Doctors take out Terry Schiavo's feeding tube

■ Despite congressional subpoena, judge calls for brain-damaged woman's feeding tube to be removed.

By Mitch Stacy
Associated Press

PINELLAS PARK, Fla. — With a furious legal and political battle raging outside her hospice room, doctors removed Terri Schiavo's feeding tube Friday after a judge rebuffed an unprecedented attempt by Congress to keep the brain-damaged woman alive.

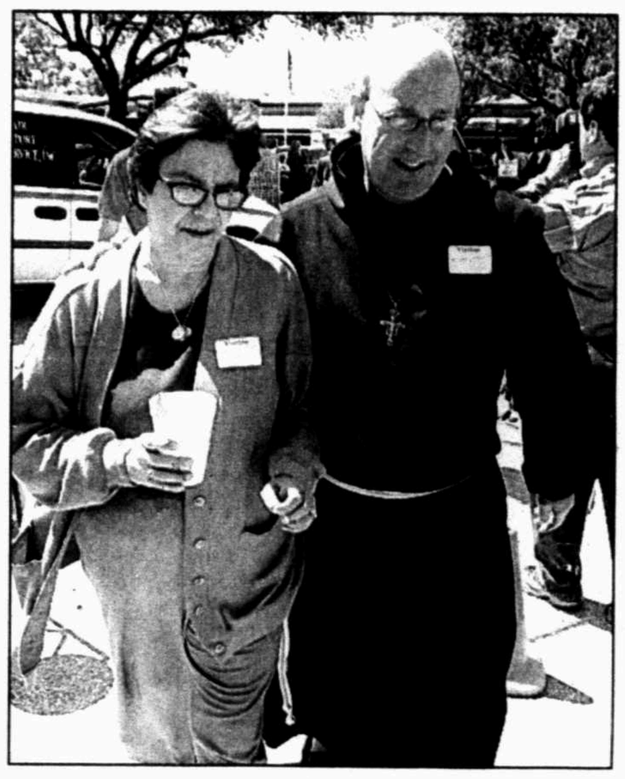

Schiavo, 41, could linger one to two weeks without the tube, provided no one intercedes and gets it reinserted — as happened twice before.

The move came after Republicans on Capitol Hill used their subpoena power to demand Schiavo be brought before a congressional hearing, saying removing the tube amounted to "barbarism." The attorney for Schiavo's husband shot back at a news conference, calling the subpoenas "nothing short of thuggery."

"It was odious, it was shocking, it was disgusting, and I think all Americans should be very alarmed about that," George Felos said.

The judge presiding over the case ruled in the husband's favor early Friday afternoon and rejected the request from House attorneys to delay the removal, which he had previously ordered to take place at 1 p.m. EST. Felos said Michael Schiavo was at his wife's side shortly after the tube was dis-

MDC starts work on building to entice new company to Midland

By Bob Campbell
Staff Writer

Saying new companies already are interested in occupying a 40,000-square-foot warehouse or distribution center before construction even starts, Midland Development Corp. officials Friday broke ground on the $2.88 million Building A at Entrada Enterprise Park.

Constructed by N.C. Sturgeon Inc., the 200-foot square structure will be completed by early fall and is "easily expandable" to 80,000 square feet in a separate building to the north, said MDC Vice President Jim Nelson. It will stand just north of the new Midland-Odessa National Guard readiness center, on which work has begun.

Chaired by President John James, the MDC board of directors earlier in the day had OK'd a $723,272 contract for infrastructure and landscaping improvements at the site at Loop 40 and Wright Drive west of Midland International Airport. "This inaugural building represents a significant investment in our community and its future," said James at the 10:30 a.m. ceremony.

"It is the latest addition to our economic development arsenal. I can't tell you how fortunate we are to be at this place at this time. Midland is truly open for business."

Addressing 40 people who attended the groundbreaking, Mayor Mike Canon said the project is being financed by the city's 3-year-old quarter-cent economic development sales tax. He said it's emblematic of the city's economic diversification initiatives.

Chamber of Commerce President John Breier said it "is a product of re-investing in Midland."

Nelson, who chairs the MDC's building committee, said the project is strategically located for accessibility to Interstate 20 and the airport. He said the organization has spent $520,000 for land and approved contracts of $1.3 million for the construction, $685,000 for utilities and $383,185 for landscaping and signage.

Midlanders join to help boy suffering from rare cancer

By Jimmy Patterson
MRT Correspondent

To gauge Bryan Holcomb's effect on others, consider only that he routinely visited Sonic Drive In with his teenage sisters and their friends to get a soft drink. Bryan, 10, suffers from cerebral palsy, developmental disabilities and a life that has featured a heart surgery at 5 years old. Through all his difficulties, his sisters Ashleigh and Alison Holcomb and their friends welcome him along — and he becomes one of them.

Holcomb

"He thinks he's a teenager," said Bryan's mother Gale Holcomb. "He likes to hang out with his sisters at the Sonic."

To understand the depth of Bryan's reach, the compassion he inspires, consider he was treated the same by every child his age that he ever met. All treated him with dignity and compassion. A Life Skills student at Rusk Elementary, Bryan made time for anyone who passed him in the hall, always with a smile for everyone. It's said more often than it probably applies, but in Bryan's

Group criticizes House for voting down alcohol tax

By Sarah Kleiner
Staff Writer

The Texas House of Representatives mistakenly left alcohol tax increases out of school finance reform legislation and instead levied taxes on snacks and cigarettes, officials of Midland's Stop DWI, Inc. said this week.

In decisive defeats, the Texas House voted down two attempts to increase alcohol taxes, both offered by Rep. Charlie Howard, a Republican from Sugar Land.

Howard filed a bill earlier this year

Accused baby killer pleads 'not guilty'

By Bob Campbell
Staff Writer

Indicted on four felonies related to the Nov. 8 death of a 9-month-old boy, 24-year-old Michael David Lewis of Midland was arraigned Friday in 238th District Court.

Lewis pleaded "not guilty" before Judge John Hyde in the death of Jacob Christopher Lee Sinclair, who prosecutors allege was thrown against living room furniture and "butted" against the defendant's head.

Lewis had been indicted Monday for capital murder, murder, manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide. District Attorney Al Schorre said the prosecutor he assigned to the case, Jane Belazi, won't seek the death penalty because the defendant had a clean criminal record before the alleged offense.

Hyde told Lewis, who wore a suit and tie and had his hair closely cropped, a hearing on pre-trial motions will be scheduled immediately.

David Zavoda, Lewis' attorney, said afterward he will file motions to request probation and have the jury assess punishment in the event his client is found guilty, among other motions.

When asked if he will allege culpability by the baby's mother, Jena Martin Sinclair, who was Lewis' girlfriend, Zavoda said, "I'm not anticipating a finding of guilt. My client has been indicted and we're going to face that indictment.

"We'll let a jury decide if the right person was indicted. Judge Hyde likes to keep these cases on track, so we'll probably be aiming toward a trial sometime in mid-summer."

The $200,000 bond on which Lewis has been free since Nov. 24 was left in effect at the 8:30 a.m. Friday proceeding.

Zavoda said the district attorney's office had neither offered a plea bargain in return for Lewis' guilty plea nor offered its evidence to him, but he expects a response to his discovery motion next week. "There has been no plea offer," the lawyer said.

"I don't have any feeling one way or the other. That's entirely up to them. I'm looking forward to getting started. I'm like an old war horse. Point me toward the sound of gunfire and I start galloping."

HOUSE FIRE

Alec Richards/Reporter-Telegram

LONG STRETCH A fire hose line extends down the 1200 block of South Baird Street during a structure fire Friday afternoon. Fire Department officials at the scene said the fire started in a bedroom inside the house, which sustained severe damage. The rest of the house was damaged by smoke, but no one was injured.

BRYAN

case it's true — he's never met a stranger.

"It's hard to explain his personality," Bryan's dad, Kenneth, said. "Unless you spent time around him. He liked to tease people. Even though he had disabilities and was not very verbal, he was always high-fiving and carrying kids' breakfast to their rooms. He knows a lot of kids. He's a very helpful person.

"We used to go to Lowe's with him about once a week and it almost never failed, someone would come up and speak to him. I always joked that he knew more people than I did."

Gale Holcomb added that Bryan would make a great Wal-Mart greeter because of his constant smile.

He transferred from Rusk to Bonham between the fall and spring semesters. But he hasn't been able to enjoy a new set of friends at Bonham, kids that would have no doubt taken to Bryan the way people everywhere else have. In January, he began having problems with his bladder. His pediatrician recommended his parents take him to Children's Medical Center in Dallas where urologists and other doctors struggled with a diagnosis. Finally, they determined what was wrong with Bryan was almost unbelievable: he had contracted adeno carcinoma, a kind of cancer most often found in 70-year-old smokers. Doctors in Dallas say they've never heard of it in a 10-year-old.

"He's never been around smoke," his mom said. "It's really kind of unbelievable. It took them so long to diagnose because they just couldn't believe it was that."

Bryan was sent back to Midland. Hospice is helping make him and his family be more comfortable.

"Bryan's a real trooper no matter what happens," Kenneth Holcomb said.

He's unaware of his cancer and is heavily sedated. Life has gone from challenging for the Holcomb family to devastating. How could a boy so young already racked with so many health-related issues be struck with such a debilitating cancer? And how can a family such as Bryan's come to terms with such a tragic turn?

"I don't know that I have," Kenneth Holcomb said. "It's like something you read in the newspaper that happens to someone else. I don't think we've had time to absorb it all."

Bryan loves the RockHounds and Lee football games and at both he made new friends whenever he went.

As difficult as their son's illness has been, Gale and Kenneth Holcomb are humbled at the response they've received with almost everyone who's ever been in contact with their son. Teachers and parents from five elementary schools in Midland will host a fund-raiser from 11 a.m.-6 p.m. today at Jane Long Elementary, 4200 Cedar Spring. Chili dogs, frito pie, pizza and a drink will be sold for $6. Theme baskets will be available for bidding in a silent auction. All proceeds will benefit the Holcomb family. The public is invited to attend.

Volunteers and teachers from Rusk and West — Bryan's schools — and Crockett, St. Ann's and Long — where Gale has taught — are putting the event together.

Through the concerted efforts of the volunteers and teachers at those five schools, it's obvious Bryan's personality touched people in many corners of Midland.

"We are so moved by the generosity and compassion and caring of the people at all of the schools," Gale Holcomb said. "Everyone, Bryan's teachers, workers at schools, kids and parents, our family and friends, our pastor ... everyone has been so much help and so comforting and supportive."

Kenneth Holcomb said his family has received emotional support from scores of Midlanders — including school personnel, his coworkers at ChevronTexaco and at his daughter's work, Sierra Engineering — who have helped not only at this difficult time, but throughout Bryan's life.

"It's a very sad situation," said Donna White, a fourth grade teacher at Rusk. "We love that little boy and we want to help."

MDC

(From 1A)

Previous estimates for Entrada Enterprise Park had been for as much as $4.465 million.

Sturgeon already had built an elevated foundation "pad" of clay dirt on which earthmoving machines had been parked for the ceremony.

In the Friday morning meeting, MDC board member Barry Horseman and Nelson expressed some concern with the Chamber's performance in meeting its goals for primary business recruitment and other aspects of the development program.

The Chamber had been reported behind pace for business proposals, direct company visits and community visits to Midland by interested companies.

Blake Wallace, vice president of economic development for the Chamber, responded by saying the Chamber hadn't received the same number of leads it did last year. He also commented on the lack of viable projects and projects with the wages MDC is shooting for.

"We will continue to hammer on target priorities," Wallace said, pointing out plastics, aviation, back office work and the service industry.

He spoke of dialogue he's had with companies in California and Oregon that would account for 1,500 jobs if MDC landed each company.

MDC reported its new Web site will be launched May 16. It should include the coming home program, targeting graduates of Midland's high schools with the hope of bringing them back here. A job module also will be a site feature.

Board member Jerry Morales also took part.

TAX

(From 1A)

proposing an increase on alcohol taxes and the creation of a new tax on snacks, such as cookies, soda and chips. When the House tax-writing committee drafted legislation that reduced property taxes and raised replacement money, the snack tax was included, but the alcohol tax increase was discarded.

An amendment filed by Howard, in his second attempt to increase alcohol taxes, was voted down 101 to 40.

"What that tells you is the Legislature is more mindful of the beer lobby than they are the constituents," Howard said last week.

Texas' excise tax on beer has not been raised by the Legislature since 1984, and the current rate of 19 cents per gallon of beer is 7 cents below the national average, according to a report from Texans Standing Tall, a coalition opposed to underage drinking.

Charles Hodges and Faye Higgins-Hodges of Stop DWI in Midland believe a 1 percent increase on the excise tax will boost the price of alcohol enough to discourage underage high school and college students from drinking while raising revenue for a cash-strapped state.

"My number one concern is saving lives," said Higgins-Hodges, whose son, sister and niece were killed by drunken drivers in two separate accidents, she said.

Not only would an alcohol tax on par with the national average raise $91 million, Hodges said, a 1 percent drop in alcohol consumption would save the state $59 million in spending on medical care and treatment related to alcohol abuse.

But the alcohol industry has not escaped hefty levies, said Sen. Kel Seliger, R-Amarillo.

Beer distributors, manufacturers and brew pubs must pay $18 in federal taxes and $6 in state taxes for each 31-gallon barrel of beer purchased, according to the state comptroller's Web site. Liquor wholesalers pay $2.40 and $13.50 per gallon in state and federal taxes, respectively.

Seliger said an alcohol tax increase is still on the table in the Senate, but Howard has doubts.

"The beer lobby is very strong in Austin, Texas," Howard said.

Thirty lobbyists have been hired this year between the Wholesale Beer Distributors of Texas, Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., Miller Brewing Company and Coors Brewing Company, according to Texas Ethics Commission records.

Tobacco giants Philip Morris USA and R.J. Reynolds hired 12 lobbyists between the two companies, yet the House passed a $1 per pack cigarette tax increase, up from the current rate of 41 cents per pack.

