

Building year said likely to fall short of '82 total

The building year in Snyder is winding down and, with one month to go, the indication is new construction estimates will again fall short of comparable figures for the previous year.

These estimates are based on the city's fiscal year, which runs from Oct. 1-Sept. 30.

By the end of August, the running total was closing on last year's estimate but still shy some $500,000. This year to date, some $5.8 million in new projects has been applied for. The same figure last year at the end of August was some $6.3 million.

Exact figures for both are $5,865,475 and $6,378,388 respectively.

During 1982, building estimates closed out in excess of $7.4 million, but this figure was still behind the 12-month estimate for 1981 when almost $8.5 million was reported.

The exact figures for both years are $7,446,338 and $8,493,613 respectively.

Following these figures, for 1983 to surpass 1982, the month of September would have to produce new construction figures in excess of $1.6 million. This year, the $1 million mark during a single month's time period has been exceeded only twice.

The August total came close, however, as it topped out at more than $924,000 in new building estimates.

The city does have one major project conceived during 1983 but as yet not listed on the building permit books. This is the 24-unit housing area newly named Golden Terrace Village, the city's first housing area designed for its senior citizen population.

Initial estimates for it project construction costs in excess of $633,000.

The August totals this year were boosted by an $180,000 project begun by the Snyder Independent School District at East Elementary.

It entails the addition of permanent classroom space at the campus and is being built by a Big Spring firm, Johnston Construction.

Permits for seven new residences were issued during the month as well, adding a combined total of almost $495,000 million to the year's figure.

Building permits for new residences were issued to Ben Hollis, 4700 El Paso; Billy Briggs, 1701 Cedar Creek Drive; Ron Deburin, 4208 Lubbock; Mark Holdren, 3615 Ave. E; Mike L. Graves, 3100 Ave. U; and the building firm of August Homes for a residence at 4701 El Paso.

The month's permits included also nine mobile home move-ins which tallied another $146,000 to the new construction total.

These were issued to Joseph Thamez Sr., 412 27th St.; Ida Pinkerton, 607 North Ave. R; F.M. Richardson, 1906 Ave. O; Patrick Keahey, 2109 Gilmore; Anthon Wade, 2403 27th St.; Roy Pierce, 2208 Gilmore; Roy Blassingame, 215 25th St.; Linda Rains, 2405 O'Neal; and Walter Banks, 507 31st St.

The 1983 total through August has included 46 new residences in Snyder, 13 new commercial buildings and 74 mobile home move-ins.

Ask Us

Q. — Is it against the law to camp in roadside parks?

A. — Officials with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation say that due to "flagrant abuse" of these rest stop areas, recent legislation has made it illegal to erect tents or other such structures without a state permit or to remain in roadside parks, rest areas, comfort stations or picnic areas for more than 24 hours.

In Brief

Gunman undergoes tests

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A 36-year-old man who said he held a man hostage for about eight hours because he could not get treatment for a heart condition underwent medical tests after he surrendered to authorities.

The hostage, identified as Keith Rickwartz, was held for nearly eight hours at a farmhouse south of Amarillo before he was released at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, said Randall County Sheriff Cliff Longest. The unidentified gunman walked out of the house about 10 minutes later and threw down a high-powered rifle, Longest said.

The unidentified gunman took three people hostage about 4:30 p.m. Saturday, but two of them, a woman and a child, escaped about an hour later and called sheriff's deputies, said Longest.

Investigators were not sure of the relationship between the two men but believed they were partners in the stables and that Rickwartz lived on the farm, sheriff's dispatcher Randy Rogers said.

Nuclear plant faces delay

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Utility officials say a federal investigation of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant could delay the plant's scheduled opening next year at a possible $1 million a day cost in interest and replacement power.

The plant, begun in 1972, is already three years behind schedule. New regulations imposed since the 1979 Three Mile Island nuclear plant accident in Pennsylvania have been major contributors to its current estimated cost of $3.44 billion — four times the original estimate.

Officials of Texas Electric Service Co., the plant's owner, decline to estimate how much consumers' bills might rise if the plant does not go on-line as scheduled next year. But utility officials in other parts of the country told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that if the plant's opening is delayed until 1985, interest and replacement power could cost $1 million a day.

Rebels attack another city

SAN MIGUEL, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas unleashed an artillery barrage on the country's third largest city and killed or wounded at least 60 government troops in possibly the heaviest rebel offensive in three months.

Civilian and military sources said at least 80 mortar rounds fell on the barracks of the army's 3rd Infantry Brigade and other buildings in San Miguel — the rebels' first major mortar attack on a city. In most instances the guerrillas have used automatic rifles, machine guns and hand-held rocket launchers.

