John W. Savage, Retired Farmer, Dies Sunday

John W. Savage, retired farmer and resident of the county for 40 years, died Sunday, July 15, on his 77th birthday. He had been ill for the past two years, but his condition was critical only a few days.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church Tuesday afternoon, with the Rev. J. F. Michael, pastor, officiating. Pall bearers were John Harper, Dick Sweat, Ernest Jackson, O. B. Raburn, Jones Singley and Velman Warrick. Burial services were held Wednesday morning at 10:00 a.m., due to the arrival of members of the family from California, with interment in the Wellington cemetery, directed by the Kelso Funeral Home.

Mr. Savage is survived by eight children: Claude Savage of Wellington; Mrs. Bernard Seay of Dodson; R. L. Savage of Watsonville, Calif.; W. E. Savage of Hale Center; Curtis Savage of Sudan; Chief Warrant Officer Frazier Savage of Alexandria, Va.; Miss Lelia Savage and Miss Blanche Savage of Fort Worth.

Two sisters, Miss Louise Savage and Miss Bedie Savage of Bowie, and 10 grandchildren also survive.

John Wiley Savage was born at Bowie July 15, 1874, and grew up in that area. He was married to Miss Fannie Cook at Salona in 1898.

Forty years ago Mr. Savage moved his family to Collingsworth county, and settled just north of Quail, where he farmed for many years. He was a member of the Baptist Church and the Woodmen of the World.

During the years he had lived here, Mr. Savage had made many friends. Devoted to his family and his community, he had given much time to making it a better place for his family, and for the children of those who were his friends.

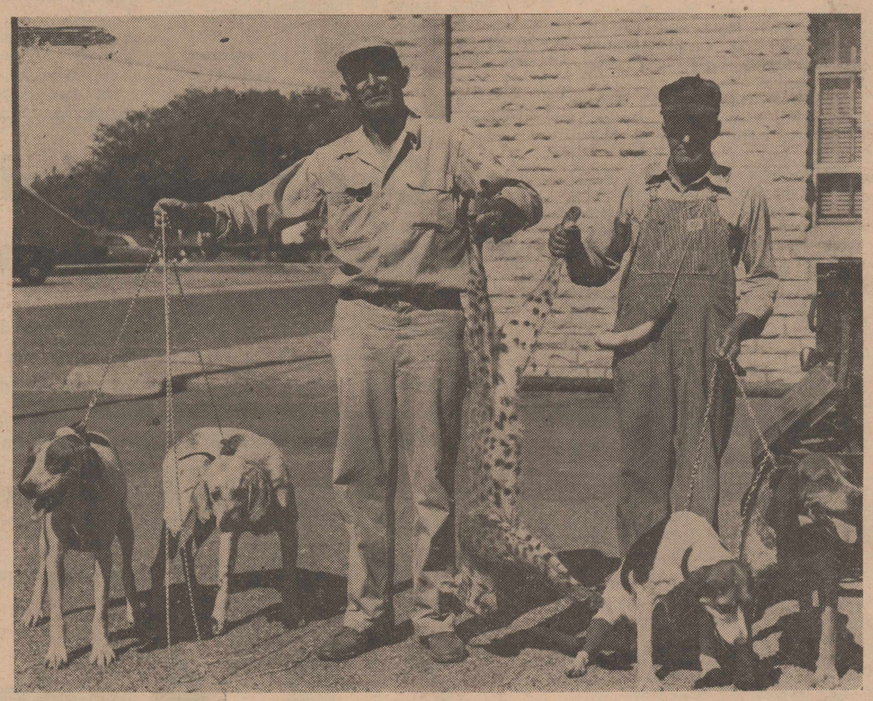
Thomas Discusses Bees at Childress

John Thomas, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lefty Thomas, Collingsworth county, was the speaker Tuesday at the meeting of the Childress Lions club. Young Thomas spoke on the importance of bees on the farm. He explained the habits of bees and their growth and production.

Thomas recently returned from College Station where he attended the annual 4-H club roundup. He was a winner in dairying at the state meet.

Accompanying Thomas to Childress for the meeting were his father, County Agent Lefty Thomas, and Bob Jones, also of Wellington.

Dr. Raymond Hander introduced the speaker and presented the program.



HUNTERS AND THE OCELOT THEY BAGGED

An ocelot invaded coon hunting territory along Salt Fork River Thursday night and was caught by Jack Ball, left, and Shorty Bradford, along with the four dogs they were using. The animal has most of the identifying points of an ocelot, except a long tail, but some believe it may be a Bay Linyx of unusual coloring, while others think it may be a cross bred animal. While ocelots are found in some sections of the state, there are only two reports of their having been caught in this area, one in Donley county last December, and the other in Southern Oklahoma.

Sadie Did the Work

Surprised Coon Hunters Bag Ocelot Near Salt Fork Thurs.

Shorty Bradford and Jack Ball went coon hunting last Thursday night, July 12, and came back Friday morning with an Ocelot—a tropical wildcat rarely seen in this part of Texas. The tawny animal, spotted much as a leopard on the underside of his body, was three feet long, not counting the short tail, and stood about 20 inches high.

The only other account of one being killed in this part of the Panhandle was in Donley County several months ago. The animal is abundant in Mexico and ranges as far north as Louisiana and the wooded parts of the Big Bend country. In Mexico it is frequently found in a semi-domesticated condition around farm houses. It prefers wooded country and in its natural country it lives chiefly on birds and can climb trees with ease as the two Wellington hunters found out in the small hours of the morning Friday.

G. P. (Slim) Davis game warden identified the animal by Leader pictures as being a young Bay Linyx, which is nothing more than a species of bobcat. However, Polly O'Neil, former game warden said that the animal did not look like any bobcat either young or old that he had ever seen.

Bradford and Ball set out with four hounds to hunt coons along Salt Fork. Their dogs had killed two coons up until about 1:30 a.m. when Sadie, the spotted gyp shown in a picture in another part of the paper, set off on the trail of what they thought was another coon. She started the hunt on the Robert Barjenbruch farm and ran him south of the river until the cat crossed the river and they could hear Sadie's bugle notes as she came back on the north side of the river. The hunters kept trying to follow the chase which lasted something over two hours.

The dogs were on the Oran Starkey land west of the railroad bed when Old Bright barked "treed." The hunters found the treed cat about 300 yards north of the railroad bridge over Salt Fork.

Shorty Bradford thought that it was just another coon and climbed about three-fourths the length of

To Camp Lee, La.

National Guard Camp Dates Set in August

Wellington's Medical Company of the 142nd Infantry, Texas National Guard division, will attend summer camp at Camp Polk, La., from August 19 through September 3, Capt. Charles Allen, executive officer, has announced.

Approximately 55 men of the Wellington unit will go, along with the three commissioned officers, Major D. V. Watkins, commanding officer; Capt. Allen; and Lt. Don Kutch.

They will meet the other two battalion medical platoons of the 142nd Infantry at Abilene and Brownwood.

The camp will be similar to that attended at Fort Hood last year, when the men trained under simulated combat conditions not possible in their home training.

Duke Baseball Games Uncertain

No baseball games for the Dukes of Wellington are definitely scheduled during the coming week, Dick Richards said Wednesday.

Originally, Childress was due to have come here Sunday, but that town is having trouble fielding a team and the status of the game is uncertain, Mr. Richards said.

He added that Duke officials will try to work out something in the way of games for local fans in the near future.

Alexander to Plainview, Thomas PCA Field Man

Olan Alexander, field representative of the Memphis Production Credit Association for the Wellington office for the last 9 years, is resigning effective August 1, to become assistant secretary-treasurer of the Plainview Production Credit Association.

His place will be taken by Zook Thomas, Lillie farmer and former gin manager.

"It has been a real pleasure to serve the farmers of Collingsworth County while I was PCA field representative, and along with the members of the association, I feel a great deal of pride in its expansion during this period. My family and I regret leaving our friends here, but I believe this is an opportunity I should not turn down," Mr. Alexander said.

Born and reared here, Mr. Alexander has been active in the Rotary Club and the Methodist Church, serving as church treasurer for the last 10 years. He is a member of the official church board and superintendent of the adult division. His wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Van Pelt.

Mr. Thomas has been a leader of farm activities for a number of years. He served as manager of the Wellington gin two years and the Lillie Gin nine years.

He is the new president of the Wellington Rotary Club, a director of the Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the board of the First Christian Church. Mr. Thomas has been for several years a member of the advisory committee of the Wellington office of the Memphis Production Credit Association, and a member of the nominating committee for the Association.