Rep. Kent Grusendorf, a Republican from Arlington who serves on the House ways and means committee, would not comment on the defeat of alcohol taxes because he said he has focussed on education reform.

House Speaker Tom Craddick gave the tax-writing committee freedom to draft legislation, said Alexis DeLee, Craddick's deputy press secretary, when asked why the House defeated alcohol tax increases.

"It was not the will of the House to have alcohol tax as part of the bill," DeLee said.

SCHIAVO

connected.

Late Friday, the U.S. Supreme Court, without comment, denied an emergency request from the House committee that issued the subpoenas to reinsert Schiavo's feeding tube while the committee files appeals in the lower courts to have its subpoenas recognized.

Republican congressional leaders said in a statement they planned to work through the weekend to try to save Terri Schiavo's life.

The removal of the tube signals an end may be near in a decade-long family feud between Schiavo's husband and her devoutly Roman Catholic parents, Bob and Mary Schindler. The parents have been trying to oust Michael Schiavo as their daughter's guardian and keep in place the tube that has kept her alive for more than 15 years.

Michael Schiavo says his wife told him she would not want to be kept alive artificially. Her parents dispute that, saying she could get better and their daughter has laughed, cried, smiled and responded to their voices. Court-appointed physicians testified her brain damage was so severe there was no hope she would ever have any cognitive abilities.

Michael Schiavo was at his wife's side shortly after the tube was removed, Felos said.

"This is what Terri wanted. This is her wish," the husband said late Friday, making his first comments after the tube removal on CNN's "Larry King Live." He said he was angry that "government has just trampled all over my personal life."

The family is still hoping for a long-shot legal victory to have the tube re-inserted.

It is unclear how much time the family will have. The effects of such feeding tubes being removed can be seen by the third or fourth day, when the patient's mouth begins to look dry and the eyes appear sunken. From days five to 10, respiration becomes irregular with periods of very fast and then very slow breathing. By the final days, kidney function declines, toxins begin accumulating in the body, and multiple organ systems fail from lack of nutrition.

Court-appointed doctors have said Schiavo will not feel any pain given her state, but her parents' doctors dispute that.

The case has garnered attention around the world and served as a rallying cry for conservative Christian groups and anti-abortion activists, who flooded members of Congress and Florida legislators with messages seeking to keep Schiavo alive.

White House spokesman Scott McClellan said President Bush discussed the case with his brother, Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, and members of the state's congressional delegation during his swing through Florida on Friday to discuss Social Security reform.

"We're continuing to monitor developments," McClellan said. "The president believes when there are serious questions or doubts in a case like this that the presumption ought to be in favor of life."

Gov. Jeb Bush said the judge's decision "breaks my heart" and noted it often takes two decades for a death row inmate's appeals to go through the system.

"There's this rush to starve her to death," Bush said.

But Rep. Henry Waxman of California, senior Democrat on the Government Reform Committee, called the subpoenas a "flagrant abuse of power" and said they amounted to Congress dictating the medical care Terri Schiavo should receive.

Schiavo suffered severe brain damage in 1990 when a chemical imbalance apparently brought on by an eating disorder caused her heart to stop beating for a few minutes. She can breathe on her own, but has relied on the feeding and hydration tube to keep her alive.

Both sides accused each other of being motivated by greed over a $1 million medical malpractice award from doctors who failed to diagnose the chemical imbalance.

The Schindlers also said Michael Schiavo wants their daughter dead so he can marry his longtime girlfriend, with whom he has young children. They have begged him to divorce their daughter, and let them care for her.

The tangled case has encompassed at least 19 judges in at least six different courts.

In 2001, Schiavo went without food and water for two days before a judge ordered the tube reinserted when a new witness surfaced.

When the tube was removed in October 2003, her parents and two siblings frantically sought intervention from Gov. Jeb. Bush to stop her slow starvation. The governor pushed through "Terri's Law," and six days later the tube was reinserted.

That set off a new round of legal battles that culminated in September 2004 with the Florida Supreme Court ruling Bush had overstepped his authority and declared the law unconstitutional.

The U.S. Supreme Court has been unwilling to hear arguments in the case.

Midland ranks as 'slightly littered,' KMB survey finds

By Stephanie A. Miller
Staff Writer

Midland's litter index ranks close to the "slightly littered" mark, according to a survey Keep Midland Beautiful conducted Friday.

The organization performed a litter index survey, a tool used by all Keep America Beautiful affiliates to assess litter management in cities.

"We feel it's a very fair tool and the best way that we know of right now to evaluate the job being done," said Doreen Richardson, Keep Midland Beautiful's executive director.

Volunteers who conduct the survey for years usually make the assessment, done in four areas throughout the city.

A city can score between 1 to 4 on the litter scale, with one meaning "no litter" to four meaning "extremely littered." If a city receives a rating of 1, that means virtually no litter can be detected.

A ranking of 2 means a city is "slightly littered" and 3 classifies it as "littered" to where visible litter can be seen throughout the area. A score of 4 means the city is "extremely littered," a state where there is a continuous amount of noticeable litter.

Midland's overall 1.7 rating has been the same for three years, which says the area is doing well with its litter control, Richardson said.

Sheriff's deputies arrest Midlander suspected of indecency with children

From Staff Reports

A 39-year-old Midland County man suspected of fondling three children was arrested Friday morning by Midland County Sheriff's Office deputies.

Eduviges Carrasco Rey was charged with indecency with a child by contact and was expected to see a judge this morning to have his bond set.

Midland County Sheriff's Office investigator Rick Rowland said Friday three children — 8, 9 and 12 years old — were questioned after the mother of two of the children reported the incidents to investigators.

The contact between Rey and the children allegedly took place between April and December of 2004, officials said.

Family sues school system over lesson suggesting 'Christian odor'

By Kristin Collins
Raleigh News & Observer

RALEIGH, N.C. — A fifth-grader's family is suing the Cumberland County school system because her teacher used a Christian text that preached creationism and encouraged children to proselytize for Jesus.

The lawsuit, filed Friday in Raleigh federal court, says a teacher at Sunnyside Elementary School in Fayetteville assigned students readings from a religious text that included the lesson "Scents Make Sense."

"God's word tells us about a kind of odor only Christians have," the lesson read. "Christians carry forth the fragrance of Christ wherever they go by the way they live; that is, they remind people of Him.

"Could someone find Christ by the scent trail you are leaving behind you?"

The schools acknowledged in an agreement filed late Friday the lawsuit's allegations were true and pledged not to use those lessons or any other religious materials. Once a judge signs that agreement, the schools could face federal criminal penalties for violating it.

"We made a mistake," Cumberland Schools Superintendent Bill Harrison said Friday. "The only thing we can do is make amends and move on."

In November or December, Ashlee Nicole Smith, a school spelling bee champion and president of the Sunnyside Beta Club, showed the scent lesson and one other to her parents, Troy and Mary Jane Smith of Fayetteville. The other lesson said, "God has a niche for each creature He has created, down to the tiniest microscopic being. He also has a niche for each person He has created."

'Ashlee's a fifth-grader, and she realized this was wrong. This is light years beyond an invocation at a graduation or a moment of silence at a football game. When you're proselytizing fifth-graders, it's way over the top.'

Jon Sasser, lawyer representing family

The lawsuit says that when the parents complained to principal Deborah Anderson, she asked, "What's the problem? Don't you and your family go to church?"

Anderson also told the parents she didn't understand their objections, because Ashlee earned perfect scores on the assignments. Anderson then promised that it wouldn't happen again.

In February, it did.

Ashlee came home with a worksheet on which she was marked wrong for answering that "chance" was the reason many animals are colored to match their surroundings. The teacher indicated the right answer was "God's master design," the lawsuit says.

Harrison said Cumberland schools have a strict policy, mandated by federal law, that bars teachers from endorsing any religion.

He said that Kristie Griffiths, the teacher, is visiting international faculty from Australia and didn't understand U.S. standards. She bought the text from well-known Christian publisher, A Beka Book, with her own money, he said.

Harrison said the principal didn't take the incident seriously enough and failed to make sure that the teacher stopped using the text. He said Anderson sent a memo to all staff asking them to use only board-approved materials, but didn't communicate directly with Griffiths.

Anderson declined to comment, and Griffiths could not be reached.

Harrison said he found out about the problem in February, when the Smiths' lawyer sent him a letter, and he made sure that the text is no longer being used. The teacher and the principal are still at Sunnyside, and Harrison wouldn't comment on what discipline they might face.

Jon Sasser, the Raleigh lawyer who represents the Smith family, said the parents filed the lawsuit because they wanted to make sure this doesn't happen again. He said the Smiths believe strongly in the separation of church in state.

The Smiths couldn't be reached for comment.

"Ashlee's a fifth-grader, and she realized this was wrong," Sasser said. "This is light years beyond an invocation at a graduation or a moment of silence at a football game. When you're proselytizing fifth-graders, it's way over the top."

Sheriff: Sex offender confessed to slaying missing girl, told police where to find body

By Mike Branom
Associated Press

FAMILY GRIEVES Kristy Kirkland, a cousin of missing 9-year-old Jessica Lunsford, grieves besides a sheriff's checkpoint outside the Lunsford family home in Homosassa, Fla., Friday after police announced a registered sex offender admitted he kidnapped and killed Jessica Lunsford. The 9-year-old disappeared from her bedroom more than three weeks ago.

Stephen J. Coddington AP

HOMOSASSA, Fla. — A registered sex offender admitted Friday that he kidnapped and killed a 9-year-old girl who disappeared from her bedroom more than three weeks ago and told police where they could find her body, authorities said.

John Evander Couey, 46, had been arrested Thursday and named a "person of interest" in Jessica Lunsford's disappearance. He confessed to authorities after taking a lie-detector test, Citrus County Sheriff Jeff Dawsy said.

"At the end of the polygraph, he said, 'You don't have to tell me the results. I know what they are,'" Dawsy said. "He apologized to the investigators for wasting their time."

Authorities cordoned off an area Friday near the home of Couey's half-sister, who lived about 150 yards from the home Jessica shared with her father and grandparents. Dawsy would not comment on what investigators were doing in the area, but said it "will take hours." Police had yet to recover a body.

A sheriff's spokeswoman who answered the phone at the Lunsford home Friday evening said the family declined to make any immediate comment. Jessica's father, Mark Lunsford, has said the family did not know Couey.

Jessica's stepfather, Lonnie Bryant, told The Associated Press by telephone from Ohio that he and the girl's mother, Angela Bryant, planned to come to Florida soon.

"I'm going through agony right now," he said.

Jessica, a third grader, was last seen when she went to bed in her home Feb. 23. She was discovered missing the next morning, with the door unlocked and her stuffed animal gone. The clothes she had laid out for school were still in place, and none of her shoes were missing.

More than 100 police and volunteers, with help from bloodhounds and helicopters, searched the area about 60 miles north of Tampa for days following her disappearance. Jessica's family made emotional appeals on national television for her safe return.

Detectives grew interested in Couey while interviewing all registered sex offenders in the area. They tried to contact Couey at his home in Homosassa five days after Jessica disappeared and discovered he no longer lived there.

When investigators followed up with the half-sister, she denied that Couey had lived with her. But another relative confided to a detective that Couey sometimes stayed at the home.

Authorities said Couey left Florida on or about March 4 after telling relatives that police would be looking for him. He was arrested in Augusta, Ga., on a probation violation for failing to notify officials that he was moving, a requirement for sex offenders. He was awaiting extradition to Florida Friday.

Couey has an extensive criminal record that includes 24 arrests for burglary, carrying a concealed weapon and indecent exposure. In 1991, he was arrested in Kissimmee on a charge of fondling a child under age 16. Records don't show how the case was resolved.

Truth about legendary Hogzilla to be broadcast Sunday

By Shaila DeWan
N.Y. Times News Service

ALAPAHA, Ga. — Few episodes in this modern age have displayed the Southern talent for tall tales like the legend of Hogzilla, the allegedly 12-foot, 1,000-pound wild hog shot and killed on a south Georgia farm last June.

Documented by only a single photograph before the carcass was buried, Hogzilla drew television crews from as far away as Japan and appeared on the cover of Weekly World News. The pig became the theme of the town's annual festival. People from California and New Jersey called to order hog T-shirts.

So tall did the tale become that in November, a team of scientists exhumed Hogzilla and went at him with calipers and DNA tests. Now all of Berrien County awaits their findings, which are to be broadcast on the National Geographic Channel on Sunday night.

Some people say the hog had to have been raised in a pen to get that big. Others think there was no hog at all. No one figured the argument would ever be resolved. And, anyway, that was not the point. Asked whether she believed Hogzilla was real, Beverly Moore, a retired bookkeeper eating lunch at Flander's Cafe in Alapaha, raised her eyebrows and said, "It's a real story."

Chris Griffin and Hogzilla

Few hunting yarns could stand up to a posse of Ph.D.s in yellow hazard suits. In fact, new technology has generally made it easier — not harder — to practice the art of embellishment, said Wiley Prewitt, a collector of hunting and fishing lore in Kilmichael, Miss. There is a cottage industry in making realistic sets of antlers out of resin to mount as trophies, he said, and photographs no longer back up a story.

"Some guy kills a deer and takes a picture of it," Prewitt said. "He'll take it to his buddy who's got all the computer software and they'll turn it into a world record."

But two people were eager for the credibility they hoped a scientific investigation would bring: Ken Holyoak, who owns Ken's Hatchery and Fish Farms Inc., and his former employee Chris Griffin, who killed Hogzilla with a single shot last June. The men have had a falling-out over the hog, and Griffin now fixes flats at the Wal-Mart in nearby Fitzgerald.

Holyoak has a knack for publicity, and has a wall of clipped newspaper articles about his efforts to raise bullfrogs in captivity and his record-breaking fish breeds, like one he calls the Georgia Giant Hybrid Bream. He has theorized that Hogzilla grew so big by feasting on the special fish food used on the farm.

Holyoak, who also operates hog hunts on his land, allowed National Geographic to dig up Hogzilla because, he said, he wanted the free advertising, and he thought the hog might be a world record.

