond hair, blue eyes, a medium build, and medium complexion.

He has scars near his right eye, on the back of his right hand and on the center of his left cheek. A birthmark appears on his upper left arm and a mole on his left index finger. Tattoos include the name "Danny" and a heart on the outside of his right forearm, and the number "13" within a dotted circle on the back of his left hand.

He has worked as a bricklayer, clerk, construction worker, counterman, and laborer. Consider extremely dangerous. Please immediately notify the nearest FBI Office of any information concerning his whereabouts. Q-10 632400-10

Noted Matador Gored

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI)—The great Antonio Ordonez of Spain, considered the world's top matador, should recover completely from his goring Saturday but probably will not enter the bull ring for at least a month.

Ordonez underwent surgery after he was gored by his first bull in the Plaza Monumental bull ring and suffered a five-inch gash in the thigh.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

For a month Argentina has drifted dangerously in crisis, caught in the cross-currents between resurgent peronism and military leaders bitterly opposed to anything resembling a return to the policies of the ex-dictator. In the midst of this has been President Jose Maria Guido, placed in office by the military after the fall of President Arturo Frondizi.

This past weekend Guido was forming his second cabinet in four weeks.

Multiplying Guido's difficulties was an apparent lack of plan by the men who put him in office and who also suffered a lack of unity among themselves.

In contrast were the Peronistas, who at least knew what they wanted.

They demanded an end to the austerity which had begun to restore international confidence in the Argentine peso and a return to nationalism which would be felt by foreign investors.

From his comfortable Spanish exile in Madrid, Juan D. Peron was pulling the party strings and seeing what might prove to be his best chance for a return to power.

Not asked but giving their enthusiastically received support were the Argentine Communists. For those who still held hope for Argentina, President Guido himself provided a slight, encouraging ray.

He had shown unexpected strength in dealing with the various military factions. For economic minister in his second cabinet he had selected Alvaro Carlos Alsogaray.

Alsogaray, who has been described as looking like a small-town banker or school principal, directed Argentina's austerity and stabilization program for nearly two years under Frondizi. It was Alsogaray who late in 1959 arranged nearly $300 million in loans and credits to help stabilize the Argentine economy.

The peso steadied on the international monetary exchange. Foreign investments and private enterprise were encouraged.

As part of his vision of a "new Argentina" of economic plenty,

Alsogaray sought to build a prosperous middle class as a bulwark against Communism.

A year ago, Alsogaray lost his post in the Frondizi cabinet.

In the ensuing months, four economic ministers came and went.

A poor wheat crop led to a drastic cut in exports and in 1961 the country's trade deficit amounted to $450 million, double that of the year before.

The cost of living mounted by 18 per cent.

The announcement of Alsogaray's return to government had to an immediate strengthening of the peso in international exchange rates.

But the way ahead will be rough and possibly of short duration.

Labor leaders received news of his appointment unenthusiastically. He still must face the problems of the enormous deficit piled up annually by government-operated services such as the railroads.

And among the Argentine people there is no sure sign of a determination to carry out the sacrifices Alsogaray will demand.

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to set its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Don't Blame The World

We all know we live in a tense age, what with the cold war, the threat of nuclear extinction, radioactive fallout, brush fire wars in distant lands.

Some observers have been saying for years that the resulting tensions go far toward explaining such diverse phenomena as rock and roll, the beatniks, the rise of crime, rampant mental illness.

But psychiatrists who took part in a long study of such matters found that "world tensions" seem to have little to do with emotional or mental upset. Usually the causes are personal, relating to family separation or conflict, job problems, money crises, illness, death.

World tensions surely exist. Evidently, however, they have been serving too conveniently as excuses for erratic or merely foolish behavior whose root causes lie elsewhere.

Trade Not Tyranny

History tells us, in somewhat melancholy terms, that the rise of business and trade in a given location is always accompanied by a curtailment of political vigor. The fact is so obvious and has been commented on so frequently, by so many, over so long a period of time, as to require no emphasis here.

When Rome began to grow, to develop into a vigorous and progressive city, city - state and nation, the growth began based upon private ownership of property; freedom to trade, latitude in the field of production and distribution.

When Rome began to decline, it was because government began to be large, it began to be trusted, it began to be military. The city of Rome itself became in the end a repository for loot, taken from surrounding peoples and the Roman populace itself.