Theme of the meeting will be "When Christ Controls." Three visiting speakers are on the program which opens at 5:00 p.m., Dr. A. J. Quinn of Amarillo, who will be the first speaker, discussing "He Controls Our Talents,"; the Rev. C. M. McCullough of Dodson, "He Controls Our Time,"; and the Rev. L. A. The night meeting will open with a song service at 7:45 p.m. Closing this will be special music by Mrs. William Barjenbruch.

Representatives of all churches in the southeastern part of the Panhandle will attend.

City Spraying Program Seeks Fly Control

The city has inaugurated a spraying program for both residential and business sections in an effort to eliminate flies and other disease bearing insects, City Manager Bura Handley has announced.

This service is without cost to the people, and anyone wishing to have their garbage barrels and the area around them sprayed should contact the city hall by phoning No. 145, Mr. Handley explained.

A spraying unit has been attached to the city garbage collection truck, and the spraying is done at the time the trash is picked up.

In the business area, spraying is done each time the trash is collected, while in the residential areas, spraying is done once each week.

A special formula of DDT and chlordane is used, and while this is supposed to be effective for several weeks, the city is taking no chances and is using it at least once each week.

"We have used it in certain areas already, and the number of flies there are now surprisingly small. If we get the co-operation we need, I believe we can largely eliminate flies here this summer," Mr. Handley said.

She will teach English.

Other members of the faculty are Ralph Bradley, high school principal; Frank Kennedy, vocational agriculture; Mrs. Monty Mitchell, vocational home economics; Mrs. Jim Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Frank Jones Scout Announcer

Frank Jones, member of Explorer Scout Post 32, has been selected to announce the weekly Boy Scout radio program, each Thursday at 11:30 a.m., John Pound, Scout executive for the Southern District of the Adobe Walls Council, said.

Jones, who is 14, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Jones and has been a Scout for the past three years. He is a member of the Order of the Owl, a national brotherhood of Scout honor campers.

"The program this week will include one tip of interest to fly fishermen, tips on camp cooking, and a short feature on 'The Pup Grows Up'," Jones said.

The post of announcer will be rotated, and later Don Scott and Reggie Smith are scheduled to take over the program, Mr. Pound said.

Any Scout, Explorer or Cub unit having announcements they wish made on the program is asked to write the Scout program in care of the Wellington studio of Radio Station KCTX, through which the program is broadcast.

Castor Bean Corporation Opens Wellington Office

J. E. Young of Stillwater, Oklahoma, has been named to be in charge of the Wellington office of the Baker Castor Bean Corp., which will handle the hulling, grading and shipping of all beans grown here and the grading and shipping of those grown in the Hereford area.

A warehouse at 600 Bowie Street has been secured for the company, and installation of hulling machinery is due to begin within the next week or two, with the arrival of company officials from New Jersey, Mr. Young said.

"This will be a complete hulling plant for the intermediate type of castor beans, that is, the type that is grown in this area," Mr. Young said.

The company which Mr. Young represents here is a subsidiary of the Baker Castor Oil Company, believed to be the oldest and largest castor oil company in the world, having been established in 1854.

That the Baker Castor Bean Corp. is here to stay and believes in the future of that crop here was indicated when Mr. Young said that the 1952 crop is expected to be three or four times that of this year.

A new variety of castor bean, the Cimerron, will be introduced here for next year's crop. This has the advantage of being non-shattering, a fault of the bean used now, and it is also a high yielder Mr. Young said.

So far, the seed supply has been too limited to give local farmers a chance to try it, but a 1,000 acre seed tract will provide plenty for Collingsworth farmers in 1952, Mr. Young said.

Three mechanical castor bean harvesters will be available in this area to harvest the current crop. These are handled through the PMA office, since the Baker Castor Bean Corp. is working in close co-operation with the government. This is essential, Mr. Young pointed out, since the government needs castor oil in making jet plane lubricating oil.

Mr. Young, before joining the staff of the Baker Corp., was with a manufacturer of sulfuric acid in Birmingham, Ala. He has also worked with the soils laboratory of Oklahoma A&M College, Stillwater, and has farmed.

He is married and has a 15-months old son. Mr. and Mrs. Young are making their home at 1005 Bowie Street.

Methodists Study Farm and Town

John Forbis to Attend National Meeting

John T. Forbis of Wellington will be a delegate to the National Methodist Town and Country Conference in Sioux City, Iowa, July 21-24.

Representing the Northwest Texas annual conference as District Lay Leader of the Clarendon District, the local leader will be one of more than 2,000 delegates who are expected to attend the quadrennial conference and deal with the opportunities confronting the church in making an impact on rural life.

Bishop Charles W. Brashares of the Des Moines, Ia., Area is national chairman of the assembly, which has been called by the Council of Bishops and is backed by the several boards and agencies of the denomination.

Prominent leaders of church and state will address the conference, which will be divided into seven working study groups, dealing with various phases of town and country life and focusing on the question of the contribution of rural America to the physical and spiritual life of the nation.

Speakers will include Murray D. Lincoln, permanent consultant to the United Nations Economic and Social Council; Dr. Carl C. Taylor and Dr. Arthur F. Raper of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture; Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau of the Social Security Administration, Federal Security Agency; and a number of bishops and leaders of the church.

Three Chapters Rate Awards

Three County FFA Boys Lone Star Farmers

Two Future Farmers from Quail and one from Samnorwood were awarded Lone Star Farmer degrees at the 1951 State FFA Convention held at the Shamrock Hotel in Houston last week. The Convention closed Friday, when degrees were awarded a total of 487 Texas boys.

Receiving degrees were Raymond Bradshaw and Howard E. McGill of Quail and Billy Ray Alexander of Samnorwood.

The Quail, Wellington and Samnorwood chapters participated in chapter contests with Quail receiving the silver emblem rating, and Samnorwood and Wellington the bronze emblem.

Returning Future Farmers reported this to be one of the best such meetings they have ever attended. In addition to hearing farm and youth leaders, the program was outstanding for its entertainment features, they said.

Going from Wellington were Calvin Aaron, Edward Bawcom, Dennis Holliman, Johnny Langford, Harold Moore and their instructor, Bennett Goodloe.

No Allotments, Quotas on 1952 Wheat Crop

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan has announced that there will be no acreage allotments and no marketing quotas on 1952-crop wheat.

Department officials stated that the supply of wheat during the 1952-53 marketing year is expected to be below the quantity specified for marketing quotas in existing legislation, and that the continuing need for food in the uncertain world situation makes it advisable not to establish acreage allotments for the 1952 crop. Legislation requires that the determination as to marketing quotas be made before the beginning of the marketing year — July 1.

Bratten Relative Killed Friday

Olen Robinson of Elk City, Oklahoma, brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Bratten, was killed Friday afternoon, July 13, when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver as he changed a tire on his car at the side of a road near that city.

The driver of the car, believed to have been drunk, swerved off the highway onto the shoulder of the road, and struck Mr. Robinson, then continued on down the highway, Mr. Bratten said. The car was later located and two men believed to have been in it at the time of the accident were arrested.

Funeral services for Mr. Robinson were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. at Elk City. Attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vaughan and Mr. and Mrs. Bratten and sons.

Mr. Robinson, who was 42 years of age, had been an employee of the Elk City Post Office for approximately 11 years.

Lot of Work—and the Safe Was Empty

BURGLARS GET LITTLE MONEY IN ATTEMPTS AT THREE BUSINESSES

Three Wellington business firms were entered one night recently but the haul netted the burglars only a few dollars in cash, three cases of oil and a .38 calibre pistol, Deputy Sheriff Bob Barnett reported.

Burglarized were Singley Brothers, Warrick Feed Store, and the office of the Texas Company.

In the latter place, the burglars took a small safe, the door of which was closed but not locked. Not knowing this, they knocked off the combination, then pried open the door — and found not so much as a scrap of paper, according to Jack Stansbury, consignee. The safe was later found by officers at the city dump. Also taken were three cases of oil valued at $20.24. Entry was gained by prying open the front door.

At Singley brothers, a .38 Colt, two rolls of new dimes, and several silver dollars were taken. Here the burglars entered through an office window, Mr. Barnett said.

The Warrick Feed Store was also entered by prying open the front door. The cash register was opened and approximately $3.00 in pennies were taken, along with a flashlight and a few other small items.

"To all appearances, these jobs were done by the same persons, and more than one individual was involved," Mr. Barnett said.

SOMETHING NEW, SOMETHING OLD—This ancient tortoise seems to take a dim view of "Ascot," week-old baby donkey, as Peggy Mann introduces them at the London Zoo. "Ascot" looks a bit dubious, too, probably wondering if he's up against a General Patton tank.

DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Miss Katherine Boverie was curious about my statistics of 1910. She could not reconcile the census figure of 576 for the year of 1910 with a school population of 300 according to Mr. Curry's estimate. Well, I was at first and then I began to reconstruct the memory of Wellington in 1910 in my memory.