A thousand pounds is not extraordinary for a pen-raised hog. But a feral pig or a true wild boar — characterized by tusks, black hair and long legs — would top out closer to 500 pounds, and a typical one of either weighs in at about 150 pounds. Interbreeding with farm animals is, of course, a possibility.

Griffin says he is tired of doubters. "They're going to eat a whole lot of humble pie come Sunday evening," he said. "I'm going to be giggling and laughing."

Drinking a mixture of Fanta Cherry and Pibb Extreme sodas on his lunch break, Griffin, 32, told the story he has told a thousand times: He was picking up after hunters when he saw the hog. He grabbed a rifle from his truck and fired. "I shot him, and he turned around and walked off, and I thought, how'd I miss something that big?" Griffin said. He followed the hog into the swamps, where it collapsed and died. Griffin managed to drag it out with a backhoe.

Holyoak said he measured Hogzilla "with a ruler" and drove the hog in his flatbed truck to a peanut scale. The meat was too gamy to eat, he said, and stuffing the pig would have been too expensive, so he told Griffin to bury it.

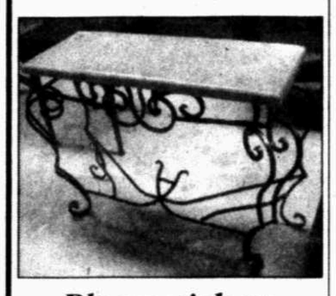

But before they laid Hogzilla to rest, Holyoak took a picture of the pig trussed up by the hind legs, dangling from the backhoe. Later, he had six people sign affidavits saying they had seen the 1,000-pound wild hog (each signer circled "alive" or "dead").

In Alapaha, several townspeople said it did not matter if Hogzilla turned out to be a hoax. "The Legend of Hogzilla" had proved more popular, they said, than previous parade themes, like "Saluting Our Firemen" and "Good Old Days on the Farm."

St. Patrick's Day in Ireland ends with 700 arrests, debate over holiday drinking

By Shawn Pogatchnik
Associated Press

DUBLIN, Ireland — Much of Ireland spent Friday suffering from a St. Patrick's Day hangover: More than 700 people were arrested for alcohol-fueled fights, vandalism and other abusive behavior during the holiday.

Once a quiet religious event when pubs were closed, St. Patrick's Day has become a huge tourist draw in Dublin by day — and, by night, a drinking free-for-all in cities across the country.

"I do find it ironic that St. Patrick had a mission to evangelize and convert people to a better way of life, and our St. Patrick's Day doesn't reflect any of that Christian heritage. It's just an occasion to go out and get absolutely hammered," said Ray O'Connor of the Pioneer Total Abstinence Association. The group was behind the policy of closing pubs in observance of St. Patrick's Day, enforced from 1904 to 1941.

"Obviously Ireland has changed very dramatically," O'Connor said. "We were once very Catholic. Now, everything goes. It's a selfish lifestyle with a heavy disposable income."

Police said arrests across the Irish Republic, a country of 3.9 million, totaled 714 on Thursday and early Friday. In Dublin, the capital of 1.3 million people, 252 arrests were made.

Two Dublin commuter trains carrying revelers had to be withdrawn from service after fights broke out and more than two-dozen windows were shattered; on a third train, paramedics were called to break up a fight.

In the southern region that includes the republic's second-largest city of Cork, police said they arrested 186 people, chiefly for fights and vandalism outside pubs.

By contrast, in New York City, police said there was one arrest at Thursday's parade and officers confiscated alcohol from a handful of people along the route. Paul J. Browne, chief spokesman for New York police, credited the decline in incidents to the department's policy of strictly enforcing a ban on drinking at the parade.

"We cracked down on that and it's made a major difference. The parade itself used to be a problem, with lots of young drinkers. That's pretty much disappeared. There's strict enforcement. After a couple of years, people got the message," Browne said.

During a decade-long economic boom, Ireland has surged ahead of other European Union countries in alcohol consumption.

The most recent Eurostat statistics — for 2001 — showed Ireland's per capita yearly alcohol consumption at 3.75 gallons, compared to an EU average of 2.4 gallons and a U.S. rate of 1.77 gallons. Ireland in 2002 spent an estimated $8 billion on alcoholic drinks — $2,600 for every person age 16 or over, according to Eurostat.

Observers think a decent swallow of that total was downed on St. Patrick's Day.

"Normally we sell nearly as much food as drink, but last night we probably sold four times as much drink," said pub manager Daniel Duggan of the Porterhouse North, which offers meals and a dozen home-brewed beers.

"We had a nice crowd who got very, very merry, and it was absolutely manic," Duggan said. "We'd no trouble. ... But the situation in the city is going downhill. You see people drinking on the streets, particularly young people, and that shouldn't be allowed."

Police could not supply data on alcohol-related arrests for past St. Patrick's Days but say the number has steadily risen in recent years.

The telltale signs of the previous night's bedlam — broken glass and trash — were common sights on the sidewalks Friday. Most businesses had less than half their usual staff report for work, as many planned to extend St. Patrick's Day into a four-day pub-fest.

On scruffy Dorset Street in north Dublin, Oliver Hughes groused about the heavy drinking as he watched his step on the messy pavements.

"Ireland's not Ireland anymore," said Hughes, 59, who nevertheless admitted he was heading to a pub. "Back when I was a lad, you'd go to the pub for the gossip and a smoke and a slow read of the papers. The young people today will drink 'til they're out of their minds."

DEAR ABBY

More doesn't mean merrier in couple's crowded home

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19, and last month I moved in with my boyfriend of five years. Ever since we got settled in our new home, he has invited his friends over on a daily basis. It's not just one or two, Abby; he has six to nine people stopping by every day to hang out, watch movies and even eat dinner with us.

I have tried expressing to him that I'd like to be asked before these people are invited. He'll comply occasionally, but most of the time I come home and find three people lounging in our living room like they own the place. His response when I get upset is, "I pay half the rent. Can't I have my friends over?"

There are nights when I want to come home, put my feet up, and read a book in peace and quiet, or better yet, spend time just with him. How can I communicate this without making him defensive? — CROWDED OUT IN MINNESOTA

DEAR CROWDED: There is a secret to successful cohabitation. It's called compromise. Consideration for the other person's feelings is also helpful. Before inviting friends to come and hang out, or share a meal, your boyfriend should call and ask if that's OK with you. That's what partners do to keep peace under their roof. Please clip this and show it to your boyfriend. It's not a question of all or nothing; it's simply common courtesy.

DEAR ABBY: My beloved mother died the first week of February. Four hours after she drew her last breath, at a lunch following our visit to the mortuary to make burial arrangements, her "friend" of more than 40 years, "Marilyn," began asking me to give her items from my mother's home.

I agreed to let her have two chairs at some time in the future. Within two days after my return home (I live in a neighboring state), Marilyn and her husband entered Mother's home and removed two carloads of furniture —not including the two chairs. They took photographs and personal items belonging to my mother, some of which were removed from her bedroom.

I insisted they return what they took, which they claim they did, but I'll always wonder whether they returned everything. Should I report the theft to the authorities or to the other family members? Should I demand an accounting from the so-called friends? — ANGRY AND HEARTSICK IN SUN CITY

DEAR ANGRY AND HEARTSICK: By all means disclose what happened not only to your other family members, but also to your mother's lawyer and the police. The lawyer can demand the accounting, and the police can make sure that all the items were indeed returned.

DEAR ABBY: My question is a simple one. Which way should a woman wear her engagement and wedding ring set? I wear mine so the wedding band is inside and the engagement ring is outside. My friend wears hers the opposite way. Which is correct? — NEEDS TO KNOW, CLOVIS, N.M.

DEAR NEEDS: The wedding band should be worn closest to the heart, and the engagement ring should be placed as a "guard" on the outside.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 19, 2005:
You can have a spectacular and creative year if you conjure up self-discipline and tame your imagination. You'll also come up with solutions with ease as long as you don't lock into insecurity. View problems as creative challenges. If you are artistic, your abilities will crest this year. Children and romance could preoccupy many of you. If you are single, your status could easily change if you want it to. You'll certainly have your choice of suitors. If you are attached, expect a new addition if at the appropriate age. Many will feel as if they are on their second honeymoon. CANCER feels as deeply as you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ You could be overly serious. You are not only raining on the parade of others, but you are spoiling what could be a very dynamic afternoon. Follow another's lead. Go out and don't cut yourself off from others. Family demands could be overwhelming, but with some perspective, you'll lighten up. Tonight: Choose your words with care.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Your words or mood could convey much more than you realize. Make an effort to walk in another's shoes. Understanding will help you relax and enjoy the positives about this person. A trip, foreigner or long-distance call could please you a lot. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ You get a serious financial indicator. You can use this news positively if you so choose. Perspective has everything to do with how you feel. A partner does what he or she needs to do to draw a response. Meanwhile, you easily could be off-kilter, as your ruling planet goes retrograde today. Tonight: Do what feels right.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You could be a little more serious than you realize. Often, you feel overwhelmed. Though you are on the right course, others could be unusually challenging. Work with controversy and see the positive in what others say. You will open doors. Don't take others' comments personally. Tonight: Be yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★ Step back. Much might not be in sync right now. Get physical and work out your stress and/or anger. A friend or loved one might not understand what is going on but is there for you. Decide to take some time off from the world. Tonight: Alone or with a favorite person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Others defer to you, as you seem to have a strong sense of direction. You might notice a radical change in your mood, as your ruler goes retrograde today. Others could become unusually assertive. Refuse to take comments personally. Tonight: Where the action is.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ You have to be available to others, even if you would like to cocoon. As a result, you might be unusually contentious, for you. You might need to adapt for now. Change plans if you feel pulled in too many directions. Gossip could be just that! Tonight: Do only what you must.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Take the high road and don't let others irritate you. In fact, if you do, spectacular events could occur. Catch up with an old friend you haven't heard from in a long time. A loved one could easily be offended in the next few weeks. Tonight: Where there is entertainment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Others clearly want what they want. You could be confused as to how to handle their demands. It is important not to overspend, even if you feel it will ultimately pay off. With Mercury going retrograde today, decisions and commitments will backfire. Tonight: Fulfill another's wishes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ You have fire and energy, which, if misplaced, could upset many people. You have no idea what type of impact you have. Allow others to run with the ball. Put your energy into doing your taxes or getting into a project. Tonight: Go along with plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Work on relaxing and not internalizing frustration or anger. Do something exclusively for your well-being. Avoid overspending in order to soothe your soul. Try exercise or getting into a favorite hobby. A child or loved one could be off-kilter for several weeks. Tonight: Order in.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ A male friend's suggestion points you in the right direction. Take the lead with others. A child or loved one could become unusually uptight, only to become quite affectionate. Don't get stuck or become rigid. Tonight: Play out the perfect Saturday night.

Bulldogs lose to OHS in shootout

By Dave Sager
Sports Writer

ODESSA — Both the Midland High and Odessa High boys soccer teams were playing for different things Friday night.

The Bulldogs needed a win to move ahead of crosstown rival Lee into third place in the District 3-5A standings with no more games on their schedule. The Bronchos needed a victory to remain in the hunt for their third straight district championship.

In the end, it was OHS coming out with the victory — and in a shootout no less. The Bronchos edged the Bulldogs, 3-2, with the shootout score being 2-1. It was the fourth shootout for OHS in district play and the fourth win.

"Alonso (Jimenez) is just a good goalie," first-year Midland High coach Todd Green said. "We knew we could score on him — he's not invincible, he's good but he's not invincible. We got close, closer than we've ever gotten. Maybe next year."

For the Bulldogs, it's now out of their hands. MHS dropped to 12-9-1 overall and 6-6 in district.

Midland High's only hope to make the postseason is for Lee (13-9-0, 6-4) to lose both of its remaining games.

"We knew that even with a win (Friday) night, it was still out of our hands," Green said. "But at least we could have put the pressure on everybody else."

Odessa High.....3
Bulldogs.....2

The Bronchos (11-6-1, 8-3) need one more win and an Abilene High loss to win their third league title, but either way, Friday's win clinched them a playoff spot.

Friday's game was the sixth shootout for the Bulldogs this year in district. However, their record is not as good as Odessa High at 2-4, including two of losses to the Bronchos.

"We had some games this year that we really played hard and it didn't work out," Green said. "You know, I told the guys that in the playoffs, it's 20 minutes of overtime and then a shootout. Odessa was dead at the end of the game and had we had that overtime, I feel like we could have won."

The Bronchos took a 2-0 advantage in the first half thanks to the Guillen brothers. Freshman Uli Guillen scored the first goal in the 14th minute and older brother Carlos, a senior, scored in the 20th minute. Both goals were unassisted.

MHS got on the board in the 36th minute on a goal by Steven Farris with the assist going to Chris Hawkins. The Bulldogs trailed 2-1 at the half.

In the second half, Hawkins tied the game in the 65th minute on a pretty pass from Tyler Allen.

Surviving Scares

Second-seeded Cowboys turn back SE Louisiana

By Jeff Latzke
Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — JamesOn Curry hesitated for a split second, then jumped and let loose a 3-pointer right in front of his coach's seat.

When the shot fell through, the 19-year-old freshman didn't keep his excitement inside. He pumped his fist as he walked toward midcourt, giving second-seeded Oklahoma State the boost it needed in its 63-50 win over Southeastern Louisiana on Friday in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

The Cowboys move on to play Southern Illinois or Saint Mary's in the Chicago Regional.

"I thought it was a bad shot," Curry said. "But it went in, so I guess it was a good shot."

The 3-pointer put Oklahoma State ahead 54-47 with just under 4 minutes to play, and the Cowboys (25-6) held off the Lions (24-9) by making their next nine free throws down the stretch.

Once the Lions pulled within three points, it was Curry's enthusiasm that put the Cowboys over the top. He sliced into the lane and found Ivan McFarlin cutting to the basket for a layup, and he was only getting started.

He added a free throw, then found McFarlin for another basket inside to put Oklahoma State up 49-43. Terrence Crawford emphatically jammed home a miss by John Lucas III, and Curry hit his 3-pointer from the left wing in front of coach Eddie Sutton.

