On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

Anyone who writes a column for a paper, whether it be for a daily or home town weekly, often wonder I am sure if their column ie read by the public.

I have wondered many times if "On The Beam" is read by more than just a few. People as a rule do not tell the editor or the writer of a column whether or not they read his writings but occasionally when the column contains something they particularly like some of them will tell the writer they liked it.

This columnist has been trying to persuade farmers for years that a one-crop system is not good for the individual farmer or the community. Until a short time ago the pleadings seemed to fall on deaf ears. Now we are hearing occasionally in conversations that some farmers are realizing the futility of raising cotton only. There are so many crops that would supplement the income from cotton if only the farmers would get together and agree on some crop for all to raise so that a market can be secured for it.

Two or three weeks ago this column contained a "gripe" about merchants and others who send all or a portion of their printing to out of town firms. We said in that column we could not see how any citizen of this or any other community who is in favor of progress and prosperity for their community could with a clear conscience send printing to a firm out of Loraine that would never spend a nickle in Loraine for hired help, or pay taxes of any kind here. We meant it and we still mean it. If this columnist went out of town to buy his groceries, his dry goods, do his banking, etc. etc. we would have a lot of people griping at us and rightly so.

The home town printer deserves ALL of the printing for Loraine business firms and tax supported institutions so long as his prices are in line with other printers and he gives good service.

MODERN PRUNING METHODS IN NEW PUBLICATION

College Station, Sept. 21, 1961- What kind of results did you obtain the last time yeu pruned your shrubs? Did they come out as beautiful as you planned or did they look pretty botched up? Or perhaps your favorite tree died the year after you pruned it. These are common problems of the untrained do-it-yourself pruner.

Pruning plants is an art which can be acquired through learning certain basic principles and the exception to them, and through experience and close observation. The purpose of pruning is to remove unwanted growth, and the cardinal rule to follow it that if you have no good reason to prune, put the tools away.

Pruning tools should be of high quality, sharp and well adapted to the job at hand. These tools are made in several sizes so the purchaser should decide which size is best suited to his needs.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has released a bulletin which contains a wealth of information for the home pruner.

This publication, B-977, "Modern Pruning Methods" gives a complete discussion on the reasons for pruning, pruning tools pruning methods, safety rules, and contains a list of suggested reading material plus special sections on pruning shrubs and small trees, hedges, evergreens and roses.

Copies of this bulletin may be obtained from the local county agent or from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

Mrs. N. J. Brians has returned from Amarillo where she visited in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Fannie Ingram, and a sister-in-law, Miss Maude Brians. Enroute home she visited relatives in Lubbock.

Loraine's Insurance Key Rate Is Two Cents Lower Since Sept. 1

Loraine residents who carry fire insurance have a new key rate that is 2 cents lower than the previons rate, the State Board of Insurance has announced.

The new rate, effective, September 1, is 47 cents per $100 of fire insurance purchased annually 2 cents less than the previous 49 cent rate.

The rate was set after board inspectors visited the town, making both charges for deficiencies and giving credits for protective measures and equipment.

Total charges at Loraine were 52 cents, of which 11 cents was assessed for water mains, 7 cents for water works, 10 cents for wholly volunteer fire department, 3 cents for no reserve pumper of hose truck, 4 cents for no fire alarm system, 7 cents for inadequate building laws, 1 cent for fire hydrants, 3 cents for unpaved streets, and 5 cents for conflagration hazards.

Credits totalled 5 cents, which came from a booster truck, methods of fire prevention and principles of fire insurance taught in the public schools, a maintained arson reward, and firemen's and fire marshal's training courses completed.

The new key rate was made effective on all policies written on or after Sept. 1.

A thoughtful citizen of Loraine recently did a kind deed that was appreciated by a family from Greenville, Texas, who had stopped in Loraine. The Loraine Bulldogs broke into the win column last Friday night at Sands when they defeated the Sands Mustangs 20—8.

Bulldog guarterback Don Redwine passed to Lorenzo Moreno for the three Bulldogs touchdowns. The first touchdown pass, a toss of 35 yards, came in the first quarter after the Bulldogs had marched 63 yards downfield.

The other two touchdowns came in the second quarter on pitches of 22 and 72 yards.