More Marines are wounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines shelled by militiamen retaliated with mortar fire early today as civil warfare continued a day after the Israeli army completed its withdrawal from 235 square miles of Lebanese territory near Beirut.

Lebanese police said at least 51 people have been killed and 133 wounded in the sectarian fighting since Sunday, and Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan said four Marines have been injured.

Shuttle...

Crew lands in the dark

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Challenger and its crew dropped eerily out of the darkness and settled safely on a brilliantly lit desert runway early today, ending six flawless days in orbit with the first night landing in the U.S. astronaut program.

Like an ancient ghost ship emerging from a fog bank, the 100-ton space plane appeared suddenly out of a star-filled sky just 80 to 90 feet above the runway, the blazing ground lights gleaming off the fuselage.

The crew, commanded by Richard Truly, included America's first black astronaut, Guion Bluford; the oldest person ever to fly in space, Dr. William Thornton, 54; pilot Dan Brandenstein, and mission specialist Dale Gardner.

Truly set Challenger down at 12:40 a.m. PDT in the center of a dazzling array of lights that turned the landing strip into artificial day. That was 53 minutes after the ship's braking rockets were triggered 137 miles above the Indian Ocean to start the astronauts on a fiery homeward dive.

Landing was smooth and right on the center line. Frosting on the cake for a mission that demonstrated the maturity of America's space transportation system. A flight director termed the flight "the best so far" in the shuttle program.

"Welcome back, great show," Mission Control radioed the astronauts as they rolled down the runway, kicking up a rooster tail of dust, transformed into a silvery veil by the xenon lights.

"Sure was fun; let's go do it again," Truly remarked.

Thirty-five minutes after touchdown, the space travelers, smiling and in good spirits, emerged from the craft and made a walkaround inspection, pleased that it looked to be in good shape. They then drove by van for a physical examination and a shower.

"This was just a fabulous mission, the cleanest mission yet...just superb," said Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, director of the shuttle program.

The landing came as the shuttle was on its 98th orbit, six days after being launched for the first time at night in a breathtaking departure from Cape Canaveral in Florida.

Touchdown was on concrete runway 22.

LOCAL PLEDGE CENTER — Members of the Snyder Chapter of the American Business Women's Association have been manning the local telephones for the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon since the show began Sunday evening. By 9:30 a.m. Monday, the local pledge center,

Steps against Soviet Union...

Reagan to unveil plan tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will unveil in a nationally broadcast speech tonight a series of steps, including restriction on aviation, against the Soviet Union in response to what he says was the "barbaric, uncivilized, cold-blooded" Soviet attack on a Korean passenger jet.

While speech writers were at work Sunday on Reagan's 15-minute address to be delivered at 8 p.m. EDT, word filtered down from the administration that a U.S. reconnaissance aircraft had been operating in the area in which the Soviets first began tracking the Korean airplane.

An administration source who spoke on the condition that he not be named said the presence of the plane, an RC-135 considerably smaller than the Korean jumbo jet, raised the possibility that the Soviets thought they were tracking the U.S. aircraft when they actually were pursuing the passenger jet.

However, at the time of the attack, the U.S. spy plane was 1,000 miles away, the source said. The airplane was on a routine mission checking for violations of the U.S.-Soviet treaty governing strategic nuclear weapons, the source said.

U.S. officials said that while the planes may have crossed paths, the Soviets had approximately two hours to realize they were on the trail of a Korean airliner.

Another administration official said Sunday that "it is possible" the jetliner was shot down after leaving Soviet airspace. "It was very close. It may have actually been a mile outside of their airspace when they shot it down," he said.

In Moscow, the Soviet anti-aircraft defense chief offered his country's fullest explanation yet of what happened last Thursday. Col. Gen. Semyon Romanov, however, did not admit to shooting anything more powerful than "warning shots with tracer shells."

Family photo has no family

Volunteer workers for the Scurry County family history book, "Footprints Across Scurry County," received a family photo of a different nature last week.

As of Monday, it is a family photo without a family.

The studio portrait — encased in a cardboard frame bearing the name "Rogers Studio, Snyder, Tex." — was found by a local woman on the parking lot of Lubbock Christian College.

Since the photo has no other identifying information, Linda Proctor of Snyder turned it into history book volunteers.

The photo is reproduced here and is available at the SDN office if anyone knows who its rightful owner is.

Meanwhile, history book supporters urge local residents to get their family histories turned in before the Sept. 16 deadline. Stories of less than 500 words plus one family photo will be included in the book free of charge.