"Coach is always talking about playing with intensity and emotion," Curry said. "That helps change the game a little bit. It makes it a little bit (more fun). ... Hopefully, that bit of energy can add to the guys and become contagious."

McFarlin scored 18 points to lead the Cowboys, a Final Four team last season, and Curry scored 13.

The Lions, trying to become the fifth No. 15 seed to upset a second-seeded team, were within 44-41 midway through the second half after an 11-3 run fueled by Ricky Woods' ability to get inside and cause havoc.

Woods sank a leaning flip against Crawford, finished a whirling drive down the left side of the lane and grabbed a deflected pass for a two-handed jam, then drove the lane and dished off to Jonathan Walker to make it 42-39. Woods led the Lions with 16

WORCESTER, Mass. — Joyless. Complacent. OK at best.

And that was from the winners.

Defending champion Connecticut withstood a furious charge by Central Florida in the opening round of the NCAA tournament on Friday, getting 22 points from Charlie Villanueva to win 77-71 and keep its hopes of a repeat alive.

Central Florida (24-9) cut a 19-point lead to four thanks to Gary Johnson's career-high 29 points — including seven 3-pointers. But UConn (23-7) held on for its 13th consecutive first-round victory.

"Some of them have been awful. Some of them have been great. This one was OK at best," coach Jim Calhoun said. "We played some brilliant basketball, took our foot off the pedal and couldn't find it again. ... From that point on, we didn't play with the kind of enthusiasm this event deserves.

"But we'll be one of the 32, and that's the whole idea."

UConn will play North Carolina State, a No. 10 seed that advanced to the second round of the Syracuse Regional with a 75-63 victory over Charlotte earlier Friday. But that could be it for the second-seeded Huskies if they don't snap out of the slump that has stymied them for the last three games.

"We don't worry about style points," center Josh Boone said. "At times, we just tried to do way too much, make a pass that wasn't there, make a shot that wasn't there. If we continue to play like this, only 10 or 11 minutes a game, it could be a very quick tournament for us."

Central Florida had won eight straight games, but the Atlantic Sun champions fell behind by 16 points at the half and by as many as 19, 62-43, with 13:06 left. UConn still led by 15 when the Golden Knights scored nine in a row to make it 68-62.

UConn led 74-65 with 62 seconds left when Justin Rose made a layup to cut it to seven points. The Huskies called a timeout, and Calhoun seemed to struggle to get off the bench, sitting there alone while his players gathered around to await his instructions.

"We weren't having fun," Calhoun said. "We've had fun since January, and this is a fun event. And we were up by

Jacks fall in home finale

From staff reports

ODESSA — Before the result of Friday's game with New Mexico was final, the Odessa Jackalopes were playing for nothing but pride.

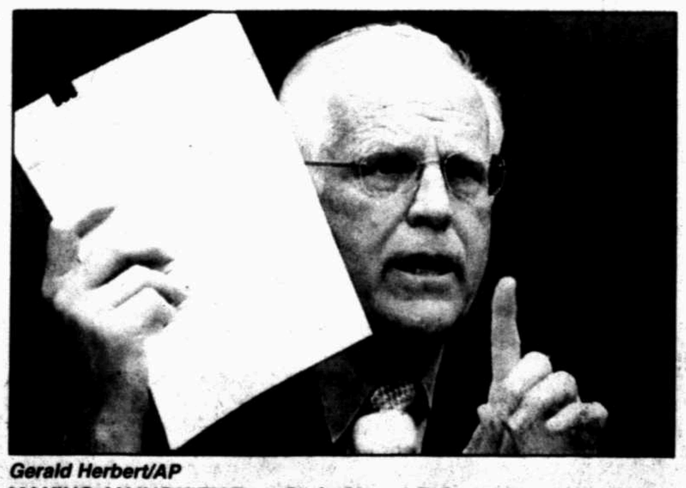

Needing to win out and hope that the Lubbock Cotton Kings stumbled, neither happened for the Jacks, who lost to the New Mexico Scorpions 3-2 in overtime at Ector County Coliseum. That outcome didn't matter, though, since Lubbock clinched the final playoff berth from the Central Hockey League's Southwest Division by beating Colorado 4-2.

The Jacks still looked up to the task in the first half of the game. After New Mexico took a 1-0 lead late in the first period, the Jacks answered back less than two minutes later with a goal from Pascal Bedard to tie it 1-1.

Midway through the second period, the Jacks went up 2-1 on a goal by Paul Davies. A little over five minutes into the third period, though, New Mexico scored on a goal by Troy Ilijow to make it 2-2, the way it stayed throughout regulation.

Three minutes into overtime, Konrad McKay scored for the Scorpions to clinch the win.

The Jacks close their season tonight with a 7:30 p.m. game at Laredo.

MAKING AN INQUIRY Rep. Chris Shays, R-Conn., questions Major League Baseball commissioner Bud Selig (not shown) about its policy on steroid use during a hearing on Capitol Hill in Washington on Thursday.

Congress unsatisfied with baseball's policy

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Major League Baseball, take note: Congress will be keeping a close eye on you.

Far from satisfied after an 11-hour hearing about steroids, lawmakers said Friday they will consider drawing up legislation to make changes to baseball's drug-testing policy if the sport fails to act on its own.

"Management and the players never stepped up to the plate," said Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. "It became clear that baseball remains in denial about the scope of the problem and the defects in its deeply flawed testing policy. 'Trust baseball' isn't going to work anymore."

Rangerettes hold off Fort Stockton

From staff reports

■ Area Softball Roundup

GREENWOOD — After running roughshod over the first three opponents in District 3-3A, the Greenwood softball team had to go through a tough test at home Friday afternoon.

But the results were just the same for the Rangerettes — another district win.

Greenwood jumped out to a five-run lead after three innings, but had to hold on in the seventh for a 5-4 victory over Fort Stockton to stay unbeaten in district. The Rangerettes (12-7 overall) are now 4-0 in district.

The Rangerettes seemed to have the game well in hand after they took a 5-0 lead with four runs in the top of the fifth. Veronica Carruth had a two-run double and Shannon Richards hit a two-run home run which seemed to be enough of a cushion for Greenwood.

"We felt like we had it under control when we went up 5-0," Greenwood coach Ken Ferguson said. "Other than that one stretch we didn't hit the ball very well. We felt (Fort Stockton) would be a threat."

Fort Stockton cut it to 5-2 then scored twice in the top of the seventh off Kendal Schneider when Jessica Gonzales doubled to drive in a run then scored when it was misplayed in the wind. But Schneider recorded the final out to preserve the victory.

Greenwood will host Monahans in a district game at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

ARLINGTON — Midland Christian opened its TAPPS District 1-5A season by hammering Arlington Grace Prep 21-0 in a game which lasted only three innings.

The Lady Mustangs (25-2) scored eight runs in the first inning to pretty much settle the issue. Kresha Adams got the scoring started with a two-run home run and Meghan Swanson added a two-run double as the inning's other big hit.

Adams and Gabby Hernandez led the Midland Christian attack with four hits each. Erica Gomez, Taharra Tisdale and Cricket Criner all had three hits each while Swanson and Jacy Greer had two each.

Tisdale pitched the first two innings for the win, while Gomez pitched the third to preserve a no-hitter.

The Lady Mustangs will stay on the road to play in the consolation of the Arlington Spring Break Classic against Forney today at 10 a.m.

Last game: Lee 10, Abilene Cooper 3; Odessa High 8, San Angelo Central 2
Notes: This is another early season district game in which the winner can make a statement. The winner will have at least a share of the lead in the district, and will have sole possession of first if Abilene High loses to San Angelo Central... Lee slogged through some horrible weather by getting off to a fast start to beat Cooper, scoring six runs in the first three innings. Logan Forest and Matt Day combined for five hits and five RBIs for the Rebels. Junior left-hander Barry Keiffer labored during the later innings, but he still hung tough by striking out 11 as the Rebels played errorless defense behind him... Sophomore right-handers Brandon Williamson or Conrad Flynn are expected to pitch for Lee today... The previous meeting between Lee and OHS came in the semifinals of the Tournament of Champions at First American Bank Ballpark. David Kahlich and John Busbee combined to shut out the Bronchos.
Next game: Lee vs. Midland High, 7 p.m., Tuesday, First American Bank Ballpark; Odessa High at Permian, 4 p.m., Tuesday.

UTPB JV vs. Midland College

When/where: 1 p.m. today, doubleheader, Christensen Stadium.
Notes & quotes: Midland College goes into this weekend with a 19-3 record after losing three of four games to Western Junior College Athletic Conference rival New Mexico Junior College over the weekend. After splitting the first doubleheader in Hobbs, N.M., the Chaps were outplayed in every phase against the Thunderbirds in the second doubleheader, losing 14-3, 10-2. ...This weekend will be an opportunity for MC to bounce back and regain some confidence. "We're definitely not in a panic after one weekend but coaches and players realize we've got some things we need to get fixed," MC coach Steve Ramharter said. ... The Chaps will be looking for some more improvement, especially fielding as MC committed a combined seven errors in the two losses on Sunday. Ramharter added that his team's offense also struggled. "We just didn't put out the numbers that we're capable of," Ramharter said. "Baseball is such a mental game, especially hitting, and when hitters aren't feeling good about their swings it's hard to produce."

DAWGS

In the shootout, Allen missed the first attempt for the Bulldogs, while Uli Guillen scored his to take a 1-0 advantage. Mike Abalos, Midland High's third shooter tied it at 1-1. Jimenez scored on OHS' fourth try after MHS'Reed Stevens' shot went wide left, giving the Bronchos a 2-1 advantage with one shooter left.

Jimenez stopped Avery Smith's shot for the victory.

And no one took the loss harder than Smith. Smith, a senior midfielder, has played goalkeeper in the last four shootouts for the Bulldogs and is 2-2.

After letting Jimenez' shot get past him, he had the opportunity to keep MHS alive.

After the game he was devastated.

"Avery played great," Green said. "He did what he could. He's won games for us, but it's still tough to lose and it just shows that they care."

Lady Bulldogs edge OHS

ODESSA— The Midland High girls soccer team had nothing to play for Friday night at Ratliff Stadium.

The Lady Bulldogs already clinched their third consecutive District 3-5A title on Tuesday and have a bye in the first round of the playoffs.

For the Lady Bronchos, who have no chance to make the postseason, they were just playing for pride. And for 80 minutes, they held strong with the Bulldogs, but couldn't win in the shootout. MHS took a 1-0 victory with a 2-1 score in the shootout to improve to 20-1-0, 11-1.

"Their defense looked strong all night," MHS coach Scott Hodkinson said. "They were quick to the ball, good to clear it out and I think they just frustrated us defensively make it tough for us to score."

Midland High outshot the Lady Bronchos 15-3, but couldn't get any past Gabi Gutierrez — at least until the shootout. For OHS (9-9-4, 3-8), it was the seventh game that they were scoreless in regulation and its fourth straight loss.

The shootout went to seven shooters with Michel Ketter getting the game-winner. MHS senior Kara Purty and Odessa High's Michelle Freeman also scored in the shootout.

Throughout the entire game and the shootout, Lady Bulldogs keeper Lindsey Wilson allowed just one goal for her seventh shutout in district play.

"I knew the pressure was on," Wilson said. "So I was just ready for anything."

Howell, Ames tied for Bay Hill lead

Bill Perry/AP

TEEING OFF Stephen Ames of Calgary, Alberta, follows his drive off the third tee during the second round of the Bay Hill Invitational in Orlando, Fla., on Friday. Ames ended the day at 5 under par.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Charles Howell III and Stephen Ames got the best of both worlds Friday in the Bay Hill Invitational. They were among only 30 players to complete the second round, and they were atop the leaderboard.

On a day that felt like a marathon to some and a vacation to others, Howell ended his long day with another short birdie putt that gave him rounds of 71-68, giving him a share of the early lead.

Ames also played 36 holes and posted the same scores. He birdied five of six holes in one stretch, then finished with a 5-foot par to join Howell at 5-under 139.

Vijay Singh, who can return to No. 1 in the world with a victory this week, struck the ball flawlessly but couldn't make a putt. He found a solution on the eighth hole by not having to putt — the Fijian holed out from 152 yards with a 9-iron and wound up with rounds of 72 and 68, leaving him one shot behind.

"I just didn't make any putts all day," Singh said.

Their position won't be clear until the other 84 players finish their rounds — 37 of them, including Tiger Woods and Ernie Els, did not tee off and could wind up playing 36 holes Saturday.

Joe Ogilvie wound up as the first-round leader, finishing with a 68 and then returning more than nine hours later to play the first three holes of his second round. He birdied No. 3 and was at 5 under.

It all was caused by rain that washed out all but three hours on Thursday, which kept Howell & Co. idle and left them quite busy on Friday. The only other time Howell recalled playing 36 holes in one day as a professional was at the Presidents Cup two years ago in South Africa. When he played at Oklahoma State, 36-hole matches were routine.

"I felt like I was in college again," Howell said. "I made the turn (after the first round), they handed me a sandwich and told me to keep going."

He lives only a mile down the street from Bay Hill, so Howell, Ames and Singh can rest until Saturday afternoon.

Pat Perez, whose bad-boy personality took another hit last week in the Honda Classic, had a 72-70 and was at 142 along with Briny Baird (69-73). NBC Sports chose not to show Perez in the final round of the Honda Classic because of obscene gestures he made after missing a putt.

Among others who finished were David Duval, who hit his first tee shot out-of-bounds and struggled mightily at times with his accuracy. He started with an 85 and ended with a 79, leaving him in last place.

But at least he finished.

Four players withdrew after one round citing injury. Dudley Hart had to stop after nine holes because of lingering back problems, finishing his day with a 10 on the 18th hole after hitting two balls into the water. Ryan Palmer was 15 over and had one hole to go when darkness suspended play. He won't bother coming back.

And then there was Mark Hensby.

He was 9 over when he hooked his tee shot out of bounds and didn't hit another shot, although the Aussie was kind enough to walk with his group to keep their score and shake hands. Marking his card in the trailer, he simply put an "X" under the 18th hole and was disqualified for not finishing the round.