The Bulldogs failed to score in the second half of the game but the Mustangs scored when quarterback Larry Hall went over on a keeper play from one yard out following a 55 yard march downfield. Hall circled right end for the conversion.

Next Friday evening the Bulldogs will entertain another pack of Bulldogs when the Coahoma Bulldogs come here for the season's first game on home soil.

Coahoma is another Class A team and the home town Bulldogs may encounter some difficulty in subduing the other pack but the local fans think they can do it -- and so do the Bulldogs and their coaches.

Atheneum Club Has First Meeting

The Atheneum Study Club of Loraine met in the home of Mrs. K. L. Taylor Tuesday at 11:30 a. m. for the opening meeting of the year.

After a salad luncheon at noon, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Bruce Johnson, who proceeded with the order of business. She called for a report of the District meeting held in Hamlin last week which was given by the secretary, Mrs. J. W. King. Mrs. King stressed the highlights of this meeting in a manner that will help Atheneum members to work toward accomplishing the aims and purposes of the federated club as well as promoting club objectives on the local level through study, culture, friendship and co-operation in movements that stand for the betterment of civic, social and other activities for community improvement.

The new year books were presented by Mrs. Hubert Meadows, chairman of the committee. The year books were printed in the office of The Mitchell County News and Mrs. Meadows commented that "they are pleasing in every detail."

The president's talk was both informative and inspirational. It set the tone for accompiishing the aims of the year. She emphasized the facts that a club woman should have an open mind to receive and promote new ideas, a mind unafraid and informed through reading and study, a determined mind to complete tasks assigned with patience and perseverance. She closed with the poem "Then give to the world the best that you have, and the best will come back to you."

FAIRVIEW CHURCH WINS COUNTY AWARD

The Fairview Baptist Church 7 miles east of Hamlin, received word from Darwin Farmer in Dallas that the church had received the award for the outstanding church participating in the Achievement Program for Jones County.

The church turned in a scrap book to be judged in three areas of: a better church, a better community, and a better world. The competition was not with other churches as much as it was a test of efficiency in the local church. The projects of the church were set up earlier and then had to be completed before August 1st.

The number of projects completed was the basis for the award.

The pastor, the Rev. Doyle Combs, gives credit to the progressive spirt of the local congregation. A Special luncheon will be held in Austin in November to honor the pastors of the winning churches.

The award will be presented to the church and the pastor at the annual meeting at Trinity Baptist in Stamford on October 10. The whole church has been encouraged to attend and receive this award. The pastor extends a cordial invitation to anyone without a church home that likes a warm followship and a spiritual atmosphere. - Hamlin Herald

The Westbrook church won all three seals and placed first in the Mitchell-Scurry Association.

LONE STAR Agriculture

Released by The Texas Department of Agriculture

By John C. White, Commissioner

A LONG LIST OF FARMING FIRST

Traditionally, Texans probably lay claim to more and better of most any and everything than any of the rivailing 49 states. Often as not, these Texas boasts are tongue-in-cheek accommodations for folks who just expect us to brag. In agriculture, however, the Lone Star State has a long list of firsts of which we ought to be reminded, just in case we ever need some "real" verbal ammunition.

Difficult as it is, it's necessary to start our tirade on pride with an admission: Texas is not first in the nation in total value of agricultural products. We rank fourth with a total annual farm income that exceeds two billion dollars, which is no small shakes. This is about fifth of total income for the state each year.

Of major farm products, however, we can claim more production firsts than any other state. Some of these are:

COTTON: This is our most valuable crop, and far more cotton grows in Texas than in any state. Our farmers produce about four million bales a year, worth some 700 million dollars.

BEEF CATTLE: Here again we lead the nation, production-wise, and beef cattle provide Texas' second largest source of agricultural income; earning about 400 million dollars a year. We might add that the long-range cattle industry originated in Texas, and we're still far ahead af the rest in cattle raising.

SORGHUMS: Texas out front again. Next to cotton, this is the state's most valuable field crop and the 3rd most valuable source of farm income.

RICE: We are at or near the top in rice production, rivalled nearest by California. Our rice farmers along the Gulf Coast have done a magnificent job in producing a superior product. Although we lead in rice production, we are pretty far behind in rice consumption. A lot of Texans haven't discovered just how good and good for you rice is.