* * *

You take the government census of the town section of 1910 and subtract the 300 school children. That leaves 276 adults on the town section. Supposing that they were all married couples, you could divide that by two and get the number of families living in the so-called city of Wellington. That would not be out of line in itself for the families were larger in those days than they are today.

* * *

But the thing to remember I reminded Miss Boverie is the number of families living on the outskirts of Wellington, who could not have been counted in the census of 1910. These were the Boverie's, the Bartletts, the Nunns, the Dobbs, the Wells, the Godfreys, the Stalls, the Moores, the Cockes, the Royals, the Henards, and a whole bunch of others. And all of them had good sized families. But none of them lived in what was then the City of Wellington.

* * *

The Andersons, O'Neils, Couches, Paynes, Benges, Howells, Browns and numerous other families did live in the city limits. But when you get to thinking of all that group of good sized families who lived outside the city limits, you can see that Mr. Curry's estimate of the number of school children might have been underestimated. The number of school teachers is a matter of record.

* * *

Somebody has asked me who the five doctors were in 1909. I am not quite sure about all. They were Dr. Pittman, Dr. Street, Dr. Worley, for sure. The debate is about Dr. Mooney (when did he die?), Dr. Loving and Dr. Walker.

* * *

This has been a discussion about towns and populations. Lest anyone be misled about the import of Dr. Franklin D. Murphy's article in the May 26 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, allow me to state his thesis. There are fewer doctors per patient. They are better trained and the standards are more rigid. As a result the people of the United States are getting better medical care than ever before in their history and no other country in the world can compare with it. He does say that we need more doctors; but he also says that we have the best medical care in the world. You could read it for yourself.

* * *

Here is an unsigned letter about last weeks column:

It seems to me that you have missed the most significant item about Wellington, Ohio and Wellington, Texas as reported in your column last week. According to Dr. Trufant the census of Wellington Ohio was 2131 in 1910 yet you say that it is only 2,982 in 1950. But the population of Wellington Texas was only 576 in 1910 but it was 3,669 in 1950. In short the population of Wellington, Ohio, has increased less than a third in forty years. On the other hand the population of Wellington, Texas has increased about seven fold. Isn't there some Biblical significance about that, Mr. Deck? Why don't you write an editorial?

Thanks very much. I think you have written the editorial yourself.

* * *

Old Slim Davis, the game warden for this area, has ruined an interesting story for me, but I am publishing it just the same. I felt that Virginia Robey would be back this week but I wanted to help her on news stories as much as I could. So when Shorty Bradford and Jack Ball brought in a strange looking cat, I had pictures taken and wrote a story. I pronounced it an Ocelot. Then along comes this Slim Davis, the game warden, and he says it is nothing more than a Bay Lynx. I looked that up and it is only a bobcat. That hurt my feelings pretty bad. So I took the pictures of the animal over to Polly O'Neil, former game warden, and asked him if it was a bobcat. He looked at it a long time and then shook his head.

"It does not look like any bobcat I ever saw," he said. He did not say what it was.

Bethine Adkins and Virginia Robey said that it did not look like a bobcat to them. That is good enough for me. It was an Ocelot. The story will run as writ.

The know it all Slim Davis may have some space for a rebuttal if he so desires.

* * *

W. D. Durfey says that he has never seen cotton put on so well and look so good at this time of the year. A whole swarm of other farmers are saying the same thing. They dread an extensive spell of hot weather that would cause the cotton to throw off the squares and bolls with which it is fruiting so heavily.

* * *

Bankers are more worried than farmers. It is a long cry from the days when a man could make a crop by borrowing $500 to $800 at the bank. In those days a farmer could miss for two or three years and still come back on the fourth year and be sound at the bank. Now the hundreds must be translated into thousands. Two years of failure or even short crops and both the bankers and the farmers will be tearing their hair. It takes a lot of money to make a crop in these days.

* * *

As Duard Scott says: "We have got to make a crop this fall or a lot of us will fall."

* * *

The signs were never better. So why don't we keep our plans and our programs on a high and optimistic level.

* * *

Dr. Penn Cagle, formerly of Wellington, is the author of the new Texas election laws. There will be a story about it in the next issue of the paper.

STATION WAGON IS EVERYMAN'S CAR

By FRANK M. WRIGHT
Editor, Automotive Features

NEW YORK (Special) — The station wagon is spreading out from its native habitat—the suburbs—into the thousands of towns and villages that form the backbone of America.

What before the war was a class-conscious vehicle of the millionaire set is fast becoming a useful multi-purpose car for the average family.

Automotive experts call this increasing popularity of the station wagon the most significant postwar trend in the industry and attribute it to the economical all-steel body.

The bulk of last year's record production of 151,000 station wagons was the all-steel body, they point out, and although 14 manufacturers build station wagons, a few of the lower-price manufacturers accounted for 60 per cent of the sales.

The largest single producer of station wagons is Willys-Overland Motors of Toledo, Ohio, which introduced the all-steel body in 1946. So successful was the innovation that during the last four years, while the industry's station wagon production was tripling, Willys has dominated the field.

In an interview here today Ward M. Canaday, president of the company, said that the popularity of the all-steel body is easy to account for. It drastically cuts the construction cost of the station wagon and brings it within the buying power of every automobile owner's pocketbook.

"In addition," Mr. Canady said, "all-steel vehicles are much more economical to maintain. They are safer, because of the all-steel body, vision is better, and they tend not to go out of fashion as quickly as other model cars."

He declared that women are especially enthusiastic about station wagons because they are easy to drive and simple to park. With a seating capacity of six people they are also ideal for taking children to school and on picnics or trips to the beach.

Men like them because they are handy. Rear seats are easily removable and it is the matter of a moment to convert from a personal car to a light delivery truck made to order for dozens of family needs such as transporting hunting, fishing or boating equipment, Christmas trees, firewood and all manner of baggage, including the baby's play pen.

Creep Feeding Pays on Calves

COLLEGE STATION — By creep feeding their beef calves, livestock men can add as much as 100 pounds of weight per head by weaning time, according to U. D. Thompson, assistant extension animal husbandman of Texas A. & M. College.

"creep" — an enclosure with openings large enough for calves to enter but too small for older cattle — is inexpensive and easy to build. This arrangement gives calves access to additional feed.

Specifications for building a practical creep feeder and suggestions for locating it are given in a new Extension Service circular. Circular 289 also gives suggested rations for feeding suckling calves and directions for starting the calves on feed.

Thompson points out that an important advantage of creep feeding is the better condition of the cows at weaning time. They are not suckled down so much when the calves receive additional feed.

In addition to being heavier and having more finish, creep-fed calves grow out more uniformly in size and condition. There is little shrinkage at weaning time.

Creep-fed calves usually sell for a higher price per pound than calves that are not creep-fed.

Thompson recommends that livestock men consult their county agent about creep feeding calves this spring and to also pick up a copy of Extension Circular 289, "Creep Feeding Beef Calves."

J. H. Seymour returned home July 16 after undergoing surgery in St. Joseph's Hospital.

What Happened to One Business Man!

This isn't a true story . . . it's a fable . . . but it could happen . . . and it has happened.

Once upon a time there was a big merchant, he got that way by attending strictly to business, taking seriously his customer's wants, and giving as much time to his advertising as it should have.

So, he grew . . . and he grew . . . and he grew. Business got so good he didn't need to think so much of his customers, nor of his advertising. In fact, he found he was wasting time by thinking of advertising. He got "smart." He couldn't help it, of course, if "advertising" expenditures more and more went into entertaininig . . . and pamplets . . . and booklets and for taking a good customer here, there, and everywhere.

Well, this went on for several years. During that time, youngsters were growing up, customers were dying off, new people were coming to town. But our good friend wasn't getting this new business . . . he was too busy contacting the old ones, saying "yes" to every hit and miss sound. I've got to advertise umpteen thousand dollars worth this year, so put me down for a page in your booklet!" Then one day, the foreman of his shop got in to see him. "We need to do some advertising, Mr. Blankety-Blank," he said in no uncertain terms. "We can't afford to spend any more for advertising," said the boss indignantly. "Last year we spent umpteen thousand dollars for advertising," and he got out his private ledger to prove his point.

There were the figures, all down in black and white. So the shop foreman scratched his head and went back to his bench. Then he started looking for a new job . . . no use staying with a firm which couldn't be helped when umpteen thousand dollars were being spent for advertising. "I guess advertising just isn't as important as I thought," he said to himself. "We haven't had a new customer in months!"