The gallery didn't see much of the marquee grouping — Woods, Els and U.S. Open champion Retief Goosen. They played 11 holes in temperatures that hovered around 50 degrees, then headed to their respective country clubs for the rest of the day. Woods lives at Isleworth, Els and Goosen at Lake Nona.

Woods holed a 6-foot par putt on the 18th to avoid ending his round with three straight bogeys. He figured that at least would give him some positive vibes "going to my 7:10 tee time tonight."

Tour officials later decided that anyone whose tee time was bumped beyond 6:30 p.m. should not return until 7:15 a.m. Saturday to resume play.

Howell had seven consecutive rounds of 71 at Bay Hill, then broke that bizarre streak with solid iron play. All his birdies were inside 12 feet, including a 9-iron into 6 feet on his last hole.

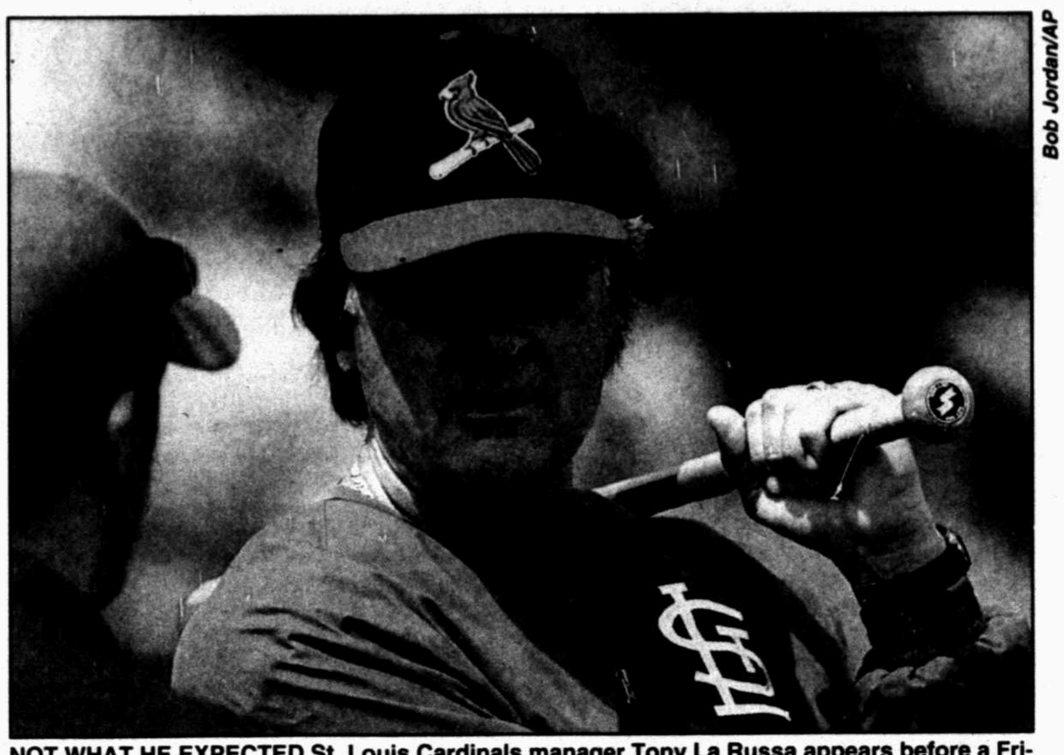

"I managed to get the ball a little closer," he said.

So did Ames, who made three straight birdies to get into the hunt, then picked up more shots on the 16th and 17th holes to become the only player so far to reach 6 under.

But that could change.

Woods, Els and others who got most of the day off will have played their first two rounds in morning conditions, and the weather is supposed to be warm sunshine Saturday, which could make Bay Hill more vulnerable.

"Guys coming up tomorrow morning with good weather, they're probably going to shoot lights out," Singh said. "I'm in good position. Two days to go."

La Russa surprised by McGwire

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mark McGwire took more hits a day after his congressional testimony, with the head of the World Anti-Doping Agency calling his evasions tantamount to an admission of steroid use.

A congressman at Thursday's hearing wants McGwire's name removed from a highway. Even McGwire's former manager, Tony La Russa, was surprised by McGwire's repeated refusals to deny using steroids.

"I think it would have been a lot better for him to say, 'I did it and I'm sorry,'" former baseball commissioner Fay Vincent said.

McGwire has denied using illegal performance-enhancing drugs but refused to do so under oath Thursday when he appeared before the House Government Reform Committee, citing advice from his lawyer. McGwire repeatedly said he would not discuss his past.

"What I saw and heard was a confession," WADA chairman Richard Pound said Friday during a symposium at Saint Louis University on doping in sports.

Committee member Christopher Shays, a Connecticut Republican, put it bluntly Friday: "Is there any doubt in your mind that Mark McGwire took drugs?"

La Russa, who managed McGwire on both the Oakland Athletics and the Cardinals, said he believes McGwire's denials.

"In my opinion, being under oath wouldn't have changed what he said," La Russa said at spring training in Jupiter, Fla. "I think he was overcoached. Mostly, I think it was a missed opportunity to explain that if you use substances like creatine and over-the-counter stuff that's not illegal, you can get the benefits of a hard-core weight training program. And that was never discussed. You can get bigger and stronger doing this legally, and I didn't hear that."

La Russa was hoping for more during the testimony.

"He's made a statement where he's denied it, and I thought it was a great time to make that same statement," La Russa said. "I think he was kind of coached into saying this one thing, 'I'm here about the future, not about the past.' I was surprised he didn't repeat what he said earlier. I think it would have helped his cause."

La Russa admits that he's biased toward McGwire because of their friendship.

"It's impossible to separate myself from what I know of how hard he worked and how he developed," La Russa said. "Could I have an opinion if I was just a fan? Yeah, he looked uncomfortable the whole time. But then, I saw him uncomfortable in 1998 when people asked him questions and he was just shy and wanted to hide from them."

U.S. Rep. William Lacy Clay, a Missouri Democrat, wants McGwire's name stripped off the 5-mile stretch of Interstate-70 that was named after Big Mac following his 70-homer season in 1998.

"It would take an act by the state legislature, but I don't think he deserves a name on the highway if he can't be forthcoming about his involvement with this issue," Clay told The Associated Press on Friday.

Gov. Mel Carnahan signed legislation in 1999 officially naming a section from the city's western edge to the Illinois border, "Mark McGwire Highway."

The chairman of the state Senate Transportation Committee said McGwire's name will remain, as far as he's concerned.

"Mark McGwire was a hero of baseball in St. Louis," state Sen. Jon Dolan said. "He remains so and must deal with the choices he's made. But nothing he did would change my mind about what we do or don't name highways."

Sammy Sosa, Rafael Palmeiro and Frank Thomas told the committee Thursday they did not use illegal steroids. McGwire has previously denied steroid use, but under oath repeatedly sidestepped questions by saying he wouldn't discuss his past.

CONGRESS

(From 1B)

Waxman is the ranking Democrat on the House Government Reform Committee, which summoned baseball players and executives to Capitol Hill on Thursday for what turned into a daylong show.

Retired slugger Mark McGwire repeatedly refused to say under oath whether he took steroids, baseball commissioner Bud Selig said the game didn't have a major steroid problem, and lawmakers threatened federal legislation to govern drug testing in baseball and possibly all U.S. sports.

"The members of Congress were as upset at the end of the hearing as they were at the beginning," said committee member Mark Souder, R-Ind.

McGwire's testimony was still a big topic Friday. Committee member William Lacy Clay, D-Mo., wants McGwire's name removed from a highway in Missouri, the head of the World Anti-Doping Agency called the former slugger's evasions tantamount to an admission of steroid use, and Christopher Shays, R-Conn., put it most bluntly: "Is there any doubt in your mind that Mark McGwire took drugs?"

But the lawmakers also had more on their minds.

A spokesman for chairman Tom Davis, R-Va., said Friday the committee "will be closely monitoring" whether Selig and union head Donald Fehr make changes to the drug plan owners and players drew up in January after pressure from Congress.

"Will they live up to their pledge and make this policy what they originally represented it to be? If so, the likelihood of another hearing diminishes," spokesman David Marin said. "We plan on having regular contact with MLB and the union for some time. Hopefully, now we'll get our calls returned."

The panel is already investigating how easily steroids can be obtained, and there are plans for follow-up hearings in coming months looking into steroid use in other pro and college sports.

Rep. Stephen Lynch, D-Mass., said it might already be time for Congress to "do their dirty work and come up with a policy that will guarantee the integrity of baseball."

Rob Manfred, baseball's executive vice president for labor relations, didn't return telephone messages Friday. Fehr said he will "convey the events of the hearing" to players.

President Bush, who in his State of the Union address in 2004 called for a crackdown on steroids, does not believe that federal intervention is the right route, press secretary Scott McClellan said Friday.

But a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee held its own, lower-profile, hearing on steroids in sports last week, and its chairman said Friday more could come. Rep. Cliff Stearns, R-Fla., did echo Souder and others in expressing hope that congressional action isn't needed.

"Does Congress want to do anything? Probably not. Our preference is to let them do it on their own," Stearns said. "But based on what we heard from Major League Baseball, it looks like they won't do anything unless Congress either requires it or continues to push them."

At spring training in Kissimmee, Fla., Atlanta Braves catcher and union representative Johnny Estrada called Thursday's hearing a waste of time.

"We don't need the government coming in trying to police our sport. We can do it ourselves," he said. "We have a program in place. We just need to give it a chance to work."

AP Sports Writers Ronald Blum in New York and Charles Odum in Kissimmee, and Associated Press Writers Jim Salter and Cheryl Wittenauer in St. Louis contributed to this report.

Bending the rules a NASCAR tradition

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — NASCAR cracked down on the cheaters last weekend, so everyone will be especially vigilant about following the rules at Atlanta Motor Speedway, right?

Kyle Petty just shook his head.

No way.

"Everybody is still pushing the envelope," he said Friday, even as NASCAR inspectors swarmed through the paddock, sizing up cars for possible infractions. "It's not going to be as blatant, not going to be in your face so much. That's just the give and take of the sport."

Indeed, the hefty penalties handed down by NASCAR — three crew chiefs were suspended and Jimmie Johnson lost his points lead — are unlikely to change the culture in the garage.

From the earliest days, drivers and mechanics have looked for ways to increase speeds without running afoul of the inspectors. It's a game of cat and mouse with no clearly defined boundaries because the NASCAR rulebook is notorious for its vagueness.

According to Petty, racing is just following the lead of other sports (except for golf, of course, with its tradition of players policing themselves).

In baseball, infielders learn they can turn double plays without actually touching second base, cutting a little time off their throws to first. In basketball, officials could call palming on virtually every dribble.

But Petty says football might have the most subjective rule of all.

"If there's one sport and one rule that you could bust everybody on every play, it's holding in football," Petty said. "Everybody knows it. The fans know it. The players know it. The officials know it. At any given time, they could call holding.

"That's the same way our sport is. At any given time, you could walk through that garage, follow the letter of the law and bust almost any team for something. But they don't do that. It's part of the game."

Still, NASCAR is clearly trying to send a message that some things are out of bounds.

Johnson's winning car at Las Vegas failed to pass inspection after the race, falling short of the minimum height requirement. NASCAR suspended his crew chief, Chad Knaus, for two races and docked Johnson 25 points in the standings, dropping him behind defending series champion Kurt Busch.

Alan Gustafson, crew chief for Kyle Busch, also received a two-week suspension when the runner-up car was found to be too high after the race.

But NASCAR saved the most severe punishment for Todd Berrier, crew chief for Kevin Harvick. Berrier received a four-week suspension for rigging the fuel tank to appear full when it actually wasn't during qualifying — knowing a lighter car could run faster.

Doing nothing to mitigate his infraction, Berrier admitted he would probably do it again if he had the chance because he now realizes how he was caught by inspectors.

All three crew chiefs, who received hefty fines as well, appealed their suspensions, clearing them to stay with their teams for Sunday's Golden Corral 500. But only Knaus and Gustafson were in Atlanta — Berrier began serving his penalty, knowing his only hope was to reduce the length of his suspension, not wipe it out altogether.

"We know that he did wrong and he knows he did wrong," car owner Richard Childress said. "We deserve a penalty, but not the amount that we got."

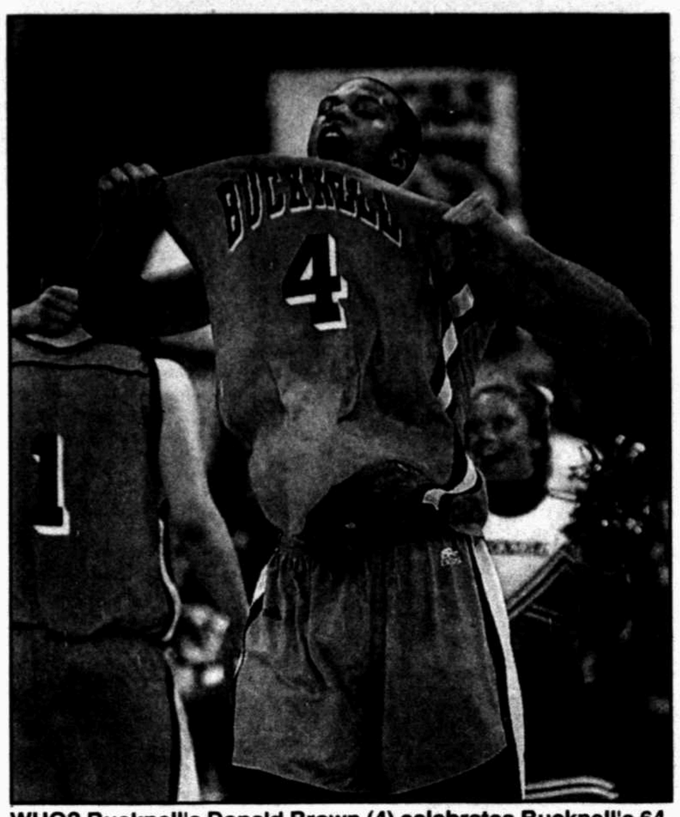

Childress criticized NASCAR for its policy of taking points away from the drivers for infractions committed by their crews.