OTHER FIRST include production of sheep and goats in which Texas leads, and accompanying first in production of wool and mohair, which a lot of folks don't know about.

There are other farm products, certainly, which we can brag about, being near the top in production and certainly at the top in quality. These include, in part, poultry (the commercial broiler industry started in Texas) and eggs(we rank first in the South, seventh in the nation in egg production, and our eggs are second only to cotton in the amount marketed; vegetables, citrus, semi-tropical fruits, melons diociduous fruits (peaches, pears, plums), pecans this is where pecans were first found in greatest abundance), peanuts, and on and on.

So the next time somebody asks you to talk about Texas, tell them about Lone Star agriculture.

If you are not a subscriber to The News, become one today.

LICENSING FARM TRAILERS

The last regular session of the Texas Legislature amended the Texas Motor Vehicle Registration law to allow farmers to license their farm trailers and farm semi-trailers for a five dollar fee providing the gross weight is not less than 4,000 or more than 10,000 pounds. Farm trailers weighing less than 4,000 pounds, gross weight, are still exempt from registration by statute. Those exceeding 10,000 pounds, gross weight, must register as a regular commercial trailer.

Captain C. W. Bell, License and Weight Service of the Department of Public Safety advised however that any vehicle bearing the five dollar plate must not: (1) exceed 30 MPH, (2) be eperated for hire, (3) have steel or metal wheels incontect with the payment and it must be equipped with an adequate hitch to remain secure to the towing vehicle and be operated and equipped in conformity with all other provisions of the law. Violation of any of the above sections of the law nullifies the five dollar registration fees and penalties as prescribed by law.

This does not change the existing law which requires that all trailers or semi-trailers having a registered or gross weight in excess of 3,000 pounds to be equipped with clearance lamps, side marker lamps and reflectors as well at a tail light and stop light, if the stop light on the towing vehicle is obsecured. Captain Bell further stated that all machinery type vehicles, other than machinery used solely for the purpose of drilling water wells and road construction machinery, must now be registered with regular license plates and title applied for.

Water well drilling units and road consturction and maintenance equipment are required to have either the five dollar license plate or a regular registration plate, depending upon how the equipment is used.

READING READINESS TEST ADMINISTERED TO FIRST GRADE PUPILS

By Preston C. Lightfoot
Supervisor — Counselor

The First Grade pupils of Mrs. Esta Coffee have completed the Reading Readiness Test which is a part of the SRA Primary Mental Abilities Tests. These tests are a highly valid predictor of general readiness for first-grade work.

The SRA Primary Mental Abilities tests provide measures of the "components of intelligence" of children and a five-factor profile of the child's mental abilities is provided teachers and counselors. This profile provides an analysis of the child's specific intellectual strength and weaknesses in addition to a measure of his "general level of learning ability".

Measurement of the separate factors of individual intelligence-the important primary mental abilities - from kindergarten through high school provides information on which to base decisions for ability grouping, complexity of school assignments, and grade placement. Scores on these factors often have more meaning than a single total intelligence score.

The PMA test measure these abilities:

Verbal-Meaning — Ability to understand ideas expressed in words.

Perception (Perceptual Speed) - Ability to recognize the likenesses and differences among objects and symbols quickly and easily.

Quantitative - Ability to understand the meaning of numbers and to recognize quantitative differences.

Numbers - Ability to work with numbers, handle simple quantitative problems repidly and accurately.

Motor - Ability to coordinate hand and eye movements.

Space - Ability to visualize the appearance and relationships of objects and figures related in space.

Reasoning - Ability to solve logical problems - to foresee and plan.

Other forms of the SRA Primary Mental Abilities tests will be given this school year to students in the third, seventh, and eleventh grades.

Fishermen — not fish — break fishing tackle.

When the truth wins out, you will discover that the "big one" that broke the line wasn't so big after all.

Let me relate the shory of an angler who lost a "huge" redfish in the surf near High Island on Bolivar Peninsula. Although this took place several years ago, it will illustrate the point of this column.

I won't embarrass the angler by naming him. But here's the story.

He hooked a redfish — and in short order the fish broke the line. The angler boasted that the fish was a real monster because he was using brand new 36-pound test line.