Athens became supreme, in the Hellenic world because Athens permitted free trade, private ownership of property, free competition and the right to bequeath property.

Athens declined and was ultimately taken over by her powerful neighbor when she began to rely on government, passed laws curtailing trade, seized the private property of her citizens and became a military power.

In more recent times, America provides another example. This nation emerged from a wilderness in a few short years. Its upward progress was little less than world shaking when it practiced free trade, permitted private ownership, free competition and production. In current times it is still managing on its earlier momentum. But those who understand the historic factors at work are already crying out in tones of alarm at the growth of American government, the regulation and curtailment of trade and industry, the massive program of taxation, the turning of the nation into a vast arsenal and military encampment.

West Germany provides still another illustration. Emerging from the rubble of World War II, German thinking demanded free trade, private property, a sound money and a de-emphasis of everything military. In a few short years West Germany surpassed her nearest competitors and developed into the brightest spot in all of Europe. Today, thanks to the rise in the power of unions, the intervention from non-German politics, the pressure to re-arm, the restrictions now coming into the economic field, West Germany is losing its punch.

Or take still another example, the city of Hong Kong.

There in the Far East, with powerful military forces on both sides, either of which might be capable of taking her over in toto, Hong Kong glitters and gleams in the sun; bustles about and provides what is doubtless the highest standard of living in the world, east of India. Recently a writer proclaimed: "Free trade is the open secret for Hong Kong's resounding prosperity, lack of controls inviting the world to buy, sell and barter there."

Switzerland is often hailed as a good place to invest, or at least a good place to keep one's savings. Why? Because compared to her neighbors Switzerland has far less in the way of economic controls, and insofar as banking is concerned, it is the one nation in the world wherein the private depositor is likely to find his savings free from government investigation, seizure or regulation.

With these, and scores of other examples all about us, it becomes a matter of wonderment that human beings do not see the signs and indications furnished for their edification.

It is never the size of government that distinguishes a people; it is the power and the wealth of the individual people which distinguish them. To be great, any people on earth must first demonstrate their ability to put down their government - and let their economy alone.

But today, when such suggestions are made, a look approximating terror will appear in the eyes of those who consider it. Perhaps the last great superstition to be overcome is the one relating to the "goodness" of government and the "evil" of capitalism.

Whenever any people discover that the facts of life demonstrate the evil of government and the goodness of capitalism, that people will be marked for advancement and ascendancy in the world of men.

Pull Up A Chair

By Neal O'Hara

"Who knows what a used car is worth?" is a question posed to a convention of used car dealers. A group of used car experts were then asked to make their estimates on a 1960 model, and the variance in their figures totaled $800. A consensus was however, that "compacts depreciate faster than standard cars; lighter colors bring the most money, except in the vicinity of Philadelphia, where blacks and reds are tops."

Eight of them are often referred to as the major minerals of the body because the quantities needed are relatively large. They are calcium, phosphorus, sodium, magnesium, iron, potassium, chlorine and sulphur. If a mineral shortage occurs in the body, it is most likely to be iron, calcium or iodine that is lacking.

Headline on the sports page of the Findlay (O.) Republican-Courier: "Trojans Take Bath, Need One." But the second line read: "More Win To Reach District." Stark statistics: Of the 483 murders committed in New York City last year, 248 resulted from altercations, 59 climaxed family squabbles, 22 were committed by drug addicts, and seven stemmed from teen-age gang fights.

Today's favorite gag: Little Dorothy, attending church for the first time, was surprised to see all those around her kneeling suddenly. She whispered to her mother and asked what they were doing. "Hush, darling," said Mummy, "they're going to say their prayers." "What," piped Dorothy, "with all their clothes on?"

Distinction: Atlanta, 1050 feet above sea level, is at an elevation higher than any metropolitan center of equal or greater size east of Denver. Flashback: In his earlier days, when he was an excellent prize fighter, the eminent referee, Ruby Goldstein, was called "The Jewel of the Ghetto."

You can't buy 'em whole, but it takes $240 worth of four-cent stamps to weigh a pound.