"Most of the time, the drivers have no clue what's going on," he said. "I don't have the answer about what they should do, but I think if we came up with a better system, it would be a lot better than taking points. More fines, longer suspensions — do whatever you want to do — but points affect too many people that don't have anything to with it."

WHO? Bucknell's Donald Brown (4) celebrates Bucknell's 64-63 victory over Kansas in the first round of the NCAA tournament in Oklahoma City, Friday.

Jayhawks blindsided by Bucknell

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — In their 110th season, the Bucknell Bison finally won their first NCAA tournament game. And, wow, what a victory it was.

Chris McNaughton banked in a hook shot over Wayne Simien with 10.5 seconds left, then Simien missed an open 15-foot jumper at the buzzer, giving the 14th-seeded Bison a stunning 64-63 victory over third-seeded Kansas on Friday night to shake up the Syracuse Regional.

Bucknell (23-9) began playing basketball in 1896, joining Yale and Minnesota as the nation's oldest Division I programs. But the only other times the Bison even made the NCAA field were 1987, when they lost by 22 to Georgetown, and '89, when they lost by 23 to Syracuse.

Now they're the first No. 14 seed to win since Weber State beat North Carolina in 1999, and they ended the title hopes of Kansas, the preseason No. 1. This also is the first tournament win by a team from the Patriot League — and they'll go for another Sunday against seventh-seeded Wisconsin (23-8), which beat Northern Iowa 57-52 earlier Friday.

The Jayhawks (23-7) ended a streak of 15 straight first-round tournament wins and 21 in a row overall. Although they had their share of scares along the way, including one by Utah State in Oklahoma City just two years ago, this was their first opening-round exit since being eliminated by UCLA in 1978.

Kansas seemed vulnerable because it had lost five of its last eight and second-leading scorer Keith Langford was slowed by a lingering flu problem and a creaky left ankle. However, the Jayhawks weren't too concerned because four of those recent losses were to teams that won first round NCAA games.

Bucknell knew it could hang with the big boys after winning at Pittsburgh this season when the Panthers were undefeated and ranked No. 7. Not everyone was so sure this might happen, though — the band took off for spring break and couldn't be gathered in time to make it here, so the Northern Iowa crew was faxed sheet music earlier Friday, donned orange Bucknell T-shirts and filled in.

Kevin Bettencourt got the good karma going with a four-point play to open the Bison's scoring. He finished with 19 points and had five of their 3-pointers. Bucknell put up a season-high 31, while trying to stay away from Simien inside.

The Bison led by as many as seven in the first half and protected the lead even through a nearly six minute drought between baskets. Then they went scoreless the last 4:33 of the half and Kansas used a 10-0 run to take the lead.

Yet the Jayhawks were never able to seize control — although they seemed to come close in the final minute, when Langford hit two free throws with 25.4 seconds left to put KU up 63-62.

Bucknell went straight up the court and fed McNaugton in the lane. He responded with his sixth make on seven attempts, giving him 14 points.

Langford had another attempt, but missed short. Bucknell's John Griffin got the rebound and was fouled, but missed the front end of a one-and-one and Simien grabbed the carom with 2.4 seconds left.

After a timeout, Kansas tried the Grant Hill-to-Christian Laettner play Duke used to beat Kentucky in the NCAAs. Michael Lee's heave to Simien went perfectly and he spun for a good look at the basket. But his shot hit the rim and bounced away.

13th-seeded Vermont upends Syracuse

Associated Press

WORCESTER, Mass. — Tom Brennan called his Vermont Catamounts a dangerous team. Syracuse found out just how dangerous.

Germain Mopa Njila and T.J. Sorrentine hit consecutive 3-pointers in a 48-second span of overtime, and the 13th-seeded Catamounts upset the Big East champions 60-57 Friday night in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

When Gerry McNamara missed a desperation 3 from the top of the key in the final seconds, the Cats had their first tournament triumph. They swarmed together and hugged in celebration, jumping up and down as Brennan raised his right arm in triumph.

Brennan, who is retiring at the end of the season, continually brushed tears from his eyes after beating a Syracuse team that had hopes of making the Final Four for the second time in three years.

Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim left the court with his head down, and the players followed.

Vermont (25-6) advanced to play either Michigan State or Old Dominion in the second round of the Austin Regional. Fourth-seeded Syracuse, the 2003 national champions, finished its season 27-7.

Brennan paced back and forth in front of the bench, thrusting his fist in the air each time the Catamounts took the lead, and the Vermont players were told by the officials several times to stay on the bench.

Syracuse never got on track, committing a season-high 24 turnovers. Hakim Warrick ended the final game of his impressive career with 21 points and 12 rebounds, his 16th double-double of the season, but he had 10 turnovers. McNamara had 11 points but was 1-for-7 on 3-pointers.

Vermont tied the game at 51 when Taylor Coppenrath hit a long jumper with 55 seconds left. The Catamounts then got the ball back with a chance to take the lead, but Mopa Njila stepped on the baseline — negating his go-ahead layup with 3.7 seconds left.

The Vermont coaches threw their pens and clipboards against their seats in frustration. McNamara missed a 3-pointer in the final seconds to send the game into overtime.

No. 15 Michigan St. 89, Old Dominion 81

WORCESTER, Mass. — Fifth-seeded Michigan State couldn't pull away until the final minutes, when Shannon Brown made a spinning layin to start a three-point play that helped the Spartans beat Old Dominion.

Michigan State (23-6) managed to avoid a second consecutive first-round exit and instead gave coach Tom Izzo his 20th tournament win — his NCAA record is second only to Mike Krzyzewski's.

Brown scored 13 points, and Alan Anderson had 15 to lead five Spartans in double figures. Michigan State shot 57 percent (29-for-51) from the floor in the game, and that was despite making just three of 14 shots from 3-point range.

Alex Loughton had 22 points, 11 rebounds and six assists for Old Dominion (28-6) after playing much of the second half in the foul trouble.

Duke 57, Delaware State 46

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Shelden Williams had 14 points and 11 rebounds and the top-seeded Blue Devils gave Coach K his 65th career victory in the tournament.

In 21 NCAA tournaments, coach Mike Krzyzewski is 65-17, tying Dean Smith's total for the most career victories.

This one certainly was expected, even though Duke (26-5) had a hard time in the Austin Regional. The Blue Devils struggled throughout with the Hornets (19-13) despite having guard Sean Dockery back for the first time in seven games after he recovered from a knee injury.

Tracey Worley led Delaware State with 13 points, and Troy Roundtree added 11.

Duke will play Mississippi State on Sunday.

Mississippi State 93, Stanford 70

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Winsome Frazier made six 3-pointers and scored 20 points to lead the ninth-seeded Bulldogs over Stanford in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Lawrence Roberts, the 2004 Southeastern Conference player of the year, led the Bulldogs (23-10) with 23 points and 14 rebounds. But it was Frazier who provided the spark they needed to get past No. 8 Stanford (18-13).

Frazier finished 7-of-9 from the floor, including 6-of-8 from 3-point range.

Chris Hernandez led Stanford with 17 points. Rob Little and Matt Haryasz had 14 each and Fred Washington finished with 12.

Syracuse Regional

Florida 67, Ohio 62

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Florida blew a 20-point lead, but Anthony Roberson converted a three-point play with 42.3 seconds left to help the Gators advance.

Florida came into its seventh straight NCAA tournament hoping to forget about first-round losses of the past. The Gators had lost two of their last three first-round games, including last year to Manhattan when they were a No. 5 seed.

This time, though, fourth-seeded Florida (24-7) hung on after blowing a 55-35 lead with 11:51 left. The Bobcats (21-11), who rallied from 19 points down to win the Mid-American Conference title, went on a 20-2 run and tied the game at 60 with 2:12 left on Mychal Green's sixth 3-pointer.

Matt Walsh led the Gators with 18 points, and Lee added 14. Green finished with 24 points for the Bobcats. Florida moves on to play Villanova in the second round Sunday.

Villanova 55, New Mexico 47

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Kyle Lowry made two sets of free throws in the final 1:38, then came up with a clutch steal to help Villanova hold off New Mexico.

Lowry finished with eight points, while Mike Nardi led the Wildcats with 15 points. The Wildcats (23-7) got away with one against the Lobos.

After holding 12th-seeed New Mexico to just 11 points in the first half and leading by as much as 24, Villanova made just three field goals in the second half. The Lobos (26-7) made a furious rally, pulling within 52-47 with 29 seconds left. But they couldn't overcome their dismal start. Danny Granger led New Mexico with 15 points.

Fifth-seeded Villanova (23-7) moves on to face fourth-seeded Florida in the Syracuse Regional on Sunday.

North Carolina State 75, Charlotte 63

WORCESTER, Mass. — Julius Hodge atoned for the lowest moment of his college career in a big way, with 19 points, nine assists and seven rebounds.

The 10th-seeded Wolfpack (20-10) play again Sunday in the Syracuse Regional against defending national champion Connecticut. Andrew Brackman had 16 points, Ilian Evtimov and Cameron Bennerman each had 12 and Engin Atsur 10 for the Wolfpack.

A year ago in the NCAA tournament, Hodge was in tears after fouling out in a second-round game against Vanderbilt. Brendan Plavich, Eddie Basden and Curtis Withers each scored 15 for the seventh-seeded 49ers (21-8).

North Carolina 96, Oakland 68

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Freshman Marvin Williams scored 20 points and Sean May added 19 in the top-seeded Tar Heels' rout.

Rashad McCants added 16 points for the Tar Heels (28-4), who shot 73 percent in the first half to take a 28-point lead and never looked back. North Carolina advanced to Sunday's second round to face ninth-seeded Iowa State in the Syracuse Regional.

Oakland (13-19) won only nine regular-season games all year. The Michigan school reached the NCAA tournament thanks to an improbable run through the Mid-Continent Conference tournament and then beat Alabama A&M in Tuesday's play-in game.

Cortney Scott finished with 21 points to lead Oakland.

Iowa State 64, Minnesota 53

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The Cyclones relied on the same formula that sparked a dramatic turnaround during the regular season, using a variety of pressure defenses to pull out the victory in the Syracuse Regional.

Iowa State held Minnesota to 33 percent shooting, and Curtis Stinson led a balanced attack with 18 points. Rahshon Clark and Jared Homan added 14 each for Iowa State (19-11), which got past the first round for the first time since reaching the round of eight in 2000.

Brent Lawson and Vincent Grier had 14 apiece for the eighth-seeded Gophers (21-11). Using some full-court pressure and almost exclusively going with a zone, the Cyclones forced 17 turnovers and kept the Gophers off-balance throughout.

Wisconsin 57, N. Iowa 52

OKLAHOMA CITY — Kammron Taylor scored 16 points in a reserve role, including a jumper and four free throws in the final minute, to help Wisconsin hold off Northern Iowa.

Sixth-seeded Wisconsin will play Bcuknell in the second round Sunday.

The Panthers, who had a chance to tie eventual Final Four participant Georgia Tech on their final possession in the first round of last year's tournament, rallied from an early 16-point deficit before having another upset bid fall short.

Sharif Chambliss hit a season-high five 3-pointers and had 15 points for Wisconsin (23-8), which didn't get its usual output from leading scorers Alando Tucker and Mike Wilkinson. Tucker, who'd been averaging 14.9 points, scored only six and Wilkinson (14.3 points) had seven.

Ben Jacobson led the Panthers (21-11) with 20 points, and Erik Crawford finished with 13.

Bucknell 64, Kansas 63

OKLAHOMA CITY — In their 110th season, the Bucknell Bison finally won their first NCAA tournament game. And, wow, what a victory it was.

Chris McNaughton banked in a hook shot over Wayne Simien with 10.5 seconds left, then Simien missed an open 15-foot jumper at the buzzer, giving the 14th-seeded Bison a stunning victory over third-seeded Kansas.

Bucknell (23-9) began playing basketball in 1896, joining Yale and Minnesota as the nation's oldest Division I programs. But the only other times the Bison even made the NCAA field were 1987, when they lost by 22 to Georgetown, and '89, when they lost by 23 to Syracuse.

The Jayhawks (23-7) ended a streak of 15 straight first-round tournament wins and 21 in a row overall. This was their first opening-round exit since being eliminated by UCLA in 1978.

Southern Illinois 65, Saint Mary's 56

OKLAHOMA CITY — Stetson Hairston broke a late tie with three free throws, then followed with a 3-pointer and Darren Brooks drove for the next two baskets, to push Southern Illinois into the next round.

Southern Illinois (27-7) advanced to the second round for the first time since 2002, when Hairston and Brooks were freshmen on a club that made the regional semifinals. The Salukis were knocked out by one point in the opening round the last two years, missing shots at the buzzer both times.

Next up for seventh-seeded SIU is second-seeded Oklahoma State.

Daniel Kickert led Saint Mary's (25-9) with 16 points, but made only one field goal after sinking his first three shots. Hairston led SIU with 13 points.

Louisville 68, Louisiana-Lafayette 62

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Francisco Garcia went 7-for-7 from the foul line in the last 2 minutes, and finished with 27 points to help fourth-seeded Louisville advance.

Louisville coach Rick Pitino insisted Louisiana-Lafayette was not a typical No. 13 seed, going as far as to say the Ragin' Cajuns were the most difficult first-round opponent one of his teams has drawn in 10 trips to the tournament.

There were eight lead changes in the second half before Louisville finally went ahead for good, 56-55, on two free throws by Larry O'Bannon with 3:43 to go.

O'Bannon scored 13 points and Taquan Dean has 12 for Louisville (30-4), which now plays Goergia Tech on Sunday. Brian Hamilton led Louisiana-Lafayette (20-11) with 19 points before fouling out. Tiras Wade had 15 points and Chris Cameron added 11.

Georgia Tech 80, George Washington 68

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Jarrett Jack, Will Bynum and B.J. Elder combined to score on six straight possessions in the second half, leading Georgia Tech over George Washington in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Jack had 20 to lead the fifth-seeded Yellow Jackets (20-11), who never won by more than eight points last year in their march to the championship game. Bynum had 17 and Elder added 15 for Georgia Tech.