Conspiracy theory ruled put, newspaper says

DALLAS (AP) — Police theories of a conspiracy among Texas millionaire Henry Harrison Kyle's children were apparently rejected by a California grand jury which indicted one of Kyle's sons in his death, The Dallas Morning News reports.

The newspaper quoted an unidentified source close to the investigation as saying no indictment was handed down on Kyle's other son, Scott, or on Jackie Phillips, Kyle's daughter by a different marriage. Both were questioned by Los Angeles police in connection with the slaying.

Kyle was shot to death at his mansion in the posh Bel-Air section of Los Angeles July 22. The 60-year-old tycoon was president of Four Star International, a television and motion picture production company.

Two Dallas lawyers confirmed Saturday that the grand jury handed down a sealed indictment Tuesday charging Rick Kyle with first-degree murder and using a handgun in the commission of a crime.

Rick Kyle's attorney, Jack Pate, confirmed that Kyle would return voluntarily to Los Angeles from Denton where he is a student at North Texas State University. He faces arraignment Wednesday.

"He's disappointed, I think, and somewhat confused," Pate said.

The Los Angeles Times reported that Rick Kyle decided not to fight extradition from Texas after Los Angeles authorities agreed to lower his bail from $500,000 to an undisclosed amount.

Rick Kyle told family friends that his father was shot by an intruder who also shot him in the elbow as he fled the mansion, the Times said. He was treated at a hospital and released.

Frank Wright, a Dallas attorney representing Ms. Phillips, said he had been in Los Angeles last week investigating police and prosecution allegations against his client.

Wright said autopsy reports showed Kyle was killed from a bullet that struck him in the side and passed through his chest, piercing his heart.

The lawyer said Kyle, despite his fatal injury, managed to fire five shots from his .357-magnum handgun.

Korean-Americans...

Protest plane downing

DALLAS (AP) — Several hundred Korean-Americans, chanting their desire to kill the Soviets who shot down a South Korean jumbo jetliner, were prevented from burning a Soviet flag and settling for stomping the shreds of three homemade banners.

Police told the leaders of the rally staged Sunday on a plaza in front of Dallas City Hall if they burned the flags as planned they would be arrested for violating a city ordinance.

The rally was one of several held in Texas on Sunday to protest the shooting down of the civilian jetliner with 269 people aboard.

In San Antonio, about 150 to 200 people gathered at the Northeast Korean Baptist Church to watch black-belt Won Pae Pak burn a Soviet block and us a karate chop to smash two boards painted red with yellow Soviet hammer and sickle emblem on top.

"Let them get to hell, let all the murders go down to hell," shouted Pak.

"Burn and destroy the murderers of the world, destroy the communists, destroy," he shouted as he smashed the boards he said represented the Soviet Union.

About 300 to 400 other Korean-Americans attended a candlelight memorial service Sunday at the Korean United Methodist Church in San Antonio.

In Houston, more than 500 Korean, Vietnamese, Chinese gathered at City Hall to burn a Soviet flag and demand sanctions against that nation to protest the killing of the 269 people aboard the jetliner.

Henry Song, president of the Korean-American chapter of the Lions Club in Dallas, estimated that at least 500 people, including a small group of Afghans living in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, attended the afternoon rally.

The group waved placards, with sayings such as "Stop Soviet Murder" and "U.S.S.R. — You are the Killer," and chanted slogans in Korean and English calling on the U.S. government to take "strong action" against the Soviet Union.

"You are murderers, you are killers, you are inhumane," went one chant. "We want to kill you, but we can't."

A Catholic priest, the Rev. John Kim of Dallas, later led the rally in prayer in Korean.

The United States has charged that a Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 en route from New York to Seoul was downed Wednesday by a Soviet missile. The crash killed 269 people.

An estimated 15,000 Korean-Americans live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Song said. About 100 people attended a similar rally in downtown Fort Worth.

Song told a police officer at the Dallas rally, Sgt.

J.F. Newton, that the rally organizers wanted to burn a Soviet flag to symbolize their hatred for the Soviet Union. "We've got to do it," he said later.

But Newton warned Song that anyone caught burning a flag would be charged with violating a city ordinance. Police officers surrounding the crowd were told to make arrests if the flags were torched.

Instead, the rally organizers ripped the flags in shreds to the cheers of the crowd and spread them along the ground.

"They'd charge us with a misdemeanor, so we've got to do it this way," Song said.

Galveston beaches are empty over weekend

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Beaches on this resort island were relatively bare the first two days of the holiday weekend, and an official said merchants would lose at least $1 million in tourism-related revenue.