Thoughts while shaving: 1. Well, it's goodbye to good old "anti-disestablishmentarianism," which used to be the longest word in the dictionary. It's 28 letters long. So, after we've learned both to spell and define the word, along comes the latest unabridged dictionary (Merriam-Webster) with "pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanconiosis" as its longest word - 45 letters. And while we're not yet able to pronounce it, it's a synonym for "silicosis," a disease of the lungs caused by the continued inhaling of silica dust, as in quarrying. 2. From Cleveland Amory's "Who Killed Society?" you learn that an American society woman, a guest of our Ambassador Myron Herrick at his Paris embassy when Lindbergh was taken in there after his epochal New York - Paris solo flight in 1927, excitedly confided to a friend: "Do you know, that young man flew the Atlantic without a suitcase. Why? He didn't even have a dinner jacket!" (Dear! Dear!). 3. The present straits of some national magazines recalls the latter 1920s, when radio had made no serious inroads as an advertising medium and some of the magazines carried several hundred pages each week, well loaded with advertising. At the time we popped off this jest: "The Saturday Evening Post was born in 1728. Last week it weighed 7 1/2 pounds." (That was darned near the truth, too.)

Country editor speaking: "Americans are said to be eating no more wheat than 50 years ago. But the politicians seem to be feeding them a lot more chaff."

A Most Sensible Question

Pegler Says:

JFK's Next Objective May Be The CIO Unions

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Having conquered the steel industry, which represents the savings of millions of working citizens, President Kennedy's next objective probably will be the great industrial unions of the CIO. His own political interest plainly requires that he establish the same degree of command over this mighty force that he has already established over capital (or industry) and Congress. It seems to me that he will arouse less indignation and opposition in moving to break the monopolistic power of unions because their behavior has been scandalous and often insurrectionary over the years since Franklin D. Roosevelt underwrote John L. Lewis's audacious scheme to drag on all labor into one faceless mass of robots.

"Labor" is the only power in the nation which the President does not command by law, and the Public, including probably most of the workers, has been disappointed by years of frustrations and last-minute disappointments. In the steel contract, the Administration protected, in fact, pampered, the United Steel Workers, which was followed by the President's show of "cold fury," as the papers described it. Wilson had no teary, but his anger at Henry Cabot Lodge in the League of Nations battle seems to have been restrained by comparison. President Eisenhower's reaction to Khrushchev's disgusting rudeness was less of anger than of embarrassment. If Mr. Kennedy had shown the same cold fury against Castro he might have shaken him up. It is a good point to remember for the next occasion.

Actually, the executives, the management of the big steel companies, are not very sensitive to the desires of their shareholders. They can't go running to them with proxies every time they want a box of paper clips, and the cumulative effect of their habit of authority is a relation pretty much like that of the great union bosses to their subjects. The corporation executives get away with a majestic bulk of legalized larceny through pensions and outrageous graft for "consultation" after retirement. This is called deferred compensation and the purpose is to relieve high-salaried men of the great burden of high-bracket income taxes during their incumbency.

Other high-income people have to pay such taxes and the greed of these characters in rigging such deals for themselves at the stockholders' expense is not even denied. But nobody has found any way to stop it. In fact, far from squawking about it, the unions have used it to justify many of their own graceful frauds called "fringe benefits." The company executives have not had the nerve to deny the similarity of the two deals. So the shareholders are bilked both ways. You might say the Government is chiseled, too, not that anyone could force a tear for the Treasury.

But now that Kennedy is the strongest man who ever occupied the White House, he would be clever in his own interest to clamp some iron on the wrists of the only great power left unshackled. The armed forces, of course, never were such a power. Nobody seriously thought any group of generals were thinking of mischief although some such idea was imputed to General Walker of the 24th Division. The generals are, in fact, too meek and uneasy for their own good and ours.

Congress would be delighted to pass a Sherman Act for "Labor," meaning the union politicians, not the workers, who have no more voice in unions than shareholders have in Steel. And the Faceless Man in the square cap as well as the massive nonentity called The People would rejoice to see this rogue force brought to heel at last.

In that case, Mr. Kennedy might turn out to be a very satisfactory President.