Within an hour after the fellow lost the fish some beach seiner about a mile down the beach brought in their net. One of the fish trapped was a redfish complete with a hook in its mouth, a long wire leader, and about 10 yards of line.

The angler, who happened upon the scene, identified the terminal tackle as his. The beach seiners, in view of this unusually large catch — that got away — gave him the fish.

Now comes the corker.

That redfish weighed exactly 11 pounds. It was a far cry from the 40 or 50 pound monster implied by the angler.

Sure enough the angler's line was brand new. His rod tip and guides were in good shape. So the line wasn't weakened by fraying.

Truth of the matter is that the fisherman — not the fish — broke that 36-pound test line.

Here's how it happened.

When the fish made its run for freedom, the angler feared he might not heve enough line on the reel. So he hauled back as hard as he could to check the run. Naturally the strain of the fish pulling in one direction, and the angler jerking in the other, parted the line.

Fish losses like this happen every day. It's the result of excitement and inexperience. Usually the angler could heve landed the fish by playing it.

Redfish aren't noted for long runs. Their runs are short, 20 to 30 yards at most, before they change directions.

So if that angler, who felt that the line was getting near the end of the spool, would have walked down the beach with the fish — or even waded out into the water, he might have landed it.

Many line breaks occur because the angler fails to periodically check the line for frayed spots.

Let me point out here that line fraying usually occurs in the first few feet of the line. And here's why.

Every time you cast out, tremendous pressure is exerted on the line where it comes in contact with the rod-tip top. Eventually this will fray and weaken the line. Play it safe by cutting off a few feet of line every time you make a trip. Thus you will get rid of that part of the line subjected to heavy pressure and the greatest wear in casting.

You should frequently check the rod-tip top — particularly if you use nylon or monofilament line. These lines are extremely hard and in heavy fishing will wear grooves in the tip top.

Agate tip tops will crack and chip, and the sharp edges will cut the line. Replace faulty tip tops immediately.

Rust on the metal tip top will ruin a line. If you can't clean the rust off, replace the tip top.

Line comes in various pound tests. Its strength will remain constant unless the line is abused. This is particularly true with linen lines used in salt water fishing. Linen line stored wet will rot quickly.

It's better to practice good line maintenance than to lose a fish because of line neglect.

Regardless of the strength of the line, you weaken it every time you tie a knot in it. The degree of weakening, however, can be minimized by learning to use the proper knots.

The simple, ordinary square knot will cut line strength about 50 percent. Obviously a line testing out at 36-pounds will break at about 18 pounds at the point of the knot.

Best knot to use is the blood or jam knot. It's tied simply by running one end through the rook eye. Twist this end at least five times (preferably eight or ten times) around the standing end of the line. Then slip the end back through the loop between the hook eye and the first twist. Now run the end back through the big loop just formed and pull the knot tight.

It's easy to tie. It forms a neat knot that will not slip. But more important it decreases line strength at the point of the knot only by about 20 percent.

For example, with 36-pound-test line, this knot will reduce line strength at the point of the knot by a little more than seven pounds. For the sake of round numbers, let's say eight pounds. The weight needed to break the line would then be 28 pounds — which is a long way from the 18 pounds required to snap the line if a square knot is used.

A rod with the wrong kind of tip action will cause an angler to break lines.

The rod tip is a shock absorber. It takes up the shock transmitted by a fish on a sudden run, or the shock transmitted when the angler hauls back hard to bed the hook in the fish's mouth.

A springy tip allows the strain of the sodden shock to be transmitted to the line gradually.

With a very stiff tip, the strain on the line is quite sudden. Result: Pop goes the line and the fish goes free.

Next time you lose a fish, don't blame it all on the size of the fish. Stop and consider how you played the fish.

Then examine your tackle. If your tackle is okay and you "played it" right—perhaps you did lose a big one. Maybe even a record-breaker!

Mrs. Roy Baird left Tuesday for Dallas to accompany her nephew, Glenn Barnes to Washington, D. C. to visit his mother and her sister, Mrs. Palace Barnes.

Visiting in the home of their aunt Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scarbrough are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thompson of Dallas who came in Monday morning.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q My son, a World War II veteran, was killed recently in an accident. VA refused me compensation allowance. I cannot understand this because I know other mothers who are drawing death dependency allowances. Why am I not entitled to the same benefits?