"I hope we can retain 20 or 25 percent (of the tourism business) of a normal weekend, but that is probably a bit high," said Jack Bushong, executive director of Galveston's Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"The hospitality industry here is sitting on absolute zero right now," Bushong said.

Galveston has been losing $200,000 to $300,000 daily in potential tourist revenue since Hurricane Alicia pummeled the island Aug. 18 with 115-mph winds and 12-foot tides, Bushong said.

This weekend alone, Galveston merchants will lose at least $1 million, Bushong said.

"There isn't a merchant in town who isn't affected" by the hurricane, he said, adding about 1,200 Galveston area residents are unemployed because of the storm.

"I got the impression that business was pretty much back to normal," said Stanley Cosden of Houston, who came to the island for the day by bus to fish. "But I was misled. This looks like a ghost town."

Betty Perkins of the Gander Gift Shop on Seawall Boulevard said the store was "doing just a smidgeon of the business we usually do."

"Usually, businesses here like to go out with a bang," Ms. Perkins said. "But this is just a mess."

Bushong said the few people who came to the island Saturday and Sunday came primarily to sightsee and survey the damage done by Alicia.

"It's quite obvious these people are sightseeing, because nobody is on the beach," he said. "For the most part, these people are out for a Sunday drive."

Officer Stanley Dunn of the Galveston Police Department said 150,000 to 200,000 visitors usually come to the island on holiday weekends. He estimated 30,000 to 50,000 will come this extended weekend.

"We're still in a state of disaster," Dunn said.

All major tourist attractions were open Sunday and most large restaurants were able to accommodate the people who did visit, but there are virtually no hotel rooms open to tourists on the island, Bushong said.

Only about 400 hotel rooms are open, and most of those are housing island residents whose houses were destroyed by the storm, Bushong said.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Only an hour of sleep

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm thoroughly disgusted with my doctor trying to pacify me and not doing anything about my problem. I'm a female, 63 years old and can't sleep at night. If I get one hour of sleep I'm lucky. I've been this way for a month or more. I have high blood pressure and I take one Dyazide a day. I also have arthritis and had two cortisone shots a month ago.

I have taken Nytol, Somnex, hot milk, quit drinking coffee or tea after 5 p.m. and still no results. I don't get sleepy during the day. I'm completely exhausted and I just don't know how much longer I can go on.

I lost my husband 18 months ago from a heart attack but I have adjusted to his loss pretty well and I'm not under any pressure. My doctor will not give me any nerve or sleeping pills and I would like to know what you suggest.

DEAR READER — Don't be angry with your physician. He is trying to help you without harming you with medications.

You won't appreciate the thought but perhaps he is concerned that you may have a depression. That is sometimes the cause for insomnia. And you could have a depression about the loss of your husband long after the event, rather than immediately after it.

You should discuss what you plan to do with your doctor but, with his concurrence, I would make some suggestions. First, stop coffee, tea and all sources of caffeine entirely, not just after 5 p.m. Second, you might do well with an antihistamine such as you would find in Chlor-Trimeton allergy syrup or allergy tablets that you could buy without a prescription, or the anti-motion medication Dramamine. Remember that these could make you drowsy in the day if you use them in the daytime, but they are not addicting and do not cause the same problems many sleep medications may.

Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter 10-6, Sleep and Insomnia, which includes suggestions on your lifestyle and sleep habits that may help you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 16-year-old girl, 5 foot 10 and about 85 pounds overweight. I am on a diet and exercise and have already lost 18 pounds.

I started jogging but am concerned that jogging will develop muscles which will add to my weight instead of allowing me to lose weight. I also do little exercises such as sit-ups and side bends which I think will help tone better than jogging.

DEAR READER — Muscles get just big enough and strong enough to contract against the resistance they work against, such as lifting a weight. When you walk or jog your leg muscles must be strong enough to lift your body with each step.

Just look at marathon runners and other runners and you will not see a successful runner who has large muscles. Even the leg muscles are not huge.

If you gain some muscles while you are losing fat that is good. The muscles will help you use calories even at rest and fat will not. Walking — and jogging and running for those in shape to do it — is good exercise to help lose weight. Long walks use a lot of calories. But I do like to see a well-balanced exercise program, including sit-ups and other exercises, to use all your body muscles.

America has been strengthened by the cross-pollination of many nationalities — but each had to struggle.

Irish, Italians, Jews, Poles, Swedes accepted the dirty-work jobs nobody wanted and worked their way up toward economic substance and social acceptance.

Here come the Mexicans.