Yet, in another part of town, a young man was going great guns. He was running ads regularly in the newspaper. Putting time and thought into his business. Asking his newspaper advertising writer for new ideas, accepting their suggestions for improvement of his campaign. He wasn't spending umpteen thousand dollars a year, that's true, but he was seeing that every advertising dollar was wisely spent in a medium capable of bringing in a constant flow of new customers. Now and then he had to explain to a good customer why he couldn't afford to take a "big ad" in the school booklet or the club pamphlet, but that wasn't hard to do because he knew that to influence a customer or prospective customer, it was necessary for his ad to be read . . . and to be read it has to say something.

He knew, too that advertising is, and always has been a highly specialized field. There's a right and a wrong way to write advertising if it's going to pay off. That's why he put at least 80 per cent of his advertising budget into newspaper advertising . . . that's why he built a sound business . . . that's why he continued to do well when others were failing.

Kid Pony Show Opens Event August 7

COWBOYS, COWGIRLS COMPETE FOR $5,000 AT PAMPA'S RODEO

The 7th Annual Top o' Texas Rodeo, held each year at Pampa, Texas, will open this year as in the past, with the Kid Pony Show, on Tuesday, August 7th. Regular Rodeo performances will begin on Wednesday, August 8th, with night performances only. 8:00 P. M. is the starting time for all shows. Cowboys and cowgirls from the entire Southwest will participate in this Show, which is one of the world's largest amateur Rodeos.

Stock for the show will be furnished by Goat Mayo, of Petrolia, Texas, and will be of the same high quality as in the past. Mayo will also be Arena Director.

There will be no Quarter Horse Show this year. The Tuesday night Show will be a special attraction for the junior cowboy and cowgirl. Plans for the Kid Pony Show include a colorful opening downtown street parade complete with band; and a full schedule of events that will allow every boy and girl from 5 to 16 years to display their ability as riders and their pony's training. Events listed for this Shaw include the Barrel Race, Bull Fight, Bull Riding, Flag Race, Doughnut Race, Cutting Horse Contest, Calf Roping, and Girl's Clover Leaf Reining Contest.

On Wdenesday, August 8th there will be a big downtown street parade, which will officially open the Rodeo. Paul Crouch, president of the Top o' Texas Rodeo Association, will be Parade Marshal. Prizes will be given for the Most Typical Ranch Entry, Best Civic Club Entry, Most Typical Cowboy over 16, Most Typical Cowgirl over 16, Most Typical Cowboy under 16, Most Typical Cowgirl under 16, Best Decorated Bicycle, Oldest Cowboy or Cowgirl, Youngest Cowboy or Cowgirl, Most Comical Entry and the Most Attractive Commercial Entry.

The Parade will form at Foster and Hobart Streets, and will begin moving at 4:00 p. m.

The Cutting Horse Contest this year will be one of the high points of the Rodeo, with a purse of $250.00 plus all entry fees added back.

A total of approximately $5,000 will be at stake when cowboys and cowgirls from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and other southwestern states, vie for high honors.

Tex Gouldy and his "Texo Hired Hands" of Fort Worth, Texas, will furnish music for all performances, will be featured in the Parade, and will play for the dances, which will be held each night after the Rodeo.

Louis Blair of Dundee, Texas will clown the Show, and is expected to add the usual spark to each performance. In addition to the clown this year, the Bud Lucas Troup of Wichita Falls, has been secured as a special attraction. This Troup is a highly rated for its unusual comedy acts.

According to advance reservations, this year's Show is expected to be the biggest yet held by the Top o' Texas Rodeo Association. For information on the Rodeo or Reserved Seats contact the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Box 1942, or Telephone 383.

ROPED IN—Sun glasses get a lens-lease of high fashion this year, appearing in all sorts of new and exciting settings at the recent Sun Glass Fashion Show in New York. Typical are those above, sporting a frame made of rose-colored silk cord.

No Smallpox This Year

AUSTIN—Not a single case of smallpox has occured in Texas this year, said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. Unfortunately, the fact that we have had no smallpox does no mean we are immune for all time.

"Smallpox can strike again. For example, in 1947, an infected individual from Mexico innocently carried the disease to New York City. The result was 13 cases and three deaths, the first deaths in 35 years. Service men returning from the Orient caused an epidemice of 68 cases and 20 deaths in Seattle in 1946.

"In spite of Texas apparent freedom from smallpox, vaccination of every child before he is a year old and re-vaccination every three to five years is imperative. This is the only sure way to prevent the disease.

"With the speed of present day travel a person harboring smallpox could alight in our midst at any time. If the public becomes lax concerning vaccination that single case could spread as happened in New York and Seattle.

Cotton Defoliation May Be Useful

COLLEGE STATION — Chemical defoliation of cotton may be worth the cost and effort regardless of whether the harvest is to be by hand, by picking machines or by mechanical strippers.

Removal of the leaves exposes all bolls to sunlight and air current so they dry rapidly and open quickly. This often allows the cotton to be picked two weeks earlier.

Defoliation may be beneficial in the control of cotton insects — cutting down on leaf worm and aphid infestations, reducing boll weevil populations and permitting early stalk destruction for pink boll-worm control.

"Apply defoliants when the youngest bolls expected to make cotton are 25 days old," advises F. C. Elliott, cotton specialist for the Texas Extension Service. "Defoliants should be applied ten days or two weeks before the intended picking date."

Use of dust defoliants is recommended only when plants are wet with dew or when adequate dew is forecast. Elliott cautions that the dust must remain in moisture on the leaf for at least two hours. Four or more hours of moist exposure is preferred.

the tree. Then the cat jumped and landed about three feet in front of Jack Ball who was standing in a dense growth of wild gourds and johnson grass weeds. Mr. Ball fell over backwards and might have been mauled; but Old Bright seized the cat by the throat and Old Blue took him by the flank. Jolly joined in with a grip that broke the left foreleg and Sadie, the trailer, took bites wherever she could.

The battle was soon over for Old Bright did not let go of his hold on the throat until the jugular vein has been cut. However, Mr. Bradford is of the opinion that the dogs would have been ripped to pieces by the ocelot if they had not been fighting it in the dense growth of wild gourds.

Outside of the incident in Donley County this is the only other account of such an animal being killed in the Panhandle. The one that was found in Donley County was shot. However. one was killed in Southern Oklahoma some years ago. This brought forth the story from Wichita Falls of a cage of Ocelots belonging to a circus being broken and of the animals escaping. Can these be the descendants of those circus animals or did they migrate from Mexico? Shorty Bradford is of the opinion that the cat the dogs killed on the Salt Fork of Red River was a young animal.

The wildcat killed in Collingsworth did not resemble a Bobcat, Lynx or Panther in any respect other than that it was a big cat.

Old Bright belongs to Darvin Nix and he and Old Blue are being kept by Bill McCarver while Sadie and Jolly belong to Shorty Bradford.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Needham and children, Gay, Madeline, Anola and Dwayne, moved Wednesday to Fort Worth, where he will work for Chance Vaught Aircraft Co. Miss Gay Needham, who graduated from high school this spring, will do stenographic work.

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK, 1951

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

WHEREAS preventable accidents continue to kill thousands and injure hundreds of thousands of farm residents each year; and

WHEREAS such accidents deprive the Nation of needed manpower and destroy property vital to our defense; and

WHEREAS a careless or imprudent act is a factor in almost every accident on the farm; and

WHEREAS experience has established the fact that observance of safe practices in working and living can greatly reduce these losses:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HARRY S. TRUMAN, President of the United States of America, do hereby call upon the Nation to observe the week commencing July 22, 1951, as National Farm Safety Week, and I urgently request each member of every farm family to adopt safe practices in every activity; to drive safely, work safely, and live safely. I also request all organizations and persons interested in farm life to join in a continuing program to encourage the idea that farming the safe way is farming the right way.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this second day of May in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and fifty-one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and seventy-fifth.

Drunk Driver Hits Frisbie Car

A car driven by a Lakeview man who was later charged with drunk driving, collided head on with the 1951 Pontiac driven by Buck Frisbie of Wellington Saturday evening, July 14.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the Hollis highway with Highway 83, as Mr. Frisbie, along with Mrs. Frisbie and their baby, Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Wilkerson were en route to Childress.

The Hall county man, driving north, swerved to the wrong side of the road, hitting the Frisbie car head on, Mr. Frisbie said.

Mrs. Wilkerson received a broken left arm, but other members of the party were uninjured.

The driver of the Lakeview car, who was alone, attempted to leave the scene, but Mr. Frisbie and Mr. Brown backed his vehicle into the ditch so that it could not be moved until arrival of the investigating officers, Highway Patrolmen Noel Calloway and Herman Moore and the Harmon County Sheriff.

Mr. Frisbie said damage to both vehicles was minor.

Charges of drunk driving were filed against the Lakeview man by patrolmen, who later told Mr. Frisbie that this was his second offense.