Pops Mensah-Bonsu scored 15 to lead four players in double figures for 12th-seeded George Washington (22-8), which was just 4-of-16 at the line.

points.

"Everybody just stayed together and we believed in ourselves that we could overcome adversity," Lions guard Jonathan Patton said. "We stayed there tough with them, but the outcome wasn't that good for us."

The teams traded free throws before Curry took charge — first with the drive, and then with the shot. The freshman from North Carolina is the youngest player on the Cowboys' roster, which features five players who have already graduated and two more who'll get their degrees in May.

"He's just an outstanding player for his age," Sutton said. "He has no fear. He's not afraid to take that shot."

Southeastern Louisiana coach Billy Kennedy said the Lions executed their game plan by limiting Lucas and Joey Graham — the Cowboys' top scorers — but it simply wasn't enough.

"We had to play a perfect game and get some breaks, and I didn't think we got any breaks," Kennedy said.

Lucas and Graham had been averaging 18.1 points apiece, but Lucas finished with 12 and Graham — who sat out for 5 1/2 minutes after picking up his fourth foul with 7:05 left — had a season-low seven points on only four shots.

"I've never seen him play as poorly as he did today," Sutton said. "Sometimes he can disappear on you."

Sutton picked up his 780th career win, passing Lou Henson for sixth place on the victories list. It also was his 350th win at Oklahoma State.

He gave credit to a partisan crowd at the Ford Center, which was about 80 percent filled with Cowboys fans wearing orange.

"I've been in 26 NCAA tournaments, and I have never seen a site where one school had that many people," Sutton said. "I don't know what would have happened if they hadn't sent us here."

The Cowboys jumped on top early with 11 straight points to take a 21-9 lead. The Lions fought back to get within 30-24 on a layup by Patton, the younger brother of Oakland Raiders cornerback Charles Woodson. Patton scored eight points as the Lions closed the gap with a 10-5 spurt.

Patton, who had 15 points at halftime, limped off the court with 12:09 remaining with an apparent right leg injury. He returned, still limping, with 2:49 left but did not score.

20, which really makes it fun. I was concerned that we just looked joyless."

Central Florida forced consecutive jump balls after the timeout, getting possession on the second with 54 seconds left. But the UConn defense wouldn't let the Golden Knights get a shot off, and when Kingsley Edwards' layup cut the deficit to five points there were only 23.2 seconds remaining.

"We still gave ourselves a chance, but it was critical," Johnson said, noting that the team mixed up its play call.

The Golden Knights were forced to start fouling, and Marcus Williams made three of four free throws down the stretch.

"I don't think there is a weakness, unless it's depth and youth," Central Florida coach Kirk Speraw said. "You can't 'X' and 'O' against depth and youth."

UConn won nine of 10 to finish the regular season and tie Boston College for the Big East's regular-season title. But since then, the Huskies haven't played well.

They struggled to get past Georgetown in the conference quarterfinals. Against Syracuse the next game, they fell behind by 21 points and rallied within four but couldn't come any closer.

Coming into the first round as a heavy favorite, UConn had just one big vulnerability, and it nearly became a problem.

Williams crumpled to the court with 6:56 left in the first half when he appeared to stretch out his right knee as he took a step. As the teams cleared the floor for the timeout, Calhoun walked out to midcourt and held out his arms as if to say, "Well, what do I do now?"

The Huskies already have lost two backup point guards this season: A.J. Price has been out since October with a brain hemorrhage, and Antonio Kellogg was suspended this week for violating team policy. That left them with forward Ryan Thompson to back up Williams, along with Frenchman Sami Ameziane, who has one assist in 15 minutes in his entire college career.

Make it 16 minutes.

Calhoun sent Thompson in to replace Williams, but on the Huskies' second trip downcourt he was called for carrying on his dribble. Ameziane went into the game, but almost as soon as he did Williams was back off the bench and headed for the scorer's table.

Spiritual renewal event has something for whole family

By Elise Rambaud
Assistant Lifestyle Editor

A retreat, a revival, a renewal — Christians often say their beliefs are the center around which everyday life revolves, but even the most devout can use a few days to reconnect with their faith.

For the past 10 years, Christians numbering in the thousands from Midland, around Texas and from across the nation have come to Stream in the Desert, a three-day non-denominational spiritual renewal event sponsored by Golf Course Road Church of Christ. The family-oriented weekend, dubbed "More Than Thunder," will be held April 1-3 at the Chaparral Center.

"(Stream in the Desert) is not a conference or a seminar. It's not academic knowledge we're sharing, but rather it's more heartfelt in the way it moves you and calls you to change," said event coordinator Kyle McGraw. "We get people coming to Midland from more than 20 different states and more than 200 different cities. This is something they put on their calendar."

Last year, Stream in the Desert attracted nearly 3,000 people — 1,387 families from 235 different cities, McGraw said. Stream has become one of the most economically beneficial religious events to be held in Midland. In 2003, the Texas Department of Economic Development Tourism estimated Stream brought in $963,000 from out-of-

Few churches plan on purchasing blocks of tickets for recut 'Passion'

By Anthony Breznican
USA Today

Last year, officials at the Saddleback Church in Lake Forest, Calif., went on a box-office spree, buying more than 10,000 tickets to "The Passion of the Christ" and distributing them to the faithful.

This year, as "The Passion Recut" hit theaters March 11, in time for Easter March 27, there are no plans to fill theaters with church members again. Says spokesman David Chrzan: "We haven't discussed it."

Although Saddleback and many Christian groups and churches still admire and support the movie, few plan to purchase blocks of tickets or rent entire theaters as they did for the original release. That may be because the movie is already on DVD, or because many people saw it in theaters last year.

"We haven't heard a peep," says Lori Arnold, editor of Christian Examiner News, which chronicled many of the church-sponsored ticket purchases of 2004.

Newmarket Films, which distributed the movie, has a low-ball estimate for how much "Recut" will gross in theaters during its entire run: $25 million. (The original took in $370 million.)

But that doesn't mean there is less passion for "The Passion." Home video sales were robust; 13 million copies were sold on VHS and DVD. It has become a cultural touchstone, and fans complained bitterly when it didn't get a best-picture Oscar nomination this year. It was nominated for three lesser awards but didn't win.

Although the grass-roots momentum that helped make the original movie a hit has faded, "Recut" could create a new wave of admirers by allowing the squeamish to embrace it rather than recoil.

Director Mel Gibson, in a video statement on the "Recut" Web site, says he decided to soften the film after receiving imploring letters from fans.

"Some of you actually said that you wish you could have taken your Aunt Martha, Uncle Harry or your grandmother, some of your older kids, and you thought that perhaps the intensity of the film was prohibitive to those people," Gibson says. "I listened to that, and it inspired me to recut the film to cater to those people that perhaps might not have seen it because of its intensity or brutality."

"Recut" was given an R rating, as was the original. But the distributor chose instead to release the film unrated in the United States to draw a distinction between the two, says Bob Berney, president of Newmarket Films, which is distributing the movie.

Some theaters have policies against showing unrated films and have refused to screen this one. But most of the larger chains have made an exception.

"Many times people feel an unrated film is going to be more extreme. This is a little bit tricky because it's really the opposite of that," Berney says. "But the film is still very, very intense."

In England, he added, the original had a rating limiting it to those 18 and older, while "Recut" will permit those 15 and over.

The Rev. John Bartunek, author of the book "Inside The Passion," says he has seen the original more than 70 times as he has traveled to speak about the movie and its making. His 71-year-old father, however, hasn't seen it because he was put off by the extreme violence. Now Bartunek says his father is ready to get a ticket.

This release does not seem to be the magnet for faith and controversy that the original was.

Dan Marler, pastor of the Church of God in Oak Lawn, Ill., rented a theater for 400 parishioners last year. But this time, he says he might only screen the DVD at church after Good Friday services for those who want to see it again.

The movie "was one of those once-in-a-lifetime occurrences," he says, adding there's a danger if churches embrace the film too much. This is a nice, good movie. It had a profound impact for many believers, but it's not the Bible; it's not Scripture. You can't miss church on Sunday because you saw "The Passion" this week."

Arrival of splinter Mormon group in West Texas makes locals wary

By Michael Graczyk
Associated Press

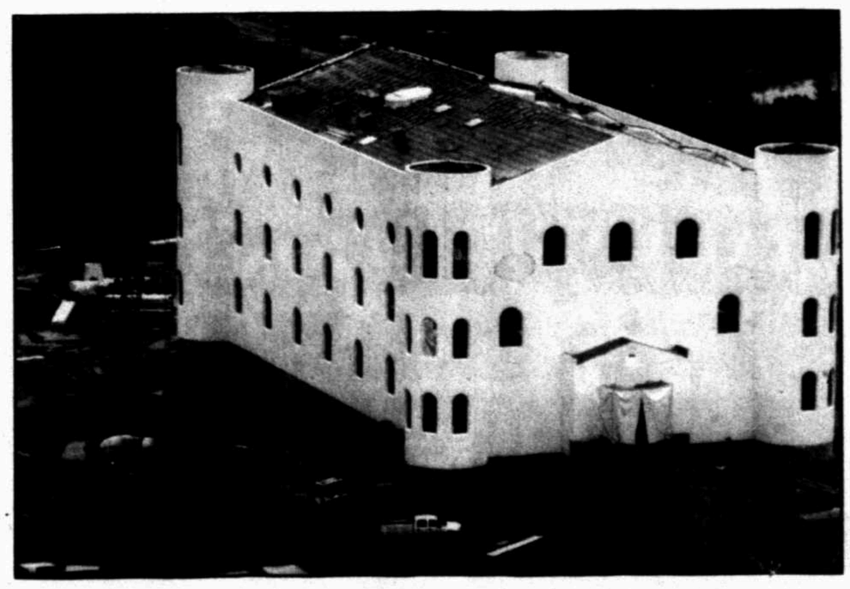

ELDORADO — With the legal heat rising against its leader in Arizona and Utah, a splinter group of polygamous Mormons is hurriedly building a new community in sparsely populated West Texas. But the arrival of the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — marked by a temple tower rising out of the rocky terrain and prickly pear cactus — has been about as welcome among locals as a new species of rattlesnake.

"I think there's reason to be apprehensive, but they've done nothing to warrant any kind of great fear," says Schleicher County Judge Johnny Griffin. "But it's the unknown. ... It's the secrecy that bothers most people. I just hope nothing happens."

The congregation, known as FLDS and led by reclusive prophet Warren Jeffs since his father's death in 2002, is one of several groups that split from the Salt Lake City-based Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the decades after it renounced polygamy in 1890.

The FLDS began migrating 77 years ago to a remote area along the Utah-Arizona state line, where its members live in almost complete seclusion in the twin cities of Hildale, Utah and Colorado City, Ariz. Mem-town guests.

The weekend features guest speaker Mike Cope, pastor of Highland Church of Christ in Abilene and adjunct professor at Abilene Christian University. On April 2, attendants can take a break with lunch and some comic relief from comedian Mike Williams, a former Carrot Top writer and National Association of Christian Comedians Comedian of the Year.

In past years, one of the most popular events has been the Saturday night concert. Mark Schultz, who has topped the Christian music charts and received several Dove award nominations, will perform at 6:30 p.m. April 2 as part of his nationwide tour.

Schultz released his third album, "Stories and Songs" last year, with the title reflecting his emotional narrative songwriting style. One song, "Letters from War," is based on the true story about when his great-grandmother had three sons fighting in World War II. The song's popularity caught the attention of the Pentagon, and they filmed a video for the song to send to troops in Iraq.

A Kansas native and current Nashville resident, Schultz draws his spiritual music inspiration partly from the church where he used to work as a youth pastor and still writes his music. His role as a storyteller is not limited to the music; he frequently tells the story behind the songs when he is on stage. Schultz said his live shows have an intimate, one-on-one, time-shared-between friends feel. He is preparing to release a live performance DVD complete with behind-the-scenes footage.

"Something just happens at the live shows," Schultz said. "They're really interactive and relational. Sometimes I'll just stop in the middle of a song and talk to people. There was this one show I played in Iowa where the audience was so great. We talked back and forth like old friends."

While other Christian events are frequently targeted toward a certain age group, McGraw said Stream offers something for everyone. Worship for the entire family is scheduled, but there also are programs for adults, children and young adults. Child care for infants up to 24 months and children is offered at the Chaparral Center and available for children ages 2 and 3 years old at the Midland College Greathouse Childcare Center. For kids ages 4 through sixth grade, a program will be offered at Midland Christian School.

"This is really a family retreat," McGraw said. "In churches, we find that men will go away for their retreats, women go to retreats for women and we send children to camp. This is for the whole family to go together."

The deadline for Stream in the Desert pre-registration is March 28, but participants can still register at the door. The weekend costs $25 for online registration, $30 by phone or mail and forms are available at Golf Course Road Church of Christ, Family Christian Stores in Midland and Odessa and American State Bank locations.

Tickets for the Mark Schultz concert are available for registered participants for $5 and $10 for the general public. For more information, visit www.streaminthedesert.org or call 553-1500.

SECT

bers are not allowed newspapers, radio, TV or the Internet — and are forbidden to speak with reporters.

The sect, which may have as many as 10,000 members, has a history of polygamy that's long been an open secret in Utah. In civil lawsuits filed recently by former members there, Jeffs is accused of sexual misconduct and of assigning young girls as wives to older men.

But authorities say the accusations aren't sufficient to produce criminal charges because they can't get anyone to talk about Jeffs.

"For three years now, he's been doing everything he can to keep people from cooperating with us and to take steps to avoid our efforts," according to Utah Attorney General Mark Shurtleff, who recently held a town hall meeting on the church with Arizona Attorney General Terry Goddard.

For Larry Donaldson, who has a ranch just up the road from the FLDS site in Texas, Jeffs' move stirs memories of the fiery demise a decade ago of David Koresh and his followers at the Branch Davidian compound outside Waco.

"That's just the thing I thought of," Donaldson said from his pickup truck, a rifle resting on the seat next to him to take care of predators coveting his livestock.