We are lumping the Latins in the United States under the designation "Hispanic." That includes a polyglot assortment from South America, Puerto Rico, Cuba...

But most of the "Hispanics" making themselves at home in the United States are Mexicans.

Already they are becoming such a factor in big city politics that their vote could be decisive in a national election.

The Jimmy Carters sought diligently to learn their language.

Our present president and all those other fellows who want to be are overtly courting these who, as a bloc, could mobilize 20 percent of the vote in New York City, 14 percent in Chicago, 27½ percent in Los Angeles, 53.7 percent in San Antonio and 62½ percent in El Paso.

Already San Antonio's mayor is named Cisneros. New Mexico's governor is named Anaya.

President Reagan has designated a task force to study the economic problems of our Mexican border towns.

The National Spanish Television Network now reaches 3.1 million Spanish-speaking households in the United States.

William Velazquez, chairman of the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, says, "the drama we see unfolding is a repeat of America history — a working class immigrant people beginning to mobilize themselves."

President Reagan, now obviously running for a second term, traveled to San Antonio and El Paso to address Mexican-Americans. He dispatched George Bush to San Antonio for that purpose.

One factor tends to weaken the Mexican-American political potential. They have a very low naturalization rate, only about four percent.

But as they become citizens, eligible to vote, admissible to the mainstream, our nation's cities for the first time will become bilingual.

Everything I've said up to here is obvious. What is less obvious is the degree to which this both-parties courtship of Mexican-Americans is limiting the potential for any black candidate.

Whether incidentally or by design, the black vote is being effectively isolated.

How can Jesse Jackson protest that President Reagan ignores "minorities" when the president is so deferential to our nation's second-largest minority?

Of all black unit...

World War II pilot is proud

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — There's no bitterness when Charles Bailey remembers segregation policies in World War II when he flew 133 combat missions as a fighter pilot against the Luftwaffe and protected white bomber crews on sorties against the enemy.

But he proudly recalls that the all-black 99th

Fighter Squadron never lost a bomber to enemy aircraft.

"There's no other unit can say that," Bailey says with a smile as he relaxes in the small office of the funeral home he operates in this quiet college town.

The 99th was formed in 1941 although actual training didn't begin until early the following year.

"It was the first all-black squadron in the world," Bailey says, browsing through memorabilia pulled from a desk drawer. Behind him on a wall hang photos of him and five brothers who served in U.S. armed forces in that war. A sixth brother, Carl, flew jets in the Korean War.

Ground school, primary, basic and advance flight training were all concentrated at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, he recalls. There, pilots learned to fly in PT-17s, BT-13s and AT-6s.

Bailey joined the cadet program in late 1942 after finishing two years at Bethune-Cookman College. At 6-foot-2, Bailey still shows the physical strength that earned him a football scholarship to college and carried him through 3,000 hours in the air — most of it combat time.

He received his wings and commission as a second lieutenant in 1943 and went to Casablanca to join the 99th, which was later moved to Tunis in the fight against Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander of the German Afrika Korps.

In Africa, the black U.S. Army Air Corps squadron was assigned P-40 fighters and Bailey recalls the transition to that warplane.

"There was no practice. They told us, 'take that plane and fly it.'"

After Africa, the squadron was sent to Sicily.

"I flew missions all over Italy, to France, Austria, South Germany and Poland," he recalls. His squadron also went with the bombers that made repeated raids on the Ploesti oilfields in Romania.

In Italy, the 99th was given the P-47 Thunderbolt and later the P-51 Mustang. It was then the squadron was nicknamed "The Red Tails."

During the fighting at Anzio, Bailey shot down two German fighters and, by the time the war ended, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters.

There were few problems with whites, he explains, because the races seldom came in contact — even at airfields.

"The whites had their landing strip, and we had ours," is his explanation.

After his discharge in December 1946 Bailey returned to Bethune-Cookman for his degree in basic education.

Besides operating his funeral home, Bailey is a fourth-grade teacher at nearby Altamonte Elementary School.

Among his prize possessions is a short military film about U.S. black pilots in World War II in which he appears. It is narrated by Ronald Reagan.

Minor thefts reported here

Two minor thefts and an incident of criminal mischief were reported to police during the Labor Day Weekend.

Personnel with Concrete Inc. reported the criminal mischief incident Saturday around 9 a.m.

A window was reported broken out some time during Friday night.

In addition, police were notified of two minor thefts Saturday. Pamela Collins of 2709 Ave. G said her purse was removed from a shopping basket while she shopped at TG&Y in the Varsity Square shopping center. She noted the incident around 1:18 p.m.