NATION URGED TO ECONOMIZE, BUT GOVERNMENT BUYS LAVISHLY

ABILENE—While the Administration has repeatedly appealed to the nation's consumers to help combat inflation by putting off buying whenever they can, Federal government has been making such purchases as 68,000,000 can openers since the start of the Korean campaign a year ago. There are about a million and a half men in the Army.

This is brought out in a recent report by the taxation and legislation department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The report points out that the President has told business men to avoid piling up inventories, to increase efficiency wherever possible, and to keep prices down; that he has asked employers to conserve man-power and urged all to work harded and longer, and to forego wage increases or more profits.

The Federal bureaucracy obviously does not want to play on the nation's anti-inflation team, the report states.

Some examples of Federal purchasing of goods:

Army Ordinance recently purchases 6,000,000 gallons of paint in quart and gallon cans. This was a full year's requirement, but the Army sought delivery in 60 days. This huge order for paint in civilian-size cans, rather than in 5-gallon cans, was critized by paint suppliers, and admitted as unwise by the Army.

The Army set up a requirement of 4,636,000 web belts for 1951. This is three belts per man, although only one is issued per man per year. Its 1951 requiremtns for combat boots was set up at 11,753,000 pairs, although the total consumption was estimated 4,800,00 pairs.

Last January the Quartmaster Service bought 5,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine at 25 and 1-2 cents a pound. At the very same time the Department of Agrculture was selling 5,500,000 pounds of surplus of butter to Italy at 15 cents a pound.

Reports of the Byrd committee show that the number of civilian employees on the Federal payroll had jumped 2,184,681 on December 31, 1950 to 2,409,121 as of April 30, an increase of 224,440 in four months. This means that the Government has been filling new positions at the rate of 1,870 per day, every day in the month.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Lehmberg and two sons, James and Richard, of Houston were week end guests of his sister and brother-in-law, Judge and Mrs. Luther Gribble. This was a surprise visit, and Mr. Lehmberg's first trip here since 1931. It was Mrs. Lehmberg's first time to be in Wellington.

Couch Manages Merchants Group

The Association is composed of Wellington merchants, and it furnishes them information of credit and financial nature, along with other information, and makes available to them the facilities of the Texas Retail Merchants Association.

It has been operated here for a number of months, but during an enlargement campaign a year ago, a majority of the local merchants became members.

Faye Taylor, Jerry Bollen Exchange Vows July 1

Miss Wilma Faye Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doc Taylor of Amarillo, became the bride of Jerry D. Bollen, son of Mrs. G. B. Hopper of Wellington and J. C. Bollen of Clovis, New Mexico, Sunday afternoon, July 1, at 4:00 p.m.

The rites were solemnized in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Howard Jones, pastor, reading the double ring service before an altar banked with arrangements of white gladolius, palms, and emerald fern. Wrought candelabra held tapers which were lighted by Bill Pevenhouse of Canyon and R. O. Sisk of Amarillo.

The aisle of the church was marked with white gladolias and palm leaves tied with white satin streamers.

Benny Karnes, organist, played several selections before the recitation of the vows, and accompanied Miss Patsy Smith as she sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because." Miss Smith wore a simple dress of pink organdy, and wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the bride.

The traditional wedding marches were used as the processional and recessional for the wedding party.

Miss Sandra Bennett of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a blue organdy dress. She carried a white and blue maline basket from which she dropped rose petals in the bridal path.

Miss Ruby McGehee of Amarillo was maid of honor. She wore a dress of orchid organdy fashioned with a fitted bodice and full ballerina length skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of orchid asters tied with matching streamers. Her picture hat was of orchid organdy, and she wore a strand of pearls, a gift from the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a ballerina length dress of white swiss embroidered organdy over white taffeta. The gown was styled with a long fitted bodice and full skirt. The bodice featured a round scalloped yolk. Tiny self covered buttons closed the back to below the waist. She wore mitts of matching material. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a satin head dress encrusted with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of white carnations tied with satin streamers. White satin pumps completed her attire. She carried out the tradition of all brides, that of something old, new, borrowed, and blue.

Miss Susanna Pyszynski of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, was ring bearer, and wore a dress of pink organdy. She was the cousin of the bridegroom.

Raymond McGill of Wellington was the best man, while Garrett Barker of Amarillo, Bill Pevenhouse of Canyon, Billy Pat Swift of Wellington and R. O. Sisk of Amarillo served as ushers and groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Taylor chose a dress of rose nylon lace over taffeta. She used orchid accessories, and wore an orchid corsage. Mrs. Hopper, mother of the groom, chose a shell pink dress with green accessories. She also wore an orchid.

Mrs. Bollen attended school in Shamrock and Amarillo, graduating from the latter with the Class of 1948. At the time of her marriage, she was employed by the Allis - Chalmers Manufacturing Company in Amarillo.

Mr. Bollen is a graduate of Wellington High School with the Class of 1948, after attending school in Clovis, New Mexico, for two years. In Wellington, he was an outstanding athlete for four years, and while attending West Texas State College in Canyon, he was a member of the Buffalo squad. He will play there again this fall when he resumes his studies there. At present, he is an apprentice carpenter in Panhandle.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception honoring the young couple was held in the community building. Miss Sharon Swift of Wellington presided at the guest register.

The bride's table was laid with a white linen and lace cloth centered with an arrangement of pink peonies and emerald fern. A three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom and a crystal punch service also graced the table.

After Mr. and Mrs. Bollen cut the first slice of the wedding cake, it was served to the guests by Mrs. Ralph Pyszynski of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, while Miss Swift presided at the punch service.

For a wedding trip to Red River and Albuquerque, New Mexico, the bride wore a natural shantung suit with pink accessories. Her corsage was an orchid.

Out-of-town wedding guests included Mrs. Kate Stratton of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Mrs. Ralph Pyszynski and Susanna of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Ott Sisk, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shawgo, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hefner, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Jones, Jr., all of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Jones of Childress, Jimmy Williams of Childress, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Tabor, Mrs. Willie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Finice Taylor, all of Shamrock, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Savage and children of Sudan, Mrs. Ethel Brickey of Shamrock.

Mr. and Mrs. Bollen are at home at 826 Florida Street, Amarillo.

Miss Beatrice Claunch, who spent a two week vacation visiting Miss Lena King of Wichita Falls and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. King of Claude, returned home Sunday, July 15.

Old Masters in Needlepoint Bring New Beauty to Home

Figures Embroidered by Experts, But You Can Work Out Background

Rich beauty is given the home by famous paintings reproduced in needlepoint. "Blue Boy," from the painting by Sir Thomas Gainsborough, and "Pinkie," from the painting by Sir Thomas Lawrence, pair well for wall area above a table.

ART isn't necessarily something that's to be viewed only on rare visits to museums. It becomes more meaningful if it's something that's lived with, that has a part in the familiar pattern of life.

Few people can afford original paintings by great masters, but that's no reason for shutting yourself off from these classics. Reproductions are the answer.

One well-known firm, recognizing the desire of many people to hang copies of the world's best paintings in their homes, has recently introduced an "old masters" series in needlepoint.

THERE'S appeal in this series not only to the artistic leanings of homemakers, but also to their creative instincts. Although the central figures of such paintings as "Pinkie," "Blue Boy," "Age of Innocence" and "Boy With Rabbit" have already been worked on canvas by skilled Madeira craftswomen, the background is left to be finished by purchasers.

"Old Masters" kits are available in two sizes—full-length and miniature. The larger kits include antique gold or mahogany picture frames. The smaller ones include, in addition to the frames, mats, glass panes, and enough yarn to complete the backgrounds.

The large pictures are planned to be used in pairs; the miniatures, it's suggested, are attractive when hung in groups of four.

Loss From Farm Accidents Tremendous

National Farm Safety week begins Monday.

Much has been done to cut accidents in industrial plants, and the record of achievement is bright. On the other hand, the farm accident picture remains in the background, yet it is one of the damaging factors to farm economy.

Almost 18,000 farmers or members of their families lost their lives in farm accidents last year according to the National Safety Council. More than 1,500,000 farm people in the United States were envolved in accidents during the 12-month period covering 1950. This was a resident on one out of every six farms in the United States. It appears the record will be no better in 1951.

That has meant a tremendous amount of suffering and grief for those involved, looking at it from the human side. On the economic side, it has meant loss, not only to those individually concerned, but to their communities, and the the whole farm economy.

An everage of 2,400 accidents occured to farm people every day in 1948, resulting in an average of about 3 weeks lost time from regular activities for each accident.

The total annual cost of medical, dental and hospital care resulting from these accidental injuries was about $36,000,000 and the loss of time over 17,000,000 days apart from losses due to fatal accidents and those resulting in total disability. If this time lost is evaluated at the prevailing average farm wage, it comes to even more than the medical cost. And these figures do not include costs resulting from property damage and the value f the time spent by those caring for the injured.