The new complex just north of Eldorado, about 160 miles northwest of San Antonio, includes roughly a dozen concrete and log apartment buildings plus other structures around the fortress-like temple, about 80 feet tall, that's nearing completion.

The main entry to the property is a dirt easement blocked by a locked metal gate. A quarter-mile down the path there's a small guard shack, and someone equipped with binoculars has been spotted atop a construction tower that has a bird's-eye view of the 1,691-acre tract.

The Rev. Joseph Vathalloor, whose small Roman Catholic church is at the intersection of the road leading to the FLDS site, said he and other clergy in town have talked about trying to say hello to Jeffs.

"But what I'm told is he's not seeing anyone," Vathalloor said.

The number of church members in Eldorado is unknown, and while they've been seen only sporadically, they're easily spotted in the town of just under 2,000.

Men and boys wear buttoned-up long-sleeve shirts. Long, loose-fitting pastel-colored dresses are worn by women and girls, who also have long braided hair.

"They don't say much," said Tammy McGinnis, 28, who works at a Shell convenience store not far from the compound where some church men have purchased gasoline. "I said hello to one. He just looked down."

Randy Mankin, editor of the 1,100-circulation Eldorado Success — the town's weekly — says his newspaper has been following the construction of the compound for about year. That's when Mankin took a call from a woman named Flora Jessop inquiring about a local land purchase; she heard it was related to the FLDS.

Five months earlier, a company called YFZ Land LLC spent nearly $700,000 for a former exotic game ranch, prompting chuckles from locals who figured some greenhorn got snookered into paying about twice the value of the place. The buyer's representative initially told real estate agents and police he planned to operate the property as a hunting retreat.

Then pilots using an airstrip nearby reported buildings under construction that looked like something else entirely.

"They told a great big lie," says Jimmy Doyle, the county's justice of the peace.

Jessop, who said she escaped from the church nearly two decades ago and devotes her life to helping others to do so, showed up in Eldorado a week later. She claims she still has contacts within the church, and worries that the congregation's fierce loyalty to Jeffs might one day result in violence.

Yet George Arispe, the Schleicher County sheriff's chief deputy, noted that none has been reported at the site, and that the people he's seen are "hardworking folks" and "awesome contractors, great at what they do."

People who have watched from afar say much the same.

Within two months, the temple foundation was in, steel and decking four floors high was up, the exterior was wrapped in plywood and circular towers like castle lookouts stood at each corner. Now, cream-colored limestone from an onsite quarry is being attached to the temple walls.

Only a handful of nonbelievers have been allowed inside the compound. One woman died last July of breast cancer and her death had to be confirmed by Doyle.

"It was not elaborate, but it was very nice," Doyle said of his visit to the quarters of Barbara Barlow Jeffs, believed one of the 50 to 70 wives of the church leader.

In Texas, where bigamy is a misdemeanor, church men get around the law by declaring only one legal wife. The others are known as "celestial" wives, Doyle said.

Griffin, the county judge, is torn between what is viewed by many as a threat to his county and his respect for the rights of privacy and religious freedom. And Doyle said he can't see any criminal charges "until one of the girls comes into my office and raises her hand and swears they've been molested by so and so, and that's never going to happen."

Associated Press reporter Travis Reed in Hildale, Utah, contributed to this report.

Writer: Yes, of course Jewish leaders wanted Jesus executed

By Richard Ostling
Associated Press

During the Lenten season of 2004 there was considerable fury over Mel Gibson's film "The Passion of the Christ" and its depiction of Jewish leaders conspiring to hand Jesus over to the Romans for crucifixion.

A year later, just in time for Good Friday of 2005, a book by Jewish writer David Klinghoffer says of course that's what the Jewish authorities did: "Why the Jews Rejected Jesus: The Turning Point in Western History" (Doubleday).

He bases that not only on the New Testament — whose history he distrusts to a fair extent — but on the Talmud, Judaism's authoritative compilation of Bible commentary and rabbinic law, and later Jewish sages such as Maimonides.

The Talmud says "on the eve of Passover they hung Yeshu (Jesus)" on charges he "performed magic, enticed and led astray Israel."

Since that's Jewish tradition, "to say that Jewish leaders were instrumental in getting Jesus killed is not anti-Semitic," Klinghoffer insists.

The Talmud also claims Mary conceived Jesus in adultery and Jesus suffers eternal punishment. Fear of Christian persecution caused Jews centuries ago to relegate such materials to footnotes in tiny type or delete them altogether, Klinghoffer says, but the history on this is clear and should be discussed honestly.

Anyway, he says, the real dispute between Jews and Christians concerns whether Jesus was Israel's messiah and the Son of God who properly exercised authority to reinterpret divine law. As a liberal Jew who turned to traditionalism as an adult, the Seattle-area author rejects those Christian beliefs. But he dislikes liberal and secular Jewish movements and respects Christianity's cultural contributions.

For believers like Klinghoffer, the Bible's written law defines the Jewish people, and the traditional "oral law" as found in the Talmud is part of that revelation.

Jesus, however, dismissed oral law "as a human invention" and "felt empowered to read and interpret the Torah for himself" regardless of what the elders taught, Klinghoffer observes, which is one reason observant Jews couldn't accept him.

Even if Jesus was raised from the dead after the crucifixion, Klinghoffer writes, that wouldn't prove him to be the messiah unless "you have already accepted his authority to render interpretations of Scripture contrary to the obvious meaning of the words. ... It works only if you are already a Christian."

Many Jews in Jesus' time wouldn't have heard of him, Klinghoffer says, and those who did had good reason to be skeptical. For one thing, Jesus didn't fit aspects of their expectations for the messiah.

On the Son of God issue, Klinghoffer finds "every reason to think Jesus entertained some extravagant notions about himself. ... The idea that Jesus thought he was God is indeed thinkable," though he says it's more likely this belief developed decades after Jesus' death.

"If the Jews did reject him, that was only so, in effect, passively" and more as a "turning away, a questioning of the authenticity or even the importance of the personas he adopted," he concludes.

As for the book's subtitle, Klinghoffer thinks that if the Jews had embraced Jesus they would have remained bound to the laws on Sabbath observance, kosher diet, circumcision of males and ritual purity, so "the Jesus movement might have remained a Jewish sect."

He then spins out a debatable counterfactual scenario. With Christianity as a minor sect, Europe would have had a spiritual vacuum that Islam would most likely have filled. America would be a totally different country today because it would never have been Christianized.

"It served God's purposes that there be a unique religion, acknowledging him," namely Christianity. It departed from Judaism but continued to revere the God of Israel and "contains the seeds for an ultimate reunification of the peoples in God's service."

However unpleasant, he believes, the ancient divide between Jews and Christians "was indispensable to God's plan."

All that is likely to be equally unsettling for Christians and his fellow Jews.

Performance luxury:

2005 CADILLAC XLR CONVERTIBLE HARDTOP

By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corporation

Every now and then, there is a vehicle that attracts attention from the community at large. Such is the case with the Cadillac [illegible], wide, sleek and sexy, the Cadillac XLR was introduced [illegible] and is making its mark as a luxury roadster with performance roots. Built at the Chevrolet Corvette plant in Bowling Green, Ky., the XLR shares much of its underpinnings with the legendary muscle car. Despite its roots, the XLR's blend of technologies and materials add pleasure to the driving experience.

Driving this convertible hardtop gets a positive reaction from young and old alike. Its chiseled lines are unlike any other coupe on the road today, while the operation of the convertible hardtop always seems to draw a crowd. By pushing and holding a single button, the XLR can convert from coupe to open roadster in less than 30 seconds. The top is constructed of aluminum and magnesium with composite exterior panels, a heated glass backlight and glass rear quarter windows.

Standard technology in the XLR includes head-up display, adaptive cruise control, Magnetic Ride Control, StabiliTrak vehicle stability system,, heated/cooled seating, keyless access with [illegible]-button start and DVD navigation and entertainment syste[illegible]. Cadillac roadster adds a new Dark Eucaly[illegible] wood interior and [illegible]terior paint, replacing last [illegible]'s Thunder Gray. The XLR's [illegible] the [illegible] resemblance to the automaker's exterior [illegible] its product line.

Power is generated by the refined Northstar 4.6L V8 engine and transferred to the pavement through a five-speed electronically-controlled automatic transmission.

On the road, the XLR is responsive and willing at speed. The overall driving experience behind the wheel is classy and understated – yet with an unmistakable personality. Despite its width, the XLR boasts an impressive turning radius.

At the heart of the roadster's road manners is its backbone. Based on GM's new performance car architecture, the foundation uses hydroformed steel perimeter frame rails, an enclosed structural "tunnel," an aluminum cockpit structure and balsa-cored composite floors.

This serves as the basis for the XLR's suspension hardware, with double wishbones at each corner, combined with transverse-mounted composite leaf springs front and rear. The Cadillac is shod with Michelin ZP Extended Mobility tires with advanced run-flat technology that eliminates the need for a spare and provides outstanding overall tire performance.

Electronic control systems that work with the suspension hardware includes Magnetic Ride Control – a computer controlled active system with adjustable, computer-controlled shock absorbers and Magnasteer – a magnetically controlled speed-sensitive steering system.

Contemporary luxury is reflected inside the cabin, with unique eucalyptus wood in light or dark tones combined with aluminum accents. The gauges were designed in conjunction with Italian luxury brand Bvlgari for a genuine upscale look. Seating is both heated and cooled in the back and in the cushion.

A seven-inch color touch screen mounted in the upper center [illegible] gives driver and passenger access to DVD navigation. The [illegible] system and DVD entertainment system [illegible] audio system with in-dash six-CD changer. In fact, the only [illegible] XLR is XM Radio at $325.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
Two years ago when we moved to the city, I found what I thought was a great 2-bedroom apartment for only $1450/month. It has taken me a while to meet the neighbors, but I just became friends with a girl from downstairs. At dinner the other night she mentioned that she only pays $600 for her 2-bedroom apt. I almost spilled my wine. How is that possible? To alleviate the shock, she said that hers is a rent-controlled apartment, assuming that explained the whole thing. I'm from the burbs and have never heard of "rent control". What is it? And more importantly, how do I get it?

Cash: If you're from the suburbs, you probably have a lot to learn about city life. If you thought the subways were confusing, just wait until you try to keep track of the rent rates.

Carry: It's amazing how two apartments that are basically identical can have vastly different rents. Although, $1450 for the area you're living in may be quite good.

Cash: However, $600 would be a lot better.

Carry: Rent control is a form of legislation that you may find in major Metropolitan areas like New York or , Chicago among others. It was initially designed to protect tenants in the early-to-mid 1900's when there were housing shortages and rents would increase almost monthly.

Cash: Although today as New York, the original rent control city, marks it's 62nd year of regulations, there is much controversy over the effectiveness of rent control.

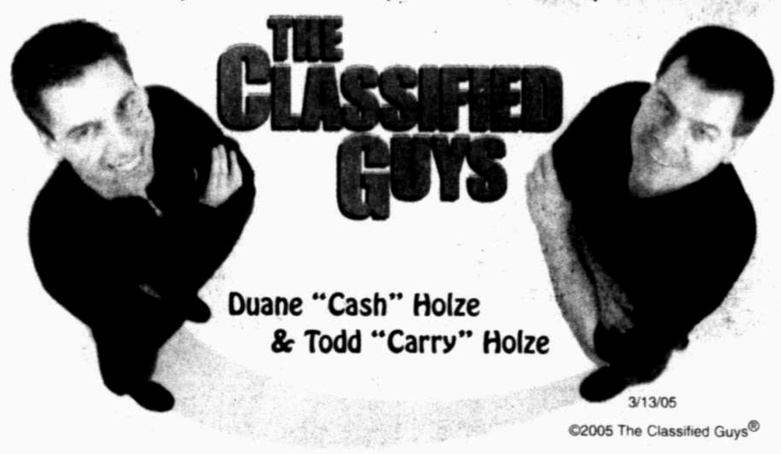

Carry: Some states, such as Massachusetts, have been leaning toward doing away with rent control altogether. Others, like New York, renew the laws to avoid the major controversy.

Cash: As you can personally attest to, rent control can even be upsetting to tenants within the same building.

Carry: Now as informative as all this is, none of it really helps your situation. So here is what you need to know. Be glad you found an apartment at a reasonable cost. Before the dinner party, you were probably quite happy with your find.

Cash: Rent controlled apartments are rarely ever listed for rent and many are converted to non rent control units when tenants move out.

Carry: If you want more information specific to your location, you can contact your city's Department of Housing. But in the meantime, I'd avoid spilling that wine on the carpet. It could affect your future rent.

Fast Facts

Under Fire

Many people today enjoy the benefits of rent control, but few know how it started? It dates back to the early 1900's in New York City. With the influx of immigration from Europe, rent prices continually increased leading to "rent strikes" among many of the tenants. Laws throughout the 20's and 30's failed to control the situation. In 1943, legislation was passed to regulate rent control for the city. Today, each state or city maintains it's own regulations for rent control.

Complex

Financial experts suggest that your rent should be no more than one-third of your monthly income. However to be sure, calculate what you can afford BEFORE your rent. Add up all of your monthly expenses, such as car or credit card payments. Include estimates for food and entertainment. Then add in your estimated cost of rent and utilities. If the total is more than your monthly income, you may need to look for a cheaper place to live.

Reader Humor

Welcome Home

As a real estate agent in the city, I get a diverse group of people looking to find a suitable apartment. One gentleman calls me every few years looking for a new place to live.

Last week, after only a year, he called me yet again. "It's time to move," he said.

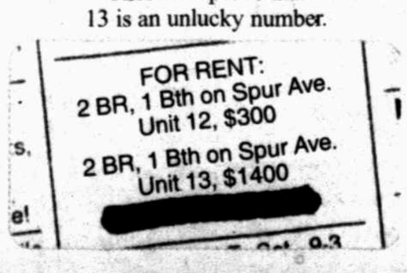

Now since I've gotten to know him over the years, I felt comfortable asking, "Jim, why do you want to move again? It must be difficult adjusting to a new place, especially since you're blind."

"It is," he laughed in return. "But I love the change of scenery."