A second theft was reported around 5:10 p.m. by Johnny Lowery, 1500 Ave. O. He said $100 had been removed from his apartment.

Arrests noted

Weekend arrests included eight individuals charged Saturday and three Sunday.

Saturday arrests involved one for DWI; five for public intoxication; and two for misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

One suspect was arrested Sunday for DWI and fleeing from officers. They were arrested by DPS highway patrolmen.

Two other arrests for public intoxication were noted Sunday also.

Two accidents here Saturday

Saturday incidents here included two minor wrecks, neither involving substantial damage or injuries.

The first was reported around 12:15 p.m. Saturday at 218 31st St. and involved one motorist and two parked vehicles.

The driver was listed as Ida Stuard Walken, 3105 Hill, who was driving a 1978 Pontiac. The parked vehicles were a 1969 Chevrolet owned by Marion Phillips of Wellington and a 1979 Ford owned by John James, 218 31st St.

A second accident Saturday occurred in the parking lot of K-Bobs around 4:26 p.m. It involved a parked vehicle also, a 1981 Oldsmobile owned by Margaret Maddox of Arlington. The second vehicle was driven by Lois Cumble Pierce of Rt. 1, driving a 1975 Chevrolet.

Diana's brother banned from pub

OXFORD, England (AP) — Princess Diana's 19-year-old brother has been banned for life from an Oxford nightclub, accused of being rowdy, swilling a champagne bottle and warning that he could have the club closed down.

Manager Mike Mackin said Sunday he banned Viscount Althorp — Charlie to his friends — from Boodles Club in Oxford.

"After that experience of young Charlie and his pals he's banned for life," Mackin said.

The manager said Althorp and five friends were "jumping around" and ignored two warnings from bouncer Dennis Noble to make less noise.

"He had the cheek to tell Dennis: 'Don't you know who I am? We can get you closed down.' Suddenly he blurted out: 'I'm Princess Diana's brother.' It made no difference," said Mackin.

Dr. DeBakey still working

HOUSTON (AP) — Heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey, who has performed tens of thousands of operations and written over a thousand medical articles, chapters and books, shows no signs of slowing down as he prepares to celebrate his 75th birthday on Wednesday.

DeBakey, chairman of surgery and chancellor of the Baylor College of Medicine, will supervise a multiple organ transplant center to be established at Baylor and The Methodist Hospital.

"Probably 40 to 50 physicians and scientists will be involved in the transplant center when it is fully operational sometime next year," says DeBakey, noting that surgical teams for transplanting heart, lungs, liver pancreatic tissue and bone marrow will be added to an already existing kidney transplant program at Baylor.

In addition to medical writing and treating patients, DeBakey has designed 60 operating instruments.

Wallpaper borders can enhance painted rooms

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures
Today's new fashion of putting up wallpaper borders on the walls borrows a decorative ploy that was popular in the 18th and 19th centuries.

In the past, a wallpaper border was used as a rule to finish an already papered wall. Nowadays, borders may be used in this way, but are just as likely to be applied alone to a painted wall as a decorative accent.

This practice has two advantages. First, today's often featureless rooms cry out for the imaginative use of borders to create an illusion of architectural detail. Borders are available which imitate cornices, plaster mouldings and other architectural flourishes which once were more commonplace in homes.

Second, both the original purchase of material and the cost of application are considerably less for a border than for a full wallpapering job.

One of the nice things about borders is that they offer the do-it-yourself decorator considerable scope, says Bob Jaxon, a wall-coverings designer who recently completed a border collection for a wallpaper manufacturer.

Prepasted, dry-strippable borders such as the ones he designed can be applied around windows and doors, on cornices and at the ceiling, chair rail or baseboard levels on walls.

In addition, said Jaxon, he has used them to create supergraphic effects on a wall and to personalize and customize window shades, valences, mirrors, room dividers, and folding screens as well as to dress up poster frames, and as accent trim on doors, cabinets and furniture.

Jaxon advises using a wallpaper border to correct architectural flaws in a room. For example, to raise a low ceiling, paint the ceiling a light color and extend the ceiling paint one foot down onto the walls. Paint the rest of the walls a darker hue and where the two colors meet, apply a purchased wallpaper border in a compatible design. The illusion of a higher ceiling will be the result.

To lower a ceiling, reverse the trick, painting the ceiling a dark color and the wall beneath it a lighter color.

Jaxon has also used a wallpaper border in a geometric Greek key design to create a trompe l'oeil headboard by applying the border to the wall behind a platform bed.