A A dependent parent may collect death compensation from the VA only if the veteran's death resulted from a service-connected injury or illness.

Q I understand that the VA's direct loan limit has been increased. What is the new maximum and the interest rate?

A Limit for a direct loan from the VA is $15,000. Interest rate remains 5¼ per cent.

Q May a peacetime veteran enter a VA domiciliary, and if so, what are the conditions of eligibility?

A Yes. He must be permanently disabled, have been discharged for a disability incurred in line of duty or be receiving compensation for a service-connected disability, have no visible means of support, and be incapacitated from earning a living.

Q How many women veterans in the United States?

A There are estimated 400,000 women veterans in the United States; about 315,000 of them World War II veterans, 70,000 Korea veterans and the rest either World War I veterans or Army nurses during the Spanish-American War.

Phil Horton was carried to his home Saturday after being a patient in the Johnson Hospital the past week. Visiting him Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Horton of Ackerly and Bob Horton of Sweetwater.

Q—Is it true that a distance runner gets "second wind?"

A—Authorities say that a runner appears to "get his second wind" when a certain adjustment takes place in his system. This adjustment is one involving his heart more than his "wind". The heart rate adjusts to the outgo and intake of air by his lungs.

ELECTRIC CO-OPS ARE BUILDING A BRIGHTER TOMORROW

Ask Mom, Dad, Brother and Sister what the electric cooperative has brought.

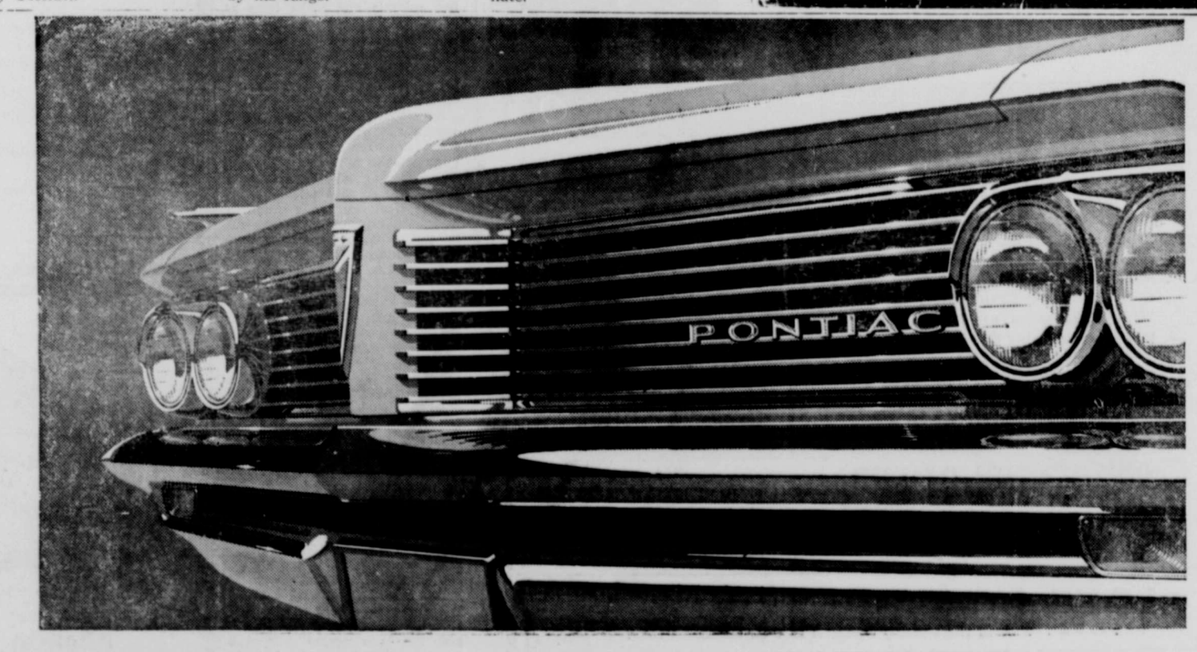

Mom will vote for running water and an all electric kitchen.

Dad might say air conditioning and refrigeration.

Brother probably lists Television and his Radio.