One fourth of the injuries resulted from malls, by far the leading type of accidents. Ranking second were accidents involving machinery and animals.

Sixteen per cent of these accidents occurred in the home and 56 per cent elsewhere on the farm. Eleven per cent occurred on roads or streets and 17 per cent off the farm.

Fifty four per cent of the accidents occured while the victim was engaged in farm work, making farming one of the most hazardous of all activities.

Wellington business men are joining The Wellington Leader this week in the effort to cut down farm accidents. But these safety messages can serve only to warn and remind you to be Safety-Minded at all times. Your common sense in adhering to rules of safety alone can save you from being one of the 18,000 who will die in some type of farm accident this year.

Black Market In Beef

Those Truman political chickens are coming home to roost. If the administration had had the courage to slap a uniform freeze on all wakes and prices and had trimmed its own inflationary spending, the country would have gone along. But it refused to freeze wages and gave in to many pressure groups on prices. About the only controls that have had much effect so far are those on credit. Current howls from real estate and automobile salesmen attest to that.

Cattlemen and meat packers would have had less warrant for their objections to the DeSalle program if the controls he tried to slap on them had been part of a general wage and price freeze. But they justly object to being made selective victims—to having their selling prices fixed while their costs continue to mount. They also object to ill-informed regulations on meat cuts and to slaughtering quotas that would have given rise to another black market.

Under these circumstances, the House was justified in banning the livestock slaughtering quotas sought by the administration. There is no shortage of meat. On July 9 the Fort Worth stockyards took in the largest number of cattle for any day in about three years. Unless there is to be a complete wage and price freeze, the government had better quit tampering with beef. The outcome would mean an enormous black market and higher prices for most consumers—Dallas News.

Lame Excuses

There was a vast difference of opinion between Senator Fulbright, chairman of the committee investigating alleged use of influence of Reconstruction Finance Corporation's loans, and Donald Dawson, an administrative assistant of President Truman's after Dawson has testified.

Dawson told reporters he considered that he had been thoroughly exonerated. Fulbright disagreed and said it depended on the way one looked at it.

Apparently there was involved the old question of actual violation of some law and violation of ethics, even though not technically involving a statute. For instance, there was the case of Dawson's acceptance on three occasions of accommodations at a swank Miami hotel which had an RFC loan. He testified he did not know of the loan at the time and did not expect it to be "on the house." In fact, he frankly admitted that he "would not do it again."

Here is one of the elements of a situation which is causing more and more consideration in a sequence of cases that have come up. Perhaps no law was violated, but there is the factor of "appearance of political influence," as Sen. Fulbright said. RFC applicants too often seemed to think that influence was needed. Whether it was a fur coat for someone supposed to have "inside" approach, tearing up checks at the race tracks that had been cashed for a senator, or any of scores of other incidents, they have come to stand for what a lot of people believe to be enough to warrant a demand for higher standards.

This brings up another assertion of Mr. Dawson, evidently intendent to excuse his acts: "I didn't do a thing a lot of people haven't done."

Doubtless that is true, but it does not minimiize the act. Perhaps that is the trouble. It is a general breakdown. "Everybody's doing it," seems to have become a common excuse for actions which if not illegal can be counted unethical and dangerous to maintaining a high level of public honesty.

Boiled in Oil

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note. The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek has joined the general trend, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editar:

For a long time now in nearly every paper I pick up out here I've been noticin that practically everybody these days is askin for a rate increase. The telephone company, the water company, the government tax experts, children's allowances, barbers, tailor shops, coal miners, clerks, soda skeets, district judges, policemen, congressmen....everybody at one time or another has been askin for an increase.

Now I have always been in favor of everybody makin as much as they can, never did like to see how cheap I could work, in fact had rather sit around doin nothin than work at a rate which wouldn't return me at least 8 percent on my investment, and I got my investment figured pretty high, same as a lot of other folks, but I have been readin and readin and I haven't found anybody who's demandin a rate increase for me.

All I can see is a big howl for a rate reduction for farmers, with this fellow DeSaille rollin back the price on cattle every time he's interviewed in Washington, even if his rollbacks do have a hard time findin their way on the meat counter. I know cotton is sellin for a pretty good price now, but ain't nobody much got any cotton to sell now. Wait until the stuff really starts flowin to the gin. If this year is anything like most years, us farmers will be in for a rate reduction, as sure as cotton is high at plantin time and low at pickin time, as sure as politicians reduce taxes while they're runnin and raise em when they get safely in.

Now I know a few stores in New York have cut the price on electric razors and aspirin tablets and a few similar items, but it ain't lowered the cost of livin out here at Buck Creek a bit. They could cut the price of locomotives half in two and it wouldn't affect me none. I got very little use for a locomotive at any price.

I ain't given up yet, I'm gonna keep on readin, but I'm still lookin form some bird who has come out for a rate increase for me. Farm products may be high, compared to what they was ten years ago, but as far as I can tell I fall just as shy of makin ends meet now as I did then.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Parables Tell Tales Of Timeless Truth

Ever since man first began to express himself, he has used stories to dramatize those facts observed in real life happenings.

In the Bible these stories are called parables. The truths that they have to declare do not depend upon being literal any more than the fables of Aesop who wrote much about animals but always with the faults and frailities of humans in mind.

Among the most famous parables is the one concerning the Prodigal Son. A large part of its greatness rests in the fact that it might have concerned any father or son. Even if Jesus himself had recounted an actual case of a father and son from his experience, it could have been no more credible than the parable.

A natural outgrowth of Oriental imagery and figures of speech, parables enabled Jesus to express living truths with fairy book simplicity. How much less effective his messages would have been if couched in philosophical oratory.

Of interest is the fact that the parables of Jesus always concerned people. Never did they relate the deeds of animals or imaginary creatures. As a result they were true to life glimpses of what can happen, and convincing exampies of what does happen.

Even more important is the realization that what the parables relate might happen at any time and in any place. They are as true to life today as they were to the life of the day when Jesus uttered them.

For this reason, we, and our children, must live by the truth of the parables that our own lives may be models of virtue.

Report From Europe

By WILLIAM B. DILLINGHAM
Special Correspondent For The Wellington Leader

Yugoslavia—Yugoslavia is the only country in Europe where the cheapest dinner in the cheapest resturant will run no less than six dollars. The price is, of course, only valid if the customer is not very hungry.

I walked into the official Yugoslav tourist agency in Skoplje (they have a sign outside: welcome strangers) and bought some special certificates that give foreign tourists a seventy percent reduction on hotels and meals. These little paper coupons look like "monopoly money" and are called "pudnik dinard" (in contrast to the official state dinard). If a hotel or dinner bill amounts to 1000 state dinard-or $20- then the tonrist can pay in his "monopoly money" and hope to get out of the place for about six dollars. Of course, the only way one can get these special certificates is by exchanging hard currencies like dollars, francs, etc.

The girl in the Pudnik office filled out my small currency booklet which informs interested parties just what's what with my thin bankroll. Then she issued me a special card which foreigners need to enter any hotel and also a special paper which permitted me to enter a hotel in that particular city. Then my name went down in a tremendous book which stated how much Pudnik dinard I had bought. Receipts, certificates and documents were piling up fast and my arm was tired from signing triplicate copies of everything when the girl said: "Do you people in America use this same control system?"

That question sort of caught me off guard. It was like the famous "do you still beat your wife."

"Nobody is interested in your bankroll except your creditors, wife and tax collector", I said. "And as for needing all these documents just to enter a hotel, well the only paper you need is issued by the treasury department. We call them dollar bills."

A little later I left the Pudnik office and decided to look around the city. The shops were pretty bare, as it turned out, so that a tourist's interesting pastime of window shopping was just about non--existent. I entered a store that compares to the American five and dime chains and scouted around the counters. The very best of what I saw was extremely poor in every way. The principal business of the store seemed to be the sale of coffee and donuts. I don't think anybody was at the other counters, as there was very little stock there anyway. Nowhere in Yugoslavia did I ever at any time see counters or windows full of canned goods like in other European countries. Perhaps one would see an isolated bottle of preserves from a farm somewhere on display now and then, but the complete lack of everything is almost impossible to describe. In an entire afternoon I saw only three automobiles in Skoplje, and they were official, which might give an idea of the wealth of the country at this time. Gasoline, of course, is completely impossible to buy unless one is a foreigner in the country. If a citizen were given the right to own an automobile (were an automobile for sale), he would then, however, be issued ration tickets. Just what he would do for oil, though, I couldn't say. I searched Skoplje from one end of town to the other and all I got was a suggestion to use castor oil till I left the country. I finally got a tip that oil could be had at a certain old junk yard. The attendant there was reluctant to even discuss business until I showed him my passport to assure him I was not a government agent. When he seemed satisfied as to my identity, he said in broken English: "Oil you want, eh? I got special for you."