Another idea is to apply a border to a sliding glass door by carrying the wallpaper border across the window.

One of the most successful uses of the inexpensive borders he designed for Printpack Inc. is to decorate children's rooms. A hobby horse motif border was used, for example, to trim a crib, on the wall at crib level, to frame a bulletin board and to decorate an old truck refurbished to hold toys. The same border also decorates an inexpensive lamp and a waste bucket.

"Later, as the child grows and matures, you can strip off the juvenile border and select something more sophisticated," Jaxon said.

Another advantage to borders over a full room of wallpaper is their more subtle effect.

"As rooms have gotten smaller, we have had to learn discipline and work for smaller effects. In a small room, which could be overwhelmed by too much strong color and pattern, a border can add distinction without being too loud," said Jaxon.

Wallpaper borders come in a wide range of sizes — from a 2-inch width to as wide as 8 inches. Personal taste is the usual guideline in size selection. But as a rule of thumb, the farther away the border from eye level, the larger it can be.

"A 2-inch border wouldn't mean much in a very high-ceilinged room," said Jaxon.

Nearly every manufacturer includes borders as part of wallpaper collections. Some also offer separate collections composed solely of borders.

The available border patterns range from reproductions of early American stencils through florid Victorian motifs to modern designs. There is also a good selection of borders with juvenile motifs, such as balloons, ice cream cones, toy trains and sports equipment, useful for those who are decorating children's rooms.

Architectural detailing is reproduced in borders that imitate plaster mouldings and other architectural details for those who wish to add distinction to a plain room.

Consumers will also be able to find coordinating fabrics and fabric borders at shops catering to home sewers. The fabric borders are usually available on full lengths of fabric but some specialists also offer separate fabric borders which can be used as trim for upholstery and pillows. Wallpaper borders come in many price ranges — from a high of about $9 a yard to as low as 50 cents a yard. Look for them wherever wallpaper is sold.

DINNER FOR FOUR
Mushroom Chicken & Rice

Green Peas & Tomato Salad
Fruit & Cupcakes
MUSHROOM CHICKEN
The onion used helps the mushrooms taste savory. 2½-pound chicken, cut up

¼ cup unbleached all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ cup butter
1 large onion, cut in thin strips (about 1 cup)
½ pound mushrooms, sliced

Wash and dry chicken. Stir together flour, salt, pepper and paprika; coat chicken with mixture. In a 12-inch skillet melt butter; add chicken, skin side down, and over medium heat, brown — about 5 minutes; turn and brown other sides — about 5 minutes. Cover tightly and cook over low heat until tender — about 20 minutes. Remove chicken and keep warm. Add onion to drippings in skillet and, stirring often, brown quickly and lightly. Add mushrooms and cook quickly, stirring often, until wilted. Top mushroom and onion mixture with chicken. Makes 4 servings.

Notch-Year Babies Have To Tighten Their Belts

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If you want to do a good deed, please print the following message:

If you are drawing Social Security and were born in 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920 or 1921 (called "the notch years"), you are being unjustly penalized by receiving lower benefits than those born prior to and after the above-mentioned years. For example, if you worked until you were 65 before starting to draw Social Security, you are receiving about $100 less in your monthly check than those born before 1917 or after 1921.

A bill in Congress to correct this unfair situation (HR-5469) failed to make the committee and died at the end of the 1982 session.

If you are in this age group, write to your congressman requesting that this bill be reintroduced, or a new bill be introduced to correct this unfair situation.

NOTCH-YEAR BABY

DEAR BABY: Thank you for an important message. I checked your facts, and they are accurate. Readers who do not know in which district they reside, or who their representative is, should look in their telephone directory under "U.S. Government." Listed there will be "Congress." Any congressional office will be able to tell you who your congressman is and how to write to him.

Your congressman is your elected representative. Let him know that you want this inequity corrected.

DEAR ABBY: I have just inherited some beautiful furs — a mink coat, a leopard jacket and a silver fox muff and hat. They are gorgeous! My husband is an animal lover and can't stand the sight of fur garments. He says it makes him both sad and furious when he thinks of the way the animals died.

Should I wear them anyway, or give them away?

TORN

DEAR TORN: Sell the furs and give the proceeds to your local animal shelter. And consider yourself lucky to have such a caring, sensitive husband.

DEAR ABBY: To "The Children," whose father has inoperable cancer and his wife refuses to tell him:

Our family was in exactly the same situation years ago. Mom refused to tell Dad, and we reluctantly went along with it. I will always regret that decision.

As a result, we all acted like nothing was seriously wrong with Dad. Meanwhile, he grew sicker and sicker. We created a false atmosphere of hope and optimism that was more painful than the real one.