TRUTH-FORUM

-With Ed Delaney

A typical example of congressional shadow-boxing is observed in House Resolution 221 - Special Committee on Captive Nations - which was introduced by Rep. Daniel J. Flood of Penn., in March 1961 and is a subject for discussion in the present Congress. This is a step-child of a resolution, adopted by Congress a few years ago designating the third week in July each year as "Captive Nations Week." It is to be proclaimed by the President annually until all the nations held in bondage by the Soviet and its satellites are liberated. Taking a realistic view of the future, it appears that if the present and potential presidents in the Kennedy family - Robert and Edward, each gets his 8 years in the White House, the proclamation will still be coming out annually when their respective terms have ended.

Giving Rep. Flood credit for sincerity in his endeavors, our record to date as regards the captive peoples of the world is shameful, deceitful and cruel. We have aroused hope among the captives, then dashed that hope with aid for their captors instead of for the captives. For 17 years voices have been raised in Congress, in public forums and even in the White House piously pretending that we are earnestly striving to lift the shackles from the millions who were betrayed into bondage by Roosevelt at Tehran and Yalta, but we have done nothing. Politicians elected on the Democrat's platform carefully omit reference to the part Roosevelt and Truman played in the perfidies by which those nations became captive. The campaign platform subscribed to by Dwight Eisenhower in 1952 stipulates that if a Republican administration is elected it "would repudiate the secret agreements by which nations and peoples were enslaved." Eisenhower repeated that pledge in his first State of the Union message. Then it went into that limbo of broken political promises. Let us keep that record straight so there be no misconception as to how those enslavements came about.

Recently Rep. Flood stated for the record that at present no public or private body exists which devotes itself to studying continuously, systematically and objectively all the captive nations. That smacks of political circumlocution, procrastination and seeming profundity when hinting at the need for "study" of a matter that needs no more study. We knew about the perfidy which made those nations captive as far back as 1945-46-47. The public, private and semi-secret documents relating to the disgraced misdeeds of previous administrations and the harrowing stories of conditions under which those captive people subsist fill many volumes in the files and archives at Washington. There are even some thousands of words of mine on that subject in the Congressional Record and more data in my book "False Freedom" which is in the Congressional Library and in the offices of some members of Congress. It is not "study" with more deliberations and delays that is needed in this matter, it is action. Someone in Congress should soundly damn the dilatory and procrastinating manner in which aid for the captive nations has been handled in the past.

Some European publications are speaking out plainly and showing a lack of confidence in the effectiveness of "resolutions" and promises of aid for the captive nations. What did we do in 1956 to aid the captive people of Hungary? Nothing. What did we do when the communists began to build the wall through Berlin and made captive some 16 million people? Nothing. What did the present administration do to end communist enslavement in Cuba? The White House and State Department scuttled the pre-planned invasion which some of our military authorities say could have liberated Cuba in a matter of 48 hours. We know the fate of those courageous Cuban patriots. Will they or any others have faith in our gestures - that is all they are - for their liberation?

Sympathetic words can be so innocuous. Unless material aid is given the captive people they will remain captive. Words are no help against weapons. When positive demands are made by Congress that something be done - and not talked about, there may be renewed hope for the captive nations and not before. Otherwise we may classify these talks of "study" and deliberations of a captive nations committee as nothing more or less than political perflage to beguile voters, especially those whose ancestral homes are now behind the Iron Curtain.

GOP Puts Foreign Issues

On Front Burner For Fall

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Democratic political strategists do not anticipate that foreign policy will be much of an issue in the coming congressional election campaign.

Republican strategists have other ideas on this point, with every intention of making Kennedy administration moves in foreign crisis areas subjects for lively debate.

Kennedy foreign policy programs now before Congress include trade expansion legislation, United Nations bond issue, Peace Corps enlargement, the $4.8 billion foreign-aid bill including the Alliance for Progress in Latin America.

Several sections of the new tax bill also touch on foreign policy in offering incentives for overseas investment and closing loopholes which give some Americans tax havens abroad.

Only the trade expansion program has political impact locally. Everybody is in favor of freer trade as a general principle. But nearly all the 50 states and 435 congressional districts want special protection for their products which are in competition with imports.

This can cause the Kennedy administration trouble in securing passage of the legislation now before Congress. It can also cause congressional candidates who defend the administration program and vote for it plenty of trouble in the campaign.

The Republicans have other targets they want to shoot at. Reports that the United States is proposing reduction of Western garrisons in Berlin and concessions to the East Germans over control of access corridors are of no help to the Kennedy administration, in spite of denials and assurances of a firm stand in current negotiations with the Russians.