He showed me a bottle of dirty black fluid and beamed from ear to ear like a kid with chocolate syrup.

"Oil very good", he said, "from chief's car, only used 700 miles, guarantee."

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

LET'S STOP THIS WASTE!

"Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples, saying, 'The scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat: All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works; for they say, and and do not.' "—Matthew 3:23. From this admonition of Christ has grown a popular precept, usually reserved for mortals who haven't formed the habit of practicing what they preach. It goes like this: Do as he says, not as he does.

Leland Burress, editor of the Gooding (Idaho) Weekly Leader, thinks the precept might well apply in the case of Edward H. Foley, a Federal Treasury official, and what happened recently at Sun Valley. Mr. Foley had come out to Sun Valley from Washington to tell the Idaho Bankers Association what this country needs and what each citizen should do. Mr. Buress, the reporter-editor, got the facts.

SAYING AND DOING

What Mr. Foley said: "One major financial mobilization need at this time each individual citizen be made acutely aware of the desirability of curtailing his own expenditure programs so far as they fall outside the defense area." In other words, we citizens must cut down on non-essential expenses, tighten up the old belt, cheerfully sacrifice our pleasures so that we can meet the tax bill for the nation's defense.

What Mr. Foley did: He took with him to Sun Valley his wife and Mr. Preston Delano, Federal comptroller, and Mrs. Delano. The Foley party disdained use of commercial transportation. They decidided, it seems, to make the trip a pleasure junket supreme. A 40-passenger four-motored Coast Guard transport, with a crew of six officers and enlisted men, became the private air-liner for the party of four. The Foley party remained at the swank Sun Valley resort altogether four days—and so did the flight crew of six. Just the gas, oil and lubrication for the party's junket cost an estimated $1,945 and the crew's pay and maintenance expense for the four-motored Coast Guard transport must, of course, be added to the cost which the citizen-taxpayer must "tighten up the old belt" to pay!

HIGHEST COST OF GOVERNMENT

Mr. Burress, the Idaho newspaperman, wasn't searching out secerts. The story of what Mr. Foley said and what Mr. Foley did was dropped in his lap. The big Coast Guard C-54 came down on the Goodling field and stayed four days while the Foley party enjoyed Sun Valley scenery and the famed cooking. The several thousand dollars waste of taxpayer's money and the inconsistency in what this Federal Treasury official said what he did is but a tidbit example of what's transpiring on a huge, wholesale scale in our government.

Before the Communists invaded South Korea and drew the United States into the war, the Hoover Comission had turned up sufficient evidence of bureaucratic mismanagement and waste to warrant recommendation of $3 to $4 billion reduction in Federal spending; and in the President's present $72 billion budget for the coming fiscal year qualified authorities on Federal finance have said $9 or $10 billion of unnecessary spending could be saved by the institution of common-sense economic measures—without hurting the defense effort.

ECONOMY—YES AND NO

"Strict economy in non-defense spending is required," said President Truman in his budget message. And Secretary of Defense Marshall echoed: "We must avoid waste of the productive energies that have helped make our nation powerful." That's what they say. But where are the economy measures? Well, the Secretary of the Treasury has just renewed a request $100 billion in new taxes—which would hit the earnings of everyone a severe blow.

It is true (as Secretary Snyder says- that we should balance the budget. This is a basic need to halt ruinous inflation. But it is also true that persent tax revenue would be more than sufficient to meet all the real needs of the government—IF capable management and strict ecenomy were applied throughout the whole extravagant and seemingly heedless Federal bureaucracy. It's a big "IF." Tightening up the old belt seems to be a slogan meant only for taxpayers. For govrenment employees and bureaus it just simply doesn't mean what it says. Mr. Foley's under-secretary of the Treasury, has demonstrated that fact. It is high time the taxpayers caller a halt to the gross extravagence in our government, for it is robbing us all and dissipating the productive energies of the whole nation. Unless we do the outcome could be very serious.

Let's Consider Safety

National Farm Safety Week

Is July 22-28

Safety is a big consideration on the farm today. Lack of it is meaning the loss of thousands of lives each year, and the loss of property and vital time. Every farmer knows safety measures pay in dollars and cents.

There is another "safety" important to farmers, that of their bank. The City State Bank has been a safe place for farmers to do business for over 40 years. This safeness enables us to make a valuable contribution to the farm economy of this county.

Memorial

(The following letter was received by the family of the late Mrs. W. T. Bounds from Mrs. Mae Gillispie of Roaring Spring, a dear friend of the Bounds family, and is printed below as a memoriam to Mrs. Bounds.)

Dear Mr. Bounds and Children:

I have just learned of your loss of one of the sweetest Christian mothers I ever knew.

Truly she was a real mother of Israel, true blue through and through.

I heard through others a week or more ago that a Mrs. Bounds of Wellington had passed away. I felt alarmed, feared it might be our own beloved Mrs. Bounds, but hoped it was not. But I considered it sadly true this morning when Nell told me she had visited her people and found it was our Mrs. Bounds who had gone to be with Jesus.

I am grieving with you and wish I might say something to lighten your burdens, but I can only tell you to put your trust in your Mother's God. May every step take be a still closer walk with Him. You can not call your loved one back, but you can talk to her.

Live as your precious one lived, and do as she has taught you---to put God first in every thing.

She has paid the debt we all must pay. May we all be as well prepared as was she.

I can see her so plainly now as when we used to worship together. She would, with tearful eyes, plead with the unsaved to seek God. Her testimony was always a blessing to others. Her face has shone with the love of God as with tears of joy flowing down her cheeks and a heavenly smile spread over her beautiful countenance.

God grant that her mantle may fall upon her children and their memory of her help and prayers be a comfort to you, Mr. Bounds, and help you put forth a greater effort in your declining years to live so as to meet your dear companion in heaven. I know you will be as faithful as you have always been.

Again may God's sustaining grace be sufficient for this sad hour.

Prayerfully and with a heart full of Christian love for each of you, I am

An Old-time friend,
Mae S. Gillespie.

DEATHS FROM FARM ACCIDENTS TOTAL 18,000 EACH YEAR

Each year farm people suffer about 18,000 deaths and 1,500,000 disabling injuries due to accidents, Charles F. Brannen, Secretary of Agriculture, reminded during Farm Safety Week, July 22-28.

Unprecedented changes affecting manpower on farms have taken place in the last ten years. During that period the number of farm workers has decreased by over 1,000,000. More than twice as many tractors and trucks are now used on farms and only half as many horses and mules. Eighty-six per cent of all farms are now provided with electrical service. Due to this increase in mechanization, together with better varieties, better methods, and oher factors, the output per man-hour is 50 per rent higher than it was as recently as 1937.

While these changes have enabled us to increase agricultural production substantially, they have at the same time increased the hazards of farm operations. For this reason it is more important than ever that farmers follow safe practices in their work.

Defense needs also emphasize the importance of farm safety. Farm workers are now highly skilled and replacement more difficult. There is little reserve manpower to meet the need for increased output. This year there will be some replacement of trained farm workers by younger or olders men and women who are less experienced and these persons will undoubtedly be more prone to accidents. Prevention of accidents on farms is an essential part of our defense program.

Field workers of the Department are urged to use every opportunity to encourage the adoption of safe practices in farming and farm living. I ask all Department agencies to cooperate in promoting National Farm Safety Week and to emphasize throughout the year the fact that accidents can be prevented.

A Modernized Art

Spinal manipulation was first used by the Egyptians and the Greek physicians many years before Christ. Chiropractic, as known and practiced today, was founded by Dr. D. D. Palmer in 1895. He systematized and developed this form of spinal adjusting and prepared himself to teach it. Dr. Palmer established the fact that constriction of the spinal nerve openings through joint deviations affects the spinal nerve root as well as the spinal cord and is in many cases the fundamental cause of symptoms of various ailments. He based his reasoning on results obtained in his clinical practice, and later proved his work by the X-ray.

Due to its beneficial results, the science has attained wide recognition ranking as the largest drugless profession with numerous colleges, clinics and sanitariums. The professional training to practice covers a period of four years.

From statistics compiled by the Chiropractic Research Bureau it is of particular interest to note that spinal adjustments obtains results in many conditions where traditional methods prove ineffective.

PARDON us if we play switchman with a familiar railroad phrase, but we aim to flag down some certain people . . .

Those folks who've always had a great big yen for a new Buick, but a big worry that Buick prices ran too high for their budgets.