No honest or meaningful conversations ever took place because no one admitted that there was anything wrong. I'm sure Dad knew he was dying, but he held back so as to prolong Mom's avoidance of reality.

What a terrible, terrible loss! We could have comforted each other, cried and hugged and spoken what was in our hearts and minds, but we didn't.

I'm glad you advise people to be honest with each other in such situations. It's the only way.

Oswald: "Lots of modern expert bidding is so complicated that it defeats itself, but some conventions can be used by any pair that wants to put in a little study. One we recommend highly is the 'splinter bid.'"

Jim: "Let's start with a basic example. North has only 14 high-card points, but after South's two-heart response he is certain of game and really interested in a slam. Using a splinter he jumps to four diamonds to show heart support and a singleton diamond."

Oswald: "South has 14 high-card points of his own, but perfect fillers for spades and no overlap in diamonds. He bids Blackwood and when North shows three aces, South simply bids seven hearts."

Jim: "The grand slam is a cinch. South wins the trump in dummy. Notes the 4-0 trump break. Plays a diamond to his ace, ruffs a diamond, draws trumps and claims when West follows to the first spade. He could not handle a 5-0 spade break with all four trumps in one hand."

Oswald: "If you want to use splinters, start with easy ones such as this. Make sure that your partner will understand that your jump when a lower bid would be forcing is a splinter. It shows support for his suit and a singleton in the splinter suit."

BOOK REVIEW

CODE NAME "MARY". II.
By Muriel Gardiner. Yale.
179 Pages. $14.95.

One of the most discussed books this year is the unpretentious autobiography of an American woman who was part of the Austrian underground in World War

The controversy swirls not around Dr. Muriel Gardiner's book per se, however, but whether she is the model for Lillian Hellman's "Julia." The latter was an unforgettable character in Miss Hellman's "Pentimento," which later became a movie.

Miss Gardiner makes an attempt to dispel that controversy in an introduction, but it isn't fully convincing — at least not as convincing as the details of her work to save Jews and Socialists from the Nazi onslaught.

"Code Name 'Mary'" is what might be called an old fashioned autobiography. It is filled with I-did-thises and I-did-thats. There are no fictive re-creations of scenes. If the author can't remember details or the exact order of events, she simply says so.

The daughter of a wealthy Chicago businessman, Muriel Morris went to Wellesley where she found social and educational freedom. She studied at Oxford and traveled through Europe during the 1920s, developing an interest in psychoanalysis and, of course, Freud. Her medical studies in Vienna were interrupted by the rise of fascism.

But rather than retreat, this wealthy American woman took an active role in the anti-Nazi movement. She ferried letters and forged passports to endangered Socialists and Jews, provided a safe house for dissidents on the run and kept lines of communication open between exiles, first in Czechoslovakia and then France, and people trapped inside Austria.

A psychoanalyst, educator and author, Miss Gardiner tells the story of her work from 1934 to 1938 in an understated fashion. She lightly touches on the fact that she was awarded the Austrian Cross of Honor, First Class, for her efforts in 1980. She does not dwell on the sacrifices she made and, because the book is about the will of an individual against gigantic odds, it is all the more admirable.

In annual rivalry...

Cowboys and Redskins shoot it out tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) - It will be an early-season showdown as the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins host the Dallas Cowboys tonight before a standing-room-only crowd at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium and a nationwide television audience.

The game will be a rematch of last January's NFC Championship, won by Washington 31-17.

John Riggins, who rushed 36 times for 140 yards and one touchdown will start for Washington along with quarterback Joe Theismann.

Redskin running back Joe Washington, sidelined last year with bad knees, is back and will split duty with Riggins in Washington's single-back offense.

"The key to beating the Dallas Cowboys is to gain three or four yards on first down and not getting third-and-long," said Theismann.

Theismann, who was sacked seven times and intercepted three times by the Cowboys in a regular-season loss to Dallas, came back in the playoffs to lead his team to victory. "They did things in the first game that they had never done before in a regular season like blitzing nine guys at once," said Redskin guard Mark May. "We changed things for the second game (in the playoffs). If they ever do it again we will be ready."

Tonight, the Redskins will be missing four starters from the team that stopped Dallas last year and then went on to beat Miami in Super Bowl XVII.

Guard Fred Dean has jumped to the United States Football League, defensive end Mat Mendenhall left camp this summer for personal reasons, cornerback Jeris White is unsigned and safety Tony Peters has been suspended by the league while he awaits sentencing on a drug charge.