Sister likely will choose her hair dryer and, much as she hates to use it, the vacuum cleaner. But there are many, many other appliances and work saving devices each could choose, all made possible by the electric systems of which they are member-owners. Rural people borrowed money to build their own electric systems and they are proud that their efficient, low cost electric service is Building a Brighter Tomorrow.

When a car is this beautiful, you know Pontiac built it!

Who else but the builder of those front-running Wide-Track Pontiacs could bring out a car so freshly and finely styled! It's longer, with a crisp, low silhouette. It's distinctly Pontiac, with a new twin-scoop grille you can recognize a block away. Powered by the potent Trophy V-8, with 215 to 348 h.p. Beautifully poised on Pontiac's famous Wide-Track stance. We've even cut the turning radius as much as 3½ feet to make handling easier. The result is a pride-pleasing new version of America's Number One Road Car. Come on in—and let a Pontiac show you its stuff while it's showing you off!

GUIDANCE SERVICES PROVIDED FOR LORAINE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

By Preston C. Lightfoot
Supervisor — Counselor

Effective with the 1961-62 school year all accredited elementary and secondary schools must have a program of guidance services which shall provide pupil appraisal (including testing), individual counseling, group assistance to pupils in the solution of the verious problems which they must meet, in accordance with the new standards adopted by the State Board of Education. This school initiated guidance services January, 1958 and had met most of the requirements under the new standards.

A Guidance Bulletin for Teachers and School Personnel is being written by the guidance committee composed of Joy Dickenson, Mabel Givens, Glenn Nicheols, Iris Preston, Edith Wilkerson and Preston C. Lightfoot, chairman. This bulletin will serve the needs of teachers of all grades as a comprehensive and enlightened program of guidance services. No longer can formal guidance activities be construed as being only associated with secondary schools. As the fundamental concerns of guidance have changed to serving all youth, rather than a few, it is natural that activities be organized for groups of pupils as well as for the individual. Today, group guidance which implements the overall program of guidance services is an essential part of the total educational program.

The classroom teacher is the heart of the guidance program since she or he is at the center of activity. However, the success of the guidance program is dependent upon the wholehearted cooperation, not only among teachers and the supervisor-counselor, but also of the parents and the community. The guidance bulletin will help each teacher do more effective guidance of pupil by emphasizing the needs of the whole child and by enabling him to make wise decisions and to solve his problems independently.

THE TEXAS HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT GETS READY FOR SCHOOL — As school days begin throughout the state, the Texas Highway Department is taking special precautions to insure the safety of school children on the way to and from school. Numerous signs of warning and caution are appearing near school sites (such as this typical sign being tamped in place by a Highway Department maintenance man) and school bus stops. Motorists are urged to carefully observe these signs to guarantee the safety of school children.

A fatal disease which often strikes down the best-fed lambs will again threaten danger to sheep producers' profits this fall.

Most farmers know it as "overeating disease"; veterinarians know it as "enterotoxemia." Chief victims are lambs which are on or approaching, full feed.

Overeating disease varies its attack. Sometimes the owner will come out in the morning and find several of his best lambs dead without warning. At other times there will be warning signs, such as nervousness, staggering, pushing against objects, or circling.

If such symptoms are noticed, a veterinarian should examine the animals and make tests at once. An antitoxin can be used where an outbreak threatens, and this gives temporary protection while measures are being taken to reduce the feeding and stave off losses.

Actually, the best way to avoid overeating disease deaths is through prevention. Weapon No. 1 is vaccination ahead of the heavy feeding season. By having a veterinarian vaccinate with protective bacterin, the owner can be reasonably sure his lambs will be safe from enterotoxemia for 5 or 6 months.

There are also several other wise preventive steps which owners can take: 1) When ration changes are made, the change should be gradual. 2) Animals should always have plenty of water. 3) Those which appear over-greedy should have their feeding checked, because these are the most likely victims.

Overeating disease involves the bacteria in the lamb's digestive tract. They do no harm, there, under normal conditions. But when the lamb overeats and the system becomes overloaded, these bacteria grow quickly and are triggered to produce powerful poisons. Then, when these poisons are absorbed into the blood stream, enterotoxemia results.

This is a potent, killing disease. We are now entering a season when it seems to strike hardest, and the wise feeder will take every possible measure against it.