Now we'll have to grant you that —on style and beauty and size and impressive appearance — a 1951 Buick looks like a pretty high price tag.

And we'll have to grant, too, that the zooming power and the luxurious ride and the heavyweight steadiness you get in a Buick would also indicate prices beyond the reach of most people.

But honestly, you'll find nothing farther from the truth when you note the price tags on 1951 Buicks.

You'll find that beauty with the big-power, big-mileage, valve-in-head Fireball Engine is really within your budget picture—with prices starting below those of many of today's sixes.

And you'll have to admit then and there that you can have Buick room and comfort, can have Buick ride and handling, can have Buick style and size—for little, if any, more than you've been paying for lesser cars.

That leaves the next step up to you—stopping in to see us.

CAP CADETS REPORT ON ACTION DUTY TRAINING PERIOD RECENTLY

C. A. P. Cadets met with the Senior members Friday night and Donald Green gave a report on the two weeks encampment at Goodfellow Air Force Base from which five cadets had just returned.

The mission of the summer encampment is to provide an action duty training period during which the CAP cadets will receive both academic and vocational instruction. It affords an opportunity for them to review and demonstrate their proficiency in CAP training and to earn appropriate certificates and awards.

It provides cadets with an opportunity to gain intimate knowledge of the operation of an Air Force Base and to familiarize them with the scope of the United States Air Force training program.

Cadet Green reported that a C-46 met the five boys in Childress, with cadets from Fort Worth on board. They stopped in Sweetwater and picked up cadets there and the next stop was Goodfellow Air Force Base where they were met and made welcome and assigned to their barracks.

"They had good food there," Cadet Green said, "and all the ice cream you could eat, three times a day."

He also said demerits were given for the failure to maintain standards of neatness and cleanliness of quarters and person; failure to follow instructions of duly appointed officers and instructors; acts prejudicial to good order and military discipline, and others they would think up.

There was an inspection every morning, but on Saturday morning they had to stand inspection before all the top brass of the CAP, and march in review.

The academic training included "Our Air Age (history and development)", Rockets, Jet Propulsion, Types and Classification of Aircraft, Why the Airplane Flies, Power Plants, Weather Interpreting, Radar, Role of the Radar Observer, Map Reading, Airways Traffic Control, and Flight Instruments.

Special and miscellaneous training included packing and use of parachutes, Synthetic Trainer (Link), First Aid, Operations Tour, Flying, Rating Lecture, Military Courtesy and Orientation Lecture, tour of base shops, Air Force films, physical training and drill.

An examination was given them on Friday morning and Wayne Hennard made 98 1-2, which was the second highest grade made of the boys in his flight group. There were 125 boys from Texas and Louisiana.

They also had a graduation exercise and the boys were presented with diplomas by Col. Byrd.

Sunday they were taken to Brady to a rodeo and picnic.

The boys were divided into two flights and part of the boys went up in a C-47 and the others in a B-25. They were quite thrilled with the ride and they got to take over the controls for a short time.

Some of the boys got airsick while flying and Cadet Green said he got sick, but didn't have to use the burp can.

The boys had to work hard, but enjoyed the encampment and would like to go back again next year.

The C-47 brought the boys back to Childress where they were met and brought home.

The boys taking the trip included Wayne Henard, Donald Green, Warren Moore, Ray Bradshaw, and Bobby Jack Watson.

Cadets attending the meeting Friday night included Henard, Green, Moore, Watson, Mearon Finley, Judd, and two new cadets, Misses Naneen Pound and Barbara Stroop.

"All boys and girls are invited to meet and visit with the cadets any Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at Marian Air Park," Weldon Cleveland, commandant of cadets, said. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harwell are assistants and are there to help every Friday night.

Rufus Hayes, Carl Estes, Bryan Denley and Cicero Gulley were in Pampa Monday night to attend the district meeting and banquet held by the State Barbers Board.

HOUSE THAT ALAIN BUILT—Six-year-old Alain Cardot and his mother, Mrs. Robert Cardot, gaze happily at the little doll house that served as a model for Alain's prize-winning poster in the Marshall Plan's Child Art Contest. The Cardot family (that's 10-month-old Fylzie in the center) lives in a one-room Paris walk-up.

ACP Has Three Functions in Helping Farmers

The Agricultural Conservation Program has three major functions in helping farmers produce what is needed in the Nation's defense effort, says J. A. Coleman, chairman of the Collingsworth County Production and Marketing Administration Committee. The first is to prevent a breakdown of the farm plant through erosion, leaching or deterioration. Such a breakdown not only reduces production to meet present needs but it means less from this land in the future.

ACP does this by assisting farmers in the construction of terraces, laying out contours as a pattern for farming operations, building of erosion control dams, sodding waterways, and installing structures to handle excess run-off without damage to the land. The second function is to aid in carrying out conservation practices which prevent erosion from getting started. This is done by building up resistance to erosion by strengthening the soil structure. Turning under a green manure crop to restore organic matter and humus to the soil as a means of strengthening the soil structure is an example.

The third and vitally important function today is helping farmers to carry out soil and water conservation practices to increase production from the farm plant. All ACP conservation work has this for its objective but some practices are more effective in accomplishing this end than others.

The use of sweet clover or some other good legume in rotation to restore nitrogen and vegetable matter to the soil, the conservation of moisture through contour farming, increasing livestock production through pasture renovation and improvement are examples.

Mr. Coleman said that attention now is centered on those practices which will result in greater production to meet today's needs, with particular emphasis on practices which meet the needs of individual farms.

The 1951 production guides for agriculture call for the greatest total volume in history; 43 per cent more than the 1935-39 average; 4 per cent more than last year. The biggest increases are needed in cotton, corn and other feed grains, wheat and rice with substantial increases also in truck crops.

Agriculture must meet this challenge in the fact of limited land resources and limited labor resources. Therefore agriculture must concentrate largely on making existing acres and existing man-hours of labor produce more abundantly.

This new demand has come at a time when American agriculture already is producing at a very high level. It comes at a time when American agriculture is maintaining in production just about every acre of the farm lands now available to crop production. This situation means that agriculture cannot look to new land and expanded farm acreages to satisfy the Nation's immediate growing needs for food and fibre. It means that agriculture must concentrate largely on making existing acreages produce more abundantly.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Starr have as their guest her four-year-old granddaughter, Diana Lynn Davis of Oklahoma City. Diana Lynn came July 4 with Mrs. Starr's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Morton, also of Oklahoma City, who spent the holiday here.

Strongs to Floral Exhibit Meeting

"Flowers are the language of the heart which everyone may understand." The old saying was made incarnate Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the floral exhibits and Period Arrangements at the Baker Hotel in Dallas. The occasion was the 38th Annual Convention of the Texas State Florists' Association. Attending from Wellington were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Strong of Strong's Flowers.

Roses, gardenias, carnations, lilies, and even the fabled lotus blossoms were evident in lavish color and arrangements. The scene was a bower of delight for homemakers seeking new ways to decorate dinner tables, tea party settings, and wedding scenes. Receiving particular attention was an oval table covered in pale pink satin with a pink net overskirt. From out a crystal urn spilled a profusion of pink carnations, roses, and pompom mums, and scattered about the table were pale pink gardenias. Crystal candelabra held tall, pink tapers.

Another table with eye-appeal was the Georgian English, which featured red roses and silver on a cut lace cloth over red satin.

The Chinese and Chinese Modern held a special appeal for some, and the South American theme was a vivid, colorful arrangement of red, yellow, and salmon colored blossoms, set on a green metallic lace cloth.

Tables for special occasions were prominent, such as the Pink Elephant motif for cocktail parties, the stork in a hurricane lamp for baby showers, and the silver Christmas trees with gardenia decoration for holiday wedding receptions.

Among the Period Arrangements were Modern, Early American, Renaissance, Georgian, Japanese Modern, and numerous others. The 17th and 18th century Dutch-Flemish exhibit was attracting considerable attention in this group, and a photograph of the French Period Arrangement will be used on the cover of a Southwestern magazine in the Spring.

As the poet, Thomas Hood, once wrote, "I remember, I remember the roses, red and white, the violets, and the lily-cups", so, too, will the delegates to the 38th Convention of the Texas State Florists' Association remember — and remember!

Why 1/1000th of an inch is important

Our servicemen use micrometers to make sure their work matches IH factory standards to the thousandth of an inch. This is important to you because many McCormick parts fit within hairline tolerances. If a part is too tight, it can bind and burn out. Too loose, it wears out fast. Let us prove that IH 5-Star Service gives you more service between servicings.

Servicemen who spend 95% of their time on Farmall tractors, naturally know more about those tractors than mechanics who work on Farmalls only occasionally. Plus—our servicemen have access to factory bulletins, information and training, that is available ONLY to our mechanics in this area.