Calling up the National Guard and reserves to back the "get tough policy" on Berlin was a popular move at the time. But it has backfired against the administration because it was unpopular with the civilian soldiers put on active duty. This policy is being reversed in July and August, well before election.

The administration's position with respect to Russia will be further clarified by future Berlin talks and by progress in the Geneva disarmament talks, or lack of it.

If both lead to a summit conference later in the year, it will be its status on election day which will have political impact.

The Cuban invasion fiasco has not been forgotten even after a year and it has done the administration no good.

United States military involvement in Viet Nam is the kind of "get tough" policy many Americans would like to see their government pursue against the Communists. But this policy will be a political asset only to the extent it is successful.

Administration support with the Russians for a nationalist-neutralist - Communist - backed government in Laos does not make sense to many people.

There is a vociferous American element which thinks the United States should have backed Tshombe instead of the U.N. in the continuing Congo-Katanga dispute. The $100-million U.N. bond issue which sailed through the Senate is being opposed in the House.

but not because of the money involved. It is more a questioning of U.N. effectiveness.

Admission of Red China to the U.N. will again become an active issue if the General Assembly reconvenes as usual in mid-September, six weeks before the election.

On the Democratic political plus side, the administration decision to resume nuclear weapons testing in the atmosphere has wide Republican support. The Peace Corps is popular and its enlargement has been approved by both Senate and House. Astronaut John Glenn's space flight was an asset to the administration, though it wasn't a bit political.

Popular reactions to all these factors have to be thrown into the political balance to determine whether Kennedy administration foreign policy is a help or a hindrance in the coming campaign.

The Doctor Says:

Faulty Diaphragm Timing Upsets Breathing Cycles By DR. HAROLD T. HYMAN

Q-Our 15-year-old son keeps complaining that he can't catch his breath. He's been examined and we've been assured there's nothing wrong with his heart or lungs. I've watched him play basketball in the school gym and he seems to be perfectly all right. But when he gets home and just sits around he gasps for breath like a fish out of water. Can't something be done to help him?

A-Ordinarily, this condition is attributed to an adolescent neurosis that's outgrown sooner or later. On a few occasions, I've examined youngsters by fluoroscopy during an attack. What seems to happen is a passing disturbance of the diaphragm - much like a fluttering of the eyelid. In general, as you may know, the rate of respiration is governed by a central office in the brain.

The act of breathing in (inspiration) is signaled along nerve cables to the diaphragm, which is a sheet of muscle that separates chest and belly cavities. Inspiration is begun when the diaphragm contracts. Normally, both leaves of the diaphragm act in unison. When, for whatever reason, the "timing" is off temporarily, the perfectly healthy person registers this "catch" your son speaks of and that you observe.

If you will explain the mechanism of this disturbance to him and assure him of its medical unimportance, perhaps he'll take it in stride until it self-adjusts. As it SURELY WILL.

Q-Can anything be done to keep nails from splitting? I've taken gelatin, vitamins and calcium injections but they continue to split. I know it's not of medical importance but it's an awful nuisance when you catch threads and other things and get runs in stockings.

A-I don't know whether, at this stage of the game, anything can be done other than to keep your nails pared down to the quick. You see the damage has already been done to your nail bed, probably by an injury or, more likely, by chemical burns from long continued use of some nail polish or cuticle removers. Since the nail bed does not easily regenerate, discontinuance of manicure accessories may not be followed by noticeable improvement. But, as there's nothing else you can do, you might give it a try.

Q-I have high blood pressure and my doctor says I ought to relax and take things easy. Well, the best way for me to relax is to sit and smoke. But you and other doctors say smoking is bad. How come?

A-There's no doubt of the soothing influence of a pause for a smoke in the day's occupations or aggravations. But it's the pause that refreshes, not the smoke except insofar as it is an excuse for taking a break. Like calling time during a football or basketball game. Or stalling to knock the dirt out of spikes and adjust the uniform when the bases are full and the count is 3 and 2. Some of the benefits derived from the pause are opposed by the effects of tobacco that recently has been shown to cause a rise in blood pressure presumably through stimulation of ACTH secretion. So you'll have to add the debits and credits to figure your own balance sheet.
